R-C-S sets new vote

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School Board decided Monday to resubmit its 1982-83 budget to the voters July 29 with $45,000 in cuts plus six propositions totaling $142,464. The revisions, coupled with an unanticipated increase in state aid, mean taxes would decrease in all sections of the district.

The board had announced at last Thursday's informational meeting at the high school auditorium that, because the state legislature had overridden Gov. Hugh-Carey's veto of an equalization tax package, a rise in area tax rates — as anticipated in the school board's first proposed budget — had been averted.

"As a result," said board vice president Howard Engles at that time, "RCS will receive from the state — out of your other pockets, if you will — $385,000 more than we expected."

Superintendent Milton Chodack said Tuesday he has not yet worked out the new property tax rates, but that the decrease would be even lower than "dramatic" decreases outlined by Engles at last Thursday's meeting. At that meeting, district residents were told that in the Bethlehem portion of the district what had been projected as a $4.27 per $1,000 of assessed valuation increase in taxes was now projected as a $6.04 decrease. Only in New Scotland, plagued with its own equalization problems, was the rate still up, but Chodack said Tuesday that with the new cuts even New Scotland will show a decrease.

District voters rejected the board's first $9.4 million budget June 23 by 30 votes.

Chodack said the six propositions will allow voters to decide separately on in-district busing (whether elementary school children living more than two

Neighbors oppose transfer plan

Officially, the Bethlehem Town Board has nothing more controversial to deal with at tonight's (Wednesday's) meeting than the question of where to put the new stickers allowing town residents to use the land fill.

But the board's continuing struggle with the solid waste disposal problem is beginning to draw more than flies. Tonight the board will also receive a delegation of homeowners on Elm Ave. East, near what has emerged as the prime site for the town's proposed solid waste transfer station.

The station is supposed to allow Bethlehem to close down most of its landfill operations and ship solid waste to the Albany ANSWERS shredding plant on Rapp Rd. Collection trucks would unload at the station, and large transfer vehicles would be loaded there for the trip to Albany.

The site behind the town garage, on land already owned by the town, is one of several recommended by a consultant and has drawn favorable comments by Supervisor Tom Corrigan and other board members.

Rescuer risks fire, live lines

The willingness of a Glenmont man to risk live power lines and possible explosion may have saved the life of the passenger in a fiery crash Saturday on Rt. 9W.

The driver of the vehicle, Michael W. Rice, 21, of East Greenbush, faces charges of driving while intoxicated, reckless driving, speeding and failing to keep right, according to Bethlehem police. According to reports, Rice's car was traveling at a high rate of speed north on Rt. 9W near Wemple Rd. shortly before noon when the driver lost control, crossed the road and hit a utility pole.

"I saw the whole thing happen," Thomas Keefe, of Wiggand Dr., Glenmont recalled Monday. "He hit so hard the pole went up in the air and landed on top of the car."

Keefe, a 20-year-old Hudson Valley Community College student, had been working at nearby Heath's Dairy and ran to the accident scene. The driver was dazed and in shock, but appeared to be all right, he said. His passenger, 19-year-old Deborah Chambers of Glenmont, was covered with blood and barely conscious. The impact had dropped wires onto the car, and the engine had burst into flames.

"I took a chance touching the car, but I couldn't stand seeing her there," said Keefe. Fortunately, a circuit breaker had tripped when the line fell and it was not hot. Keefe first checked the girl for injuries and then pulled her out of the car and across the road out of harm's way.

Shortly after that, there were "one or two small explosions" near the engine, Keefe said.

Officer Wayne LaChappelle, who had been nearby when the accident occurred, arrived moments later and moved the girl further away from a possible explosion. The Selkirk Fire Department put out the fire and both Rice and Chambers were taken to Albany Medical Center, where they were treated and released.

Budget defeat debated at packed board meeting

By Vinny Reda

Confusion, frustration, somewhat flamboyant instances of rhetoric and angry charges abounded at last Thursday's informational meeting of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school board, a not uncommon scenario in an era of recession and what seems to be unavoidably rising educational costs.

It is just that R-C-S school district's time has officially arrived: In June, it's voters, for the first time in history, rejected a proposed school budget. The informational meeting brought nearly 100 of those voters together in the high school auditorium with the school board members and administrators whose painstaking budgetary decisions they'd rejected.

Feelings were high, and some were hurt. Board members gave reports on various areas of the budget, and stated they were not present to argue but to give facts, yet few could avoid adding that, if a budget had been passed, "more important" school district decisions could be dealt with.

Residents largely showed perplexity at the size of the $9.4 million budget price tag, compared to the relative inexperience of the services that would be taken away from students in a state-dictated austerity budget — cuts in bus runs, elimination of the school lunch program, field trips, stationery supplies, new building renovations and interscholastic sports.

"These things only cost $5,000, $10,000 and $20,000," said one mother. "These things cost nothing. We're talking about $9 million!"

She was, in large measure, talking about uncontrollables. "Nearly 82 percent of what we have in this budget is mandated by the state," said Dr. Milton Chodack, superintendent of schools, in commenting on the situation Monday. "And that was the figure estimated in 1979-80. I'm certain it's higher now."

"The state required that you have

Village up in arms. A group of about 25 residents met recently, and have been circulating a petition opposing the site, according to Mrs. Jean Wood, a Dowerskill resident. The residents will present the petitions at the board meeting and ask for a full discussion in August, she said Monday.

"We find it very frightening," she said. "We're going to ask a lot of questions." Of particular concern is the increased traffic on Elm Ave. East — "One of the reasons most of us moved here is that it's a small country road," Mrs. Wood said.

Other concerns are noise, odor and possible rodents and insects, she said. And underlying all those concerns are the question of what the transfer station would do to property values, said Mrs. Wood.

Corrigan said Monday he loaned the group his copy of the reports made by the town's consultant, Standard Engineering of Albany, and will make sure the group's questions are answered as fully as possible. In previous presentations,

Standard representatives have stressed that the transfer stations are clean and unobjectionable.

The solid waste legislation before the board tonight is to set fees for dumping at the town landfill in South Bethlehem. Town residents, as they always have been, will be allowed to dump free, but now will be required to show proof of residency.

Corrigan said he is recommending an all-purpose sticker that will be attached to the non-glass side of the rear view mirror of a vehicle. It would have the vehicle's license number and would be good until the owner changed either the license plates or the vehicle. The sticker could be used as a pass for other town facilities, such as the Elm Ave. Park, Corrigan said.

A son, Joshua Daniel, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Porter, formerly of South Bethlehem and Delmar, on June 9. The Porters have lived in Spartanburg, South Carolina for over ten years. Joshua weighed in at 6 lbs., 5 ounces.

Road repairs set

The state Department of Transportation has announced plans for road repairs in Bethlehem, Ravena and Coeymans.

The bridge carrying Rt. 85 over the Thruway and another carrying Rt. 140 over Delaware and Hudson railroad tracks will have their decks repaired and roadbeds resurfaced with a concrete specially resistant to penetration by moisture and salts.

Rt. 143 in Coeymans and Ravena will be widened from 28 to 30 feet for 1.1 miles between Rts. 144 and 9W. New curbs and sidewalks will be constructed and the roadway will be resurfaced with asphalt.

Damage at school

An estimated $250 in damage to a swing set and picnic tables was done by vandals at the Bethlehem Preschool in Glenmont Thursday night, according to Bethlehem police.

certain programs, therefore you have to have teachers, remedial people, whatever."

Many residents expressed surprise at the high expense — $360,000 — of the Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) programs, yet board member Susan Gottesman called the rises in these costs beyond the board's control.

The full cost of BOCES might not be beyond board control, however, says Chris Carpenter, assistant public information director for the state Education Department. "A common argument here is that 'the education department made us do it all,'" said Carpenter. "But there's two sides to that coin.

"Fully 80 percent of BOCES budget is personnel costs that we don't get involved with. That is for the school districts to contract for themselves."

One resident brought up this very point, at the meeting, to district clerk Charles Emery. "Do we have someone representing the school district at these BOCES planning meetings?"

"Yes we do," said Emery. "We have two representatives."

"Are these representatives austerity minded?"

"They are not austerity minded," said Emery.

At another point, the fact another controllable — the school's central administration costs — was about double, per capita, the national average for school districts, brought another challenge to Emery.

"Did you get a raise last year?" asked New Baltimore resident Bil Delahanty.

"No, I did not," said a calm, smiling Emery.

"Did you get an assistant?"

"Yes, I did," answered Emery, still smiling.

Arlene Jordan, a North Colonie teacher who lives in the R-C-S district, said she was against any austerity measures affecting children, but questioned certain benefits given board members and administrators.

"Why is there an assistant principal at the high school and junior high school? One would do for both. And we don't need an assistant to the clerk of the board. And why is a school vehicle being used by the superintendent of Buildings and Ground to go back and forth to have lunch at home?"

"And last year, was it necessary for six board members to attend the national school board member conference in Texas? This year it's in San Francisco — are we going to have the same thing happen again? ... And why, when it came to sending board members to the state convention in Buffalo, was there only one board member who attended?" The audience chuckled.

Monday, Dr. Chodack defended his administration costs, saying "Yes, I have an assistant superintendent. This guy gets paid little more than a teacher and he brings in about $150,000 a year in extra income."

As one resident at the meeting suggested, could not Dr. Chodack accomplish the same thing by himself?

"Sure I could," said Chodack. "We could also have teachers teaching until five o'clock every day, doing nine or 12 classes. Listen, I'm not debating with you. Some people say there should be less administration. They want more discipline, but they want less administration."

As to the board members' trips, board President Prescott Archibald said Monday the national convention is a "working convention" with so much going on "six board members can't cover it." The state meetings are smaller and require less board attendance, he said.

Still, the climate of the meeting seemed to call for change. Residents were moved by the harshness of the austerity terms, although many did not appear to fully understand that a few propositions could add back the items of their choice, such as the busing of K-8 students living within two miles of school, and 9-12 grade students within three miles. During the meeting, the lack of this busing was continually referred to by board members in the words "children forced to walk," as if parents would not be allowed to drive their children.

Residents want busing, but regardless, as Ravenna resident Charles Spears, a retiree, stated, "You are not going to stuff this budget down our throats."

A budget supporter countered from across the auditorium to Spears, "You were at the meetings all year. But where were the other people who turned down this budget? Why weren't they providing input all year, offering suggestions all year?"

"They were saving their energy for voting," Spears said.

miles from school or high school students three miles from school should be bused), out-of-district busing, the school lunch program, library books, interscholastic athletics and summer driver education.

The board had cut summer driver education immediately after the first budget defeat, but Chodack said it could be reinstated immediately after the July 29 vote if the proposition passes.

Glenmont woman dies in crash

Bethlehem police are considering what charges to bring against the driver of a car that rammed head-on into a car driven by a 20-year-old Glenmont resident Friday night while driving the wrong way on Rt. 85.

Michelle E. Martin, of 45 West Bayberry Rd., died Sunday at Albany Medical Center as a result of injuries suffered in the crash.

The other driver, George F. Donnelly, 29, of Cohoes, remains in serious condition at the hospital.

According to police reports, Donnelly was driving a state vehicle north on Rt. 85 near the Albany city line shortly before midnight Friday. His car apparently went into the south-bound lane where the road becomes a divided highway and traveled about 30 feet before striking the Martin vehicle.

Both drivers were trapped in their cars. Miss Martin was freed by the Albany Rescue Squad, and Donnelly by the Slingerlands Rescue Squad.

Hepatitis alert still in force

The state Health Department has issued an alert for people who may have eaten raw or partially cooked clams purchased around Memorial Day from Ocean State Seafood in Delmar to be alert for symptoms of hepatitis.

These symptoms include vomiting, fever, fatigue, yellowing of the skin or eyes and dark urine, and can show up anywhere from 15 to 50 days after eating the contaminated food, a health department spokesman said. That time limit means there may still be undetected cases of the disease, although state and county health officials report no new cases beyond the three reported in a press release issued last Friday.

Those three individuals reportedly ate raw clams at a Memorial Day party in Delmar, and as a result of the outbreak, a number of other persons who had attended the party were given gamma globulin shots as a precaution.

As a result of the incident, Ocean State was charged with a violation of state Agriculture and Market laws requiring tagging of seafood to determine origin. The company paid a $25 fine in Bethlehem Town Court as the result of a "civil compromise," according to a spokesman for the state Agriculture and Markets Department.

The department also tested two bags of confiscated clams, but the results were "inconclusive," the spokesman said.

Gas pumps near school denied

By Vincent Potenza

The Bethlehem Board of Appeals has decided not to allow VSH Realty, Inc. to build a Cumberland Farms store and two other retail units at the intersection of Rt. 9W and Feura Bush Rd. adjacent to the Bethlehem preschool in Glenmont.

The company applied to the board for a special exception from the zoning ordinance so it could store 24,000 gallons of gasoline for sale to the public at the site.

A long resolution read by Board Attorney Donald DeAngelis at last Wednesday's meeting cited testimony from area residents at a public hearing for the proposal their chief concern was traffic congestion at the busy intersection and the proximity of the preschoolers. On that basis the board denied the application.

The board also held two public hearings that night, the first of which was for Robert and Jeanne Gold of 35 Woodstream Dr., Delmar. The Golds sought a variance from the percentage-of-lot-occupancy provision of the zoning ordinance so they could construct an addition to their home. No one in attendance was opposed.

BETHLEHEM

The second public hearing was for Stewart's Ice Cream Company and Dake Bros., who have purchased the Stop N Go at 309 Delaware Ave., Delmar, and a site on Old Rt. 9W near the Miss Glenmont Diner and Red Star Express trucking company. Both stores will sell gasoline from three self-service pumps, have three booths for on-premises eating and be open from 7 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Spokesmen for Red Star and the Miss Glenmont Diner expressed concern over the possibility of children on bicycles contending with trucks at the 9W site, but Chairman Charles Fritts pointed out that it wasn't likely they would be near the highway to begin with.

If the board approves the proposal, renovations at the sites would begin in August. The Stewart's on Delaware Ave. in Elsmere would move down the road shortly thereafter.

Rescuers in the right place

The right place at the right time for two Delmar men was at the foot of an Adirondack falls so remote and dangerous that the state is thinking of taking it off the map.

But because they and two Albany friends were there at the foot of T-Lake Falls in Hamilton County July 4, Robert R. Farrington, 26, of Herkimer, survived a 350-foot fall — the last 150 feet a straight drop — with little more than a fractured wrist and jaw and a lot of abrasions. He was released from Albany Medical Center Friday.

"He's the only guy who's ever fallen over that falls and made it," said Forest Ranger Tom Eakins Friday.

That fall is equivalent to going off the top of the Alfred E. Smith building in Albany. By contrast, the Rt. 9W bridge over the Normanskill is only 119 feet above the water.

Farrington landed in a pool of water at the base of the falls, where the four friends were relaxing after a day's hike. "We knew he was in trouble," says Leo Burke III of Delmar. "We didn't know whether he was alive or not. He was knocked out in the water."

David Nickel of Delmar and Jim Yates of Albany pulled Farrington out of the water. By that time, says Burke, Farrington was calling for help, but the hikers had no idea how badly he was hurt so Burke decided he'd better get help — six miles away. "I ran some and walked some," he said.

As it happened, another hiker had witnessed the fall from the top of the falls, and, taking another route, beat Burke to the ranger station by some 10 minutes.

Eakins ordered a helicopter from Albany and then flew into T-Lake in a private plane to assess the situation. He was surprised to find Farrington already at the top of the falls, carried up on an improvised stretcher by the three remaining hikers. Moving the injured man was not the right thing to do, Eakins stressed, although in this case no harm was done. But after the last death at the falls — three have died in the last 12 years — he had scouted out a helicopter landing spot at the base of the falls.

In any event, the state helicopter arrived, plucked the now-ambulatory Farrington from a marshy spot on the lake and flew him back to Albany.

Eakins said he plans to recommend that the trail to T-Lake be rerouted so that it will no longer be necessary to climb up or down the falls, a drop of 650 feet of slippery rock.

NEW SCOTLAND

Participants are already gearing up for the Town of New Scotland Sesquicentennial Day July 24. Festivities will include a parade, races and contests, craft demonstrations and historical exhibits.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. in New Salem and go along Rt. 85A to Martin Rd. Coordinators suggest viewers park at the Albany County Highway Department grounds on 85A, the field opposite Martin Rd., in front of the baseball diamond at the Village Pub, or at Voorheesville High School.

It's requested that only those participating in the parade go to New Salem. There will be no parking along 85A, and the suggested viewing areas are the highway department grounds, the high school lawn, and the slope facing Martin Rd.

Lots of activities will take place at the high school after the parade. There will be a sack race for boys and girls up to 10 years old, sprints for ages seven to 10, 11 to 13, and 13 and over, held separately for boys and girls.

There will be a hoop rolling contest for two age groups and three-legged races. A horseshoe pitching contest is on the slate for adults, along with a rolling pin throwing contest for women and a nail driving contest for men.

The men will be able to test their lungs in a cow calling contest, and the women can try their luck at husband calling. All participants will receive a wooden nickel commemorating the sesquicentennial, and winners will be awarded ribbons.

For those requiring still more diversion there will be games of skill and a dunking tub.

Craft demonstrations reminiscent of days of yore will be another highlight of the day. Local artisans will be showing spectators how to do basket weaving, candle making, chair caning, how to make stained glass and how to fashion hooked rugs.

Those curious about New Scotland's past will have a chance to see historical exhibits by various local churches and organizations, and there will be booths depicting the aims of numerous civic groups.

There will be exhibits of old toys, a farmhouse kitchen, old farm and carpenters' tools. Antique cars that participated in the parade will be parked for closer scrutiny, and the Village Volunteer Militiamen will do demonstrations.

Featured for the day will be a flag ceremony sponsored by the New Scotland Lodge of Elks, the honoring of the oldest native citizen of the Town of New Scotland, and the crowning of the New Scotland's Lad and Lassie.

Board gets petition

The New Scotland Town Board is faced with a petition opposing a variance for property on Swift Rd., but so far no request for the variance.

At its brief meeting last week, the board received the petition from 40 residents asking the board to deny any variance for property on the rural road on the grounds that "the resulting business operation would alter the residential character of this neighborhood." The board took no action on the matter.

In other business, the board discussed complaints of spraying of weeds by Niagara Mohawk along its rights-of-way. Board members agreed that an inquiry should be made to the company and to the state Environmental Conservation Department.

The board also approved a request by the Helderberg Family Campground to allow 300 to 500 people to use the site for a convention this week.

The making of a church

The Unionville Reformed Church, its octagonal tower enhanced by dentil moldings, indicative of its Greek Revival architectural style, has stood as a witness to the temporal and spiritual endeavors of its people for 157 years. Many of us are familiar with the delicious dinners presented by the ladies and men of this congregation to the general public as a means of monetary support. The story of this church, and many others in our community, goes much deeper than good home-style cooking. The history of this congregation and others will be presented in Spotlight articles now and in the future.

Both the Unionville and the Feura Bush Reformed churches are together the successors of what is commonly referred to as "The Old Jerusalem Church," which stood somewhere along South Road, between the two villages. This pioneer church was organized in 1791 and shares continuity with such early Dutch Reformed churches as First Bethlehem, 1763, New Salem, 1785, and Helderberg, which stood midway between Altamont and Guilderland Center, 1767.

This old Jerusalem Church, reputedly a stone structure, in the 34 years of its existence was united with New Salem and Helderberg churches under one pastor, Rev. Harmanus Van Huysen. He was ordained to the ministry at the age of 43, coming to this his one and only pastorate in 1794, and continuing to serve until 1825, a period of 31 years.

Much of his travelling to the three widely separated churches had to be done on horseback over cart tracks hacked from the dense woods.

The old church records, so carefully kept by the consistories of each church and Domine Van Huysen, are still in existence. Some were written in the Dutch language in the early years. The call to the Domine states that he shall spend one in three Sundays in each of the three churches, preaching twice a Sunday from Easter until October and once a Sunday in winter, using both Dutch and English language.

He received a parsonage and 44 acres of land for his use at Helderberg. He was allowed two or three weeks vacation to harvest his crops and a salary of 140 pounds. He did maintain a residence at New Salem, since it was midway in his territory and he is buried on part of his property which now encompasses the Mt. Pleasant Cemetery there.

It is difficult in today's world of telephones and automobiles to think of the arduous journeys of this minister of the gospel. Much of his travelling to the three widely separated churches in his charge had to be done on horseback over cart tracks hacked from the dense woods, roads which were scarcely deserving of the name. Not only did he perform baptisms, marriages and officiate at funeral services, but he also kept records of all these and preached sermons in two languages, catechized the young, visited the congregational members in a wide area, kept track of financial matters and attended Classical meetings at Albany. He also ran a 44-acre farm to provide for his daily bread. Certainly he could never have been bored with life!

With the passing of Domine Van Huysen in 1825 not only was the combination of the three churches broken up, but it seems that the old stone Jerusalem church ceased to exist. The building was taken down, the organization moved to Feura Bush and the present Jerusalem church building erected there. The people of the congregation living in the environs of Unionville combined to form a new church known as "Union", with Rev. Ira C. Boice the first minister, serving both Union and New Salem Reformed churches.

The church building was erected on one acre of ground purchased from Adam Long and David Cheseborough in 1825. The congregation began with 26 members and in 1832 a significant revival took place in which 53 members were added to the rolls. In 1837 a parsonage was erected and in 1838 stoves were placed in the church for winter heat and fences surrounding the building were repaired with the admonition that "hereafter nothing be allowed to pasture therein."

The building has its original wainscoting on the interior of the sanctuary and the balcony and its pews have been untouched, as well as the pulpit and its platform. However the original pine box pews have been replaced with oak pews and stained glass windows replaced the clear glass windows in 1924. In 1853 the pews were for the first time rented, for the purpose of raising funds for the minister's salary. Charitable provision was made "that the front seat on the right side of the west aisle be reserved for the aged and indigent widows."

Next: Human frailties and a new church.

Men and boys of the Unionville Reformed Church washing clams in the Onesquethaw Creek. Every September the congregation prepared a clamsteam, open to the public, as one means of raising funds for church expenses.

Unionville School, Delaware Turnpike, circa 1897-99, just below the present Unionville Fire House. This building was used until 1908 when it was replaced by a new school built to the east of the Unionville Church, also on Delaware Turnpike. Spotlight on the services

Weatherization aid available

Albany County Cooperative Extension Association has received $51,000 to continue its low income weatherization program until Oct. 30.

Funded through the state Division of Economic Opportunity, the program is designed to help low income individuals and families conserve energy and combat rising fuel prices. Preference is given to the handicapped and the elderly. All types of dwellings, including rentals, are eligible.

The free service includes caulking windows and glass replacement, weatherstripping and attic and wall insulation, according to Thomas Rotello, county weatherization coordinator.

If an applicant meets the income guidelines, an evaluator will conduct a pre-inspection of the home to determine exact weatherization needs. Next, contractors will come to estimate the work and submit bids to the program office. After the job is done the evaluator will return to complete a post-inspection.

For information, call the weatherization program at Albany County Cooperative Extension Association, 765-2365.

Focus On Faith

Rev. Gerald Metcalf

The Solid Rock Church, Glenmont

Going door to door on a Sunday School canvass, I met up with a man who said that he was a communist. In the conversation that ensued he made a statement to the effect that "religion has failed to solve the basic problems of the world." He quickly pointed to things such as the rich getting richer, the poor getting poorer, war, hunger and prejudice. His solution was, of course, world communism. Looking at the religious scene, with all of its complexities, we can immediately recognize big faults within the system.

As a pastor I can readily admit to human failure in the home, local church, and community. The world is better in some places and worse in others, but has Jesus Christ and the Christian faith failed or has religion failed? There is a difference.

There are Christians within so-called Christianity. There is a true church within the religious system. Today we actually do have two entities within the Christian religion. One is dead, formal, cold and archaic. The other is alive, spontaneous, warm and contemporary. One is filled with irrelevant ritual and the other relates to the total man.

We have a Biblical parallel. Most of us are familiar with the Tabernacle Plan given by Moses. However, few know anything of the Tabernacle of David. Moses died and so did the awareness of his mission. Israel settled down to spiritual "detente" with the inhabitants of the land. Consequently, they were infected and diluted with purposelessness. Soon the meaningful worship and sacrifice offered in the Tabernacle of Moses eroded away to empty formalism.

They were a religion in name and custom but not in experience.

Eventually the very Ark of God's presence was lost in battle by two wicked priests who were sons of the high priest. Israel did not see the Ark of the Covenant again until it was regained by King David. When David returned with the ark, he did not bring it back to the Tabernacle of Moses which now stood in Shilo but rather set up a new tabernacle near Jerusalem.

Now they had two tabernacles within one religion. The priest in Shilo still carried out the ritual of their office. But the ark was in the Tabernacle of David.

Religion took on new form. The land was encouraged. People began to worship the God of their fathers with fresh awareness of His reality. Once again the Ark of God became the enter of Israel's life. Their religion was no longer a ritual but a reality.

If Christianity is to affect today's world, we will have to move from yesterday's tradition. We need a new tabernacle. The apostle James addressed this need and fresh anointing when he pointed to the prophesy of Amos, in Acts 15:16: "After this I will return and will build again the tabernacle of David." This is encouraging because what the Church needs is rebuilt, not just remodeled. Out of Christianity, God is building Christians. From the clergy God is calling ministers. From the Sabbath Day sacrament, God is speaking a seven day commitment. Out of meaningless mesmerism and ecclesiastical confusion people are flocking to the new tabernacle.

Twelve Elsmere students were recently awarded certificates for having read at least 15 minutes a day, seven days a week, for forty weeks; a total of 70 hours of reading since the beginning of the school year. The "voracious" readers are: Lara Jacobson, Lelie MacDowell, Sara Donnaruma, Drew Reynolds, Alix Miller, Jamie Lyman, Michele Kaufman, Joy Irish, librarian Joan Barron, Brian Davies, Brigid Shogan, Jesse Jack and Brian Phillips.

Renewal, restoration and revival are once again the desire of God's people.

Yes, my friend, religion has failed to solve the basic problems of the world, but through Jesus Christ we shall overcome the world and its problems.

Parents' group forms

A new parents' organization "Concerned Parents of Bethlehem" has set Monday, Aug. 2, for its initial meeting. The group, which will meet at the Bethlehem Public Library at 7 p.m., will focus on parents' concern about substance abuse and recreational drinking in the community. The group's first guest speaker will be Nancy Haller, director of the Albany County Prevention Education Treatment Program. All concerned parents are invited to attend the support group's initial meeting.

The group will be working in coordination with Parks and Recreation Administrator Phil Mahar, who is presently chairman of the town's Youth Advisory Council on Substance Abuse.

Trees and forests

Can't see the forests for the trees? Five Rivers Environmental Education Center has scheduled two programs this Saturday that may be of help. A tree identification workshop for adults is scheduled for 10 a.m. on the center grounds, Game Farm Road, Delmar. This workshop will cover characteristics and identification techniques of common trees in the Capital District. Participants should dress for the outdoors. Field guides would be appropriate.

Participants must register in advance to secure a place, although the workshop is free of charge. Call the center at 457-6092.

A public walk to investigate the forest is scheduled for 2 p.m. The interdependence of wildlife, plants and the physical features of the forest will be emphasized. Sturdy footgear is appropriate.

Please send your new address to The Spotlight two weeks before you move.

Solar power as an investment

When we entered the "Age of Solar Power" back in 1978, there was hope that we could free ourselves from the energy crisis.

Looking back five years later, we find those promises came true — in part. It is possible, to cut your household fuel bill with solar energy, but so far only up to 30%.

Still, for many homeowners solar can be a good long-range investment. Right now the only affordable product is the solar hot water heater. And even its average $3,360 price is high.

But they will save energy and save you money. And they have proven to increase property values. They are simple to use, cheap to operate and they are safe. Most important, they qualify for lucrative tax credits that can cut their cost in half.

Solar hot water heaters . . . are simple to use, cheap to operate and they are safe. Most important, they qualify for lucrative tax credits.

If you are interested in solar power, do some research now. There is no reason to wait — the technology isn't going to improve that much. The units being sold today are essentially the same as the units sold 60 years ago.

The system is simple: solar collectors are mounted on the roof to attract and absorb the sun's radiant energy. A series of small water-filled pipes form a grid

Right
On The Money

inside the collectors and then loop through the house to form another grid inside a water storage tank.

The water is pumped constantly through the pipes being heated by the collectors and transferring the heat to the stored water in the tank. A back-up electric heating unit will take over on overcast days and at night.

New Yorkers generally heat water from 55 to 140 degrees. For many people, a solar unit can heat water to about 125 degrees in summer and 90 degrees in winter. In other words, solar takes over 60% of the job of heating water—and you don't pay for the sun's energy. (A good detailed buyers guide to solar water heaters is the federal government's "Hot Water from the Sun" available for $7.25 through the SEIA, 1001 Connecticut Ave. NW, Suite 800, Washington D.C. 20036).

And through 1985, the government will pick up 55% of the purchase price. This is done through tax credits. The federal government will give you a tax credit equal to 40 percent of the installation cost or up to $4,000. New York State will give you an additional credit of 15 percent, up to $2,750. Your maximum total credit, therefore, is $6,750.

And a tax credit is better than a deduction. It's a dollar-for-dollar reduction of your tax bill. If you have a $1,000 credit, you pay $1,000 less in income taxes. (But remember, this is good only once and you must be dealing with your primary house, not a vacation home).

How much you can cut your monthly utility bill depends on how much hot water you use, the temperature you heat it to and the price you pay for electricity.

If you installed a $3,800 solar water heater and applied for credits, you would reduce your federal tax bill by $1,520 (40%) and your state tax by $570 (15%). Your net cost of installation would be only $1,710.

How much can you cut your monthly utility bill depends on how much hot water you use, the temperature you heat it to and the price you pay for electricity. In general, a family of four pays 5.6-cents per kilowatt hour for electricity, uses 450 gallons of hot water a week and heats that water 85 degrees (from 55 to 140 degrees).

If a solar water heater was installed to provide 55 percent of the power to heat water, the family's water heating costs would fall from $320 to $140 (an annual savings of $180), according to a recent study by the Consumers Union, the independent consumer products testing company.

If the price of a kilowatt hour of electricity remained at today's rates, it would take about 9.5 years of reduced fuel bills to recoup the cost of the equipment (at $1,710). After that you make a $180 profit each year. If energy prices rose by 10 percent annually, you would recover the $1,710 in six years.

Solar energy units also increases the value of your home, says to the New York State Energy Office. And increased value can't be used to raise your property tax assessment.

So the more energy prices go up — and there are no indications they won't — the more you save. If all your investments guaranteed a higher return each year you'd probably be in good shape.

Rabies a threat

There have been several cases of rabies reported in wild animals found near New York State's northern and southern borders, and the Bethlehem dog warden is advising pet owners to get pets inoculated.

In some counties, rabies vaccinations are compulsory, even though state law does not make this requirement. Albany County does not require vaccination against rabies at this time.

The dog warden also issued a reminder: There is a leash law in the Town of Bethlehem and all dogs must be restrained by a leash or under the control of a responsible person 12 years or older. Violations of the law can be reported by telephone: 439-9973.

This is not an offer to sell, nor solicitation of an offer to buy. Any securities offer made only by prospectus.

All Around The Garden

Albany County Cooperative Extension

Home gardeners with tomatoes commonly become alarmed and dismayed in July when blossom-end rot develops on their early ripening fruit. This disease shows up as a brown discoloration at the blossom end of the fruit. The discolored spot then enlarges until it covers about one-third of the fruit. Tissues beneath the spot die, and become black, leathery, and sunken. Secondary molds may develop in these black areas.

Both green and ripe fruits may develop blossom-end rot; it is generally worse on the early set fruit, and seldom bothers fruits that develop later unless the plants are subjected to prolonged drought.

Blossom-end rot is a physiological upset whose basic cause is the lack of soil moisture sufficient to allow the uptake and circulation of calcium in the rapidly developing fruits. Although a sudden drought period is the most common trigger, excessive soil moisture early in the season may smother the root hairs and cause the rot to occur during sudden hot weather. The rot is more serious on the windward than on the leeward side of a field, and is more common on staked tomatoes than on bush types. Otherwise, there is little or no difference between varieties in their tolerance to the disease.

Several steps taken before and after planting will reduce losses. Choose a well-drained garden spot with a pH of 6.4 to 7. Use only a moderate amount of balance fertilizer such as 5-10-5 or 5-10-10 to keep the plants growing well but not luxuriantly — usually 1 to 2 pounds per 100 square feet is adequate at planting with another 1-2 pounds side dressed after fruit set. Delay transplanting until the soil is warm; cold soils seem to aggravate the problem.

In late June when soils are warm, mulch the plants with black plastic or loose organic materials to maintain an even level of soil moisture. If side dressing with fertilizer is done, keep the amount of nitrogen low. Water judiciously during rainless periods so the soil, to a depth of 2 feet, is constantly moist. Don't hoe or cultivate closer than 1 foot from the plants, nor deeper than two inches to avoid root pruning.

Instruction on trail ride set

What is a competitive trail ride? A great opportunity to learn about this form of competition on horseback will be on Sunday, Aug. 1, when the Golden Horseshoe Riding Club, Inc., will put on a competitive trail riding clinic in Clarks-ville.

The clinic is aimed at both riders and potential managers of rides. There will be a ten-mile ride run exactly as an actual competitive ride would be run, complete with pre and post-ride vet checks, mileage markers, 10-minute hold and all. There will be plenty of opportunity for discussion about conditioning, how to ride a ride and whatever other questions might arise.

At the same time, there will also be a management clinic aimed at people who may be interested in putting on a ride in their own area. Managers will be taken through the steps right along with the people managing the clinic.

Starting time for the event will be 6:30 a.m. The fee for riders (your own horse) will be $10 and is limited to 25 participants. The fee for management is $5 and is limited to 10 participants. The fee includes a picnic which will follow the clinic.

For entry forms and further details contact Martha Kugler, P.O. Box 118, Voorheesville, 12186, or call 765-4997.

The clinic will be held at Marsh's Locust Knoll Farm, Route 443, Clarks-ville. The trails used will be some of the same ones used in the Golden Horseshoe 25-mile competitive trail ride held each year on the second Saturday in May. This ride has been held annually for eight years and has been sanctioned by Eastern Competitive Trail Ride Association each year.

Judges for the clinic are Dr. Nora Matthews, D.V.M., of the Guilderland Animal Hospital, who has judged several competitive rides in New York and Vermont and this year will be one of the judges for the New York 100-mile ride, and Marilyn Miles, Clarksville, an ECTRA member who has completed 1000 miles plus of competition and judged several rides in New York.

First aid for plants

First Aid for plants will be provided free-of-charge on Wednesday, July 21, at the Bethlehem Public Library in a plant diagnostic clinic sponsored by the Albany County Cooperative Extension. The clinic, which will run from 7 to 9 p.m., will see a representative of the Cooperative Extension diagnose the problem and provide a prompt recommendation for a cure for the house or garden plant.

Local athletes qualify for Empire State games

The big weekend for jitters is over for area athletes who tested their physical prowess and came away with tickets for Syracuse and the Empire State Games to be held later this summer. Comparable to a state Olympics, the games will see Bethlehem representatives in track and field, volleyball and swimming thanks to the successful qualifications bids last weekend.

Evelyn Carey of Glenmont, frustrated by an injury during the school year that barred her from the state championships in the pentathlon, made a comeback to qualify for the heptathlon in the open women's division. Judi Parker of Delmar travelled to Shaker High School Saturday to qualify for the 5,000 meters with a speedy 18:38.7 clocking.

Babe Ruth set for tournament

The Bethlehem Babe Ruth League hopes to make their tournament stay on South Troy's diamonds as long as possible by winning District 6's All-Star Tourney. The 14 and 15 year old sluggers have high hopes of improving on their younger counterparts' performance in their all-star showdown two weeks ago, which saw the Bethlehem team evicted after losing its first two games in the double elimination contest.

Satisfying the all-star requirements of acquiring a coach nomination and successfully surviving a two-day tryout were Mike Whitney, Pat Tangora, Steve Mendel, Dave Castellani, Tony Ceddia, Ray and Kevin Roohan, Mark Hoffman, Jim Dering, John Harris, Rich Bennett, Tom Schrempf, Andy Kasius, Rich Keefe and Paul Heiser.

As of Monday, July 12, the Babe Ruth proteges were still in the thick of things, despite starting off on the wrong foot with a 5-2 loss to a strong-pitching Nassau-Castleton team. The team's hitters came back to sprinkle Pine Hills Westland's defense with hit after hit that powered them to a 15-3 blow out.

In the open men's division, Kurt Boluch of Clarksville returned from Cornell University to hurdle back into the forefront of the area track scene that he shed when graduating from BC. He qualified first for the 400 hurdles in a time of 53.8.

Ken Hetling of Elsmere, a senior at Bethlehem Central, qualified for the scholastic boys volleyball team after playing on the varsity squad at BC last year.

Swimmers galore from BC swam in the Clifton Park tank, and many were successful in touching first or second in order to make the Syracuse trip. In the scholastic girls division, Susan Mallery, a Delmar girl swimming for the Albany Starfish team, managed to qualify first in the 200 meter butterfly and qualify second in the 100 butterfly and the 50 meter freestyle.

The scholastic boys' division saw Matt Holland, a BC varsity swimmer in his freshman year, qualify first in the 200 freestyle and the 200 individual medley, while classmate and teammate John Demarest qualified first in the 100 freestyle and second in the 50 meter free.

Delmar Dolfin girls had a field day in the open women's group, with Donna Schulz, a Colgate-bound BC star, touching first in the 200 backstroke, 100 fly, and 100 backstroke. Janet Shaffer was just behind with a double win to her credit, with her qualifications coming in the 50 and 100 meter freestyle races. Shaffer, a BC sophomore freestyle standout in the sprinting distances, is a former Empire State Games champ.

Finally, three old area hands suited up to make yet another Dolfin mark in the squad of swimmers representing this area in Syracuse. Pierre LaBarge managed a second in the 400 free, Eric Patrick a second in the stamina-testing 1,500 free, and John Rodgers, the oldest of the threesome, a second in the 800 free.

The top two finishers in each event of the trials qualified to represent the Adirondack region in the Games.

St. Matthew's on win streak

In his biggest bash of the Voorheesville Babe Ruth League season, Dean Decker of the Rod and Gun Twins hit in the go-ahead run for his team and was the winning pitcher as the basement-dwelling Kiwanis lost yet another game, 7-5. John Joyce's triple merited him the most valuable batter in the losing cause.

Spotlight also preyed on the helpless Kiwanis team, churning easily to a 12-3 win. Kevin Rafferty was the Red Sox big stick, slugging one home and plinking in three singles, while Brin Culnan was an excellent supporting act with a pair of doubles and singles. Wes Knapp of the Sox read his batters well, coming away with a one hitter after banking all the Kiwanis big guns save Joyce, who singled.

But the week undoubtedly belonged to St. Matthew's, who went on a three-game winning tear that proved that the second place team was still game for a title win. The church Giants proved just how serious they are by surprising the league-leading Spotlight team, 8-4, on Thursday. Giants pitcher Brett Hotaling sparkled on the mound as the winning pitcher, retiring nine Spotlight batters with strikeouts. Robust hitting for St.

Matthew's came from Ed Mitzen, who got to third with his hit, and Mike Larabee, who had a double and single to his credit. The Spotlight's only firepower came from Chuck Rogers, who dropped in a couple of singles.

Saturday saw St. Matthew's win the daily double by drubbing the Rod & Gun twice, 17-7 and 10-3. The opening game of the "all Giants" doubleheader saw robust hitting turned in by Mitzen, who tripled twice and singled once, and Pete Fisch, who had a triple. Joe Rissberger banded a pair of two baggers for the losers.

In the second game, Clint Wagner got his biggest hit of the week by smashing a timely two-bag dinger that sent three other teammates home. Fellow Giant Sean Wilbur knocked in a double and single, while losing pitcher Brian Rubin of the Rod & Gun picked up 14 strikeouts to pick up his temporarily sagging ERA.

Y offers self defense

The Albany YWCA, 28 Colvin Ave., is offering an eight-week course in self-defense, beginning Thursday, July 15, from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

K-Mart takes Little League title

Tri-Village Little League baseball fans were treated to a senior-league "game of the week" in the 13-year old division when K-Mart clinched a first place berth by edging Houghtaling's in a seventh inning stretch, 15-14. The K-Mart pitching combination of John Waddingham and Mike Tremblay were credited with sending the slugging Houghtaling batters to "market."

Kevin Lynch of the Spotlight team probably topped the Major League's American Division list of pitchers with low ERA's, thanks to his spectacular moundwork against Andriano's. Fourteen batters on the pizza-place team can testify to Lynch's uncanny strikeout ability that fanned them and led the Spotlight to an 8-3 win that secured them the division crown.

In other noteworthy games, Manny Hanny's 14 and 15 year olds proved that they well deserved their first place status by breezing to a 16-2 win over Handy Andy, while the 13 year old boys on Starwood had to sweat out a 10-9 win over CPM to retain their second place standing. The crucial win will tide the Starwood team into its game against Manny Hanny, where it hopes to topple the team that will deposit the division trophy.

The Little League's last games of the season are scheduled for this Friday, with closing day ceremonies to follow on Saturday.

On to Port Chester

Delmar's 3.5 team in the Michelob Light League, a graded tennis league for women, will be going to Port Chester Aug. 28 and 29 for a regional tournament. The team, captained by Barbara Bunker, won all its matches on the way to the Capital District title.

Winner in 4.5 level play — graded according to player's ability — is the Schenectady team. If the local teams win at Port Chester they move on to a tournament at Stratton Mountain in September, and from there to Flushing Meadows for the nationals.

Scout rededicates memorial

John Zucker of Elsmere, a Boy Scout in Troop 58, recently completed the last phase of his Eagle Scout project, which involved the rededication of the war memorial located in front of the Bethlehem Pre-School in Glenmont.

Prior to the dedication ceremony, John cut down and removed two 40-foot cedar trees that stood along side of the memorial, replacing them with crab apple trees donated by Price Greenleaf for the occasion. John and his fellow Scouts then cleaned up and landscaped around the memorial, while Girl Scout Troop 315 of Glenmont planted flowers.

William Blanchard of the American Legion cohosted the ceremony with Dan House of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Spotlight IN RETROSPECT

July 10, 1957

A.G. Sickinger of Slingerlands, whose trucking business came to an abrupt halt a few months ago when he became ill, is back in business again. After a period in the hospital, followed by a longer convalescence, we are happy to announce that Mr. Sickinger is fully recovered.

(Editor's note: It is hoped 1982 readers of the Retrospect column realize that it was not the Spotlight editor who spent time in the hospital and convalesced, but the patient he was writing about.)

July 12, 1962

More than 80 Tri-Villagers attended Bethlehem Night at Saratoga Raceway, including Alan Hilchie, president of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce who presented the trophy to the winner of the Bethlehem Trot, and Bertram Kohinke, town supervisor.

Four Delmar girls will attend the 1962 International Girl Scout Roundup on Lake Champlain in Vermont this month. They are Barbara Lynne Clarke, Sue Jardine Estey, Sally Everson and Karen Goold.

July 13, 1967

Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Brown, Jr., 49

Orchard St., are coordinating the Bethlehem homestays of a group of Japanese college and graduate students ages 19-25 coming here under the Bethlehem Community Ambassador program. Other host families are: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gallagher, 41 Preston Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. John Braun, 138 Marlboro Rd.; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, 44 Herrick Ave.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Estey, 9 Morningside Dr.; Dr. and Mrs. Kent Miller, Font Grove Rd., Slingerlands; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason, Clarksville; and Dr. and Mrs. Thurman Vaughn, 44 East Bayberry Rd., Glenmont.

July 13, 1972

Diana and Judy Baker, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baker, 90 Jordan Blvd., Delmar, are spending three weeks in Brazil this summer as guests of Christina Garcia, who visited here in January as part of the Experiment in International Living program. Their trip will take the sisters through Panama, and Peru, then on to Sao Paulo, Brazil.

T. Stuart Levin is the new president of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce. Other officers are Charles Glover, vice president; William D. Bennett, secretary, and Robert L. Sager, treasurer.

July 14, 1977

The Bethlehem Central teachers' union, locked in a negotiations stalemate with the local board of education, got a major lift from a state-appointed mediator this week, but the school board refused to budge. The board's polite but firm rejection of suggested terms for a new contract laid out by Peter Prosper, Union College economics teacher serving as a PERB fact-finder, set the stage for another round at the bargaining table.

Vox Pop

Vox Pop is open to all readers for letters in good taste on matters of public interest. Letters longer than 300 words are subject to abridgement, and all letters should be double-spaced and typed if possible. Letters must be signed and include phone numbers; names will be withheld on request. Deadline is the Friday before publication.

Bowled over

Editor, The Spotlight:

On May 1 a Bowl-a-thon fund raising event was held to benefit the three community residences for the mentally retarded within the Town of Bethlehem. As a result, approximately $3,000. has been raised. On behalf of the clients, staff and advisory boards of the homes at 397 Delaware Ave., 360 Kenwood Ave. and Kinderlane in North Bethlehem, we want to thank all participants, both bowlers and pledgers, for their interest and support. A special thanks goes to Sporthaven Lanes for the use of their facilities and equipment.

Once again the people of Bethlehem and surrounding areas have demonstrated their generosity and willingness to share with those who are less fortunate. Your thoughtfulness and caring is very much appreciated.

Bruce O'Connell, Chairman
Delaware Advisory Board
George Walker, Chairman
Kenwood Advisory Board
George Mears, Chairman
Kinderland Advisory Board

Thanks from the town

Town of Bethlehem Certificates of Appreciation were recently awarded to several area nurses and doctors and aides who volunteered their services at the town's blood pressure clinic.

Named recipients of the awards were Clare Mayberry, Gladys Hall, Dr. Henry Schultz, Maida MacDowell, Nancy Finn, Ruth Goeldner, Charlotte Maeder, Liz Blaber, and Gerry Herrington, all of Delmar; Dr. Albert Harris of Slingerlands; Florence Mabey of South Bethlehem; and Herb Strumpf of Selkirk.

An average of about 300 people take advantage of the Town of Bethlehem blood pressure clinic each month.
