

Sulfur and scrubbers: the debate begins

By Linda Anne Burtis

"This is a real pleasure," said Niagara Mohawk's John Keib, "especially in these days of high costs and rising unemployment — to be able to introduce a project that we feel will reduce costs for our rate payers and also increase employment."

"Frankly," said James Cannon of Inform, Inc., "this coal conversion proposal is from another era — the Industrial Revolution."

Both sides staked out their positions early and firmly at last Tuesday's coal conversion forum at the Bethlehem Public Library. And, as expected, air pollution and the scrubber solution emerged as the dominant concern for both the utility, its critics and for most of the questioners in the audience.

Keib, Niagara Mohawk's chief spokesman for the evening, told the audience that the utility can meet all air pollution standards by burning coal with a 1.4 percent of less sulfur dioxide content, without scrubbers. No one disagreed with that statement, but Cannon and David Wooley, representing state Attorney General Robert Abrams's office, countered that scrubbers, which reduce the amount of sulfur dioxide emitted after coal is burned to roughly one third to one sixth of the original amount, should be considered because of the impact of SO₂ on the environment and on human health.

The two sides disagree strongly, however, on the question the economic impact of scrubbers on Niagara Mohawk rate payers and on whether the dangers of sulfur dioxide have been proven.

The forum, sponsored jointly by the library and the Albany County League of Women Voters, attracted about 60 people and served as an unusual preliminary to the formal hearings that will determine whether Niagara Mohawk will be permitted to convert its Glenmont generating plant to burn coal.

The normal first step in the public portion of the State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA) process is for a formal public hearing (to be held at Bethlehem Town Hall on Thursday, Dec. 16, from 1 to 4:30 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m.), followed by a more structured hearing on the technical issues.

In this case, however, a number of town residents will be going into the public hearing with a considerable store of background information and a general understanding of the issues. The library's panel covered the major issues raised in the Niagara Mohawk impact statement for the project, and questions from the floor were knowledgeable and, at times, hard-hitting.

Keib opened the scrubber debate by forecasting a "loss of annual net savings of $26 million" if the company is forced to install the device.

Later, Delmar resident Jeffrey Cohen asked from the audience if Keib could "measure apples with apples" by looking with and without scrubbers. Keib said he could not provide the figure for total savings with scrubbers.

As reported Nov. 24 in The Spotlight, the cost of scrubbers must be considered at the total savings from coal conversion in terms of the life of the plant. The $102 million initial cost is partially offset by the difference in price between low and high sulfur coal, which can be burned with scrubbers. According to one estimate, scrubbers with high sulfur coal will become the cheaper option at least by 1999, due to the increasing spread in cost between high and low sulfur coal.

Niagara Mohawk's John Keib, left, told the library audience that scrubbers to reduce sulfur dioxide are costly and of questionable value. James Cannon of Inform, a lobbying group, disagreed.

"This is one situation where you can have your cake and eat it too," said Cannon, arguing that in the long run coal conversion with scrubbers will be the cheapest option for rate payers.

Wooley agreed: the cost of scrubbers "can be made up in several years," he said.

Wooley also discussed the major consequences of sulfur dioxide emissions — health problems and acid rain. The attorney general's office has been campaigning to get midwestern utilities to reduce sulfur emissions, contending that the resulting acid rain is killing vegetation and wildlife in the Adirondacks.

Keib, however, argued that the evidence on acid rain is inconclusive, and that his company should not have to put large sums of money into "uncertain and presently unquantifiable environmental goals. Our position is in accord with the position of the federal government and the head of the Environmental Protection Agency," he said.

"Despite what the EPA says," replied Wooley, "there is very little doubt."

Niagara Mohawk also contends that scrubber technology is "at best an R & D (Research and Development) project," said Robert Pohl, project manager.

But Pohl also revealed that Niagara

VOORHEESVILLE

Energy work set for spring

Work is expected to begin in May under a $685,000 energy conservation bond issue approved last week by Voorheesville Central School District residents by a vote of 228 to 47.

Superintendent Werner Berglas said plans are being drawn up now and bids will be solicited at the beginning of March for three projects at the elementary school — a new heating system, at a cost of $597,000; a new roof, $62,000; and addition of a vestibule and sidewalk repair. A $29,500 federal grant and a grant from the state are part of the financing.

Berglas said a "major problem" in getting the work done before the next heating season starts will be the availability of some materials, such as vents that will have to be made to order and the three large boilers. However, architect Leslie Bender of Hartheimer, Bender & Estey of Delmar, is "very hopeful" the work can be done in that time, Berglas said. "It's a tight schedule, but manageable."

The bond issue will mean a school tax rate increase of $2.20 per $1,000 of assessed valuation in the 1983-84 fiscal year and $2 per $1,000 for the remainder of the 10-year issue, according to district figures.

The board of education's next meeting is at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 13, at the high school.

Santa was everywhere last week. He got a big welcome at a roller skating party at Glenmont Elementary School, (above and on the cover), and at Delaware Plaza. Among the greeters at the Plaza were elves Pam Leighton and Nancy Kelp, merchant Ken Schenkel and police youth bureau Dets. Jim Corbett and Fred Holligan. 'Crime wave' in Delmar

A crime wave of sorts hit Delmar Friday night. Bethlehem police Saturday received complaints from 14 residents that their cars, some locked but most left unlocked, were broken into over night. Losses ranged from small change to clothes and expensive electronic equipment.

To add to the puzzlement, police reported finding other items abandoned near the scene of some of the break-ins. Attempts to take finger prints and follow up other clues had provided no leads by Monday.

The break-ins occurred on Rowland Ave., Old Ox Rd., Carriage Rd., Haskell Place, Douglas Rd., Wilshire Dr., Bennett Terr., Darroch Rd., Lansing Dr., Marlboro Rd., Kenaware Ave., Stratton

Pl. and Wilshire Dr., according to police reports. In most cases, a street was hit only once, and the thief or thieves took only what was available on the seats or in the glove compartments. Losses included a number of radio and tape equipment, tapes, a dictating machine, a doctor's blood pressure cuff, a pair of sun glasses and several fruit cakes.

Deer a danger

This is the deer season in more ways than one. State police say there have been an unusual number of deer-car accidents in the Bethlehem-New Scotland area, both before and after the opening of the gun hunting season. They warn motorists to use caution when driving at night on country roads.

□ Coal and scrubbers

Mohawk is already planning for scrubbers. Space will be left so that scrubbers could be installed after the conversion project is completed with "very little disruption" and no additional cost except the increased cost of the equipment itself, Pohl said.

That may be a prudent decision. Wooley said the attorney general's office is pushing for a state law calling for a 28 percent reduction in SO2 emissions. He also pointed out that Gov.-elect Mario Cuomo, who will appoint the next environmental conservation commissioner, has supported a "reasonable" reduction in SO2 emissions.

Ronald Dodson, speaking from the audience, looked to the scrubber alternative in terms of the state's goals for the midwestern utilities, who are felt to be responsible for acid rain problems in the Adirondacks. He questioned the credibility of Environmental Conservation if it does not insist on scrubbers while simultaneously pushing midwestern utilities to build them. "The bottom line is that you can put on scrubbers and still save on ratepayers monthly bills," said Dodson, who recently moved to Delmar after living in the South.

Another air quality issue raised by the audience was the proposed stack, which will release the pollutants into the air. Hope Donovan, the state environmental expert for League of Women Voters, asked if Niagara Mohawk were doubling the height of the new stack in order to achieve "pollution control by dilution." Pohl and Keib countered that the stack height was a function of legal requirements which take local conditions into consideration.

Solid waste is another area effected by the conversion. Four to six truckloads of ash hourly will be generated and in need of safe disposal. John Cianci of Environmental Conservation pointed out that the NiMo proposal calls for disposing of solid waste below ground water, and to do this the company must request that existing regulations be waived. He seemed particularly concerned about this aspect of the proposal.

Comments made by EnCon and Public Service Commission officials about the proposal differed markedly. NiMo must have the approval of both agencies before it can convert to coal. EnCon's Cianci made the stronger statements, telling the audience that "staff has not explicitly stated any contentions. This doesn't mean we don't have any." On the other hand, William Lilley, speaking for the PSC argued for speedy approval. "One of our main concerns is avoiding delays of conversion," he said.

"Staff has not explicitly stated any contentions. This doesn't mean we don't have any," said EnCon's John Cianci.

Dec. 7 was the deadline to request intervenor status. Persons given such status become eligible to testify at the hearings following the public hearing on Dec. 16. Since many interested residents were not aware of this process, Cianci said he thought a request for such status at the public hearing might be sufficient.

The next round in the process occurs on Dec. 16 at Bethlehem Town Hall, when EnCon officials will be on hand to listen to the responses of local residents, environmental groups and any other interested persons. Presentations are expected to range from formal to more spontaneous, but equally important observations by local residents.

The town hall will likely be the site for all following sessions, all open to the public. On Dec. 21 an issues conference will be held to identify the specific areas of focus. Only those with intervenor status may speak the law judge next establishes a schedule of formal hearings.

A member of the audience asked "what concerned people of Bethlehem who want scrubbers could do." Cianci said one option is to ask the town board "to pass a resolution to insist on them"

But Supervisor Tom Corrigan said Friday he does not expect the board to get involved in the issue. "Personally, I would be satisfied with whatever EnCon or the PSC comes up with," he said. The project, he noted, "is bound to have an economic effect on the town. Niagara Mohawk is the single largest taxpayer in the town."

Busing a puzzle for parents, board

By Caroline Terenzini

The Bethlehem Central school board found itself pulled in two directions last Wednesday when two appeals about busing came before it.

While sympathetic to the requests, the board noted it is bound by state regulations and state aid requirements. For example, the district must minimize the number of bus runs and maximize the loads in order to qualify for the largest amount of state transportation aid. Thus, while understanding the objection Dr. and Mrs. Stewart Lyman of Meads Lane have to the 45-minute bus ride their daughter has to the Clarksville Elementary School, board members stood by the district's computerized bus routes, and declined to make any changes.

Board member Rober Zick pointed out that school attendance lines were set in that area several years ago, so home buyers would know which school their children would attend. "We did it so people would know before they laid a dollar down," he said.

Dr. Lyman protested that three other schools in the district are closer to their home than Clarksville, and added that three weeks into the school year a bus route change lengthened the ride for Meads Lane children by 15 minutes.

Board member Marjory O'Brien said, "I don't think this is significantly different from what a lot of kids go through. We can't change where the school and home are located."

Zick insisted: "This is not an uncommon request. We have to remember we're providing transportation to public school. We have to take the hard line we've taken before."

Board President Bernard Harvith said, however, "It does seem like a long ride for a little kid." And Robert Ruslander urged that the board ask for more information about district busing and consider the question during deliberations on the budget for the next school year.

A second appeal to the board also ran into state regulations. Martha Lazarus of Huntersfield Rd. presented a petition with more than 100 signatures of residents in the Westchester Woods section of Delmar, asking that high school students in that area be bused because the route they must walk along Elm Ave. is unsafe, particularly in winter when snowbanks line the road.

If the students take a safer route, Mrs. Lazarus said, they will have to go more than the 1½ miles that is the limit for walkers. She said the petitioners had asked the town to put in a sidewalk along that section of Elm Ave., "but until they do, we're asking the school district to provide transportation." She said later that town officials had already declined, in response to her request, to put in a sidewalk, citing the expense.

"Our problem is that the state sets limits," Harvith said. "A 1954 vote (of district residents) reduced the walking distance to 1½ miles. I don't believe we could bus these children without an affirmative vote."

Superintendent Lawrence Zinn noted that the state Legislature had twice, in separate sessions, considered adding a safety clause to busing regulations and had rejected it. Roger Fritts, attorney for the district, said the question had been litigated elsewhere, and the ruling had been against busing for this reason.

Elm Ave. is a county road, and the county recently gave the town permission to put in a narrow shoulder for bicyclists and pedestrians heading for the town park. While other areas school children must cross also lack sidewalks, the petitioners said that section of Elm Ave. is particularly hazardous because of the nature and volume of traffic.

Said one, "We parents are caught between the town, which owns the shoulder, and the school district, which owns the buses. And nobody has any money."

The board expects to discuss the question when more information is available.

In other business, a plan for pre-kindergarten screening "as a service to parents" was approved after Harvith asked that it be made clear that parents need not answer any questions "they feel uncomfortable with" on the questionnaire.

"Maybe we ought to make it clearer they don't have to answer," he said. "Maybe we're asking for too much stuff."

Zinn reported that a team from Adelphi University will come to Bethlehem in about eight weeks to conduct a three-day workshop for 30 district teachers on techniques and programs for combating drug and alcohol abuse. The workshop will be a follow-up to the 10-day session a team from Bethlehem attended in November. "We can do a better job of prevention in this community, I think," Zinn said.

Audiences on the Princeton Triangle Club's annual tour won't let the undergraduate comedy troupe give up the traditional all-male kick-line just because the university now admits women. The musical will play a one-night stand at Bethlehem Central High School Monday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m.

The kickline lives on

Yes, Virginia, even though the college is now co-ed, the Princeton Triangle show still has that famous kick-line.

In the days before the historic campus opened its gates to women undergraduates, audiences on the Triangle club's annual holiday tour of the East and Midwest rocked with laughter as the all-male cast went into its famous Rockette routine — in drag.

That kick-line, featuring beefy football players as well as nimble gymnasts and squash players, became a Triangle trademark through the years of touring collegiate shows.

When the girls began arriving on campus some 15 years ago, smoother and more shapely legs joined the kicking in the big tapdance the width of the stage... but it wasn't the same.

The audiences wanted that famous kick-line of yore, the kind fellows like Jimmy Stewart, Josh Logan, Jose Ferrer, Mel Ferrer, Myron McCormick and Wayne Rogers used to do.

Next week that kick-line will reappear in Delmar when the 93rd touring Triangle show, "Stocks and Bondage," makes a one-night stopover for Albany-area alumni and friends. The performance will be at Bethlehem Central High School auditorium Monday, Dec. 13, with an early curtain (7:30 p.m.) so the audience can enjoy an informal "after-glow" party with the cast for an hour or so following the show.

The party will be at the Star-Lite Restaurant, Rt. 9W Glenmont, and members of the audience are invited. The troupe, which arrives from Boston in mid-afternoon, will be overnight guests of Delmar families, area alumni and friends in the Tri-Villages, Albany, Loudonville and Chatham.

Tickets for the show are on sale at the Paper Mill and will be available at the school box office the night of the performance. Tickets are $8 for a reserved section in the first 15 rows, $6 for adults, $3 for students.

The 1982 production is a typical Triangle spoof, this one an undergraduate's view of a day in the working world, starting with wakeup time, through commuting, coffee break at the office, lunch and after-hours.

Among the skits are "Life in the Express Lane," in which four commuters discuss the impending breakup of their car pool in the emotional tempo of a failing marriage; "Birthday Party," in which precocious 8-year-olds are concerned with SAT's and tax-shelters; "Acquisition and Merger," applying brokerage terminology to the art of winning a girl, and "Five to Nine," which turns Dolly Parton's movie upside down and inside out.

Original songs include "Tappin' Those Keys," a fast-moving satire on an office typing pool; "He's Got the Key (to the Executive Washroom)" and a choreographed version of "Space Invaders."

Delmar residents continue to live with backhoes and open ditches, such as this one in progress on Gardner Terr. last week, but sewer work in the town is winding down for the winter. Spotlight

Sewer work winding down

It may seem like the middle of the construction season, but the contractors working on Bethlehem's town-wide sewer expansion project are about ready to call it quits for the winter. That means that few, if any, property owners who have not already been notified they can make their sewer hookups will be able to tie into town sewers before spring.

For many people, notes Public Works Commissioner Bruce Secor, that may be frustrating — they've endured a summer of torn up streets, and have seen the new sewers go in with no apparent results. But putting the sewer down a street may be only part of the project, he noted: in some cases, pump stations and force mains have yet to be installed, and in others the extensive testing necessary to insure the sewer will work correctly has not yet been completed.

In a few cases, residents may see crews out digging up sewers that failed the tests. "The first time they do it, we pay for it. If it doesn't work, it's on them," Secor said.

So far, residents on Elm Ave. and in the Brightonwood subdivision, in Selkirk on Old Town Rd. and Rt. 9W, and on Oakwood Rd. and a nearby stretch of Kenwood Ave. have received letters from the town informing them that they can hook into the sewers.

Secor said two of the major contractors on the project, John Di Guilio in Delmar and August Bohl in North Bethlehem, will start clean up work in their areas next week. That means roads will be rough graded until work can start again in the spring.

"They're going to continue working as long as the weather allows, but mostly off the pavement," Secor said. Two off-pavement projects that will continue throughout the winter, weather permitting, are in Normansville and along Elsmere Ave., Secor said.

Correction

Daniel Baker of New Scotland Rd., Slingerlands, was a witness to an accident Nov. 19 on Delaware Ave. The Spotlight reported incorrectly Nov. 24 that he was the driver of a car involved in the accident.

Tree stolen

The owners of a house on Font Grove Rd. in Slingerlands told Bethlehem police that someone cut down a pine tree by their house Sunday and later hauled the tree away. They could give no description of the tree except to say that it was "gorgeous."

BC seniors rehearsing for 'Arsenic'

Abby and Martha Brewster are spinster sisters who have fun poisoning old men. They have two nephews. Teddy is a live-in who thinks he is Theodore Roosevelt, and Mortimer is a theater critic who thinks he must reform his naughty aunts. Mortimer has his hands full with his altar-happy girlfriend, Elaine, as well as his brother Jonathan and Dr. Herman Einstein.

So runs the plot of "Arsenic and Old Lace," the comedy-drama presentation of Bethlehem Central's Class of 1983. The senior play is scheduled to run Thursday, Dec. 16, through Saturday, Dec. 18. The BCHS auditorium curtains will go up at 8 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students and are available presale at the Paper Mill, Hilchie's, the high school box office and at the door.

Unable to lure an outside music director, the graduating class had to break a 19-year tradition of senior musicals and settle for the 1941 Broadway drama by Joseph Kesselring. Directing the students is English teacher Margaret Dinova and her assistant, senior Matt Tweedie. BCHS faculty member Dick Feldman is choreographing a special finale that makes use of some "silent" characters.

Starring in the "Arsenic and Old Lace" playbill will be Pat Skerrett and Katie Breslin, who will play Abbie and Martha respectively. Marc Futia is Teddy, and Matt Healy is Mortimer. Shari Petronis will be his lady love, and Mark Guarino is Dr. Einstein. Barry Squire is doubling as Jonathan and costume director.

Federal natural gas pricing policies need re-examination now to protect consumers

Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation

TO: Hon. Ronald Reagan,
President of the United States
Members of the United States Congress

Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation believes present conditions surrounding natural gas supplies and prices warrant a re-examination of federal policies. We need a realistic balance of the economic concerns of the consumer, the laws of supply and demand, and our nation's critical need for reliable future supplies of natural gas at the lowest possible price.

As distributor of natural gas to 428,000 families, businesses and industries, covering a 15-county, 4,500 square-mile area of Upstate New York, Niagara Mohawk vigorously opposes any acceleration of the deregulation timetable in the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act.

We urge you to take action to ban natural gas supplier contract provisions that produce severe economic impact by sharp increases in the price of natural gas from producers.

Consumers are looking to you for protection against unwarranted natural gas price increases at a time when natural gas supplies are in surplus and producer prices are soaring.

Board upset by coverage

The Bethlehem Board of Appeals, which ran into heavy criticism for its decision in the recent Turner case, decided last week to meet its critics head on.

At its meeting Wednesday, Board Member James Ross read a prepared statement claiming that coverage by The Spotlight of the Turner case "exhibited an apparent bias." He called for the board to request the paper's editor to meet with board members and review the minutes of the pertinent board meetings.

Ross also recommended that the board send a letter of concern to Edward Sargent, chairman of the Bethlehem Planning Board, for speaking out in public on the Turner case "while the main question involved fell under the jurisdiction of the zoning board... and was still under consideration by this board for a final decision."

The board of appeals unanimously approved both proposals.

The Turner case involved a variance to permit a house on Delaware Ave. in Delmar to be converted into law offices. The Spotlight gave the case extensive coverage, and editor Tom McPheeters wrote a signed editorial opposing the decision. Other opposition came from the Albany County Planning Board and neighbors — the neighbors later filed suit. The planning board, which had considered rezoning the area last year, expressed unofficial concern at the board of appeals' decision.

Turner withdrew his request three weeks ago, citing difficulty in fighting the lawsuit. McPheeters and Richard A. Ahlstrom, publisher of The Spotlight, said they would be happy to discuss the newspaper's coverage at the board's convenience.

In other business, the board held two public hearings:

James Morrissey of The Concourse,

BETHLEHEM

North Bethlehem, sought a variance to permit a three family use at his residence.

Lula Dotter, 37 Wellington Rd., Delmar, sought a variance from the percentage-of-lot-occupancy provision of the zoning ordinance because of the roof overhang of her home.

No one spoke for or against either proposal.

Auxiliary party

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion post will have a Christmas party Tuesday, Dec. 21, starting at 6 p.m. at the post rooms. Reservations for the roast beef dinner are $6.50, and all comers are asked to bring a toy for "Toys for Tots" as well as a $3 grab bag gift. Chairing the event is Helen Reynolds.

For reservations, call Rose Marino at 439-6427 by Dec. 14.

Slingerlands festival

Christmas music will fill the air in and around the Slingerlands Community United Methodist Church on New Scotland Rd. Sunday, Dec. 19, when the church choir presents a festival of sacred Christmas music. The concert will start at 4 p.m. and will feature the chancel, junior and cherub choirs. A social hour around the fireplace will end the evening.

Trailer stolen

An empty flatbed trailer valued at $5,000 was stolen from its parking spot at the Big M truck stop in Glenmont over the weekend, according to state police at Selkirk.

Photographs by Donald S. Dix of Delmar, such as this shot taken at Custer Park in South Dakota last summer, are on display at the Bethlehem Public Library this month. The display, "The World We Live With," includes pictures taken in various national parks and the Delmar area.

Charges filed

Felony charges of falsifying business records have been filed by Bethlehem police and Bethlehem Central school officials against a 17-year-old Delmar youth following the discovery of alleged discrepancies in the records of the high school store. School Principal Charles Gunner said the store has been closed pending an inventory. The student, whose name was withheld under the youthful offender statute, was released in custody of his parents, but is currently suspended from school, according to Gunner.

Voorheesville News Notes

Lyn Stapf 765-2451

For those youngsters who can't wait until Christmas to see Santa, the junior class of Voorheesville High School will provide a chance not only to talk with that jolly old fellow, but to have lunch with him as well.

On Saturday, Dec. 11, the class of 1984 will hold their annual "Lunch with Santa" at the Railroad Junction ice cream parlor on Main St. All are welcome to come and visit Santa from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. The admission price of $2 includes time to chat with Mr. Claus as well as a lunch of hot dogs, chips, punch and cookies. Those wishing a memento of the occasion will be able to have an instant picture taken with the man of the hour for a small fee. Proceeds of this holiday event will benefit the junior class.

Santa won't be the only merry soul over 50 in Voorheesville this weekend. On Sunday, Dec. 12, 16 Brownie and Girl Scout troops from the Voorheesville area will host a special holiday party for local senior citizens. The feature of the get-together will be a program entitled "Now and Then," a celebration of the Sesquicentennial now in progress in the Town of New Scotland.

The presentation will include skits and songs depicting life from 1832 to the present. After the conclusion of the show, carols will be sung, the refreshments and gifts, made by the girls themselves, will be presented to their guests. The party will take place in the Social Hall of the Methodist church, from 1:30 until 3:30 p.m. Any senior citizen who would like to attend may make arrangements by calling Lois Crouse at 765-2109.

By Sunday the First United Methodist Church of Voorheesville will be decked in festive array for the occasion, because on Saturday, Dec. 11, the annual "hanging of the greens" will take place. Starting the festivities will be a potluck supper at 5 p.m., followed by the making of the greens and decoration of the church. The get-together will conclude with the singing of carols around 7:45 p.m. Participants are asked to bring a main dish, salad or dessert as well as their own place settings. For information call Dick Freyer at 765-2555.

School board president John McKenna, Supt. Werner Berglas and August Berger, past president of the board, applaud the result of the energy conservation vote in Voorheesville. The proposal passed by a 5-1 margin.

First graders at Voorheesville Elementary School had a most unusual "play" day on Friday. Upon arriving at school they immediately left to see the preview performance of "The Wizard of Oz" at the "Egg" in the South Mall. Returning from the Empire State Youth Theatre production, they had lunch and prepared to attend two other plays by Mrs. White's and Mrs. Thomas's third grades held at the school, with little time left before dismissal. A most entertaining time was had by the young theatre-goers, whose only complaint was sore hands from all that clapping.

Newly formed Brownie Troop 16 is full of busy little brownies this month. Besides getting ready for the Girl Scout Senior Citizen Christmas party, they have been preparing for their investiture scheduled to take place tonight (Dec. 8). The six girls will receive their brownie pins at the ceremony officially welcoming them into the Brownies. The program will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Social Hall of the Methodist church. Friends and families are invited. Those receiving pins from leader Kathy Bryden will be Angie Amsler, Becky Bryden, Jill Frender, Kara Relyea, Jenni Stapf and Florence Wright.

NEWS FROM SELKIRK AND SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Barbara Pickup 767-9225

Victory is definitely no stranger to Dennis Northrup of Selkirk. Thanksgiving Day, Dennis took first place in the men's open division of the 19th annual Turkey Trot held in Troy. Of the 1,738 participants competing in the 10-kilometer race, Dennis captured first, completing the run in 30 minutes 32 seconds.

Sponsored by the Latham Athletic Attic, Dennis clinched nine consecutive victories in various competitions this past summer, and is presently training for the Boston Marathon scheduled for April.

Annie and The American Gentlemen will provide the music for the dinner-dance to be held Dec. 11 at the Bethlehem Elks Lodge. A dinner of boneless breast of chicken will be served at 7:30 Saturday at the lodge, Rt. 144, Selkirk. Tickets may be purchased by calling the Elks Lodge at 767-2886.

Fragrant pine boughs, Christmas trees shimmering with tinsel and lights, music tinkling from a harpsicord, delectable holiday refreshments served by gracious hostesses from an antique silver service

— all this will greet the visitor to the annual Christmas Tea to be held at the Bethlehem Historical Association Museum on Sunday, Dec. 12, from 3 to 6 p.m. The Planning Committee for the program and decorations includes James Vandervort, Ann Maguire, Mary Van Oostenbrugge, Jean Lyon and Mary Ann Twardowsky.

The museum is located on Rt. 144 and Clapper Rd., Cedar Hill.

Monday, Dec. 13, the Sunshine Senior Citizens will be celebrating with their Christmas party at the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem, Selkirk, beginning with a covered-dish potluck dinner. The group has a very pleasant afternoon planned. All Senior Citizens are invited to join the festivities. Everyone attending is asked to bring a gift for the grab bag and a contribution for the potluck dinner. They will be enjoying Christmas carols, games and their gift exchange.

It's not unusual to want to purchase a big Christmas present for someone special — but to buy a gift just because it's big? The First Reformed Church of Bethlehem Youth Group has a real special Christmas party planned for this Sunday, Dec. 12. Each teen is to bring the biggest gift, in terms of dimensions, he or she can find. The gifts are to be attractively wrapped and will be exchanged during the evening. The party will be preceded by Christmas carolling in the area. The group will meet at the church at 6 p.m. Anyone planning to attend must call 767-2243 by Dec. 9.

The Bethlehem Junior Grange would like to expand its membership. A fraternal organization, the Junior Grange helps develop a spirit of cooperation and concern for others, and teaches respect for God and country. It encourages the development of responsibility, self-confidence and initiative.

Boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 15 enjoy a variety of activities and field trips throughout the year. Learning handicrafts, they participate in area fairs and compete in state and national contests.

The organization, currently under the leadership of Mrs. Helen Raynor and Randall Drobner, encourages any interested child to contact them for information, Mrs. Raynor at 767-2770 or Mr. Drobner at 767-9165.

Christmas and family seem to be almost synonymous. The Bethlehem Grange brings the two together as they plan their Christmas party for Dec. Both Junior and Subordinate Grange members will join for the festivities to held at 7:30 p.m. at the Grange Hall, 396, Selkirk.

The RCS Junior High School winter concert originally scheduled for Thursday evening has been rescheduled. The concert, always a very special program will be held Dec. 20 at the senior high school at 7:30 p.m.

Pinnacle get-together

Camp Pinnacle will remember summer camping experiences and celebrate Christmas this Saturday at 6:30 p.m. its annual turkey banquet. Admission to the feast is $5. Tom Sparling, a solo gospel artist, will perform for the assembled guests.

Endangered parks?

The Albany Audubon Society will discuss a different kind of endangered species — the country's national parks — at its next monthly meeting on Thursday, Dec. 16, at 8 p.m. at the Five Rivers Environmental Center on Game Farm Rd. in Delmar. Tom Cobb, a representative of the National Parks and Conservation Association, will present a slide program on the problems of the parks entitled "Our National Parks: More Than Just Places."

Styles of parenting

Do you befriend your children as an attempt to get close to them? Do you come on buddy-buddy with them to feel accepted by them and their peers? Do you use street talk and tell off-color stories to let them know you're in touch with the "now" generation? Do you avoid disciplining them when they cross lines of respect for fear you'll lose that friendly feeling between you and them? If so, then read on, my friend.

Two adjectives are commonly used to describe disciplinary attitudes at each end of the parenting spectrum: permissive and authoritarian. However, the words have taken on much wider scopes than just disciplinary style.

We tend to think of permissive parents as those whose lack of discipline, direction and limit-setting of their children is couched in a statement like "I believe in the goodness of the child. Any frustration will stunt the growth of that child, psychologically and socially. Allowing children to explore the natural limits of the world will enable them to develop more of their potential, and will avoid any build-up of anger or prejudice."

Any parent's development into a more authoritarian or permissive type of parent probably has little to do with sense or logic . . .

Authoritarian parents contend that children are basically in limbo as far as their values and attitudes are concerned. These parents believe that if children are not already bad, they will easily turn in that direction if left to their own devices. The authoritarian parent declares that a basic parental responsibility is to teach the child right from wrong, good from bad, sense from nonsense, success from failure, and play from work. "Without discipline," concludes this parent, "the child will grow up without any security or foundation in life. Unless you're willing to punish them when they need it, your children won't know you love them."

FAMILY MATTERS

Norman G. Cohen

Although each parental position on discipline seems to make some sense and at least sounds reasonable, any parent's development into a more authoritarian or permissive type of parent probably has little to do with sense or logic. The determining factor usually rests with the kind of parenting the parent received as a child, and how he or she reacted to the family experience.

More importantly, though, is the realization that being a good parent does not depend largely on parental attitudes toward discipline, but on the parent's ability to convey love, to be fair, to be responsive to the basic needs of the child, and to nurture the child's growth in all aspects of human development. I have met some excellent parents with hard noses and others with soft hearts, all of whom have raised some pretty wonderful kids. Their positions on crime and punishment within the family seemed of slight consequence to their children, because the rest of the parental package was tied in such an attractive bundle and inherently fostered acceptance by the children themselves.

How often we hear from satisfied ex-children, "My parents treated me right.

They gave it to me good when I was out of line and set me straight on a lot of things. They showed me they cared about what I did." And just as often we hear, "I had great parents. They let me do anything I wanted, go anywhere with anyone, because they really trusted me to find out about things myself. And, you know, I rarely took advantage of that freedom, because I didn't want to disappoint them."

Problems can occur when parents assume one disciplinary attitude or the other without backing it up with any of the other essential qualities of good parenting. It is then the parent becomes known as "authoritarian" or "permissive," because it's the predominating element in their parenting.

Yet neither disciplinary attitude need be negative or damaging if accompanied by love, understanding, acceptance and nurturing.

An authoritarian parent who offers little other than strong and firm discipline is likely to fall into a confrontational relationship with a child. If the child has any kind of spunk or the battle's rage on and escalate, the unbending parent may one day find him or herself thinking "My child, my enemy." At such unfortunate moments, the parent sees the child as intentionally trying to undermine parental authority, rebel against it, overturn it or take it away. More damaging beyond the immediate parent-child conflict which remains unresolved, is the likelihood that the child will carry the struggle into adulthood and become a rigid, authoritarian parent as well.

Conversely, a permissive parent who primarily offers friendship to a child to the exclusion of any other parental offerings runs the risk of launching that child into adulthood from a flimsy springboard devoid of emotional depth, a real sense of belonging, or any ability to withstand pressure or rough times. We can certainly be friendly to our children, and we may "parent" our friends from time to time, but it's inappropriate to "raise" our friends and a cop out from parental responsibility to treat our children as we do our friends.

The worst form of permissiveness is neglect; the worst form of authoritarianism is abuse. Yet, neither disciplinary attitude need be negative or damaging if accompanied by love, understanding, acceptance and nurturing. As in so many areas of life, it is not so much the techniques employed by people as it is the people themselves. If you are a good person, then you will probably be a good parent as well as a good friend. So long as you maintain discretion between the two, you will derive the pleasures and benefits of having good friends and good children.

Christmas entertainment

A new stage musical adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" will be presented free in Albany this season by Price Chopper Supermarkets, Freihofer Baking Company and the New York State Office of General Services.

Performances are scheduled for this Sunday at 1 and 4 p.m. at the Empire State Plaza Convention Center. These shows are part of a full day of free holiday entertainment for all ages, planned from 12 p.m. to 8 p.m. Festivities will be held in conjunction with the lighting of the New York State Christmas Tree and will finish with a display of fireworks.

This new adaptation of Charles Dickens' classic tale is presented by the Nebraska Theatre Caravan, a nationally-acclaimed touring group.

Advance tickets are not required. Tickets to monitor crowd control will be distributed at the door. Free admission will be on a first come, first serve basis. Seating is limited.

FOCUS ON FAITH

Rev. John F. O'Grady Associate Pastor

St. Matthew's Church

Many people ask me about the Bible. They think that because most of my adult life has been devoted to the study of this book, I must know everything about it. In truth, I have learned that the more I have studied the more I am aware of how little I really know. What I hope to do in this brief article as well as future articles, is to offer readers some thoughts that will prove helpful as they, too, study the Bible.

The Bible records for us what chosen men and women experienced in their quest for a relationship with God. The great experience of the Jewish people was the Exodus from Egypt. God brought them from a land of slavery to a land of freedom. They experienced God in the Exodus from Egypt, in the revelation at Sinai and in the wanderings in the desert and finally in the taking of the land.

The great experience of the Christian tradition is the historical life of Jesus, but in particular his resurrection. They remembered his attitudes toward people, his teachings but especially they recalled his risen presence to them as they struggled to live according to the gospel he taught.

These external experiences were fundamental not only to the Bible but to personal faith as well. We can see that these same people who experienced the Exodus or the Resurrection, also had mystical experiences of God: visions, dreams, an awareness of the presence of the Holy Spirit. These also find their place in the record of revelation which we call the Bible.

What these people experienced, they passed down to succeeding generations mingled with other religious and social traditions. Various liturgical practices, sayings of the prophets, or sayings of the apostles were weighed and evaluated and finally incorporated into the book which we call the Bible.

Various deeds of Jesus himself were recorded and passed down, such as the washing of the feet, the celebration of the Eucharist. Family traditions about Jesus also found their way into the New Testament. We know the names of his parents and even a grandfather. Traditions of the early Christian Church found their way into the later writings of the New Testament. The anointing of the sick, baptizing in the name of Father, Son

Bethlehem Central High School's Choraliers, directed by Joseph Farrell, entertained the women's group at the United Methodist Church, Delmar, in a holiday concert last week.

and Holy Spirit, the confession of sins are all part of the tradition of the early believers and become united with the experience of the historical Jesus and the Risen Lord to create for us the New Testament.

We should also note that these experiences and traditions found in the Bible are not just recorded in their original form. Rather the Bible results from a long period of prayerful reflection.

In the Old Testament the authors preserved Jewish traditions and teachings of God through the prophets, but constructed their narrative through a long period of theological and prayerful reflection.

In the New Testament the personal work of the Evangelists and other authors, meant more than just compiling a series of independent traditions about Jesus. The reflected and lived faith of the early Church created the true meaning of the New Testament.

The Bible then contains personal experiences of people: prophets, apostles, disciples; traditions of living communities who were aware of the presence of God in their lives reflections of authors who were dependent upon a living community of faith.

As we study the Bible today we can learn from these experiences, from these traditions and reflection, and allow the Bible to help us as we also strive to develop our personal relationship with God.

Suggestion brings reward

Raymond Krupka, an electrician apprentice at the Owens-Corning Fiberglas plant in Delmar, recently received an award of $7,500 for a cost-saving suggestion for the plant's operation.

Krupka received his award for suggesting a more efficient way for the plant to handle the paper filtering process for waste by-products.

Owens-Corning regularly recognizes employees who contribute suggestions which save the company time, money and material. Cash awards — up to a maximum of $7,500 — are based on 25 percent of the first year's savings to the company. In addition, employees who receive awards of $100 or more in a calendar year are paid a bonus of 25 percent of their total award at the end of the year.

Support for job hunters

A support group for job seekers will debut Wednesday, Dec. 15, at Bethlehem Public Library. With a maximum of 15 members, the Job Club will meet every two weeks with Karen Maher, a job counselor. She will help club members set goals, practice interviewing and build contacts. The club also will provide support for its members during their job search.

The first three meetings of the Job

BUSINESS

Club will be free. After the Jan. 12 meeting, for persons who wish to continue the cost will be $10 for a five-session minimum commitment. To pre-register, call the library's Career Resource Center, 439-9314.

Chamber to meet

The Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce plans its annual holiday get-together at noon Thursday at Starlite Restaurant, Rt. 9W, Glenmont. Members will suggest goals and priorities, as well as suggestions for action in 1983. A gift exchange also is planned.

Camera club meets

The Delmar Camera Club has focused on Tuesday, Dec. 14, for its next meeting at the St. Stephen's Church in Delmar. Scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m., the meeting will feature the club's annual camera equipment sale as well as a travelogue of slides from France's Burgundy and Normandy regions.

BC's big need: game experience

Mark Gibbons (44) pushes in two points for Bethlehem Central in the opening basketball game against Gloversville in the Ravena tournament. R.H. Davis

Starting the season with a tournament was just what the doctor ordered for Bethlehem Central's basketball team, short of experience and working with a new varsity coach.

BC came up short in the opening night scuffles in Ravena's well-balanced four-team tourney, but came back the second night to edge the host team. From now 'til Christmas it's playing for keeps in the Suburban Council, opening at home Friday with Niskayuna.

"This team is a young team, and it'll be a lot better after the Christmas tournament," said Gary Przybylo, the varsity tutor moving up from the JV with several of his players. "Our shooting hasn't come around yet, and we aren't handling the ball well, but I was pleased with our defense. We were excellent in man-to-man defense, and our zone isn't too bad, but, offensively, we've got a long way to go. What we need is game experience, and I think we're going to be all right in a few weeks."

The Eagles will play two games in the second annual Helderberg Holiday Festival at Guilderland Dec. 29-30 with Voorheesville and Berne-Knox joining the two Suburban Council teams.

The Eagles had two close games in the Ravena tourney, where the other two games went down to the final seconds. Gloversville, which won the trophy by a single point over South Glens Falls, pulled away from a 33-33 deadlock with Bethlehem in the final four minutes of the opening game Friday. The following night the Eagles edged Ravena, 44-41 on three free throws in the last 30 seconds.

BC stayed with Gloversville until midway through the fourth quarter when the Eagles' inexperience showed through. Przybylo saw it this way: "They (Gloversville) changed their defense, they went to a half-court trap, 1-3-1. Our kids didn't recognize it and lost two quick turnovers. Altogether we had seven turnovers in quick succession without a basket. During this time we also lost Mooney, our point guard, and Dering, who is emerging as the team leader."

The reference was to Mike Mooney, the junior playmaker, and Jim Dering, a frontliner. When they fouled out, Gloversville ran off five quick points. The Eagles still had a chance trailing by 3 with 58 seconds left. But the shots were off and the Glovers padded the lead with one-and-ones.

Mooney ended up with 14 points and Dering had 15 rebounds. Mark Gibbons pulled down nine rebounds.

Against Ravena in the first game of what both coaches hope can develop into a neighborhood rivalry, Bethlehem proved too big for the quicker Indians. The Eagles controlled both boards but shot poorly. BC missed the front-end of one-and-ones eight straight times in the fourth quarter, and survived in the closing minutes only by hanging on to the ball and avoiding the turnovers that had been so costly earlier.

Both coaches, Przybylo and Ravena's Tim Tucker, are hoping Ravena officials can get the same teams back next year. Both coaches have young teams sure to be better next season, and both think a BC-RCS championship final would pack the gym.

Bethlehem jayvees, meanwhile, won the four-team JV tournament played at Ravena in the afternoons both days.

Indians open in own loop

Ravena's basketball forces launched their Colonial Council campaign this week after hosting a well-matched tournament that was successful in all counts except on the home scoreboard.

The Indians finished fourth in the four-team eliminations, but gave a good account of themselves against larger schools. They bowed to South Glens Falls, 52-51, in double overtime, and held Bethlehem Central to a 41-41 deadlock before yielding the winning points from the penalty line.

This week the Indians had a league date at Schalmont and will be back in the home gym Friday for an important clash with Albany Academy. Coach Tim Tucker picks Voorheesville and Cohoes as the cream of the league, but considers Academy vastly improved and a real threat.

Two juniors gave the Indians a major boost in the Gold Medal invitational. Donnie Baker, a 6-1 forward, was all over the court, rebounding, pulling off steals and moving the ball, and Tony Pearson, a 5-9 guard, was the leading RCS scorer. Baker won the Sportsmanship Award for the tourney, and Pearson canned 15 points against South Glens Falls and 12 against Bethlehem, mostly on driving layups.

Both opponents exploited Raven's lack of an outside shooter by packing the zone around the basket. That strategy forced Tucker to resort to the full-court press, and most of the RCS points came from steals and breakaways. The Indians were further handicapped by the absence of Bob Mosley, their best shot from the outside who missed the tournament because of an ankle injury. Mosley was expected back in the lineup for the Schalmont game.

Capt. Joe Motley turned in a steady performance, pulling in 15 rebounds

during the two nights, a nifty feat as a 5-foot-8 guard.

The Indians gave South Glens Falls a scare in the closing moments. The visitors were up by 4 with 30 seconds on the clock when the Indians tied the game on traps by Pearson and steals by Motley. In the first overtime, SGF again built a 4-point lead, and again Pearson did the trapping and Motley the thieving. In the second overtime the Indians again erased a four-point deficit but the visitors hit from the charity line, RCS missed a shot and couldn't get the ball back.

Computer group meets

Bethlehem Central High School principal Charles Gunner will be addressing the Bethlehem Personal Computer Group Thursday, Dec. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library. The general public is welcome to attend the club meeting to hear about the BCHS computer curriculum.

For details, call club organizer Ross Gutman at 439-4758.

Blackbirds get a lift from talent on bench

When everything works right in the opening game, a basketball coach doesn't know whether to be ecstatic or uneasy.

That's the position Voorheesville's Chuck Abba found himself in at the start of this week as he began preparations for the Colonial Council inaugural Tuesday, a home game with Watervliet. His Blackbirds blistered Duaneburg, 65-41, in a non-league exercise Saturday in what Abba described as "a coach's dream."

The team had a timid first quarter, then opened up a 38-24 margin at halftime, had a cold third quarter with only five points, and then blew their hosts out of the arena with a 21-6 fourth period.

Abba was especially happy about the performances of two of his reserves, Ray Donnelly and John Minozzi, and with the backcourt management of Dickie Lennon and Jim Meacham. "The whole team played well. Lennon and Meacham scored only seven and six points, but they made very few mistakes, they directed the offense and they did a nice job on defense. If Donnelly and Minozzi can come off the bench and play as well as they did, it will take a lot of pressure off Lewis and Zongrone up front."

Mike Lewis, the three-year starter who is probably the premier player in the Council, pumped in 22 points and pulled down eight rebounds. John Zongrone, a junior forward, added 10 points.

Donnelly, a 6-1 forward up from last year's jayvees, didn't start, but pitched in 12 points and had six rebounds. Minozzi had five rebounds from the back court.

Chris Hogan has been installed as Abba's fifth starter. The strategy is to start Hogan and send in Donnelly from the bench to provide fresh impetus if the attack starts to lag.

This week's foes, Watervliet at home and Waterford away Friday, are a lot different deal than Duaneburg. The going will get tougher as the season moves along.

Grapplers look strong

Off to an impressive start with a 43-21 rout of Linton, Bethlehem Central's varsity wrestlers face two potent non-league foes this week before getting embroiled in the tough Suburban Council wars.

The Eagles go to Averill Park tonight (Wednesday) to grapple with a perennial small-school power, and come home Saturday for a meet with Voorheesville, which has an experienced squad and two national standouts.

Bethlehem had a surprisingly easy time with Linton in the opening meet Saturday in Schenectady. The Eagles got five pins and won three other weight classes. Chris Essex (145), Dave Boettcher (177), Paul Callanan (119) and Wayne Peschel (126) and Brett Zick (155) pinned their opponents. Other winners were Rob Van Aernem (105), Aaron Corman (112) and Pat Hickey (132).

BC girls flying high

By Julie Ann Sosa

The Bethlehem Central girls' varsity volleyball team is flying high with four consecutive wins and a 6-1 record under its belt.

"There shouldn't be any more problems until sectionals, when we would have our hands full with Colonie and the strong Big Ten teams like Troy (9-1) and Linton," said Coach Carol Walts.

Most prominent among those Suburban Council squads thrown to the wayside by Bethlehem was Shaker, with whom it shared the council crown in 1980-81. Last Friday, the short but scrappy Blue Bison toppled in two straight games, 15-7, 15-13. Although missing team leader Laurie Weinert and Sue Schwarz, BC rolled over its hosts, who had only two 1981 starters left. Junior Kelly Burke took over Weinert's job as "setter in residence" at the net.

Shenendehowa, the council's number three team, won the first game, 15-10, but was not match for Bethlehem once the black and orange has warmed up, 15-5, 15-5. Although usually inconsistent from the line, senior Ann Howell turned the pre-Thanksgiving game around with 11 consecutive serving points.

The Eagles again needed a strong server in the person of Amy Davis to get the team into the Niskayuna match. She served 10 points in game two of the three-game, BC match win, 9-15, 15-8, 15-7.

Last Wednesday hapless Mohonasen was overwhelmed by Bethlehem, 15-1, 15-8. All of Walts' spiking dozen got a piece of the action as the starters left after only half a game.

The JV is now neck and neck with varsity at 6-1, while the freshmen are 2-5.

New Scotland hoop shoot set

Those aspiring basketball stars ages eight to 13 of both sexes interested in pitting their free throw shooting skills against those of other local youngsters can put their sharp-shooting "on the line" in the New Scotland Elks annual hoop shoot competition this Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Voorheesville High School.

Almost three million youngsters from all over the country entered last year's competition for boys and girls in age categories 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13. Each contestant has 25 shots at the hoop, and the boy and girl who connect most often will be able to advance through four tiers of competition to reach Capital District and even national finals.

Last year Derek Moak of Voorheesville was the local winner in the 10-11 year old boys' division as well as the state champion. He went on to advance to the national semifinals.

Derek Moak is hoping his eye for the basket is as sharp Saturday as it was last year.

BC versus Guilderville: the season on the line

Bethlehem Central's pool powerhouse takes to the starting blocks for another Adirondack Swim Conference season Friday afternoon against the only area team that appears to have a chance to challenge the BC dynasty.

Coach Jack Whipple's young aggregation hosts Guilderville, the combined Guilderland-Voorheesville team, in a 3:30 p.m. meet that will feature the congregation of a number of the best swimmers in the area. BC Coach Jack Whipple will breathe easier when he sees such standouts as Carl Renshaw, Dirk Applegate and Kevin Anderson get on the bus for home.

Whipple's youngsters did a fine job in Saturday's Adirondack Relay Carnival in the Delmar tank. With all 10 league teams on hand, Bethlehem won six of the nine events and had another first nullified by disqualification. Guilderville won the other two. No team totals were kept.

Strong performances by several of his younger swimmers gave Whipple a big lift. He praised Eric Patrick and Knute Hvalsmarken, both sophomores, for contributing strong legs in the 400-yard freestyle relay, the opening event, won by the Eagles in 3:33.3. Veterans Dave Young and John Demarest rounded out the quartet.

Two other sophomores, Bobby Keens and Melissa Martley, teamed to give Bethlehem first place in the tandem diving competition. Fred Rudofsky, a 10th grader, making his debut on the varsity, turned in a good leg in the 400-yard IM relay with Scott Apicelli, John Henahan and Hvalsmarken.

The Eagles also won the breaststroke relay, the 200 free relay and the final "crescendo relay," a five-man freestyle funfest that starts with legs of 50 and 100 yards, peaks with a 150-yard leg, then returns to the 100 and 50. The disqualification came in the butterfly relay.

The G-V Mergers won the backstroke relay in a close battle with Glens Falls as Renshaw came from behind in the anchor leg to win by a touch. Renshaw, Anderson, Rick Martin and a newcomer, Dave Purrington, took the medley relay.

Elks plan holiday breakfast

The New Scotland Elks will celebrate the holidays at the breakfast table this Sunday, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the American Legion Post in Voorheesville. Pancakes, eggs and French toast will take the place of the traditional turkey. Adults can sit down to eat for $2.75, while children must pay $1.75. Preschoolers can eat free.

For more information, phone Ed Smith at 768-2641.

Rare tree stolen

Editor, The Spotlight:

About Thanksgiving Day an evergreen tree was cut and stolen from my back yard. It was not a huge tree, but it was beautiful.

The thief came prepared (brought his own saw), neatly cut off the top portion of the tree and left a three-foot stump with numerous side branches. He then covered the top of the stump with dirt so that the fresh white cut would not stand out like a flashlight in the dark.

The tree is (was) a Colorado White Fir (or concolor fir) and rare in these parts. I have never known them to be sold as Christmas trees.

So if anyone sees a Christmas tree that is very different, it may be my concolor fir and may be identified as follows:

The needles of these fir trees grow only on the top and side of each branch, vary in color from very dark green to a silvery blue-green, are slim, about 1 1/4 inches long, soft to the touch and feel rubbery. The tree and needles have a distinctive, pleasant, sharp, tangy evergreen odor. The stolen tree was medium-dark green.

It must give one a wonderful, unforgettable feeling to begin the "Christmas Season" by stealing a tree.

Thanks for support

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Delmar Dolphins are extremely grateful to the Bethlehem community for the support you gave our Swim-A-Thon Nov. 20. Your sponsorship has benefited our Dolphin program, US swimming, and future Olympic hopefuls.

Thank you for supporting excellence in swimming. It is a Bethlehem tradition.

Spotlight IN RETROSPECT

Dec. 5, 1957

The fluoridization issue is heating up in Bethlehem. Lengthy statements pro and con appeared side by side on the front page of the Spotlight, and the Bethlehem Community Association has announced that at a recent meeting, 72 percent of those present favored fluorides in the water system. That report was challenged by E. W. Littlefield of the State Conservation Dept., who stated that of the 43 persons at the meeting, 25 indicated they were in favor, 5 opposed and 13 were undecided. "This does not sound like a 'mandate' for fluoridization," he stated.

Dec. 6, 1962

The Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce will again sponsor a Residential Lighting Contest for the Christmas season, with prizes of $25, $15 and $10, plus a prize for the best religious theme. Dick Benjamin is chairman.

The Princeton Triangle Club's 71st touring musical comedy will be seen on the Bethlehem Central High School stage on Jan. 3. "Ahead of the Game" is a hilarious spoof of Madison Ave. advertising, "Ahead of the Game," which traces the history of the hapless son of the Featherbee family from birth and high school through college (where he won the national intercollegiate monopoly championship) to the vice president of the SEL&L advertising agency.

Dec. 7, 1967

Brownie Troop 201 of Hamagrae School held an investiture ceremony on Nov. 30 at which time the following girls were inducted: Maria Nucci, Anita Holms, Merry Jean Wendth, Ellen McGarrahan and Christa Unright. Other members of the troop are: Amy Allen, Kirsten Bronk, Karen Jacobsen, Susan Jewell, Lisa Kettlekamp, Alisha LaRue, Klisa Nishakawa, Kathleen O'Connor, Marietta Storm, Gini Winn and Sue Shanley.

Dec. 8, 1977

John and Diane Tangora, 312 Elm Ave., received the first cable TV hookup in Bethlehem. Bethlehem Video, Inc. is starting its local marketing program this week.

The Bethlehem town board has taken another step toward purchasing the vacant Delmar Elementary School building by allotting the expenditure of $65,000 from the Capital Reserve Fund for Town Buildings. The board also authorized the exchange of several small parcels of property on Blessing Rd. with Duane E. Amsler to permit a straight-away section of the road that will eliminate a reverse curve opposite the Amsler residence.

Robin Keyes

Keyes-Palmer

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Keyes of Slingerlands have announced the engagement of their daughter, Robin Leslie, to Jeffrey John Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Palmer of Skaneateles, N.Y.

Miss Keyes, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, is a 1982 graduate of Colgate University. Her fiancé, also a Colgate graduate, has a master's degree in geology from the University of Texas in Austin. He is employed by Exxon in New Orleans, La.

The wedding will take place May 29 in Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fashouer

Martha Foster married

Martha Anne Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fallek of Voorheesville, was married Oct. 23 to Thomas Francis Fashouer of Schenectady. The ceremony took place in St. Matthew's Church, Voorheesville.

The bride is a graduate of Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School and Fashion Institute of Technology, New York City. She is graphic arts director for Winnard Agency in Pittsfield, Mass. The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fashouer of Scranton, Pa., is an athletic trainer at Union College, Schenectady. The couple resides in Albany.

Fisch-Heaton

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Fisch of Voorheesville have announced the engagement of their daughter, Judith Mary, to David K. Heaton, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ronald Heaton of Rutland, Vt.

Miss Fisch is a graduate of Clayton A. Bouton High School and the State University at Oswego. Her fiancé is a graduate of Rutland Senior High School and the University of Vermont. Both are in their third year of Dental School at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.

A summer wedding is planned.

Off to sunny climes

More than 50 friends and neighbors gathered Sunday to honor four long-time Delmar residents who are leaving for warmer climes.

Jack and Grace Hutchings and Tony and Gilda Tuzzolo, who have resided in the Merrifield Gardens area more than 20 years, will retire to new homes in Cape Coral, Fla. They were feted at a surprise farewell dinner at Luigi's Restaurant in Albany.

Broadway In Delmar

It is rare when Bethlehem residents have the opportunity to see a full-scale Broadway-type musical in their home community. The Princeton Triangle show, making its annual tour, will bring hilarious satires of contemporary life as seen through the eyes of undergraduate humorists to Bethlehem Central High School Monday for a 7:30 p.m. performance.

It's not only fun, but it's also for a worthy cause. Proceeds go toward the scholarship fund of the local alumni association. Join your friends for an evening of collegiate theater Monday.
