

Villagers to get word on sewers for referendum

Voorheesville residents are expected to turn out in force Thursday for what may be their last chance to get full details of the proposed village sewer system before the controversial issue goes to a plebiscite.

No date been set for the referendum, but the full-scale public hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 17 at Voorheesville High School.

Spokesmen for Clough, Harbour and Associates will be on hand to discuss the consulting firm's recommendations, including acquisition of the Salem Hills wastewater treatment plant and collection system, and a proposed extension to several adjacent sections of the village. The private utility, itself the subject of heated controversy over monthly fees charged by the large subdivision's developers, is owned and operated by a subsidiary of Rosen-Michaels, Inc.

Also on the podium Thursday will be Mayor Milton F. Bates, members of the village board and members of the citizens advisory committee appointed by the board to conduct preliminary sewer studies.

Action group spawned by sewer issue challenges village candidates on stand

By Nat Boynton

An action group of village residents is asking village board candidates and incumbent board members to take a stand on Voorheesville's sensitive sewer proposal.

A cadre of homeowners in the "old village" section has been quietly putting together an organization designed to work with the village board on public issues. The immediate objective: getting out the vote in an upcoming referendum of the sewer proposal.

Date of the referendum has not been set, but Voorheesville's annual election is on the books for Tuesday, March 15. With two incumbents running for reelection and a controversial former leader of the Salem Hills citizen group seeking one of the two seats on the ballot, the sewer issue is certain to have an impact at the polls next month.

Richard Langford, youngest member of the five-member board, is seeking a third two-year term, and Joseph (Larry) Dedrick, a former village fire chief, is seeking his second term. The announced challenger is Charles P. (Pat) Arthur, a state university staff member and a sharp critic of Mayor Milton F. Bates and the trustees in the Salem Hills sewer rate negotiations.

Leaders of the embryonic action group last week signed a letter sent to each candidate and board member asking for their position on the most recent proposal for a village sewer grid. The results, a spokesman says, will be circulated to voters in the so-called "old" section of the village covered by the sewer proposal prior to entering the polling booths next month.

The sewer issue, which has been greeted with mixed reactions by villagers, is expected to inject an extra ingredient into the local political campaign just getting underway. With the candidates certain to be on hand at this Thursday's highly publicized public hearing in the Voorheesville High School auditorium, the informational session shapes up as the kickoff of the village's political season as well as a forum on the Clough, Harbour recommendations on the proposed sewer.

A spokesman for the new action group, which does not yet have a formal name, defines the group's basic objective as "making sure the village board gets a clear picture of the sentiments of homeowners in the 'old' village."

Peter Luczak, a Pleasant St. resident who conducted his own house-to-house survey of homeowners on the sewer issue last fall, says the immediate objective is to insure a large turnout at the referendum coming up in the spring.

Luczak insists the new group is strictly non-partisan in village politics. Its emergence at the same time as the local election activity picks up momentum is, he contends, purely coincidental.

"We're talking about getting out 75 to 80 percent of eligible voters rather than the 15-20 percent that usually turns out," he said. "Our group has mixed opinions on the sewer question, but we all agree that, regardless of how people feel individually, it's important to get out the vote."

Working with Luczak and his wife, Christine, is a "core group" composed of John Carr, Kathy Martin, Kitty Burke, Leo Burgoon and Joseph Sarubbi. All seven live in the older section of the village, and, says Luczak, have diverse feelings on the sewer proposal.

When Clough, Harbour and Associates undertook the preliminary sewer study more than a year ago, working with a citizens advisory group appointed by the village board, one of the early phases was a door-to-door survey of village property

Visiting artist pumps for video course at BC

By Caroline-Terenzini

Given the "thousands of hours" students have spent watching television by the time they reach high school, adding a credit course in video production to the curriculum would make a lot of sense to Jonathan Bainbridge, who is artist-in-residence for video and film at Bethlehem Central High School.

"It's ironic," he said in a recent interview, "that although they've spent 5,000 or more hours watching TV, they still don't know where it comes from."

"Given the amount of money and energy that goes into cleaning a football uniform, and that you can get credit for baking cookies . . . I don't see why they don't have a credit course in video."

A course called "Video Now" has been offered for the past two years, without drawing much student attention. Assistant Superintendent J. Briggs McAndrews said that by having a video artist-in-residence, the district hoped to "give more visibility to video" and encourage student interest. A credit course in video art is being offered for next year in the art department, but the signup is not yet known.

The half-hour a week of news that is produced by the students and goes out over Bethlehem Central's cable channel "is hardly tapping the potential," Bainbridge said. But, with a 35-day commitment as artist-in-residence, Bainbridge, who lives in Middleburgh, has found that he has an erratic schedule and no mode for communicating with the students who want to work with him in their free time. "You really need to have an association with a teacher, to work with a teacher" for the residency program to be effective, he said.

Bainbridge came to film in a roundabout way. While living in New York City and writing one-act plays (one of which was produced Off-Broadway), he was loaned a 35mm camera to use on a trip to Italy. Seeing the results, a friend was enthusiastic — "I think you've got an eye for it!" This led to moving pictures and a memorable adventure with a 16mm camera, a dancer and 10 children in monks' tunics on Long Island's "Walking Dunes." After that harrowing experience, Bainbridge said with a laugh, "I then did a man and a woman in one room."

As he gained recognition at film festivals here and in Europe, there were other opportunities, such as work on a Hollywood film in Vienna one summer — "a soda pop production," he called it. "Soda pop is going to go down quickly — without detail or graceful pace."

Two important influences on his life have been his father, also named Jonathan Bainbridge, who has been on the staff of The New Yorker for many years, and an uncle, actor Richard Widmark.

And there have been major setbacks: a chance to work with Robert Altman on Nashville fell victim to a last-minute auto accident, and a fire eight years ago destroyed his home in Middleburgh as well as 15 months of work under a grant from the American Film Institute. "I didn't mind losing the films that were done," he said. "It was not being able to finish Inscape." But Bainbridge moved into the barn across the stream and "pressed on."

The insecurity in being an artist is the insecurity of being alive. "What's secure?" Bainbridge said. "You can work for GE for 20 years and then find yourself out of a job!"

While the students at Bethlehem are filming on videotape because it is much less expensive than film, he believes students should have their first exposure in film — "it teaches discipline," Bainbridge said. "You have to be much more concise and controlled."

"Video doesn't have the character that film has. People aren't doing stuff as fresh and smart on video as on film. And videotape tells you that what you do won't last," he said.

"I think the kids would rather be working in film than in video," he added. "Maybe because of TV . . ." When his TV broke in December, Bainbridge bought three finches for an antique brass bird cage he had, and has found them more entertaining than Dallas, he said. And he's back to writing, working on a short story now. "To warm myself up — like in tennis."

For the students, possibilities for recognition are there. Finished programs will go on the public access channel in Bethlehem, Bainbridge said, and the best will be entered in a state competition. "There is something to go for — a mountain, a door they can go through."

The cost of the artist-in-residence program has been shared for the past three years by the district and the New York Foundation for the Arts in New York City.

Reception for artist

Jonathan Bainbridge, artist-in-residence in video and film at Bethlehem Central High School, will be the guest at a reception at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 17, in the library at the school. In addition, video productions by Bainbridge and the students working with him will be shown in the Media Center from 11:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. Interested people in the community are welcome to attend the showings and the tea, according to Jane Streiff, supervisor of the Media Center.

owners on the effectiveness of their septic systems and their reactions to a proposal for a public sewer system.

Apparently feeling that the consulting firm's survey was inadequate, Luczak last October set out on a doorbell-pushing canvass of his own. At the village board's Oct. 26 meeting, Luczak presented the results of his survey that covered, he said, about 160 people in 105 homes. The respondents were asked if they favored sewers if federal and state funding were not available, and whether their response would be different if federal aid were forthcoming. Luczak said that without funding 71 percent of those surveyed were opposed to the sewer proposition, 11 percent in support, and 18 percent undecided. With federal aid, he said, 50 percent were opposed, 46 percent in favor and 14 percent undecided.

The referendum on the sewer proposal presumably will be worded to the effect that approval is contingent on the availability of federal aid.

In November, Luczak distributed a letter to the 300-plus homes in the "old village" with a coupon asking recipients the degree of their interest in community issues, including sewers. He said about 50 people responded, saying they were interested in attending a meeting or asking to be kept informed. Luczak set up a meeting on Jan. 12 at St. Matthew's Church with an open invitation, and 25 people came out.

Luczak, a Democratic staff aide in the state Senate, said the turnout at that meeting indicated that "there seems to be more than sufficient interest to formally organize" a community action group to deal with various issues.

"We want to work with the village board and also with the Salem Hills Park Association," he said. "We're not a political organization. We have no candidates, but we're going to ask candidates and board members how they stand on the sewer issue."

Responses of the candidates, Luczak said, will be circulated to residents in the area of the village affected by the sewer proposal.

The action group may not have to wait longer than Thursday to get what is expected to be the candidates' answers. Dedrick has confided to friends he will support the majority opinion as expressed by his constituents in the referendum. Langford is expected to declare his opposition to the sewer extensions, either this week or later in the campaign.

Luczak praised the efforts of Stephen Schreiber, a neighborhood representative assisting the citizens advisory committee and Clough, Harbour in getting sewer information to homeowners. As one of seven appointees serving as delegates at the 1982 neighborhood informational sessions, Schreiber represents most of the area of the village in line for sewer extensions if the proposal reaches the construction stage.

"Steve has done a fine job keeping the people informed," Luczak said. "What we're doing goes several steps beyond the information stage."

Salem Hills residents and their park association have been embroiled for more than four years in a controversy over the monthly rates charged by the developer for sewer service. The drawn-out hassle has twice been in the courts.

That controversy was unrelated to the village sewer studies until last fall, when Clough, Harbour came out with the recommendation that the village acquire the Salem Hills system and treatment plant and extend the mains to adjacent sections of the village.

Solons ponder juvenile problem

A major problem confronting state government is what to do about those youngsters who are not criminals but who make life miserable for their families, their schools and their peers. In New York state these young people are known as PINS — Persons in Need of Supervision.

The way a child gets the PINS designation is through a court that affixes the tag and then decides what to do about it. Sometimes this means being sent to a foster home, sometimes to a state facility.

The problem for the state legislature and the governor to decide is whether the courts should be involved in affixing the PINS label to these children and teenagers or whether these children should be a social service agency problem handled by state and local social service departments.

The leading advocate for the change is Statewide Youth Advocacy Inc., a lobbying group dedicated to protecting the rights of children in the Empire State. Its director is Eve Block, who generally takes the position that the less authoritarian and punitive treatment a child receives the more positive the results will be. Others argue that it is only the courts that can deal definitively and severely enough with a truly disruptive child.

Ms. Block argues that when a child

Capitol Connection

commits a criminal act it is clearly a case for the courts. But, she maintains, anything short of that wastes the courts precious time and scars that may affect the child for the rest of his life. Many of the young PINS designees are referred to the courts by their families because of behavior. Referrals come from the schools because of truancy. Ms. Block thinks that both of these groups may not be acting for the best. She suggests that a parent who calls the family court about an incorrigible child may be creating an irrevocable schism between the parent and the child — one which the parents will be sorry about for the rest of their lives. And the schools, suggests Ms. Block, may be looking for a way out rather than providing the student with the appropriate mental health and educationally remedial help the student deserves. But school administrators say they know unruly students when they see them.

Says Brian Hart, a lobbyist for the New York School Boards Association, "We still feel that use of the PINS petition is a matter best left to the school district." Furthermore, says Hart, "We feel that putting procedural barriers in the way of school districts hampers our ability to deal with serious and immediate behavior problems and may indeed result in unforeseen and adverse effects in that the school district may be tempted to avoid adverse procedures by ignoring the situation faced with bureaucratic non-sense."

Block suggests that several judges have taken differing positions on the proposal that they be relieved of PINS responsibilities. "There are a group of family court judges in this state that very much want PINS completely out of the court, there are others who think that some diversion mechanism is necessary, there are others who think that the court's responsibility is the only way to guarantee that services come to these troubled families. They are a very divided group." And, says Block, the mammoth Department of Social Services, which would assume much of the responsibility under her plan, is "of a mixed mind" too.

Block suggests that PINS may have an element of sexual discrimination connected with it. "Many upstate jurisdictions use PINS for girls, heavily for girls, for girls who are sexually active, maybe. The judges upstate feel that this is the appropriate protection for youngsters."

So the problem of truants, runaways, disruptive and ungovernable children is back plaguing the state legislature. And with an austerity budget being put into place it is doubtful that the legislature or the governor is going to be inclined to go down a road in which major allocations of money and reorganization are the name of the game.

Maybe next year.

Cross-endorsement forum

Cross-endorsement is the subject of the February meeting of the Bethlehem unit of the Albany County League of Women Voters. The unit will hear the opinions of the local party chairmen concerning the New York system that allows two or more political parties to nominate the same candidate for public office.

The meeting will be held on Thursday, Feb. 17, at 9:15 a.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library. Babysitting is available. For information call Susan Richmond at 439-5744.

At a slower pace

The Albany YWCA will again be offering its aerobics program designed for people who want to approach physical fitness at a slower pace. It has been medically approved by doctors at John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

The class is ideal for people who have been inactive for years, are more than thirty pounds overweight, or have any limiting physical problem. Classes will be held two mornings and two evenings a week starting Feb. 14.

New Scotland reopens landfill with strict rules and permits

New Scotland town officials have reopened their landfill on Upper Flat Rock Rd. to residents with permits, and have imposed a revised set of rules on materials to be accepted.

In a letter last week, Supervisor Stephen P. Wallace notified town residents that acceptable materials are limited to clean metals, refrigerators, stoves, washers and related appliances, tree stumps and clean demolition materials.

No other materials and no garbage can be accepted, the notice stated. The landfill site will be open to permit holders only on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

An attendant will be stationed at the entrance to inspect incoming materials and direct users to the assigned disposal area. No materials will be deposited before the attendant has inspected them and designated the disposal area.

"This will provide a considerable convenience to all residents," Wallace's letter stated. "However, to maintain our permit (from state and county authorities), we must comply strictly with the stated requirements. As such, all rules and regulations will be strictly enforced, in order to preserve this convenience for the use of townspeople."

There is no fee for permits, which are available to applicants at the town hall. A permit fee will be charged for commercial users.

New Scotland's landfill was condemned by state and county environmental authorities in 1981 and ordered closed pending compliance with conditions mandated by EnCon and the Albany County Health Department.

Winter programs offered

Two winter programs are being offered especially for school-age children and their parents during the mid-winter vacation at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Game Farm Rd., Delmar.

On Wednesday, Feb. 23, and Saturday, Feb. 26, from 10 a.m. to noon, the following programs will be offered: "Wildlife in Winter" will investigate how wildlife survive the winter and look for clues of their activities, like tracks and homes; and "Snowshoeing and Winter Ecology" will also explore the wildlife community in winter, but will do so on snowshoes. Participants must be at least 10 years old in order to fit into snowshoes. (This program will be cancelled if snow cover is insufficient.)

Fees are $1.50 for "Wildlife in Winter" and $2 for "Snowshoeing and Winter Ecology." Participants must pre-register for these programs by calling the Center at 457-6092.

Parenting course starting

An eight-week Parenting Education program will be offered by Christine Deyss Thursday evenings beginning March 3. Classes will meet at the Delmar Presbyterian Church. The course will focus on skills for dealing with children and also will provide an opportunity for parents to share concerns and experiences. Cost is $18 a person or $25 a couple.

Mrs. Deyss has a master's degree in human development and family relationships, and received her training at Pennsylvania State University's Individual and Family Consultation Center. She has taught parenting and family communication courses for church and social service groups. For information and to register, call Mrs. Deyss at 439-2754.

There's no way to get better snow cover for skiing and snowshoeing than the beautiful blanket last weekend offered. At Five Rivers Center, the trails were popular for cross-country skiers, but scenes like this were fairly commonplace in open country in Bethlehem and New Scotland.

Catholic alumni get together

Alumni from six Catholic schools that have merged or closed in the city of Albany in the past quarter of a century have joined together with graduates of Bishop Maginn High School to form the Bishop Maginn High School Alumni Association.

The new association will pool the energies of the seven groups to support Bishop Maginn, the only co-ed diocesan high school in Albany, and will provide services to the graduates of each of the schools to help to preserve their traditions.

The new association includes graduates of Cardinal McCloskey High School and Vincentian Institute High School, which merged to form Bishop Maginn in 1977, as well as graduates from Cathedral Academy, St. John's High School, and St. Ann's Academy, which merged in 1957 to form Cardinal McCloskey. The other two groups will include graduates of St. Joseph's Academy, which closed in 1974, sending students to VI, McCloskey and other area schools, and graduates of Bishop Maginn.

Graduates of each of the schools met Jan. 20 to plan an alumni phonathon during April. Alumni attending the meeting also discussed a computer set-up by which graduates of the seven schools can develop programs to produce print-outs which will facilitate class reunions and other alumni events.

Ski for Refer

Brodie Mountain will be the site for a Refer Switchboard ski-a-thon planned Feb. 27. Proceeds from the event will help pay operating costs of the 24-hour hotline which is an activity of Project Equinox and has been offering free crisis intervention and counseling services to area residents since 1969.

The hotline, at 462-5900, is staffed by volunteers. Television weathermen Todd Gross, Bob Kovachik and Tim Welch will be among the downhill and cross-country skiers at the event, beginning at 9 a.m.

Held for desertion

A police computer check on a driver stopped for failure to keep right on Rt. 9W at midnight Saturday night caused Bethlehem police to hold a Tennessee man on a charge of military desertion from the U.S. Navy.

Police said Russell A. Hatley, 24, of Memphis, Tenn., was arraigned before Justice Peter B. Wenger in town court and transferred to Albany County Jail. Police said a teletype from the Bureau of Naval Personnel indicated Hatley would be extradited to the Naval Desertion Unit, Brooklyn.

The Methodist seed takes root

Methodism came to the American colonies as early as 1760, when Robert Strawbridge settled in Sam's Creek, Maryland. He began to preach, his congregation grew and built a log church in 1764, the first Methodist Church in America.

In 1765 a Methodist convert of John Wesley, Capt. Thomas Webb, was stationed at Albany with the British Army. It is said he held family prayers and sometimes preached in the city streets. This new denomination evolved from the Wesleyan revival in the Church of England and stressed a modified episcopal polity, with emphasis on personal and social morality.

In 1784 Francis Asbury was elected first Bishop of the Methodist Church when the scattered societies of Method-

Rev. Conrad Rowe, born Sept. 2, 1835, died June 5, 1919. One of the early circuit rider preachers who served as supply pastor at Delmar Methodist Church in 1887 and again in 1891-94. He was the father of Alton C. Rowe, Sr., former Supervisor of the Town of Bethlehem and also the first fire chief in Delmar. Rev Rowe's descendants still reside in the Town of Bethlehem.

ists were organized into a church in New York. Shortly thereafter, Rev. Freeborn Garretson, a native of Maryland and one of the earliest pioneer Methodist preachers, was assigned to our area and, with a group of young men, entered into a work of revival spreading north from Westchester County.

Rev. Garretson passed over the whole territory once every three months, putting his own labor where it seemed most needed. In 1789 he wrote of the city, "Albany still appears to be a poor place for Methodism." However some of his labors apparently bore fruit, for in 1788 a Methodist congregation was formed south of Albany by Rev. John Crawford and in 1791-92 the Old Stone Church, 2½ miles west of Coeymans Landing, was built to house this congregation.

A chain link fence and a state marker along the old section of the South Bethlehem-Ravena Road, near Atlantic Cement's pipeline through the ridge, marks the site of this early church. Tradition states that this was the first Methodist church built west of the Hudson River. This church was visited by Bishop Asbury in 1793. He recorded in his Journal: "At Coeymans Patent... we hope 200 souls have been awakened in the past year. Our friends here are happy, not being distressed with divisions in the church, nor at war with the Indians..."

In 1807 he presided over the session of the New York Conference at this site. From this old church, class leaders branched out into the surrounding countryside and new congregations were started.

As early as 1830 nine members began a tiny Methodist fellowship in a community then known as Adamsville (Delmar). By 1833 a group of 50 souls had been converted and these persons joined themselves to the original group. This increase in membership led them to feel the necessity of erecting a building for the worship of God. Accordingly, having given public notice for three successive Sabbaths, a meeting was held for the election of Trustees and organization under the name of Second Methodist Episcopal Church in the Town of Bethlehem.

It is interesting to note that the first Methodist Episcopal Church in the town was organized near Beckers Corners in 1823 and moved to South Bethlehem in 1845. The Adamsville congregation immediately acquired a piece of land and erected a small church building on the north side of Kenwood Avenue, near the present Sporthaven Bowling Alley. In the minutes book of 1838 part of a circuit congregation was part of a circuit consisting of four preaching places located in Clarksville, Black Creek (Voorheesville), Glass House (Guilderland) and Adamsville. The salary of the first sexton was 50 cents a month, but by 1840, when his duties had increased to include the cleaning of the church and sawing of wood, the salary reached the sum of $25 per year.

In 1853 the original church was made into a parsonage and a new building was erected to the east. The entire plot was enclosed with a white picket fence, with carriage sheds to the rear. The heating of the building consisted of two large box stoves, consuming pieces of wood two feet in length, and men and women sat in straight-backed pews on opposite sides of the church.

An apparent increase in population and wealth in the western end of the parish took place following the Civil War and the construction of the Delaware and Hudson railroad. There arose a desire for a new church building, causing dissension within the Adamsville congregation. In 1871 the Board of Trustees obtained a court order permitting the removal of the church and so the building was dismantled and removed to Slingerlands with all of its equipment. This was done in spite of the protest of the Adamsville people, and they refused to attend the church in its new location. They were without a church building or a pastor for about two years. A new brick structure had arisen in Slingerlands to house the other part of the congregation and the parsonage there was constructed from some of the materials taken from the Adamsville building.

By 1873 sufficient funds had been raised to warrant the Adamsville people purchasing a piece of land from Nathaniel Adams, upon which to build a new sanctuary for the 60 members. The church frame was enclosed and roofed in the spring of that year, while the Sunday School room in the south end of the building was readied for use during the time the remainder of the sanctuary was under construction. Teams were furnished for drawing lumber from Albany and stone from the quarry near New Scotland. Timbers for the tower were hewn from tall trees which grew on a farm belonging to one of the members.

A debt of $4,000 was assumed, but the challenges were met and the mortgage cancelled in 1896. The church erected a parsonage on the land adjoining the church to the west in 1898 at a cost not to exceed $1,400.

Within a very few years the congregation was confronted with the fact that the facilities of the church were overtaxed by the growing membership. Therefore in 1907 the church building was raised on its foundations and church schoolrooms were provided in the basement. The old Sunday School quarters at the southern end of the sanctuary were opened to give more room to the auditorium, and electric lights were installed in 1911.

By the 1920's the rapid growth of the Delmar-Elsmere section into a residential suburb of Albany saw a transition period not only within the community's businesses, schools and civic spirit, but also reflected in increased church growth. One of the outstanding organizations at this period was a ladies Sunday School class taught by Mrs. Charles Grismer, the pastor's wife. The attendance reached as high as 80 ladies each Sunday. This was only one indication of the need for more additions to the church structure. Wise planning was made for construction of an education building to serve the many church and service related activities of the congregation. In 1928 ground was broken for the Norman Gothic parish house, constructed at a cost of $90,000. Rev. Leon M. Adkins, father of the present senior pastor, was minister at this time.

Growing pains seem to be the history of this church, for in 1952 another major step in a continuing building program was undertaken, with a 50 percent increase in church and church school facilities, including the erection of a brick and stone addition to the front of the sanctuary and the razing of the old tower and vestibule. Just lately it was found that the old frame and walls of the original 1873 building were structurally unsound and these past two years have seen a complete renovation and rebuilding of the sanctuary.

The new construction was built over the existing and then the inside was torn out, with only the original floor and stained glass windows retained. The new walls, pews, carpeting and interior painting have given a larger and brighter interior. One novel feature of the enlarged chancel area is that everything contained therein is movable — the lectern, pulpit, baptismal font and even the communion rail can be switched to any position or taken completely away to accommodate the many facets of modern worship.

The church still sponsors one of its projects promoted in 1932 at the suggestion of Mrs. Alton C. Rowe, Sr., — the publication of the Tri-Village Directory. Today, under the leadership of Rev. Leon M. Adkins, Jr., the First Methodist Church of Delmar considers itself a full service church, not only in the ministry and preaching of the Divine Word by the senior pastor and associate, but with staff members specializing in education and youth ministries. The 1,700-member congregation is attuned to its obligations in mission giving and outreach projects of the church and also to service in courts, hospitals and geriatric centers in its own area. The church facilities are open for use by non-church groups as a community service. The extensive and beautiful physical facilities are merely one expression of the impact that emanates from this congregation to the community and to the world in many directions as an outgrowth of their faith in the Gospel.

Voorheesville News Notes

Lyn Stapf 765-2451

The New Scotland Kiwanis Club is putting out a call for prospective new members. On Thursday, Feb. 17, at 7 p.m. they will hold a membership roundup at the New Scotland Presbyterian Church on Rt. 85. All men living in New Scotland or in the Voorheesville School District are invited to come and learn about the many aspects of this local service group, which sponsors monthly blood pressure clinics, Grasshopper baseball and softball leagues, the summer soccer program and other community activities. Anyone interested is asked to call Skip Jackson at 861-7427 or Dick Goliber at 765-4727 to make arrangements to attend.

The Community Nursery School of Voorheesville reminds parents of prospective pupils that an important meeting will be held on Thursday, Feb. 17, at 7 p.m. in the nursery school classroom at the United Methodist Church. At the meeting students for the 1983-84 class will be selected by a lottery drawing from applications of eligible children (4 years old by Dec. 1). Applications are due today (Wednesday). For questions contact Kathy Beadnell, 765-4330.

Parents looking for quality day care will be interested in knowing that the Serendipity Day Care Center on Grove St. is now accepting registration for their pre-school program (3-5 years old) for the fall. Owner-directors Pat Burnham and Jill DePasquale also announce at this time that there are presently openings for their infant program (18 mo. to 3 years old). Anyone wanting information may reach them at the Center during the day (765-2399).

Anyone wanting to warm up during this cold month is invited to join with Old Songs, Inc. for an evening of contra and country dancing on Saturday, Feb. 19, at 8 p.m. The group, dedicated to the preservation of these unique dance forms, formerly met at St. Luke's, but due to the shortage of space there, have now begun using the social hall of the First United Methodist Church, Voorheesville, although not an affiliate of the church. The public is welcome and admission is $3.50 per person.

If the "middle of the vacation doldrums" hits home next Wednesday, Feb. 23, send the youngsters to the Voorheesville Library for some spirited vacation movies. Starting at 2 p.m. the first movie, "Win the Pooh and the Honey Day," lasts about 30 minutes and is certain to delight the smaller set, while everyone is sure to "get a kick" out of "Boots and Saddles" a fast and funny western starring Gene Autry.

The New Scotland Democratic Committee announces its first annual dinner dance to be held Friday, Mar. 4, at the Heavenly Inn, New Scotland Rd., Slingerlands. A Dutch treat cocktail hour will begin at 7 p.m. followed by a roast sirloin dinner at 8. Dancing to the music of the Saratogians will start at 9 and continue until 1 a.m. Tickets are $13.50 and reservations must be made by Monday, Feb. 28. To obtain tickets or information, call Tom Dolin (765-4085), JoAnn Donohue (765-4400) or Sharon Boehlke (439-4498).

Winter driving is no easy chore for most, but for school bus drivers it's definitely hard work. To help make their job a little easier, 19 drivers for the Voorheesville School District attended a safety course in January. Each driver is mandated to attend two such courses during the year, one before the start of school in the fall and the other prior to Feb. 1. The presentation on winter driving by Charles Finley of the state Education Dept. was well timed and well received.

Apologies to Christopher Odom, who was erroneously identified as his cousin, Alyssa Koontz, in the article about Marilyn Dergosits of Kandy Korner. On the same subject, congratulations are in order for Voorheesville's candy lady, who last week opened a Guilderland branch of Kandy Korner at Cosimo's Plaza.

Members of Bethlehem's Senior Citizens Organization being entertained at a Valentine Party at the Glenmont Job Corps found among the many goodies cakes served by Yoette Leonard with frosted lettering and fancy designs. Marge Morelock, nearest camera, Mary McCarthy, Florence Stierwald and Grace Osterhout felt badly about seeing the cake cut, but the taste treat was great.

SENIOR CITIZENS

The Bethlehem Senior Citizens Organization recently gave an assist to a group of schoolchildren at the Elsmere School — merely by saving labels!

The labels and proofs-of-purchase they saved were donated by the Elsmere School in Delmar, for the "purchase" of audio-visual equipment. The program is sponsored by the makers of Campbell's Soups and related products and, according to senior citizens services coordinator Karen Pellettier, the seniors plan to save labels on a year-round basis, so that they can donate their accumulated proofs-of-purchase to local schools participating in the program.

The public is invited to join in the seniors' effort; any labels from Campbell's products can be turned in at the Bethlehem Town Hall.

There will be a travelogue on Austria, Germany and Switzerland, featuring a slide presentation and discussion, at 1 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 24. The travelogue will be held at the town hall during the Bethlehem Senior Citizens organization meeting. Members of the community are invited to attend the presentation by Marion Hartheimer.

NEWS FROM SELKIRK AND SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Barbara Pickup 767-9225

Twenty five area youths will be sponsored by Bethlehem Lodge No. 2233 for the Elks Capital District bowling tournament. The 8-to-18-year-olds will be separated into prep, junior and senior divisions. Each of the 17 Elks lodges in the district have teams entered in the competition. The five teams from the Bethlehem Lodge will bowl Feb. 19 at the Action Lanes, Albany. Squads will bowl at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

According to Ed and Gerald Moss, coordinators of the event for the Bethlehem Elks, the teams will return to the lodge after the competition. There refreshments will be served and trophies awarded the winners.

Lois Dillon, well known in the area for her slide program on interesting old houses in the Town of Bethlehem, will be the speaker Thursday afternoon, Feb. 17, at a meeting of the Bethlehem Historical Association. Mrs. Dillon will show slides of "Stately Homes and Gardens in America." Middleton Gardens in South Carolina, the first formal gardens in America, are among the gardens that will be shown. Some of the homes will include the recently reopened Robert Lincoln home in Manchester, Vt., the Vanderbilt home, "Biltmore," in Ashville, N.C., and the Hearst Estate in San Simeon, Cal., which was built at the time when the very wealthy in this country were "out-palacing" the great palaces of Europe.

The public is invited to the meeting at 2 p.m. in the Cedar Hill Schoolhouse Museum, Rt. 144 and Clapper Rd., Selkirk.

Hannakrois DAR chapter is observing February as American History Month. The observance was designated by the NSDAR in 1956 to stimulate interest in the heritage of our country.

Exhibits prepared by Mrs. Mary E. Van Oostenbrugge, chairman for the Hannakrois chapter, are on display at the Ravena Library, and the Bethlehem Historical Museum, Rt. 144, Selkirk, in recognition of American History Month.

Mark your calendar and reserve March 5 for the Bethlehem Grange corned beef and cabbage dinner. Parent organization to the Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance, the Grange has been giving the corned beef dinners annually, with all proceeds contributed to the ambulance fund. Grange members, assisted by many of the ambulance team, prepare and serve the dinner that has become so popular through the years.

Tickets may be purchased at the door, although large groups wishing to be seated together are advised to make advance reservations. The dinner at the Grange Hall, Rt. 396, will be from 4 p.m. until all are served.

Dr. Milton Chodack has responded to the request made by the Parents Advisory Committee to the RCS Board of Education. The suggestion by the committee for better communications between the school system and the taxpayer has met with approval. A proposal for funding will be included in next year's budget for the requested communique.

The committee has also sent questionnaires to parents of all children in the A.W. Becker Elementary School. The resulting information should provide a better understanding of issues most important to the majority of parents.

Topics for discussion at the next Parents Advisory meeting will be extra-curricular activities and the new minimum standards in English. Fifth graders will now be required to take a writing test; failure to receive satisfactory marks will result in writing exercises and remedial writing.

Interested adults are encouraged to attend the meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 28 at the Becker School.

Wave of honesty sweeps town

Honesty broke out in at least two places in Bethlehem last week, and Bethlehem police hope it's contagious.

A Glenmont resident found a brown State Bank of Albany envelope in the parking lot of the Town Squire shopping plaza on Rt. 9W at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. When he discovered the envelope contained cash, he turned it in to police headquarters in Delmar.

Police declined to specify the exact sum, other than to say it was between $50 and $100. The owner, they reason, will know how much was there.

An even more valuable find was reported Friday evening. An Albin Rd. resident turned in a camera case containing two cameras, a 70-150mm lens and flash attachment he said was left at the Bethlehem Middle School.

Detectives tagged the items and waited for the owners to provide enough identification to document the claim.

D-Day Friday: amphibious landing at New Hartford

For the past few months everything Jack Whipple and his Bethlehem Central swimmers have done has been pointing toward the Feb. 18 dual meet at New Hartford.

Now the time has come, and on Friday the team and a chartered busload of enthusiastic Bethlehem fans will be off for one of the state's most ominous pool fortresses. The trip to the Utica suburb will mark the Eagles' last dual meet of the season, and on the result hinges the question: will New Hartford, beaten only by Liverpool, the state champion, end a six-year 97-meet win streak, or will the string survive No. 98 and run up to 115 or so next year?

Whipple, who has led Bethlehem to the last 11 Sectional titles, gives his young team (only one senior) a good chance to win, but the powerful hosts will be the favorites on the basis of performance to date. Whipple, surprised and buoyed by the ease with which his charges submerg-ed Rome Free Academy last Friday, looks on the New Hartford collision as a chess game in which the strategy of the opposing coaches in selecting matchups could play an important part.

Here's how BC's veteran tutor sees it: "They have three super swimmers, two of them we can't beat. The other depends on the entry assignments. New Hartford could win possibly eight events. We can't let them win more than six."

"We have to win both relays to take them. We have more depth than they have, but for the first time in 10 years, the burden this time is on the stars of each team."

Scholastic meets have 11 events, and individual swimmers are limited to three, including the two relays.

Whipple is encouraged by the way his front-line swimmers have been consistently chipping away at the stopwatches, steadily lowering their times. If that happens again this week, it could be trouble for New Hartford.

In Whipple's view, Doug Schulz, a three-year varsity standout, holds the key. The lean junior, in top shape and ready to peak, was a double winner against Rome, taking the 200 and 500 in the best times in Section 2 this season. His 1:51.8 in the 200 was the second fastest ever by a Bethlehem swimmer. "Fantastic," was Whipple's word.

Airborne members of Bethlehem Central's undefeated swimming team turned in a 1-2 finish in Friday's triumph over visiting Rome Free Academy. Melissa Martley, below, returning to action after a long recuperation from illness, won the event, and Bob Keens, left, was second. Tom Howes

Ken Neff, possibly the best swimmer ever turned out in the Delmar dynasty, set the BC mark when he placed second in the 1979 state championships with a clocking of 1:41.2.

Would the pressure of knowing how much depends on him affect Schulz's performance this week? "Naw," said Whipple. "He knows it, and he's a cool customer. Pressure isn't going to bother that kid."

John Demarest was also a double winner against Rome, capturing the 50 and the backstroke. Likewise Scott Apicelli in the breaststroke and butterfly. Again Apicelli provided drama, putting on another of his patented come-from-behind spurts in the final lap of the breaststroke to win by a touch in 1:07.8. "A gutsy kid," enthused Whipple.

Rome, which had lost only to New Hartford and Liverpool, was never in the meet after Bethlehem took a surprising 1-2 in the opening relay, the medley. Demarest, Apicelli, Matt Holland and Damon Woo won it in 1:48.8, and Jim Krajeck, Dave Young, John Henahan and Eric Patrick finished second in 1:51.1.

The score soared to 87-39 as the Eagles went 1-2 in five other events, the IM

(Holland, Knute Hvalsmarken), the 50 free (Demarest, Young), the diving (Melissa Martley, Bob Keens), the butterfly (Apicelli, Henahan), and the final 400 relay. In the 400 it was Woo, John Rodgers, Rob Leslie and Young in 3:40.7, followed by Henahan, Patrick, Krajeck and freshman Pierre LaBarge.

Wrestling clinics for boys
The Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department will offer a series of wrestling clinics for students in grades 2-8, beginning Monday, March 7. The program will be held at the Bethlehem Central High School lower gym from 6 to 7:30 p.m., Mondays, March 7 through March 28.

Tourney next for BC mats

By Vinny Reda

The grapplers of Bethlehem Central High School saw last Friday as an opportunity for one of the best to upset possibly The Best. All they needed, they reasoned, was a good day against visiting Amsterdam.

It was not a good day.

"I knew Amsterdam really had a strong team," said BC Coach Rick Poplaski. "But they won a couple of tight matches from us and then things really snowballed."

Until the middle weight classes, BC was still within striking distance, thanks to decisions by Paul Callanan at 119 pounds, Wayne Peschel at 126 and Pat Jickey at 132, and a tie from Mike Tinsman at 98.

But from 138 pounds to the point where the mats get rolled up Amsterdam grabbed all the victories there were to grab, five decisions and one pin in all. Final score: Amsterdam 31, BC 11.

So, what chance does Poplaski think his team will have this Friday at Burnt Hills when it must go against Amsterdam and Suburban Council champ Burnt Hills, among others, in the Class A Sectionals?

"I still think if we have a good day, we might sneak in," said Poplaski. "There's no doubt that Amsterdam and Burnt Hills have to be considered the favorites, but in a big meet, if your team grabs a few thirds and fourths to go with some firsts, who knows?"

Poplaski does know he is happy with BC's final mark of 12-3 on the season. Now, he says, "We have a couple of kids we are looking at to do well this weekend."

Those who go through the two-day event and make the top four in each weight classification will advance to the Sectional finals, Feb. 26 at the RPI fieldhouse.

Local gymnasts star

Two local gymnasts swept to top honors in their classification at the U.S. Gymnasts Federation meet last weekend at the American Health and Racquet Club, Colonie. Competing for the D.C. Stars, Colleen Teal, an 11-year-old sixth grader from New Scotland, and Chrissy Mann, a 9-year-old Delmar protege,

Close, but not quite, for Blackbirds

Sometimes, it is not just what you do in the finals that's important, it's just getting there.

That was the problem for Voorheesville's wrestling team on Saturday, as it went into the semifinals of the Colonial Council wrestling tournament with nine boys still in the tussle. It gave Voorheesville a fair shot at upsetting either Mechanicville or Albany Academy for victory in the eight-team event.

But, as Coach Dick Leach said, "We were not pleased by the semifinals." Voorheesville lost five of the nine matches, and the way they lost a few of them was probably more frustrating for Leach.

"Sean Rafferty (at 167 pounds) was leading going into the last period. He hurt his neck but finished, and the match went into overtime, where he lost. Tom Hannmann (155) was leading 4-2 midway through the third period and lost 7-4."

Most upsetting was Mark Gillenwalters' loss to eventual 98-pound winner Chris Izzo of Mechanicville. Gillenwalters was up 5-0 with 30 seconds left in the match, but Izzo clawed back to 5-5 and then put Gillenwalters on his back just before the final horn for a 7-5 win. "I've never seen Mark put on his back like that," added Leach.

Leach was pleased with his finalists, however, for they not only got there but conquered when they did. Two wins were expected. Undeclared (23-0) Shawn Sheldon and Jeff Clark each triumphed easily, Sheldon winning by 20-4 at 105, and Clark via pin at 112. Another hot wrestler of late, Matt Beals, extended his season mark to 20-4 with a 14-5 victory at 138.

The surprise came at 119 pounds, where Jeff Genovesi of Voorheesville upset previously undefeated Joe Conway of Albany Academy, 11-6. "Jeff is only a 10th grader," beamed Leach. "He did just a super job."

The victories insured Voorheesville a strong third-place finish with 130 points, but that's as far as they got, Albany Academy totalling 141 and winner Mechanicville 158.

Still, the four wins and close misses give Leach some encouragement for the Class C Sectionals this Friday and Saturday at Corinth, where the host school, Hoosick Falls and Mechanicville loom as the main competition. "We have a shot, I'll say that," said Leach.

The team certainly had a good deal more than a shot the previous Thursday, as they went to outmanned Ravena and rolled 53-20, despite the fact Clark sat the meet out with a bad knee. Victories by pin went to Gillenwalters (98), Genovesi (119) and Beals (138), while Sheldon (105), Vince Perry (132), Hannmann (155), Rafferty (167), John Ryan (177) and Ernie Sacco (heavyweight) scored victories by decision.

Dolphin swimmers score

Jonathan Scholes, competing in the 8-and-under age group at the Saratoga Tigers Valentine Invitational swim meet, collected three first place ribbons at the Glens Falls High School pool Sunday.

Jonathan won the 50-yard freestyle in 36.51 seconds, the 50-yard breaststroke in 52.93 and the 50-yard butterfly in 49.66. He placed second in the 50-yard backstroke in 46.47.

Drew Patrick captured the only other Dolphin blue ribbon, winning the boys 10-and-under breaststroke in 39.33 seconds. He also garnered third places in the 100 IM and 50 fly.

In the girls 10-and-under class, Jennifer Mosley won second places in the 50 free and breaststroke, and was third in the backstroke. Lisa Ogawa of the Dolphins earned second place in the girls' 11-12 50-yard backstroke, and Kathleen Fish had a third in the girls' 10-and-under breaststroke.

Susan Mallory, Delmar standout swimming for the Albany Starfish team, swept four events in the girls 13-14 division, the 1M, 100 free, backstroke and butterfly.

finished first and second respectively among the 55 participants in the Class 3 judging. On a scale of 40.0, Colleen scored 33.25 for first place, followed closely by Chrissy, second with 32.65. Both girls qualified for the Sectional meet March 27 in Binghamton.

Gymnastics at Academy

The physical education and dance departments of the Albany Academy for Girls will present an evening of aerobics, gymnastics and dance on Wednesday, Feb. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium. There will be competition in aerobic dancing between the four Upper School classes. The routines, created by students elected by girls in their own grade, have been prepared during class time.

Members of the Gymnastics Club will demonstrate skills on the vaulting horse, balance beam, uneven bars and floor under the direction of Mrs. Lindsay Moran and managers Tara Cunningham and Allison Jones.

Soccer clinic on tap

Dr. Karl Heinz Heddergott, director of coaching for the United States Soccer Federation, will be the featured instructor at a soccer clinic to be held at Gowana Middle School on the Shenendehowa Central School campus in Clifton Park on Saturday, Feb. 26. Other clinicians include Dr. Lenard Lucenko and Nick Zlatar, both members of the national coaching staff and the President's Council on Physical Fitness. The program will run from 1 to 4 p.m. For information call 899-2799 or 371-6000.

Blackbirds top-seeded in Sectionals

By Nat Boynton

In this, the most illustrious basketball season in Voorheesville history, Chuck Abba's Blackbirds have shown their fans most everything except the collapse that goes with panic.

Last week they came about as close to becoming unglued as they have all season, but once again Abba's magnificent machine pulled itself together, set off an explosive scoring binge, and went home still undefeated at 19-0 with one game left (last night at Lansingburgh) in the regular season.

Now the "second season" has arrived: it's Sectional time, and Voorheesville is rightfully seeded No. 1 in the Class CC tournament. That gives them a bye this Friday when the eliminations get underway, and a free pass to the semifinals Tuesday.

As this chronicle went to press, the Blackbirds were scheduled for an 8:30 p.m. meeting at Linton in Schenectady against the winner of this weekend's Canajoharie-Watervliet game, but there could be a shift. If the Class A Sectional picture changes as a result of last night's (Tuesday) Linton game, Linton may be playing at home next Tuesday. In that case, the Voorheesville semifinal would be moved to either another site or another night. Watch the dailies for time and place.

For the record: Voorheesville has never won a Sectional title in basketball. The best teams of recent years were Bud Tatros' 16-4 combine in 1965-66, and Howie Smith's 1977-78 team, the first Blackbirds to reach a Sectional final.

Seeded behind Voorheesville are, in order, Saratoga Catholic, Hoosick Falls and Greenville. Looking at that array, Abba was torn between hopes for his kids to have the glory of an undefeated season in the 20-game regular schedule, and his keen desire to bring home Voorheesville's first Sectional hoop crown. His dilemma: would the burden of an undefeated record carry extra pressure into the Sectionals?

If his boys come through the way they did at Mechanicville last Friday, he needn't worry. Voorheesville was outplayed in the first half, frittered away a 12-6 lead in the second quarter, and went to the locker room trailing by 3. Two and a half minutes into the third quarter they were down by 7; they were in foul trouble, and for the first time all year seemed to lose composure.

As he did against Cohoes at home the week before, Abba called time and went into a zone press. Chris Hogan and Jim Meacham keyed the drops, Mike Lewis and John Zongrone hit the boards like tigers, and Dickie Lennon directed traffic in his usual cool.

It was an explosion. The Blackbirds, down 36-29 with 6:20 showing on the third-period clock, took off like a rocket. They soared to a 51-39 lead by the end of the quarter, and kept rolling to 61-42 midway through the fourth, an incredible 32-6 surge in a 10-minute stretch.

Lennon had 12 points in the third period and finished with 22. Zongrone had a fine night with nine baskets, and Lewis had 13 points while leading the team in rebounds with 12.

"This is a dedicated bunch of kids,"

Abba commented over the weekend. "They really work hard, they understand the value of working hard, and they know what they can do when they run into trouble."

That is Abba's way of indicating that he has confidence in his team's confidence. With several outstanding stars, a balanced scoring machine from outside as well as inside, a tenacious defense, good ball handling and plenty of basketball intelligence, it will take an exceptional team, a hot night by an opponent or a cold night by the Blackbirds to keep the Sectional hardware out of the trophy case on Rt. 85A.

With the Bethlehem varsity enduring their longest season in five years, the BC jayvees were 8-10 going into this week's finale with Guilderland. Andy Kasius (30) contributed to a 75-67 win over Burnt Hills. R.H. Davis

End is near for BC hoop

Having played improved basketball the previous few weeks, the 2-15 Eagles of Bethlehem Central High faced the challenge last week of being a deciding factor in the race for this year's Suburban Council Gold Division title between Burnt Hills and Niskayuna.

Well, in a way, they were a deciding factor when they played Burnt Hills last Tuesday. They lost, 84-43, while Niskayuna was being beaten by Scotia, giving Burnt Hills the division crown.

The 41-point shellacking was not what Coach Gary Przybylo had envisioned. "It was a total team effort... no, I can't say there was a bright spot. No, nobody played well."

The box score might bear that out, as only Mike Mooney slipped into double figures for BC with 10.

Still, the Sectionals are an open affair, and the Eagles, after a closing Suburban Council affair last night (Tuesday) versus Guilderland, will be meeting a fine Shenendehowa High contingent in the opening round this coming Tuesday.

"I feel we can beat Guilderland at home," said Przybylo of his team's final chance to get a league win this season (they are currently 0-14 in the Suburban and 2-15 overall). "As for Shenendehowa, we would have to do even better. That will be a really tough game."

"All I can say is, the first eight men on our team this year are underclassmen — so, watch for us next year."

Tribe points for Sectionals

Coach Tim Tucker of Ravena says the decision to enter the Class B Sectionals had to be made by Dec. 8, or else he might not have opted to enter the tournament this Friday against hosting LaSalle.

"We were 3 and 8 back then in December, but playing well, and I thought we had a real good chance of getting to .500," said Tucker.

The Indians were 3-16 going into Monday night's game at Siena College versus Waterford. The mark includes the latest two drops, by 81-54 at Lansingburgh last Wednesday and 77-73 to Watervliet at home on Friday. And yet, if anything, Tucker sees his team as playing even better ball than two months ago.

"Against Watervliet, we played exceptionally well overall. We moved the ball, made few turnovers and played excellent defense. We had 33 baskets to Watervliet's 23."

That's a margin of 20 points from the field, and usually good enough for a victory in anybody's gym, let alone your own. Yet the Indians went to their own foul line but 13 times and hit 7, while Watervliet spent the best part of its evening there, canning 31 more points at the stripe.

"It's not like we were full-court pressing or anything," said Tucker. "The ball just gets in our end and we start hearing whistles. It's nothing new. It's been happening all year." He says of Ravena's 19 games, they have outscored opponents from in the field in 15.

That was not the case, by 27-22, against the strong team from Lansingburgh, although the North Troy squad also added a 27-10 advantage from the foul line.

Donnie Baker led the Indians with 14 points in that one and threw in another 18 against Watervliet. "He's the heart of our club," said Tucker of Baker. "He not only scores, but he plays the best forward on the other team and the guy gets nothing."

"And now at guard we have sophomore Kevin Hoffman, and he plays the other team's best guard, and that guy gets nothing. In addition, he's made the difference of about 10 fewer turnovers per game for us since he became our point guard.

"He not only is a good ballhandler, which our old point guards were also, but he's 6-1 and against the zone he can throw over it. So against teams that have good forwards and guards we can match up pretty well."

Unfortunately, LaSalle also places emphasis on its center, Tom McMahon. "He goes against 6-7, 6-8 kids all the time, so that will make him a lot for us to handle," said Tucker.

"If we can win two in a row — against Waterford and then LaSalle — it would be great. If we get by that we would play on Saturday against Catskill High at Columbia-Greene, and Catskill — well, that's just some kind of ball club.

"But I've said all along that we're a young team. Against Watervliet we started three sophomores and two juniors. So I've got to be happy with the progress these kids made this year."

Upsets topple Eagles from perch

There's nothing like a loss or two to sober a first place team. After two upsets that came within five days of each other, the Bethlehem Central girls' varsity basketball squad seemingly sorted out its problems on the road last week. It coasted to two easy wins that boosted the team to a 9-4 Suburban Council record. Unfortunately, Council leaders Guilderland and Mohonasen have also been winning.

With blonde bombshell Barbie Boyer back, previously winless Shaker had won three of its last four games before running up against Bethlehem. The Lady Eagles were in the driver's seat through the game, winning 40-35. Center Kim Zornow led the way with 13 points, thanks to Lady Eagle award winner Paola Castaldo, who passed deftly and drove in toward the baseline with the sole purpose of feeding the ball to her big target, Zornow. Nine players had a piece of the scoring, including Ann Howell (six) and Terry Plunkett (six).

Scotia was in over its head on Saturday, losing 44-27 to the orange and black. Zornow had 21 points, a season high for her, and won the MVP.

Clear that hydrant!

There are 1,025 fire hydrants in the area covered by the Bethlehem Water District, which is most of the town.

But many of them are covered with snow or obstructed to some degree by snowbanks.

That's not so good in an emergency.

A water department spokesman said town crews had cleared snow from hydrants on main roads — the ones property owners haven't shoveled out themselves.

For homeowners, ignoring a blocked hydrant isn't quite the same as not clearing the sidewalk in front of the house. In the first instance, firemen answering a call could lose precious seconds; in the other, it's just a case of a possible — and probable — lawsuit if someone slips and is injured in a fall.

Spikers rebound after losing star

Volleyball has been a game of ups and downs for the Bethlehem Central boys' team. The sextet of regulars has earned a 4-2 record, up from last year's dismal 1-6 start. Star setter David Odenkirchen went up to block in the second match of the young season but came down too hard, spraining his ankle. Now on crutches, he's hoping to be back in time for the tournament finale.

Undefeated Shaker was scuttling for points until Odenkirchen was carried out in the first game of the match, after which Blue Bison blew BC away, 15-12, 15-6. It has taken two juniors to fill Odenkirchen's shoes. Jeff Randles, who last played volleyball in his freshman year, covers the missing man's hitting, while Jaron Bourke, who has had some experience in the CO-SUN (Colonie-SUNYA) fall league that Empire State Games veteran Ken Hetling also plays in, rotates in to set and cover the back court.

Scotia preyed on the pair's lack of court time in the next outing, winning 14-16, 15-13, 15-6. Since then, BC has been on a three-game winning streak, beating Mohonasen, 15-5, 15-10; Guilderland, 15-11, 15-7, and Niskayuna, 15-2, 15-13. But it is important to note that the three defeated opponents have only won one match among them.

The starting six for Bethlehem are now Hetling, Scott Gravlee, Sung Kwon, Bob Wemsley, Mike Cole and Randles.

A special message about drinking and driving for everyone who drives.

IF YOU NEED IT, CALL A SPECIAL HOT LINE NUMBER

The problem

If there's a chance you might drink and drive, you should know this: New York State has tough laws dealing with drinking drivers. Even after just a few drinks, you may be impaired enough to be arrested and convicted. And if you think you'll get away with it, consider this: Many counties have increased the number of law enforcement officers on the road, particularly after midnight. They're coming down hard on drinking drivers, even first offenders.

What you can do

We know there's a lot of pressure to drink. Many people who don't usually drink do drink on a party night. If there's even a remote possibility that this could apply to you, here's what you should do: If you do have a few drinks, and you're driving, or riding with someone who's been drinking call home or a friend and ask to be picked up. Think that will embarrass you? It shouldn't. Consider the alternatives — being arrested by the police or being involved in an accident. You're still not convinced?

Show this message to your family or friends. Ask them afterwards if they won't please pick you up if you need it. You're grown up. You're family and friends are grown up. Together, you can make sure you don't become an arrest statistic or an accident statistic.

What you as a friend can do

Too many party nights have ended in tragedy. Even with the best of intentions, some people will end up driving under the influence. If they are stopped by police and found to be impaired or intoxicated, they'll be arrested. New York State is determined to get drunken drivers off the road — no matter who they are. We think you ought to do your friends one big favor. Tell them that if they need you, you'll be waiting to drive them home. No ridicule. No comments. No questions asked. Tell them straight out that you'll respect their decision. You know you'd rather get a call from them than from the police or a hospital. Tell them that.

Don't drink and drive.

Call home from the party... not from the police station.

CCC anniversary

Editor, The Spotlight:

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the Civilian Conservation Corps. It was on 31 March, 1933, that President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed Senate Bill 598 to establish the program for the nation. What he had done for reforestation in New York State, Mr. Roosevelt proclaimed in his 1932 acceptance speech for president, he would do for the United States.

To mark the event nationally this year the U.S. Postal Service in April is issuing a commemorative stamp.

There is a National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni (NACCCA). Its headquarters is in Falls Church, Virginia. In New York State it has chapters in New York City, Rome and Lockport. There is none in the Capital District. There are over a score of non-chapter members and considerably more non-associated but with memories of service in the CCC.

Encouraging plans for an event to spotlight the anniversary in Capitaland are several military and veterans organizations. Many of their members were directly involved with the corps. These groups include the American Legion and the Capital District Chapters of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA), Reserve Officers Association (ROA), and The Retired Officers Association (TROA). As an ex-CCCer and a member of each of these organizations I have been designated its chairman to coordinate for an event to mark the occasion.

The purpose of this letter is to publicize the intent for a gathering of former CCC personnel. To that end I call upon all interested individuals to send me their name and address for me to determine to what extent a celebration of this historic era in our lives may be evolved.

Alexander J. Woehrlé

Addendum on pages

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to thank Scott Gravlee, Sung Kwon and Nonika Mascarenhas for their thoughtful response to my letter about mis-shelved library books. Our experience differs on just one point: the pages whom I saw loading several books on a shelf took off, not to answer the bell, but to chat for 15 or 20 minutes with their friends.

I am especially grateful to these writers for reading my letter carefully and understanding that I did not accuse all the pages as a group. I agree that only a few pages may be responsible over the years for the staff's share of the problem.

The letter from Dagmar Fuhs is a different story. It contains distortions and fictions about me which cannot be allowed to stand uncorrected.

Ms. Fuhs is "outraged" that I placed the blame on "only the staff" and "all" the pages. But I said nothing of the kind.

Ms. Fuhs attacks me for not reporting the problem to the director. But I did try to report it three times. The first time two people at the circulation desk told me that no one in charge was in the building. The second time a reference librarian told me that what I had seen could not occur — that books are mis-shelved only by patrons, never by staff. The third time another reference librarian did not answer me; she simply glared angrily until I left. I never risked the unpleasantness of reporting it again.

Ms. Fuhs then attacks me for not rechecking the shelves recently. But I did recheck them. After writing the letter, but before mailing it, I looked again at the same fiction aisle. This time, in two minutes, I found only four mis-shelved books, only one of them non-fiction. This was an improvement, but I still would not want my tax dollars used to "replace" these "missing" books.

Ms. Fuhs also disapproves of patrons who leave books "on a desk." But I do that frequently and for a reason. When in browsing I come across a mis-shelved book, I habitually remove it from the shelf and place it in a carrel, hoping that it will be shelved correctly the next time. Perhaps if more patrons did so, we could help these four conscientious pages and their co-workers come closer to their ideal.

Editor's View

Occasional comments by the editors of The Spotlight

The hiring of a paid executive secretary by the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce seems to us to be a positive—and perhaps overdue—step. Inevitably, though, it raises certain questions, which may be the most positive aspect of the move.

The chamber has existed for years primarily as a social organization, with a secondary purpose being to boost local businesses and help preserve the unique nature of small-scale commerce in the Tri-Village area.

That is no small accomplishment. We do have something important and unusual here, and we should not lose sight of it.

But the fact is that Bethlehem is going to grow, and change, whether anybody likes it or not. What is the chamber's role to be in the development of Delaware Ave. and Rt. 9W? Should the chamber take a stronger role in preserving (some would say restoring) the appearance of our commercial areas? Should the chamber take a role in attracting industry to Bethlehem, and if so, what kind?

The arrival of the Association for Retarded Children, the first statewide organization to locate in Bethlehem since the New York State Farm Bureau, should be some cause for reflection.

The ARC sold itself on the Delmar area as being close enough to the center of power, yet attractive enough to justify the extra travel. Prior to this, Colonie or Guilderland would have been a logical move for a business or organization wishing to locate on the periphery of the capitol city, but with some astute selling Bethlehem could get other such opportunities.

And why has the town remained so passive in terms of new industry? Certainly GE, Owens-Corning and Airco have proven to be good neighbors, and there is ample land (with the necessary transportation, services and utilities in place) available for more. "High-tech" industry may or may not be within the town's grasp, but who's going to know until somebody tries?

Should the chamber play a role in all this? One thing seems obvious: a chamber can't function effectively if its base is only the limited time its members and a few volunteers give it. The recent merger of the Colonie and Albany chambers reflects this fact.

Spotlight IN RETROSPECT

Feb. 13, 1958

When the Spotlight photographer took a series of pictures at the long-awaited opening of the new addition that houses the cafeteria at the Bethlehem Junior High School on Kenwood Ave., no one noticed a paper airplane resting on one of the ceiling beams. The new wing also has a stairway that has a beautiful indoor garden at the foot of the stairs, adding to the decor. The new pool is also open.

Among the reports submitted by various subcommittees of the Bethlehem Citizens Advisory Committee was a prediction that the Senior High School may double its present pupil population of 600 in the next 10 years. The elementary study committee reported the diversion of two special rooms for classrooms to alleviate the crowding at the Clarksville School, and also stated that the Elsmere School is now 70 pupils over capacity. The high school educational program committee is surveying the present high school curriculum department by department.

Feb. 14, 1963

Letters to the editor in this week's Spotlight voice strong opposition to the issuance of a building permit for a Carroll's hamburger stand at the corner of Delaware Ave. and Euclid Ave., Elsmere, and the paired-schools proposal by the Bethlehem Central school board. The letter writers urged citizens to make their opposition known to officials.

Feb. 15, 1968

Residents of the Town of Bethlehem are invited to an Open House in the town's newly renovated Police and Justice Building at 118 Adams St., Delmar, on Sunday, Feb. 18, from 2 to 6 p.m. Also housed in the building are the Juvenile Bureau and Civil Defense.

Feb. 15, 1973

J.D. Hills of Cedar Hill, Selkirk, has been appointed superintendent of the Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department by the Bethlehem Town Board.

Feb. 16, 1978

Just 29 days after the Bethlehem Central school board agreed to a pay increase for teachers ranging from 12 to 24 percent and averaging 17.4 percent over three years, the Bethlehem teachers union filed a suit charging the board with improper practice. The charge, filed by BCTA President William T. Cleveland, is based on a public statement issued by Bertold E. Weinberg, one of the two board members who voted against ratifying the agreement, in which Weinberg criticized the tactics used by the local union's chief negotiator during the bargaining period.

Albany newspaper and TV reporters converged on the Bethlehem town board meeting as the board took formal action suspending Police Chief Peter Fish for 30 days on unspecified charges that "may constitute misconduct and/or incompetency in office." The action got bold headlines on Page 1 of the Times-Union and the "live coverage" was the top story on TV newscasts.
