

Bert Kohinke leaving his Bethlehem 'family'

By Lorraine C. Smith

When Bertram E. Kohinke leaves for Florida on Sept. 25 he will only take part of his family with him. He will be accompanied by Eva Pierson Kohinke, his wife of twenty-one years, but the children he nurtured for more than sixteen years and guided to their adulthood for thirty years are mature and settled and will stay behind. The children, his only family for many years, are the hamlets of the Town of Bethlehem.

Kohinke's role in this Capital District suburb encompasses government commissions from 1947 through a myriad of local involvements and town positions ending in his retirement as town supervisor in 1975.

"He was the man for the time at the time," said Tom Corrigan, town supervisor since 1978, who served as councilman during Kohinke's term of office. "He had the vision to recognize the growth that was coming, and was able to capitalize on our proximity to Albany. He greatly influenced the quality of the town's development." Corrigan, who also served on other committees with Kohinke, recalled his leadership, "I learned a lot of government from him: governmental process, working with people, being available to the public."

Kohinke's first act as town supervisor in 1959 was to move his office from the rear to the front of the Town Hall. He knew everyone at Four Corners — a paterfamilias.

Bert Kohinke relished the public life. Dinner and luncheon meetings, corn and steak roasts were the hallmarks of his tenure. Committee meetings and social events. The issues were discussed there, the problems worked out. He employed every available means to reach decisions, and once he decided he was firm and steadfast in pursuit of his goal.

Elected eight times on the Republican ticket, he continued a caring relationship with all the townspeople. "We were Democrats at the time, but that made no difference," recalls Doris Mulkerne, busy then with her seven young children. "We needed a 'caution to traffic' sign on our street because there were so many children. It was quickly provided. 'Your problem is my problem' was the attitude Mr. Kohinke took towards everyone."

Born in Albany, June 9, 1906, Kohinke was in his twenties when he joined the Goodyear tire business there. For over thirty years, eventually attaining the position as vice president and general manager, he helped build a prosperous dealership which he relinquished as his role of Bethlehem supervisor became increasingly demanding. Elements of controversy surrounded his dual role of businessman and town leader, but Kohinke was the first supervisor to actually devote himself full time to the town position.

It was during Kohinke's administration that a professional planner was engaged to prepare the master plan that has provided zoning guidelines for the town for many years, helping to insure a balance of commercial and residential areas. Kohinke was instrumental in attracting industry to offer employment as well as minimize the tax rate for private citizens. General Electric, Owens-Corning, Air-Co Products and Niagara Mohawk continue to provide their share of the 45 percent plus of Bethlehem's tax base derived from local commerce.

His foresight also encompassed land preservation, environmental concerns and leisure activities. During his term the Parks Committee was appointed to locate sites for recreational facilities.

"If it weren't for Kohinke, we'd be in the throes of getting them now," commented William Johnston, a councilman at the time and currently serving on the Planning Board. (He has been related to Kohinke by marriage for the last twelve years.) Elm Avenue and Henry Hudson Parks are achievements of his office. Park Pass Number One was issued to Bertram E. Kohinke.

Elm Avenue Park is an outstanding facility, but no less significant are the many services introduced to insure the comfort and well being of the residents of Bethlehem: Youth Employment Service, the construction of town parking lots, spring and fall debris pick-up, recycling paper, mosquito spray service, bicycle

State may ban trucks from Normanskill span

By Caroline Terenzini

A decision is due this week on whether the Rt. 9W bridge over the Normanskill will be posted for a reduced load limit, which will mean detours for tractor-trailers. Robert Lambert, regional structures engineer for the state Department of Transportation, said a Sept. 7 inspection revealed the structure "had deteriorated substantially" since last year's inspection and the department "is getting concerned about it."

Lambert said that in addition to considering reducing the load limit, DOT is attempting to speed up funding for the bridge's replacement, now scheduled for a work start next fall. Construction of the two parallel spans designed to replace the 67-year-old bridge will take 1½ to two years, during which time the present bridge will continue in use.

"There's no danger of its falling," according to Ray Gardeski, design engineer for DOT Region One. "But right now it is very close to the No. 1 priority in Region One, and has a very high priority statewide." The 420-foot-long span was built in 1916 and reconstructed in 1927 and 1933, Gardeski said. It currently carries about 17,000 vehicles a day, 10 percent of which are trucks, according to DOT figures.

At present, contracts for the Rt. 9W bridge replacement are due to be let next fall. Plans call for two parallel two-lane structures at a cost of $5.75 million, with 80 percent of that paid for with federal funds. The bridge is considered such a high priority that even should Proposition 1 on the Nov. 8 ballot — the so-called Rebuild New York Bond Issue — fail, the replacement will be built, Gardeski said.

In a talk before Delmar's Second Milers club last week, Gardeski made a strong plea for public support of the bond issue and listed these other local bridges that are on the state's list for repair or replacement:

- Rt. 9W over Coeymans Creek, at a cost of $600,000, with the contract to be let this fall and work done in 1984.

- Rt. 396 over the Selkirk freight yards (Moshers Bridge), at a cost of about $2 million, due in the 1986 construction year, although the alternative of relocating Rt. 396 is being considered;

- Rt. 32 over the rail yard, at a cost of $2.1 million, due in 1986, and

- Rt. 32 over Onesquethaw Creek, with construction of a new bridge on the present abutments due in the summer of 1984 at a cost of $315,000.

The oft-discussed extension of Rt. 85 has been off the department's list for several years, Gardeski said.

The most likely detour for heavy vehicles if the Rt. 9W bridge over the Normanskill is posted for lesser loads

Dems name 3 in town races

Bethlehem Democrats, opting for "quality and leadership" rather than a full slate, have nominated a Glenmont state administrator and a Delmar banker for town board.

The only other nomination made by the town committee at its meeting Friday was for town justice. That means that Republican incumbents Tom Corrigan (supervisor), Marion Camp (town clerk), Kenneth P. Hahn (receiver of taxes and assessments) and Martin Cross (superintendent of highways) will all run unopposed Nov. 8.

"We were selective in our choices so that we could concentrate our efforts on a few high choice individuals as opposed to providing a full slate," said party chairman Michael Breslin in a prepared statement. "We look for quality and leadership."

Nominated for the town board are Barbara E. Smith of Mosher Rd., Glenmont, and Daniel J. Sutherland of Dumbarton Dr., Elsmere. Kevin Harren of Capitol Ave., Delmar, was the party's choice for town justice. Dr. Smith and Sutherland take on incumbents Ruth Bickel and W. Scott Prothero, and Harren challenges Peter Wenger, also an incumbent.

Barbara Smith, who holds a doctorate in education from the State University at Albany, is Central State York District director for the state Division of Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse. She has taught college at Skidmore, the State University at Albany and at various senior and junior high schools. She is a member of the League of Women Voters, the National Womens Political Caucus and the National Organization for Women. She has been a Democratic committeewoman in Saratoga Springs.

Reading the tea leaves

Reading meaning into Conservative Party primaries is always dangerous, but the GOP's one loss in last Tuesday's write-in balloting for the third party line could confirm some uneasy suspicions.

The loss came in the new 36th District, where Democrat David C.W. Sawyer edged Robert Hoffmeister, eight votes to six. A 14-vote primary is hardly a plebiscite, but Republican party leaders already saw Sawyer — the only candidate on the Democrat's slate who has ever actually won an election — as their toughest opponent this year. Sawyer served six years on the Albany Common Council as an "insurgent" Democrat in the mid 1970s before moving to Delmar, and is an experienced, hard-working campaigner. Hoffmeister is making his first run for elective office in the newly-redistricted 36th.

Bethlehem Republicans have taken to routinely contesting — and winning — the Conservative write-in primary although there are only about 200 enrolled Conservatives in the town. Party leaders reason that the line attracts some independent voters in November.

Elsewhere, the voting went as expected. All of the Republican incumbents won the Conservative line, with Supervisor Tom Corrigan leading the ticket with 24 votes. James Ross, the GOP's candidate for the 35th county legislature seat, took his Conservative line and drew 227 write-in votes on the Republican line. A Democratic court challenge had forced the Republicans to hold an "opportunity to ballot" write-in primary in the 35th, but Ross's nomination was never in doubt.

Frangos named to legislature

George D. Frangos, 29 Burhans Pl., Delmar, a State University at Albany administrator and a Democratic committeeman, is Bethlehem's newest county legislator. But his appointment at a brief special meeting of the legislature last Friday is not likely to have much impact on the political fortunes of either party this year.

Frangos is expected to serve out the remainder of the late Edward Sargent's term as the representative for the present 36th District, and then retire.

"It's a fantastic opportunity to see how it operates from the inside," Frangos said after he was sworn in in front of his family. "But I'll never run for office. I'm an academic."

Frangos, who is associate vice chancellor for graduate studies at the university, was tapped by Bethlehem Democratic Committee Chairman Michael Breslin after Breslin's first choice for the post, Thomas McCord, was successfully challenged by Republicans last week. McCord, the Democratic candidate for the new 35th District (under redistricting, all of the legislature districts will be different next year), doesn't live in the old 36th, and so couldn't fill out Sargent's term.

Frangos said he had never met Sargent, but paid him a brief tribute as he took office. In the four months he will serve, he said, he intends to do so "in the tradition of independence and responsibility that he established for all of us."

The afternoon session — necessary because the time limit for filling the seat was expiring that day — took less than 10 minutes, long enough only for a pro forma attempt by the Republican minority to seat James Ross, the GOP candidate for the 35th, to be defeated. Both Ross and McCord were in the audience.

Status quo prevails in primary

By Susan Guyett

The results of last week's county legislative primary races must have been a big disappointment for anyone who was looking for evidence that the Albany County Democratic organization was crumbling.

For the most part, the "insurgent" Democratic candidates lost to the "organization" candidates, leaving the legislature's majority essentially intact.

In the two races where incumbent Democrats were defeated, there's no reason to believe that the winning candidates — one from Albany, one from Cohoes — won't play ball with the majority Democrats to get what they want for their districts when elected in November. Their votes on occasion may not be as kneejerk as some other Democratic legislators, but the way it stands now, they will be in no position to push the Democratic leadership around.

Let the Republicans gain ground in November, however, and any independent-minded Democrat (or Republican for that matter) may get more attention than they are used to from the Democratic bigwigs.

While this was not the first time Democrats fought primaries against each other, one element — the absence of Albany Mayor and party chair Erastus Corning 2nd — was new and some observers thought it could make a difference in the primary races.

Briefly, here are the results of the Democratic primaries for Albany County Legislature candidates:

- In the City of Albany's Arbor Hill section, 20-year incumbent Homer Perkins was soundly trounced by political newcomer Sandra Rose Temple by a vote of 801-346. Temple is said to be protegee of city Alderman Nebraska Brace, who has been nipping at Perkins' political heels with some success for years. Temple campaigned in the 3rd Legislative District on the theme of it's "time for a change."

Most of the newspaper interviews following this campaign have quoted Brace and Perkins — not Temple. The race was clearly a battle to see who was going to get more political control in Arbor Hill. Brace, while he has an independent streak and will voice his objections publicly, cooperates with the most part with the other Democrats on the Albany Common Council. There's no reason to believe Temple won't do the same in the county arena.

Perkins, meanwhile, has vowed to keep his ward leader position although Brace is out to oust him from that powerful behind-the-scenes party post.

- In a race where an insurgent victory could have made a real difference, incumbent Eleanor Billmyer narrowly won renomination in the 6th legislative district representing Albany's downtown Center Square and Hudson Park neighborhoods. Billmyer, running in a three-way race, received 783 votes to attorney George Carpinello's 737 votes. A third candidate, drawing from much the same constituency as Carpinello, Gregory Bell, pulled in 132 votes.

- Voters in the 9th Legislative District representing the Pine Hills and New Scotland Avenue area of Albany chose one attorney over another and in doing so rejected one of the oldest names in Albany politics — Ryan.

Paul Collins, who was appointed to a seat in the legislature a few months ago following the resignation of Robert Leyden, received 1,150 votes swamping Charles Ryan Jr.'s 540 vote tally. This race may have been Ryan's last chance at a political comeback following a feud with the late Mayor Erastus Corning. It's been said that if nothing else, the Ryans controlled their district. In this race, Ryan only carried his immediate neighborhood.

- In the 11th District, veteran Legislator Paul O'Brien easily beat back the primary challenge of John Polydouris by a vote of 442-150.

- Incumbent Majority Leader Richard Meyers received 939 votes to defeat his opponent Joseph Sullivan who pulled in 529 votes in the 14th district. Rumors are flying that when Meyers is returned to the legislature by the voters, he'll be stripped of his majority leader's post by party leaders. So far, only rumors.

- In Cohoes, veteran legislator Veronica Meier lost in her bid for renomination in the 19th District. John Stackrow, said to be a political ally of Cohoes Mayor Ronald Canestrari, beat Meier by an unofficial vote of 663-582.

While incumbent Meier could be considered the "organization" Democrat many see her defeat as an indication of political differences within the city of Cohoes, not as problems with the county organization to which Canestrari has ties.

In studying the workings of the county legislature, it's important to remember the numbers we are dealing with. There are 39 seats in the county legislature. This year, 26 spots, or two thirds, are held by the Democrats, while 13, or one third, are held by Republicans. With absences, renegades and assorted other problems, the Democratic leadership has had to work hard to maintain that crucial two thirds majority necessary for the passage of bond issues most of the year. They've made deals with Republicans from Colonie and given the cold shoulder to Democrats who won't toe the party line.

For example, Legislator Thomas Callaghan of Guelderland, a Democrat, apparently is being punished for his opposition to the county jail expansion plan. For two months in a row, proposals relating to the health department have gone before the finance committee of the legislature but not the health committee, which Callaghan chairs. In August, he requested that health department related proposals go through the health committee. In September, when another proposal bypassed his committee, he remained silent.

Primary wins by Carpinello and/or Ryan might have signalled some additional problems for the Democratic party leadership and might have indicated a loss of power.

Now, it's going to be up to the Republican candidates to hold their own and knock off some of the Democrats in some of the newly reapportioned districts if there are going to be major changes in the county legislature.

Fire at Elm Estates

A Friday fire in a house under construction at Elm Estates has been ruled accidental, according to Bethlehem police. The fire did extensive damage to the structure, although flames had been doused by workmen before Delmar and Elsmere firefighters arrived on the scene.

□ The Kohinke years

routes, sidewalk snow removal... the list is long. In addition, Kohinke developed the police department from a few constables to a formal agency, and he initiated the investment of taxpayers' money to net some $700,000 in interest income for the town.

Early on, Kohinke recognized it was time women be represented in government. In 1973, he recommended Evelyn Freudenreich to the Zoning Board of Appeals, and in 1975 Ruth Bickel to the Town Board where she still serves as councilwoman.

Appointed in 1963 to the position of town clerk, Marion Camp exemplifies the capabilities of the women recognized by Kohinke. "He made things happen," she recalled. "He was easy to work with and never took things for granted. He put in long hours and enjoyed anything that had to do with the well-planned growth of the town."

Like all children, "Bethlehem had a lot of growing pains," said Johnston. "Bert Kohinke contributed to an orderly growth by providing the services essential to new developments: water supplies, sewer systems and lighting districts.

"He is, in a word, a leader, a man of great integrity. Anything he did or does he gives great thought to."

Articulate and personable, Bert Kohinke is also a private man, a modest man. "Nobody does anything alone. The more people there are with dedication, the greater the success will be. I always used committees. Qualified, dependable people were necessary to change our town from a rural community to a town of progress, a town of the future," he said recently at his Delaware Ave. apartment.

"I enjoyed the companionship, the conversations. It is important to obtain as much information as possible. A well informed public is the best way; with their support we could accomplish anything. But you can't please everyone, so you please as many as possible. I did my utmost to guarantee the services of a town government for the benefit of all the people." Bethlehem flourished and grew under his style of leadership, and yet it was this style that led to his undoing.

He could no longer know everyone. And just as he has been praised for his personal touch, so in the later years he was criticized for this "one man rule". His style, strong will and convictions made it difficult for him to adjust to the open discussions and free forums of the emerging Government-in-the-Sunshine statutes. He was accused of running a closed government.

There are aspects of this behind-the-scenes style that went unheralded. "He did a lot of nice things that people didn't know about," said Mrs. Camp.

Alice Johnston, Kohinke's sister-in-law, remembered one such occasion. "Our families gathered at Bert's for Christmas dinner and everything was ready. Then the phone rang; someone had come across a family without a holiday dinner. Our dinner had to wait until Bert made all the necessary calls to arrange a dinner for them."

Nonetheless, it was in this cloud of conflicts and contradictions that Bert Kohinke announced his retirement in December, 1974. By the following December he was publicly urged to step down as the chairman of the Republican party. He was 69 years old.

"I had reached retirement age, I was ready to be free of the duties required at all times of the year. If you can no longer get fun out of something, it is time to get out. I enjoyed politics, but it was time to let the young people take over; they have more and better ideas. I looked forward to some travelling, and to going South for the winters."

For the past eight years, the Kohinkes have been spending only part of the year here. During the fall and winter months they live in Naples, Fla. They are still planning to return to Delmar in the spring. This year is nevertheless different — they are selling all of their household furnishings, a stage of life on which Kohinke reflected: "There is some nostalgia, but then it passes."

It is the same approach he applies to other facets of his life: an intensity and a striving for perfection tempered with acceptance of change. Once an outstanding athlete — basketball, baseball, bowling — he gradually has had to relinquish his participation in favor of more sedentary pursuits.

"I have always believed anything worth doing is worth doing well." When he couldn't bowl well because of a physical ailment, he quit bowling: "It was either the pain or the balls."

A life-long baseball fan, he delighted in the color of the live action at Yankee and

Bert Kohinke was one of the moving spirits behind establishment of the Veteran's Memorial Park on Delaware Ave. near the D&H underpass in Delmar. Tom Howes

Shea Stadiums. He no longer makes the arduous trip to New York: "It's much nicer to be able to see the replays on television." An avid reader, particularly of history, he gave away his accumulation of hundreds of books: "I enjoyed my library, but it is better that they can be read and studied again by the young people."

For more than 14 years, he and his wife had shared a special relationship with their black poodle, Holly. They have not replaced her: "There is the hesitation to get another one."

The Kohinke's sold their boat, Holly Too (Eva, Bert and Holly, Too) about six years ago. "We like to spend our week ends fishing on the St. Lawrence and take summer trips on Lake Champlain, so when we received an unsolicited offer to buy the boat, we decided it was the time for us to move on with these plans and let someone else enjoy the boat."

After his retirement, he received an appointment to the Consolidated Delaware Reparation Commission which handles complaints against the state for damages incurred from the Delaware River. As chairman, he established the record for the highest number of claims settled out of court in the commission's history.

Part of the Red Ball Express during WW II, and awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received during the Battle of the Bulge, Kohinke led the town in tribute to American serviceman with the reconstruction of Veterans Park in 1964. He continues his Veterans association and rides in the cars during parades.

As a past commander of the Blanchard American Legion Post, he attends the monthly luncheons, where he is often invited to give the invocation in absence of the chaplain. The invocation is just a suggestion of the large role religion offers in his life. He was treasurer for the Holy Spirit Lutheran Church a total of 37 years as well as a Sunday school teacher, and director of the Salvation Army for more than 30 years.

One new hobby is latch hook. Pillows, wall hangings and a 36 by 72 inch oriental style rug are evidence of his meticulous work. "I saw it, became interested, and learned to do it."

As a man so occupied with government and community organizations for so much of his life, who are his friends now? Bert Kohinke smiles. "It is always nice to meet new people, and to visit friends of long standing." And what is a friend? "A friend is one who walks in when all the others are walking out."

What lies ahead for Bethlehem? "A continuance of good government in action with Republican leadership," he says. What are his goals now? "To enjoy life day by day, the rest of my life with my wife Eva. If there is something wrong, to take care of it; to continue to do charitable work whenever possible, to trust in one another, and to have faith in God."

would be Corning Hill (Rt. 32), which already takes trucks from the port of Albany. Other alternate routes, however, go through residential sections of the Town of Bethlehem.

Lambert said structural engineers now are doing a series of computations to determine the carrying capacity of the old bridge, a procedure that will take several weeks. In addition, the 9W bridge and others in the state have links and pins similar to the construction of the Connecticut bridge from which a section collapsed last spring and these spans are being analyzed by DOT, Lambert said. While the center section of the Rt. 9W span is pinned to the cantilevered substructure, it is not the same construction as the Connecticut bridge, according to Gardeski.

The speed limit on the Rt. 9W bridge was lowered to 30 miles an hour several years ago, Lambert said, to reduce vibration created by the heavy vehicles, but the speed limit is frequently violated and there may be three or even four trucks on the bridge at one time, he noted. The Sept. 7 inspection found significant vibration of the bridge under heavy vehicles and also found more corrosion than a year ago. The combination of heavier loads than the bridge was designed for and loss of carrying capacity because of rusting has created "a real problem," in Lambert's words.

The toll heavy trucks take on highways and bridges has prompted New York Mayor Edward Koch to seek to bar tandem trailers and rigs over 73,280 pounds from interstate highways within the city. However, concessions made to truckers in order to win passage in Congress of the Transportation Act of 1982 (which imposed the five-cent gasoline tax and an eight-cent air ticket tax in order to provide the dollars for upgrading the nation's transportation facilities) call for interstate highways to be open to double-trailers and rigs weighing up to 80,000 pounds. In response to Koch, the Federal Highway Administration has threatened to withhold some $750 million in transportation aid from the state.

The $1.25 billion bond issue on the ballot includes some $375 million as the state's "match" for 80 percent federal funding of a number of eligible projects statewide. The remainder of the bond issue revenue, according to Richard Carlson, assistant regional planning director, would be used for projects not eligible for federal funds, such as port and canal improvements. (While the Barge Canal currently carries little traffic, the state hopes to maintain it rather than abandon it and have to "start from scratch" at a later date, according to Gardeski. However, the Barge Canal maintenance budget was "devastated" by the legislature this year, he said.)

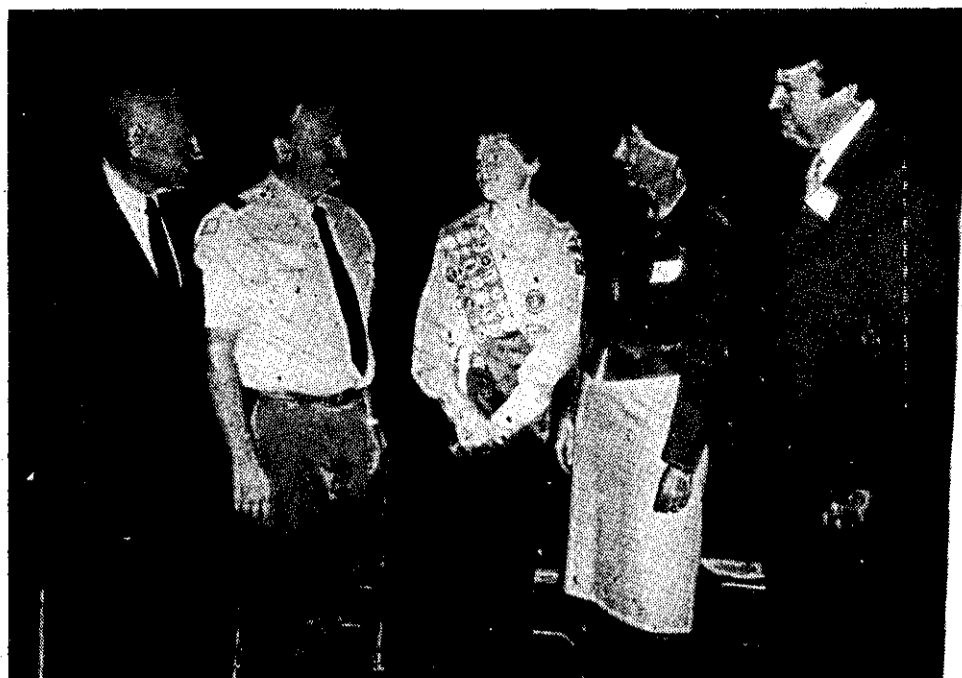

Other areas of the DOT's budget also have suffered in the crunch. Gardeski said the allocation for bridge maintenance in DOT's Region One (including Albany County) provides only 90 manhours of maintenance a year per bridge and only $185 per bridge for materials. He added that the department is using federal dollars to the maximum allowed to cover payroll and other operating costs on a per-project basis because of state budget trimming.

Transportation officials say they see few alternatives to the bond issue for raising the dollars the state needs to attract the additional federal aid it clearly could use. They agree that the state legislature would be hard-pressed to come up with more than the regular annual appropriation — which also has suffered in the budget crunch — and the most likely outcome will be retrenchment in the project plans. There are a number of priority lists, Gardeski said.

The New York State Automobile Association, based in Albany, has called the bond issue a "sham." They charge that the bond issue revenue will be a substitute for the annual highway appropriation. Transportation officials, however, point to the burgeoning social welfare responsibilities of the state as one reason why highway capital expenditures were 9.2 percent of the state's budget in 1960-61 but only 1.2 percent of the state's budget 20 years later. Demands on the state's scarce dollars have not abated. The AAA claims, "This year alone, some $350 million of taxes state motorists pay simply because they own a car will be spent for non-highway purposes."

Because Sportsmen Pay $500 Million a Year for Conservation

Because of the outstanding contributions that hunters and fishermen have made to conservation, more than 40 of the nation's leading conservation groups have joined together to sponsor National Hunting and Fishing Day, September 24, 1983.

President Reagan in an official statement gave recognition to the nation's sportsmen for their contributions to conservation. "To ensure that future generations could enjoy wildlife, hunters and fishermen helped found the conservation movement," said the President. He also noted that the wildlife management and habitat restoration programs financed largely by sportsmen's contributions benefit hundreds of species that are never hunted as well as game species.

In his statement, President Reagan commended hunters and fishermen for their efforts on behalf of conservation and urged all Americans to join with sportsmen to ensure the wise use of America's natural and wildlife resources.

Here are some of the facts on the sportsman's role in conservation:

Fact: Hunters and fishermen pay over $400 million a year for licenses and permits to hunt and fish. They add over $100 million more each year through payment of excise taxes on sporting arms and ammunition, fishing tackle and archery equipment.

Fact: Revenues from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses on the average provide about three-quarters of the funding for the 50 state fish and wildlife agencies. This money makes possible the purchase of millions of acres of wildlife habitat and helps pay for research, conservation, education, restocking programs and other related activities that help all wildlife—songbirds and chipmunks as well as deer and elk.

Fact: Hunters provide more than $14 million each year through purchases of duck stamps which are required for the hunting of waterfowl. Purchases of duck stamps have provided over $200 million for waterfowl conservation in the last 40 years.

Fact: In addition to all the funding mentioned above, hunters and fishermen spend an estimated $200 million a year to improve fish and wildlife habitat on private lands. They also provide a majority of the support for private conservation groups such as the National Wildlife Federation, Ducks Unlimited, Trout Unlimited, The Izaak Walton League, Audubon Society and others.

Cops at the library

Preschoolers are invited to come to the Voorheesville Public Library for an entertaining and educational look at the world of law enforcement this Tuesday, Sept. 27, at 10:30 p.m. The special show will be presented by Lisa Howard of the Guilford Police Department's Juvenile Bureau, and will feature puppets and songs intended "to build a positive image of law enforcement for younger children." The 20-minute presentation introducing the children to Officer Ollie and his friends, is entitled "Stranger Danger" and is free and open to the public.

Librarian Nancy Hutchinson also announces a change in schedule this week. No preschool story hour will be held next Friday, Sept. 30. Instead story hour will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 27, at 1:30 p.m.

Any boy 8 years of age who has finished the second grade is welcome to attend with his parents. Any adult interested in finding out more about the scouting program or in helping out with the many aspects of cub scouting may contact committee chairman, Bill Kerr at 765-2008 or newly appointed cubmaster Nareen Copeland at 765-2390.

For parents only

Parents of grade school students are reminded that Parent's Night — Open House programs will continue through this week and next. All programs will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the exception of the Kindergarten session which will begin at 8 p.m. Elementary school Principal Robert Farrell stresses that these grade level programs are for parents only and children should not attend.

Calendars are ready

They're here! Those sorely missed PTSA calendars are back by popular demand. Listing important school events and information, the calendars will be available at all parents' night programs, as well as at the Grand Union, Voorheesville Pharmacy and Voorheesville Public Library. PTSA volunteers will also canvass the school district selling them door to door.

Working on this time-consuming but worth-while project over the summer months were co-chairmen Dot Buckley and Kathy Fairbank, ad-chairman Joyce Schreiber, distribution chairmen Diane Relyea and typist Lauren Tedesco.

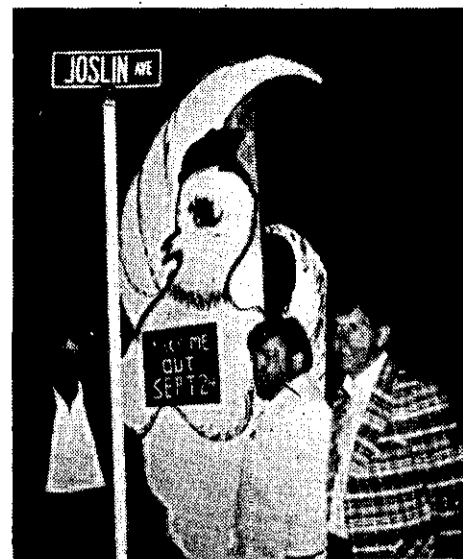

Speaking of PTSA, representatives will be on hand at all Parent's Night programs to encourage parents to join PTSA. Membership dues are a mere $2 a year and go toward the many youth-oriented programs sponsored by the group.

Readying for auction

Things are in full swing for the annual Auction-Bazaar sponsored by the Voorheesville Methodist Church to be held this year on Saturday, Oct. 1, on the church grounds. The bazaar featuring crafts, food, white elephant items, games for children and the ever-popular auction is still in need of used items in good condition. Those wishing to donate items may leave them at the church during the next two weeks, or may contact Dick Freyer at 765-2555 to make arrangements for pick-up of large items.

4-H cookies

Good news for cookie lovers! During the next few weeks members of several 4-

H groups in Voorheesville will be out selling cookies to raise funds to benefit the 4-H Leaders Association which provides carious awards and funds scholarships to members. The cookies, which sell for $1.30 per box, include peanut butter wafers and mint patties, both of which are chocolate covered.

A busy time for the three area groups, the cookie sales program follows close on the heels of the active participation in both the Altamont and State Fairs.

Gladys Chamberlain, leader of the Lucky Four Leaves, reports that the girls in her group took 5 blue ribbons and 4 red at the local fair, with Vicky Chamberland winning a blue ribbon at the State Fair.

Leaders of the Osborne Corners group, Bill and Helen Springer and David and Cheryl Appleby, were pleased at the success of their group. The 14 members entered 82 exhibits, tallying an impressive 66 blue ribbons, 10 red ribbons and six ribbons of participation. Four members, Scot Chamberlain, Pam Harms, Jennifer Appleby, and Kristen McKie, went on to State Fair competition, bringing home three blues and a red.

Hunter won a total of 45 ribbons at the fair, including a blue for their club project showing a nutritious lunch. The group also took great pride this year in the fact that member Ken Hunter, Jr. was awarded a scholarship through the 4-H Leader's Association towards his studies this year at Syracuse University. Going on to state fair competition were exhibits by Karen and Roger Flewelling, Renee Hunter and Wendy Reynolds.

Two wrecks on Rt. 32

A stretch of Rt. 32 south of the hamlet of Feura Bush in the Town of New Scotland was the scene of two serious accidents, one a fatality, in the space of two days last week.

On Monday, according to state troopers at Selkirk, a car driven by John E. Raby of Cedar Grove Rd., Feura Bush, went off the road about seven tenths of a mile north of LaGrange La. Raby was taken to St. Peter's Hospital and later transferred to Albany Medical Center, where he was discharged on Friday.

On Tuesday evening, a car driven by Robert P. Archer, 74, of Greenville failed to negotiate a turn near Rowe Rd., ran into a ditch and hit a tree head on. He was taken to Albany Medical Center by Onesquethaw Rescue Squad, and was pronounced dead at the hospital.

Candidate claims surplus

A Democratic candidate for the town board has fired the first volley in New Scotland's 1983 local election campaign with a call for a town tax cut.

Samuel J. (Sam) Stein of Clarksville, a political newcomer, issued a press statement this week declaring that the town will have a budget surplus of approximately $103,000.

The projected surplus, the news release stated, "appears to be large enough to provide funding for critical town needs, such as the undertaking of a comprehensive review and plan for meeting the future needs of the town and to provide a tax cut, too."

It's Leo's night

By Lyn Stapf

Of the many honors awarded in the area probably the most prestigious is the "New Scotland Citizen of the Year" award. Given annually to an area resident chosen by a group of representatives from the many local community groups, the honor is coveted since it is collective tribute to a fellow citizen.

This year's recipient is William "Leo" Burgoon who through his extensive work in community service is truly deserving of the honor. Employed by the New York State Department of Health as a plant superintendent for 30 years before his retirement, Burgoon was a member of the New York State Chief Engineers and Assistants Association and held several offices in the group. He also was a member of the National Association of Plant Engineers.

Burgoon will be feted this Saturday at a testimonial dinner in his honor at the Polish Community Center, Washington Ave. Ext. Dinner will begin at 7 p.m. following a dutch treat cocktail hour.

A World War II Veteran who served in both the Army Air Corps and United States Air Forces, Burgoon has been an active member of the Voorheesville American Legion Post 1493 for many years.

Leo Burgoon

His activity with this group and interest in his six children led to his well known participation in many area youth and recreation groups.

He has over the years coached Kiwanis Baseball, worked with Legion Baseball groups and helped to organize Babe Ruth Baseball in this area. He has also served on the recreation committees of both the town and the village and is active with Voorheesville Boy Scout Troop 73.

Born in Pennsylvania, Burgoon has resided in Voorheesville with his wife the former Eleanor Cole since 1961. He has served with both the Fire Department and Ambulance service and held offices in each. He has also served as a village trustee. A member of St. Matthew's Church, Burgoon has worked with many committees there. He is also a member of the Voorheesville Rod and Gun Club.

A man who spent the better portion of his life in service to others, it is no surprise Burgoon was chosen to receive the testimonial. Ironically enough, Leo Burgoon is such an unselfish man who probably never took the time to consider when he helped conceive the idea of having a "Citizen of the Year" that he would one day receive the honor.

Board changes lunch program

By Tom Howes

In an effort to improve satisfaction with the cafeteria services at Voorheesville's Clayton A. Bouton High School, the school will soon include a salad bar among lunchtime menu choices.

School Business Administrator Rodger Lewis made the announcement at the board's Sept. 12 meeting, according to district spokesman Ruth Mendel.

Cafeteria services received the lowest overall rating of any program in the district's 1981 survey of residents and senior high school students. A total of 212 adults and students responded to part I of the district's questionnaire, distributed through the school and the Helderbarker. Overall, survey respondents gave the school system a "good" rating.

In other action:

- Approved ten appointees, including three coaches: Deborah Fenton, girls varsity field hockey; Charles Farley, football assistant; and Heidi Cleary, girls junior varsity field hockey.

- Announced a Nov. 1 bloodmobile at the high school. Health teacher Robert Leach will supervise activities, assisted by health class students. Students and residents are invited to give blood.

- Established a sub-committee to look into the Regents educational reforms proposals as they relate to the district's existing curriculum. Board members Peter Ten Eyck, Steven Schreiber and Ann Balk comprise the sub-committee.

- Announced the intention to establish a committee to study the feasibility of construction of a track at the high school. The board will include interested citizens as well as staff members on the committee.

- Chose Steven Schreiber voting delegate to the State School Board Association conference.

The constructive critic

The cutting edge of criticism can make giants shrink, heroes hide and clowns cry. Criticism that is either intentionally hurtful or carelessly blurted has the power to confirm the doubts of the self-doubting and to cause the suffering to suffer even more.

Constructive criticism, on the other hand, is offered by caring people who attempt to improve those for whom they care while preserving their dignity and self-respect. It is delivered in an atmosphere of acceptance and mutual consideration.

Unfortunately, we are a society enamoured of power. One of the skills that appears to carry weight in social circles so we can distinguish the big wheels from the small ones is the art of criticism, or how to play "Oneupmanship" by discrediting your competition. We typically respond to pundits of putdowns by either admiring them for their wit and cleverness or fearing their potential to turn their rapier jabs in our direction. Both reactions tend to elevate such an individual's personal power amongst his or her fellows.

Unfortunately, we are a society enamoured of power. One of the skills that appears to carry weight . . . is the art of criticism.

The greater problem confronting us dull-tongued types (whose most salient comeback to a verbal attack is usually "Oh yeh?") is that we generalize the willingness and ability of the criticizer to the entire universe. We suspect all others to be ready and able to level us with a word, a phrase, a glare, and cause us untold loss of fame, fortune and friends for having been exposed in our worst light.

Once upon such a time when I was a twenty year old jazz bass player, I was in a nightclub at a jam session with my friends and fellow musicians. Playing at the time was a group of elitest and cliquish players whose reputation for music was held in the highest local regard. However, they were led by an arrogant and aloof saxophonist who didn't just play with anybody. I was understandably taken by surprise when the bass player in the group motioned for me to take his place during a song the group was playing. I was outright nervous when I realized that I didn't really know the tune, but my desire to play and my pride at having been asked at all pushed me up to the bandstand. After no more than one chorus of my fumbling to play the right notes of the unfamiliar song, the sax player turned around to face me, clamped his hand around the strings of the bass, and muttered loudly, "Don't play, man." I meekly put the bass down as quickly as I had been put down, and slunk out the door of the Godforsaken place, my clipped tail between my legs.

Family MATTERS

Norman G. Cohen

Had I known better I would not have exposed myself to such a cutthroat situation without being fully prepared and capable of cutting the mustard. At least I could've come back at the creep and exclaimed, "Well, I haven't read your name in Downbeat either."

Since those days I have learned a bit about handling criticism to the point where I no longer take it to heart unless it comes from someone who really cares about me. By the same token I regard praise in the same way — that is, meaningful only when it comes from one who cares about me. When criticism or praise comes from strangers whose motives are unknown, I handle it strictly on an intellectual level and consider whether I agree or disagree with it, and then react accordingly.

Mostly, however, I try to fill myself with the confidence and security of knowing myself, strengths and weaknesses. In so doing, no one can lower me with surprise attacks or exposes of my flaws, because I have already defined them and have been working to improve them.

Consider an obese lady whose 190 pounds draws fire from a stranger at a party. Those who don't know her might feel sorry for her or may very well laugh along with the criticizer, but those who do know her and are aware that she has worked very hard over the past six months to successfully shed over 100 pounds off her former weight are going to counterattack the attacker and turn the putdown into a putup, or at least a shutup. Moreover, the obese lady is much less likely to feel reduced in stature among her friends because of her rewarding efforts toward a reduced figure. It is hard to chip the armor of one filled with earned pride from honest self-achievement.

When you fill yourself with strength, goodness and other high qualities, there is no room left for lesser traits. Even if you have flaws that may attract criticism, you can rebuff those intrusions by working on your flaws steadily and sincerely. Then you can respond to any attempt to make you uncomfortable by acknowledging, "Yes, that is one of my flaws, but I've been working on it, and I'm a lot better now than I used to be." If your attacker presses further, it is then obvious to any witness that his intention is clearly destructive, making him the target, not you.

Since those days I have learned a bit about handling criticism to the point where I no longer take it to heart unless it comes from someone who really cares about me.

To demonstrate how to repel criticism of the impure variety, try this experiment. Fill a pail with water and drop in some food coloring. Let that water symbolize a pool of criticism. Now fill a glass only halfway with tap water. Let that symbolize you in a state of self-doubt and unsure of your strengths and weaknesses. Submerge the glass upright in the pail of dyed water, and then withdraw it. Observe that is full of colored water now, that is, vulnerable to criticism. Next fill a glass to the brim with tap water and repeat the procedure. This time when you lift up the submerged glass none of the tap water was displaced by any of the dyed water. In the same way, when you fill yourself with solid feelings of self-worth and honest efforts at self-improvement, you can be submerged in pools of criticism and come up with no adverse effects.

New look at PO

Renovation of the Delmar Post Office lobby will include replacement of post office boxes there. The Postal Service said lack of repair parts has made older boxes unserviceable and also additional boxes are needed. As a result of the work, some box numbers will be changed, but these customers will have a one-year period during which no mail will be returned because of a wrong box number, according to Postmaster Henry Betke. Customers to be affected will be notified. When the new boxes are installed, new keys will be exchanged for the old.

RENEW program starts at St. Thomas

RENEW, a major program of the Albany Catholic Diocese to encourage personal growth, nourish a relationship with God and extend the good news of the Gospel, gets underway at Delmar's St. Thomas the Apostle Church this weekend. The following is an interview with Mary Lou McCall, coordinator for the parish's RENEW Core Committee. Mrs. McCall, a parish council member and the mother of five grown children is active in the Tuesday morning study group and Genesis II as well as such local groups at the Bethlehem Tennis Association and the Bethlehem Garden Club.

Mary Lou McCall

Question: What is RENEW all about?

Answer: I see RENEW as a prayer and spiritual growth program, designed to help an individual or a parish move closer to God through prayer, sharing and helping each other.

RENEW is a well-designed program with well-documented guidelines to assist us. It originated in Newark, N.J., about 10 years ago and since then has been used successfully in dioceses throughout the country.

Q: How did RENEW get started at St. Thomas in Delmar?

A: Planning for RENEW in the Diocese of Albany started two or more years ago, but my first experience with it was last February when Father Daley sent letters to parishioners asking for volunteers for a core group. We attended one of the Diocesan retreats with approximately 150 people to learn what the program entailed and to bring that message back to our parish to seek individual and parish commitment. Most parishes agreed to take part in the program.

Q: You mentioned that RENEW has been successful. How is this measured?

A: Ultimately, spiritual growth is a very personal thing. It's really impossible to tell by looking at a person what his or her relationship with the Lord is. RENEW is based on prayer. Hopefully, all who participate in RENEW will find prayer becoming a more important part of their lives.

In general, we hope to see more participation in parish life. We hope to offer more community for the parishioners... parishioners of all ages, personal interests and problems.

There are about 4,000 known households in St. Thomas. It would be wonderful to eventually have 100 percent participation. RENEW is a Christian experience open to all.

Q: How does RENEW do its work?

A: It works through a series of committees. Saint Thomas is fortunate in that we have already done some of the things suggested, especially scripture sharing, which is the basis for the Small Group Committee. We hope to start with about 10 percent involvement, or 40 to 50 small groups of 10 people. The Sign Up Sunday (Sept. 25), the Telephone and Home Visit Committees will be encouraging people to join a small group.

Each Small Group session lasts six weeks and there are five different sessions planned. No one needs to remain in the same group for the whole time, but it would be great if they did. The groups are going to be set up in the most convenient way possible for the people. Beyond the obvious divisions by day or night of the week and geographically, there may be other factors taken into consideration, such as age, sex, marital status, transportation or baby sitter needs.

Q: Are there any plans for after RENEW?

A: RENEW is only the beginning or a step in the long road to the Lord. I am sure that some thoughts are focused beyond the 2½ years of the RENEW program. We can look to other dioceses. We, the RENEW Committees, the Parish Council and the Parish priests will be seeking answers in the evaluations and in lots of prayer to tell us where to go next. The main thing is to keep Christ in the center.

Bible films offered

The "New Media Bible Films" fall session is being offered by the Christian Education Committee of the Delmar Reformed Church, 386 Delaware Ave., beginning Sunday, Oct. 2, and ending Dec. 4. There is a $5 registration fee per family unit.

The films in this session concern the life of Abraham: "The Journeys," "The Promise," "Sodom and Gomorrah," and "The Binding of Isaac." These films, like the others in the 18-part series, were produced on location in the Holy Lands by Biblical scholars.

The choice of adult groups are 8:30 a.m. Sunday, 11:15 a.m. Sunday, 7 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. A 10 a.m. session on Sunday is designed especially for church school children and youth. The 11:15 session on Sunday is the only time that babysitting and child activity is provided.

Included with the registration fee are supplementary Bible Times magazines. For information, call the church office at 439-9929.

Church sets festival

The 150-year-old South Bethlehem United Methodist Church will have its sixth annual Fall Festival Saturday. The church is Rt. 396, Willowbrook Ave., South Bethlehem. The festival will open with craft booths, a flea market and games at 10 a.m. A country auction will follow at 1 p.m. and a chicken barbecue supper will served at 5 and 6:30 p.m. For reservations, call 767-9087.

Helping hands ready

The Helping Hand program is back in business now that the season has begun. The community "helping hand" for children is sponsored by the Delaware College Welcome Wagon and the Delaware State Police Department. Homes in need of a "helping hand" are places where someone may who need help may be found.

Participating parents who have questions or who need a new window sign may contact Andy Steffes, 439-7543, or Ann Gola, 439-4157. Additional participants will be recruited in October.

Food drive set

A food collection drive will take place on Friday, Sept. 30, and Saturday, Oct. 1, at area Price Chopper, Grand Union and P&C supermarkets. Sponsored by the Regional Emergency Task Force, the food drive will restock the shelves of local food pantries, which will provide several days of food supplies to families in crisis.

The Regional Emergency Food Task Force fights hunger with a coalition of 85 food pantries, community organizations, and individuals in the ten counties around the Capital District. Food parcels to feed 51,000 people have been distributed in this area between Jan. 1 and June 30 this year.

Tour guide training

Historic Cherry Hill, S. Pearl St., Albany, a house museum showing the lifestyles of five generations of an Albany family, will hold training sessions for volunteer general and school tour guides during the first week of October. General tour guides are responsible for conducting tours for adults and family groups. Training sessions for these guides will be Oct. 1 and 8. School tour guides conduct tours weekdays for school children of all ages. Their training class is Monday, Oct. 3. For information about becoming a volunteer guide contact Becky Watrous at 434-4791.

Each business represented at the event will receive a mug with the Chamber logo and "It's Better to Do Business in Bethlehem" printed on it. Those attending may fill out a questionnaire concerning future activities of the organization.

For better publicity

Local publicity chairpersons can receive some tips on how to do their job more effectively at "Publicity for Community Groups," a panel discussion on Monday, Sept. 26, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library. Among the experts from the media there will be Robert Hagyard of the Altamont Enterprise, Ruth Mendel of Capital Newspapers, Nathaniel Boynton of The Spotlight and a representative from WROW.

The free program is being co-sponsored by the Spotlight and the library. For information, call 439-9314.

Donna Phillips of Feura Bush is congratulated by Jack Donnelly, manager of Delmar Car Wash, after she won 52 weekly car washes in a drawing. The coupons for drawings conducted by area businesses were in the Aug. 17 Spotlight.

To reenter the job market

The Displaced Homemakers Program of the Capital District will run a work re-entry program at the Cohoes Branch of the Troy YWCA, starting Tuesday, Sept. 20.

The six-week, four days a week program is free of charge and opened to any displaced homemaker who is interested in returning to work. A displaced homemaker is anyone who has lost their primary source of support, either through death, divorce, separation, disability or job loss, and must now re-enter the job market.

Graffiti on the house

Area families with children in grade 3 and above are invited to paint storefront windows at Stuyvesant Plaza as part of the plaza's "Halloween Happening." Windows will be painted with a Halloween theme on Friday, Oct. 28 from noon to 5 p.m. and on Saturday, Oct. 29, from 9 a.m. to noon. Judging will take place on Sunday, Oct. 30, at 2 p.m. with trophies awarded to the winners. The Stuyvesant Plaza Merchants Association will provide all supplies. Families wanting to reserve a window should do so by calling 482-8986 by Sept. 30.

Dave Jennings, left, driver for Bleu's Towing Service in Selkirk, displays one of the trophies he won in the recent Tow Truck Rodeo in Woodbury, N.Y. Jennings took first place in the large wrecker class and a second in the medium category. With him is Steve Shaw of Hoosick Falls, owner of the truck he used.

Voorheesville's Lee Kraus gathers in a 6-yard pass from quarterback Pete McMillen during a second-half drive against Taconic Hills in the Blackbirds' Capital Conference debut. On

Blackbirds face two tough ones

By Nat Boynton

Coach Tom Buckley lost no time getting his football team back to ground level this week after the euphoria of Saturday's 36-0 wipeout of Taconic Hills in the Capital Conference inaugural.

The veteran tutor discarded his wide Hibernian smile long enough on Monday afternoon to warn his players that Chatham, where the Blackbirds play this Friday at 7:30 p.m., represents a much different breed than Taconic Hills. It will be the first of two straight nocturnal expeditions for the Blackbirds, who are booked at Hudson, defending league champions, the following week.

There was nothing wrong with Voorheesville's daytime operation in Saturday's unveiling. The 'Blackbirds gave their enthusiastic audience a good show, inflicting five touchdowns and a safety on their guests and keeping the visitors a safe distance from the goal line throughout the afternoon.

"Our execution was very good, especially considering it was the opening game," said Buckley afterwards. "The kids were ready to play. We played well right across the board. I thought Sean Rafferty in his first varsity game played an excellent game."

The numbers support the coach's praise. Rafferty, playing only the first half and one series in the second half, not only threw five completions in nine attempts for 101 yards and a touchdown, but was the leading rusher with 50 yards in six sorties on the option. The score was 29-0 when Buckley sent in Pete McMillan, the tall junior who quarterbacked the jayvees last year, to absorb some exercise and experience. As a relief pitcher, McMillan went 3-for-6 for 24 yards, directing a 70-yard march into the final quarter and capping it with a 17-yard toss to Lee Kraus and a 6-yard touchdown strike to Kraus.

The Blackbirds got a quick two points at the outset when noseguard Bob Seaburg smothered the Taconic quarterback in the end zone. Moments later Ed Mitzen, a junior running back, scored on a 5-yard carry to climax a 7-play, 59-yard drive. When the Blackbirds covered a Taconic Hills fumble on the visitors' 6, Mitzen swept left end on the first play to make it 15-0.

In the second period Voorheesville continued the entertainment. A high snap that sailed over the head of the Taconic punter gave the Blackbirds the ball on the visitors' 41. Rafferty manufactured the touchdown in two plays, hitting Mitzen in the end zone for the score. Rafferty then featured an 80-yard advance with a saunter good for 34 yards that set up a plunge by John Ryan from one yard out.

Kevin Rafferty added some artistry to the occasion, booting four extra points. His toe could be a vital factor in a close game.

Other than the standard bumps and bruises, the Blackbirds emerged with no major medical problems. Pete Fisch, the No. 3 quarterback, was the only casualty, shaken up after throwing only one pass in the fourth period.

Calendar has old look

The Bethlehem Central School District has published a district calendar listing open house dates, school musicals, athletic events, Board of Education meetings, and vacation dates. The calendar is dedicated to the high school's 50th anniversary and features photographs from the archives. It was published with donations from community businesses. Copies were mailed to all parents in the district. Extra copies are available at the Bethlehem Public Library or at the Educational Services Center, 90 Adams Place, Delmar.

Save those labels

Glenmont Elementary School is enrolled in the Labels for Education program sponsored by Campbell Soup Co. and the "Fun 'n Fitness" campaign of Post cereals. Volunteers will be collecting labels and seals from these products that can be exchanged for equipment to be used at the school. Labels that are eligible are on any Campbell Soup or beans, Franco-American, V-8 or Prego product, plus Recipe dog food and seals from Swanson canned and frozen foods. The fitness seals are on specially marked Post cereal boxes and there is a coupon worth points in the October issues of several women's magazines.

Labels and seals can be dropped at the school at Five A's in Glenmont or at the Bethlehem Public Library. Noreen Rightmyer of Glenmont is the coordinator and can be reached at 439-5343.

Teaching training

An environmental education workshop for teachers and youth leaders will be held at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Game Farm Rd., Delmar, on Saturday, Oct. 1, from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

This outdoor workshop will discuss current techniques and resources used in environmental education, tips and tricks in utilizing the outdoors for educational purposes, and ways to get more out of field trips back in the classroom. The workshop is free of charge but pre-registration is required to reserve space. Call the center at 457-6092 for details.

RCS loses to Chatham

Picking up the pieces from a sub-par performance in the opener, Ravena's football coaching staff is expecting better things this Saturday when the Indians take on an Averill Park team that is reportedly as green as they are.

Coach Gary VanDerzee has written off last Saturday's 27-0 loss to Chatham as a learning experience. The lack of experience was especially damaging at the tackle slots, where the coaches shuttled half a dozen players in and out of the lineup, but several new players who became eligible this week should help at Averill Park.

"We played well defensively, believe it or not," VanDerzee said after the Chatham disappointment. "They scored two touchdowns on counter plays that actually were stopped, but poor tackling let the runners break loose. This week we're going to switch a few people around and tighten up the right side."

Two additions to defensive personnel should give the Indians a lift. John Frazetta, a senior, is coming off his summer job and will be in the secondary at Averill Park. Kyle Moak, a 6-foot-2, 205-pound tackle, will see duty both ways Saturday.

The bright spots last week were the defensive ends, senior Mike Constantine and Joe McHugh, and the reliable Jay Askew at middle linebacker.

VanDerzee is putting a lot of stress on developing the offense, which was next to invisible against Chatham. There is also work on blocking and tackling, and tightening up the specialty units.

Bad day for Warners

Bethlehem Pop Warner's four teams took it on the chin in youth football Sunday. Tom Baranska's 60-yard break-away run was the only score for the Midget Division Eagles in a 34-7 loss to Colonie while the Hawks were bowing to Colonie by 13-0 in Junior Midget play.

In PeeWee games, Davis Sodergren of the Falcons connected with Pat McCarthy for a 40-yard TD pass-run in a 26-7 setback at the hands of Rensselaer and the Ravens lost to Colonie 13-0.

This Sunday's doubleheader at Hama-grael School field pits the Ravens against Rensselaer at noon and the Hawks entertain Hudson at 2 p.m. The Falcons and Eagles play 12 noon and 2 p.m. games at East Greenbush.

A day for sportsmen

National Hunting and Fishing Day will be observed by the Bethlehem Sportsmen's Club with an open house Saturday at the club grounds, Dunbar Hollow Rd., Clarksville. The public is invited to see exhibits and demonstrations from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be a fishing contest for children beginning at noon. Information on bow hunting, black powder hunting, fly tying and gun dogs also will be offered.

A directory of popular restaurants recommended for family dining in the immediate area within easy driving distance of Bethlehem and New Scotland.

We trust that you will continue to enjoy your favorite restaurants and hope that on your next evening out, you will try one of the fine dining places advertised on this page.

Defense bright spot in BC opener

The accent was on offense this week as Bethlehem Central's football forces prepared for Colonie in a Suburban Council game Saturday. Kickoff is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the first of two consecutive road games for the Eagles.

In the eyes of Coach John Sodergren, BC's 25-0 loss to Columbia at home Friday afternoon was not as foreboding as it looks. The defense showed promise, playing Columbia's bruising offense to a virtual standstill except for a span of 12 minutes on each side of the intermission.

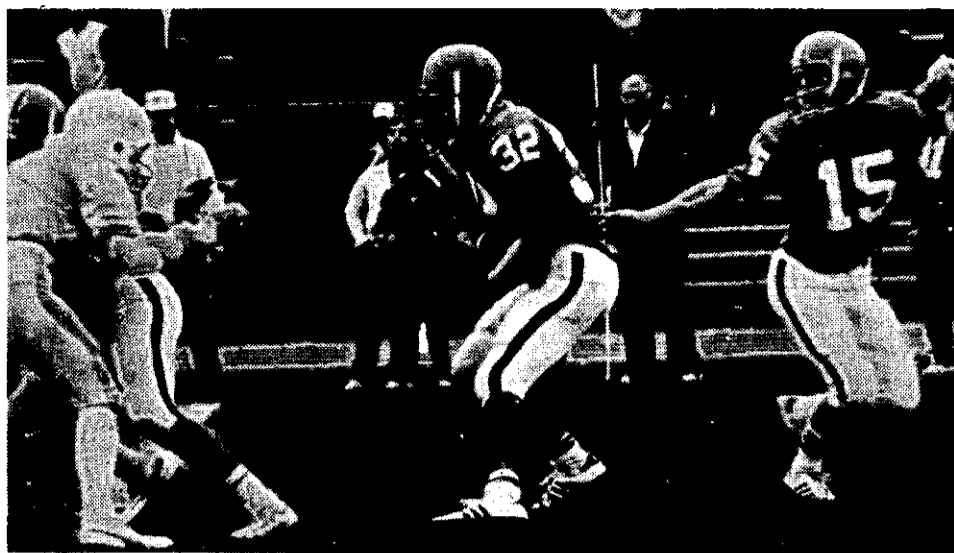

But Bethlehem's inept offense permitted the Blue Devils to own the ball most of the time. That meant BC's defense was on the field too long too often.

"Our offense was not what we expected," Sodergren said after studying the films. "We never established any continuity whatsoever. When we couldn't gain any ground, we allowed them good field position, and we had a punt blocked and a fumble."

But the defense gave the matinee audience a number of occasions for cheering. They opened the game by slamming into the big Columbia line like a bunch of hungry tigers, and it was not until well into the second quarter that the heavily favored visitors were able to get anything going. Starting with a 35-yard pass play on first down for the first touchdown, the Blue Devils scored 19 quick points, a fumble following a sack that gave them possession on the BC 30. They went in from there.

The Blue Devils made it 25 on a 60-yard screen pass on their second play of the third period.

BC quarterback Dave Young was injured on the second-period sack and is a doubtful starter this week. Young was examined at a hospital for bruised ribs, but was expected to do some light workouts this week after a rest. His backup, junior Steve Mendel, finished the game.

"Steve showed a lot of leadership," commented Sodergren. "I was pleased. His numbers weren't anything special, but he showed potential, and he will certainly be a capable replacement with a bit more experience."

The numbers showed Mendel 3-for-11 in the air, but several throws were dropped. In the coaches' balloting after the game, Mendel was an overwhelming choice for Bench Player of the Week.

In the Sunday night voting for Sodergren's version of Oscars, BC style, Charlie Lynk, the brilliant all-around lineman, was voted the week's MVP award. Said Sodergren: "He had a fine game, especially on defense. He's a real leader. He had more tackling points than anyone in any game in recent years, 12 solo tackles and 10 assists. He also deflected several passes."

There were no awards this week for offensive back and defensive back, but the plum for defensive lineman went to Alan Domermuth, a senior playing the first game of his first year of football. "A pleasant surprise," said Sodergren.

Mike Mooney was elected Specialist of the Week. The versatile senior, a second-year starter, blocked three kicks.

The only afternoon game on BC's 1983 schedule drew a slim crowd. Players and cheerleaders outnumbered spectators at the 3:50 p.m. kickoff, but the audience grew somewhat as the action progressed.

Asked to speculate why Columbia seemed to have more students on hand than the home team, one onlooker observed that BC's students "were all home watching General Hospital."

The attendance is expected to be far better when Saratoga plays on VanDyck Rd. on Oct. 8. The BC Football Boosters organization is active, sponsoring a pep rally and bonfire at the school at 7 p.m. this Friday. There will also be a social event Saturday night, a dinner dance at Normanside Country Club after the Colonie game.

Swim team is stronger

The Bethlehem Central girls swim team will start their swim season under the guidance of a new coach, Paul (Buzz) Jones. Jones, who has been coaching in the area for almost a year, gained much of his experience in Canada, where he worked with world class swimmers. Starting as coach of the BC freshmen team last winter, Jones also has worked with the Delmar Dolphins, and has already seen many of his girls in competition.

With no seniors on last year's team, the squad has only gained in strength. Jones pointed out that new members Kristin Mallery and Annika Berge are examples of the team's added strength. Of Mallery, who was on Jones' freshman team, he said, "She has improved tremendously and will be a help in the distance events." Berge, recently elected co-captain, is a foreign exchange student from Sweden and a strong all-around swimmer.

With versatile stars like Lynn Apicelli, a sophomore who has twice represented Section 2 at the state meet, the team is strong in most events. Jones is happy with his breaststrokes, Lynn Schultz and Mary Pat Henahan, who swam for him in the Dolphins summer program. The team is weak in the backstroke and sprints, but Jones feels that he can compensate by balancing his lineup placement.

The team has 20 members, only one of whom is a diver. Two divers did not return from last year's squad.

The team has been working hard for their opener, the relay carnival, Saturday at Albany High. The teams will participate in different types of relays, covering all the basic strokes in varying distances.

For BC alumni

Alumni representatives of each Bethlehem Central High School class will get together at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 29, to plan an all-class reunion scheduled for March 11. The reunion is among the events commemorating the school's fiftieth year. The meeting will be held in the high school cafeteria.

A special message about drinking and driving for everyone who drives.

IF YOU NEED IT, CALL A SPECIAL HOT LINE NUMBER

[ write in your home phone number here ]

[ write in a friend's phone number here ]

The problem

If there's a chance you might drink and drive, you should know this: New York State has tough laws dealing with drinking drivers. Even after just a few drinks, you may be impaired enough to be arrested and convicted. And if you think you'll get away with it, consider this: Many counties have increased the number of law enforcement officers on the road, particularly after midnight. They're coming down hard on drinking drivers, even first offenders.

What you can do

We know there's a lot of pressure to drink. Many people who don't usually drink do drink on a party night. If there's even a remote possibility that this could apply to you, here's what you should do: if you do have a few drinks, and you're driving, or riding with someone who's been drinking call home or a friend and ask to be picked up. Think that will embarrass you? If shouldn't. Consider the alternatives — being arrested by the police or being involved in an accident. You're still not convinced?

Show this message to your family or friends. Ask them afterwards if they won't please pick you up if you need it. You're grown up. You're family and friends are grown up. Together, you can make sure you don't become an arrest statistic or an accident statistic.

What you as a friend can do

Too many party nights have ended in tragedy. Even with the best of intentions, some people will end up driving under the influence. If they are stopped by police and found to be impaired or intoxicated, they'll be arrested. New York State is determined to get drunken drivers off the road — no matter who they are. We think you ought to do your friends one big favor. Tell them that if they need you, you'll be waiting to drive them home. No ridicule. No comments. No questions asked. Tell them straight out that you'll respect their decision. You know you'd rather get a call from them than from the police or a hospital. Tell them that.

Don't drink and drive.

Call home from the party . . . not from the police station.

Coach opts for youth

The Bethlehem Central girls' varsity field hockey team has a roster of 19 girls. Eight are sophomores, and six are juniors. Only four saw varsity action last year. It is a young team put together by Coach Julie Wendth and her firm belief in a varsity chosen according to merit, not age. She has bypassed upperclassmen in order to play sophomores up from the champion frosh team.

It was inexperience that cost the team its first Suburban Council game against Burnt Hills (last year 1-9) on Friday. When a scoreless deadlock persisted through regular play and overtime, the game was forced into a double-OT flickoff; hockey's version of soccer's shootout. Burnt Hills connected on two of its five shots, which was good enough to win the game. Of the BC flickers, only sophomore Roxanne Chin netted her shot.

A new wave of field hockey popularity, fostered by the recent success of the varsity team, saw a record tide of 60 girls come out for the team this year. BC had its first freshman team in 1982 when 53 girls tried out.

Last year's 13-1 record made Bethlehem a co-champion in the league and Sectional semifinalist. Wendth's teams have reached the Sectional round of four in each of the three years she has coached here.

Melinda Martin and senior Kristin Boluch. Filling in as links are sophomores Peg Jeram and Patricia Weber. Gabriella Mirabelli and Jess Mantaro, juniors, and Chin are halfbacks; and sophomore Cindy Ferrari is the sweeper. Senior Kara Mackey tends goal. Only Mirabelli, Mantaro, Kendrick and Boluch have varsity letters. Chin and Jeram attended a summer hockey camp in Vermont.

Substituting from the bench are seniors Carol McCormick and Kate Sipher, co-captains, juniors Bev Heaphy, Lisén Roberts and Melissa Martley, and sophomores Eiz Gray, Kathy Schrempf and Ronnie Blendell.

This week the Eagles face off at home against Niskayuna Thursday and Scotia Saturday.

Eagle booters survive bruising league opener

Bethlehem Central's soccer team is embroiled in the thick of the first full week of Suburban Council soccer, and it's one dandy of a free-for-all.

First there was Niskayuna Tuesday, fresh from a startling victory over perennial power Guilderland. Tomorrow (Thursday) Shaker comes to Delmar, and Saturday the Eagles travel to Scotia for what may be the ultimate challenge.

The Eagles came out of their league opener with a 4-3 win at Mohonasen and a physical battering. But Niskayuna, once a patsy and now a power, blanked Guilderland, 1-0, and Scotia, the defending sectional champion, edged Burnt Hills, the deposed champion, 2-1, all of which spells trouble for the locals.

Coach Gene Lewis's pupils rebounded from a 1-0 setback at Troy (non-league) to produce some scoring in the fracas at Rotterdam Friday. Bob Keens pulled off a hat trick for a 3-1 lead, 2 minutes 11 seconds into the second half, but it took a penalty kick by Chris Kelly to break a 3-all tie with less than eight minutes left to snatch the victory.

BC outshot their hosts by 26-10, but was victimized by costly defensive lapses. They gave up the game's first score on an unusual foul by the keeper. Mohonasen converted the penalty kick at 4:31. The other breakdowns came in the second half, erasing the 3-1 Bethlehem lead. First, a brilliant long throw-in ricocheted off a BC player into his own goal. Four minutes later a high Mohonasen boot bounced on rock-hard dirt over the head of the Eagle sweeper and eluded the BC keeper for a 3-3 tie at 21:03 of the second half.

With penalty cards prevalent (Mohonasen three yellows and a red, Bethlehem three yellows), BC's Knute Hvalsmarken was tripped in the box. Lewis elected to use the left-footed Kelly for the try and the strategy worked.

With four minutes left Mohonasen was awarded a third penalty kick, but Mike Guarino, the junior keeper, saved it. The hosts put heavy pressure for the tying goal with the clock running and the wind at their backs, but BC held, getting a major lift from a gutsy play by Jeff Tilroe. The big senior killed precious time by dribbling the length of the sideline to BC's goal-line corner and protecting it from attackers for some 30 seconds.

Keens got his first goal on a picture play with Jeff Tilroe and Andy Tomlinson. The keeper got his hands on Tilroe's shot, but Keens rammed home the rebound to make it 1-1 at 8:42 of the first half. With four minutes left in the half, a red card gave Tilroe a direct free kick from 30 yards out. The ball went into Mohonasen's pre-goal wall, and again Keens moved in to convert the carom.

Two minutes into the second half Keens broke loose at midfield, faked the sweeper into oblivion dribbled into the penalty area and dented the net for a 3-1 lead.

The upset at Troy was a disappointment. The game's only goal came after five minutes on a keeper misjudgement. The Eagles had 17 shots on goal to 7 for the Trojans. Kelly drilled a rocket that hit the post in the first three minutes and might have changed the complexion of the game.

BC netters top Niskayuna

Opening the fall tennis campaign with a 6-3 triumph over their strongest rival gives Bethlehem Central's girls varsity a fine shot at another Suburban Council championship, but Coach Grace Franze warns of roadblocks ahead.

Guilderland, for one, she noted on the weekend, 24 hours prior to a home match with the next-door rivals. Then there are trips to Colonie today (Wednesday) and Shaker Friday.

The critical win at Niskayuna last Friday was achieved at two separate locations over a period of 4½ hours. It was a happy but weary and hungry busload that returned to the schoolyard on Delaware Ave. at 8:50 p.m.

The change of venue was caused by a preponderance of three-setters in key matches. When daylight was fading on the high school courts, BC had a narrow 4-3 lead with two singles matches unfinished.

When the action moved to the town courts under lights, Leanne Corey at No. 4 was in a cliff-hanger. She had won the first set in a tiebreak and had lost three match points and the second set at 7-5. At 2-all in the third she came up with severe leg cramps and had a 6-minute recess, an interruption that put pressure on Eileen Berry, who had split 6-4 sets at No. 6 singles.

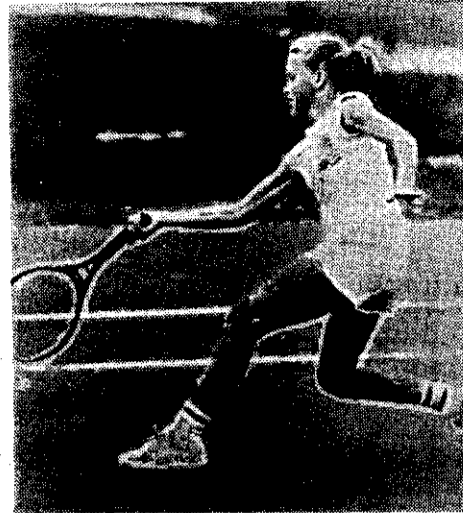

Eileen pulled her match out with another 6-4 win, clinching the team triumph. Leanne recovered to win hers by 7-6, 5-7, 6-4.

There were other heroics in doubles. Bethlehem got a surprising sweep of all three matches despite the deployment of fresh, young troops making their varsity debuts.

The loss of seven of the 12 players who brought home the league and Sectional crowns last fall wiped out all but one half of Franze's doubles combos. At Niskayuna, Barbara Hipp teamed with Carolyn Cross to take the first doubles, 6-2, 6-4. Newcomers Kelly Hart, a freshman, and Co. by Woodruff, an eighth grader, rallied to win the No. 2 doubles by 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, and two juniors, Joan Peyrebrune and Libby Thomas, survived the third match, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

Leanne Corey

Jody Jones was the only other singles winner, wearing down Kim Jordan in three, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

Soccer for young

The Town of Bethlehem is offering a soccer program for pupils in grades 2 through 8. The program will be on Saturdays at 9 a.m. at the Bethlehem High School, under the supervision of the town Parks and Recreation Department. Participants can sign up this Saturday at the high school. The fee is $8.

SOCCER

BC girls split first 2 games

Fans of Bethlehem Central soccer teams are hoping that once the girls' team finds the key to scoring goals in the first half, they will be hard to beat. All of the Eagles' four goals in their first two games have come in the second half.

In the season's opener at Ravena last Wednesday, the Eagles won by 3-1, the first BC score coming after 15 minutes of the second half. In a Suburban Council loss to Mohonasen Friday by the same score, the lone Eagle goal landed in the cage three minutes after intermission.

Kelly Burke got the first goal at Ravena unassisted and scored against the Mohons on a feed from Kathy Tartaglia. Tartaglia also got an assist at Ravena on a goal by Marissa Weaver. Kathy Schenkel booted the third goal goal on a pass from Burke.

BC had 20 shots on goal to 15 for Ravena, but was on the short end against Mohonasen, 20-13. Jill Kaplowitz and Jen Grierson, sharing the netminder duties, had 10 saves in each game.

The Eagles were booked for road games with Niskayuna and Shaker this week before playing a home game Saturday at 10 a.m. against Scotia.

BTA tourney in 2nd week

There will be tennis action aplenty this weekend as the Bethlehem Tennis Association's annual open tournament runs its top-bracket draws starting Friday afternoon at the Middle School and the Class B finals are played in singles and doubles.

B-bracket women's doubles teams were tough on the seedings as both top-rated combos failed to survive the semifinals. No. 1 seeds Pat Heffern-Alice Tenbeau of Delmar were upset by Diana Lenciewicz-Kathi Blackwell, 6-4, 7-5, and No. 2 seeds Monica Mitchell-Shirley Sheridan were surprised by Dorothy Foley-Alix Clemente, 7-6, 5-7, 6-4.

Larry Slattery and Matt Kenick breezed to the men's B singles final without being tested, and Julie Liddle and Beverly Pasley will play for the women's singles crown. In other B finals it will be Mike Marsh and Bill Zwaboda against Ken Chase and Mike Hampton in men's doubles, and a BCHS tandem, Andy Saidel and Aryan Shayegani, versus Jim Lacy and Erica Itek of Catskill in mixed doubles.

Kathy Blackwell and Diana Lenciewicz pulled an upset by defeating top-seeded Alice Tenbeau and Pat Heffern in a women's B doubles semifinal in the Bethlehem open last weekend. The final will be played Saturday. Right, Mike Marsh returns a winner in a men's B quarterfinal, but Matt Kenrick won the match en route to the finals. Tom Howes

Talk on treaty

Tawasentha Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hear Kendall A. Birr, professor of history at the state University at Albany, discuss the treaty ending the American Revolution at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 27 at the First United Methodist Church, Delmar. The Treaty of Paris, signed in 1783, marked the formal cessation of hostilities between British and American forces. The meeting is open to the public.

Constitution display

Display cases in the lobby of Bethlehem Central High School contain an exhibit commemorating the 196th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. The exhibit, in observance of Constitution Week, includes proclamations by Gov. Mario Cuomo and Bethlehem Supervisor Tom Corrigan. It was arranged by members of Tawasentha Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the public is invited to view the display through September.

Ackerman new Southwood pro

Philip Ackerman, longtime Delmar resident and well-known area tennis coach and teaching professional, has been named head pro at Southwood Tennis Club.

Ackerman coached varsity tennis teams at Bethlehem Central and Voorheesville High School before taking a paternity leave from the Voorheesville faculty this fall. He has been directing the junior program at Southwood for several years. He succeeds Scott Christianson, who resigned last week to accept a position in New Jersey.

Ackerman, who lives in Delmar with his wife and infant child while pursuing studies for a master's degree, assumed his new duties today (Wednesday). He will be assisted by Chuck Koffenberger of Albany, a science teacher in Albany schools who assisted in the junior program at Southwood last year, and Dave Denny, a former Albany State and BCHS standout. Ackerman, a former No. 1 singles player for Bethlehem Central and Albany State, has added Jack Curry, varsity tennis coach at Ravena, to the staff.

Both Ackerman and Denny are former Bethlehem town singles champions.

More loot recovered

Albany police, working with Bethlehem detectives, made another arrest in the Aug. 11 Rogers Ski and Sport Shop burglary and this time recovered a large portion of the stolen merchandise.

Arrested last Thursday in Albany was Mackey Roy Robinson, 37, of 20 Regent St., Albany, who was charged with criminal possession of stolen property first degree. Bethlehem Detective Charles Rudolph, who participated in the arrest, reported that about $12,000 in merchandise from the burglary was recovered. Bethlehem police had already made three arrests in the case during a second burglary attempt at the Delaware Plaza shop, and Albany police had subsequently arrested another Albany man as a recipient of the stolen goods.

In Thursday's arrest, Robinson and another occupant of the car he was in were also charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance third degree when 17 "decks", or packages, of heroin were found in the car.

Wins contest prize

Winner of the Bethlehem Central Football Boosters Club competition for the best design for the 1983 program booklet is Tim Roche, a sixth grader at St. Thomas School. The prize was a $50 savings bond, presented by Ted Czerw, chairman of the program committee.

Neighborhood group forms

A group of residents calling itself the Central Delmar Neighborhood Association has formed to oppose the rezoning of 45 Adams Place from residential to commercial use, according to David Rhodes, who described himself as "acting corresponding secretary" of the group.

"There's always been a lot of talk about forming a neighborhood association here but I guess there wasn't any single issue to rally around before," Rhodes said Monday. "The real importance of the association is the objective of maintaining the residential character of the neighborhood."

The rezoning of 45 Adams Place, requested by Brooks-Byer Assoc., has been given the approval of the Bethlehem Planning Board and a go-ahead from the Albany County Planning Board and is scheduled to go to a public hearing before the Bethlehem Town Board, which alone can make the actual zoning change, at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 28 at town hall.

"Everybody in the area is opposed to the rezoning," Rhodes said. "We don't want the kind of thing happening like it did with the board of appeals up Delaware Ave.," he added, referring to a variance granted by that board that would have permitted law offices in a residential neighborhood. That issue, too, prompted the formation of a neighborhood association that eventually took the case to court and later won by default when the applicant withdrew.

Rhodes said that the fledgling CDNA has no elected officers yet, but it has a set of by-laws and plans for incorporation are already underway. The association encompasses, tentatively, the area between Adams St. and Oakwood Place, plus Herber Ave. and Adams St. and the D & H Railroad. According to the association's by-laws, membership is open to anyone living in the area willing to pay dues.

For more information contact Rhodes at 439-7749.

Board gets wish list

Suggestions ranging from new sports facilities to spraying for poison ivy to increased garbage pickup highlighted the Bethlehem Town Board's annual public hearing on ways to spend federal revenue sharing funds.

The hearing has in the past few years signaled the beginning partisan debate on the board as election day nears. The board traditionally makes no decisions until the budget is adopted in October, but has in the past used the federal funds primarily for "one-shot" capital items.

One item likely to be funded is a request for a playground at the Elm Ave. Park. Supporters of the idea presented petitions with 1,576 names at the meeting, although town officials had already said they support the idea and plan to include it in the 1984 budget.

The board also received a petition from 100 residents of North Bethlehem requesting garbage pickup two times a week during summer months. Councilwoman Ruth Bickle, chairing the meeting, said if collection were to be increased it would be for the whole town.

George Tilroe, president of the Bethlehem Soccer Club, proposed soccer fields at the Elm Ave. Park, and a Van Wies Point couple suggested that the town institute a spraying program for poison ivy.

In other business, the board:

- Amended speed limits in the Southwood area of Slingerlands to 30 m.p.h. following a brief public hearing.
- Received notice that Comptroller Martin C. Smith plans to retire effective Feb. 1.
- Reappointed John Thompson as town assessor for a seven-year term, and reappointed Richard Haverly to a new five-year term on the Board of Assessment Review.
- Received and ratified the Planning Board's recommendation that land in the Bicentennial Woods subdivision not be rezoned from A to AA Residential, as requested by residents.
- Approved Highway Superintendent Martin Cross's request to buy four new dump trucks, two this year and two by March of 1984.

Parental problem

Editor, The Spotlight:

Being a new member of the Bethlehem community, I am saddened by the lack of before- and after-school child supervision. I applaud the efforts of School's Out, Inc. to meet this need but, unfortunately, my third grader goes to Glenmont school. I have been told that no transportation is available from Glenmont school to School's Out, Inc.

What is available for my sixth grader? I am not comfortable with a child that age lacking adult care. I do not believe I am the only parent with these concerns. I would be interested in communicating with any parent that shares this problem.

Rezoning opposed

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Sept. 28 at 7:30 in the Bethlehem Town Hall, there will be a public hearing on an application of Mr. Edward Byer to change the zoning of property on Kenwood Ave. and Adams Pl. from Residential "A" to Commercial "CCC". The property in question is between National Savings Bank and Saint Thomas Church and includes Mr. Byer's business office at 45 Adams Pl.

In October of 1978, Mr. Byer sought and was granted a variance to locate his business at 45 Adams Pl. in a building moved from Delaware Ave. At that time, Mr. Byer went on record saying that the property at 45 Adams Pl. was unsuitable for residential use. In fact, he based his claim of "economic hardship" on the unsubstantiated opinion that the property could only successfully be used for commercial purposes. We disagree with that opinion.

The proposal for rezoning 45 Adams Place and adjacent property, before the Town Board now, has already been approved by the Town Planning Board. The Albany County Planning Board is likewise in favor of the proposal. They also want to widen Kenwood Avenue in the area under consideration in keeping with their plan to turn Kenwood Ave. into a "developmental corridor" (see Albany County Planning Board's Sept. 28, 1978, letter to the Bethlehem Board of Appeals).

The Central Delmar Neighborhood Association is opposed to Mr. Byer's present application and to further commercial expansion into existing residential areas. We think that the current zoning is more than adequate to accommodate commercial needs. In fact, the very developer who now seeks additional commercial space in a residential zone has owned vacant property on commercially zoned Delaware Ave. for almost five years! We think the residential areas in town are fine places to live. We think they are being put to their best use now.

If you agree with us, please let the Town Board know how you feel. Attend the Sept. 28 Town Board meeting or write to the Town Board c/o Thomas Corrigan, town supervisor.

Neighborhood Association

Now we are three

Editor, The Spotlight:

Now there are three doctors who have an immediate interest in Ed Sargent's County Legislator seat. One is a temporary incumbent who is not a candidate, and two are candidates. If all of us were the right kind of doctors, we could start a practice. However, we will all be making house calls in the weeks ahead.

To the ball, in style

Editor, The Spotlight:

If you see a Voorheesville Fire Department truck pull up to the front of your home in the next few days, don't panic... just reach for your wallet.

Firemen are conducting their annual fund drive and are visiting residents on Tuesday evenings during the next few weeks to sell tickets for the 16th Annual Harvest Ball Raffle. First Prize is $100, second $50, and third $25. Fire Department Chief Ray O'Malley, will draw the winning ticket at the dance.

The Harvest Ball is Saturday, Oct. 8. This year's dancing will be done to the tunes of "The Capitals Big Band". Dance tickets are available from Harvest Ball Chairman, Ted Avgerinos (765-4555) or Ticket Chairman Harvey Huth (765-4625) at $28 per couple. Dance tickets will go fast, so interested parties should not delay in obtaining their tickets.

Spotlight IN RETROSPECT

September 25, 1958

The Slingerlands Community Players announced last week that they will observe community theater week, Sept. 28 to Oct. 5, with the production of three dramatic classics. The troupe, composed of local amateur acting buffs, will produce "Years Ago," "Death of a Salesman" and "The Telephone."

Connoisseurs of poetry might cringe, but the rhyming jingle, "You'll be spic and spandy, if you've been to Handy Dandy", was good enough to win Mrs. William Nuzzo of Delmar the second round of the Spotlight treasure hunt slogan contest. Dorothy Steffens of Delmar also won with "Don't watch the Saab- go buy."

September 26, 1963

"We have no desire to see the extension to our own neighborhood of the Delaware Avenue 'Gasoline Alley', which already has 17 gasoline stations in the short distance between the Normanskill Bridge and Cherry Avenue", William Lowenberg, Jr., wrote to the editor last week. He is trying to rally property owners to the next public hearing of the Bethlehem Board of Appeals to prevent the construction of a fourth gas station at the corner of Delaware and Cherry Aves.

September 26, 1968

Dr. and Mrs. Roy Gillett, who have lived in Slingerlands for 43 years, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last week at the Community Methodist Church. Dr. Gillett, a state statistician, and Mrs. Gillett, a member of the Delmar Public Library's board of trustees for 30 years, have four children and 17 grandchildren.

September 27, 1973

"We don't generally write animal stories," LeVere Fuller wrote in his "Wandering and Wondering" column this week, "But for the first time in his life, Prince is ill — seriously ill." The German shepherd that was the exception to Fuller's rule headlined the editorial with an abscess in his lower jaw. Prince, retired and living with the Fullers, apparently won notoriety for being the companion of several Bethlehem Police officers on patrol, including Chief Peter Fish.

More than 100 friends and relatives attended a surprise 50th wedding anniversary party for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DiNapoli at the Normanside Country Club last week.

September 21, 1978

Bruce Secor of Averill Park was chosen from a pool of 10 candidates to become the Town of Bethlehem's first full-time engineer at a special meeting of the Town Board last week. The move was seen as a step toward creating a new public works department combining the water and sewer departments. Secor's first job will be to make plans for a new town hall.

Fewer than two dozen Voorheesville residents attended a village board meeting last week that heard a presentation by William Henchy, president of Bethlehem Video, Inc. The board is expected to grant a cable television franchise to the company at its next meeting. The new Voorheesville system would consist of 14 miles of overhead cable and two miles of underground cable. It would serve all of the village as well as parts of New Scotland and Slingerlands.

Heldeberg harvest fest

Heldeberg Workshop plans a Harvest Festival for Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the workshop land on Picard Rd. in Voorheesville. Events will include a tailgate flea market, craft sale and bake sale. In addition, special events have been scheduled hourly, such as a nature safari, and craft and archery demonstrations. There also will be insect, rock and dollhouse exhibits.

Admission and parking will be free, and cider and doughnuts will be available. The festival will take place rain or shine. The workshop is seeking items for sale at the flea market, and donors may take a tax deduction. To donate, call 765-2777.

Information about the event may be obtained by calling Susan Shipherd, 462-4281 or 439-5949.

Health care on the grill

Health care in New York State is the subject of a public forum sponsored by the Albany County League of Women Voters on Wednesday, Sept. 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the small auditorium of the Capital District Psychiatric Center, 75 New Scotland Ave., Albany. The forum is free of charge and open to the public. Parking is available.

Sally Webb, president of the Albany County League of Women Voters, said that the central issues in the public forum those of inflated health care costs and maldistribution of services. Webb said the League is undertaking a two-year study on health care.

Panel participants include Chester Burrell, president of Blue Cross of Northeastern NY; Sister Ellen Lawlor, executive director of St. Peter's Hospital; Warren Paley, executive director of the Community Health Plan in Latham; and Carolyn Scanlon, representative of the state Health Department.
