Slingerlands' Jean Joel: how war came to Grenada

By Ann Treadway

Two weeks ago, Jean Joel was taking an anatomy exam at St. George's University School of Medicine in Grenada, hoping to keep her A average. A loudspeaker announcement broke through her concentration; the message was that Prime Minister Maurice Bishop had been assassinated and a 24-hour curfew was being imposed.

"I thought then the curfew was probably a wise move," the 26-year-old medical student said last Friday in the living room of her family's spacious home on Mason Lane in Slingerlands. "I figured it would give the new government a chance to get things settled, that it would be an inconvenience, but that I could cope."

She did, however, decide to call her parents to assure them she was alright but to suggest they cancel a vacation trip to Grenada and Barbados they had planned to make the following week.

"I was out mowing the lawn when someone yelled from the house that Jean was on the phone," her mother, also named Jean, picked up the story. "I wondered why she was making such a point of saying she was fine, because I'd only seen one little article about Grenada in the paper and it didn't seem to be any cause for concern."

But soon there were big headlines and the Joel family became very concerned. And Jean found the curfew was indeed inconvenient — she and her first-year medical college classmates on the campus compound had no water and only occasional electricity.

"We dug latrines and did our own cooking because none of the service people could get through," she said. "At one time I was frying eggs when one of those sudden storms started and everyone else ran out to take a shower in it, but I was stuck with the eggs."

Still, over the weekend the students didn't feel they were in any real danger. There were a lot of meetings, Jean said, and "a tenseness in the air," but the students, housed three to a room in five barracks buildings, all pitched in to help with the necessary details of daily life and worried mainly about getting back to their studies.

A woman from the U.S. State Department came to speak to the St. George's students on Sunday and her talk was "hedgy," according to Jean. "She didn't advise us to leave or not to leave," Jean explained, "but I certainly got the message that she thought we should."

Another incident caused Jean to worry a bit more. A native Grenadian who operated a small store on the compound, called "the Sugar Shack" by the students, was overheard to say some of his neighbors were predicting "a bloodbath" if the university left.

All through Sunday and Monday, though, Jean felt she was "coping okay" and that the political situation on the island would probably soon stabilize. Her parents managed — "miraculously," Mrs. Joel thought — to get through to her on the phone Sunday morning, and Jean reassured them again that she was fine.

Then, last Tuesday morning, in Jean's words, "all hell broke loose." She and her dormmates were awakened at 5:30 a.m. by the loud sputtering of gunfire right outside their rooms. For the first time, the students felt real panic. But before long, the American military invaders had the compound secured, and Jean was put to work tearing up sheets and mattress pads to serve as bandages for the wounded.

For the next 24 hours, she assisted in the temporary medical unit that was set up, using the experience she had gained during two and half years as a technician at the Albany Medical Hospital.

On Wednesday, Jean was with the first group of students on a plane headed home. During a stopover in Puerto Rico she took care of two important things. She called her parents once more — with the good news of her safe evacuation they'd been anxiously awaiting — and then she and a friend ran into the airport restroom and washed their hair in a sink. "I get paranoid if I can't wash my hair every day," Jean grinned, "and that really lifted my spirits."

When their plane landed in South Carolina, the students were assembled to be

Bethlehem election sticks to the basics

Republicans: 'responsibility'

By Tom McPheeters

Near the end of a lengthy, but hardly stimulating Bethlehem Town Board meeting last week, there came a question from the audience.

The item under discussion was bids for dump trucks, and Supervisor Tom Corrigan had recommended approval of the low bid despite some "minor deviations" from the specifications. That was too much for Susan Shipherd, a Democratic watchdog in the audience. What deviations, she asked?

"You're going to be sorry you asked that, Sue," Corrigan chuckled, turning the show over to Councilman W. Scott Prothero. Prothero, who is running for a second four-year term Nov. 8, proceeded to reel off five minutes of technical information on the bids, leading to the unavoidable conclusion that deviations were indeed minor.

"That's what we're talking about," he beamed at Mrs. Shipherd, who could only say, "That wasn't so bad."

A mild exchange compared to what took place at town board meetings leading up to the last town elections, in 1981, but it has been a mild campaign.

Although the Democrats have raised a few issues, they have been much less visible and aggressive. And that's fine with the Republicans, Prothero and Councilman Ruth O. Bickel, who would rather run on their record than engage in

Democrats take a poll

A poll conducted for the Bethlehem Democrats has pinpointed drug and alcohol abuse, services for the elderly and zoning as the most important issues for town residents.

Those issues had, up to now, received little attention in what has been a rather quiet election. Information in the poll was released Friday by town board candidate Barbara Smith, who took the occasion to charge town officials with "insensitivity to the needs of the elderly and youth."

Dr. Smith, regional director for the state Division of Alcoholism, is running with Daniel Sutherland for the two seats on the town board now held by W. Scott Prothero and Ruth O. Bickel. With a relatively late start and limited resources, the Democrats have been less visible and vocal than in previous elections. Dr. Smith attends board meetings and has made an issue of how the town budget is prepared and the size of the budget surplus for 1984, but has not peppered the board with questions and comments, as other Democratic candidates have done in the past.

"It's real important to me that there be an independent voice in the government," she said Friday at her Van Wies Point home. "Everybody is well-meaning, but you get complacent." Too often in Bethlehem, she feels, government responds only to "public outcry."

An invitation to parents

The Voorheesville, Bethlehem Central and Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school districts will all be sponsoring programs within the next two weeks that address the problem of substance abuse and what communities can do to deal with the problem.

All three programs will revolve around the airing of a two-part WMHT-TV (Channel 17) "Chemical People" series, which will air on Nov. 2 and 9, beginning at 8 p.m.

Voorheesville residents are invited to the high school cafeteria on both nights to watch the program and listen to a panel discussion. Afterward there will be plans for a community effort to address the problem.

Residents of the RCS school district are asked to attend the Nov. 2 installment of the series in the junior high's large group room, where afterward there will be a panel of professionals available for discussion with parents (Page 11).

Bethlehem Central residents can attend an airing of the second part of the series on Nov. 9 in the high school auditorium, where there will be a panel of professionals available to answer questions from the audience (Page 9).

Is the 'dream' dead?

The dream of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and of John F. Kennedy, that as we do for ourselves, we must likewise do for others when they need our help.

The dream of our forefathers.

To build up a land of opportunity where men and women can work together to better fulfill their lives.

Ron Townsend believes these dreams can lead us forth even today.

He believes we must work to help those who can not provide adequately for themselves. He believes if we work together, questioning, understanding, proposing and seeking solutions,
the quality of life can be better for all.

Ron Townsend is the Democrat-Liberal candidate for Albany County Legislature in the 34th Legislative District.

debate with an opposition that has no record to defend.

The fact is that during much of the year town board members are not very visible. Bethlehem has a strong supervisor in Corrigan (so strong, and popular that the Democrats didn't field a candidate to oppose him this time), and Corrigan makes most of the major decisions (with board concurrence) and just about all of the public statements regarding town business. What few disagreements there are on the all-Republican board are muted and quickly resolved.

When Barbara Smith, one of the Democratic candidates for the board, criticized the surplus in the proposed 1984 town budget, it was Corrigan who replied — much to Dr. Smith's annoyance — not Prothero or Mrs. Bickel, her opponents.

Prothero and Mrs. Bickel say they do participate fully in the budget and other major decisions, but agree that their input generally comes after Corrigan has presented a plan. That is certainly true of the budget, which is prepared by the supervisor and the comptroller, and usually doesn't get a full review by the board until late October. And Bethlehem traditionally doesn't hold its formal budget hearing until after the election — another point of irritation for Dr. Smith.

So Prothero and Mrs. Bickel run as part of a team, of which Corrigan is the undeniable leader — not a bad position to be in. Most of their campaign has been of the door-to-door variety, an activity the Republicans pursue with systematic thoroughness year after year. This year, they say, no major concerns have surfaced among the electorate.

"I think our major objective so far is to get the vote out," says Mrs. Bickel. "People can get a little complacent."

Despite the low profile, the councilmen do tend to have their interests. Prothero's is purchasing. As a former purchasing specialist with the state's Facilities Development Corp. (he retired last December), Prothero keeps a close eye on town bidding practices, occasionally dissenting when he thinks the town could have done better. He is responsible for a number of changes in the way Bethlehem buys goods and services, including the truck contract aired at last week's meeting. At Prothero's suggestion, the town will buy two trucks this year and two next year, all under the same contract in order to get a better price.

Mrs. Bickel, a Slingerlands native and daughter of a former Supervisor John Oliver, is best known for organizing the town's blood pressure clinic, which draws up to 300 person per month. At the town board meeting, she suggested at the end of the meeting that the town consider passing a new state law that will permit senior citizens to get partial tax exemptions even if they are above the current income limit. "I think it's a pretty good idea," she said.

Mrs. Bickel was appointed to the board in 1975, and is running for her third four-year term.

If there is a campaign theme for the Republicans, it can be summed up very simply by Prothero: "Fiscal responsibility."

He argues that Bethlehem has "held the line" on taxes to a far greater extent over the last five years than has Albany County. The surplus that Dr. Smith has made an issue of is really prudent planning against the unforeseen, such as a bad winter or a very active summer at the park, he says. The new town hall was basically financed from that surplus — "It's all bought and paid for and did not require any increase in taxes," says Prothero.

In addition to Corrigan, other Republican office holders running unopposed for reelection are Town Clerk Marion Camp, Highway Superintendent Martin Cross and Kenneth P. Hahn, receiver of taxes and assessments. Town Justice Peter Wenger is opposed by Democrat Kevin Harren.

□ Democrats

So Dr. Smith asked Robert Lillis, a Slingerlands resident and state government colleague who is starting his own consulting firm, to design a computerized random-sample telephone poll. Dr. Smith and other party workers wrote the questions, and volunteers made the calls.

Lillis said Saturday that the response — 113 individuals, split 45-17 percent Republican-Democrat and distributed throughout the town, should have some statistical validity. He had not computed a margin of error.

The survey questions covered garbage collection, services for seniors, alcohol and drug abuse, pre-school services, zoning, police, Delaware Ave., the town budget, highways and industrial development. Twenty one percent of the respondents picked alcohol and drug abuse as the single most important issue, and 14 percent picked zoning.

Respondents also answered positively to the alternatives offered to combat drug and alcohol abuse — more education, more law enforcement, expanded treatment services and more social activities. The option of more parental education received the second-highest response.

Dr. Smith said town officials "have failed to provide the necessary parent and youth education programs to prevent substance abuse...What we need are programs designed to allow parents and their children to gain mutual understanding of the substance abuse issues."

On services for seniors, Dr. Smith said that 81 percent of the people polled felt the issue is important. "with 67 percent indicating that the town should provide more activities for this population."

Although zoning also drew a large response, the results of follow-up questions were somewhat ambiguous. "People think it's important, but they don't know what they want to do about it," Lillis commented.

Dr. Smith noted that 60 percent of the respondents feel a need for a stronger commercial zoning code "precisely what I have been saying all along. We must begin to look at our commercial zoning code, in particular along Delaware Ave."

Dr. Smith said she plans to campaign door to door in 16 of the 24 election districts by Nov. 9. What she has found so far, she said, is a feeling of isolation in the hamlets outside the Tri-Village area.

Sutherland, a sales specialist at the Glenmont office of Northeast Savings, has not been able to get out campaigning as much because of his work hours. "I've lived here all my life, and I feel like I've witnessed every stage of growth in the town," he said last week. The town has many positive aspects, Sutherland said, but it will take more effort to keep it the way residents want it. His special concerns are programs for young people, a "crime watch" program and preservation of the residential areas in town.

A shift in the numbers

Are the numbers catching up on the Bethlehem Republicans?

Part of the party's aura of invincibility over the years (no Democrat has ever won an election in Bethlehem) has come from sheer weight of party registration numbers. While it is still true that Republicans outnumber Democrats, there has been a significant shift in the last several years.

Democrats now count 3,244 enrolled party members, according to current Albany County Board of Election figures, as opposed to 7,953 Republicans. That is still a better than 2-1 margin, but significantly less than the 3-1 advantage the GOP enjoyed only three years earlier. Since 1980, Democratic enrollment has gone up 23 percent, while the Republicans have increased their strength only 4 percent.

Even more significantly, the number of independent voters in the town increased in the same period by 24 percent, to 4,641. Independents have long been the second largest voter block in Bethlehem but their continued increase means that for the first time the Republicans no longer hold an absolute majority of registered voters. Republicans now count for 49.5 of all registered voters, Democrats and independents combined 49 percent and third party enrollees (Conservatives, Liberals, Right-to-Life) the remainder.

Political observers see a very simple reason for all this. The town is growing, and the sort of middle-income professional attracted to Delmar or Elsmere is more likely to be a Democrat or an independent than a Republican — as are voters everywhere these days.

But the influx of new voters would seem to explain another "trend" in Bethlehem. Although it is more difficult to pin this down quantitatively, it appears that Bethlehem voters are straying further from the party line. There are more split tickets, more attention to issues and to specific personalities.

The 1982 election was a good example. Bethlehem was the only municipality in Albany County to give John Dow, running a one-issue campaign based on the nuclear freeze movement, a victory over Sam Stratton in the primary. In the general election, Democrat Mario Cuomo came within 1,183 of beating Republican Lewis Lehrman, and Democrats Stratton, state Sen. Howard Nolan and Judge John J. Clyne (a town resident) all won handily.

If there is a lesson to be learned in all these numbers, it is that smart politicians never take anybody's vote for granted. Most of politics at the local level is hard work — door bells, meetings, contacts. Now more than ever, the outcome of elections in Bethlehem will depend more on the quality of the candidate and his or her ideas and less on party registration.

A shift in New Scotland?

By Nat Boynton

Political pundits in New Scotland are watching the town's bi-annual local election campaign to see how much impact two energetic Democratic challengers can make on a long-entrenched Republican stronghold by courting the independent "swing" vote.

House-to-house doorbell pushing and public-exposure promotions are more significant than ever this year in the face of steady enrollment gains by Democrats and a growing number of non-party registrants.

Republican enrollment over the past three years has increased by only 1.6 percent while in the same period Democratic enrollment has spurted 14.3 percent. Perhaps more significant is the 7-percent increase in the number of New Scotland voters who have disdained both major parties by registering as independents.

Latest figures at the Albany County Board of Elections show there are 1,677 in the swing category, which makes them fair game for hard-working candidates. Republicans still hold the edge over Democrats — 2,076 to 1,342 by the latest tabulation — but GOP loyalists have only 39.8 of the town's registered voters.

"We feel we are definitely closing the gap," commented Tom Dolin, Democratic town chairman. "We're confident that with strong candidates and hard work we can continue to make progress."

Fred Edmunds, Republican town chairman, did not return a call to his law office asking for comment on the 1983 election.

In the forefront of the campaign are two women — one a longtime resident, the other a young newcomer — whose aggressive tactics are spicing what otherwise is a routine odd-year October.

Corinne Cossac

Eileen Farley, a Voorheesville Democrat, is making a second effort to unseat Town Clerk Corinne Cossac, and Cynthia LaFave, an Albany attorney who recently moved to Indian Ledge Rd. on the escarpment, is challenging incumbent Kenneth J. Connolly for town justice.

Farley has mounted a strong attack on Cossac. She is distributing a hard-hitting printed folder in which she accuses the present officeholder of "a lack of management and basic office skills" and laxity in record-keeping.

Connolly, regarded by many observers as the strongest candidate on the GOP slate, also may be the hardest-working. When the campaign winds up next week, he will have visited every household in the town, some of them several times if no one is home.

LaFave, meanwhile, has put out several promotional mailings, more than any other candidate, as well as making the rounds.

If either Farley or LaFave is successful in breaking through the town hall establishment, it will be more of a historic achievement than swinging the delicate balance of power. Republicans have maintained a narrow 3-2 margin on the town board since 1975, and there are no indications anything will change this year. Of Albany County's six rural townships, New Scotland is alone in the Republican column.

In a four-way race for the two town board seats one the ballot, the odds favor the incumbents. Republican Wyman Osterhout and Democrat Kenneth Tice, senior citizens and longtime residents, have large personal followings that ignore party lines in the polling booths. Osterhout, a septuagenarian, has been a councilman for 16 years. Tice, who with Charles Houghtaling was one of the first Democrats to sit on the town board after a razor-thin vote in 1975, is seeking a third four-year term.

Challenging them are political newcomers Martha Crisafulli, a Voorheesville Republican, and Samuel Stein, a Democrat from Clarksville. Crisafulli has received the usual nominal help from the Republican town leadership — door stuffers and yard signs, but Stein has rounded up an organization of his own and has challenged the town hall administration by issuing news releases making an issue of the town budget and other matters.

ELECTION '83

Apart from Stein's wave-making efforts and Farley's flyer, this year's campaign once again is virtually devoid of issues; hence is more of a popularity contest line-by-line.

Elsewhere on the ballot, there is no contest for supervisor, where Republican Steve Wallace is unopposed, and two other GOP incumbents, Peter VanZetten and Edita Probst, are considered close to unbeatable despite the unpredictable whims of the voting public. Donald Duncan is challenging VanZetten for the post of highway superintendent, and Joanne Richbart is the Democratic aspirant for Probst's position as tax collector.

Craftsmen wanted

The Voorheesville High School will host a heritage craft fair for original handcrafts on Saturday, Nov. 12, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. It is being sponsored by the Helderberg Business and Professional Women's Club.

Booth space is still available. For information, call Ruth Briggs at 765-3117 after 5 p.m.

Clinic postponed

The New Scotland Kiwanis Club's monthly blood pressure clinic has been postponed until Tuesday, Nov. 15, because the Methodist Church in Voorheesville, location for the clinic, will be in use as a polling place this Tuesday. Hours for the blood pressure check Nov. 15 will be 9 to 11 a.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Fa-la-la for a cause

Groups and individuals are invited to join volunteer neighborhood holiday caroling groups being formed to raise funds for the Albany Ronald McDonald House. Bronna Romanoff of Delmar, an Albany Ronald McDonald House board member, is organizer of the holiday fundraising project for the home away from home for families of sick children being treated at area hospitals. More than $6,000 was raised during the weeklong caroling project last year, and organizers hope to raise $10,000 this year. Those interested in joining a caroling group may sign up at their local participating McDonald's restaurant.

Callanan's becomes a giant

(Second of two articles)

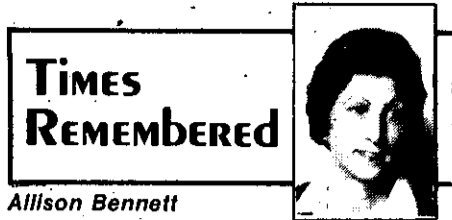

Following the disastrous 1909 explosion, Hannah Callanan and her brother-in-law John Callanan worked tirelessly to put the South Bethlehem quarry back on its feet.

In 1916, they bought the first quarry shovel, and from then on the pioneering road construction company, now known as Callanan Industries, never looked back.

The shovel moved on a track, with a gang of men kept busy moving the track for it. It took nine men to operate it: an engineer, a crane man, a fireman, plus a gang of six who prepared the short track

Recovering from its disastrous explosion, the quarry quickly began mechanizing and acquiring new facilities.

sections. It was the newest way to dig stone. Three years later a second Bucyrus Erie 70-C shovel was added, and about this time jackhammers replaced the star drills and the mill was also enlarged. In 1929 the company purchased the Albany Crushed Stone quarry and plant at Feura Bush. This company had been started in 1926 in competition with Callanan's, but failed under the intense competition. It was decided to shut down this plant for awhile, awaiting further developments.

In 1932 they built a dock at the Hudson River in Cedar Hill to ship crushed stone to New York City. Stone was shipped for the World's Fair held in that city the same year. Their large stone trucks rumbled through the villages of South Bethlehem and Selkirk, taking the River Road, Rt. 144, to the dock and discharging the loads into flat scows that were towed by tugs to the metropolitan area.

In 1937 Callanan purchased property at Kingston for a riprap plant and the equipment from the Feura Bush plant formed the nucleus of the new plant at Kingston. This Kingston plant serves the metropolitan area with crushed stone deliveries by scow. By the 1950's the company held three crushed stone plants and five asphaltic concrete plants in South Bethlehem and Kingston. Highway projects provided a healthy income. About this time Callanan's developed a chemical laboratory to provide analysis of flux stone for silica content and to determine the durability and soundness of paving stone material. This lab is still in operation.

Some of their largest paving jobs have been to provide 90 percent of the aggregate and blacktop for the New York State Thruway construction between Catskill and Schenectady. In 1966 they paved the 50-acre parking lot surrounding Colonie Center and in 1969 they constructed runways and roads at the Albany County Airport. Acquisition of a quarry in New Jersey made Callanan a supplier for construction materials for the Verrazano Narrows bridge.

In 1962 a part of the stone produced was refined as fine sand to supply a newly formed subsidiary, Spancrete Northeast, a precast concrete manufacturer. Spancrete produced the structure for renovation of Yankee Stadium. These precast concrete beams, panels and other standard structural elements are produced at locations in South Bethlehem, Rochester and Aurora, Ohio. In order to use the products that they make, Callanan Industries today has a construction division that builds bridges, roadways and buildings. Most of their work is within the Capital District and about half of their products are used on projects that they construct. The other portion is sold to other companies and to municipalities.

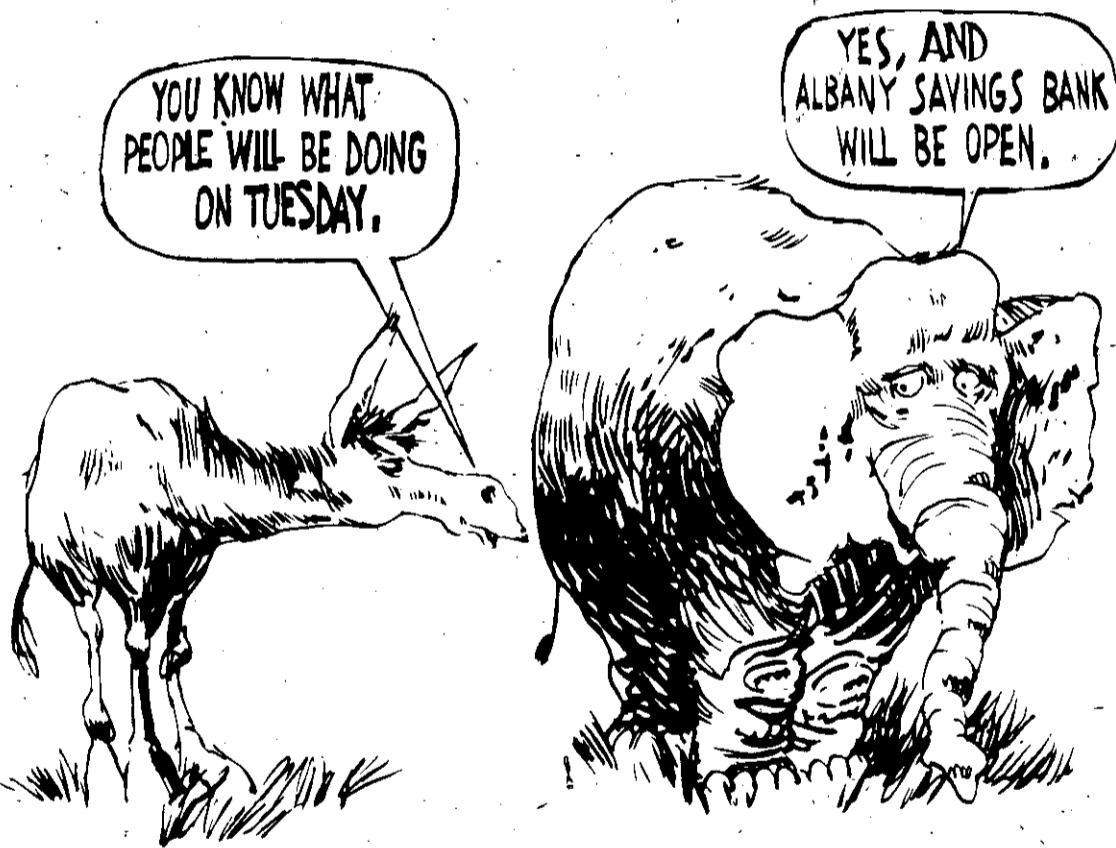

The company is a major local employer, their payroll carrying between 1,500 and 2,000 people, with the larger number employed at the height of the construction period. The company does a year's work in about eight months, so the season of good weather is a busy one for everybody on Callanan's payroll. The South Bethlehem quarry is one of the oldest in the United States.

Other quarries are operated at Kingston, Cropseyville, Howe Caves, and Canastota, N.Y. Callanan has nine asphaltic plants with the capacity to produce 1,500 tons of blacktop an hour. Just this past year the South Bethlehem plant supplied the blacktop for the 26-mile Thruway widening project between Interstate 88 and Washington Ave.

The company does a year's work in about eight months, so the season of good weather is a busy one for everybody on the payroll.

The original Callanan family is no longer a part of the business. The president of the company now is Alfonso J. Marcelle, a local boy who resided in a company house when he was growing up in South Bethlehem. His father, at 89 years of age, still works at Callanan Industries from April to December, as a blasting foreman. Marcelle grew up to attend Siena College and the school of dentistry at the University of Buffalo. Although he received the degree which enables him to use the title of doctor, he never practiced dentistry, but came home to work at Callanan's instead. He rose through the ranks from construction laborer to foreman and through the laboratory to become in 1967 the executive vice-president of Callanan operations, at which time the Callanan family sold the business to Penn-Dixie Industries.

For the next few years the company grew into a larger company under the guidance of Marcelle, but in the late 1970's Penn-Dixie filed bankruptcy under Chapter 11 and Marcelle became chairman of the board of directors. He commuted between South Bethlehem and New York for many weeks, trying to ensure that Callanan Industries did not become entangled in the upheaval. Callanan was one of only two Penn-Dixie industries that survived the bankruptcy.

Perhaps the fact that it is a "family company" is one of the reasons for its survival. Marcelle likes to list the names of local families such as Mosher, Van Alstyne, Sniffen, Baumes, Carhart and Conrad, whose antecedents for three or more generations worked for the company. He has three sons working in the business himself, so the "family business" looks like a sure bet to sustain itself into the future.

Fatality on Wemple Rd.

William J. Emery, 66, died Monday afternoon after he lost control of his car on Wemple Rd. in Glenmont and the car went off the road and hit a tree. Bethlehem Police Officer Marvin Koonz, Jr. said it took about 30 minutes to extricate Emery from his car, with the Slingerlands Rescue Squad and Selkirk Fire Department at the scene. Emery succumbed at Albany Medical Center Hospital where he was taken by the Selkirk ambulance, Koonz said. Authorities believe he suffered a heart attack that led to the accident, Koonz said.

Charges fly in 35th District

With the election less than a week away, one of Bethlehem's county legislature races has taken a new turn.

Republican leaders are claiming that Tom McCord, the Democratic candidate in the 35th District, is misrepresenting his current position and two past academic positions in a campaign brochure.

McCord concedes some technical errors in the brochure while defending its basic honesty. The charges, he says, amount to "mud slinging."

The brochure says McCord is "director of research and program evaluation" for the SUNY Research Foundation. That, says Bernard Kaplowitz, Bethlehem Republican Committee chairman, is incorrect — McCord is the director of research of the Traffic Safety Institute.

True, says McCord (who in fact listed the Traffic Safety Institute on the press release announcing his candidacy), but the Traffic Safety Institute is an arm of the SUNY Research Foundation, and that's who he gets his paychecks from. "The program evaluation part is technically not correct, I'll grant you that," he said. The phrase was intended to cover his previous job with the state Division of Equalization and Assessment.

The brochure also lists McCord as "professor of government" at both SUNY at Buffalo and the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee. In fact, says Kaplowitz, McCord was a teaching assistant at Buffalo and an instructor at Milwaukee.

"That's obviously misleading, and intended to be misleading," said Kaplowitz.

"I'm not writing a resume," replied McCord. The brochure was intended to convey his academic background, he said. "I feel it is representative. I do teach. Half of the things I have done are not included on there."

McCord noted that the Republicans had conducted a similar background investigation of his wife, Patricia, when she ran for supervisor two years ago. "This is the type of mud slinging campaign the Republicans have waged in the last several campaigns," he said. "They've got some nerve complaining about the Albany 'machine' with this kind of tactic."

Three arrested for DWI

Three persons face charges of driving while intoxicated as a misdemeanor as a result of Bethlehem police action over the weekend. In addition, a passenger in one of the cars faces three counts after he allegedly refused to leave a car that was to be towed.

Budget hearing set

The Bethlehem Town Board has set next Wednesday, Nov. 9, as the date for the public hearing for the 1984 budget. The hearing on the sewer assessment rolls will be held at 7:45 p.m. and the budget hearing at 8 p.m.

The board also set this Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. as the date when voting machines and ballots will be on display at the town hall.

Bake sale benefit

The Bethlehem Middle School Parent-Faculty Organization will hold its annual Election Day bake sale Tuesday, Nov. 8, in the main lobby of the school. In the past, proceeds from the sales have helped purchase a computer and a public-address system.

□ Jean Joel

debriefed by military officials and the Slingerlands woman, sitting in a front row, was approached immediately afterward by a network TV representative who asked if she would be willing to speak on a national news program that night.

Even though she was warned it would be "tough to do," Jean agreed, because "I thought I had some positive things to say." So she said them to a CBS audience last Wednesday night: It was wonderful to be safely home, and the American military had been extremely capable.

Later, she also agreed to be interviewed with a fellow student on the "Today" program the next morning, from a studio in South Carolina. Her mother thought she looked "a bit haggard" during that interview, but Jean again stated, with the composure of a media pro, her high regard for the American rescue forces.

Jean had no wardrobe decisions to make prior to appearing on nationwide television. She had only the clothes she'd been wearing the day of the invasion, and late Wednesday night she washed her blouse out by hand to remove specks of blood on it that were a result of her help in the emergency medical unit.

Looking rested and immaculately groomed in her Slingerlands home only two days later, Jean talked about her affection for the Grenadians, whom she fears have "lost everything," and for her classmates. "They are the best friends I've ever had," she said.

She said she felt "so guilty and bad" about the destitution of the Grenadian natives, many of whom were dependent on "us wealthy medical students" for their livelihoods. Having lost all her summer clothes — the island temperature is consistently in the 80's and 90's — she hopes needy natives will get them.

Her view on the invasion is perhaps more personal than political, but she maintains she thinks "it was right."

"We had no idea of the Cuban build-up," Jean said. "When the invasion took place, I questioned it, but the more I hear and think about it, the more I think it was necessary."

A graduate of the Albany Academy for Girls and Wake Forest University, Jean has been taking additional courses and trying to get into medical school since her college graduation in 1979. She called medical school admissions "unrealistically competitive," and saw St. George's as a chance finally to realize the start of her career goal.

Speculation on the future of the island medical college is rife now in the wake of the international crisis in Grenada, but last Friday Jean had been heartened to hear its chancellor, Dr. Charles Modica, say on television that morning he hoped classes could resume on another Caribbean island "in two or three weeks."

And would she return if the college does re-open? Jean didn't even hesitate. "In a second," she said.

Another 'Call to action?'

Still struggling to identify what action, if any, the public wants, the Town of Bethlehem Youth Advisory Council will try to improve its mixed record of success by sponsoring a community discussion on Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Bethlehem Central High School auditorium.

On a giant seven-foot video screen, a panel and audience will watch the second program in the two-part WMHT-TV (Channel 17) "Chemical People" series, "A Call to Action," which will concentrate on hope and guidance for drug and alcohol abusers. The first program, "A Chemical Society" with studio commentary, will air tonight (Nov. 2) at 8 p.m. It will detail the prevalence of school-age substance abuse according to a nationwide University of Michigan study sponsored by the National Institute of Drug Abuse.

The guest panel on Nov. 9 will include Det. Fred Holligan from the Bethlehem Police Youth Bureau; Town Justice Roger Fritts; BCHS Principal Charles Gunner; Jeannie Peterson, director of education at the Delmar United Methodist Church; and a representative from Hope House. As designated representatives from the school and community, they will ask of and answer questions from the audience. Parents and students are encouraged to watch both TV programs and are invited to attend the free discussion.

In September, 1981, the public clamored for the organization of a Youth Advisory Council to address teen drug and alcohol abuse. Since then, the Council has facilitated the opening of local Project Equinox and Project Hope outreach offices, sponsored the popular Dr. Robert Nible lecture and a series of poorly-attended speakers from local parent groups, as well as conducted a Spotlight survey that received only 45 responses. It was a forerunner for such splinter groups as the middle and high school Adelphi task forces, which have met a temporary impasse with teacher negotiations, and the month-old Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, Inc., a nonprofit trust company sponsoring youth-oriented activities. The council remains the only one with direct student input.

A different perspective

It may be Halloween this week, but Adam Nordwall a.k.a. Fortunate Eagle, in his braids, beads and ribboned shirt, was the real thing. He was visiting last week in Elsmere with local author and anthropologist Jill Furst, who was interviewing him for her next book.

Nordwall has led the sort of life from which books are made. He is a Chippewa Indian, born on the Red Lake Indian Reservation in Minnesota. He has run for Congress, spoken before the United Nations and organized Indians politically, including the Indian occupation of Alcatraz Island in November, 1969.

He continues to keep alive his heritage, as manifest by his career and lifestyle. He works as an artist and also makes peace pipes, which are used as sacred objects in Indian religious ceremonies. According to Mrs. Furst, Nordwall was appointed a pipeholder by "Wallace Black Elk, a title in recognition of his knowledge and service."

The Indian's impact on Delmar would have been greater had he not been overwhelmed with other speaking engagements. He has been a guest lecturer at Stanford University and hosted a television series, "The First Americans." But as a member of an "endangered species," he had to turn down local speaking requests.

Visiting suburban surroundings provoked comparison to home on the reservation. Nordwall noticed that in Delmar "you live in big houses on tiny pieces of land, while I live in a tiny home on a big piece of land."

Because he comes from an almost barren environment, Delmar's trees thrilled him. When told that an old, large oak tree had been recently cut down to build a parking lot, he softly replied, "Ah . . . I'd love to have that tree."

NEWS FROM SELKIRK AND SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Barbara Pickup 767-9225

Races right-on!

Stamina, determination, good weather and a sense of humor were all contributing factors in the success of the second annual road race in South Bethlehem last Saturday. According to Dale Keenan, race director, 62 runners participated in two races, starting and ending at Selkirk Firehouse No. 3. Many were attired in the required clothing of the 1960's, with slightly moth-eaten sweaters widely in evidence as 32 runners lined up for the four-mile "Fun Run."

Receiving an award for the most authentic costume was Mark Schott, while Bob Vaber and Mike Derry took the two remaining awards in that division. Vaber received an award as "oldest runner" and Derry for the oldest (1958 sweatshirt) garment worn.

In the more serious competition, the 14-mile run, Vinny Reda was over-all winner, completing the 14 miles in 1:21:25. In the women's division, Annie Stockman took first place with a time of 1:56:24. Second place went to Joan Bleikamp, in 2:01:35, and Susan Thompson came in third with a time of 2:12:39. Winner in the age 29-and-under division was Jim Burnes with a 1:29:23 time. In the 40-to-49 age group was Wade Stockman with a time of 1:33:07, and in the over-50 division, Bob McFarland was winner with a time of 1:51:31.

Aiding in the success of the event were Mar-Jem Farm Stand and Mary's Country Beauty Shop, which contributed prizes for the run. Selkirk Fire Co. No. 3, the Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance Service, the Bethlehem Police Department, the county sheriff's department and many volunteers provided assistance to the runners.

Play on agenda

This evening the regular monthly meeting of the United Methodist Women will be held at 8 p.m. at the South Bethlehem United Methodist Church, Willowbrook Ave. It will feature a play by Barbara E. Campbell entitled "Beginnings of a Journey." Director is Marion Fross.

All women in the area are invited. Refreshments will be served.

Roast tops menu

The Bethlehem Grange is sponsoring one of its delicious dinners — this time, roast beef — on Saturday, Nov. 5, at the grange hall, Rt. 396, Beckers Corners, Selkirk. The dinner is open to the public, and servings will start at 4 p.m. The Women's Activity Committee will also have a sale during the evening.

Community Day

World Community Day will be observed this Friday, Nov. 4, with a service at 7:30 p.m. in the Congregational Church, Ravena. Sponsored by Church Women United, World Community Day strives to unite women of all Christian faiths in working toward the goal of justice for all. "No Longer Strangers" is the theme of this year's program, which will be presented by the South Bethlehem Church Women United. Women of all faiths are invited.

Week of meals

The menu for Senior Projects of Ravena beginning Thursday, Nov. 3, will be: Thursday — chicken chow mein, steamed rice, Chinese noodles, vegetables; Friday — macaroni and cheese with diced ham, sliced tomato, green beans; Monday — meatloaf with gravy, O'Brien potato, spinach; Tuesday — hot roast beef sandwich with gravy, candied sweet potato, wax beans; Wednesday — goulash over noodles, mixed vegetables; Thursday — liver with onions and mushrooms, oven-browned potato.

A tradition

In keeping with tradition, the United Methodist Women will again have an Election Day bake sale at the Selkirk Firehouse No. 3, South Bethlehem. The women will have a large variety of tempting homemade baked goods available for purchase. The sale will begin at 9 a.m. Nov. 8 and continue until supplies are depleted.

The United Methodist Women also are having a clearance sale at their thrift shop Election Day. Located in a building behind the South Bethlehem Methodist Church on Willowbrook Ave., the shop offers bargains in books, household items, small appliances and clothing for all ages. Prices will be reduced in all departments, with a special "$1.50 a bag" sale on all clothing. The shop will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 8, at which time they will close for the winter, reopening in the spring.

And a classic

In October eighth graders and six teachers from the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Junior High School attended a performance at the Thornton Wilder classic "Our Town" at The Egg, in Albany. Miss Comither, an English teacher, said the performance impressed the students and made them more

Fine fare and a fair

Reservations can be made at the church office, 767-2243, or with Mildred Elmore, 767-9935.

RCS parent day

The RCS junior high school will be holding a parent conference day on Nov. 8 from 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., with 11:30-12:30 reserved for lunch.

Parents who wish to pre-arrange a conference with teachers are asked to call the guidance office, Ext. 158. Conferences will be scheduled on a first come, first served basis.

RCS board discusses Regents' plan

The state Board of Regents' plan to upgrade public education in New York sparked a heated discussion among Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school board members last week. Although virtually everyone agreed that the educational system needs improvement, they expressed concern over the methods and costs of implementing the regents' program. More importantly, they remained critical of the short time school districts will have to make required changes, and what they termed rigidity and vagueness in many of the provisions in the plan.

The regents' proposal affects students of all ages and includes increased course requirements such as computer literacy, more rigorous curricula, additional statewide tests and remedial programs, and more school days and teacher training days. New state tests for students would include a foreign language proficiency test at the end of grade 9, beginning in 1988; a social studies test for sixth graders, beginning in 1987, and a science test for sixth graders, beginning in 1987.

State testing would not be limited to students, however, under the plan. Teachers who enter the profession next September or thereafter would be required to pass a comprehensive exam to obtain certification. They would also have to complete a one-year internship. Other provisions require school districts to publicly present an annual assessment report, indicating course objectives, student performance and student progress, beginning in the fall of 1985.

Costs for RCS associated with the proposal would include some $125,000 to buy the needed microcomputers for students in kindergarten to sixth grade and to hire a computer specialist for the school district, according to RCS Asst. Superintendent William Schwartz. Board members are unsure of where the funding would come from. Other concerns expected to be voiced at a state conference Nov. 29 at the Albany Hilton Hotel are that the state is undertaking too many changes at one time, and possible inroads on local control of schools.

RCS Superintendent Milton Chodack

said he believes that 80 percent of the proposal will be adopted by the regents next spring, however.

RCS program

Tonight (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. the RCS junior high will invite concerned parents to view a program entitled "A Chemical Society," which will detail the prevalence of school-age substance abuse according to a nationwide University of Michigan study sponsored by the National Institute of Drug Abuse. The program will address the emotional and physical toll that abuse takes on both users and their families.

At the conclusion of the program a local panel of professionals including Robert L. DeSarbo, junior high principal; Victor J. Carrk, senior high principal; Harry Sturges, town justice; and Jim Jeffries, facilities director of Hope House, will be available to discuss school drug abuse in the community.

Take Home The Norman Rockwell Christmas Spirit

Now is the time to open or reactivate your Christmas Club account for 1984. Do it at National Savings Bank and we'll give you your first Christmas present of the year.

It's a gift you and your family will be sure to treasure for many holidays to come: the beloved Norman Rockwell's famous "Freedom from Want" illustration, imprinted on a 10-inch, deep-dish, oven-proof pie baker. And this unique slice of Americana is all yours for making the $10 initial deposit to open or reactivate your National Savings Bank 1984 Christmas Club account.

Of course, there are many other great reasons for choosing the family bank for your Yuletide savings. Once your account reaches $50, it will start earning 5 1/2% interest (5.75% effective annual yield). And if you have at least that amount in your account by September 1, 1984, there's no service charge. Best of all, unlike most banks, National Savings requires no set deposit: you determine the amount you want to deposit every week.

So visit any of our conveniently located offices and open your NSB Christmas Club account today. Then take home that special Norman Rockwell spirit. Remember, the 1984 holidays are closer than you think!

That has been a part of the reaction to events in Lebanon and Granada.

Town passes 1984 budget

The $1.3 million budget for the Town of New Scotland for 1984, unanimously approved by the town board Wednesday night, provides for a small decrease in property taxes next year.

The reduction is largely due to increased revenue from the county sales tax and to loan repayments from special districts, according to Town Supervisor Steve Wallace. Also, the assessed valuation for both the village and town is up $121,465.

Residents of the Village of Voorheesville will be billed $20.17 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, a decrease of 27 cents, and town residents outside the village will pay $33.22 per $1,000, down some six cents.

The total tax levy will dip from about $389,790 this year to $389,326 next year, down $464. District fire rates rose slightly, however, and Onesquethaw residents will now pay $11.47 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, up 48 cents. New Salem residents will pay $13.01 per $1,000, up $2.05.

Ambulance service rates will be figured when district boundaries are determined. Only persons living in districts that utilize the service will pay. The water and sewer district rates for Feura Bush, Swift Road and Heldervale will remain the same and Clarksville and Feura Bush light district rates also remain the same.

The 1984 budget is up $211,715 over this year's $1.1 million spending plan. It includes $470,721 in the town fund for general services, $124,884 in the part-town fund for services outside village limits, and about $534,200 for highway items. One of the more significant expenditures is $72,000 to help cover costs associated with closing the town's landfill. Other allocations include $45,000 for park development in Feura Bush, $28,000 for road improvements and a 6 percent wage increase for all town employees. Wallace will receive a pay raise of $1,000 as well as the 6 percent raise.

Stop the Great Heat Escape!

Window Quilt cuts window heat loss up to 79%

If you're serious about home heating efficiency, you already know that far more heat escapes through windows than walls, roof or doors. You can pack your walls with thick insulation, install tight-fitting storm or double glazing. Even so, you'll most likely lose more than half your precious winter heat through your windows.

Window Quilt™ multi-layered thermal shades can eliminate up to 79% of winter heat loss through single-glazed windows, as much as 66% through double-paned glass.

Window Quilts fit tightly on all four sides, sealing warm air in and cold air out. They're easy to install and operate, easy to live with, far more efficient than ordinary shades or insulative drapes.

The secret of Window Quilt's amazing efficiency: A thin foil layer is surrounded by layers of insulating fibers with polyester covers, all quilted by ultra-sonic stitching.

• Helps keep summer heat out, saves on air conditioning.
• Now, available in 4 decorative colors: bone white, cloud white, navy and garnet.
• Payback is 2.5 years.

- Fit almost any size window, even 8" wide sliding glass doors.
- More than twice as effective as storms, better than 4 glazings (R value 4.25).
- In snow country, with double glazing one sq. ft. saves 1 gal. oil per year.

STEPHEN P. WALLACE for Supervisor

Steve has served as your Town Supervisor for the past ten years. During difficult inflationary times, a period of increasing higher costs, his sound fiscal policies have insured a stable tax rate without diminishing public services. He has held several advisory posts such as: Past Commissioner of the Capital District Regional Planning Commission and as Past Director of the Health Service System of Northern New York. He is a responsible administrator with a total of 24 years service in Town government.

Running unopposed this term, he would appreciate your vote of approval and urges you to support the following qualified Republican candidates:

WYMAN OSTERHOUT for Town Councilman

Councilman Osterhout is the senior member of the New Scotland Town Board, with a total of 15 years in Town government. His extensive contributions to community organizations include: Past President of Voorheesville Central School Board, Past President of New Scotland Kiwanis and Past Chief of the New Salem Volunteer Fire Department. Presently he is President of the V.C.S. District Library Board.

In 1978, Wyman was honored as "New Scotland Citizen of the Year". For continued "grass roots" representation on our Town Board, RE-ELECT Wyman Osterhout.

MARTHA A. CRISAFULLI for Town Councilwoman

Making her first bid for public office, Martha seeks office and is well qualified with an outstanding record of community involvement. She is Past-Matron of Helderberg Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, member of Helderberg Chapter D.A.R., active in Home Bureau and currently serving as Home Nursery Superintendent of the Voorheesville Methodist Church. Her concern for good government is reflected by a 18 year record of participation in local, county and state election campaigns.

A graduate of Albany Business College and a self-employed realtor, this busy housewife and mother is aware of the needs of our rural, suburban community. Elect Martha on November 8.

RONNIE VON RONNE FOR ALBANY COUNTY LEGISLATOR 38th DISTRICT

As a Family man, and homeowner in the newly apportioned 38th legislative district, I am extremely interested in the quality of life in our rural communities. At the same time, I realize there is a lack of equal representation throughout the County. I would like to help correct this situation by addressing people issues, not political issues.

I promise to provide vocal and active representation for my country neighbors in the 38th Albany County Legislature District."

VOTE ROW B or INDEPENDENT

Paid for by the New Scotland Republican Committee

CORINNE COSSAC for Town Clerk

A New Scotland native, Corinne has a long record of community involvement. Always well informed of the latest public policies and legislation affecting local government, and having taken a graduate course in Public Service Administration at Russell Sage College, she is always available to impart her knowledge to the people of the Town of New Scotland. Among some of her past and present civic roles include: Past President of Helderberg Professional and Business Women, member New Scotland Geneska and New Scotland Historical Association, former Girl Scout leader, Past Officer of P.T.A. and the American Legion Auxiliary.

She holds a demanding position in our busy town office. Corinne is qualified and dedicated. She is deserving of your vote of confidence on Election Day!

PETER VAN ZETTEN for Superintendent of Highways

Pete's untiring dedication to public service has earned him the popular support and approval of the voters. He has served as a past officer of the Farm Bureau, 10 years on the County Extension Committee, as Past-Chief of the New Salem Volunteer Fire Department and is an Elder serving on the Consistory of the New Salem Reformed Church and member of the New Scotland Elks. These are but a few of the services Pete has rendered the community.

Most importantly, though, is his outstanding performance as Town Highway Superintendent with a proven excellent record of snow removal and continuous road improvement, which should earn him your support for re-election.

EDITA PROBST for Tax Collector

Have you heard of a popular tax collector? New Scotland has one! Edie's professional handling of a demanding position in a warm and friendly manner has earned her overwhelming popularity at the polls. Active in New Scotland Business and Professional Women's Club and New Scotland Geneska, she serves the community with the same devotion and support she gives to her family and friends. Re-elect this qualified woman as your New Scotland Tax Collector.

KENNETH J. CONNOLLY for Town Justice

Ken Connolly, a practicing lawyer, has completed a 4-year term of distinguished service on the bench. His fair and competent handling of his court cases has earned him the respect of the residents and of our state and county law enforcement officers. A graduate of St. John's University College of Business Administration and School of Law, he is presently a partner in an Albany law firm and has formerly served as Principal Attorney in the Claims and Litigation Bureau of the New York State Attorney General's Office.

On the local scene, Ken is Past-President of the Salem Hills Association and is a former Trustee for the Village of Voorheesville. For competence in office and for equal justice for all, re-elect Kenneth Connolly.

RE-ELECT MICHAEL A. RICCI ALBANY COUNTY LEGISLATOR 33rd DISTRICT

"As a Legislator for suburban Albany County over the last 16 years, I have continually opposed wasteful spending. In the County Legislature, most resolutions are sponsored by committee. Through my committee assignments, I have co-sponsored most cost-saving measures that directly or indirectly affect our pocketbooks.

My experience as a businessman and a legislator enables me to carefully examine county operations. I live and conduct my business from the same place where I was born. I feel I'm the most available public official in the county. My door is always open! Don't hesitate to call 765-2603.

I am proud of my record and would like to continue to serve as your representative."

Village 'master plan' on zoning finished

In the works for 10 years, Voorheesville's "master plan" for village development will be unveiled in about two weeks, according to village Mayor Milton Bates. The plan addresses zoning in the village and most specifically areas designated commercial plots.

After 10 years, what has the village and planning boards come up with?

"Nothing much is changed," said Bates, although residential building in commercial areas will be discontinued.

The village also is eyeing a local law to circumvent the current ruling requiring publication of the entire text of proposed local laws in area newspapers. The master plan text is 47 pages long.

In other action, Bates said negotiations with developers Rosen and Michaels over purchase of the Salem Hills Sewerage Corp. had not yet moved beyond the discussion stage. "We've talked needlessly to say not much was accomplished. We're here (in price) and they're here," he said, stretching his arms apart. Bates said he hopes for another meeting after village attorney Ken Connolly has re-examined parts of the village's appraisal of the facility.

In political news, People's Party Co-chairman Philip F. Joyce announced the party's intention to nominate a mayoral candidate within two weeks. Political speculation in the village on who that candidate will be has centered around village trustees Douglas DeDe and Daniel Reh, whose terms expire in March. Although the party "will field a full slate" for the election, Joyce said, nominations for the two trustee positions will not be announced until a later date.

The driver and a passenger reported minor injuries.

Blood drive today

The bloodmobile is back! The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will hold a fall blood drive in the gym at Voorheesville high school today, Nov. 2, from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. The event is being sponsored and organized by students in the high school health classes.

Anyone 17 or older is invited to come and give blood, which is being accumulated now in anticipation of the upcoming holidays, when donations are fewer and demand is great. High school students who wish to donate blood must have parental permission to do so.

Pumpkin carols

Anyone who sees little ghosts and witches this evening (Wednesday), don't be alarmed. It's just the Brownies from the Voorheesville Neighborhood Girl Scout Group who are traveling to serenade residents of the Good Samaritan Home with some after-the-holiday pumpkin carols — that is, familiar Christmas songs with appropriate Halloween words. Dressed in their Halloween finest, the girls in grades 1 through 3 will provide both the entertainment and refreshments for a post-Halloween party in honor of the senior citizens.

Trading gavel

The usually busy members of the Kiwanis Club of New Scotland will be even busier this week. On Thursday, Nov. 3, the Kiwanis meeting will be presided over by Mike Ricci, Jr., high school Key Club president, while newly installed Kiwanis President Skip Jackson will lead the Key Club meeting on Monday, Nov. 7. This exchange between the local men's service group and the affiliated high school club is an annual event.

Rounding the week out a dinner will be held on Thursday, Nov. 10, to honor the coaches who have given their time and talent to the various Kiwanis-sponsored sports programs such as Grasshopper baseball and softball, soccer and peewee wrestling.

October was also a busy month for the community-minded volunteers of the Kiwanis who, before getting ready for the annual children's Halloween party, took some time out to install their new officers at a dinner Oct. 21. Officers are Jackson as president; Dick Goliber, first vice president; Carl Treiber, second vice president; Dick Ramsey, treasurer; Jim Hladun, secretary, and Joe Perry, immediate past president.

Last call

Last chance to stash that trash! This Saturday, Nov. 5, will be the final fall pick-up for residents of the Village of Voorheesville. Items should be placed at the roadside before 7 a.m. Those who are discarding large articles such as appliances are asked to call the village office at 765-2692 to make arrangements to have them taken away. Leaves — in plastic bags — will be picked up until Dec. 1.

Whodunits due

A reminder from Voorheesville librarian Nancy Hutchinson: students in grades 2 through 8 who are planning on entering the Book Week mystery-writing contest being sponsored by the library must submit entries at the library by 9 p.m. Monday, Nov. 7. Awards in the original story contest will be given out on Thursday, Nov. 17, at 4 p.m. with all stories being on display at the library during Children's Book Week Nov. 14 through 20. The three top winners will receive paperback mysteries.

Tasteful event

After selecting their favorite candidates Tuesday, Election Day, local voters will have a chance to choose some delicious baked goods at the annual Election Day bake sale sponsored by the Voorheesville Fire Department auxiliary. The "tasteful" event will take place at the firehouse on School Rd. from 8 a.m. until all baked goods are sold. Proceeds will be donated to the Albany Medical Center burn treatment unit. Those whose polling places are elsewhere are more than welcome to stop by and support the event.

Seasonal style

With Christmas less than two months away, the Helderview Garden Club is preparing for the holiday with style. On Thursday, Nov. 10, Joann Donahue will present a Christmas greens workshop, assisted by 'Clare' Cameron and 'Mary' Smith. The public is invited to attend the session, which will begin at 7 p.m. at the United Methodist Church of Voorheesville.

During the year, many other interesting and informative programs will be offered, including demonstrations on dried flower crafts, mini-roses, bonsai, table flower arrangements and making potpourri. Several social gatherings are also planned, as well as a field trip to the Boston Flower Show in May of 1984. Experience is not necessary to join the club. Those with an interest in gardening need only attend meetings on the second Thursday of each month. Anyone wanting information on this month's workshop or the group may contact President Kazy Gainor at 765-2576.

Other officers for the year are Sue Murdoch, first vice president; Ann Kodra, second vice president; Rosemary Brannigan, third vice president; Pat Colfer, secretary, and Beth Stewart, treasurer.

Diabetes focus

November has been designated National Diabetes Month and the Capital District chapter of the American Diabetes Association is offering information and assistance at 869-0157. The association said diabetes afflicts about 11 million Americans and is the third leading cause of death in the United States.

Reward offered

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. has announced it will pay a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals who cause major damage to utility property.

The "get tough" policy follows recent incidents in which power was interrupted because insulators were destroyed by gun shots, according to John T. Farnan, general manager for the utility's Northeast Region. He emphasized that vandalism is a felony and that any persons apprehended will be prosecuted. State penal law makes it a crime to damage utility facilities and provides severe penalties.

Farnan noted the danger of electrocution if a power line should come down, and the damage and cost caused through needless interruption of electric service. Also, grass and forest fires can result from fallen lines.

More than $1 million in shooting damages are sustained by Niagara Mohawk annually, with resultant power interruptions causing inconvenience and sometimes jeopardy. Farnan urged witnesses to report persons seen damaging utility property to the state police or sheriff's office, or to the local Niagara Mohawk office.

"When the weather turns good in the spring and during the fall hunting season are when we sustain the most damage," he noted.

A private invasion

Last week I was told of an episode that occurred in the home of a family I know. The private quarters of a 16 year old boy, who I'll call Tommy T., were invaded by his parents while he was out with his friends. Invasion of privacy in the American family is a frequent occurrence too often perpetrated by the very leaders of those families who preach about the rights to privacy and respect for personal property.

Public indignation is aroused whenever heads of State invade the territorial domain of other countries. But whenever heads of families invade the privacy of other family members, small undeclared wars break out on the home front.

Tommy T. is a normal, average teenager whose school grades range from the 70's to the 90's depending on the subject, the teacher, the time of day and the prior evening's phone call to his purported girlfriend of the week. He plays sports, records and poker, began smoking six months ago and has acquired at least two friends who his parents consider "undesirable."

Norman G. Cohen

aroused parental concern by coming home late from school, from friends' houses and from weekend parties. He also requested that his parents stay out of his room and that he even put away his own laundry. His defiant tone of voice, his increasingly evasive conversation and, ultimately, reports of failing performance from three of his teachers led to Mr. and Mrs. T.'s decision to engage in a covert intelligence gathering mission to Tommy's lair.

It was a Friday evening and Tommy was out the door to meet a friend even before dessert had been served. He said they would be at a party for one of his classmates who was moving to Virginia. He didn't know the name, address or Nearly an hour later after searching in drawers, under the bed, behind books on shelves and in closet corners, the T.'s sat down at the kitchen table to take stock of their findings. It seemed that their fears about Tommy were not only confirmed, but surpassed. They resolved to confront their son with the evidence they had collected, and planned to take him to the family doctor for a physical and a referral to a drug counselor.

On Saturday at 10 a.m. the T.'s had their coffee, roused Tommy out of bed, and amid feelings of fear, anger, frustration, disappointment and love, began revealing their suspicions. Over the next two hours the three of them struggled with their conflicted impulses to attack and to withdraw, to accept and to reject, to love and to hate. More than once Mr. T. pounded his clenched fist on the table, Mrs. T. clenched her jaw to fight back tears, and Tommy bolted toward the back door only to be stopped by his father.

By Saturday afternoon a tenuous but sincere truce had been won. A new understanding had found its way into the T. family with a higher level of mutual respect between them all. Even Tina, who had one ear on the Saturday morning cartoons and the other on the rest of the family, was pulled into the tail end of the truce-making.

Mr. and Mrs. T. accepted Tommy's explanation that the pills in his dresser drawer were not drugs, but rather a dye that turns someone's urine blue, and he got them from a kid whose father is a doctor and was going to play a joke on one of his friends. They also were reassured that the X-rated letter they found from a girl named Pam was being saved by Tommy for purposes of bragging, not pursuing. The discussion about that letter made the T.'s aware that Tommy was really still afraid of girls and unsure of himself around them.

Besides agreeing to put dirty clothes in the laundry and not roll them up in the closet, and to refrain from smoking in the bedroom, Tommy was able to gain his parents' promise to respect his privacy and not sneak into his room again. He also accepted that he contributed to the invasion of his privacy, by creating an atmosphere of distrust and suspicion through his chip-on-the-shoulder attitude. In fact, he learned that his defiant behavior was invading the privacy of his parents' lives by exposing them to fears and hostile feelings.

Invasion of any kind can be prevented only by respect. Respect can be won only by trust. And trust can be earned only by communicating who you are and who you are not. Then I can say I trust your power, be it of love or of hate, and I will respect it by entering your space not by invasion, but by invitation.

Christian Science lecture

Christianne West, a Christian Science lecturer from Washington, D.C., will talk on "Your God-Given Right to Holiness, Health and Happiness" on Tuesday, Nov. 8, at 8 p.m. at the First Church of Christ Scientist in Albany. She will cite personal experiences of healing through prayer and discuss how to cope with poor health, unhappy relationships, unemployment and injustice.

The lecture is free. Child care and free parking will be provided.

A Luther celebration

The Bethlehem Lutheran Church will celebrate Martin Luther's 500th birthday with a biographical musical drama and German fellowship dinner on Sunday, Nov. 6, at 6:30 p.m. The production, which includes more than 80 cast members and the church choirs, is designed to educate the congregation about Luther's contributions to the Protestant Reformation in 1517. Ruth Rice is directing the show.

Life after 60?

"Is There Life After 60?" is the title of a four-session discussion series sponsored by Albany Jewish Family Services on Wednesdays, Nov. 9, 16, 23 and 30. Issues covered will include sex after 60, relationships, senior singles and coping with the loss of a loved one.

Public indignation is aroused whenever heads of state invade the territorial domain of other countries. But whenever heads of families invade the privacy of other family members, small undeclared wars break out on the home front.

Mr. and Mrs. T. are also normal and average. They have a comfortable home in town, two cars, two TV's, two refrigerators, and two children the younger of whom is 12 year old Tina. They also have two incomes to support their lifestyle and, as most families, barely make it. They are also petrified by statistics that count rising numbers of drug abusers, rapists, kidnappings, unwed pregnancies and abortions. Mr. and Mrs. T. typically drink scotch while watching the evening news.

Over the past month Tommy has phone number of the family at whose home he would be, but reluctantly promised to call when he got there.

At about 9 p.m. Tommy made the call. The T.'s grew uncomfortable with the background laughing and shouting at the party. Tommy told them that the parents were home, but he was giggling a little too much and the T.'s hardly ever heard him giggle these days. Although the address and number checked out in the phone-book, they suspected that Tommy might be high on drugs. They hung up the phone and went to Tommy's room.

SYMPHONY PROFILE

She runs the show behind the scenes

"It's a fascinating job — you kind of wing it" is the way Harriet H. Thomas of Delmar describes her role as personnel manager for the Albany Symphony Orchestra, a job she has had since 1979. The tasks include running auditions, being timekeeper at rehearsals, handling the payroll and making up seating diagrams for performances. The dining room table is "a mess" with the paperwork, she said with a laugh.

As a student, Mrs. Thomas attended the Peabody Conservatory of Music, in Baltimore, Md., and then earned a bachelor's degree in music from the University of Washington, in Seattle. In 1970, she joined the viola section of the Albany Symphony and also became a member of the Mahigian String Quartet that year. She continues to polish her own performance by studying summers with Leonard Mogill, violist with the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Of her career with the Orchestra, Mrs. Thomas says, "I have grown in playing enormously. Along with the growth of the orchestra, the players have practiced and learned and grown."

Another championship for BC

By Damon Woo

The Bethlehem girls' cross-country team put another feather in their cap last week as they added the Suburban Council Tournament Run to their list of championships. A fine team effort, the squad waited only 11 seconds between their first and fifth finishers. Coach John Nyilis said, "that's the first time we have ever been that close together."

Bethlehem defeated second place Niskayuna by 5 points. "It was basically a dual meet between us and Niskayuna. The other teams just were not a factor," Nyilis said. Of the first 16 finishers, 10 were from either Bethlehem or Niskayuna. "This is the first race in which we've had to come from behind. About two miles into the race we were losing, the course disappeared into the woods and when it came out we were ahead," Nyilis said. Giving much credit to the teams fifth runner, Jen Hammer, he said, "She was the difference." Also placing for the girls were Chris Ainsworth, Anne Carey, Colleen Nyilis, and Tania Stasiuk in 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th place, respectively. Hammer finished 12th.

Confident about the Sectional run Friday, Nyilis points out that many of his runners are finally recovering from injuries. "They've been running one hard course after another, and that makes it very difficult to train or remain healthy."

Nyilis noted that Dana Nuss and Christine Ainsworth have had their seasons hurt because of injuries. "The bigger the meet, the better we are, but our problem is we don't have a high finisher. Chris Ainsworth should have been the third best runner in the section this year, but injuries just haven't let her."

The boys' team took part in the closest race ever for the Suburban Council title. Only 23 points behind first place Columbia, the BC squad finished seventh. Coach Nyilis felt that the team ran very well.

Peter Hammer led the boys' team, as well as the entire field, to become Bethlehem's first individual male champion of the Suburban Council. Running one of the fastest times in the history of the course, Hammer seems ready for the sectional race.

TENNIS

Shayegani-Jones win

By Julie Ann Sosa

Aryan Shayegani and Jodi Jones last week became the fourth consecutive Bethlehem Central tennis tandem to win the Section 2 doubles title. They dismissed Saratoga's Erin Healy and Jenny Whalen 6-0, 6-2 at the Capitaland Racquet Club last Friday. The blowout had been billed as a grudge-match, since it pitted a No. 3 seed senior and No. 1 eighth grader from BC, the team sectional runner-up, against a No. 2 junior and No. 1 seventh grader from Saratoga, the team sectional champion.

The top-seeded Shayegani-Jones team had more trouble in the semifinals against Niskayuna sisters Kim and Lisa Jordan, who they edged 6-4, 7-5 after dropping the opening set, 7-6, in a tie breaker. "We are singles players who started practicing together only a week before Sectionals, because we had a better chance to advance in the doubles," said Shayegani afterward.

The BC doubles team will lead the nine-girl Section 2 contingent to the State Tournament in Rochester Friday and Saturday, where their stiffest competition will come from Long Island. It is unlikely that they will be seeded, although both are veterans of last year's tournament in Syracuse. Then Shayegani had teamed with classmate Laura Treadway, winning Sectionals and the consolation round to place fifth in States. Jones and Sheila Gould were eliminated in the second round.

Bethlehem's best showing of late came two years ago when team Treadway-Ann Weber placed third in the state.

BC coaches set

Coaching assignments for the current season have been approved by the Bethlehem Central school board. They include Jack Whipple as varsity swimming coach; Bob Keens, junior varsity swimming; and Paul Jones, modified (or freshman) swimming. Dick Poplaski is coach for varsity wrestling, with John DeMeo handling the freshmen matmen. Bob Collen is indoor track head; Merle Miller, varsity bowling; Athletic Director Ray Sliter, boys' volleyball, both varsity and JV; Carol Walts, varsity girls' volleyball, and Nancy Smith, JV girls' volleyball. Gene Lewis is coach for girls' varsity basketball and Jesse Braverman, for girls' freshman basketball.

Scotia takes wind, deflates Eagles

It may have been Bethlehem's most one-sided game, and not just because of the 24-8 score. Saturday's contest against Scotia was played in a near gale, with the host team seemingly catching all the fair winds.

"The wind was such a factor that most of the game was played on one end of the field," said BC Coach John Sodergren after a somber Monday post-mortem. "You had to make hay when the sun shown, or when the wind blew your way. They did, we didn't."

You could see how things were going to go when Scotia won the opening toss and elected to kick with the wind at their backs. Result: a 60-yard bomb that put BC back on its heels. Scotia scored on the ground in the second quarter, while all the Eagles could muster was two points on a safety by Chris Oberheim. Scotia scored twice more in the second half before BC got on the boards again on a one-yard run by John Tonetti.

Sodergren had been counting on the passing game, which was largely nullified by the wind, but refused to make excuses. "It was a disappointing loss," he said. "Scotia was a team I thought we could play with. We just didn't play well." Having lost the opportunity to fatten up against a team that hadn't won a game all season, the Eagles now face the prospect of two games against Burnt Hills (home Saturday at 2 p.m.), the Gold Division leader, and powerhouse Shenendehowa. "We're going to have to do a lot of things right."

Sodergren and staff did find a few things done right Saturday, although they skipped their usual MVP honors. Joe Klink and Stefan Weinman shared defensive linemen of the week honors, with Weinman also named bench player of the week. Darrin DeRosia, who recovered a fumble, was defensive back of the week and Mike Cronin was named specialist of the week.

Tom McPheeters

Chalk talk

Coach John Sodergren will show the films of the Bethlehem Central-Scotia football game today (Wednesday), Nov. 2, at 8 p.m. in Room 46 at BCHS. He will also discuss his strategy for the Burnt Hills game with parents of the players and the general public.

Squares are forming

The Tri-Village Squares will sponsor a square dance and workshop on Saturday, Nov. 5, at the Delmar United Methodist Church. The workshop will begin at 7:30 p.m., and the dance will follow at 8 p.m. Duane Silver of Delmar will call the squares.

For details, call 439-4598 or 439-7983.

Bethlehem's Doug Cole, No. 80, snares a pass from Steve Mendel. As usual, there were plenty of Scotia defenders nearby. R.H. Davis

Children and the bomb

The Capital District Parenting for Peace and Justice Group will sponsor the film "In the Nuclear Shadow: What the Children Can Tell Us" on Friday, Nov. 11, at 7:30 p.m. at the Delmar Presbyterian Church. The film which deals with children's reactions to the threat of nuclear war, will be followed by a discussion for adults and their children.

Admission is free. For information, call 274-1983 or 439-2754.

Teens arrested at school

Four Delmar teenagers were charged by Bethlehem police with third degree criminal trespassing after they were found on the roof of Elsmere Elementary School Saturday evening, police said. A 16-year-old was issued a ticket to appear in Town Court and the three others were petitioned into Family Court. Their names were withheld because of their ages.

Eagle linebacker Charlie Lynk, No. 77, gets set as the Bethlehem defense hunkers down in action against Scotia Saturday. R.H. Davis

Pop Warner Hawks top Jets

The Junior Midget Hawks were the only hometown winners in Bethlehem Pop Warner action last week as they rubbed the Ballston Spa Jets, 22-7, with Travis Hagen scoring two touchdowns and Peter Jeram the other. Billy McFerran kicked four extra points, and sacks were turned in by Hagen, McFerran and Peter Bragaw.

The PeeWee Falcons lost to South Troy, 31-20, though David Sodergren scored two touchdowns, rushing for over 45 yards on each of the plays. Pat McCarthy snagged a 60-yard TD reception.

In other PeeWee action, the Ravens were beaten by Hudson's Whalers, 39-21. Raven points were generated by Bo Acquario with a 7-yard TD rush and one extra point; Paul Bartholomew, on a 12-yard charge off-tackle and Scott Fish, on a 9-yard quarterback keeper.

Mike Blanchard rushed for 105 Raven yards and tossed in a 55-yard kickoff return for good measure. Peter Klein contributed 90 yards on the ground, including one 40-yard ramble, and added two extra points.

The Midget Eagles took the week off.

Tamarac too much for Bird offense

By Vincent Potenza

Nobody expected it to be easy, and though the Voorheesville varsity football Blackbirds got off to a strong start in last Saturday's Capital Conference game against undefeated Tamarac, an upset was not to be. The Bengals left Voorheesville with their record intact after posting a 22-10 win.

The Birds scored quickly, marching the ball 73 yards to the Tamarac 14 on their first possession. Ed Mitzen split the uprights from 26 yards out for Voorheesville to take a 3-0 lead.

Later in the quarter after a Bengal drive stalled, defensive back John Ryan blocked a Tamarac punt near their own goal line and an alert Chris Zeh scooped up the loose ball and carried it into the end zone for a Bird TD. Mitzen kicked the PAT and Voorheesville was up 10-0.

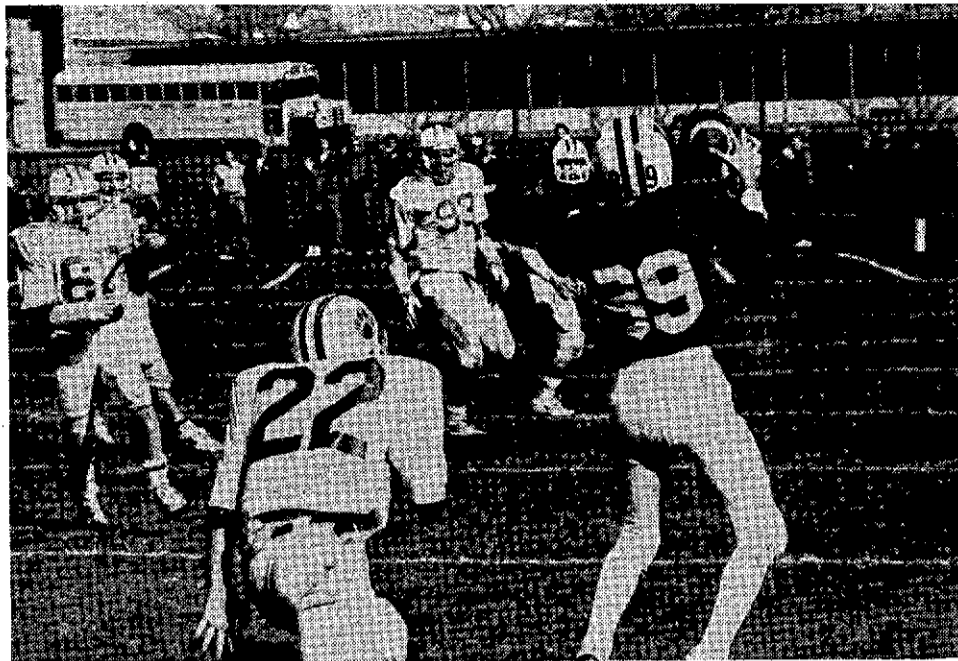

Things continued to look up for the Birds until late into the second period, when the offense seemed to come unstuck. It was fourth and inches for the Birds from their own 5, and the play from the bench called for a quarterback sneak. There was a mixup on the exchange, and a fumble. From then on all the points belonged to the Bengals.

"It was a tough loss," Coach Tom Buckley said later. "We played them evenly for most of the first half. Then there was the fumble that gave them the field position. Later we had a slight letdown in our pass defense. But it was mostly just the breaks of the game."

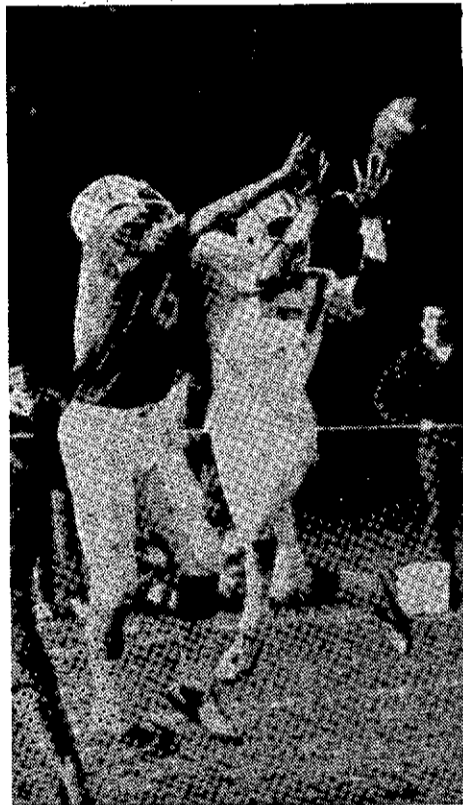

Tamarac went in for two quick scores in the last few minutes of the first half, making one two-point conversion and missing on another. That brought the score to 14-10 going into the second half, where it stayed until the fourth quarter when the Bengals scored again on a toss and another two-pointer.

The Blackbirds played two quarterbacks, with Sean Rafferty, who had sustained an injury before the game, managing to make it through the first half. He went out 5 for 6 for 62 yards and one interception. Peter McMillen, leading the team in the second half, was 1 for 8 and two interceptions. The pair generated 71 yards of offense through the air.

Mitzen led the team in receptions,

It was a near thing for No. 89, Brian Smith of Voorheesville, but he couldn't hang onto the ball in Saturday's chilly weather. The Tamarac defensemen were ready to give chase. Tom Howes

A Blackbird defender vies for the ball with a Tamarac opponent. It was an incomplete. Tom Howes nabbing five catches for 66 yards.

Rushing honors went to John Ryan, who not only blocked that punt early on but also managed to rush for 49 yards on 8 carries. Total rushing for the Birds on the day was 119 yards.

There were some defensive standouts, too. Mike Ricci had two sacks, one of which stalled the Bengal drive in the first quarter and eventually led to the blocked punt and subsequent lone Blackbird touchdown.

Bob Seaburg also blocked a punt, and Ray Donnelly hauled down an interception on his own 10 that probably saved another Tamarac score.

The loss dropped Voorheesville to 2-2 in the conference's Colonial Division, tied with Watervliet for third behind Tamarac and Albany Academy.

This Saturday the Birds will face Lansingburgh, winless in division play, at home.

Hoopsters sought

The Albany YMCA men's basketball league will begin play Dec. 5, continuing for 10 weeks including playoffs and the championship contest. Games are scheduled for Monday and Wednesday evenings with a maximum of eight teams. Anyone 18 or older may play. Deadline for team entries is Nov. 28. For information, call Gary Fahey at 449-7196.

Puzzler for pupils

The Slingerlands Elementary School PTA has posed a puzzler for school children. With the only clue being the letters G.I.B., the children are being challenged to guess the theme for the PTA's annual book fair, scheduled Wednesday, Nov. 9, in the school auditorium. Children may submit more than one guess in the contest, which will end Friday. The correct guesses will be announced Nov. 8. Book fair hours will be 3:30 to 7:30 p.m. on the 9th.

Indians fumble Academy shot

Things looked pretty good there for a while in the first period. Ravena's Indians, ready for a big game after a disappointment the week before, took the opening kickoff from Albany Academy, marched it down the field and Shawn Leonard punched over from the two.

"We blocked real well, moved the ball well," said Coach Gary VanDerzee. "But we kind of fell apart after that. We're not sure exactly why." Whatever the reason, the rest of the game was nearly all Academy, a 33-6 afternoon to forget.

Things started to unravel rather quickly. After an exchange of kicks, RCS dropped the ball on its 10, and the Cadets quickly tied the score. Again RCS fumbled, this time on the 13, and again Academy took advantage, this time on a 10-yard pass to Dimitri Yavis.

That made it 12-6 at the half, and during the intermission Ravena had time to regroup; VanDerzee thought "we came out in pretty good shape." But Academy promptly latched onto the ball and drove 52 yards, scoring on a five-yard run. There followed two more Academy scores, but we need not continue.

It was a disappointment because until Saturday Ravena still considered itself a contender in the Capital Conference, albeit an outside shot. "We do have some talent," said VanDerzee, "Our biggest problem is size."

Now, however the role changes as Ravena takes on Tamarac, which did a job on Voorheesville Saturday to maintain its perfect record. "It gives us an opportunity to be a spoiler. Who knows?"

Voorheesville runners settle for runner up

By Frank Baker

On Saturday, both the Boys' and Girls' Varsity Cross Country teams at Voorheesville came close to becoming Colonial Council champions, but each had to settle for second, as Albany Academy captured the boys' team title while Cohoes was victorious in the girls' division of the league meet at Saratoga.

Voorheesville's boys' team was led by five underclassmen. Junior Adam Schible crossed the line sixth, 8th-grader Lenny Mertens was seventh, Junior Gerry McNamara 12th, Freshman Chuck Rogers was 14th, and Junior Doug Arthur 21st.

Despite the second-place finish, Coach Ken Kirik was not dismayed. "I had hoped we would beat Academy," he said, "but I'm not disappointed. Chuck (Rogers) would have finished in the top five but he hurt his ankle." He added that "I'm very optimistic about the Class C's (sectionals)."

Kirik had good reason to be optimistic because Albany Academy will be competing in the Class B sectionals. He maintains that Schuylerville is the team to beat, but the Blackbirds have already defeated them once this year in the Marist Invitational.

As for the girls, they got five strong finishes and placed five runners in the top 15. Junior Vicki Ross finished fourth, Senior Kirsten Ford fifth, Senior Cathy Teuten 10th, Junior Erin Neighmond 14th and Sophomore Sonja Phinney 15th.

Kirik said he thought the girls ran well and that they should be able to win the Class C crown. Schuylerville's girls are also the team to beat, according to Kirik, as Cohoes will move up to the B Class in the sectionals.

The Class C sectionals will be held Friday at Saratoga, starting at approximately 3:30 p.m.

Deer in evidence

Bethlehem police recorded four auto accidents involving deer this week, two on Rt. 85 near Blessing Rd. and two on Rt. 144 near Wemple Rd. No one was injured, according to the police reports. In a fifth accident involving an animal, a dog ran in front of a car on Rt. 443 near Meads Lane Saturday, causing the driver to lose control of the car, which hit a utility pole. No injuries were reported.

On Vassar team

Kathleen M. Brown is a member of the varsity field hockey team at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, where she is a sophomore. The Vassar team plays 14 intercollegiate matches and another with the U.S. Olympic team this fall.

Brown, a graduate of Bethlehem Central, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. Brown, Jr. of Delmar.

A comeback of sorts

The Bethlehem Central varsity soccer team (5-10-2) outshot Colonie (8-6), 14-7, and goalie Mike Guarino had six saves, but it gave up two goals in the first 14 minutes to lose its season closer at home, 2-1. Senior Rob Leslie scored for BC on an assist from Jeff Tilroe and Aaron Corman.

Yet Coach Gene Lewis still had cause to be encouraged. In the season's first eight games, the team scored six goals, gave up 20, and went 1-6-1. In its final nine games, it came back to make 14 goals, allow only 16, and break even at 4-4-1. "We are neither a bad team nor a great team. We are just a good, improved team," said Lewis.

Lewis will have something less than a skeleton team left to work with next year. Graduation will see nine seniors leave, including the Tilroe brothers. He will also lose a goalie if Guarino's family moves as planned. Returning varsity stars include junior Bob Keens, Brett Zick and Tom Foley, and sophomore Matt Dunmore.

Undoubtedly, it will be the very strong JV team (12-5) that will man the varsity next year. Among the JV scoring leaders sure to move up are sophomores Paul Stracke and Peter Blaustein and freshman Paul Doyle, Jeff Ekstein and Toby Dunmore, who had more than 10 goals this season. Lewis hopes to be able to choose between junior Roy Long, who didn't play soccer this fall, and sophomore Aaron Halsdorf to replace Guarino.

On tennis team

Molly Treadway of 14 East Fernbank Ave., Delmar, was a member of the Hamilton College women's tennis team, which concluded its 1983 season with an 8-5 record. The eight wins tied a Hamilton record for most victories in a single season, and included three shutout victories. A junior, she posted a 9-2 singles record.

Glenmont Senior Girl Scout Troop 205 took part this summer in a trek to the Girl Scout National Center West in Ten Sleep, Wyo. Hiking, riding, photography and archeology were on the agenda during the week-long visit. Perched atop the sign are, from left, Mary Switzer, Mary Heathwaite, Beth Murnighan, Cathy Piccolino, Jill Gorzynski, Colleen Emsing and Michelle Reagan. A staff member is at left.

Cheney is an operations analyst at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., with the Tactical Air Warfare Center. He is a 1981 graduate of College of Saint Rose, Albany.

Sgt. Daniel P. Martin, son of Frank E. and Shirley A. Martin of Rural Rt. 1, Delmar, has arrived for duty at Carswell Air Force Base, Texas.

Post no balloons

Up, up and away — but please not at Bethlehem's Elm Ave. Park. A hot-air balloonist using the town park Sunday prompted a call to The Spotlight by a spokesman for the town to alert balloonists interested in using town property as a launch and landing site that they must contact the park office in advance and make a facilities request. Town officials are concerned about liability in the event of an accident and also about possible damage to town property.

It is unlikely there will be a rash of requests to use town property for ballooning since a balloon and all needed equipment reportedly cost $10,000 to $12,000. Persons piloting a balloon are required to be certified by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Spotlight IN RETROSPECT

Oct. 23, 1958

Oct. 24, 1968

Six Bethlehem Central seniors have been named National Merit Scholarship semifinalists. They are Joanne Youngman, Susan Vanderlinden, Ann Mladinov, Carolyn Rogers, Marilyn Baum and Gary Bedrosian.

Oct. 26, 1978

A state Supreme Court grand jury has added three more counts in two sealed indictments against suspended Bethlehem Police Chief Peter Fish, bringing the total to three indictments on five counts, four of them felonies.

Bethlehem police have launched a crackdown on sales of alcoholic beverages to underage patrons. A 17-year-old youth was apprehended carrying a glass of beer across the parking lot of a Delmar tavern, and three juveniles were arrested after purchasing three six-packs of beer in Glenmont, one of them using a false ID to get by the checkout. The sales are being investigated.

Bethlehem Central has ended Shenedehowa's reign as Suburban Council girls' tennis champions with a 6-2 victory in the Section 2 final. Singles winners were Jessica Treadway, Judy Van Woert, Joanne Mulkern and Ann Weber; doubles winners were Pam Dos Passos and Betsy Ruslander and Randi Frank with Kathleen Bragaw. Molly Treadway's singles match was left unfinished when the clinching match was completed.

Computer found

Bethlehem police last week recovered a $2,500 computer from a ditch near the Port of Albany, where it had been reported found by an Albany resident. The machine had been stolen in April from the Labor Temple on 3rd St., Albany, according to the police report.

RCS girls go on to finals

The RCS varsity girls' soccer team is on its way to the finals in Sectional play after posting a 2-1 victory over Mohonasen Friday.

"It was a see-saw battle that could have gone either way," said Coach Betty Faxon. "Our goalkeeper, Jackie Mulligan, made two fantastic diving saves and had 17 regular stops. Their goalie made 19 stops. It was that kind of game."

The RCS scores came on a chip by season leading scorer Beth White off a cross from Kristin Daley, and "a virtual replay of that a little while later," according to Coach Faxon, "only this time it was Sheila Seery who pushed the ball into the goal."

The team now moves into the finals next Friday at 2 p.m. at Shaker High, where it will face the winner of a Scotia-Schalmont semifinal. Scotia, the defending champion, "didn't graduate anyone, as far as I know," Faxon said. "So we could end up playing that same championship team."

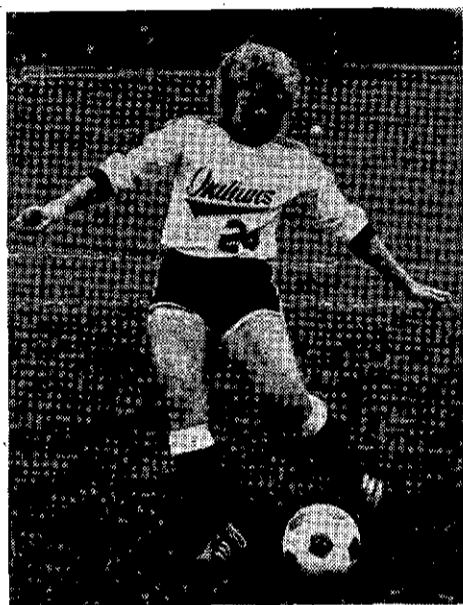

It will mark the first time since 1980 that RCS has made it to the finals in Sectional competition.

Dr. Ken Deitcher, a Delmar pediatrician and president of the Schenectady Camera Club, will lecture on nature photography on Tuesday, Nov. 8, at 8 p.m. in Lecture Center 7 of the Albany State uptown campus. He will explain close-up photographic techniques and specie identification.

Bringing the birds home

By Lorraine C. Smith

A bird feeder is sure to ensure wild bird visits on even — and especially — the wintriest of days. Any bird feeder will do. Locally, every kind is available, and at every price. For a family project, one can be home-fashioned from a variety of containers. How to choose? There is one (at least one) for every yard and for every bird.

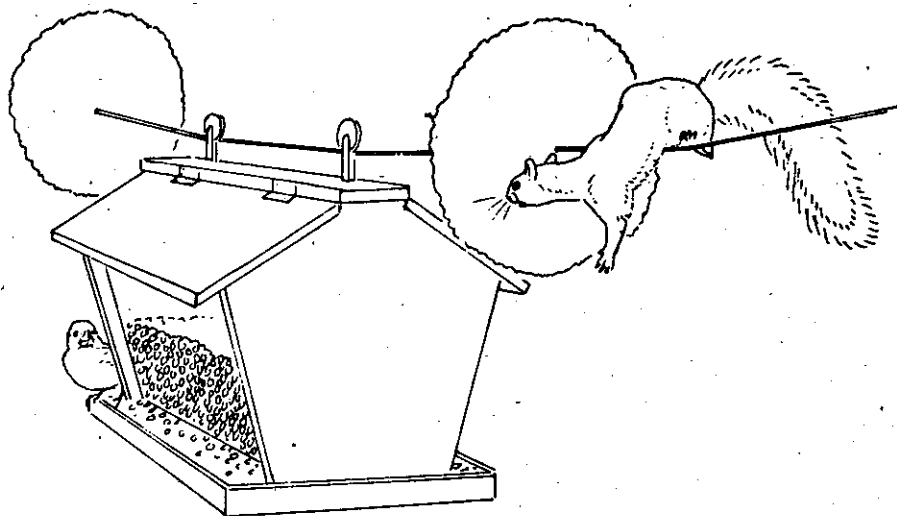

On snowless days, bread and coarse grain can simply be scattered on the ground. This will help introduce the birds to the area in their regular feeding routines. Plastic jugs, milk cartons and halved coconut shells all will hold seed. Pine cones stuffed with peanut butter, ears of corn nailed to a low propped board, or small net sacks filled with suet (trimmed fat) are examples of simple feeders that will last a season or two.

The feeder selected depends on the type of birds to be welcomed. Tables, hoppers and platforms will attract all varieties of birds. Six-inch-diameter satellites or tube feeders with small seed ports will discourage larger fliers and tempt little birds like finches and chickadees. A feeder with sliding gates controlled by weight can be adjusted to restrict accessibility to various size birds, from redpolls

Will it be mounted on a pole or windowsill, hand from a tree, extend from a bracket, or adhere to a window pane? A feeder that is too close to a patio may create a cleanup problem. A feeder too far from the window will make bird watching and identification more difficult. And a check should be made for container cleanliness: built-up wastes can contribute to fungus-like disease in birds.

Seed capacity and a seed level indicator should be concerns, too. A smaller station will require more frequent refills than a larger one. Consider also the ease of filling the feeder. Variables include the size of the opening and access to it, with hinged roofs, removable trays and liftoff tops. "The right size depends on how many times you want to go into the snow and fill it," explained Dana Pitman, manager of the Garden Shoppe, Glenmont.

A large selection of feeders is available at the Garden Shoppe, where 15 bird feeder manufacturers are represented. There is a feeder for every bird and for every budget. The average cost is $20. In Delmar, Price-Greenleaf sells approximately 250 feeders annually. The prices range from $2.98 to $69.50. Feeders are featured for all seasons; at least a half-dozen designs appeal to hummingbirds that visit this area in summer and at least six choices of wire baskets offer suet for winter feeding.

Attractiveness of the feeding station may also be important. Since it should be visible to be effective, the feeder will be prominent at nature's barest time of the year. Rustic redwood feeders blend well in the garden and plastic feeders can be either transparent or colorful. In a class by itself is the coach lamp feeder — complete with weathervane — for sale at both shops.

For many, the foremost consideration is how to feed the birds more than the squirrels. "For every bird there is a feeder, and for every feeder there is a squirrel," warned Pitman. Commercially, the foils and feeders are displayed side by side. Their success is inversely proportional to the squirrels' ingenuity. Baffles over or under the containers, wire barricades, sliding gate perches, or sliding poles are some of the ploys. One may work. Finding which one is part of bird feeding fun.

"Birds are not only looking for food — they are also looking for protection," said Nancy Payne, environmental educator at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Delmar. Trees and vegetation nearby contribute to successful feeding. "A recycled Christmas tree will provide some shelter. Knowing what birds frequent the area already is also helpful. Read about birds — a cardinal feeds differently from a nuthatch," she added.

The Five Rivers Environmental Center, the Audubon Society and the Bethlehem Public Library are all local sources of information about birds. The Golden Guide book series, pamphlets, magazines, even mail order catalogs abound in helpful suggestions for enjoying birds. "The Basics of Bird Feeding," an on-site presentation, will be offered at Five Rivers this Saturday, Nov. 5, at 10 a.m. In addition to types of bird feeders, bird food preferences and identification of common winter birds will be covered. The program is free and open to the public.

AROUND THE GARDEN

From Albany County Cooperative Extension

Fallen leaves left on the lawn over winter can mean problems next spring. This applies to an established as well as newly planted lawn.

It may seem futile to rake leaves now when it does seem so much easier to postpone the chore until that first cleanup of the lawn are in the spring. However, you may be sorry if you wait until next spring.

Any leaves left on the lawn can smother the grass rather quickly, and more so if snow and rain wet them down so that they form a tight mat.

Reluctance to remove fallen leaves from a lawn sometimes is based upon their fertilizing value. The possible harm to the lawn grass more than outweighs their value when left lying on the lawn.

If you are considering ways of minimizing the chore of leaf raking it is well to remember that the wet and matted leaves are more difficult to rake than the dry fluffy type.

Mechanical sweepers can make quick work of leaf raking, particularly on large lawn areas. However, such equipment is of little advantage when the leaves become wet and matted.

If you wish to conserve whatever nutritive or organic matter value the leaves possess, you can make the best use of them by putting them in a compost pile for use during the next season or by the use of a leaf shredder which will shred the leaves and make them suitable for mulch.

A PBA dissent

Editor, The Spotlight:

The following was sent by me to Ralph Tipple, Bethlehem public safety commissioner:

As an officer of the Bethlehem Police Department, I would like to express my reaction to the (letter that appeared Oct. 26 in the Spotlight) regarding the situation with the Bethlehem police chief.

On Oct. 24, I attended the scheduled PBA meeting for Bethlehem police officers. In attendance, I was the only member to vote against the action of this article to appear in a public newspaper. I do not feel that public media is the way to address matters between the Town of Bethlehem and its Police Department. It is my opinion that such matters should be settled within a structure before they can be expressed to the public in an organized fashion. In the future, I believe that it should be the function of the PBA to form a committee that would be able to work with the town board on crucial matters such as these.

I appreciate your time spent in considering this letter, and it is my hope that this bit of constructive criticism can be a help in future situations like the one we have here. Thank you.

Anthony Arduini

Pious? Not hardly.

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am grateful to Mrs. Nancy Relyea for her "kind" letter, appearing in the Oct. 26 issue of The Spotlight, since it offers the reading public an up-front view of a variety of the people my office serves, but more importantly affords me an opportunity to share with our town's people several of the public support measures my office renders on a day-to-day basis.

Although Mrs. Relyea displays an acute form of imagination, she seems unable to grasp what it means to a taxpayer to have his erroneous check returned to his home, only to find he had since left on a two-week vacation. Likewise, checks have had to be returned to the salesman who mails on the road and doesn't arrive home until three days after deadline. We have cases of parents visiting children out of state, and then the more trying cases of bereavements where families have much more important things to do than correct a minor error and rush that payment back to beat out a deadline. Next but not necessarily finally we are concerned with the irritation factor, which is most evident in Mrs. Relyea's letter, knowing that most people do not welcome attention drawn to their personal errors.

For the past 20 years when a check has been written, at least in one of the two place, for the exact amount of the obligation involved, I have exercised the good judgment to correct the amount which is in error, to make it agree with the correct and intended amount involved. In so doing, we have prevented numerous eleventh-hour trips to the tax office and saved taxpayers unknown sums of late charges. In line with department policy to go the "extra mile" to serve our people, I know we have made a good day out of what otherwise could have been one additional unneeded problem.

Mrs. Relyea is bothered by the fact I am proud of the job that is being done by the Bethlehem Tax Department in the service of our citizens, but I would like each of you to know that I have handled two hundred million of your tax payment-dollars and five state audits have determined that not one penny has been out of place. Proud — yes; pious — not hardly!!

For the record

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to clarify a few critically important facts that I feel were intentionally omitted from the article in the Oct. 26 Spotlight. The article was written in regards to the all new 38th Legislative District (New Scotland-Westerlo).

The article stated that neither candidate had a previous record. It did not state "county" record.

But I do have a record, not only as an appointed official (New Scotland Zoning Board of Appeals, New Scotland Board of Assessment Review), but also as a town-wide elected official.

Charles Houghtaling
Candidate for 38th Albany County
Legislative District

New Scotland

The article in question stated, "there's an absence of controversial issues, and neither candidate has a record for the other to shoot at." Ed.

Difficult years

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the officers and Board of Directors of Tri-Village's FISH (Friends In Service Here), I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank some of the people who have helped get FISH through the last several years, which have been very difficult for us, to say the least.

First and foremost, the volunteers, like those who receive the calls for help and make the necessary arrangements. This might involve making five or six calls to find a driver if there is not a regular driver on duty or if the regular driver is tied up on another call. This could also involve arranging for the preparation and delivery of meals to a family in need or supplying a babysitter in an emergency situation. If the call is not a situation FISH can handle, the telephone volunteer will call the client back and make the appropriate referral to the agency that will best suit their needs.

Our drivers on a typical day might handle three or four transportation calls. This usually involves picking the client up at their home; if it is a trip to the doctor, the driver will wait with the client until they are ready to return home.

I would also like to thank the Telephone Answering Exchange, who take all of our calls and pass them on to the telephone volunteer.

Along with the shortage of volunteers we have been experiencing over the last several years, we have also been experiencing a grievous financial shortage. If not for the generosity of private citizens, organizations, clubs and several churches, FISH would not be in existence today. An example of some of the groups that came through for us are Bethlehem Elks, Bethlehem Elks Auxiliary, Bethlehem Lions, Slingerlands Fire Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars and their Auxiliary, American Legion AARP, St. Thomas Church, Delmar Presbyterian Church, Tri-Village Welcome Wagon and the Delmar Reformed Church.

Many people might not be aware of the fact that Tri-Village FISH is one of the few remaining chapters that are still active in the entire Northeast region. We are the only active chapter in the immediate area; Colonie and Clarksville are two of the recent closings.

In closing, I would like to advise our clients of a new policy which is in effect. Due to the fact that we don't have complete coverage for all of the days of the week, on the days we don't have coverage when the client calls they will be told that there is no one on duty that day. We apologize for the inconvenience, but until we recruit more volunteers, this situation can't be helped.

Maureen Bartkus
President, Board of Directors
Tri-Village FISH
