A house designed for living

By Caroline Terenzini

Robert Mitchell of Voorheesville, head of his own firm, Solar Systems Design, Inc., in recent months has testified before the state Public Service Commission on indoor air quality, and has taken on an experimental project with Central Hudson Gas and Electric Co. involving heat pumps. In the past 10 years, he has designed some 150 passive solar homes, and his work in this field has won him two awards from the state Energy Research and Development Authority.

Despite these high-tech undertakings, however, there's not an inch of polyester in Robert Mitchell. For relaxation, he "tinkers" on the property he and his wife, Maggie, own on Rt. 157 in Voorheesville. Three and half years ago they bought the 180-year-old house and nearly three acres that included two barns, a shed and an outhouse. The house was in such bad condition, Mitchell said, "we didn't mind tearing it right down to the bare bones." And this they did, right to the studs.

Nor did they stop there. The cellar floor was lowered so Mitchell, who is 6 feet 2, could stand upright there. They also raised a section of the roof, so windows could be added on the south side. That's tinkering and then some, but perhaps it's not surprising for someone with a degree in building science from RPI's School of Architecture.

The day in 1981 when the Mitchells began their rebuilding the temperature was 10-below. Their breath froze in their dust masks, and they

Edmunds resigns as GOP chairman

In a move that caught New Scotland Republican leaders by surprise, Frederick R. Edmunds stepped down Monday night as town GOP chairman, according to Republican sources.

Edmunds, a New Salem resident who has law offices in Westmere and downtown Albany, announced his resignation at a special meeting of the town Republican committee he had called on short notice.

Edmunds said Tuesday, "I have no statement to make. It's too early."

There was no immediate indication as to when the committee would meet to select a new chairman.

The leadership change comes at a time when New Scotland Republicans are facing in 1985 one of the most critical town elections in their history. After nearly a century and a half of GOP control, party workers for the past several years have been struggling to preserve their fragile 3-2 majority on the town board in the face of a steadily rising Democratic registration and an increasing number of independent voters — residents who are not affiliated with any political party.

Republican regulars were shaken in the 1983 balloting by the election of a 27-year-old newcomer, Cynthia LaFave, as one of the town's two justices, the first Democrat ever to win an elective post other than that of town councilman.

In 1985 three of the five seats on the town board will be on the

Bypass decision to be questioned

Board considers traffic planning

By Caroline Terenzini

Plans by local developer David Siegal for open land he and his wife, Robin, own at the end of the Delmar Bypass took center stage at the Bethlehem Town Board meeting last Wednesday. The board, alerted to the possible loss forever of a path for extending the Bypass, decided to seek a meeting with the town Planning Board to "see what they've got in mind" in rejecting Planned Residence District (PRD) zoning for the property.

Siegal's PRD plan had called for eight single-family homes and 282 townhouses in clusters. The economics of this plan would have permitted him also to extend the Bypass, he told the planners last Tuesday.

However, the Planning Board rejected the PRD plan by a 5-2 vote, and Siegal told The Spotlight that he now will submit plans for a subdivision — which is permitted in the current A and AA-residential zoning — and would abandon his plans to extend the bypass as no longer economically feasible.

The probable effect on future development — and traffic — in the town and in areas beyond from capping the bypass with single-family homes did not escape the town councilors, and they decided to seek meetings with both the Planning Board and with Town of New Scotland officials. The board also decided to look into obtaining the services of a professional to look at traffic routes townwide.

In other business, Public Works Commissioner Bruce Secor asked the board to consider raising water rates to help pay for a $4.48 million water project in the town on which work is to start next spring. Secor projected a debt service cost in 1986 on the order of $430,000, and suggested increasing water use rates to 55 cents per 100 cubic feet for industry and 75 cents per 100 cubic feet for residences, effective for 1985. This would raise the minimum billing for six months of water service from $12.60 to $15.60, he said. Secor also proposed returning to a three-times-a-year billing schedule "to improve cash flow."

In addition, Secor's calculations called for a water district tax rate increase of 7 percent for 1985, 8 percent for 1986 and 2½ percent annually thereafter through 1995 to meet the project costs as well as continuing energy cost increases — "a big expense for us," he said. Secor observed that per capita water usage in the town had declined from 100 gallons a day to 80, from which he inferred that increases in the town's population included a large proportion of one and two-person households.

The board also:

- Referred to the Planning Board a request for permission to construct a storage garage at Meadowbrook Apartments on Blessing Rd.

ballot, those of the supervisor and two town councilmen. In Stephen P. Wallace the town has had a Republican supervisor for more than 10 years. The two board seats at stake are held by Ann Carson, a Republican, and Herbert Reilly, Jr., a Democrat.

Meanwhile four new members have taken seats on the town GOP committee, and several others are expected to be named to existing vacancies before the November presidential voting. The next local election, at which town offices are at stake, will be in the fall of 1985.

According to petitions filed last week with the Albany County Board of Elections, new members of the committee are Gerrit VanRavensway of Feura Bush and Milton F. Bates, Kenneth J. Connolly and John A. Graziano, all of Voorheesville.

VanRavensway replaces William Lilly of Feura Bush in New Scotland's third election district. Bates, a former mayor of Voorheesville, replaces Susan Rockmore, who in March was elected to the village board, in District 5, and Connolly, a former town justice, replaces John Bailey of Voorheesville, who resigned. Graziano, a former town board candidate, fills a vacancy in District 7.

Two of the committee's four vacancies are in District 1. Board of Elections records showed no petition had been filed for Martha Crisafulli, a committee member from that district who last November lost a bid for election to the town board.

Three new petitions were filed by New Scotland Democrats. Joining the party's town committee are Peter Hart in District 1, Michael Burns in District 5 and Edward A. Donohue in District 6. Donohue lost to GOP incumbent Michael Ricci in a contest for the Albany County Legislature last November.

Pending further changes, the committees for the town's major parties currently line up like this:

District 1 (Voorheesville west) — Republican, 2 vacancies; Democrat, William Campion and Peter Hart.

District 2 (Clarksville) — Republican, Blanche E. Stickley, one vacancy; Democrat, Donald E. Cass, one vacancy.

District 3 (Unionville-Feura Bush) — Republican, Ronald Von Ronne and Gerrit VanRavensway; Democrat, Charles Houghtaling, Jr. and Sharon Boehlke.

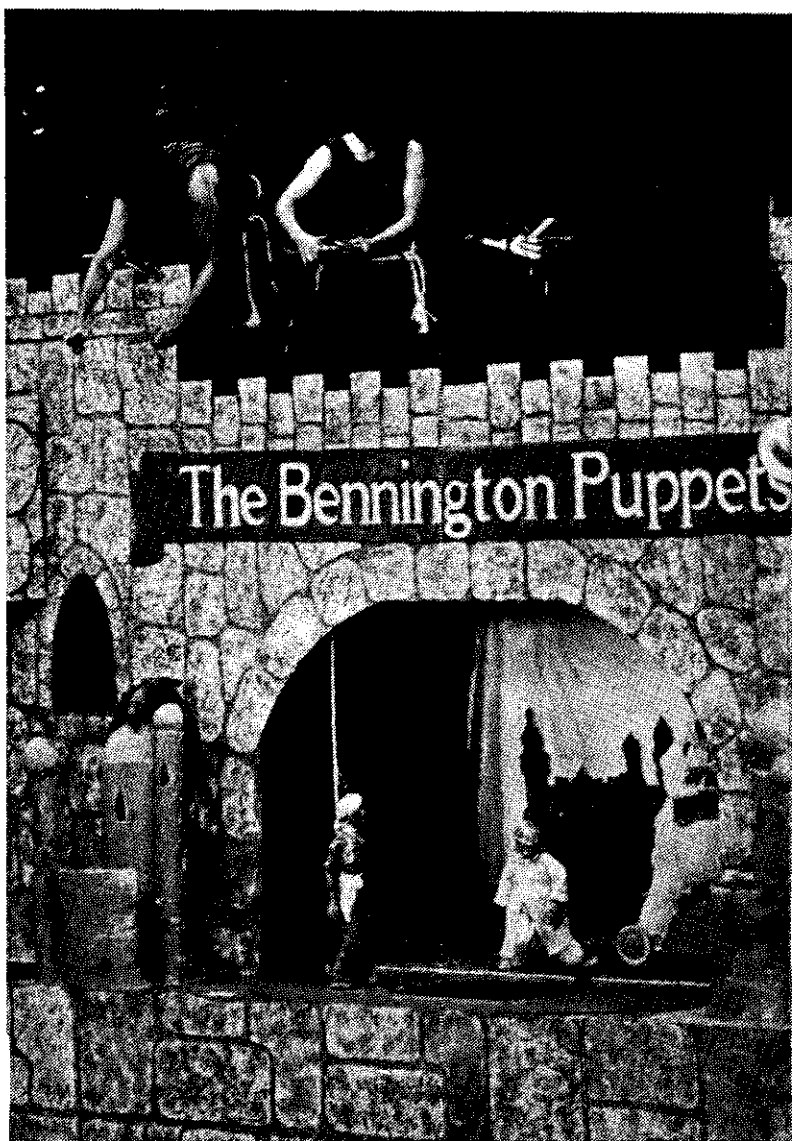

District 4 (Voorheesville east) — Republican, Frances T. Vunck, one vacancy; Democrat, Thomas E. Dolin and Alan P. Joseph.

District 5 (Voorheesville) — Republican, Ellsworth J. Probst and Milton F. Bates; Democrat, Michael Burns and Kenneth Tice.

District 6 (Voorheesville) — Republican, Lucia DeDe and Kenneth J. Connolly; Democrat, Edward A. Donohue and David K. Teuten.

District 7 (New Salem) — Republican, William L. Childs and John A. Graziano; Democrat, Eileen Farley and William Cass.

Another officer punished by town

By Tom McPheeters

Following the recommendation of its hearing officer, the Bethlehem Town Board has handed up its toughest penalty yet against one of the four police officers involved in the overtime dispute between the town and the Bethlehem Police Benevolent Association.

Meeting in special "executive" session Monday, the board ordered Officer James Haker to forfeit 17 days pay in addition to the nearly three week suspension he has already served.

Matthew Clyne, attorney for the Bethlehem PBA, said Tuesday the Haker decision would be appealed to state Supreme Court. "All these are going to be appealed," he said. Clyne had already promised to take the first punishment handed out in the dispute, a 15-day suspension to Officer Marvin Koonz, to the courts.

The cases of two more officers, Wayne LaChappelle and Robert Samsel, remain to be decided, and Supervisor Tom Corrigan said Monday the transcript on the LaChappelle hearing has been received, which means that a decision will probably come within a week. All of the officers have already served unpaid suspensions ranging from two to three weeks from the date of their incident to their hearings.

Haker is president of the PBA, and has been at the forefront of the union's efforts to overturn the new policy on overtime that triggered the dispute. That policy, instituted by Chief Paul Currie, requires officers called in for overtime duty for court appearances and other work that does not have a specific duration to work a full four hours. The PBA's contract requires the town to pay officers for four hours at time and a half for any overtime worked, but until Currie's order the custom had been for officers to leave after their court appearance or other duty was concluded, and for the town to pay the full four hours.

The hearings of the four officers have established that Currie never issued an order to the entire department changing the policy, but instead communicated with individual officers through Capt. LeRoy Cooke and Lt. Fred Holligan. Koonz had just returned from vacation when his infraction occurred.

At Haker's hearing July 9, town officials sought to establish that the officer understood very clearly the change in policy and the consequences of disobeying the order from Cooke to remain on duty after his trial June 18.

Hearing Officer Francis J. Higgins found Haker guilty of disobeying a direct order from Cooke and also of insubordination. Higgins gave no reason for the difference in penalties for Koonz and Haker. In both cases, the town board has adopted Higgins' recommendations without change.

In the hearings, Higgins has agreed with the town's position that the cases are simple questions of insubordination — that whether or not the order given was correct or legal, the officers should have obeyed. The principle of "work now, grieve later" was cited in the town's legal briefs and a recent decision by the state Court of Appeals upholding that principle is part of the town's case. Currie, in a letter to Haker and other officers, advised them to appeal his order through grievance procedure in the PBA's contract if they disagreed, but so far, no grievance has been filed.

Clyne has argued that the chief never formally changed a policy that had existed over a long period of time, and that his orders to individual officers were illegal because they are in conflict with

When old houses get torn down on Delaware Ave. these days, neighbors tend to take alarm. But the demolition of the old, long-vacant house just west of the library this weekend probably caused few tears. "It's been an eyesore and a potential hazard," explained Jim Moak of Klersy Builders, which had used the building for storage. Although there is a Klersy sign on the approximately 7½ acres of now-vacant land (zoned residential), the property is not for sale, and there are no current building plans, Moak said. Tom Howes state law, which prohibits the imposition of mandatory overtime on police officers.

Clyne said Tuesday that there is a possibility that all four cases will go to the same state Supreme Court justice, where they will be consolidated and heard as one. In that case, he said, it is possible the issues he has attempted to raise in the civil service hearings will be given a hearing in court.

Felony charged

Barbara J. Appel, 24, of Colonie has been charged by Bethlehem police with grand larceny, a felony, in the theft of a .357 revolver from the home of a Delmar resident 14 months ago. She was arraigned in Town Court last Tuesday and sent to the Albany County Jail pending further court action.

Stolen ID used

A Delmar resident's stolen identification was used when a $270 forged check was cashed at the Grand Union supermarket in Glenmont in June, according to Bethlehem police. The man's identification had been stolen from his car June 21 when it was parked on N. Pearl St. in Albany, according to the report.

Wildflower course

The Five Rivers Environmental Center will offer a wildflower identification workshop on Saturday, Aug. 11, at 10 a.m. The program, which is open to the public free of charge, will focus on the cultural and ecological significance of late summer wildflowers common to the capital district.

The outdoor field study is the third workshop in a four-part series being presented by naturalists at the center. Participants must pre-register. For information, call the center at 457-6092.

Salem Hills meetings delayed

By Theresa Bobear

A contract for acquisition of the Salem Hills Sewerage Disposal Corp. is currently being drafted, but the two public meetings regarding the purchase have been postponed, the Voorheesville Village Board announced at its meeting last week.

Mayor Richard Lennon summarized the board's meeting with the Sewage Advisory Committee and the village's consultants Clough, Harbor and Associates, as being "successful overall." The village has approximate negotiated details and a tentative purchase agreement price of $387,500. Village attorney Donald Meacham is drafting the contract for acquisition.

Trustee Larry Dedrick informed the board of the meeting between the Sewage Advisory Committee and the Albany County Health Department scheduled for July 31. Mayor Lennon said that the July 31 meeting date would push the two public meeting dates into September and mid-October. He stated that all village residents affected by the purchase would receive notice of public meeting and intent of direction.

When village resident Thomas Mensching asked about bonding for the purchase, Meacham told him that part of the bonding process would be predicated on the results of the two public meetings. The village would advertise for the bonds, Meacham added.

Another resident in attendance suggested that the board seek advice about the sewage problem from a second engineering firm instead of relying solely on Clough, Harbor and Associates.

The board concluded discussion of the proposed sewage disposal plant purchase by formally appointing Ernest Kitchen, David Teuten, Thomas Coates, James MacDonough, Olaf Hausgaard, Allen Parsons and Kenneth Connolly to one-year terms as members of the Sewage Advisory Committee. The board named Kitchen as chairman of the group.

Trustee Daniel Reh told the board that the village planning commission had accepted the revised site plan from Carmello Crisafulli, Jr. for construction of a new post office. "The new plan is quite different," Reh commented. "They did a lot of work changing it over to satisfy the village." The Conservation Advisory Council found that the planned construction would adversely affect the environment. Crisafulli said that he plans to begin construction in mid-August and hopes to complete the project by January 1.

Trustee Susan Rockmore reported that the Community Service Senior Citizens Council had identified 171 households in the village with one or more senior citizens in residence. That figure, Rockmore said, does not include 22 senior citizen households in the Pheasant Run apartment complex. She informed her fellow board members of council chairman James MacDonough's effort to establish community utilization of the St. Peter's Hospital Lifeline program. The electronic monitoring device, according to Rockmore, would help alert authorities to medical emergencies.

Rockmore announced that the council plans to schedule an open meeting to provide village residents with an opportunity to offer suggestions and learn about the need of senior citizens in the community.

In other business, the board:

- Unanimously accepted a $12,738 bid from Terrant Building Corp. for a new leaf vacuum. Lennon said that the bid, which was the only one received, was in line with the $13,000 allocated for the item in the budget.

- Discussed the possibility of authorizing two parking spaces on Center St. for the Voorheesville Carpet Company's store customers. The board made no final decision on the change, which was cleared with fire chief Raymond Bailey. Lennon proposed the installation of off-street parking.

- Responded to the New York Public Interest Group's request for permission to conduct a door-to-door canvass. Meacham stated that the non-profit organization is the right, granted under the First Amendment, to circulate a petition and solicit funds.

- Declared public response to the first edition of the village report to be favorable. Mayor Lennon said that while approximately 10 people had volunteered to deliver the newsletter, more volunteers were still needed. Lennon mentioned one resident's suggestion to the board regarding the extension of the double trash pick-up to include June and September.

Gas pipeline work on schedule

Preliminary construction work has begun on the seven-mile stretch of natural gas pipeline being built by Tennessee Gas Pipeline through rural New Scotland. Work crews from Pace Pipeline Co. of Delmont, Pa., should be up to full strength in another week, and will finish the New Scotland stretch in six to eight weeks, the project manager for Tennessee Gas Pipeline said Friday.

The pipeline is part of a major "loop" linking gas fields in Texas and Canada with the East Coast. It follows the route of an existing pipeline except at the Vly Reservoir, where a protest from the reservoir's owner, the Town of Bethlehem, forced the pipeline company to find an alternate route around the southern tip.

H.E. Degreenia, director of special projects for Tennessee Gas, said the project is on schedule despite the delays encountered in obtaining rights of way around the reservoir. Pace Pipeline, which also has a contract to build a section of the pipeline in Columbia County, is already stockpiling pipe on Pinacle Rd. in New Scotland, and should be "up to full strength" in another week, he said.

The company's local office will be on Rt. 9 in East Greenbush.

Voorheesville News Notes

Band adds its spice

If "variety is the spice of life," the varied talents in this summer's Concert in the Park series have been adding zest to those warm summer Sundays.

This Sunday, Aug. 5, the band "Changes" will appear on the Village Green from 7 to 9 p.m. Composed of local musicians, the band performs songs from the fifties through the eighties, including many of today's Top 40 hits. Playing everything from Johnny Mathis to Journey, the band plans on taking requests during the program.

Formed last fall, the group plays primarily at wedding receptions and other parties, and has appeared at many local social gatherings, including the Jeff Clark Fund-raising dance in February, when they donated their services.

Members of the band are Gary Beadnell, rhythm and lead guitar; Ed Bentley, rhythm and lead guitar; Joe Taggione, bass and lead guitar; Dick Arnold, keyboard, and Ken Marciniak, drums. Bentley, who does a fine imitation of Elvis, and Beadnell, who appeared last summer as a solo act in the park series, are responsible for lead vocals with the rest of the band in harmony.

The concert also will feature a guest appearance by Jack Torrito, bass player and founder of the concert in the park program.

So get out those dancing shoes and come to the park. It's certain the versatile band will play something for everyone during the evening.

Library's abuzz

Things are still busy down at the Voorheesville Public Library. Tuesday, Aug. 7 the movie of the week will be Summer Stock, featuring Judy Garland and Gene Kelly. All are invited to the free showing at 1 p.m.

Those who missed the bike safety program last week at the library are welcome to come this Friday at 3 p.m. when Albany County Sheriff's deputies will be on hand to engrave an identifying number on bikes free of charge.

An obstacle course will also be setup to test the skill of bikers.

The penpal and summer reading clubs will meet Thursday and Friday at 2 p.m. and 3 p.m., respectively.

Next Wednesday, Aug. 8, Voorheesville Postmaster John Follos and a distinguished guest will be at the library at 2 p.m. for the first meeting of the library's new Ben Franklin Stamp Club. At that time a movie on stamp collecting will be shown and "freebies" will be given away. Students in grade four and up interested in attending should sign up at the library or by calling 765-2791.

On Friday, Aug. 10, Voorheesville will get a little closer to the Olympics when Menands resident George Tucker, Puerto Rico's oneman Olympic team, appears at the library as part of the Reading Club's sports week. Tucker, a native of San Juan, will bring along his sled and slides of the Winter Olympics in Sarajevo. Everyone is welcome to join reading club members for this presentation.

Recreation wrapup

August is here, summer's half over and the village recreation program is winding down to give its industrious personnel some time to enjoy a vacation. During the week of Aug. 6, the various village-sponsored programs such as the children's soccer clinic and basketball and tennis instruction will conclude. On Friday, Aug. 10, the summer playground program will end with a field day in the park behind the village hall. Village Recreation Director Terry Barlow invites all children ages 7 through 12 to come between 9 a.m. and noon and take part in events including relay races, free-throw contests, balloon toss, a Kool-Aid chug-a-lug and bubble gum contests. Ribbons will be awarded to winners.

Scouts hit the trail

The Cub Scouts of Voorheesville will take to the road Saturday, Aug. 4, when Pack 73 holds its annual bike hike. Cubs and their families are to meet at 9 a.m. at the beginning of the Corning bike trail, behind the D&H Building, for a scenic ride along the Hudson River.

The Boy Scouts of Troop 73 will be returning this week after a fun-filled trip to the shores of Rhode Island. The annual summer trip is a reward, so to speak, for those scouts who have accumulated the required number of points, by participating in various personal and community service projects during the year.

Creative on computers

More students from Voorheesville have been showing they know their way around a computer keyboard this summer. Recently four students from Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School participated in the "Creative Computer Use Contest" portion of the Language Arts Olympics at the Convention Center in Empire State Plaza. The local Olympians were Brad Goldstien and Chris Jeffers, both eighth graders, and Kevin Russo and Mike Esetak, both in seventh grade. All are students of Sally Dobris.

The Language Arts Olympics were sponsored by the Albany City Area Reading Council.

Awards still blooming

News of awards is still coming in. The following students were presented with awards this past June.

Kiwanis Good Citizenship Awards went to Sharon McKenna and Bonnie Mitchell, while Kiwanis scholarship awards were presented to James Volkwein and Debra Bausback. School improvement awards also presented by the Kiwanis were given to Timothy Houle and Suzanne Munyan.

Student awards presented by the Voorheesville Teachers Association were presented to: Kerry Kelly, Senior Education Award;

Ken Norton, BOCES occupational, highest average award; Lisa Parker, outstanding BOCES occupational student, and Kirsten Ford, named Senior of the Year by the Association.

Mansion is open

The historic Glen Sanders mansion, the first house built on the north bank of the Mohawk River, is open to the public for the first time since it was built in 1658. The Georgian-style mansion in Scotia was home to eight generations of the Glen and Sanders families.

The mansion is owned by Dolph and Sylvia Eberling who operate a computer firm, Eberling Associates, out of the mansion's top floors. For information, contact Sylvia Eberling at 377-8839.

In fair condition

Kevin Butler of Voorheesville was listed in fair condition Monday at Albany Medical Center Hospital. Butler was injured July 21 when the vehicle he was in went off Wemple Rd. in Glenmont and overturned. David C. Lloyd, 21, of Delmar was charged with driving while intoxicated in the crash.

Fair sets pageant

Girls between 15 and 21 years of age who are residents of Albany, Schenectady or Greene county may enter the Miss Altamont Fair pageant to be held Aug. 12 and 13 at the Altamont fairgrounds. Each contestant is required to obtain a sponsor and will be judged on poise, personality, appearance and communicative ability.

The winner will become eligible to participate in a national competition, and will act as official greeter during the week of the fair. Miss Altamont Fair also will represent the fair at parades and community functions throughout the year.

Persons interested in obtaining registration information may contact Patricia Leigh at 861-6389 or call the fair at 861-6671.

Forger sought

Bethlehem police are investigating the origin of a stolen and forged check that was cashed last Tuesday at Home and City Savings Bank in Elsmere. The check, written in the amount of $750, was drawn on a Saratoga bank.

Albany firm low on Glenmont span

The new bridges on Rt. 9W over the Normanskill will apparently be built by Lange-Finn Construction Co. of Albany, the low bidder at $6.6 million. The project will replace the existing two-lane structure, which is in "deteriorating" condition, with two new two-lane bridges and is expected to take about two years.

The project also calls for realignment of the approaches to the bridge, improved road drainage and new signs.

According to DOT officials, the bridge is to be built "upstream" from the existing bridge; then the old bridge will be torn down and the second new bridge built. When completed, the four-foot gap will be joined with a median strip, so that there will effectively be one bridge.

The construction is variously called a "slant leg girder" bridge or "grasshopper" bridge, but is technically a "rigid frame steel girder bridge," with four legs supporting each span on each side.

Bids for the project were opened July 19, and DOT officials said last week it normally takes about six weeks to award the contract for a project of this size. However, Assemblyman Larry Lane's office announced last week that Lange-

Finn has been awarded the contract, and a DOT official confirmed that the Albany firm is the low bidder and probably would get the contract. The project has an Oct. 31, 1986 completion date.

Arts and accessibility

The Empire State Institute for the Performing Arts is continuing its Arts Accessibility Program, designed to make the performing arts accessible to all people, especially the disabled. The program provides consumer information services, interpreters, season brochures in braille, ticket ordering by phone and teletype, reserved seats in prime sight and sound locations, bus service for the disabled, wheelchairs and other services.

To obtain information, write Accessibility Coordinator, ESIPA, Empire State Plaza, Albany, 12223, or call 474-1199 (voice) or 474-6143 (teletype).

Homemaker training

The Home Aide Service of Eastern New York, Inc., 10 Colvin Ave., Albany, will be offering a free 11-day homemaker-home health aide training program beginning Aug. 22. For more information, call Home Aide Service at 459-6853.

Assemblyman Larry Lane, teacher Gail Dale and Hamagraef Elementary School fourth graders are shown on the Million Dollar Staircase during a visit this spring to the State Capitol.

Lane asks tandem truck restudy

The state transportation commissioner has indicated willingness to reevaluate concerns raised by Assemblyman C.D. (Larry) Lane on a proposal to permit tandem tractor-trailer trucks on certain local roads.

In a letter replying to Lane's request that the state Department of Transportation reconsider the order permitting the heavy-duty vehicles on town roads, DOT Commissioner James L. Larocca said his staff would "be glad" to consider further evaluation if Lane would identify specific roads and concerns.

In his letter Larocca told Lane that state law requires that "before non-state highways can be designated for use by trucks with tandem trailers, the affected municipality is notified and given an opportunity to concur, comment or object." He added that "no objections were received for the routes in your (Lane's) district."

In recent months objections raised by Bethlehem and Albany County officials have been withdrawn after meetings with state engineers. A DOT spokesman said this week that the department "feels that both the town and county are satisfied that there will be no problems" with the tandem-truck proposal.

Shortly after receipt of the DOT proposal and an accompanying map showing the designated local roads last December, Bethlehem Supervisor Tom Corrigan filed objections to several routes, notably Rt. 396 in Selkirk and sections of Rt. 9W in Glenmont and Selkirk. Both Corrigan and Fred Doering, Albany County engineer, also raised concerns on the impact of the tandem trucks on Elm Ave. and Jericho Rd., county routes in the area of the Conrail yards.

After inspection and vehicle demonstrations, the DOT deleted Rt. 396 from the list of designated roads, and Corrigan and Doering withdrew their opposition on the other highways, according to a DOT spokesman.

The designated routes include the entire length of Rt. 9W as it traverses Bethlehem between the Albany city line and the Coymans town line, and Rt. 144 between Corning Hill and the access to Thruway Exit 22.

Larocca's letter pointed out that if localities object to a designated routing, the department is required to hold a public hearing.

A DOT official stated last December that the new rules limit trailer length to 28.5 feet, as contrasted to 48-foot trailers permitted on some interstate highways. In his letter to Lane, Larocca pointed out that while tandem trucks permitted on the Thruway can reach up to 114 feet in length, those allowed on the designated highways "are in the range of 70 feet overall length" compared to the 65-foot tandems allowed on designated state highways and the 60-foot tractor-trailer combinations permitted on all state highways.

The DOT says the new regulations have been requested by long-distance trucking companies to connect their terminals and roads designated for tandem truck use with facilities for food, fuel, rest or repair. Bethlehem has several truck terminals and is particularly affected because two Thruway exits lie within the town.

Survey responses encouraging

People Against Chemical Abuse, the organization established this past year to help fight the abuses of drugs and alcohol within the RCS school district, has begun to receive a response to questionnaires recently sent to members of the community. The survey was sent to a random sample of 300 families in an effort to assist in determining the nature and extent of the problem, to obtain insight and opinions, and to establish the current extent of concern and awareness of the problem on the local level. Chuck Friday, Deb Malone, Louise Nolan, Marge Chodack and Carolyn Wright, who form the survey committee, obtained the mailing list for their queries by choosing randomly from a list of junior and senior high school students names. None were chosen for any particular reason, and all replies were anonymous.

With close to a 50-percent return on the five-page survey, the response has been very good, and in the majority, very positive regarding the founding of the PACA Task Force, members say. Many expressed a need for its existence, a desire to assist, and volunteered additional information. According to committee member Susan Leach, the replies will now be submitted to Jim Welsh, who will process the data and compile the results. The information will be then used to develop a package to assist families affected by alcohol and drug abuse and provide guidelines for the task force.

PACA, which meets at the RCS junior high, will resume regular meetings in the fall. The group is comprised of a variety of private citizens that includes parents, businessmen, clergy, the superintendent of schools and social workers and would like to encourage more people to participate. Members would particularly like to have a response from teens of the area, feeling that their knowledge and input would be most useful to their efforts. Interested persons may obtain additional information at the Friendship Festival, which will be on Main St. in Ravena Aug. 25. PACA will have a booth at the festival and will be happy to answer questions about the organization.

NEWS FROM SELKIRK AND SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Barbara Pickup 767-9225

Sunshine seniors

The Sunshine Senior Citizens of Selkirk-South Bethlehem have a number of activities planned for the month of August. They have received two invitations to picnics within the next two weeks; the first, a VFW picnic in Slingerlands, is scheduled for today (Wednesday). The second is being held Aug. 16 at the Elm Ave. Park, and is at the invitation of the Bethlehem Lions Club. Reservations for this date may be made through Robert Mayo. The seniors have also made plans for Aug. 9, at which time they will be joining the senior citizens of Ravena for an evening meal at the center on Main St. The time is 5 p.m. and the cost is $1.50 per person.

'Best ever' day

The children of the A.W. Becker school were treated to the "best ever" field day by the Parent Teacher Organization on June 15. At 9 a.m. the children witnessed the arrival of six acrobatic parachuters who literally jumped into the school's backyard. At the same time a huge Army all-terrain vehicle drove into the parking lot, and within minutes a State Police helicopter landed on the playground. Following that dynamic beginning, there was a moonwalk, the Walt Disney movie, Dumbo, relay races and a live farm animal display. The children also enjoyed an emergency vehicle display, face painting and a picnic. The Field Day has grown to be a memorable day for the students of the Becker School.

Final fair weekend

This is the last weekend for the Glenmont Firemen's Fair. The event, which is scheduled for two consecutive weekends each summer will come to a close this Saturday night, Aug. 4. Held at the firehouse grove, next to the Town Squire Shopping center in Glenmont, the fair opens 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday evening with a variety of food, fun and games for all ages.

Continuing the fight

Aldin Countryman, exalted ruler of Bethlehem Lodge of Elks #2233, has just returned home from the Elks Grand Lodge Convention in Houston, Texas. He advises that the newly elected Grand Exalted Ruler, Frank O. Garland, declared the Elks will continue its nationwide program against drug abuse. Garland said that an Elks survey of the country's mayors determined that drug abuse is the number one problem for which more volunteer work is needed.

Promotions for scouts

Members of Ravena's Boy Scout Troop 142 earned honors at the Governor Clinton Council summer camp. David Bellner advanced to the rank of first class scout, and John McDonald, Henry Stumpf IV, Robert Stumpf and Jason Wank were promoted to second class scouts.

Merit badges were earned by David Bellner, David Cary, Edward Kuhn, John McDonald, Kenneth O'Doherty, Henry Stumpf IV, Robert Stumpf, Donald Van Wormer, Jason Wank, John Zobel and Keith Zobel. David Cary, Edward Kuhn, Kenneth O'Doherty and Keith Zobel were elected to the Order of the Arrow. National Rifle Association marksman and sharpshooter certificates were awarded to Bellner and Kuhn.

Barbara Pickup is on vacation this week. Items for her column can be mailed to The Spotlight, Box 100, Delmar, 12054 or call 439-4949.

Remove temptation

An Albany woman, 66, told Bethlehem police last week that she will disconnect her phone while she is having cocktails in the future after New York Telephone Co. reported tracing harassing calls to her number, according to police reports. A "trap" was put on the line when a Glenmont man complained to the phone company in June, and the telephone company reported its findings to police, as is its practice, police said.

Teachers Martin Ainspan, left, and Kathleen Zago, far right, along with a parent volunteer, supervise the A.W. Becker kindergarten class during the school's June 15 field day. The children are lined up to inspect the state police helicopter that landed in the school playground.

Midsummer Night's reality

Brandon and Neil, a couple of 15-year-old best friends, have just finished dinner at their respective homes and have met each other on their bicycles at the corner where they usually meet each evening after dinner. It is early August, midsummer, the peak of the season when everything is in full swing . . . or is it?

Family MATTERS

Norman G. Cohen

"I haven't heard. What's happening at Sherry's? I heard her folks are gone for a week or so, and they left her home. She having anyone over?"

"No way. You know her parents. They're strict as anything. She wouldn't take the chance."

"Let's go over anyhow and see."

"Naw, I don't wanna. She's a good kid. I don't want to get her into trouble."

"What d'ya mean 'trouble'? Alls we'll do is knock on the door and talk to her."

"Well, wha'd ya wanna do tonight?"

"I dunno. Any parties goin' on?"

"I heard of one, but it's mostly college kids. They wouldn't let us in."

"Hi."

"Hi, Neil. Wha'd ya eat?"

"Aw, the usual. Meat loaf, potatoes and some other junk."

"Wanna get a pizza."

"Well, I know some kids our age who hang around with guys that drive."

"Yeh, but they're all into drinking and doin' dope."

"So . . .?"

"Naw, I'm too full. We had a chocolate pie from the church ladies that came by today. I ate half of it."

"Ooo, is there any left?"

"Nope, all gone. Too bad."

"Sure they would if we paid 'em five bucks apiece."

"Yeh, I'll bet. And then they'd only let us have a couple of beers and then kick us out."

"Right. Any others?"

"Yeh, but y'know, what if somebody tells her parents that we were over . . ."

"Awright, I know what y'mean. But what are we gonna do tonight? It's so boring around here."

"Yeh, I know. Everyone's away on vacations or at camp. Ya wanna go bowling?"

"Boring."

"Play video games?"

"Boring."

"See who's at Friendly's?"

"Nobody."

"Just bike around?"

"Sure nothin' else to do."

"Wish there were a movie theater in town. We could go to a movie then."

"Yeh, that'd be neat. Even a skating rink would be okay."

"Remember that teen center people were talking about a few years ago?"

"Yeh. Whatever happened to that?"

"I dunno, but if it happened, it probably would be a drag. Y'know full of parents and cops all around, somebody watchin' you all the time."

"Yeh, that'd be very un-excellent."

"So, what're we gonna do tonight?"

"I dunno. Wish we could drive. Then we could go someplace where a kid can have fun. You know anyone with a car?"

"Sure, lots of kids, but they're all older and don't hang around with kids our age."

"Well, I know some kids our age who hang around with guys that drive."

"Yeh, but they're all into drinking and doin' dope."

"So . . .?"

"Wha'd ya mean 'so'? You don't wanna get into that stuff, do you?"

"Well, it's probably better than just hangin' around doin' nothin' like this."

"Yeh, well maybe it's worse, too. How do you know?"

"I don't, but it's worth a try. I mean it's so boring around here. Nothin' to do."

"Yeh, I know, but I don't think booze and dope is gonna do any good, either."

"C'mon, let's go back to my house. Maybe there's a good movie on HBO."

"Okay. Nothin' better to do."

Who thinks Nine Mile Two will free us from imported energy?

Evan Pritchard, Retired Educator

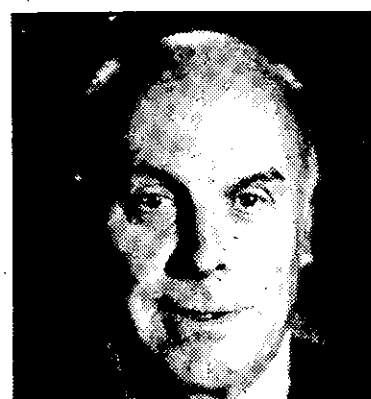

"I strongly believe that Nine Mile Two should be completed because it will provide another source of electrical power for the people of New York State . . . and as the state continues to grow, that extra power will be needed in the years to come. The more we can rely upon nuclear power, the less we will have to rely on what is known as an exhaustible resource—petroleum—as a source of electrical energy."

Dr. Robert Block, RPI Nuclear Professor

"Hydro power in New York State has already been developed. Fossil power is not as good for the environment. Nuclear power is the cost-effective and environmentally sound way to go. Nine Mile Two should be completed because it will generate electricity inside the U.S. so we are less dependent on foreign power, and it will save New York ratepayers money."

Leland Beebe, Retired New York State Farm Bureau Executive

"For generations to come, it will be exceedingly important that an adequate supply of electrical power is available. I am convinced that we should complete and bring on-line the Nine Mile Two nuclear power plant because as we continue to develop economically, and as population increases, we're simply going to need more power than is presently being generated."

Focus On Faith

Rev. Warren Winterhoff

Bethlehem Lutheran Church

Napoleon was not French. Hitler did not become a German citizen until seven months before he became chancellor. Jesus probably was not born on Dec. 25.

Some historical facts surprise us. Certain religious truths can also startle us: the Holy Spirit did not come into existence at Pentecost (see Genesis 1); saints are alive (Paul writes to them — Romans 1); and all those who say they believe in Jesus Christ will not necessarily go to heaven.

In our society the word "believe" has many meanings. In the area of religion it has caused great confusion. I can "believe" in George Washington, but I am not trusting him for forgiveness. I "believe" in Abraham Lincoln, i.e. I acknowledge his historical existence; but I am not trusting him for my eternal inheritance.

Biblically, to "believe" means more than acknowledging the historical existence of a person. It means more than accepting that a particular event occurred. Biblically, "believe" means to trust — to place one's complete faith and total reliance in someone or something.

When the frightened Philippian jailer said, "What must I do to be saved," Paul and Silas answered, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and you shall be saved" (Acts 16:31). Here the jailer was encouraged to stake his entire life on the power of the Savior. This terrified civil servant was encouraged to trust totally and alone in the crucified and resurrected Jesus.

For the jailer to acknowledge that he had heard of Jesus would have been of no consequence. Even the Savior's most vicious enemies admitted His historical existence. In that sense, they "believed" in Him. But they did not have a saving knowledge of Christ. There is a difference!

If we took a poll at a local shopping center probably 90 percent or more of the people would say they "believe" in Jesus. Movie stars say it. Television personalities say it. Politicians say it. We say it. But what is being said? Are we merely acknowledging the historical existence of a person named Jesus? Or is it deeper than that? Are we confessing Him as our Lord and Savior, who not only lived but lives and forgives our sins. Are we willing to commit our lives to Him and trust Him. Does our "belief" in Christ move us to praise and thanksgiving and a desire to have our attitudes and actions shaped by Him? That, certainly, is the Biblical definition of "believe"!

What about us . . . do we really believe? Pray for the Holy Spirit to give us the kind of belief Francis Havergal had when she wrote the hymn, "I Am Trusting Thee Lord Jesus". It expresses what a Christian means who says, "I believe in Jesus Christ."

*I am trusting Thee, Lord Jesus,
Trusting only Thee;
Trusting Thee for full salvation,
Great and free.*

*I am trusting Thee, Lord Jesus;
Never let me fall.
I am trusting Thee forever
And for all.*

A walk in the meadows

An outdoor program introducing the ecology of the summer meadow will be held at the Five Rivers Educational Center on Aug. 7 at 7 p.m. The field study will be conducted by Five Rivers naturalists. The varied wildlife interrelationships of the ecosystem will be explored. Binoculars and sturdy hiking shoes are recommended for the program which is free and open to the public. Call Five Rivers at 457-6092 for information.

Civil War display

An exhibition of Civil War period photographs from the collection of Delmar historian Bill Howard is currently on display at the Lincoln Hill bookstore, 163 Delaware Ave. The original photographs, which document the evolution of portrait photography from the 1830's to the late 1860's, were acquired by Howard over a 12-year period.

Included in the display which runs through Aug. 24, are several photographs of local Civil War soldiers, which have been identified and researched. A rare albumen photo of a Confederate private, soon to be published in an historical magazine, The Kepi, is also on exhibit.

There was a reunion at Bethlehem Lutheran Church at the recent mortgage burning ceremony as three former church officials returned for the celebration. From left are Carl Rapp, the church's first treasurer; James Michaels, first financial secretary; Frank Markus, first vice president; and Rev. Warren Winterhoff, the present pastor. Not shown is Rev.

Victor G. Albers, the guest preacher and former executive secretary of the Atlantic District Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. The special service was conducted to celebrate the final payment in the congregation's first chapel, now known as Parish Hall. The mortgage was taken out in 1957.

Lutherans elect

Steve Wahl is president of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church and Thomas Mabee is serving as vice president. The congregation also recently elected other members to serve two-year terms on the governing board of the church: James Fireovid, James Bowersox, John Gardiner, Charles Reed, Sr. and Dennis Skoglund were elected to the board of elders, which will be chaired by Robert Cartwright.

Other members elected were: Craig Brewick, evangelism board chairman; Carol Budiger, head of publicity board; Diane Stevens, head of social ministry board; David Sylvester, church properties board chairman.

Stories at the parks

Stephanie Pouliott and Claire Ribaud of the Bethlehem Public Library will be at area playgrounds through Aug. 16 to share stories with children. The storytellers will spin yarns at the following times: Mondays, 11-11:30 a.m., Clarksville; Mondays, 2:30-3 p.m., Glenmont, Wednesdays, 10-10:30 a.m., Hamagrael; Wednesdays, 2:30-3 p.m., Slingerlands; Thursday, 1:30-2 p.m., Elm Ave. Park; Thursdays, 2:30-3 p.m., Elmsere.

The Spotlight — August 1, 1984 — PAGE 15

□ The livable house

had to stop repeatedly to scrape ice off their goggles as they tore off shingles and ripped through walls that had plaster over lath over wallpaper over wood. Old newspapers found inside the walls and under the carpeting during the transformation were dated 1913, mute evidence that no significant changes had taken place in the house since that date. "It's not often you get an unadulterated building to work on," Mitchell said with a smile. Certainly, until the Mitchells came along, the house had never had plumbing heating and electricity.

One of the greater oddities found in the old house were the cause they are not in evidence on the property.

In that first winter, Maggie Mitchell, pregnant then with son Sam, spent some 40 hours sand-blasting paint and grime off the kitchen ceiling. As the rebuilding proceeded on the kitchen end of the house, the Mitchells discovered that this addition had been built on a thin rock bed that had permitted the sill to rot. So a cellar was dug, a cinder block foundation was laid, this was topped with a course of rock for the right look, and a new sill was hammered into place.

With the house ready for occupancy four months later, Mitchell turned his attention to making buildings work for people, daylight now filters into this palatial barn through 12 skylights cut into the roof. An old oak library ladder without a single creak provides passage up from the wooden floor that has been well worn by the feet of men and animals long departed, and when the loft door to the east is swung open, the view goes clear into the next state.

Mitchell's interest in the passive use of solar energy shows up in the "solar space" at the back of the house. Here the sun's warmth is domesticated and the space provides a cheerful breakfast room (as well as a potential site for a hot tub). In the summer, morning glories are trellised across the glass enclosure.

There is work to be done yet on

Bob Mitchell at his drafting table.

Tom Howes

"The issue for me is how do you want to live in your house, not what do you want it to look like. For me, designing a house is meant to improve the people's lives."

tombstones of a son and a daughter of the builder that were being used to hold up the cellar stairs. Their father's tombstone was propping up a kerosene tank elsewhere on the farm. And other family tombstones may be serving useful purposes elsewhere, be-the outbuildings. A shed was relocated with a bulldozer and one end of the clothesline was firmly attached to the outhouse. The smaller of the two barns was shored up and the larger barn was rescued from imminent demise. And, because Mitchell believes in the house, but, unlike many a homeowner, Mitchell derives great pleasure in doing it. For example, all the windows and sills have been made by Mitchell, using an antique hand lathe. Not, perhaps, the fastest way, but satisfying. While his own house is clearly his "hobby," Mitchell has deep convictions about what a house should do for people who live in it. In his design work, Mitchell stresses that "the issue for me is how do you want to live in your house, not what do you want it to look like. For me, designing a house is meant to improve the people's lives." For example, Mitchell designed a 2½-story one-room addition for a home in Kinderhook so that the couple could grow banana trees and have a hot tub.

"There is a limit in this climate on what the sun can do," Mitchell noted, so conservation measures are more effective here than any gains from passive solar design. To this end, he has patented an interior insulating window shutter called Thermal Wall that is available in kits. "Calculation of benefits is what it's all about," he said as he whipped out his (what else?) light-powered calculator. In the mid-70s, Mitchell said, the goal was to be energy-independent. Now, with oil prices having become (however momentarily) stabilized, in designing buildings "things that make sense now are things that balance costs and savings from an investment point of view."

For himself, what makes sense is making buildings serve human purposes. In that huge old barn, whose hemlock siding has weathered to rich hues that belie its age, there may some day be a handball court.

Heads volunteers

Robert E. Williams, senior vice president for human resources at Key Bank Inc., has been elected president of the board of directors for the Volunteer Center of Albany, Inc. He also has been named to the statewide Advisory Council of Aging in America, Inc., Projects With Industry program. Williams, employed by Key Banks since 1981, resides in Glenmont.

The Volunteer Center of Albany was established in 1968 to stimulate voluntary action and volunteer service throughout the Capital District. Projects With Industry was organized in 1980 to match the needs of New York metropolitan area employers with the work skills of mature people who are disabled.

Adirondack trek

The American Lung Association of New York State is seeking participants for its "Adirondack Wilderness" Bike Trek, scheduled for Sept. 14-16 and also Sept. 15-17.

The trek is a pledge-per-mile fund raiser in which participants will spend three days bicycling through the spectacular Adirondack region. The 180-mile journey begins and ends in Schroon Lake, circling through Long Lake, Lake Placid and Keene.

The Lung Association will provide food and lodging at two Adirondack inns, emergency support, training and tour guides.

A tax-deductible registration fee of $25 is required of all participants. In addition, each trekker will have to secure a minimum of $200 in pledges and sponsorships. For information, call the lung association at 459-4197.

Local swimmers take 12 firsts

Delmar swimmers took 12 firsts and a second-place team trophy at the McDonald's-Adirondack Junior Olympic Long Course championships at the Clifton Knolls outdoor pool in Clifton Park Saturday and Sunday.

The Delmar Dolphins boys team finished second among 20 teams from a wide area of Eastern and Northeastern New York, led by a foursome of youngsters who won both relays in the 11-12 age grouping. Justin Baird, Chris Nolan, Cam O'Connor and Drew Patrick took first in both the 200-meter medley relay and 200-meter freestyle relay.

Individual honors went to Sue Mallery, 15-year-old standout on the Bethlehem Central girls varsity. Mallery, carrying the colors of the Albany Starfish Swim Club, had four firsts and two seconds in individual events in the women's senior division (ages 15-18). Her clocking of 1:08.71 in the 100-meter butterfly was a new meet record. She also won the 50 and 100 freestyle events and the 400 IM.

Other strong performances came from Justin Baird of the Dolphins, who added firsts in the 50 and 100 freestyle to his relay contributions, along with a second and two thirds in boys 11-12 events. Chris Nolan added a first, second and two thirds, Drew Patrick three thirds and Matthew Stone one third.

In girls 11-12 events, Jenny Mosley had two firsts and two seconds and Jill Cleveland and Kathleen Fish each earned a third-place ribbon. Mosley, Cleveland, Susie Cleary and Christina Rudofsky came in second in the 11-12 girls 200-meter freestyle relay and fourth in the medley relay.

Chris Drew won the 13-14 boys 200-meter backstroke and was third in the 100-meter backstroke. Lisa Ogawa had two third places in 13-14 girls, and Pat Henahan earned a second in the senior girls 200-meter breaststroke.

Of the 28 Dolphins at the meet, others who placed in the first six in various individual age-group events were David Cleary, Christina Rudofsky, Patrick Fish, Cam O'Connor, Keith Dix, Brink Hartman, Janet Shaffer and Pierre LaBarge. Kristin Mallery of Delmar, swimming for the Starfish team, was third in 13-14 girls 200-meter freestyle and placed in four other events.

Fencers qualify

Two local fencers have been added to the list of competitors qualifying for the Empire State Games in Syracuse Aug. 15-19.

Laurence Roth, Jr. of Feura Bush, a 32-year-old graduate of Hobart College, Geneva, will be competing for the Adirondack Region team in men's open fencing for the seventh straight year. Roth, who has been fencing since 1970, his freshman year in college, has qualified each year since the Empire State Games began in 1978. He has also competed in several North Atlantic Section championships and two national championship meets.

Shari Petronis, a 19-year-old Cornell sophomore from Selkirk, has qualified for the Games in women's open fencing. She was named the most improved freshman fencer on the Cornell team last year when the team finished fourth in the NCAA regional tournament.

Swim meet here

The Town of Bethlehem will again host the Adirondack District AAU Swim Championships at the Elm Ave. Park pool complex on Aug. 10, 11 and 12. Spectators are invited to attend and cheer the young swimmers. During the meet, the pools will be closed for recreational swimming. Closing hours will be posted at the pool.

Tomboys make local history

The Bethlehem Tomboys made local softball history over the weekend, winning a tournament for the first time ever and turning in several record-breaking performances.

The Tomboys combined hard hitting with steady pitching to complete a four-game sweep of the Lansingburgh tournament. Sharon Rogler pitched 20 innings in two days and was credited with three of the victories, and there were heroines a-plenty at the plate.

Bethlehem opened with a 7-2 win over Hoosick Falls on Saturday behind Rogler's two-hit pitching. Weny Vogel and Holly Mendleson paced the attack with two hits apiece.

On Sunday the Tomboys swept Brunswick by 19-4, Lansingburgh by 13-8 and Waterford by 15-8. Rogler pitched the Brunswick game and came back to be the winning pitcher in the final against Waterford, adding three hits to the cause.

Carolyn Brooks belted two doubles and a triple to drive in four runs and Laurie Karam had

It's not over . . .

Bethlehem's entry in the Mohawk-Hudson Women's Softball League, struggling through a dismal season in last place, was one out from another tournament defeat on Saturday when the whole complexion changed.

In a post-season double elimination at Shenendehowa, the Bethlehem Tomboys major league all-stars were trailing Wynantskill by 1-0 with two out in the seventh and Peg Jeram on second base. That's when Julie Liddle slammed a double off the fence in left center to tie the game.

In the extra inning the Tomboys, batting in the top half, exploded for six runs. Karen Mead started the winning rally with a double. Maureen Walsh, pitching her best game of the season, went the distance for the victory.

Earlier on Saturday the Tomboys had lost to Colonie Blue, 14-10. In the final on Sunday morning, Shenendehowa's host team blanked Bethlehem, 3-0.

The Tomboys traveling team closed out the regular season at 8-4, winning the final by 17-10 over Colonie Blue in a game featured by consecutive home runs by Liddle, Terry Plunkett and Mead.

three hits in the win over Lansingburgh. Beth McCue was the winning pitcher.

Mendleson and Cathy Futia had four hits apiece in leading the assault on Waterford. Mendleson broke the game open in the fifth inning with a three-run homer and Brooks added three hits.

The Tomboys got steady defense and some sparkling play afield by Vogel, Futia and Karam during the sweep.

Little leaguers successful

Tournament teams from the Tri-Village Little League are having more success than usual in post-season play.

The league's 10-year-old and 12-year-old traveling teams each reached the District 13 finals before being eliminated, and the 11-year-old aggregation is still alive in an invitational tournament in Albany.

The Tri-Village 12-year-olds, who had opened the district tourney with a 10-2 win over Hudson Valley a week ago, made it two in a row with a 7-2 thrashing of St. Francis before bowing to Colonie in the final, 8-2. Alex Hackman blanked St. Francis until the last inning and contributed two hits. Scott Hodge had a single and double. Quimby McCaskill had two singles in the Colonie setback.

The 10-year-olds, who had crushed Whitehall by 27-2 in the tourney opener a week earlier, lost their final also to Colonie, 8-4. Mark Houston's two-run double went for naught.

Scott Fish pitched a 7-hitter for the 11-year-olds, turning back the Albany National all-stars, 13-4. He issued only one walk. Leading the attack was Jeff D'Arcy with a triple and two singles. Several teammates had two hits apiece and Josh Pierce chipped in with another triple. The Tri-Villagers are scheduled to face the Colonie all-stars tonight (Wednesday) at 6 at the National Little League park, Partridge St. and Woodlawn Ave., Albany.

Wins Rec title

Price Chopper's 10-6 win over Bethlehem Masons last week clinched the 1984 Bethlehem Recreation Baseball League flag with a 12-3 record. Frank Venezia went the distance on the slab for the winners, and Pat Malone led the attack with two hits.

Don Burriesci is manager of the new champions. Andriano's finished second at 11-4.

Graduation honors

Deborah Ann Jeram of Delmar graduated cum laude recently from Siena College in Loudonville. A major in political science, she was named a member of Pi Gamma Mu, the national social science honor society, and was listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. She was among 706 seniors receiving undergraduate degrees at Siena's 44th annual commencement.

Shopper surprised

Editor, The Spotlight:

Why does Peter Harris make you feel like a shoplifter? When you had your sale the other night till 12 p.m., I walked in and BOUGHT a tee shirt. I didn't go right out, but on the way out the buzzer went off, as if I had committed a burglary. While I was in there, I heard it go off.

Why should the customer be accused of something they didn't do when it is the cashier who forgot to take the clip off the merchandise?

It was my first time to Peter Harris and I guess my last until you have a different system. I have been shopping for a good many years and this is the first time such a thing happened.

Margaret A. Scharff

Glenmont

The manager of the Peter Harris store in Delmar said, "We had our Midnite Madness sale that day — the busiest day of the year — and the clerks reported only one beeper all day. I think we have a fantastic track record on that! We hope Mrs. Scharff will give us another try." Ed.

Confusion on Rt. 396

Editor, The Spotlight:

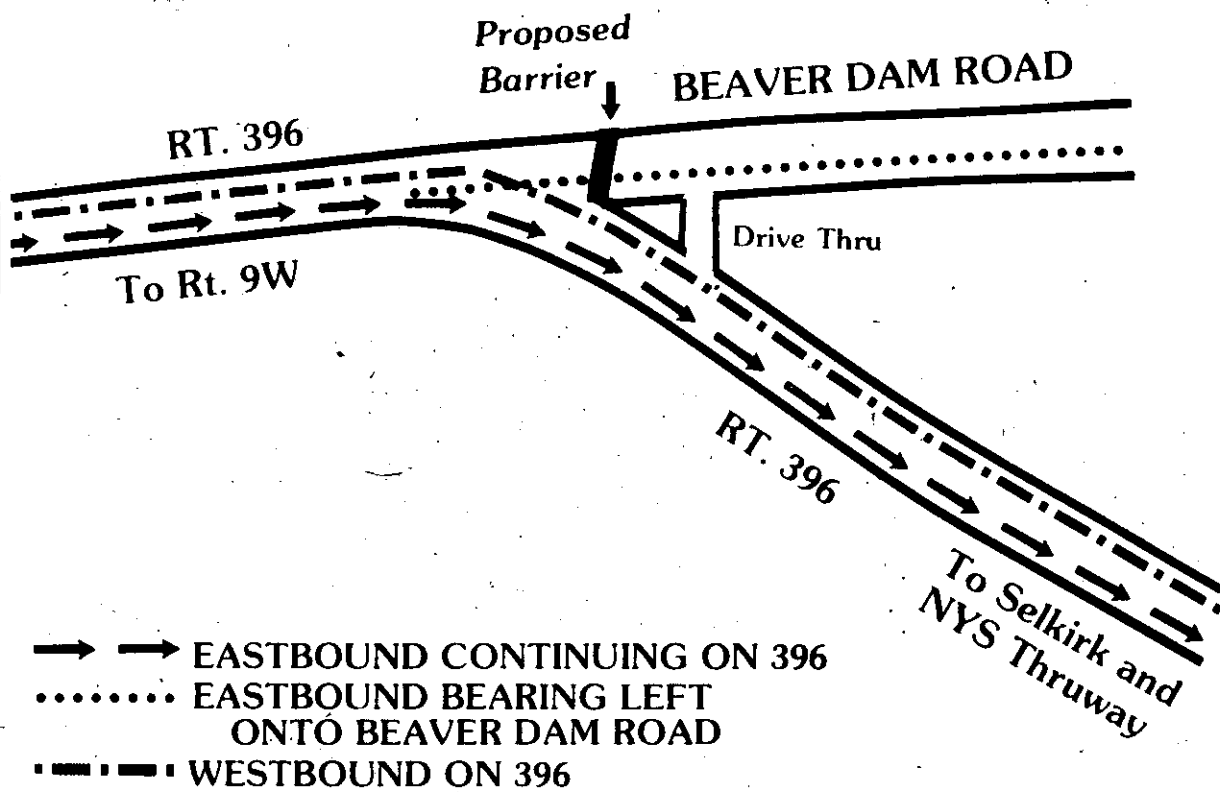

At some time or other, most of us have driven through unfamiliar towns where local driving custom — such as yielding at expressway ramps or entering those rotaries in the center of New England villages — may seem perfectly obvious to the local folk but to the outsider may be quite confusing as to who has the right of way.

On Rt. 396 in Selkirk, even the local people encounter a daily driving obstacle that leaves no one sure who should yield and who can go ahead.

A picture will best explain the problem, as a thousand words would only be as confusing as the road itself. (See map).

The problem is at the intersection of Rt. 396 and Beaver Dam Rd. When traveling east on Rt. 396, one must bear right at the Beaver Dam Rd. intersection, but it is not completely clear that Rt. 396 continues to the right.

The potential for serious accident occurs when a vehicle eastbound on Rt. 396 enters Beaver Dam Rd. while a vehicle westbound on Rt. 396 approaches the intersection. At the "Y" in the road does the vehicle on Rt. 396

→ → EASTBOUND CONTINUING ON 396
- - - - - WESTBOUND ON 396

westbound yield for the vehicle leaving Rt. 396 eastbound to Beaver Dam Rd.? Most residents of the area will tell you that they have had more than one harrowing experience at that spot.

The problem is further complicated by the nature of the vehicles that pass through. On weekdays, Rt. 396 is heavily traveled by tractor trailers and other high tonnage vehicles. Some of these drivers pass through Selkirk so infrequently that surely they don't remember every turn in the road.

There is a simple solution. If a barrier were constructed at the "Y" blocking direct entry onto Beaver Dam Rd. from eastbound Rt. 396 and the existing drive thru utilized as the access to Beaver Dam Rd., a driver would have to slow down and signal to turn off Rt. 396. Westbound traffic on Beaver Dam Rd. already has a stop sign, so that isn't a problem. The sign would simply be moved to the new entrance to Rt. 396 at the drive thru. Eastbound traffic on Rt. 396 would have a clearer indication of the route of travel.
