Planning chief is picked

The Bethlehem Town Board has selected John A. Williamson of Delmar, a retired state official, as the next chairman of the Planning Board, although he won't start in that position right away.

Supervisor Tom Corrigan said Friday Williamson will be appointed to the seat on the board left vacant by the recent resignation of Charles Redmond and take over the chairmanship "after he's had a chance to get his feet on the ground."

In the meantime, board member Neal Moylan has agreed to stay on as acting chairman, Corrigan said.

Following Redmond's resignation as chairman last month, Corrigan said the town board was looking for someone who could give the job a considerable amount of time, as Redmond did. The board interviewed a half dozen candidates, Corrigan said, "but the problem with most of the people I talked to is the time factor."

Williamson, he said, "is very interested" in the job and has committed to spending the time necessary. Redmond used to spend two afternoons a week at town hall conferring with officials and developers.

Williamson has no direct experience in planning, but a great deal of experience in building. When he retired after 40 years with the state he was manager of the Empire State Plaza in Albany for the Office of General Services. His experience with the state, he told Corrigan in a letter, "has been in the planning, construction, maintenance and operation of various types of buildings and other structures."

Since his retirement, he has assisted the town occasionally in such projects as obtaining easements and implementing a survey regarding an expansion of water and sewer services.

Williamson declined to discuss the new post until he is appointed by the town board. That is expected to take place at the board's meeting next Wednesday.

BC takes its aid case to Lane

By Caroline Terenzini

Bethlehem Central School District officials recently took their case for a change in the way state dollars are distributed to public schools to Assemblyman Larry Lane, R-102nd District. District Superintendent Lawrence A. Zinn, who met with Lane along with Franz Zwicklbauer, BC's assistant superintendent for business, and school board President Sheila Fuller, said the message to the veteran assemblyman was that the "save harmless" provision for aid allocation is "not good enough."

"Save harmless" ensures that the wealthier school districts (those with the greatest resources behind each pupil) receive the same number of state dollars as they did the previous year. However, "five years on 'save harmless' with no allowance for increases in the consumer price index is ridiculous," Zinn said.

Lane agrees that something should be done. In an earlier interview, he said he planned to approach the aid issue, "a little differently" this year. "Bethlehem, compared to schools of the same size, didn't fare that well and we're going to do something about that," Lane declared.

Apparently, there are a number of approaches to — as Lane put it — changing the direction of some of the state money. BC's representatives had several suggestions, such as an increase in transportation aid, stabilization of building aid and legislation requiring counties to share sales tax revenues with their school districts. At present, under permissive legislation, several counties in the state do share these revenues. In the year just ended, Albany County's sales tax revenues amounted to some $40 million, which was nearly $2 million above the county's own projections.

Generally, the state aid formulae are designed to get aid to poorer districts, according to Bart Conte, chief of the Bureau of State-aided Programs in the State Education Department. As a result, state aid ranges from a high of $2,249 per pupil (actually, per total aidable pupil units) provided to the Edwards school district in Northern New York, to a low of $371 per pupil sent to Shelter Island. Bethlehem this year received $531 per pupil, and about

RCS budget takes shape — up

By Theresa Bobear

The pieces of the 1985-86 Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school budget are beginning to come together, and so far the numbers are substantially up.

In addition to the budget, district voters will be asked to decide on at least two special propositions this spring.

At a special budget meeting last week members of the RCS Board of Education voted to accept tentative 1985-86 budget figures for the junior high building, the high school building, the district's buildings and grounds, and the transportation department. The board tabled action on building budgets for the elementary schools.

The board adopted a tentative figure of $204,953 for the senior high building, up 10.4 percent from $185,650 last year. Principal Victor Carrk removed several items that were listed in the building's preliminary budget, including a $28,000 lighting system for the football field, a $5,000 scoreboard for the gym, a $9,000 film processor and a $6,000 computer for computerizing the high school's level III mechanical drawing course.

The building budget for the high school did include $4,982 for uniforms, including $1,148 for cheerleading uniforms, and money for new texts.

The tentative budget for 1985-86 adopted by the board for the junior high building was $85,673, up 11.5 percent from $76,836 last year.

Items accounting for increase included new texts for the junior high math, science, language and social studies departments, and start up funds for a new industrial arts course.

After hearing presentations for the elementary schools, the board once again asked the school principals to resubmit their budgets with "big-ticket items" listed in order of importance.

At this week's Monday night meeting, the elementary school principals presented new figures excluding computers to be run as a special proposition. The proposed upgrading of the district's math and science programs to conform with the Regent's Action Plan accounts for a large part of

Crackdown on junkers

Bethlehem officials, cracking down on property owners who violate the town's junk yard ordinance, obtained fines and warnings against two owners last week in town court.

Building Inspector John Flanigan said Friday his office is stepping up inspections now that the cold weather has cut back on building activity. Currently, he said, his inspectors are working in the southern part of town.

The chief targets are violators of the town law that prohibits more than two disabled automobiles. Most people "have no problem when you go talk to them," Flanigan said.

But the town is prepared to get tough when it has to. Last week Town Justice Peter Wenger fined Dale Warner $100 for violating the ordinance on his property at 1492 New Scotland Rd. The fine was suspended but Wenger gave Warner a time limit to clean up his property, with a promise of additional fines after that. Flanigan said Friday Warner has already cleaned up the offending vehicles.

Wenger also fined Dominic Cubello, whose farm on Oakwood

Ave. is in a residential zone, $50 for maintaining a junk yard. Wenger told Cubello he would reinspect the property and fine him $150 for each week of continued violation, according to the town's prosecutor, Josh Effron.

Flanigan said the town is also on the lookout for another kind of litterer — people who dump their garbage in or next to commercial dumpsters. Last year, he said, the town got many of the larger stores in town to upgrade their dumpsters so there would be less litter — but "contributions" by outsiders are still causing a problem.

If the perpetrators are identified, they will be prosecuted, Flanigan said.

Chamber honors three

Marion Camp, who is retiring as Bethlehem Town Clerk, was given the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce 1984 Citizen of the Year award at the chamber's awards dinner Saturday. Dorothy B. Brown of Butler and Brown, Inc. received the Chamber's Business Person of the Year award. Bethlehem Town Supervisor Thomas Corrigan received a special award for his openness and cooperativeness in dealing with the board.

Mrs. Camp is a member of the Bethlehem Women's Republican Club, the Bethlehem Historical Society and the Bethlehem Business Women's Club. A graduate of Astor High School and Rickey's Secretarial School, she has campaigned for the Republican Party and served at town hall for 21 years. She was described as "a warm, caring and concerned citizen with a tremendous capacity to contribute to the well being of all."

Mrs. Brown of Butler of Brown, Inc., a local insurance company, has demonstrated her leadership ability in many local and civic organizations, the chamber said. Her involvement in the planning of Bethlehem Central High School's 50th anniversary celebration benefited the entire community.

Digging Albany's past

"Albany Observed: When You Dwell Among Dinosaurs, You Should Pay Attention" will be the title of the seventh in a series of 24 free presentations about Albany's heritage to be presented at the Albany Institute of History and Art, 125 Washington Ave., Albany. The lecture will be presented at 3 p.m. on Jan. 20 by Dr. Richard H. Kendall, a professor of history at State University at Albany.

The lecture series, "Experiencing Albany: Past, Present, Future," is sponsored by the University Libraries of State University at Albany as a prelude to Albany's Tricentennial.

Heating assistance

Harold Maher will be available from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Bethlehem Town Hall, to assist those who wish to file for the Heating Energy Assistance Program.

The program is administered by the Albany County Departments of Social Services and Aging and is intended to aid low income families, based on their energy costs in relation to income and family size.

No appointments are required for Thursdays; those who wish to file for HEAP on Tuesdays can call Town Hall for an appointment between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Maher, a Bethlehem resident, has worked on the program as a volunteer for the past three winters. During the 1983-84 heating season he helped 42 persons file for assistance and these people received $9,965.00 in grants.

Juniper Fields plan: bypass still the key

By Tom McPheeters

Is the town board selling Delmar's character short in order to gain an extension of the bypass?

That was the thrust of nearly two hours of questions and angry comments at the public hearing last Wednesday on the proposed Juniper Fields development off Elm Ave. at the end of the Delmar Bypass. About 40 people heard the project, which proposes 282 apartment units, denounced as "inappropriate" to the area and a generator of more traffic in an already overtaxed road system.

But they also heard the project defended, primarily by Supervisor Tom Corrigan, who conducted the hearing. An extension of the bypass, which developer David Siegal is providing for in his plans, "serves the purposes of the town, in my opinion," he said. "Multi-family dwelling is not a no-no. It's not a sin."

Other members of the town board simply listened, and Corrigan gave no indication when the board would vote on the matter.

Siegal is proposing that the land be rezoned from A-Residential to Planned Residence Development (PRD), which permits apartments and gives the developer much more flexibility in layout and design. Siegal's plan shows eight single-family lots (each 1.3 acres) near Elm Ave. and the apartment buildings clustered in the western part of the property, with a pond and other landscaping closer to the main road. The bypass would be extended about two thirds of the way to the end of the property, where it could connect with a looping road that would serve the apartment buildings and then extend back out to Elm Ave.

In his opening presentation, Siegal said the PRD would allow him to leave about 50 percent of the land as green area, and would mean about 621 residents as opposed to an estimated 765 people if the land were developed under conventional subdivision rules. There would be about half as many children under PRD as with a subdivision, he added.

That comparison received some attention because the Bethlehem Planning Board, at the urging of the same people who attended last week's hearing, had originally turned down the PRD application last summer. At Corrigan's urging, the town board asked the planners to reconsider — keeping in mind that Siegal said he couldn't leave a corridor for the bypass without the PRD zoning — and the planners reversed themselves.

The town board's role in this process was denounced as "calculus-type behavior" by Lawrence Farbstein, one of the leaders of the Westchester Woods group that had opposed the rezoning. Farbstein, who has sparred with Corrigan and the town board in the past, argued that the town doesn't have to make a deal with Siegal because it has the right to take the land it needs to extend the bypass by eminent domain.

This could have been done any time in the past 10 years, he noted. "Had you done so, presumably this issue would not be coming to the fore," Farbstein said.

Corrigan did not dispute the point, and has in the past acknowledged that the board did not consider extension of the bypass a priority until it became clear that Siegal's development might close off that option forever. However, he has also maintained that the town doesn't have the money to extend the bypass on its own. Getting a developer to do it for the town makes more sense, he said.

The town is also working with the owners of land between Delaware Ave. and Orchard St. for another section of the bypass, but the large undeveloped area from VanDyke Rd. to Delaware Ave. is still unaccounted for, and the Westchester Woods delegation was skeptical of the entire plan.

What is being billed as bypass is really "a linkage of meandering, back-country roads," said Harry Meislahn. Thirteen people spoke against the rezoning.

The Westchester Woods group was supported by representatives of several other neighborhood organizations, but did not present a petition from their area opposing the project. And one resident, Libby Schapiro, spoke up in favor.

"I think there are people in this town — and this is a concern of the town as well as the people in the neighborhood — who feel there is a need for this kind of rental property," she said. "We also need a better tax base."

Siegal had reported that Delmar has an extremely low vacancy rate for apartments — about one percent — and contended that his units will be attractive to senior citizens who want to continue living in town after they give up their houses. However, his estimate that one-bedroom units will run about $450 per month plus utilities raised some eyebrows.

Residents were also concerned about the road plan presented by Siegal, questioning the adequacy of traffic studies both at the point where the road to the apartments links with Elm Ave. and the project's impact on Delaware Ave. traffic. Corrigan noted that neither the town nor the developer is locked into the specifics of the plan; only the rezoning is being considered and a specific site plan must later be approved, he said.

Bicentennial duplex plan irks neighbors

By Theresa Bobear

After conditionally approving site plans for three duplexes to be constructed by Vincent Riemma in the A-Residential Bicentennial Woods subdivision off Feura Bush Rd., the Bethlehem Planning Board heard approximately 30 residents of the area express their discontent.

John Flanigan, town building inspector, explained that subdivision approval was granted to Riemma prior to the removal of duplexes as permitted uses from A-Residential zones. "At that time there were some lots that were allowable for two-family houses," Flanigan said. He reminded residents that the town board decided to permit construction of two-family houses where allowable in A-Residential zones when preliminary or final approval had been granted prior to amendment of the ordinance.

In considering site plan approval for the lots, Flanigan said; the proposal complied with requirements drafted by Edward Klienke, town planning consultant.

Speaking as a representative for the Bicentennial Woods Neighborhood Association, David Greenhouse voiced objection to the proposed duplexes. Greenhouse said the duplexes would create a parking problem and would decay faster than owner-occupied houses. Thomas Scholl said the duplexes would adversely affect the value of adjacent single-family houses.

"I would like the board to look out for the best interests of the citizens of Bethlehem and the citizens of Bicentennial Woods," Scholl said.

Board attorney Earl Jones explained that the zoning ordinance was drafted to let the builders know exactly what may or may not be built in particular zones.

Jones said the planning board must act according to zoning rules set by the town board and may not stop development that is legally proper.

"At the time we purchased our single-family dwellings, we were told this would be a single family development. We feel Mr. Riemma has misrepresented himself and his organization," Greenhouse said. "We came down to express our discontent."

"We can't control what a developer tells potential buyers," replied Jones. "You've got a right to see an attorney and take whatever (legal) redress you see fit," he concluded.

The board also heard an informal presentation regarding the possible development of three four-unit apartment buildings on 1.6 acres owned by Franz Zwicklbauer located in an AB-Residential district on Cherry Ave.

Lindsay Boutelle, engineer representing Zwicklbauer, pointed out that the proposed use was permitted in an AB-Residential zone. Boutelle said the percentage of lot occupancy for the proposal was 12 percent — 8 percent lower than the maximum allowed. "Mr. Zwicklbauer plans to own these buildings and maintain them himself," Boutelle said. Boutelle said he would formally present the proposal at the next meeting and then ask for site plan approval.

"We'll put together a check-list and forward that to Lindsay," Kleinke said.

In other business the board:

- Scheduled a public hearing for Feb. 2 at 7:30 p.m. to consider Gerald and Judith Dievendorf's request to divide a 26,782 square foot lot on Hudson Ave. to allow for construction of a single family home in the A-Residential zone.

- Heard an informal presentation by Boutelle, representing Alfred Alvaro of Algray Construction, for a proposed 17-lot subdivision to be located on Beacon Rd. adjacent to Crossroads, Section 1. Boutelle said 17 single-family houses are planned for the proposed Beacon Woods.

- Heard an informal presentation by Paul Hite, representing Monia Investors, Inc., for a proposed one-lot five-acre subdivision immediately southwest of Arthur Terrace in Slingerlands. Hite said a single family home is planned for the site.

- Informally discussed a requested zone change from A and AA-Residential and CC-Commercial to Planned Residence District for 92 acres owned by Howard Nolan, Norris McFarland and Mark Heller and located between Delaware Ave. and Orchard St. Architect Clark Shaughnessy asked to be listed on the agenda of the next meeting for formal presentation of the project.

- Scheduled its next meeting for Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

BC receives architect's tally

By Caroline Terenzini

It all sounded familiar — leaking roofs, cracked tennis courts, outdated heating equipment — and it even had a familiar tune: $4.244 million. This is the estimate an architecture firm has given the Bethlehem Central School District of what it would take to bring the district's seven school buildings up to snuff. That sum, however, does not include roof repairs, for which a figure is due next week.

At a special board of education meeting last Wednesday, Ben Mendel of Mendel, Mesick, Cohen and Waite, architects in Albany, presented his firm's assessment of the district's needs. This assessment — both the projects and their price tag — is similar to a list of building needs provided a year ago by Bruce Houghton, district supervisor of buildings and grounds. Mendel, Mesick were retained by the district (at a budgeted cost of $12,000) to verify that list and to add any other musts or shoulds. Robert Abromaitis, an engineering consultant, also presented portions of the report.

The lengthy assessment includes not only needed repairs and replacements, but also energy conservation suggestions and proposals for work that could be done to avoid future breakdowns. As board member Marjory O'Brien emphasized, "These are just suggestions. There are a lot of things to be discussed." For example, the architects' report recommends installation of a passenger elevator at the high school, to accommodate the handicapped. Each year at budget time such an elevator is discussed by the board and each year the elevator is scratched because of its cost — $113,000. Similarly, major repairs to the 16 tennis courts at the high school and middle school have been discussed — and rejected — for the past several years. The cost estimate for this work tops $200,000.

Among the questions facing the board is how to fund whatever work will be done. One option is to put the expenses into the budget piecemeal and do the work over a period of years. With this option in mind, Harvith asked Mendel to assign priorities to the projects. Another possibility is to ask district taxpayers to approve a bond issue.

Driver ed to continue

Bethlehem Central's summer driver education program, which is funded by the district, will continue despite the cancellation of the rest of the district's summer program.

About 60 of the 140 pupils enrolled in summer courses at BC last summer took driver education. The district did not enroll 1,400 summer students as a typographical error had it in the Jan. 9 Spotlight.

Gets school post

Robert J. Buckla of Delmar has been appointed director of development and alumni and public relations at The Doane Stuart School, Albany. Buckla, a 1984 graduate of St. Bonaventure University with a bachelor of arts degree in mass communication, will coordinate the school's fundraising activities, media relations and alumni events, and will produce Doane Stuart's feature publications. He previously worked for Torrington/Tribune Data, Glens Falls, as a programming editor. Buckla also has been a reporter and radio announcer.

BC's aid case

50 districts out of the 700 in the state received less.

Conte noted that many of the nearly one dozen state school aid formulae change each year in small ways — "updating or enriching, depending on what you want to accomplish." For example, the formula for operating aid, the largest category of state aid to schools, last year for the first time took into account equally both property wealth and income in a district. Under this updated formula (as under the previous one), Bethlehem is wealthy — along with such districts as Briarcliff Manor, Chappaqua and Great Neck, all New York City suburbs.

"Save harmless" was the answer for a while, a way of putting a floor under the aid provided to wealthier districts. But now the more than 240 school systems in the state — including Bethlehem — that come under "save harmless" plan to seek a revision, such as an escalation clause, Zinn said.

Whether there'll be some relief for Bethlehem property owners, who now fund more than 75 percent of their school district budget, depends upon what happens on Capitol Hill this year. The mechanical part of changing an aid formula is relatively simple, as Conte said, but "the political process is more complicated."

□ RCS budget shaping up

the elementary school spending increase.

Al Keating, principal of A.W. Becker Elementary School, presented a 71,125 budget, up 27.8 percent from $55,664 in 1984-85. Keating's earlier proposal including computers, called for a 57 percent increase. Keating pointed out that the elementary school budgets account for only about $210,000 of a $10 million budget and affect the children directly.

On Monday, a $70,040 budget, up 31.3 percent from $53,355 in 1984-85 was presented for the Pieter B. Coeymans building.

A $69,106 budget was proposed for the Ravena Elementary School building, up 53.2 percent from $45,115 last year. Earlier presentations called for a 63 percent increase for the Coeymans school and a 98 percent increase for the Ravena school, including computers. Chodack said Principal Dominic Nunciforo had the lowest per student cost of the three elementary school buildings. Chodack recommended that the $69,106 budget for the Ravena Elementary be left intact.

The board adopted a tentative figure of $1,054,890 for operation and maintenance of the district's buildings and grounds.

The figure is up 12 percent from 941,895 last year and includes $50,000 for an elevator for handicapped students at the senior high school. The buildings and grounds budget also includes $6,000 for renovations of the board's meeting room at the Thatcher St. building in Selkirk.

A tentative figure of $1,094,087, up 28.8 percent from $849,079 last year, was adopted for the transportation department. The transportation budget includes $160,000 for the purchase of four 60-passenger diesel buses, $32,000 for one 30-passenger bus, $30,000 for two eight-passenger vehicles, $800 for repair of a bus lift, $7,500 for a diesel tank and pump and $1,800 for repair of an existing tank.

Referring to the district fleet, board member Robert VanEtten said he would have included funds for at least 10 vehicles. VanEtten, chairman of the board's transportation committee, said 16 of the district buses need to be replaced. "We've got a lot of old, very high mileage vehicles down there," VanEtten said.

So far the board has approved two special propositions for the spring election. A proposition of about $500,000 for construction of a solar heating plant to be located next to the junior high building was approved unanimously. Superintendent Milton Chodack said the district's architect Benjamin Mendel will distribute information about the project to voters.

A second proposition for the purchase of computer hardware to be used in the elementary schools received conditional approval. The board must first approve a computer course for the elementary school students.

Chodack Monday presented a list of proposed staffing additions for the board to "digest" and discuss at their next budget meeting. He proposed the additional spending of $8,000 for an elementary Equinox counselor, $3,200 for a secretary at the Ravena Elementary building, $11,000 for an account clerk in the business office, $24,000 for an elementary school librarian, $8,800 for a junior high gifted and talented teacher, $7,500 for three elementary library aides, $8,000 for a district nurse, $3,000 for a handicapped committee clerk and $24,000 for a senior high science and math teacher.

Chodack said the district would assume a fund balance of zero and a state aid increase of $60,000.

The board will begin looking at the total budget for 1985-86 at their budget meeting. A date for that meeting will be set next week.

NEWS FROM SELKIRK AND SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Barbara Pickup 767-9225

Elks join national campaign

The Bethlehem Elks in Selkirk are in the middle of a campaign to raise funds for the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. If you've felt that you wanted to contribute to the cause and haven't been certain how to go about it, the Elks are providing two ways to make a contribution. The first is the pancake breakfast they are sponsoring this Sunday, Jan. 20, with net proceeds designated for the Statue of Liberty. The all-you-can-eat breakfast of pancakes, eggs, sausage, bacon, toast, juice and coffee will be served from 9 a.m. to noon at the lodge. The cost is $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12.

People unable to attend the breakfast but who would like to make a donation, may do so by sending a check to B.P.O.E. 2233, Rt. 144, Selkirk 12158. Checks should be made payable to the lodge, but there should be an indication that they are for the Statue of Liberty Fund.

Minister to be guest

The Guild for Christian Service for the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem will have the Rev. Tamara Entin as a guest at their January 22 meeting. A program entitled "Views of a Woman Seminarian" will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday evening at the Weidemann residence in Glenmont. Rev. Entin, wife of the Rev. Robert Entin, pastor of the Glenmont Community Church, will share some of her experiences as a woman in the ministry.

Students explore Health Works

The seventh grade Algonquin team at the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Junior High, accompanied by health educator Joseph Posillico and assistant principal Robert Wade, took part in a hands-on workshop at the Empire State Plaza on Jan. 9. The groups spent several hours at the "Health Works," a program conducted by the state Department of Health. While there, the students learned about their own health and health habits. Computers provided such information as what they should weigh, the proper intake of calories for their age, and nutritional programs for individuals. Displays also show the effects of alcohol, drugs and tobacco on the body. The Health Works is open daily to the public free of charge.

Get-together for the fans

Whichever the favorite, Miami Dolphins or San Francisco 49ers — a majority of the population will turn its attention to Stanford Stadium in Palo Alto, Calif., Sunday, Jan. 20. Area residents who would like to enjoy the excitement of the confrontation among a host of friends can attend "Super Bowl Sunday," sponsored by the Past Exalted Rulers Association of the Bethlehem Elks Lodge. It starts half an hour before game time. There will be free beer, hamburgers, clam chowder, sausage and peppers, and an ample number of TVs at the lodge located on Rt. 144 in Selkirk. Further information may be obtained by calling 767-2886.

They made wishes come true

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Junior High School Student Council participated again this year in the WGY Christmas Wish Fund Drive. Money was collected at a holiday dance, and doughnuts and milk were sold to raise money. Dawn Dinardi, Sindy Pickett, Tim Klein and Clayton Rivers, officers of the Student Council, delivered a check to WGY talk show hostess Ellie Pankin.

RCS plans tribute

Residents of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District are planning a testimonial dinner at the Quarry Steak House at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 26 to honor Prescott Archibald, former president of the district's board of education. Archibald served on the board for more than 20 years.

Reservations are available at $11 a person before Jan. 18 from Betty Kent, board of education office, 26 Thatcher St., Selkirk 12158. Checks should be made payable to Betty Kent. All are welcome.

Bus system okayed

By Theresa Bobear

Superintendent Milton Chodack informed members of the RCS Board of Education last week that the state Education Department has approved the computerized bus routing system, which the district plans to purchase for $25,000 from Roger Creighton Associates, Delmar.

Chodack said the state will reimburse the district for approximately 90 percent of the purchase price next year. State funds are granted for systems that are determined to save state and district funds.

At an earlier meeting, Chodack said $5,000 of the purchase price would be taken from funds budgeted for 1984-85 and $20,000 would be budgeted for the item in 1985-86.

James Hughes, assistant clerk for the board, said the computer at the bus garage is being used for payroll. Hughes said a fleet maintenance program for the computer is being installed.

Before approving several leave requests, the board discussed the issue of scheduling leaves immediately before and after school vacations.

"It continues to snowball on us," said Anthony Williams, president of the board. "It's getting to the point of abuse," said Chodack, noting that he had already instructed the principals to present the leave requests with a negative recommendation if necessary.

Board member Anthony Fuhrman said the board should simply deny the requests rather than schedule too many leaves for staff members at one time.

Williams said the personnel committee was considering action to solve the problem for the 1985-86 school year.

While reviewing correspondence received by the district, the board learned that the original plans for a water line to connect the high school with the village water main were faulty. In a letter to the district, Clough, Harbor and Associates said the proposed plans would not allow adequate pressure for proper fire protection. Chodack said the engineering firm is investigating the situation.

On the track of area's oldest railroad line

Since last March, Union College senior John C. DeMis has had a single train of thought: researching and mapping the Schenectady portion of the route of the state's first railroad, built between Albany and Schenectady in the 1830s. The fruits of his successful efforts were recently presented to the City of Schenectady, and the civil engineering major received a citation from the city honoring his "important and significant contribution to the ongoing historical efforts in the city and the Capital District."

The project began as an independent study project for DeMis, who is scheduled to receive a bachelor of science degree from Union in May. Francis A. Poulin, area chronologist and historian, had suggested the project in connection with the sesquicentennial of the founding of the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad.

DeMis, a graduate of Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School now living in East Berne, has worked on and off for area land surveyors while completing his degree requirements. He saw the railroad project as an interesting independent study assignment that would hone his research skills.

His research skills were certainly put to the test, as nearly all records of the original route were missing. But months of diligent work on site, in libraries and in government and college archives resulted in the 94-page report, printed with funds from the Civil Engineering Department.

The "biggest problem," he said, was compiling all the data. "How does it all fit together? It took hours and hours upon weeks of work..." Complete with several detailed maps, the report traces the original railroad route through Schenectady and into Rotterdam "to within the nearest foot," Griggs said. "We actually think it's even better than that, but we'll be modest."

The Mohawk and Hudson Railroad was incorporated in 1826, and ground was broken in 1830, funded primarily by area philanthropist Stephen Van Rensselaer. The purpose of the history-making track was largely to avoid all the locks required on the Erie Canal by the 240-foot difference between the Mohawk and the sea-level Hudson River. Passengers and freight would travel across the state on the canal, be transferred to the railroad until Albany, and then resume the canal route.

Copies of DeMis's report will be on file in Union's Civil Engineering Department, at the Schenectady County Historical Society and at the Albany Institute of History and Art. At a brief presentation of the report before the Schenectady City Council, DeMis received the thanks of city historian Larry Hart and Mayor Karen B. Johnson.

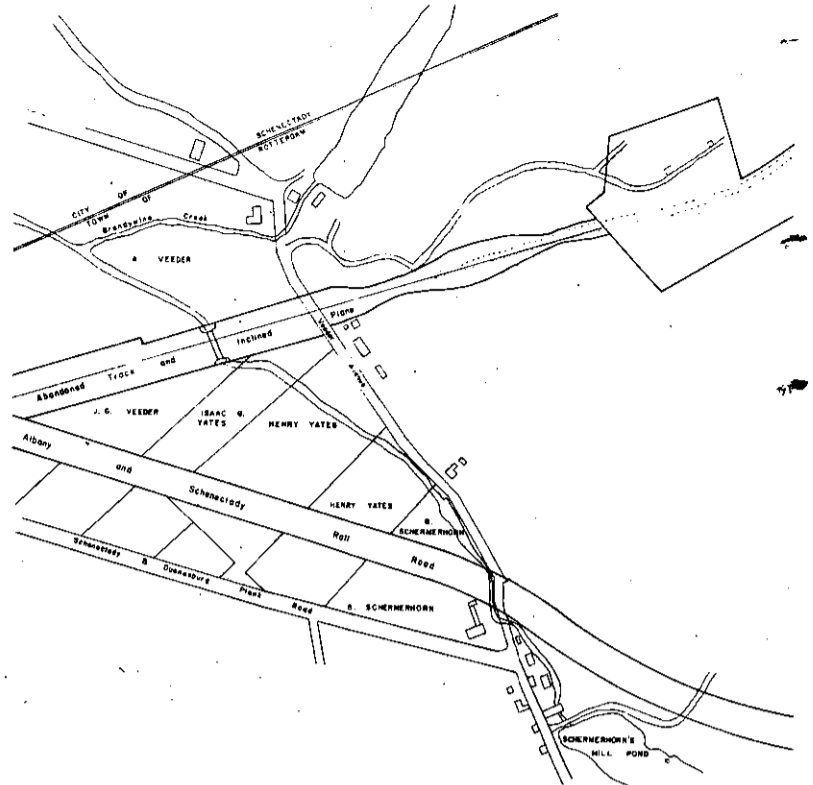

DeMis lived in Feura Bush during his teen years, and his father, D. Joseph Demis, Union class of 1950, still resides there. The researcher is employed by Lewis T. Buchman in East Berne, for whom he is working on several projects, including a planned residence community in the Town of Halfmoon.

Of special interest to DeMis is the discovery earlier this month during excavation near Fuller Rd. of what is believed to be a piece of track from the Albany portion of the original Mohawk and Hudson route. He is waiting, however, for concrete evidence that it is an original rail. DeMis described the 1830s track as a rigid system that had iron rails atop metal plates that in turn rested on wooden rails. After a while, he noted, the plates would bend and some came up through the floors of rail cars — adding adventure to the trip. For this and other reasons, that design was abandoned in favor of the design used today, DeMis said.

As for the possibility of finding other pieces of Mohawk and Hudson track, DeMis is not optimistic. In Schenectady, "there might be some track there, but it's all been paved over. It's probably all buried 30 feet down."

Looking back, DeMis described his research project as "an enjoyable challenge."

A map tracing a portion of the old Mohawk and Hudson Railroad, the first rail line in the state, through the City of Schenectady, is part of John DeMis' senior project.

Voorheesville News Notes

Lyn Stapf 765-2451

Label savers needed

Winter is upon us at last — with sub-zero temperatures and icy winds and to most people that's "soup weather." With this in mind, Diane Relyea and Anne Lennox remind everyone to save Campbell's labels for the Campbell's Labels for Education Campaign underway at the grade school. The annual drive, which takes place between November and February, gives schools a way to obtain educational and recreational labels from various Campbell's and Swanson's products as well as labels from Prego's spaghetti sauce, Recipe dog food and Juice Works. The school in the past has received equipment for students at Voorheesville Elementary School. The deadline for submitting labels is Feb. 15. Those who use the products listed are asked to drop the fronts of the labels off at the grade school or the public library.

Vikings steaming ahead

The cold certainly hasn't cooled down the warm enthusiasm of the Voorheesville Vikings 4-H group, which has been busy, as usual. Their December activities included caroling at the Guilderland Center Nursing Home and visiting the cobblestone school at Guilderland Center, as well as working in various project groups. Projects this year include: photography, led by Glenn Reynolds and Ken Hunter; entertaining for teens, led by Lynn Hart, and international and dairy foods, led by June Hunter.

To give the group a break, a bowling party is being coordinated by Suzanne Hunter, scheduled for February. The next meeting of the group will be Friday, Feb. 8, at the Methodist Church.

Scouts plan for birthday

Another group of ambitious civic-minded students has a busy schedule this year. After their annual winter camp-out — often referred to as the freeze-out, for obvious reasons — the Boy Scouts of Voorheesville Troop 73 will begin gearing up for a big celebration in February marking the 75th anniversary of scouting. The week of celebration will be capped off with the scouts' annual pancake supper, to be held on Saturday, Feb. 10, from 4:30 until 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion hall. The public is urged to note the time of this, the only fund-raiser of the troop.

Speak out with hearts

If January is with us, can February and Valentine's Day be far behind? Getting a jump on the holiday, the Voorheesville Public Library invites all members of the Pen Pal Club to a valentine party to be held on Friday, Feb. 1, at 4 p.m. at the library. Members are invited to bring along scissors and glue and help make valentines for the library valentine hotline, which provides valentine cheer to residents in area nursing homes. All area children may help with the project by making Valentines and bringing them to the library before Wednesday, Feb. 6, so that librarian Nancy Hutchinson can deliver them the weekend of Feb. 9 and 10.

Task force to meet

The New Scotland Substance Abuse Task Force will meet on Monday, Jan. 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School. Continuing their projects on parent and student support groups and the "Safe Spring" program, and plans for a community education program to be offered during the next few months, are the main agenda items for the evening.

As always, students and adults are welcome to attend and provide input, as well as assist the group. Still needed is someone to coordinate publicity for the projects the group has planned. Those interested may contact Phil Joyce at 765-3446.

Budget unveiling Jan. 23

The Voorheesville Board of Education will present a draft budget for 1985-86 at a special meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school library. Additional budget meetings are scheduled Feb. 4 and 11, March 25 and May 14 to discuss and modify the draft before a budget goes to the public for approval on May 15. The public is urged to attend so that their input may be taken into consideration.

Spectators at a recent Voorheesville High School home basketball game got extra enjoyment out of their refreshments knowing that the members of the school's honor society were donating the evening's proceeds to the Ethiopian Famine Relief Fund.

Tops on tax hike list

County taxes in New Scotland are going up 16 percent this year. That's a much larger increase than any other municipality in the county is facing — but then nobody else's county taxes went down by 26 percent last year.

Albany County's budget increased by about five percent this year, and taxes for most municipalities reflect that. The 1985 county tax rate in Bethlehem, for instance, is $27.12 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, up 23 cents over last year, or less than one percentage point.

New Scotland's 1985 county tax rate, on the other hand, is $45.25 per $1,000, up $6.31 from last year's rate. But that 1984 rate of $38.94 represented a drop of $13.79 from the 1983 rate of $52.73, the result of an error made by the county in calculating the New Scotland rate that year. Since the error was found too late to correct on the 1983 tax bills, the county simply lowered the rate for 1984 to compensate town property owners.

Comparisons between different towns are difficult because equalization rates vary from town to town.

Wallace is tapped

New Scotland Supervisor Steve Wallace has been appointed a member of the organization that is being set up to build and operate the proposed Albany County civic center, making him the only elected Republican to serve on the non-profit corporation.

"I've been on a lot of county boards over the years," Wallace said Monday. He said he has not up to this point been closely involved in the civic center discussion, but has followed it in the papers. He said he is pleased that the appointment means "we should have a little input."

The proposed $40 million complex in downtown Albany is still in the development stages, but is being pushed by County Executive James Coyne. A series of public hearings last month revealed strong support of the idea in the Albany business community, but some skepticism both from neighbors of the proposed center and from residents of the suburban towns.

Republicans in the county legislature have questioned Coyne's financial projections, but apparently won't have a chance to vote on the bonding for the center since Coyne has decided to use industrial revenue authority bonds rather than county bonding.

The new Market Square Garden Inc. is being established as a non-profit corporation that will own and operate the civic center. Coyne named Thomas Cairns, a Loudonville real estate executive, former county legislator and chairman of the new organization. Other members include Cohoes Mayor Ronald Canestrari, John Picotte of Picotte Realty and Gary Holle, general manager of the Albany Patrooms.

Wallace has been a member of the Albany County Planning Board for 13 years and was a commissioner of the Capital District Regional Planning Commission for seven years.

Other lessons to be learned

There will be, probably have been, times in your life as a student when you were in a class taught by a person you felt didn't like you. It may feel as if it's a personal discomfort that you alone have with the teacher, or it may be shared by your classmates you all agree that the teacher just plain dislikes kids.

Not every human being who selects teaching as a career is endowed with an attractive personality, a stimulating style or the aura of a guru. Not every teacher regards the work as a mission in life. Some regard it simply as a job. And, as in each profession, not every member of the teaching ranks is naturally suited to the work. Some find themselves disappointed after a few years of experience and realize that teaching isn't what they thought it would be, but they're locked into it with no alternatives, and so they go on without the gratification they originally sought from their lifework.

Most of us have sat through boring classes now and then, day-dreaming, looking out the windows, passing notes to friends, developing secret sign languages with buddies on the other side of the room, or counting dots on the acoustic ceiling tiles. We have all been embarrassed by the teacher calling on us in the midst of one of these mental escapades, and having our boredom exposed to the entire class.

Many of us have also experienced episodes when our behavior has aroused the teacher's wrath, and we are punished with a cutting remark, extra homework, detention or a note to our parents. When that happens, it feels like we've been labeled by the teacher, and the die has been cast for a dismal year in that class.

Well, people, it doesn't have to be a bad time even though it may feel that way. You know as well as I do that there is a lot more than 3 R's being learned in school. One of the major areas of life covered in school, not necessarily by any particular course subject, is the social development each one of us encounters in learning how to live in society with other people. Part of that development occurs when we are faced with having to learn how to react to a teacher who we feel doesn't like us.

Revolutions the topic

Dr. Warren Roberts will speak about "Sexual Revolutions: Past and Present" at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 21 at the Bethlehem Public Library.

A graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, Roberts is a professor at the State University at Albany. He is also the author of two books, including Morality in Society — 18th Century France.

The program is being sponsored by the Friends of the Library and all are invited.

Family MATTERS

Norman G. Cohen

You are going to meet many people in life who either don't seem to like you or toward whom your own feelings aren't so hot. No matter where they're coming from, it is your reaction to them, your way of handling the situation, that is the key. Any teacher who seems not to like you is also providing you with an opportunity to learn this very important lesson in life, and it has nothing to do with the subject matter of the class.

One attempt you can initiate to overcome a problem relationship

One of the major areas of life covered in school, not necessarily by any particular course subject, is the social development each one of us encounters in learning how to live in society with other people.

with a teacher is to request a private meeting with that teacher after class. If the teacher is receptive to setting up such a meeting, chances are good that the teacher, also, is willing to recognize a problem and try to do something about it. At the meeting make sure you let your teacher know what your intentions are in the class, for example, what kind of grade you're working for, what the subject means to your future, and clearly that you don't want to make problems for the teacher.

Most teachers will respond positively to such a discussion and will try their best to resolve any difficulties on a person-to-person level. But what if your teacher turns the meeting into a punitive session, pointing out your failings, your problems and your "bad attitude?" Or what if your teacher rejects your request for a meeting in the first place?

Remember that not everyone you meet in life is going to be friendly, cheerful, courteous and kind. Your choices of reactions to them may be either counter-attack, holding your ground or withdrawal. At such times it is best to seek the counsel of wise and caring people in your life, like your parents, your close friends, your counselors. The decision is yours, but there are many good people around who are willing and able to help you make the decision that's best for you.

It is said that we can learn much from our opponents, be it in the sports arena or the battlefield. The saying holds true for the classroom as well, if you can move beyond feeling that "my teacher doesn't like me," and begin considering "what lessons can I learn from this teacher?"

ELSMERE — Delaware Plaza

GLENMONT — Towne Squire Ctr.

Growing pains

By Theresa Bobear

Another holiday season has gone by, and area retailers are generally pleased with the hectic month of purchasing. At Delaware Plaza, however, success is bringing new concerns over parking and hours.

"It was a good season. We've been able to pick up the trends," said Doris Tuite, president of the Crystal Chandelier. Tuite said she plans to expand her line of furniture as a result.

Herman Rasker, owner of Town and Tweed, said the season was "very strong."

Debbie Moore of the Fashion Bug was "very pleased" with the buying season, but was not pleased with the amount of security provided at the plaza. "He's got too much to cover," she said of one of the guards.

Dominick Matarrese, owner of the Paper Mill and Pizza Express, said there must have been more parties this year because he sold more holiday party supplies than usual.

Bob Irwin, buyer for Records 'N Such, said sales of music products were up from last year.

While area sellers were pleased with holiday sales, most retailers at the Delaware Plaza believed that sales would have been even better if there had been more parking.

"The parking was not adequate even when the employees parked in the back," said Moore. A larger area would "relieve tension," she added. "The parking situation has been very detrimental to us," said Irwin. "A larger parking lot would certainly help," said Carl Schell, manager of F.W. Woolworth Co. "They drove around and drove around, couldn't find a place to park and left," said one owner.

"People didn't know about the parking in the back," said Tuite. Matarrese, president of the Delaware Plaza Merchants Association, said parking in the rear of the recently expanded parking lot is "more peaceful."

Among themselves, members of the Delaware Plaza Merchants' Association cannot agree on hours for the plaza. Merchants with businesses that do well on Sundays want all the stores in the plaza to open on Sunday. Other store owners want to remain closed on Sundays and on Saturday nights because there is not enough business to warrant the inconvenience or the expense.

Matarrese said the Delaware Plaza Merchants Association has drafted mandatory hours for weekdays, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Matarrese said Saturday evening hours are optional (except during December) and Sunday hours, noon to 5 p.m., are optional but encouraged.

Irwin of Records 'N Such said his store began staying open on Sunday when the plaza was upgraded. "It proved fruitful enough to remain open," he explained.

Schell of F.W. Woolworth said the plaza would not draw enough business on Saturday evening. He believed Sunday hours "might bring additional business."

Matarrese said the merchants should not focus their attention on problems of minor significance. He said business people should focus on the market place, considering service, competitive pricing, advertising, personnel and attention to the needs of the customers.

Correction

The Bethlehem Town Board will not hold a public hearing on Jan. 23 to consider adoption of the Blue Cross Matrix One Health Program for town employees, as reported Jan. 2.

The town board will hold a public hearing at 8 p.m. on Jan. 23 to consider an amendment of local law to extend the application deadline for senior citizen exemptions on property tax. The town will consider extending the deadline from May 1 to Grievance Day in the middle of June.

Main-Care plans move

Main Care, the heating equipment and fuel service company that has been a presence in Delmar since the late 1930s, plans to be in new quarters within a year. The question is where.

Clark Zeh, vice president and treasurer, Friday confirmed that the company has put all its Delmar property on the market and is looking for a site on which to build. Zeh said the growth of the company makes the move necessary. Main-Care's Delaware Ave. property has run out of room, both for office space and parking.

Zeh said Main-Care has looked at sites both in Delmar and in Albany, but, he added, "We want to be as close to Delmar as possible."

The company, which merged with Herzog & Hopkins in the fall of 1983, now has facilities in West Albany and Schenectady as well as in Delmar. It has grown in its nearly 50 years to the point where more than 100 employees are on the payroll, including about 30 who came with the 1983 acquisition.

After a fling with diversification some years ago, Main-Care is solidly in the business of providing "everything to do with the home environment," Zeh said. The company will continue to specialize in furnaces, heat pumps, air conditioning, humidification devices and electronic air cleaners, along with its fuel oil business.

Atlantic Cement Co. makes 3 promotions

The Atlantic Cement Co. has promoted three area men within its corporate Distribution Division. Thomas Magliocca of Albany has been named distribution manager; Peter Keyes of Delmar is the new marine manager, and Reginald Patterson of Ravena has been named assistant marine manager-operations.

Atlantic Cement operates manufacturing plants at Ravena and at Sparrows Point, Md. It distributes its products on ocean barges to storage terminals along the eastern coast from New England to Florida. From those sites, the product is delivered to customers in a 16-state area by rail or truck.

Magliocca is responsible for the entire distribution network. He joined Atlantic in 1963 as marine manager. A graduate of the state Maritime College, he holds a master's degree in business administration from RPI. He is general chairman of the Marine Division of the National Safety Council and a member of the board of advisors of the Maritime College, and serves in the Coast Guard Reserve.

Keyes joined Atlantic in 1979 as assistant marine manager. He is a graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy and is a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

Patterson has been with Atlantic since 1966 serving as a barge supervisor and marine operations supervisor before this promotion. He attended the Cornell University School of Labor Relations.

Indians blitz the 'Burgh

By Dan Tidd

Thanks to a 14-0 first-quarter blitz the Ravena Indians never looked back in an impressive 53-39 victory over Lansingburgh Friday night. The victory snapped a five-game losing streak for Coach Jim Gorham's club.

Before Friday night, the Indians were in the process of losing for the sixth consecutive time but a week of hard practice earned Ravena the win according to Gorham. "We really worked our tails off this past week," said Gorham. "All week we worked on our offensive movement, something we have been lacking since the Watervliet game."

BASKETBALL

Ravena used a backcourt trap on the Lansingburgh guards in the impressive first quarter. "In the first quarter we looked like world beaters," said Gorham. "But once again we didn't play the entire 32 minutes of basketball." The second quarter was a complete turnaround as the undermanned Knights dominated and outscored Ravena 13-8. The score stood 22-13 Ravena at the half.

Once again the third quarter proved to be unlucky for the Indians as they turned the ball over numerous times, but still had enough to pull out to a 12-point lead. The game probably would have been closer if it wasn't for the strong play of forward Dale Patterson, who controlled the boards and clogged the middle in an impressive night's work. He only scored two points but it was his aggressive play that really pleased Gorham.

"Dale really played a solid game for us," said Gorham. "He made some big rebounds and a couple of foul shots when it looked like Lansingburgh might make a run at us."

Patterson was aided by center Dekovan Bowie, who had another solid performance with 20 points. A struggling Mike Mizener chipped in with 10 points.

Ravena was also aided by the fact that Lansingburgh only had 6 players available for the game. "They had their best guard out and some other kids were out sick," said Gorham. "But our kids worked hard and earned this one."

Gorham's team had a big game last night (Tuesday) at Watervliet. The win last week improved Ravena to 2-6 in Colonial Council play and 4-7 overall.

Blackbirds wait for Cohoes rematch

By Dan Tidd

Playing Joe Loudis and his Cohoes Tigers on their home court is no easy chore. Just ask the Voorheesville Blackbirds. Voorheesville went into Cohoes with the idea of winning their third league game, but instead came out with a disappointing 66-64 loss Friday night.

"It was not a good showing on our part," said Coach Bob Crandall. "The fact is, Cohoes played and we didn't. We showed no intensity and the Tigers took full advantage of that."

Cohoes played a strong first quarter and was able to forge a 16-16 tie after one. The Blackbirds took command in the second and raced to a 12-point lead. "We really got going in that quarter," said Crandall. "It looked like we were about to blow them out, but once again our defense just couldn't stop anybody."

What Crandall was referring to was the Cohoes backcourt, which combined for 36 of the Tigers' 66 points. This enabled Cohoes to cut the lead to 8 at halftime.

The scrappy Tigers grabbed the lead for good at 36-35 midway through the third quarter. Cohoes stepped to the charity stripe 18 times in that spell and sank 16. The fourth period was the same as Cohoes continued to parade to the free-throw line. Finally, with 12 seconds to play in the game and trailing 66-60, Voorheesville got clutch baskets from Brett Hotaling and Joe Rissberger to make it 66-64. Crandall had his squad foul immediately to send Cohoes to the line. It worked as the Tigers missed the front end of a one-and-one situation. Voorheesville grabbed the rebound and called time with 4 seconds left.

The Blackbirds got the ball inbounds, but couldn't get a shot off. There looked to be contact on the play, but no foul was called.

Hotaling scored 21 points in the losing cause while Rissberger had 16 and Brian Rubin added 12. Voorheesville played at Mechanicville last night (Tuesday). "That's another tough game on the road," said Crandall. "They have already beaten us at our place, but I expect our kids to be ready."

Voorheesville ended the week 2-6 in Colonial Council play and 3-8 overall.

BC needs 'spirited' attack

Coach Gary Przybylo is hoping the home court and Spirit Week will snap his Bethlehem Central basketball team out of the doldrums after three games on the road.

The Eagles face off against Scotia Friday night in a feature attraction of BC's winter sports festival tied in with Spirit Week. Next Tuesday the friendly Delmar audience will have a first-hand look at Shenendehowa, currently leading the Suburban Council, in the only scheduled meeting of the two teams this season. Last night (Tuesday) the Eagles were at Guilderland.

Przybylo's strategy of returning senior Tim Fox to a starting role and stationing him in the baseline corner has had some effect, but the BC offense is still a model of inconsistency. The Eagles had a good night in disposing of Mohonasen in Rotterdam last Tuesday, with Fox contributing 12 points, but if they had covered the hoop with tissue at Colonie Friday the paper would hardly have been disturbed. Bethlehem, leading by 27-24 at halftime, scored only two points in the third quarter and a total of eight for the entire half. Colonie won by 49-35.

Andy Kasius, the closest the Eagles have to a team leader, had 12 points in the first half at Colonie, but picked up his third personal midway in the second period. Przybylo sat him down for preservation purposes, but started him in the second half. Two minutes into the third period Kasius was whistled for his fourth foul, and it was back to the sideline. He fouled out with six minutes remaining, but despite playing barely half the game he would up with 18 points, one more than the combined total of his teammates.

"In the second half Colonie came out with a very aggressive defense, and we were lethargic," said Przybylo. "Fox is our best perimeter shooter, maybe our only one, and we need him. Teams sag their defense on us and won't let us have the ball inside, so we have to depend on shooting from the outside."

That is the coach's polite way of saying that despite respectable

4 gymnasts get ribbons

Four local gymnasts won ribbons in a recent meet at Colonie Health and Racquet Club qualifying for the U.S. Gymnastics Federation sectional meet.

Chrissy Mann of Elsmere won the all-round trophy for girls 12-14 Class III competition. She was first on bars, second on vault, and ties with Colleen Teal of Clarksville for fourth place on beam and first place on the floor event. Teal was second-all round with a first in vault and third on bars along with the two ties. Both girls will compete in the Class III USGA sectional championships at Rochester on Jan. 27.

In the 9-11 age group in Colonie, Suzanne Dorfman of Slingerlands earned a fourth on beam and a qualifying score overall in Class IV. Jessica Murphy of Elsmere was fifth on bars in 9-11 Class IV.

height, he has no one who can drive for the basket or handle the ball in traffic within 12 feet of the hoop. At Mohonasen, however, he got a good team effort, along with 17 points from John Allen and 14 from Kasius to go with Fox's 12. Three nights later the Mohons upset Saratoga at Saratoga.

Entering Spirit Week, the Eagles were 3-4 in the Gold Division, 3-8 overall.

Tom VanDemark (23) adds two points to Bethlehem Central's winning total in a Suburban Council game against Mohonasen in Rotterdam.

Every which way but last

To enliven an otherwise methodical destruction of rival after rival, Bethlehem Central's varsity swim coach, Paul (Buzz) Jones, let his boys run last Thursday's meet with Johnstown.

They came up with some interesting entries, like freestylers swimming everything but, and leading off the 400-yard freestyle relay with a diver. With all those shenanigans, BC won the meet easily, 55-24, two days after submerging Queensbury, 51-28. Both meets were in the home pool.

But Jones promised no such foolishness this week as the Eagles carried their seven-year win string of 124 straight dual meets to Glens Falls yesterday (Tuesday). Last year the Glens Falls meet was the toughest of the Adirondack Swim League schedule for BC, and the Eagles were the only team to beat Glens Falls. This year Bethlehem is not as strong and not as deep, but the northerners have also lost some good swimmers and Jones was not overly worried. In any case, he was welcoming a sterner test as being good for his charges.

The two cakewalks last week produced several items of note, among them Knute Hvalsmarken's 5:04.8 in the 500 against Queensbury, the best clocking of the year in Section 2 in that event. But the Eagle co-captain is primarily a middle-distance man, and it was Eric Patrick, the other senior co-captain, who won the 200 in 1:55.8. That's not bad for this time of year, the coaches point out, especially considering that Patrick was weary after taking a rigorous ROTC physical earlier that same day, including a blood sample. Chris Drew won the 100 in 53.5.

With the boys running the Johnstown picnic, spectators had to look twice or more to see who was swimming what. The only orthodox item was Bob Keens taking the diving with 195.80 points, his personal best this year.

Peter Greenwalt, a breaststroker, won the 200. Patrick, trying the stoke that for him is the most difficult, won the butterfly in 1:03.04, and Hvalsmarken turned up in the breaststroke to win it in 1:09.8.

After Glens Falls the Eagles have Albany Academy coming in Friday, then a break for exam week before a trip to Amsterdam on the 25th. Meanwhile the coaches, Jones and Bob Keens, Sr., were hoping Jim McElligot, a junior freestyler, can get back to work after fracturing a finger several weeks ago.

WRESTLING

Genovesi goes for his 100th

By Peter J. Fisch

Thus far into the wrestling season Voorheesville has had little to write home about in compiling a 3-6 record. An exciting interlude to the doldrums of winter sports was on the docket last night (Tuesday) as senior co-captain Jeff Genovesi was going for his 100th career victory.

Over his five-year varsity tenure, the 138-pounder has registered 99 wins, second only to state champion Jeff Clark at Voorheesville. Genovesi has had little trouble with the current schedule as he's rolled to a 16-0 mark. The chance to cross the century mark came as the Birds entertained Duaneburg in a non-league contest.

Despite Genovesi's success, the Blackbirds have been having their troubles. At Saturday's Shenendehowa multiple dual tournament, VC failed to place with a 1-2 record. In the first round, the host school dealt the local grapplers a 42-17 setback. "We wrestled Shenendehowa tough, but we were definitely outclassed," explained veteran Voorheesville mentor Dick Leach.

After the loss, the Birds faced Saugerties of Section 9 and came away with a 42-30 win. Genovesi, wrestling at 138, faced his toughest test yet as he grappled one of Section 9's better wrestlers and earned a 10-5 victory.

The real test for the Blackbirds came in their third contest as they were pitted against Colonial Council rival Albany Academy. Academy scored a 36-30 win, but Leach doesn't see the match as a preview of the two squads' meeting on Jan. 24. "It was the same old story, we forfeited four weight classes," stated Leach. "The match was no showing of how it'll go when everything is on the line."

On the day, four VC wrestlers survived undefeated. Genovesi and juniors Rich Kane, Mark Gillenwalters and Mark Chyrywaty. Freshman John Traudt and junior Bill Kelly registered two wins apiece.

Earlier in the week, the Birds met two separate fates against Colonial Council opponents. On Tuesday Cohoes traveled to the Helderbergs and left empty-handed as the Birds took a 48-18 win. Two days later, Voorheesville left Schalmont on the losing end of a 45-13 decision. "Cohoes didn't have the quality of wrestlers that Schalmont did," noted Leach. "In this sport, there are a lot of different wrestling levels. To be competitive, we've got to move to the next level."

Schalmont has always been a nemesis for the Birds. Three years ago the Sabres cost the Blackbirds a share of the Colonial Council title with Academy and Mechanicville. Last season, an early-season loss to Schalmont cost the Birds an undisputed crown. "I think they're the team to beat in the Colonial Council this year," reported Leach on Schalmont. "They've established themselves alone in first place."

BC frosh earn their spurs

In the eyes of their coach, half a dozen of Bethlehem Central's young wrestlers — half the team, in fact — earned their spurs as varsity performers over the weekend.

Coach Gary Poplaski sent six freshman to the mats in the Fort Plain Invitational tournament on Saturday, an eight-team inter-sectional affair that was won by South Jefferson from the Watertown area. The Eagles finished a surprising second. To put that in better perspective: they finished ahead of Amsterdam, a Section 2 rival that had given them a solid thrashing in Delmar four days earlier.

"A lot of kids matured this week," observed Poplaski when a reporter interrupted his Sunday relaxation. "They did a tremendous job. I couldn't believe it. These freshmen hung in there against experienced opponents, and proved to themselves they could weather some difficult times."

The big lift came in the first round of the consolation bracket, which in mat lexicon is known as wrestlebacks. That's the tournament bracket that starts with first-round losers, which includes many good wrestlers. At Fort Plain Poplaski's youngsters won of the wrestlebacks, and that lit up the team.

This pre-meet "psych" by Bethlehem Central's varsity wrestlers was of little avail as the Eagles lost to powerful Amsterdam.

"That string of successes made a big difference psychologically for the rest of the day," the BC mentor enthused. "You could see the change. We kept coming back, and we made a lot of points."

Those wrestleback winners momentarily took some of the spotlight away from three Bethlehem standouts who went on to win championships in the tournament. Chris Saba, still undefeated at 13-0-1, won the 98-pound crown, Andy MacDonald the 155-pound title and Mark Hoffman the heavyweight diadem.

The inspirational streak in the consolations was put together by Vern Thalheimer, a 91-pounder wrestling "up" at 98, Tommy Nyilis at 105, Dan Conti at 112, John Sinuc at 119, Jim Dayter at 126, and after a couple of byes, Jason Conway at 145. Six in a row.

Dayter and Conway went on to place third overall in their respective weight classes. Brett Zick also got a third, and Nyilis placed fourth. For Sinuc the wrestleback victory was his first ever on the varsity.

In dual meets last week, the Eagles had an off night against potent Amsterdam and lost, 45-18, but came back Wednesday to rout Scotia, 52-18, in a Suburban Council fray. This week they will need every bit of that new maturity Poplaski was talking about — they have a date today (Wednesday) at Burnt Hills, and on Saturday are hosting a double-dual Spirit Week extravaganza against Niskayuna, always a power on the mat, and Guilderland. Columbia will also be on the program to wrestle both teams.

Doug Chambers, facing camera, had a leg lock (top photo) on Amsterdam's Sal Gonzalez in the 138-pound bout in varsity wrestling at BC last week, but in a tangle at the end the visitor scored a pin.

RCS wrestlers drop a tough one

By Bart Gottesman

After winning their first two matches by wide margins, RCS wrestlers suffered a tough loss to Hudson Falls. The Indians had little trouble as they shut out Big Ten CBA, 63-0, and defeated Colonial Council counterpart Watervliet, 56-26, but with momentum on their side, the Indians traveled to Hudson Falls to face their toughest opponent of the season only to lose by a score of 35-25.

At CBA Vince Caballer started the Ravena outburst with a pin at 98 pounds, Chip Cowles (105) won by points, 12-5, then Brian Perry (112), Rob Demis (119), Luther Legg (126) and Bob Gallagher all won by pins. Matt Rodd (138) accepted a forfeit and Chris Chiemlewski (145) won by fall, Tim Baranska (167) won by 5-2 and Rich Losee (177) and Jerry Baranska (215) won with pins to complete the shutout.

Ravena gained their second win in a row when they dominated Watervliet. For the Indians, Demis (119), DiAcetis (126), Chiemlewski (145), J. Baranska (177) and Todd Van Wormer (215) accepted forfeits. Cowles, Perry, Rodd and T. Baranska pinned their opponents and Legg wrestled well to earn a tie.

inconsistently. Ravena's only pin was by sophomore standout Jerry Baranska, who picked up three more wins to stay undefeated. Cowle (98), Legg (119) and Chiemlewski (115), all won their matches on points. The final scoring for the Indians came when Rodd wrestled to a tie, and Van Wormer (215) accepted a forfeit.

Ravena continues its stiff home schedule with matches against Waterford last night, Fonda-Fultonville Thursday and South Glens Falls Saturday (1 p.m.).

BC girls take RPI meet again

Bethlehem Central continues to dominate the scholastic girls track picture in this part of the state. Led by a young superstar, Anne Marie Carey, the Eagles haven't lost a league meet in two years, and on Saturday they won the Engineer Games at RPI for the second year in a row.

That triumph in a meet embracing 24 teams from a wide area of Eastern and Central New York came a lot harder this time as the Eagles edged second-place Burnt Hills by a single point, 56-55, with Baldwin (Long Island) third with 45, followed by Colonie, 39, and Beacon, 32.

Carey, a talented 10th-grader, helped to give Bethlehem a commanding early lead by anchoring the opening 2-mile relay won by BC in a breeze, and coming back in the next event to win the 50-meter high hurdles. As if that weren't enough for one day, Carey later lowered the meet record by nearly 4 seconds in winning the 600-meter run in 1:37.8.

That wasn't her personal best time, however, despite running alone in front of the pack for the last 25 yards.

In the 2-mile relay the BC team was far in front when the baton reached Anne Marie, and she broke the tape in 2:20.2, her fastest time ever for the half-mile split. The Eagles won by some 40 yards and 22 seconds.

Jen Warren, Christine Ainsworth and Tania Stasiuk contributed to the relay time of 9 minutes 55.4 seconds, far ahead of second-place Arlington (Poughkeepsie) with 10:17 and Burnt Hills at 10:20.

Other important points came from Ainsworth, who had good clockings in placing second in the two distance runs, and Kelly Ross, who remained undefeated in the high jump this season with a winning leap of 5 feet. Ainsworth's runner-up times were 5:05.4 in the 1,500 meters and 10:56.5 in the 3,000.

Bethlehem's boys team found the visiting competition at the RPI event somewhat overwhelming, and came away with only a third place in the high jump. Dave Ashe, a senior, cleared the bar at 6 feet despite being injured in the first event of the meet, the 50-meter hurdles. "He fell, injured his ankle and arms in the hurdles, but guttled it out in the high jump," said his coach, Ron Cameron. "He has real talent, and he has better heights ahead."

Cameron, a substitute science teacher in the Bethlehem Middle School coaching track for the first time, is a top-flight hurdler himself. His greatest moment came in the 1976 nationals in Chicago when he beat Edwin Moses, the Olympic champion, in the 400-meter hurdles.

Cameron was especially happy with the progress of the girls team in field events, notably the long jump. Kirsten Wehmann, an 11th grader, got a fourth in the long jump at 13:8 in the Engineer Games and Melissa Coccozza, a 10th grader, did 14:18 for third place in an interleague meet last Thursday trying the long jump for the first time.

The sprinting is also picking up. Coccozza made it to the semifinals in the 50-meter dash at Troy, and a Bethlehem quartet with Coccozza, Wehmann, Helene Richardson and Cindy Lovelace turned in their best time of the season in placing seventh in the mile relay.

Earlier last week the Bethlehem girls team won an interleague meet with Mohonasen, Shaker and Holy Names. Carey had another fine day, including a try at the triple jump for the first time since seventh grade. She leaped 33.5 feet.

The Eagle indoor tracksters had an interleague meet at Albany's Washington Ave. Armory Monday, and now have a break for exams before the biggest tests of the season, the prestigious Dutchmen Games at Union College and, of course, the Sectionals and state qualifiers.

RCS girls are upset

By Kevin Hommel

The RCS girls basketball team gained an even break in two Colonial Council games last week. They were upset by Lansingburgh in the last minute on Friday, 36-35, and won over Mechanicville in a makeup game Saturday, 46-26.

Against Lansingburgh the RCS squad led the whole game except for an eight-point rally in the closing minutes that cost the victory. The Indians pressed and stole for one more point, but came up short at the buzzer. Beth White had 12 points and Jackie Mulligan eight.

The Mechanicville game, rescheduled from Jan. 9 was termed an "easy" game by Coach Betty Faxon. Mechanicville's team couldn't handle Ravena's defensive press. Sophomore Marie Setford led Ravena with 10 points followed by White with nine and Pauline Mayo with seven. This win brought the girls Colonial Council record to 2-1 and their overall record to 3-1.

Faxon is working to improve their inside shooting and scoring ability. Their reliance on fast breaks and outside shots hurt versus Lansingburgh because they couldn't penetrate their opponents tight zone defense.

Ravena has a game away at Cohoes on Thursday and another at Waterford on Saturday.

BC spikers up in air

By Tania Stasiuk

Bethlehem Central's boys volleyball team faces an uncertain season. Coach Ray Sliter says there are too many "ifs" to make a prediction on how the players will fare in the Suburban Council.

A scrimmage on Friday against Germantown should set standards for the year, according to Sliter. The team has only one returning varsity player, senior Rick Jones, a starter last year. The rest of the squad is comprised of seniors from the JV team. Because the players are experienced at playing together, the team has good balance. The big "if" is whether the boys will be competitive on a varsity level.

Thanks to a good turnout — over 44 boys competed for 12 varsity and 12 JV positions — Sliter feels that he was able to choose an exceptionally strong junior varsity team.

The quality of the league this year is difficult to determine, according to Sliter. Perennially tough Columbia will probably be competitive, as will Shenendehowa with many strong returning players, Sliter feels. The scrimmage against Germantown will be played at 3:45 p.m. Friday at Bethlehem as part of Spirit Week. BC will play its first league game Tuesday at 3:45 p.m. at Guilderland.

Injuries and illness crimp BC title drive

A rash of injuries and the flu bug have put a crimp in Bethlehem Central's chances to take over first place in the crowded Suburban Council girls basketball race.

With a bunch of teams jammed at 3-1 in the league, the Eagles face Burnt Hills tonight (Wednesday) with their star pivot and point-maker, Kim Zornow, doubtful. The 6-foot center is lame on both ankles and has been out with the flu. Karen Burke, senior guard, was injured in a ski mishap, and Peg Jeram, the other guard, is also down with the flu.

The Eagles, a talented crew at full strength, were upset by Shaker, 37-35, last Wednesday in Delmar, but came back to win by 47-37 at Niskayuna Saturday. They were off-target in their shooting against the Bison, and committed 3-second violations in the final minutes. Lisa Tonetti had 14 points in that one, but at Niskayuna Zornow hit for 25 points and everybody played well.

Tonight's game, a Spirit Week feature, starts with the jayvees at 6:30 p.m.

Birds break the drought

By Bill Kelly

After going nearly two years without a victory, the Voorheesville girls basketball team not only broke the long drought last week, but won two games in a row.

The Blackbird press was the most decisive factor in the 32-31 squeaker over Cohoes last Wednesday night. This first win in two seasons was led by 14 points by Christy Tarullo and 13 by Sue Culnan. Tarullo was hot all night, making jumpers from the top of the post while Culnan drove the baseline.

Voorheesville led from the start, but with only two substitutions, the starters tired noticeably in the final quarter as Cohoes narrowed the gap. The Blackbirds' foul shooting preserved the narrow win at the end.

"If the game is close, I leave in the top five," said Coach Nadine Bassler. "If not I sub."

Saturday they traveled to Duanesburg and won by a margin of three points. Culnan led the scorers with 12 points in the 36-33 victory. Laura Martin also had a great day on the boards and underneath. In the third quarter Duanesburg switched to man-to-man defense which left the Blackbirds in a daze for a time. They fell from a 10-point lead but never behind.

The girls traveled to Mechanicville last night (Tuesday). The next two games are home against Holy Names this Thursday at 4 and Lansingburgh at 2:30 Saturday.

Bowling tourney set

A tournament for high-average bowlers similar to the PBA tour got underway this month at Playdium in Albany under the direction of Frank J. Oliver, a Del Lanes regular. The tournament is structured on a qualifying round, head-to-head position round with 30 bonus points per win, and step-ladder final round determined by total pins and bonus points for three-person teams and individuals. The top 10 percent advance to the head-to-head round, and each has its own stepladder final.

Oliver says the difference is that the team event has a Kings-of-the-Hill format and the individual tourney does not. Five individuals and three teams make the finals each week, plus the Kings of the Hill.

The tournament is a handicap affair except no handicap for 200-

Quick response

Editor, The Spotlight:

We would sincerely like to thank the Onesquethaw Volunteer Fire Co. for their quick response and great help they gave to us during a fire we experienced at our home early in the morning on Jan. 9. As we stood there and watched, we realized that these men came out of their warm beds into a bitter cold night to help us and we are deeply grateful. They should all be commended for a fine job. Thank you again.

Scoons family thanks

Editor, The Spotlight:

The family of Mrs. David Scoons and Clifford J. Scoons wish to thank their many friends and neighbors, and local organizations for their kindness during the illness and death of David C. Scoons, husband and father.

The kind experiences of Rev. Hess and the impressive ceremonies of the Masonic Lodge 1096 and the Delmar Fire Department, combined with gifts of food and flowers offered by neighbors and organizations, served as much needed support for the family.

Gifts to the Delmar Rescue Squad are also greatly appreciated.

When sickness and death strikes, one begins to know how many friends he has.

Our sincere thanks to everyone.

Thanks to Santa

Editor, The Spotlight:

The following letter was addressed to Art Kling, a member of the Delmar Kiwanis who played Santa Claus at a Christmas party for children sponsored by the Delmar Kiwanis.

Please share this with all the dear men who had a part in the Christmas party for the children at Normansville Community Church.

What a party! You thought of everything! The only things missing were a few of the children on the list who could not make it. The children who came certainly had a happy time. It was so evident in their lusty singing; and, of course, their extreme happiness was a real joy to the parents and all others present.

The food was good and the presents! Those great big dolls! And the shirts! And all the other gifts! There surely were no disappointments.

And Santa Claus! He must have been the real old North Pole guy himself!

It was all just a wonderful and happy time for everyone.

The folks at Normansville are so grateful for what you have done. We ask the Lord to bless you abundantly, each and every one. The children want you to know that they thank you too.

Acclaimed violinist to return

Sheila Reinhold

By Caroline Terenzini

"You can't have everything," says violinist Sheila Reinhold, who will be the soloist this weekend with the Albany Symphony Orchestra.

Some people, however, might believe Reinhold has everything — five years of study with renowned violinist Jascha Heifetz, graduate studies and then a residency at Harvard University, acclaim as a performer, marriage and two children, Eli, 3½, and Rachel, 2 months. Difficult as it is to fit practicing, performing and parenting into one's life, Reinhold credits her husband, Richard Sacks (son of Slingerlands residents Jack and Marion Sacks), with making it all possible. Sacks, who holds a Ph.D. from Harvard, teaches literature and ancient languages at Columbia University.

A native of New York City, Reinhold said she wanted to play the violin from the moment her older sister began studying the instrument. Eventually Reinhold, too, took lessons and, when she was 14, she was heard by Heifetz, who invited her to study with him in California. Five years of intense work followed, during which Reinhold also earned a degree at the University of Southern California. "It was an incredible experience," she said, "being exposed to Heifetz and those standards." But because Heifetz believed that a musician's youthful years should be spent practicing, not performing, there were no professional appearances during those years.

Finally, at age 19, Reinhold returned to the professional concert stage in an appearance with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, with Zubin Mehta conducting — and with no rehearsal! Reinhold, however, triumphed in that performance, which Heifetz attended, and afterward he toasted her at a celebration with champagne and wild strawberries. The whole event, she remembers, as "sort of like falling in love."

Then it was off to Harvard, where Reinhold was first a graduate student in music and then became resident musician, the first at the university. She lived in one of the residence houses and was not only a music resource person at the university, but also a performer.

Reinhold previously performed with the Albany Symphony Orchestra in 1979, when she played the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto to outstanding reviews. She has also performed with the State University at Albany's community orchestra. Reinhold said she particularly enjoys performing with students because of their enthusiasm.

Reinhold testifies to the growing reputation of the Albany Symphony Orchestra by noting that when she told some musician friends about the upcoming performance, "their ears pricked up." For her appearance with the Albany Symphony Friday at the Troy Music Hall and Saturday at the Palace Theater in Albany, Reinhold will perform the Beethoven Violin Concerto in D. Also on the program is the Royal Fireworks Music by Handel and Symphony No. 4 by George Antheil. For tickets call 465-4663.

After Saturday's performance, Reinhold will be honored at a reception on the mezzanine at the Palace. Proceeds will benefit the orchestra's scholarship fund.
