PBA, town go public as negotiations falter

By Tom McPheeters

A breakdown in contract negotiations between the Bethlehem Police Benevolent Association and the town board — and apparent unhappiness with Police Chief Paul Currie's new broom — have prompted an angry and unusual public exchange.

In addition to a broad range of contract items, PBA President John Cox has added a new element to the debate — concern that a manpower shortage coupled with a tight policy on overtime is limiting the number of road patrols.

"It's going to come to the point where someone gets hurt," Cox said Monday.

Only one conclusion emerged from interviews with the two sides Monday: money is not a major issue. As outlined by Supervisor Robert Hendrick, and confirmed by Cox, the town's current offer is a 4 percent raise effective Jan. 1 and a second 4 percent raise July 1, which works out to 6 percent for the year. The same procedure would be followed in the second year of the contract.

"Money fell very quickly," said the town's negotiator, Delmar attorney Melvin Osterman. He and Hendrick contend that the negotiations "have been marked by the PBA's repudiation of most of the agreements it made during the fall." In addition, the PBA added a new element to the negotiations earlier this year when it asked for a 20-year retirement benefit, they said.

"That is not true," Cox said of the retirement benefit issue. Since March, when he declared his intention to ask the state Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) for binding arbitration, "there have been no continuing negotiations," Cox said. Indeed, one of the PBA's major problems, he said, is that Chief Currie has instituted several departmental rule changes that the association thinks should be subject to contract negotiation. When that happens, he said, it throws off the other elements of a proposed settlement.

"It's been a year now since the suspensions and we haven't said a word," Cox said. "All we want to do is get this thing resolved and go back to work."

Last spring, the town suspended four officers for refusing to follow orders in working overtime when appearing in town court. That followed a new interpretation of language that had long been in the PBA's contract, giving officers four hours of overtime pay when they were called in for court duty, whether or not they actually worked that time.

The suspensions are still under appeal, but in November the PBA won a PERB ruling upholding its interpretation of the current contract and an order that the officers be reimbursed. According to Osterman and Cox, the town and the PBA had tentatively agreed to a two-hour overtime provision for the new contract — a concession by the town that the PBA was right, but a "giveback"

A casualty of malpractice crisis

By Caroline Terenzini

The medical malpractice insurance "crisis" means different things to different people, but for Dr. David C. Rees it means an end to a private practice that has spanned 28 years. At the end of June, Dr. Rees, 58, will stop seeing patients in the office attached to his home on Maywood Rd. in Elsmere.

Seated at his desk, with photographs of his family behind him, Dr. Rees, a general practitioner, spoke about his decision to call it quits. "I want my patients to know I'll miss them," he said.

But he won't miss the turmoil surrounding medical malpractice insurance in New York State. "People don't seem to realize the problem's been going on 10 years," Dr. Rees declared. A decade ago commercial insurers withdrew from the medical malpractice field because they couldn't make a profit. So doctors formed their own insurance company, the Medical Liability Mutual Insurance Co., which provides malpractice coverage for the majority of doctors in New York State. As instances of litigation multiplied, however, and the size of awards grew, the doctors' insurance company, too, found it couldn't contain premiums. Hence, this April a retroactive 55 percent premium increase was imposed, and another 40 percent hike is scheduled for July 1.

"It's not just a physicians' problem, or a lawyers' problem or an insurance company's problem," Dr. Rees said. "It's a problem of our society. And it's not just in medicine. It's an ongoing problem everywhere in society — we're a litigious society. I think we're going to reach the point where we can't afford" malpractice or liability insurance.

"Doctors are at fault as much as lawyers, who say the insurance companies are at fault. With advances in technology, we've lost the personal touch — the patient doesn't know the doctor, the doctor doesn't know the patient.

"You'd be surprised how much of my time is spend explaining to a patient what a specialist has done. The specialist has done a lot of good but the patient doesn't see that — the doctor is brusque, hurried.

"Things are so impersonal the patient doesn't hesitate to sue."

The rate increase is especially troubling to Dr. Rees because, while his private practice is not a high-risk practice and has been conducted on a part-time basis for 20 years, the insurance company requires him to pay a full-time rate. Hence, with the new premium increases, "either

'Satisfied' Chodack bowing out at RCS

By Theresa Bobear

Milton Chodack, superintendent of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District for 10 years, has submitted his resignation, effective June 30, 1986.

The administrator will continue to serve through the end of the 1985-86 school year, at which time he will be eligible for retirement in New York State. His resignation was accepted unanimously with regret by the RCS Board of Education at a special meeting last week.

"We have measured results in terms of improvement of instruction," said Chodack in an interview Monday. "I've been here a good number of years, and I'm satisfied with what has occurred."

Chodack was appointed superintendent of the RCS School District in 1975, after serving as assistant superintendent of schools in Lockport.

After graduating from Hobart College with bachelor's degrees in economics and education, he served as high school science teacher, science department head and summer recreation program director for the Barker Central School District.

While earning a master's degree in biology from Syracuse University, he served as science coordinator and supervisor for the Niagara-Orleans BOCES. He also served as administrative intern in the Lockport City School District and senior high school principal for the Lake Shore Central School District. He earned a doctoral degree in educational administration and certification as a specialist in educational administration from the State University at Buffalo.

Chodack was awarded the Hobart and William Smith Colleges' Sesquicentennial Award for exemplifying the ideals of knowledge in the service of man.

"I've always been kids oriented," said Chodack. "I will continue to be the ombudsman for kids. That's why we're here."

you practice at a very fast pace or you get out," he said.

For Dr. Rees, the decision was — regretfully — to close the practice. He plans to continue the other half of his medical career, however, as a physician with the State University at Albany Health Services. Since May 1, when his decision was made, Dr. Rees and his nurse, Patty Caporta, R.N., have been contacting patients. He has also checked with other local doctors to ensure that they would take on transfer patients.

For many patients, however, the switch will not be without its difficulties. Some have been coming to 14 Maywood Rd. since Dr. Rees began his practice years ago. And, "as a single practitioner, they see me every time they come in," he said. Now, "not only are they separating from me, but they want to find a single practitioner again," a rarity in today's world.

"I guess I'm the last of the old time," Dr. Rees commented. A graduate of Albany Academy, Amherst College and Albany Medical College, he began his practice when there were only three other doctors in the Tri-Village area, all general practitioners, and "our house calls probably outnumbered our office calls."

As a new GP, Dr. Rees soon discovered a need for training in "so-called psychomatic problems," which led to study in areas such as psychomatic illnesses, alcoholism and marital counseling. "Those are things you get very little training in medical school," he said, "yet those were the things patients were bringing into my office." The additional training has had benefits not only for patients, but also for himself. "It's been very satisfying dealing with the more difficult patients, like an alcoholic or obese patient. Changes can take years. You have to be extremely patient and have to tolerate frustration at not having them do what you want them to do.

"I think I was a fairly typical doctor when I first started out," Dr. Rees continued. "I worked day and night, on that treadmill. And I was very authoritarian." But a recurrence of back problems that also had disrupted his years at the academy forced Dr. Rees to reduce his private practice. This circumstance and, later, the breakup of his marriage caused him to become more introspective, Dr. Rees said. "And it made me a better doctor," he added.

The long hours of patient listening, of thoughtful counseling, in his quiet office on Maywood Rd. are about to become a thing of the past, however — a casualty of the times.

Ticketed for leaving

A Clarksville man was ticketed for leaving the scene of an accident Friday after the car he was driving went off Rt. 443 just west of Clarksville, according to a spokesman for the state police in Selkirk. The car went through the guardrails and came to a halt on an embankment, troopers said. No injuries were reported, authorities said.

Man hurt in crash

A Ravena man, 23, was treated at Albany Medical Center Hospital and released after a two-car accident Friday at Rt. 9W and Thacher St. in Selkirk, according to a spokesman for the state police there. A Kinderhook man was ticketed for failure to yield right of way in the crash, troopers said.

Reservoir level steady

As of Friday, Bethlehem's Vly Creek reservoir was at 66 percent of capacity, compared to 96 percent at this date in an average year. But the line on the graph the town uses to chart the reservoir's progress is actually climbing further above the danger point.

Because of the rain and the cool weather "we're doing a little better," Supervisor Robert Hendrick said Friday. But that's had another effect, he added, "so far it's been pretty hard to tell how we're doing with our water restrictions."

The town board recently imposed restrictions on watering lawns and shrubs, and Public Works Commissioner Bruce Secor, aided by a large chart and calculations of water levels and water usage in past years, has been keeping a close eye on the impact of the restrictions and on where the town's water supply stands. For a normal year, Secor's graph shows a steady decline in the level of the reservoir as the spring and summer progress, and that is true of this year also — the difference being that this year the reservoir did not start out the spring full, as it usually is.

Secor has plotted a green danger line, showing at what level the reservoir will eventually bottom out, leaving the town with no usable water next winter. But last week the line showing the actual level of the reservoir was moving away from the green line — a good sign.

Hendrick said the town will continue to monitor water usage and encourage town residents to conserve whenever possible.

2 face drink counts

Deputies nabbed two drivers on misdemeanor drinking-and-driving charges this week. According to a spokesman for the Albany County Sheriff's Department in Voorheesville, a Voorheesville man, 34, was stopped about 12:30 a.m. Friday on Rt. 156 in the village and a Berne woman, 26, was stopped shortly after 3 a.m. Saturday on Rt. 85A in New Scotland. Both also were ticketed for failure to keep right and are due to appear in New Scotland Town Court, according to the report.

Keyhole lot law passed by board

Developers in Bethlehem will find it tougher to build on lots that have only limited frontage on town roads, thanks to the "keyhole lot" legislation approved last week by the Town Board.

The zoning code amendment approved unanimously and without comment by the board imposes new controls on the development of odd-shaped lots with minimal access to town roads.

Rather than the current 15 feet of street frontage to get to a lot, developers will need 28 feet of frontage. The alternative is for the developer to dedicate a town street and build it to town specifications.

At a presentation May 22, Public Works Commissioner Bruce Secor and Building Inspector John Flanigan told the board that the current law can result in long, narrow driveways that are difficult for fire trucks, snow plows and other large vehicles to navigate.

In other business last Wednesday, the board:

- Heard praise for a proposed traffic change that would put stop signs at the intersection of Adams Pl. with Oakwood Pl. and at Herber Ave. and Oakwood Pl. Area residents had requested the four way stop as a way of slowing traffic on the Herber Hill, and the board indicated it will go along with the request despite the recommendations of Police Chief Paul Currie and a consultant that there shouldn't be a stop sign at the top of the hill.

- Heard from Currie that residents of Elm Estates have asked for traffic signs on busy Fairlawn Dr. and set July 24 for a public hearing to consider four yield signs on streets that empty into Fairlawn.

- Approved a $10,555 bid by AFSCO Fence Supply Co. of Latham — the lowest of three received — to enclose the town's fire training grounds off Kenwood Ave. near the Delmar Bypass. The fencing is part of an ambitious improvement program proposed by the town's fire districts, but is likely to be all that is done this year.

- Approved a job swap that will send Deputy Town Clerk Ruth Heere to the Building Department and Kathleen A. Newkirk to the town clerk's office.

- Approved a renewal of the license for the Glen Henry Auto Body and Fender Works at 319 Schoolhouse Rd. in North

BETHLEHEM

Bethlehem to continue to operate. The business is a nonconforming use in a residential area, Flanigan told the board. "We are there probably four or five times a year reminding them to get their stuff inside the fence," Flanigan said. "We'll continue to monitor it, weekly if we have to."

- Approved dumping permits for the Solid Rock Church at 280 Kenwood Ave. and for property on Center Lane.

- Learned from Mid-Hudson Cablevision, which has about 40 customers in South Bethlehem and Selkirk, that it has filed with the state Cable Commission for a $1 rate increase for its Bethlehem customers. The town board had already approved the increase contingent on approval from the Coeymans and New Baltimore town boards, but Mid-Hudson decided to go ahead with the Bethlehem and Coeymans increases after New Baltimore turned its request down. Final approval is expected this summer, the company said.

Now it's convertible

Deputies are investigating the theft of two T-bar glass roof covers that were taken off a car parked overnight last Tuesday on Wormer Rd. in New Scotland, according to a spokesman for the Albany County Sheriff's Department in Voorheesville. The value of the missing equipment was put at $800, deputies reported.

Valuables missing

Bethlehem police are investigating the disappearance of jewelry and silverware valued at a total of $1,350 that was reported missing last Tuesday from a Normanside Blvd. residence, according to police reports. The items were last seen in December, according to the report.

Correction

The formula given in last week's story on property tax assessments for determining the full, or market, value of an assessment was incorrect — backwards, in fact.

The correct method for determining full value: divide the assessed value by the equalization rate, moving the decimal point two places to the left. For instance, the current equalization rate for Bethlehem is 13.12 percent, so .1312 would be divided into a Bethlehem assessment to determine its full value.

PBA negotiations

by the PBA in terms of benefits.

Negotiations for a new contract began last fall with the overtime dispute still in the forefront. In a departure from past negotiations, the town board hired Osterman to be its negotiator. Nevertheless, according to Hendrick a settlement "appeared very close" after a Nov. 20 negotiating session. "The only open issues at that time were the town's proposal to remove the department's captain and lieutenant from the negotiating unit and a provision of a proposed interrogation proceeding concerning an accused officers right to be represented by an attorney."

"At that time," Hendrick continued, "the town assumed that the negotiations would be concluded within several weeks." Instead, he said, the PBA "repudiated" its agreement on the two-hour overtime compensation, asked for new interrogation and grievance procedure, rejected a compromise reached on disciplinary procedure for officers and asked — "for the first time" — for the 20-year retirement benefit.

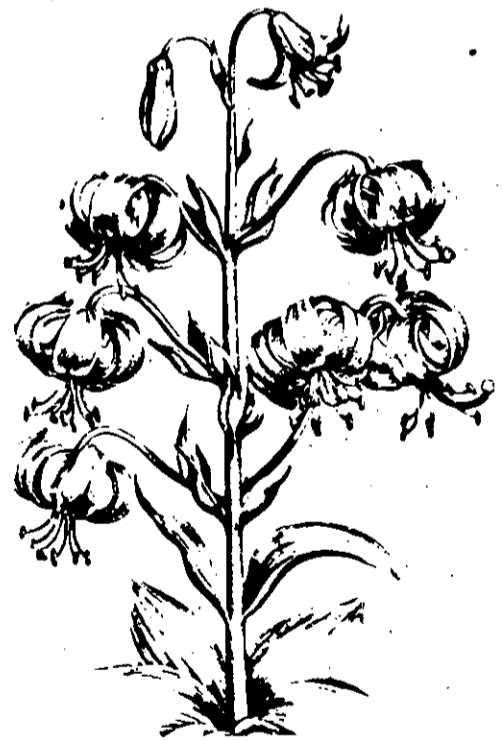

Cox confirmed that the PBA had asked for changes in the interrogation and grievance procedure and is now seeking to have the department come under civil service rules, rather than state Town Law, for disciplinary proceedings. But, he insisted, the 20-year retirement provision is nothing new — what changed is that the PBA became more interested in pursuing that benefit when it learned that the cost to the town would be less than expected. Hendrick said the state retirement system estimates that going from a 25 to a 20-year retirement benefit would add about 10 percent to the total cost of the contract. Cox said the cost would be about $50,000 the first year and less from then on — "not a prohibitive amount."

Possibly more important than these changes has been the changes in the players. Cox took over as PBA president in January and Hendrick became Supervisor in February. And with the appointment of Currie as police chief last year the town appears to have taken a firmer attitude toward controlling both costs and discipline in a department that had, by most accounts, drifted for several years. Currie instituted new rules and regulations last year, and recently made several moves to tighten control over staffing, including a controversial provision that officers have to give 14 days notice for a compensatory day off.

Currently, according to Cox, the department is short five officers — two sergeants are retiring, two officers are on light duty and another is on disability.

Challenge revisions OKd

By Caroline Terenzini

The Bethlehem Central school board last Wednesday voted 5-1 to accept, in toto, the Challenge Review Committee's recommendation for modifying the district's program for educating gifted children, rejecting a last-minute alternative proposal from board member Bernard Harvith.

The vote came on a motion from Robert Ruslander, with a second from Marjory O'Brien. New board member Charles Reeves was absent.

Harvith, who supplied the lone no vote, argued unsuccessfully for a program without preselection. "I'm concerned about the amount of effort that's going into identifying a handful of children," he said. "If you're going to pick the nine most able kids out of 100, how sure are you that you can pick the right nine?"

Harvith also argued unsuccessfully for tabling the question to allow time for consideration of his proposal. "We've struggled for five or six years, so we ought to get to the kernel of the question, he said. "I don't think we should make a bad decision because of time." But Ruslander objected to the eleventh-hour presentation by Harvith, as did several others around the table.

The proposal that was adopted calls for identifying the top three to five percent of BC students in grades three through five and preparing individualized educational programs for them to follow that would supplement the regular classroom work. These children would make up Tier I of the program, with the remainder of the student body in Tier II.

All children in third through fifth grade would be taught "critical thinking skills and creative problem-solving" for the first several months of school. Then Tier I students would pursue their individualized programs, while all pupils would be eligible to undertake enrichment activities with the Challenge teacher, according to their motivation and interest.

Board members zeroed in on some shortcomings they saw in the committee's report, such as no mention of the gifted but unmotivated child — the underachiever — and the absence of "clear-cut criteria" for selecting the Tier I students. But only Harvith had an alternative proposal, and his was too late, as far as other board members were concerned.

Board member Velma Cousins said, "I'm sorry we weren't able to come up with a program that would include everyone. Children do understand there is a class system in the classroom, and they do care." Those who feel inferior fall behind, she said. "Children tend to accept their lot, especially at that age."

"I think the (new) program will open itself to the same criticism the old program had," Cousins said.

Harvith said, "Let's have a gifted program that assumes each child is gifted at something — and let's find it. Let's get the kids in there and start teaching them. Get them as far as they can go as fast as they can get there. We ought to stop hassling about picking the kids and start teaching the kids."

In selecting Tier I pupils, he declared, "How many kids are you going to hurt — nine, 15, 20 or more? I just don't think it's worth it!"

"It's a compromise," Marjory O'Brien countered. "I feel we'll never get to the point where everyone will agree." She also took time to note: "There's the impression that the present program has failed — it hasn't."

"The report is one of consensus, a product of compromise," Ruslander said.

District Superintendent Lawrence A. Zinn "strongly" recommended the board approve the committee's report. "I think we all need to compromise on this particular thing. I don't think any child will be ignored," he added. "Individualization is occurring now in classrooms and will continue to."

After the 5-1 vote, board President Sheila Fuller characterized the result as The Great Compromise.

The nine-member Challenge Review Committee had its own long and heated discussions in more than a dozen meetings conducted over several months, and committee member Reynard McClusky issued a minority report, objecting that the panel had "tried to make a recipe for everyone."

The committee's report came to the board early in February, but discussion of it was delayed all spring by more pressing budget preparation matters.

In other business at the special meeting, Glenmont PTA President Beverly McGrath once again pressured the board for quick

RCS seeks meeting on Elm Estates

Six residents of the Elm Avenue Estates appeared before the RCS Board of Education on Monday to ask for a prompt solution to the boundary dispute over an island of RCS properties near the southern end of the Bethlehem Central School District.

"It's not the issue of what school district," said Ellen Bardelli. She explained that children living across the street from each other were going to different schools. "You wouldn't believe how kids will shun other kids for that reason," Bardelli observed.

"We are the ones who have been trying to resolve this for the past three or four years," said board president Anthony Williams. "Now all of the sudden there is some action."

Williams said that the district is interested in having the attorneys negotiate to "lay out the boundaries as they should be laid out."

"We would like the boundaries set," said Williams. "We would like to protect those who have started their children in our school district."

"The problem is back in their hands," said Superintendent Milton Chodack.

An attempt several years ago to settle the dispute by trading properties between the two districts was unsuccessful. The issue came up at the Bethlehem Central board meeting two weeks ago when a request from an Elm Estates parent to enroll a child in the BC district came before the board. The Bethlehem Central board instructed its attorney, Roger Fritts, to arrange a meeting with the RCS board. However, at the RCS board meeting Monday, board members discussed having the attorneys for the respective districts negotiate.

"Is Ravana looking for a trade-off?" asked one resident. Charles Emery, district business administrator, explained that one solution to "straighten out the line" had been proposed several years ago.

In conclusion a resident asked "Is there any way we can be of assistance?" "I would say you got the ball rolling," replied Emery.

action to eliminate crowding at the Glenmont Elementary School.

"We've run out of space to fairly and properly educate our children in a stable environment," McGrath said. "We are trying to get the people of Bethlehem to understand that Glenmont is part of Bethlehem."

"Are you telling us there's something so urgent we should do something before September?" Harvith asked.

"Yes. We don't have the facts and figures (but) we are concerned, we would like something done," McGrath responded.

A citizen committee that has been working on the problem is due to report to the board tonight (Wednesday). The session is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Educational Services Center, Adams Place, in Delmar.

Hospice has the greatest need for registered nurses with New York State licenses who could be called upon as needed. Nurses interested in becoming volunteers should call Rosanna DeMarco at 454-1686.

For those who care

A Respite Care Program is now being offered by the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Albany, to persons who are caring for chronically ill veterans. The hospital is providing scheduled time-limited in-patient care of a custodial nature. The program is designed to give the primary care-givers temporary relief from extended periods of home care.

Five beds on an extended care ward of the hospital will be reserved for respite care and monitored by a physician, a registered nurse and a social worker.

'Dangerous precedent' seen

By Patricia Dumas

Making a commitment that angered its Republican minority, the Albany County Legislature has approved a $5.5 million refinancing plan for access roads to the Crossgates Mall shopping complex in Guilderland.

The lawmakers last week authorized by a 33-6 vote floating of a $5,534,000 bond issue which in effect is a loan to Pyramid Crossgates Co., the mall developer.

Before the vote, Minority Leader W. Gordon Morris, Jr. of Elsmere declared: "We are establishing one of the most dangerous precedents we ever asked the legislature to get involved in."

His Republican colleague, James C. Ross of Delmar, termed the financial plan "the biggest Christmas present Pyramid Crossgates will ever get" and said it would be accomplished at taxpayer expense.

Involved is an access road system already in place and already slated to be owned by the county but originally financed on the private market.

Now, Pyramid Crossgates will refinance by borrowing money through the county at a lower interest rate and in return will pay all maintenance costs for the roads during the 15-year term of the bonds.

That maintenance, according to Democratic Majority Leader Harold L. Joyce, will save the county approximately $593,460.

But because the company is to pay off the bonds through a special assessment on the mall, Morris said, "every taxpayer in Albany County doing business at Crossgates will pay."

Other Republican legislators questioned the constitutionality of the arrangement, saying public money was being pledged without proven public benefit.

County Attorney William J. Conboy II conceded that the scheme "has very little precedent" but said that the legal requisite of public benefit was satisfied.

The legislators last week also debated on one of their continuing battlegrounds — the proposed county civic center in downtown Albany.

The Legislature approved 31-8 a home rule message asking the State Legislature to pass an amended version of the so-called "bed tax" bill, which would increase revenues from hotel and motel use and earmark them for civic center financing. The amended version requires the county's Industrial Development Authority to seek competitive bidding.

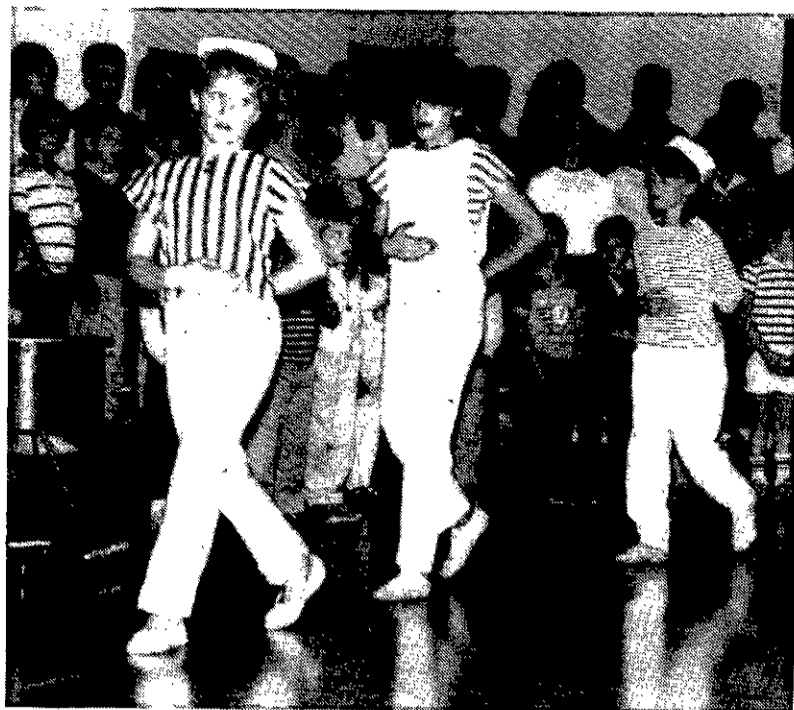

Earlier Morris had appeared with Republican Assemblyman Arnold Proskin of Colonie at a press conference to protest what they said were the loopholes in the original bed tax bill that would have allowed the IDA to skip the public bidding process. But last Monday the county Republicans still were not satisfied with the amended version.

"This bill has many tentacles," Republican Michael A. Ricci of Voorheesville said of the amended version. He repeated objections he had voiced last month to the entire civic center project when the home rule message was first before the local lawmakers. All of the Bethlehem legislators Morris, Ross and Robert W. Hoffmeister of Slingerlands joined Ricci in voting against the measure.

Fair books available

2 bikes recovered

Two youngsters from Albany were apprehended Thursday by Bethlehem police in connection with the theft of two bicycles from the bike rack at Elsmere Elementary School, according to police. The bikes, both of which were unregistered, were recovered.

Other bicycles missing or found this week, include:

June 13 — missing, a 20-inch boy's bike, from yard of residence on Rockefeller Rd., unregistered.

June 15 — found, 10-speed boy's bike, near golf course shed at Colonial Acres in Glenmont, unregistered. Also, missing, 10-speed, from garage on Groesbeck Pl., unregistered.

June 16 — found, 10-speed boy's bike, along Elsmere Ave. near Bender Lane, unregistered.

Residents of the Town of Bethlehem can register their bicycles through the police department, which provides an identification number and keeps the owner's name and address on file. Registration makes it possible for police to return a recovered bike to its owner.

Safety drills completed

Ray Linstruth, a paramedic with the Delmar Fire Department Rescue Squad and a Bethlehem police officer, recently conducted drills for the lifeguards at Bethlehem's Elm Ave. Park pool complex. The drills, planned by Linstruth and aquatic supervisor Jack Whipple, included simulated emergencies and the use of a child-sized manikin.

Karen Pellettier, coordinator of safety services and senior citizen services for the town, assisted, as did Kathy Cooke, emergency medical technician, and paramedic George TenEyck.

The drills followed a 12-hour course in cardiopulmonary resuscitation for the lifeguards, taught by Pellettier. In addition, Bethlehem lifeguards are required to complete a 21-hour first aid course, Pellettier said, as well as to be certified in water safety instruction. Other drills are planned during the summer, she noted.

Deer hit on 9W

An accident involving a deer was reported to Bethlehem police early Sunday morning. According to police reports, a deer bounded across Rt. 9W near Pictuay Rd. in South Bethlehem shortly after 2 a.m. and was hit by a vehicle owned by an Albany cab company. No injuries were reported by the occupants of the vehicle, according to the report. The deer left the scene.

Bethlehem board wants time to mull Elm Ave. development

A split on the Bethlehem Town Board appeared briefly last week on the question of a proposed development on 20 acres of land off the Elm Ave. Extension near the town park.

At the same time, the board was presented with a new development proposal in an area not often heard from — the new owners of the Breckenridge Motor Home Park in Selkirk are asking for permission to put an additional 50 trailer sites in the park. That request, which will require rezoning, was referred to the Bethlehem Planning Board.

The Elm Ave. proposal came from the planning board, and the discussion by town board members Wednesday night revolved around whether to accept that board's 5-1 recommendation to deny the developer's request for Planning Residence District zoning or to conduct their own public hearing.

J. Jeffrey Lino and Saratoga Homes Ltd. had proposed 64 attached single-family houses on the 20-acre site, now zoned AA-Residential. The plan requires rezoning because Bethlehem's code does not permit "clustering" of residences, except in the PRD zones where developers are given more flexibility. Lino told the board that under the current AA zoning he could put in 63 single-family homes, but felt that the cluster design made better use of the land.

Nevertheless, neighbors questioned the type of home that would be built, and several planning board members said they didn't think PRD was the proper zoning for the project.

When the planning board's recommendation came up on the town board's agenda Wednesday, Councilman W. Scott Prothero moved that the board conduct a public hearing. "The applicant deserves a hearing, and the residents deserve a hearing," he said.

He was seconded by Councilman John Geurtze, but Councilwoman Ruth O. Bickel asked for more time, noting that she hadn't attended the planning board meeting at which the proposal was discussed.

"I'd like to know why the planning board voted 4-1," she said.

Councilwoman Sue Ann Ritchko had been there, and made it clear that she had heard enough: it was "evident," she said, that residents and the planning board "want to keep that area a single-family residential area."

The vote on Prothero's motion was 2-1-2, with Bickel and Supervisor Robert Hendrick abstaining. Ritchko's motion to accept the planning board's report, denying the rezoning, failed to get a second. Finally, Bickel's motion to table the issue until the June 26 meeting passed 5-0.

Breckenridge Motor Home Park, on the west side of Rt. 9W, currently uses about half of the available 38 acres for 70 of the available 38 acres for 70 motor home sites. Attorney Michael Friedman told the board that Garden Homes Management Corp., which bought the area last year, would like to add 50 new sites. The current rural zoning does not permit trailer parks, so the owners are requesting either PRD or PCD (Planned Commercial Development) status. (Breckenridge and the park on the east side of Rt. 9W are "grandfathered" because they were there before the zoning was in place.)

Richard Picarazzi, a Breckenridge resident, told the board that there had been a major rent increase since the park was purchased, and asked if other increases would be forthcoming if expansion took place. Friedman said no future rate increases would be tied to the expansion plans, which would be financed by the new sites.

Gets prison term

Conrad C. Hartmann, 38, of Krümkill Rd., Slingerlands, is to surrender to federal authorities on July 1 to begin serving a three-year sentence after he was convicted of illegally disposing of nearly 6,000 bushels of corn that had been pledged as security for a loan from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, according to a spokesman for the U.S. District Court in Albany. Hartmann also is to repay $26,764 to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, authorities said.

Hartmann was sentenced Friday by U.S. District Court Judge Roger Miner, who stipulated that if Hartmann serves three months of the prison term the remaining 33 months will be a probation sentence.

No help at all

Not one, but two vehicles rolled out of the parking lot of radio station WQBK in Glenmont last Tuesday afternoon, ending up in ditches, according to Bethlehem police reports. For starters, an unattended car owned by a Gunderland woman rolled out of the lot and into a ditch along Smultz Rd. Then the tow truck that had been summoned to pull her car out took off on its own while the driver was hitching up the two vehicles, police reported. The truck rolled backward all the way across the road and into a ditch on the opposite side, the report said. In the process, the woman's car was damaged, the report noted.

DWI counts filed

Two motorists were charged this week with driving while intoxicated as a misdemeanor, according to Bethlehem police reports. A Delmar man was stopped about 2:30 a.m. Saturday on Rt. 85 near Blessing Rd. and an Albany man was stopped about 4:30 a.m. on Delaware Ave. near Salisbury Rd. in Delmar, according to authorities.

YES summer hours

The Bethlehem Youth Employment Service, a free referral service for persons 14 years old through college age, will be open from 1 to 4:30 p.m. weekdays beginning Monday, June 24.

Town residents who have jobs that can be done by young workers are urged to call 439-2238. Director Joan A. Perry is available to advise employers and workers on equitable pay rates for particular types of jobs.

Car leaves Kenwood

An eastbound car driven by a Delmar woman crossed into the opposite lane and went off Kenwood Ave. near Borthwick Ave. shortly before 4 a.m. last Monday, according to Bethlehem police reports. The car hit two trees, the report noted. The driver, who did not require emergency medical treatment, was charged with failure to keep right and driving while her license was suspended, according to the report.

Bus safety search is broadened

By Theresa Bobear

"Percentage-wise, overwhelmingly what happens, happens outside of the school bus," said Voorheesville Board of Education President John McKenna at last week's meeting.

With that the board decided to take the focus off seat belts and consider alternate safety extras for buses, such as a stop sign to operate with the flashing lights, a 10-foot swing gate to make students walk away from the bus when crossing and a sonar device to warn the driver when someone is near the wheels.

"Personally, I think it (seat belts) merits investigation," said McKenna, who said he attended a recent meeting of the Parent Teacher Association held to consider the issue of seat belts. "There was a good deal of concern expressed about the standees on the buses," said McKenna. The board president asked for estimates on the number of standees when the fall routes were mapped out.

Business Administrator Rodger Lewis explained that the routes are not constant because some children are being dropped at different residences on different days for babysitting. "That's becoming a real problem," said Lewis.

Regarding a request to use the kindergarten and music rooms at Voorheesville Elementary School for an independent after school child care program, the best response the PTSA child care committee could get was a maybe.

"There is a real need in the community," said Nancy Basal as she reviewed the plan. "It's to fill a service gap in the community, to provide a supervised activity for kids after school," she said. "There are no buildings available for something like this," said another resident.

"I don't see that there's any way the public is going to see this as anything other than a Voorheesville School District program," said McKenna, who expressed concern about the district being part of the problem rather than part of the solution. "It has some real traps in it for a school district housing it in a school building," he explained.

"Other people are going to be running it and we're going to be taking the flack," board member Peter Ten Eyck said. Ten Eyck urged the board to consider philosophical questions such as "whether it's our role to foster a program like this."

"As an educator I am well aware of what is happening in our schools," said Berglas, noting that 40 percent of the children are from single-parent families. "I think the school is part and parcel of that problem."

Other members of the board expressed their support of the concept and asked for more details on the actual program. "I think this is a good idea. I don't have any problem with it in principle," said Steven Schreiber. "We've approved the use of the school for less important things than this."

"I'd like to look at details," said David Teuten. "I couldn't vote yea or nay," said Joseph Fernandez. "You don't give me enough to vote on."

Berglas and several members of the board will meet with the group to review plans for the proposal.

The board also heard a report on the district's gifted and talented program. "As far as we can expand the impact of our program, we are attempting to do that," said John Piechnik. "We are serving as many as possible." With regard to the small group activities organized through the program, Piechnik said, "We do not exclude any students who wish to participate."

The board learned that the elementary school's basal reading assessment committee has selected a new reading program published by Ginn and Company. The district's current program, the Scott Foresman reading system, was purchased in 1972. The new program, selected after reviewing the offerings of eight major publishers, will be phased in over a two year period.

"What I want to know is what happened to Fluff?" asked board member Peter Ten Eyck. "And Spot?" asked several other board members. "Spot was hit by a car...very tragic," explained board member Ann Balk in a dejected tone.

In other business, the board:

- Heard fourth grade teacher Peggy Kearns report on a five-day seminar recently offered by the Schalmont Central School District. During the program, entitled "Effective Teacher Teaching Model," Kearns reviewed teaching to an objective, selecting material to the level of students, monitoring learning and reteaching if necessary and, finally, evaluating results.

- Approved the expenditure of $2,830 to repair the heating and cooling system in the gymnasium and auditorium at Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School.

- Voted in favor of following the federal guidelines, rules, regulations and family criteria for full participation in the free and reduced-price lunch program.

- Agreed to place an additional $334 in the mini-grant program in order to fund seven staff projects, including program research and development projects.

- Voted to hire special security from Pinkerton's for total yearly cost of between $900 and $1,000.

- Accepted with regret the resignation of guidance counselor Lady R. Rucinski.

- Initiated a Thomas J. Buckley Memorial Fund to be delegated by the board of education. The purpose of the fund is still being investigated.

- Granted permission to the state Department of Parks and Recreation for use of the Voorheesville Elementary School parking lot during the June 15 Adirondack Region Empire State Games.

- Learned that bids for the insulation of the boiler room at the junior-senior high school will be opened during the week of June 24.

- Approved borrowing resolutions for special proposition items approved by voters

Bouton High School will begin at 7 p.m. as students and teachers, clad in academic robes, parade into the area set up outside. In case of rain the festivities will be held indoors.

This year's speaker, chosen by the senior class, will be newly re-elected board of education member Joseph Fernandez, whose daughter Christine is a member of the class of 1985. Also speaking will be Debra Bausbach and Sharon McKenna presenting the valedictory and salutatory speeches.

School's out

Students at the grade school will be singing "No more pencils" this week as summer vacation begins for them on Thursday at 11:15 a.m. They will be dismissed from classes after an in-school awards assembly to begin at 9 a.m.

There will be no lunches served Thursday.

Summer activities

Those who want to get a jump on the summer activities are invited to come down to the village park on Monday, June 23, to sign up for the many summertime projects sponsored by the Village of Voorheesville, including tennis lessons and basketball. A reminder to those parents of children entering grades 1 to 3 that "summer soccer begins on Tuesday evening, June 24.

Long-term planning

The Voorheesville Fire Department is beginning to swing into action in preparing for the Albany County Convention of Firemen to be held in Voorheesville in 1987. Meeting recently, the volunteer group will soon begin plans for a number of fundraisers to assist them in raising the capital needed to host the large contingent of regional firefighters.

This year's officers, who will be most active in planning the gala event featuring the "largest parade Voorheesville has ever seen on Main Street" are:

Line officers, Ray O'Malley, chief; Dave Bayly, first assistant; Dick Berger, second assistant;

Joseph Fernandez

John Semenick and Rich Blake-man, captains; and Jack Halligan and Mike Hotaling, lieutenants.

Civil officers are Harvey Huth, president; Ron Welker, vice-president; Ed Blackmer, secretary; Pete Kurz, treasurer; Jim Love-day, delegate; and Ted Avginerino, alternate delegate.

Other officers include Clark Thomas, quartermaster; and Bill Gray, captain of the Fire Police.

Legion officers

Another local organization that recently installed new officers is the Voorheesville American Legion and its auxiliary. ## Tops in science

Some students to be feted at the assembly on Thursday will be those fifth and sixth graders who scored high in the National Science Olympics. Fifth grade student David Lancor and sixth grade student Jess Rosenblum will be awarded medals, while certificates will be presented to fifth graders Kathryn Ramsey, Lyra Colfer, Michael Gaafar, Megan Brennan, Brian Goldstein, Aaron McCormick, John Bryan, Laura Blanchard, Joseph Race and Samantha Jones.

Sixth grade certificate winners were Chris Bailey, William Stone, Robert Sarr, Ellen Barber, Tom Martin, Maria Donato, Wendy Meillinger and James Kane.

Science coordinator Donald Otterness was the advisor of the two groups, which placed in the top 11 and 35 percent nationally.

Business student recognized

Another student who recently received honors for her outstanding achievement in business was Maureen Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Thomas. A senior at Clayton A. Bouton, Maureen was honored at a dinner given by the Albany Chapter of the Administrative Management Society, along with other outstanding business students from area high schools.

The event at Siena College in Loudonville included a panel discussion of jobs and job seeking and an address by Peg Breen, a reporter and producer for Channel 17.

Maureen was accompanied to the event by her parents, her sister Cheryl and her business teacher, Jane Willey.

Story hours continue

With school finished, pre-school story hours will be ending on June 21. But not to worry — summer story hours will begin on Tuesday, July 9, and will be held on Tuesdays and Fridays at 10:30 a.m. throughout the summer. In addition, there will again be several bedtime story hours, held on July 25 and Aug. 15, with everyone urged to come in their pajamas and bring their favorite stuffed toy to hear quiet stories and songs.

For young and old alike summer movies will also begin on July 9 with such films as "Charlotte's Web", "The Big Country" and "Oliver" being shown on Tuesdays at 2 p.m. All are welcome to view these free offerings.

Other library offerings

Children in Kindergarten through sixth grade are also welcome to join the Summer Reading Clubs which will meet every Thursday

(K-3) and Friday (4-6) at 4 p.m. for some crafts, movies, and surprises. Over the summer Linda O'Connor will hold a quilting workshop, children will meet author Athena Lord and hear chilling stories told by Mary Murphy. Club meetings will begin on July 11 and 12 and end with Grand Parties on Aug. 29 and 30. All interested readers may sign up at the library beginning the week of June 24.

Finally, the library invites all children age 7 and older to join their pen pal club. If you'd like a new friend in another state or country please leave your name, address, age, sex and any interests or hobbies you have on a sheet of paper with Mrs. Hutchinson. The club's first meeting will be on July 25 at 3 p.m.

A thank-you from PTSA

Have you done anything this year to assist the Voorheesville PTSA? If so the association's members invite you to stop by the American Legion Hall on Friday, June 28, after 8 p.m. so that they may personally thank you. At that time refreshments will be on hand and local D.J. Hank Piquette will be on the scene providing music of the 50's and 60's. Anyone who has helped with any of the many PTSA projects this year is welcome to attend.

Buckley Field?

During the past month there has been a move in progress in Voorheesville to dedicate the high school football field in honor of Coach Tom Buckley, who passed away during the year. With the Kiwanis Club of New Scotland acting as a catalyst, several meetings have been held to plan the many aspects of this project. On Wednesday, June 26, another meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the high school to continue arrangements. All area individuals and organizations are welcome to attend. Those wanting more information may contact Bruce Martelle at 765-4930.

Sky divers drop in on field day

The A.W. Becker PTO calls it Field Day, but if you were to ask the students they might possibly call it Fun Day, or consider it their own special carnival, or liken it to a day at the fair. The event, sponsored annually by the PTO for students at the elementary school, has grown so much that it seems to include all of these.

The excitement began early Friday morning, when from partly cloudy skies the Albany Sky Diving Team made their appearance. Dropping from the skies in a series of aerobatics to the school grounds the six parachutists enthralled the youngsters. That was just the beginning of a day full of fun and excitement. There was the arrival of a 52 ton tank provided by the Army National Guard, accompanied by Sgt. Frank Basquez and local residents Sgts. Dave Pratt and Herb Parisi. There was a real fire engine from the Selkirk Fire Department. They had the opportunity to see a replica of a full-sized old-fashioned horse-drawn bakery wagon belonging to the Freihofers Baking Co., which presented the children with balloons and activity books. And there was a petting zoo to enjoy, with lambs, goats, chickens, ducks and angora rabbits provided by Mrs. Demis of South Bethlehem.

Under the supervision of the many adult volunteers there were all types of races, sporting events and water games throughout the day. Even with all this, the children still found time for a picnic provided at noon, to attend a movie with free popcorn, and to request their own special design painted on their faces.

173 to get RCS diplomas

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School will hold commencement ceremonies for the Class of 1985 this Saturday, June 22, beginning at 6:30 p.m. RCS Board of Education President Anthony Williams will present diplomas to the 173 graduates in a ceremony in the high school courtyard, weather permitting.

The Rev. Lynn Joosten of the Coeymans Reformed Church will deliver the invocation. The benediction will be given by the Rev. Bernard Turner of St. Patrick's Church of Ravena. Valedictorian Garth Wright and salutatorian Susan Gleason also will address the assembly.

Due to a lack of space, graduates will be restricted to nine guests if the ceremonies are held out of doors, and to six guests if weather necessitates holding it inside.

The public is invited to attend baccalaureate services for the seniors on Thursday evening, June 20, at the Congregational Christian Church, Main St., Ravena. The service will begin at 7:30 p.m., with the Rev. Richard Hunter officiating.

Farewell to pastor

Friends of the Rev. Kenneth Miller are invited to attend a farewell luncheon in his honor on Sunday, June 23. Rev. Miller, who has been pastor of the South Bethlehem United Methodist Church for the past three years, is taking a leave of absence from full-time ministry to pursue his interests in pastoral counseling and creative writing.

The covered-dish dinner will follow the regular 11 a.m. service at the church on Willowbrook Ave. in South Bethlehem. Anyone wishing further information may contact Mrs. Dolores Arnheiter or Robert Vaber, program chairman.

First graduation 'real good time'

While graduation exercises can be somber and serious affairs, graduation day for the youngsters of the Creative Play School at the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem was anything but! It may have had a few solemn moments, such as when dressed in caps they had created themselves, the 3- and 4-year-olds were presented diplomas by their teachers, Mrs. Schrom and Mrs. Newkirk. But mostly it was a day just to have a real good time. After receiving their diplomas and presenting Mrs. Gnipp a floral arrangement in gratitude for all the extra time and effort she provided during the school year, the children relaxed and enjoyed "their" day with the many friends and family who attended the graduation and picnic.

Church adds youth aide

Sunday, June 9, the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem celebrated Children's Day with a special program by the church school and with the installation of David Koonz as the new assistant for children and youth.

Koonz, who resides in Selkirk with his wife, Jill, has had considerable experience and training working with young people. He was a teacher in the church school before entering the Air Force, where he worked with the church and the development of youth programs. He has been hired by the church to work on a part-time basis, being responsible for the overall education of the young people within the church and working with the church school superintendents and teachers to develop a new youth program.

7th graders sail the Hudson

On May 30, the RCS Junior High seventh grade Red Team went on a trip aboard the "Clearwater." Departing from the Atlantic Cement Co. docks in Coeymans, the students had an interesting and educational sail on the Hudson River sloop. The students were welcomed by the crew and were invited to participate in the many activities necessary to its sailing, including helping to steer and raise the sails. The students also helped obtain water samples and to prepare tests for algae in the water.

The trip on the "Clearwater," the only full-size Hudson River sloop, was made possible by a gift from the Atlantic Cement Co. that covered more than half the cost.

DAR installs slate

Flag Day and its ninth birthday were celebrated by Hannakrois Chapter of NSDAR in New Baltimore at a family picnic at the Ronald E. Newton home. Members and guests enjoyed the view of passing watercraft on the Hudson River and a slide show comparing U.S. Navy and Soviet ships. Questions were welcomed by naval reserve Capt. Harold Goldman.

Officers for 1985-86 are: Regent, Mrs. Ronald E. Newton; vice-regent, Mrs. Bruce Fernald; chaplain, Mrs. Stephen C. Coye; recording secretary, Mrs. Donald D. Devitt; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Richard P. Law; historian, Mrs. Paul E. Ackerman; treasurer, Mrs. Mary E. Lyon Van Oostenbrugge; registrar, Mrs. Gilbert E. Houk; librarian, Mrs. Irving P. Verschoor. Helen Coye was given an ex-regent's pin.

Members of the Albany Sky Diving Team dropped in for field day Friday at A.W. Becker Elementary School. Spotlight

The recent yard sale at the home of Mrs. S. Benjamin Meyers in Voorheesville was a success. On June 7, Louella Meyers and Constance M. Devitt attended the Capital District Round Table at the Van Dyke Hotel in Schenectady. Hannakrois Chapter received a national program award for "use of theme in program titles" in its 1984-85 yearbook.

Adams moving to Vets site

A landmark Four Corners business is moving to a new location down the street, replacing another Delmar mainstay that is going out of business.

Adams Hardware, 380 Delaware Ave., will move into the Vets Garage building sometime this summer. Frank Mesiti, owner and proprietor of Adams Hardware, purchased the building at 333 Delaware from Don and Catherine Halsdorf last week.

The purchase price was not disclosed.

A tenant business in the Vets building, a coffee shop-lunchroom, will continue on the premises, Mesiti said.

Mesiti said he plans to expand his business lines and services, and also construct a one-story addition at the rear of the present Vets building. The 50-by-43-foot addition will add more than 2,000 square feet to the structure, which currently occupies approximately 4,000 square feet.

Halsdorf said he is retiring from the business for reasons of health. He and his brother Dave, who died last year, started the automotive body shop with a coal stove, a shallow pit and a $2,000 GI loan in 1946 in a former Amoco station just east of the D&H underpass opposite Tool's Restaurant.

BUSINESS

"We've had our ups and downs like everybody else, but it's been a good business and this is a fine community," Halsdorf said last week. Meanwhile he is working extra hours to get out the work in the shop before the deadline, and his wife is helping to close out 39 years of bookwork in the front office.

Don Halsdorf purchased his brother's interest in the business in 1975 and has run it with his wife since that time. As for his future plans, he said he's "been too busy to think about that."

Mesiti, who lives in Albany, and two partners purchased the long-established Adams Hardware business from Bob and Betty Adams in 1980. Included in the transaction were two buildings, the main structure fronting on the Four Corners and a two-story building in the rear that accommodated a storage area, garage and apartments.

Mesiti plans to retain the Four Corners property and indicated he would make the buildings available for new tenants once the move had been completed.

The three-story building currently housing the hardware store has approximately 2100 square feet of floor space on the first floor.

Mesiti has been the sole proprietor since buying out his partners, John Pinto and Edward Feeley, three years ago.

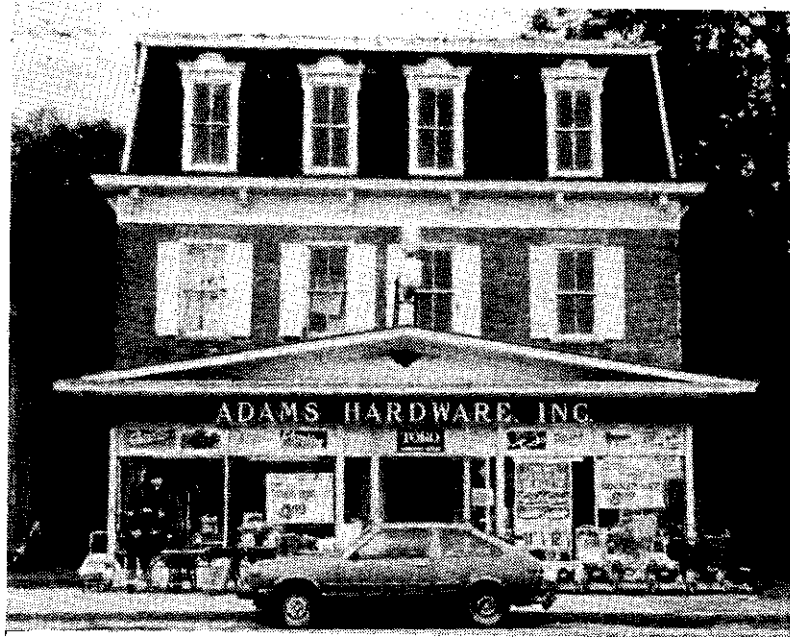

Adams Hardware, which had been operating as an independent business, signed as an affiliate of the True Value national marketing and distribution syndicate four months ago. Mesiti said the new affiliation will enable him to expand his hardware lines as well as electrical and plumbing lines. Once in the larger location, he said, the store will stock a full line of housewares and selected builders and construction materials.

Adams also plans to expand its small engine shop, and will have a service counter for parts, accessories and repairs for mowers, snowblowers and other small engines.

Promoted at Blass

Cathi Anne Cameron, Glenmont, has been promoted to the position of public relations specialist by R. T. Blass, Inc.

A graduate of the Doane Stuart School, Cameron received a B.A. from Denison University in 1982.

Adams Hardware, above, at the Four Corners will soon move to the building currently occupied by Vet's Garage. Spotlight

WARNING!

Before having your Carpets or Upholstery Steam Cleaned read this:

So-called "steam" cleaning methods can be injurious to your fine carpeting. If steam (212°F) were used it would be ruinous! Actually, what is used is just hot water, sometimes with added detergent. And water left in carpeting is often harmful—causing mildew, shrinkage and browning injuring carpet fibers, backing, under pad and flooring. Tests show up to 6 gallons of liquid left in a 9' x 12' area. That's a whale of a lot of liquid! Such soggy carpeting can take as much as 9 hours for even the surface to dry! And that still leaves the backing, under pad and floor damp! So, you would be well advised to play it safe by using the method recommended by leading carpet manufacturers—almost 40 years of experience. It deposits dry foam (not liquid), brushes it deep into the pile and vacuums the soiled foam back into the machine. The dirt, engulfed in foam, is removed simultaneously before it can sink back down into the carpet. Result: your carpeting is cleaned thoroughly, not superficially. Since only foam is used, carpeting is ready for use in about an hour. Shrinkage, mildew and browning (often resulting from "steam" or other hot water extraction methods) are eliminated. Von Schrader is the only single unit that both shampoos and vacuums in just one pass. It's patented.

So—for a safe method with beautiful results—you'll be wise to call us for further information and free estimate.

Frosh earns letter

Aryan Shayegani, a 1984 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, has been awarded a varsity letter as a member of the University of Rochester women's tennis team. Shayegani, a freshman majoring in biology, played both singles and doubles for the Yellowjackets.

At Bethlehem Central, Shayegani earned four varsity tennis letters under coach Grace Franze.

In 1982 and '83, she was a member of the Section II championship doubles team and a member of the overall championship team.

Hams to operate

A group of Bethlehem and Albany amateur radio operators will hold a 24-hour emergency training exercise from 2 p.m. on June 22 until 2 p.m. on June 23 at Bethlehem's Elm Avenue Park.

All are welcome to observe, ask questions and possibly participate.

Joneses take 2 BTA titles

Spotlight SPORTS

The Jones family took home two titles and a strong second at the Bethlehem Tennis Association's spring tournament, held over the past two weekends. Finals for both the A and B flights were held last Saturday and Sunday.

Men's A singles winner was Craig Jones, who defeated William Colquhoun, 7-5, 6-4 with a fine display of serve and volley and baseline shotmaking. B singles champion was Ian Yeats, who bested Ira Bloom, 6-2, 6-3. The men's A doubles title went to Larry Steiffel and Neil Slattery, 1-6, 7-5, 6-1, who were down 2-5 in the second set and a mere two points away from losing the match before they rallied. Steve Kafka and Charles Snow took the men's B doubles title, 6-3, 6-4, against Stanley and Eric Lee.

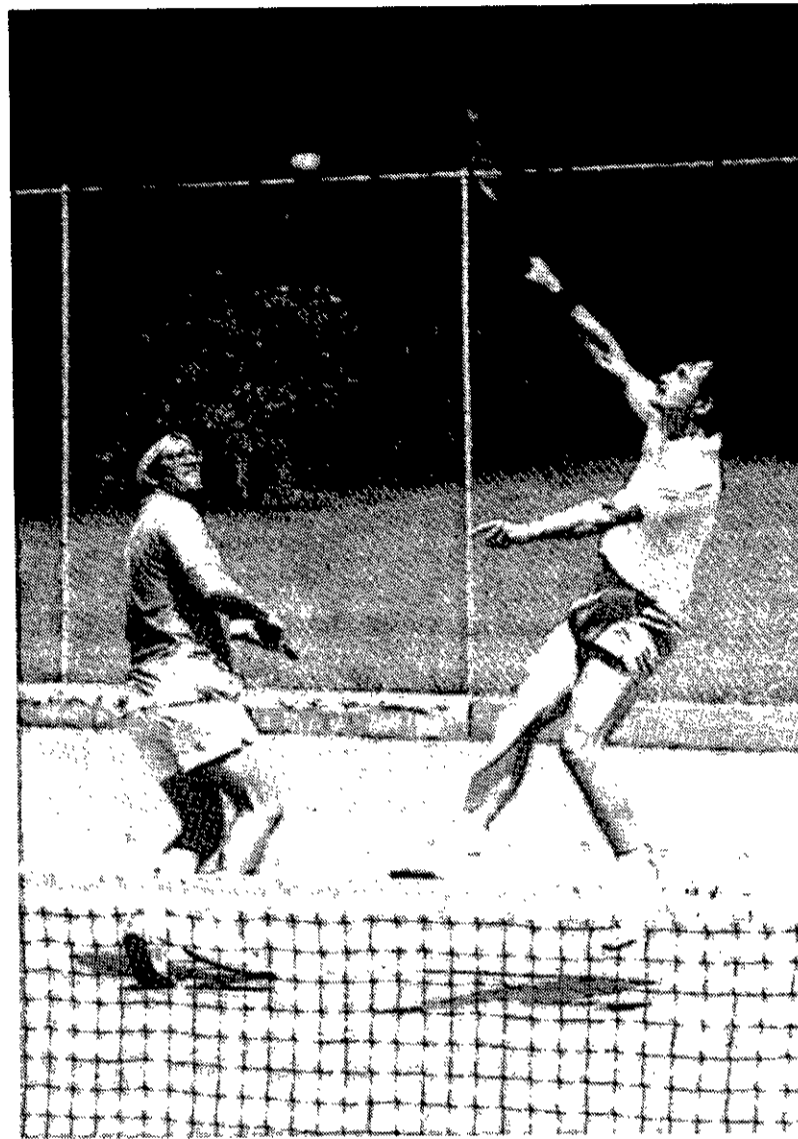

The women players in the tournament experienced the unusual phenomenon of having to play more rounds than the men to reach the finals. Women's events often suffer thin draws, but the BTA tourney turned that around, attracting 12 players in the A singles to the men's eight, for example. Linda Burtis defended her A singles title, challenged by Kristen Jones in a tough 6-3, 6-1 final. Jones, who is ranked eighth in the Eastern Tennis Association's 12 and under category, played a strong tournament, beating Lynn Phelps and Kathy Ernst, two formidable local players to the finals.

Kristen teamed up with her sister, Jody, to win the Women's doubles title, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. The B singles title saw Charlotte Maeder defeat Sue Nye 6-2, 7-5, while Eileen Snow and Kitty Murphy won the doubles, 6-2, 6-3 over Nancy Ackerman and Stephanie Temshin.

Michael Harrison and Linda Burtis took the A mixed doubles championship in a 6-2, 6-0 final against Kathy and Ian Yeats, and Kathy and David Ernst were winners in the B flight, 6-3, 7-6 over Maryann Harper and Jamie Greenberg.

Rick Feldson watches as partner Dave Ernst slams an overhead in their BTA men's A doubles match Saturday against Jim Armstrong and Tom Roe. Tom Howes

Douglas to continue tradition

By Peter J. Fisch

Peter Douglas, longtime teacher and coach in the Voorheesville school system, has been named head varsity football coach. He succeeds Thomas J. Buckley, who died suddenly two months ago. Buckley, head coach for 22 years at Voorheesville, was instrumental in forming 11-man football teams for small schools in the area, and helped form the Southern Conference in 1965.

At Voorheesville, Douglas coached junior varsity football for 13 years before joining the varsity as an assistant two years ago. Now the 40-year-old inherits a program known for a fine tradition of top-grade football. "My main goal is to continue the fine program at Voorheesville that Coach Buckley and those before him established," commented Douglas.

Douglas, a 1963 graduate of Voorheesville High School and a graduate of Hillsdale College, has taught at the elementary school for the past 16 years. In addition to football, he has coached boys basketball at the junior high and freshman levels and girls basketball at the varsity level.

"There's not much difference between junior varsity and varsity coaching," noted Douglas. "There's more pressure on the varsity level. It's not any more difficult to coach. Coaching is coaching no matter what level."

During his senior year of high school, Douglas was a member of Buckley's first Blackbird squad. "I've learned my football from Coach Buckley. He let me learn and taught me a lot. You could say

I grew with the program."

Superintendent Werner Berglas praised the new appointment. "He's been a very steady influence on the kids," Berglas said.

The coaching staff will remain basically the same, with junior varsity coach John Sittig stepping up to join Douglas. Denny Ullion will continue as an assistant. Douglas is planning to keep the program the same. "Very few changes will occur. The approach and the philosophy will remain the same. The tradition of hard-nosed Blackbird football will still be here," he said.

A strong nucleus returning from last year's squad could help Douglas's start at head coaching. Still, the new coach wasn't predicting anything. "I've learned not to predict anything. All I can say is that I'm ready for the challenge."

Amy Smith and Eddie Luberda, above and on the cover, won the race for children 12 to 15 years on Father's Day at Hamagraal Elementary School.

Request denied

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Board of Education has denied an equipment request from the Sports Association, formerly the Men's Association.

The denial at the board's June 3 meeting clears the way for the Sports Association to present the equipment as a gift to the district.

The board also scheduled the district's organizational meeting for July 1.

New Salem market

A flea market and auction will be held at the New Salem Reformed Church from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 29.

Spaces may be reserved by calling Barbara Van Zetten at 439-6179. Persons who wish to donate usable items should call 765-2279.

Crash hurts woman

A Coeymans Hollow woman was taken to St. Peter's Hospital in Albany Thursday night after an accident on Krumkill Rd. in North Bethlehem, according to Bethlehem police reports. Lisa Morse, 19, was taken to the hospital by the Delmar Fire Department Rescue Squad after her car was involved in a collision with a car driven by an 87-year-old Albany man, police reported. She was treated and released, a hospital spokesman said.

Police said the elderly man's vehicle continued on and struck a car being operated by a Delmar woman that had stopped at the stop sign on Schoolhouse Rd. No charges were listed on the accident report.

Win swim awards

Sandi Blendell and Eric Patrick were awarded the annual Diane C. Clyne Memorial Scholarship Awards earlier this month by the Delmar Dolphins Swim Club.

The $200 awards were established by the Clyne family and are given to one male and one female each spring. Criteria set up by the family and the club includes swimming leadership and example, positive attitude, fortitude, assistance and encouragement to other swimmers as a swimmer, assistant or teacher in the program.

Both recipients are members of Bethlehem Central's varsity swim teams.

Roberts' Newkirk fans 12 in toting up a 2-hitter

Roberts Realty ace Robby Newkirk was at his best Saturday night in Tri-Village Major League play as he led his team to a 6-3 victory over Main Care. Newkirk allowed only two hits and struck out 12. Also contributing was Scott Thornton, who smacked a pair of doubles. Josh Pierce, David Lorette and Chris Siciliano each had singles.

Brent Kosoc provided the only two hits for Main Care, homering and singling. Defensively for Main Care, center fielder Brenda Fryer played an excellent game.

Earlier in the week Price Greenleaf routed Starwood, 17-2, with a slew of multiple-hit performances. For the victors, Jed Colquhoun had three singles and four RBIs, and Jay Tarbell drove in five runs with three hits. Scott Fish singled twice and doubled, and Jim O'Brien had two two-base hits. For Starwood, Brian Shepley hit a double and a single and Keith Rabideau a double.

Spotlight had an easy time defeating Farm Family, 11-1. Despite the loss, Farm Family was strong at the plate. Chris Black singled and doubled, Brendan O'Brien had a pair of hits, and Mike Pratt and Matte Wiles each singled.

Dolphins host 300 at BC

Nearly 300 swimmers helped kick off the summer season at Bethlehem Central High School last Saturday in the Delmar Dolphins' annual Out-of-Shape Meet.

Competing against swimmers from all parts of the Adirondack District, first-place finishes were rare for the host Dolphins. In the 13-14-year-old girls division, Jenny Mosley captured a first, two seconds and a third. Justin Baird grabbed two seconds, a third and a fourth and Chris Drew took a first and a second for the boys of the same age group. Lisa Ogawa, competing in the senior girls division, captured two seconds and a third.

In the relay events, the Dolphins placed third in the 10-and-under girls group (Jessica Baird, Melissa Mann, Sharon Reiss and Nina Teresi), third in the 11-12-year-old boys (David Cleary, Paul Engel, Patrick Fish and Drew Patrick), and second in the senior girls (Jenny Halsdorf, Tracie Mull, Ogawa and Christina Rudofsky). Also winning individual awards were Jon Brookins, Halsdorf and Mull.

Blanchard bows to Colonie

Ray Roohan pitched a strong five-hitter only to fall short for Blanchard Post in a 2-1 loss to Colonie in American Legion baseball last week.

In other action, Blanchard used the shutout pitching of Jeff Mackey and capitalized on Fort Orange miscues to post a 4-0 win. Blanchard managed only two hits but rallied for all four runs in the top half of the fourth inning. Capping off the week, Blanchard pushed across three runs in the bottom of the seventh but it wasn't enough as Zaloga took a 5-3 contest.

Trail ends in scouting honor

Last Friday night in the Voorheesville Elementary School gym scouting's highest honor, the Eagle Scout award, was bestowed on Ed Donohue. To qualify for this prestigious award Donohue completed over 21 merit badges as well as a major project on the Vly Creek Nature Trail.

With the help of grade school science coordinator Donald Otterness, Ed planned the tasks and organized the work parties that refurbished fences, planted shrubs, removed rocks from the stream and repaired structures meant to prevent stream bank erosion.

Donohue has participated in scouting since he became a Cub Scout in second grade, and has garnered several other awards, including the Pope Pius XII Award and the Ad Altari Dei. He is presently a candidate to become a member of the Order of the Arrow.

While in scouting, he has held several positions of leadership in the troop and is presently the Junior Assistant Scout Master, according to Lanny Parsons, scoutmaster of Voorheesville's troop 73.

During the course of the impressive Court of Honor ceremony, young Donohue received numerous commendations, including letters from President Reagan and Gov. Mario Cuomo, as well as a number of personal accolades from Boy Scout officials and area leaders such as Don Hooks, commander of Voorheesville's American Legion; Chet Boehlke, exalted ruler of the New Scotland Elks; and newly appointed mayor, Edward Clark.

Son of Ed and Joann Donohue, Ed has just finished his junior year at Clayton A. Bouton High School, where he is a member of the track team, the golf team, Key Club and the Philosophy Club.

AMENDMENT TO THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM ALBANY COUNTY, NEW YORK

THE TOWN BOARD OF THE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM, ALBANY COUNTY, NEW YORK DOES HEREBY AMEND the Zoning Ordinance of the Town of Bethlehem, and does hereby enact as follows:

1. Add a new ARTICLE VI-A following ARTICLE VI Highway Frontage and Access to read as follows:

1. That portion of a lot or parcel which abuts a State, County or Town highway (or street) - or a proposed highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town Board - shall be known as the abutment of the lot or parcel on such highway (or street). The term "highway frontage" may also be used in reference to the abutment of a lot or parcel on such highways (or streets).

2. For a residential use in any zoning district, the lot or parcel on which such use is to be erected shall abut an existing State, County or Town highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town-for a distance of not less than twenty-eight (28) feet. Ownership of such abutment shall be in fee simple. Easements and other similar incidents of ownership shall not satisfy this requirement.

3. In the event that more than one residential building is proposed to be erected on a single lot or parcel in any zoning district, such lot or parcel shall abut an existing State, County or Town highway (or street) - or a proposed highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town Board - for a distance of not less than twenty-eight (28) feet per residential building (dwelling). Ownership of such abutment shall be in fee simple. Easements and other similar incidents of ownership shall not satisfy this requirement.

4. Means of access, such as a driveway, for a lot or parcel to be occupied by a residential use shall occur or be located within the abutment of such lot or parcel on an existing State, County or Town highway (or street) - or on a proposed highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town. HOWEVER, on a corner lot an access driveway shall not be located so that it connects with the traveled portion of a highway (or street) within the curve joining such highway (or street) with the intersecting highway (or street).

5. In respect to those lots (some of which are commonly known as "estate" lots, "keyhole" lots, "flag" lots or "panhandle" lots) where the required abutment on a municipal highway (or street) is by means of a relatively long and narrow strip of land, the minimum distance between the property line of one such strip and the property line of another such strip. The minimum distance between such strips shall not include either strip.

6. The provisions of this Article shall not apply to Planned Development Districts.
This amendment to the Zoning Ordinance shall take effect ten days after publication as required by law.

The foregoing amendment to the Zoning Ordinance was presented for adoption by Mrs. Ritchko, was seconded by Mrs. Bickel, and was duly adopted by the following vote:

Sales tax and schools

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to add a few comments to your article about the possibility of Albany County school districts sharing in the county sales tax revenues. The article, unfortunately, painted a very negative picture, leading one to believe that these revenues are the "hands off" domain of the Albany County Executive, who would have us further believe that these funds are better used to pay off anticipated bonding of the Civic Center.

And that's just where the money will go unless the taxpayers of the county begin to realize that these funds are a reflection of the county's economy and are properly shared not only by the county and its towns, cities and villages, but also with its school districts. A number of counties already share their sales tax revenues in varying formulas with their school districts, as provided for in state law. But Albany County is not likely to propose any formulas for revenue sharing unless there is good reason for it. That reason could well be a taxpayer revolt. Do we really want to see our sales tax revenues used to fund the Civic Center in downtown Albany while we face a continuing decline in state aid that forces us to fund proportionately greater amounts of our school budget with local taxes? This year state aid accounts for only 21 percent of the Bethlehem school budget — the state average is 41 percent funding.

I am not necessarily opposed to the building of the Civic Center. What I am opposed to is the "sleight of hand" methods being used to divert funds from the taxpayers to the few who stand to benefit from the center.

One of the latest proposals includes an increase in the county "bed tax," a portion of which may go to the county tourist bureau in exchange for acceptance of this tax on hotel and motel accommodations.

So here we are looking at a logical and dynamic source of relief for local school taxpayers and what are we going to do about it? The administration and board of education of the Bethlehem Central School District have been requesting consideration of revenue sharing for a number of years and we will continue to do so, but we recognize that there might not be much time left to act. Will the county be allowed to use the sales tax revenues to fund the Civic Center rather than to come to the aid of local taxpayers? It is up to each of you. Decide how you want your taxes spent and let your voice be heard. Tell Jim Coyne that until the school districts are allowed to share in these revenues you're not willing to have your taxes fund his dream.

Touched many lives

Editor, The Spotlight:

A few days ago, the advertising community lost its dean, a family lost a loved one, and Hope House lost a friend.

It seems so simple and practical when one's name is listed in the obituary page and a funeral is held followed by a period of mourning. These activities do not seem adequate for a person who has touched the lives of so many people throughout the Capital District and beyond.

Al Kellert epitomized man's sense of responsibility to his fellow man. He dedicated the majority of his life to voluntarily serving and meeting the needs of the underprivileged and the less fortunate. He did this with an enthusiasm and a commitment which challenged others to action.

Every time we lose someone like Al Kellert, the fabric of our society becomes fragile, requiring new replenishment. Who can ever replace Al Kellert?

Our Bethlehem Central school board didn't compromise on the Challenge program. I think they caved in and pandered to the interests of educational mediocrity.

There when needed

Editor, The Spotlight:

Thanks to Sgt. (Leo) Dorsey, Jr., of the Bethlehem Police Department and to the Delmar Ambulance Squad for the kindness and prompt, professional care they gave our daughter, Crystal, recently, when she was bitten by a dog.

It is easy to take these services for granted until you need help.

Check It Out

BETHLEHEM PUBLIC LIBRARY

Jean Rockwood of Slingerlands borrows best sellers, especially "big, long ones," like Michener or LeCarre," detective and mystery novels, and always appreciates a good book about sailing, which she did a lot when her health was better. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smultz of Glenmont like to read to pass the time away. Mrs. Smultz, 82, is fond of stories about families, the South, American Indians and light romances. Her husband, 90, enjoys Westerns and has read almost every one in the library's collection. Ethel Pratt of Delmar at age 94 has failing eyesight but the library's "talking books" allow her to keep up her interest in money matters and Soviet-American relations.

Yet these avid library users may not have been in the library for years — the library comes to them. They are among the homebound seniors who have reading and listening materials delivered to them regularly by the library's van service. The van delivery is the most visible of the Books to People services the Bethlehem Public Library provides for area senior citizens.

Two volunteers, Mrs. Erma Cedilotte and Mrs. MaryJo Maercklein, have been taking library books to the Good Samaritan nursing home in Delmar for six years. Twice a month they deliver for the home's 100 residents about 50 regular and large print books.

For those persons in need of special aids and services the library is wheelchair accessible and provides a walker, wheelchair, and magnifying glass available for use in the library. Every Wednesday from 4 to 7 p.m. The library's Channel 7 broadcasts selections from Newsweek and The Spotlight including Times Remembered and Family Matters. Volunteers are also currently reading aloud excerpts from William Kennedy's novel Ironweed and Dorothy Sayers mystery Strong Poison.

A recent series of articles in The Albany Times Union about the aging of suburbia pointed out that senior citizens need community services of this kind. The Town of Bethlehem has a high proportion of retired residents. Many have reduced incomes, making it difficult to buy their own recreational and educational reading materials.

For the many active and busy retirees in the town the library is a source of tax, investment, estate planning, medical and consumer information. The library also helps seniors use their leisure time. Retired persons borrow books on travel, hobbies, and crafts, and many enjoy coming to the library to read and study in the quiet and relaxed atmosphere of the lounge areas.

Almost all library services are free of charge and the library is open 70 hours a week for most of the year. For information call "Books to People" librarian Melanie Harwell at 439-9314.
