Can Bethlehem live with redistricting plan?

By Caroline Terenzini

The report from the Bethlehem Central committee that sought a solution to crowding at the Glenmont Elementary School impressed most observers with its scholarship, but last Wednesday when it was presented to the school board doubts were raised as to whether it would solve the problem.

Richard Alba of Delmar, a professor at the State University at Albany and chairperson of the committee, made the presentation and fielded questions. Copies of the 19-page report, which includes a map, are available at the Education Services Center, 90 Adams Pl., Delmar, and also are to be in the offices of each of the district's elementary schools. No discussion of the proposal is expected until fall, however, so that summer vacations will not interfere with public input.

But what was said Wednesday made it clear there is plenty to talk about. Several board members and observers raised questions, including Glenmont Principal Donald J. Robillard, who was applauded by some among the audience of 50 when he said, "I appreciate what you've done, but I'm not sure you've solved our problem."

The committee recommended a "four-school balance plan" — leaving out the Clarksville Elementary School — that sought to distribute the remaining 1,428 pupils (the estimate for 1986-87) among the other four elementary schools, filling each to almost 94 percent of capacity. Clarksville was eliminated from the proposed redistricting because of its distance from the other four "in-town" elementary schools, the report said. The committee's plan calls for assigning the approximately 100 kindergarten through fifth grade pupils in Elm Estates, in Selkirk, to the Hamagrael Elementary School and then assigning approximately the same number of students in what is now the Hamagrael attendance area to

The civic center goes by the book

The Albany County Legislature is again slated to be the pivotal control agency for the proposed county civic center. But with more than enough votes apparently lined up to approve the $30 million bond issue needed to finance the center, whatever impact the legislature has is likely to come from the questions it asks.

Legislative leaders predict they have enough votes to pass the funding measure later this summer if state lawmakers clear the way for it by passing the latest version of a home rule civic center bill.

That version, the outgrowth of political maneuvering last week, does away with County Executive James C. Coyne's plan to have the independent Industrial Development Agency issue the financing bonds to build the center and then lease it to the county.

The county governing body in special session Monday approved 32-7 a home rule message that permits the state legislature to vote on the twice-amended bill. Later that evening the Assembly approved the new version of the bill, and it is expected to go through the Senate next week.

Coyne decided last week to forgo the IDA approach after State Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson made it clear that the Senate would pass enabling legislation only if Albany County is the fiscal agent for the project, which would be built with state and county monies.

The bill before the state legislators transfers four acres of state land to the county for the center site in downtown Albany and allows the county to triple its one percent hotel occupancy tax and use the revenues — about $700,000 a year — to help pay for the center.

Assured of control, the county legislature probably would deliver "well in excess of 30 votes for the bond issue," according to majority leader Harold L. Joyce.

"I would be surprised if I'm

□ Civic center

wrong on that," Joyce said.

The legislature needs two thirds majority approval — 26 votes — to issue general obligation bonds. If all 26 Democrat members voted for the bond issue, the Republican minority votes would not even be needed.

Locally, the plan still has its skeptics. Slingerlands Republican Robert W. Hoffmeister already has said he will vote against the issue because the people in his district have indicated "they don't consider it an appropriate use of county money."

But whether or not they want the civic center, Hoffmeister and other legislators said they are glad to have the IDA out of the picture.

The matter belongs before the legislature, said Republican James C. Ross of Delmar. Ross said Coyne "failed to keep foremost in mind that the civic center is proposed for the people and is not his civic center."

Republican Michael A. Ricci of Voorheesville pointed out that he continually has insisted that the legislature should be the body to either reject or approve the matter.

But he objected to the last-minute bill amendment, calling it "crisis legislation."

Hoffmeister, Ross and Ricci were among the legislators who voted against the home rule message.

Minority leader W. Gordon Morris of Elsmere voted for the message, saying he was happy to see the civic center matter back where it belongs.

But, he said, "the Democratic members of the legislature now will have to decide whether they are going to burden the taxpayers of Albany County."

Referring to the county executive, and his downtown office building, Morris said the Democrats "have preferred to hide behind the anointed one at 112 State Street, but now we will all have to answer to our constituents."

The county legislators also approved by voice vote a resolution setting up a nine-member committee that probably would serve as a standing committee "to evaluate and make recommendations concerning all matters which they deem appropriate relating to the civic center." Three Colonie Republicans are on the committee.

Morris voted against it on grounds the duties were not spelled out.

Before the session, Joyce expressed his concern that the legislative delays have kept the civic center proposal see-sawing between the county and state legislatures.

"How many provisions, ifs and buts are we going to have to respond to before this facility, which would benefit the county, is approved?" he asked.

The status of steps already taken by the IDA seems to be uncertain. It has hired consultants and a management firm for design and construction of the 15,000-seat center.

But since industrial development agencies were created by the state primarily to encourage economic development by making low-interest financing available to private developers, the county IDA may not have ever been the correct agency to finance the civic center, informed sources say. That is one of the reasons the state Senate leaders balked at passing the center financing bill.

Neil L. Moylan of Delmar was state commerce commissioner when the industrial development authorities were originated during Nelson Rockefeller's governorship.

Moylan was a key person in urging their creation in order to give the state a competitive edge for attracting businesses. Moylan has noted that although the concept has been altered since that time, Coyne's proposed use of the county agency was debatable. Moylan is currently a member of Bethlehem's Industrial Development Agency.

Harmon makes it to Moscow

Delmar resident Millard Harmon landed at Sheremetyevo Airport in Moscow last week in his single-engine Beechcraft 36. But, once again, his mission of friendship had less than the desired impact. Soviet airport officials insisted that Harmon remain in an airport hotel room throughout the duration of his stay because his approved visa had not arrived.

Stephen Honeybill, producer for WMHT, accompanied Harmon through part of his journey from the United States.

Despite the lack of a visa, Harmon completed the last leg of his journey, from Helsinki, Finland, to Moscow, claiming to be the first person to fly the route in a CIC class aircraft.

Last year Harmon embarked on a similar mission, with plans to land at Moscow on July 4; but, Soviet officials denied him permission to enter Soviet airspace.

Harmon began his return flight from Moscow to the United States last Thursday.

the Elsmere and Slingerlands schools (see map).

In developing its plan, the committee followed guidelines that included creating "smooth, rational boundaries, keeping neighborhoods together, using natural boundaries where possible and moving as few people as possible.

Board members Barbara Coon and Bernard Harvith questioned whether, in fact, the Clarksville school should be excluded from any redistricting because of its location. And Harvith, board colleague Charles Reeves and Robillard wondered whether a plan that fills each elementary school to almost 94 percent capacity would leave enough room in Glenmont for future growth.

New attendance boundaries for four of Bethlehem Central's five elementary schools have been proposed by a district committee that studied projected enrollment and available space. The committee has recommended moving sections A, B and C on the map from Hamagrael to the Elsmere attendance area, and moving section D from Hamagrael to Slingerlands. Section E (Elm Estates), now in Glenmont, would be assigned to Hamagrael.

Glenmont PTA President Beverly McGrath said, "It would be prudent to use all available space — and to do it right the first time." She presented a petition bearing, she said, 700 signatures of residents districtwide endorsing total redistricting with "all five elementary schools receiving an equal percentage of enrollment proportionate to the building capacity."

"The slack (in the committee's proposal) seems to me to be awfully tight," Harvith said. "We ought to take the time here to get a 15- or 20-year solution."

Harvith offered an alternative proposal — "just to give people something to think about" — that would move all fifth graders to the middle school, which now houses grades six through eight, and all eighth graders to the high school. Harvith said he saw educational value in this plan in that high school courses would then be readily available to eighth graders, as required by the new Regents' Action Plan, in that foreign language instruction and accelerated classes then would be available to fifth graders. In addition, Harvith said, moving the fifth graders out of the elementary school would give the Challenge Program teachers time to extend the offering to lower grades. Under a plan recently approved by the board, Challenge enrichment would be provided only for grades three through five.

Moving the fifth graders (but not the eighth) had been considered but rejected by the committee in its deliberation.

The committee confined itself to a five-year enrollment projection because "longer-term forecasts (of both enrollment and new housing) are not reliable," Alba said. Harvith and others, however, saw problems with that time frame.

The committee came under fire, too, for not conducting a meeting for public input, as had been expected and as the board recently had requested. "I do apologize that we did not have a public meeting," Alba said. "At one point, we didn't know enough. Then we found we had a recommendation. We felt it would not be appropriate to reveal it at a public hearing. Our first report had to be to the school board."

"Our meetings were open to the public," he added, prompting several board members and observers to express surprise. The state's open meetings (or "Sunshine") law stipulates that when a quorum of a public body — including a committee — is convened, that is a public meeting. Several exceptions, none of which apply here, were written into the law. No one other than committee members attended any of the panel's 11 meetings, Alba said.

As if redistricting weren't sticky enough, the board also heard from several residents of Elm Estates who said they were upset over the lack of progress in determining the boundary between the Bethlehem and Ravena-Coymans-Selkirk school districts. The boundary has had an uncertain status for several years, but the problem has become more widely discussed as more homes were built in that area. Board President Sheila Fuller said the boundary appears differently on three maps and that as soon as both sides agree on which map to use, "then we can sit down and talk."

At an RCS board meeting last week, several members of that board said they favored having attorneys for both districts come up with a settlement, while the Bethlehem board last Wednesday asked for a joint meeting of the two boards. Roger Fritts, attorney for the Bethlehem district, said he believed the problem could be resolved only by a joint meeting of the boards. He criticized a story in last week's Spotlight that quoted RCS board members as saying they had been trying to resolve the problem for several years and that quoted the RCS superintendent as saying the problem was back in Bethlehem's hands.

Fritts later clarified his remarks: "My criticism of that article was directed at its quoted material and in no way related to Spotlight coverage," he said.

Fritts told the concerned parents that he had been working on the problem about 10 months. "It is not a matter that can be easily resolved," he said. The island of RCS taxpayers surrounded by Bethlehem properties is a problem that was not created by the school districts, he noted later.

In other business, the board:

- Approved negotiated pay raises for the principals and gave the three central administrators 6 percent raises, the same percentage given this year to both teachers and noninstructional employees. Reeves voted no on the motion, and Barbara Coon abstained.

- Granted tenure to seven teachers, with Reeves again voting no and Marjory O'Brien, who objects to the tenure system, and Velma Cousins abstaining. Reeves explained later that he would prefer a probationary period longer than the three years set by the state. The vote came after a 25-minute executive session requested by Cousins.

- Gave the football boosters' group the green light to buy and install lights at the high school field.

What the law says about open meetings

A rose is a rose is a rose, as Gertrude Stein so eloquently put it, but is a public meeting a public meeting?

Yes, says the state's open meetings, or "sunshine" law, which was passed in 1977 to protect the public's right to attend meetings of public bodies and to observe governmental decision-making. The law defines a public meeting as the "official convening of a public body (two or more people) for the purpose of discussing public business." Such a meeting is a public meeting regardless of whether there is any intention to take action. And while the law does not require that the public be allowed to speak at the meeting, the public body may grant the privilege.

The Open Meetings Law requires that the time and place of all public meetings be announced. For a meeting scheduled at least a week in advance, notice must be given to the public and the news media 72 hours before the meeting. Notice to the public is accomplished by posting in one or more designated public locations. For a meeting scheduled less than a week in advance, notice must be given "to the extent practicable" before the meeting.

A reason often given for not advertising a meeting is that public bodies function most efficiently when not under public scrutiny, but the question arises then as to how responsive to the public that board or committee is.

The question came up recently when several Bethlehem Central school board members and observers said they hadn't known that meetings of committees appointed by the board are open to the public. Apparently a number of others didn't know that such meetings are open, too, because — despite the public interest evidenced in the topics on other occasions — no observer attended any of the 11 meetings of the district's committee examining space and enrollment, and no one other than a reporter attended any meetings of the district's Challenge Review Committee.

If the Bethlehem and Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school boards get together to discuss a common boundary, that meeting should be open to the public, according to Robert Freeman, executive director of the state's Committee on Open Government. "With a quorum of either body present, the meeting would come under the open meetings law, he said. In addition, case law has determined that a joint meeting of two public bodies is properly a public meeting. While there is an exception for a meeting concerning proposed or current litigation, Freeman said, its purpose is to permit a public body to discuss its litigation strategy in private so as not to bare the strategy to an adversary. However, with two potential adversaries getting together, Freeman said, there are no grounds for the exception.

Public bodies can conduct a closed, or "executive," session, but only as part of an open meeting. The law stipulates that public bodies may — not must — have closed sessions on eight subjects, including collective negotiations, proposed or current litigation, and matters concerning particular employees. Public bodies may vote in closed session on all matters except appropriation of public money, but minutes of such meetings detailing what action was taken must be prepared.

Companion legislation, the state's Freedom of Information Law, requires that when a vote is taken, the record must identify how individual members voted.

Sentencing due

Kathleen Murphy, 26, of Ravena is to be sentenced July 10 on a charge of third degree attempted criminal sale of a controlled substance, a class C felony, according to a spokesman for the Albany County district attorney's office. Murphy pleaded guilty to the charge Thursday in County Court. She had originally been charged with two class B felony counts stemming from the alleged sale of cocaine to a Bethlehem Police Department informant, authorities said. Murphy was arrested April 4.

Preschool chugging along

By Lorraine C. Smith
It isn't every 10 year old who gets a train with 10 cars for a birthday cake. But then Bethlehem Preschool, based in the original Glenmont school, isn't just any 10 year old. As the first day-care program in the area, Bethlehem Preschool was begun by Eleanor Howell and Patricia Swanson in response to the tremendous need for child care.

The two teachers' first enrollment numbered 26 in a rented room of the Slingerlands Methodist Church. Now they co-direct the Glenmont facility at the former Bethlehem Center School, which serves 110 families and requires a staff of 25 teachers and aides.

The non-profit, non-discriminatory school remains the only licensed day-care facility in Bethlehem, and has succeeded largely through its development as a family affair.

"An unfunded center could not survive without having much of the work done by volunteers," Swanson said, as she explained how their own children have "grown up" there working at what they do best.

Two of Howell's children are also marking ten years with the center. Ann Howell, an elementary education major, now utilizes her skills as a part time teacher. Carrie Howell is the summer art coordinator between college terms towards a masters in art. Ellen Swanson, a Cornell junior, originated a computer program for the five year olds. David Howell, student of architecture, designed and constructed the playground equipment. And Glenn Swanson has served as the general handyman.

Their satisfaction over the years? "Our greatest compliment comes when the third child of a family is enrolled. It's easy to make a family happy for one year, but to go to seven and eight years is really our approval."

Looking ahead? They are negotiating additional space for infant care, possibly for September.

The birthday party is an annual occasion, and is a celebration of early child education in our community.

DWI count felony

Colleen A. Gabriels, 24, of Slingerlands faces a felony charge of driving while intoxicated after she was stopped about 4 a.m. Sunday on Delaware Ave. near Plymouth Ave. in Elmsere, according to Bethlehem police reports. The charge is a felony because of a previous conviction for driving while intoxicated, police said.

In other DWI arrests this week, all misdemeanors, a South Bethlehem motorcyclist was stopped on Rt. 85 shortly after 3:30 a.m. Sunday; a Ravena man was nabbed on Rt. 144 about 2:45 a.m. Saturday and a Delmar man was stopped on Kenwood Ave. near Hoyt Ave. about 2:30 a.m. Friday, according to police reports.

A bear? Where?

A black bear that wandered into Voorheesville last Thursday apparently wandered on out, because no new sightings have been reported. The visitor was spotted near dusk on Thursday around the former Grand Union supermarket, and earlier that day state police received a report of a bear on State Farm Rd. near the Guilderland town line.

Dover Estates gets conditional approval

By Theresa Bobear

Conditional final approval was granted by the Bethlehem Planning Board last week for Rudolf Paulsen's 26-lot Dover Estates subdivision, located in an A and AA-Residential zone at Elm Ave. and Feura Bush Rd.

Paul Hite, surveyor representing Paulsen, submitted a final plan, which he said would "take away from drainage problems of neighboring properties." The plans call for the developer to install storm drains and grade lots toward Dover Dr. A 60-inch drainage pipe will be installed to drain a ravine near the edge of the subdivision.

The board tabled action on Peter and Judith Burnetter's application for a two-lot subdivision off Russell Rd., but not before giving the property owners a clear idea of the town's requirements for development of the property.

After reviewing a memorandum from Bruce Secor, commissioner of public works, members of the board were presented with a detailed draft for preliminary approval prepared by the town's engineering department.

According to the draft, the developer would be required to provide easements for drainage, connect both lots to the sanitary sewer and construct a portion of The Concourse in front of the second lot.

If the drafted conditions are adopted by the board, the developer will also be required to sign an agreement stating that the right-of-way to undeveloped portions of road would be deeded to the town after construction.

"This is a subdivision," Chairman John Williamson said, explaining that the rules and regulations of a subdivision apply.

"This is a subdivision, but it's a two-lot subdivision not a 20-lot subdivision," said Lynn Sipperly, engineer representing Burnetter.

Burnetter's 18.5-acre parcel is part of the Westland Park subdivision, which was approved in 1927. In his memo to the board Secor explained that Burnetter was advised of the difficulty of developing the parcel prior to making the purchase.

Hearings were held for public review of the proposed Delwood Acres and Murray Woods subdivisions.

Lindsay Boutelle, engineer representing Dime Savings Bank, presented the plan for Delwood Acres, a 28-acre subdivision of 31 duplex lots in an AB-Residential zone off Rockefeller Rd.

Boutelle said concerns raised in an environmental impact statement for the proposal would be addressed.

Dorothy Wilson, a resident of Rockefeller Rd., asked to have a ditch draining onto her property refilled.

During the hearing for Betty Fleahman's proposed Murray Woods three-lot subdivision of AA-zoned land on Murray Ave., two residents expressed concern about proper drainage for the area.

In other business, the board:

- Reviewed an informal proposal for a one-lot subdivision to be located in an AA-Residential zone on Gladwish Rd., Elsmere.

- Reactivated conditional final approval of a one-lot subdivision in an AA-zoned area on New Scotland Rd., Slingerlands, as requested by Diane Mangini.

- Reviewed an application for site plan approval submitted by Drs. Joseph Hart and Harold Wilson. A two-story wood frame building for dental offices and one rental space has been proposed for a CC-Commercial site off Grove St. at Kenwood Ave.

- Announced a public hearing to be held at 7:30 p.m. on July 2 to consider George W. Zautner's proposed 30-lot Glen Manor subdivision of an A-zoned parcel off Feura Bush Rd. for the construction of 28 single-family houses and two duplexes.

Appointments at BC

Five elementary probationary teachers were appointed recently by the Bethlehem Central school board. Margaret Cronk will teach fifth grade at the Glenmont school; Judith Kimes, grade four at Clarksville; Melissa Burdick, grade two at Elsmere; Steven Rider, grade five at Elsmere, and Marilyn Valentini, grade four at Slingerlands.

Replacement teachers were also appointed by the board last Wednesday. They are Judith Parry, for grade four at Glenmont; Suzanne Hajeck, grade four at Slingerlands; Susan Miller, grade three at Elsmere, and Mary Kathleen Jenkins, grade four at Elsmere. Beatrice Lagers will be teaching French and Spanish at the high school, and Terri Goldrich will be on leave for the 1985-86 school year.

Everett Wilson is retiring as building and grounds maintenance supervisor, effective June 30. He has been employed by the district 30 years.

Intruder charged

An area man was charged with trespassing and disorderly conduct after he was found in an intoxicated condition on the front porch of a residence on Carriage Rd. in Delmar shortly after 4 a.m. Friday, according to Bethlehem police reports. A resident had called police to report that someone was attempting to break into the house.

Police manpower levels are adequate, says chief

There have been times recently when the Bethlehem Police Department hasn't been able to put three cars on the road, Chief Paul Currie confirmed Friday. But in nearly every case the manpower shortage has occurred during the day shift, when there is more than adequate backup at the station, he said.

And in no case, he added, did the town go unprotected — sergeants and detectives are always available as backups in an emergency. "Our response time is good," Currie said.

In addition, he said, the town's new policy of taking shift sergeants off the desk and into patrol cars should increase response time without sacrificing control. "The sergeant is still in command," Currie said. "Before he was in the office telling an officer what to do — now he's on the scene."

The chief and Supervisor Robert Hendrick responded to statements made last week by John Cox, president of the Bethlehem Police Benevolent Association, that lack of manpower and an unwillingness to authorize overtime had left parts of the town unprotected. Hendrick said one reason for the manning problem is that the department "has been hit with an abnormal amount of sick leave."

The town and the PBA are in the midst of a prolonged contract impasse that last week became public. Cox said two months ago that the PBA plans to file with the state Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) for binding arbitration, and reaffirmed that position early last week. But as of Friday that procedure had not gotten under way. Required first is formal agreement by both parties on the issues still not resolved. Then an arbitrator is picked from a panel supplied by PERB.

Among the issues apparently resolved is pay, although it is still possible for either side to reopen that question. As outlined last week by Hendrick, and confirmed by Cox, the town's current offer is a 4 percent raise effective last Jan. 1, the date the old contract expired, and a second 4 percent raise July 1 — 6 percent for the year. The same 4 and 4 offered was proposed for the second year of the contract.

There had also been a tentative agreement on the question of overtime for officers called in for court duty. Unresolved issues included a PBA proposal for retirement after 20 years and differences over procedures used to investigate and discipline police officers.

Cox raised the question of undermanned shifts in an interview last week, noting that it is not in itself a contract issue but saying officers are concerned for both their own and the public's safety.

The town is divided into three zones for police protection — roughly the Tri-Village area, North Bethlehem and the Selkirk-South Bethlehem area — and normally one officer is assigned to patrol each area. At full strength, the department has 17 officers available for patrol plus five sergeants. The Bethlehem Town Board last year approved a total of eight civilian dispatchers in the 1985 budget so that the shift sergeants would be able to get out of the office and patrol, but the board also reduced the amount of authorized overtime.

Crash victim 'fair'

Raymond H. Wagner, 38, of Albany was listed as in fair condition Monday at Albany Medical Center Hospital after a head-on crash last Tuesday on Rt. 9W near Asprien Rd. that also sent two other persons to the hospital. According to Bethlehem police reports, Stephen J. Seidel, Jr., 20, of Hudson was ticketed for failure to keep right in the 5:45 p.m. accident. He told police he had fallen asleep at the wheel, according to the report. Seidel and a passenger in his car, Peter Seidel, 13, were treated at the hospital and released, according to a spokesman for the hospital.

All three were taken to Albany Med by the Delmar Fire Department Rescue Squad, the report noted.

Currie said several factors have combined to limit the number of officers available for patrol duty. Currently, three officers are on light duty due to physical problems and two sergeants are in the process of retiring. One new officer will be appointed from a 1982 civil service list, but a new promotion list for sergeant won't be available for several months.

In addition, Currie said, "we've had a good deal of training." Some of it is mandatory, but much is optional. Currie said he considers training a high priority and intends to continue sending officers for advance schooling.

Position clarified

New Bethlehem Central board member Charles Reeves, saying he is concerned that his negative vote at the June 6 school board meeting on the addition of three extra-duty coaching positions not be construed as anti-athletics, has clarified his position.

Reeves said he voted against the motion — which passed by a vote of 4-3 — because the positions had not been listed in the budget when approved by voters. Superintendent Lawrence Zinn had noted that the $1,833 to finance the three positions would be taken from another budget line and would not change the $17.5 million budget total. The budget total cannot be exceeded once it has been approved by the voters.

Diamond ring missing

Bethlehem police are investigating the disappearance of a diamond ring from a residence on Greenwood Lane in Slingerlands. The ring's value was estimated at $400, according to police reports.

Kermani, president of the Albany Symphony Orchestra since 1977, has been the league's president since 1982 and a member of its board since 1978. He succeeds Schuyler G. Chapin, dean of the School of the Arts at Columbia University, who was the league's chairman since 1982.

Kermani, a 1962 graduate of St. Lawrence University, is a long-time advocate of contemporary American Music and American composers. He is also chairman of

Back to Kindergarten

By Theresa Bobear

Once again, kindergarten class size was the topic of conversation for administrators and board of education members in the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District. The board last week approved the addition of an eighth section of kindergarten and a diagnostic pre-kindergarten summer program.

The district will have an estimated 175 kindergarten students next fall, up from 156 students in the present kindergarten class. Dominic Nunciforo, principal of Ravena Elementary School, explained that the retention rate — children held back — was slightly higher than usual this year because of the higher number of developmentally delayed students admitted last fall.

According to Assistant Superintendent William Schwartz, the diagnostic pre-kindergarten summer program would provide a head start to children who scored below the norm in testing of developmental skills.

"It does work, and it does help kids," said Superintendent Milton Chodack with regard to the program.

Schwartz said the cost of the diagnostic screening program would be between $3,000 and $3,500.

As part of her report on a recent meeting of the buildings and grounds committee, board member Marie Muller recommended that the proposed solar project be publicized and presented as a special proposition for next May's vote.

According to Muller, the bus garage repairs are in progress and the roof project at A.W. Becker Elementary School will be started by July 15 and, hopefully, be completed by Aug. 30.

In response to a request for space from Project Equinox, a substance abuse counseling program, the board authorized the removal of walls dividing two music practice rooms at A.W. Becker Elementary School and at Pieter B. Coeymans Elementary School. The two 5 by 10 rooms will be used for music practice and Equinox counseling.

In other business, the board:

- Agreed to lease one school bus to the Town of Coeymans. The town will be required to hire a certified school bus driver and pay the district 75 cents per mile for operating expenses.

- Agreed to join other Albany County school districts in fighting for a share of the county sales tax revenues. "It may be difficult to move the coffers from one pocket to the other, but there's no harm in trying," said Chodack.

- Reviewed a court order, and approved a $12,000 refund of 1984-85 school tax to Key Bank. "That brings our refunds up to about $54,000 this year," said district business administrator Charles Emery.

- Accepted the financial audit report for the 1983-84 school year.

- Authorized tax anticipation notes necessary for covering district operating expenses during July and August. Some $33,000 has been appropriated for interest on the summer operating funds.

- Accepted a low bid from Chase Lincoln First Bank N.A., Albany, for $195,000 in bond anticipation notes needed for roof repairs at A.W. Becker Elementary School and RCS Senior High School.

$800 ring gone

An $800 diamond ring was reported missing Friday from a residence on Orchard St. in Slingerlands, according to Bethlehem police reports. The ring had been in a metal box in the basement garage, according to the report.

Indicted in swindle

A Schenectady County grand jury last Monday indicted Frank W. Kindlon, 42, of Poplar Dr. in Delmar and John D. Mooney, 56, of Dean St. in Schenectady on grand larceny charges in connection with the swindling of more than $400,000 from two elderly persons. A spokesman for the Schenectady district attorney said the suspects were indicted on two counts each of second degree grand larceny.

They are accused of fraudulently taking some $370,000 from an 84-year-old woman and about $29,000 from a man over a period of two years. The two, arrested May 4 by state police, were being held in the Schenectady County jail in lieu of $500,000 bail each.

Scouts visit Revolutionary site

Area Cub Scouts of Pack 81 went to Newburgh recently where at Vails Gate they visited the winter encampment of George Washington and his troops. The 28 scouts and 14 adults who made the trip enjoyed the tour provided by a former teacher who works at the historic site. With his interesting narration and knowledge of the American Revolution, the guide held the attention of the group as it toured structures built by the troops and mingled with people dressed in the clothing of that era.

On the return trip, the scouts had an opportunity to visit the Old Rhinebeck Aerodrome, which displays vintage aeroplanes. Several of the boys actually flew in an open cockpit bi-plane.

The boys were accompanied on the outing by scout leaders Kerry Layman, K.J. Reister, Phil Smith, Emily White, Bob Selver, Mary Jacavino, Janet Kendall and Cub Scout Master George Kendall.

Crafts and collectibles

The Bethlehem Grange has scheduled a crafts fair and flea market for Saturday, July 13. The event will be from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Grange Hall, Rt. 396, Beckers Corners, Selkirk. Space is available for exhibitors within the building and on the grange hall grounds. The fees are $5 for space outside and $10 for space and a table on the lower level inside. Don't forget! This weekend the South Bethlehem United Methodist Church is holding a strawberry festival from 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday at the church on Willowbrook Ave. It promises to be a pleasant way for the entire family to spend an evening. In addition to strawberry shortcake or strawberry and ice cream, there will be live entertainment provided by the Hudson River Brass; face painting and pony rides for the children, and a chance for bargain hunters to browse through the thrift shop, which will be open throughout the evening.

PTSA is a success story

The Voorheesville PTSA has had a most successful year. This year the PTSA had the first Fall Fun Festival, which is certain to become a yearly carnival for the entire family. The PTSA also hosted a most successful Southbound concert, which drew nearly 100 people, and the first international dinner attracted more than 160 parents, teachers and children to the cafeteria for an evening of food, fun and song.

The group also hosted a number of speakers on topics of interest, gave the teachers a week of thank-yous, and helped the now independent School Age Child Care Committee begin its survey. In all this the PTSA had the help of many volunteers.

To thank the many people who helped with the PTSA programs over the year, the organization is sponsoring an evening at the Voorheesville American Legion on Friday, June 28. Residents who helped the PTSA during the past year are invited to come after 8 p.m. so that they may be thanked. During the evening refreshments will be served and Hank Piquette will spin records from the 'fifties and 'sixties for listening or dancing.

It's official!

Summer's here, officially, and beginning this week the Voorheesville Village Park is open. All area youngsters and adults are invited to take part in the many activities sponsored by the village. They are open to residents of the Voorheesville Central School District. For information, stop by the playground Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. and speak with recreation director Terry Barlow or his crew.

Cyclist all set

School's out and children are taking to the roads on their bikes. More than 130 cyclists now are prepared to face the responsibilities of biking after the bike rally held at the grade school this spring. Sponsored by the New Scotland Elks, the Voorheesville PTSA and the Albany County Sheriff's Department, the free event assisted area youngsters in getting their bikes safely ready for summer use and helped them hone their cycling skills.

Library gears up

For the next two weeks the Voorheesville public library will be preparing for a busy summer session. Weekly movies begin on July 9 with the film version of the children's classic "Charlotte's Web." Films will be shown every Tuesday at 2 p.m. throughout the summer. The summer reading club also begins that week with students in kindergarten through grade 3 meeting on Thursday, July 11, and those in grades 4 to 6 meeting on Friday, July 12, at 4 p.m. Those wishing to sign up for the weekly club featuring crafts, movies and special guests should come to the library or call.

Also during the week of July 9 preschool story hours will resume. The library will be closed on the 4th of July to commemorate our nation's birthday.

Dedication in the works

A reminder that the committee planning dedication of the high school football field in memory of Voorheesville coach Tom Buckley will meet this evening (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at the high school. Everyone is invited to come and share ideas for the ceremony, which is planned during homecoming week in the fall.

Other activities on the calendar include a benefit concert by Southbound on Aug. 18 at the park, to raise funds for a health center to be dedicated in memory of Coach Buckley.

Awards cap the year

School may be over, but the excitement felt by the many area scholastic award winners is sure to last a long time.

At a recent assembly at the high school, a variety of awards were presented to Clayton A. Bouton students. This year's recipient of the Matt Farrell Memorial Award, for a member of the graduating class who has made outstanding contributions in journalism and writing, as well as to the school community, is Edward Mitzen, who also was named senior of the year by the Voorheesville Teachers' Association.

Receiving the Janice Lee Delahanty Memorial Scholarship Award, for a member of the graduating class demonstrating conscientiousness, effort and need, is Tracey Deschenes. Justin Corcoran received the John Robert Larabee Memorial Award, for a member of the junior class selected by a faculty committee on the basis of contribution to the school and community, interest in sports and being a good student. Justin received a $500 check to be used towards college expenses, a plaque and a collection of literary classics.

Heldebarker Editor Peter Fisch received the Diana Joy and Clay John Conklin Memorial Award, presented each year to a senior who exhibits love, concern and enthusiasm in helping others.

Receiving the Harriet Froleich Memorial Scholarship this year was Sharon McKenna, salutatorian of the class of 1985. The $500 prize is presented each year to a member of the graduating class who had demonstrated that he or she is a mature, creative individual who is devoted to school and community; friendly, tolerant and enthusiastic, with an interest in cultural pursuits.

Skala award given

Awards given in memory of teachers and students are common at the Voorheesville High awards assembly. This year the elementary school followed suit and at their last day awards program, the first Nancy Skala memorial award was presented.

The award is named for Nancy Skala, a former teacher who became blind several years ago, yet returned to assist children as a volunteer at the grade school until her death this past winter. The award will be given each year to the student who has demonstrated assistance and service to others. This year's recipient was fifth grader Allison Meillinger, who has throughout the year helped with a variety of school projects, including serving as a tutor after school in the computer room. Allison received a certificate from Donald Otterness, science coordinator and moderator of the gifted and talented program. Her name will be engraved on a plaque to be displayed in the showcase in the main hall of the elementary school.

Another memorial award was the Virginia Sellnow Safety Award, given by the Voorheesville American Legion in memory of Mrs. Sellnow, a crossing guard at the grade school, who was killed in an accident while on duty. The recipient of this year's prize was sixth grader Jill Freyer, who received the award from past commander Leo Burgoon.

Savings Bond. Cathy Capobianco received honorable mention. The title of the essay was "What the Statue of Liberty Means to Me."

The winners attended a Memorial Day awards ceremony at the V.A. Hospital in Albany. A United States flag that recently flew over the capitol in Washington was given to the school. This year 55 schools participated in the contest.

Through the month of June and part of July, WAMC will let its listeners decide the fate of an upcoming fund drive. The fund drive is called the "WAMC Silent Summertime Campaign" and, as the name implies, the drive will be quietly unique in its appeal for listener support.

The goal of the summertime campaign is $50,000. To reach this mark, WAMC is asking listeners to contribute in advance of an on-air drive scheduled for July 10 to 15. For every dollar that arrives in the mail before July 10, the station will cut a dollar from the drive's goal. If $50,000 is raised before the start of the drive, the entire fund-raising period will be canceled.

It's not the stress, it's the rest

One of the most intriguing and unexpected discoveries I have made in the past eight years since I added biofeedback-assisted stress management training to my psychotherapy practice is that most people suffer from stress symptoms that develop not so much from high stress, but rather from chronic low stress.

We have heard about the typical "high stress" occupations, such as flight controllers, Wall Street stock brokers and waiters and waitresses. In those jobs critical judgements must be made and communicated clearly in an atmosphere of continuous and sometimes frantic activity. To fall short of the high level demands in those work situations is to invite the crash of an airplane, the crash of Dow Jones, or the crash of a trayful of Sunday dinners.

How can anyone perform on such a high stress level day after day for an entire career life without succumbing to stress-related illness? The simple answer is that many people have learned how to perform high stress jobs while avoiding negative stress effects — by learning to relax effectively.

Consider another frequently cited high stress occupation: law enforcement. In the late 1970s in another town I was called on by the union of a local police agency to testify at an arbitration session in support of the union's request for increased sick leave, shift modifications and other fringe benefits. The intent of my testimony was to present a clear causative link between the job stress of a police officer and the abnormally high rates of alcoholism, suicide and divorce suffered by members of that profession.

One of the more salient factors contributing to police stress, as I presented it from my research, is that despite the pervading reality that a life-threatening situation might occur at any moment, much time is spent by police officers waiting in squad cars, in courtrooms, on their beats, or pushing pencils at their desks. Force an action-oriented individual to engage in large doses of boredom and inactivity, and you are likely to see stress symptoms. Ask any elementary school teacher who is having difficulty making math and grammar exciting for the class.

The real stress problem I have seen and worked with can be found not so much at the high end of the stress continuum, but rather, the low end. Our organisms have inherent capacities to respond to high stress for periods of time without suffering any damage; that is, given a healthy organism. If we attempt to sustain high stress beyond our individual capacities, we each have an automatic shut-off mechanism that prevents further output. It is called "exhaustion," and it forces us to return to a biological state of natural rest, or inactivity.

It is that return to a true state of physiological rest wherein lies the real problem called "stress." It is the problem we associate with our automobiles when the engine idles too fast. In that state a car is using up fuel unproductively and, more to the point, is increasing the rate of wear and tear on vital engine parts, thereby decreasing the life of the machine.

The very same type of process occurs within the human body when it fails to return to a true rest level. If we adapt our organic functions to the stresses of everyday life by resetting their rest levels higher and higher — and this typically happens in a haphazard manner and on subtle, undetectable levels — then we have issued an invitation for degenerative illnesses to enter our bodies. We have increased the wear and tear on ourselves by allowing chronic low stress to replace true physiologic relaxation.

We require frequent periods of organic inactivity so that our central nervous systems can produce and transmit all those biochemicals associated with states of rest. Many of those natural chemicals have been likened to commercially manufactured healing agents, muscle relaxants, pain killers, tranquilizers and re-energizers. If we inhibit the production of such biochemicals by stopping short of the state of natural rest, then we have unwittingly upset the homeostatic balance with which we were born, and our physiologies then become susceptible to a myriad of disorders.

Learning to relax is essential to our well-being. The ability to return rapidly and effectively to a state of natural physiologic rest preserves our abilities to kick into high gear and put out peak levels of activity whenever we need to. We were built to handle high stress; but to do so we must be able to return fully to the other end of the activity scale, and rest. And so, too, do I rest my case.

BUSINESS

Chamber reports

The Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce has reported to the Bethlehem Town Board that its community involvement this year includes making its office available for meetings, participating in the Vial of Life program, publication of its business directory and the soon-to-be published map of the town. The chamber's office on Delaware Ave. is currently staffed 15 hours a week and answers numerous inquiries about the town, according to the report.

The chamber receives $3,000 per year in town funds under a contract that requires it to provide services to the community. The town board at its June 12 meeting approved a $1,500 semi-annual payment to the chamber.

Another Four Corners landmark closing

By Lorraine C. Smith

After almost 36 years of minding the Delmar Department Store, Tom and Betty Calarco are retiring. It's another change for Four Corners, coming rapid fire this past month with a move down Delaware Ave. planned for Adams Hardware, the move around the corner already made by the luncheonette, and a new parking lot next to Brockley's. The building that houses the Delmar Department Store is also reportedly for sale.

Calarco regarded these transitions as part of a traditional pattern: "Everything changes. I've seen a lot of businesses come and go. There is business here. Just mind it and run your store."

The Calarcos are appreciative to the people in Delmar. They raised and educated their three children here. Their customers have become good friends and some represent a third generation of patrons. "The store has been a big part of our lives, and we'll miss it."

Mrs. Calarco, responsible for all the bookkeeping and buying, expressed disappointment that the small stores are disappearing. She described the personal services only a small store can provide. "Tom would call to say he'd be late, he had a delivery to make to someone who was housebound. We often made a special order for even a single item for a customer. When you know your customers, you do these things."

For the past eight years, Delmar Department store has been the largest buyer for its size for Ship 'n Shore clothing. Calarco proudly pointed out. And as anyone knows who stops at the Four Corners spotlight long enough to glance at the window display, the store has also carried children's clothing, women's purses and Dolfin swimsuits. The store has had such a large inventory filling every shelf and counter and then some, the arrangement of stock left no room for a single chair. "I never sat down in 36 years," Calarco said.

But now he'll get the chance. And he hopes some time for travelling. Mrs. Calarco plans to "read the books I couldn't read, listen to the music I didn't have time to hear, and work on projects I didn't have time for."

WARNING!

Before having your Carpets or Upholstery Steam Cleaned read this:

So-called "steam" cleaning methods can be injurious to your fine carpeting. If steam (212°F) were used it would be ruinous! Actually, what is used is just hot water, sometimes with added detergent. And water left in carpeting is often harmful—causing mildew, shrinkage and browning injuring carpet fibers, backing, under pad and flooring. Tests show up to 6 gallons of liquid left in a 9' x 12' area. That's a whale of a lot of liquid! Such soggy carpeting can take as much as 9 hours for even the surface to dry! And that still leaves the backing, under pad and floor damp! So, you would be well advised to play it safe by using the method recommended by leading carpet manufacturers—

THE VON SCHRADER SHAMPOO METHOD

In serving you we use the Von Schrader Carpet Deterger proven by almost 40 years of experience. It deposits dry foam (not liquid), brushes it deep into the pile and vacuums the soiled foam back into the machine. The dirt, engulfed in foam, is removed simultaneously before it can sink back down into the carpet. Result: your carpeting is cleaned thoroughly, not superficially. Since only foam is used, carpeting is ready for use in about an hour. Shrinkage, mildew and browning (often resulting from "steam" or other hot water extraction methods) are eliminated. Von Schrader is the only single unit that both shampoos and vacuums in just one pass. It's patented.

So—for a safe method with beautiful results—you'll be wise to call us for further information and free estimate.

Roberts upsets PG

In Tri-Village Major League play last week, Price Greenleaf was dealt its first loss of the season as Roberts Realty took a 5-4 contest. Going into the final inning trailing 4-1, Roberts staged a two-out rally. Graig Davies started the drive with a single and went on to score. Josh Pierce and David Lorette both reached first, and with the score 4-2, Rob Newkirk smashed a game-winning homer to dash Price Greenleaf's hopes for an undefeated season. Pat O'Neill doubled and Mike Gertzberg singled twice for the losers.

Earlier in the week, Starwood triumphed over Spotlight, 17-2. Contributing to Starwood's win were Tom Barnes, who reached base five times, and Cameron Smith, who had a pair of hits. For Spotlight, Gareth Notis doubled and Kevin Curran had a triple.

Saturday night saw Main Care beat Farm Family, 8-2. For the victors, Brenda Fryer had three singles and Robbie Kells added a pair. Alexis Otto was strong on the mound, as usual, allowing Farm Family only four hits. Offensively for Farm Family, Chris Black and Brendan O'Brien each doubled.

Blanchard stopped twice

Scott Zink's two-run single in the seventh inning scored the winning runs as Fort Orange handed Blanchard Post a 5-3 loss in American Legion baseball Sunday.

Rick Bennett, a second baseman on the Saint Rose College team, pitched in three singles for the losers but Doug Pratt, Ray Roohan and Jeff Mackey provided the scoring with base hits. Zink had a single and a double along with the game winner for Fort Orange. Mackey pitched the entire game as Blanchard fell to 2-5.

A day earlier, Blanchard staged a four-run fourth inning rally but fell short against Cossackie, 6-4. Blanchard managed only two hits but capitalized on two Cossackie errors. Jim Francis aided in the four-run outburst with a two-run double as the winners racked up seven hits off Blanchard starter Ray Roohan. Roohan tossed a complete game for the losers.

Ackerman TV teacher

Tennis pro Phil Ackerman can be seen on the courts in Delmar and at Southwood giving lessons. Now local tennis enthusiasts can catch Ackerman's approach to the game in a cable television series.

Improve Your Tennis with Phil Ackerman: the Zonal Approach" will be cablecast on Bethlehem's Channel 7 on July 1, 5 and 22 from 7 to 8 p.m. Topics include groundstrokes and serves as well as doubles strategy and the overhead smash.

Ackerman, a Delmar resident who teaches junior tennis at Southwood Tennis Club, and Anna Finn, a Niskayuna resident who has created a business videoing tennis students and professionals, conceived the idea of filming through television five years ago when they teamed up at a tennis camp at the State University at Albany.

The duo began filming at Southwood in October, 1983, and finished in August, 1984. Instruction ranged from beginners' information to material that will meet the needs of tournament players. For example, Ackerman begins his tape by discussing the various ways to hold a racket and moves to a description of four different kinds of forehand shots.

While television was an unfamiliar teaching medium for Delmar's young pro, "it was fun all way," he said. He added, "it was exciting to sit in the editing room at the television studio... we had six hours of tape that we had whittled down to two hours."

Until, Ackerman and Finn had had difficult moments. "One time I had the microphone set up wrong and the picture was distorted after running for two hours, so I had to redo an entire session," Ackerman.

His next project will be to extend the zonal approach theory to yet another medium. He is planning on writing a book of his instruction based on teaching concepts learned during his years on the courts as a player and instructor.

Linda Anne Burtis

There's more than one way to escape those last days of school. Bethlehem Central High School students Nate Greenman, Tim Seward and Art Guarino, and shop teacher Bob Peters created Eagle 1, a 3.5 horsepower hovercraft using a lawn mower engine, from a Popular Mechanics plan. Above and right, Greenman mans the joystick as he takes the vehicle, which hovers 16 inches above the ground with up to 300 pounds of cargo, for a spin around the school grounds. Below, Peters hoists the machine as Greenman and Seward make minor adjustments.

AMENDMENT TO THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM ALBANY COUNTY, NEW YORK

THE TOWN BOARD OF THE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM, ALBANY COUNTY NEW YORK DOES HEREBY AMEND the Zoning Ordinance of the Town of Bethlehem, and does hereby enact as follows:

1. Add a new ARTICLE VI-A following ARTICLE VI Highway Frontage and Access to read as follows:

1. That portion of a lot or parcel which abuts a State, County or Town highway (or street) - or a proposed highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town Board - shall be known as the abutment of the lot or parcel on such highway (or street). The term "highway frontage" may also be used in reference to the abutment of a lot or parcel on such highways (or streets).

2. For a residential use in any zoning district, the lot or parcel on which such use is to be erected shall abut an existing State, County or Town highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town for a distance of not less than twenty-eight (28) feet. Ownership of such abutment shall be in fee simple. Easements and other similar incidents of ownership shall not satisfy this requirement.

3. In the event that more than one residential building is proposed to be erected on a single lot or parcel in any zoning district, such lot or parcel shall abut an existing State, County or Town highway (or street) - or a proposed highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town Board - for a distance of not less than twenty-eight (28) feet per residential building (dwelling). Ownership of such abutment shall be in fee simple. Easements and other similar incidents of ownership shall not satisfy this requirement.

4. Means of access, such as a driveway, for a lot or parcel to be occupied by a residential use shall occur or be located within the abutment of such lot or parcel on an existing State, County or Town highway (or street) - or on a proposed highway (or street) which has been accepted by the Town. HOWEVER, on a corner lot an access driveway shall not be located so that it connects with the travelled portion of a highway (or street) within the curve joining such highway (or street) with the intersecting highway (or street).

5. In respect to those lots (some of which are commonly known as "estate" lots, "keyhole" lots, "flag" lots or "panhandle" lots) where the required abutment on a municipal highway (or street) is by means of a relatively long and narrow strip of land, the minimum distance between such strips of land shall be fifty (50) feet as measured between the property line of another such strip. The minimum distance between such strips shall not include either strip.

6. The provisions of this Article shall not apply to Planned Development Districts.

This amendment to the Zoning Ordinance shall take effect ten days after publication as required by law.

The foregoing amendment to the Zoning Ordinance was presented for adoption by Mrs. Ritchko, was seconded by Mrs. Bickel, and was duly adopted by the following vote:

Ayes: Mr. Hendrick, Mrs. Bickel, Mr. Geurtze, Mr. Prothero, Mrs. Ritchko.

'Crisis' not new

Editor, The Spotlight:

During the past weeks as media has drawn attention to the problems of malpractice insurance, I have been left with a feeling that the important things have not been said, thus creating confusion about what is happening.

First, this is not a new crisis. It has been with us for over 10 years while physicians have tried to deal with escalating costs and liability and at the same time have been trying to provide quality care in the face of increasing expectations from the public.

Second, this is not a problem of the high-priced specialists alone. It is a crisis in the primary care fields of internal medicine, family practice, pediatrics and general practice as well.

Third, most physicians work 50 to 70 hours a week. Especially in the primary care areas, this brings their hourly income into the same range as construction workers, computer experts and plumbers.

Fourth, the increasing costs of malpractice insurance represent an ever increasing percentage of the expenses of maintaining a practice. In many cases this means an impossible cost for the young physician who wishes to enter into the delivery of primary health care in the state. At a time when many of the older general practitioners and family physicians are working past retirement age, the young physicians are leaving the state. Neither the young nor the old can deal with these costs and there is a limit to what we can expect a patient to pay for care.

Behind the problem of increased cost is also the fact that these costs do not cover the liability to which these physicians are presently subject. Physicians do care about what happens to people. They do wish appropriate compensation be given to those caught in tragic errors. However, it is difficult, if not impossible, to continue to work in an atmosphere of continuous distrust and anticipation of disaster. Under the present system, the sky seems to be the limit for liability. The result is that the physician and the patient have become adversaries. Appropriate medical care cannot be provided under these conditions. This basic fact has been obscured by discussion of insurance costs, whether or not the physician can afford the premium, and how much money the physician makes.

Ten years ago physicians developed their own insurance company so that insurance could be provided when no one else would take the risk. The McGill Commission, named by the governor at that time, recommended a course of legislative action that would be at least a start on a solution. The Senate has enacted most of those recommendations, but to become law they must also be passed by the Assembly and signed into law by the governor. Ten years later this has not been done. Who benefits from such a stalemate?

Where's Rebecca?

Editor, The Spotlight:

Lisa, age 4½ of Glenmont, took her favorite "Rebecca" doll to the library and tearfully left for home without it.

In her excitement to get back to storyhour, she had accidentally left it behind in the bathroom on the sink. When she returned 10 minutes later, it was gone. After a thorough search of the library and the library grounds, the doll was not found. The doll, a Pauline original, has a hand-painted face, braids with a straw hat, a purple and white printed dress, and purple leather shoes. If you have seen this "Rebecca" doll around the house or have any information please call 463-1035.

New Scotland shows off new wing at town hall

An open house to show off the new wing at town hall and a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the New Scotland Senior Citizens Association will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, June 30, at New Scotland Town Hall, Rt. 85, New Scotland.

An evergreen tree will be planted, and a granite marker will be unveiled by members of the senior citizens organization.

All are welcome to inspect the new town hall addition.

Summer in Alaska

Diane Cohen of Elsmere, a junior art major at Ithaca College, is spending an unusual summer—working her way to Alaska. Cohen was featured in a recent issue of the Kodiak Daily Mirror, where she was working in a cannery, as one of a number of young people who swell the town's summer population.

Bicycles missing

Three bicycles, all 10-speed boys' bikes and all unregistered, were reported missing last Wednesday, according to Bethlehem police reports. They were taken from outside residences on Kenwood Ave., Norge Rd. and Linda Ct. in Delmar, according to the reports.

In addition, a boy's black standard bicycle was found at Parkwyn Dr. and Pheasant Lane in Delmar, and is being held at headquarters for identification by the owner. Police were able to return to its owner a registered bicycle found in a field behind a Delaware Ave. business.

Makes seminary awards

Bishop Michael Thompson of Delmar recently awarded certificates to Albany area students who completed the four-year Early Morning Seminary, sponsored by The Church of the Latter Day Saints.

Share the fresh air

"A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" says the popular children's book, but there's no tree where Bobby lives, with his grandparents in New York City. In the summertime, though, Bobby comes to Delmar. And Delmar has whole forests even!

Thanks to the Fresh-Air program begun in 1877 to insure city kids the experience of "fresh air" and pleasant countryside, Bobby is one of a dozen children who have been invited to spend two weeks in Bethlehem.

The bus brings Bobby to Altamont, or Latham, or Schenectady whichever "Friendly Town" is scheduled closest to the date of his host's invitation.

The host family is asked only to provide a bed for the visitor, and to include him in their regular activities. The family may request an age and sex, and any two weeks of the summer. The only cost involved is for food. The Fresh-Air fund pays all other expenses—if there are medical costs, long distance phone calls, or even expenses because of an accident.

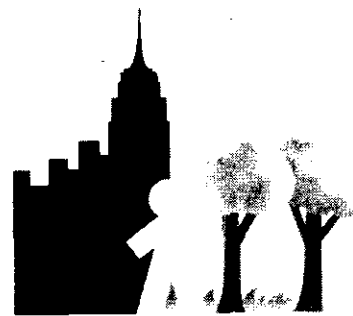

Some families take two or three children, and one host in the area has requested four children. Although the minimum stay is two weeks, if unanticipated problems can't be resolved, several area families will take the child for the duration of even that stay. If the host family requests a longer stay of another week, a month, or the whole summer, that can be arranged too.

Planned Parenthood elects 3 to board

Three local residents are among new board members elected at the annual meeting of Upper Hudson Planned Parenthood this month. They are Marion S Kuritz of Delmar, a business consultant; Dr. Frank G. Pogue of Slingerlands, vice president for student affairs at the State University at Albany, and Peter M. Saidel of Feura Bush, an insurance agent.

Upper Hudson Planned Parenthood, founded in 1934, provided educational and reproductive health services to more than 12,000 men and women in Albany, Rensselaer, Columbia and Greene counties. It has offices in Albany, Troy and Hudson.

representative for Bethlehem, has been a host for the last six years. Although the Beyers' first Fresh-Air child "didn't work out" second visitor Bobby has, and now spends the entire summer joining the activities of Beyer's own three children. Along with 54 other host families in the district, Beyer feels it is a rich and rewarding experience. Participants from Virginia to Maine have found lasting relationships through the program, or at very least a new insight into another way of life.

For more information, or to request a child for any two weeks of this summer, call Maggie Beyer at 439-1989.

Win JCA awards

Amie Sherman and Anne Dieffenbacher, both Bethlehem Central High School students, are recipients of the Junior College of Albany's scholarship and merit awards for the 1985 summer art program.

The program is an intensive art program that gives area high school students a chance to explore their talents under the direction of professional artists.

Students interested in the art courses offered July 8 through Aug. 2 can contact the Summer Sessions Office, Russell Sage College, 140 New Scotland Ave., Albany, 445-1717.

Auction in New Salem

An auction and flea market will be held at the New Salem Reformed Church, Rt. 85, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 29.

Doug Cater will begin calling for bids at 1 p.m. A variety of items, including antique furniture, appliances, books, clothing, handicrafts and jewelry will be offered.

For information, call Barbara Van Zetten at 439-6179.

Artists winners

Jon C. Petherbridge and Maura Fitzpatrick, both students at Bethlehem Central High School, won first-place awards in a recent arts and crafts competition sponsored by the New York State General Federation of Women's Clubs, Third District.
