The toxic hazards in your home

By Caroline Terenzini

Warning: Flammable!

Caution: Do not get in eyes, on skin or clothing.

Harmful if swallowed.

These and similar disquieting messages appear on containers that crowd basement shelves, clutter up the space under sinks and sit forgotten in a corner of the garage — until finally the empties or the leftovers go into the trash. But is that where they should go?

The grim discovery that what is dumped in a landfill all too often ends up in the drinking water has prompted federal and state legislation regulating disposal of a myriad of hazardous wastes. Regulations, however, are aimed at large producers and ignore the hazardous wastes that come from households, farms and small businesses such as dry cleaners, with their chemical solvents, and funeral homes, with embalming fluid. Yet the toxics from these sources that end up in the waste stream are significant, says Judi Enck of the Environmental Planning Lobby (EPL), in Albany.

"There is an incredible vacuum on this whole issue," Enck said. "There's a desperate need for New York State to develop new policies."

Right now, homeowners and other small hazardous waste producers legally can throw anything except explosives into the trash. Regulators won't go on the record, but privately they say household hazardous waste is free from controls not only because it makes up a small fraction of such waste, but also because there is no practical way to control it.

Regulations for landfills, which are aimed at keeping communities from poisoning themselves or their neighbors, require such costly changes that both Bethlehem and New Scotland have decided to close theirs, allowing only bulky items such as tree stumps or bed springs to be dumped there. That leaves both towns dependent on the city-owned Albany N.Y. Solid Waste Energy Recovery System (ANSWERS) shredder on Rapp Rd. in Albany, which supplies "refuse-derived fuel" to the state-operated steam plant on Sheridan Ave., where it is burned to generate electricity to run the heating and cooling systems at the Empire State Plaza and the Capitol.

Questions are being asked, however: Is this refuse safe to burn? Does burning, in fact, render hazardous materials harmless? Is putting toxic empties or leftovers out with the trash safe? One Delmar resident who doesn't think so has held on to a half-empty container of wood preservative for 12 years, looking for an environmentally safe way to dispose of it. Now the can is leaking.

Kathy Betzhold of Delmar is among those who are wary of the proliferation of household chemicals and who are concerned about the unknown hazards that may result from current methods of disposal.

"People fall into thinking the problem is all industrial," she said. Last spring, as part of her volunteer work for the Albany County League of Women Voters, Betzhold joined forces with the county cooperative Extension on a survey to gauge support for a community cleanup day for hazardous household wastes. The plan was that on a well-publicized date, residents would bring no-longer-wanted containers of solvents, pesticides and other hazardous discards to a central location where they would be sorted into 55-gallon steel drums for regulated disposal by a

Will portable classrooms solve BC overcrowding?

By Caroline Terenzini

Crowding at Bethlehem's Glenmont Elementary School would best be dealt with by adding two relocatable classrooms on to the school, according to district Superintendent Lawrence A. Zinn, who made that recommendation to school board members last Wednesday.

Zinn's proposal is a far cry from the redistricting plan presented to the board in June by a committee of staff members and residents. The committee's proposal, which would move a total of nearly 200 children, was devised under the assumption that it was not possible to add classroom space in the district, an assumption that later turned out to be mistaken. Even so, the redistricting plan aroused such opposition among parents that board members looked for another choice.

Adding two relocatable classrooms, at a total cost of about $70,000, looked like a promising choice to several board members Wednesday. However, Glenmont

Principal Donald Robillard called that proposal a "temporary solution for a permanent problem," and told board members he would like to see a permanent six-room addition at the school, including a full-size teacher preparation room. Robillard termed the space provided at Glenmont "inequitable."

Board member Barbara Coon also urged a permanent addition.

Timothy Fitzgerald of Glenmont, an observer, objected to the Glenmont neighbors rescue deer

A buttonhorn buck that is believed to have run afoul of a car Friday morning on Glenmont Rd. was reported "doing well" Monday at the Wildlife Resources Center on Game Farm Rd. in Delmar.

The stricken animal had made its way to the home of the Bent family and was lying against the garage door when it was spotted by a neighbor, Don Uliny. "We didn't know if it was dead or alive until it picked its head up," he said.

Bethlehem police said the deer had been covered with a blanket and was being tended by Christine Bent of Glenmont Rd. when officers arrived about 8:30 a.m. Friday.

State Department of Environmental Conservation officer took the animal to the Wildlife Resources Center. A spokesman there said it is rare for a deer that is injured on the highway to receive treatment. The animals are usually beyond help, he said.

The Glenmont Rd. neighbors are used to wildlife in their back yards. Last summer a family of raccoons made themselves at home on Uliny's deck. "for the past two years we've seen the deer tracks, and have even seen up to nine of them using the path out back," Uliny said.

"But this was the closest we've gotten. I only wish it had been under better circumstances."

Dorothy Bent of Glenmont comforts an injured deer that came to rest at her garage door. The deer survived.

Work-to-rule at RCS

By Theresa Bobear

"We are in phase I of work-to-rule now," said Donald Prockup, president of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Teachers Association, Monday night as a group of more than 40 teachers picketed a public meeting at Pieter B. Coeymans Elementary School.

"There has been no concerted effort of work stoppage; but, people are just upset. They don't want to do a whole lot of extra things now," said Prockup. Among the 12 items in the action is an agreement not to volunteer for extra committees or duties.

Prockup said the teachers will decide whether to escalate their action at a meeting of the Fair Deal Committee next week. Meanwhile, the teachers will undoubtedly continue their phase I action and continue picketing school functions, according to Prockup.

Teachers in the RCS School District have been without a contract since June 30 and "They're chomping at the bit," said Prockup.

RCS Board of Education members and RCSTA representatives presented fact finding reports to Jeffrey Selchick of Public Employment Relations Board on Nov. 19. The teachers and board members are now waiting for a fact finding report.

Prockup said the teachers need to upgrade their status professionally. He said RCSTA is asking for modification of elementary duties so that teachers can spend more time on remedial work and projects rather than on playground and cafeteria duty.

According to Prockup, the teachers are asking for an increased district dental contribution and a more competitive salary. "Our school cannot attract the best candidates for our kids," said Prockup. "We find ourselves on the low end of the scale in the Capital District, and it hurts."

Prockup said the teachers are also asking that a fee comparable to dues be paid by teachers who are not members of RCSTA for services rendered.

During Monday night's meeting, Anthony Williams, president of the RCS Board of Education, said "We have a fact finder, a third party who has come in." Williams said the board is waiting for a report from the fact finder. Williams declined to discuss specifics of the negotiations.

Death reported accidental

The state Office of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities is conducting an investigation into the death Friday of a resident at a group home at 397 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

Louis Ganim, a spokesman for the agency, said all information available, including the coroner's report, indicates the death was accidental.

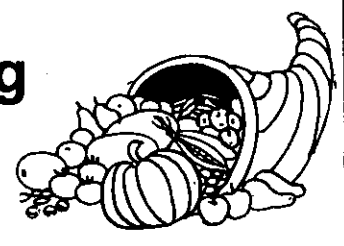

According to authorities, John Hagaman, 54, who had been a resident at that home since July, 1984, choked on vomit while he was being restrained by two employees. Efforts to revive him were unsuccessful and he was taken by ambulance to Albany to Albany Medical Center Hospital, according to authorities.

Hagaman had resided at the group home on Kenwood Ave. from May of 1984 until July of 1984, when he moved to the Delaware Ave. address. Both homes are operated by the O.D. Heck Developmental Center, Niskayuna.

Ganim said five staff members were in the home at the time of the incident. There are nine residents.

Edna McCoy

Artist in residence

The front foyer of Bethlehem Central Middle School has doubled as an artist's studio for the past two weeks. Artist in residence Edna McCoy, in a program sponsored by the Middle School Parent-Faculty Organization, has been working in several media to demonstrate various art techniques to students.

A display of her work includes examples in oil, acrylic, water color, pastels, stencilling, collage and oriental free brush painting. During her stay at the Middle School, students stopped by to watch and ask questions and Mrs. McCoy visited art classes in the building.

A former art teacher, Mrs. McCoy is a graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design. She has exhibited her paintings in Connecticut and New York. Two of her works are in the current exhibition sponsored by the Bethlehem Art Association at the Bethlehem Public Library.

Wallet found

An Albany woman was glad to have her wallet containing cash and credit cards returned after it was found last Tuesday at Delaware Plaza and turned over to Bethlehem police. The wallet was found by a resident of Woodridge Rd. in Delmar, police said.

Art group meets

Members of the Bethlehem Art Association will meet at the Bethlehem Public Library on Thursday, Dec. 5, at 7 p.m. All are welcome. For information call Micki Ahl at 439-7039.

proposed method of installing the relocatables and said he saw them as more easily damaged. He urged the board to put to a public vote the choice of a permanent versus a portable addition.

And following the meeting of the Glenmont PTA's directors also issued a statement opposing the option.

Board members, however, generally seemed to lean toward the solution that would quickly provide space that would be "movable and saleable and usable for other purposes," in Zinn's words. Board member Bernard Harvith noted that "crowding has moved around the district and will continue to move," making flexibility a plus. Harvith also said he was mindful of the taxpayer who doesn't have children in the public schools — an estimated 75 percent of district voters.

"The reason we're squirming hard is that there's a great group in the community that isn't even here," he said, referring to taxpayers whose primary concern is dollars.

"I don't think any of us is convinced we have to build on now," board President Sheila Fuller observed. She noted that relocatable classrooms could be sold or moved if another solution were deemed preferable in a few years.

The $70,000 cost of two relocatable classrooms (including furniture) probably could be financed through the district's annual budget, in contrast to the sum needed to build on classrooms — an estimated $550,000 for a four-room permanent addition. Relocatable classrooms, like permanent structures, are eligible for state aid at about 25 percent, administrators noted.

A state Education Department requirement that additional gymnasium space be provided if a school building exceeds 14 classrooms (Glenmont has 12), thought to be a hitch on Wednesday, seemed of less concern after Zinn checked with SED officials. Zinn said Thursday it appeared that a cafeteria could be designated for multiple purposes, although not necessarily used that way.

The question is expected to be back on the agenda for the board's Dec. 4 meeting, at 8 p.m. at the Educational Services Center.

Also at the Dec. 4 meeting, J. Briggs McAndrews, assistant superintendent, is scheduled to give a "comprehensive assessment report (CAR)" on the district, a new requirement from the state regents. The report is to include statistics derived from state test results and similar assessment measures.

Another touchy question for the board last Wednesday was the decision to have BC take a leave of absence from Suburban Council competition in varsity and junior varsity football. Bethlehem is a charter member of the council, which includes 11 areas schools, but in recent years BC has found itself overwhelmed on the gridiron. Athletic Director Ray Sliter said the enrollment decline over the past decade has left a relatively small group from which to draw players, and this at a time when even more players are needed because of the growing use of platooning in the game.

Board member Charles Reeves, asking whether high school players were being developed through the local Pop Warner football program for youngsters, was told by Sliter that Pop Warner was "having its own problems." While voting with his colleagues to drop Suburban Council football, Reeves said, "It saddens me."

In voting on an amendment to the district assessment roll, the need to gulp and swallow a $222,000 cut in tax revenue left board member Marjory O'Brien more angry than sad. "I'd like to see us go to the state and say, 'Your regulations didn't get out in time; you make up the difference,'" she declared.

The regulations, promulgated in late July by the state Board of Equalization and Assessment, implemented a state law passed in May exempting from taxation certain New York Telephone Co. property (such as wires leading to household phones).

According to Roger Fritts, attorney for the district, the only towns in Albany County that carried such property on their assessment rolls despite the legislature's action — and pending the implementing regulations — were Bethlehem and Rensselaerville. Fritts, however, advised board members they had little choice.

The district also looked to the state in the matter of insurance

BC bargaining continues

Concentrated bargaining on a new contract between the Bethlehem Central School District and its teachers' union began Friday and continued through the weekend. At press time Tuesday, district Superintendent Lawrence A. Zinn said he was "encouraged by the process so far."

The period designated for the intensive talks was to end Tuesday.

The new approach to bargaining was devised last spring by a committee made up of school board members and teachers whose goal was to put an end to the long drawn-out talks that have characterized contract negotiations in recent years. Also part of the new procedure was a session in early November attended by school board members and members of the union at which both sides disclosed their bargaining positions.

As in past years, Gordon Molyneux, a high school teacher, represents the Bethlehem Central United Teachers, and Joseph Kelly of Thealon Associates in Latham and Franz Zwicklbauer, assistant superintendent for business, have been bargaining for the district.

The current contract between the district and its 230 teachers is due to expire at the end of June, 1986.

costs, now at $114,000 annually for BC's general insurance. The board adopted a resolution urging the state legislature to act to curb insurance premium increases by legislating a limit on awards and requiring equitable rather than "joint and several liability."

The district's general insurance premium could triple or quadruple when the policy is renewed in July, according to Franz Zwicklbauer, assistant superintendent for business.

In other business, the board:

- Heeded a financial consultant's "strong recommendation" and voted a 10-year term for the proposed $4.6 million bond issue, due for a public vote Dec. 11. A representative of Fiscal Advisors, Inc., of Hicksville and Cicero, N.Y., said the difference in interest cost between a 10-year and a 20-year bond issue would be about $2 million. It also was noted that in 10 years other capital needs are likely to surface.

- Amended a district policy in order to authorize busing of the high school wrestling team's Pep Squad, although board member Reeves urged that the group change its name to reflect the time-keeping duties it performs.

- Authorized curriculum changes at the high school, including addition of a math course that is to be taught by State University at Albany faculty. The course would be approximately equivalent to a second year college math course, a fact that prompted some questions as to the wisdom of advancing students so far in a curriculum. Changes in the middle school math curriculum are planned to avoid the need for such an advanced course after current freshmen have graduated.

Traffic concerns expressed

By Theresa Bobear

Immediate neighbors of the proposed Skycrest, Section 1-A, asked the Bethlehem Planning Board last week to consider an alternative third route of access to Bronco Development Ltd.'s Planned Residence District off Elm Avenue.

During the public hearing last Tuesday night, the planners listened to the developer's plans and the residents' concerns.

Speaking for Isak Giwer of Bronco Development Ltd., Robert Walsh of C.T. Male Associates explained that the original PRD concept approved by the town board called for the layout plan he was presenting. According to Walsh, some 890 feet of road will be constructed for five single-family lots in order to fulfill the developer's promise to install three routes of access to the development.

"That area can't stand that street and all that traffic," said Stella Giacci. Other area residents echoed her view of the proposal.

Lindsay Boutelle represented Carole and Victor Ballato during a public hearing for a proposed one-lot subdivision of AA-Residential land on Clarkson Rd. With no one speaking against the proposal, Boutelle asked the board to consider the project for conditional approval.

Pending receipt of a report from the town's engineering department, the board tabled consideration of a five-lot subdivision of lands of Briand Parenteau Assoc., located south of Bender Lane.

Finally, the board informally discussed the construction of a single-family house on lands, located on Blessing Rd., to be located to Mr. and Mrs. Robin Ashley.

The board will meet again at Bethlehem Town Hall on Tuesday, Dec. 3. A 7:30 p.m. hearing has been scheduled for consideration of the Normans Gate subdivision off Euclid Avenue in Elsmere.

The name changes, but not the music

With the release of their first nationwide single coming up in February, the five members of Voorheesville's talented music group, Southbound, were prepared for some changes in their lives but little did they realize that one change would be their name—that their record would not bear their locally famous name and trademark. In other words, Southbound won't be Southbound any more.

As it goes in show business, it was discovered by Warner Brothers, which signed the area band to a contract last spring, that in the United States there are 14 other groups bearing the name Southbound with one — Southbound Glory in Alabama — having specific rights to the name.

So began the search for a new moniker for the group, whose career has skyrocketed since they began to perform together three years ago.

Both area country radio stations — WPTR and WGNA — have contests soliciting help from Southbound fans in finding a suitable new name for the group. From the suggestions received, Southbound will choose 25 they like by early December. A list of the 25 will be sent to Warner Brothers, which will research the names and resubmit five to the group for the final selection.

If name suggestions match the number of votes the group received in the recent North East Country Music Awards competition, the radio stations are in for a lot of mail. Nominated in five categories in the contest, Southbound walked off with all five awards, including best vocal group, entertainers of the year, and best instrumental group, with best male vocalist going to Dave Burnham and best instrumentalist to Dave Flint.

Although their popularity no doubt hinges a great deal on their music, which they write themselves, their personalities also endear them to their devoted following.

With holidays coming up, it is understandable that the group will be busy. But even more so as the band will be taking part in several area holiday fund-raisers, including a Toys for Tots collection on Dec. 8 at the Polish Community Center and an Easter Seals event Dec. 23 at J.B.'s Theater.

Ever faithful to their roots, the band also will do a fund-raiser for the Voorheesville PTSA in February benefiting students in the

Substance abuse topic of talk

The Voorheesville PTSA will meet on Monday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m. in the elementary school faculty room. After a business meeting, Cathy Provencher of the Albany County Substance Abuse Prevention Center will talk about prevention of substance abuse among young people. Provencher, who acts as a liaison between the Albany County group and the New Scotland Substance Abuse Task Force, will discuss specific strategies parents may use to keep their children from turning to drugs and alcohol, including fostering positive feelings, support for resisting peer pressure and finding alternative activities and entertainment. All are welcome to attend the presentation, which will begin at 8 p.m.

Voorheesville
News Notes

Lyn Stapf 765-2451

The PTSA also reminds parents, teachers and students to mark their calendars, saving Wednesday, Dec. 18, for a Family Fun Night from 6 to 8 p.m. at the elementary school. Games will be coordinated by the Linindolls of Altamont and dessert sharing is planned.

Yuletide in Holland

With an eye towards the holidays, the New Scotland Historical Association will meet on Tuesday, Dec. 3, at 8 p.m. at the Old New Salem Schoolhouse Museum. Speaker for the evening will be the Rev. Joseph Loux, pastor of the Helderberg Reformed Church, who will speak on "Dutch Treats: Yuletide Celebrations during Holland's Golden Age." The public is invited.

Bach an all-stater

Congratulations to Lawrence Bach, a senior at Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School, who was recently selected to sing with the All-State Chorus at the New York State School Music Association conference in Buffalo Dec. 1 through 4.

Chosen from among hundreds of students statewide, Bach was selected on the basis of a solo he performed in music competition last spring, for which he earned the highest rating attainable at the competition's highest level of difficulty.

Currently active in the school chorus and band, he plans on attending college to study music.

Firemen plan drive

A reminder to the community that the Voorheesville Fire Department will be canvassing the area this Saturday soliciting donations to support the 1987 Albany County fire fighter's convention, which will be held in Voorheesville. The volunteer fire fighter will be passing out calendars and emergency number stickers to residents in the fire district, and would appreciate their support.

Sounds of the holidays

With Thanksgiving soon to be behind us, it will begin to look a lot like Christmas in Voorheesville next week.

Filling the air with the sounds of the holidays, Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School musicians will offer their winter concerts. On Wednesday, Dec. 4, the junior high band will perform under the direction of Lydia Tobler and the junior high chorus, directed by Margaret Dorgan, will sing.

The following evening, Thursday, Nov. 5, the senior high music groups will perform. The concert and stage bands are directed by Frank McDermott. The chorus is under the direction of Margaret Dorgan. The community is welcome to attend both free programs, which begin at 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

Wreath sale next week

The Kiwanis Club of New Scotland will be adding to the festive air with their annual wreath sale from Tuesday, Dec. 3, through Saturday, Dec. 7. The wreaths, which cost $7.50 each, will be sold at the Voorheesville Pharmacy, Stonewell's and Stewart's from 4 until 8 p.m. on weeknights and from 2 until 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to support the many community programs sponsored by the local men's service group, including the summer music program, grasshopper baseball and softball, soccer and peewee wrestling.

The Kiwanis Club would like to remind the public that the winter schedule is now in effect for the Kiwanis-sponsored blood pressure clinics every second Tuesday at the Voorheesville Methodist Church. There is no charge for the screening, which runs from 9 to 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Questionnaires welcomed

With its community meetings finished, the Board of Education of the Voorheesville Central School District continues its search for a new superintendent. Those who were unable to attend the three local sessions to express their views on what they feel is important in a new educational leader for the district are urged to send the questionnaire form the Heldebarker to board president Jack McKenna.

Robots take over?

With all the preparations for the holidays coming up, most parents would no doubt welcome the assistance of a mechanical maid. But students in Peg Kearns's fourth grade reading class did more than wish — they created their own robots.

For one week the corridors of the Voorheesville Elementary School were lined with more than 20 mechanical creations designed and built by the students, each with a purpose in mind.

Some, like Martha Perry's "helpful maid," would assist them in chores, while others like "Eddie (built by Christina Von Dell) would be a companion and "go swimming with her and buy her anything else she wanted."

Lamaze classes begin

A series of eight Lamaze classes in preparation for labor and delivery will be offered by Tri-Cities Childbirth Instruction at several area locations during December and January.

Classes will begin Nov. 30, Dec. 1, Dec. 9, Dec. 10, Dec. 26, Jan. 4 and Jan. 8 at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany. Classes will start Dec. 18 at the Albany Medical Center Hospital.

All classes are taught by registered nurses who are specialists in the field of maternal/child health.

To register call Anne T. Rose at 456-0303.

Video for smokers

A home video program to help smokers quit is now available from the American Lung Association of New York State. Called "In Control: A Freedom From Smoking Program," the package contains a two-hour video cassette (available in BETA or VHS), a 124-page book that gives supplementary information on diet and exercise, and an audio cassette to enhance motivation.

Watching one nine-minute segment of the tape each day for 13 days, viewers learn techniques to quit smoking for good, including how to cope with withdrawal symptoms, and breathing and relaxation exercises.

The "In Control" program can be purchased or leased from the American Lung Association of New York State, 459-4197.

Funds for future teachers

Two new scholarships have been established at the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Senior High School, beginning with the class of 1986. The scholarships will be given to graduates who plan to become elementary or high school teachers and who need financial support.

The scholarships have been established by J. Leonard Douglas, who attended the Ravena High School in 1915-16. He later had a distinguished career as a teacher, author and screen writer. Although he lived most of his life in New York City, he has traveled extensively. He also resided in Europe for 8 1/2 years.

Douglas is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, Pilgrim Society, the Huguenot Society, and the Dutch Settlers Society of Albany. He now resides in Florida, surrounded by several thousand books and a garden of exotic plants.

Douglas recalled that when he was 14, his father — whom he described as a chain-smoker and an alcoholic — took all of the family savings and left. Douglas then had to leave high school and go to work. So, at the age of 14, he became a bellboy in a large city hotel. Later he and his mother moved to the Albany area. He completed his last two years of high school through home study and by passing state regents examinations, receiving a regents academic diploma. He is a graduate of Plattsburgh State Normal School and holds three university degrees.

He began his teaching career in a one-room schoolhouse on Rosendale Rd. in Schenectady. He then taught for 38 years in the same high school near New York City and continued his studies at Columbia University and New York University, receiving academic awards including election to membership in two honor societies. From 1932 to 1940, he worked summers as a scriptwriter for Hollywood Studios.

The interest from Douglas' generous endowment will provide RCS graduates with approximately four scholarships a year. He has named his scholarships, the Marvin D. Losey Family Scholarship, the Isobel N. Denison Scholarship, the 1916 Ravena Teachers Training Class Scholarship and the J. Leonard Douglas 1916 Scholarship.

News from Selkirk and South Bethlehem

Barbara Pickup

He lived with the Marvin D. Losey family during the year he spent in Ravena and Douglas said, from the poor background from which he came, it was a great joy to live in such a well ordered home. Miss Denison was the training class teacher. She was a graduate of Smith College and of Teachers College, Columbia. She was a born teacher and inspired him, Douglas said. She told him, "You must not let your education stop in Ravena." After teaching in Ravena for two years, Miss Denison accepted a position on the faculty of Plattsburgh State. It was through her assistance that Douglas was admitted to study business education at Plattsburgh.

He said, "My mother, the Losey family and Miss Denison were the only people who were ever interested in my life. They gave me the courage to live and to accomplish my aim. If it had not been for their help, there would be no Ravena scholarships today established by J. Leonard Douglas."

Holiday tea at museum

The public is invited to an old-fashioned Christmas exhibit and silver tea sponsored by the Town of Bethlehem Historical Association on Sunday, Dec. 8, from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Cedar Hill School House Museum, Rt. 144 and Clapper Rd., Selkirk. Guests will be treated to a smorgasbord of ideas for Christmas decorations and trimmings, including an exhibit of antique Santa Claus and cookie cutters. Using the association's antique silver service, hostesses will serve holiday refreshments including punch, coffee and tea. Heads of committees include James and Ann Vandervort, decorations; Mary Elizabeth Van Oostenbrugge and Coleen Brewer, hospitality, and Mary Ann and Josephine Twardowsky, refreshments.

Teens try all-nighter

Armed with snacks, radios, tape decks and the like, and with the determination to stay awake all night, members of the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem's Youth Group participated in a "lock-in" at the church last weekend. Under the supervision of youth advisors Donna Nelson and Jill and David Koonz, the teens spent approximately 26 hours in the church on Rt. 9W in Selkirk. They then went to a local restaurant for breakfast and back to the church for Sunday morning services.

Concentrating on communication, the teens participated in a variety of religious discussions, organized activities and games emphasizing communication.

Members of the group who participated were Paul Parisi, David Brown, Eric Brown, Ruth Fourman, Scott Fourman, Hallie Prime, Paula Koonz, Carrie Hofaker, Kristine Lagere, Jackie Lagere, Celia Shubert, Kim Nelson and Cheryl VanKampen.

Citrus orders due

Just a few days remain to place an order with the South Bethlehem United Methodist Church for fresh fruit from Florida. Pink or white grapefruit, navel and Hamlin (juice) oranges, and Orlando tangelos are available in quantities of two-fifths and four-fifths of a bushel. Orders must be placed by Nov. 30 by contacting sales coordinator, Ruth Wright, Box 495, South Bethlehem, 12161, or through members of the church. Delivery is expected the first week of December.

Material for Barbara Pickup's column can be sent to her at P.O. Box 172, RD 1, Selkirk, N.Y. 12158. For questions or late items, call The Spotlight at 439-4949.

Thinking Reed wins honors

The Thinking Reed, a literary arts magazine produced by Bethlehem Central High School students, has been awarded first place in competition sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

The competition, considered by many the most prestigious national educational program in the country for evaluating student publications, is based on a point system that rates areas of concept, content, design and creativity. According to Robin Rapaport, faculty advisor to The Thinking Reed staff, the Bethlehem Central magazine ranked among the top one to three percent in its category.

The detailed written evaluation by Columbia is a good learning tool, Rapaport noted. The magazine, which was revived after a lapse of several years, placed second in its first year back in competition. Careful consideration of Columbia's evaluation helped the magazine move up to first place for its 1985 issue.

"Last year was particularly successful, above and beyond this award," said Rapaport, "because we had some 170 literary pieces and about 140 art pieces submitted for consideration." He explained that each entry is coded for identification, and the student staff makes the selections for publication. He also credited Newsgraphics Printers of Delmar for help with the typesetting and layout.

The Thinking Reed, published in May, is sold in school and at some local businesses. Eventually, Rapaport said, the staff would like to sell by subscription. He added that substantial contributions are still necessary to help cover costs, and a fund drive will begin in late winter.

LET'S DINE OUT

School's Out now serves all BC grade schools

School's Out, Inc., an after-school program, is now open to all Bethlehem elementary school children. When the program opened in September of 1983, only pupils at the Elsmere, Hamagrael and Slingerlands schools could be transported to the program after school. This fall busing was extended to include the St. Thomas, Glenmont and Clarks-ville schools.

A pilot program offering before-school care at Hamagrael Elementary School has been successful, School's Out organizers said, so additional before-school programs are being discussed.

The special needs component of the School's Out program, a mainstreaming project, has reached its maximum enrollment of six minimally handicapped children. However, both the after-school and before-school programs have a few openings, full-time or part-time. For additional information, call School's Out at 439-9300.

Board to review transportation policy

By Theresa Bobear

Prior to an executive session for discussion of the upcoming superintendent candidates interviews, the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Board of Education last week decided to review part of its transportation policy.

The board reviewed another request from parents wishing to have their child dropped at a sitter's house and approved the request because of unusual circumstances.

The board's policy allows parents to change their child's bus stop only during a window period every five weeks.

Board member Ronald Peretti called for some sort of mechanism for approval of legitimate requests, asking that the board of education act as an appeals body to that process.

Board president Anthony Williams asked the transportation committee to review the matter at their next meeting.

In other business, the board:

- Approved student participation in a high school ski club. Each student will be charged $18 for district transportation for the season.

- Approved the expenditure of $550 to be used for wiring the Ravena Elementary School for cable television reception.

The board's next meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 2, at the board offices, Thatcher St., Selkirk.

Holiday closings

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, Bethlehem Town Hall, New Scotland Town Hall and Voorheesville Village Hall will be closed on Thursday, Nov. 28, and Friday, Nov. 29.

The Bethlehem Public Library will close at 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 27, and remain closed Thursday, Nov. 28. The library will be open with regular hours on Friday, Nov. 29.

Most area banks will be closed on Thursday, Nov. 28, and open on Friday, Nov. 29.

Both Thursday and Friday garbage pickups in the Town of Bethlehem will be made on Friday, Nov. 29.

Job Corps to get new director, aides

Replacements for the three employees at the Glenmont Job Corps Center who were dismissed last week following an internal investigation that indicated "possible irregularities in financial transactions" have assumed their duties there, according to Richard Kosmicki, a spokesman for singer Co. in Stamford, Conn.

Singer operates the Job Corps center under contract with the federal Labor Department.

Forest M. Corbin of Glenmont, who was the director, and two other employees whose names have not been made public were dismissed last Wednesday, Kosmicki said. He said Corbin had worked for Singer for 20 years and became director of the Glenmont center in 1976, when Singer took over its operation.

About 350-disadvantaged youths are enrolled in a residential program there that includes courses in job skills such as auto mechanics and building trades. There are about 120 staff members at the center, which is one of 12 operated by Singer.

Faces felony count

A Blessing Rd. resident was charged with driving while intoxicated as a felony after the car she was driving went off Rt. 85 in Slingerlands shortly before midnight last Monday, Nov. 18, according to Bethlehem police reports. Police said the car being driven by Suzanne Helen Cox, 21, was northbound on Rt. 85 near New Scotland Rd. when it left the road and hit a signpost and several small trees before ending up in a ditch.

The Delmar Fire Department Rescue squad took the driver to Albany Medical Center Hospital, where a spokesman said Cox was admitted for treatment and then discharged last Wednesday.

The woman was arraigned in Bethlehem Town Court, where bail was set at $400. The charge is a felony because of a previous DWI conviction within the past 10 years, according to authorities.

Two other motorists were charged by Bethlehem police this week with misdemeanor driving while intoxicated. A Delmar man was stopped about 8 p.m. Friday on Delaware Ave. and an Albany man was pulled over at 12:05 a.m. Saturday on Rt. 85 in Slingerlands, police said.

Two bikes found

A girl's blue 10-speed bicycle is being held at Bethlehem police headquarters after it was picked up last Monday morning near Bethlehem Central High School. Also being held by police is a gray 10-speed that was found Saturday on Elm Ave. near Peel St. The bicycles, which are not registered with the town, can be claimed there by their owners.

Focus On Faith

Rev. Canon Kenneth Cleator

Thanksgiving is always a barometer of our corporate and personal gratitude: those with the most are apt to take it for granted, while those with the least are frequently thankful for the smallest blessing.

How we react depends in part on our attitudes and values. If we have become accustomed to a lifestyle that enables us to obtain, possess and enjoy whatever we desire merely by signing a check, we will not be as grateful as the person who has had to work and save for months to get whatever commodity he longed to secure.

Gratitude is the rose in the garden of life and it grows to full flowering through hard work, sacrificial effort, disciplined living and faith in a Power greater than oneself.

In Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice Mr. Darcy admitted that he had been "a selfish being all my life in practice though not in principle." He believed in being unselfish, but he could never control his desire to acquire and possess for himself. Mr. Darcy lived for Mr. Darcy.

How different the example of Mary Harris (not her real name), who never had much and yet was always willing to share the little she had. An octogenarian and a church-going Methodist, she lived on her old age government pension and her meager savings in a house that had no central heating and no running water (She pumped water from a well in her backyard all year long).

She regarded herself as the happiest, luckiest, most blest woman and thanked God for every day of her life and her blessings.

One day she received word that she was to share a legacy with relatives and when her check came, she endorsed it and gave it to one of the local service clubs for their work among crippled children.

And that wasn't all she did. Every month she sent a portion of her government pension check to her denomination's headquarters in Toronto, Ontario, with instructions to use it where it would do the most good in Canada or anywhere else in the world.

Mary Harris' generosity sprang from her faith in God and her belief that to whom much is given, much is required. "God has done so much for me," she would say, "I must be generous to others."

Scratch an ungrateful person and don't be surprised to discover he had no religious faith and is under no ethical compulsion to help the less fortunate in the world. Because God does not exist for him, he has no value system that compels him to look after anybody but himself. Ethically, he lives in a universe of one, even though there are millions in the world who are starving, malnourished, diseased and illiterate.

That is the way it is with the Darcs of the world. 'Tis a pity. No, it is blasphemy.

Sometimes, if you scratch a Darcy deeply enough, you discover he has never been able to thank God for both his blessings and his trials. He has dismissed

God because of all the trouble he had.

This is the real test of a human spirit: accept both the good times and the hard times, and it becomes easier to be a thankful person. Curse God for the hard times and you pass over the line into atheism and ingratitude.

Job, that testy Old Testament character, had everything and then one day he had nothing. The devil had seen to that with the Lord's blessing. But did Job curse God, as his friends suggested he do? No, instead Job rose to greater heights of faith and trust: "Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him."

At the conclusion of the story, Job ended up with more than he ever had and "then died at a very great age," full of gratitude for all that God had done for him.

A friend of the English writer Charles Lamb, was going through a particularly hard time and in a letter he vented his unhappiness. The world, he wrote, seemed drained of all its sweets.

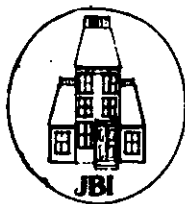

Lamb, who had had his own share of hard times, tried to buoy up his spirits. "Drained of all its sweets? Are there not roses and violets still in the earth, and the sun and the moon still reigning in heaven?" he replied.

In every cloud there is a silver lining and, at Thanksgiving, if we look intently enough, we can see it, and thank God.

For older drivers

The American Association of Retired Persons, Bethlehem Tri-Village Chapter 1598, will offer a "55 Alive Mature Driving" course at the Bethlehem Town Hall on Dec. 5 and 6, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Persons completing the course will be entitled to a discount on their auto insurance from most insurance companies. Call Jack Pelletier at 439-3913 to register for $10.

LINCOLN PHARMACY

300 MORTON AVE., ALBANY
(Corner of Delaware) 6 min. from the 4 Corners

In recognition of American Education Week, Thomas L. Frazier, left, commander of the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post 1040, presents a plaque to Sheila Fuller, president of the Bethlehem Central Board of Education, and Superintendent Lawrence Zinn. Plaques were presented to all seven Bethlehem Central schools and St. Thomas the Apostle School.

New phone installed

In response to requests from Senior citizens, Bethlehem's Kenwood Ave. Parking lot at the Four Corners again has a public pay phone.

During the last year, as renovations occurred at the Four Corners and the old luncheonette was torn down, the pay phone was removed. Since that time, there has been no outdoor public pay phone in the area. This has been especially difficult for the elderly living in that vicinity.

In a joint effort over the last six months involving Karen Pelletier, coordinator of the town's Senior Citizen Service office; Joe Lamprecht, a senior volunteer; the town's building department and Walter Weis of the New York Telephone Co., a new phone has been installed. It is accessible from parking for the handicapped on the lot, which is located next to Applebee's Funeral Home.

Interfaith tea set

The United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church, 428 Kenwood Ave., Delmar, have invited all women in the community to an interfaith tea on Thursday, Dec. 5, at 1:30 p.m.

The event will begin with program by the Thursday Belles, a handbell choir directed by Helen Henshaw.

The event will also include a "Self-help" craft sale, featuring baskets, toys, Indian brass and wood articles, applique from Thailand, rag rugs from Appalachia, creche sets and more. All proceeds of the sale will go directly to the artisans.

Child care will be provided.

Crafts at Hamagrael

The Hamagrael Home-School Association of Delmar will hold a craft fair at the Hamagrael Elementary School on Saturday, Dec. 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

More than 60 vendors will be participating in the event. The show and sale will feature primitive toys, paintings, folk art, hand-dipped candies, soft sculpture, quilts, needlework and baked goods.

Gift certificates from area restaurants, ski resorts and merchants will be raffled.

Financing your child's education is expensive. But learning how to do it is free, at an E.F. Hutton seminar.

Financing your child's education may be one of the most substantial investments you will ever make. Moreover, with education costs rising, it promises to be even more difficult in the years to come.

But E.F. Hutton can help.

In conjunction with National Education Week at E.F. Hutton, December 2, The Bethlehem Parent Faculty Organization Presidents Council is sponsoring free seminars to help you start planning for your child's education now, and help ease the burden later.

A seminar will be held at the Bethlehem Public Library, Community Room, on December 2, at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call Fran Harrison 447-1323 or Ken White, 447-1316.

Guess who's coming to dinner?

Son: Father, may I interrupt your work for a few minutes? I would like to talk with you about something.

Father: Certainly, my son. Let's sit down over here. It's time for me to take a break anyhow. What is it you wish to discuss with me?

Son: Well, you have always taught me to respect you by example. What I mean is that you have always treated yourself with great respect so that you didn't have to demand it from anyone. You simply commanded it with your own dignity and the wisdom with which you have guided your life and your family.

Father: Thank you, my son. It is pleasing to hear these words from your mouth. You have been a man for a number of years according to our customs, but these words make you even more of a man in my eyes. What is the occasion that brings such thoughts to mind?

Son: I come to you, Father, with a request that you do something you have said you do not want to do. I come to you with the respect of myself which allows me to question your wisdom. I ask you, Father, to attend the dinner being held by the new people, and to let Mother come with you so we can share the occasion as a family with our neighbors, our friends.

Father: You are right, Son. I have said that I would not have any relations with the new people nor would I approve of my family having anything to do with them. They are foreigners with different ways and strange ideas that are no good for us. We should not welcome them nor should we allow them to become familiar with us. A respectful distance is the right way to treat them so long as they leave us alone as well.

Son: But, Father, it is their very differences that make it worthwhile for us to know them. You have taught me that we can learn only that which is yet unfamiliar. Knowledge comes from facing our ignorance and filling it with new learning. The foreigners give us the opportunity to gain new knowledge we could never acquire by ourselves. We should at least expose ourselves to it and then make a judgment whether it is good or bad for us.

Father: It is true that knowledge comes from facing ignorance, but in this instance there is no need to look further than the surface. These new people have come here from far away and bring with them a manner of living that opposes our manner. The place where they have settled has become barren and ugly. They have ruined the area they now call "home" and it is like a blight that threatens to spread to the area we call "home."

Son: Okay, Father, but don't you think they could learn from us? They are in a totally new environment from what they are used to, and they are as ignorant of our ways as we are of theirs. I'm sure if we were to move to their hometown, we would be as out of place as they are here.

Father: You are showing me much tolerance and understanding, Son, but the fact remains that these new people do not belong here with us. They are very different. Their ways are different. Their language is different. Their skin is different. Their hair color is different. Their dress is different. Their religion is different. Their values are very different. They do not belong here with us. Only bad can come of it.

Son: But you are the one who has shown me the beauty of the fields where the deer runs with the rabbit and the oak grows alongside the elm. You are the one who taught me of the wind from the heavens that picks up the seeds of every form of life and spreads them throughout the universe. Perhaps it was that very wind that brought these strangers to us to teach us more than we have known.

Father: Perhaps it was the wind, but I believe it was a foreboding wind that signals a storm. These people are dangerous to us. We should no more sit down at the dinner table with them than we should lie down in the bed of matrimony with them. They are not our kind and we must not court any of their favors. You are not, by chance, attracted by one of their yellow-haired girls, are you?

Son: No, I am not, Father. That is not my reason for wanting us to attend their dinner. I want to go so we can open ourselves to teaching and learning and sharing in a spirit of mutual respect and joy of life.

Father: Well, my son, I respect your wishes and your intentions. I believe in my heart that you are wrong, but you have my permission to go to the dinner yourself, not my approval. Your mother and I will remain here in our own home. Please convey my regrets to those neighbors of ours who will be attending. I believe you are all inviting decay into our world.

Longtime rivalries may stay in schedule

Despite Bethlehem Central's decision to drop out of the Suburban Council in football, the school may be able to preserve several of its longtime rivalries.

Raymond Sliter, BC director of athletics, said he was waiting to see what direction the Suburban Council itself would take in realigning its 1986 football schedule. If the Council goes to an eight-team round-robin with two open dates, Sliter said, Bethlehem could still schedule the teams in the Gold (small school) Division of the league, Guilderland, Scotia and Burnt Hills, on a non-league basis, and possibly book games with Shaker and Columbia. "It all depends on whether we can find open dates," he said.

If the Council decides to play a seven-week round-robin followed by crossover games with the Big Eight conference, formerly the Big Ten, the Eagles would be forced to turn to the smaller Foothills Council and to independent schools to fill out the nine-game schedule. The eight Foothills schools are Glens Falls, South Glens Falls, Queensbury, Ballston Spa, Hudson Falls, Johnstown, Gloversville and Scotia, the latter like Bethlehem a Suburban Council dropout.

At the moment Sliter's only commitment is with Bishop Gibbons, a former Big Ten member, for a return game on a two-year contract, but, he says, he has "several tentative dates" with other teams. Bishop Gibbons was the only team BC defeated in its nine-game 1985 schedule.

The Bethlehem school board last Wednesday accepted unanimously the staff request to withdraw the football team from the Suburban Council. There was no public comment from residents attending the meeting. Bethlehem varsity football teams have suffered through seven consecutive seasons without winning more than two games in any one season.

The Suburban Council is expected to act on the Bethlehem situation next week.

Eagles need hustle, muscle to offset lack of height

This could be another long season for Bethlehem Central's basketball team, but six returning lettermen and a new coach give rise to guarded optimism.

The Eagles haven't got enough height to match up with many of their rivals, and there are no stand-out players to take charge of a game, hence Jack Mosher, moving up from the JV to coach the varsity, will have to rely on quickness and hard work.

Mosher succeeds Gary 'Przybylo, who was ousted by pressure from BC basketball parents at the close of last season. Mosher, who also serves as trainer for the Patroons, Albany's professional team, coached the Troy High varsity for two years before coming to BC as JV coach three years ago. Both Przybylo and Mosher are "outside" coaches, Przybylo a state employee and Mosher a Troy teacher.

With no one resembling a center, Mosher has installed a three-forward, two-guard offense that will depend heavily on speed and quickness. Mike Gibbons is the most altitudinous of the five starters at 6-1.

"We don't match up in height with many teams, and we'll be outmatched under the boards," says Mosher, "but we have good inside play. We have to depend on the guards a lot. We need to be a team that plays as a unit, and we're starting to play better together. I'll say this for the kids — they are really working hard."

The height deficiency made all the difference last weekend when the Eagles, facing Suburban Council rival Columbia in the final of a tip-off tournament at Rensselaer High School, lost by 17 points after a 65-55 win over the host team in the opening round. They were off-target repeatedly in the early moments as Columbia opened up a 21-8 bulge. That widened to 48-24 in the second half before the Eagles pulled themselves together. BC cut the deficit to nine points and had a chance to make it seven, but an Eagle shot rolled off the rim and the Blue Devils converted a 3-point play, then added a slam dunk that made the Sunday papers.

Quality to Eliminate the Hard Work From Yard Work

Spotlight SPORTS

Mosher's starting lineup currently shows Gibbons, Paul Stracke and Greg Dobbert on the front line, and Karim Jahkra and Steve Chung in the backcourt. Gibbons and Stracke were starters last year, Jahkra and Dobbert saw spot duty, and Chung was brought up from the JV for the final three games of the season.

Jeff Mackey is currently the first man off the bench, and two juniors, Ed Perry, at 6-1 the football quarterback, and Brian Battle, 6-0, a football receiver, showed well in the perspiration at Rensselaer.

Mosher also likes two sophomores, Mike Hodge, a fine all-around athlete, and John Peyre-brune. Both are under 5-foot-10, but Mosher hopes they will develop the quickness, ball handling and shooting eyes to make an important contribution as the season progresses.

The Eagles have this week off from combat, but will be working out each day except Turkey Day. They go to Colonie next Tuesday for a non-league exercise, and will open the Suburban Council campaign Dec. 6 at Guilderland.

BC will host the annual Helderberg Holiday Classic this year. Coming in for the Dec. 26-27 tournament will be charter members Voorheesville and Guilderland, plus Chatham, a newcomer replacing those giant-killers from Catskill High.

Driver's bail $5,000

A Westerlo man has dates in three local courts following a high-speed chase that started about 1 a.m. Sunday in the Village of Ravena.

According to a spokesman for the state police at Selkirk, Richard S. Aylor, 22, of Westerlo was charged with driving while intoxicated, first degree reckless endangerment, reckless driving, and other traffic counts after he was apprehended in Glenmont by troopers, assisted by Bethlehem police.

The drama began when Aylor's car drove out of a garage parking lot in Ravena with no headlights on and narrowly missed hitting a troop car, according to state police. It ran several cars off the road, went up onto a lawn and then struck a parked car before losing its left front tire as it was northbound on Rt. 9W, troopers said. Authorities said the car, minus the tire, was clocked at more than 80 miles an hour as it went past a Bethlehem patrol car.

Aylor was arraigned in Bethlehem Town Court and sent to the Albany County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail, troopers said. He has court dates in the Village of Ravena and the towns of Coeymans and Bethlehem.

Blackbirds raw but ready to fly

With only two experienced players on hand, the pre-season book on Voorheesville basketball gives the Blackbirds pretty long odds in the upcoming Colonial Council hoop campaign, but Coach Bob Crandall says they'll be a lot tougher than people think.

"You lose seven of 10 players from a 7-15 team and the JV had a losing record, you might think you're in for a season of mediocrity," Crandall said this week. "But these guys have surprised me in scrimmages. They've got the potential to be a fine basketball team."

The two experienced players are Jerry Borg, a well-built 6-4 frontliner, and Vinnie Foley, a strong inside player. A third senior, Justin Corcoran, saw limited action last year. All three are good athletes — Borg and Corcoran were soccer all-stars and Foley was quarterback on the football team for the past two seasons.

Borg, very mobile for a big man, sat out much of last season with foul trouble, but Crandall says he has developed a good shooting touch from a summer of recreation basketball in Albany. Foley checked in a little chubbier than usual, but he's already slimming down. He's a good shooter, sometimes streaky, but is strong under the boards at 6-foot-1.

Corcoran will get a lot more action this year, and has good scoring potential once he gets more confidence.

Crandall has brought up nine juniors from last year's jayvees, four of them guards. With the three senior tri-captains on the front line, he is grooming Kyle Larabee and Dean Decker for the back court, with bench help from David Dunning and Ben Greenberg.

Larabee was the leading scorer on the JV last year, averaging just under 20 points as a small (5-11) forward or third guard. This year he will be the Blackbirds' shooting guard, which means he will be handling the ball more. "He has to develop a court sense, learn how to read defenses and open up the court," says Crandall. "When he does, he will do more scoring."

Decker, a 5-9 lefthander, is a fair ball handler who will be bringing the ball up. Dunning and Greenberg are Crandall's most aggressive defensive players.

Spelling the seniors in the front court will be Tom Buckley and Frank Donnelly, both 6-2. Crandall sees Buckley as "much improved from the JV last year, stronger and more mature, jumps well and rebounds well." Donnelly can spell Borg or Foley up front, and will be a help under the boards.

Also on the bench are Dar McKenna, a 6-0 utility man who can play guard or forward, Kevin Kelly, who will be used in pressing situations, and Jon Chapman, a control the ball, cut down on turnovers and stay out of foul trouble," he says, reciting the hoop coaches' litany. "If our big kids, Borg and Foley, can stay clean we'll be in a lot of ball games and we'll be in the thick of the race."

The Blackbirds open this weekend, facing the host team in the Queensbury Tip-Off Tournament Friday night. On Saturday it will be either Guilderland or St. John's of Plattsburgh. The Colonial Council scramble gets underway Dec. 6 at Mechanicville, and there will be five league games before the annual Helderberg Holiday tourney Dec. 26-27, this time at Bethlehem Central.

Raw Ravena slowly cooking

By Dan Tidd

With only three starters from his 1984-85 varsity basketball team, Ravena coach Jim Gorham is preaching patience to his players as a key to their 1985-86 success.

"I'm not going to make any predictions yet," said Gorham, in his second season at the helm of the Indian hoop squad. Of the 11 players on this year's team, only three, junior guards John Waddingham and Larry Rivers and senior guard Chris Frese, have varsity experience.

"We are very raw, to put it mildly," said Gorham. "I think this is a better shooting team than last year's team. But, our kids are going to have to be very patient with the ball, something we didn't do last year. Our club was not very good at protecting the ball last year. We must eliminate that problem this season."

Gorham's others players include junior guard Tony Williams, fresh off the football campaign. His cousin, junior forward Mark Williams, is a streak shooter who, Gorham says, "gives us some extra outside shooting offense to go with Waddingham."

The other forward slot is being filled by junior Mark Biernacki. Coach Gorham is looking to junior Adam Wheeler to fill the center position. "Adam is not a big center, but he gives us some shot-blocking potential and rebounding strength," said Gorham. Junior guards Ken Koonz and Lance Tucker round out the Indian backcourt.

John Waddingham, left, Anthony Williams and Adam Wheeler will start for the RCS Basketball team this season. Jeff Gonzales

Seniors Bob Baranska and 6-3 Mike Mims are new additions to the post positions. "Baranska and Mims both jump extremely well," said Gorham. "They give us some needed rebounding from both the offensive and defensive side."

Looking ahead to Colonial Conference play, Gorham is stressing two crucial improvements for his players: "This club has got to shoot better than last year if it expects to compete in 1985-86," said Gorham. "Ball handling, passing and offensive pressure will make us a good shooting team, we just have to do it with authority this year."

The Ravena coach is working his players hard in practice this fall on pressure defense and strong rebounding. "Our 1984-85 team got killed off the boards offensively and defensively," said the coach. Wheeler, Baranska and Mims are big keys to our rebounding success. They must be involved in our defensive scheme if we are going to be a force."

Backcourt aces Waddingham and Rivers will most likely get the duty of running the Indian offense. "I haven't made a decision yet, but one of those two will run the show," said Gorham.

The Indians are in action this Friday night, when they will be hosting the 15th Annual Ravena Gold Medal tournament, the longest running tournament in the Capital District. Powerhouse LaSalle faces off against Icabod Crane in the 7 p.m. opener. Ravena meets Mohonasen in the 8:30 p.m. nightcap. The winners will battle Saturday night at 8:30 for the championship. The Indians open league play Dec. 6 at home against Lansingburgh.

Businessmen honored

Business community representatives were recognized for the services and help they have given to Bethlehem Central High School at a breakfast meeting held Nov. 19.

Principal Charles Gunner presented eagle pins and certificates of appreciation to Richard Ahlstrom, publisher of The Spotlight; Michael Cahill and John Borkowski of Niagara Mohawk Power Corp; Jim Conheady of Noryl Products Plastic Division of General Electric; Chuck Jenkins and George Kiemle of Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp; and Tom Thorsen of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce.

Vandal sought

Bethlehem police are investigating three incidents in the past week in which objects were thrown at cars from the railroad overpass on Rt. 85 near the Slingerlands firehouse. The incidents all in the evening hours, caused damage to the windshields of two vehicles and to the roof of a third.

Lady Indians add to perfect record

The old saying, "when you're hot, you're hot" has become the motto of the RCS girls volleyball team as they continue to add wins to their perfect record. With two victories this past week, the team raised its overall record to 9-0 and its Colonial Council record to 6-0.

On Thursday the Indians traveled to Voorheesville and swept the Lady Blackbirds in two straight games. Coach Ron Racey noted that junior setter Colleen Farrell played a superb all-around game in helping her team to the decisive win.

In a lopsided match, the Indians dominated host Watervliet on Friday in the girls' easiest game of the season. The game only lasted a short time as Ravena won the match, taking the first two games by large margins. The whole team played brilliantly, shutting down Vliet's offensive attack with a relentless defense and scoring at will, finding every possible hole in the opponents' defense.

All but one of their seven remaining league games will be home. This week the team was scheduled to play Holy Names Monday and Cohoes today (Wednesday). Both are home games. The next game will be a non-league match Dec. 4 at Bethlehem Central, Ravena's final away game until the Sectionals.

Birds lose to Ravena

By Rick Leach

Consistency. That word just about sums up the play of the Voorheesville Blackbird volleyball team. They have beaten the weak, but fallen to the mighty.

This has left the squad in the middle of the pack in the Colonial Council with a 3-3 record. This trend continued last week as they beat lowly Holy Names and Albany Academy for Girls, but fell to undefeated Ravena.

The week started in good fashion as the Lady Blackbirds rolled to a two-game victory over Holy Names. This set the stage for the big game with Ravena, the team they had been waiting for all week. Voorheesville played a tough first game, but came out on the short end, 15-10. Just when it seemed that the Indians were going torun away with the second game and the match, the Birds battled back from a 6-1 deficit and took an 11-6 lead. However the tough Ravena squad rose to the occasion and came back to recapture the lead, 12-11. The Indians then capitalized on some missed serves and some missed opportunities by Voorheesville to come away with a 15-11 game and a 2-0 match victory.

The Lady Blackbirds bounced back on Friday against Albany Academy for Girls, 15-8, 15-4. Heather Brennan came off the bench with seven points and Betsy Zeh played an outstanding game to lead the way.

On Monday and Wednesday (today) Voorheesville had to avenge two early season three-game losses to Schalmont and Ravena. Two victories could put them among the mighty in the Colonial Council.

Eagles yet to soar

By Charles Henrikson

After a disappointing week Coach Carol Walts is hoping that the Bethlehem Central girls volleyball team will pull itself together and get back on the winning track.

On Friday they lost to Guilderland in three games, 16-14, 8-15, 15-6. Earlier in the week they dropped decisions to Burnt Hills and to Shaker. They were "in" all of the games there were no blowouts.

The team's record is now 2-5.

which Walts attributes to a lack of experience, but she hopes the team will "pick up for the rest of the season." She feels that the Eagles have a good defense, but that they are having problems serving and playing good, aggressive offense. She considers the team "well-balanced," and that they have good talent that will develop with experience.

The teams was scheduled to host Scotia yesterday (Tuesday). Next week the Eagles play at Columbia on Monday and come home against Ravena on Wednesday.

THE HOME TEAM

The American Way

• We are a nation of homeowners—and Americans seem to want it that way. A recent survey of the Harvard-M.I.T. Joint Center for Urban Studies reported that 79 percent of the people who bought homes in 1983 and 1984 most probably would have made the purchase even if home ownership didn't offer tax advantages.

• Interestingly, our neighbors to the north have similar feelings. Canada does not let homeowners deduct interest payments or real estate taxes from their federal income taxes, yet Canadians own their own homes at close to the same rate as those in the United States.

• Americans are also a nation of movers-around. Families pick up and move all over. Workers follow their jobs clear across the country. Most moves mean a house sold in the old location, and a new home in the new town.

• We real estate professionals help make it all possible. You can depend on us to market your current property for its best possible price—AND introduce you to a broker in your new location who'll help you settle in there.

Put us to work for you. If you're set to move—across town or across the country—list with the leaders at...

Voorheesville's four Capital Football Conference all-stars posed for the Spotlight camera last week at the Blackbirds' annual post-season football banquet, held at the Crossgates Restaurant, Albany. From left, they are Rich Kane, Bill Kelly, Glenn Zautner and Mark Gillenwalters. The team had a successful season at 6-2-1, and finished in second place in the league's Colonial Division. Spotlight

CYO girls back in action

St. Thomas CYO junior girls basketball team is back in action tonight (Wednesday) after losing the final of the Tiffany Phillips tourney at St. Ambrose by two points.

Kelly Ryan had 13 points and Peggy Gould 10 as St. Thomas bombed St. Teresa's, 37-17, in the first round of the tournament. In the title game, they fell behind a taller team from St. Catherine of Siena by 10 points, only to see a last-period rally fall short in a 35-33 loss. Ryan and Gould again led the Delmar scorers with eight points each.

In their opening league game, St. Thomas lost to St. Ambrose, 16-10. Other members of the team, coached by Jack Menzie, are Chrissy Battle, Chris Brockley, Jennifer Callahan, Kerry Fitzpatrick, Sue Hund, Kassie Jeram, Chris Malone, Karyn Mendel, Chrissy Menzie and Tracy O'Donnell.

Winners at dog trial

Members of the Albany-Greene Schutzhund Club of Selkirk made up 50 percent of participants who passed the Schutzhund trials conducted recently near Boston, Mass.

Schutzhund is a sport developed in Europe to evaluate the working abilities of the German shepherd in tracking, obedience and protection. Many traditional German breeds, such as Labradors, Belgians, Great Danes, Airedales, Chesapeake Bay retrievers and standard poodles, are allowed to enter Schutzhund competitions.

Dale Keenan

Runner of the year

For the fourth consecutive year, Dale Keenan of South Bethlehem has been named the Hudson-Mohawk Road Runners Club's runner of the year.

In the 22 races Keenan has run this year, he placed first in 14 and finished second in six. Most recently, he placed third in the 15-kilometer Stockadeathon, which is held in Schenectady.

Last March, Keenan was the first area finisher in the Athletics Congress National 30-kilometer race. He placed 12th among internationally classed former Olympic runners.

When he is not competing in races, Keenan is a frequent volunteer for club races. He is director of the HMRRRC-sponsored South Bethlehem road race, which takes place in October.

Hoop clinics set

The Town of Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department plans a series of three basketball clinics for players in grades five through eight.

The clinics will be on Dec. 7, 14 and 21 at the Bethlehem Central Middle School boys' gym.

Players in grades 5 and 6 will meet from 9 to 10:30 a.m. and players in grades 7 and 8 will meet from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Registration can be made at the first session. The fee is $5 a player. The program is open to residents of the town and the school district.

licensed toxic waste handler. The cost runs from $200 to $500 a drum, depending on what's in it.

A ho-hum response throughout Albany County, however, put the cleanup project on hold.

Broome, Oneida and Onondaga counties have had such clean-up opportunities and, closer to home, the Schenectady County Environmental Advisory Council sponsored one last June, while the Rensselaer County Environmental Management Council is planning one for this spring. Denise Cashmere, who serves as staff to the Schenectady council, said their cleanup day netted 25 drums of hazardous wastes, including arsenic compounds and the now banned DDT and Chlordane. The nearly $8,500 cost of this collection effort was covered by an appropriation of $5,000 from the county, donations from businesses and modest fees charged at the site.

"I'm sure we only put a small dent in what's out there," Cashmere said. "But, yes, we'll do it again."

A spokesman for the Albany County Environmental Management Council said a hazardous household waste cleanup day had been discussed and "it sounds like it has potential."

"It's simpler with industries," John Sheehan, senior public health sanitarian with the Rensselaer County Environmental Health Services, pointed out. "They have constant amounts and known toxics."

At one time, from 1981 to 1983, the state Department of Environmental Conservation operated a warehousing network across the state, where materials such as DDT could be taken after confiscation by a state inspector. However, residents near the five or so warehouse sites objected, and the state, lacking the money to make the collection points environmentally secure, dropped the plan.

So far, no alternatives are in place, and not many people would want to repeat the experience of an area farmer who found it cost him $200 to legally and properly dispose of a pint of DDT.

Technical questions about safe disposal of thousands of commonly used chemicals have yet to be answered, said Pickett Simpson of the Environmental Facilities Corp. (EFC), an agency of the state Department of Environmental Conservation. But, meanwhile, people don't want to stop using oven cleaners and spray paints. So the chemicals come into homes, are used there but not always used up, and what's left goes into the trash.

People knowledgeable in the field of hazardous waste disposal recognize the difficulties of safely disposing of such discards. David Machlica, marketing director at Dunn Geoscience in Latham, which has a division serving industrial hazardous waste disposal needs, said some 64,000 chemicals are produced, about 2,000 of which have been thoroughly studied. The number of possible combinations of all these chemicals is staggering, and what they might do together is largely unknown. Then, too, seemingly innocent products in sufficient concentration can be deadly.

"The matrix of potential problems is much greater today" than 80 years ago, Machlica said. But do people want to go back to that simpler age? "I think people are going to demand, not that we regress to 1850, but that we work out the technology that will allow us to live with what is created," he said.

But let's have fewer products that must carry warnings and use less of them, is the cry from a number of quarters, including a Hazardous Waste Treatment Facilities Task Force appointed in 1983 by Gov. Cuomo. The task force's No. 1 recommendation for dealing with hazardous waste in the state is that less of it be generated.

The Environmental Planning Lobby also would like to see less hazardous waste, including from households. One tactic for helping that to happen would be to incorporate the disposal cost in the price of the product, said Betsy Lyons, EPL associate director, "so there is pressure on the consumer to use less bug spray and lawn fertilizer." Along these lines, there is a bill before the state legislature that would require containers of hazardous household materials to be returned to the manufacturer for disposal — a variation on the bottle bill. The chemicals then would be known and concentrated in one place, with the burden on the generator to ensure proper disposal. But such a law seems a long way off.

Betzhold, through the League of Women Voters, is hoping to have an impact on the problem. She and several other League members are working on a booklet to be published this spring that offers alternatives to the use of a number of household products that carry warnings.

But, meanwhile, the cans are piling up and some of them are leaking.

The Home Front

By Betty Lent
TV satellite receiver dishes are becoming household fixtures, as the size of the dishes shrinks with advancing technology. Eventually, you may only need a 4-foot dish on the roof.
New electric cooktop has cast-iron heating elements. It's said to heat pots more efficiently than coils do.
Lattice panels don't close out light the way shutters do, yet they offer good looks and some privacy, too. Use natural wood, or paint to match walls.
Safety tip: be sure power tools are unplugged before changing parts or making any adjustments.
Surprise: the city with the greatest number of historic buildings being rehabilitated is St. Louis, Missouri (350 as of last summer).
No surprises—just real estate service you can depend on. Let our real estate pros market your house. LIST WITH.....

OBITUARIES

Geraldine Collins

Geraldine B. Collins, 75, of Slingerlands, a retired ward clerk for Child's Hospital, Albany, died Nov. 20 at St. Peter's Hospital, Albany, after a long illness.

Born in Gilbert, Minn., she was a longtime resident of the Albany area. She studied nursing at Albany Medical Center Hospital.

Prior to serving at Child's Hospital, she was head of housekeeping at the Emma Willard School in Troy.

She was a member of Christ the King Church in Guiderland.

Survivors include her husband, Wilfrid Collins; two daughters, Eileen Martel of Glenmont and Diana Dudley of Tuscon, Arizona; a son, Gerald Collins of Lunenburg, Mass.; three brothers, John Pilon of Fayetteville, N.J., Gerard Pilon of Wheaton, Md., and Viator Pilon of Tuscon, Ariz., and four sisters, Theresa Shamsey of Saratoga Springs, Yvonne Giardino of Queens, and Cecile Obie and Pauline Marie Dunk of North Miami, Fla. She is also survived by five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Arrangements were by the Philip J. Frederick Funeral Home, Albany. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Troy.

Kathleen Prusik

Kathleen Joan Prusik, 53, of Selkirk died Nov. 23 at St. Peter's Hospital, Albany, after a long illness.

She was a lifelong resident of Bethlehem.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Prusik of Selkirk; a brother, Edward R. Prusik of Texas; two step-brothers, Nicholas Behuniak of Selkirk and Richard Behuniak of Ravena, and several nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were by the Meyers Funeral Home, Delmar. Burial was in Bethlehem Rural Cemetery.

Carmela DeMarco

Carmela (Mollie) DeMarco, 55, of Delmar died Nov. 21 at St. Peter's Hospital, Albany, after a long illness.

She was a communicant of St. Thomas the Apostle Church, Delmar.

Survivors include a brother, Ralph DeMarco of Albany; a sister-in-law, Filomena DeMarco of Delmar, and several nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were by the Daniel J. Robilatto Funeral Home. Burial was in St. Agnes Cemetery, Menands.

Caroline C. Hauf

Caroline C. Hauf, 80, of Glenmont died Nov. 21 at Memorial Hospital in Albany after a short illness.

A lifelong resident of the Albany area, she was a retired bookbinder for the Boyd Printing Company, Albany.

She was a member of the ladies guild and choir at Trinity United Methodist Church in Albany.

She is survived by her husband, Louis F.B. Hauf Sr.; a son, Louis F.B. Hauf Jr. of Glenmont, and three sisters, Mabel Riely of Voorheesville, Catherine Billings of Utica and Jane Relyea of Fayetteville, N.C. She is also survived by three grandchildren.

Arrangements were by Marshall W. Tebbutts Sons, Delmar. Burial was in Memory's Garden, Colonie.

James Rossetti Sr.

James J. Rossetti Sr., 65, of Delmar, an Army veteran of World War II, died Nov. 19 at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany.

Born in Schenectady, he retired from his duties as property manager for the Trans America Insurance Company, Philadelphia, in 1984. He lived in Delmar during the past year.

He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3185, Delmar. He was a recipient of the Bronze Service Star and the Asiatic Service Medal.

He was a communicant of St. Thomas the Apostle Church in Delmar.

Survivors include his wife, Amelia Daimante Rossetti; a son, James J. Rossetti of Phoenix, Arizona; a daughter, Marilyn Denslow of Washington, D.C., and three sisters, Helen Torncello and Josephine Panariello of Schenectady, and Marie Boyle of Clifton Park. She is also survived by two grandchildren.

Arrangements were by the Applebee Funeral Home, Delmar. Burial was in the Evergreen Cemetery, Colonie.

City's 300 years is focus of Junior League project

To celebrate Albany's tricentennial year, 1986, the Junior League of Albany is giving all fourth grade teachers and elementary school libraries in Albany County a revision of a booklet first published in 1975 for the country's bicentennial, Moccasins and Wooden Shoes.

In addition, the Junior League aided by the Albany Institute of History and Art's education department, has developed a "traveling trunk" containing items relating to the city's 300th anniversary. The trunk includes both actual and facsimile materials to reinforce the booklet information, and a team of Junior League and Albany Institute volunteers will take the trunk to classrooms.

Classroom visits will begin in January. To arrange for the tricentennial trunk to visit a fourth grade in Albany County, contact the Albany Institute of History and Art, 125 Washington Ave., Albany.

Post to Flanigan

John Flanigan, Town of Bethlehem building and fire inspector for the past 17 years, has been elected first vice president of the New York State Building Officials Association. Flanigan was elected recently at a conference in Ellenville, N.Y. He has been a member of the state group for 15 years and previously was second vice president of the association. He served as conference chairman in 1984-85.

Astrology returns

The Bethlehem Channel has announced the return of Astrology with Judith Longley on Monday, Dec. 7. The program will be aired on Mondays at 7 p.m., on Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. and on Fridays at 11 a.m. during December. Longley will focus on Christmas gift ideas.

Cars hit 6 deer

State police at the Selkirk substation investigated six car-deer accidents last week, five of them on Wednesday, according to a spokesman at the substation. No injuries were reported by the occupants of the vehicles.

Yule trees gone

Fifteen evergreen trees, valued at a total of $350, were stolen sometime overnight Nov. 17 from outside the Tri-Village Fruit Market on Delaware Ave., according to Bethlehem police reports. Police are investigating.

Onesquethaw in training

According to Captain Evelyn Cole, the Onesquethaw Rescue Squad has been very busy training this past year. On Monday, Nov. 18, the squad attended a drill with the fire department. During the drill, dispatchers from Albany County Radio Control Center talked about dispatching emergency equipment, followed by a question and answer period. On Nov. 19 the squad was back for more training, this time with a representative from the Regional Emergency Medical Organization (REMO). The instruction that evening was on usage of the Philadelphia Cervical Collar, and on a new short back board call the KED board.

The Fighters Corner welcomes items of interest to fire and rescue volunteers. Call Connie Parisi at 767-9037 or send information to The Spotlight, 125 Adams St., Delmar.

Top real estate man

Greg Gersch, business administrator for Bob Howard Inc., Delmar, recently placed first in a Monopoly Tournament for the benefit of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The event was sponsored by The First American Bank. Some $2,000 was raised for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Business women plan Yule party

The Bethlehem Business Women will gather for a Christmas party at the Albany Motor Inn on Wednesday, Dec. 4. Musical entertainment will be provided by Tony Ippolito. For information call 439-5298.

Troopers to retire

Two veteran state troopers at the Selkirk substation are retiring this year. They are Trooper D.N. Perry, with 22 years of service, and Trooper T.S. Hoke, who has been on the force for 23 years.

Correction

A story in last week's Spotlight on the change in ownership of The Flower Girl to Danker Florists incorrectly spelled the name of the new owner, Ken Felthousen.

Library on Sunday, Dec. 1, at 2 p.m.

The concert will be performed in conjunction with the opening of the National Gallery's new exhibit, "The Treasure House of Britain: 500 Years of Private Patronage and Art Collecting."

Turner, a soprano and voice teacher, and Jones, a pianist and music teacher, will perform works of Purcell, Sir Benjamin Britten, Sir Arthur Sullivan and others.

Glenmont: 'dismay'

Editor, The Spotlight:

We, the Glenmont PTA Executive Committee, are dismayed to learn of Superintendent Lawrence Zinn's recommendation for the purchase of "portable classrooms" as a "solution" to Bethlehem's redistricting needs. It is our belief that the Board of Education's endorsement of such a "solution" would be short-sighted.

It is obvious that, even after all of the hearings, Dr. Zinn continues to view the situation as simply one of overcrowding at Glenmont School. His band-aid approach — which, ironically, would meet neither the immediate nor longer range spacing needs of our school, does not begin to address the shifting demographics of his district. We already have exceeded the 86-86 enrollment prediction.

The problem is an enrollment imbalance among the district's five elementary schools; the overcrowding faced by one of those schools is a reflection of the problem. Let us not confuse symptoms with the disease itself.

We believe there can be little justification for the expenditure of over $130,000 on the addition of modular classrooms to Glenmont when classrooms in other district elementary schools are underutilized. For this reason, the PTA's from four of the five district schools have already gone on record in support of equalizing the occupancy/vacancy rates via redistricting. We thought and hoped the board shared our priority for a reasonable, well-planned, cost efficient, long-term solution to a growing imbalance.

In our view, the Zinn proposal is a politically expedient nonsolution. It takes the short-run "easy way out"; it avoids hard choices by postponing the inevitable. The Board of Education's approval of the Zinn proposal would represent an abdication of the responsibilities entrusted to them by the taxpayers of this district.

Thanks from scouts

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the entire Girl Scout troop 649, I would like to extend a special thank you to all of the community who supported our recent Garage Sale. It was rainy, cold and damp and yet people turned out. Special thanks are in order to Mrs. Giebitz, Dr. and Mrs. David Putnam and to Mrs. Hillinger. We are very grateful to them for their very generous donations. Watch again for signs of a Garage Sale sponsored by our troop in the spring!

Breakfast a success

Editor, The Spotlight:

The members of the Delmar Peace Breakfast wish to thank the following for helping make our Nov. 3 benefit pancake breakfast for "Tools for Peace" a huge success:

The members of the community who attended and lent support to this most worthy cause,

The Spotlight and local merchants who helped to publicize it,

The many workers who made it happen, especially Red Goyer, without whose expertise it would have been a much tougher job.

We look forward to doing it again.

Halt cruelty

Editor, The Spotlight:

Several weeks ago, on a Wednesday evening, I let my cat, Blackie, out for his evening stroll. The next morning he did not appear for breakfast, a meal he has not missed in five years. The next several days were spent searching the woods and roadsides around our house trying to locate him, but to no avail.

The following Monday he appeared at our door, in terrible shape and with a badly mangled front leg. Immediately I rushed him to Dr. Ed Becker, who has had much too much experience with animals who have been caught in steel leg traps. At first it was a question of whether Blackie would even live, and then it was a matter of how much of his leg he was going to have to lose. Ultimately all but one toe had to be amputated. He is now home recuperating. Luckily he was a healthy cat to begin with, and should be fine.

Apparently Blackie had been caught in a steel leg trap and left there for several days. According to Dr. Becker, from the condition of the wound he had to have been released by someone. Financially, it was an expensive experience, but emotionally there is no price tag that can be placed on the trauma that both Blackie and our family suffered.

By law trappers have to check their traps every 24 hours. Evidently, whoever is trapping in our area has no regard for the law, since his trap was not checked for days. These traps are inhumane enough even when used legally, but to leave an animal in one for days in unspeakably cruel.

The purpose of this letter is make people aware of the cruelty of these traps. Presently there are two bills that have been introduced in New York State to ban the use of steel leg hold traps — bill No. 479-A, which has been introduced by Assemblyman Alexander Grannis, and bill No. S.66 and A.20, which has been introduced by Sen. Michael Tully, Jr. and Assemblyman Grannis. I strongly urge everyone to let their representatives know that they support the passage of these bills.

Any publicity that you could give this issue would be appreciated. Let's help protect our pets and our wildlife from this heartless means of trapping. Thank you for any help you can provide.

I wish to express my deepest appreciation to the Delmar Rescue Squad for the skill, medical expertise and sensitive care they gave to my husband.

My heartfelt thanks is extended to each and every member of the Bethlehem Orchestra. It was a joyous part of my husband's life. I will always remember Dr. Casey's support as he stood at my husband's bedside. Bob MacGowan's friendship, and his care in coordinating the music so beautifully played by four members of the orchestra touched all of us deeply.

St. Peter's Hospital was a major part of my husband's life and the love and support that flowed from every corner of that hospital will stay with me and will stay with my family forever.

I want to express my deep gratitude to our friends, neighbors, acquaintances, members of the staff of Russell Sage and SUNY and even strangers whose poignant and very meaningful and personal expressions of sympathy provided the warmth to sustain all of our family through this crises. I believe that George and I instinctively knew that Delmar would be a special place to live. It has become home. Thank you.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Ten Eyck

Jody Quintana wed

Jody Quintana of Slingerlands, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Quintana of Delmar, and George H. Ten Eyck III, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Ten Eyck Jr. of Delmar, were married Sept. 14 at the Delmar Reformed Church, Delmar. Dr. Robert Hess and the Rev. James Daly officiated.

The bride was attended by Jill S. Lohman as matron of honor and Susan Corcoran as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Carolyn Milette, Mary Ten-Eyck and Lisa House. Frank Nania served as best man, and ushers were Scott Anson, Robert House, Scott Stagnitta and Scott Quintana. Catherine Bundga and Michelle Bundga were flower girls.

The bride, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and Maria College, is a certified occupational therapy assistant with the Visiting Nurse Association of Albany. She is attending Dominican College. The bridegroom, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and Albany Business College, is a salesman for Sager-Spuck Supply Co. Inc. of Albany.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple is residing in Glenmont.

Susan E. Kukuk and E. Russell Altone

Susan Elizabeth Kukuk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Kukuk of Delmar, and E. Russell

Altone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Altone of Ballston Spa, were married Sept. 21 in the Cathedral of All Saints, Albany.

Snyders celebrate 25th

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Snyder of Selkirk celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on Sept. 15 at the Cossackie Knights of Columbus Hall.

The celebration was planned by their two daughters, Shelly Snyder and Dory Fisk; their son-in-law, Robert Fisk, and friends, Mr. and Mrs. David Cook. Four generations of the family, including Frederick Covey, father of Henry Snyder, gathered for the celebration.

Mary Patricia Burdick

Burdick-Rommel

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clinton Burdick of Delmar have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Patricia, to John Harold Rommel, son of Mrs. Charles Edward Rommel of Tarrytown and the late Mr. Rommel.

The bride-to-be, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and Marymount College, Tarrytown, is a kindergarten teacher at the Hackley School in Tarrytown. She also is a graduate student at Fordham University. Her fiancé is a graduate of Sleepy Hollow High School, Tarrytown, and Mercy College, Dobbs Ferry.

A June 21 wedding is planned.
