How town can help seniors to stay in the community

By Theresa Bobear

Every Thursday, senior citizens in Bethlehem get together at the town hall to socialize and play cards. It is a happy time, but for many there is an element of worry just below the surface.

"I don't have anybody now except myself," said one woman at a recent gathering. "I live in Selkirk and there's nothing around at all.

"Let's just say the teenagers today are a lot different than in my time," she added.

"It's the future mostly that I'm concerned about," said a woman of 73 years who has lived in Slingerlands with her husband for the past 17 years. "We're comfortable right now. We worked for it, that's why.

"As we get older there's a problem with snow shoveling and ground work. If we're sick, we're better off in a smaller place," the Slingerlands resident said. "I'd like to be independent as long as I can and be able to go out and do a few things for myself."

"I live in the boondocks and it's lonesome now," said the another woman. "I've had an awful winter with shoveling the snow. Nobody comes around to do it."

"We look forward to this day when we all get together and play cards," said her friend.

"There are special needs in any decline in capacity," said a Delmar resident.

The physical changes involved with growing old often require senior citizens to look for a living arrangement that, in terms of support, falls somewhere between independent living and nursing home care. In Bethlehem and New Scotland, those choices are limited, with the economics of the housing and apartment market working against the often limited incomes of aging homeowners. There is, however, a new awareness that alternatives are needed, and that it is going to be up to local government to supply at least some of the answers.

According to 1980 census information, 1,955 town residents are between 65 and 74; 939 residents are 75 to 84 years, and 272 town residents are 85 or older. The 1980 census data reveals that 425 Bethlehem residents 65 or older have an annual income below $10,000. The 3,166 senior citizens in town account for 13 percent of the total population.

An estimated total of 5,757 senior citizens will account for 22 percent of the town population in 2010.

As the senior population in Bethlehem, New Scotland and throughout the country continues to grow, the need to find suitable housing for seniors becomes more acute.

There are some 2,124 apartment units in town. Average rents are between $350 and $450.

"If my income keeps going down and my rent keeps going up, I'm not going to be able to afford to live here," said a woman who relies on social security payments and interest income for support. "My daughter lives here, and my son lives here. Delmar is very familiar to me."

Only one percent of the apartments in the Delmar area, including Bethlehem Terrace and Meadowbrook Apartments, were vacant in July of 1984, according to a survey conducted by Robert Cohn Associates Inc.

One woman reported waiting close to a year for an apartment near the center of the community.

"There was a definite need identified," said Sue Ann Ritchko, a member of the Bethlehem Town Board and chairman of the town's senior housing needs committee. Ritchko said residents "voiced a concern about wanting to stay in the community and having a certain lifestyle that they were used to enjoying in Bethlehem."

For many living in their house was a concern, according to Ritchko. "Their equity is in their house, but they have no cash flow. They're very healthy; they're very happy; but, there is a concern," Ritchko explained. "As a community we needed to address this."

The committee is scheduled to make its first report at tonight's Bethlehem Town Board meeting.

"My two boys are both married and living here. I want to stay," said a Slingerlands resident.

Area organizations and governments, including the Town of Bethlehem, are looking for ways to assist senior citizens in remaining in the community where they have raised their children.

Relocatable bids, pupil shift approved

By Caroline Terenzini

New bids on the purchase of relocatable classrooms for use at Bethlehem's Glenmont Elementary School are due to be opened Tuesday, amid renewed demands for "a permanent solution" to crowding at the Rt. 9W school.

Revised specifications for the relocatables were sent out last week to 11 potential suppliers, and the district is hoping bids will come back on the money — that is, at or below the $203,000 voters authorized spending in March. Even if that is the case, however, the relocatable classrooms would not be in place in time for the opening of school in September, administrators have said.

With that in mind, the seven-member school board voted 5-0, with two abstentions, to have the Glenmont pupils currently attending kindergarten at the Elsmere Elementary School remain there for the first grade next fall. This arrangement would free three classrooms at Glenmont, allowing 1986-87 Glenmont Kindergarteners to have their half-day sessions at their "home" school instead of at Elsmere, as currently. The plan also would permit creation of one more class at whatever level — first through fifth — it is most needed, Glenmont Principal Donald Robillard said.

Board members Barbara Coon, a former Glenmont PTA president, and Velma Cousins of Glenmont

Vidbels still wonder about elephant injury

Animal trainer Al Vidbel, 58, was listed in serious condition Monday at the Albany Medical Center with chest and arm injuries, three weeks after he was injured by one of his elephants.

Vidbel, of Windham, received the injuries at the Jamesway Plaza in the Village of Catskill at about 4 p.m., Monday, May 19.

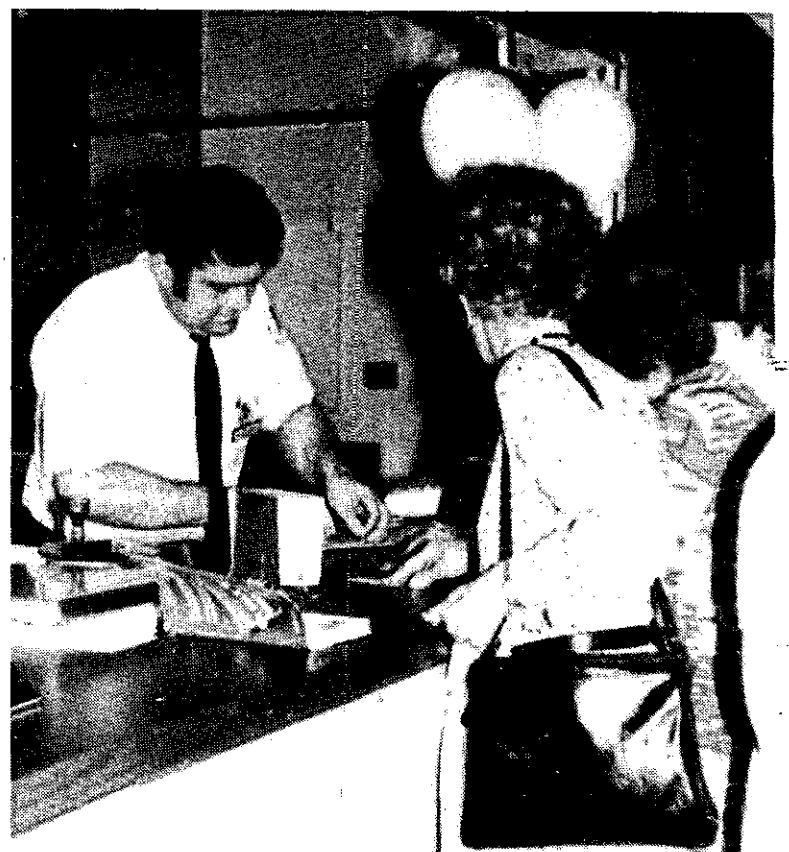

While police have not investigated further into the incident, Joyce Vidbel said on Monday there are many stories of the incident. She said it was foolish to release reports so soon after the incident because people will often see only what confirms their own opinion and vision.

"There was a lot of stories. Too many people saw too many different things," she said.

Vidbel will probably be recovering from his injuries for a year,

Joyce Vidbel said.

Al and Joyce Vidbel manage and own Vidbel's Olde Tyme Circus, which appeared Saturday and Sunday, May 17 and 18, at the Elm Ave. Park in Delmar, the weekend before the incident. The event was sponsored by the Delmar Kiwanis and The Spotlight.

According to Joyce Vidbel, Vidbel said he was taking the four-ton elephant for pictures, and told her to put her trunk up. The elephant then turned to the side and struck Vidbel, and he fell against a pick-up truck.

"They move very fast. It is like being hit with a Mack truck," she said.

After Vidbel fell, Joyce Vidbel, said the elephant could have "gone into a tizzy" because she could not see her owner on the ground. Elephants, she said, can only see out and away, not down. A lot of damage could have been done in those first few seconds because the elephant could have become confused, she said.

"She certainly was not berserk. I walked up and took her by the ear," Joyce Vidbel said.

Joyce Vidbel said her husband is still unsure what happened after he fell against the pick-up truck.

Why the pick-up truck was parked in the area is one question she has about the incident, she said. Vidbel said it was parked there before the incident, but some witnesses said it pulled up just before it happened. Joyce Vidbel said her husband and the elephant were in an area that they were told was a no parking area.

"It is just one of those freaky kind of things that happen," Joyce Vidbel said. She does not think anyone will know why the incident happened.

One witness to the incident, Jim McMullen, assistant manager of the Jamesway, said a crowd had just finished taking pictures of the elephant, and Vidbel was trying to move it. Vidbel got in front of the animal pulling it, but the elephant would not move. McMullen said the elephant started to move suddenly, and Vidbel lost his balance and fell on his back, when the elephant walked on Vidbel.

"It stepped on him," McMullen said.

The elephant hit a pick-up truck parked near the incident with its knee, and the truck rocked back and forth, McMullen said.

"It put a ding in the side of the truck," McMullen said.

An unidentified man standing nearby grabbed a stick and hit the elephant to try to move it, McMullen said.

"It didn't seem to affect it much," McMullen said.

Joyce Vidbel came to the scene and grabbed the elephant by the ear and told it to back up, which it did, McMullen said. Joyce Vidbel then brought the elephant back with the rest of the circus animals, and the ambulance was called.

Catskill Village Police said on Monday there has been no further investigation into the incident.

"The way it happened that day is the way it stood with us," said Officer Jack Jessup.

Early police reports of the incident said while Vidbel was trying to get the elephant to pose for pictures, it attacked him and knocked him to the ground. The elephant then lifted and dropped a pick-up truck owned by George Quinn of Catskill. After the elephant dropped it a few times, police said, the pick-up truck landed on Vidbel's arm.

Quinn then attempted to beat back the Asian elephant while Quinn's son drove the pick-up truck off Vidbel, police said earlier.

The Olde Tyme Circus performed that night in Catskill and in other engagements since the incident, but Vidbels' elephants have not performed since, Joyce Vidbel said. Presently, the circus is performing in Olean, and she said hopefully everything is going well. The circus found another elephant act to replace their own, and they are looking at zoos and breeding compounds to board the elephant until Vidbel is able to perform again with them. The three elephants are now staying at the Catskill Game Farm in Catskill.

"It was a rough two weeks," she said.

Zinn contract reviewed

The Bethlehem Central Board of Education is scheduled to vote next week on what is expected to be a one-year renewal of the district's contract with Superintendent Lawrence Zinn. A one-year contract would be in sharp contrast to the three-year agreements Zinn has had during his 15 years as head of the district.

Zinn's current contract is due to expire at the end of June, 1987, but early consideration of renewal has been the practice during his tenure. Thus, the expected new one-year contract would carry through June, 1988.

The decision on the contract came after a lengthy closed session of the board last Wednesday. Sources said the matter also has been discussed several other times during the past six months.

Zinn has faced a number of controversies, particularly in the past two years. Bethlehem United Taxpayers (BUT), a citizen "watchdog" group, has attacked district budgeting procedures and questioned the quality of the district's budget proposal in 1984 in a vote that followed hard on the heels of more than a year of acrimonious contract talks that had led to picketing and work-to-rule actions by faculty members.

Crowding at the Glenmont Elementary School set in motion development of a redistricting proposal that drew angry reactions from many parents last fall. At the same time, Glenmont parents have taken the board and administrators to task for not having come up with a solution for the crowding sooner.

The district's program for gifted pupils, inaugurated four years ago, also drew negative public attention, chiefly over its selection procedures.

The cumulative effect of these controversies and other negatives such as the soured Lion Capital Group investment has been to draw public attention to the district, as well as to heighten differences among the district's constituencies. In addition, the public debate has sensitized board members as well as administrators to public reactions.

Police set roadblocks

The Bethlehem Police Department and the Department of Transportation last week set up two roadblocks inspecting large commercial vehicles for safety violations.

Police said about 20 vehicles were inspected at the roadblocks at the intersection of Rt. 32 and Elm Ave., and at Rt. 144 near the Thruway exit on Wednesday, June 4. Six vehicles were pulled off the road for having bad brakes, and their drivers were cited.

These were the first roadblocks set up in the Capital District involving a state and a local agency.

As part of the department's Commercial Vehicle Roadside Safety Program, department personnel and Bethlehem officers completed the inspections, and vehicles not passing the spot inspections were ticketed for infractions by the police.

Dance in village

The A.C. Sparkplugs will sponsor a mainstream level dance at the American Legion Hall, Voorheesville Ave., Voorheesville, on Monday, June 16, at 8 p.m. Al Capetti will call squares and cue rounds. All dancers are invited.

Woody Thayer, left, an inspector from the state Department of Transportation, and Bethlehem Police Officer Vincent Rinaldi do the paper work after a large vehicle inspection at last Wednesday's roadblock at Rt. 32 and Elm Ave.

BC board approves rebid abstained from the vote on assigning Glenmont first graders to Elsmere.

This alternative, chosen from among six offered to board members in a memo from Superintendent Lawrence Zinn, would leave Elsmere with no art or music room.

Demands for "a permanent solution" at the Glenmont school came from several sources last Wednesday. Alan Hilchie of Bethlehem United Taxpayers (BUT), a self-styled watchdog group, told the board building a permanent addition would be "good fiscal management." And Richard Allington, a Glenmont resident, said, "It's time we took a more visionary approach and damn the cost."

For several years the district has resisted adding space at the school, in part waiting to see how much building takes place in the Glenmont area and how fast — and how many pupils the new homes produce. Critics contend, however, that the growth curve will continue upward and that the district has been too slow in responding.

Five-year enrollment projections prepared by Zinn would justify the addition of only five classrooms at this time, under SED regulations, meaning costly piecemeal construction, Zinn said.

The fact that the state Education Department forbids building if space exists elsewhere in a district led a citizen-staff committee last year to devise a major four-school redistricting plan. That proposal, however, ran into strong opposition in the community. The board settled on the relocatables after a clause was uncovered in SED regulations that permitted rooms designated for art and music instruction to be excluded from the classroom count — lowering the district's space tally.

In other business, the board:

- Appointed Jack Whipple assistant principal at the high school. Whipple, a former Bethlehem middle school teacher and swim coach, has spent the past two years as an assistant principal in Guilderland.

- Appointed Peter Fish, formerly of the Schoharie school system, to an industrial arts teaching position.

- Heard a Reading Committee report that recommends a language arts task force to monitor the district's reading program and selection of new basal reading materials in the next two years.

- Accepted the resignation for retirement of Bruce Austin, a high school guidance counselor employed by the district 19 years.

- Received a petition from Cathie Engel of Selkirk carrying 131 signatures of residents who said they opposed renewal of the superintendent's contract. Most of the signatures were of Elm Estates residents, board President Sheila Fuller said.

Dutch heritage visited

The first time one goes to Holland he does the usual tourist route of seeing the sights in Amsterdam, the Hague, Delft and Rotterdam, and viewing the countryside between those cities. The casual tourist gets the sights, sounds and flavors of the country and that satisfies.

As part of the commemoration of Albany's tricentennial, the Capital District Humanities Program sponsored a trip to the Netherlands this May. Its purpose was to explore our own Dutch heritage by visiting the areas in Holland from whence came the early settlers to our Hudson Valley region. This was a siren call some could not resist, and in spite of dire warnings from relatives and friends in light of recent world events, we could not be talked out of our historic pilgrimage to the land of our ancestors.

Our KLM jet whisked us effortlessly to Amsterdam and we were soon ensconced in a pleasant canal-side hotel, partially composed of three restored 17th century town houses. If you have never visited Amsterdam, you are in for a treat. It is unique among the great cities of the world, for the core of the city is a bustling place and one of the marvels of urban architecture, changed but slightly from the 17th and 18th centuries. Row after row of houses dating from those years are being lived in with style along the narrow streets that line the four principal canals. It is difficult for 20th century traffic to cope, but small cars and the pride of Amsterdammers make them unwilling to alter the old city in any way.

Some of the sumptuous houses of the Amsterdam merchants of old have been turned into apartments, offices, restaurants, boutiques and coffee shops. Certainly when our Dutch ancestors came into the city to take ship for the New World, they walked past these very houses and perhaps over some of the same old bricks and cobblestones. Philip Schuyler came from Amsterdam, as did Col. Abraham Staats.

Our introduction to the city was a ride on a sleek boat along the canals and a tour of the harbor. We saw the newly restored West India Co. warehouse there. Into this building came all of the furs that were traded with the Indians in North America. Here the pelts were stored until they could be made into capes or beaver hats to dress the Dutch burghers.

Above Amsterdam, on the western side of the IJsselmeer (former Zuider Zee), is the province of North Holland. The peat bogs and watery landscape are typically Dutch, with canals, dikes, windmills, arms with grazing black and white cattle, and quaint red-roofed villages. Traveling by way of Beverwyk, we came to Schermerland. From this area came Jacob Schermerhorn, Jan Schoonmaker and families named Cornelius and Wormer. Here much of the land has been reclaimed from the ponds and lakes that dotted it until the 15th century, when the invention of the windmill made reclamation possible. Fertile green polders then appeared where once fishermen had put out their nets. Before long most of Holland was covered with what has become almost its national symbol — the windmill. Once there were thousands; now about 900 are protected national landmarks.

We were surprised when we toured a windmill to learn that the base of the windmill housed the miller and his family. They lived in two or three tiny rooms that had every inch of space equipped with little cupboards in the nooks and crannies, much as in a present-day yacht or house trailer. People are still living in these windmills. Windmills were developed here because of disastrous floods and tides that threatened to make more and more land in this region disappear. There was a constant struggle waged against the intruding seas, and in the 15th century the concept was developed of using the wind as energy for reclaiming land from the water. Of the 52 windmills once in the Schermer region, only 11 remain.

In another direction a half hour's ride from Amsterdam along the IJsselmeer lies the medieval fortified town of Naarden, which was built in the shape of a star and surrounded by a moat. This is Holland's best preserved city from the period of 80 Years' War with Spain (16th century). Its fortifications are in excellent shape and the town lies within them, its great Gothic church towering above the landscape and its streets lined with tidy brick houses. Just beyond the city is Rensselaerswyck, Killiaen Van Rensselaer, had a large estate. He purchased other land and water rights nearby and went into the business of reclaiming land. He was so immersed in land speculation that it was only natural he should be offered a spot on the roster of those willing and able to speculate on land in the New World, under the charter of the Dutch West India Co. Graillou today is a lovely wooded suburb of fine homes. There are only a few acres of undeveloped field and wood scattered among the homes to remind us of the patroon's domain.

The nearby 13th century castle of Muiderslot, which the patroon undoubtedly visited, sits in a picture book setting beside a harbor filled with sailboats, along the river Vecht. It is beautifully preserved and cared for and embodies all of the things one expects to find in a medieval fortress-home, from tapestries and heavy oak furniture to armor and weaponry.

A pyramid-style farmhouse, with tile and thatch dwelling rooms are at the front and right, with the hay mow in the high roof. The cow stable is along the left wall and the farmer's famous bulb fields. There are acres of tulips, daffodils and hyacinths, all at the peak of their bloom in May. The bulbs have to be grown on the land between the sand dunes and where the clay begins in order to ensure excellent bulbs. We made a stop near here at the ancient city of Leiden, where the Pilgrim fathers spent 12 years in exile. Leiden is another city completely surrounded by a moat, and today a leisurely boat trip lets you get a fine glimpse of the old city. Captain Slingerland owned the boat that took us for our trip. He was every inch a Dutch skipper, a tall man of sturdy build, in his middle years, with a thick shock of white hair and a finely trimmed beard. He was pleasantly surprised to learn that there was a town named Slingerlands near Albany and that many families of that name still resided in the area. Also from this region came our early settlers, Teunis VanWoert and Nicholas Groesbeck.

A lunch and shopping stop was made in Delft, the hometown of the blue and white Delft ware. It is just the sort of fanciful town you come to Holland to see — a maze of canals, cobbled streets and houses that haven't changed a brick since Vermeer painted them. The cathedral-like Dutch Reformed Church on the market square in Delft was built in 1381. The churches in Holland's cities are large and impressive and the little village churches mimic their grander sisters in style. The weathervane on all was almost invariably in the shape of a crowing cock. The cock was used for centuries on churches as a symbol of Peter's denial of Christ and the subsequent resurrection. This same symbol was installed on the steeple of the First Reformed Church in Albany when the church was built in 1656. In each Dutch city not only does the important church sit on the market square, but there is usually a medieval city hall sitting across the square. The little towns also have picturesque and important-looking city-halls that are gems of medieval architecture and that still are being used for their original purpose.

Late in the afternoon we stopped in the little town of Schoonhoven to listen to a carillon concert at its steep-roofed square medieval church, very similar in style to the square blockhouse church that the first settlers built in Albany. We passed through Oosterhout, where many of our own Oosterhout families originated. Oosterhout means eastern woods. Here the grazing fields are interrupted with wooded areas and even some stands of pine trees. (Next: On to Antwerp)

Planners pass Juniper Fields

By Patricia Mitchell

The Bethlehem Planning Board has recommended building project approval for the Juniper Fields subdivision.

As a condition to their conceptual approval, however, the planners last week stipulated that the planned recreation area for the development be built before 71 building permits are granted by the town.

Owned by David and Robin Siegal of Delmar, Juniper Fields

on Elm Ave. at the end of the Delmar Bypass, will be built with eight single family units and 282 apartments. Because the land is in a Planned Residence District, building project approval — the final step in the lengthy approval process — lies with the Bethlehem Town Board. Construction will most likely begin this year.

At their Tuesday, June 3, meeting, the planning board also set conditions that the access road to the development must be placed as far north as possible to avoid fronting into a house across the street, and that screenings be planted in the rear of the lots along Elm Ave.

At a public hearing on May 6, little opposition to the development was voiced.

In other action, the board heard further plans of the proposed Main Square shopping center on Delaware Ave. The board is waiting for an Albany County Planning Board recommendation on the project.

Board Chairman John Williamson read several letters from neighbors of the proposed square on concerns of increasing traffic, children and senior citizen pedestrians, and the character of the Oakwood Pl. neighborhood.

Developer Dennis Corrigan, a board member who stepped down from the board during the discussion, said he believes the traffic that could be generated by the proposed shopping center is comparable to the traffic generated by the former occupant, Main-Care. The traffic would be less during the morning rush hour, but would be somewhat worse on Saturday mornings, he said. Most shoppers in the evening rush hour would be people coming home, and their trips would simply be delayed one hour, he said. Nineteen retail stores, including a bank, are planned.

Williamson said there are a lot of problems that have resulted because of the town's growth, and cannot be stopped unless the town board chops off growth. He said he could appreciate the problems of the neighborhood, but added that whatever goes into the Main-Care building will have the same traffic problems.

"As long as you put these kind of things on Delaware Ave., you are going to attract traffic on Delaware Ave.," said board member John LaForte. The problem of entrances and exits, however, still must be addressed, he said.

The planning board also gave conditional approval to two subdivisions. A two-lot subdivision was granted to David and Norman Tucker on Weisheit Rd. in Selkirk on their two acre lot. A two-lot subdivision was also granted to Theodore and Patricia Nadratowski between Old Ravena Rd. and Rt. 9W.

The planning board will hold public hearings on Tuesday, June 17, for section 3 of Lauralana Heights extension of Boylston Dr. at 7:30 p.m., and for the proposed Indian Hills 125-lot subdivision at Krumkill and Russell roads at 8 p.m.

The board set public hearings on Tuesday, July 1, for the proposed Quail Hollow 70-lot subdivision off Glenmont Rd. by developers Paulsen and Sons, Inc., of Albany at 7:30 p.m., and for the proposed Jessica Park 15-lot subdivision in North Bethlehem by Kircher Realty at 8 p.m.

Access requirement challenged

By Theresa Bobear

In what could be the first test of the town's recently adopted highway "frontage" and access requirements for residential buildings, the Bethlehem Board of Appeals last week held public hearings on a proposal for two access roads on a lot with 50 feet of frontage on Elsmere Ave.

Richard and Veronica Mokhiber are proposing two single-family lots for a 2.5-acre A-Residential parcel with a total of 50 feet of frontage on Elsmere Ave. A recent change in the zoning ordinance requires 28 feet of frontage for keyhole residential lots with 50 feet between accesses.

A petition was presented to the board with the signatures of nine Murrill Dr. and Elsmere Avenue residents who are opposed to the project. Neighbors expressed their concern about drainage for the area.

that the property owners could conceivably be profitably developed by building a road and cul-de-sac for four lots. Several neighboring residents asked questions about the project and stated that they had no objection to the Mokhiber's plan.

If the board grants the variances, the Mokhibers must obtain subdivision approval from the planning board before building permits will be issued.

At the beginning of the meeting, Robert G. Conway, an attorney representing William and Dorothy Whan, asked the board to reschedule an informal meeting with his clients. Conway explained that William Whan was unable to attend because he had recently undergone major surgery. The board voted to reschedule the discussion for June 18.

In other business, the board:

- Held a public hearing to consider Robert E. Biggerstaff's application for a side yard variance to permit a garage addition at 56 Euclid Ave., Delmar.

- Scheduled a public hearing on July 2 at 8 p.m. to consider an application from Wickes Companies, Rt. 9W and Pictuay Rd., Selkirk, for a variance to permit additional production plant space and warehouse space.

- Informally approved Bruce and Laurie Hawley's request for an addition from the allowed percentage of lot occupancy to permit a screen porch addition at 60 Fernbank Ave., Delmar.

- Informally denied Donna and Gary Larrivee's request for a side yard variance to permit a garage addition at 74 Salisbury Rd., Delmar. A minimum 10-foot side yard is required. The addition would have left a two-foot side yard.

- Informally denied a variance to allow a six-foot fence at 5 Herber Ave., Delmar. The variance was requested by Lee and Rozanne Landers for installation along the rear property line, which abuts the railroad tracks. A variance is required for a fence that is higher than four feet and less than one-third open.

- Informally granted a variance from the allowed percentage of lot occupancy to permit Philip Kahn to construct an addition at 210 Winne Rd., Delmar. The overhangs are considered in the percentage calculations because they are greater than 18 inches.

The Bethlehem Board of Appeals will meet again at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, June 18, at Bethlehem Town Hall.

Town board hires hydrogeologist

By Patricia Mitchell

Concerns over water flowed through last week's meeting of the New Scotland Town Board as the board decided to hire a hydrogeologist to study the Larned gravel mine, rescinded the original Clarksville water district and set a date for a public hearing to reestablish the district.

The board voted unanimously to hire a hydrogeologist to study the area of a proposed gravel mine by Voorheesville Sand and Stone operators William Larned and Sons. On request from the planning board, town attorney Fred Riester said the board asked Larned twice for information on the ground water and aquifers in the area, and it still has not been submitted.

At a public hearing May 27 on the special use permit for the proposed mine, the Larneds' attorney Wayne Smith offered to have his client set up an escrow account for use by the town to hire a geologist of its choosing to study the area. The Larneds have a similar deal with Guilderland, the site of a large Larned mine, that allows the town to draw from an escrow account for inspections by a geologist of the town's choosing.

"I appreciate the offer, but I am opposed to doing it. I really think the town should pay the bill. I think we owe it to the people," said Supervisor Steve Wallace. He said the town has spent money in the past to locate water for residents to establish water districts. "We spend a lot of money to search for water. The aquifer seems to be the problem. I think we would get our own answers."

He apologized to about 15 neighbors of the mine, mostly members of Concerned Citizens for the Town of New Scotland who are opposed to the mining, for the delay in continuing the public hearing. The hearing will continue when the report is received from the hydrogeologist, Wallace said.

Board member Allyn Moak agreed with Wallace that the town should hire the hydrogeologist. "It would be an impartial answer," he said.

Board member Herbert Reilly said he was in favor of hiring a hydrogeologist, but he was worried the board was setting a dangerous precedent by doing it.

There are other aspects of the proposed special permit, such as dust and truck traffic, that should be considered, he added.

"I would hate to see the planning board put all their marbles in one basket," Reilly said.

The town, Riester said, is not setting a binding legal precedent by hiring a hydrogeologist for the study.

Neighbors applauded the board's decision to independently fund a hydrogeologist to study the area.

"But I am really angry we have to do it," said John Sgarlota, treasurer of the citizens group.

However, the town board declined to pass a non-binding resolution on their opinion of the special use permit for the proposed gravel mine when the citizens group requested that it take a stand. The group has collected about 700 signatures on petitions against the proposed mining, and is soliciting donations to hire a lawyer.

"The citizens want to know the position of the town board," said Jim Eberhardt, a member of the group.

"The board has talked about this issue, and I can tell you, no one on this board is in favor of it," Wallace said.

The planning board was appointed by the town board to handle matters without strings attached, said Riester. The planning board's decisions must be reached after the required public hearing based on the facts.

"The planning board should be looking at the facts and not how the town board feels," Riester said.

"My sympathies are with you people," said board member Wyman Osterhout. "I can not put it in black and white until the planning board makes a decision."

Board members Reilly and Ken Tice have signed the petitions circulated by the citizens group, but Wallace, Moak and Osterhout were not offered the petition, Wallace said. Reilly and Tice are the Democrats on the board, and the other three are Republicans.

"Did you offer that petition to me?" Wallace said. He did not know if he would have signed it, Wallace said, because Riester has advised him the town could be in court some day on the requested special use permit.

Reilly said he was embarrassed that the petition was not offered to all the board members, and that

RPI grad to conduct water study

The Town of New Scotland has decided to hire a Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute graduate to conduct a water study this summer.

Acting on a recommendation from Kevin Phelan, a member of the water committee, the town board last week agreed to hire Steven J. Winkley for about two months to assess potential sources of water for possible future development.

Winkley, Phelan said, is a 1986 graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute with his bachelor's in geology. The Rochester, N.H., native will start his master's in hydrogeology this fall at Syracuse University.

"I think we are very fortunate to have gotten a candidate with his qualifications," Phelan said.

The town board decided in May to allocate $5,000 to support the intern and for supplies. Winkley is expected to compile reports, make maps, make contacts in various companies and committees, find unpublished studies and do some field work.

With a well-known problem of adequate water sources, Feura Bush and the Heldervale subdivisions have established water districts. New Salem, and the areas along New Scotland and Swift roads are served by Bethlehem lines running from the Vly Reservoir. Federal funding for another district in Clarksville has been received, and the town is expected to plan that district out in the near future.

Turning to the Clarksville water district, the town board decided to rescind an earlier resolution that established the district, and to hold a public hearing on Wednesday, June 18, at 7 p.m. to establish a new Clarksville water district.

Riester said the state Comptroller's Office has requested the town submit a new application that includes all the funding for the district and to withdraw the original application made in March, 1984. The comptroller also requested rescinding the original water district resolution and holding a new public hearing. Riester said because the original application was based on finding a water source in Clarksville, and one wasn't found in the hamlet, it has increased the cost of the project.

The Weisenburn Farm, about two miles south of the hamlet, was selected by the town in 1985 as the closest source of water. The town received $400,000 from the department of Housing and Urban Development and $1.3 million from Farmers Home Administration in March to use the site.

A special meeting of the town board will be held immediately after the hearing, and the new application could go to the comptroller a few days after.

Concern about the character of Swift Rd., and area of the town that is developing because of access to water, brought several residents before the town board requesting a change in zoning. Mike Brennan, a 15-year resident of Swift Rd., said a 3.5 acre property originally was decided to have two taps. However, a little over an acre was sold, bringing the property size down to 2.3 acres. The remaining property has also been sold, and the new owners are working with the planning board for a subdivision of the 2.3 acres, with the original two taps, to build two houses on it. Once subdivided, the two properties will meet the minimum lot size for the town's zoning regulation, he said. The average minimum lot sizes on Swift Rd. are about two acres.

Wallace advised the neighbors to go before the planning board to request an update the area's zoning. The zoning update will then be forwarded to the town board for action. Wallace said he believes there has been a precedent set with the present lot sizes.

Library impact review 'routine'

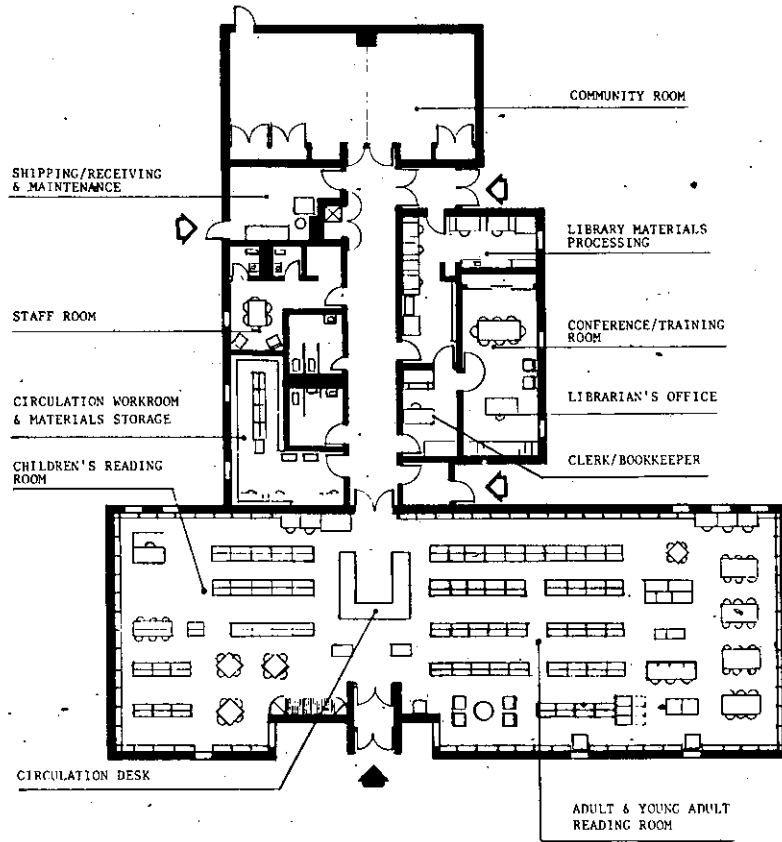

By Lyn Stapf

Plans for the proposed new library are still on hold as the executive board of the Voorheesville Public Library awaits word on the Environmental Impact Statement it submitted last month.

According to board president Hugh McDonald the documentation requested by the State Education Department on the Prospect St. site was a "routine procedure" and the board anticipates no problem in the review by the State Education Department and the Department of Environmental Conservation.

Upon receipt of the review the public will have 30 days to respond to the findings. At the end of that period the school board would be able to proceed in the publication of information concerning the bond issue, as well as scheduling the required public hearing on the referendum.

In an effort to enlighten the public on the site even before that time, McDonald and the library board have been attending meetings of local civic and school organizations. In May the group addressed the Voorheesville PTSA on the history of the site search and the present plans for the new library. On Monday, June 16, the present library building on Main St. will be the site of a meeting by the Salem Hills Park Association. Following a business meeting, McDonald and the library board will speak to the group concerning plans for the proposed new library and field any questions the group may have. McDonald said he welcomes the chance to appear at such meetings and invites any group wishing to know more on the library issue to contact him at 765-2093 to schedule a meeting.

In other library business, the annual election of officers was held at the June 2 board meeting. Selected as president was Edward Donohue. He will succeed McDonald, who has served as president for the last two years and was unable to seek reelection because of a new clause in the bylaws that prohibits anyone from serving more than two consecutive terms of office. The rule was added to the group's governing document in 1984 in order to give "more" board members a chance to actively participate in the leadership role.

Prior to that time, board officers were able to serve unlimited terms of office, as did McDonald's predecessor, Wymat Osterhout, who held the position of president for several decades.

Serving with Donohue will be Jane Blessing who will fill the vice-president's chair. The two will begin their 12-month terms in July.

Laurels for students

With all but exams behind them, students at Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School will be reaping the rewards of their hard work at the annual high school awards program on Thursday, June 12, at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

More than 50 awards are to be presented at the yearly event to students who have displayed outstanding achievement in a variety of areas. Both academic honors and awards based on contributions to the school will be presented. Everyone is invited to attend the program. Refreshments will follow in the cafeteria.

Fun in the sun

With summer approaching all too quickly, the Village of Voorheesville Recreation Board is preparing some summer fun for area residents. According to chairperson Anne Carson, the village will sponsor a number of programs for all ages during July and August.

Beginning on June 30, the playground on the village green will be open from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Monday through Friday, offering youngsters a chance to participate in group and individual games, as well as arts and crafts. Parents are reminded that the playground program is not intended as a babysitting service and children under the age of 7 must be accompanied by an adult or babysitter.

Tennis lessons for all ages will be provided from 8 a.m. until noon Monday through Friday, with signup for lessons on Monday, June 30, and Tuesday, July 1, from 8 to 9 a.m. on the village courts.

As in the past, an adult tennis league will also be part of the summer program with signup on Monday, June 16, and Monday, June 23, at 6 p.m. at the courts.

An adult basketball league will begin on June 30, with play every Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. for seven weeks. Captains will meet on Monday, June 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall.

Swimming lessons will be given at the high school daily, with the village providing buses for residents within the village from June 30 until July 11. For more information on swim lessons, parents should contact the high school at 765-3314 or the grade school at 765-2382. Anyone having questions concerning any village programs should call the village hall at 765-2692. Programs will continue through Aug. 15.

Kids' Club hiring

The board of the newly formed Kids' Club is getting into high gear preparing its after-school day care program for school-age students next fall. With their double-dip fund-raiser completed, the not-for-profit group is working on hiring a teacher-director and a teaching assistant to oversee the child care program from 3 to 5:45 p.m. every school day, beginning in September. Those interested in applying should send a resume to the Kids' Club, P.O. Box 295, Voorheesville 12186 by June 15.

Applications are still being accepted for the program for students in grades 1 through 6. For information contact Nancy Basal at 765-2637.

Team picnic Saturday

Baseball is coming to an end in Voorheesville with the Kiwanis-sponsored grasshopper baseball-softball leagues holding their championship games this Saturday, June 14. Following the games, a picnic for team members and their families is planned at the town park on Swift Rd.

Although the soccer season is far from over, members of the New Scotland soccer team, which also receives some assistance from the Kiwanis Club of New Scotland, will be joining the baseball players for a joint potluck picnic. The Kiwanis Club is supplying the hotdogs and each family is to provide a salad or dessert to share, as well as their own beverages.

The soccer club will be drawing winning tickets for their fund-raiser that afternoon. With tickets selling at $1 each, the raffle includes over 15 prizes, including $25 gift certificates at Jeffers Nursery, Anaconda Kaye Sports and Parc V Restaurant. Those interested in obtaining tickets may contact any soccer player.

Fete for school volunteers

The Voorheesville PTSA invites all those who have assisted the group in its many activities this year to an "appreciation celebration" on Friday, June 13, from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Voorheesville American Legion Hall. The free evening will include dancing to D.J. Tom Krajewski, as well as chips, dips and other snacks and adult beverages. Reservations are not necessary, and volunteers are encouraged to bring spouses or dates.

And tea, too

The administration and staff at the Voorheesville Elementary School will also be thanking volunteers this week at the second annual volunteer tea on Tuesday, June 17, from 3:15 to 3:45 in the grade school cafeteria. Anyone who has served as a volunteer this year is invited to attend. Those interested should send a note into the school office or call 765-2382 by Friday, June 13, so that adequate preparations may be made.

6th graders' final fling

Sixth grade students at the elementary school will have a final fling this week as "upperclassmen" participate in two traditional sixth grade activities. On Monday, June 16, the annual sixth grade field day will be held, pitting students from one homeroom against the other. The day-long track and field event will culminate with the popular pie-eating contest.

On Thursday, June 19, the students will take to the road, traveling to the Bronx Zoo on their final field trip as elementary school students.

Flag Day ceremony

The New Scotland Elks Lodge No. 2611 will hold its annual Flag Day ceremony this Saturday, June 14, at 10 a.m. in Hotaling

Memorial Park. On hand will be town and village officials and a number of area scouts, as well as a color guard from the Voorheesville American Legion. All are invited to attend.

Human concerns meeting

The Human Concerns Committee will hold their monthly meeting on Tuesday, June 17 at 7 p.m. at the home of Jean Lewis at 176 Georgetown Ct. This will be the last meeting for the group until September. Based at St. Matthew's Church, the committee assists those of any denomination in the area with food and heat, as well as other concerns. As usual, new faces are always welcome to attend.

Salem Hills meeting

The Salem Hills Park Association will meet on Monday, June 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the lower level of the Voorheesville Public Library. After a brief business meeting, library board President Hugh McDonald accompanied by the other members of the library board, will address the group on the proposed new library on Prospect St.

Firm is fined

Imperial Upholstery Co., Inc. of Voorheesville was fined $1,025 or faces an indefinite suspension of license after admitting that 31 items were tagged with a tag indicating no date of sterilization and were not sterilized, according to the state Department of State. The decision followed, recently concluded administrative hearings by the Division of Licensing Services.

Field studies offered

Field studies on birds and trees will be offered at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Game Farm Rd., Delmar, on Saturday, June 14.

"Birding for Beginners," an outdoor search for birds during the migration season, will begin at 9:30 a.m.

"Old Trees Never Die," an exploration of woodland ecology, will begin at 2 p.m.

In addition to maintaining close communication with their parents, the students are supported by AAYE staff members during their visit. Each visitor is covered by medical and accident insurance. For information call Schultz at 489-8860 or 346-6211, ext. 140.

Negotiations set at RCS

By Lora Ide
and Theresa Bobear

After last week's rally supporting the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Teachers Association (RCSTA) in their quest for new contracts, a meeting has been scheduled between board representatives and the Public Employees Relations Board representative for Thursday, June 12, at 7:30 p.m. at the board offices.

Last week, about 250 teachers and supporters marched around the board of education building in Selkirk before the board meeting carrying signs. Members of the New York State Union for Teachers (NYSUT) and Teamsters Local 294 were among the picketers.

"We're without a contract too, so we empathize with what Ravena is going through," said Nancy Warner of Ft. Edward, one of the picketers. She explained that teachers in Halfmoon, Ravena and Waterford are currently without contracts.

When the board meeting started, some of the teachers filed into the meeting room, where there was standing room only. Several persons spoke in support of board members and teachers getting together to get a contract.

After presenting their views, teachers filed out and later met at Ravena Lanes where they listened to comments by Donald Prockup, RCSTA president, and Thomas Hobart Jr., NYSUT president.

On Wednesday, after getting the call scheduling the resumption of negotiations, Prockup expressed hope that negotiations for a new contract can be completed speedily and positively for both sides.

At Monday's meeting, the school board authorized a contract for architectural services from the firm of Mendel, Mesick, Cohn, Waite and Hall in connection with reconstruction of the bus garage and a portion of the senior high roof. Construction will take place during the summer of 1987.

Following an executive session, the board appointed Elaine Jetty as head of the science department.

The board also accepted the report of Urbach, Kahn and Werlin, including financial statements and supplemental schedules, for the period ending June 1985. Board member Wayne Fuhrman, who is an accountant, requested that a representative from the firm speak to the board. Board president Anthony Williams said a meeting could be scheduled to follow the organization meeting.

The board scheduled its annual organizational meeting for Monday, July 7, at 7:30 p.m.

Finally, the board learned that the state's Excellence In Teaching funds may be applied for any time during the 1986-87 school year.

The RCS Board of Education will hold its next meeting at 8 p.m. on Monday, June 16, at the board offices, Thatcher St., Selkirk.

Onesquethaw supper

The women's guild of the Onesquethaw Reformed Church, Tarrytown Rd., Feura Bush, will hold its strawberry supper on Saturday, June 14, with servings at 4:30, 5:30 and 6:30 p.m.

Admission is $6 for adults, $3 for children 5 to 12 years, and $1 for children younger than 5.

Anthony Williams, president of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Board of Education, listens as Donald Prockup, president of the RCS Teachers Association, asks for a continuation of negotiations during last week's board meeting. Lora Ide

Hit by Mack truck

An Albany man received head injuries Friday night after the van he was driving collided with the trailer of a Mack truck at the intersection of Rts. 396 and 9W in Selkirk, Bethlehem police said.

Scott R. Freckleton, 20, of Western Ave., Albany, was treated and released that night from St. Peter's Hospital in Albany, according to a hospital spokesman.

Freckleton was traveling west on Rt. 396 at about 5:55 p.m., and began to cross the intersection after receiving a green light, police said. James L. Sterritt, 28, of Athens was traveling north on Rt.

9W in the Mack truck, and told police the light changed too fast for him to stop. The trailer struck the front end of the van. Freckleton was driving, tearing off the front wheels, police said. The truck then hit a traffic sign and came to a halt about 200 feet north on Rt. 9W.

About half of the load of treated lumber Sterritt was transporting spilled over Rt. 9W, delaying traffic, police said.

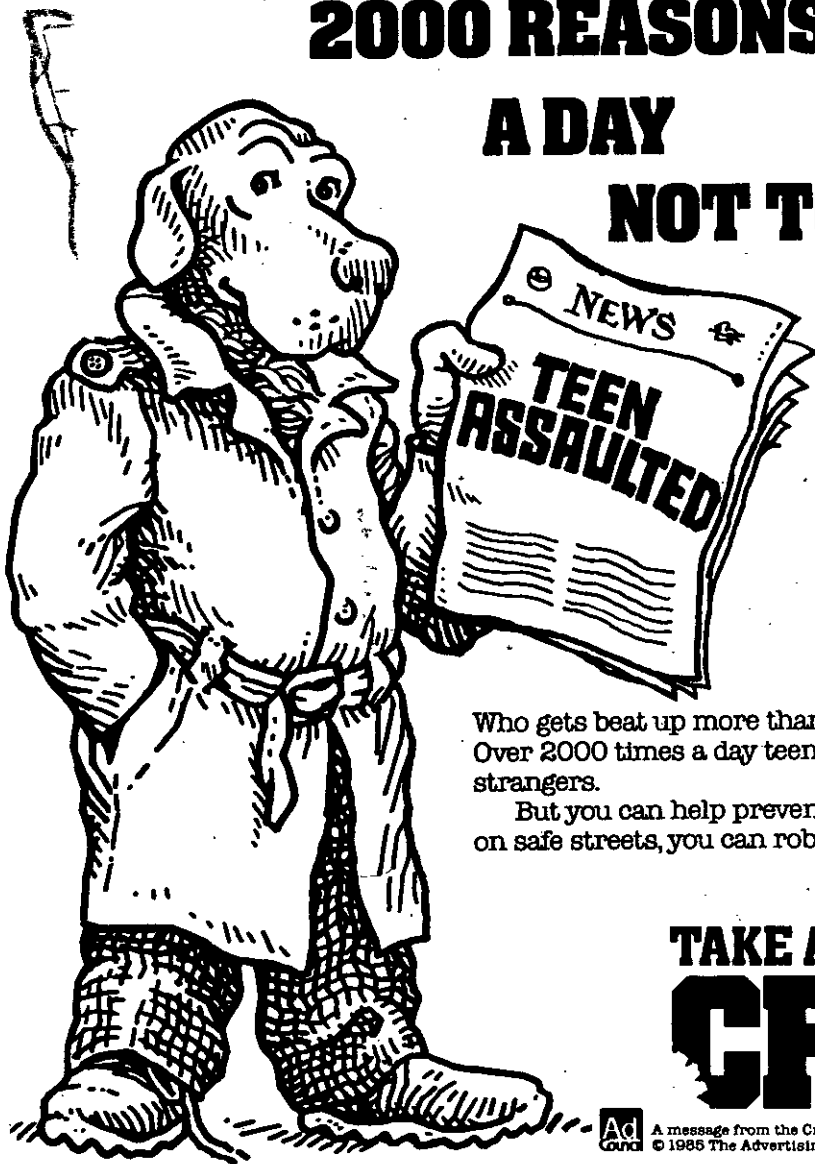

Sterritt was ticketed for operating a vehicle with his license suspended and passing a red light, police said.

Barbara Pickup

Sharing their special day with Mrs. Newkirk, the youngsters, as well as previous students and their parents, surprised her with many gifts. A huge sign proclaiming "We'll Miss You, Mrs. Newkirk" greeted her as she arrived for the last day, and she was honored at a special picnic lunch served on the church grounds. She also was taken out to dinner by the play school board and was given a video recording of a day at school and of the graduation, taped by one of the parents.

The children who received their diplomas on May 28 from Mrs. Newkirk and assistant teacher Jackie Schrom were: Philip Boyajian, Billy Capozzi, Matthew Clary, Thomas DePalma, Kyleen Domery, Michael Filkins, Jeffrey Froelicher, Emily Janssen, Nancy McClumpha, Paul Milburn, Laura Nicholson, BriAnne Searles, Paul VanKempen, Amy Williams and Erin Collins.

FOCUS ON FAITH

Rabbi Hayyim Kieval

Temple Israel, Albany

A Shavuot message

Shavuot, originally an agricultural festival of the wheat harvest, evolved into the commemoration of the Giving of the Torah of God to the people Israel. Several eminent Sages of the 2nd century tried to distill the essence of the Five Books of Moses into a single verse. For example, Rabbi Akiba taught: "The greatest principle in the Torah is 'Love your neighbor as yourself' (Leviticus 19:18)." I have tried to analyze what Akiba meant by his often-quoted statement and suggest that the several stages in the development of a loving personality are foreshadowed by the Torah of Israel.

The highest stage is love of God. That is the purpose of our whole existence. Yet even Rabbi Akiba did not fully experience the love of God until the very hour of his martyrdom. It is the end, not the beginning of religion; the flower, not the seed. We cannot even imagine what the love of God is like until we have first experienced love of neighbor. Note, however, that the Torah does not say merely "love your neighbor," it says "Love your neighbor as yourself." Just as a man/woman cannot experience "Love of neighbor," so we are emotionally incapable of loving anyone else until we have first experienced: love of self.

Self-love is a vice only when it fails to break out of the self at the proper time and develop into love for others. The capacity to love, however, has to start at home — with one's own personality. "In a deep sense, we must have good domestic relations with ourselves before we can have good foreign relations with others." (Rabbi Joshua L. Liebman).

We are not ready to give love, and other forms of help, to others before we have learned how to accept ourselves with a wholesome kind of love. This means that we must gain confidence in our real abilities, while recognizing and forgiving our limitations. We must take pride in our genuine achievements, while admitting our failures. We must work hard to reach the highest standards of which we are capable, but without cheating or deceiving. Having learned to accept ourselves for what we really are, we are able to do the same for other people.

We often criticize a pompous man or woman, an obnoxious boy or girl, by saying — "Oh, he or she is in love with himself or herself."

The truth is that such individuals are so wrapped up in their own problem of trying to accept themselves that they have no emotional energy left over for anyone else. A great deal of suspicion and fear, hostility and viciousness, in people results from this lack of acceptance of one's own true self. A man or woman or child who love themselves wholeheartedly feel no need to bolster their self-esteem by dragging other people down into the dirt.

The priceless capacity to give and receive love develops from infancy to maturity. When an infant cries, it cries because it is uncomfortable. The circle of its love includes only its own person. When a child grows older, he may be crying because a parent or friend is in distress. The circle of his love has grown to include others with whom he feels his destiny involved. True maturity is reached when the circle of a person's love has grown large enough to be of the same dimensions as the globe itself...when we feel that our love includes every human being in any part of the world. This is how Judaism meant for us to grow in our love for our neighbor: "Say not I love this person and hate that one, or I love the learned and hate the ignorant, but love them all." (Avot d-Rabbi Nathan, 15).

The reward for those who fulfill the commandment, "Love your neighbor as yourself," is that, having experienced genuine human love, we are prepared to experience the love of God. To Pat DeCecco, of the Village Stage, Inc., presents the group's first $1,000 award to Bethlehem Central student Eric Stilan. The two-year-old organization presented the award to Stilan for his achievements in theater arts while in school, and for his plans to pursue theater studies after high school graduation.

Spotlight

"Love God" means to trust the Universe, revere its Creator and respect every person and thing that He has created. It means that we can face life in the confidence that there is a great harmony of which we are a part, that, at the center of everything, beats a heart that is concerned for our well-being, as dependable as a human parent, a loving mate or a devoted friend.

This kind of trust and reliance does not come easily or soon. We cannot experience with God what we have never experienced with a human parent, teacher or companion. This is the authentic kind of religious education we need for our children: if human warmth and love can be felt when needed, as the child grows into maturity, the foundations are established of a faith which eventually will include all of life and the whole universe. Only at the climax of our career of love can we — as Rabbi Akiba did — fulfill truly the command: "You shall love the Lord, your God with all your heart, with all your soul with all your might."

Fire at plaza

A small fire was extinguished at the Honeycombe Restaurant in the Delaware Plaza by the Elmsere Fire Dept. at about 8:15 a.m. last Thursday. Bethlehem police said.

No one was injured, and the fire, contained to paint cans, paint brushes, and several cases of empty beer bottles, was determined accidental, police said.

Senior housing

"We're looking to improve the lives of our elderly so that they have the comforts that they've enjoyed through their lifetime," said Karen Pelletier, Bethlehem's senior citizens services coordinator. Pelletier is also working with the new senior housing needs committee to develop some sort of support system.

Bethlehem has been moving toward providing more support to the town's senior residents through the senior services office, located in the town hall. Pelletier coordinates the activities of volunteers to provide services. In addition to monthly social meetings in the town hall, the town operates two senior vans to provide transportation for shopping and special appointments and activities.

At this point Bethlehem is in the fact-finding stage of its senior housing project.

"One thing we do not have in this town is a taxi service," said one woman, explaining that vision problems do affect older people.

Most of the senior citizens interviewed seemed to want clean, affordable housing with an accessible washer and dryer and without all of the luxuries that boost the monthly rent payments. In addition, those interviewed want their living quarters to be located within walking distance of a shopping area and a church.

Financially, up to $350 a month would be alright because I only have my social security to live on and a very small pension," one woman said.

A walk-in shower was a necessity for another woman. "I can't get out of a tub. I have arthritis and most older people do."

When asked for a possible solution to the problem, one woman offered her suggestion, "senior citizen housing. Guilderland has it. Albany has it. Why not out here?"

"Unfortunately, this town is interested in senior housing at a time when most of the funding is no longer available," said another town resident.

Subsidized housing seems to be what many senior citizens are requesting; but, due to concerns about funding and an aversion to building "towers" in the Town of Bethlehem, there seems to be little interest in that alternative among local officials. Most people are talking about other ways to keep senior citizens in the community.

"We do better if we age in place," said Diane Cooper, an Albany County Cooperative Extension home economist who has been working to educate area seniors about their housing options. Cooper said the cost of maintaining a house or an apartment can be high for senior citizens on a fixed income. In addition, Cooper said many senior citizens may not be able to live alone for health reasons. Cooper said that if people can be housed more comfortably, often other problems can be avoided.

Cooper mentioned that when there is adequate space shared housing is one of the lowest cost solutions because there are no building costs. "The main outlay is for counselors," said Cooper. "It cuts down on the stress of living alone."

Through a shared housing program a counselor would match two people with complimentary needs and help them draft an appropriate exchange of services.

For example, Cooper suggested matching a 70-year-old woman and a single woman with a child. "There are a lot of social benefits besides the physical and economic benefits that can be coming out of this," said Cooper.

The older woman could help with babysitting while the mother works. The younger woman could help with physical chores. The child would learn from the experience of a grandparent, and the older woman would benefit from the innocence and enthusiasm of a young person. As explained by Cooper, each person in the group would benefit from sharing their experiences.

Other options mentioned by Cooper include accessory apartments, group homes and enriched housing.

The type of housing arrangement that is appropriate depends on the individual's assets and needs. Many ideas for housing are being considered with their advantages and drawbacks.

Depending on the zoning of the property, renting an accessory apartment may provide income and companionship to a cash-poor, equity-rich homeowner. In Bethlehem, however, a large portion of the property is zoned A or AA-Residential, which means that a second dwelling unit is not allowed without a variance from the Board of Appeals. The recent controversy over a third living unit in a house at 400 Delaware Ave., currently occupied by an elderly woman, illustrates the difficulty of obtaining variances — at least in part because neighborhood associations want to keep their areas single family.

Group homes are often established by a non-profit organization for community living.

Enriched housing is another alternative that provides support without taking away independence. An enriched housing program will soon be offered by Albany Jewish Family Services at the Ohav Shalom Apartments, Krumkill Rd., Albany.

"We have no intermediate housing for people in this area. As people are getting older and sicker, it's more difficult to get into a nursing home," said Dorothy Berliner, a social worker at the Ohav Shalom Apartments. "And they're being discharged from hospitals quicker and sicker," said Berliner with reference to new Medicare procedures.

"We just thought that if we could provide support services, people would stay in their apartments longer without being institutionalized," Berliner said.

In addition to one hot meal per day and periodic housekeeping, the residents in the program will be provided with personal care services, social support, shopping assistance, laundry assistance and arrangements for essential transportation services as required.

The hurdle of funding was overcome with an optimistic attitude and community support.

"When it comes to funding, they try to get it from wherever they can get it," said Berliner. The Ringle Institute of Gerontology, which is part of the Greater Albany Jewish Federation, provided part of the project funding.

Other alternatives listed in Housing Options for Senior Citizens, a publication of the American Association of Retired Persons, include condominiums, various types of supportive rental housing, conventional rental housing, foster care homes, retirement villages, HUD rental assistance, and home equity conversion plans.

Through home equity conversion plans, cash-poor home owners trade the equity of their house for monthly cash payments while retaining the right to remain in their home until they die or decide to move.

Home equity conversion plans are still in the experimental stage and are only offered at a few banks in the country. Area banks contacted were not familiar with the concept.

While the plan does offer senior citizens a way to afford staying in their homes, home equity conversion does eliminate the possibility of passing assets on to children. And the bank possesses the house when the homeowner leaves regardless of how many payments have been made to the homeowner.

Area organizations have recognized the special needs of senior citizens. Concerned individuals in the area are starting to address a situation that will command more attention in coming years.

Creative solutions will involve accepting and accommodating senior citizens in the community and allowing each member of the community to make his individual contribution.

"You have to find creative alternatives," said Pelletier. "Where there's a will to do something, there's a way to do it."

Time enough for scholarship

By Jim Nehring

At the close of each academic quarter, I take time during class to determine grade averages with my students. The process of reading individual scores on homework assignments, quizzes, tests and projects, and then calculating averages takes most of one regular period, but it is time well spent as students learn immediately where they stand academically and why.

In one class recently, a student and I calculated his score to be a 76. He screwed up his face in disappointment. "I thought for sure I was doing better than that.

IN THE CLASSROOM

Jim Nehring

Are you sure I turned everything in?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, Jason, you never turned in your paper on African history."

"But I did turn that in!" Jason protested.

"Well, I have no record of it. Unless you can show me the paper with your name and the score, I can't give you credit." Jason turned and slumped back to his desk.

I continued calculating averages with other students. About halfway through the period, a paper appeared on my desk. At the top, it read "Jason Callahan — African History" and further down the page was scrawled, in my own familiar handwriting, the grade: 93. I had scored the paper, but failed to enter the grade. Re-calculating, Jason's quarterly average rose nine points to 85. I had made a bad mistake.

I spent some time thinking how I might better monitor my record keeping and decided finally that, given the sheer volume of assignments that I grade, all I could reasonably do is to be generally more vigilant.

The experience has led me to consider numerous areas in which my attention to detail is threatened least a hint of regret and anger; regret that the good efforts of my students will not see the attention they deserve and anger at the combination of societal values and misguided economic priorities that have molded public education into a mass production factory system with little tolerance for real craftsmanship. Then I go to it, marking the papers as best I can in a reasonable amount of time.

Jason's low grade is only the most obvious of injustices that a student may endure. More profound is the loss of educational opportunity: when there isn't enough time to write a needed comment on a student assignment, when the number of students in the class keeps me from individualizing instruction, when a discussion fails to include every one of the 29 students in class.

I have a friend who used to be a teacher. It's sad that she left teaching because she was so good at it. Her greatest attribute as a teacher was her scholarly devotion to detail. She labored intently to insure her lecture notes were by the magnitude of the task. On average, my students complete 20 assignments each quarter. With 106 students, I score about 2,000 assignments in 10 weeks or about 8,000 in a school year. The volume of assignments creates several problems — not the least of which is accurate record-keeping. Educationally, 8,000 assignments means I have to cut corners just to keep my briefcase from overflowing. Ideally, each assignment should be carefully read — more than once — then thoughtfully critiqued for style and content, with ample comments.

Most times I sit down with a stack of student papers I feel at always up to date and free from error or even misleading details. In correcting student assignments she always carefully read each one and made margin comments. Even though her subject was science, she took time to mark spelling and grammar mistakes, too. In general, her thoroughness gave students a glimpse of what real scholarship is.

But my friend is no longer teaching, in part, because she couldn't do the thorough job that she wanted in anything less than an 80-hour workweek. She refused to compromise her standards. It is more than ironic that an institution devoted to scholarship discourages scholarly work by its professional staff. Those teachers who refuse to bend, leave, and those who are left are forced into a habit of clever compromise.

Main Care takes first in majors

By John Bellizzi III

Last Tuesday, the Tri-Village Little League's two top major league teams, Main Care and Davies Office Refurbishing faced each other, with Main Care emerging the victor by a score of 4-0. Winning pitcher Billy Karins threw a no-hitter. Mike Gambelunghe doubled, as did Karins. Singles were hit by Josh Lanni, Matt Bechard, Mike Futia and Jim Dwyer.

Saturday Main Care again triumphed, this time 13-8 over Starwood. Winning pitcher Gambelunghe, relieved by Tim Mooney, had a home run and a single to his credit. Lanni singled twice and tripled, Bechard hit a double and three singles, Ben Gold and Jim Gavin each singled twice and doubled, and Karins doubled. In

Blue Eagles start with win

By John Bellizzi III

Last Wednesday, the Bethlehem Blue Eagles Connie Mack team began their first season with a 6-4 victory over Twin Town. Paul Evangelista and Mike Hodge pitched for Bethlehem, striking out eleven and giving up seven hits and no walks.

The Blue Eagles scored with the first two batters of the game. Jeff Pesnel, leading off for Bethlehem, walked, and then scored on a powerful home run by Peter Russo. The Blue Eagles' third run came in the next inning, when Russo batted in Joe Ganley, who

Saturday evening, Spotlight beat Roberts Real Estate 4-3 in an exciting seven-inning contest. Spotlight's pitching lineup of Brendon O'Brien, Alexis Otto and Dave Miles had an outstanding game, striking out seven batters and giving up only three hits — singles by Mike Pratt and Mike Chaifetz, and a triple by Brent Kosoc. Roberts' pitchers Lynn Doody and Ben Comtois were unable to suppress their opposition. For Spotlight, O'Brien tripled and singled, John DiAnni hit three singles, Miles two singles, and Spencer Kirkman one single. The winning run was batted in by John Schaller, who also singled. Earlier in the week, Spotlight tromped Farm Family 27-2. Miles smashed one over the fence that evening, and Andre Cadieux hit an in-the-park home run.

Sunday, Davies Office Refurbishing beat Farm Family 19-6. Winning pitcher Mark Houston got on base on an error. In the fourth, Russo singled and scored on Josh Weinstein's double. Jeff Boyd scored the Blue Eagles' last two runs, advancing from second to home on singles by Ganley in the fifth and Bob Jahkra in the sixth.

The Blue Eagles played their first home Monday night at Bethlehem Central High School against Troy. Tonight (Wednesday) they are away at Waterford, Thursday they host Cohoes, Friday they play Twin Town at home, and Sunday they play at Latham.

BC bows to Shaker in second round

By Charles Henrikson

The Bethlehem Central tennis team had a successful team Sectional Tournament last Wednesday at The State University at Albany courts, winning in the first round before succumbing in the second.

BC met Burnt Hills in the first round. The two teams had played each other twice during the season, with each winning at home. On neutral ground, BC pulled out an impressive 5-2 victory. Smaller teams were used for this tournament because of the smaller Class B, C, and D schools that were competing.

Eric Lee won a grueling three-set match which finally determined him to be the better player, after he had lost to the same player earlier in the season. Neil Breslin, Brian Salens and Jeff Grant also won their singles matches. Stan

TENNIS

Lee was the only singles loser. BC's second doubles team of Jeff Ellenbogen and Dave Cunningham won, while the first team of Sam Ernst and Mark Woodruff lost.

BC then met a very potent Shaker team, and, as Coach Ray Fetho put it, "The match was lopsided." The team of Cunningham and Ellenbogen was the only winner.

This week the last bit of BC tennis will be played. Eric and Stan Lee, playing as a team in the individual Class A's two weeks ago, placed second, and thus qualified for the sectionals, which were to be played on Monday and Tuesday. They are unseeded, and so this may be just a learning year, but if they do well they have a shot at going to the state meet.

Pat Newton

Wins contest

Pat Newton of Selkirk won her class at the Southern New York Bodybuilding Championships last weekend in Binghamton.

Newton has been bodybuilding for nearly one year and has won all three contests she has entered — the Eastern States Championship, the Capital District Championship and the Southern New York.

Birds put up good fight against Lake George

By Rick Leach

The Voorheesville tennis team, ousted in the Class C-D-E Sectionals last Wednesday, was the victim of some tough luck and the misfortune of playing in a good, solid league against many bigger teams.

The Birds were seeded third behind 14-0 Lake George and Maple Hill, but in the flip for semifinal position the Voorheesville netmen had the misfortune of drawing the right to play Lake George. The results were predictable.

First, however, the team had to beat a strong Cairo-Durham squad. Cairo got off to a 2-0 start by winning at numbers one and two, but the Blackbirds rallied to win the next three singles matches. Chris Stevens won 6-1, 6-2, while Tom Kurkjian rallied for a 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 triumph. This seemed to ignite teammate Steve Smith, who won his first set 6-4 and exploded for a 6-0 second set whitewash. After the first doubles team fell, it was up to Kurkjian and Stevens to play for the match. The pair had no trouble, winning 6-1, 6-1.

Against Lake George, Voorheesville's top two singles players had to play two of the top six netmen in the section, and both were shut out. The Birds didn't give up, however, with Stevens beating his previously unbeaten opponent, 7-5, 6-3, to get things going. Kurkjian and Smith followed with victories to give the Birds the lead going into the doubles matches.

For the first time all season, Lake George was forced to break up its top two players, and the strategy worked as they swept the doubles and captured the match.

"Man for man, I think we were as deep as they were, but with those two dominating players it would have been tough to beat them," said Coach Tom Kurkjian.

It was still a satisfying year for the team, which finished 9-7. "We had a good year, and our team matured greatly," a happy Kurkjian said. The Birds are losing only three of their top eight players to graduation and should have a good nucleus for 1987.

Out of shape meet

Eighteen teams and some 250 swimmers will participate in a one-day meet Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Bethlehem Central High School pool.

The annual "out of shape meet" is the preliminary to the start of the summer outdoor season. Swimmers from the Delmar Dolphins and the Voorheesville Swim Club will participate.

Fitness at the pool

A poolside fitness program for adults, sponsored by the Town of Bethlehem's Parks and Recreation Dept. at the Elm Avenue Park Pool, will start on Monday, June 30, at 5:45 p.m.

The program will continue on Mondays and Wednesdays, 5:45 p.m. to 6:45 p.m., through Aug. 1.

Residents of Bethlehem and the Bethlehem School District may take part in the fitness program. The fee for either Mondays or Wednesdays is $8.

New York Telephone & You — New Technology

Technology is the driving force behind many of the changes that have swept through the telephone industry in the past two decades.

New York Telephone has long been dedicated to using technology to improve services and hold down costs. More than 20 years ago the company began installing computer-controlled switching systems that provide basic service more efficiently.

More recently, New York Telephone was the first company to put fiber optic technology into commercial use. This technology, which uses hair-thin glass fibers and laser-generated light pulses, allows information to be transmitted more quickly, efficiently and accurately than copper wires and electrical current.

We also are utilizing state-of-the-art technologies that allow simultaneous voice, data and video transmission over the same line, which makes our service more efficient and could make your service less expensive.

New York Telephone has one of the largest networks of computers to help serve and maintain its nearly nine million customer access lines. Making all this technology work are our more than 50,000 employees, who are among the most skilled and experienced in the industry, and whose goal is to provide quality service.

We are dedicated to continually updating communications technology, bringing you the best possible service at the lowest possible cost. To help you understand how new technologies can improve your telephone service, New York

Telephone's Community Relations representatives will be available in the coming months to speak to local community organizations with the program "New York Telephone and You."

Connect With Touch-tone Service — Free!

With this service, you also can take advantage of time-saving computerized services such as bank-by-phone, stock quotes and other conveniences as they become available.

Touch-tone service is easy to get and easy to use. No installation visit is necessary and you pay only a small monthly service charge. By signing up now you'll also receive a certificate entitling you to discounts from 20% to 40% off on tone phones purchased from participating companies.

BC girls edged by Linton

Bethlehem Central's girls varsity softball team ended the season last week at 10-5 as the winner of the suburban Council's Gold Division. It was edged out of the sectionals in the first round Monday by Linton.

Coach Kelly Keller refused to let that defeat sour what has been a wonderful year, with dedicated, hard-working players. "The Linton effort, she said, was "an excellent one. BC played extremely well and kept their composure, even

Carey, LeBeau go to states

Sixteen members of Bethlehem's track team competed in the state qualifying meet at Johnstown Friday, and high jumper, Kelly Ross was slated to compete on Monday. As of Friday night, junior Anne Carey and senior Mark LeBeau were the only athletes to qualify for the state meet, but Coach Ron Cameron expects Ross to get to the state meet as well.

The boys two mile relay team of LeBeau, Greg Dobbert, Ian Berry, and Peter Winkler did poorly, finishing in 8:24. However, Winkler finished first in the unseeded heat of the 1600 in 4:37. LeBeau won the open 800 with a 5:55 flat, and with that time should be seeded in the fast heat at states.

Other boys who competed were senior Brian McGarrahan and freshman Steve Conolly, who both missed finals in the triple jump. Junior John McCarthy competed in the open 400.

The girls two-mile relay team finished second behind state-ranked Colonie. The team, composed of Carey, Jen Hammer, Julie Hammer and Heather Wolfe had a time of 10:08.

Jenny Hammer took fourth in the competitive 1500, with a 4:57. Cathy Saba and Tricia Shultes both finished the 1500 in 5:16. Carey will go on to states in the 800 hurdles, which she won with the time of 1:04.2.

The state meet will be held this Friday and Saturday, at Baldwinville University.

The Lady Eagles took the lead in the fifth when Peg Jeram singled and Amy Koski walked. Julie Francis brought both of them home with a double, and then came in on double by Mauren Montanus. Linton scored a run in the sixth, and took the lead on a two-run double in the seventh, and BC was unable to score in its half of the inning. RCS plays for title

The RCS softball team lost the Sectional Championship title Monday, to Schalmont, 15-9.

Playing at Knickerbacker field, the Indians held a 9-4 lead early in the game, with Fran Losee leading with a single and a double, and Jackie Mulligan with a pair of singles.

But Schalmont came from behind with four runs to capture the game.

Monday's game left RCS with a 16-3 record as the season ended.

RCS had lost to Schalmont twice in the regular season due to a lack of hitting and good pitching. But the Indians played very strongly before their final match.

RCS started the sectionals by destroying Hudson Falls, 23-6. Terry Baker pitched for the Indians with seven strikeouts. RCS scored two runs in the first, 13 in the second, with eight more added on later. THE BMW 325es. A CAR DESIGNED TO FIRE UP THE DRIVER'S INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINE.

To the embarrassment of some two-seater, so-called sports whirlwinds, we present the BMW 325es. "A beautifully refined hot rod from Bavaria" (Motor Trend). Its 6-cylinder Eta engine provides a torque-rich driving force. A BMW sports suspension endows the car with rare turn-and-corner prowess. Delivering you from speed to safe standstill is BMW's anti-lock braking system (ABS)—as standard. And further performance hallmarks include spoilers front and rear, low profile tires, sports seats, and an M-Technic steering wheel. Contact us for a test drive. THE ULTIMATE DRIVING MACHINE.

Suspicious calls

A Delmar woman reported two flim flam phone calls last Tuesday at about 11 a.m., according to Bethlehem police.

The first phone call was from a man in his mid-30s and sounded like it was made from a phone booth, police said. With a lot of static in the line, the caller told the woman he had her fiancé on the line calling from his main office. The caller then attempted to repeat himself and then hung up, police said.

A few minutes later, the woman received another phone call. A male voice that did not sound the same asked if she had paid her phone bill, police said. After answering she did, the caller asked for her bank and account number, which she gave to the caller.

After the caller hung up, police said, the woman contacted the phone company who told her they never ask for bank account numbers, and that they have received reports of similar phone calls in the area.

Class of '86 grateful

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to take this opportunity publicly to thank the many parents, high school administrators and teachers, and the Town of Bethlehem for all they did on our behalf to make our senior ball and our after-ball activities at the town park so happy, successful and memorable. The help in preparing for the ball, the chaperoning at the ball, as well as the hours of planning and work for the after-ball activities — all these things done on our behalf by our teachers and parents will not be soon forgotten. We are very fortunate to have such kind adults in our lives and we sincerely thank all of them. With great appreciation we will always remember their caring efforts.

Car wash cleans up

Editor, The Spotlight:

An enormous thank you is due to a number of people who helped to make our recent fifth annual car wash the most successful yet.

Joseph Keller of Keller's Mobil was kind enough for the fifth straight year to make space at his place of business available for the car wash. This was, as always, greatly appreciated.

A thank you is also in order for members of Faith Lutheran Church, First Reformed Church of Selkirk, Glenmont Community Church and South Bethlehem United Methodist Church (The Venture Churches) who gave of their time for the event. Gratitude also goes out to the community who supported us by bringing their cars in for much needed cleaning.

Finally, you, the people of The Spotlight, are to be thanked for your coverage of the wash, which appeared in no less than four places in your publication the week of May 25. That helped in making it work better.

Thanks to everyone, we were able to raise $290 to which will be added $250 in matching funds from Lutheran Brotherhood North East Branch 8036, bringing the total to $540, all of which will be distributed to the Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance Squad, the Food Pantry in Selkirk, Project Hope in Selkirk and the Thrift Store in South Bethlehem.

We look forward to seeing you again next year and hope as well for bigger and better things.

Parks crew praised

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to thank Dr. Michael Sbuttoni, (Vox Pop June 4) for his recognition of Phil Maher and the Town of Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department. So many times the parks department is overlooked.

People do not realize what is involved in their job. There are only four full-time maintenance employees. They not only maintain the three pools at the Elm Ave. Park, but also maintain the plumbing, electric, buildings, picnic grounds, ball fields, playgrounds and tennis courts. They also maintain Henry Hudson Park in Selkirk, a field and tennis court behind the Board of Education building in Selkirk and a field next to the Slingerlands Fire Department. This year they were given the fire training tower to maintain because the highway department said they don't have time for it.

The parks crew also maintains the fitness trail, as well as setting up Town Hall for different functions such as senior citizens and soccer and baseball registrations, and moving offices and furniture for various groups and organizations.

This does not even begin to mention the hours spent on the ice skating rinks and hockey rinks in Selkirk and at the Elm Ave. Park, as well as the one in Slingerlands, with the very poor drainage that keeps it from being too successful. The men not only work their regular hours, but will come in on compensatory time at night when it is sub-zero to spray and sweep the rinks. They come in if it snows to plow the park, as well as the rinks. The crew maintains the sledging and cross-country skiing for the people of this town to enjoy at less pay than the laborers for the highway department receive.

To these men I say, thank you!

Field needs work

Editor, The Spotlight:

I'm distressed. My daughter plays in the Bethlehem Tomboys Girls' Softball League. They use the fields at the town park on Elm Avenue and the condition of the fields is quite frightening. There has never been a batter's box at the plate or an on-deck circle and they have played at least nine games. It also appears that the fields are lined only once a week; towards the end of the week these lines are virtually invisible. These things are needed in order to teach the girls to play correctly.

There's a field near the picnic pavillion where the players on the great base side of the field take great risk just sitting on their bench. There is no room for the spectators of that team, never mind an on deck circle.

On Sunday, June 8, there was a rain out game re-scheduled that had to be cancelled because the fields were unplayable due to the rain earlier in the week. The park is now open seven days a week and no one could get the fields in shape? I just do not understand. The playing surface is so hard and uneven and has been, for years, why can't something be done? The puddles of water in the playing area two and sometimes three days after rain are incredible and yet there is a pile of dirt near one of the buildings we drive by on our way to the fields. What is this dirt used for? The fields to the left of this road are in much better shape. Is this because they are used for men and our young girls are not as important? Who is ultimately responsible for the upkeep of these fields? If it is a cooperative effort by the park and the league let's all get together and do our part so that our children can have an enjoyable season.

Rewarding experience

Editor, The Spotlight:

Dear school and community friends:

My 20 years as the Bethlehem Central school social worker has been a rewarding experience. I have felt privileged to be able to help children and families in my own community.

This has been accomplished through the cooperation of co-workers and the caring people in Bethlehem. A special thank you to the business firms, service organizations, churches, clubs, auxiliaries and individuals who have helped at holiday time and throughout the year.

Thank you for your support in making my years in the Bethlehem schools a cherished memory.

Loving memories

Editor, The Spotlight:

This is just a short note in praise of the memory of Carmeta Chamberlain, a 45-year resident of Delmar of who died gracefully in her home on Sunday, June 1, 1986 with the loving support of her community of friends and neighbors, her church community and St. Peter's Home Hospice program. During the last few months of her life, there was an outpouring of love that allowed her to remain in the home that she so dearly cared about.

The many reminiscences that were shared by friends and family characterized Carmeta as a person who cared deeply about others. She had the gift of enhancing shared experiences, whether they involved sharing a meal that was lovingly and skillfully prepared, prying together, picking berries, admiring the beauty of natural things.

She had a great reverence for life and took pleasure in spiritual, as well as material beauty. Up to the very end of her life she maintained the ability to care about and to inspire others around her.

Although I only had the privilege of knowing her for three years, I wanted to share these feelings and impressions and to express my appreciation to all of those who helped to make her last days as beautiful as her previous 79 years had been.
