Closing sparks new interest in town community center

By Lorraine C. Smith

The announced closing and sale of the Delmar Athletic Club has created a new grass-roots tide of interest in a community center for Bethlehem.

Owner Lee Faulkner confirmed Monday that the club, a converted former auto dealership on Delaware Ave., will close July 1 and is up for sale, with an asking price of $450,000.

A meeting to assess the interest in a community center has been set for this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the Bethlehem Public Library. Rob Lillis, who two years ago headed a group that gathered support for purchase of the old A&P building, will chair the meeting.

Whether or not the Delaware Ave. facility is available, Lillis said, the fact that the issue of a center has been introduced again indicates that "a lot of people still were interested." The community center movement disbanded after the Community Health Plan purchased the A&P building. Lillis said he plans to share with the group the status and recommendations of the earlier effort, which included a partially completed survey of community interest.

Lillis said the message he hopes to convey at the meeting, which is open to the public, is "not to base the entire effort on the availability of the building, but to get a group formed." Lillis said he will not be spearheading the present community involvement.

The earlier recommendations had included alternative means of funding including fund raising, some carefully marketed memberships, and even stock holding by the participants themselves. Named "OTown Square," the project included four components: weekends and evening it would be a teen center, during week days a senior citizen center, Saturdays for younger children, and week day evenings a classic film schedule had been suggested for adults.

"There's a range of options here," Lillis said. "With enough interest, we could explore all kinds of possibilities."

Bethlehem Central School Superintendent Lawrence A. Zinn said Monday he supports the effort. "The schools are used very widely but the need always seems to be greater. This sounds like a good idea to pursue, although it is the idea itself that is important. You can't concentrate on just one opportunity and feel that this opportunity is the only one," Zinn said.

Dissent is cited in Fuller resignation

By Tom McPheeters

Sheila Fuller's surprise announcement that she won't seek a fourth term as president of the Bethlehem Central School Board has the effect of highlighting the divisions on the board, and in the community.

That apparently was one of Mrs. Fuller's intentions, but it doesn't mean that she is giving up, or getting off the board, she said Thursday.

"I do intend to run for reelection," she said. Her three-year term as a board member expires next June.

Prior to Wednesday's meeting, Mrs. Fuller said, all of the other members of the board had urged her privately to run for a fourth one-year term as president. She said she had indicated to all of them that she did not want to do so. "They really weren't listening," she said. Thus, she said, her public statement was a way of focusing the board's attention.

The board has been divided during the past year over a

Mrs. Fuller's statement

Barring an unexpected special meeting, tonight marks the last meeting of the third year that I have served as Board President. During the major part of those three years and of the five years as a Board member preceding my presidency, we have been confronted with a number of extremely difficult and unique problems. I believe that we have faced those problems and reached the best solutions through a mutually shared commitment to the best interests of the children and their education.

Of late however, I have become concerned that perhaps too many matters which should be secondary to the educational program available to our children are instead becoming the primary focus of our attention, and that concern weighs heavily on my mind. The Bethlehem School District has long and justifiably prided itself on not only the strength of its program, but also the cohesiveness of its neighborhoods

New Clarksville water district is approved

By Patricia Mitchell

After responding to charges that the Weisenburn Farm may not be an adequate water supply, the New Scotland Town Board has approved a new Clarksville water district.

If all goes well, water could be flowing by late 1987 in the district.

Even though the boundaries of the district will stay the same, the board's action on a new district was required by the state Comptroller's Office because a source was found outside the hamlet, increasing the cost of the original project by $500,000. The original application made with the state in March, 1984, was based on finding a water source within the hamlet.

The new Clarksville district, at $1,815,500, will be funded with $1,315,500 from the federal Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA), a $400,000 department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant, and a $100,000 district loan. The FmHA money is divided into a $939,800 grant and a $375,700 loan.

The HUD money will be used for the development of the Weisenburn Farm, and the year of the repayment period, the homeowner would be charged $45, and $66 for water use. The water use charge, based on 55,000 gallons used a year, would initially cost $1 for 1,000 gallons but this is expected to increase over time.

Ronald LaBerge, Jr., of LaBerge Engineering, said ad-and a water supply with adequate flow and pressures.

"As far as cost wise to the homeowner, it is very good," LaBerge said.

On request from Paul Rubin, a resident of Clarksville and a professional hydrogeologist, a series of letters questioning the hydrogeologist and a member of the town's water committee, appeared before the public hearing and answered some of Rubin's charges.

As reported June 4 in The Spotlight, Rubin has charged in a series of six letters, dating back to Sept. 20, 1983, that inadequate testing has been done to confirm that the Weisenburn Farm is a safe, reliable source of water for Clarksville, and that other sites closer to the hamlet were not seriously considered.

For example, Rubin said the pumping test at the Weisenburn Farm was inadequate. He said a test pump, with at least two observation wells to check how quickly the aquifer can recover, are placed at the site and pumped for 72 hours as the water level is constantly monitored. The test at the Weisenburn site was pumped

(Turn to page 8)

"While this test was not as definitive as the 72-hour pumping test method described by Mr. Rubin, the results do indicate a significant water-yielding capability for this aquifer," Phelan said.

FmHA money would be used for water transmission in Clarksville.

In the first year of the district's operation, the owner of an average district property assessed at $2,433 per $1,000 would be billed $166 for the loan repayment and $55 for water use. In the last vantages of the district include 150,000 gallons of water storage in case of a fire or water transmission interruption, storage and hydrants for fire protection, possible reduction in fire insurance rates, elimination of poor sanitary or chemical quality water supplies, reliability of testing and the water source were made part of the record even though Rubin was unavailable to appear at the public hearing.

Also in a letter made part of the record, Kevin Phelan, a resident of Clarksville, a professional

Farm owner fined

Dominick Cubello, of Oakwood Dr. in Glenmont, has been fined $125 in Bethlehem Town Court for the misdemeanor of criminal nuisance for allowing goats on his farm to escape through a hole in a fence, according to court officials.

The goats were wandering about on Oakwood Dr., and on some of the lawns on Dumbarton Dr. on Tuesday, June 10. Police said the goats endangered the safety of vehicle traffic, and the health of pedestrians and local residents.

Bethlehem flags fly for Tricentennial

It's been a tri-organizational project for Bethlehem's participation in the July 19 Tri-Centennial Parade in Albany. Bethlehem Central High School's art director Andrew Masino designed and directed the creation of the banners with materials paid for by the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce and hand made by candidates for St. Thomas's confirmation class.

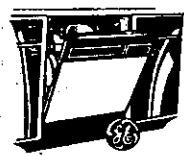

Last March Consermod (confirmation service moderator) Maureen Cook approached Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Marty Cornelius: did she have any projects that could involve a group of teenagers? Cook was directing the class in a community service project as one of their first year requirements for their confirmation class at St. Thomas the Apostle Church.

Bethlehem, as Albany's "Companion throughout History," would be featuring antique cars donated by Bethlehem residents in the area-wide parade in July. Cornelius welcomed the students' help in making banners to drape the cars to represent five hamlets of the original town: Clarksville, Delmar, Elsmere, Glenmont and Slingerlands. The chamber would underwrite the expenses involved as well as provide a regular work station for the students. Andrew Masino designed the banners in the shape of the town seal.

8 injured in crash

Judy Newcomb, 17, of Voorheesville, was listed in fair condition Monday with severe head and chest injuries at Albany Medical Center Hospital after the car she was driving collided head on with another Saturday night in the Town of Berne.

Albany County Sheriff Sgt. John Mahan said on Monday the collision is under investigation with possible charges pending.

The head-on crash injured eight people, one critically, and occurred about 9:30 p.m., Mahan said.

Newcomb's vehicle was traveling northbound on Knox Cave Rd., (County Route 252) near Simmons Rd., when it struck another vehicle traveling southbound, driven by Frank H. Rochester, 38, of Delanson.

A passenger in Newcomb's car, Lenny Mertens, was in critical condition Monday at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany. Another passenger in Newcomb's car, William Holznagel, was in fair condition Monday at St. Peter's, a hospital spokesman said.

Also passengers in Newcomb's car and transported to Albany Medical Center Hospital, were Steven Viniciguerra, in fair condition on Monday, and Michelle Moyer, whose condition was unavailable on Monday, according to a hospital spokesman.

Ages and addresses were unavailable for Mertens, Holznagel, Viniciguerra and Moyer, Mahan said.

Rochester was treated for head injuries at Albany Medical Center, and released Saturday night, a hospital spokesman said. Passengers in Rochester's car were his wife, Barbara, in fair condition Monday at Albany Medical Center, and Steven Call, who was treated and released Saturday night from St. Peter's Hospital.

Mahan said three ambulances from East Berne, Altamont and Onesquethaw fire departments responded to the accident.

PERB ends dispute between PBA, town

The state Public Employees Relations Board has ordered Bethlehem's Police Benevolent Association to formally enter into a proposed agreement with the town based on a Dec. 11, 1985, contract agreement.

The decision ends about two years of wrangling between the Bethlehem Town Board and the union, just in time to start a new round of bargaining, since the new contract will expire Dec. 31. In the meantime, both sides appear to be toning down the rhetoric that characterized the on-again, off-again bargaining.

"I'm very pleased," said Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick. He noted the union members are in line for some "good sized checks" for retroactive pay increases, and commended "the officers who I feel have done an excellent job during this period of time."

Matthew Clyne, attorney for the PBA, said on Tuesday it is his understanding the PBA will not seek to overturn the PERB decision and will accept the December, 1985, agreement.

"They have pretty much determined this is it," Clyne said.

Handed down last Wednesday, the PERB decision orders the Bethlehem PBA to withdraw its request to negotiate further on their contract with the Town of Bethlehem. The PBA, the decision said, failed to negotiate in good faith with the town.

The dispute dates back to contract negotiations held last year after the last contract expired on Jan. 1, 1985. The town argued it reached an agreement with then-PBA president John Cox that did not involve a 20-year retirement clause, one of the union's major goals. But the agreement was voted down by the membership, with Cox voting against the contract, and the town accused Cox of going back on his word.

In its decision, PERB said, even without affirmative lobbying to support the ratification of the contract, Cox, acting as negotiator, must uphold the agreement unless he advises the other side he would not do so. The failure of the negotiator to support the ratification of the contract agreement deprives it of the right to require the ratification.

The board's decision upholds a PERB hearing officer findings in April.

Clyne said the PBA decided to end its contract dispute with the town with the PERB decision because their only alternative would take too much time and would not be economically worth it. That alternative would have the PBA appear before a state Supreme Court judge to review the legality of the PERB decision. Clyne said a decision from the Supreme Court would not be handed down until late, 1987.

"They feel there are limits to how much they can get," Clyne said.

While the PBA still has a number of problems with the December, 1985, agreement, Clyne noted that it will expire at the end of the year.

The agreement calls for four pay raises of four percent in six-month increments, and also contains changes in disciplinary procedures for officers. It does not, however, contain the 20-year retirement clause the union had made a cornerstone of its bargaining position.

Builder fined

Builder Bedros Karian has been fined $50 in Bethlehem Town Court for occupying a two-family house on Kenwood Ave., Glenmont, without a Certificate of Occupancy, according to court officials.

On May 29, Bethlehem Building Inspector John Flanigan reported, Karian permitted the house to be occupied when he had not completed the work correctly as required by the building code and the site plan approval.

Zinn also acknowledged the need for a movie theater, which, he said, is frequently discussed as a need in the area.

Jeanette Koch, who is coordinating this effort, said everyone who has an interest should attend the Thursday meeting. "This could be the community working together," she said. "Everyone that I spoke to has been supportive." Presently employed at the Delmar Athletic Club as an aerobics coordinator, Koch has worked with youth groups as well as the town's Parks and Recreation Department.

"I know the need for this type center. As a community center, it would be used day in and day out." Thursday's meeting will be limited to an hour and a half and will be a significant gauge of interest, she said.

Falkner informed Delmar Athletic Club members in a June 18 letter that he would be forced to either sell the business or close it because of operating losses.

Employees stated that they were given notice that the club would be closed for business effective July 1. Faulkner said Monday that he tried to sell the business first as the health club intact. He said he did not intend to reorganize the business and has been responding to several indications of interest for the property. Napa Automotive Parts and Fay's Drugs have been among the interested parties as well as a group interested in a professional building or offices. Faulkner said that he was waiting for response of a contract offer in the next day or two. $450,000 is the asking price of the facility, and if the current offer falls through he has several calls of interest from area realtors, he said.

Faulkner himself has no definite future plans, although he expects to return to sales and to be back in business for himself again "some day."

Car flips on Rt. 9W

A Glenmont woman escaped injury on Tuesday when the vehicle she was driving went down an embankment on Rt. 9W in Glenmont and flipped over, Bethlehem police reported.

According to witnesses, the 18-year-old Glenmont woman was traveling south on Rt. 9W near the intersection of Rt. 396, when she attempted to pass on the right another vehicle, also traveling south and making a left hand turn. The woman suddenly braked and swerved to the right, police said, causing her vehicle to head down the embankment and flip over.

Police said no one was injured in the incident, and the driver was not ticketed.

Disaster drill planned

Approximately 60 students from the Glenmont Job Corps will be involved with simulated burns and multiple trauma injuries. The 60 simulated casualties will be extricated, stabilized, triaged and transferred to Albany County hospitals.

Agencies participating in the drill will include the Delmar Fire Department, the Town of Bethlehem, Albany Medical Center Hospital, St. Peter's Hospital, Veteran Administration Hospital

Medical Center, the Albany County Office of Natural Disaster and Civil Defense, the Emergency Medical Service Council of Albany County, the New York State Police Aviation Unit, the New York State Army National Guard, the state Department of Environmental Conservation, the New York State Emergency Management Office, the state Department of Health, the Regional Emergency Medical Organization, and ambulance and rescue squads from Berne, Delmar, Westerlo and General Electric, Selkirk.

Glenmont relocatables to be in place by fall

"We can go ahead," said a relieved Superintendent Lawrence Zinn.

After two tries and "a very nervous bid opening," the Bethlehem Central School Board last week finally got a bid for the Glenmont relocatables that was under the $203,000 ceiling authorized by district voters last March. The board, acting on the knowledge that quick action could mean an early return for Glenmont students, unanimously approved the $202,829 contract for Williams Mobile Offices Inc. of Baltimore, Md.

If Zinn's preliminary checks on the quality of the Williams product bear out, and if state approval can be obtained this week, the four new classrooms could be in service by October. That would allow the Glenmont first graders and kindergarten students who are now scheduled to start the year at Elsmere Elementary School to move back "home" much sooner than anticipated.

The relatively happy end to the crisis that had developed when the first bids came in last month $100,000 above the authorized figure made for a less fractious meeting than the last several have been, but Glenmont residents, both on and off the board, continued to press for a more "permanent" solution to the overcrowding issue.

"I'm very pleased," said Ellie Sharon, a Glenmont parent. "But this is only temporary." She and other parents pressed for a commitment from the board on a timetable for further action — a move the board, which made redistricting a major priority last year, only to see the idea shouted down, resisted.

"We haven't been sitting here blindfolded," said board President Sheila Fuller.

Board member Barbara Coon, a Glenmont resident, suggested a review of census and enrollment data "after the dust settles in September," but even that idea wasn't universally popular.

Board member Marjory O'Brien said she wants time to assess how the relocatables fit in with the rest of the school, particularly in the impact of additional pupils on such core services as the cafeteria and the gym. And several board members, as well as Zinn, said they see the relocatables as a potentially permanent addition to the school.

However, Zinn again stressed the difficulty of making reliable population projections, as he has attempted to do for pupil growth in the Glenmont area. "The one professional demographer who has looked at my data has indicated that my projections are too high," he said. "The thing I really like about (the relocatables) is that they are indeed movable."

Several Glenmont parents tried to pin Zinn down on a precise date for occupancy of the new units. He said he couldn't do that, but noted that the company has 90 days to deliver, and will bring its own work crew to install the units. "I would guess it's going to be done within a week after delivery, but I really don't know," he said.

Two weeks earlier, the board had decided that Glenmont pupils currently attending kindergarten at the Elsmere Elementary School would remain at Elsmere for the first grade next fall. Zinn said those first graders would return, as a class, to Glenmont when the relocatables are ready, although current plans would have fourth and fifth graders use the new rooms.

On the superintendent's recommendation, the board accepted all but two alternates on the Williams bid, for a roof overhang and for heating elements (to be supplied by the district) in order to keep the bid under the $203,000 approved number of issues, from Glenmont overcrowding to teacher and administration salaries. In addition, an unusually aggressive election campaign by candidates supported by the Bethlehem United Taxpayers emphasized divisions in the community over budgeting, student test scores and other issues. Split votes have become more common on the board, and there were two Wednesday night over salaries for administrators.

"Of late," Mrs. Fuller said in her prepared statement, "I have become concerned that perhaps too many matters which should be secondary to the educational program available to our children are instead becoming the primary focus of our attention, and that concern weighs heavily on my mind."

Mrs. Fuller read the statement hurriedly and with some emotion as the meeting began. There was no comment by any other board member, although there was a scattering of applause in the audience.

A number of observers see no logical successor to Mrs. Fuller, since all of the other board members are identified with one or another of the board's factions. "They're going to have to work that out," she said. "I'm not sure it's going to be an easy choice... and I'm not sure I can guarantee that it will be unanimous."

Robert Ruslander is the current vice president, and it has been a tradition for the vice president to move up. Mrs. Fuller was vice president of the board when she followed Bernard Harvith as president.

An indication of the divided nature of the board came early in the evening in identical 4-3 votes to award an eight percent salary increase and an improved insurance package for three top district administrators, assistant superintendents Briggs McAndrews and Franz Zwicklbauer and Dr. Clarence Spain, supervisor of pupil services.

The salary increase, for the 1986-87 school year, is one percent above the raise granted to the district's principals, who are in a separate bargaining unit. In their contract, the principals were given a "whole" life insurance plan considered more attractive than the term insurance the district had been carrying for them, and this provision was extended to the three administrators also.

Board member Charles Reeves objected. The eight percent, he said, is "way out of line" and really amounts to over 10 percent when fringe benefits are added in, he said. He noted that he had opposed the new insurance plan when it was granted to the principals. Board members Barbara Coon and Velma Cousins agreed on both counts, with all three stressing that they had no complaints about the work of the three administrators. "The total percentage is just too great," said Mrs. Coon.

"When you say that people are excellent, they deserve some concrete evidence of that," Ruslander responded. He, Harvith, Fuller and Marjory O'Brien voted for the raises and the insurance package.

The board vote was unanimous on a new one-year contract for Zinn, beginning June 30, 1987, but that vote came only after hours of closed-door discussions and did not include a salary adjustment for the superintendent. The minutes of the board's prior meeting, June 4, indicated that a closed executive session went until 1:25 a.m. In the past, the board has negotiated three-year contracts with Zinn.

Siena winners

Siena College's delegation to the Model League of Arab States came home with two awards, according to head delegate Mary Barry, a junior from Delmar.

The competition was held at the American University in Washington, D.C. in late March.

Twenty-one colleges, including Duke, Boston University, Fordham and Georgetown participated in the event.

Siena was the only upstate New York college that sent a delegation, Barry said. All Siena's delegates are political science majors.

and their common interests and concerns for the general good. For reasons I do not fully understand, I feel the latter elements are eroding.

Issues related to zoning, buses, lower taxes, etc., are certainly important. But the key issue always has been and should continue to be the quality of the program. Disagreements as to approach are not only expected but important. But disagreement for the sake of disagreement is divisive and should be avoided at all costs. I am confident that we can, as a Board, and a school district, succeed in that avoidance. In saying that I do not mean to imply that I or anyone else can be or expect to be all things to all people. I do want and expect, however, that we have made and will continue to make decisions with all people in mind.

That said, and despite the urgings of my fellow Board members, I have decided not to seek a fourth term as Board President. I am proud of my record in that position and I am even prouder of our accomplishments as a Board during that period. Those accomplishments were not due to me alone but rather due to the Board members' ability to work together. It is my fervent hope that that ability will prevail and I pledge that I will, as an individual board member, dedicate myself to that end, keeping constantly in mind that our primary objective is the best possible educational program for the district.

Finally, I wish to sincerely thank the faculty and staff, the administrators, the Central Administration, the Board members, past and present, and most importantly, the community for their support and valuable input over the last three years. I can assure my successor that such means a great deal in performing the job.

Meanwhile I look forward to working with the new President and my fellow Board members toward making the Bethlehem school district even better than it already is.

Krumkill key to Indian Hills

By Patricia Mitchell

With concerns of traffic safety and flow raised, the Bethlehem Planning Board adjourned a public hearing on a proposed subdivision to consider utilizing a right of way to widen Krumkill Rd.

The right of way would claim 25 feet on the development side of the center line of Krumkill Rd. in North Bethlehem to widen the road to attempt to ease traffic flow in the area if the subdivision is approved.

The proposed Indian Hills subdivision, with 125 single-family lots, is located between Krumkill and Russell roads, adjacent to the east side of the New York State Thruway. In a residential "A" district, the land is under contract to Belmonte Builders of Mechanicville.

The planning board will have to announce a decision on the proposed development within 45 days of the Tuesday, June 17, hearing.

While the planning board wrestled with the proposed development's main road that travels round and about the subdivision, residents of the area voiced concern that the already heavy-traveled area would become more congested.

Lindsay Boutelle, the engineer representing Peter Belmonte and Belmonte Builders, said the main road was designed with several curves and intersections to make the connection between Russell and Krumkill roads more difficult.

At the proposed development's pre-preliminary hearing, the board decided it was in favor of a connecting road.

"I do not like straight-through streets. They are causing problems every day of the week," Boutelle said.

A straight connecting street, Boutelle said, is not needed because Russell and Krumkill roads eventually meet, and the round and about way allows the main road to cross the ravine that cuts through the proposed development at the best possible place.

"I think straight-through streets are necessary or else you wouldn't have any traffic," said board member William Johnston, Jr. "I believe we have to have some straight-through streets. I brought my children up on straight-through streets."

The board should determine if the development's roads should be used for through traffic or for residents, said board member Dennis Corrigan. "Given the size of (the development), I do not think you want through traffic," he said.

Most residents of the area said they did not oppose the development, but before it is approved, they said, they want a solution to the condition of Krumkill Rd. and to consider the additional traffic that would be added to the already heavy-traversed road. The residents also said they did not think a straight road was a good idea through the development.

In the area of the development, Krumkill Rd. is a 30-mile-an-hour road that is not consistently enforced, said Robert Berry, of Olympian Dr. and president of the Olympian Homeowners Assn.

"Over the past few years, traffic has been increasing unsatisfactorily," Berry said, with heaviest traffic occurring in the morning and evening rush hours. "The road is simply not wide enough to handle the traffic. We are asking you to consider widening the road."

If the road is widened and painted, and additional patrols are conducted by police, Berry said the development traffic may be bearable.

"I think if everyone puts their minds together here, we can work out the traffic situation," said Dan Sampino, owner of several Marathon La. lots. "I am not opposed to the development."

On recommendation from the board's planning consultant Al Worth, the developer may submit another layout of the development to clean up some of the intersections and curves. Board member John LaForte advised the audience at the hearing that the road layout may eventually change.

Even though the proposed Indian Hills subdivision outlines 125 lots, Boutelle said there may be fewer lots on the final plan because more detailed maps of the area are needed. The present lot sizes are 80 to 100 feet in width, and most lay south of the Niagara Mohawk power lines. A sanitary sewer exists in the area, and a pump is needed for the proposed development's use. There is a water line along Krumkill Rd., and a pattern for storm sewers will lead to the ravine, but will be constructed in a way to prevent erosion. There is a sandy soil on the property mixed with some sand, Boutelle said.

About 10 houses will face Krumkill Rd. with a 45-foot total setback. Lots on the corner of Krumkill Rd. will have their driveways on the development's side streets.

The planning board also adjourned a public hearing on the proposed Lauralana Heights extension of Boylston Dr. without making a decision.

The project is located in a residential "AA" district, and surveyor Paul Hite said this will be the remaining section of the development, and will be located south of the Niagara Mohawk right-of-way and Sheffield Dr. The 24 lots will be consistent with other homes in the area. There are plans to construct sewer and water lines.

Hite said developer Rudolph Paulsen of Paulsen Lumber would like to continue Boylston Dr. through the right-of-way, and he has already provided a neighboring property owner with a proposal to subdivide his property into three lots.

Boylston Ave. could eventually be extended to connect with Elm Ave. East because Hite said there is a large tract of land between the development and Elm Ave. East. However, he said he does not want to create a throughfare for increasing traffic problems.

On suggestion from Corrigan, Hite said he would check into the possibility of using the County of Albany's water line right of way to use during construction. If it is not possible, the construction traffic will have to use the development's streets.

Carriage Hill proposed

By Patricia Mitchell

Subdividing their regular meeting into two lots, the Bethlehem Planning Board made use of an extra 15 minutes between public hearings to finish some routine business.

At 7:45 at their Tuesday, June 17, meeting after a public hearing on the proposed Lauralana Heights, the board approved minutes of two past meetings, approved a request from engineer Lindsay Boutelle to extend time on a public hearing for the Murray Hills subdivision, and approved notification of the applicant change of the Southwood one-lot subdivision on New Scotland Rd. to W. Paul McCarthy.

That action took up time until 8 p.m. when the public hearing on the proposed Indian Hills subdivision was scheduled. When the hearing ended at 9 p.m., the planning board went back into their regular meeting to hear a pre-preliminary presentation, a site plan application, and an update on a subdivision.

Board chairman John Williamson gave the go-ahead to Boutelle to start the preliminary plans on the proposed Carriage Hill subdivision. Located in an agricultural-residential district, the subdivision measures 67 acres, and would be divided into 110 lots. The subdivision is on the westerly side of Jericho Rd., and is south of Elm Ave. and the Jericho Drive In.

Boutelle said the developer is proposing to extend the water line about 2100 feet and the Bethlehem sanitary sewer runs through the property. The only entrance to the development would be from Jericho Rd., but two other entrances are proposed for later to extend to Elm Ave. East.

There would be no building into a 40- to 60-foot deep ravine that runs through the property, Boutelle said, and there would be only one road that would cross the ravine with the help of fill. A portion of the land would be left undeveloped because of the streams that cut through the area, and these lands may be deeded to the homeowner.

Before a preliminary hearing would be scheduled on the development, Williamson requested maps of adjoining areas, and to have the developers consider making the main road a dead end with a cul-de-sac.

The board decided to table referring a site plan application on Booth Rd. to the Albany County Planning Board until a definite map of the plan can be drawn up.

To be owned at the end of the summer by Dave Plummer, the proposal calls for the conversion of the first floor of two adjacent buildings into office space. Located next to Price-Greenleaf, one building now contains one apartment on the first floor, and the second holds two apartments on the first floor. Samuel Whiting, Delmar attorney representing Plummer, said the upstairs apartments in both buildings will remain.

As office spaces, 11 parking spaces will be needed for the 2500-square foot building under town zoning regulations, said town planning consultant Edward Kleinke, III. Two wheelchair ramps, also required, have been provided in the rear of the buildings. There are also two two-car garages on the property.

If the property eventually went retail, Kleinke said, he doesn't believe enough parking spaces are provided. If the property went retail making it a change of use, the owner would have to appear again before the planning board for approval, and the parking question would have to be addressed.

Williamson said he questioned the possibility of the property being divided and one building being sold off to go to retail space. The board decided to hold off on any action until the tax maps can be checked on the possible division and the final plan is presented.

As the last order of business, the planning board set 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 1, for a public hearing on the Beaver Dam Estates subdivision on Beaver Dam Rd. Owned by Andrew Koonz, a three-lot subdivision with a 60-foot access-way to the larger back lot has already been approved by the board. Koonz is now requesting to take a small tract of land off the largest lot with plans to build a house there.

Williamson said as a conditional approval on the newest division the board may exclude further development in the largest lot unless Koonz appears again before the planning board.

Also scheduled for the board's next meeting on Tuesday, July 1, is a public hearing on the proposed Quail Hollow 70-lot subdivision off Glenmont Rd. by Rudolph Paulsen, and Paulsen and Sons, Inc. of Albany at 7:30 p.m., and a public hearing on the proposed Jessica Park 15-lot subdivision in North Bethlehem by Kircher Realty at 8 p.m.

House damaged

About $125 in damages were sustained to a home on Oldox Rd. in Delmar over the weekend during a suspected break-in, Bethlehem police said.

Between 5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday, police said, someone broke a garage window at the home and also attempted entry by hitting a door lock with an unknown object. The perpetrator also tried to force the front door of the home by kicking it in.

Unionville residents want water too

About 30 residents of Unionville made up the largest contingent at the New Scotland Town Board's public hearing on the creation of the Clarksville water district, fishing for answers on when they can have a water district.

The hamlet of Unionville is located about four miles northeast of Clarksville on Delaware Turnpike near the Bethlehem town line.

Clarksville joins the ranks of Feura Bush and Swift Rd. as a water district. Water is also provided to parts of New Salem, New Scotland, and Rt. 85 between Bethlehem's Vly Creek Reservoir and the town line through Bethlehem's water transmission lines.

Sharon Boehlke, a resident of Unionville for 12 years, said the hamlet is the only one in the town that does not have a water district. She said for the first four years she lived in Unionville, her well water was unusable. A pond was later dug on her property, and she now uses that for laundry.

"For the first four years, I lived my life in a laundromat," Boehlke said.

Unionville is less than one and a half miles from the Weisenburn Farm, the water source for Clarksville, and Boehlke asked the board why the hamlet could not be included in with the district.

Town Supervisor Steve Wallace said the hamlet was not included with the original district plans submitted to the Farmer's Home Administration, a federal agency picking up a large part of the tab for the district. Unionville may not be included now due to federal regulations, even though the source is so close.

When making up the district, Wallace said, original plans were based on finding a source within Clarksville, and any piping to Unionville would have increased the cost of the project to an amount that would have been rejected by the state Comptroller's Office.

The average income in Unionville would have to be $12,500 to qualify the hamlet for a partial loan for a water district. A cost of $300 to $400 for each unit or user would earn a veto by the state.

Board Attorney Fred Reister said Clarksville will make it under the state's cost wire because there is a high density of users in the district, and the hamlet earned a large FmHA grant based on average income, with a loan repayment that is spread out over a long period at a low interest rate.

"This board is really powerless to create a district," Reister said.

Wallace advised the residents to petition the town board to conduct a water feasibility study of Unionville. The study will determine the amount of pipeline needed from a source to Unionville and the number of units compared to the final cost of the project. The study will cost the town $15,000, and if it comes up negative the project will stop there. If the cost to the user exceeds $350, Wallace said, the project could be dropped.

Wallace said the town is presently conducting a water feasibility study in the area of Normanskill Rd. The study may determine that there would be an excessive cost to users, and could be dropped, he said.

for 24 hours, and one observation well recovered a little water and one did not recover at all.

Rubin also said in his letters that the quality of the water must be checked for possible pollutants, and he said he was not aware if this was done.

In his letter, Phelan said, the Weisenburn well was pumped at a rate of 60 gallons per minute and demonstrated a favorable degree of low water-level drawdown.

"While this test was not as definitive as the 72-hour pumping test method described by Mr. Rubin, the results do indicate a significant water-yielding capability for this aquifer," Phelan said. "Most importantly, the results were sufficient to justify the water district project's viability to the FmHA, which is subsequently providing funding."

Phelan said a water quality test was conducted by Bender Hygienic Laboratory, and results indicate a potable water supply.

Finally, Rubin said, other sources of water closer to the hamlet were not considered that could cut down on the cost of the project. They include a glacial aquifer near Rock City Rd., linking together the individual Clarksville wells, constructing an Onesquethaw aqueduct system with a dam built on the Onesquethaw Creek and linking together with the Vly Creek Reservoir, tapping into the Vly Creek Reservoir, or enlarging the reservoir's dam and tapping into it.

Phelan said while Rock City Rd. is a glacial aquifer and is closer to Clarksville compared to the sand and gravel deposit at the Weisenburn Farm, the farm could hold a deeper and larger deposit. The Rock City Rd. aquifer, Phelan said, extends beneath the Vly Creek Reservoir system, and pumping during dry periods would induce infiltration of reservoir waters into the aquifer.

There is no reasonable legal system for linking together individual Clarksville wells, Phelan said. Excessive pumping of water in the area would probably reduce the yield and the water quality of the source.

Constructing an aqueduct system, Phelan said, would require nearly twice the pipeline of the present district, construction in an area of limestone is an "engineering nightmare," and the water quality of the runoff may be poor.

The Vly Creek Reservoir is already stressed, Phelan said, and if the dam is enlarged there would be no increase of the amount of water entering the reservoir.

"The testing conducted to date has been somewhat limited in scope and it is clear that additional testing and development of this aquifer is necessary. Now that funding has been granted for the Clarksville project, the town can proceed with these steps without creating an undue burden upon all the taxpayers of New Scotland," Phelan said.

Clarksville residents could start using more water with the new district and there could be an increase in population, Wallace said. That may contribute to problems with the septic systems. He suggested that any residents who do have problems with their system fix them before leaching into the Onesquethaw Creek.

Even though aerial photographs between the Weisenburn Farm and Clarksville have been taken to help determine the route of the pipeline, LaBerge said the route has still not been determined.

Papers to establish the water district with the new funding were expected to be filed on Thursday, the day after the public hearing, board attorney Fred Reister said. After that, the town must wait out a 30-day referendum period for objections to the cost of the funding or the district. After 30 days with no objection, the comptroller will approve the creation of the district.

A water supply permit must be obtained from the Department of Environmental Conservation to allow the taking of water from one spot to another, Reister said. The county Health Department also has to be satisfied the water is of good quality.

School ends, summer begins

The strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" will fill the air this Friday at 7 p.m. when the Class of 1986 will take that final walk to receive their diplomas at Clayton Bouton Junior-Senior High School. Scheduled to be held outdoors on the picturesque campus, graduation ceremonies will be moved to the gymnasium in the event of inclement weather. Family and friends of the graduates are welcome but are reminded that seating will be limited if the 90-minute ceremony is held indoors.

Addressing the graduates will be English teacher Christopher Mastro, who was selected by the senior class to be the commencement speaker. The evening will also include speeches by Validator James Volkwein and co-salutatorians Kirsten Haaf and Colleen Vaughn. Senior class president Denise Condon will present the class gifts.

A busy week for the Voorheesville graduates, the group will be rehearsing for the big day on Wednesday, and will conclude the morning with the senior class picnic on the school campus. Retiring superintendent, Dr. Werner Berglas will address the seniors at that time.

Last day

Students at the grade school will also be leaving for summer recess this week. On Thursday, June 26, the annual Last Day Awards Assembly will be held in the morning with students being dismissed from the elementary school at 11:15 a.m.

Students at the grade school and the high school, as well as their parents, are reminded that students at both schools will be returning on Thursday, Sept. 4, when classes resume for the fall.

Plenty to do

Parents who wonder what there is to occupy those summer months while school is out need not to worry. Voorheesville again will be bustling with all sorts of activities for young and old alike.

The village will be holding their summer recreational program beginning June 30 and running through Aug. 15. The playground on the green in the center of the village, will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. offers such activities as basketball, monster ball, croquet and other group games as well as arts and crafts.

Parents are reminded that children aged seven and under should be accompanied by an adult when attending the playground program.

Tennis lessons for all ages are being offered from 8 a.m. until noon as well. Those interested in signing up can do so on June 30 and July 1 from 8 to 9 a.m. at the village tennis courts.

Soccer clinics for students currently in grades K-3 will be held at the grade school on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m. as well.

Swimming lessons will again be held daily at the high school pool with bus transportation being provided for a limited time for village residents.

Anyone interested in obtaining more information is asked to call 765-2692.

Library summer programs

As always the Voorheesville Public Library will provide a multitude of summer fun for area children. As in the past the main event of the summer program will be the Summer Reading Club, whose weekly meetings are sure to brighten up the long summer vacation for school age children.

The theme of this year's club will be "Floating through Summer Go to the Beach with Us!" and will run from July 8 through Aug. 28. Included in the schedule of activities will be such fun events as Teddy Bear crafts with Linda O'Connor to be held the weeks of July 8 and 15, making ice cream snowmen on July 29 and 31, and glider making workshops on Aug. 12 and 14 for all groups. Dean Davis will return with his animal entourage on Aug. 19 and 21.

Other activities will include a Balloon launch for grades 4-6 on Aug. 7 and a program of music, songs and stories for grades by Lisa Atkinson on Aug. 5. Grand parties will conclude the summer session on Aug. 26 from primary grade students and Aug. 28 for intermediate grade pupils. Those interested in the programs should sign up for materials at the library any time between June 26 until July 3.

Pen/pal clubs will also be held on July 24 and Aug. 14.

Preschoolers will not be left out of the fun event though Spring Story Hours end on Friday, June 27, since Summer Story Hours will begin on Tuesday, July 8, and will be held ever Tuesday and Friday morning at 10:30 a.m. until Aug. 29. In addition, two special Bedtime Story Hours will be held on July 31 and Aug. 21 at 7 p.m. The summer will also offer two special programs for preschoolers. On Wednesday, July 30 the "Alternate Theater" will present the production "Storybook Magic" while Aug. 6 will be the screening of a series of Winnie the Pooh films. Both are at 10:30 a.m.

Summer films

The library will also sponsor its summer film series every Wednesday afternoon at 1 p.m. beginning on July 9, offering such films as "Tom Sawyer" on July 31 "Charlotte's Web" on July 16, "The Karate Kid" on July 23, "Annie" on July 30, "Cloak and Dagger" on Aug. 6, "Little Women" on Aug. 13, "The Great Muppet Caper" on Aug. 20, and "Support Your Local Sheriff" on

All summer programs will be held at the library on Main St. Those wishing more information may stop by the library or may call 765-2791.

Summer at school

The elementary school will also be the site of several interesting summer programs during the summer. Parents are interested in enrolling students in summer reading and math classes for those in grade 4 through 6 may still do so by calling Assistant Principal Elizabeth Singer at 765-2382. The reading program will run from 9 to 10:30 a.m. daily while the math program will take place 10:30 a.m. to noon. The session runs from July 8 through Aug. 9 and is free.

Special LOGO computer classes will also be offered during the mornings. Those interested may also contact the grade school for more information at 765-2382.

And summer band

Finally, the Kiwanis sponsored summer band program will run from July 15 through Aug. 17 meeting on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday the program offers band, jazz band and small ensemble experience as well as group lessons. Those interested should register with Lydia Tobler by calling the above number.

Barbecue for seniors

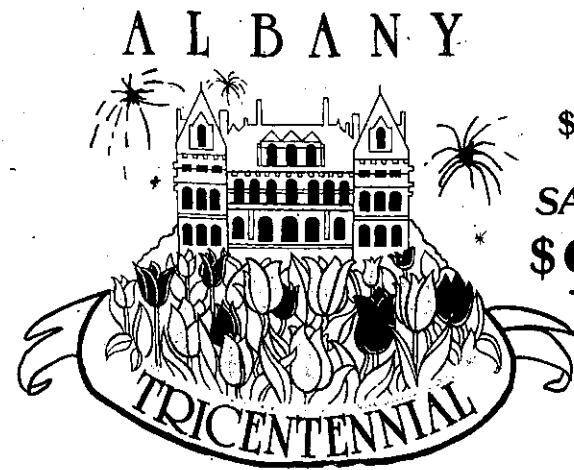

The New Scotland Senior Citizens will not be idle over those "lazy" summer months.

On Sunday, July 13, the New Salem Fire Department Auxiliary will host a chicken dinner for the seniors. Those interested in making a reservation should contact Martha Navilia at 439-4039.

There are still a few spaces available on the senior's boat trip on the Mohawk to be held on July 16 as well. The afternoon will include a ride through the lock and dinner at Krause's when they return.

July 29 is set as the annual outdoor picnic at the center. Those who have not made reservations for the joint venture with the Delmar group should call as soon as possible. Entertainment for the day will be Jack Keenan with some old-time radio facts and memorabilia.

RCS contract dispute continues

After listening for an hour to the comments of teachers disappointed in the failure of the latest round of contract negotiations, the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Board of Education Monday night held a short executive session and decided to try again.

The board voted to request another meeting with the union negotiators as soon as possible. First, however, board members listened to the comments of teachers unhappy with the results of the June 12 negotiating sessions.

"After having our hopes raised at the news of negotiators getting back together last Thursday, we woke Friday morning under a pall of gloom and despair and first bitterness," Norma Longo, a first grade teacher at A.W. Becker Elementary School, said. "What we were offered Thursday was nothing. War is hell. The battered and bruised bodies are never on only one side."

Longo went on to say that the worst results of this continuing situation that she could visualize would be teachers being forced to strike. The best results, she said, would be that feelings and attitudes engendered now by teachers having to work without a contract would be around for years to come.

"Your victory cries will be hollow and will ring out like a hollow dirge over this community," she said. The main issues being discussed are higher salaries, the dental plan and elementary duties in the lunchroom and on the playground.

"From what I hear, not only have we not gone forward in negotiations, but, we've digressed," Don Doyle, a high-school teacher, said. "If so, I'm insulted." He said that the district has salaries that rate in the bottom third of salaries being paid to teachers across the state, and that the district cannot hope to attract young teachers coming out of college with such a low wage offer.

"Please, please, go back to the negotiation table and act in good faith," Doyle said to the board.

One teacher asked each board member to respond to his question of why someone with a masters degree should use precious time supervising children at lunch and at play when he could be using that time helping children in math.

"I don't look at playground duty as a second class part of the day," responded Anthony Williams, board president. He said children could benefit from being with teachers at all times of the day. "If that is inside, then fine. If that is outside, then it is outside," he said.

"Teachers should be in the lunchroom with the children," board member Marie Muller said. "Maybe you can teach them some table manners."

"We appreciate you and we love you," said board member Sara Hunter. "I believe the children can benefit from being with you, in RCSTA President Donald Prockup speaks from the audience at the June 16 RCS board meeting.

Spotlight learning holistically, not just with a speller in front of them."

"I'm saddened by your attitudes," responded the teacher. "There's no debate in my mind where I can best spend my time helping children. But, with you there is no balance. I am amazed."

Another teacher said she had the experience of having lunchroom duty one year in the junior high school and having to break up fights, keep smokers from going to the restroom, and having to constantly try to keep 200 to 300 young people from using bad language and having food fights. There was no time for socializing, she told the board. When she then moved to the high school and got some of these youngsters in her English class, there was no hope of establishing any kind of rapport with some of them, since they remembered her disciplining them for bad behavior in the lunchroom. For this reason, she said, she believes teachers should stay in the classroom and aides should be hired to watch students in the lunchroom.

After about one hour of accusations cast back and forth by the approximately 200 teachers in the board's small room and the board, RCSTA President Donald Prockup requested five minutes of the boardtime in executive session, which was granted.

In other business, the board:

- Heard a presentation on the elementary science program regarding curriculum and needed materials for the 1986-87 school year and voted unanimously to accept the committee's recommendations.

- Voted to accept the lowest bid for purchasing bus garage doors.

Have you seen the new "official" A.W. Becker School T-shirts? The design is the result of the artistry of five students from the elementary school, the winners of a contest sponsored by the Becker PTO. A winning drawing was selected from each grade and incorporated into one single picture. The completed design includes the school playground, books, a school bus, Little Red Riding Hood reading and Snoopy.

The shirts were chosen in a special color for each grade, and that color will progress with the children as they advance to the next grade. Red was selected for 1st grade, navy for 2nd, maroon for 3rd, royal blue for 4th, kelly green for 5th, black for Mr. Keating as principal, turquoise for the volunteer assistants, and raspberry for special education teachers, cafeteria and general staff.

Winners of the contest are: 1st grade, Amanda Krykowsky; 2nd grade, Sarah Janssen; 3rd grade, Chester Bolinger; 4th grade, Steven Jensen; 5th grade, Tara McKiernan. As winners, each student received their shirt free from the PTO.

Blue Eagles now third in league

After two wins and a loss last week, the Blue Eagles, Bethlehem's first-year Connie Mack team, is in third place. The top three finishers in the 12-team league will go to the New York state tournament in Syracuse in late July.

Last Monday, the Blue Eagles trounced Hoosick Valley, 21-6, batting around in the first three innings. Paul Evangelista had a home run and a single, Josh Weinstein had a home run and Randy Gambelunghe and Jeff Pesnel each contributed two singles.

Spotlight wins game

By John Bellizzi III

Spotlight triumphed over Roberts Realty 12-8 last Wednesday in Tri-Village Little League Major competition. Andre Cadieux was the winning pitcher, relieved by Brendon O'Brien. Spotlight's superb offense aided in the win, led by Cadieux and Shaun Keneston, who each smashed one out of the park early in the game. Matt Merrill and John DiAnni both doubled, John Schaller and O'Brien each hit a double and a single, Alexis Otto singled twice, and Dave Miles and Greg Zornow both singled. Lynn Doody, Brent Kosoc and Ben Comtois were on the mound for Roberts. At the plate, Kosoc homered and singled twice, Mike Pratt doubled twice, John Thomas singled twice and doubled, and Comtois, Mike Chaifetz, Tim Doody and John Savoie all singled.

Friday night, Spotlight beat first place Main Care. Billy Karins was Main Care's starting pitcher, relieved by Mike Gambelunghe. Cadieux again led the offense, hitting two home runs, a double and single. DiAnni tripled and singled, Otto, O'Brien and Zornow each doubled and singled, Schaller hit three singles, and Miles and Merrill each singled. Schaller was the winning pitcher, relieved in the fifth inning by O'Brien. For Main Care, Tim Mooney singled, Jim Gavin doubled, Matt Bechard singled twice, and Mike Futia and Bob Strohane both singled.

Spotlight continued its winning streak Saturday in a contest against Farm Family, 16-8. Cadieux was again the winning pitcher, shutting out his opposition for the first four innings before being relieved by O'Brien. Cadieux tripled and singled, DiAnni doubled and singled, O'Brien tripled, Zornow doubled, and Donato singled. Chris Black pitched for Farm Family, and his cause was helped by four singles by Dan Goeldner, two singles by John Rice, a double and a triple by Ryan Dunham, and a single by Jay Tarbell.

Later Saturday, Price Greenleaf's Joey Mangiapane and Matt Quatraro combined to hurl a no-hitter against Starwood, 23-3. Quatraro hit two home runs, increasing his season total to nine, and Mike Koroluk and Matt Shortell hit doubles. Earlier that week, Starwood bowed to Main Care, 12-8, but not before Frank Daley sailed a grand slam home run over the fence.

Saturday evening, Davies Office Refurbishing beat Roberts Real Estate 10-3. Ed Lubarda, the winning pitcher, gave up six hits Saturday's game against Lansingburgh was almost a different story as Bethlehem had to erase a seven-run deficit to win, 9-7. Mike Hodge and Pete Russo each had two singles.

The team suffered its only loss of the week Sunday as Hoosick Valley got revenge with a 7-3 win. Jeff Boyd had two singles and is now batting .526 for the season. Russo and Hodge also had two singles in the losing cause.

Other leading hitters on the team are Joe Ganley at .500, Russo at .444, Gambelunghe at .333 and Bob Jahkr at .300.

— a single and a double by Dan Soronen, two singles by Lynn Doody, and two singles by Pratt and Chaifetz. Doody, pitching for Roberts, likewise gave up six hits — three singles by Paul Noonan and singles by Lubarda, Brendon Gross and Jim Dundon.

Sunday, Price Greenleaf beat Davies Office Refurbishing, 13-1. Shortell pitched a one-hitter, giving up a double by Bob Conway. Greenleaf's Jeremy Goldman hit a powerful two-run homer and a single, Shortell hit a home run and a double, Quatraro doubled twice and tripled, and Matt Crandall singled. Mark Houston and Brian Mullan pitched for Davies.

As the week drew to a close, a three-way race for first place in the major division was developing. Main Care is holding first place by only half a game with a 10-4 record, while Spotlight and Davies Office Refurbishing are tied for second place with records of 10-5.

Greenhouse damaged

Bethlehem police are investigating criminal mischief that occurred between Saturday night and Sunday morning at Verstandig's greenhouses on Delaware Ave.

Over $185 in damages occurred when the perpetrators broke four clay plant pots and pulled up 35 plants and tossed them about, police said. A sign was also damaged.

Against Ft. Orange, Pratt had three RBIs with a homer and a single and John Waddingham also drove in three with a double and a single. Jim Francis played outstanding defense at shortstop.

On Wednesday, Blanchard Post played a scrimmage game against O'Neil Post, losing 12-6 by virtue of a nine-run third. Pratt had a home run and a double.

THE HOME TEAM

By Tom Kuck
Broker Manager

Dollar For Dollar

• Real estate researchers project every year how much the average price of single family homes will rise. Average up, average down—what's really important is that you get top value for your home when you sell it. And the smart way to do that is to let a professional sell it for you.

• It isn't EASY to sell a house. To price a home properly, you need to know what comparable homes have brought in recent transactions and how to balance that against the current cost of mortgage loans.

• Qualifying prospective buyers calls for the tact and sensitivity to find out what they really want, and the affrontery to ask tough questions to determine what they can afford.

• Prospects are not simply SHOWN a house—they're guided through it. Experienced salespeople know how to emphasize the best features and how to meet objections. They know how to negotiate on your behalf to get the best possible price.

IF SOMETHING GOES WRONG BEFORE YOUR HOUSE SELLS ERA REAL ESTATE PAYS FOR REPAIRS.*

ERA pays for problems your homeowners insurance probably won't cover. Like the furnace. The hot water heater. Built-in appliances. The water softener, exposed duct work. Electrical wiring, plumbing and fixtures, the central air conditioning ... even swimming pool components. ERA Buyer Protection Plans cover more homes and more working components than any other home protection plan.

We'll help you make your home more attractive to buyers, who can be covered for repairs, too. ERA protection makes your house a better buy. And if something goes wrong before or after the sale, ERA will pay for most repairs.

There really is a difference in real estate companies.

Christian workshop set

Circuses and computers, birds and bicycles, acting and aerobics are all part of the 21st annual Bethlehem Christian Workshop on July 7 to 11, offering Bethlehem residents a choice of 35 classes from kindergarten through adult.

The week-long program for children and adults is sponsored by Bethlehem Community Church and classes will be held at the church and in area homes.

Each class includes a Bible Study, taught from an interdenominational perspective. Theme of this year's studies is "God Is My Friend."

On Friday, July 11, at 7 p.m., a grand finale for workshop students and their families will be held at Bethlehem Community Church. This year, nationally known Christian recording artist Ken Medema will highlight the evening. Medema, a singer, composer and pianist, will create improvisational songs and stories as he talks with children in the audience about the workshop.

In addition, grand finale participants will have the opportunity to observe actual class situations as workshopers will demonstrate the skills they learned during the week and teachers conduct shortened versions of regular workshop classes. Popcorn and soda will be available. Parking is free.

Workshop classes this year cover a wide range of topics including farming, tumbling, animals, Indians, music, birds, calico stitchery and a circus for the very young; globetrotting, athletics, pioneering, acting, tennis, bowling, racing wagons, biking, Erie Canal exploration and fishing for those a little older and pre-teens; an adventure course, dancing, softball, aerobics, photography, stenciling, computers and car care for teens and adults - and many more.

Complete details can be found in the workshop brochure, which was distributed throughout Bethlehem on June 14. Additional copies of the brochure are available at The Doorway book store, 278 Delaware Ave., Delmar, and at Bethlehem Community Church, 201 Elm Ave., Delmar.

Sue Pierce is director of this year's Workshop. For additional information, call the church at 439-3135.

Easier to tear down

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a parent whose children will be attending Bethlehem schools into the twenty-first century, I am writing to express my dismay at the campaigns disparaging our school system and people who run it. The latest of these is a petition to unseat the school superintendent.

What is disturbing in this attempt, as in the campaigns of some of the candidates in the recent school board election, is that it represents an assault against a fine school system, one that this community should be proud of. This is not to say that the system does not have its problems, as any school system does, and that the school board and staff have not made mistakes — but then all of us do. But any problems and mistakes must be judged against the larger context of overall excellence. To recognize this context, one need only look at how others judge us — the Bethlehem school system is still a primary reason why people move into this area. And this fact means that all residents, whether parents or not, have a stake in the quality of the school system.

If the campaigns aimed at individuals succeed, they will not only remove persons who have had a large share of the responsibility for building and maintaining the excellence of our schools — they will also leave behind a legacy of bitterness that could divide this community for years to come. And if they succeed, we are likely to find that it is easy to tear a school system apart, but very hard to put it back together again.

Richard D. Alba

Delmar

The passing scene

Editor, The Spotlight:

I had been planning to write The Spotlight for quite some time, on several important but local issues, but kept letting affairs of state and tasks like watching baseball games interfere.

Now, however, the shocking news of Sheila Fuller's resignation as president of the school board demands a response from the community. That it happened the same week as Warren Burger's resignation from the Supreme Court may be of some significance.

What is going on in Delmar? This school board situation makes Monty Python tamer. It's a wonder that we can get normal people to serve. And while we're at it, why haven't the tennis courts been resurfaced? I voted for that bond issue and want action.

The whole school board problem begins and ends with the issue of special programs for the "gifted." Since that time, artificial insemination has found its way into town to foster genetically improved students.

Let's declare a truce and declare everybody in town, in the words of Garrison Keeler, "above average."

Thank you, Mrs. Fuller, for giving it your all and for a job well done. The "porta-potty" issue will all work out in the end.

And, lest I forget, regards to Mr. Burger and may he enjoy his new career.

The other issues that I intended to write about are: the art of making a left hand turn while driving; The Spotlight ads for flashing signs; and, Bernie Kaplowitz. In order:

- No one (or very few besides myself) makes a square left hand turn. Everyone takes the diagonal and scares the heck out of any cars waiting at that spot to proceed. Take notice and watch your fellow town residents making left hand turns.

- The Spotlight want ads have featured flashing directional signs for sale for several months (I read everything). Is this a code message for some secret society, or is someone really selling these things? Better yet, does anyone buy them?

- Third, and last, except in order of finish. I congratulate Bernie Kaplowitz for deciding to run for the New York State Assembly. Bernie has served our town well, is capable, balanced, mentally and physically alert, well above average and a wonderful, dedicated citizen, lawyer and father. He's an all around "good guy" and I wish him the best in the primary.

They had a field day

Editor, The Spotlight:

We want to offer a special thank you to Hamagrael's students, staff and parents for a wonderful Field Day on Friday, June 20. We were thrilled to be part of so much fun, spirit, friendliness and warmth. Joanne DelVecchio deserves real praise for organizing so efficiently, as do all the volunteers who helped by being at each activity and with their kids. Special praise, however, goes to the children. No matter how well-organized a day is, if the participants aren't cooperative it won't work. We have a very special group of students and we're so proud to be a part of Hamagrael.

Buttons found

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to thank some kind people of our town who helped me find my dog, Buttons.

These people are the dog warden, the police department and some of the citizens of the area who cooperated in locating the area in which she was found.

Many thanks.

FISH folding

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the board of directors of Tri-Village FISH I regretfully have to inform the residents of Bethlehem that as of June 30, FISH will no longer be in existence.

FISH has served the town since 1971, and the last few years have been a real struggle. In 1971 there were 3500 volunteers who handled 952 calls. In 1985, with 41 volunteers (25 drivers, 16 telephone people), we handled 981 calls.

Over the last 15 years, FISH has handled 11,250 transportation calls alone, prepared numerous meals and made a great deal of visits just to check on many of the town's elderly who live alone. We have worked through the Times Union Christmas fund to insure that many of our older citizens who exist on a fixed income received a little extra help around the holidays.

Our volunteers, who are vastly overworked, continue to offer service with a smile — but the time has come to lose their burden.
