Area residents join in Tricentennial celebration

By Lorraine C. Smith

'Tis the summer of 1986 and the season to celebrate. Almost everything, or anything—but with flares and a flair. July 4 brought honor for one hundred years of The Lady in the harbor with a country so united in spirit and enthusiasm the star spangled banners sparkled from shore to shore.

Up the Hudson shore to Albany to mark 300 years of a city that's "Still Making History." And in Bethlehem and New Scotland, as Albany's "companions through history," the towns people are making their own contribution to Albany's Tricentennial Celebration.

This Thursday and Friday, July 10 and 11, Bethlehem residents are invited to the town's scenic Henry Hudson Park to view the Tall Ships sail up river. Those planning to attend the Tall Ships festivities at the Port of Albany on July 12 and 13 should think about obtaining tickets now, since space is limited.

A local boy scout troop has already begun their two-week canoe trip with the Tricentennial Paddlers starting from Lachine, Canada. Destination: the Albany waterfront on July 18 for yet another celebration.

Also on July 18, the public is invited to visit the Tricentennial Rendezvous at the Stevens Farm in Albany, just over the Delaware Ave. Bridge next to the hamlet of Normansville. On July 19, the day of the Tricentennial Parade, Bethlehem will be represented in the three-hour parade extravaganza by five antique cars donated by area residents and draped by banners made by local students, and Voorheesville's Maple Ave. Cultural Society will field its float depicting the Anti-Rent Wars. Finally, there are fireworks and other festivities in downtown Albany on Tuesday, July 22, the "official" Tricentennial date.

The Town of Bethlehem's Henry Hudson Park, located off Rt. 144 in Cedar Hill, is not on the official Tricentennial itinerary, but as a spot to join in the celebration in a relaxed, scenic

Harvith elected board president

By Patricia Mitchell

Bernard Harvith has been elected president of the Bethlehem Central Board of Education for the third time.

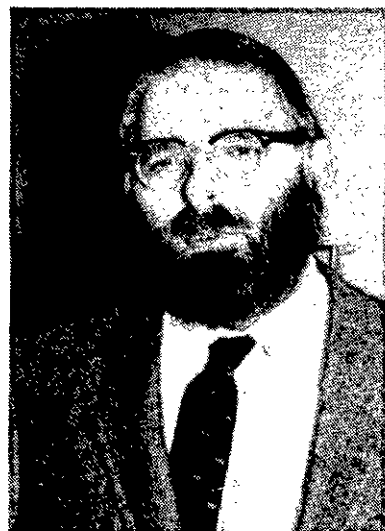

In a four-to-three secret ballot vote last Wednesday, the board elected Harvith over board member Barbara Coon. Former president Sheila Fuller had announced June 18 she would not seek re-election to the position.

The discussion on the two nominations was brief and civil, but touched on Harvith's ability to bridge the recent divisions on the board and with its critics. After the vote, Harvith, who won reelection this spring in a hotly contested race, said he thought it was amusing that he was considered as the candidate of the "Ghost of Christmas Past." A board member for 14 years, Harvith has served twice as board president, first about 11 years ago for three or four years, then after a break of three years for another three years. Fuller then served as president for three years.

The president of the board is elected for one-year terms.

In his previous terms as president, Harvith said, people complained of boring school board meetings. He said as president he would try to find a balance between the past boredom and the present controversies.

Harvith commended Fuller, saying she did a superb job as president, giving a lot of time, devotion and care to the job, and said she was responsive to the community. He said, though, it is a tradition to turn over the president's seat in three-year intervals.

"You do get tired in this job," Harvith said.

Coon's nomination for president was placed first on the floor by board member Velma Cousins, and was seconded by Harvith.

Coon would give the board greater cohesion, said Cousins, and would allow the board to run more smoothly. "We can have growth with change. I feel Bethlehem Central will give us that change," Cousins said.

Harvith was nominated by Robert Ruslander, and was seconded by Marjory O'Brien.

Berglas leaves house in order

By Patricia Mitchell

A few days before his June 30 retirement date, Dr. Werner Berglas pointed to a four-and-a-half-foot tall Diffenbachia plant that sits in a corner by his desk in his office.

Berglas said when he first became Voorheesville school superintendent 11 years ago, the plant only had two leaves on it. The plant looked pretty sad, so he went out and bought some plant food.

After a while, the plant began to grow and become healthy, and another tree began to take root next to the old one. Some one showed him how to make cuttings off the plant, and now, Berglas said, there are about 50 Diffenbachia plants in homes around Voorheesville that came off his tree.

Berglas leaves more than healthy plants for his successor, Louise Gonan, as he moves on after 34 years in the district.

Werner Berglas

"How do I feel right now?" Berglas said. "Naturally, I feel a good piece of sadness. My major emotion right now is a sad feeling."

Berglas said he has been appointed as superintendent of the Granby, Mass., school system near the Springfield area.

He began his career in the Voorheesville district as a biology and math teacher for 10 years, and even did a short stint as a driver education teacher. He served as principal of the junior-senior high school for 13 years, and was appointed superintendent in 1975.

Choosing between which of his jobs he liked better, Berglas said, was like choosing between steak and lobster.

"I liked all my jobs here. I have had really three separate jobs here," Berglas said.

The superintendent's job builds on the other two. "I think, personally, to be successful, you need to understand teaching and being a principal," Berglas said.

As a teacher, dealing directly with students, Berglas said, he grew to understand that if the teacher fails, the whole class will

DEC will test for metal contamination

Preliminary results of tests ordered by the state Department of Environmental Conservation on ground water samples taken from a dump site at Conrail's Selkirk Yards last February indicate the need for further tests to see if there is any metal contamination of drinking water supplies. Because various metals, including lead, appeared in the laboratory results, DEC will run another test "which will show leachability potential and if it's hazardous," according to senior sanitary engineer, Jack Butler.

He added that the "volatile organics came up clean."

Following several articles in The Spotlight last December and January, Stephen S. Lukowski, director of the division of environmental health for the Albany County Health Department, requested DEC to explore the possibility that the Conrail dump site contained hazardous waste. Concern over the site was brought to public attention in August, 1982, when an underground fire burned there for four days. Former Selkirk fire chief Robert J. Wiggand told The Spotlight that he treated the blaze as a hazardous waste fire.

Butler said that DEC has no plans at this time to drill below the surface for underground water samples, a position not endorsed by an environmentalist asked to comment on the situation.

"I'd say if there is any suspicion of hazardous waste being buried there, they should automatically be doing a subsurface testing," said Anne Rabe, director of the superfund monitoring project. "They should be going through the regular superfund investigative process, where they scope out all the possible pathways of contamination."

□ Harvith named

Ruslander said Harvith had imagination and innovative ideas, and noted that he had already served as president of the board.

"It is no secret each one of us has our own style. It should not detract" from the duties of the board, Ruslander said.

O'Brien said Harvith has the support of the board and the community, has earned respect and will bring a perspective to the job. She noted that that there is something to be said for stability.

Fuller said she would support Harvith as president, and added she had heard some new things at the meeting.

"Some of you have surprised me with this meeting," Fuller said.

After he was elected president, Harvith nominated Ruslander as vice president, and he was unanimously elected in the ballot vote.

In other business at the school board's organizational meeting, the board reestablished meeting dates on the first and third Wednesdays at 8 p.m. The board also approved the addition of Norstar Bank to the official list of banks for district funds.

The position of school physician was tabled by the board until one is found. The appointed doctor will also serve on the committee for the handicapped.

The board also backed a proposal by BOCES to buy the Maywood School from the South Colonie School District. A Sept. 17 vote on the proposal will be taken among districts served by BOCES. Superintendent Lawrence Zinn said a representative of BOCES will be at the board's Tuesday, Aug. 5, meeting to explain the referendum.

The board switched its Wednesday, Aug. 6, meeting to Aug. 5, and also learned that a meeting to issue the tax warrants may be scheduled Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Harassment reported

Bethlehem Police reported two separate incidents of harassment last week.

At 5:50 p.m. Friday, police said a 17-year-old Glenmont youth was riding his bicycle on West Bayberry Rd. in Glenmont when a man drove past him in a car and said something unintelligible. The man then got out of his car, kicked the youth's bicycle and a short discussion followed.

At 8:30 p.m. last Tuesday, police said a man approached an Albany woman from the woods in back of a lower Delaware Ave., Elsmere, business, grabbed her by the arm and asked her to come with him.

Neither individual was apprehended, and the victims had only partial descriptions, police said.

Open house

The Capital Hill Improvement Corporation will hold an open house of affordable condominium units at 43 Trinity Place, Albany, on Wednesday, July 9, from 4 p.m. until 7:30 p.m.

Yellow Brick Road to get blacktopping

The yellow bricks in Normansville's Yellow Brick Road will be preserved, but most of them won't stay in the ground.

Following discussions with the Normansville Home Owners Association, which has been attempting to save the historic road, Bethlehem officials have announced plans to blacktop all but about 200 to 300 feet of the road that once served as Delaware Ave. The part to be saved is adjacent to the old Normanskill bridge, now used only for local traffic. The bricks on the rest of the road, which leads up to Delaware Ave., will be dug up and deposited for storage, according to Supervisor Robert

Hendrick, who called the plan "a reasonable compromise."

"Meanwhile, the search for some source of funding to cover the restoration work continues," Hendrick said.

The supervisor said Highway Superintendent Martin Cross plans to blacktop the road this fall. In addition, Rockefeller Rd. from the hamlet to the railroad bridge will also be blacktopped, he said. The town board is also considering a plan to ban through trucks through Normansville.

Stolen car found

A vehicle reported missing by its owner to City of Albany Police was found last Wednesday at New Scotland and Krumkill roads, state police said.

The vehicle, found in a ditch, had run off the road and struck a tree, troopers said.

setting it would be hard to beat. The 12 "Tall Ships" coming to participate in the Tricentennial Celebration will sail right past the park.

The ships are scheduled to sail past from noon to 7 p.m. on Thursday and Friday in intervals of two hours. Arrival times at the Port of Albany on Friday are 3 p.m., 5 p.m., and 7 p.m., with all 12 ships in port by 8 p.m.

The sailing vessels include the Lotus, a 48-foot schooner; the National Convention, a 102-foot sloop; the Clearwater, a 106-foot sloop known to area residents as a symbol of the efforts to revitalize the Hudson River; the 90-foot brigantine Black Jack; and 100-foot Fair Jeanne; two sleek 12-meter challengers for the America's Cup, Voyager and Shireen; and two ketches, Our Friend (33 feet) and Tanaquill (54 feet.)

Several motor-powered craft are also scheduled to make the trip, including a 226-foot Navy fleet tug and the 550-foot Empire State, which can accommodate a crew of 600.

The park is marked off Rt. 144, just south of the Elks Lodge and across from the Bethlehem Historical Association's Schoolhouse Museum at Clapper Rd.

One of the ships visiting the Albany Port will be the USS Gallery, a Navy frigate of more than 450 feet. The Tricentennial Riverfest Committee is seeking host families for the Gallery's 180 crew members who would enjoy having a home-cooked meal and perhaps a quick tour of Albany.

Area families who would like to personally welcome a sailor, ranging in age from 19 to 30, for one, two, or three days from July 10 to 14, may contact the Navy Recruiting Office at 472-4423.

For those planning to attend the Tall Ships festivities at the Port of Albany on July 12 and 13, open 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. both days, advance purchase tickets are required for entrance to one of five major groups of parking areas.

Since no automobiles will be allowed into the port during the entire weekend, the service is designed to shuttle spectators to the port from designated Park and Ride lots.

The Capital District Transportation Authority will operate from the state Office Campus lots and the state lots on McCarty Ave. and Holland Ave. Ticket prices of $1 per car per day are available at Community Box Office locations as well as local outlets at Key Bank branches in Delmar and Elsmere and the Norstar branch in Elsmere.

Scouts paddle for Albany

Bethlehem Boy Scout Troop 75 are paddling down rivers as part of the Tricentennial paddle trip from the Lachine area of the City of Montreal, Canada, to land 14 days later at Albany's Riverfront Park.

The canoe trip coordinators organized the trip hoping to contribute to an understanding of the French and Indian fur trading heritage in Albany. Fur trading activities provided a key reason for European settlement of this area. Even before 1624, the French had established trading posts at present-day Albany.

The canoe trip utilizes the waterways between Montreal and Albany that formed a significant thoroughfare throughout North American history.

Attempting to "go authentic," the 10-scout group has packed tents and lanterns circa Civil War, cooking utensils and tin cups, blanket rolls rather than sleeping blankets, all to go into their rented 26-foot freight canoe. The supplies (some purchased at antique stores,) and equipment (including wooden chests for storage) were researched by hobbyist historian Drew Ellis, who also designed and directed the creation of the clothing to be worn by the Scouts.

For the two-week, 230-mile trip Ellis provided Troop Master Steve Downs with a list of staples, from dried eggs and milk to flour and salt. Downs successfully obtained packets of dried meat, a complete assortment of dried beans, but "hunted" all over Albany the night before the group's leave taking last Friday for a supply of parsnips!

In briefing the group of the many festivities scheduled along the way by welcoming town officials, Downs advised: "Eat first from your meals as planned, and if you're still hungry, hit the buffets later."

"We're trying to go authentic," the optimistic but realistic Downs explained. "We're not sure how the 18th century is going to mix with the 20th."

Lorraine C. Smith

The troop, ranging in age from 12 to 15, has been planning the trip since the end of last winter. Three different families, in shifts, will be driving along on the mainland to provide shore support.

Why would a group of stay-hungry teenagers want to leave warm, dry beds and a cool swimming pool at a Town Park nearby for a 14-day river trip in a cramped canoe and damp tent? "We wanted to be a part of the Tricentennial," explained one of the scouts, and only partly spoofing, he added, "We're men now."

The troop will arrive home, having kept eight paddles paddling in unison by virtue of their new knowledge of French paddling songs, in Albany, in time for the July 18 ceremonies at Riverfront Park.

Preserve July 18 starting at 5:30 p.m. The next day there will be a canoe demonstration, a twinning ceremony between Albany and Quebec and a carillon concert by "The Transportable Carillon" from Norway.

Planners approve Main Square plan

By Patricia Mitchell

The Main Square Center at Delaware Ave. and Oakwood Pl., a small shopping center in the heart of Delmar, has received conditional approval from the Bethlehem Planning Board.

The board decided on negative declaration on the center's State Environmental Quality Review just before the approval was granted.

The county planning board had no objection, as long as permission is granted from the state Department of Transportation to cut the curb for entrances and exits on Delaware Ave. The county also recommended a traffic study be compiled on the area.

Several letters were received by the board, concerned with traffic that could be generated by the center. The property is the former Main Care headquarters.

Proposed by board member Dennis Corrigan, Tom Corrigan and James Breen, the center would have adequate parking with 83 spaces under current zoning regulations. If the center was proposed under the updated regulations, due to take affect in August, the center would need about 17 more spaces.

Surveyor Paul Hite said if the parking space requirements are reduced to nine feet wide instead of ten, the center would be able to pick up about six more spaces.

An entrance and exit will be built on the north side of the parking lot on Delaware Ave., and an exit only would be to the south. There would also be an entrance and exit on Oakwood Pl.

Traffic in the area remained the key issue during discussion. Corrigan, stepping down from his seat on the board, said additional traffic during the afternoon rush hour would not be significant. He said most neighbors of the center are concerned about regional traffic and not traffic that may be generated by the center.

"By the time the dust settled, we were happy with it and (the neighbors) were happy with it," Corrigan said. "The (traffic) issues are really far, far bigger than this project. It is really a much broader problem that needs to be looked at."

In other planning board action, the proposed Indian Hills subdivision, located between Krumkill and Russell roads with approximately 125 lots, was sent back to the drawing board. Engineer Lindsay Boutelle said he is willing to wave the 45-day time limit on a final decision to attempt to add an interior or a service road.

Acting on a recommendation from the Albany County Planning Board, the Bethlehem board indicated it would like to eliminate access to Russell Rd. from lots in the development, and definitely eliminate the access to Krumkill Rd. The county board also requested a study of the soils in the area to prevent slippage.

At the subdivision's June 17 public hearing, neighbors voiced concern that the already heavy-traveled Krumkill Rd. would become even more congested.

About 10 houses are proposed to front on Krumkill Rd.

The planning board also gave conditional preliminary approval to the extension of Boylston Dr. in Lauralana Heights. Proposed by Rudolph Paulsen of Paulsen Lumber, the 24 lots in the subdivision would be consistent with other homes in the area, and is located in a Residential-AA district.

In other action, the board:

- Gave conditional final approval on the final design for a two-lot subdivision to Rene Facchetti off Rt. 9W at Brittany La.

- Made a donation from the members to the American Diabetes Assn. for Alvin Greenwood, a former member of the board who died June 22.

- Set 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 15, to consider a recommendation on the proposed Northeast Psychiatric Hospital on Rt. 9W.

Traffic issues raised

Traffic concerns may prove to be a road block two proposed developments, one in Glenmont and one in North Bethlehem.

In separate public hearings before the Bethlehem Planning Board, the Albany County Planning Board has stated its concern over the proposed Quail Hollow subdivision at Jolly Rd. and Rt. 32 in Glenmont, and the proposed Jessica Park subdivision off Schoolhouse Rd. in North Bethlehem.

Both hearings were adjourned by the planning board without a final decision. They will have to be announced within 45 days of the July 1 hearings.

Located in a Residential-A zone, the proposed Quail Hollow subdivision will contain approximately 70 single-family homes. The developer is Carl Paulsen and Sons. Plans show two development roads, one having access to Rt. 32, and the other access to Jolly Rd.

Requesting the elimination of direct access of several homes to Rt. 32, the county planning board suggested fronting the homes on an auxiliary or service road. The board also requested that potential soil and water drainage problems be solved.

Engineer Lindsay Boutelle said he preferred large driveways along Rt. 32 with a turn-around point, and pointed out that this concept had been discussed by the board at previous meetings. Boutelle said the houses must face Rt. 32 because there is a deep ravine in back of the lots that would make constructing a road difficult.

A reasonable alternative would be to reduce the number of lots along Rt. 32 by four or five, suggested board member Dennis Corrigan.

Robert Zick, a Colonial Acres resident and former Bethlehem Central School Board member, asked the board to consider what will happen to the overcrowded Glenmont School if the area continues to develop. "You need to, you have to communicate with the school system. You have to think about the very necessary service," Zick said.

Corrigan said the school board's opinion is requested as part of the State Environmental Quality Review for major developments. When Zick asked for a stoppage on large developments proposed for the Glenmont area, Chairman John Williamson said that would have to be an act of the town board and would have to be town-wide.

An engineering report on the concerns of the county planning board was requested, along with other layouts of the development to avoid driveways on Rt. 32. Noting, however, that there is a 45-day time limit on the board's decision and the proposal still needs to go before the county, Boutelle said he would check with his client for a possible extension of the time limit.

Also located in a Residential-A zone, the Jessica Park subdivision proposed by Kircher Realty, Inc., would include a walkway to town land earmarked for a park. Designed with one drive with a large cul-de-sac, the subdivision is located across from the North Bethlehem firehouse.

In addition to a traffic study for Krumkill Rd., the county planning board also recommended a study of problems of flooding of basements in the cul-de-sac in the development.

Because of the low grade of the land, Boutelle, also serving as engineer for this project, said three of the houses in the cul-de-sac will need fill for construction, and some foundation in the backs of the houses may be left exposed.

Jane Oberle, a Schoolhouse Rd., Guilderland, resident, said the development would increase traffic on Schoolhouse Rd., which was never intended to be a through street. She requested better traffic control in the area be considered.

David Mann, a Schoolhouse Rd. resident, asked if the lands were to be raised, where would the water drain off Schoolhouse Rd. Boutelle said the storm sewers that will be built will take the discharge through the development to the back of the cul-de-sacs where it would drain into the town lands.

Joyce and Carl Holos of Vaughn Dr., said the fill that would be needed for the development would destroy the wetland in the area, and the habitat of birds and ducks there. The area, said planning consultant Edward Kleinke, is not a designated wetland, and is therefore not protected.

In other planning board business, conditional final approval was granted for a one-lot subdivision to Andrew Koonz on Beaver Dam Rd. A three-lot subdivision with a 60-foot access way to the larger back lot was already approved by the board. Koonz would now like to construct a house on a small piece of land taken from the larger lot.

Owners get new deadline

The Bethlehem Board of Appeals has given William S. and Dorothy Whan until Wednesday, July 23, to modify their home at 400 Delaware Ave., to comply with town zoning laws.

Building Inspector John Flannigan said the Whans would have to remove a kitchen from one of their three units in the house, but he said he did not know which of the units would not have a kitchen.

The Whans now occupy one unit, their son the second, and an elderly woman the third in the building that is zoned for two units. The Bethlehem Board of Appeals earlier denied a variance allowing a third unit in the house, and the Whans have said that would mean that the elderly woman would have to move out. The board has said, though, that it would like to resolve the issue.

If the Whans do not modify their house by July 23, the matter may be turned over to town court for enforcement, Flannigan said.

In other action at the July 2 Board of Appeals meeting, a public hearing was held on the proposed expansion of the Wickes Lumber Co. on Rt. 9W. The company would like to add about 6,000 square feet to the building that would be used to assemble pre-hung doors for shipment. The proposal, which received no opposition, will be discussed at the board's July 23 meeting.

The board also directed a resolution to be drawn up to deny a variance to Robert S. Flannigan to reduce the side yard requirement on a house at 70 Cherry Ave. that is to be constructed. The board found Flannigan did not prove hardship in his variance application. The resolution will still need to be acted on.

A variance was granted to Warren and Colleen Sieme at 272 Kenwood Ave. for an addition to their house.

The next meeting of the board of appeals will be held at 8 p.m., Wednesday, July 23, when a public hearing will be held on renovations at the Petrol Station on Rt. 9W in Glenmont.

groups will continue performances until 5 p.m.

Waterside entertainment will include a ski show, canoe demonstrations, helicopter rescue, lifeboat racers and a tugboat water show.

Come next to Stevens Farm, at the end of Bethlehem's yellow brick road in Bethlehem. This Tricentennial Rendezvous is a fur-trade encampment that will bring together more than 400 persons portraying free trappers, buckskinners, soldiers from the French and Indian and Revolutionary Wars, Indians and pioneer merchants from the period 1740-1840.

The Normanskill area was selected for its very rural environment suited to this early period of history, according to Charles Wheeler of South Bethlehem, chairman of Rendezvous Encampment Committee. Wheeler helps to create festivals to make the community more aware of their community resources.

Living in teepees, lean-tos and primitive lodges, participants from as far away as California and Wyoming will transform the site into a pure re-creation of the past. Eighteen to twenty craftspeople will be selling trade blankets and handcrafted violins and other items of the era as the "sutlers" (pioneer merchants).

A brigade of the American Revolution in Albany's Lincoln Park will also offer visitors a first-hand look at the past.

"Both encampments provide an authentic demonstration of the daily life of the period and give visitors a real feel of being there," says Bryan Gosling, coordinator of historic encampments for the Tricentennial. "The rendezvous depicts a time when the country was a wide-open frontier penetrated only by these rugged individuals who went off on long hunts, lived off the land and then returned to sell and barter their furs and pioneer wares. The encampment promises to be one of the truly exciting rendezvous nationally."

Camp rules given to participants include: No modern conveniences allowed (except coolers, which must be covered, eye glasses and medical necessities); all gear must be 1700-1840... no modern sunglasses.

The encampment is open to the public Friday, July 18, 3 to 7 p.m., and Sunday, July 20, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Stevens Farm is located just off Delaware Avenue near the Normanskill Bridge. Peripheral parking will be allowed only, since no vehicles are allowed in the camp. Park and Ride arrangements have been made at the town Park and Ride Lot across from Delaware Plaza. Yellow school buses will be transporting visitors to the area.

Resting place sought for unearthed bodies

Town officials are attempting to find out whether the remains of six people accidentally unearthed during a road excavation project in Glenmont can be returned to their original resting places.

The skeletons were unearthed June 30 by a contractor building roads and sewer lines for ABCO Builders in the new Woodhill development off Feura Bush Rd. An old grave site about 30 to 40 feet away from the excavation had been marked on town maps and provisions that it not be touched were part of the subdivision approval, officials said.

The following day, Albany County Coroner William Loetterle ordered the remains removed by Applebee Funeral Home to Albany Medical Center. The coroner warned the developer not to dig any further until the area has been checked.

Town Attorney Bernard Kaplowitz said Monday that the law requires a court order in order for remains to be removed and reburied. He said he is exploring with ABCO's attorney the possibility of asking a court to authorize that the bodies be reburied at the original site, apparently a family burial plot from the early 1800s. Town historian James Morgan is researching the history of the site, Kaplowitz said.

"We think they just scratched the edge" of the burial ground, Kaplowitz said.

Fresh produce on Fridays

The farmers market in the parking lot at the St. Thomas Church on Kenwood Ave., Delmar, will return to Friday mornings on July 11. Last week's market was moved to Thursday morning to avoid the holiday and to give people a chance to stock up for the long weekend.

The markets will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Friday until October. As the season progresses look for more and more kinds of vegetables to be available. This week there are plentiful supplies of beans, lettuce, raspberries, beets, broccoli, cabbage, cucumbers and summer squash. Lesser amounts of the first corn and tomatoes will also be available. Of course, there will be jams and jellies, honey, homemade crafts and baked goods.

Math contest winners

Several area students won honors in the recent Colonial Council math contest.

Candidates gather support

Gary Swan and Bernard Kaplowitz, the two Bethlehem candidates in the four-way race for the Sept. 9 Republican nomination for the 102nd State Assembly District, have announced new endorsements.

Swan, a resident of Glenmont, has announced the endorsement of Cocksackie Town Supervisor William E. Tremmel, a former county legislator.

Kaplowitz, a Delmar resident, has announced the endorsements of W. Gordon Morris, James C. Ross and Robert W. Hoffmeister, Bethlehem's delegation to the Albany County Legislature.

Morris, the minority leader in the county legislature, praised Kaplowitz's years of experience in town and county government as the best possible qualifications for the position. "In the years I have known and worked with Bernie," Morris said, "I have always been impressed with his understanding of the role the citizen plays in government at the local level, and the way local government relates to county and state governments."

Kaplowitz, Bethlehem's Republican chairman, has served as town attorney for the Town of Bethlehem since 1978. He served as a member of the Albany County Legislature from 1974 to 1978.

Other officials from Cocksackie, including Village Trustee Dianne Ringwald, Town Councilman James Misuraca, Planning and Zoning Board Chairman Dr. Edward "Dalland," Cocksackie Women's Republican Club President Rose Benjamin and GOP Women's Club Member Sally Porter, have joined Cocksackie Supervisor William Tremmel in supporting Swan.

"Of all the Republican candidates in this race, I have decided that Gary Swan is by far the most experienced and the best qualified," said Tremmel. "I urge voters to look at Gary's record of service to people and his nationwide achievements."

Tremmel said he was also impressed by how Swan has provided assistance with the effort by Cocksackie residents to fight a commercial landfill, which is proposed for their town.

Swan, a member of the Bethlehem Board of Appeals, oversees staff for the Assembly Republican Steering Committee and all Assembly Minority Task Forces. He is former director of management services for the Republicans in the State Assembly.

Regarding issues before the State Assembly last week, Swan said he would have voted against the proposal for medical malpractice reform and in favor of toxic tort reform, tourism welcome centers and municipal liability reform.

C.D. "Larry" Lane is vacating the Assembly seat for the 102nd district, which includes Greene County and portions of Albany and Columbia Counties, after 24 years.

Also in the Republican primary are John Faso of Columbia County and Nils Backlund of New Baltimore.

Swan has announced that an Albany-area fundraiser will be held at the Bethlehem Elks Club on Wednesday, July 30, at 5:30 p.m. Swan has also scheduled a fundraiser in his native Steuben County on July 19.

Gary Swan, right, a candidate in the Sept. 9 primary for the Republican nomination for the state Assembly in the 102nd district, gets support from Cocksackie Town Supervisor William E. Tremmel.

Citizens will fight gravel mining

By Theresa Bobear

Gravel and soil mining was again the topic of discussion at the New Scotland Town Board meeting last Wednesday night.

The planning board's recommendation to disallow the removal of fill, gravel or loam from Industrial or Low Density Residential areas was presented. With Supervisor Steve Wallace and town attorney Frederick Riester absent, the board voted to schedule a public hearing on the proposed zoning ordinance amendment at a later date.

In a letter to the board, planning board attorney Fred Edmunds said, "The planning board discussed these matters leading to such resolution at a time subsequent to the commencement of the hearing process dealing with the Larned application.

"Obviously, the recommendation does not refer to or in any manner affect the Larned application or hearing process."

William Larned and Sons have submitted an application for Voorheesville Sand and Stone to mine 27 acres of the former Tall Timbers Country Club. Area residents have organized as Concerned Citizens for New Scotland to oppose the project.

A member of the residents group asked why the town had not assumed lead agency status in the State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA) on the Larned application. In December of 1984 the state Department of Environmental Conservation sent a letter to Wallace stating that DEC had no objection to the town assuming lead agency status on the Larned application. "I knew nothing about it, that's all I can say," said Councilman Herbert Reilly.

Wallace said Monday that the town has seldom assumed lead agency status on SEQRA studies. "I don't see where that's relevant. I had an engineer check it, and it was thoroughly done by the state," Wallace said.

Robert Morrison, chairman of Concerned Citizens for New Scotland, said his group has hired an attorney to present a factual case at the continuation of the hearing before the planning board. If the application is approved by the planning board, Morrison said his group will appeal to the courts. "We will be prepared to go the distance, whatever that distance may be," said Morrison.

A total of 27 letters petitioning the town to deny a special use permit for soil mining at the former Tall Timbers property were presented to the town board.

Concerned Citizens estimate that 90 percent of Voorheesville's residents live within one mile of the proposed mine. In a recently printed brochure, Concerned Citizens state, "Immediate problems would include substantial air and noise pollution, large volumes of heavy truck traffic on major streets and roadways, substantial losses in real property values and potentially serious damage to underground water supplies for the village and individual land owners."

Richard Stickley, chairman of the planning board, said a hydrogeologist has not yet been hired to study the area around the proposed Larned mining site. "I believe that water is the greatest unknown that cannot be rectified," said Stickley. "If the aquifer is ruined, we're all in trouble."

Earlier in the meeting, Highway Superintendent Peter Van Zetten recommended that the town accept William Larned and Sons' bid to provide gravel for $3.50 per cubic yard. No other bids were received. The board tabled action.

In other business, the board:

- Announced that a copy of the fiscal examination by the state comptroller's office is on file at town hall.

- Accepted gifts of $600 from the General Electric Corporation and $250 from Owens-Fiberglas Corporation for development of the town park in Feura Bush.

- Voted to contact the state Department of Transportation regarding a reduction of the speed limit on Bennett Hill Road from 55 miles per hour to 35 miles per hour. The board acted in response to a letter from Peter Saidel.

- Received notification from the New York Power Authority that herbicides that have been approved by the United States Environmental Protection Agency will be used for vegetation management on the power line right-of-way.

- Granted Hazel Lonnstrom's request to use town trucks to carry Girl Scout equipment to Camp Little Notch on the weekend of Sept. 26. The trucks will be operated by town drivers.

- Authorized a fee of 20 cents per page for photocopies of town records. The fee will be applied to all requests for public records that exceed 10 pages.

- Received a request from James Breen, president of Swift Road Inc., for extension of the Swift Road water district to include a 10-lot subdivision.

Lobbies for bill

Susan Richmond of Delmar, president of the League of Woman Voters of Albany County, recently returned from a five-day national league convention in Washington, D.C. At the convention, she met with U.S. Rep. Sam Straton to urge support for the League-endorsed acid rain control bill.

Salem Hills hearing set

By Patricia Mitchell

The Voorheesville Village Board will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 15, on the proposed regulations for the Salem Hills sewer district.

Mayor Edward Clark said the regulations were set for standard use, and will allow the village to receive state aid for operation and management of the system.

Drafted by the village's sewer committee and approved by the state Department of Environmental Conservation, Clark said the regulations include guidelines on who can participate, conditions of use, usages of the system, where the system starts and stops on property lines, and what can be put into the system.

The system needs to be protected by regulations, and will offer a standard if questions arise.

Clark said he doesn't know of any controversy with the regulations.

"Sensible people know it is a good idea. There is nothing at stake here," Clark said.

The village agreed in February, 1985, to purchase the system from Rosen-Michaels, Inc. In May, the board approved a $425,000 bond issue to pay for the acquisition.

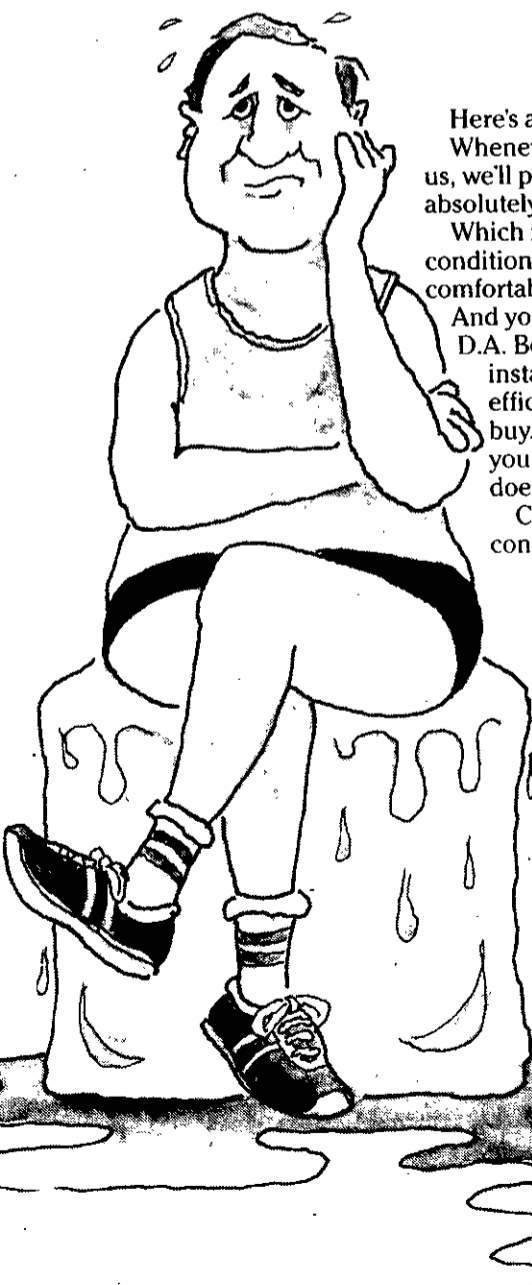

The village budget has estimated the sewer district to run this year at a cost of $165,250.

If no objections are raised on the sewer district's regulations at the public hearing, Clark said the plan will probably be approved at the board's next meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 22.

ON YOUR FEET

Dr. Joseph Manzi, Podiatrist

FOOT THERAPY

If your feet have been giving you problems for years, it will take time for foot therapy to get rid of the aches and pains. But it's worth it for the new comfort and structural improvement.

The new orthotic devices, much superior to the old arch supports, will help. And there are other kinds of treatment your podiatrist may prescribe to increase comfort and stability. It may be a series of physio-therapy treatments to improve muscle tone and strength. Or maybe a stretching and flexibility program is needed. Sometimes this is done in combination with manipulation and other adjustments to strengthen your feet and correct the structural defects.

It's human to be impatient with a course of treatment. You want things to improve faster. But years of walking and moving on structurally imperfect feet can cause a lot of problems that won't go away overnight. The benefits of treatment will build gradually. But once you start, you're on your way to new foot comfort, without the pain problems that poor foot and leg function can bring.

□ Berglas leaves his house

fail. The principal works day to day at one school having close contact with students and teachers.

The superintendent, the district's general manager, is responsible for the whole system, including transportation, building, grounds and over-all curriculum. He said he dealt with issues such as where the money comes from and how to allocate it, and acts as the executive officer of the board of education.

"I was ready to become a superintendent," Berglas said.

"I am proud of our strong curriculum here, and for my role in it. I am proud of the kinds of personnel we have. I am proud of the academic successes of our students, and the part I have in it," Berglas said.

"I am proud of the shape of our buildings. I am proud of our athletic and extra-curricular programs. I am proud of our kids' scholarships," Berglas said. "I feel I have been a part of all of that."

Berglas, 56, grew up in a neighborhood off New Scotland Ave. in Albany, and attend city public schools, including the old Albany High School.

He attended the old State Teacher's College in Albany enrolled in the pre-med program.

"That is an ambition I had all the way through high school," Berglas said, adding that it is a marvelous opportunity to serve.

"I think being in a service profession is the way to go."

Eventually, Berglas did a semester of student teaching at the old Milne School in Albany, and "really, really liked it. I said to myself, 'I got to try this'."

When Berglas first began his career as a teacher, he made $3,000 a year and was a waiter part-time at Keeler's and Joe's restaurants so he could afford his career. He drove an 11-year-old car at the time. "You could see the road below you. But, that was the way we all were."

Berglas earned his bachelor's master's and doctor's degrees from the State University of New York. He is a past president of Phi Delta Kappa, SUNY at Albany chapter and the New Scotland Kiwanis. He is a member of the New York State Council of School Superintendents, the American Association of School Administrators, and the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development.

Thirty-four years ago, Berglas said the school district enrolled 400 students. That number grew to 2,000 at the enrollment peak, and is now down to about 1,300. In that time, the community changed from a small rural community to a true suburb.

"I think the community has become much more professionally oriented," Berglas said, including in that category skilled carpenters, electricians and plumbers.

Social conditions have changed the business of education. The Vietnam War had a big impact on schools, Berglas said, and the emerging drug culture in the 1970's created new problems. Today's growing number of broken families call for more services and counseling through the school.

"They have needs that in some instances they are not getting at home," Berglas said.

Voorheesville Central Schools have also changed in 34 years. The curriculum is expanded and improved, there are strong gifted, talented, and remediation programs. The schools also offer advance placement and accelerated courses in four academic areas. Since the 1960's, BOCES has offered occupational courses that many students at Voorheesville take advantage of. And today, almost 100 students in the district take advantage of some kind of education for handicapping conditions.

"There was almost nothing," when Berglas began his career. "Today, it is big business."

The sports program has increased to 44 teams, and Berglas said almost anyone can join one due to the variety.

"Kids who play sports are less likely to get into trouble. They use their time well," Berglas said.

Over 80 percent of this year's senior class will be going on to higher education, Berglas said. The school has an average of 16 to 20 percent of Regents' scholarship winners compared to a state average of seven percent. One National Merit Scholarship was awarded to a senior this year, and two more were semi-finalists.

"We have always had a good staff. We hire very carefully," Berglas said. Now he believes it is stronger and better and unusually caring. He attributes their extra efforts to the schools' total atmosphere, not just their small size.

Current social conditions of broken families, and parents not working with the school system are the worse problems for education today, Berglas said. Specifically, teachers are not getting the backing of the parents that they need for their duties.

"You are beginning to see a change," Berglas said.

For example, if a teacher has a problem with a student or the student's abilities, parents will place the blame on the school and the teachers instead of looking elsewhere.

"When people want to go on vacation, they take their child out of school," Berglas said disapprovingly, a view he knows can be unpopular among parents. When he was high school principal, parents would pull children out of school rarely, and they would call him, explain and apologize. "Today, tough luck," he said, and those parents are sending messages to their children that school is not important.

Parents will also lie today if their children skip school and need an excuse, Berglas said. "I can not tell you how many parents we caught lying. I think we have a tough picture. (The problems) are in the elementary level as well."

To overcome what he calls a dangerous slide, Berglas said the schools need substantial support from the parents, and to have both sides working together.

"There is no way schools can operate without the full support of parents. I am talking about working together. Teachers need to be put back on the pedestal. It is for the good of everyone. Teachers are very important in the lives of children," Berglas said.

For the future, the Regents Action Plan has started a new era for state education. Berglas said for the better students, the plan will not have much of an effect, but for the slower students there will be more of an impact.

"I am concerned people may drop out. Everybody is in favor of better education. More is not always better. I am afraid more means better with the Regents," Berglas said.

Education today is expensive, and Berglas said the taxpayer needs to be helped so the burden of financing doesn't fall in the taxpayer's lap.

"We are going to have to rely on people who do not have kids to support us," Berglas said. Today 40 percent of the married population have families, compared to 80 percent during the recent population boom. The population is also growing older. "We are going to have to convince everyone that education is the future."

There also needs to be an increase in global education, Berglas said. "We are going to have to become world citizens."

"I think computers are here to stay. I do not think computers will ever take the place of a teacher," Berglas said. The teachers will be the leader of education as software increases and students become more self-directed. But, there will still be a need for a teacher to give a trumpet lesson, or a teacher to show how to mix chemicals.

There will also be a stronger emphasis on language and the ability to communicate, and word processing by computers will become more important, Berglas said. "We are in the age of communication, electronic communication."

Smaller schools will also be able to offer a wider variety of courses. Berglas said one school will offer Russian language, and 10 other schools will be able to plug into a computer to receive the lesson.

Berglas leaned out the window of his office to chat with a retiring secretary who was leaving for the day. He swiveled back around in his chair and looked around his large office that now echoed slightly because he was almost finished moving out.

Berglas said he would especially miss the the board of education, and his secretaries.

"The board and I do not hide things. We put our dirty linens right out on the line. I feel very close to them," Berglas said, then began to list secretaries he had worked with at Voorheesville. "How could you ever work without secretaries? I couldn't do a thing without them."

News from Selkirk and South Bethlehem

Accomplished Musicians

Paul Caswell and Stephen Diacetis are two Applied Music Students who provided music for the 30th annual Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Senior High School Commencement, held June 28.

Both students are juniors active in many endeavors such as Honor Society, inter-scholastic sports, extra-curricular organizations, etc., as well as being currently enrolled in their third year of private study for credit at the high school level.

Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Caswell, Jr. of Coeymans Hollow, and a student of Gladys Wiedman of Ravena. Recently Paul was awarded a Level IV (Medium Difficult) Outstanding rating for his performance of "Four Country Dances" by F.J. Haydn at the New York State Music Association Solo/Ensemble Festival in Guilderland.

Stephen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Diacetis of Ravena, and a student of Rachel Worth of Delmar. At the Guilderland music festival, Stephen earned a Level IV (Very Difficult) A rating for his performance from the "Well-Tempered Klavier" by J.S. Bach.

Both Stephen and Paul performed solos at the commencement as well as providing the traditional Processional and Recessional March for the Class of 1986.

Trip to the city

An outing to New York City concluded this year's activities for the scouts of Cub Pack 81 in Selkirk. Highlight of the day-long excursion for the scouts and their families was a visit to the World War II aircraft carrier Intrepid. The two-and-a-half hour tour allowed the group to roam the deck of the carrier, with a guide providing information regarding the functions of the ship.

The scouts also visited the World Trade Center while in the city. In the observation tower, the perfect weather conditions provided them with a beautiful view of the Empire State Building and Statue of Liberty.

Providing supervision for the trip was Cub Master Phillip Smith and scout leaders Lorna Milburn, Shirleen Kreplin, Bob Selover, Pam Selover, Colleen Fowler and Ronna Smith.

All seniors of the area are invited to attend.

Grange fair

The Bethlehem Grange will hold its annual craft fair and odds and ends sale this Saturday at the grange hall, Rt. 396, Beckers Corners. The fair gets underway at 9 a.m. and will continue until 6 p.m. In addition to a wide variety of crafts for sale within the building, new and used merchandise of all types will be available at booths on the grange grounds.

Bethlehem Grange members will have refreshments available and will conduct a bake sale throughout the day. As in past years, the grange will also sponsor a summer luncheon the day of the fair. Open to the general public, the cost will be $4 per person. Serving will begin at noon and continue until supplies are exhausted. Even if you're one of the few people not interested in a good bargain or special item, you're more than welcome to come and enjoy the meal.

Table space at Glenmont

Selkirk Fire Dept. No.2 will hold its 11th annual flea market in the grove adjacent to the Glenmont Firehouse (next to K-Mart) on Saturday, July 26. ## Focus On Faith

The Rev. Canon Kenneth Cleator

Author Gail Sheehy's new book, "Spirit of Survival" (William Morrow & Company), is bound to hit the best seller list. It is all about people who face colossal obstacles and manage to hurdle them with the least damage done to their well-being and with what I call "reboundability." She calls them "victorious personalities."

Sheehy's book comes at a time when Americans and Canadians need some new heroes to inspire and encourage them to believe that adversity can be overcome and used to build confidence and endurance in themselves.

One of Sheehy's amazing people is Raymond Hall. He had his share of trouble but it never got him down so low that he could never get up and fight again. He had that saving outlook of viewing trouble as something that would pass and when it did, he did not keep thinking about it. He looked forward.

So did St. Paul in an age when only "victorious personalities" could survive and succeed. He had that high quality of mind and spirit that could face the worst and not let it tempt him into becoming apathetic, hopeless, and full of self-pity. The character of the man is apparent in his remarkable letter to the Christians in Philippi, a town in the north-east corner of Greece in the first century A.D.

St. Paul wrote the letter while he was in prison in Rome at a time when he did not know whether he would be alive or dead by the time an answer would have been received. The letter indicated he was neither sorrowful nor defeated. Quite the contrary. "I have the strength to face all conditions by the power Christ gives me," he wrote.

He reminds us of Cervantes who began his "Don Quixote" in prison and John Bunyan who worked on "Pilgrim's Progress" in Bedford jail. When one asks how can people be so creative in such a setting, one has to recognize that they do not let their exterior environment discourage and destroy their inner creativity. In their experience, to quote Richard Lovelace (17th cent.) "stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage."

These people live in two worlds: one, the material, visible world around them, cold, indifferent, inimical to their wishes and hopes; another, the inner world of the spirit where a person may build a kingdom of ideas and ideals no earthly force can conquer nor defeat. Truly they are "victorious personalities."

The most remarkable among them are those who overcome their problems and troubles under the most trying, hostile, destructive, external circumstances. In Sheehy's book, Phat Mohm, a young Cambodian girl, was one of these indomitable souls.

That she survived what she went through is nothing short of a miracle. Terrible things happened to her. She lost all her family. She saw people die horrible deaths and escaped it herself by a hairsbreadth. She held on. She would not let go. Some day, she believed, life would be better.

Like St. Paul, Phat believed in God deeply enough to think that He had a plan for her life. That inner conviction gave her the strength to survive and live. Eventually she was able to flee from the cauldron of adversity into the welcoming, safe arms of American, especially those of Gail Sheehy, and into a brighter, new beginning.

Becoming a victorious personality is partly a gift and partly an achievement. Some of us are fortunate to be born with tendencies that are on the side of victorious living and that is a bonus. But that does not condemn the rest of humanity to mediocrity and low achievement. We are born to win, not lose, provided we use the unique resources God has endowed us with, along with the help of the Holy Spirit and of willing friends.

St. Paul said it for all of us:

"I do not claim that I have already succeeded or have already become perfect...the one thing I do is to forget what is behind me and do my best to reach what is ahead. So I run straight toward the goal in order to win the prize, which is God's call through Christ Jesus."

Thomas Knight, left, and Donald Simpson, right, of the Third Eye, present a collection of print reproductions of old Albany commemorating the city's tricentennial to Mayor Thomas Whalen III.

Tricentennial prints on sale at Third Eye

The Third Eye, of Adams St. in Delmar, is selling reproductions of 10 prints depicting 300 years of history of the City of Albany.

Honoring the city's Tricentennial, Thomas Knight and Donald Simpson of the Third Eye recently presented a set of the prints to Albany Mayor Thomas Whalen III.

The collections are reproductions of prints located at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. The prints are reproduced at the Third Eye and are framed by the Northeast Framing Co. of Elsmere.

Simpson said the collection is on display at the studio on Adams St., and is expected to be on display at several Tricentennial events.

Simpson said the prints are available in sets of 10, six, or three or individually.

Knight and Simpson started the Third Eye in January of this year after moving from Washington, D.C.

Blue Cross starts new 'Healthnet' HMO plan

"Approximately 7,000 physicians have applied to be part of our Healthnet program," said Chester E. Burrell, president of the Albany division of Empire Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

The new Independent Practice Association model health maintenance organization makes pre-paid office-based care available to consumers across 27 counties of eastern New York.

"Extensive physician interest in our Healthnet program means a greater choice of doctors for New Yorkers who may have felt that health maintenance organizations were too restrictive until now," said Burrell. "Just as physicians recognize that our program lets them continue to practice medicine in their own offices with their own associates and referral network, consumers can be assured that our Healthnet program provides all the benefits of prepaid health care, without loss of the basic freedom of choice ordinarily associated only with fee-for-service medicine."

Under the new program, a member physician will manage each enrollee's total health care. In many instances, given the size of the program's physician network, it is expected that the patient's current doctor will fill this role. A directory of member physicians will be published this summer. Each enrollee will select his primary care physician.

The Healthnet plan offers a range of hospital and medical benefits, including coverage for preventive services such as immunizations, physician examinations and "well baby" care for infants. The program has been established to reduce costs by making patients conscious of the value of both earlier diagnosis of potential health problems and adoption of a lifestyle that promotes better health.

Anyone interested in signing up for Empire Blue Cross and Blue Shield's Healthnet program should contact the personnel or employee benefits office where he works.

Davies tops Main Care for league championship

Spotlight SPORTS

By John Bellizzi III

After many hours of hard work, sportsmanship and fun, the regular season of the Tri-Village Little League major division came to a close last week. Davies Office Refurbishing captured the league championship, with a final record of 13 wins and 5 losses. Main Care and Price Greenleaf tied for second place with 12-6 records followed by 11-7 Spotlight.

Last Wednesday, Davies Office Refurbishing faced Main Care in a battle of first place teams, with Davies emerging as victors and league champs. Losing pitcher Billy Karins struck out 12 batters, while Davies' Brendon Gross struck out 13 opponents. Mark Houston singled for Davies only hit, and singles were hit by Main Care's Josh Lanni, Mike Gambelunghe, Matt Bechard, and Mike Futia.

On Tuesday evening, the game to break the tie for second between Spotlight and Price Greenleaf went to Price Greenleaf, 5-4. Brendon O'Brien pitched for Spotlight, striking out seven batters and hitting two singles to aid his losing cause. John DiAnni and Alex Otto also hit singles for Spotlight off winning pitcher Matt Shortell. Leading Greenleaf offensively were Matt Crandall, who doubled and singled, Kevin Brennan, who doubled, and Mike Koroluk and Brennan Perkins, who both singled.

Although the regular season has ended, Little League competition isn't over. The Intermediate division teams are competing in a round robin single-elimination tournament from July 7 through 12. The league is also sponsoring teams in area All-Star competitions. Closing ceremonies for the Tri-Village Little League will begin at 1 p.m. on Sunday, July 13, followed by the annual Managers/Coaches softball game.

Errors hurt Blanchard

Blanchard Post won one game this past week and lost two as they dropped to 5-7 in American Legion action. The only victory was a 10-1 thrashing of Zaloga, while defeats came at the hands of North Albany, 5-2, and Colonie, 7-4.

In the June 29 loss to North Albany, three walks and two errors gave North Albany three runs without the aid of a hit. Rich Losee pitched for Blanchard and was backed offensively by Jim Francis, who smashed a homer and a double, John Waddingham, who hit a double and single, and Doug LeClair, who hit two singles. Blanchard wasted multiple scoring opportunities as many men were left on base.

Waddingham's double and single were about all Blanchard could muster on offense as the lost the July 5 contest to Colonie. Four errors were committed by Blanchard and they could only manage four hits to back up Larry Rivers' pitching.

Blanchard broke out of its slump with 10 runs on 11 hits in the July 6 game with Zaloga. Waddingham and Doug Pratt led the attack with two singles each.

Drill team takes a third

The Elsmere Warriors, the Elsmere Fire Department's Fire-matic Drill Team, competed in its second tournament of the season, June 28 in Long Island. For the second time in as many tournaments the team finished third in the three man ladder event.

The Warriors failed to complete three of the other five events and failed to place in the top 10 in the overall competition. In the three man ladder event, the team missed second place by a mere one hundredth of a second. The team will compete again on Aug. 2 in Spencerport, near Rochester, and at the New York State Firemans Home in Hudson, July 12.

Aims for Olympic festival

Earl Hauf, a marksman shooter attending Tennessee Tech, has achieved many honors and traveled across the United States to take part in a number of events this past year.

Hauf has just returned from Los Angeles where he competed in the World Marksman Tryouts. He has received an invitation to compete in the United States Olympic Sports Festival and plans to leave later this month. In August, Hauf will continue his hectic schedule as he goes to Houston to train in the Olympic Training Center.

At Tennessee Tech, Hauf, the two-time All American was named captain of the Tech Eagle Eyes Rifle, the schools rifle team. In doing so, he became the youngest person to hold that position in the history of the school.

Soccer camp

Bethlehem Soccer Camp will open on Aug. 11 through Aug. 16, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The camp is open to players between 7 and 17 years old. Registration is $90 per person. A $40 deposit must be presented with the application by July 23. A ball and shirt will be given to each participant.

Family Day winners

Family Day at Bethlehem's Elm Ave. Park saw Russ Parker and Walt Pawlus placing one, two respectively in the horseshoe tournament. The team of Tom Doody and Harold Hasslebarth took first in the doubles portion of the horseshoe throw. In the baking contest, Lois Cawfield's pumpkin velvet cake took first place in the cake contest. In the cookie contest, Mary Ann Dennis' raspberry coconut cookies were labeled the best, and cherry pineapple fruit bars made by Linda Schreiner won in the pastry contest.

Slingerlands break-in

Bethlehem Police are investigating a break-in at a Slingerlands apartment complex's club house Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

About $49 in cash and a crowbar were the only items reported missing, police said, but the intruders did open several rooms in the club house. A soda machine was also pried open, but the intruders were unable to reach the machine's coin box. Police said the intruders probably gained access to the building at a south side rear door that leads to a pool.

Waste paper idea

Editor, The Spotlight:

The problems of an organized waste paper and old magazines disposal system are apparently still with us. I could easily throw these items in the trash which the rubbish company collects for a monthly fee but that would be actually a WASTE of natural resources.

And since newspaper and magazine publishing companies are among the generators of this waste problem, I am still hopeful that they will come up with plans to recycle the used paper.

In the meantime it is a community problem. And I think this community can solve it (without the help of the town government). Someone recently suggested that the churches of the community get together on an ecumenical solution. A capital (or is it ecclesiastical) idea!

My amendment to the idea is this: let each of our churches in turn sponsor a monthly newspaper/magazine drive. Along with the drive would be a kind of Swap & Exchange Shop or parking lot sale (depending on the weather, of course). If, as the Boy Scouts at St. Thomas Church found, the paper drive barely breaks even and shows very little profit, the parking lot swap & exchange activity might make the project financially worthwhile. (A two-dollar charge for table space would do it.)

All the participating churches would share equally in the total proceeds. A steering committee consisting of a member from each of the churches could plan and guide operations. In fairness, I believe a "dump fee" of $1 could be asked of each family bringing papers and old magazines to the drive. Pickup service could be arranged under certain circumstances. It seems to me that this could provide both a necessary service to the community — and be a lot of fun.

If you are interested, write to me.

Mime group presents Evening on the Green

The Bethlehem Public Library will present the Carte Blanche Mime Theatre on Wednesday as the first in the library's "Evening On The Green" summer series for 1986.

Carte Blanche, translated from the idiomatic French, means anything goes. The troupe, which is based in Fonda, Montgomery County, lives up to its name, demonstrating a versatility which allows for the hilarity of a circus in one segment and the grace of ballet in the next. The background music is also wide-ranging, from disco to the Pachelbel Canon.

The next "Evening On The Green," on Wednesday, July 16 features Skip Parsons and his Riverboat Jazz Band. The performances on the green at the library are a popular summertime event in the community. They are planned to delight all ages and offer a variety of sights and sounds. The rest of the schedule:

July 23, Electric City Chorus and Barber Shop Quartet.

July 30, Bennington Puppets.

Aug. 6, Don Nikolski and his Polka Band.

Aug. 13, Village Volunteers.

All "Evening On The Green" programs are free of charge and open to the public. Bring a blanket or a lawn chair.

In the event of rain all events will be held on the scheduled date in the library's Community Room with the exception of the Bennington Puppets, whose rain date is July 31.
