Legislature gives town more than it asked for

By Tom McPheeters

The Town of Bethlehem, which is not accustomed to sharing heavily in the largess of the state, has an embarrassment of riches from the recently passed state budget.

Due to an apparent miscommunication between Assemblyman C.D. "Larry" Lane's office and state Sen. Howard Nolan's office, the town has received two allocations for an addition to the fire training tower on Kenwood Ave. — $35,000 from the senate side, and $19,000 from the assembly side. The two allocations apparently slipped through the budget checkers because the Senate funds are directed to the town while the assembly funds are for the Bethlehem Volunteer Fire Officers Association, which runs the training facility and made the application.

The unexpected beneficiary of the mix up may be the Elmwood Park Fire District, which could receive the $19,000 to offset the cost of a new fire house. The district has a vote set July 22 on a $375,000 bond issue for the new building.

The fire officers association has for several years been seeking funds to upgrade the training tower with an addition that would allow fire fighters to train in a more realistic setting. The tower is used by all five fire districts in the town, as well as by Albany and other local communities. The Bethlehem Town Board last year established a reserve fund for the project, but decided that the funds would have to be accumulated from surpluses in the $17,000 annual town contribution to the districts. Supervisor Robert Hendrick, who is a former Elsmere fire commissioner and also a retired state budget official, suggested that the association seek aid from from the state, so the association last year wrote both Lane and Nolan asking for $35,000 for the project.

Both legislators replied that the request was too late for that year's budget process, but suggested that the association try again this year, which it did. With more success

One woman's crusade to aid mentally ill

By Theresa Bobear

“One out of four families will be faced at some time with one member with mental illness. It affects all strata,” said Jeanne Berman of Glenmont, who serves with Beatrice Albert as co-chairman of the newly-formed Citizens Advisory Network (CAN) at the Capital District Psychiatric Center (CDPC).

“It's young to old, wealthy to poor,” said Berman, noting that members of some of the most prestigious families in Albany have looked to CDPC for help for a family member.

Why was the Citizens Advisory Network formed? “To help educate the public,” said Berman. “To make them less fearful, more knowledgeable about the mentally ill and, hopefully, erase the stigma.

“What people need to learn is that it could happen to them,” said Berman.

“There for the grace of God go you or I or any one of us. No one of us knows when it's going to hit us, or a family member or a neighbor,” said Berman. “So many people are afraid to get help because of the stigma.

“I think deep down the fear is that someday it might happen to them,” said Berman. The citizens volunteer said the fear is also born of “a lack of knowledge of the unknown. I can remember when nobody talked about cancer.”

Closer to home, the proposal to build a private psychiatric hospital on Rt. 9W in Glenmont has generated controversy in the community, chiefly over concerns that students at the nearby Glenmont Elementary School would come in contact with mental patients.

During the past six months approximately 60 volunteers affiliated with CAN have been working to improve the environment of the CDPC facility and improve the quality of life for patients. The group hopes that with more citizen involvement at the center, greater public understanding of services offered at the center and public enlightenment about the mentally ill, the stigma associated with mental illness will be erased.

Meanwhile, patients at the facility are protected by a state law that mandates confidentiality. “I think they should have that protection for future employment, for many, many reasons,” said Berman.

“I have a friend who is a professor, an active member of the community, who had two post partum nervous breakdowns and was in a private institution for over a year when she was in her twenties,” said Berman. “She's in her fifties, and she's doing just great.

“Unfortunately, the people who still remember that won't erase it from their minds.

“It's hard for families to handle, and it used to be that the mother was blamed.

“The parents felt guilt,” said Berman. “You can't help. You don't know what to do. You become frustrated. You become angry. And the patient doesn't know what's happening either.

“I would like CDPC to look outside and inside as a warm, welcome family that is there to help people in mental distress,” said Berman. CAN has been working to realize this goal by redecorating with lighter colors and organizing patients who want to decorate for the holidays. Live plantings, including some donated by the Bethlehem Garden Club, have been brought in. Through the courtesy of Mayor Thomas Whalen, four park benches have been installed in front of the facility.

This year the Sisterhood at Temple Beth Emeth provided the first Hanukkah service, and Jerry Jonas of the Garden Shoppe in Glenmont donated the center's first Christmas tree.

The Citizens Advisory Network hopes to establish a library on the subject of mental illness for families of the mentally ill. Berman said that with the approval of Dr. Jesse Nixon of Delmar, chief executive director of CDPC, a meditation room, where services of different faiths could be held, may be established. Berman said an open house will be held to show how the atmosphere of the center has been improved.

“I just wish that we could make it so there is no feeling of guilt or feeling that they won't be received in a caring, compassionate way.

“It (mental illness) is one of the big problems of our society, and it's going to get larger. It has to be handled with expertise and

Bethlehem GOP to have primary

A rare primary for a Republican committeeman post has surfaced in Bethlehem, and although the protagonists say it is a strictly local affair it may spill over into the larger struggle for the Republican nomination for the 102nd District assembly seat.

The committeeman primary is in the 10th District, a large and growing section of North Bethlehem; and pits incumbent Michael Frantsov of Russell Rd. against William Cleveland of Schoolhouse Rd. Kenneth Hahn, the other incumbent committeeman, is supporting Cleveland and acknowledged Monday that he was instrumental in getting Cleveland, a former treasurer of the Elmwood Park Fire District, to run.

Furthermore, Hahn, who is tax collector for the Town of Bethlehem, is supporting Gary Swan in the assembly primary — an unusual move for a town official since Bernard Kaplowitz, the town's Republican chairman, is also in the race.

Hahn said the committeeman contest has no bearing on the assembly primary. "We need two active, hard-working committeemen," he said.

Kaplowitz agreed Monday that the 10th District contest doesn't seem to be related to the assembly contest. But, he added, "as the town chairman I was a little concerned that the petitions were filed without any notification to me."

The race to fill the assembly seat being vacated by C.D. "Larry" Lane involves a four-way Republican primary Sept. 9 and a two-way Conservative Party primary. The Republican candidates are Swan, a Glenmont resident who works for the assembly, Kaplowitz, John Faso of Kinderhook and Nils Backlund of New Baltimore, and the Conservatives are Shaun Marie Levine of Coeymans and Vincent G. Sheridan of Greene County. Eugene Keeler, the Columbia County district attorney, is the Democrat the winners will face in November.

Democrats and Republicans in Albany County often test their strength by running on the Conservative line; this year, however, two enrolled Conservatives are running, making such a contest impossible. So the Republican candidates have been waging a contest of sorts over the number of signatures they could collect on their nominating petitions. Kaplowitz appeared to be the winner last week, with more than 2,000 signatures, followed by Faso, Swan and Backlund. All of the candidates had more than twice as many signatures as they needed.

There will be a Conservative primary in the 40th Senate District, which covers all of Albany County. Republican Peter G. Crummey is challenging incumbent Democrat Howard Nolan, and both candidates have filed on the Conservative line.

□ More than

than Hendrick had envisioned.

"Apparently there was some kind of a mix-up," Nolan's aid Joseph Sullivan said Friday. He said he has been working with Lane's office to make sure the additional funds can be used. "As long as the appropriation has been approved, I don't see how they can be taken back."

Regina Dubois, Lane's administrative assistant, said the assemblyman has requested that the $19,000 approved on the assembly side be redirected to help offset the cost of the Elmwood Park fire house. That requires another act of the legislature, which could come in a "cleanup budget bill" now under consideration. "It looks pretty good," she said.

Meanwhile, Hendrick has received an application from the Department of State, which administers grants to fire districts, for the $19,000 allocation to the fire officers association. He said Friday he would wait for the smoke to clear a bit before moving ahead with the application.

Getting ready for Albany's Tricentennial Parade this Saturday are driver and owner Charles Farone of the Albany Motor Inn, and Town Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick. Farone's 1981 Excalibur Motorcar will be one of five cars representing the five original hamlets of Bethlehem. Other drivers include Larry Bruno, Delmar, George Lansing, Delmar, and Roy Minchell, Cedar Hill. On the cover: Many Bethlehem residents got their first introduction of the town's Henry Hudson Park courtesy of the Tricentennial celebration as they had a ring-side seat for the tall (and large) ships sailing up river to the Port of Albany Thursday and Friday. The Empire State gets a greeting Friday night.

Elmwood Park sets fire house vote

By Patricia Mitchell

Elmwood Park Fire district voters will go to the polls from 7 to 10 p.m., Tuesday, July 22, on a proposal to build a new fire house.

The proposed facility, on Russell Rd. near Krumkill Rd., will be financed by a $375,000 bond that is expected to be repaid in 25 to 30 years, said Philip Schweppenhauser, chairman of the district's fire commissioners.

Estimated tax rates to retire the bonds and operate the district are calculated at $24 per $1,000 of assessed value in Bethlehem, $40 per $1,000 in New Scotland, and $2 per $1,000 in Guelderland, Schweppenhauser said. The rates are calculated on last year's assessments, and do not take into account new population in the district. The current tax rate in Bethlehem is $14.90 per $1,000.

The proposed fire house will measure 5,500 square feet, and will house an apparatus room, a commissioner's room, a small kitchen, and a meeting room that is about one-third of the size of the present meeting and community room at the Schoolhouse Rd. fire house, Schweppenhauser said. The fire house has been designed to allow expansion in the future.

The North Bethlehem Fire Department will donate the 2.6 acres of land for the proposed fire house, valued at $40,000 with site development. The department will purchase the site with proceeds from the sale of lands across the street from the present fire house, Schweppenhauser said.

The department also plans to donate a $100,000 pumper to the district if the bond act passes. The pumper will be purchased with proceeds of the sale of the present fire house, Schweppenhauser said. However, he added, if the bond act is defeated, the department may have to sell the pumper.

"I would like to have the people come out and vote, for or against. Naturally, I would like to see it pass. We are behind the eight ball," Schweppenhauser said.

The district must have its budget for next year prepared and presented to the town boards before Sept. 20, Schweppenhauser said. If the bond proposal is defeated, he said there would not be enough time to plan another course of action and hold a public vote.

"If it does not pass this time, I do not know what we are going to do," Schweppenhauser said. "We have discussed it, but we have not addressed it. It has gotten to the point where it is very serious."

The Elmwood Park Fire District rents the fire house on Schoolhouse Rd. from the North Bethlehem Fire Department, and the lease will run out on Dec. 31, when the building is expected to be sold.

District voters twice last year rejected proposals to build a new fire house on a site across the street from the present building. The department has since sold that land.

Memories on McCormack Rd.

The lands along McCormack Road in Slingerlands can tell a historic tale in themselves, harking back to the days of Indians and Dutchmen who prized this fertile area in the watershed of the Normanskill.

The Dutch West India Co. granted to Killiaen Van Rensselaer in 1629 roughly all of the land that is today Albany County. However, in 1660 an event took place that would challenge the patroon's domain. In that year Jan Hendrickse Van Baal, a "servant" of the company, purchased from four Mohawk chiefs a tract of land that included 69,000 acres. This Van Baal Patent, as it was known, lay on either side of the Normanskill in parts of what are now the towns of Bethlehem, New Scotland and Guelderland, "containing in length and in breadth all the land as it lies in a square." This patent was confirmed by Francis Lovelace, governor general of the province.

Within a few years, Van Baal sold half of this patent to Jan Hendrickse Vroman and in 1687 Vroman and his wife, Geesie, sold the same to Omie de LaGrange for 100 beaver skins. In 1716 de LaGrange and Johannes Simonse Vedder purchased the remainder of the patent. By 1723 they had sold one square mile (640 acres) to Abraham Truax.

Archibald McCormack and his wife came from Scotland in 1787 and settled in the Slingerlands area, purchasing the Truax property. They made their home along New Scotland Road, but their lands extended to the Normanskill and beyond in the area that later became McCormack Road. The McCormacks had eight children and in later years they sold off some of the acreage to their children.

In 1832, Archibald sold 100 acres to his daughter, Mary Thomson, who had married Andrew Thomson from Paisley, Scotland, an Albany pewter and silversmith. Thomson died in 1836 and in 1850 Mary married Christopher Proctor, who lived only one year.

At this time McCormack Road was part of the main road from Albany to Schoharie. Many farmers came down from the Helderbergs with their produce to sell in the Albany markets. They needed a place to spend the night and rest their horses, and Mary Proctor turned her house (now demolished) into an inn to accommodate these travelers. After selling their produce, the farmers would purchase needed supplies to take back home. Flour, sugar and molasses were common commodities that were needed.

There is a tradition that a farmer was returning from Albany with a load of molasses. He had imbibed too much strong drink in the city and when he crossed the bridge over the Normanskill along McCormack Road, the wagon went off the road and tipped over, spilling the barrels of molasses, some of which broke. Neighbors came with their jugs to collect the spilled molasses. Thereafter, that area was known as Molasses Hollow.

Mary Thomas Proctor sold 40 of her acres to Charles Moat, who had married her daughter, Dorothy Thomson. This couple built a handsome brick residence near the old inn in 1858, on the east side of the road. However, they lived in the house for only two years before moving to Amsterdam. That house, now beautifully restored and updated, is the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Stasio.

A huge, old fir, and deciduous trees attest to the age of the house, and the wide lawns add an air of spaciousness and frame the dwelling. A circular driveway leads a dramatic approach to the imposing front entrance portico with its four white pillars. Black shutters, taken from an old home that belonged to Mrs. Stasio's father, add their accent to the gleaming, white painted brick walls, and the white fences that lead away from the house add their own counterpoint.

The front door opens into a gracious hall with a stairway leading to the second floor. Originally, the stairs came down into the dining room, but the Stasios changed the orientation at the bottom so that the stairs are

The large living room is at the left, painted in a soft seafoam green, as are the hall and dining room, carrying a restful, unified color scheme throughout the formal section of the house. Tourist facility

The City of Albany has opened new tourist facility, the Albany Urban Cultural Park Visitors Center. The attraction is an exhibit and audio-visual program on Albany's history entitled "Albany: Capital City Crossroads." The center is located in Quackenbush Square on Broadway, just north of Clinton Ave., and one block east of the Palace Theater. The exhibit can be seen Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Injuries minor

Several people suffered minor injuries last Tuesday when a Ravena man's vehicle struck a Selkirk man's vehicle trying to avoid a collision with a third vehicle, Bethlehem Police reported.

However, all injured refused treatment, police said.

At about 3:50 p.m., the Selkirk man's vehicle was at the Glenmont School attempting to turn onto Rt. 9W, when the Ravena man's vehicle, traveling north, swerved to avoid a collision with a Catskill man's vehicle that was traveling south in the northbound lane, police said.

No tickets were issued in the incident, police said.

area is like a private nature preserve, and deer, red fox and many birds can be seen while one is eating. An additional 25 acres purchased by Dr. Stasio ensures that this area will remain in its natural state.

A door from the kitchen leads into a huge family room with a slate floor and four large windows that look into the rear yard. Here a wood-burning stove adds a touch of charm and warmth while one watches television or looks out at the wildlife. Beyond this room is a large open porch that balances the garage wing at the other end of the house. The garage wing, in what was once an old summer kitchen, includes a mud room with a washer and a dryer.

Upstairs, there are three large bedrooms, furnished with antique pieces. One has been turned into what Mrs. Stasio calls her "hodgepodge room" — its shelves housing a large collection of books as well as being a place for other activities such as sewing, figuring at the desk, or just sitting down to read some of those many books.

The Stasios have done a marvelous job of turning a country farmhouse into a gracious and lovely home that is thoroughly livable while retaining much of its imposing presence from the past.

DWI charged in crash

One person was injured and a 23-year old Feura Bush man was charged with driving while intoxicated following an accident on Rt. 9W Saturday, Bethlehem Police said.

Robin Babin, 22, also of Feura Bush and a passenger in the Feura Bush man's vehicle, was treated at Albany Medical Center Hospital after complaining of head pains, and was released the following day, a hospital spokesman said.

The Feura Bush man's vehicle was traveling south in the left lane of Rt. 9W near Corning Hill when it struck the rear of an Elsmere man's vehicle waiting to make a left hand turn, police said.

The Elsmere man and a passenger complained of neck pains, but were not treated, police said.

The Feura Bush man, who is scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on July 22, was also ticketed for not reducing speed at an intersection, police said.

Garage fire fought

An electrical fire was extinguished by an employee of a local garage on Rt. 9W Saturday, north of Rt. 396, state police reported.

No one was injured in the incident, state police said.

BCHS student gets hearing

By Patricia Mitchell

Closing statements are expected to be heard today (Wednesday) in an unusual dispute between parents of a Bethlehem Central High School student with learning disabilities and the school district over the best education for the boy.

The student, 18, has just finished his junior year, and has been classified by the district's Committee on the Handicapped as handicapped with a learning disability.

The formal hearing is being conducted by hearing officer Jerome F. Callahan of Columbia County at BCBS. The attorney for parents of the student and Roger Fritts, attorney for the district, have presented two and a half days of testimony in the past two weeks.

Parents of the student have requested that the hearing be open. Because of their confidential nature, Committee on the Handicapped proceedings and recommendations are usually closed to the public.

The parents of the student would like the committee to recommend the student be enrolled in the Wildwood Young Adult Program for the school year beginning in September. Placement in the program must be recommended by the committee for the district to pick up the tab through state and federal monies. If the student is pulled out of the district, enrollment in the program will be at the parents' expense. The parents said under state education laws, handicapped students are entitled to free and appropriate education in public schools until 21 years old.

Past recommendations by the Committee on the Handicapped for the student consisted of a period of resource room help, and enrollment in a combination of slower-track and regular courses, the parents said. However, because of their concern over the student's learning disabilities in language processing, the parents said, the student was evaluated at the Sunnyview Hospital and Rehabilitation Center in Schenectady. Staff at the hospital, a facility experienced in handicapped persons and therapy, found the student to be severely handicapped and in need of services beyond those available in the school district, they said.

The parents said after they submitted Sunnyview Hospital's findings, the committee recommended the student remain at Bethlehem Central in basically the same program. The parents requested school board intervention in April, and after hearing no reply, the parents requested the hearing.

Bethlehem Central Superintendent Lawrence Zinn said Friday that after the hearing officer has heard all the testimony he deems necessary, he will have 30 days to make a recommendation on the future education of the student.

"We have had very few of these," Zinn said, estimating that this is about the third hearing in eight or 10 years. "It is just a matter of difference of opinion," he said.

The appeal action is the last step in the district's handicapped evaluation procedure. Zinn said after a student is identified as handicapped, a school psychologist will evaluate the student and make a recommendation on the student's Individualized Education Program (IEP) to the handicapped committee. The committee will invite the parents to its discussion of the findings of the psychologist, and the committee will make a recommendation on the student to the board of education.

If the committee and the parents agree on the IEP, all will go smoothly, Zinn said. If the parents do not agree with the recommended IEP, the parents can appeal for an impartial hearing.

"I think we have a very thorough system that works for us and the students involved," Zinn said.

A student will be identified as handicapped by the Committee on the Handicapped after evaluation by school psychologists. A student can be referred by teachers or by parents to the committee for evaluation. Even if a student has been evaluated by a private psychologist, the district will need to confirm the evaluation with district psychologists.

Cable rate change inevitable

By Tom McPheeters

The great majority of cable television viewers in Bethlehem are either satisfied with the service they get from Adams-Russell Cable Services, or are tired of complaining.

That was the private conclusion of some Bethlehem Town Board members following a sparsely attended hearing last Wednesday on Adams-Russell's request that the town approve a rate restructuring plan. Only three people questioned the company's plan, and two of them concluded that they would be willing to support it in order to get back their favorite channel.

And in the end, local sentiment matters very little, since changes in federal law mean that starting next year the company can set its own rates, with only the marketplace as a restraining factor. William Hinchey, representing the local cable system's parent company, attempted to reassure the board on that score: "The cable TV industry is really having to scramble very hard to maintain its position," Hinchey said. "Cable TV is not the monopoly that everyone thinks it is."

Adams-Russell is proposing a two-tiered rate structure, with a $9.50 per month basic service consisting of 11 channels and an optional second tier of 16 satellite-carried channels that would cost an additional $.45. The proposal does not affect pay channels. Since the current rate is a flat $10.50 per month, the restructuring amounts to a slight reduction for those wishing just the basic service, and a slight increase for those wanting the additional channels.

The satellite channels include all those currently being carried, plus an electronic program guide, the Nashville Network, the Arts and Entertainment Network, the Discovery Network, Cable News Network, Headline News and Financial News Network. Much of the discussion at the hearing concerned the Arts and Entertainment Network, which Adams-Russell had carried as part of the Nickelodeon channel.

When Nickelodeon bumped Arts and Entertainment, forcing it to find its own channel, Adams-Russell dropped it for technical reasons, according to General Manager George Smede. Kearney Jones of Delmar complained of the "considerable confusion" he encountered in trying to find out why Arts and Entertainment had been dropped, and under what circumstances it would be brought back. He said he was not happy with paying for all of the additional satellite channels, but would "reluctantly" do so in order to get his favorite channel.

Supervisor Robert Hendrick

asked what assurances the town has that Arts and Entertainment would remain part of the package. "I won't say that can't happen," Smede replied. "We're driven by the market." But, he said, the only reason any channel would be bumped in the future is to make way for something more desirable, and the company would attempt to determine which are the least watched channels in making that decision. Presently, Hinchey said, Adams-Russell is limited by a 30-channel system; when the company comes back to the town with a new franchise proposal it will include plans to upgrade the capacity, he said.

The only other complaints came from Donald Hinsdale of Delmar, who said the company's "service leaves a lot to be desired" and suggested that the town take a look at Adams-Russell's books. In fact, Hendrick had asked the state Cable Commission to audit the company's books, but no results were announced at the hearing. Hendrick said later the commission has agreed to perform the review, and recently asked the town for more information.

Hinsdale also complained about the loss of a number of channels, all of which Hinchey said had to be eliminated for copyright reasons.

Hinchey said the earliest the new rate structure could go into effect is Oct. 1, since it must be approved by the Cable Commission after town board approval. Hendrick said Friday he plans to place the proposal on the board's July 23 agenda for possible passage.

In other business, the board authorized Hendrick to sign a two-year contract with the Bethlehem Police Benevolent Association, the result of a recent finding by the state Public Employment Relations Board requiring the union to approve the agreement negotiated last December. The contract is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1985, and provides for four percent increases in six-month increments. Hendrick said Friday the town has set aside roughly $75,000 for the retroactive payments, and that some officers will be receiving checks of up to $2,000 in retroactive pay. He said he expects negotiations for a new contract to commence in the fall, and that he will recommend to the town board that it continue to use an outside negotiator.

• Approved a resolution to change the stop sign at the intersection of Thorndale Rd. and Forest Hill Rd. to a yield sign, following a public hearing June 25. The board also received a petition with 52 signatures asking for new stop signs at the corner of McGuffey Lane at Wisconsin Ave., Westchester Drive North at Wisconsin Ave. and Westchester Drive South on both sides of Wisconsin Ave. The petition was referred to Police Chief Paul Currie for his recommendation. Also referred to Currie was a request for a speed bump on Dover Drive, although board members noted that speed bumps are not generally permitted. "There may be another solution," said Councilwoman Sue Ann Ritchko.

• Noted the resignation of Sidney M. Kaplan of Delmar as the town's deputy director of natural disasters and civil defense. Kaplan's letter of resignation to Albany County Civil Defense Director John Signer noted that the position has for some time been one of name only with no functions or responsibility. "How well I know," said Ritchko. As a member of the county legislature several years ago, she said, she was a member of the civil defense committee, which never met. "They finally gave me a hat, and it didn't help a bit."

New building proposed for community center

By Lorraine C. Smith

Without really determining whether their discussions should emphasize a "building or a concept," interested townsmen for a community center learned last Thursday that a building — almost too good to be true — was being offered that might fit their purposes.

Acting chair Rob Lillis reported that a local real estate company has the vacating Dormitory Authority building under contract of sale for the end of this year, and would be willing to rent the building to the town or group responsible for a community center program under a five year renewable lease with the possibility of future purchase.

The building, at One Bethlehem Court, Elsmere, contains 5,200 square feet and has parking space for 20 cars, with considerable parking space available near by.

The 11 persons in attendance enthusiastically brainstormed with this new idea for a community center: the building could provide office space for the senior citizens operation, could provide meeting rooms available to the public for nominal charges, could have "a large room suited to offering Saturday cartoons as a money maker..." Marty Cornelius, executive director of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce, expressed interest in moving the chamber office to a more accessible location.

The group's first meeting had been called just two weeks ago to discuss the possibility of acquiring the Delmar Athletic Club facility as a community center. With this "radical change of events," Lillis suggested that the group divide into program, funding and building committees to get some figures and plans on paper.

Lillis agreed to chair a funding and finances committee. Don Kennedy will be the interim chair for the program committee, and Marty Cornelius will start up the building committee.

With an operating budget reflecting rent, program and staffing costs, Lillis said, the group could then submit a financial proposal to be included in next year's town budget, which is drafted in August. He calculated that the operating expenses for the Dormitory Authority building would approximate $50,000, rather than the $100,000 figure referred to for the vacated Delmar Athletic Club building.

A list of some 14 area groups would be contacted to invite a representative to serve on the board.

Lillis also said the group should be incorporated — the name Bethlehem Community Center was agreed upon — and looked ahead to the immediate summer project: "To get this into the budget, we're looking at a petition drive," he said.

Jeannette Koch reported on the operating details of the Colonie Community Center with their recommendation that existing programs be maintained with a new center offered as supplementary programs. It was agreed that all existing groups be surveyed for project ideas.

Success of carrying the project out depends on volunteer efforts. Referring to the interior wall "rearranging" that would need to be done, Lillis said, "It's like a barn raising. If you had 20 people you could take care of the whole thing."

Although the ideas abound, the group still suffers from a lack of committed workers. Most of the meeting referred to a lot of "should do's" but since a leader has not yet come forth, the ideas remain discussion rather than action.

Contacted Monday, Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Administrator Phil Maher said that he did not feel that the need has been demonstrated at this time. Maher said he is "aware of the current interest but to date nothing significant has been demonstrated to the town."

"Everyone likes to jump on a bandwagon that is moving," Cornelius noted.

The next meeting of the group was scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, July 17, at Bethlehem Town Hall. Anyone interested in working towards a community center is invited to attend.

Young artists

Area high school students selected to participate in the New York State Summer School of the Arts are: Todd Googins of Delmar, choral studies; Katherine Lempert and Robert McEwan of Delmar, orchestral studies; Naomi Barr of Delmar, theatre; Tracy Stevens of Voorheesville, dance, and Sarah Manning of Slingerlands, visual arts. The students will study at college campuses throughout the state and present their work during August.

State Assembly members, including Assemblyman C. D. "Larry" Lane, recently displayed artworks by artists from their legislative districts at their Albany offices. From the 102nd district, Lane congratulates Jan Thalheimer of Delmar with her painting "Cliffs."

Library board plans push for new building

By Lyn Stapf

Although little discussion took place on the proposed new library project at the monthly meeting of the executive board of the Voorheesville Public Library last week a great deal of other business was handled during the 90-minute meeting.

It is anticipated that new Voorheesville Superintendent Louise Gonan will receive official notification this week of the findings of the state concerning the draft environmental impact statement submitted in May. Former library board President Hugh McDonald had heard unofficially, though, that the 30-day period since the draft statement was submitted has elapsed with no negative comments being received.

It is now up to the state to decide whether a hearing on the environmental impact of the proposed library project should be held or if a final impact statement is warranted.

VOORHEESVILLE

When the official word is received, if no further filings or such are needed, it will be the responsibility of the library board to set the date of the referendum vote, which at this point should come sometime in the fall. The board must also set the date of a public hearing on the bond issue and begin publicizing both dates along with all the pertinent information on the project.

The board decided articles on the history the project would appear in the library's official publication, The Bookworm, as well as the school district paper, The Heldebarker, both due to go to the printers this month.

McDonald, who handed over the reins to newly elected President Ed Donohue, was appointed to chair the building committee, and said he is ready to appear before any local group to discuss the project and what has transpired up to this time, including the site search and building plans.

Meanwhile, the business at hand focused on the present structure on Main St. The board discussed the hiring of someone to fix the present air conditioning system, which during the summer's hottest spell was inoperable, and decided to begin the search for workmen to paint the building before winter.

The board also decided that an accountant would be hired to audit the books so that a complete financial evaluation of the library could be given before the proposed project was begun. The board is also considering changing from the present cash system to the recommended accrual system.

It was reported that part-time librarian Lynn King, with the help of the staff, has weeded-out over 1,300 books from the present collection with many of them being sold to area booksellers. According to library director Jane Salvatore, the staff is also "contemplating culling some of the discards, as well as some outdated records to be sold to the public this fall."

It was noted that the library is canvassing high school students to serve as pages. Both boys and girls, age 14 and older, who have working papers are eligible to sign up for the part-time jobs, which pay a starting minimum wage salary of $3.35. Pages assist with shelving books, retrieving materials for patrons and assisting with other duties at the library.

Rezoning hearing July 22

The Village of Voorheesville will hold a public hearing on the rezoning of West St., North Main St. and Zelda St. at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 22.

The rezoning would change the industrial zoning of the area to a Residential-C district.

The change was recommended by the planning commission. Mayor Edward Clark has said the area should have been zoned Residential-C when zoning was established, but the village wanted to protect the wetlands in the area.

There are no permitted uses in an industrial district, and any development must be by special use permit.

All uses in the area are now residential.

In a Residential-C district, single and two-family houses are allowed, as are accessory uses, such as garages or storage sheds, public recreational facilities and essential services, such as public utilities or government agencies.

If no objections are raised, the rezoning could be adopted by the board of trustees meeting following at 8 p.m.

Country flavor

Good news for those who enjoy their music and food with a country flavor. The Ladies Auxiliary of the New Scotland Elks Lodge 2611 held their annual Country Western Night on Saturday, Aug. 2, in Picard's Grove. The evening of food, fun and friends will begin at 6:30 p.m. With a chicken barbecue being served at 7:30 p.m. Dancing to the music of Country Edition, from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m., will round out the evening.

The event is open to the public. Tickets are $17 per person and may be obtained from any auxiliary member or by calling Rita Gavin at 439-2229. Reservation deadline is July 28.

Kiwanis barbecue

Speaking of barbecued chicken, the Kiwanis Club of New Scotland has announced that it will hold its annual chicken barbecue on Saturday, Sept. 13, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the New Scotland Presbyterian Church on New Scotland Rd. Cooked by Brooks and served by the men of the service organization, the dinner is one of the few fundraisers sponsored by Kiwanis which oversees such activities as youth soccer, grasshopper baseball and softball, pee wee wrestling, summer band and the monthly blood pressure clinic.

Blood pressure on hold

On the subject of the blood pressure clinics, the Kiwanis regret that the free service will be suspended for the months of July and August due to the hectic schedule of summer. Blood pressure checks will resume in September and will be held every second Tuesday of the month, from 9 to 11 a.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., in the social area of the First United Methodist Church of Voorheesville.

Summer encampment

Spirits were high last week as scouts from Voorheesville Troop 73 attended their annual summer encampment at Camp Rotary in Poestenskill. The Boy Scouts under the supervision of new Scoutmaster Joe Colburn and a number of parent volunteers took part in training activities as they worked towards badge requirements. The highlight of the evening, as usual, was the mid-week barbecue attended by their families.

More student honors

As summer progresses more awards keep pouring in. Included in a list of junior high students feted at an awards assembly shortly before the end of school were: Matthew Burns, Scott Goergen and Richard Oliver, who were presented with an award for school service; Richard Adams, Tracy Stevens and Stephanie Reh, who received citizenship medals; Tracy Stevens, who was presented with the Alvah Mallory Arithmetic Prize; Michael Haaf, who was given a trophy for outstanding service to the Junior High Student Council, and Elizabeth Greenburg and William Kerr, who were named to the superintendent's honor roll holding straight A averages for the first three marking periods.

Stories, movies at library

The summer fun at the Voorheesville Public Library continues this week and next when pre-school story hour is held on Tuesday and Friday, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The family movie, "The Karate Kid" will be shown on Wednesday, July 23, beginning at 1 p.m. Those interested in learning first-hand about others in far away lands are invited to join the pen pal club, which will meet on Thursday, July 24, at 3:30 p.m. Students interested in obtaining more information on the club should contact the library. All programs will be held in the bottom level of the library.

Soccer skills

A large number of students are getting a kick out of the summer soccer clinic sponsored by the Village of Voorheesville. Held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. at the elementary school, the program provides students in grade K-3 with the basics in soccer skills, as well as some interesting team play, under the watchful eyes of coaches Tom Clark, Doug Arthur and Andy Rockmore.

Extra pick-up

Besides fun, summer also means garbage leftover from all those exciting hot-weather picnics. As in past years the village will provide an additional garbage pick-up each week for residents of Voorheesville.

Those who usually have their garbage taken away on Thursday will also have a pick-up on Monday, while those whose regular removal day is Tuesday will also have garbage picked up on Friday. The summer schedule will run throughout July and August.

R & B in the park

The Concert in the Park series will also continue this week as the Stomplistics present an evening of rhythm and blues in Hotaling Park this Sunday, July 20, at 7 p.m. Everyone is invited to bring a folding chair or blanket and come enjoy this free concert.

Float in parade

Those attending the Tri-centennial Parade this Saturday in Albany will recognize a little bit of Voorheesville as the Maple Ave. Cultural Society exhibits its float in the festivities. The float which was awarded a prize at the Memorial Day Parade in Voorheesville, depicts the Anti-ent Wars in Southern Albany County.

Joins Peace Corps

Kevin McKenna, a 1982 graduate of Voorheesville High School, recently received his bachelor's degree in anthropology, magna cum laude, from the University of Notre Dame and will depart shortly for a two-year assignment with the Peace Corps in Zaire, Africa.

McKenna was co-recipient of the Raymond C. Murray Award for the graduating senior with the highest average in the anthropology Department. While at Notre Dame, he was on the university marching and varsity bands, a member of the concert band and glee club, and spent one semester studying in England. In the Peace Corps, he will teach English. He is the son of John and Mary McKenna of Voorheesville.

Planners work on zoning update

By Patricia Mitchell

The New Scotland Planning Board has decided to start looking ahead.

On recommendation from Chairman Richard Stickley, the board has decided to consider updating current zoning laws. Current zoning laws were set in 1961, and were updated in 1981.

Three weeks ago, the planning board recommended that the town repeal the use of mining in industrial or low density residential zones. At their July 2 meeting, the town board decided to schedule a public hearing at a later date.

Zoning changes in the town require an act of the town board after a public hearing is held. Recommendations on zoning changes are made by the planning board.

At their Tuesday, July 8, meeting, the planners pointed to Rt. 32 in Feura Bush near the town line, and Swift Rd. as examples of areas needing updates. The board also noted that there are several water districts in the town that were not in existence in 1961, and that the trans-vap septic system now coming into use could need regulating.

"There are some things we would like to bring up to date. It just has not gotten done," said board member William Childs.

"We are due for an update. This thing is 15 years old," said board member Anne Richards.

The current zoning regulations are not consistent or coherent, Richards said. She suggested requesting the town board hire a consultant to help the planning board work out the details.

The board decided to go through the 20-page zoning book page by page, and each board member agreed to list their concerns with the present regulations to be changed.

Spurring the action is the zoning of low density residential and industrial along the Delaware and Hudson Railroad tracks near the former Tall Timbers Country Club. Dating back to 1961, the area was zoned when the tracks were used more frequently.

Gravel, fill, or soil mining is allowed there by a special use permit after town board action in 1984. The zoning and special uses have been controversial in the town since early last year when Voorheesville Sand and Stone for William Larned and Sons applied for a special use permit to mine about 27 acres of the former Tall Timbers Country Club. The repeal of the special uses was discussed at a joint meeting of the planning board and the town board in January, but the boards decided to hold off on any action until Larned and Sons had started their public hearing.

In a related matter, James Eberhardt of Concerned Citizens of New Scotland asked the board why the town did not take lead agency status in the State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA) impact statement on Larned and Sons' application to mine.

Planning Board Attorney Fred Edmunds said the town believed the state Department of Environmental Conservation was best suited to conduct the study.

"This board would not have been lead agency," Edmunds said, adding that the board knew a SEQRA would be required.

"They feel they do not have the expertise. It has been the town's position that they do not become the lead agency," said building inspector Walter Miller, a member of the planning board.

Not assuming lead agency status is a matter of past experience, but Miller said the town does take the position when forming water districts.

Eberhardt asked if the planning board was notified by the town board that the SEQRA was conducted by the Department of Environmental Conservation.

"They do not have to," Edmunds said.

Eberhardt also asked if the planning board had made a recommendation to the town board on a hydrogeologist to study the area of the proposed mine site.

Stickley said he has received quotes from one organization, and he is waiting for responses from two others. After all information is received, Stickley said, a recommendation will need to be made for town board approval, and then the hydrogeologist would make a report in four weeks. The next meeting of the town board is scheduled for 8 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 6.

In other New Scotland Planning Board business, Edmunds told the board the buffer zone of vegetation on one of the lots on the turn of Rt. 155 in the Orchard Park subdivision had been destroyed. Edmunds said it appeared that it could have been destroyed by construction equipment traveling into the site.

On June 24, the board approved section three of the subdivision with 28 units with the condition that a 20-foot buffer zone of undeveloped land remain wild by the future homes and the live vegetation be preserved along Rt. 155 near Rt. 85A.

"You can look right through there," Edmunds said. "There is no vegetation."

Edmunds requested the planning board members to inspect the area, and said the town may be able to withhold certificates of occupancy on the homes until a solution on the violation is decided on.

"No one can occupy the house (without the certificate)," Edmunds said.

The next meeting of the planning board is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 22.

Swim lessons at home

Backyard pool swimming instruction is underway at the Albany YMCA. Water safety instructors will travel to area homes and teach swimming lessons to neighborhood children in a hosting family's backyard pool. Class registration requires at least 8 paying participants per pool. Classes meet 4 days per week, Monday through Thursday, for half hour lessons. Fee is $18 per youth participant per week.

For information contact Jeff Hickey at 449-7196.

Hall of records cited

The Albany County Hall of Records, under the supervision of Albany County Clerk, Guy Paquin, has been selected as the winner of the 1986 Achievement Award by the National Association of Counties.

The Hall of Records was commended for ingenuity and creativity in establishing a unique management program for county government. The records management program began in 1981. Now jointly funded by Albany County and the City of Albany, the Hall of Records provides micrographics services, a records center and an archives.

Red Cross honors

Frank Gordon of Delmar was recently honored by the Albany Area Chapter of the American Red Cross as co-honoree for the volunteer of the month of July. He volunteers one day a week as a driver and responds on an on-call basis at other times.

Bottle hits car

A Delmar woman's vehicle sustained front grill damage when a bottle was thrown at the vehicle while she was driving on Kenwood Ave. near Grove St., Bethlehem Police reported.

No one was apprehended in the incident that occurred about 9 p.m., Friday, police said.

Insurance rate skyrockets

By Patricia Mitchell

An increase of 274 percent is slated for the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District's excess liability insurance.

The premium of $32,750, approximately $24,000 over last year's bill of $8,750, has been approved by the RCS Board of Education.

"Any municipalities or school districts, it is just out of sight. You have to carry it. You never know," said Superintendent William Schwartz.

The policy from Utica Mutual Insurance Company is for a $1,000,000 umbrella policy, Schwartz said, and will cover any kind of excess liability. The company has provided the school district with coverage in the past.

In the 1986-87 district budget approved by voters in May, the board earmarked $26,000 for the liability insurance.

At their Monday, July 7, meeting the RCS school board welcomed Mark Sengenberger and Stephen Berletic to the school board. They were elected in the May vote with incumbent Wayne Fuhrman. The board also reelected Anthony Williams as president of the board and elected Sara Hunter as vice president, replacing Susan Gottesman.

The board also approved $212,000 in bonds and bond anticipation notes for the purchase of six school buses. Approved by voters in the district's annual election in May, one of the vehicles will be equipped with a wheelchair lift, four will be equipped with seat belts, and one will be a wagon.

Business Administrator Charles Emery said one of the vehicles has already been delivered, and the district has borrowed $12,450 from the general fund to pay for it.

These will be the first buses that the district has ordered with seat belts, Emery said. If the board decides to cancel the seat belts on the buses, he said he does not believe the order can now be made to the manufacturer.

"This board has decided it wants seat belts," said Fuhrman.

The four buses with seat belts may be used on the elementary school runs to help educate the students, Schwartz said. The use of the seat belts may be incorporated into the bus orientation program.

Emery said the manufacturer also recommends some class instruction on the seat belts.

The board approved Delta Dental as the carrier for the district's group dental policy. Schwartz said the switch to Delta Dental from Equitable was approved by the board and the RCS Teachers Association during recent contract negotiations. He said the coverage under Delta Dental will remain the same.

The RCS school board also:

- Denied a request from the district's athletic director to purchase a portable video camera and recorder. Schwartz said the athletic director expected the denial, and he said the athletic association will now be able to pick up the bill as was planned.

- Suspended until further notice the boys soccer program because there is not enough interest among the district's students.

- Scheduled a meeting with BOCES Superintendent Dr. Custer Quick for the district's Monday

Aug. 4, meeting to discuss BOCES' proposition to purchase the Maywood School from the South Colonie School District. BOCES is asking all school boards in its district to pass resolutions supporting the proposal, which goes before voters on Sept. 17. RCS has not acted on supporting the proposal, but Schwartz said he expects the board will respond.

The next meeting of the RCS school board is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Monday, July 21.

Corn and chicken

The Wednesday afternoon farmer's market at the First United Methodist Church in Delmar today will have a special attraction — a chicken barbecue by John Geurtze to celebrate the beginning of the sweet corn harvest.

The barbecue on July 16 starts at 5 p.m. and will be available for the first 50 people at $3. Fresh fruits and vegetables from summer's early harvest will also be available. The farmer's market will also host a free plant clinic.

Albany symposium

Empire State College will present a Tricentennial Symposium entitled, "Albany's Art, Architecture, and Material Culture." The session will explore the integral relationship between the capital city's art and architecture and its history, economics and lifestyle.

The event will run from 2 to 5:30 p.m. at the Albany Institute of History and Art, 125 Washington Ave., Albany, on July 17.

Deer in the road

An 18-year old Westerlo woman ran off Rt. 32 in the Town of New Scotland and struck a guard rail Saturday after she swerved to avoid two deer in the road, state police reported.

Eagle Scout Joe Crosscup at the start of the Barbara Austin Nature Trail at the Becker School, which he designed and made a reality.

Scout builds a nature trail

Joe Crosscup, an Eagle Scout candidate and former student at A.W. Becker Elementary School in Selkirk, recently took his former teachers on a guided tour of the new nature trail he designed at the school. The nature trail will be used by teachers and in relation to the new science requirements established by the state Education Department.

Crosup not only came up with the idea for the trail, but also played a major role in making the trail a reality by gaining the necessary permissions, designing it, obtaining financing and organizing the work. "I'm impressed with the way he attended to details and delighted with the final results. I hope the scouting organization is as proud of Joe as we are," said Albert Keating, principal of the school.

Who says you can't undo the damage

Believe it or not, our Chief E•Z-Liner can undo it. In fact, by literally reversing the collision action, gently pulling damage out the way it went in, our revolutionary Chief E•Z-Liner actually squares and aligns your car with more accuracy and precision than it had when it was factory-new. And that's especially true of today's unibody cars.

With our expert painting and finishing service, we can also undo even the worst kind of surface damage. So your car leaves our shop not only handling better than ever, but looking better than ever, too.

So who says your car will never be the same again? We say damage that's done can be undone. And we'll prove it with our E•Z-Liner!

Variety show plans

A benefit variety show has been planned for Saturday, Aug. 2, to assist in the rebuilding of the Ravena Knights of Columbus Hall. The building was partially destroyed last winter when the main portion of the roof collapsed under a heavy snow load. Sponsored by Frank Smith and concerned residents, the show will be held in the auditorium of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School, beginning at 8 p.m.

If you're one of the many who have missed the many activities sponsored by the Knights, and the use of the large facility, you might want to keep the date of Aug. 2 free. The show is shaping up to be an exceptionally entertaining evening, featuring such local talent as Mirinda and the Cross Country Dancers, John Kearney with his special brand of magic and much, much more.

The Kelly strings

Julianne and Bridget Kelly are two string instrument students currently completing Applied Music requirements at RCS Senior High School. Julianne studies viola with Ann Marie Kocsis of Albany, and Bridget studies the cello with David Gibson of Albany. Both are members of the Empire State Junior Youth Orchestra.

During the 1985-86 school year the Kelleys participated in the New York State School Music Association, Zone 7, area All-State Orchestra, which performed at the Saratoga City School District in Saratoga Springs. Throughout the year they played numerous times as members of the Junior Youth Orchestra and its affiliated ensembles. In June, Julianne earned a Level VI (very difficult), A rating at the NYSSMA Solo/ensemble Festival.

For the second summer in a row, Julianne has been accepted at the School of Orchestral Studies in Saratoga. While staying on the Skidmore College campus Julianne will study with members in residence from the Philadelphia Orchestra and perform at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center. She will receive course credit for her endeavors.

Julianne and Bridget are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Kelley of Coeymans Hollow. Julianne who will be a senior, and Bridget who will be a sophomore, intend to return to the Applied Music program at RCS Senior High during the upcoming year, and will continue to play in the Empire State Youth Orchestra and the New York State School Music Association Festivals.

Elks to march

Special activities continue with the celebration of Albany's Tricentennial, and with it the participation of some area people in the special events. This Saturday, many members of Bethlehem Elks Lodge No. 2233 will be participating in the Tricentennial Parade in Albany. Area Elks have been selected to carry the fifty American Flags and will be marching directly behind the Veterans Hospital Float.

South Bethlehem's teen country singer and recording artist, Mirinda, and the American Country Show Band were also participating in celebrations this Saturday. They will be performing in a variety show held at the Corning Preserve as part of the celebration.

Bike stolen

A girl's bicycle, valued at $50, was taken from the front of a Hackett St., Selkirk, home Saturday night or Sunday morning. Bethlehem Police reported.

Focus On Faith

The Rev. Richard H. Hibbert

First United Methodist Church, Voorheesville

Twice within the space of two months it has happened. The first time, while driving in my car rounding a bend in the road, there before me was a brilliant arc of color in the sky. Then, a few weeks later, at the end of a spring afternoon, sitting in our living room, my son exclaimed, "There's a rainbow in the sky!" We hurried out to the side of the house just to stand and watch this magnificent splendor as it brought spirit to our hearts even while bringing a splash of color to the sky.

For those who share the Biblical tradition of Genesis, the rainbow is a sign of covenant, a reminder of God's promise to Noah never again to flood the earth. To me, it is a powerful indication of God's Presence, a statement of God's sovereignty over all of Creation. Whenever I am blessed by this vision of wonder, I feel a strong sense of assurance. God has promised to be our God and has claimed us as the people of God. From that presence, I find identity and meaning in my life.

Of course, I know that the appearance of the rainbow can be explained scientifically. Yet, even as I hear the analytical breakdown of the elements which combine to produce this natural phenomenon, when the arc of color appears in the sky, within me is stirred a deeper emotion, a more powerful reality. No matter how logical and scientific the explanation might be, the rainbow has on me the effect of producing awe. In the end, I must be silent before this demonstration of God's creative power; in the end, I need only be reverent.

Sometimes, I feel that we are too matter-of-fact about life and all that it offers. We take for granted its beauty and its gifts.

Perhaps that is why we have for so long accepted the proliferation of nuclear weapons among the nations. Have we lost the notion of the value of life, the sacredness of creation itself? Where is our sense of reverence?

To some degree, our loss of the sense of reverence has to do with the pace of life in contemporary society. We have become so mobile that we rarely take the time to be still. "Be still, and know that I am God," we read in the scriptures. To come to an awareness of wonder, an attitude of reverence, we have to be struck by awe. For that to happen, we must be still.

The notion of a sabbath as given by God to the people of Israel has practical, as well as theological meaning. The scriptures tell us that as God created life in six days and rested on the seventh, we show our respect for God and Creation by taking a sabbath rest. In our observance of a "day of rest" we mirror God's powerful grace and proclaim to the world our faithfulness to the God of Creation.

Practically, the human spirit and the human body need time to be still, time to contemplate, time to be refreshed and renewed. If we ignore the inborn need for rest, we can endanger our ability to recognize the presence of God. If we are never still, we can not be revitalized by the graceful power of God.

poured down on the hard, white earth. The children huddled inside the door of the church and sat silent, watching it. I expected shouts of joy. But instead, I heard an utter silence — the sound of reverence. Both Joseph and the children were perfectly quiet until the rain stopped. He bowed his head and told me, "This is the hardest rain they have seen in three years. They have seen their parents die because of the drought. What else can thy do now but be still and watch?"

There are so many sounds that fill our world, so many voices competing for our attention and our loyalty, that we are all too often confused and bewildered. Yet the voice of God does not join the clamoring cacaphony. God's is a still, small voice calling us to be still, to know God as our comfort and our strength, to trust in God's covenantal presence. God's is the voice calling us to silence before the wonder of divine love and divine power, the sound of reverence.

If we learn to be reverent toward God's Creation, perhaps then we will see the spirit of God's presence in all of life and commit ourselves to its preservation. Listen for the still, small voice; be still, and know God is with you; and let yourself be struck by wonder and the sound of reverence.

Susan Pulfer

Works as intern

Susan Pulfer of Delmar has been awarded a scholarship by the National Trust for Historic Preservation and Yankee Publishing Inc., of Dublin, N.H.

An American civilization major at Wheaton College, she will be working as a Yankee intern with the East Valley Neighborhood Housing Services, Inc., in East Randolph, Vt., for 12 weeks this summer.

Pulfer will research the laws, regulations and codes that affect the program, and then make specific recommendations for the neighborhood service in the rural Vermont community.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pulfer of Delmar.

Chamber drafting a strategic plan

BUSINESS

Martial arts studio opens Aug. 1 at Plaza

Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce members, with the assistance of Organizational Communications Inc., has drafted a strategic plan to define the organization's goals and determine how to reach its goals.

According to the guide for chamber management, the mission of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce is to "further the concept of business and community prosperity among the business and business resources within its designated geographic area, and among the Capital District business and business resources at large for regional economic development."

The chamber hopes to achieve its mission by providing membership services, business leadership and an economic development plan.

Membership services to be provided by the chamber may include educational programs, communications, group health plans and other packages, government assistance, social programs and a business-oriented database.

Regarding leadership, the chamber will strive to be a "position development" organization; provide forums for social and business interaction; reach all pockets and areas of business in the town; promote community beautification; initiate a retired executives support program; initiate a volunteer involvement program, and utilize effective public relations methods.

While the chamber does not have the resources at this time to provide a comprehensive economic development plan, the organization has expressed an interest in compiling an up-to-date survey of businesses in the town, identifying the types of businesses that would be attractive additions to particular portions of the town, developing a procedure for attracting new business to the community, and developing promotional literature aimed at selling the Town of Bethlehem as a place to live and work.

Marty Cornelius, executive director of the chamber, has been appointed chief operating officer for the purpose of guiding chamber activities and efforts in concert with the new plan. Cornelius will be responsible for setting priorities according to an item's importance and the chamber's ability to act effectively, and providing an outline and plan of each segment of the strategic plan. Cornelius will also be responsible for hiring support staff and acting upon methods of increasing the chamber's financial resources.

Berry in DOT post

Robert Berry of Slingerlands has been named director of the Business Administration Bureau, state Department of Transportation.

Berry comes to the transportation department from private enterprise. Most recently, he served as executive vice president at the Intertech Corp. of New York City.

His experience includes involvement in the design, development and implementation of the state's Medicaid Program, and management of large data processing projects for both government and industry.

A New York City native, Berry studied business administration at Fordham University, and is a member of the American Management Association.

Daniel G. Plummer

Joins Hennessy firm

Daniel G. Plummer of Delmar has joined the consulting and lobbying firm of Hennessy Associates.

Plummer had been a manager of government relations for The Business Council of New York State, Inc., New York's largest broad-based business group, where he began working in 1981 as a research assistant.

At The Business Council, Plummer most recently was responsible for coordinating various program areas including transportation, construction, energy, manufacturing, consumer and education issues. Previously, he had served as an aide to Assemblyman Richard Conners (D-Albany).

The firm of Hennessy Associates is headed by William C. Hennessy, former New York State transportation commissioner and immediate past chairman of the state Democratic Committee.

The newest shop at the Delaware Plaza will be selling martial arts and good health.

The Tae Kwon Do and Fitness Center is opening Aug. 1 at the former location of Roger's Sport and Ski, between Lincoln Hill Books and Paper Mill. The center will offer instruction in the Korean martial art of Tae Kwon Do for men, women and children, age 5 and up.

Mike Friello

Owner Mike Friello has been involved in martial arts for 14 years and has been awarded a fourth degree black belt. With headquarters in Troy, Friello previously offered instruction at the Delmar Athletic Club and is currently presenting an informational program through the Bethlehem Channel.

For information on classes or pre-operating specials, contact Friello at 274-3675.

Promotions at EYP

Four local men working at Einhorn Yaffee Prescott, Architectural and Engineering, P.C., recently received promotions to the position of managing principal. Tom D. Birdseye of Delmar, a registered architect; David M. Dembling, Slingerlands, also a registered architect; Arthur R. Kaplan of Delmar; and Gary L. Merrit, a professional engineer from Delmar were all named managing principals. They will be responsible for day-to-day management and operation of the firm's projects.

'Truth in savings'

An updated truth in savings brochure has been released by the state Banking Department.

"This brochure informs the public about the New York State Law which requires all state chartered banks to give depositors full and clear information about their savings and time deposit accounts. This is particularly timely in view of the anticipated elimination of all interest rate ceilings on deposits on April 1, 1986," said Jill Considine, state superintendent of banks.

The brochure points out that banks must inform you, in writing, of their rules on deposits and withdrawals for each type of account; how much interest you will receive, including the method for computing interest; the annual percentage yield; penalties imposed for early withdrawal; any service charges that you will have to pay, and when your account, except for variable rate deposits, would be unfavorably affected by certain changes such as the annual interest rate or the compounding period.

Special mortgages

A special mortgage program, "Mortgage Express," offering very competitive interest rates to corporate transferees, is now being offered by Roberts Real Estate.

Mortgage Express is being provided through The Prudential to member companies of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's oldest and largest referral network of independent real estate brokers, headquartered in Chicago.

The special RELO mortgage program through The Prudential is available to any transferee or new employee who is offered some financial assistance by his corporation.

The competitive rates are available through the Prudential to help the transferee finance a home in his or her destination community. Rates are based on a 30-year fixed mortgage, and each transferee is eligible to qualify for a loan of up to 80 percent of the appraisal or sales price of the new home, whichever is less.

Soccer camp town's first

A first for Bethlehem, Bethlehem Soccer Camp will be offering its own full day soccer camp complete with local soccer stars Jay and Jeff Guinn and other participating staff members.

Bethlehem Central High School's varsity soccer assistant coach Ed Langert will be camp director. The objective of the Bethlehem Soccer Camp, he said, is to develop the individual soccer skills of all players and to prepare them to be able to perform in an outstanding manner both individually and as a team member.

The camp, to be held at the Bethlehem Middle School, will run one week only from Aug. 11 through 16, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. All the instructors, made up of former and current collegiate players and coaches, have had previous camp experience.

"We've been thinking about doing this for a few years now," said Jay Guinn, former Bethlehem standout who graduated two years ago from Colgate University where he was a Division I starter. "But this was the first time we could all come together. It might be our only chance.

"We're all playing top-level soccer and we wanted to bring some of that back to this town. We hope to teach the players that to learn they have to work at their own skills, not just to play games." Guinn cited the familiar drills of basketball players shooting baskets or in baseball, the father pitching balls to his son every day.

The middle school, Guinn said,

Jeff Guinn, a current starter for the nationally ranked North Carolina State Wolfpack, will be one of the staff members for Bethlehem's first Soccer Camp, Aug. 11 through 16. Jeff, along with his brother Jay — also a member of the camp staff, are former Bethlehem soccer standouts.

is the perfect facility for the all-day sessions, since the camp will have use of the gym on rainy days. Besides a camp shirt and individual soccer ball, each camper will have the opportunity to earn outstanding achievement awards and certificates of merit.

Not all the time will be spent on the fields. Training films including a video of the '86 World Cup will be shown, along with class instruction. There will be video taping of the campers as well.

Cost is $90 per camper with a deposit of $40 required by July 23. Any boy or girl ages 7 through 17 may attend. Campers will be grouped according to age and ability. For more information or an application, contact Ed Langert, 587-1668; Bill Silverman, BSC president, 439-6465; or Jay Guinn, 439-3408. Applications are also available at the Bethlehem Public Library.

Summer at the Y

The Albany Young Men's Christian Association is holding youth and Pre/School summer classes during the summer. The classes are held in two week sessions from July 14 to 26, July 28 to Aug. 9 and Aug. 11 to 22.

Activities included are Pee Wee Gym, Kindergym, Tiny Tot Swim, Preschool Swim, and YMCA Camp Mohawk (day camping). The summer programs are held at the YMCA building, 274 Washington Ave. in Albany.

Little league teams in tournament play

By John Bellizzi III

Davies Office Refurbishing, the major league champion in the Tri-Village Little League, continued its winning ways in the first round of the City-County League champions tournament last Sunday when they beat the first-place team from Whitehall - Little League, 5-4.

Brendan Gross was the winning pitcher, striking out 12 batters, and he was aided by outstanding defensive plays by outfielders Bob Conway and Luke Paigo. Kevin Curran and Mark Houston were power hitters for the team as each hit a double and a single. The team was scheduled to play the first-place team from Hudson Valley Monday night in the next round of competition.

During the course of last week, Tri-Village Little League held a single elimination round robin tournament for its Intermediate teams. Hal Morgan's Sunoco team emerged victors in the final game last Sunday when they triumphed over Hoogy's Village Corner, 3-1. Matt D'Ambrosi was the winning pitcher, and he aided his own cause with two singles off Hoogy's starting pitcher, Scott Hasselbarth, who also gave up a single to Chris Pearson in a fine pitching performance. Mike Pelletier relieved Hasselbarth and pitched three scoreless innings.

Although the regular season is officially over, the league is sponsoring teams in three area All-Star competitions. The 10-year-old team is managed by Joseph Paigo and coached by Ron D'Ambrosi. Team members include Jonathan Pesnel, Kory Snyder, Matt Thornton, Joe Pomorski, Gary Finning, Sam Stasko, Matt D'Ambrosi, Mike Pelletier, Chris Ryan, Brian Garver, Joe Schneider, Brian Winterhoff, Gary Van Wormer, Chris Macaluso and Scott Hasselbarth. The team will play its first game at National Little League next Sunday at 1 p.m.

The 11-year-old All-Star team, managed by Randy Gambelunghe and coached by Tom Schaller, is made up of Duncan McKaskill, Mike Aylward, John Schaller, Dave Miles, Ben Comtois, Alan Flynn; Mark Herzog, Bob Conway, Ed Lubarda, Josh Lanni, Mike Gambelunghe, Jim Gavin, Mike Futia and Joey Mangiapane.

The 12-year-old Major All-Star team is managed by John Black and coached by Bill Kosoc. The team will play its first game against National Little League next Saturday at 5 p.m. at American Little League. Representing Tri-Village will be Billy Karins, Andre Cadieux, Mike Pratt, Brent Kosoc, Chris Black, Mark Houston, Jim Dundon, Brendon Gross, Brennan Perkins, Jay Tarbell, Matt Quatraro and Matt Shortell.

There were four divisional champions this year. The first place team in the eight and nine-year-old Junior division with a 11-3 record was Main Care, managed by Ron VonRonne and Bob Shogan. Hoogy's Village Corner, under the tutelage of Harold Hasselbarth, swept Pelletier and Don Davies, won the American Division of the Intermediate League with a 12-1 record. Handy Andy, managed by Joseph Paigo and Dan Simmons took the National division with a 9 1/2 - 4 1/2 record. The major league champion was Davies Office Refurbishing, with a coaching staff of Tom Yovine and Tom Curran, who ended the season with a 13-5 record.

The annual managers/coaches softball game resulted in a victory by the Junior and Tee Ball division managers and coaches defeating the Intermediate division coaches and managers, 2-1.

In A Boom Market

• In some areas, lately, the real estate business is so good that there are multiple offers on some houses, and prospects have been known to bid higher for the privilege of getting the property. Sometimes there's rather frenzied bidding and counterbidding until the seller chooses a buyer.

• In such a situation, does a seller need a broker? Yes, the real estate pro still serves several vital functions. First, he or she helps set the right asking price, then locates appropriate prospects and shows the property. Second, the agent is the negotiating middleman handling the bids and encouraging better ones. And third, the real estate knowhow of the professional helps the seller choose the right buyer — not necessarily the highest bidder, but the one most able to consummate the sale. If a buyer can't get a mortgage, for instance, the property must go back on the market and the seller loses valuable time.

Babe Ruth all stars third in District 6

The Bethlehem Babe Ruth 14-15 year-old All-Star team placed third in the District 6 tournament held last week. The team played a total of six games, winning four and losing two in the double elimination tournament.

After losing their first contest to Whitehall, 3-0, the team was forced to play with their back against the ropes as one more loss would have meant the end of a successful season. After the opening loss, the team rebounded and went on a tear, eliminating Watervliet by a 14-1 margin as they pounded out 14 hits, Latham in a 3-0 pitcher's duel, Guilderland and host team Central of Albany by a 8-3 margin. In the game to see who would play Whitehall for the championship, Bethlehem lost to East Greenbush, 9-6, and had to settle for a third place ranking.

Throughout the tournament, Jon Skilbeck led the team on the mound as he pitched a total of 20 innings and gave up only two earned runs. As a team, Bethlehem batted .326 with Sean Lynch's .435 leading the way. He was followed by John Reagan and Bill McFerran who batted .348 and .333 respectively. A total of six 14 year-olds were members of the team and will be returning next year to give the team players with all-star experience.

Fullback Debbie Stuart strains to deliver the ball downfield in the game against New Lebanon.

Girls finish 3rd at Nisky

The Bethlehem Soccer Club finished third in the under-12 girls division of the Capital District Soccer League's Niskayuna Tournament. The Bethlehem team finished behind a team from Quebec and a team of players from Voorheesville, Clifton Park and New Scotland.

Leading scorers were Maggie Franzen, Jessica Williams, Casey Cannistraci and Suzanne Rice.

Swimmers in Texas

Three Bethlehem Central varsity swimmers — Justin Baird, Chris Drew and Scott Whitney — are going the be training for the next two weeks at the University of Texas Swim Center in Austin, Texas.

The three will be coached by Richard Quick, who has been named head coach the 1988 United States Olympic swim team. Quick has coached such swimmers as Rowdy Gaines, who won three gold medals at the 1984 Olympics. The assistant coach will be Eddie Reese, the coach of another three time gold medalist at the 1984 games, Rick Carey.

O'Connor qualifies

Cameron O'Connor, a 14-year old varsity swimmer for Bethlehem Central High School, recently qualified for the Empire State Games in the 200-meter Individual Medley. The trials were held at Colonie Town Park on July 5 and 6.

9 Dolphins bring home medals

The Delmar Dolphins contingent at the Lake Placid A.A.U. Long Course Meet last weekend was very successful as the nine Dolphins who competed brought home a total of 19 medals. Kate Fish and Lisa Ogawa placed in every event they participated in.

In the boys 10 and under group Marc Kanuk placed fifth in the 50 meter freestyle and 50 meter backstroke. Cam O'Connor led the 13-14 boys group as he took first in the 100 meter backstroke, second in the 200 meter freestyle and fifth in the 100 meter freestyle. Drew Patrick placed second in the 200 meter breaststroke, fourth in the 200 freestyle and fifth in the 200 intermediate while Pat Fish placed third in the 100 meter fly and fourth in the 200 intermediate to round off the 13-14 boys group for the Dolphins.

The girls 13-14-year old group was led by K. Fish as she placed in a total of five events. She took first in the 100 meter breaststroke, second in the 200 meter fly and 200 meter freestyle, fourth in the 100 meter freestyle and sixth in the 200 meter intermediate.

Lisa Ogawa competed in the Senior Girls group and placed first in the 100 meter freestyle, second in the 100 meter backstroke, and fourth in the 100 meter fly and 200 intermediate.

Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Deer cause accidents

Two deer were struck and killed in separate incidents last week, Bethlehem Police reported.

A Feura Bush man's vehicle suffered right front end damage at about 9:30 p.m., Sunday, when a deer came out from the shoulder of Rt. 32 and into the path of the vehicle, police said.

At 11:55 p.m., Monday, June 7, a Hannacroix woman was driving south on Rt. 9W, near the Rt. 32 ramp when a deer came onto the road and struck her vehicle. Police said the vehicle suffered front-grill and bumper damage.

No one was injured in the incidents, police said.

□ One woman's crusade

knowledge and understanding," said Berman.

"You have to be a dedicated and caring person to work with the mentally ill," said Berman, noting that the staff at CDPC shows that dedication and care.

In addition to treating inpatients from a nine-country area at the 200-bed facility, the staff treats more than 50,000 people per year on an outpatient basis. "Caring for so many people, you are going to have some problems," said Berman.

Several well-publicized incidents involving CDPC patients or former patients have led to criticisms of the facility and of the state laws that guarantee patients who are not judged to be a danger to themselves or others the right to reject care. Those incidents have also been used as arguments against the proposed Northeast Psychiatric Hospital in Glenmont. Without discussing the Glenmont controversy, Berman strongly defends the concept of individual rights for the mentally ill.

"The people they would really be afraid of are institutionalized. The criminally insane are institutionalized," said Berman.

Speaking about the patient population at CDPC, Berman said, "They were functioning human beings and hopefully in the future they will be functioning human beings and contributing to society."

Berman said many patients at the center have gotten well and returned to productive lives.

"It's a very, very worthwhile endeavor. You can see that it's someplace where your time and your energies and any talents that you have are really needed," said Berman.

Among the volunteers who have joined CAN since it was formed in January are Sherry Grenz, John Burke, Ben Mendel and Anne Cohen, Delmar; Lois Touhey, Feura Bush; Lorena Abrams, Malka Evan, Chris Fisher and Connie LaNier, Slingerlands; Midge Baldwin, Ted Beecher, Sue Filipp, Jerry Jonas, Julia Kelley, Dell Thompson and Pat Bitter, Glenmont, and Betty Elliot, Voorheesville.

The facility, which is operated by the State Office of Mental Health, offers inpatient and outpatient care. Services and programs offered through the center include reality orientation, social rehabilitation services, a birth defects institute, residential services, vocational programs, and child and adolescent services.

A continuing treatment program is available to geriatric patients with treatable psychiatric illness, such as depression or schizophrenia, or irreversible psychiatric illness, such as Alzheimer's disease or related senile dementia. A variety of other services and programs, including a clinic, group activities, social training and a mid-day meal, are also available to geriatric patients.

The center offers a 24-hour crisis service for any person in emotional distress. The service includes evaluation and referral, immediate treatment, a 72-hour residential program, an outpatient program, telephone counseling and a mobile crisis team.

The mobile crisis unit provides on-site mental health service for psychiatric emergencies in Albany County. The mobile team works cooperatively with area shelters to provide services to the mentally ill homeless and provide consultation to local law enforcement agencies. The crisis service is available by calling 447-9650.

Anyone interested in donating their time and effort is encouraged to write Barbara Pvirre-Freeman, Displaying one of four park benches donated to the Capital District Psychiatric Center by the City of Albany, Jeanne Berman, right, and Beatrice Albert of Albany, co-founders of the Citizen Advisory Network, with Albany's Commissioner of Parks and Recreation Richard Barrett. CAN requested the benches for the use of CDPC patients.

director of volunteer services, Capital District Psychiatric Center, Albany, N.Y. 12208, or Jeanne Berman, 29 Constitution Dr., Glenmont, N.Y. 12077.

Earns law degree

Kimberly Redmond, a former resident of Slingerlands, received her juris doctor degree cum laude from Pace University. Redmond has accepted a judicial clerkship with the Third Department, New York State Supreme Court Appellate Division.

She earned her bachelors degree in political science cum laude from the State University at Albany.

Redmond is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crannell of Voorheesville.

OBITUARIES

Dr. Gardiner Bump, ruffed grouse expert, in a 1975 photo.

Dr. Gardiner Bump

Word has been received that Dr. Gardiner Bump, 83, a major force in conservation in New York State for many years, died June 26 in West Bend, Wis.

A resident of Salisbury Rd. in Delmar for nearly 50 years, Bump moved to Wisconsin two years ago.

A well-known expert on ruffed grouse, he joined the state Conservation Department in 1929 and was founder of the Delmar Game Farm, now known as the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center.

A graduate of Cornell University in Ithaca, Bump began his career studying ruffed grouse in 1926 on Connecticut Hill near Ithaca under Dr. A. A. Allen.

He moved to Delmar in 1929, and joined the Conservation Department to organize biological studies of the ruffed grouse. He and his wife, Janet, raised grouse in a makeshift farm in Delaware County. When he needed a farm to carry out his propagation studies of the ruffed grouse then-Commissioner Henry Morgenthau, Jr., told him, "Find one you want and we'll buy it," Bump recalled in a 1983 interview in Conservationist magazine. In 1933, the 243 acres of the Game Farm was purchased for $10,000. The Bumps raised 2,000 grouse on the Delmar Game Farm.

Also while he was at the Conservation Department, Bump organized the Bureau of Game, attending to many public-wildlife needs, and set up a major grouse study at Connecticut Hill that lasted from 1929 to 1943 and involved over 200 people. A number of these workers went on to lead state and federal wildlife units.

In 1937, the Bumps purchased two acres from the Salisbury Farm on Salisbury Rd., in Elsmere, and built a French-provincial house that reflected their individuality. The house was built with rough Cypress shingle siding purchased from a Metropolitan Opera tenor whose wife refused to live in the Adirondack house he built for her, the interior paneling came from a Glens Falls mill that rejected the wood because it was full of knots, the driveway of Belgian concrete blocks was taken by pieces from area dumpsites, and the pegs in the hardwood floor were individually placed by the Bumps.

"It is a very interesting and charming house," said Margaret Smith of Salisbury La., a former neighbor of the Bumps. "He was very proud of that house. It was their pride and joy."

The Bumps also planted and cared for their yard, especially the garden with many types of wildflowers, Smith said.

"He loved Delmar," said his daughter, Janet Bump Mooney.

Bump served in World War II beginning in 1942, and when he returned, he joined the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to study game birds on five world continents with the intent to find a species that could be introduced in the United States. He traveled to India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Iraq, Iran, Turkey, Argentina and most of Europe to study grouse, quail, partridge and pheasant.

Janet Bump, not originally trained to be a biologist, would help Bump out in the field and do parasitology work for him. While in Argentina, she became a self-taught pathologist and discovered a heartworm that was new to science. Her name is part of the scientific name of that heartworm.

Ward Stone, a wildlife pathologist at Five Rivers Environmental Center, met Bump about 20 years ago at a seminar Bump gave on the introduction of exotic birds. Stone was in the audience, and he said he held a different idea than Bump was presenting.

"We had an exchange over what was right and what was wrong," Stone said. Bump never held the discussion against Stone, knowing it was a difference of scientific opinion.

After retiring in the early 1970's, he counseled area Boy Scouts on their wildlife merit badges, and he served as advisor and historian at Five Rivers.

Smith said Bump also took her son, then in his teens, and some of his friends to the Bethlehem Sportsmen Club on Dunbar Hollow Rd., teaching them the principles of wildlife management. The boys received credit for their work with the ruffed grouse in high school.

Smith's son, now 27, would visit the Bumps on his visits to Elsmere when the Bumps were still on Salisbury Rd. Smith said a lot of youths liked to talk with Bump because he knew a lot about nature and could answer any question about birds. Bump, Smith said, had a rapport with the youths.

"We were very fond of him as a neighbor," Smith said.

Bump also spent time with the late Erastus Corning II, longtime mayor of Albany, his "good grouse hunting buddy." Bump and Corning set up a chapter of the Ruffed Grouse Society, and worked with its members to establish hunting areas on the Alcove Reservoir.

Stone said he came to know Bump well after he retired. Bump would visit the Five Rivers Center to read recent research, have discussions with the staff, and tell of his findings and experiences.

"He never dropped his interest in biology. He never really retired," Stone said.

Bump's book, published by the state, Ruffed Grouse — Life, History, Propagation, Management, "is a classic. The state has never put out a book of that quality before or since. He was a real pioneer," Stone said.

Bump's many papers are also great contributions to the field of wildlife, Stone said.

Five Rivers still does work with ruffed grouse that was started by Bump, and Stone said that research is still important today. Stone said, "He was courageous, intelligent and a fighter. For the causes he believed in, he never backed down. His contributions will live on. Losing Gardiner Bump is like losing one of the great pioneers."

The Bumps moved to the Cedar Lake Retirement Community in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1984. Janet Bump died there in December, 1985.

He leaves a daughter, Janet Mooney of Milwaukee; two sons, Robert Bump of Vancouver, Wash., and Richard Bump of Pittsburgh, Pa.; eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial will be on family land in Hancock, N.Y., near the east branch of the Delaware River.

High school damaged

A car tire and rim was thrown through a pane of glass in the rear of Bethlehem Central High School on Delaware Ave., Bethlehem Police reported.

No value on the cost of the window was available in the incident that happened Thursday night or Friday morning, police said.

Staggering price

Editor, The Spotlight:

Following the expected acceptance of the environmental impact statement involving the psychiatric hospital on Rt. 9W, Glenmont, we now await the dropping of the other shoe.

Meanwhile, definite proof and warnings concerning the temperament of the patients continue to shock all but those determined to locate this project in Glenmont, at any sacrifice or cost.

Two violent crimes recently reported in the local media mentioned that both assailants were sent to the Albany Psychiatric Center for examination.

Just the other day on the Staten Island Ferry another vicious attack by a non-criminal resulted in two deaths and wounding of nine other people. Only days before, that person was diagnosed as suffering from acute psychiatric illness. The expert psychiatrists released him onto society, because he said he felt better and would enroll in an out-patient program.

Similar recent headlines were offered in evidence by the opposition at an eleventh-hour Town Meeting. Advocates of this revolving door asylum ridiculed those accounts as exaggerated and infrequent. The doctors from Albany Medical Center painted psychiatric patients as sick, harmless and helpless. Tell that to the victims and their families.

These latest infrequent and exaggerated events emphasize the true nature of the unpredictability of acute psychiatric illness. Not to mention the chronic fallibility of psychiatrists.

Numerous acts of uncontrollable violence by psychiatric patients in Albany County alone during just the first half of 1986 have made headlines. How many lesser incidents did not?

Must the Bethlehem residents, including the school children, be subjected to such acts before the truth of this venture is admitted? That would be a staggering price to pay for enhancing an already impressive balance sheet and increased tax revenue.

Edward P. Dillon

Glenmont

Officials of the proposed Northeast Psychiatric Hospital have stated that the hospital will not have outpatient psychiatric services. The Capital District Psychiatric Center, to which reader Dillon refers, does have outpatient services. Ed.

Thanks from Little League

Editor, The Spotlight:

Thanks to the many people who helped to make this past baseball season a success. Thanks to the parents who coached the players, and helped out in the stands and at work days. Thanks to the young men and ladies who umpired the games. Thanks to the players who gave it their all (and had fun doing it).

And thanks to the following community businesses whose sponsorship helped to make it all possible: Audio Video Corp., Bethlehem Auto Laundry, Blanchard Post 1040, Buenau's Opticians, Cape Cod Fence and Heritage Pools, Citibank, Country Classics, Davies Office Refurbishing and Delmar Answering Service.

Also, Delmar Car Wash, Empire Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Farm Family, Friedman's Flyers, General Electric, Hal Morgan's Sunoco, Handy Andy, Hoogy's Village Corner, Keystone Builders, Klersy Builders and Main Care.

Also, Manufacturers Hanover, McDonalds, National Panelized Systems, Owens-Corning, Pratt-Vail Associates, Price Greenleaf, Professional Kitchen Designs, Robert Real Estate, Spotlight, Starwood Enterprises, Stewarts and Tucker Anthony.

Keep out of reach

Editor, The Spotlight:

I was at the Elm Ave. Park with my children on July 8. When I was going to leave I was completely taken by surprise at a find that I made. Lying on the concrete deck between the middle pool and the grass was a bottle of medication. The medication was not in a child-proof container, nor was it in a container labeled with the person's name or dosage.

I know if people do not have little children around they may get in the habit of keeping medication convenient to them, but please and I repeat please, if you are going to bring medication to a public area keep it in a safe place for you and our children.

A concerned E.M.T. (Emergency Medical Technician).
