The trials of living in Albany's shadow

By Tom McPheeters
and Patricia Mitchell

Living in Albany's shadow isn't always easy for the suburban towns, but despite the size and political differences there are still more areas of cooperation than most people realize.

In recent years, two of the most essential for Bethlehem and New Scotland have been water and garbage. Albany's vast water system supplies the water that allows growth in both Bethlehem and New Scotland. And the city's ANSWERS system for burning solid waste has replaced the town landfills.

So it came as something of a shock to local officials recently when it appeared that Albany was prepared to unilaterally change the terms of two of its crucial relationships with the towns. In one case, state legislation requested by the city could make the Albany water system tax-exempt, depriving Bethlehem and its two school districts of a major source of revenue. In the second case, the city has served notice that it will terminate its contract with the other municipalities that use the ANSWERS plant.

In both cases, however, the alarm bells may subside as local officials read the fine print. And Albany officials insist they never intended to alter their basic relationships with the towns.

In the case of the Albany Municipal Water Finance Authority, that resolve is now spelled out in Gov. Mario Cuomo's approval message. The authority was sought by the city to allow it to sell lower-cost revenue bonds to finance repairs to the aging city distribution system, but the otherwise routine bill apparently caught local legislators flat footed. While the legislation says the authority's property — including the huge Alcove Reservoir and the line that brings water from the reservoir through Bethlehem to the city — is to be tax-exempt, the legislative analysis of the bills said there would be no fiscal impact on other localities.

The fact that the legislation said only that the city may negotiate a payment in lieu of taxes alarmed town and school district officials.

Gov. Cuomo's message spells out the obligations differently: "It is the intent of the City of Albany, the sponsor's intent and mine that the operation of these provisions will protect municipalities and school districts outside the city from an undue loss in tax revenue. In operation, therefore, the Albany Water Board may be

Seniors reach to homebound

By Lorraine C. Smith

In a neighborly demonstration of concern, Bethlehem's Senior Citizens are reaching out to residents to check that everything is okay or just to say "I care."

Since February, according to Senior Citizens Services Coordinator Karen Pellettier, area volunteers have been calling persons in the town who live alone, have recently experienced a death in their family, are under doctor's care or have been referred as someone to whom a friendly call would be helpful.

Named Senior Citizens' Friendly Calling, the program presently involves seven volunteers and 20 homes that are called regularly. Two of these volunteers come to the town hall to make their calls and the others contact their list of residents from their own homes. All volunteers make the calls on a regular weekly basis but at a time that is convenient to them.

Referrals have been made by St. Peter's Hospice, Kiwanis Club members, the Bethlehem Police as well as from town residents who are concerned for an individual who is ailing or temporarily housebound.

"Winter time is particularly hard for these people," one volunteer said, "because they can't go outside too much, and so many things can happen."

This volunteer, an attractive senior citizen herself, has become friends with her phone contacts and enjoys coming into the office each week for her calls. It has brought benefits to her too. "For me, calling from home would be a chore, but here there's people to see, visit with..." Soft spoken, smiling, she conveyed her interest over the phone to each of her patrons.

"Some people stay home just waiting for the call," she explained between calls as she discovered what one person cooked special that day, another's good medical discharge news, and still another's happy chatter about her pet. Although it wasn't the first volunteer task she tried at the office, she especially enjoys this volunteer time. They make my day!"

Pellettier would like to expand the service to include anyone in the community who would benefit from a regular friendly call. She welcomes referrals by persons knowing of such individuals through a professional arrangement, family members or friends.

Pellettier also invites anyone who would like to call one or more persons on a regular basis to contact her at the town hall. Some helpful guidelines will be provided, a notebook is kept to provide an informal log of the calls, and all that is needed is a friendly voice and a little time set aside each week.

"There are some people we call," Pellettier said, "that on some days this is the only voice they've had."

Mining ordinance repeal hearing set

By Patricia Mitchell

Acting on recommendation from the planning board, the New Scotland Town Board has set a public hearing on a repeal of an amendment that allows mining in designated zones. But how that repeal would affect the Larned mining application is still a subject of debate.

To be held at the town hall, the public hearing is scheduled for 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 3.

The amendment, added to the zoning ordinance in May, 1984, allows the removal of gravel, fill or soil in low density residential or industrial zones with a special use permit granted by the planning board.

The repeal was recommended to the town board at their June meeting, but with Supervisor Steve Wallace and board attorney Fred Riester absent, the board decided to hold off until all members were present.

A special use permit to mine about 27 acres of the former Tall Timbers Country Club off Hilton Rd. by Voorheesville Sand and Stone for William Larned and Sons is presently before the planning board. The application has drawn concern from neighbors of the proposed mine, and culminated in a four-hour public hearing in May in front of over 400 people. The public hearing was adjourned to a later date until more information on the effects of the mine could be gathered.

Members of Concerned Citizens

of New Scotland, a group opposed to the special use permit, appeared before the town board's meeting last Wednesday, asking them to set the date of the public hearing. The group also asked what the effect of a repeal of the amendment would be on the Larned application.

When the planning board made the recommendation to repeal the mining amendment, the board said it would have no effect on the Larned application because the board had started to consider it. However, representatives of Concerned Citizens said they believe it would make the application void.

Riester told the group that he realizes they want to get the zoning ordinance amended before any more applications are put to the planning board, but he said further research would need to be conducted if the repeal would void the Larned application. He offered to sit down with the group's attorney, James Linnan of Albany, to discuss the influence on the Larned application.

Concerned Citizens also requested the town board pass a resolution stating the legislative intent of the mining amendment. While Riester said nothing positive would come out of such action, Wallace did state the expected to provide for payments to local governments and school districts which are equal to any fair and equitable assessments now paid by the city to these jurisdictions under existing law."

Contacted Monday, Albany Corporation Counsel Vincent J. McArdle Jr. confirmed that the language in the governor's message had been worked out after careful consultation with the city. McArdle said the city will pay all existing assessments this year, and that next year the payment in lieu of taxes will be

"what the amount would have been if the property was still on the tax rolls."

After that, he said, "we told the governor's office that we will sit down and work out something that is fair to everyone." McArdle said that because the water system is so old it may take some time to research the extent and worth of the new authority's holdings.

Albany pays $245,000 in property taxes to the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District, about $78,000 to the Bethlehem Central School District and about $75,000 to the Town of Bethlehem.

McArdle had offered earlier to negotiate with the towns and school districts affected, but only Coeymans had so far been in contact with the city; other officials have said they wanted to wait to see if the bill would be signed into law.

Reaction after the governor's signing was still cautious. BC's Franz Zwickbauer called it "unfortunate. It seems like the city of Albany is in the driver's seat," he said.

RCS Superintendent William Schwartz said he was "a little upset" at the signing, but added, "I'm hopeful that we can sit down with the powers that be and work something out."

"We will try to live with it and see what happens," said Bethlehem Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick. He added that among the town's options is an attempt to get legislation passed next year mandating that the payments be at the present levels.

However, Bethlehem's options would be somewhat limited because of its dependence on Albany water, which supplements the town's own Vly Creek Reservoir in New Scotland. About 10 years ago Bethlehem entered into a long-term contract with the city rather than expand its own system, and that dependence can only be expected to increase, particularly if the town is successful in attracting new industry. New Scotland, in turn, has established a water district in Feura Bush that relies on Bethlehem water, which would only be available if the supply from Albany is available.

The contract between the city and the towns to burn garbage is of more recent vintage, but has its roots in a state-wide effort to close landfills. In effect, the ANSWERS plant was to replace a number of area landfills, and both Bethlehem and New Scotland are in the process of closing theirs, at considerable expense.

But ANSWERS — for Albany, N.Y., Solid Waste Energy Removal System — has had a number of problems, both technical and financial. Much of the the waste delivered to the Rapp Rd. plant is not burned but landfilled, which is more expensive for the city. The tipping fee has been raised several times, and is now at $6.50 per ton. For the first few years of its operation, the system made money for the city because its contract with the state, which burns the shredded refuse to provide energy at the Capitol and the Empire State Plaza, was pegged to the price of oil. When oil prices took a nosedive, so did the profits.

Last week, the city gave notice to 10 area municipalities, including Bethlehem and New Scotland, that it was invoking a clause in its contracts giving notice to terminate. But the notice — because of the long lead time that would be required to develop alternatives — is for five years.

"That was quite a surprise," Hendrick said Friday. His initial reaction, he said, is that Albany is preparing to exclude the towns after 1991, and that the town should begin to look at alternatives. A new landfill, he said, would be extremely expensive because of the stringent state regulations now in effect. The state is also exploring the feasibility of a new solid waste incineration plant at the state office campus.

McArdle, however, said again that the city's action is being misinterpreted. "We need breathing room," he said. The five-year notice is Albany's only way of ending its present contracts, under which it is losing money. The city has already started discussions with the state Office of General Services about renegotiating its state contract, and would be eager to do the same with the towns, McArdle said.

"We cannot afford to be supporting the other municipalities," he said.

Search on for center officers

By Lorraine C. Smith

Last week's meeting of Bethlehem Community Center committee proved to be the turning of the progress corner for the group, as the emphasis shifted from discussions, ideas and wish lists to specific definitions, strategies and marching orders.

During a meeting Thursday at town hall under the guidance of acting chair Rob Lillis, another small group discussed nominating committees, petition planning and survey taking.

The four current committee chairs — Holly Billings, public awareness; Marty Cornelius, building; Don Kennedy, program; and Rob Lillis, funding; along with Richard Ahlstrom, publisher of The Spotlight will comprise the nominating committee. They were charged with drawing up a list of officers who will have "the motivation and time for a position" on the Bethlehem Community Center board. Anyone who would like to be considered for an office is welcome to contact any of the committee members with a statement of interest.

Billings reported that 30 petitions are in circulation in the area. Although she could not specify the number of signatures collected to date, Billings said her feedback from collectors has been: "We've got signatures!"

Most residents "don't need to hear anything but 'community center' to sign the petitions" and the only negative comments have been concern for the expenses involved in its operation. Lillis offered a reminder that the plan, as it exists now, is not a commitment to long-term funds.

Harold Maher said that other negative aspects of a community center do exist. He stated that the town has promised the seniors a center which has not been provided. He also asked whether or not the proposed community center would "relocate activities."

Lillis answered that "If your current facility is adequate, we would not approve the use."

A summary of defined concepts followed: the community center would be designed to avoid duplication and conflict with existing programs, and would not always have its doors open. Rather, a coordinator would supervise events, coordinate activities and promote events.

It was suggested that because of this plan, perhaps the name "community center" might not be appropriate. "What we've come up with, is the building is important, the coordinator is important, and what we have to sell the town and community is a concept," Kennedy said.

Lillis responded to one newcomer's concern for furnishing the building. "The programs will direct how the building will be developed," he said. "The real issue is demand. When there is a demand for programs, then there's a need for facilities." Evidence abounds for that need, Lillis said, in that grant money for art instruction and handicapped programs have had to be turned away because a facility does not exist for such programs.

A survey of 100 local community groups will be conducted to measure the demand for facilities that the community center would satisfy. Maher indicated that the Bethlehem senior citizens often are looking for a community activity that they can support and he would look into their making calls for the survey.

Kennedy and Billings also offered assistance from their committees in making the calls. In discussing the limited response during summer when so many residents are away, Lillis stated that data from 50 out of the 100 organizations would be a good measurement of needs and support.

The program and nominating committees will meet within the next week. Anyone interested in serving on the program committee should contact Don Kennedy at 439-4559. The next general meeting, which is open to the public is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Bethlehem Public Library.

Woman harrassed

A Selkirk woman reported Wednesday that she was harrassed by a youth on a bicycle at about noon Tuesday, July 29, on Delaware Ave., Bethlehem Police reported.

The woman told police she was walking in front of a Delmar store when the youth passed her riding a bicycle. The youth turned around, rode back to her and grabbed at her. Police said the youth then rode off.

Mosher Bridge repairs set

The state Department of Transportation has awarded a bid for interim repairs on the Mosher Bridge on Rt. 396 over the Selkirk Rail Yard in Bethlehem to Jack Pollitt Welding Inc. of St. Johnsville, N.Y. The company submitted a bid of $148,875 to complete the repairs.

Structural steel parts will be added to increase the strength of the span and concrete deck sections will be repaired or replaced.

The state Department of Transportation is expected to make a decision early in the fall on whether to replace the bridge or reroute Rt. 396 to the southeast to link with Rt. 9W.

Meanwhile, two Albany County legislators from Bethlehem are sponsoring legislation that would mandate the Albany County Executive to enter into an agreement with Conrail for repair of the Jericho Bridge. The legislation, introduced by Republicans Robert Hofmeister and James Ross, is expected to be presented at the legislatures September meeting.

The bridge, the middle of the three bridges spanning the rail yards, has been closed because it is structurally unsafe. The DOT recently reported that it has no available funds for replacement of the structure.

County officials have said they are still researching ownership of the bridge and are attempting to determine if it can be repaired.

Hurt by firecracker

A 16-year old Delmar youth was listed in fair condition at St. Peter's Hospital Monday after a fire cracker exploded in his hand over the weekend, a hospital spokesman said.

Michael James Mosley of Delaware Ave., was taken to St. Peter's Saturday evening and was expected to undergo surgery after the explosion severely injured his right hand, Bethlehem Police said.

Mosley brought the fire cracker out to play with some children who were playing with sparklers, police said. Mosley thought it was a "smoke bomb," and he was holding it in his right hand when it went off.

Mosley found the firecracker, a "cherry bomb," last Tuesday on Delaware Ave. near his home in some litter, police said.

An investigation into where the firecracker came from will continue, police said.

DWI after accident

A 19-year-old Delmar man will appear in town court on Aug. 19 on the misdemeanor charges of driving while intoxicated after an incident at 10:45 p.m. Sunday, Bethlehem Police said.

The man was driving on Kenwood Ave. when he hit a bump in the road, lost control of his vehicle and hit a telephone pole, police said.

The man, also ticketed for failure to keep right, was not hurt in the incident, police said.

Trees uprooted

Eleven pine trees were pulled up from the grounds at Bethlehem Central High School on Delaware Ave. between Friday night and Saturday morning, Bethlehem Police said.

The pine trees are valued at $300, police said.

Volunteers needed

St. Peter's Hospital is seeking volunteers interested in working with Hospice in Albany or Rensselaer County. Interviews will be held from Aug. 20 through Sept. 2.

Following a 30-hour training session on Sept. 12 through 14, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., eligible volunteers will assist with home care, day care, Hospice bereavement or clerical duties. Licensed social service and health care professionals are especially encouraged to apply.

Rt. 9W shops planned

By Patricia Mitchell

Development of Bethlehem's last "strip" — Rt. 9W in Glenmont — took another step forward last week as the Planning Board heard plans for a proposed retail complex in Bethlehem Center.

Proposed by Equinox Construction Corp. of Colonie, the small complex would be on the north west corner of Rt. 9W and Feura Bush Rd. The board gave pre-preliminary approval to the complex with some modifications, according to Chairman John Williams. Included with the modifications is the placement of a berm around the complex to prevent headlights of cars in the parking lot from distracting other motorists on Rt. 9W and Feura Bush Rd.

Williams said questions were raised about the extent of site development at the complex, lighting in the parking lot, parking, traffic flow in and out of the complex and business hours.

Plans call for a 20,000 square foot building on 1.75 acres next to the Bethlehem Preschool. The complex would hook up with existing sanitary sewer and water lines. The project is proposed in two phases.

In other planning board business, the board accepted a waiver of the 45-day time limit on a decision for the proposed Quail Hollow subdivision. To be constructed at Glenmont and Jolly roads, the development contains about 70 lots. Proposed by Rudolph Paulson, a public hearing was held on Tuesday, July 1.

The board also granted conditional final approval to Westchester Woods off Elm Ave. The fourth section of the subdivision approved, the plan calls for the extension of Darroch Rd. The entire subdivision was granted approval in July, 1971, but final plans were approved in sections.

An amended final plan of the Briarhill subdivision was also given approval by the planning board. Located off Murray Ave., the amended plan relocates drainage easements on the subdivision.

The board also gave approval to a site plan application to convert the first floors of two two-family homes into commercial use on Booth Rd. in Elsmere. Expected to be owned by Dave Plummer, the Bethlehem's approval is subject to approval by the Albany County Planning Board.

A site plan application for a four-unit apartment on Hoyt Ave., proposed by Bedros Karian, was tabled by the planning board because Karian was not at the meeting.

A night at the opera

Rachel Noonan, 11, of Selkirk, performed at the Lake George Opera Festival 25th anniversary concert on Saturday, Aug. 2, in Glens Falls.

Rachel Noonan

Noonan recreated her role of Queen Mucho, wife of King Macho, from the Glenmont Elementary School's original opera, "If the Shoe Fits..." She received a curtain call for her performance of "I've Got the Too Few Shoes Blues." She was a sixth grader at the school when she performed in the role.

"If the Shoe Fits..." is a parable based on current political events. Noonan's Queen Mucho boasts a substantial number of shoes.

The opera was created for the Imagination Celebration in June at the State Museum. Performances were also given at the Glenmont Elementary School.

Students collaborated with members from the Lake George Opera Festival and composer Roger Ames of Williamstown, Mass. The opera was co-funded by grants from the state Council for the Arts, Glenmont Parent-Teachers Association and the Lake George Opera Festival.

Noonan will be attending Bethlehem Central Middle School in the fall.

She has played piano for seven years, sings, dances, and is a cheerleader for Pop Warner football.

Noonan is the daughter of Thomas and Kathleen Noonan of Elm Ave., Selkirk.

Stolen from truck

A Glenmont man discovered his wallet was taken from the front seat of his truck at 3:30 p.m., last Tuesday, Bethlehem Police said.

The man was parked in front of a Brookman Ave., Elsmere, home between 3 and 3:30 p.m. when the wallet was taken, police said.

The wallet contained several credit cards and $196 in cash, police said.

Wickes gets variance

A variance has been granted by the Bethlehem Board of Appeals for an expansion of Wickes Lumber on Rt. 9W in Selkirk.

The company applied to the board for the variance of permitted uses of the zoning ordinance to expand the building about 6,000 square feet, which would be used to assemble pre-hung doors for shipment.

No opposition was heard at the July 2 public hearing, and the Albany County Planning Board also had no opposition to the expansion.

In other business at last Wednesday's Board of Appeals meeting, a temporary rear yard variance was granted to Dr. Marvin Gertzberg at 21 Woodmont Dr., Delmar, for the construction of a six-foot fence. Granted on a hardship basis, the fence would be used to help protect Gertzberg's young son, and would only be allowed while the son was living on the premises. If the family moves, the fence would have to conform with the zoning ordinance's four-foot fence height.

A special exception variance was also granted to Stewart's Shop on Old Rt. 9W in Glenmont for the construction of a 10-by-20 foot bottle shed. The variance was granted to side yard and rear yard regulations of the zoning ordinance.

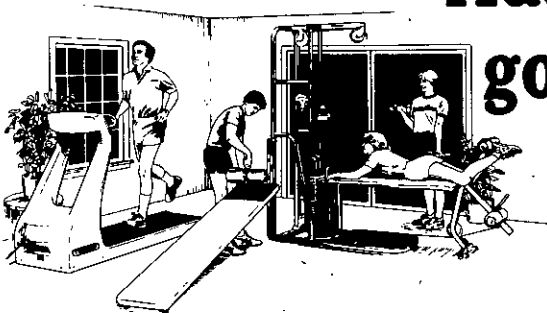

The board discussed applications on the Upstate Petrol station on Rt. 9W in Glenmont. Owners Paul Nelson and Joseph Painter would like to expand fuel storage, relocate islands and change tanks at the station. A public hearing was held on July 23, and a decision on the application is expected on Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Bicycle taken

A boy's bicycle was discovered missing from the front yard of a Brockley Dr., Delmar, home at 9:30 p.m. Friday, Bethlehem Police reported.

The bicycle, belonging to a Kenwood Ave., Delmar, boy, was left in the yard earlier in the evening, police said.

BC tax rates on target

By Patricia Mitchell

Bethlehem Central's tax rates for 1986-87 will be just over estimates used when the budget was approved by voters in May.

Approved by BC's board of education last Wednesday, tax rates for the Town of Bethlehem will be $173 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, and the Town of New Scotland will be $286 per $1,000. Bethlehem's tax rate is up about $7 per $1,000, or 4.6 percent, and New Scotland's tax rate is up about $12 per $1,000, or 4.6 percent.

In the budget approved by voters, estimated tax rates were at $170 per $1,000 for Bethlehem, and $282 per $1,000 in New Scotland.

Board President Bernard Harvith said there are always changes made in the budget during the summer. One reason why tax rates changed this year was because assessments figures went up more in the towns than originally thought.

The school board also approved amending the 1986-87 budget to reflect lower interest rate revenues to the district and higher insurance costs.

Insurance rates, as the board was told by Lloyd Rogers, broker for the district, will just about double this year, a product of the continuing insurance crisis faced by school districts and municipalities.

Rates for BC for 1986-87 have climbed to $275,000 for the $11 million policy, Rogers said. Last year's rates were at $130,000.

In the May budget, the district earmarked $200,000 for insurance, said Franz Zwicklbauer, business administrator.

One reason for the jump, Rogers said, is because the district and its carrier, The Travelers, agreed to a three-year contract for coverage at 1983 rates when the agreement was signed. Now the district has some catching up to do.

"Considering the times, I think we are doing well," Rogers said.

Another factor contributing to the increase, Rogers said, is that the value of the district's buildings and contents have jumped to $39 million this year, compared to $32 million in 1983.

The $11 million insurance policy will cover $1 million for primary liability, and $10 million for umbrella coverage. Bethlehem Central is better than most, Rogers said, because many school districts can only get a $5 million umbrella from companies or they could not afford the premiums for more.

The district is eligible for higher coverage, Harvith said, because any claims are investigated very carefully by the business office and the district's attorney.

While the one-year policy was approved and put into place on July 1, school board members gave their nod of approval to the policy even with the high rates.

"It could have been worse, I think," said board member Charles Reeves.

Harvith asked if the board could buy a large policy and allow groups using district facilities to buy into the policy to help reduce their premiums. Groups wanting to use facilities now need a $1 million insurance policy, and Harvith also asked if some lower-risk groups could be allowed to have a $500,000 policy. He said higher insurance rates can affect some activities.

Buying a large policy and then allowing groups to buy into it is against the law, Rogers said. He added that he recommends the district keep the $1 million policy because the district could be sued if a smaller policy does not cover full needs of a group.

In other school board business, a bill of $693,112 from BOCES for services during the 1985-86 year was approved. The board also approved a preliminary contract with BOCES for 1986-87 for $678,677, but the final bill on those figures will be approved by the board at this time next year.

The board also agreed to rent nine district classrooms to BOCES for 1986-87. The district will receive $22,500 for the classrooms and $49,750 for supplemental services.

The board also;

- Set library tax rates for 1986-87 at $14 per $1,000 for Bethlehem and $22 per $1,000 for New Scotland.

- Increased school lunch prices by five cents. New prices approved by the board are 80 cents for elementary students, 85 cents for middle school and 90 cents for high school. Harvith said the district has been approved for participation in a federal lunch program that will allow eligible students to receive aid on meal prices.

- Approved 76 appointments for extra duty assignments for the upcoming year, eight instructional personnel, and 11 non-instructional personnel. Three of the non-instructional personnel appointments were for aides that were provided for in the last teacher contract if a teacher has three or more teaching assignments.

The board has set a tentative meeting at 8 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 27, to issue tax warrants. Harvith said that meeting may be changed with notification to discuss personnel matters.

The next regular meeting of the school board is set for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 3. Charles Gunner, high school principal is scheduled to comment on the report of the visiting committee from the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. The board is also likely to begin discussions on a replacement for Superintendent Lawrence Zinn, who is expected to be named superintendent of schools in Saratoga Springs later this month.

Board to set fall library referendum

By Lyn Stapf

Little new information concerning the schedule for the referendum on the proposed library was disclosed at last week's meeting of the executive board of the Voorheesville Public Library.

Past president of the board and present chairman of the building committee Hugh McDonald did report that the library board has received official word through the Voorheesville Board of Education that the Environmental Impact Statement for the proposed library at the Prospect Rd. site has passed the 30 day examination period and the state Education Department has given the go ahead for the formal advertising period to begin.

McDonald said that after a scheduled meeting with the district's new superintendent, Louise Gonan, and the Board of Education, a definite plan, including a public hearing date, a referendum date and information about the proposal, will be released.

McDonald added that it was now, according to education law, the responsibility of the Board of Education to proceed with details concerning the bond issue including the securing of a financial advisor and a bonding carrier.

With a fall referendum imminent, the board decided that it might be wise to begin spreading the word concerning the positive attributes of a new library. Board members Jane Blessing and Mary Jane Ewart volunteered to contact library users in hopes of creating a Friends of the Library community group to assist in this task.

Also mentioned was the notion that volunteers may be helpful in organizing and manning the book sale on the front lawn of the Main St. library to be held the weekend of Sept. 27 and 28. The sale of books and records that have been weeded out of the library's collection by assistant librarian Lynn King and the staff will be held on Oct. 4 and 5 in the event of rain. Donations for the sale are welcome and may be brought to the library after Sept. 1.

Concerning library personnel, the board members announced that in October they will begin advertising for a new director whose job it will be to oversee the workings of the public library. At the present time Jane Salvatore, who holds the title of director, coordinates library activities at the public library and the school libraries. Following the advice of library consultant Andrew Geddes, who prepared a detailed report two years ago, the job will be split with separate directors taking over the responsibilities at the public and school libraries. Advertisements will be placed in professional periodicals and local papers; and, announcements of the opening will be sent to the upcoming library conference and local library directors. Information will also be sent to the office of SUNYA's Department of Information Science and Policy. The position will begin in January of 1987.

Other reports included information about: the retaining of William Hallenbeck to audit the library's books; bids being accepted from local printers to paint the library building before winter, and the progress on the repair of the air conditioning, which has been out of commission for the greater part of the summer.

Librarian Nancy Hutchinson reported that more than 150 children registered for the various summer library programs.

Hutchinson announced high school students who are interested in part time jobs as library pages are welcome to apply.

To qualify for the positions students must be 14 or older (16 or older to work in the evenings) and must have working papers. Starting salary is minimum wage. Interested students may obtain information at the library.

In observance of the Labor Day holiday, the next library board meeting will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 2, at 7:30 p.m., in the lower level of the library.

Dean Davis

Summer fun at the Voorheesville Public Library will also continue as members of the summer reading clubs welcome area naturalist Dean Davis. A favorite both at the library and anywhere else he appears, Davis is sure to bring a portion of his traveling menagerie to show the primary grades on Tuesday, Aug. 19, and show the intermediate grades on Thursday, Aug. 21. Both programs will begin at 3:30 p.m. at the library.

Bedtime stories

The pre-school set will also be treated to another bedtime story hour this Thursday, Aug. 21, beginning at 7 p.m. According to Librarian Nancy Hutchinson all little ones are invited to bring along their favorite stuffed animal and enjoy an evening of story and song. Morning story hours will also be held on Tuesday and Friday at 10:30 a.m.

Muppet Movie

Movies goers of all ages will love this week's film offering. "The Great Muppet Caper" will be shown at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 20, at the library. The 98-minute movie will feature Diana Rigg, Charles Grodin and of course Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy as well as a cast of other Muppet characters created by Jim Henson. All are invited to join the group in this rollicking madcap adventure comedy recounting the search for a stolen, priceless necklace.

Seating is limited. People who are closed out of the first showing may get a chance to see the movie later in the week. Check the library for details.

Seniors excursion

New Scotland's active senior citizens will take to the road again next week. After traveling to Saratoga this past Tuesday to take in an evening of racing, the group is scheduled to venture to the women and men a chance to play against opponents from Albany County Club on the club courts.

Village sponsored league play will also end this week, according to recreation chairman Anne Carson.

Finally the village sponsored basketball league will close this week with a tournament tonight (Aug. 13), beginning at 6 p.m., at the courts behind village hall. All are welcome to watch the top two teams of the seven-team league vie for the title.

Concerts in park

One village sponsored activity which will continue past this week will be the concert in the park series. Off to a very wet start, the showcase of talented musicians was rained out the first three out of four performances.

This week a few changes will be made to compensate for the wet weather cancellations. To begin with the rock and roll band Von Rudder originally scheduled to appear this Sunday, Aug. 17, will not perform. At this writing a definite replacement has not been booked; but, coordinator Patty Thorpe assures concert goers that a concert will be held in Hotaling Park beginning at 7 p.m. and urges those interested to watch the signs for information.

Another concert will be held in Hotaling Park at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 19, featuring local musician Tom Fisch, whose Aug. 3 concert was rained out. Fisch, who performs folk and contemporary music, is scheduled to appear twice this week at the Altamont Fair on Thursday, Aug. 14, as a solo act and on Saturday, Aug. 16, on the bill with Voorheesville's country quartet Southbound.

Colonie Coliseum on Thursday, Aug. 21, to see June Valli and Vic Damone. Reservations have been filled; but, interested senior citizens may call Lois Crouse at 765-2109 to have their names put on a waiting list.

Altamont Fair

Some area youngsters will be staying close to home this week to exhibit their projects at the Altamont Fair, which began on Monday, Aug. 11, and will continue through Sunday, Aug. 17. Members of the four local 4-H groups — the Classy Clovers, Osborne Corners, the Lucky Four Leafs and the Voorheesville Vikings — will be on hand at the fair to show off their produce, animals and varied other projects.

Other local residents who will be at the fair include members of the Steinkemp family of Helderledge who will display their fine plants. Southbound and Tom Fisch will display their musical talent.

Child care club

School is right around the corner and preparing for their first year are board members of the Kids Club. The board recently announced the hiring of program director Cynthia Manguilli to oversee the fledgling after-school child care program to begin at the Voorheesville Elementary School this fall.

According to board member Nancy Basal, there are still a few openings for children in grades one through six. Interested parents may call Basal at 765-2637.

Board members of the group would like to thank the community for supporting their recent double dip fundraiser at Stewarts. Proceeds of the event will be used to buy equipment and supplies for use by children in the program.

Still more honors

Summer may be half over, but for those who received end-of-the-year awards the thrill of victory remains. Those honored at the high school are:

Junior class officers: President Mimi Wagner; Vice President Adina Taluto; Secretary Erin McNamara and Treasurer Lynn Herzog.

Student Council Officers: Presidents, Paul Nichols and Jim Volkwien, Secretary Sharon Lloyd; Treasurer Vince Foley and representative of the year, Meredith Messina.

All received a pin and certificate for their contribution to the school.

Goodbye summer

With summer almost at an end, vacation-time recreational activities, sponsored by the Village of Voorheesville, will draw to a close this week.

According to playground supervisor Gina Luke, activities at the village playground located behind the village hall will end this Friday, Aug. 15. The recreational program at that site has been open daily, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., offering crafts, board games and a variety of skill games including croquet and sponge hockey.

Assisted by Tom Clark and students Hiliary Bissell and Darren Duncan, who have helped with the program since it opened on June 30, Luke will oversee a field day this Wednesday, Aug. 13, during playground hours. Youngsters aged 12 and younger are invited to come down and take part in the fun, which will include three-legged races, an obstacle course, and a Jello eating contest. Ribbons will be awarded to the winners. In the event of rain the activities will take place on Thursday or Friday.

Tennis lessons, sponsored by the village and taught by instructor Bill Colquhoun and student teachers Betsy Zeh, Paul Nichols and Steve Smith, will also end this week. According to Colquhoun the free program drew more than 50 students from 7 years through adult. Colquhoun said he would like to see the successful evening class, which was added during the summer, expanded next year so that more people could be included. In addition to giving adults who work a chance to better their skill, an expanded evening program could make lessons available to high school students who would "best benefit" from the experience but are tied into summer jobs during the day.

The program offered both the

The Magic Drumsticks

(At 10, Tommy has become known worldwide as a prodigy. He has been invited to play his drums before the president of the United States, but discovers right before the concert that his magic drumsticks are lost.)

The President had begun to walk over to the boys when he was intercepted by Mr. Jordan, who assured him everything was all right and that he would get the performance under way.

"What's the matter, fellas?" Mr. Jordan asked his sons.

"Aw, Dad, Tommy's favorite sticks got lost and now he says he won't play. I think he's just having one of his old hard-head tantrums."

"Tommy, is it true you won't play without those sticks?"

"Dad, I don't think I can play without them."

"Now, Tommy," reminded his father, "you're the finest drummer in all the world. I know you're only 10 years old, but right now, you are acting very childish and I insist that you begin the concert immediately. The President and all his guests are waiting for you to play."

Tommy's father didn't insist on anything very often. So, more for his dad than for the President, Tommy began to play. To everyone's amazement, and to Tommy's horror, the sounds that came out of his drumset resembled a back alley brawl with garbage cans flying all over. He was unable to keep a steady beat, and everytime his right foot pushed down the bass drum pedal, his right hand would play the same beat on the snare drum. When his left foot came up off the sock cymbal pedal, his left hand would raise the drumstick. He looked and sounded like a small, 10-year-old boy who could hardly play a single-stroke roll let alone a solo concert.

Upon seeing the people in the President's party clasp their ears, Tommy stopped playing. When he saw his dad put his arm around his mom, who was beginning to cry, Tommy unleashed the very worst temper outburst he had ever

"...the beauty is that if your mind was able to produce great drumming through your imagination, then all that's left for you to do is learn the skills of your trade so you can play what you hear in your dreams..."

unleashed. Little Tommy Jordan was monstrously embarrassed and furiously sad. He quickly spent all his energy and flopped across his broken snare drum, and lost consciousness.

"Tommy, Tommy, are you all right? What happened?" Mr. and Mrs. Jordan came running into Tommy's bedroom. "My goodness, look at the mess. What has happened here?"

"Mom? Dad? Where am I?" Tommy began reviving.

"It's okay, Tommy. We're here. Are you okay?"

"Where's the President? Where is everybody? I'm sorry I couldn't play. I'm awful sorry. I'm really sorry, Dad."

"What are you talking about,

Tommy? We're all here, right here in your bedroom."

"You mean we're...we're not...in Washington...at the White House?"

"No, Son, we're home, right here with you."

"And I didn't lose my magic sticks?"

"Your magic sticks? What magic sticks?"

"Larry lost them and I couldn't play any more. I just got weak and I lost the special feeling and I couldn't play...I just couldn't do it..."

"Tommy, I don't know what you were dreaming, but it certainly has upset you. Look what you've done to your drumset. It's practically ruined. You're really going to have to learn how to control your temper. Now, it's 5:30 in the morning and you have school today, young man."

"You mean I'm not a rock star, Dad?"

"Not yet, my boy, but if you get your sleep and keep practicing, perhaps someday. And control your temper so you'll have a drumset to play. We'll get new parts for this one tonight when I get home from work. Right now, to bed."

"Okay, Dad, but instead of going to the music store, could we visit Mr. Rotella, who played at my school? I have to talk to him about something."

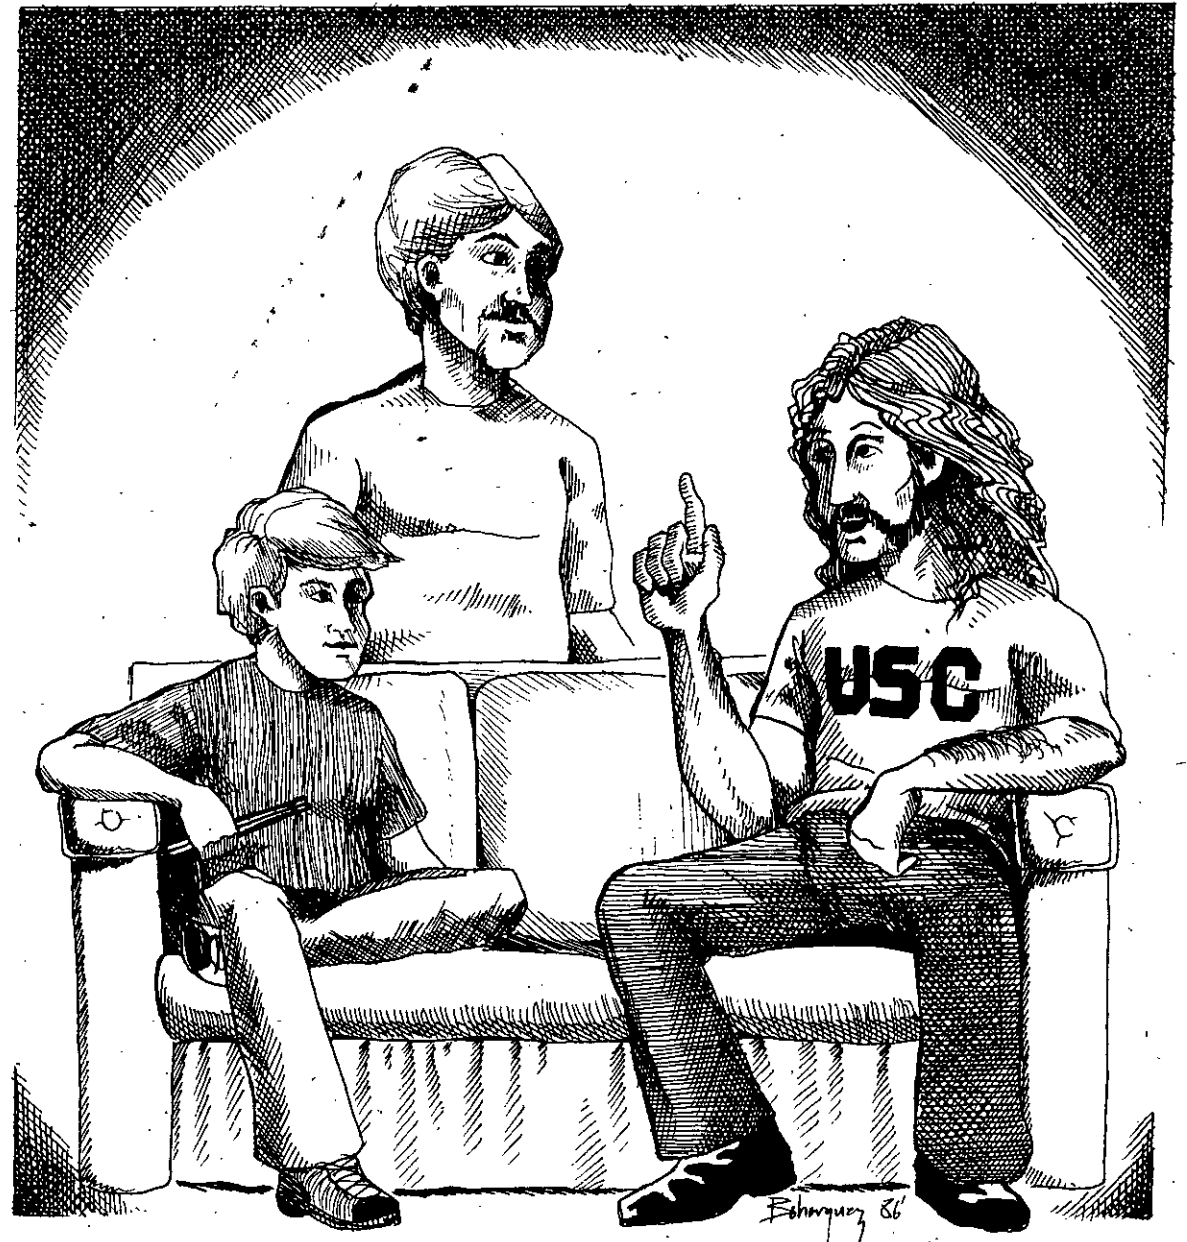

"Sure, Tommy. I'll call him during the day to set it up. Good night, Son."

"G'night, Dad. G'night, Mom. Love you."

"Good night, Tommy. We love you, too."

Tommy lay awake on his bed until sunrise wondering what had happened and what it all meant. By lunchtime, the routine of the school day made it all seem like it really was a dream, but it still felt to Tommy like there was something more to it. He had a hunch that Joe Rotella could explain it to him.

Tommy anxiously got into his dad's car and they drove off to Joe's house. When they were greeted by him, they all went into Joe's living room and sat down.

"Well, Tommy, what's this all about? Your dad mentioned a dream you had."

Tommy described his dream and talked as freely and for as long as he ever had to a grownup. In fact, he talked non-stop for nearly 20 minutes recalling every detail of his fantastic adventure with every feeling he remembered about it.

When he finished, Joe asked him, "What is it, Tommy, that still bothers you about the dream?"

"Well, I just can't get it out of my head that it wasn't just a dream, 'cause it felt so real. I mean I felt like it was really me playing the whole time."

"Oh, I think I understand now what you're feeling," Joe smiled as he sat back in his chair. "Tommy, maybe you are a special talent. I don't know many adult drummers who have had the kind of experience you're describing to me, and you're still a kid."

Joe went on with Tommy's full attention, and his dad's, too.

"You see, there's a kind of person called an 'artist' who has a gift for doing something, anything, whether it's playing an instrument or painting pictures or building buildings or creating businesses. Whatever it is, that artist goes about doing it mainly by feel. What I mean is he or she imagines what the creation is going to be, and then does it according to that imagination. Now that's when the real work begins, because if the artist doesn't have any skills, or he or she is not very good at techniques, then the imagination isn't going too far, is it?"

"No, I guess not."

"Right! But, on the other hand, somebody can have plenty of techniques and skills, yet without imagination or feel for what's being created, it probably won't turn out very well. Now that's more like your teacher, Mr. Pfister. He's a masterful technician on the drums, but he can't play creatively worth beans. He just doesn't have any feel, almost like a perfect robot."

"Yeh, I know what you mean. That's why I don't like him as a teacher."

"Now hold on, Tommy. I'm not putting him down. I happen to think he's a very good teacher, that is, if you want to learn the skills of your profession. But don't expect him to teach you what he doesn't have or doesn't know. Understand?"

"Yeh, I guess I do, but where do I learn feel?"

"Well, Tommy, that's where the gift comes in, your gift."

"My gift?"

"Yeh. Your gift."

"I don't have any gift. I can't even play a steady beat."

"Wait a minute. Now you're talking about skills and techniques, not feel, not the gift. You already have that."

"How can you say I've got the gift? You haven't even heard me play."

"Tommy, I don't have to hear you play to know you've got it."

"Wait, Mr. Rotella," interrupted Tommy's father. "Are you talking about the magic drumsticks?"

"You bet I am."

"But they were only in a dream," protested Tommy. "They weren't real."

"You're right, Tommy," Joe replied, "but whose dream was it?"

"Well, it was mine."

"And, where do dreams come from?"

"I guess from...I don't know." "Son, 'dreams come' from people's imaginations. Mr. Rotella is saying all that magical drumming you did in your dream came out of your very own imagination."

"That's right, Tommy, and the beauty is that if your mind was able to produce great drumming through your imagination, then all that's left for you to do is learn the skills of your trade so you can play what you hear in your dreams through your hands and feet. You see, Tommy, you have the gift of already knowing what to play. Now teach your hands and feet to feel your dream, and you just might become the great drummer you imagined."

Mr. Pfister smiled warmly at the end of Tommy's next lesson and exclaimed, "Well, Thomas, either you've started practicing or you've discovered magic drumsticks."

Diary reveals life on 1891 farm

If you ever wondered what people did with their time nearly one hundred years ago, these excerpts from an 1891 diary recently given to the Bethlehem Historical Association by Dorothy Wright Kleinke of Delmar will enlighten us all.

The author of the diary is a Mrs. Grant, mother of Emma and Libby. Libby was the wife of Walter Wright and Emma was the wife of William Salisbury. We believe that she lived with her two daughters and sons-in-law somewhere in the vicinity of Salisbury Rd. in Elsmere. Certain persons mentioned in the diary are also found to be listed in the Albany County Directory for 1891-92.

Monday-July 27, 1891 — George churned this morning. Emma baked bread. I washed the dishes and swept. We went to sewing on Emma's new blue calico dress and some other things. I wrote Will and Alice a letter and sent it by Y. and E. Wright. They went to Albany to Walter Hawson's wife's funeral at three o'clock. They got back in time for tea. Emma went up to the other house after tea and got a mess of peas.

Thursday-July 30 — Emma baked green apple pies. I ironed and helped get the dinner and washed the dinner dishes. I made a heavy striped shirt for Will and tended the babies. Emma peeled some apples to dry. The boys took three loads of hay to Albany and sold them. My new Doctor Book came today by express.

TIMES REMEMBERED

Allison Bennett

Saturday-Aug. 1 — The men drew in seven loads of hay. Emma peeled a lot of apples to dry. I done some cleaning and sewed some on my dress. Emma picked a mess of beans and the girls came down and brought a large dishpan full of peas. We are all very tired tonight.

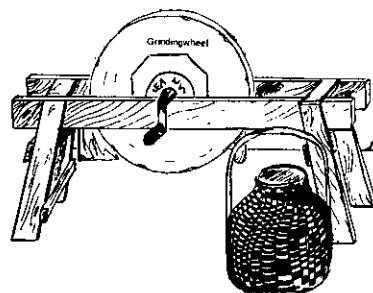

Monday-August 3 — Emma peeled a bushel of apples. Georgie helped me slice them this a.m. I churned and done up the work and made the beds and took care of the children. Lillie and Sarah came and brought a mess of peas.

Wednesday-August 5 — Emma baked bread and cake and apple and lemon pies. I cleaned all through the house. Mrs. Arnold and Cora came over after dinner. Will cut the oats back of the house with the reaper. Emma ironed some. We are all tire tonight. Francis and his brother Edgar has gone to Albany tonight to get peaches to can.

Monday-August 10 — I helped Emma peel the peaches this a.m. and she canned them. Then I picked string beans and cleaned them for dinner. We done up the dinner work then I sewed on my new dress. The baby is teething and feels very cross. It is very hot weather. Francis and Ed went to Albany today to a horse sale. Will and George worked at the oats. We churned today.

Saturday-August 15 — This has been a very busy day. Emma baked 9 loaves of bread and apple pies and dried apple cake. I done a little of most everything and Alice helped around all day. We cleaned the front room all up and Matt helped Georgie dig potatoes. Ed and Francis went to Albany with loads of hay and E. took apples and potatoes.

Sunday-August 16 — Will and Emma and baby and George, Matt and Alice and I went over to church in the market wagon. Francis staid home and got corn and potatoes ready for dinner. Its very warm this p.m. I went over to church in the evening with the Salisbury girls. We called for Mrs. Arnold. Cora Salisbury led the prayer meeting. She done remarkable well. We came home together.

Sunday-August 23 — Francis, Georgie and I drove over to church. Lillie Secor road home with us. Mr. Rowe (Minister at Delmar Methodist Church) and Mr. Vanderpoel drove over here from church and took dinner with us. Mr. Vanderpoel preached for Mr. Rowe today. I did not go over to church tonight — its raining. We had 13 to dinner.

Monday-August 24 — Libbie put up our lunch. We got up early this morning. Emma got breakfast and Martin and Alice, Georgie and me went on the excursion to Round Lake. We went to services at ten and half past two. Alice and Matt took the train and went up to Saratoga after we had our lunch. Got back in time for our train that started at five. Got back to Grosbeck's Crossing Depot about seven. Francis came after Alice and me with the carriage. Matt and George walked home. We all enjoyed the day very much.

Friday-September 4 — Will took Emma and her baby over to the depot after breakfast. She took the train for Miss Warks at Pine Hills above Albany. She expects to stay until next week and I am housekeeper. Francis took a load of apples to cider mill. I set sponge to make bread tomorrow. Will is ploughing and sowing rye.

Friday-September 11 — Libbie and I dried a good lot of corn today and made cucumber pickles and I finished the ironing. George done the churning after dinner. The butter came very nice and hard and a fine yellow color. Little brought some peas. We gave her some ripe tomatoes and melons. Bertie brought us some sweet corn and Libbie gave him some musk melons. I baked bread and elderberry pies. Libbie baked a chocolate layer cake. We made two pans of rusk. We dried a nice lot of sweet corn this week and apples and elderberries.

Thursday-September 24 — I am getting ready to go down to New York to see my son Will. Emma baked four kinds of cake and Libbie baked a layer cake for me to take along. Emma packed a large trunk full of stuff for me to take along down and Libbie packed my satchel full of lunch. Francis took me to Albany to the boat. We landed about six in the morning in New York.

Saturday-October 3 — Visit over. The boat arrived at Albany half past six in the morning. Took the train out to Delmar, then walked home. Francis went after my baggage at night to the depot.

Saturday-October 29 — Georgie has gone to David Clarkes this evening to a pie supper. It's made up to get money for the church. Alice has gathered some walnuts. She made a dried apple cake and a pumpkin johnnycake for supper. It was very good. Emma and I finished quilting her quilt this afternoon. I swept the garret chamber.

Tuesday-December 1 — We sewed and mended all day. The men killed and dressed six hogs for market tomorrow.

Wednesday-December 2 — Wm. Salisbury and Francis Wright went to Albany today and took six pigs and some grain to market. They kept one pig for our own use to eat fresh. Mr. LaGrange came and took dinner here. Libbie and Emma bought a lot of dry goods of him. Will bought Emma a white linen table cloth and George bought Libbie one for a Christmas present. He bought himself three red handkerchiefs. I have three for him for a Christmas present. We had fresh pork for supper and buckwheat pancakes.

Friday-December 4 — Bell was taken a vomiting in the night and she has a very high fever and was flighty by spells. Francis went after Dr. Case. (Daniel C. Case, physician in Slingerlands) Francis paid him $9 for this sickness. Libbie and I papered part of the kitchen today. It looks very nice. Francis and George husked corn in the barn tonight. Bell has the scarlet fever. We all have to stay right at home now. Alice was just down here and looked in the window. She did not dare to come in for she never had the scarlet fever. George and I done the washing today and I had 12 lines of clothes.

Friday-December 25 — This is Christmas Day. Santa Claus came last night and brought us all something. Matt and Alice came over and took breakfast. Alice brought little Alice a doll and Walter a boy doll and Bell a bed and pillows and school bag. I got a new black vail (veil) from my Emma and a new apron and a new dress from my Libbie and Alice and George. We had a nice Christmas dinner. Matt and Alice staid all night. Matt brought the mail. I got a letter from my son, Will, at New York. He has a young daughter born December 18th 1891.

Time for the fair

Once again mid-August is upon us and it is time for the Altamont Fair, the only three-county fair in New York State.

This year's fair, which runs from Aug. 11 through Aug. 17, features a wide variety of entertainment for people of all ages.

The art and flower show in the fine arts building will include paintings on all walls and flower exhibits in the center of the room.

The Miss Altamont Fair pageant for women between the ages of 15 and 21 was held on Monday, Aug. 11. The winner is eligible to compete in the Miss New York State Pageant.

The Royal Hanford Three Ring Circus features three giant elephants, three baby African elephants and eight lions. Shows are held twice daily in the elephant ring of the circus museum.

For country music fans there will be entertainment at the Freihofer Country Time Theatre. At the theater there will be square dancing. Interested parties must wear western attire and have a Bonafire Club Badge for free admittance. Western dancing will start tonight (Aug. 13) at 7:30 p.m. and continue until 8:30 p.m. Eastern competition dancing will begin at 8:30 p.m. and end at 9:30 p.m. when western dancing resumes.

The 4-H is once again at the fair to show off the projects that they have worked on throughout the year. The group is showing a variety of animals from horses to cows, sheep, goats and pigs.

Demonstrations of arts and crafts will be held today (Aug. 13) at 11:30 a.m., on Aug. 14 and 15 at 11 a.m., on Aug. 16 at 12:30 p.m. and on Aug. 17 at 1 p.m.

On the final day of the fair, Aug. 17, an antique and custom car show will begin at 2 p.m. with a parade.

A fireworks display has been scheduled for 9:30 p.m. on closing night.

For the convenience of fairgoers, the Capital District Transportation Authority (CDTA) will run buses to and from Albany and Schenectady and the fairgrounds throughout the fair. The buses will run from State University Plaza every two hours starting at 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., and will stop at Stuyvesant Plaza every two hours from 10:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. Buses will arrive at the fair every two hours beginning at 11 a.m. and will depart at every two hours from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. Final departure will be at 10:45 p.m. Buses will arrive at Stuyvesant Plaza one half hour after departure from the fair and at SUNY Plaza one hour after departure. For information call CDTA at 482-8822.

Mothers group

Mothers are invited to attend an orientation meeting to plan a Mothers Center at the Albany Public Library, 161 Washington Ave., on Wednesday, Aug. 20, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Parents and professionals will provide support services and information on parenting, pregnancy and childbirth at the center.

For information or child care reservations call 463-6960 or 434-8860.

□ Mining repeal

reason for the amendment during the Wednesday's meeting.

Wallace said the town board amended the zoning ordinance in May, 1984, because two parties were interested in small-scale mining in the town, and the town needed to set up a procedure to consider mining. Chester Oliver and William Zacek both applied for and received individual special use permit for two small mines after the ordinance was amended.

"That was the real reason for that," Wallace said. "The board didn't see anything of this size (the proposed Larned mine) coming down the road. We just wanted to clear some things up."

The board also received a letter from the state Department of Environmental Conservation, the lead agency in the mining application, and the regulator of the proposed mine, that revised Larned's application. The proposed mine will only be allowed to operate from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, and 7 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. In the original application granted by DEC, Larned was able to mine from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

DEC also ruled that only enough fuel for a day's operation at the proposed Larned mine be kept on the property to prevent the possibility of a spill.

Hours of the pit and fuel on the property were concerns brought out at the May public hearing.

Thirty-six form letters from 23 households opposed to the mining were received by the board, bringing the total to 63 letters opposed.

In a related matter, Concerned Citizens of New Scotland said after the meeting they are actively soliciting donations from residents and businesses to finance their cause, mailing brochures to residents about the mine, creating a data base on the application, soliciting volunteers, and holding "tea parties" for small groups of residents.

In addition to hiring Linnan, the group has also hired Walter Kresge, of Albright-Kresge Inc. in Albany, to appraise what could happen to residents real estate values if the mine is approved, said Bob Morrison, chairman of the group. That report is expected before the planning board continues the public hearing.

The group has also consulted with other professionals about their opposition, but they declined to comment who they were. A reserve fund is also being built by the group for possible litigation after the outcome of the public hearing, said James Eberhardt. Members of the group also declined to comment on how much money had been raised so far or how much money would be needed by the group.

Support for their position from residents, businesses and the Village of Voorheesville is considerable, members said, and they noted that their discussion with the town board and the planning board has improved considerably.

The group received approval from Mayor Edward Clark to sell refreshments at the village's Southbound concert Sunday night, and make a presentation at the Voorheesville Central Schools Board of Education Monday night.

In other New Scotland Town Board business:

- Received a letter from the state Department of Transportation that said it will study the possibility of reducing the speed limit on Bennet Hill Rd.

- Decided to talk to representatives of the New Scotland Soccer Club on their request for financial assistance. In a letter to the board, club president James Hladan noted that the club has been independent in the past, but with increasing uniform and tournament costs, assistance is needed. The town board does donate some money to the New Scotland Kiwanis for its soccer program.

The next meeting of the town board is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 3.

NEWS FROM SELKIRK AND SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Building church

The Faith Lutheran Church of Glenmont will soon take a giant step towards the realization of what has been just a vision for many years. On Sunday, Aug. 17, friends and members of the church will gather at a small clearing opposite Jericho Drive-In on Rt. 9W in Selkirk for a land dedication service. The purchase of the 3.5 acres, which was once a portion of the Crocker Farm, is the first step in their endeavors to attain a church of their own.

For the past six years the Faith Lutheran Church has shared the fellowship and facilities of the Glenmont Community Church on Chapel Lane in Glenmont. Rev. John S. Macholtz, pastor of the Faith Lutheran Church, greeted his congregation for a 9 a.m. worship service; Rev. Robert Testino EnTin, pastor of the Glenmont Community Church, conducted 11 a.m. services. While this arrangement has enriched the lives of members of both churches through the sharing of programs and activities, the Faith Lutheran membership anxiously awaits the day when their church will be completed. The recent purchase of the land from Ken and Ruth Mallory marks the beginning of a three- to five-year project.

All are invited to attend the dedication service at the property and return to the Glenmont Church at 4 p.m. for a picnic celebration. There will be fun, food, games, and the opportunity to wish the Faith Lutheran Church the very best in their endeavors.

DeSormeau elected

George A. DeSormeau of Bethlehem Lodge BPOE No. 2233 of Selkirk has been appointed a district deputy grand exalted ruler by the newly elected grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Peter T. Affatato of Hicksville, N.Y. DeSormeau will serve as the district representative of the grand exalted ruler to the local lodge.

DeSormeau was sworn in at a convention held in Denver last month. The newly appointed district deputies learned that the Elks donated more than $32 million dollars to various charities during 1985-86, for a recorded total of $514 million in charitable donations since the Elks first began record-keeping in 1880.

Cosman's visit

This Sunday, Aug. 17, the 11 a.m. worship service at the South Bethlehem United Methodist Church will have the Rev. William Cosman as its guest preacher. This will be a homecoming celebration for Rev. Cosman, who served as pastor of the church from 1958 to 1965. Members and friends are invited to attend the service, and the coffee hour and reception immediately following the service.

Benefit sale

Members of the Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance service are currently making plans for their second annual garage sale, which will be held in September at the grove next to the Glenmont Firehouse. The date has not been announced.

If you'd like to make a contribution, start setting aside anything you'd like to donate. Anyone who has had a garage or yard sale and doesn't know what to do with the remaining items may contact Arline Wiggand, Linda Schacht or George Swift; they would be more than happy to receive the leftovers.

Proceeds from the sale will go toward the purchase of new jackets for the ambulance squad.

Seniors picnic

The South Bethlehem-Selkirk Sunshine Senior Citizens have several activities scheduled for the coming week. On Thursday, Aug. 14, many of the seniors will meet at the Ravena Senior Citizens Center on Main Street in Ravena for an evening meal at 5 p.m. Any senior who would like to attend may call Robert Mayo at 767-3006 for information.

The seniors of the area have also been invited to attend a picnic being sponsored by the Bethlehem Lions Club. The picnic will begin 1 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 21, at Bethlehem's Elm Avenue Park.

Crash investigated

Town of Nassau police said they are continuing their investigation into a motorcycle crash at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, that killed a 16-year-old Delmar woman.

Amie Beth Sherman, 16, of Kenwood Ave., died following the crash at Albany Medical Center Hospital, police said.

Sherman and two other women were walking south on County Rt. 15 in the Town of Nassau when she started to cross the road, police said. Sherman was about in the middle of the road when a motorcycle, driven by Gene Freemantle, 18, of Nassau, came around the turn, also traveling south in the middle of the road.

Police said the motorcycle struck Sherman and carried her for some distance until she was thrown off. Freemantle and the motorcycle then traveled for a short distance, drove into a ditch, and Freemantle fell off the motorcycle.

Freemantle's condition was not available, Nassau Police said.

RCS board approves contract with teachers

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Board of Education has approved a three-year contract with the RCS Teachers Association.

The contract will be in effect until July, 1988, and will be retroactive to July, 1985. The RCSTA had been without a contract since 1985.

The RCS school board approved the contract at their Monday, Aug. 4, meeting, after a tentative settlement was reached on June 25 that ended 18 months of negotiations.

The RCSTA approved the contract late last month, 125 to five, in a mail-in vote.

"I am delighted," said Superintendent William Schwartz after the meeting. "I think everyone is happy that we can now concentrate on our academic program."

Highlights of the contract include three 10 percent per year pay raises. The teachers will be getting a full year of retroactive increases, and that payment is expected in the Friday, Aug. 22, payroll. Throughout the negotiations, the district offered a seven percent increase, and the teachers had been asking for 12 percent.

Dental insurance will also be increased under the contract, and non-instructional duties for elementary school teachers were decreased.

In other business, the school board appointed the committee on the handicapped for the 1986-87 school year. Sitting on the committee will be Martha Beck, chairman, director of special education for the district; Burt Butlin, school psychologist; Rose Nunziato, school nurse; George Montone, a district administrator; Ira LeFevre, school physician; and parents Jean Canuteson and Linda Bruno.

RCS High School senior Anthony Williams, Jr., was given permission to attend a Prevention '86 conference in Syracuse on Sept. 20 to 23. Williams was invited to serve on the Youth Involvement Subcommittee, and the district will pay for his expenses. The conference is sponsored by the state Division of Substance Abuse Services.

The school board also approved several appointments; including Joseph Viscusi, a social studies teacher; Mary Wilken, a high school librarian; Wayne Eichen, to the special education resource room at the Pieter B. Coeymans Elementary School; Joan Kratz, a guidance counselor at the high school; and Kimberly Jeram, a half-time kindergarten teacher at Ravena Elementary School.

The next meeting of the RCS Board of Education is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 18.

Senior housing

A ground breaking for a 24-unit senior citizens housing project, sponsored by Paul Seiden and the Albany County Rural Housing Alliance, was held at Orchard Avenue in Ravena on Tuesday, Aug. 12, at 11 a.m. The managing agent for the project will be Seiden and Sons Inc. of Delmar.

The Louis Apartments will provide housing for disabled individuals and people 62 years or older. With funding provided by the Farmers Home Administration and rent subsidies provided by the New York State Division of Housing and Community Renewal, rents for the majority of the apartments will be set at 25 percent of the adjusted income less a designated utility allowance.

For information call Frank Plattner or Maryrose Horn at 439-4941.

Support meeting

The Compassionate Friends, a self-help group for parents whose children have died, will hold its monthly meeting at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 85 Chestnut St., Albany, on Tuesday, Aug. 19, at 7:30 p.m. The meeting is open to bereaved parents and siblings over the age of 10.

For information call 465-8705 or 872-2222.

THE HOME TEAM

By Tom Kuck
Broker Manager

Who Are Those Buyers?

• The ranks of prospective buyers is swollen, not only by those attracted by the opportunities lower interest rates offer, but by the baby boomers who are now at the peak of their family-formation years. Currently between 30 and 40 years old, they need room for their wives and children, room for their hobbies and recreation pursuits, room to spread out.

• Large numbers of potential buyers have learned why it makes sense to deal with a real estate agent: we do the house hunting for them and present them with the properties that meet their needs and their budgets.

• And house SELLERS have learned that we'll screen and qualify those potential buyers to weed out the "lookers" and the "dreamers" who'd like a house but can't afford one. We bring you prospects who want a home like yours and are able to buy it.

Area swimmers and wrestlers win at Empire State Games

The Empire State Games came to a close this past Sunday with three area swimmers representing the Adirondack Region and making names for themselves. Three local wrestlers also came home with medals.

The three swimmers, Justin Baird and Chris Drew of Delmar and Kevin Tyrell of Voorheesville, each left Buffalo with two medals.

Drew, 15, a Bethlehem Central High School varsity swimmer, captured silver medal in the 50 meter freestyle. Drew also placed eighth in the 200 meter back stroke and 10th in the 100 meter back stroke.

Tyrell, 16, a member of the combined Voorheesville-Guilderland varsity swim team, won a silver medal in the 100 meter freestyle and placed 6th and 9th in the 200 and 400 meter freestyle events respectively.

Baird, the youngest of the group at 14, is a member of the Bethlehem Central High School varsity swim team. He won a bronze medal in the 200 meter free style event, missing second place and a silver medal by one hundredth of a second. Baird also placed fifth in the 1,500 meter freestyle and seventh in the 400 meter freestyle.

The three teens joined with Sean Maxwell of Troy and gained a bronze medal in the 400 meter freestyle relay. The four also competed in the 800 meter freestyle relay and 400 meter medley relay.

In wrestling, Rich Kane of Voorheesville grabbed a third in freestyle and won a gold in Greco-Roman. Tim Baranska of Selkirk won a bronze medal in Greco-Roman and his brother Jerry placed fourth in freestyle after losing a controversial match for third place. Willie Van Hoessan of Selkirk closed out top finishers with a fifth place ranking in Greco-Roman.

Delmar youngsters play summer soccer

Five Delmar Youngsters, Maggie Kranzen, Melissa Mann, Kirsten Mattarese, Erin McDermott and Kristen VanDuzer, have spent the summer traveling around New York State, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Virginia and into Canada playing soccer.

They are a part of the Capital District Olympic Development Team, and their competition are top teams in the Under 12 Division. Franzen and Mattarese have played virtually every game at the fullback positions, and McDermott, VanDuzer and Mann have all played in the goal or at the fullback position.

The five members of the Bethlehem Soccer Club have been forced to sacrifice much time during the summer to sharpen their soccer skills. They have been away on many weekends and even spent the Fourth of July in Hartford, Conn. Soccer for the five isn't only a summertime activity but a sport they train for year round, practicing outdoors when Mother Nature permits and indoors during winter and the rainy seasons.

Candidates for the team were picked from members of 25 area soccer clubs. Tryouts for the Bethlehem Soccer Club's Under-12 Girls are to be held in September and tryouts for the Olympic Development Team will be held in November.

At soccer camp

Michael Fritts and Patrick Fish of Delmar attended the 13th annual soccer camp held at Hartwick College, Oneonta, from July 20 to 25. The camp was attended by 150 boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 18.

The camp was directed by head varsity coach from Hartwick College, Jim Lennox, and the soccer skipper at Muhlenberg College, Jeff Tipping.

Now there are 7

After starting with a 14 team playoff schedule, the Church Softball League teams with a shot at capturing this year's championship has been cut in half in the single-elimination tournament.

Glenmont, top finisher in regular season, had little trouble in first round play as it defeated Bethlehem Lutheran by a 15-5 score. Wynantskill, Delmar Reformed and St. Thomas II were one-run victors over Methodist, Clarksville and Westerlo respectively. Voorheesville defeated Bethany by a 6-3 margin and St. Thomas I rolled over Bethlehem Community, 18-5. Presby rounded out the first-round victors as it defeated New Scotland 9-2.

Take the Clara Johnson Test.

In Alamance County, North Carolina, Honda lawn mowers are assembled from the wheels up. Then, each mower must pass rigid quality control standards before we ship it.

The final test is a critical performance check to ensure easy starting. We call it the Clara Johnson Test. At the end of the assembly line, each mower is started or it doesn't ship.

Come in and give the whole line of Honda mowers the Clara Johnson Test yourself. Each one will start easily, or it wouldn't be a Honda.

OBITUARIES

Theodore A. Goodrich

Theodore A. Goodrich, 79, founder of Goodrich Displays, Inc., of Albany, died Sunday, Aug. 3.

A resident of Glenmont, he was born in Albany and educated in Albany public schools and at the Menhennitt School of Design in Toronto, Canada.

A veteran of World War II, he served in the Navy. He founded Goodrich Displays, Inc., on Broadway in Albany after the war.

He designed and produced the scenery for the Legislative Correspondents Association annual Gridiron Show from 1930 to 1981, and he was elected an honorary LCA member in 1980.

He was an active and distinguished member of the Masonic Fraternity since 1946, and he was elected to many positions of honor and achieved the 33rd degree in September, 1954.

Theodore A. Goodrich

He was a 25-year member and past president of the Fuller Road Volunteer Fire Department.

Survivors include a son, Theodore A. Goodrich, Jr. of Colonie; a daughter, Nancy J.

Benson of Clifton Park; a sister, Lois Campbell of Whispering Pines, N.C.; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in St. Agnes Cemetery of Menands. Arrangements were by Reilly and Son Funeral Home of Colonie.

Contributions may be made to St. Peter's Hospice.

Amie Beth Sherman

Amie Beth Sherman, 16, of Kenwood Ave., Elsmere, died Aug. 7 following a motorcycle-pedestrian collision in Nassau.

Born in Albany, she lived most of her life in Elsmere.

She had completed her junior year at Bethlehem Central High School. She was a member of the school's DECCA club, and a 1985-86 regional qualifier for Finance and Credit in the annual national competition. She also took art and fashion design classes during the summer at the Junior College of Albany.

Survivors include her father, Theodore D. Sherman III; and her grandparents, Theodore and Freda Sherman of Slingerlands, Margaret McTague Bushek of Elsmere, and friend Florence Newell of Glenmont.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery in Glenmont. Arrangements were by Philip J. Frederick Funeral Home of Albany.

M. J. Oscar Smith

M. J. Oscar Smith, 58, of Delmar, a state corrections official, died Friday, Aug. 1.

He was director of support operations for the state Correctional Department.

He had served as town justice in Wakill in Dutchess County.

He was a member of the United Fourth Presbyterian Church in Albany.

Survivors include his wife, June Corsey; four children, Laurie Ann Smith of Schenectady, Corey O. Smith of Malays Bridge, Van K. Smith of Wakill, and Lawrence Smith of Wakill; his mother, Agnes E. Smith of New Paltz; and four grandsons.

Burial was in Brunswick Cemetery in Shawangunk. Arrangements were by Applebee Funeral Home of Delmar.

Contributions may be made to the Delmar Rescue Squad.

Team drills

The Elsmere Wanderers Drill Team finished in the top five for eight out of nine events at the New York State Parade and Drill Team Captains Association competition in Spencerport on Saturday, Aug. 2. The team finished third overall.

The team finished first in the three-man ladder with a time that was .08 second off the western New York area record.

The state championship will be held on Aug. 16 in Syracuse; and, the Labor Day invitational will be held on Sept. 1 at Islip Terrace.

Insect study

An outdoor study of common area insects, entitled "Insects: Friends and Foes," will be held at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Game Farm Rd., Delmar, on Tuesday, Aug. 19, at 7 p.m.

All are welcome to attend the free program. For information call 457-6092.

Ticketed after crash

A 23-year-old Delmar man received minor bruises after the vehicle he was driving crashed into a tree on Kenwood Ave. at 5:15 a.m. Sunday, Bethlehem Police reported.

William Heffernan, Jr., of Gardner Terrace, was treated at Albany Medical Center Hospital, and was later released, a hospital spokesman said.

Police said Heffernan was traveling eastbound on Kenwood Ave., near Delmar Pl., and as he rounded a curve in the road, his vehicle slid sideways leaving 130 feet of tire marks. His vehicle then traveled off the left side of the road and hit a tree.

Heffernan was ticketed for unreasonable speed, failure to obey traffic signs, and driving without insurance.

Twilight insight

An outdoor study of the natural history of twilight will be offered at Five Rivers Environmental Center, Game Farm Road, Delmar, on Aug. 26 at 7 p.m. The program, entitled "A Walk into the Twilight Zone," will include a walking tour of the center's trails.

For information call 457-6092.

A SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome) class for all interested ambulance and rescue squad members will be held at the Selkirk Firehouse on Sept. 8, from 7 to 9 p.m.

On Sunday, Aug. 24, the Selkirk Fire Department 2 in Glenmont will hold their family day picnic at Mossell's Grove in North Bethlehem.

The Voorheesville Fire Department will continue to collect papers that are placed by the road on the third Sunday of the month. Unfortunately, they are no longer able to accept magazines.

Don't forget Delmar's Fire Apparatus Muster on Aug. 23. The parade will step off at noon from the Bethlehem Middle School and travel up Kenwood Avenue to Adams Place, then to Adams St. The parade will proceed to Delaware Avenue, where it will turn on Oakwood Place and end at the Middle School. Refreshments will be offered at the event.

The state convention for fire fighters will be held in Syracuse on Aug. 16 and 17. Roy Cooke and Gerry Day will represent Delmar at the convention.

Area residents who are interested in joining their local fire department or ambulance squad should call the nearest station for information.

Anyone interested in contributing information for the Fire Fighters Corner may call Isabel Glastetter at 439-2627 any evening.

Drive with care

Editor, The Spotlight:

Within the last 10 days, several young people have lost their lives or been injured on the roadways of the greater capital area. A 13-year-old girl was killed by a driver while riding her bike. A 15-year-old was taken to Albany Medical Center, critically injured, on the same day from the same cause. A 13-year-old boy, who had won a medal in a track meet earlier, was hit by a speeding car and taken to the hospital with head and leg injuries. The driver was injured as well when the car overturned. Two young men on a motorcycle were trapped under a truck; only one was extricated alive. In Saratoga, friends gathered, not to celebrate graduation or the beginning of summer, but to stand before the casket of a classmate. Her precious short life was snatched from her in a single moment by a driver wielding more horse power than a stadium full of ancient chariots pitted in competition. And this is only some of the carnage.

As an outreach nurse for the New York State Head Injury Association, I understand only too well that this is not an exhaustive list of the trauma which has touched the lives of our friends and neighbors in the past week. The statistics speak only too loudly although they can never tell the full story of suffering experienced by loved ones who are left with only memories after investing a lifetime of love and commitment. And they can never speak to the frustration, and sometimes pain, which often accompany the rehabilitation process for those who survive and struggle to regain a life under their own control.

The statistics do tell us that the injuries and deaths will continue. Many of these victims, especially males from age 16 through 24, will suffer traumatic head injury. Excessive speed and alcohol will be factors in many of these accidents. The failure to use restraints will also affect outcomes. The average man who is not restrained in a 35 mph collision will be hurled forward with a force of more than 3 tons. An astronaut experiences 20 times less gravitational force on liftoff.

There is, however, no way to go back in time and fasten a seat belt or physically restrain the hand of an average citizen before he takes the drink which makes him into an unwitting killer. Likewise, there is no way to redress the injustice of a young person's life being snatched away, and no adequate comfort for the grieving family who waits outside—the emergency room afraid to hear news of their traumatically head-injured loved one.

If a disease ravaged our population to the same extent as the epidemic on our roadways, the country would be up in arms. With vehicular accidents, the epidemic proportions lose impact. Because of the sheer numbers of our citizens killed, we, the public, have come to not only expect, but even accept, such a waste of human life and potential. When a jet liner goes down, killing everyone on board, it is front page news. Yet the same number of people are killed each day on our roadways — and buried quietly by their family and friends.

In fact, advertising of all types, as well as television and films, glamorize speed, alcohol and risk-taking. Ultimately, it is a matter of image and values. Perhaps, we can remember just for this one day that all of these people are — or were — vulnerable and precious people who will never come this way again. Some who live will be changed. We cannot turn time back for them and their loved ones. But, we can refuse to believe the projections of future carnage and build our personal image upon our caring attitudes and our carefulness as pedestrians and drivers. Think about it before you turn on your ignition next time.

Betty Pieper, R.N.
Coordinator, Outreach Program
NYS Head Injury Assn.

Helping hand

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to thank everyone who came to my assistance on Friday when my car conked out at the stop light in the Plaza, especially to the gentleman, and my son, who tried very hard to get my car going and ended up pushing the car out of the line of traffic.

It is nice to know that there are still people to lend a helping hand.

Picnic enjoyed

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Veterans of the Foreign Wars held a chicken barbecue for the Bethlehem Senior Citizens and the Sunshine Club at the Slingerlands Fire Pavillion recently. It is always looked forward to and enjoyed by all. We thank all the fellows who put it on. Thanks to the Slingerlands firemen and the Veterans Post 3185 Commander Hotaling.

Mauro on authority

Frank J. Mauro of Delmar has been appointed to the Development Authority of the North Country, a public benefit corporation formed to plan and focus economic development programs in Jefferson, Lewis and St. Lawrence Counties. Mauro's appointment was recently announced by Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Mauro served as secretary of the ways and means committee of the State Assembly. He previously served as director of the program development group of the assembly.

Mauro is a member of the project 2000 economic development and economic structure advisory committees. He is also a member of the American Political Science Association.

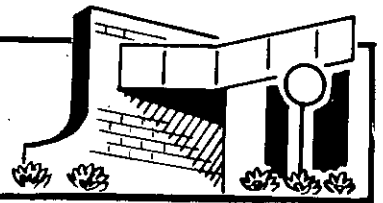

Student honors

Karen O'Keeffe of Delmar and Stacie Griffin of Slingerlands were recently named to the high honor roll at the Albany Academy for Girls.

Among students named to the school's honor roll were: Melissa Schwartz and Elyse Wilson, Voorheesville; Sandra Galib, Delmar; Jill Donovan, Glenmont, and Edith Wagoner, Selkirk.

Check It Out

BETHLEHEM PUBLIC LIBRARY

Have you been surprised at some of the bright, young faces behind the desk in the Children's Room at the Bethlehem Library this summer? Although working with children certainly keeps the regular staff members feeling young, we still haven't discovered the secret of looking younger and younger. So who are these eager, helpful youngsters, answering questions, telling stories in the Storyhour Room and showing movies in the Community Room?

They are none other than our corps of over 30 summer volunteers. Their youth and enthusiasm have provided us with just the boost we needed to launch this Summer's Reading Club "Swashbooklers," which will in turn serve hundreds of young readers in the community.

To be a summer volunteer one must have completed fifth grade, be available for a minimum of three hours over the summer and be sincerely willing to help out in the Children's Room. Volunteers have a wide variety of tasks from which to choose — from assisting with special programs to working at the Children's Room desk. The desk is a particularly popular spot because it is here that they can answer the phone, sign children up for programs and computer time, as well as listen to children report on all the interesting books they've been reading as part of the summer reading club.

Make no mistake, these youngsters are essential to the smooth functioning of the Children's Room in the hectic, eventful atmosphere that reigns every summer. This is a real job for them which comes complete with responsibilities and expectations. Experience gained here becomes valuable for future reference when applying for employment in later years at the library or for other outside employers.

One newcomer we would especially like to introduce to you this summer is our full-time, paid summer assistant, Miss Lisa Thomas, a student at the State University at Plattsburgh. It is her job to help our regular summer storyteller, Stephanie Pouliott, visit the town's playgrounds and parks to conduct storyhours geared for both pre-school and school-age children. This program, conducted in conjunction with the Parks and Recreation Department, served 750 children over a five-week period last-year. We expect this year's attendance to be even higher.

So why not stop at the Children's Desk to say hello to Lisa and our other young "staffers?" Remember, behind every smile is a young person who is honestly trying to do his or her best "on the job."

Richard P. Sherwin

Richard J. Miller

On university board

Three area residents, Richard J. Miller and Richard P. Sherwin of Delmar and Steven L. Einhorn of Elsmere, were among the elected officers of the University Foundation at Albany.

The University Foundation was established to forge the links of partnership between the resources of the University at Albany, State University of New York and the needs of the business community.

Miller, president of Richard J. Miller and Associates was elected for a three-year term as a new director. Miller graduated from Albany Law School and has been involved in more than a dozen voluntary organizations. He has been chair of the legal committee of the Menands Workshop, a member of the executive committee of the American Red Cross and chair of the special events committee of the Albany Chamber of Commerce. Miller was head of St. Peter's Hospital Associates and an officer and governor of the board of Albany Country Club.

Sherwin, a graduate of Fordham University in economics, has been working with Key Bank since 1978. He is Vice President of Better Albany. Living and a director with both the Center for the Disabled and St. Peter's Hospital Foundation. Sherwin was also elected as a new director for the foundation.

Einhorn, president of Einhorn, Yaffee, Prescott PC, was elected as vice president of the foundation for the coming year.

Julia Wallace married

Julia E. Wallace, granddaughter of Charlotte Dale of Delmar, and James Fredrick Fryman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fryman of Newark, Ohio, were married Aug. 2 at St. Patrick's Church in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The bride, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, State University College at Oswego and State University at Binghamton, is an associate professor of psychology at the University of Northern Iowa. The bridegroom, a graduate of Denison University, Granville, Ohio, and the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, is an assistant professor of geography at the University of Northern Iowa.

After a wedding trip to England, the couple will reside in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Married in Slingerlands

Holly Diane Veltman, daughter of Mrs. Iva Veltman of Delmar and the late Herbert Veltman, and Peter William Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schmidt of Delmar, were married April 26 at the Community United Methodist Church in Slingerlands.

Michelle Denault was maid of honor, and Cyndy Fowles, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Leslie Gohlke and Mary Veltman, sister-in-law of the bride. Shannon Hill and Brenda Hill, nieces of the bride, served as junior bridesmaids, and Cortney Coates and Nicole Fowles, also nieces of the bride, served as flower girls. Andrew Schmidt, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and ushers were Donald Veltman, John Pangburn and Richard Palmer.

The bride, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, is employed by Northeast Savings Bank. She is attending Hudson Valley Community College. The bridegroom, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and Hudson Valley Community College, is employed by the Voorheesville Central School District.

After a wedding trip to Cape Ann, Mass., the couple resides in Delmar.

Channel off air

The Bethlehem Channel will not be broadcasting from Aug. 18 through Sept. 5. During the break equipment will be repaired and programs will be taped. The community bulletin board will continue as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Zandt
50th celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Van Zandt of Delmar celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on June 28 at the Normanside Country Club. The couple was married on June 27, 1936 at the Third Reformed Church, Albany.

The Van Zandts have a daughter, Linda Van Zandt Thorsen of Loudonville, and three grandchildren.

Mr. Van Zandt is a retired accountant for the D and H Railroad. Mrs. Van Zandt is retired from her duties as a medical secretary and bookkeeper with a local neurosurgical group. She previously served as assistant statistician with a local insurance company.

Married in Pittsburgh

Nancy Sue Golding, daughter of Martha S. Golding of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Dr. Irvin M. Golding, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Robert Herman Hartheimer, son of Marion and Albert Hartheimer of Slingerlands, were married on April 5 at Temple Sinai in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia University. She is a social worker and associate director of the Friendly Tour Program, Fresh Air Fund, in New York City.

The groom is a graduate of Hamilton College and the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. He is an investment banker and vice president of the investment banking division for Merrill Lynch in New York City.

The couple resides in New York City.

Vitillo-Reichel

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Vitillo of Delmar have announced the engagement of their daughter, JoAnn, to Brian Reichel, son of Mrs. Dorothy Reichel of Amsterdam and Lawrence Reichel of Esperance.

The bride-to-be, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and Albany Business College, is employed as a secretary for the New York State Teachers' Retirement System. Her fiancé, a graduate of Amsterdam High School, Meteria Electronics, New Orleans, and Riverside School of Aeronautics, Utica, is employed as a field advisor for Northern Fire Systems Inc., of Schenectady.

A Sept. 12, 1987, wedding is planned.

Smith-Domermuth

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Smith of Clarksville have announced the engagement of their daughter, Kelly Marie, to Alan W. Domermuth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Domermuth, Sr., of Clarksville.

The bride-to-be, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, is employed by Roger Smith Decorative Products, Delmar. Her fiancé, also a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, is employed by Heldeberg Siding.

A Sept. 20 wedding is planned.

The summertime growing season is well under way and gardeners in the Town of Bethlehem are invited to share their excess produce with the town's senior citizens, via the town's "bumper crop" program.

Each Thursday, gardeners may bring their extra produce to town hall, where it will be distributed to the town's seniors following the regular meeting of the senior citizens organization. The group meets from 12:30 to 4 p.m.

Officers elected

Area residents were recently elected officers of the Capital District Chapter of the National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis. The new officers include: Mrs. Harvey Kahalas of Delmar, first vice president; Mrs. Walter Goldstein of Delmar, vice president, education; Louis C. Tarantelli of Delmar, vice president, fund raising, and Jeanne Shaw Berman of Glenmont, vice president, publicity.

The National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis informs patients, physicians and the public through educational programs designed to increase awareness and demythologize inflammatory bowel disease. The foundation works to help patients and their families to cope with the disease and fosters research for finding a cause and cure.

Exercise programs for senior citizens will begin again on Monday, Sept. 8, at 10 a.m. The schedule will remain the same. Classes will be held at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. on Mondays and Friday and at 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. on Wednesdays. Admission is 50 cents.

Blood pressure clinics will start again on Tuesday, Sept. 16. The clinics are always held on the third Tuesday of the month, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. and from 7 to 8 p.m., in the Bethlehem Town Hall auditorium.

A bus trip is being planned to see Possession, Murder at Cherry Hill, on Oct. 19 at 2 p.m. The performance at the Egg will be preceded by a luncheon. The cost of the play is $9. Reservations may be made by signing up in room 110 of Bethlehem Town Hall or calling 439-4955, ext. 77.

Community Corner

Share the road

A little extra care by both bicyclists and motorists may avoid accidents that, for the bicyclist particularly, may result in serious injury or death. "Motorists and bicyclists must recognize each other's rights to use our streets and highways," Motor Vehicles Commissioner Patricia B. Aduci said, "and watch out for each other, making the roads safer for all of us."

Motorists should grant bicycles the right of way as they would other vehicles. On the other side, bicyclists should stop at stop signs and red lights, obey all traffic signals, use approved hand signals at least 100 feet before stopping or turning, ride with traffic on the right side of the road, never ride between rows of traffic or hang onto other vehicles, have a rearview mirror, wear a helmet, and use headlights and taillights at night.

Show the same consideration that you would like other to show you.
