Voorheesville considers revote School board seeks meeting with teachers on contract

By Patricia Mitchell

The Voorheesville Central school board may put up another budget or prepare a "bare bones" budget with special propositions for district voters following the defeat of the proposed $7.373 million spending plan last week.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 27, to further discuss their strategy.

By a 300-vote margin, Voorheesville Central school district residents rejected a spending plan that would have increased taxes by 26 percent in the Town of New Scotland. Voters defeated the 1987-88 budget by 763 to 426 in last Wednesday's election.

This was the largest turnout in the district and the second time a school budget had been defeated. The first time was in 1974.

However, voters did approve a special proposition to purchase three school buses at $130,000. The measure passed 557 to 504.

The school board met Monday night to begin discussing its next step. After the meeting, President John McKenna said the board plans to put "something" in front of the voters again. That could be a pared-down budget, or special propositions to vote on after the school board adopts an austerity budget.

By Wednesday's meeting, the school board plans to have an update on negotiations with the teachers. Because they hope to include salary increases in a new budget that until now have been unknowns, McKenna said the board members asked their negotiator to set up another meeting with the union later this week. He said it would be good for the budget if an agreement between the district and the teachers was reached within the next few weeks so that the board could go back to the voters with a total package.

With their contract to expire at the beginning of July, the teachers and the district reached an "amicable impasse" in April, McKenna said, and the Public Employees Relations Board was called in because both sides felt it would help the process if a third party was involved. However, he said they are still talking.

After the negotiator meets with the teachers union, McKenna said the board hopes to have an idea of where negotiations stand for the next week and a half. If it doesn't look like an agreement will be forthcoming, then the school board will decide what to do next.

The board hopes to be aiming towards a decision Wednesday, with the new proposal formalized at the June meeting, McKenna said.

"That is the way it looks," he said.

Even though this year's budget runs out July 1, McKenna said the district would run on a contingency budget after that without any action by the board or voters. A contingency budget would provide for only state-mandated items and other factors necessary for health and safety. Not included would be book purchases, interscholastic sports, use of the school buildings or grounds by outside groups and transportation beyond the state requirements.

Bypass link seen

By Tom McPheeters

A route to take motorists from New Scotland Rd. to the Delmar Bypass by way of Fisher Blvd. could be in-place in as little as two years time, says Bethlehem Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick.

But until it is completed, Hendrick said Friday, the proposed new Fisher Blvd. extension that is to run through the Delmar Village development won't be completed to allow through traffic.

Concerns of neighbors of the development that Orchard St. would become a new arterial when Delaware Ave. is linked to Orchard St. have sparked some of the opposition to Delmar Village.

Legislators argue over bonding work

By Patricia Dumas

Albany County will borrow money instead of using existing funds to pay for new public works vehicles, build salt storage sheds, and repair a piece of highway.

The financing method was the focal point of debate at a relatively quiet session of the county legislature last week. Republicans argued against borrowing but on slow roll call votes the Democrat-controlled body approved issuance of bonds and capital notes. They authorized borrowing $585,072 for the vehicles, $149,500 for the road repair and $2,280,000 for the storage sheds.

"I find," said Republican Minority Leader W. Gordon Morris, Jr. of Delmar, "that the philosophy of the Democratic Party in Albany County is to overtax people in order to make some money. I think that the average taxpayer would prefer we tax at a proper rate and not try to make money on over-taxing."

Morris remarks were in reply to Democrat legislator Richard M. Myers, Albany, who said the county can make money by investing at 6 or 7 percent interest after bonding at a lower rate.

Delmar Republicans Robert W. Hoffmeister and James C. Ross also protested borrowing. Hoffmeister said that "with any sort of planning the county should be able to look ahead and anticipate its vehicle need without having to bond over a period of time." Ross said the expenses "could well be met through the operating budget" and declared that "if income exceeds expenses, then financing should come from surplus funds." He noted that New York City officials in the past had found themselves in trouble for bonding when, like Albany County, they had a surplus on hand.

Morris claimed that the county highway superintendent had dutifully provided the legislature with information on highway needs but that "this legislative body has failed to study that information and now is calling for crisis government funding."

The vehicles to be bought include a dump truck, four sanders, a paint truck, two pickup trucks and two sweepers. That equipment should last from 15 to 20 years, according to County Attorney William Conboy, who pointed out that the bonding would permit payments to be spread over the "useful life" of the vehicles. Republican Edward Buhrmaster of Latham disagreed, saying that "no way are these vehicles going to last 20 years."

The authorization for borrowing will provide, besides the vehicles, nine sheds for storing salt at the county public works subdivisions in Voorheesville, Rensselaerville and Westerlo and will finance reconstruction of part of the county roadway that adjoins the Albany County nursing home.

The legislature also approved a contract with Clough, Harbour and Associates for up to $30,900 of engineering services related to the shed construction.

In other action the legislature without debate approved work orders related to construction of the Albany County Civic Center. The change orders, described as routine, involve removal of existing concrete slabs, backfilling, power feed to a traffic signal and piling. The work was authorized on a voice vote with some negative Republican votes.

New Scotland GOP taps Clark

By Patricia Mitchell

Edward Clark, mayor of Voorheesville, has been picked to run for supervisor of New Scotland on the Republican ticket.

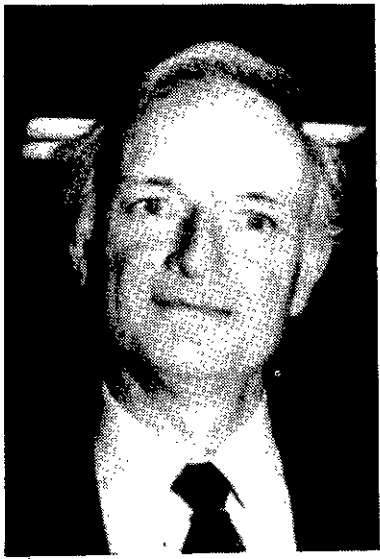

He will face town Councilman Herbert Reilly in what is expected to be a pivotal contest for control of the town board. Incumbent Supervisor Stephen Wallace has decided not to run for another term.

The Republicans tapped Clark to run after meeting Sunday, said party chairman John Graziano.

Clark was elected to the four-year term of mayor in March, 1986, after being appointed to the seat in May, 1985. He ran unopposed.

A 19-year resident of Voorheesville, Clark is the director of research and program development for state Assembly Minority Leader Clarence Rappleyea.

The Republicans will also run several incumbents in November's election, Graziano said. On the ticket will be Wyman Osterhaut, seeking reelection to the town board, Michael Ricci, county legislator from the 33rd district, Pete Van Zetten for highway superintendent, Corinne Cossac for town clerk and Edita Probst for tax collector.

Blanche Stickley of Clarksville, wife of planning board Chairman Richard Stickley, will be running for town council, and Rosemary Filkins will run for county legislator in the 38th district. Charles Houghtaling of Feura Bush will be seeking reelection on the Democratic ticket, and Graziano said Filkins has already been endorsed for that race by the Westerlo Republican Party.

"I feel this slate has a lot to offer," Graziano said Monday.

All of the candidates will be "hardworking," he said. The slate offers continuity with a little bit of the past and building groundwork for the future, he said.

Clark was endorsed to led the Republican slate after Wallace decided last month to not seek reelection after 14 years. Even though citizens and some members of the Republican committee asked him to run again, Wallace said Monday, he has not changed his mind about his decision.

In March, the Republicans endorsed Voorheesville Village Justice Kenneth Connolly to run for town justice, a position he held for one term until Cynthia LaFave won the seat four years ago.

Last week, most of the Democratic slate was announced with Town Councilman Herbert Reilly for supervisor, Ken Tice for reelection and John Sgarlotta for the town board, and village Trustee Edward Donohue for county legislator in the 33rd district.

Anti-mine group wants town to hire new counsel

The New Scotland Town Board will be asked to appoint a special counsel when it appeals a state Supreme Court decision that overturns a planning board's decision to throw out a special use permit for the 27-acre Larned gravel mine.

At its May meeting, the town board decided to take its appeal to the Appellate Division.

Concerned Citizens of New Scotland Chairman Robert Morrison said Monday the group had sent a letter to the board asking for the special counsel. Concerned Citizens is asking for the special counsel because the case is complex, is "extremely important" to the town and to the concept of home rule in the state, Morrison said. The special counsel will be more cost effective for the town because the counsel will be able to devote full attention to the issue, he said.

The idea has been discussed with Town supervisor Stephen Wallace, and Morrison said Wallace plans to discuss it informally with other town board members before their next meeting on Wednesday, June 3.

Town Attorney Fred Riester represented the town on three various cases in state Supreme Court over the gravel mine. Morrison said Riester is "distracted" by his private law practice.

At its May meeting, the town board authorized the transfer of $3,872 from the contingency account to the planning account, mostly for court costs in the various mine cases.

Concerned Citizens has also been represented by Albany attorney James Linnan on the various court proceedings.

Judge William McDermott ruled recently against the town in a suit brought by miners William M. Larned and Son, Inc. and their subsidiary, Voorheesville Sand and Stone. The decision followed two earlier decisions and said local zoning laws are preempted by state Department of Environmental Conservation laws.

The miners applied in April, 1985, for a town special use permit to mine 27 acres between Rt. 155 and Hilton Rd. in Industrial and LDR zones.

Neighbors, planning foes square off on Brookhill

By Kevin Mullen

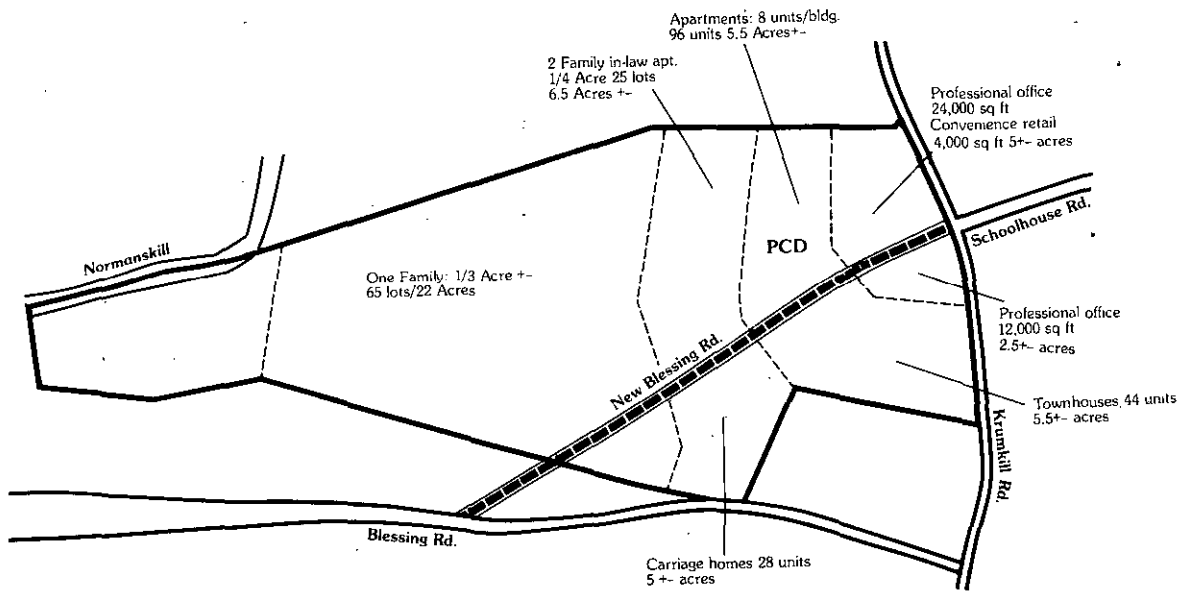

Brookhill Village was the focus of attention at last week's Bethlehem Town Board meeting as a public hearing brought out citizens both for and against the North Bethlehem development.

The Bethlehem Citizens for Responsible Planning, a local grass roots group that is fighting the Delmar Village development and whose members attended the April 29 public hearing for Delmar Village in large numbers, also was present for the Brookhill Village public hearing, though attendance decreased dramatically. Members of the group spoke on planning issues they had raised earlier, but a number of area residents told the board they favored the plan because it will improve the road system in North Bethlehem and bring retail stores to the area.

Dennis Quadrini are seeking a change from A-residential zoning to a Planned Commercial District of 13 1/2 acres and a Planned Residential District of 18 acres. The maximum density would be 12 dwelling units per acre. The Quadrinis are planning to build 136 multi-family dwellings and 66 apartments. They also plan to build some retail stores and professional offices, such as a mini-mart, barber shop, doctor or law offices. According to Paul Hite, surveyor and project engineer for the project, the mix of residential and retail in one development is a first for the town.

If the zone change is approved by the town board, the Quadrinis plan to come right back to the planning board and begin the process for their next development, 103 single-family lots on lands adjacent to the 31 1/2 acres, Hite said.

Developers John, David and The 103-acre project is located in

The Brookhill development in North Bethlehem being considered by the town board.

Spotlight map

North Bethlehem at Krumkill and Blessing roads. Included in the project is the extension of Schoolhouse Rd. southward to Blessing Road, with two connecting roads, one to Blessing Rd. and one to Krumkill Rd. According to Hite, the density of the entire project, including the single-family homes in the A-Residential zone, would be about 3.6 to 3.7 units per acre, which "doesn't go beyond the density in the (A) zone."

The hearing began with presentations by Hite, William Hoblock, an attorney for the Quadrinis, and Charles Manning of Creighton Associates, who conducted a traffic study. Manning said that much of the traffic that uses Blessing and Schoolhouse roads is from Bethlehem and New Scotland, travelling to Guilderland, Colonie and the Crossgates Mall. Manning said that the "interesting thing about the development is its mixed use." He explained that there would be a "balance between inbound and outbound movement" in Brookhill because of the presence of commercial establishments.

Manning said that his study showed that Schoolhouse Rd. gets 40 percent of the area's traffic, Russell Road 8 percent, Krumkill Road 35 percent and Blessing Road 17 percent.

He suggested that their should be negotiations with Albany County to install a traffic light at the intersection of Krumkill Rd. and Schoolhouse Rd., where a new intersection will be built. If a light is not installed, he said, the sight distance on Schoolhouse Rd. should be improved.

Hite said that the area is in the Guilderland School District and he said that there has been correspondence from the school district saying there is "no problem with handling the influx of schoolchildren."

There were mixed reviews on Brookhill. Residents of North Bethlehem were basically for the project. A group of volunteer firemen from the North Bethlehem Fire Department voiced their support. David Kellerman said that "the road would be tremendous for the fire department needs," referring to the extension of Schoolhouse Rd. Kellerman also said he didn't "understand why people want to put down the zone change, especially if they don't live in the area."

Town Clerk Carolyn Lyons, a North Bethlehem resident who said she was speaking as a "private citizen," said that she is in favor of Brookhill. She acknowledged that "Schoolhouse Road has a traffic problem." She also thought the area needed retail stores.

Norman Kellerman said "we should have some conveniences" and he'd "like to see someone else pay for sewers" and other utilities.

Another volunteer fireman said the project would "help the tax base for the fire department."

Speaking against the project and zone change was Sam Messina of the Bethlehem Citizens For Responsible Planning. He said that he didn't live in the area, but that "I feel free to speak about the development."

"The issue is not Quadrini homes," he said. "I'd like to live in a Quadrini home. The issue is a zone change."

He said that "when you have existing zoning, you have stability. It is time to get specific about a master plan." Messina said that the issue was not solely conducive to Brookhill, but that it "can relate to the ten developments" that are presently at various stages of the planning process. Messina also argued that the courts have held that zoning must be in accordance with a "comprehensive plan."

"Is there a comprehensive plan? Is the zone change consistent with a comprehensive plan?" Messina said that since the answer to the first question was no, so was the answer to the second question.

Margaret Gadon said that "no one has spoken in favor of the apartments."

She said that "three developments will bring in 1,000 people" to the town. She said that Brookhill will "affect the entire town."

John Smolinsky, another member of the group, said that this was an "opportunity for the town board to defer making a decision," saying that we "haven't heard any reasons why we need a zone change." He said that he wasn't "speaking out against the project" but that it should be studied more and brought back and reconsidered. Smolinsky said that the road — the extension of Schoolhouse Road — could be built without building Brookhill, and wondered if the zone change was a "trade off for the road."

During the question part of the public hearing, Duane Amsler wondered about increase of traffic. Manning said that there would be about a 15 percent increase, 10 to 15 percent on the lower portion of Blessing Rd. and 20 to 25 percent on Schoolhouse Rd.

One resident asked about the size of the retail developments. The retail space would be 4,000 square feet and office space would be 32,000 square feet.

Robert Miller said that Krumkill Road was a "dangerous and bumpy, rough road. A little two-lane road." He said that the road "is taxed to the limit." He also questioned how traffic from Brookhill would impact on Schoolhouse Road: "I don't see how it's going to work out," he said.

Roberta Ponemon of the Bethlehem Citizens For Responsible Planning said that there would be 305 units in Brookhill and that the single family homes and apartments would bring in 900 people in ten years. Hite said that the "population density of just the apartments would be 2.4 people per apartment. Single family homes would be 3.5" per unit, he said. But Ponemon asked, "why do we need this density of apartments?"

Hite explained that "you have to have multi-development type of density. You have to offer to the public this type of density when you spend millions of dollars for the project and construction of the extension of Schoolhouse Road."

- Approved a request from Police Chief Paul E. Currie to appoint Andrew Johnson as part-time police radio dispatcher effective May 17.

- Approved a request from Commissioner of Public Works Bruce H. Secor to accept a deed for right-of-way of West Yard Rd.

The next regular town board meeting is scheduled for May 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Rt. 9W accident injures driver

An Albany man was taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital Friday after the car he was driving was hit by another car making a left hand turn on Rt. 9W, Bethlehem Police reported.

Jonathan Stanfield, 33, of Albany, was treated for leg bruises and later released, a hospital spokesman said.

At 7:55 a.m., Joseph Lembo, 33, of Selkirk was making a left hand turn from Rt. 9W into the Marjem Kennels, when he told police he did not see Stanfield's car until the last minute as Stanfield was going straight on Rt. 9W. Police noted, however, that the road was wet and there was poor visibility at the scene because of trees and shrubs.

Police said they ticketed Lembo for failure to yield the right of way, and Stanfield for driving without insurance, driving with his license suspended and driving with his registration suspended.

DeCecco, Galvin on board

By Kevin Mullen

The Bethlehem Board of Appeals now has seven members. Appointed last week by the town board were Dominick DeCecco, supervisor of social studies for the Bethlehem Central School District, and Madeline Sheila Galvin, an attorney. Both live in Slingerlands and both are active Republicans.

The appointments were made on the recommendation of board of appeals chairman Charles Fritts, who said he would like "wider input" from the board.

DeCecco is well known in the town. He has taught social studies at Bethlehem Central High School for 28 years and has been district social studies supervisor for the past 12 years. He is active in community and professional affairs. He has been president and a board member of the Slingerlands Homeowners Association, a member of the board of directors for the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce, chairman and board member of the town Tree Committee, treasurer of the Slingerlands Community Players, and is involved in several other activities.

DeCecco has an active interest in environmental issues, town planning and aesthetics. Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick, who recommended the appointments to the town board, said he was interested in DeCecco because of his involvement in the Slingerlands Homeowners Association. Hendrick has been trying to build closer relationships with the various neighborhood associations and citizens groups in the town.

DeCecco ran for the Albany County Legislature as a Democrat in the 1970s. He said he became a Republican at about the time Thomas Corrigan became supervisor. He is married to E. Patricia Becker and they have three children.

Galvin is an attorney and established her own practice of law in Delmar in 1974. She has served as a staff attorney with the New York State Department of Law and senior attorney with the New York State Dormitory Authority from 1974 to 1978.

Galvin is a licensed real estate broker and a certified parliamentarian. She has been entered in several "Who's Who" publications and has been recognized for her contributions to Zonta, Daughters of the American Revolution, American Association of the University of Women and the New York State and National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Galvin has been active in welfare programs, including Mercy House and Ronald McDonald House.

Galvin was born in New York City and has been a resident of Slingerlands since 1948. DeCecco has lived in Bethlehem for over 28 years. DeCecco was appointed to a four-year term and Galvin to a two-year term.

State backs Secor in sewage dispute

The Delmar Bypass currently ends at Elm Ave., at the right of the map. It will be extended through the Juniper Fields development (shaded line), this year, and the town will complete the link to Van Dyke Rd. (dotted line) in 1988. The shaded line between Delaware Ave. and Orchard St. is to be built by the developers of Delmar Village, providing they get town approval, leaving the old Fisher Blvd. to be improved either by the town or another developer.

Spotlight map

The state official who oversees Bethlehem's sewage treatment plant at Cedar Hill says it is operating within the limits of its state permit.

"Is it in compliance?" asked Alan Geisendorfer, of the state Department of Environmental Conservation regional office. "In my opinion, Bethlehem is one of the best, if not the best, in Albany County."

Geisendorfer was responding to questions raised by the Bethlehem Citizens for Responsible Planning, a group fighting the proposed Delmar Village development that has cited alleged overloading of the sewage treatment plant as one argument against new development in the town. In a number of written statements, including letters to The Spotlight, the group has cited documentary evidence that the plant is operating beyond its capacity—a conclusion vehemently denied by Bethlehem Public Works Commissioner Bruce Secor.

The one thing that all sides appear to agree on is that Bethlehem will have to build an addition to the treatment plant in the near future. But while the citizens group sees this as a result of uncontrolled growth in the town, Secor characterizes the expansion as a long-planned project on a par with many other routine capital improvements in the town.

Ironically, the evidence cited by the group in its contention that the plant is overloaded was supplied by Secor, but Secor said Friday that no one has come to him to interpret the information. The reports he supplied to the group are "incredibly complex" and easily misinterpreted, Secor said.

Secor did meet with representatives of the citizens group on April 9, and at the end of that meeting wrote a lengthy memo to the Bethlehem Town Board. However, he said Friday, the group's representatives apparently ignored much of what he said at the April 9 meeting "and have continued to say things that are completely false." The conflict over whether the plant violates its state permits appears to stem from differing interpretations of the limits set in the permits for the discharge of effluents into the Hudson River. For instance, John Finn, chairman of the group, charged in a May 8 letter that the permit allows no more than 4.9 million gallons of treated waste per day to be discharged, and that the plant's 30-day average flow exceeded that amount on four different occasions.

Secor, however, responded that the citizens group had misread the permit limits, and that the 4.9 m.g.d. limit is an average that the plant easily meets. In all, he said, there are six different limiting factors in the permit, and Bethlehem is in compliance with all of them. Geisendorfer confirmed that the town is in compliance with all of the terms of the permit.

The average flow of the plant is affected by ground water infiltration—primarily, rain water—and Bethlehem has a problem in the old Delmar-Elsmere Sewer District in the older sections of the village. Secor said the town has embarked on a program using sophisticated technology to reduce that infiltration by 10 percent per year. Even so, he said, "we are at a point where we have to have some parallel capacity" at the plant, and the town board has agreed to hire a consultant to prepare plans. The consultant expects to be ready to apply for state or federal funds to aid in the expansion next year, which means building is still several years away, he said.

□ Hendrick sees bypass link

Hendrick said. While the supervisor said he cannot speak for the planning board, which is currently considering site plan approval for Delmar Village, he said he suspects that one condition will be that the linking road not be completed until the other sections of the bypass plan are in place.

"If the decision should be made to go all the way through I think we have to make a commitment to upgrade Fisher Blvd.," Hendrick said.

So far, the town's strategy in extending the Delmar Bypass has been to let developers pay for it as a condition of gaining approval to build. But next year the town will also start spending money on the bypass extension, Hendrick said.

Hendrick said he expects the first section of the extension, in the Juniper Fields development off Elm Ave., to be completed this summer. The developer must complete the road in order to get building approval, he said.

Next year's town budget will contain funds to continue that section as far as Van Dyke Rd., Hendrick said. No cost estimates are yet available, and the town may also have to spend some money to improve Van Dyke Rd., he said.

The town has no plans to build from Van Dyke Rd. to Delaware Ave., Hendrick said, but several developers have expressed interest in the commercially zoned property on the south side of Delaware Ave.; if that land is developed, it would be in the owner's interest to extend the road. In the meantime, Hendrick said, sparsely populated Van Dyke Rd. can handle the additional traffic.

If Delmar Village wins the final go-ahead from the planning board, as expected, construction of the road linking Delaware Ave. to Orchard St., now being called the Fisher Blvd. extension, could be under way next year, Hendrick said. And the town is expecting another developer to present a subdivision proposal for land on the north side of Orchard St., along Fisher Blvd. toward New Scotland Rd., in the near future. That developer will be required to rebuild "a good portion" of Fisher Blvd., Hendrick said.

The Fisher Blvd.-New Scotland Rd. intersection is also considered hazardous, particularly if traffic increases. "You may see a light there," Hendrick said. That would be the state Department of Transportation's responsibility, he said, and DOT "has been very cooperative."

Town to seek new home site

By Patricia Mitchell

New Scotland officials will attempt to find another site within the town for a group home for seven retarded adults before June 1.

The town board decided to try to find the other site because they are not happy with 30 East Rd., New Salem, site that is proposed by the Albany County Chapter of the state Association of Retarded Children (ARC). At a public hearing on the location Wednesday, Supervisor Stephen Wallace said the town board will decide "in the near future" on the proposal and in the meantime look for other locations. He said another home may be found and it may not, but the town board will meet with East Rd. residents and the ARC again.

The town board would like to have looked at four or five different sites and they are not convinced that a preliminary study of the septic system on East Rd. is conclusive, Wallace said. The board, however, is not opposed to setting up a group home in the town or the purpose of one, he said.

The ARC will be "very open minded" about recommendations for another home, said Edward Lukomski, executive director of the Albany County Chapter. After the meeting, he said he gave the town board state and financial regulations to follow when looking for alternate locations, and he will be glad to help clarify or assist them with the regulations for picking a home.

If an alternate site is suggested by the town board, then the June 1 deadline can be extended by 15 days, Lukomski said. After the town suggests the alternate homes, the ARC and the Office of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, the leading state regulator, will review it. He said the home will have to be large enough for seven people and fit state guidelines, and many homes are ruled out because of those two requirements.

Town Councilman Herbert Reilly said his idea of mainstreaming is more centrally located in the village. While he would welcome the group home on Voorheesville Ave. or Maple Ave., Reilly said he was not sure he would welcome it on East Rd.

When Reilly asked for the purchase price of the East Rd.

home, Lukomski declined to quote it because he said it was confidential information. However, he said, when the ARC picks a home, it receives funding for each resident to purchase and for renovations, and the town will have to work under that funding formula. For example, it cannot put more renovations into a home than it has funding for, he said.

The town board has to give its approval on the proposed location of 30 East Rd., reject it because of oversaturation of group homes in the town or suggest an alternate site within the town before June 1, said zoning attorney John Bailey. This is the first group home proposed for the town.

An attorney hired by some of the residents of East Rd. urged the board to find an alternate location. Scott Davidoff of Albany said the residents are concerned that the road is a dead end and that the home will cause increased traffic and change the character of the neighborhood. They also expressed concern about supervision of the residents and the Vly Creek across the road from the home and the open land.

The zoning code established in the 1960's and deed restrictions limit the area to one-family homes, and the state requires that towns consider group homes to be one-family homes. Even so, he said, the character of the neighborhood has been established by the town. "This is simply not the best location," Davidoff said.

A van will take the residents out in the morning to their day programs and bring them home at night, Lukomski said. There will also be a lot of activities on the weekends drawing the residents out of the home, he said. With a state highway garage in back of the road, he said, noise and traffic already exist in the area, and the safety of the creek or the open land extends to any adult or child right now.

A preliminary perk test of the septic system showed any increased use would be "well within" Albany County Health Department guidelines for leach fields on the property and there would be no danger of contamination of wells, said Larry Fuld, director of residential services for the county ARC. There will be some work on the system so it can be used for the group home, but the study has indicated it will not be a problem for the property.

However, Wallace said he was not convinced that the septic system would pose no problems.

Several audience members spoke out in favor of the proposed group home on East Rd. John Breeze of Bullock Rd. said the town has an obligation to not shun those that they don't understand and the town has an opportunity to welcome significant assets to the community.

The community has a moral responsibility to welcome a group home, said Doug Stromer of Voorheesville. The residents will help the community, and he said he urged the board to assist and help foster the home.

The residents of the proposed group home are people, said John Skinkle of Albany, a parent of a retarded child, and it is about time the town takes responsibility for them. The residents are citizens of the country and deserve a place to live, he said.

JCA students honored

Several local students were honored recently at the Junior College of Albany's 1987 Honors Convocation. The annual event recognizes the academic achievements of students.

Kevin D. Furlong of Slingerlands received the "Award of Excellence" in photography.

The following students were inducted into the Phi Theta Kappa honor society: Cynthia J. Bacher of Slingerlands, Lisa Anne Corrado of Voorheesville, Patricia A. Mullen of Glenmont, Renee C. Miller and Bonnie J. Ochsner of Delmar.

Gas station gets okay

By Patricia Mitchell

A gas station at the corner of Routes 85 and 85A, opposite the Stonewell shopping plaza, has received preliminary approval by the New Scotland Planning Board.

However, the planning board won't issue a special use permit needed to operate the gas station until it receives more detailed plans on the layout.

The planning board approved the gas station plans after a public hearing on Tuesday, May 12.

The gas station will open at the former Mobil gas station on Rt. 85. Proposed by Mark Fiato of New Scotland, the station will be self-service with one island for two pumps.

The service bays of the old gas station won't be opened again, but Fiato said he would like to renovate them and open a variety-type store in the future.

In other business, the planning board learned of plans to build a 12-unit apartment complex next to the former Feura Bush school off New Scotland Rd. in the hamlet. Timothy Hourihan of New Windsor would like to buy five-and-a-half acres next to the former school that now holds 10 apartments and build apartments in a design matching the school building.

The apartment building will need a special use permit for a multi-family dwelling, and the plans have been sent to the Albany County Health Department.

The planning board also learned that the number of lots in the Scotland Hills subdivision off Swift Rd. have been cut from eight to seven. The first section of the subdivision holds two lots on the east side of Swift Rd., but the second section on the west side will now have five lots instead of six, as was originally proposed. Each lot will now be sized at about four acres.

The number of lots were cut because they were not economically feasible, said Ronald LaBerge Jr. of LaBerge Engineering. The subdivision is proposed by James Breen and Thomas Coyle of Swift Rd., Inc.

Church observes 200 years

By Patricia Mitchell

In 1787, the Presbytery of Suffolk organized a mission church on the frontier at New Scotland.

Two hundred years later, the New Scotland Presbyterian Church is observing the anniversary of the church with a year-long celebration. One of the most outstanding events planned will be Sunday, May 31, when 14 grave stones of Revolutionary War soldiers will be decorated, complete with Scottish bagpipes and a special service.

"We are trying to make it a whole-year celebration," said Dorothy Whidman, of the New Scotland Presbyterian Historical Committee.

The New Scotland Presbyterian Church is the second oldest Presbyterian church in Albany County. It is the only church that has a cemetery of its members on its grounds, and the cemetery includes 14 Revolutionary War veterans, the most in the area.

On hand for the event will be state Assemblyman Richard Connors and other "Hawks," or those who favored war when the church was getting under way, said Rev. Greg Pike. Bagpipers will be filling the air with their music reminiscent of the country where many settlers of New Scotland came from.

Even though a few French and Dutch were thinly settled in the area, Scotch and Northern Irish settlers came in after the French and Indian Wars. When the Revolutionary War broke out, the area around the church was Tory, or aligned with Britain, and some of the Congregation fought in the British Army. No one had any grievances with England, and many had friends and relatives still in the old countries. It was after the war, and the start of the new country, when three former soldiers with the colonies moved into the area.

The Scotch made up most of the settlers and gave the hamlet its name. They were very religious and followed the Calvinist doctrines of their ancestors. Over 200 years ago, a traveling Presbyterian minister came to give a service, and the first one was held near the present church on New Scotland Rd. on a hill under two oak trees.

Then in 1787, a mission church was organized by the Presbytery of Suffolk, later known as the Presbytery of Long Island, on the frontier in New Scotland. In 1791 the first church was built on a grant of land from the fourth patroon Stephen Van Rensselaer, who gave land to congregations to build churches because they drew settlers and gave them some stability. On April 9, 1791, an agreement was made with a carpenter to finish the work and with two other men for finishing the gallery floor. The church was completed after June when the wainscoting was finished.

When the first permanent pastor arrived in 1795, his salary was raised in part by pew rents. The larger pews went at $1.50 a year and the smaller pews at $1.

Also in 1791, a half an acre on the side of the church was given over for use as a cemetery. The first person buried there was Jacob Moak, the congregation's first treasurer, in 1795.

The church was rebuilt twice and enlarged several times, and some of the timbers used in the original church were used for the church that stands today, Pike said.

Earlier this year, communion tokens were handed out to the congregation similar to the lead tokens given out in the church's early history twice a year for those who were examined and allowed to participate by the pastor.

There are about 185 members now, Pike said, and at the most they numbered 203. It has always been a family church, and he said members of the original families are still part of the congregation today.

"I think that is quite unique," Pike said.

The church has a concern for others, Pike said. It has had a strong missionary concern, helping to sponsor individual missionaries. He said the church has also been involved with Albany Medical Center Hospital, donating beds to a hospital in Korea.

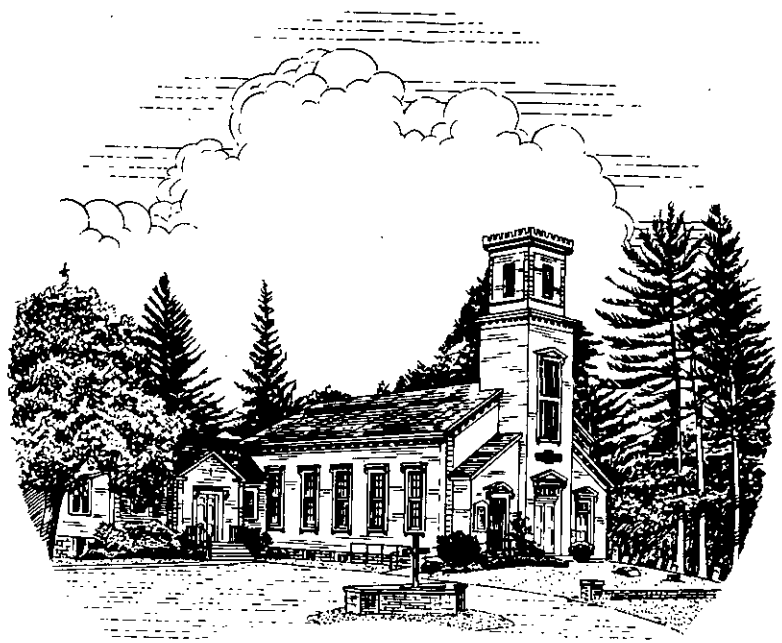

Members will also learn about Eastern Bloc countries and working with them when Rev. David Greer from Scotland and Pike exchange pulpits for July and August. In turn, Pike will tell the Scots about the New Scotland Presbyterian Church and its history. Whidman said events are still being planned during Greer's stay.

While the church deacons have been working on the history of the church since about 1971, Whidman, Florine Moran and Kay Youmans, recently honored as New Scotland Citizen of the Year, have been meeting once a week for about the past four years gathering history and putting together this year's celebration. Pike said they get many requests for tracing geneological heritage, and even helped to establish history of Dr. Samuel and Edward Fuller, who came over on the Pilgrims' Mayflower, for their descendants in Arizona who needed proof to join the prestigious Mayflower Society.

To celebrate the 200th anniversary, the congregation is doing a lot of renovating with painting, new carpeting ordered, some new lights, and rearranging the church pews to the original layout. Large pews are set up down the middle of the church, and smaller pews are set up along the sides, with two aisles on the sides. Whidman said they were changed in about 1949 to pews on both sides of a single center aisle for weddings.

The pews in the New Scotland Presbyterian Church have been arranged with large center pews and two small aisles down the sides for the 200th anniversary. The seats were this way until 1949. Spotlight

This drawing of the New Scotland Presbyterian Church is featured on tiles being sold marking the church's 200th anniversary.

On Sunday, May 31, will be a special service for veterans and especially those who served in the Revolutionary War. The service will begin at 10:30 a.m., with two Scottish bagpipers playing for the service, and a retired Army chaplain, the Rev. Everett Gardiner, giving the message.

During the last portion of the service, Elder Samuel Youmans and the bagpipers will lead a recessional into the church's cemetery. A map with all the 14 gravesites of the Revolutionary War veterans marked will be given to those in attendance. The bagpipers will continue playing, and at each gravesite, a short biography will be given by the veteran's descendent and an American flag placed on the grave.

At the last site, Assemblyman Connors and Congressman Sam Stratton will speak, and the service will conclude with a benediction given by Pike. Also in attendance will be town Supervisor Stephen Wallace, and Connors' legislative aide Patrick Glavin. A reception will follow. The service and reception is open to the public, and additional parking will be available at the town hall.

Also to commemorate the year, a cookbook is due to be published, and the history of the church, printed for its 150th anniversary and originally written in 1876 by Rev. James G.K. McClure is being updated by Pike.

Also planned for this year is a rededication of the church on Sunday, June 7, that is still in the planning stages. On Sunday, Oct. 4, homecoming and a world-wide communion will be celebrated and a covered dish supper, and Whidman said a celebration on Sunday, Nov. 1, All Saints Day, is also being planned. A 50 or 100-year time capsule will be buried on Sunday, Dec. 13, with items meaningful to the year.

Keeping the pressure off first graders

By Patricia Mitchell

A transitional class designed for children who are not ready for first grade will start next year at Voorheesville Elementary School.

The transition class will be a half step up from kindergarten and children in the program will continue with first grade after it, said Principal Donna Grant Canavan.

The new program was approved by the Voorheesville Central school board at its meeting Monday, May 11. With 92 children now in kindergarten, nine to 13 students may go to the transitional class, and about 79 students will be divided up among four first grade sections. Five sections have already been earmarked for next year.

When children turn five years old, Canavan said, it can't be assumed that they are all ready for a school setting. If they fail in school it may not be their fault, but may be because they were not ready for school, she said.

"Everyone develops at a different stage," Canavan said.

If a child is not ready for first grade, at the end of second grade he or she is under pressure and shows it, said Superintendent Louise Gonan. Many students who suffer under pressure in the first grade fall apart at the high school level. She said a lot of self-esteem is lost, and that is what the new program will try to develop.

"What we're allowing is some kids to wing it all the way through elementary school, and that's tough," Gonan said.

Many students are extremely

capable but are not ready to handle first grade, Canavan said. They can develop avoidance techniques, stomach aches and nail biting if pushed.

The whole child will be looked at for consideration into the transitional program, said teacher Patricia Burnham, and not just the child's intellect. The program will not be a watered down first grade or a glorified kindergarten, but a unique program, she said.

Staff at the school are still developing the program and criteria for admittance, but Canavan said it will allow students to develop at their own pace and will give more hands-on experience to build senses, awareness and environment.

A pre-kindergarten might be in the future for the district, Canavan said, and the program and student needs will be studied more. Some districts even have a pre-second grade program, but she said the transition class would be best to start now to meet the needs of the present students.

The idea of a transition class was formed by the district's Early Childhood Study Group, with teachers Burnham, Patricia Lambert, Anne Lennox, Judith Douglas, Linda Spina, Mary Ann Gregor, Wanda Knapp, Gail Michalak and Kathleen Rudd and school psychologist Anthony Rossi. Last month, they meet with other staff from about 50 area school districts to talk about the concept of developmental readiness, and they plan to meet again.

In other Voorheesville Central school board action, Gonan said she and board President John McKenna have sent letters to Assemblyman Richard Connors and state Sen. Howard Nolan, and have recently met with Nolan.

They are interested in trying to find a way to generate more state aid for the district. Gonan said they pointed out that the community has virtually no commercial development and most of the tax burden is placed on the residents. Nolan will have the state aid formula researched to see what else can be done, she said.

They also asked Connors and Nolan about sponsoring a special interest bill that would allow the district to take funds out of the unemployment reserve. About $35,000 was taken from the fund last year, but the district had to repay it this year. Gonan said there was also a general discussion with Nolan about the procedure for applying for legislative grants.

The Voorheesville Central School Board also:

- Learned that students Laura Martin and Donna Mensching and teachers Christopher Mastro and John Sittig have been recognized by the Scholars' Recognition Program of the Golub Corporation.
- Learned that student Rebecca Ten Eyck and teacher Vasiliki Volkwein had been recognized by the Literary Cavalcade magazine.
- Accepted the resignation of business administrator Alan Corlett, effective June 30, for personal reasons. He has been with the district for about a year.

• Learned that one case of measles has been reported in the elementary school, but Canavan said the district has been working with the Albany County Health Department on precautions.

The school board went into executive session once at the end of the meeting. After the session, the board eliminated the position of superintendent of buildings and grounds, Gonan said.

The next regular meeting of the Voorheesville Central school board is slated for 7:30 p.m., Monday, June 8.

Judith Shearer

Shearer wins race

Judith Shearer of Picard Rd. is the winner in the four-way contest for the seat on the Voorheesville Central school board being vacated by Peter G. Ten Eyck.

She was elected to the school board in a close contest in last Wednesday's budget vote. Shearer received 369 votes, edging Kris Jackstadt of Voorheesville, with 356 votes; Janet Breeze, of Bullock Rd., New Scotland, with 342 votes; and James Jones of Altamont with 97 votes. Write-in candidate Pat Borello received one vote.

Shearer said she was "excited" about her election to the school board, and noted it will be "quite a start" to sit on the board after voters rejected a proposed $7.373 budget.

"It was a great surprise that so many people were behind me," Shearer said. She noted that there was not a wide margin in her election.

For her five-year term, Shearer said she hopes the school and community can work to find affordable and desirable solutions in and around the schools.

Shearer works with the family business as a contractor for wallpapering and painting. For two years, she worked as a food service helper at the high school, and she also worked as a substitute grade school aid.

A native of Long Island and an 18-year resident of Picard Rd., Shearer and her husband, Douglas, have five children, four of whom have graduated from Voorheesville Central Schools. Their youngest son is an eighth grader.

Camera equipment taken at Convenient store

More than $2,000 in camera equipment was taken from a car parked at the Convenient Store at Routes 396 and 9W in April, Bethlehem Police said.

The incident was reported to police on Wednesday.

The owner of the Convenient told police he parked his car in back of the store on April 19, went inside the store and came back out to unload his car. After he went back inside the store, he noticed the equipment was taken from his car and the passenger door was open, police said.

Reported missing are a radar unit, a camera, an auto winder, flash, filters, a camera case and strap, sunglasses and six lenses, police said. They are valued at $2,403.

Bike thefts reported on Carstead Rd.

Bethlehem Police said four bicycles were reported stolen this week, and three of those were taken from a Carstead Rd., Slingerlands, home.

The three bicycles were stolen apparently after a party at the Carstead Rd. home between Friday night and Saturday morning, police said.

A Delaware Ave., Delmar, man reported to police last week that a bicycle was found missing from his garage on Sunday, May 10. Police said the bicycle is valued at $150.

And police also said that bicycle accessories were taken off a bicycle left at the Bethlehem Central Middle School's bicycle rack between Monday and Tuesday. Taken from a middle school student's bicycle were two rims and tires, two axle pegs and a speed changer.

□ Board considers revote

Under state Education Department guidelines, the school board can adopt another budget for approval by voters, or go to a contingency budget and have special propositions for items not mandated by the state be voted on by residents.

The school board can also put the defeated budget without changes before the voters again or simply operate on a contingency budget through next year.

The board also discussed various plans to look at, including cutting six-and-a-half teaching positions at the elementary school, five-year projections on expenditures and tax rates, and increasing this year's budget for next year by four or eight percent. District treasurer Sarita Winchell said while no specific proposals were raised, if the district operated on this year's budget next year, New Scotland tax rates would increase about 5.3 percent on assessed value because of declining state aid.

The defeated $7,373,317 budget was an increase of 10.8 percent over this year's budget, despite only modest increases in programs and a last-minute effort to trim the budget.

However, because of budgetary problems this year tax rates were expected to increase much more. In figures that were revised shortly before the vote, taxes were to be levied at $335 per $1,000 of assessed value, an increase of $69 or about 26 percent above this year's $266 in the Town of New Scotland. In Guilderland, tax rates were estimated at $22 per $1,000, an increase of about $6 or 43 percent over this year's $15, and were estimated at $595 per $1,000 in Berne, an increase of $128 or 27 percent from this year's $468.

Tax rates were projected to rise between 28 and 45 percent, depending on the town. They were revised after town assessors filed preliminary assessments on May 1. Projected tax rates include interest on the library bond anticipation note, but not state aid figures under a package approved by the Legislature last month.

At Monday night's meeting with about 12 people in attendance, several asked about a plan to merge with another district such as Guilderland Central, an issue that was also brought up at last Tuesday's annual meeting. A teacher in another district said Voorheesville should talk to its neighbor about preparing a feasibility study on the idea. While it would cost about $20,000 to do, the Education Department will give a grant for the study. It will give a five-year study on both sides of the issue.

Another resident said the school board should consider merging because it would help relieve the tax burden placed on the taxpayers.

Board members Mary Van Ryn and Steve Schreiber pointed out that merging doesn't mean the district will improve or the financial situation will ease. Van Ryn said taxes on true value are about $5 to $10 different between the two towns in the two districts. Any extra aid from the state would only be for the short-term and local control would be lost, she said.

The merger would have to be approved by the Education Department and not just the districts' voters, Schreiber said. The department would not be looking at the tax advantage to the merger but if it would improve the educational programs.

Guilderland Central is looking to build a new high school, and merging with the smaller district would help make it more cost effective, McKenna said he has heard.

The idea of combining with Guilderland Central Schools has never been "seriously considered" in Voorheesville, McKenna said. The idea "rankles" him because the subject was first raised by Guilderland officials and never discussed with Voorheesville. McKenna said he considers the discussion by other officials as "inappropriate, unprofessional and discourteous," and he is not prepared to talk of a merger.

There is pressure from the state for smaller districts to merge, McKenna said, but he believes there are advantages to having a moderate-size district with full programs like Voorheesville. He said there is a close identity between the district and the community and the schools are the only large public buildings there are in the town.

"As a district, we certainly expect to be here five years from now," McKenna said. However, he said a survey can be done to see how residents feel about merging with Guilderland, and the school board can discuss it further.

Library budget passes, Ten Eyck is elected

Voorheesville Central School district voters have approved a $139,750 library budget, and have elected Sally Munyan Ten Eyck to the library board.

The votes were cast in last Wednesday's annual school board election, which also includes the library.

Voters approved the library budget 662 to 495. Preliminary estimates indicate the budget will mean a tax rate increase of about 80 cents per $1,000 of assessed value in the Town of New Scotland over the present $8.99, but exact figures are still not available.

The budget is an increase of about 7.8 percent over this year's $129,675.

Included in the budget is about $20,000 for a director of the new library. This will be the first time the job will be separate from the high school library director.

The new library, which will be built on the corner of Prospect St. and Army Depot Rd., may be in use sometime in April, 1988, said library board President Edward Donohue. The old building on Main St. will be sold sometime after that, and proceeds will help pay off the new building's bond issue, he said.

The budget includes funds for insurance and maintenance for the potential need to manage both the old and new library buildings during the transition between the two.

Also included in the budget is $3,200 for a new copier and $17,000 for books, up from this year's $15,000. Library employees will get four percent cost of living adjustment and increases for employee benefits.

Ten Eyck was elected to the library board with 578 votes, over Dennis C. Sullivan's 515. She will be taking the seat of Mary Jane Ewart.

A resident of Voorheesville all her life and a former school teacher, Ten Eyck lives on Tygert Rd. with her husband, John. They have three daughters, Jennifer, a college junior, Rebecca, in 12th grade, and Melissa, 9th grade.

Feura Bush man faces charges in chase

A Feura Bush man will be appearing in New Scotland Town Court later this month after he was stopped by Albany County Sheriffs after a high speed chase through Bethlehem and New Scotland.

The chase began when Bethlehem Police first spotted the man driving a motorcycle west on Rt. 32 at 81 m.p.h. at about 9:10 p.m., sheriffs said. Police reportedly chased the man about eight miles into the Town of New Scotland, and stopped at Rt. 32 and Flat Rock Rd.

About five minutes later, deputies said, they stopped the man at the intersection of County Rt. 301 and Rt. 443 in Clarksville.

Sheriffs said they charged the man with two counts of the misdemeanor of driving while intoxicated, speeding and reckless driving. They later released him on his own recognizance.

Bethlehem Police said they charged the man with two counts of speeding, three counts of failure to yield the right of way at an intersection, leaving the scene of an incident, failure to keep right, and failure to comply with a police officer. The man will appear in Bethlehem Town Court at a later date.

Church supper planned

A strawberry supper and bake sale will be served at the Jerusalem Reformed Church in Feura Bush on Saturday, May 30, at 4:30, 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. For reservations call 439-2046.

My campaign was a simple one, with the hope that if enough of you knew me, and thought I could fill the position, I'd do my best to represent the ideas and concerns of the community.

You did it, I'm overwhelmed, THANKS!

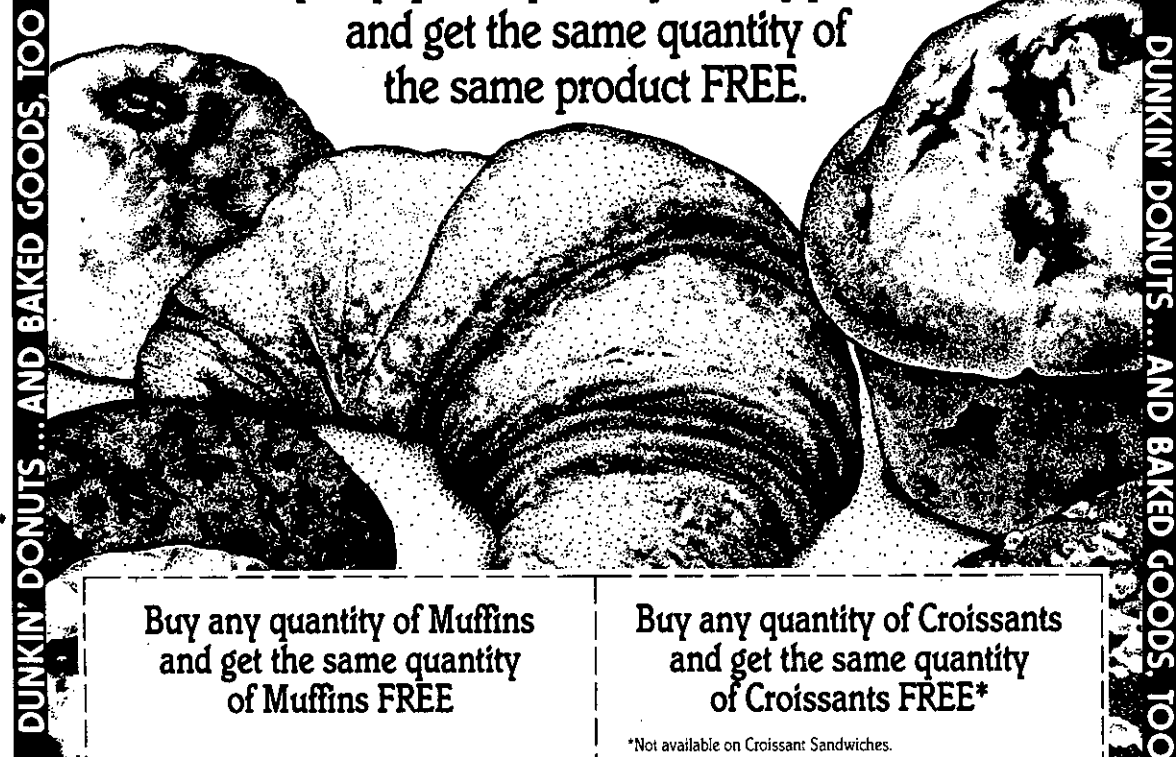

To replace Peter Ten Eyck's expertise and experience is a formidable task. I hope to help work with the rest of the board to continue Voorheesville's excellence in a path we want and can afford.

RCS voters approve budget, propositions

By Patricia Mitchell

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School voters have approved a $12.8 million budget that increases taxes 10.6 percent for Bethlehem taxpayers.

In Wednesday's budget vote, 488 approved the $12,886,974 budget and 387 voted against it.

"I think it is a vote of confidence from the community," said Superintendent William Schwartz. The approval of the budget will allow the district to keep going with its quality program and continues RCS in a forward-moving direction, he said.

Tax rates are estimated at $169 per $1,000 of assessed value for the Town of Bethlehem, an increase of about $16 or 10.6 percent over this year's $153; and at $258 per $1,000 for the Town of New Scotland, an increase of $5 or about two percent over this year's $253.

Tax rates for the Town of Coeymans are estimated at about $206 per $1,000 of assessed value, an increase of about one percent over this year's $204, and are estimated at $166 for the Town of New Baltimore, an increase of $18 or 12 percent.

The wide disparity in tax rates are because of differing changes in the state equalization rates for the four towns in the RCS district, reflecting different levels of building activity.

Two special propositions were also approved. The purchase of four buses and two passenger wagons at $220,000 were approved by 525 to 353, and a re-roofing project at the high school passed 570 to 318.

With 885 voters at the polls last Wednesday, it was the smallest voter turnout in several years, Schwartz said. Last year, 1,559 voters turned out and in previous years there were voters in the 1,100-range, said business administrator Rodger Lewis.

More voters turn out for the annual school budget vote if there is a "heated" school board election, a controversial budget or a large tax increase, Schwartz said. But this year there were four candidates up for approval for four seats. And, Schwartz said, the programs and new positions presented in the budget were what the board and the voters felt are appropriate.

Without the large state aid package that is expected for next year, most of the burden of the new programs would have been placed on the voters, Schwartz said; instead tax rate increases are now "modest." State aid makes up almost half of the budget and is set at $6,048,358, an increase of about eight percent over this year's $5,592,866.

Voters also placed four candidates in four seats on the RCS School Board. Konrad Raup of Ravena received 804 votes, Thomas Rotello of Ravena received 687 votes and Sherry Putney of Selkirk received 664 votes. They will receive the three-year terms on the board, beginning July 1.

Receiving the one-year term was James Morgan of Glenmont with 640 votes. He will serve out the remaining term of Dr. Frank Filippone, a seat he was appointed to by the school board when Filippone resigned last fall.

Raup, of Van Derzee Rd., works in the division of Professional Licensing Services for the state Education Department. Originally from Chatham, Raup and his wife, Patricia, have one son attending kindergarten at RCS, and another son at the Doane Stuart School.

Thurber-like essays

Students were to write a "Snapshot" essay in James Thurber's style.

Snapshot of My Cat

My cat's name is Spencer. He is white and has two vertical gray fading stripes on his forehead. he also has green eyes.

One day we went to get Spencer from my cousin's friend who had brought to my cousin's house one of the kittens her cat had had. My cousin's friend asked if we wanted one of the kittens. That was why her kitten was at my cousin's house.

On the way home we had Spencer in a box that had an old sweatshirt in it. Spencer would knock his head on the top of the box to get out. Once he hit his head on the top and knocked it off. My sister was sitting in the front seat and was holding the box so she was able to get Spencer back in the box in a hurry.

Spencer likes to play with tin-foil balls. He likes to play with them because they make noise on the floor. I make the tin-foil balls so they are not tight so that they make more noise. Spencer throws the tin-foil balls up and catches them. Then, he tumbles on the floor, and jumps on the tin-foil. Finally, Spencer will tear apart the tin-foil so that it gets on the rug.

Spencer is sometimes vicious because when he is in a playful mood, he will scratch and bite you for no reason. If you sit on the couch, he may stare at you in an innocent way and go in for the kill or jump at you. He sometimes will hide by the chair, and, when you walk by, he'll get you by clinging to your leg and scratching and biting.

In spite of the biting, I love Spencer. He gives me joy and love. He makes me laugh by being himself. Spencer even sleeps with me at night. I love him.

Snapshot of My Turtle

My turtle was often cute and lovable. I used to pick him up, and he would blink and lay his hand on my hand.

However, most of the time, he was moody. For instance, when somebody would come by and look in his tub and look like they were invading his privacy, he would pull his head in his shell and wait until they left. When I came around, he acted normal because he knew if he wasn't good with me, I would throw him out in a snow bank. (Just kidding!)

His name was Tommy, and he lived in a thirty gallon wash tub. He had a green shell with pink on the bottom. He had tiny yellow eyes with a black line across them and a short little nose. I don't know how old he was.

I had Tommy for about five or six months. I bought Tommy at a pet store in Colonie. I picked him out myself. The pet shop clerk could hardly catch him because Tommy kept swimming away. when the clerk finally did catch him, he put him in a box, and I took him home. On the way home, he scratched on the box trying to get out. But he couldn't get out because the top was taped closed.

One morning, before I went to school, I looked at Tommy. He was not moving, and I thought he was sleeping. But when I got home that night, he was still lying in the same way so I knew he was dead. Then, I buried him outside. I missed my turtle then and I still do.

A Snapshot of My Cousin Natalie

Natalie is my eighteen year old cousin. Natalie has light brown hair that is shoulder length. She stands about five feet eight inches tall. Her eyes are hazel blue.

Nat was born in Albany, but she moved to Texas. I don't know how old she was when she moved to Texas, but I think she returned to this area when she was fifteen.

When Nat returned to this area, she lived with my family for a while. Nat was good to me when she lived with us. I especially appreciated how she helped me with my homework. I liked her helping me with my math homework because she would give me an example of how to do it. Nat also helped with my spelling homework. She used to help me with the Challenge Word section. If I didn't understand the meaning of the word, she would explain it to me.

Not only was Nat good to me, but she was fun, too, especially when she danced. She danced to rock and roll music in the living room. She wiggled her shoulders and snapped at the same time, and then she shimmied to the floor. I really enjoyed watching her dance. Sometimes I would dance with her. Nat would dance whenever she was babysitting my two sisters and me.

I also liked it when Nat used to take us through the woods with the snowmobiles and the three-wheeler. That was exciting!

It's not the same since Nat moved out. I miss Nat.

THE SPOTLIGHT

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk

Snapshot of A Dog

My dog was named Makever. I don't know why or how she got this name. She was a Collie dog that looked just like Lassie. She had brown eyes that made her look as warm and cuddly as my old teddy bear, Pishposh.

When Makever whimpered, it sounded so soft, like a scared voice. She'd get especially scared in a storm. She'd whimper and cry until, if it were night, you'd let her under the covers with you. She'd curl up so that she felt like a soft fur ball on your legs.

When people came to the house they would call, "Here Lassie." Children especially would do this. When people would call, "Here Lassie," Makever would come to them. Although she didn't like to be called Lassie, she came anyway just to be nice. She was great that way.

But then a terrible thing happened. My little sister was born. I didn't mean it was terrible my little sister was born, I mean Makever's reaction to my baby sister was terrible. When my sister was in the cradle, Makever went over and got jealous.

After a few weeks, my mom had had enough. She decided that we had to get rid of Makever.

We took Makever to some woman's house. I heard sounds of other dogs in the background. The woman came out to greet us.

She said, "Mrs. Hanna is this the dog?"

My mom said, "Yes."
Then it hit me. We were going to give Makever away!

Then the woman said to me, "We will find her a good home."

Then I took her scruffy little neck in a bear hug and said, "By by Makever."

And with that we drove away. I was in the back seat, and I looked until Makever was out of sight.

Although we don't know where you are now, Makever, we love you. Even though I am older now, I still remember you.

As I Look Out My Window

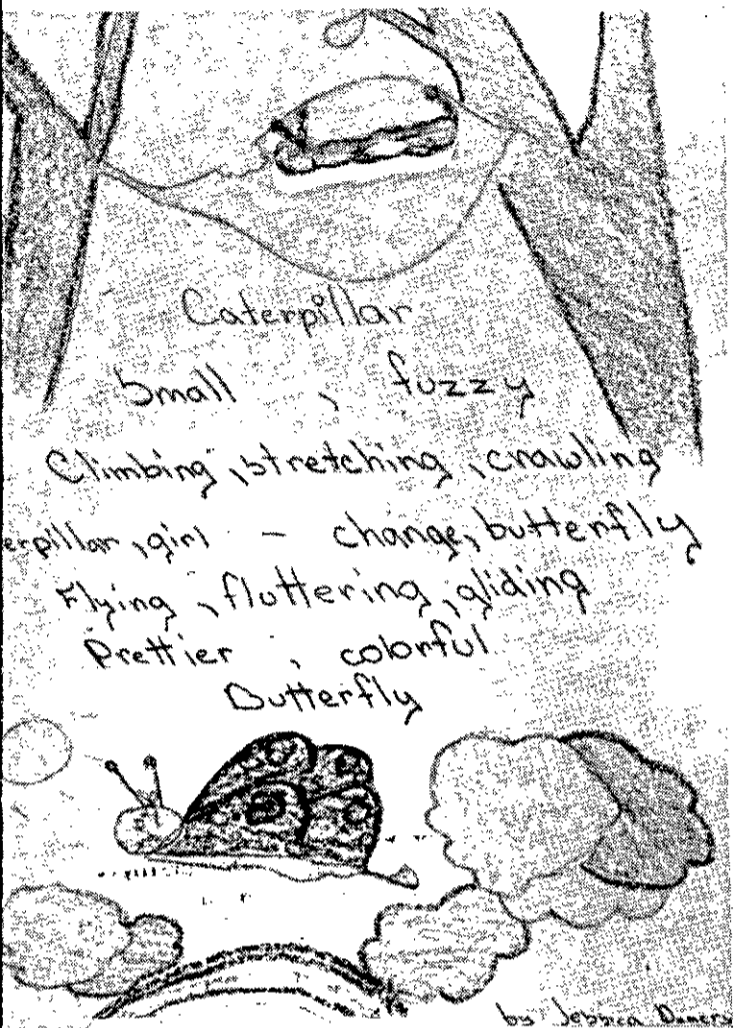

I see a tree
Next to it is a flying bee,
Farther off there is a rock,
And near that rock, is a clock,
The bee landed on the clock,
And it went, tick-tock,
The bee is striped with a polka-
dot tie,
So it began to fly.
Next it comes to a tree,
It is tall, and very green,
He flies some more and finds a house.
There is a mouse, in the house,
Who is the bee with the polka-who is he? He is I.

Education by the stopwatch

"I would like to see each of us this year make a commitment to maximizing our student's time on task." It was my second year of teaching in a school district downstate. The opening faculty meeting of the school year. I marked my principal's words, certain that "time on task" would be the focus of his attention during classroom observations. Two weeks later Mr. Ribozzo, my principal, met me in the hall. "Jim, I'll be by to see you sometime tomorrow."

"O.K., Mr. Ribozzo, we'll be there," I assented positively.

Time on task. Next day, sixth period, Mr. Ribozzo entered the room and took a seat near the back, two minutes before class started. I hustled to the door with a stack of handouts and passed them to students as they filed in. "Here, take a minute to look these over while you get settled." Jane Kraemer took hers without looking at it and continued her conversation with Tammy.

"Here, Bill, you can look this over for a second," I commented casually to Bill Peterson as he walked in. Bill looked incredulous. "But we still have two minutes," he argued.

"Yes." I said flatly. I didn't know how to answer. It was as though I was breaking an unwritten contract between teachers and students by starting class before class officially starts. Time on task, I thought, and continued handing out papers. Out of the corner of my eye I saw Mr. Ribozzo nodding with approval as students took the papers I was handing them. The bell rang. I raced to my desk, opened the book to take attendance, then checked myself. I must keep my students on task while I am occupied taking attendance. "Please continue reading the handout I gave you at the door. "What handout?" Jane Kraemer asked quietly. Her neighbor pointed out the papers on top of her stack of books.

I looked at my attendance book, pretending to take attendance.

Sometime around 1980, the American education establishment discovered that students learn more if they spend more time engaged in learning activities. Thus was born the concept of maximal learning time, and "time on task" was adopted into the jargon of education. Soon teachers' colleges were teaching it to their student teachers, highly paid education consultants were preaching it at teachers' conferences, and school administrators were writing it into teacher evaluations. The effect, as I observed it, was to pick up the already neurotic pace of activity in public schools. Students raced between classes in shorter passing

Students raced between classes in shorter passing times and teachers scrambled to keep every student engaged or at least busy at every moment...

Thirty seconds passed, too much time for attendance. I looked up.

"O.K., everyone, today we're going to read a short article about William Shakespeare's life then see a filmstrip about the Globe Theatre. You already have the article. There are three questions on the board. Please answer the questions after you read, and," I knew Ribozzo would like this, "if you finish early I have a second handout that I'd like you to read while you're waiting for your classmates. I'll give you about ten minutes."

Thus, class proceeded. The students appeared "on task", and Ribozzo's written report made special mention of "Mr. Nehring's maximal use of class time." As the weeks went along, I continued to push my students for maximum time on task, and as the weeks went along, I felt my rapport with the class begin to ebb, and the class, like a team of work animals driven hard, too hard, began to slow down, to become easily distracted, and to lose interest.

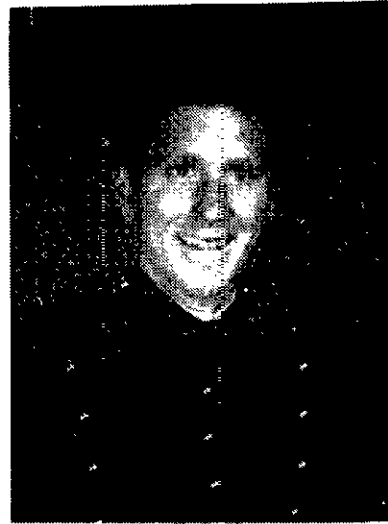

times and teachers scrambled to keep every student engaged or at least busy at every moment.

Time on task. The notion conjures up the image of stripe-suited convicts hammering at a pile of rocks, or a production manager, stop watch in hand, conducting a time and motion study of workers on the assembly line. I guess it is no accident that in an industrial society the terminology of industry and education tend to merge.

I do not contest the importance of purpose and intentionality in education. I do contest the neurotic accounting of education minutes and seconds which seems to dominate the current thinking in public education. Efficiency has merit but so do freedom, spontaneity and play.

Essay winner Mia Lobel going to Washington

An essay written by Mia Lobel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Lobel, of Slingerlands, has been selected for recognition by the United States Department of Education. The Bethlehem Central sixth grade student wrote an essay on "What the Constitution means to me and to our country" that was one of 150 chosen from more than one million essays written as part of the elementary essay project.

The Education Department will publish a book containing the nationally selected essays to commemorate the bicentennial of the Constitution, entitled "Children of the Constitution."

Mia and her mother Vivian will attend the recognition ceremonies being held at the end of the month in Washington, including a White House event with President Reagan and an award ceremony with Secretary of Education William Bennett.

Fridays for teens at Del Lanes

This summer, teenagers in Bethlehem will have an alternative — a place they can go on Friday nights for entertainment that is theirs alone, but still supervised enough that no parent should have to worry.

How well it is received should tell town officials a good deal about how a community center would be received in Bethlehem.

Starting Friday, May 29, and continuing for eight Friday nights through the summer (except July 3), Del Lanes in Delmar will be open for teenagers only from 7:30 to 11 p.m. There will be music, including an ongoing "battle of the bands," reduced cost bowling, free movies, as well as the game room, pool table and snack bar. There will be adult supervision from the regular Del Lanes staff, but the idea is to let the kids handle things themselves, says Del Lanes manager Ken Ringler.

"We're not anticipating any problems," Ringler said Friday.

Is this attractive enough to be an alternative to the many private parties, supervised and unsupervised, that are a part of summer for many Bethlehem teens? "I think there are people who have got in the habit of drinking at parties," acknowledges Beth Whitaker, a sophomore at Bethlehem Central High School who is one of the organizers of the program. But, she said, many teens would be happy to be in situations where there is no peer pressure to drink.

The Friday night parties are being sponsored by the BC chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) and Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited (BOU), with the backing of Del Lanes, which will absorb any losses incurred.

The major expense is for the bands, all local groups that have to rent their equipment. Del Lanes is picking up most of that cost and BOU is putting up a $300 prize for the winner of the "battle." So far two bands have signed up, with four others interested. On nights when there is no band (including the first Friday, May 29) there will be a disk jockey.

There will be a $2 admission fee, and Ringler said there will be no going out and coming back in once the tickets are sold. Bowling is 75 cents a game, with free shoes, and the only other costs are for the snack bar. There will be two movies nightly on the establishment's 45-inch screen.

BOU, which was formed to provide alternatives to Bethlehem teenagers, is putting up $500 grant to get the project going, said Phyllis Braga. "The focus of BOU is to come up with good projects, and usually we have to come up with them ourselves. So we're very enthusiastic about this," said Braga.

Whitaker, who is president-elect of the BC SADD organization, said she hopes to get a grant from the Albany County Stop DWI program to help out. SADD has been promoting the idea at the high school, and middle schoolers are also invited, she said.

For Ringler, the project has several benefits. Summers are a slow time for bowling lanes, so there is the potential for a new and profitable use of the facility, although Ringler said he is not anticipating a profit this year. In addition, Ringler is the current president of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce and has been an active member of the town committee exploring the possibility of a community center for Bethlehem. One of the issues being considered by the committee is whether such a center would be used by teenagers.

"This is sort of a trial program," Ringler said. "Whether it continues as a community center remains to be seen."

Trends change in teen drug use

The Equinox Counseling Center, 214 Lark St., Albany, has reported increased abuse of LSD and cocaine while abuse of marijuana and alcohol has remained constant among area youth. Requests for help with LSD and cocaine abuse have increased 70 and 60 percent since last year.

"Cocaine increases feelings of competence, self-esteem and adequacy while LSD decreases feelings of alienation and isolation," said Susan Cox, associate executive director of Equinox. "These drugs appear to appeal to youth because developmentally they are learning to cope with these very feelings. Sometimes they 'short circuit' this process and use drugs to cope with uncomfortable feelings.

"Substance abuse develops, is maintained and is best addressed and changed within a family. Therefore, we recommend family involvement in our services," said Cox. The center offers individual, family and group substance abuse counseling for people of all ages.

Equinox maintains a satellite counseling service in Bethlehem. For information call 434-6135, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays. Crisis intervention and referrals are provided through the Helpline of Albany County by calling 436-6000.

Belle's diary continues

Note: In response to popular interest in Belle Salisbury's diary notes, we are continuing the stories for a time. Howard and Belle Salisbury, nee Belle Wright, were married in 1906 and resided in a house that Howard built at 323 Delaware Avenue, Delmar. The Wright farm is located off of North Street in Delmar.

Dec. 10, 1911 - Howard drove Edith, Mother, Baby and I all down to spend p.m. at Secors (farm was on Normanside Country Club property - not demolished). I took 3 boxes of Christmas candy to Kenneth, Kittie and George. Gave Mr. and Mrs. Charles Secor a picture book and a biography book to Edna. Had a nice time. Ralph Leonard called and gave baby 50 cents for Xmas.

Dec. 20 - Had callers Ida and Hugh Lyons. Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Oliver spent the evening playing cards and flych. Stayed till 12 o'clock. Ida and Hughie took supper with us. I have some Xmas decorations around the rooms, looks nice.

TIMES REMEMBERED

Allison Bennett

Dec. 28 - I baked a three-layer chocolate cake and biscuits. Mrs. Salisbury sent over some Job's Tears strung on a ribbon for Xmas. I sent her part of my fresh cake in return. In the evening the Kunz girls called and brought Baby goods for a dress. Mrs. MacNary sent him a beautiful gold ring, one pearl, two rubies - too sweet for anything, also a pretty linen handkerchief for me. It is one of the best Christmases I ever had, all on account of Baby. Everyone loves him and gives him so many presents. Got a foot tub and a cracker jar for Howard for Christmas.

Jan. 1, 1912 - New Year's Day - Aunt Emma's folks stopped for us and we all had a very pleasant day at Mothers. Some skated, also sleighing for the first time.

Jan. 3 - Called on Mrs. P.Z. Allen. Allie Allen tacked the trimming on my hat. Uncle Al Gilbert is dead. Funeral is Friday and we expect to go. Want the hat for then.

Jan. 5 - Al Gilbert is buried. Uncle Will took Aunt Emma, Howard and I to funeral. It was a terrible cold, blustery ride - we nearly perished. After we came home Howard cracked nuts and popped corn, I made popcorn balls and a plate of molasses candy.

Jan. 8 - Very cold - below zero. Too cold to roof so Howard went to Albany and bought Jr. a box, all upholstered, for a sleigh, cost $1.48. Also a dandy big rubber doll with a whistle for $1.00 at Whitneys. Baby is delighted with the doll, he knows its new and he laughs about it and makes it whistle.

Jan. 12 - Snowed, blowed, cold, 2 above zero at noon time. Mrs. Van D. bought for baby the dearest little white wool sweater, 4 year size. I gave her a dollar for it. Mrs. Van D. gave Baby a rattle with a lot of bells. Mr. J. Robinson and Mrs. Frederick Judd called in p.m.

Jan. 16 - Swept, cleaned and dusted all through. Read, sewed and cut out two outing petticoats for Baby. Made a tapioca pudding. Edith, Helen and Mildred spent a couple hrs. I gave Edith her music lesson. Treated them to cocoa and pudding and walnuts. They had a fine time. There is good sleighing and skating. My folks are cutting ice.

Feb. 2 - I am planning for company on Sunday. Bought 1/4 lamb at 10 lbs. for 16 cents, $1.60 in all.

Feb. 9 - Am giving Aunt Emma a birthday shower of postcards. Know it will please her. Have told everyone I can think of.

Feb. 13 - Amy Salisbury and Elma Oliver called, also Mrs. Held. Took Baby out in carriage. I read to Howard all evening, he enjoys it so. Amy says her mother received 97 postcards for her birthday. I gave 3 more to make 100 cards.

April 14 - Aunt Emma, Uncle Will, Amy, Edith Provost, Flossy Reid and Lottie Wright took dinner with us and spent the p.m. I had a nice dinner of baked beans, sauce, mashed potatoes with cream and chocolate marshmallow cake, lettuce, pickles, etc. Edith played the piano for us. Baby was center of attraction. Aunt Emma brought a pail of milk and a dozen eggs. Baby and I enjoy these nice days. I have him out seven in the morning.

April 19 - Howard worked out in the garden all p.m., but his leg is painful. Us girls went over to ball ground as they were playing the first game of the season.

May 2 - Washed, ironed, swept, read, played, took baby up street to get some things for supper, also lettuce. Made a nice orange pudding, with lemon sauce. Gave Mrs. V.S. and Laura Doughlass a dish. Laura is failing (consumption). Howard has been painting Uncle Will's house.

May 3 - Very pleasant. Baby and I went down to Aunt Emma's with Howard and spent a very pleasant day there. I walked both ways. Sate Paige is making Alice some things as she is going to be a bridesmaid in June. I made them all a rose for their neck. They are very pretty. Howard went to Dr. Herrick with his leg, has varicose veins, must wear an elastic stocking for support. Bought himself and Baby a dandy pair of shoes, also a Puppy Pippin, very cute, Baby loves it. Also got a sulky to draw him around in.

May 12 - Mother's Day. It rained so hard we could not start for the farm until 11:30. Father has bought a Black Percheron stallion, 3 yrs. old, its a beauty. We were anxious to see it and nearly 30 people visited the place. Kittie and family were there. We had a dandy time. Took Mother and Father some cake and fruit.

May 17 - I tidied up my sewing room, swept and cleaned all through and did quite a washing, blackened the stove, bathed Baby and he took a good nap. I hustled all day. Mrs. Van took baby while I ran over to Olivers to see about fixing over my linen suit. Had a nice piece of elderberry pie. Russell stopped with his motor cycle on his way home, washed changed his clothes, went to city with Howard. Howard brought me a half pound of chocolate creams, 40 cents. They were delicious.

May 21 - In a.m. caught a ride to city. Started a $5.00 bank account for Howard Francis and a $1.00 account for me. So pleased about it. Went to food sale at Methodist Church in p.m. - bought a chocolate cake, 1 1/2 pies and potcheese.

May 24 - Had a picnic in Ryan's Grove, 12 of us. Had a fine lunch with 3 kinds of sandwiches, 2 kinds of cake, lemonade, peanuts, bananas and all kinds of games.

July 8 - Howard is working for McIntosh in Albany for 35 cents an hour.

July 17 - Sold 3 qts. raspberries at 12 1/2 cents a quart. Made jell, preserves and jam, baked 4 pies. Howard bought a pint of chocolate and vanilla cream this evening - delicious.

July 23 - Angels left an armful of young onions on back porch recently. My cabbage plans are doing fine - I pick worms every day.

August 23 - During the course of events I have kept house for Grandpa for 2 weeks and 2 days while Lillie R. and boy were visiting over the Helderbergs. I had one nice time. Made a freezer of cream, had muskmelons, etc. Grandpa is a cinch to get along with, tends Baby by the hour. Lillie gave me the money for the butter I made and sold for $1.35, also beans, beets, vinegar, eggs and apples. Then in a couple of days I went to Mother's as they had threshers to cook for.

DEADBEATS

Real estate professionals will soon have an added way to help determine the background of prospects. It's going to be harder for unqualified borrowers to sign up for housing loans soon because, under new regulations, lenders now have to report mortgage defaults to credit agencies, which keep tabs on who's who.

Our experienced real estate professionals have a pretty good record of separating the deadbeats from the live prospects. Our thorough qualifying interview really identifies who can afford what, and then we go a step further to determine what kind of home they want for their money. That's how we can match buyers and sellers so well.

Pity the poor homeowner who tries the do-it-yourself approach. It's hard to ask strangers about their finances—and harder yet to get straight answers. And an "inventory" of just one house limits what you can show and sell.

BC back in first place

By John Bellizzi III

The end of the high school baseball season is nearing, meaning a race for first place in the Suburban Council and a seed in the Sectionals. Bethlehem Central's hard-working varsity baseball team is currently in first in the Gold Division of Suburban Council with a 9-4 league record (13-5 overall) and their Sectional berth has already been confirmed.

"We're in first place now," mused BC Coach Ken Hodge. "I hope we can hang on to it."

The Eagles had "a very good week" according to Hodge, in which they won three league games and one non-league game, and lost one league game. The first game of last week was the week's only defeat, when the Eagles fell 6-3 to Mohonasen. Mike Hodge and Paul Evangelista pitched, Hodge going two for four at the plate and Evangelista doubling. The key hit of Bethlehem's offense that day, though, was a two-run homer by Ed Perry.

Tuesday, the Eagles picked up the first of two victories last week over winless Guilderland. The score was 4-2 this time around, with Doug Pratt as the winning pitcher. Josh Weinstein tripled for BC's only extra-base hit. The game-winning single was off the bat of Bill McFerran in the fifth inning. Pete Russo also contributed to the win with a single.

Thursday evening BC was again victorious under the lights at Central Park versus Linton, 8-6. Jon Skilbeck pitched his first winning game at the varsity level, and he was relieved by Evangelista, who got the save. Bethlehem's victory came in the top of the seventh when Perry walked and scored on a triple by Weinstein, and then Weinstein scored on Hodge's suicide squeeze to give the Eagles their 8-6 lead. Hodge was two for three with a triple and a single, batting in three runs. Jeff Boyd also had an RBI single.

On Friday, Guilderland fell to the Eagles again, this time by a more substantial margin, 11-4. Hodge was the winning pitcher, striking out ten Guilderland batters. Bethlehem's offense had a very successful afternoon, with four Eagles getting at least two hits. Evangelista went two for three with a triple and a single, Perry was two for three with two singles, Hodge was three for four with two singles and a double, and Russo was two for three with two singles.

Saturday, 8-4 Bethlehem faced 9-4 Scotia in an important league match that meant first place in the Gold Division. BC won, 3-2. The tying run was scored in the fifth when Weinstein singled, and then came home on a double by Hodge. The winning run came in the bottom of the sixth, when McFerran doubled, advanced to second on a sacrifice by Evangelista, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Boyd.

This week, the might of the soaring Eagles will be tested by Shaker on Monday and Burnt Hills on Wednesday, both league games, and Canojoharie in a non-league contest on Thursday.

The Bethlehem Central junior varsity baseball team, coached by John Furey, and the freshman team, under Jesse Braverman's guidance, are also winding up very successful seasons.

Indians come through in the clutch

By Bart Gottesman

Last week was probably the most important one of RCS baseball Coach Gary VanDerzee's career as the Indian skipper. The Indians had four games, three against the two teams that they were fighting with for the Colonial Council title.

Things were made even more difficult for VanDerzee when his team started the week off with a tie at Albany Academy and a loss to the co-leader in the council, Watervliet. With the next two games coming against the third team with a share of the council lead, Mechanicville, and Watervliet again, the Indians were in two must-win situations. A loss to either team would result in Ravena losing all hopes of reigning as champs of the council. In two pressure packed games, the Indians managed to stay poised and come through with two big wins, leaving them in first place at weeks end.

In the 12-inning battle at Albany Academy a shaky start allowing the Cadets a nine-run third inning put Ravena down early. Rich Losee pitched the first two and two-thirds innings before giving way to Mike Gallagher who pitched a strong three and one-third innings. Larry Rivers pitched the final seven innings, allowing only one unearned run while striking out 15 batters. Leading the Indians at the plate were John Waddingham, who had two hits including a triple, Rivers and Losee, who each had two hits, and Don Powell, who connected for three hits. The most crucial hit came off the bat of Russ McBride, who had a pinch hit single driving in the tying and go ahead runs in the seventh inning. After the twelfth inning, the umps called the game at 12-12 because of darkness.

Ravena lost to Watervliet on Tuesday 12-2. Russ McBride pitched for RCS and pitched well until he gave up five runs in the Birds winless one more week

By Matt Bates

After their first victory, the Voorheesville baseball team was shut out and later in the week shelled by its opponents to lower its record to 1-12 in the league and 1-14 overall.

Last Monday, the Birds played host to Schalmont. Sabre pitcher Bob Bruhns pitched outstandingly and after all was said and done Voorheesville had failed to get a hit. It was the first time this season that the Birds were the victims of a no-hitter. They were struck out 13 times and reached base just twice. The final score of the game was 7-0.

Wednesday, the team was home again, this time against Lansingburgh. They were shelled, 28-7, by the powerful Knights. Lansingburgh scored 14 runs in the sixth inning en route to the lopsided victory. Offensively, John Traudt had a single, double and a triple, as well as three RBIs. Mike Race added a two-for-three performance and four RBIs for the Birds.

The team ends its season today with a home contest against Mechanicville at 4 p.m. Although this season was less than impressive, the future is somewhat brighter for the Birds. The team had just one senior this year, and Coach Marty Gordinier hopes that the juniors' experience will carry over to next year and produce a winning season.

Andy Casale beats out a single, starting the 7th inning rally in Friday's game.

sixth inning. VanDerzee said the key to the game was that "they hit the ball and we didn't."

It looked as though Ravena's title hopes were fading against Mechanicville on Wednesday. The Indians trailed 5-2 in the sixth inning when their bats came alive and produced six runs. Leading the scoring spurt were Rich Losee and Waddingham with doubles, Rivers, Ken Losee and Scott Biernacki with singles and Powell with a key triple. Mike Gallagher started and was relieved by Rich Losee who pitched six innings of two-hit ball.

Rivers ran his record to 8-0 with the complete game victory Friday over then-first-place holder Watervliet, helping his cause with his bat. Down 4-3 with one out in the seventh, Andy Casale started the RCS rally with an infield single. Then Casale stole second and Ken Losee was walked. Both runners advanced on a passed ball. With two on and one out Waddingham, a four year varsity player, stood at the plate. The senior took a good rip at the ball but got under it just a little and hit a high pop fly to the short stop. Rivers was the next batter and delivered his game winning hit past the second baseman. On the mound Rivers allowed just three hits, two in the first inning, and struck out 10 batters.

This week the Indians have two games, one against Albany Academy and one with Schalmont. The Academy game will be a continuation of last week's extra-inning game and will start in the 13th inning. Ravena will then travel to Schalmont to face the Sabres, a team which they already defeated this season. A loss in either game will most likely end Ravena's chances of finishing first in the league.

The RCS Indians celebrate after topping Watervliet Friday. Bart Gottesman photos

Miles homer powers Spotlight, now 4-0

By John Bellizzi III

After two full weeks of play, the first-place team in the Tri-Village Little League major division is still the Spotlight, undefeated at 4-0. Professional Kitchen Designs almost managed to hand Spotlight its first defeat last Saturday in an extra-inning game, but in the eighth inning Spotlight pulled ahead to win the game.

The score was tied 7-7 as Spotlight came to bat in the top of the eighth. At 4 p.m. the bleachers were full but the crowd was relatively silent. The inning's first batter, Jon Scholes, drew a walk off Mike Carpenter, Professional Kitchens' reliever. Dave Miles brought in both himself and Scholes with a two-run homer over the center field fence, giving Spotlight a 9-7 lead. Lee Eck came in with another run before the side was retired, to give Spotlight a 10-7 lead.

Mike Pelletier started on the mound for Spotlight, with Miles and John Schaller coming in for relief. Schaller got the save. The trio combined to strike out ten batters, giving up only two walks. Miles' game-winning home run was the only extra-base hit of the game for Spotlight, but Schaller, Pelletier, Mike Futia and Dennis O'Shaughnessy each singled. Ben Comtois and Carpenter handled pitching duties for Professional Kitchens, striking out seven and walking three. Jon Matagaras showed his strength at the plate, with a double and two singles. Carpenter singled twice, and Adam Perry, Andy Black, Matt Merrill and Mike Breslin all singled.

Main-Care defeated Starwood 14-4 on Saturday afternoon, tying the two teams' records at 3-2. Joe Schneider struck out 10 for Main-Care, while Starwood's Matt D'Ambrosi had five strikeouts. Mike Gambelunghe added two home runs and a double for Main-Care to his season total, while teammate Sean VanNess had a three-base hit and a two-base hit, and Josh Lanni singled and doubled. Base hits also came from Bob Conway, Jamie Fraser, Mike Laiosa and Nick Dubroff. Starwood also had a good game at the plate, but couldn't match Main-Care. Luke Paigo and Duncan McKaskill each doubled, while D'Ambrosi, Chris Macaluso, Gary VanWormer and Scott Lobel were all good for singles.

In the final game on Saturday, General Electric remained strong but winless as Price-Greenleaf increased its record to 3-1. The final score was 9-4. Brandon Costello, John Noonan and Brian Garver combined for a six-hitter, striking out five. GE's Ed Lubberda got three of his team's six hits, with a double and two singles. Third baseman Sam Stasko singled, as did first baseman Marc Mannella, and outfielder George Fisk doubled. Jon Pesnel started on the mound for GE, with Lubberda coming in the 4th. They struck out 8, but gave up a home run to Mike Aylward and singles by Garver, Aylward, Costello and Tim Doody.

GE lost another close one last week, 8-7 in extra innings to Starwood. On the mound, it was Macaluso and D'Ambrosi up against Pesnel and Lubberda, with GE hitting five and Starwood three. Starwood's pitching struck out 10 GE batters, giving up seven bases on balls, while GE's bullpen took out three potential hitters, walking six. D'Ambrosi doubled for Starwood and McKaskill and Macaluso singled, while Lubberda had a two-base hit, and Chris Ryan, Stasko and Pesnel all singled.

Main-Care also had another victory earlier last week, 14-6 over Professional Kitchen Design. Gambelunghe and Kory Snyder combined for a three-hitter, retiring nine, while Mike Fabe, pitching for the opposition, struck out eight. Perry, Black and Ryan Green tripled, doubled and single respectively, while Gambelunghe had the only extra-base hit for his team with a double. Conway, Schneider, Fraser and Snyder all singled.

In the Intermediate league, Davies Office Refurbishing is still on top with a 5-0 record, although Hoogy's Village corner almost gave them their first loss on Monday, in a 4-3 game that Davies won in extra innings. Hoogy's starting pitcher Eric Bartoletti struck out 14, and shut out Davies 3-0 until the bottom of the last inning. Kevin Kelly pitched the 7th for Hoogy's, and Brad Mattox and Matt Winterhoff pitched for Davies, who also defeated Handy Andy last week, 16-6. Mattox and Winterhoff combined to strike out 16 batters. Mattox had the game-winning hit.

Sam Perkins at clinics

Sam Perkins, former Colonie star and All-American at the University of North Carolina and currently a member of the Dallas Mavericks, will again conduct area basketball camps from Monday, June 29 to Friday, July 3. The camps will be directed by Lou Cioffi, varsity coach at Averill Park High School and the director of the Averill Park Basketball Camp, which will be held July 6 to 10.

The four area Perkins-Cioffi camps will be held at the Albany Jewish Community Center (boys and girls) on Whitehall Rd.; the Watervliet City Rink (boys and girls); Schalmont High School (boys and girls) and Rensselaer High School (girls only). The camps are open to boys and girls from the ages of 8 to 18 and will run simultaneously from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Joining Perkins will be Brad Dougherty of the Cleveland Cavaliers. Daugherty, also a former All-American at the University of North Carolina, was the number one draft choice of the NBA in the 1986 draft.

RCS girls 3-1 on week

By Paul Curley

With one game remaining in the regular season, the Ravena softball team has a 10-8 record. Last week they lost one to Schalmont, but won three, including a 29-0 destruction of Catskill.

On Monday the Indians defeated Cohoes 11-4. Amy Kane hit a double, single and had two RBIs. Karen O'Brien also hit a couple of singles and Terri Baker pitched for the win.

On Tuesday, Ravena traveled to Schalmont, only to come away losing 10-7. The Indians jumped out to an early 4-0 lead but Schalmont came roaring back with six in the second inning. Kane and Jackie Mulligan each had RBI singles and Mulligan pitched. "She actually pitched well, despite the score," said Coach Bruce Stott.

On Wednesday Catskill was embarrassed by Ravena 29-0. Baker tossed for five innings and Mulligan relieved the last two to combine for the shutout, and everybody contributed with the bat.

Then, while the Ravena baseball team was beating Watervliet on Friday, the softball team did the same, 5-1. Baker pitched a one-hitter with 11 strikeouts. "Baker was super. I think it was her best game this year," said Coach Stott. Also contributing to Vliet's defeat were Lisa Holsapple, who went three for three and scored three runs, and Mulligan, who hit two singles.

This week Ravena played Holy Names on Monday and are keeping their fingers crossed in the hopes of a Sectional berth.

Car hits sign post, driver ticketed

Three people were taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital after an Albany man lost control of the car he was driving on Rt. 9W Saturday morning, Bethlehem Police said.

Treated at the hospital were Willie Terrell, 19, of Albany, Steve Johnson Jr., 18, no address available and Nicole Gratten, 20, also no address available. They were later released, a hospital spokesman said.

A fourth passenger in the car, Lorie Southwick, 22, of Hannacroix, was also taken to Albany Medical Center, police said, but hospital officials said they had no record for her.

While Terrell was driving north on Rt. 9W near Feura Bush Rd., he lost control of the car, and it hit a signpost. The car then continued forward until it stopped on the front lawn of a Rt. 9W home, police said.

Terrell was ticketed for driving without a license and failure to reduce speed, police said.

Workaholic Eagles atop council

By Dave DeCecco

In most sports, teams get at least a day for practice or rest between competition. In other sports, it is illegal to compete on consecutive days. Tennis players get no such luxury. Bethlehem Central had a match every day last week, but did not seem to mind, taking four out of five to move their overall record to a whopping 12-1.

Monday the Eagles were at Colonie for a relatively uneventful blowout of the Raiders, 9-0. Tuesday, however, it was a different story at Shaker, where the Eagles lost their first match of the year in a heartbreaking 5-4 decision to the Blue Bison. "In this match, if the kids were going to win, they had to play their highest level of tennis," said coach Sue Schaefer, "It was the whole team's match."

Stan Lee was the last one out on Shaker's four court setup, and his bout was by far the most exciting of the afternoon. The team score was tied 4-4 and Lee's match would decide the outcome. Says Schaefer: "Stan wins his points by strategy, not by power, which is what made his match so exciting."

Tennis

The players traded point after point and had some long, tantalizing volleys that were followed by both cheers and silence from both teams, but Lee, a senior and co-captain, could not hang on for the win.

A tough team loss like that one is hard to recover from, and, of course, the Eagles had to play the next day. Luckily, this one was at home against Mohonasen, and Schaefer gave some younger players some varsity time. The lineup proved no weaker as the Eagles mowed down the Mohons 9-0.

Thursday BC received a visit from Niskayuna, a team that they squeezed by 5-4 earlier in the season. This one was not quite as close. BC downed Nisky, 7-2, and one of the visitor's wins was by default. Friday, Burnt Hills traveled to Delmar, and the Spartans had the honor of being Bethlehem's 12th victim of the season, 6-3.

Needless to say, Schaefer is very pleased with the way her team is playing. "Neil Breslin is playing some good tennis, Brian Saelens and Sam Ernst are becoming very consistent, and I can always count on Stan. Dave Cunningham can play with anybody, and Scott Reed and Mark Woodruff are great at closing a match if it comes down to the third set," she said. Schaefer also noted that senior Bill Liddle, in his first year of tennis, is probably her most improved player, and he will join Jeff Grant at the number three doubles position. "Jeff is very versatile, in that he can play singles or doubles whenever we need him," Schaefer said.

"But I think right now that Dave Cory is playing the most exciting tennis. He lost last week, but he is still playing very well," Schaefer said.

Bethlehem has the best record in the Suburban Council, since Shaker has lost twice to Shenendehowa, and the Eagles have beaten 'Hova, but the Council title is not locked up yet. BC has yet to face Guilderland, a Gold Division power, at home on Monday and away on Wednesday. "We could either win it, or lose the whole thing," said Schaefer. Tuesday BC faces Mohonasen in what should be another shutout, and Thursday, Friday and Saturday they will be at Burnt Hills for team Sectionals, where revenge over Shaker may be a factor in how pumped up BC gets.

BC trackmen set 4 marks

Last week was one for school records for the Bethlehem boy's track team, as four new marks were set.

Monday, with a severely undermanned team because of Honor Society inductions, the Eagles fell to Columbia and Burnt Hills at Burnt Hills. Coach Ron Cameron feels that BC could have beaten the Blue Devils with everyone there, but that the Spartans were probably out of reach. Even though the team dropped the two decisions, there was a bright spot in the meet. Senior co-captain Bob Colquhoun broke his own school record in the 100, which he set last year, running an 11.4. His old mark was 11.5.

Thursday BC competed in its first and last home meet of the season against Mohonasen. Guilderland was also there, but the Eagles did not score against them since they met up earlier this year, with Bethlehem winning by one point. BC ended their season on a good note, beating the visiting Mohons, 99-82, to finish the year at 3-7, one of the team's better records in recent years. Colquhoun lowered his school record in the 100 by another tenth of a second down to 11.3, and doubled his pleasure by breaking Mark LeBeau's year-old school 200 record of 23.7 with a 23.3.

The record in the 400 relay also went down in this meet. Mike Hofer, Craig Christian, John Schafer and Colquhoun broke the record of 46.5 set by Colquhoun, Brian McGarrah, Matt Oschner and Mat Dunmore in 1985 with a 46.4 on the conversion from 440 yards. Other winners were Ian Berry in the half-mile, Pete Winkler in the two-mile, Alex Koff in the pole vault, Bob Dillon in the long jump, and both the mile and two-mile relays. Berry, Schafer, Brendan Mitchell and Dirk Weheman composed the mile relay and Berry, Winkler, Mitchell and Pat McSharry were in the two-mile relay.

The girls' team had a meet at Shenendehowa Thursday, where they beat Mohonasen 108-38, lost to Niskayuna 100-69, and fell to the hostesses 105 1/2 to 63 1/2 to close out the season at 2-8. Winners were Anne Carey in the 100-meter high hurdles and 400 intermediate hurdles with respective times of 16.2 and 66.7, and Kelly Ross in the high jump with a height of five foot four inches.

Saturday's William F. Eddy memorial track meet at Union College attracted some of the best athletes in the state, and a handful of Bethlehem participants did not get entirely lost amidst such tough competition. The Eddy meet is primarily a boy's meet, but an influx of female athletes in recent years has prompted meet officials to add a girl's invitational 800 and 400 relay. Carey competed in the 800 for the third time in her career and placed fourth with a 2:17.53. Her 2:15.98 of two years ago still stands as Bethlehem's record, and may stand for quite a while. Carey, a senior, will bring her talents to the University of Miami (Ohio) next fall.

Junior Brendan Kearsé set a new Bethlehem record in the 1600 at the Eddy Meet, shaving six-tenths of a second off Bill Street's 1982 mark of 4:32.0. Kearsé, running despite a strain in his lower calf muscle, clocked a 4:31.4 en route to third place in the stacked unseeded heat.

BC's 400 relay of Hofer, Christian, Schafer, and Colquhoun gunned for their own record, but just missed with a 46.60. The fully automatic timing at this meet tends to be slower than hand timing, since reaction time is not taken into consideration, so at a hand-timed meet they may reset the record. Also for Bethlehem, Duke-bound Winkler ran a 10:11.75 in the 3200, and the 3200 relay of Winkler, Berry, Mitchell and Kearsé ran an 8:31.49.

Now, the season winds down and it comes time for the championship meets. The boys were at the Suburban Council meet Tuesday at Shenendehowa, and they have Class A Sectionals Friday at Guilderland. The girls competed at Suburbans Tuesday at Shaker and they are scheduled for Sectionals Saturday at Burnt Hills.

RCS boys in stride for dual meet title

By Josh Curley

A big week for the RCS boys track team included a stunning fourth place finish in the Albany County meet, clinching at least a share of the Council dual meet title, and breaking two school records.

Last Tuesday Ravena not only shocked the other county schools, but also pleasantly surprised Coach Jim Gorham. RCS captured fourth place out of field of ten teams, mostly large Class A schools. Though the Indians won only one event, Mike Frazzetta's six-foot high jump, they placed in almost every other event which allowed RCS to accumulate many points. Besides Frazzetta's exceptional show of talent, Joe Noeth placed second and fourth in the 100 and 400 hurdles, respectively, and Tim and Jerry Baranska each broke a school record. Tim managed this when he broke his own record in a qualifying run of the 400 hurdles in a time of 57.1 seconds. Jerry threw 145'1" in his second place effort in the discus, beating out Steve Dening, the highly respected weight man from CBA.

RCS is down to one last obstacle on their way to another Colonial Council dual meet championship. This will come on Thursday when the teams meet Schalmont. The Indians took a step last week when they improved their council record to 4-0 after completely dominating Cohoes and Lansingburgh. Both teams were regarded as very good before the meet, but didn't seem to challenge RCS. Ravena placed first in every event against Cohoes in the 110-31 win and allowed only one first place to Lansingburgh in winning that meet, 113-28. Arthur Burnett won the 100, 220 and helped in the 440 relay. Tim Baranska won both the 110 and 440 hurdle events. Paul Curley placed on top in the 880 and the mile. Matt Tice triumphed in the 440 and ran a leg of the victorious one mile relay. Frazzetta won the high jump, Jerry Baranska took both disc and shot, and Jim Simpson won the pole vault.

Last weekend, several of the best RCS track team members traveled to Union College to compete in the Eddy Meet. Gorham was impressed with Ravena's 200 meter relay team consisting of Burnett, Tim Baranska, Mike Frese and Noeth. Also, Baranska and Noeth advanced to the semi-finals in the 110 hurdles. Baranska came closest to placing in the meet when he took seventh in the 400 hurdles.

This week RCS is faced with the Colonial Council Championship on Tuesday, and Gorham feels the Indians can win if they continue their hard work. Also, the dual meet title winner will be known on Thursday, after the last meet against Schalmont. Boys track Sectionals are this Saturday.

Growth plan needed

Editor, The Spotlight:

Two related articles in the May 6th Spotlight perfectly illustrate the need for a full time town planner who can coordinate long range planning for Bethlehem as it enters a period of unprecedented growth.

In the article about the League of Women Voters debate on the development of Rt. 9W, Rt.9W is called a "country" road by Bob Zick, a "major artery" between New

In a related story, Town Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick happily announced tentative plans for the development of a 80,000 sq. ft. retail complex at the corner of Rt. 9W and Feura Bush Rd. While the town definitely desires a second supermarket, is it not premature to be leaping forward to embrace so large a complex without consideration of the impact it would have on:

- 1) the intersection: where a 20,000 sq. ft. complex is now under construction across Feura Bush Rd.
- 2) traffic on Elsmere Ave. and Feura Bush Rd. which would be a major route from Delmar and Slingerlands.
- 3) the trees surrounding the site, most especially the 20 mature maple trees which line Feura Bush Rd.

Admittedly the Planning Board will address these issues but would it not be better to view each development as it fits into a pre-established plan?

Mary R. and Douglas P. Powell

Issues grow rapidly

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing you as a concerned citizen. The proposed rapid growth of Bethlehem is being undertaken without sufficient planning. No provision has been made to expand the already crowded school system; the water supply has not been taken into account; the study of the increase in traffic is totally inadequate; there is no provision for additional land fill sites for trash, and finally, although the sewage treatment plants are already inadequate and raw sewage, it is indicated, is already being emptied into the Hudson, no new treatment plants have been provided for.

It seems these issues should be addressed before any construction begins.

Patricia Mascarenhas

Glenmont home robbed

A Glenmont home was robbed of $600 this week after a bedroom window on the home was forced open, Bethlehem Police said.

Between Friday and Saturday, $600 in cash was taken from the home after a bedroom window screen was pulled off and the window was forced open, police said.

Better examples

Editor, The Spotlight

I received a flier recently from Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited addressing the issue of drugs and alcohol in the Bethlehem Schools. As a parent, I endorse the efforts of this organization and the position they take in this flier, as far as it goes. It is so subtle, many may miss its essential points:

- Teenagers copy their parents to act "adult". If their parents drink to have a good time or do drugs, then so will the kids. Very nearly all parents in this community drink and look disdainfully on those of us who don't (as do their kids)! Many supply both alcohol and drugs to their kids and their kids' friends.
- Teenagers must learn that their actions have consequences. My kid's teachers have been pounding that message home since kindergarten, and I have supported it! I do not advocate arrest and criminal proceedings, necessarily, but consistent accountability is essential!
- The police department can't do it all alone. They are faced with an impossible task if they find themselves at cross purposes with parents. The Bethlehem Police feel very defensive. Parents are quick to defend their kids with threatened law suits and yet hold the police responsible if their kids get hurt.
- As a parent, I am frustrated by the Police Department's defensiveness. I need them as an ally. I need to know when they find my child drinking. I need for that child to be embarrassed, chastised and held accountable so he'll get the message that he can flaunt the law.

• I need to be called to come and get the child. If I am not called, the child will ride home with a friend. One who was also drinking at the same party. Please don't call me to identify the body later!

• I need to know if my child has had a party in my empty house when I wasn't there. The police are not doing me or my child a favor by not reporting that to me. From personal experience, I can report that my son, in June of 1986 attended no less than 28 parties at which beer was served and drugs offered (often in considerable quantity) and where the police came and dispersed the crowd. Most of the kids left in their own cars. In some cases the police took names but in no case did they notify the owners of the house nor the parents of those who attended the party. In one case, my 15-year-old daughter was instructed by a police officer to drive her friend home because he was too drunk to walk, let alone drive. She was unlicensed and had also been drinking.

Fellow parents, please help me show my kids that they can have fun without booze. Do you know that you can have fun without booze? When was the last time you stayed sober enough to have any other fun? When was the last time you watched a football game without a beer in your hand?

I have given up alcohol. Not for lent but for so long as I have teenage kids! Once a modest social drinker

(as many in this town will attest) I haven't had any alcohol for three years. I still go out, I still have a good time, I even frequent my favorite tavern, but I drink a lot of mineral water.

I believe the solution to this problem is both simple and perhaps impossible. As parents, we need to set a better example. As a community of parents, we need a strong and mutually supportive alliance with our children and with the Bethlehem Police Department.

From here to there

Editor, The Spotlight

Back to the starting line. We'll try again. The 55 mile-per-hour speed limit wasn't fast enough. So Congress passed a law allowing individual states to raise the speed limit on interstate highways in rural areas to 65 mph. That is, portions of highways outside cities of 50,000 population or more. All vehicles will "benefit". The revived sleek sport cars, trucks and most of all, the massive multiwheel tractor trailers who "lose money" on a lower speed on interstate expressways. No matter if the latter are responsible for the heaviest pounding and damage to the highways. The modest four cylinder cars, too, will join the race to make up time from here to there.

Congress, ready to please its constituents, was of one mind on this speed issue. The president had no objections. After all, our great country cannot remain behind the European expressways some portions of which still have no speed limits.

Statistics show a decrease in highway fatalities since the adoption of the 55 mph interstate highway speed limit. But that is not as important as gaining 10 miles each hour of driving time. True, the faster a car or truck goes, the more gas it uses, the more wear and tear, but gas is plentiful right now and "cheap", and motorists have the money to spend on more frequent repairs.

Besides, what's all the crabbing? The individual states will also regulate the lower speeds on state highways. The increase to 65 mph is meant mostly for those long stretches of interstate our west where traffic is light, time counts and driving at 55 is "monotonous".

Will all the states be diligent in enforcing the faster speed limit as they were when the 65 mph law was in effect and 70-75 mph was common on these so-called rural stretches and others not so rural?

I am for the 55 mph limit on all super highways. It lengthens the life and efficiency of the car, it reduces accidents, expensive hospitalizations, permanent injuries, lives.

Call for cooperation

Editor, The Spotlight:

I find it interesting that, if BUT candidates "...were never able to come up with a positive program that made sense to many people" (Spotlight editorial, May 13), they were still "...seen as such a threat that much of this election was dominated by maneuvering to insure that its candidate didn't win."

By whom was BUT perceived as a threat? And, to what or to whom did it pose a threat?

If BUT had nothing to offer, it could not pose a threat in a citizenry of intelligent voters, could it? What intelligent person would cast a vote against excellence and in favor of nothing!?

Why the need to rally defenses against BUT? If all is well and right in Excellence Land, and the job has been well done, what's to fear?

Was the fear of unintelligent voters (who might not know the difference between "excellence" and "nothing" and cast a wayward vote)? Or, was the fear of intelligent voters-who might? And cast a vote for change.

Defensiveness is an insult to the intelligence of voters. As a response from anywhere within the school community — parents' groups, board of education members or BCS administration — to query, concern, the suggestion of change, or difference of opinion, it is unprofessional and suggestive of a need to camouflage and obscure. (What?) The practice wastes time and energy, diverting it from the task of educating to negative pursuits. It makes an unfavorable statement about the values and priorities of the defensive, and it succeeds in setting a negative and stifling tone for teaching, learning and discussing, throughout the system.

You are right; a change is needed. It might come in the form of a new superintendent; more likely, it would come in a change of attitude on the part of those who feel threatened and thus defensive. When defenses are dropped and the blinders of fear removed, vision of the educational process becomes clearer. It is one in which parents and voters are partners with the board of education and BC administration, not adversaries. I vote for that. It would be a refreshing change and would provide opening for a fresh start, with the focus centered where it belongs: on the education well-being of the community's children.

Wise planning

Note: The following letter was sent to John Williamson, Chairman of the Bethlehem Planning Board.

May I congratulate you and the Board for your recent decision to enlist outside help in the planning of Rt. 9W and the surrounding area!

You all inherited a complex "hodgepodge" of zoning and are faced with an awesome prospect of residential, commercial and light industrial growth. I hope you follow Dennis Corrigan's quoted suggestion of a "stopgap measure before development begins."

As you know, I am vitally concerned with development's effect on the Glenmont School, as well as traffic, sewer and water requirements.

I still suggest a "limited moratorium" for the general 9W and surrounding area to give you breathing and planning time as Dennis suggests.

Thank you.

Openness lauded

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Greg Maher on his recent campaign for the school board. Although he was not successful in gaining election, his campaign represented a new openness and forum for discussion on important issues. Such open discussion is necessary if the problems of our school district are to be resolved. I am proud to have been one of Greg's supporters and hope that he will remain active in our school district.

Complaints unheeded

Editor, The Spotlight:

I have repeatedly complained to New Scotland town officials about Fred Carl's violation of his special use permit, which was granted for the lot at the corner of South and New Scotland Rds. in spite of opposition from many New Scotland residents.

When the special use permit was granted, Carl's representative said trees would be planted on the south boundary. A picture was submitted showing a large tree in the center of the lot, which is now jammed with cars. Carl was advised he could not use South Rd. except to get supplies.

Fred Riester, the town attorney, said the permit could be revoked if Carl did not meet its conditions. Well, he hasn't met the conditions, and nobody knows how a special use permit is revoked.

Walt Miller, the town building inspector, says Carl has been cited many times. The citations have always been vacated. Then, Carl immediately violates the ordinances again.

Last month five cars were parked illegally on South Road. He drives new and used cars onto the lot from South Road. For more than a year junk tractor wheels, lumber and cartons have been stored on the southeast corner of the lot in violation of the junk ordinance. The fence is also down on the southeast corner of the lot.

I could get at least 30 or more signatures of people who agree with this letter; but, why waste my time when nothing will be done.

Community Corner

A Memorial tradition

Monday, May 25, has been set aside this year for remembering those who fought to keep our country free for more than 200 years. All of us should remember the reason for observance during the holiday weekend.

To commemorate the holiday, the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post will hold its traditional Memorial Day Parade, kicking off at 11:15 a.m. Monday at Poplar Dr. and Herber and Elsmere Avenues.

In Voorheesville, the American Legion Post will be parading from Voorheesville Elementary School at 10 a.m., Sunday, May 30 — incidentally, the traditional Memorial Day.
