To every season . . .

By Katie Biggerstaff

Some time around noon last Friday, John and Dorothy Hillman, of Selkirk, loaded the last of the unsold produce in the back of their green pick-up truck, closed the tailgate and left the farmer's market in the St. Thomas parking lot for the last time this year and probably for the last time ever.

"I think we'll be stopping farming" said John Hillman earlier in the day. "It's getting too hard on us and we can't seem to get any help. We start the planting in February with the leeks and that's easy. We would be busy until it's time to harvest for the market, but then, with no help, the weeds really get out of hand."

"Our son and his wife would come up to help out every Monday and Thursday night before the market," said Mrs. Hillman. "But there is such a variety and so much to prepare. Mr. Hillman insists on bringing it all in to the market looking right. Even if it takes us fourteen hours, we do it."

The Hillman farm has been in operation since 1929. For that family, as for many farmers, farming is a way of life, not just a means of support. John Hillman is in partnership on the farm with his brothers, Theodore and Henry, who began the operation in 1929. The farm has 188 acres, and though the Hillman brothers will still be raising the corn, wheat, and oats they sell for cargo grain to Agway, not tilling the two acres they devote to produce for the farmer's market will be a real change.

"We'll still have a home garden," said Mrs. Hillman. "And if I know him, he just might be bringing the extras to the market sometimes next year. He enjoys it so much."

Mr. Hillman's dream is to see the Town of Bethlehem open a market for local farmers. He suggests the parking lot of the town hall as a feasible spot for a town-sponsored market. He is grateful to the church for providing for the Friday market in the last nine years he and his wife have been coming in to sell their produce, but says, "I just think it would be a nice thing for the town to do for the people."

Maybe that would be a nice legacy for John and Dorothy Hillman who have been such an important presence at the market over the years. "We've enjoyed the people. We've made a lot of friends here. They hate to see us go and we hate to go," said Dorothy, shortly before it was time for their truck to pull out of the lot for the last time.

Reilly beats Cossac by 531 Osterhaut, Sgarlata win

By Patricia Mitchell

In a stunning vote, Democrat Herbert Reilly has been elected supervisor in New Scotland. The Democrats also captured one of two town board seats, according to unofficial vote counts Tuesday night.

The town councilman defeated Republican Corinne Cossac, town clerk, to be elected the first Democratic supervisor in the town in over 150 years. Democrat John Sgarlata won election to the town board, and veteran Councilman Wyman Osterhaut won reelection easily, leaving the board with a 2-2 balance come January. That leaves open the possibility that the Democrats could have a third seat by appointment and gain control of the board.

Republican Stephen Wallace decided earlier this year not to seek reelection after 14 years.

The Conservative line and the crisscrossing of voters were important in Tuesday's election. The Republicans have a 481-voter edge in registration, 2,059 to 1,578, but Reilly was elected regardless. Sgarlata trailed Republican Blanche Stickley until the Conservative votes were tallied.

Also Tuesday, Republicans kept control of the other town offices up for election, including Kenneth Connolly's defeat of incumbent Cynthia LaFave for town justice.

According to unofficial results, Reilly led 2,201 to 1,670 to receive the supervisor nod. He said Tuesday night that he was "elated and awed at the job."

Cossac said she congratulated Reilly for his election, adding that she worked hard at her campaign. "I have always said you can't second guess the voters. I have no regrets," she said.

Reilly said Tuesday night he was not sure how the remaining two years on his four-year term as councilman will be filled to break the 2-2 tie.

"For once in the history of this town we will be facing an even stand," Reilly said of filling the seat, adding he will consult with his campaign manager, John

Burns victory a first

By Tom McPheeters

Robert Burns has apparently become the first Democrat ever to win a town office in Bethlehem. But with some absentee ballots still unaccounted for as of midnight Tuesday, both the Democrats and Republicans were seeking to have the voting machines and absentee ballots impounded for a recount.

According to unofficial figures compiled by Bethlehem Town Clerk Carolyn Lyons, Burns was leading Republican Thomas Scherer by six votes, 4,881 to 4,874. Fred Webster, the third candidate and second Republican in the race, was comfortably ahead with 5,504 votes. Burns, Scherer and Webster were running for two four-year terms on the town board. Republican Dennis Corrigan was unopposed for a two-year term on the town board, and incumbent Republican Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick was unopposed for a second full two-year term.

"It's not over," Republican Chairman Bernard Kaplowitz said at midnight. Kaplowitz said about 40 absentee ballots and perhaps four or five paper ballots are either uncounted or are not accounted for. He said he is asking the Albany County Board of Elections to impound the voting machines and ballots. Democratic Chairman William Burkhard said he made the same request.

Burns' apparent victory — and even the fact that he came so close — is every bit as much a political stunner as the Democratic wins in neighboring New Scotland. Democrats gathered at party Chairman William Burkhard's house were jubilant that they had a contested election. As Burns said after being congratulated early in the evening on a "close" race, "it's great to be able to say that in this house." It was

Panel urges senior housing push

By Tom McPheeters

Keeping senior citizens in Bethlehem well housed in the next two decades will require not only new housing especially for them, but also a major effort to assist seniors who want to continue to live at home.

Those are the general conclusions of the town's Housing Committee on senior citizens, which issued its first major report last Wednesday. While the report focused on the development of new housing, committee Chairman Sue Ann Ritchko announced at the meeting that the town last week took a major step toward the second goal of helping seniors stay in their homes.

The town has incorporated a not-for-profit group called Bethlehem Senior Projects Inc., and has applied for a state grant that would be used to assist low income senior citizens who are home owners with home repairs to roofs, foundations and plumbing. The new corporation, said Ritchko, will "open up the funding process for the Town of Bethlehem."

The goal of enabling elderly people who wish to remain in their existing residences will be covered in another presentation next year, Ritchko said. Wednesday's report focused on new housing opportunities for the elderly — with some specific suggestions that may not be easy to achieve.

The committee recommended a broad strategy for encouraging private developers to build housing for moderate and lower income senior citizens, including zoning incentives and tax breaks, and also proposed that the town encourage the development of a "geriatric campus", where elderly people would have a full range of services available as they needed them.

The committee would have the town set a goal of developing a specific number of units of moderate and lower middle particularly unexpected because the Democrats had failed to field a full ticket this year, and Burns' campaign had gotten started late.

"I don't think it was any one thing," Burns said Tuesday. "I don't think it was just planning and development." Planning had been the major public issue in the campaign, brought up first by several citizens groups and then elaborated on by Burns in a series of advertisements that ran in The Spotlight.

Burns said the reception he received when he campaigned door to door indicated that many people also responded to his plea that it was time to open up town government, and that he would be responsible in opposition — "a feeling that I wouldn't hurt the good things." He may also have been helped by the fact that the Albany Democratic machine is no longer as feared as it once was.

"I may just be the fortunate Democrat who came along at the right time," Burns said.

The Republicans had other factors on their minds. Coming off a bruising primary battle in September there was still a question as to how united the party was, and hard the rank and file worked for the ticket. Both Kenneth Hahn, who had been the target of the primary challenge, and Gary Swan, his Glenmont ally, had returned to the party fold after Hahn's victory in September, but that fight may have shaken the party's image as both fair minded and invincible.

The Glenmont vote was particularly interesting: in the 22nd District, which includes Colonial Acres, Burns got 245 votes, Webster 200 and Scherer 155. In the 25th District, Burns' home district and also the home district of Corrigan and Swan, it was Burns 346, Webster 273 and Scherer 226. Both of those districts are areas where new development is a major concern.

Republicans will also be looking at the impact of "bullet voting" — Burns asked voters to pull the lever only for him, noting that a vote for either Scherer or Webster would work against him.

"In my district, over 150 votes disappeared," Swan said, referring to the difference between votes for other races and votes on the town board line.

The only other contested races in Bethlehem were for the three county legislature districts in the town and for county offices. Figures supplied by the town clerk's office and GOP headquarters differed, but both had the three Republican incumbents winning easily. In the 34th District, W. Gordon Morris beat John Dinneen, 1,717 to 1,152, according to GOP figures. In the 35th District, James Ross beat Stephen Kennedy, 1,874 to 988. And in the 36th District, it was Robert Hoffmeister over Richard Picarazzi, 1,763 to 1,140.

Republican challenger Robert Walker was leading incumbent County Executive James Coyne in Bethlehem by a healthy margin, 6,156 to 2,868, according to town figures.

In the uncontested town races, Hendrick received 6,205 votes, Dennis Corrigan got 5,906, Town Clerk Carolyn Lyons 6,602 votes, Town Justice Peter Wenger 6,509 votes, Highway Superintendent Martin Cross 6,577 votes and Hahn 6,718 votes to lead the ticket. Hahn also got 432 Conservative votes.

□ New Scotland board split

Biscone, former supervisor of Coeymans, on the matter.

The Republicans had a slim 3-2 majority on the town board until this summer when Stickley's appointment made it 4-1. The Democrats needed one seat to get back the previous balance.

"I am very excited, but there was an awful lot of work to be done," Sgarlata said Tuesday night. He ran on a platform of zoning, water, and being responsible to the residents.

Osterhaut, who ran on his record and was the only council candidate up for reelection, was hospitalized Tuesday night with a minor illness.

According to unofficial tabulations, Osterhaut led the town board candidates with 1,931 votes and Sgarlata was close behind him with 1,849. Stickley, who was appointed to the town board this summer, received 1,794 votes, and Democrat David Teuten of Voorheesville came in fourth with 1,764 votes.

Without counting the Conservative ballots, Stickley was leading Sgarlata but his 102 Conservative votes with his 1,747 Democrat votes placed him over the edge, according to unofficial results.

Sgarlata's election was actually a trade-off for Democrat Kenneth Tice's seat, said Democratic Party Chairman Tom Dolin. The long-time popular town councilman was up for reelection before he died this summer.

What does the election of Reilly and Sgarlata to the town board mean, while the Republicans keep control of the other town offices mean? Dolin said it gives the Democrats their first chance to control the town because residents may be unhappy with town hall.

"I think they were clearly unhappy with the confusion and the lawsuits," Dolin said. He also thinks the Democrats won on townwide water and zoning issues. The first order of business will be zoning and enforcement, Dolin said.

However, Republican Party Chairman John Graziano said the Democrats ran an energetic but a negative campaign, and voters believed them. Voters didn't get a full picture of Reilly and the test of government will provide that, Graziano said. He asked what the town will do about problems and non-issues that became buzz words for the Democrats, such as the methane gas in Orchard Park.

"People voted and the election stands," Graziano said.

It will be interesting to see what ethical issues will come up next year, Graziano said, pointing to Reilly juggling three businesses and town government. "I think you ought to have disclosures on town businesses," he said.

Party politics may have taken on a lesser role this year with recent citizen activism on mining, water, and concern over new development and planning. Cossac also admitted at the last minute that she had not graduated from Syracuse University as was advertised in her campaign literature, according to a newspaper report.

There were differences of opinion whether that hurt her or not in her election bid. Cossac said she was fairly convinced that it had an impact, but it probably won't be known. Graziano said while it didn't help Cossac's campaign it was more of a negative personal point for her than for the town.

Reilly also said he didn't think it helped her, and he wished it hadn't come out, even though he has known about it for several weeks. Dolin said and he believes the race was decided before it came out.

A resident of New Scotland since 1963 and a town councilman for nine years, Reilly is president of Reilly and Son funeral homes in Voorheesville and Colonie. He graduated from the Vincentian Institute and Holy Cross College, and he and his wife, Susan, have nine children, and they live on Voorheesville Ave.

In other elections Tuesday, Connolly led LaFave for town justice, 2,020 to 1,825 according to unofficial results. Four years ago when LaFave was elected over then-incumbent Connolly, she was the first Democrat elected to a townwide position outside of the town board in what was considered a major upset.

This time around, Connolly, who also serves as village justice, said he ran a more energetic campaign, letting voters know of his credentials and his ability to do the job.

Receiving the most votes of any race Tuesday, Republican Edita Probst, now tax collector, won election as town clerk over Democrat Gloria Ozimek, 2,055 to 1,127.

Republican Lynn Holmberg was elected tax collector over Democrat Chester Boehlke, and Republican Highway Superintendent Pete Van Zetten was reelected with no opposition

A country in transition, China captivates visitors

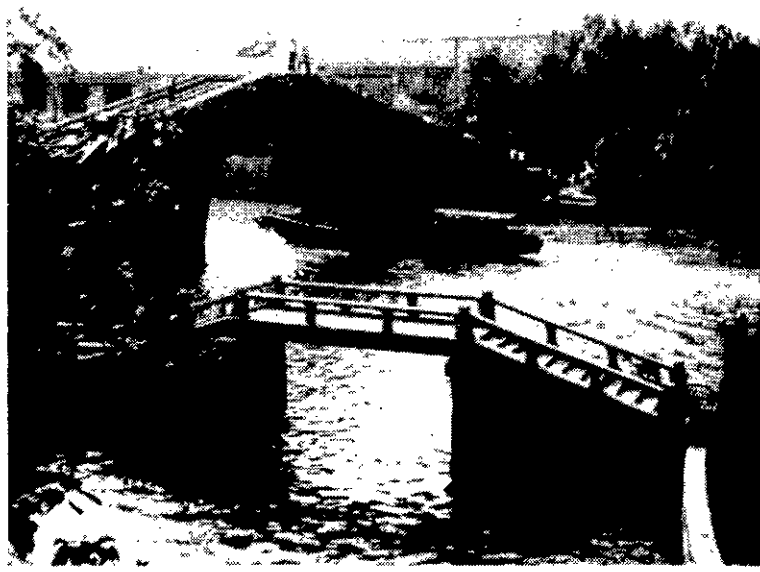

By Allison Bennett

Westerners have been fascinated with the East for many years, in fact since the Clipper ships left Salem, Mass., in the early 1800's to begin trading with this far country. The delicate porcelains, fine silks and the cartons of tea that the skippers brought back to America only whetted our appetite to know more about China and her people.

Many of us are familiar with the missionary efforts of our Catholic and Protestant churches that took place in China before 1945. In the years since that date China has been closed to Westerners and when, in 1979 it was again opened to visits by Westerners, many tour groups began entering the country for visits. In September I spent three weeks on tour in China and the impressions that I received are written here because so many people are interested in knowing more about this country. They are my own thoughts and observations and if one is truly interested in knowing more it would be imperative to read the many books that have been published on the subject.

Making a trip to China is probably not the first experience abroad that a traveller would have, for the Orient is far away and very foreign to our American tastes. It takes a bit of fortitude to consider such an undertaking, hearing all the tales from returning friends of the attacks of "Beijing Throat", for which the dirt, dust and pollution in the air is partly responsible; the poor conditions (to us) in which the people of China live; the smells that assault the nose; and "eating Chinese" twice a day a good part of the time, for Chinese food there is nothing like what we know of it here.

All of these things are true, but there is still an enchantment in seeing for oneself a country that is historically and culturally one of the richest in the world. Since the demise of the Cultural Revolution, there is now a new openness and friendliness to the outside world that will be of immense importance to human history in the years ahead. Since every fifth person in the world is Chinese, it behooves us to pay attention to where they are going and learn as much as we can about their mind-set, societal patterns and surge toward modernization.

It was good to have visited Russia before going to China, because there is a vast difference in these two Communist countries, even though both espouse the same ideology — or do they?

China never undertook a war of aggression in its long history, although it did defend itself during several invasions. There was a feudal warlord period with internal struggles and later a civil war between Communists and Nationalists. Our Chinese guides never spoke of their country except as a "socialist" government, and openly discussed their nation's disenchantment with Russia. Sun Yat-Sen, the founder of republican China, comes across as their national hero, comparable to our George Washington.

The Chinese people do not seem to be living under a fanatical police state surveillance as we know exists in Russia. They are friendly, curious, and helpful to visitors. Even though most can speak no English, they crowd around to listen and stare when we were talking with a Chinese. The people are not nearly as well dressed or neat appearing as the Japanese, but then their economic status is entirely different. They do seem happy with their lot and visit and laugh among themselves on street corners, in the busses and street cars, the tea shops, and in convivial card games played on the sidewalks.

Grocery stores in Communist Russia are few and far between and stocked with a very limited supply of foodstuffs. Contrarily, the streets of China abound with well filled food stalls, selling meat, fruits and vegetables in abundance. Row upon row of clothing and material goods, although poorly made by our standards, line the racks of the street bazaars. The nationally run large department stores are packed to suffocation with people shopping. The national average income is not yet $500, but people are buying.

China is now beginning to think of phasing out the commune and is encouraging the communal farmer to have a small plot that is his alone where he can raise extra produce to sell for profit in the city markets. All land in China is owned by the government, but people are being encouraged to build their own house upon the land, and the house can be passed from one generation to the next.

Following the long flight across the Pacific and an overnight stay in Osaka, Japan, we flew Japan Airlines into the capital city of China, Beijing. Sadly, Beijing airport is a holdover from the 1930's, with terminal buildings of that vintage, no modern passenger moving equipment at all, and weeds growing along the runways and on the concrete areas. Dismal can only describe this and it applies to all the other airports we used in China as well. They do not yet have a radar system for their planes. As far as any modern equipment for airports, road building, earth moving, bridge building, whatever, you can believe it when we say the Chinese need everything.

Weeping willows and green fields line the road into the capital and the 85 degree weather belied the cold weather picture we Westerners have of Beijing. They do receive cold winds from the Gobi desert in winter, but get very little snow. The city itself presents a dreary picture of plain, huge apartment buildings, a la Russia, and look as if they were all being thrown up as rapidly and cheaply as possible to house the burgeoning population. This can also be said of the other cities we visited.

The traffic in all Chinese cities borders on the horrendous because of the bicycles. Beijing has nine million people and six million bicycles. The people cannot afford cars and the government owns all the trucks and busses, although public transportation is plentiful and Beijing has a subway. They have a joke that America is known as the car-nation, but China is the land of the bicycle, almost all of which are severely plain and painted black. The only way one can identify his own cycle among the hundreds that are parked outside each work place is by the license tag. A small rack at the rear or a basket on front and an old-time silver bike bell on the handlebars are the only gadgets.

It is absolutely unbelievable what these people can do with a bicycle. They attach a flat bed carrier and use the bike for delivering produce, refrigerators, file cabinets, sofas, or they make a seat arrangement so they can haul Grandma along behind. Even the crippled have a hand pump mechanism so that they can get around with their bicycle. Tractors are also used for hauling, even on city streets. Their most ingenious machine was a rotor-tiller type with small truck body behind and there seemed to be thousands of them.

No one is lonely in China. Parents and married children often live together because housing is in such short supply. Their houses are only two or three small rooms for the most part and apartments the same. Because of the small living quarters and because it is warm so much of the time, the streets are teeming with life. South of the Yangtze River the climate is subtropical and much of the rest of China is warmer than we know here in the Northeast. People play cards on the street, bring their sewing machines outside, hang their clothes along the sidewalks to dry, wash and pare their vegetables, and conduct a myriad of other activities in front of their homes.

Because it is attempting to control its 1.3 billion population, and even reduce that figure, the government dispenses free birth control information to all and performs abortions. No couple is allowed to have more than one child, except in a few minority groups in the other regions. Large billboards are everywhere to remind the citizenry of its duty. If a couple does have more than one child they lose certain privileges with regard to jobs, housing restrictions, pensions, etc. Late marriage and late childbirth are encouraged and the government pays for a honeymoon. If married after 25 years of age you are given one month honeymoon, if at 20, you only get four days.

Next week, a tour of Beijing, the most important city in China.

Olympian Garden variance rejected by appeals board

A variance that would allow developer Arthur Kontogiannis to put four units in a building in his Olympian Gardens development in North Bethlehem was formally denied last week by the Bethlehem Board of Appeals.

Kontogiannis' options in the long-running case include putting two apartment units in the building, as approved by the town 10 years ago, taking the town back to court, or negotiating with the homeowners in the development, who want the building for a clubhouse.

The board also set public hearing dates for two new projects that may prove to be controversial. HMC Associates is seeking permission to build an additional 60 parking spaces at Delaware Plaza, which it owns.

The new lot would be behind the Citibank building and adjacent to Plymouth Ave., and would be for employees of the plaza. The Plymouth Ave. neighbors have discussed the proposal with HMC several times in the past few years. The hearing is set for Nov. 18 at 8 p.m.

At 8:15 p.m. on Nov. 18, the board is scheduled to hear a request from Dake Brothers Inc., which wants to build a Stewart's shop with a self service gasoline station and laundromat on Rt. 9W at Old Town Rd. in Selkirk. The Rt. 9W corridor is to be the subject of a new planning study, and board Chairman Charles Fritts said the appeals board would "take into consideration" that study but would not hold up the application.

The board spent several sessions following Kontogiannis' hearing trying to determine whether he had proven a hardship in requesting the four units for his building at 28-30 Olympian Drive. Following the board's original rejection of the request last year, the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court had ruled that the hardship issue must be addressed by the board.

After combing through financing and utility bills submitted by Kontogiannis, Fritts said, the board members decided unanimously that "he just didn't prove hardship at all. We still felt he would be able to profitably rent those units."

Bob Berry, president of the Olympian Gardens Homeowners Association, said Friday he was happy with the way the board investigated the evidence, particularly new board member M. Shiela Galvin. Because of the thorough job done by the board, he said, it is doubtful that Kontogiannis could be successful with another court case. Kontogiannis, despite his offers to do so, has never met with the homeowners association, Berry said. The association would be interested in discussing the future of the building, originally promised as part of the development's recreation complex.

The board also decided against three other requests. It issued a formal denial for Edward A Mayer's request for a variance to permit construction of an addition and attached garage at 99 Salisbury Rd., Delmar. Fritts said the addition would have resulted in 24 percent lot occupancy, while the code calls for 15 percent. The board decided informally against a six-foot high fence already in place at 185 Winne Rd., Delmar. The owners will have 90 days to take it down, but can put up a four-foot high fence under the code, Fritts said. And a request for a second garage at 32 Fairlawn Dr., Selkirk, was denied because the board felt the owners could take less space by expanding the existing garage, Fritts said.

Police ticket 2 for drunk driving

Bethlehem police said two people were charged with driving while intoxicated last week.

A 27-year-old Rt. 9W Glenmont man was stopped by police Friday morning as he was driving west on Delaware Ave. near Bennett Terrace in Delmar when he failed to keep his car in the westbound lane of traffic. Police said they stopped the man at Delaware Ave. and Adams St. at 1:16 a.m. for DWI.

A 34-year-old Greene County man was charged with DWI when he was driving south on Rt. 144 near Schmultz Rd. at 3:10 a.m. Sunday when a deer ran across the road causing him to swerve, lose control and strike a fence, police said. The man was also ticketed for failure to keep right.

income units for elderly people in the general population, and a minimum of 40 units of "age segregated" housing for the elderly. In each case, the units should be barrier free and located near services. Developers would be encouraged to provide the elderly housing as part of a larger development by means of tax breaks and zoning incentives.

The geriatric campus — the only one in the area now is Eddy Memorial in Troy — would offer meals, transportation, recreation, house keeping, day care and home care and various levels of nursing services. The committee said the town could encourage development of the campus by locating a non-profit sponsor and offering zoning variances and tax breaks.

The 65 and over population now makes up about 14 percent of Bethlehem's citizens, as opposed to 11.5 percent nation wide. By the year 2,000, the elderly will make up 13 percent of the national population, and 15 percent of Bethlehem's population, the committee estimated. When 2,030 rolls around and the baby boomers reach 65, the elderly will make up 20 percent of the national population. And the "old-old" — those 85 and older — are also on the increase, with 375 now living in Bethlehem and 635 expected by the year 2,000.

Bethlehem's elderly range from "affluent to poor," with income levels slightly above than the rest of the country. But, said the committee, in the population over 65 in 1979 there were 2,427 households on Social Security, 208 households on public assistance and 128 households below the poverty level.

"In my view, the ball is pretty much in our court," said Dr. Roger Drew, a Delmar physician and a committee member. On the national level, he explained, the trend in medicine is toward "cost containment," which tends to limit the medical care available to the elderly without providing many other options.

But what can a town the size of Bethlehem do? While the thrust of the committee's report focused on ways to encourage developers to provide housing for the elderly, committee member Marion Martin, a retired state Education Department official, attempted to dispel one myth.

"Strangely enough, there is money around," she said, and Bethlehem would qualify for some state and federal programs. Colonie recently obtained a $1 million federal grant to build senior citizen apartments. Martin said the state is making funds available to communities for the emergency home repair service and such programs as home sharing; shared residences, in which a group of unrelated individuals live in the same home; and the development of new accessory apartments.

To get any of this money, Martin said, the town needs a formal "needs assessment survey," and Ritchko said at the end of the meeting she plans to ask the town board to allocate $5,000 for the survey in next year's budget. The town attempted to do its own survey last year, with poor results, Martin said.

DOT lets repair contract for Delaware Ave. bridge

Deteriorating pedestals on the Delaware Ave. bridge will be replaced by next September in a contract recently awarded by the state Department of Transportation.

After an inspection in October, 1986, the bridge between Bethlehem and the City of Albany was given a "two" rating, on a scale of one as the lowest to seven as the highest, because of problems with the pedestals that are directly under the steel girders. Some of the pedestals that allow for the movement of the steel girders for expansion or contraction with the weather are not moving enough causing them to crack. One of the bridge's 15 piers is cracking through the pedestal and has begun to crack through the pier column underneath, and has been rated a "one" in the 1986 report. The bridge is now inspected twice a year by the DOT instead of the usual once a year.

In the DOT contract, the deteriorated pedestals will be removed and replaced with concrete and reinforcing steel, and bearing bases on remaining pedestals will be welded together to prevent further pedestal damage. Corroded steel will also be repaired and painted. Out of three bids received, Piasecki Steel Construction Co. of Stuyvesant was awarded the $320,157 contract.

The program is open to the public and is free of charge.

Clarksville may see water next spring

After seeing the deadline for tapping into a water district pushed back several times, Clarksville residents could have their district installed by next spring.

Clarksville residents first voiced a desire to have a water district in 1982. When the district was approved by the New Scotland Town Board in June 1986, it was anticipated to be completed by late this year.

Town Attorney Fred Riester said the town is discussing acquiring the well site, about two miles south of Clarksville off Rt. 32, with the owners, and he anticipates having that within the next few weeks.

"We're discussing it with (the owner's) representatives," Riester said.

The town is also working on getting a number of easements from property owners in the hamlet on Rt. 443 to hook homes up with the system.

Riester said he was not pleased at the rate the district was proceeding and he would prefer that it be done quicker.

"It has been a difficult system to get lined up," he said.

Asked whether the delay could increase the cost of the water district, Riester said he doesn't see any significant system-wide changes in cost. He said, though, the the water district will cost over $1 million.

Supervisor Stephen Wallace said the actual cost of the project won't be known until bids are let out, but he added that the town estimated it the best that they could.

It is a difficult system to prepare because the rock in the area makes it expensive and there was a lot of time spent looking for a water source, Riester said. Some of the time was spent looking for a water source in the hamlet, then at the Weisenburn farm, and the present site on the farm increased the cost of the project.

A U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant was received to help offset the cost of the water source. Riester said the town has also had to test the well site, and placed test wells, but once grant money was received, the well site was tested more extensively. The town is trying to conserve the money that it is spending, he said. And several government agencies will have to approve the water, the system and the route it will take from the farm to the hamlet.

Wallace is working on contacting people to get the easements, Riester said, adding that about 80 percent will just be for front yards.

When it was formed, the project was expected to cost $1,815,500, with the bulk of the cost to be paid by loans and grants. Riester said he was not aware if the town was in jeopardy of losing the funding because of delays in the project, and has commitments for the funds in hand. The Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) and the HUD grants total $1.339 million, and the town expects to borrow $500,000 from FmHA and a district loan.

Harp-flute duo at library Sunday

Iridescence, a flute and harp duo, will give a recital at the Bethlehem Public Library at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 8.

Besides frequent concertizing in New York City, the pair has been involved with educational programs in public schools and is preparing for a tour of the midwest.

Vinci has performed and toured in the United States, England and Europe. She received a doctor of Musical and Arts degree from Juilliard and is on the faculty of Skidmore College.

Dejnozka has performed across the country and recently completed a highly successful tour of Europe with the New York Harp Ensemble. She is the principal harpist with the Albany Symphony.

Italian students see few surprises at BC

By John Bellizzi III

For many people, traveling across the Atlantic to visit a foreign country conjures up visions of wildly different cultures, incredible landscapes, exotic cuisine and a general sense of adventure. Some people end up being disappointed when they reach their destination because it wasn't all it was cracked up to be. What about the other way around? Do foreigners have a warped sense of what to expect when they visit the United States?

"I think we know more about America than you know about Italy," says Chiara Moniaci. Moniaci is one of several exchange students from the Milan Language Institute who are spending two weeks in Delmar attending Bethlehem Central High School. Each Italian student is staying with an American host student in the program conducted by Jim Nehring, a faculty advisor to the Foreign Exchange Club. All of the exchange students are very comfortable in their American homes. "The people are very friendly," said Moniaci.

As a virtue of the Institute that the students attend in Milan, all are fluent in several languages, among them French, German, Spanish, and most notably, English. Though they had mastered our language and learned much of our culture, there were still some surprises for the exchange students.

"The school is much different," explained Moniaci, who is staying with Gretchen Reed of Delmar. "Here you change classes every hour — in our school, we stay in the same rooms, but the teachers change. Our subjects are different, also. We have no math, no photography. We do not practice sports in the school.

"Also, there is a different relationship with our teachers. Here, you are much more friendly with your teachers. It is not like that in our school."

Also visiting BC from the Milan Language Institute in Italy are: Manuela Bergonzi, Barbara Bianci, Chiara Boschetto, Flora Casati, Andrea Croccolo, Valentina Fussetti, Cristina Medici, Alberto Malinverno, Simona Pirchio, Elisabetta Povia, Antonella Soannini, Cristina Venturelli, Valentina Zanoni, and Roberta Zuccatosta.

Library invites business to breakfast

The Bethlehem Public Library will hold a business breakfast at 8 a.m., Friday, Nov. 6, to show how the library can meet information needs. Company profiles, corporate family structures, interviewing skills and current articles on business topics are a sample of the information available.

Call the reference desk at 439-9314 by Wednesday, Nov. 4, to register for the program.

Board approves '88 budget, taxes stable

By Patricia Mitchell

The New Scotland Town Board has approved the town's 1987 budget, which holds an increase of 37 cents per $1,000 for townwide taxes and a decrease of 68 cents per $1,000 for village taxes.

The $1.7 million budget, an increase of about five percent, was approved by the town board after a budget hearing Wednesday. The budget includes funds for a part-time planner, an engineering consultant and a full-time building inspector.

Because of a major increase in the town's assessed value, general fund taxes decrease in the budget to $20.16 per $1,000 of assessed value, down 68 cents from this year. Part town highway taxes will increase $1.04 to $13.39 per $1,000, up from $12.35.

Voorheesville residents are taxed only for the general fund, while town residents pay both general fund and highway taxes. Combined townwide taxes are estimated at $33.57, an increase of 37 cents from this year's $33.20.

The budget earmarks $23,000 for a full-time building inspector. This year's part-time building inspector was paid $13,000. Town Supervisor Stephen Wallace, who will be retiring in December after 14 years and is preparing his last budget, said after the meeting the town board has not begun to advertise yet for the new building inspector.

The budget also includes $20,000 for a part-time planner and an engineering consultant. The planning board is expected to recommend hiring C.T. Male of Latham for the planner position at Wednesday's (today's) town board meeting. The firm was also hired recently to be the town's consulting engineer.

The total taxable assessed value in the town has increased to $14,906,869, up $611,471 from this year's figure, the highest jump for at least the past 14 years.

The 1988 budget comes in at $1,730,431, an increase of $80,498 or 4.6 percent from this year's $1,649,933.

Other highlights of the 1987 budget include:

- A seven percent pay hike for most town employees, except elected officials and zoning board of appeals members whose salaries will stay the same.
- A pay increase for the planning board chairman to $2,000, up $424 from this year's $1,576. Planning board members will also receive an increase of $244 to $1,000 from this year's $756.
- The town attorney will receive $10,000, an increase of $1,975 from this year's $8,025.
- Liability insurance rates will stay the same at $95,000.
- A contingency account of $20,000, the same as this year's.

at $12.19 per $1,000 of assessed value.

• A budget of $17,883 for the Onesquethaw Ambulance Co. with taxes to remain the same at $4.08 per $1,000.

• A decrease of $1.28 for the New Salem Fire Co.'s tax rate, to $19.56 per $1,000 from this year's $20.84, with a budget of $111,300.

• Another decrease of 19 cents for the Voorheesville Ambulance's tax rate of $4.86 per $1,000 from this year's $5.05 and a budget of $27,650. The companies were commended by the councilmen for holding their budgets down.

Concerned Citizens join in state mining dispute

Concerned Citizens for New Scotland Inc. opposed to a mine in the town will join a Latham group to file "friend of the court" briefs when the state Court of Appeals hears an appeal of a similar case this week.

The Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, will hear the miners appeal of "Frew Run Gravel Products, Inc. v. the Town of Carroll" on Monday, Nov. 9, at 2 p.m. It will examine an Appellate Division ruling from the western part of the state that was decided late last year upholding a town zoning law to regulate general land use against Department of Environmental Conservation law.

Concerned Citizens Chairman Bob Morrison said Monday the two groups will file their papers because it will give them a chance to argue their case and it could help them when the Appellate Division hears the group's appeal of a state Supreme Court decision allowing a gravel mine on the former Tall Timbers Country Club. There are also several parallels between the three cases, Morrison said, and the issues are the same — town zoning versus DEC law. The Frew Run case has also been cited by Concerned Citizens in their various suits against the Tall Timbers mine. A date to hear their appeal has not been set yet, but Morrison said it could come some time in December.

Village says no to Orchard Park

Cost to update school drops

By Sal Prividera

Expressing concerns that the village water supply would be overextended, the Voorheesville Village Board of Trustees voted 3-2 last week to deny the Town of New Scotland's request for village water in Orchard Park.

The Town of New Scotland requested the village supply water to Orchard Park since wells in the area have been found to contain methane gas and other contaminants. The state Department of Environment Conservation recommended the wells, currently used to supply water to Orchard Park, be capped and a public water supply be installed.

Village Mayor Edward Clark outlined three options for the trustees in his opening remarks about the proposal; reject it, accept it or return it and ask for a second proposal. "I would personally opt for the third (choice)," he said. He cited his desire for Voorheesville to have a back up water supply.

Under the town proposal, the connection between the Voorheesville water supply and the 70 Orchard Park homes would be temporary. Ultimately, Orchard Park would get water from a water district expected to be built by the Galesi Group of Rotterdam for its development of Tall Timbers. This supply could then be used as a back up Clark wanted for the village, since the village would also be connected to Orchard Park.

"I tend to believe this is an opportunity to improve our water supply," the mayor said.

Also, in exchange for the hook-up, the town would have purchased pipeline to construct a loop through the town park from Swift Rd. to Salem Hills. Town and village workers would share the labor on the project.

Clark said the trustees had to consider the best interests of the water district. Clark said he would "definitely like to be hooked up to a second source.

The other trustees each voiced their reservations on the plan. Edward Donohue said he had talked to 150 residents over two weeks about the proposal. He said that residents did not want "to give our water away" and that many people were skeptical about the hook up being temporary.

"My feeling is to reject the proposal," Donohue said. He offered a suggestion to the Orchard Park residents — a water tank that would be kept filled by the fire department.

"Most residents don't want to give the water away," said Trustee Susan Rockmore. "They want us to vote no." However, she voted to return the proposal to the town and request a new proposal.

Trustees Richard Langford and Daniel Reh both voted against the proposal. Langford said the problems of the village during last month's storm "show us how fragile the water system is."

Superintendent of Public Works William Hotaling agreed. "Our system is fragile," he said. "I would say we just haven't got it," he said.

He said that the water district has "started to push 800,000 gallons (of water) on some days." He said the village's two wells could supply 846,000 gallons a day if pushed. He also cited some repair work that has been done to the village water pumps and some work that may be needed.

"I regret we could not come up with an answer that would serve our neighbors," Clark said.

A spokesperson for the Orchard Park Neighborhood Association, Midge McGraw-Bulgareo, in a prepared statement expressed the association's disappointment with the village decision. She said the association will be consulting with an attorney to determine what course of action to take. The residents "are left with no solution to a critical and urgent problem," she said.

The Voorheesville Board of Education will have to spend $150,000 to bring the elementary school building into compliance with the state Commissioner of Education's building regulations — far less than originally estimated.

The board received a new report from Ben Mendel of Mendel, Mesick, Cohen, Waite and Hall Architects Monday night. Two significant changes were made by Mendel in the new report to reduce the original $400,000 price tag to fix violations in the building.

The elementary school building was rechecked and found to be a Class A Building under state Education Department standards, Mendel told the board. The building was originally thought to be of wooden construction, but has now been found to have steel joists. Under the new finding the board will not have to expend money to enclose the center stairway at the school.

Mendel said that the original finding was an error in judgement and Class A designation "means much less is mandated."

The new report was broken down into four areas: commissioner of education-mandated items, state building code violations (items as compared to new construction requirements), items that could improve safety at the school and items that could improve building efficiency.

Mandated items are upgrading cafeteria safety (including installing exit doors that swing in the

Village, Grand Union reach compromise

The Village of Voorheesville has approved a "reasonable compromise" with Grand Union over the assessment of the vacant store on Rt. 85A.

Village Attorney Donald Meacham informed the village board at last week's meeting that he had met with Grand Union attorneys and reached the agreement assessment amount of $264,300. "We had assessed the building at $560,000, which they felt was high, and they assessed the building at $140,000, which we felt was low," Meacham said.

Under the agreement, the assessment would be valid through the 1988-89 tax year and Grand Union will receive a $3,480 refund for taxes paid in excess of the agreement amount, Meacham said.

He recommended the board approve the agreement, since the village would "not come out as well" if the matter went to litigation.

In other business, the board of trustees:

- Approved a change to the village real property tax exemption for the elderly in the village. The income limits for persons 65 and over who are eligible for a 50 percent and a 20 percent exemption were increased to $12,025 and $15,000, respectively.

- Agreed at the request of a village resident to study the feasibility of installing a speed bump on Maple Ave. The resident cited accidents that have occurred due to speeding on the road.

- Commended the fire department for the job it did during last month's storm.

- Was told that the construction of the planned salt shed would be put on hold until next year due to paving problems.

Mendel said the cost of the total report covering all four areas is approximately $2.3 million. The board is also considering a separate report dealing with asbestos in both of the district's school buildings. The current estimate for removing the asbestos, one of several options suggested to the district, is $1.5 million.

C.T. Male named Board approves church plan as town planner

By Patricia Mitchell

C.T. Male of Latham is expected to be recommended to become New Scotland planning firm at Wednesday's town board meeting.

Planning Board Chairman Richard Stickley said the planning board decided to recommend C.T. Male after an executive session on Oct. 21. The planning board will send a letter with its recommendation to the town board for its meeting today at 8 p.m.

"It will be in their hands," Stickley said.

C.T. Male was hired recently by the town board to do a water study and map plan for a water district for the Orchard Park subdivision, and as the consulting engineer for a study of the town's high growth area.

The planning board wanted to make sure that C.T. Male could put together a "good legal document" for the town's zoning ordinance that can withstand any suits that might come along, Stickley said.

Other reasons for selecting C.T. Male included the firm's computers, which can make map overlays for soils, elevation, wetlands, historic districts and other factors. The planning board also considered the associate who would be responsible for working with the town and how available the associate would be, Stickley said. The planning board agreed that it wanted input from around the town on new zoning codes and planning, and the planner would hold meetings in each area of the town, he said.

The planning board decided in April to request that the town hire a planner to look at the zoning codes and maps and offer recommendations on revising them. The code was passed in 1961 and updated in 1981.

Stickley has noted, for instance, that railroad lines running through the town were at one time considered appropriate areas for industrial use. Now, he said, the railroad doesn't play a big part in industrial zones.

Concerned Citizens for New Scotland, Inc., also has requested a planner to help strengthen the zoning ordinance's enforcement provision.

Funds for a part-time planner have been included in the 1987 town budget, along with an engineering consultant.

By Patricia Mitchell

A special use permit for a church on Rt. 155 has been approved by the New Scotland Planning Board.

At its meeting last Tuesday, the board granted approval to the Mountainview Free Evangelical Church with a number of conditions, including that it improve drainage on the property before a building permit is issued.

The board also conducted three public hearings last week, with no decision made in any of them. Developer Vincent Riemma is seeking a variance from the code's density requirement so that he can sell a lot at 20 Patterson Dr., Glenmont, in the Woodhill subdivision. The lot is 1,300 square feet short of what is required. Several neighbors spoke against the plan, Fritts said.

In the other hearings, Finke and Sons, Inc., a heavy equipment leasing and sales company, wants to expand its building on Rt. 9W at the Coeymans town line. And Charles B. Buchanan, who wants to build a home on Van Wies Point Rd., Glenmont, was back before the board with more information on his proposal to construct a common driveway with a neighbor. Fritts said Buchanan's attorney and engineer presented figures showing that alternative plans would be too expensive.

A culvert pipe feeding drainage into another pipe going across Rt. 155 will be excavated and corrected so it drains better, said David Curtis, spokesman for the church's building committee. The drainage on the property, which was once a swamp, has improved since the church bought the land to the north of the railroad tracks four years ago, he said.

"We will correct it the best we can by changing the culvert," Curtis said.

However, Helen Miller, who lives next to the church, said water comes across her driveway from the church's property.

Water is being impounded where the culvert pipe meets the culvert under Rt. 155, and the pipe needs to be lowered, Curtis said. Debris clogged the pipe this spring and the problem has persisted. The church will do what it can to correct the drainage, and it already has an estimate on the culvert work. But he said the church can't work on neighboring properties.

Board member Annick Belleville said she wanted to make sure the drainage problem won't cause any problem, and she asked how the board can make sure it is fixed.

The planning board can stipulate in its approval of the special use permit that the building permit won't be issued until the church has done everything reasonable to correct the drainage problem, said Zoning Attorney John Bailey. He said, however, it may not be the church's problem.

The church is located in a Low Density Residential zone.

Tuesday's meeting was a continuation of a Oct. 13 public hearing on the church. Board members decided to continue the hearing because they wanted additional information.

The board also requested more information on the church's septic system because the land was once a swamp and there were questions on how effective a septic system might be.

The system will be above ground at the front of the church, and has been approved by the Albany County Health Department. In a letter to Planning Board Chairman Richard Stickley, Building Inspector Walt Miller said he checked with the health department and the location of the septic system was taken into consideration when the plans were approved, and that is one reason why it is larger than usually required.

Curtis also told the planning board that there will be lighting on the church building, with one pole on the grounds and three more planned for the future. The lights will be used only occasionally during the week. The L-shaped church will be made of wood, with some vinyl siding, and may have a stone front, he said. The parking lot will be in back and will be gravel in the beginning, although the church hopes to pave it later, he said.

The 60-foot well and most of the parking lot are in the Village of Voorheesville and its zoning board of appeals has already granted a variance, Curtis said.

The next meeting of the New Scotland Planning Board is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 9, at 7:30 p.m.

Blood pressure clinics held third Tuesdays

The free blood pressure clinics are continuing on the third Tuesday of each month at the Bethlehem Town Hall from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m., according to Caroline Wirth, outreach worker for the Senior Services Office.

The health checks, which have given hundreds of Bethlehem citizens a reading on their blood pressure through the years, are free and no appointment is necessary to take advantage of the professional-level service.

The clinics will be held on Nov. 17, Dec. 15, Jan. 19, Feb. 16, March 15 and April 19. The May 18 clinic will be held on the third Wednesday at the same hours.

Blackbirds will be healthy, ready for Hudson

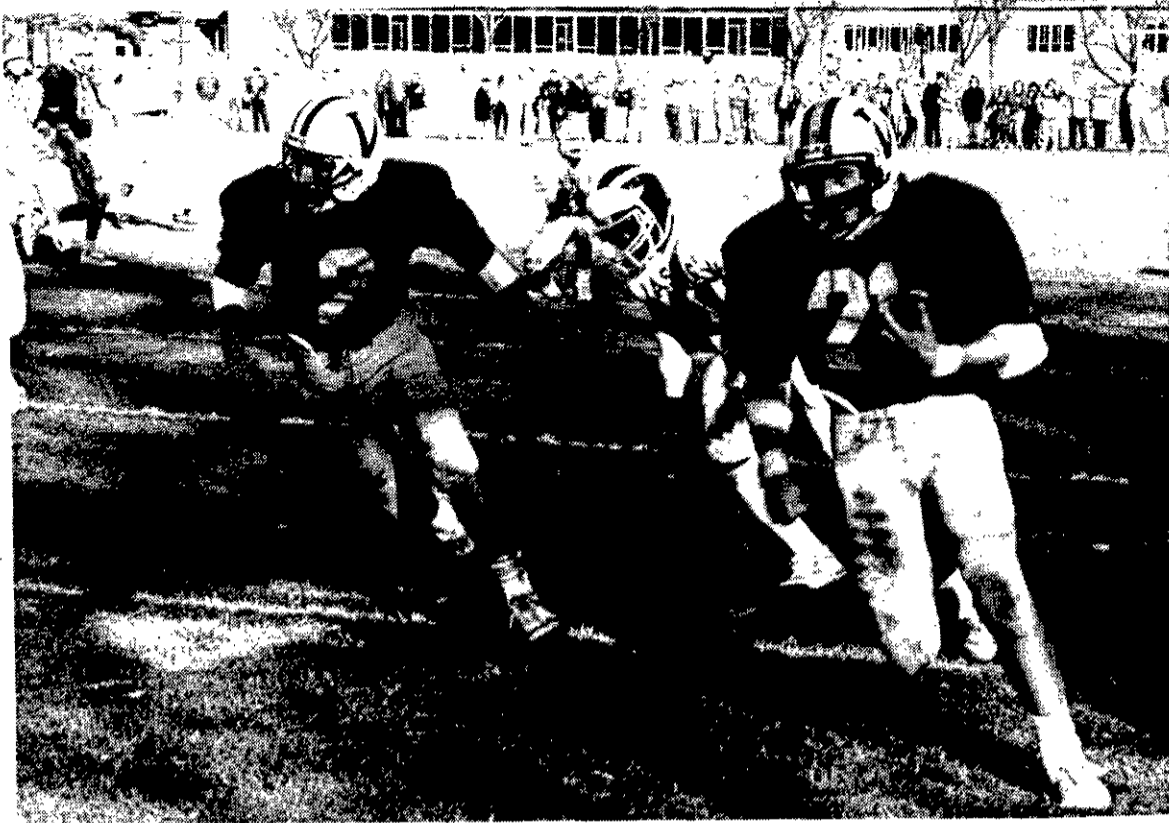

Seldom has the staging buildup for a Capital Conference championship football game been so close to ideal. Here are two undefeated, untied teams, clearly dominant in their respective divisions in one of the area's most respected leagues, meeting for the Buckley Cup.

The collision is set for, appropriately enough, Buckley Memorial Field in Voorheesville this Saturday at 2 p.m. The principals are Voorheesville and Hudson, schools well known for their football programs.

Both teams are certain to be selected for a Section 2 10th game playoff the following week, win or lose, but for the players, coaches and fans in both communities, this is the big one. The only off-beat note is that the arena on Rt. 85A falls woefully short of having seating facilities for the size of the crowd expected. School officials said they would bring in several additional but small portable bleachers, but conceded that no others were available.

The Blackbirds moved methodically onto the championship stage with a convincing 17-0 win over LaSalle at home last Saturday. The best news was that their two injured gladiators, shifty quarterback John Meacham and battering-ram fullback John Traudt, will be ready for full-time combat against Hudson.

"Both Johns will play," says Coach Pete Douglas.

Bill Connell, Voorheesville halfback, heads down the sidelines for a 25 yard gain in second quarter action against LaSalle. Tom Knight photos

They have been sidelined since the Mohonasen game three weeks ago, and had missed most of 10 quarters until Douglas let them go back to work for a limited time on defense last week. Near the end of the fourth period he permitted them to work an offensive series as a refresher in what it feels like to handle the ball. Meacham has been nursing a sprained ankle and Traudt an injured hand.

Meanwhile Darrin Duncan at quarterback and Marty Gordinier at fullback filled in adequately. Last week they had some trouble with their handoffs, resulting in half a dozen bobbles in the backfield, but were able to establish a potent ground attack. Gordinier, who rushed for 200 yards at Lansingburgh, the highest single-game effort by a Blackbird this season, added another 81 in 17 assaults against a bulky LaSalle line. Duncan showed some deft legerdemain by faking handoffs to Gordinier, then setting sail on keepers that accounted for another 77 yards and both touchdowns.

Duncan also ran the pitchout option well, flicking the oval to Douglas's two jackrabbit tailbacks. Matt Cillis had a net of 55 yards on four scampers, Bill Connell 40 on five.

The most picturesque of these expeditions was one by Cillis with two minutes left in the first half. The Blackbirds had fourth-and-2 on the LaSalle 30 and went for it. Cillis, taking a pitchout on the left, was trapped on the sideline by three hungry visitors. Somehow he escaped, danced a tightrope with the chalk line for five yards, and took off for the promised land. He was clotheslined on the 10, but four plays later booted his sixth field goal of the campaign to provide a 10-0 cushion at intermission.

Voorheesville scored on its first possession after forcing a LaSalle punt on the opening sequence. It was a 57-yard drive, soundly constructed and executed, Gordinier carrying on seven of the 10 snaps. Duncan opened with three thrusts by the lanky fullback that netted 15 yards. On third-and-9 Gordinier again rammed the center, but this time Duncan's fake froze the defense and he scrambled around the right flank for 17 yards. Four more slams by Gordinier put the Blackbirds on the 10 and set up another fake handoff on a keeper that sprung Duncan into the end zone standing up.

After that the offense sputtered, but the defense was unfriendly to their guests. LaSalle had a first down on the Blackbird 32 in the first period, but Charlie Collis embraced a fumble. In the second quarter, with Voorheesville forwards messing up the LaSalle backfield, the visitors reached the home 29, but Jim Gianatasio, a lineman of substantial influence and structure, pulled off a sack and LaSalle wound up by punting from the 44.

In the third period the Blackbird defense permitted the enemy only eight plays, two of them punts, and allowed only two possessions in the fourth, neither getting as far as the LaSalle 34. Meanwhile the hosts were adding a second touchdown, on a leisurely drive of 12 plays covering 80 yards. It was business as usual, Gordinier into the middle, Connell scooting on pitchouts, and Duncan faking and keeping.

Overall the game belonged to the defense, especially Gianatasio and Jayson White, and people like Harold Gosling, Dan Jackson and the linebackers cannot be ignored. Duncan went to the air only five times, completing one to Bruce Kinisky for 10 yards across the middle. Meacham, who will be starting at quarterback this week, doesn't throw much either, but so far he hasn't had to. Against Hudson he may have to get a quicker release and open up the defense downfield to occupy defenders who otherwise might be covering the tailback pitchout.

"We were a little sloppy, but overall it was a good job," Douglas said after the game. "We had a couple of letdowns in the first half, but we'll be up for Hudson, don't worry about that. We're looking forward to the game. It will be a tough game, all right. It will depend on which team makes the least number of mistakes."

Against LaSalle Douglas had another opportunity to give his bench players some playing time. He also gave Kinisky a spell at quarterback, and he didn't have to use Meacham and Traudt more than a few plays on offense. Their return reduces the medical list to zero.

Pop Warner teams win 3

November bodes well for the Pop Warner program. All three teams were victorious on Sunday's sunny fall day.

In the PeeWees 33-12 victory over Ravena, 335 yards were gained with 3 TD passes of 20, 46 and 70 yards. Jeremy Mayo, Josh Deyoe, John Hemstead, David Frangella and Gary Vanwormer's outstanding line work led the way.

The Junior Midgets traveled to Scotia and came away with a 14-6 win. Eric Schmollinger, Kevin Smith and Bob Conway opened gaping holes for the running of Josh Formica and Mike Gambelunghe who had a touchdown each. Formica also had 95 total yards on 9 carries. Mike Pelletier led the defense with spirited play.

26-6 was the winning margin for the Midgets in their game with Ravena. The passing combination of Tim Mooney and Josh Lanni accounted for 2 scores of 20 and 32 yards. Mike Hoefs and Chris Hansen had long TD runs of 50 and 75 yards. Rich Dillon, Mike Russo and Jeff Breedon provided the blocking for the strong running game. Dan Willi and Chris Domermuth were standouts for the swarming defense.

Next week is a make-up from the October 4th storm. Both the PeeWees and Junior Midget play at home while the Midgets travel to Rensselaer.

Voorheesville vs. Cobleskill in Sectionals

By Rick Leach

After getting off to a rough start, the Voorheesville soccer team finished the week and their regular season in top form, preparing to defend their Class CC Sectional championship. They suffered a 1-0 defeat to non-league foe Ichabod Crane on Monday, then bounced back for a 6-0 win over Cohoes on Tuesday.

Voorheesville had beaten Ichabod, out of the Patroon Conference, 3-1, the first time around and didn't anticipate much of a problem this time at home. However, the visitors hung tough, and despite being outshot 25-9, scored the only goal of the game with 10:00 remaining. The Blackbirds had a few chances after that but couldn't capitalize, and the game ended in favor of Crane. "We played a lot of different kids in a lot of different situations," coach Bob Crandall said. "The game didn't really mean a whole lot."

Soccer

The next day, what appeared to be a completely different Blackbird team was on the field against Cohoes. If ever there was an example for home field advantage, it was here, as the Birds were able to spread out their team and use their excellent passing game, something they couldn't do in a 5-0 loss at Cohoes. Goals were scored by Ken Andriano, Mike Race, Jeff Smolen and Pat Ryan. Smolen and Ryan each had two. Also playing well for the hosts was Brian Logan, filling in at stopper for the injured Brian Tracey.

"Brian played very well in the stopper spot, with both Tracey and Joe Colburn out," Crandall reflected. Despite the effort, Albany Academy knocked off Schalmont 2-0 on the same day to capture the Colonial Council title.

The Cadets finished one point ahead of second place Voorheesville.

Next it is on to the sectionals for the 13-4-1 Blackbirds, who are second seeded behind Schoharie Valley champ, Schoharie. The Birds will open against traditionally strong Cobleskill. The Red Devils are looking for revenge, as the Birds knocked them out of the sectionals with a 3-2 win last year. Even though the winner of this game will have to beat either Catskill or Hoosick Falls for the title, Crandall feels this is the key game. "Whoever wins this game will win the tournament," he predicted, "and the team that comes to ready to play will be the winner." The contest will occur on Wednesday night at 7 at Guilderland High School, with the championship being Saturday at 8 at the same site.

Modified soccer ends 7-4

The Voorheesville High School modified boys soccer team has finished its season with a 7-4 record. The team, consisting entirely of 7th graders, played every game against older and larger teams.

"The kids used their skills, speed and aggressiveness all season to counter our opponents' size and strength advantages," Coach Bill Silverman said.

Silverman named four players whose effort and commitment to team play set an example for the team. Brad Rockmore and Jim Schryver, co-captains, along with Matthew Reh and Seth Rose were "every day, all season long, ready to go."

Eagles lose to Shen in second round

By Lisa D'Ambrosi

The Bethlehem boys varsity soccer team ended their season last week with a win against Shaker and a loss to Shenendahowa.

The Shaker game was a preliminary round game played on neutral ground at Guilderland. Goalie Blake Hannan went out in the first half with a head injury and Mike Carlson came in to cover for him. Eric Lee came up with a hat trick to secure the win at 3-2.

In the quarter finals, Bethlehem lost to Shenendahowa at Shenendahowa, 2-0. Shenendahowa is ranked first in the Suburban Council.

Sean McDermott scored on a direct kick, but the goal wasn't counted because of a questionable off-sides call.

Lee scored a total of eighteen goals for the season, McDermott scored ten and Jason Dewitt, who recovered from an ankle injury to play in the Shenendahowa game, tallied seven goals for the season.

Eagles must rule Columbia for title

By John Bellizzi III

The Eagles are living dangerously. A 14-9 defeat at the hands of the Burnt Hills Spartans in a very close game last Saturday lost Bethlehem the chance to clinch the Suburban Council Gold Division championship title early. Now the suspense is beginning to build, for the division title will depend on the outcome of this Friday's games.

At the moment, Bethlehem is still leading the Gold Division with a 4-3 league record. After Saturday's win, Burnt Hills is in second place with a record of 3-4. The Spartans remain an active threat to BC's quest for the title, because if Burnt Hills defeats 1-6 Guilderland Friday night, they have the potential to create a tie for first.

That is within the Eagles' control, however. Bethlehem's hopes are riding on their final game this Friday at Columbia. A victory Friday will assure the Eagles of the Gold Division championship and a winning record for 1987, their first since 1978.

BC Head Coach John Sodergren feels confident in his team. "Sure, it would have been nice to beat Burnt Hills head to head," said Sodergren, "but we're still in control of our own destiny. We're in the position we're in because of the teams we beat. I don't see us as backing into this situation."

"This week is now more important than ever. Columbia's going to be tough. Their defense is always strong, and their offense is explosive and dangerous. They pass 2/3 of the time, 37 times in Saturday's game. Any team that will pass two out of three downs is dangerous. They have a good quarterback and good wide receivers. It always makes the winter nicer if you win the last game, and we're going to work hard this week and be ready for them."

Friday night's game starts at 7:30 at Columbia.

Coach Sodergren didn't view Saturday's loss as a major

Mike Mosley, BC's no. 28, and Lance Sprinkle, no. 15, sweep the end against the Burnt Hills Spartans on the way to a 14-9 defeat for the Eagles Saturday. David Chambers setback to the team. "I'm not overly discouraged," he declared. "It was a well played game. Like last week, we had some chances but we could not take advantage of them. We lost some turnovers that were major turning points. They also took away some of what we do best, especially our fullback plays, forcing us to pass a lot more than we like to."

Lance Sprinkle kicked off for Bethlehem to open Saturday's game at Burnt Hills. The Spartans fumbled the kick, but recovered it on their own 19 yard line. Burnt Hills dropped the ball again on their first play from scrimmage, but again managed to recover it. The Spartans marched the ball to BC's 45 on their next seven plays. From a fourth and two situation, they tried to draw BC's defense offside with a long cadence, but were penalized five yards for delay of game. They punted from the resulting fourth and seven situation, and BC took possession on their own 25.

Rich Gray picked up five yards on BC's first offensive play, but it was lost on a holding penalty on the next play. Quarterback Mike Hodge attempted two passes, including a long bomb to Sprinkle from a third and twelve situation. Paul Vichot punted for BC, but the Spartans brought the ball back to Bethlehem's 35.

Burnt Hills picked up a first down on their first play, and rushed ten more yards on their fourth play, giving them a first down at Bethlehem's 15. A penalty pushed them back 5 yards, and Spartan quarterback Matt Preddice's pass attempt on the next play was stopped by defensive tackle Henry Klein, who sacked the QB for a ten yard loss. Cornerback Pete Jeram broke up the two subsequent pass plays to put the Spartans at fourth and 25. A field goal attempt fell way short, was received by Pete Coccozza and run back to the BC 10.

On BC's third play, Hodge was sacked deep in the backfield and apparently went down in the end zone for what looked like a safety, but the officials ruled that Hodge actually went down outside of the end zone. Burnt Hills got its safety on the next play, when a low snap to Vichot in a punt attempt ended up in the end zone to make the first quarter score 2-0 in Burnt Hills' favor.

Bethlehem turned over the ball to the Spartans on their third offensive play in the second period, but, Burnt Hills turned it back over on downs six plays later on the Bethlehem seven. Mike Mosley started the drive off for the Eagles with a 23 yard carry on BC's first play. Gray and Mosley rushed on the next two plays, and then Mosley hit Coccozza with a halfback option pass to pick up a first down and bring the Eagles to the Spartans' 39.

Mosley picked up six yards and Hodge four for another first down. Hodge hit Coccozza with a pass good for 20 yards. BC was driven back, but managed a score on a field goal by Sprinkle with 46 seconds left in the half. Bethlehem held the lead at halftime 3-2, a score better suited to a baseball game than a football game.

Bethlehem received Burnt Hills' kickoff for the second half but fumbled on the third play. The Spartans took the ball and ran it forty yards downfield for a touchdown over the next 12 plays, scoring on a seven yard run with over five minutes left in the quarter. The two point conversion attempt was stopped, but Burnt Hills held the lead 8-3.

Bob Dillon ran the Spartan kickoff back to midfield, where Hodge started things off with a fifteen yard pass to David Sodergren. Hodge gained 22 yards on three keepers over the next four plays, with Gray picking up three somewhere in between. The touchdown came with 1:38 left in the quarter when Coccozza jumped and snagged a 16 yard pass on his fingertips that Hodge had thrown on the run. Bethlehem was penalized five yards for a false start on their extra point attempt, and the pass to Coccozza for the conversion failed. Bethlehem led 9-8 going in to the fourth quarter.

Burnt Hills scored on a one yard run on the eighth play of the final quarter to gain the lead. Jeram broke up the pass on the extra point attempt. The Eagles had eight minutes left in which to score, but they weren't able to get their big play in time before the clock ran out. Impressive rushes by Hodge, Mosley and Gray and completions to Coccozza and Sodergren were not quite enough for BC to turn it around. The final score was 14-9.

The Eagles gained 100 yards in the air, 82 coming from Coccozza's five catches, one from Mosley and four from Hodge. Sodergren had two receptions for 18 yards. The team rushed for 116 yards.

Hodge and Coccozza were named offensive backs of the week by the coaching staff. Linebacker Gray and defensive tackle Mosley were named defensive linemen of the week. The defensive back award went to the entire secondary. Sprinkle and Sodergren were cited as specialists of the week, and Sodergren was the bench player of the week.

The BC junior varsity and freshman teams were both shut out by visiting Burnt Hills last weekend. For the JV's especially, this weekend's Columbia game is as important as the varsity's. Currently, the JV team has a league record of 3-3 (4-3 overall). A victory over Columbia will make the difference in a winning or losing league record, and also may decide the Gold Division championship at the junior varsity level. "It would be a great accomplishment if we could have winning seasons at several levels this year," reported Coach Sodergren. "It would be the first time in a long time, but it's definitely within reach."

BC runners tune for Sectional races

Last Saturday, the Bethlehem cross country team ran in the Suburban Council Championships held at Saratoga State Park, a meet which would offer many area teams one more chance to size one another up before the Sectional championships which, for most teams, will be the last race of the season. The Eagles did not miss this final opportunity to prove themselves one of the teams to beat.

In the men's race, the team placed second with a score of 86, edging out Colonie by five points and Shenendahowa by 24 points, while losing to Saratoga by 43 points. Senior Tom Nyilis led the way, coming in third, and ran the second fastest time on the Saratoga course in the history of Bethlehem cross country. Nyilis, along with many of his teammates will be a runner to watch for in the Sectionals. Brendan Kearse finished a strong 14th, with Brendan Mitchell just behind at 15th.

Craig Isenberg, recovering from a mild illness of the previous week, placed 18th. Pat McSharry finished 36th, while Michael Kimelberg came in 42nd. Chris Engstrom placed 51st.

The women's team also ran respectably, placing fifth overall.

Becky Arenson finished 11th, followed by Kathy Saba who placed 17th. Julie Hammer came in 24th. Amy Smith and Christie Walter, both putting in what may have been their best races of the season, finished 28th and 31st. Tracy Dwyer finished a strong 45th while Debbie Cousins placed 59th.

"I think we're going to do a lot better than we did yesterday," said Coach John Nyilis of Friday's sectional championships. Nyilis went on to say that while the women's team was aiming for third place in the meet, the men's team would be looking for the title, something the team has not seen since 1969.

Birds finish second at Troy Invitational

By Renee Hunter

The Voorheesville boys cross country team was unable to defend their title of champion of the Troy Invitational meet Saturday, having been beaten by Schalmont.

Going into the meet, all eyes were on Voorheesville senior John Decatur. Throughout the season he has been consistently winning races, including the Galway Invitational, the Colonial Council League Championships, and the Albany Kiwanis Meet. Having been the runner up in the Troy Invitational last year, Decatur was determined to win. And, he did just that.

Also running a very good race was senior Blackbird Jason Eberhardt. For much of the season he has run in the shadow of Decatur and is also a key runner for his team. Coming in third Saturday proved his potential. Eberhardt had also finished third in the council championships and eighth at the Galway Invitational.

Despite the leadership of Decatur and Eberhardt, the Voorheesville Blackbird were unable to defend last year's title and finished second in the division. The scores were: Schalmont, 78; Voorheesville, 89; Fort Plain, 96; Albany Academy, 124; Ichabod Crane, 138; Rensselaer, 165; Lansingburgh, 172; Maple Hill, 282; and Catskill, 284.

Individual placings were Decatur, 15:52; Joe McCullen, Bishop Maginn, 16:06; Eberhardt, 16:18; Ron Czwakiel, Bishop Maginn, 16:33; Clay Nagel, Maple Hill, 16:39; Tony Decicco, Cohoes, 16:46; Luke McNealy, Albany Academy, 16:47; Dan Bosburgh, Schalmont, 16:51; Monny Vacirelli, Rensselaer, 16:52; and Mike Schmidt, Bishop Gibbons, 17:04.

This Friday is the big day for the Blackbirds as they go to the sectionals at the Saratoga State park, a favorite course for the Voorheesville runners. They basically know what to expect as the team has already seen much of their competition in earlier races this season.

Volleyball season ends on high note

By John Bellizzi III

The 1987 season ended on a high note for the Bethlehem Central varsity boys volleyball team last Wednesday, as they defeated Shaker to finish with a record of 5-13. The inexperienced team had a shaky start this year, but under the tutelage of Coach Bryan Swift, the last few weeks of the season were fairly successful.

Shaker fell to the Eagles last week in one of BC's better matches of the season. "It was a really good match for us," commented Swift. "We played really well." Bethlehem won the first game 15-5, but Shaker rebounded to win the second game, 15-3. "They had a great comeback," Swift said of his team, which had rallied from a 7-0 deficit to win the final game 15-9. "We finally got things going. That was the best we played all season," reported Coach Swift.

The final season record of 5-13 earned the Eagles an eighth place finish in the Suburban Council for 1987.

In the SSC tournament played last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, BC was seeded against number one seed Shenendehowa, third place Columbia (who beat BC 15-11 and 15-9 last Monday), fifth seeded Colonie, and tenth place Mohonassen. Columbia and Shenendehowa overcame the Eagles on Thursday, but they came back Friday to beat Mohonassen. Bethlehem won the first game 15-7, lost the second game 15-12, and won the third game 15-1. Immediately following that match, they played their "best of the season" according to Swift, against Colonie, but it wasn't quite good enough, for they lost 15-8 and 15-4.

"Basically, I think we did as well as could be expected considering our lack of experience. Even though this year's team had only two returners, we gained the respect of many other teams. Even though we often weren't able to beat them, we always gave them a good match. Some of the opposing coaches commented on our improvement as the year went on. I could see our growth as a team, but it's always nice to hear it from other teams. We were disappointed that we didn't win more games, but in our play toward the end of the year we ended up where we hoped to be."

Senior captains Greg Jackzo and Justin Hopson, along with sophomore Paul Karamonal, performed very well in the tournament. Swift cited Jason Baum, Jason Kirkman, Bruce McAllister, Steve Hammes, Mike Miller and John Allanson as coming through at some clutch times during the season. "At one time or another, they all figured significantly," said Swift.

The junior varsity volleyball team was coached by Curt Laset. Chris Hudacs and Aaron Hart, sophomores who saw limited action on last year's JV team, were the captains of the 1987 squad, which finished with a 5-11 record. "They did pretty well, considering they only had two returners. The entire remainder of the team was new, and they did fairly well," reported Swift.

"I'm enthused about next year," Swift commented. "We're

Bethlehem Central tennis players going to the state tournament in Syracuse this week are, from left, doubles players Kristi Burkart and Suzie Shayegani, singles player Kristen Jones, and coach Grace Franze. There are nine players from Section II playing in the tournament.

Patricia Mitchell

only losing three seniors, so we have eight returning varsity players coming back next year, and I'm looking forward to seeing some of these JV players move up. This year some young players who otherwise wouldn't have been able to see varsity action put us ahead of the game for the next year."

Mergers swim strong second

By Matt Hladun

With one week left in the season, the Guilderville swimming team is 8-2 and is in second place behind undefeated Bethlehem.

The girls suffered their first league loss of the year against Bethlehem's fifteen year winning streak. The score was 33-33 going into the last event, the 400 meter freestyle relay. Unfortunately, they lost the event and went onto lose 42-34. Angela Washburn, Cathy Jo Dedrick and Becky Hilton all won the triple in the meet.

They had a much easier time on Friday with Saratoga. It was mostly a one sided event and at the end, the final score was 50-27. Triple winners in this event were Hilton and Dedrick.

This week, they travel to Shaker on Monday and they finish the season, at home against Niskayuna, on Wednesday. Sectionals are on November 13th and 14th.

BC still undefeated

By Sarah Scott

Swimming strongly, the Bethlehem girl's swim team won two meets last week to stay undefeated. The team was considered the underdog in the meet against Guilderville, but, in an exciting meet, BC came from behind to win 42-34. The team lost the first four events, and were nine points behind after the 50 yard freestyle. According to Coach Ken Neff, "Guilderville was not supposed to win the first four events, so when they did, the situation looked rather hopeless. The girls pulled together and overcame the odds."

In the 100 yard butterfly, Lisa Ogawa and Katie Fish placed first and second respectively, putting BC back into the meet. Jennifer Mosely won the 100 yard freestyle and Christina Rudolfsky placed third in that event winning key points for the team. Jill Cleveland and Katie Fish placed first and second in the 100 yard breast stroke and also contributed key points to the team's score. At the last relay, the 400 yard freestyle, the score was tied. BC placed first and second with the combination of Kris Mallery, Ogawa, Rudolfsky, and Mosely capturing first.

Against Burnt Hills on Friday, Bethlehem showed its skill as it won a challenging meet by ten points, 65-55. Lisa Ogawa swam exceptionally well, winning the 200 yard IM in a time of 2:21.6, and the 100 yard butterfly in a time of 1:03.5. Michelle Russo swam her personal best in the 100 yard backstroke placing third in a time of 1:15.5. Coach Neff declared "The whole team was up for the meet, and swam very well."

Today, the team will face Johnstown. Bethlehem is seen as the underdog going into this competition. All of the times, and races will be close, but Johnstown has an advantage in their team's depth. In events in which Bethlehem has one or two strong swimmers, Johnstown will have three or four. In a six lane pool, more points are scored by placing in second, third and fourth places, and not just in first place. Bethlehem will have to swim skillfully and competitively to beat Johnstown. Coach Neff said "We will be hurting if everyone doesn't swim up to par. Also since we will be in a six lane pool, the meet will be close." The meet will be a good season wrap-up as the girls prepare themselves for sectionals in the near future.

Library films depict American artists

Bethlehem Public Library's Monday Movie Break continues its series of films about 19th and 20th century artists and their work with "Art in America" and "Conrad Schwiering" on Nov. 9.

"Art in America" explores the development of American Art from the Hudson River School of landscape painting to the artist explorers of the American West to the influence of the DaDa movement.

For almost 35 years, Conrad Schwiering has painted the grandeur of the Teton Range. This 1982 film features his canvases of Yellowstone and Point Lobos national parks and gives an insight into the artist's way of life.

No reservation is required for these free programs, which begin at 2 p.m. Refreshments are served. For information call 439-9314.

WHOSE AGENT?

The family ready to buy their first home comes to a real estate agent for help. The homeowner who wants to put a house on the market comes to the same real estate professional. Question: who does the real estate agent represent?

The answer is clear: unless a specific contract exists with the prospective buyer, the realty professional is working for the seller. Though there may be certain legal and ethical considerations owed to a prospective buyer, the first loyalty is to the seller. We are the seller's agent, his professional help.

When we show a property, it is for the seller. We may try to match up buyers and houses, and thereby please the buyer, but we are working for the seller. Indians pounded by 'Vliet, finish season at home

By Sal Prividera

After keeping the game close through nearly two quarters Saturday, the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Indians were routed by Watervliet, 40-6, dropping their record to 3-5.

The Indians defense gave up 14 points in the second quarter with the final scoring being set up when Indians' quarterback Dave Allegretta was intercepted on the Watervliet 30 yard line. Watervliet drove to the RCS end zone, scoring with about 10 seconds left in the half.

The Indians came out strong in the third quarter driving 60 yards on three plays, scoring on a 5 yard run by Arthur Burnett. RCS failed on the running conversion, but cut the Watervliet lead to 14-6.

Watervliet received the kick and ran it back to the RCS 18 yard line and scored three plays later. Indians' Coach Gary VanDerzee said the run back was a "big turning point in the game."

Deputies to play for McDonald House

The Copper Bowl, a flag football game between the Albany City Police and the Albany County sheriff's deputies, will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 11, at Blecker Stadium following the annual Veterans Day parade in downtown Albany.

WPYX-106's Bob Mason and Cliff Nash will coach the teams.

A portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Albany Ronald McDonald House. Tickets, at $1, are available through Albany police and sheriff's deputies, the Troy Jaycees and Andy's Sporting Goods. The purchase of a ticket is also registration to win a trip for four to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a cross country ski package, or a bowling package from Andy's Sporting Goods.

Another Watervliet score was set up by punt block that was recovered on the Indians' 21 yard line. Watervliet scored eight plays later to increase their lead to 28-6.

Watervliet scored twice more, both times set up by Indians turnovers (one fumble and one on downs), to round out the scoring.

The Indians offense gained 169 yards rushing and 78 in the air. Indians quarterbacks gave up 3 interceptions and completed seven passes. Kurt VanDerzee completed four passes on 13 attempts for 49 yards and one interception. George White was 3 for 7 gaining 39 yards and giving up one interception.

The running game was led by Burnett (99 yards) and Tim Baranska (62 yards).

The defense gave up 251 yards on the ground and 88 in the air. The Indian defense took the ball away from Watervliet three times on two interceptions and a fumble. Joe Kubisch led the defense with 10 tackles followed by Baranska with 9.

Coach VanDerzee said that the special teams play by Watervliet made the difference in the game. RCS will play Taconic Hills next Saturday at home.

Kind stranger

Editor, The Spotlight

This is a very belated thank-you letter to a person I do not know. On the day after the great tree downing snowstorm, while I was in my front yard worrying away at some six- to eight-inch tree limbs with a small bow saw and my neighbor Henry Kiernan across St. Clair Drive was doing the same, a car drove up and stopped. A man unknown to us got out and asked if we wanted the limbs cut up. He took a chain saw from the car trunk, cut up the big tree limb in Hank's yard and then came across and helped me pull a heavy limb off my house and cut it and a couple of others into manageable lengths.

He would not accept anything for his work: not money, not the cut-up wood, not even some gasoline for his chain saw. "People need help," was all he said, and he drove off.

We thanked him, of course, but we do not know his name or where he lives. Apparently he was driving around, giving a helping hand where needed. We did, and we thought it was worth adding to the public record of the many instances of people helping each other out in our community.

Attention sneak freaks

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a motorist — not by choice, but by job necessity — it troubles me that while I am governed by very specific rules and regulations, all of which are for my safety and that of others, there do not appear to be very many rules or regulations governing joggers and "self-styled" "Olympic" bicyclists! (Now I am not referring to those who have to use a bicycle for school, etc.)

These "athletes" clog our highways and streets and act as if they own the territory. It is extremely harrowing to try and drive this individual-created obstacle course to and from work each day. Why is there little or no local (or higher) legislation for these mis-users of our roadways?

Perhaps they should pay for the privilege (as we do) and purchase a permit/license and be restricted as to hours and location of use? Maybe then their numbers would diminish.

I'd like to hear from other motorists on this subject.

For safety's sake

Editor, The Spotlight:

The residents of our town are really something!

During the aftermath of current disastrous storm, I could not count the number of times I heard on the radio and read in the newspapers, a plea from Marty Cross, our Superintendent of Highways, to please pile the brush at the side of the road and not on the pavement. Many people did cooperate, but many more did not and piled their brush and limbs on the pavement. A driver took his life in his hands dodging in and out and around the piles while praying that some youngster was not playing on the other side of the pile, and also hoping that he would not scratch the side of his car on the protruding limbs, which happened in many cases.

Now that the brush and debris is almost cleaned up, the leaf piles are appearing on the pavement. This is just as dangerous, especially with the children playing in the piles of leaves.

Most of the streets and roadways in our town are provided with a 50-foot right of way. The pavement covers a width of 24 feet. Thus leaving a shoulder of 8 feet on each side of the pavement to be used for the purpose of piling leaves, brush, bags of clippings and for snow storage in the winter time, even though most residents maintain this area in lawn.

For safety's sake, please pile your leaves and debris on the shoulder of the roadways and not on the pavement. The town highway crews will rake it off the grass and into the leaf pickup machine. Thank you.

William Johnston Jr.

Appreciation offered

Editor, The Spotlight:

Though rather belated, I want to say thank you to the Delmar Fire Association for the shelter they provided in the time of the storm.

What a surprise it was to wake that Sunday morning and see the snow covering the ground and bending down the branches of the trees.

Then a flash of light and electric power turned off.

My optimism consoled me and assured me that the efficiency of science would soon turn the power on.

In retrospect I am reminded of Kipling's Recessional with a brief emendation:

The shouting and the tumult
Class

The captains and the kings depart

The ancient sacrifice remains

A contrite and a thankful heart.

In times of crisis we are contrite and humble because of our interdependence. We are thankful because of the gracious kindness of people.

The sociologist says it is the operation of the Law of Mutual Aid. In a dark and cold home what could a lonely man 100 years old do?

A Kiwanis friend, a modern incarnation of the Good Samaritan, phoned and informed me of the shelter that the firehouses of the area offered in time of storm. He picked me up in his car and took me to the Delmar Firehouse.

I lodged and dined there for 4 days and 4 nights. The hostesses of the occasion were the wives of the firemen. Some of them must have been nurses. For the service provided was marked with efficiency, discipline and courtesy, such as we associate with the nurse's profession.

Karen Pelletier, director of Bethlehem Senior Citizen Services, and some of her staff were there to add their cheer and gift of coordination.

For those of us whose walking is difficult, the women gave their arms on which to lean.

Not since my mother about 75 years ago, tucked me in and

Bumper cars

I'm normally a placid soul. I cede the right of way at four-way stop signs, stay close to the speed limit and contentedly wait for parking spaces while grocery bags resembling horns of plenty are transferred from cart to car trunk.

ON THE HOME FRONT

Susan Gordon

This morning, I nearly reduced a driver's neck to chicken soup. Maybe I miscommunicated my intent to park; maybe she ignored my garish hand signals. But right in the middle of Delaware Plaza's parking lot, an attempt was made to edge between my car and a parking space I awaited on the right.

God — or my mother — endowed me with quick reflexes. A tap on the horn — used maybe twice in four years — and a pedal to the metal closed the three-foot gap between me and the row of parked cars.

The gray Volvo blurred past on my left after its driver impaled me with a glare and, I suspect, a few expletives. WMHT's violin section masked the delicate language.

As I write this later in the day, I wonder: What's the rush, anyway? Has a dentist, fast-food restaurant, grocery store or friend ever disappeared because of a five-minute late arrival? But maybe a traffic jam has.

Nonetheless, alchemy transforms some of us into demons on four wheels. And others of us play more quietly with our toys. High stakes for a game of bumper cars.

kissed me good night did this happen to me.

What a wonderful time I had. We were like one big family, electric with good will.

The experience was a side of Delmar I had never seen before. For 30 years life has been isolated and lonely.

I discovered Delmar has a heart.

Once I thought of firemen as guardians of your home, day and night, from the ravages of fire. My boyhood symbol of a fireman still persists. A greased pole down which he slides to hasten his arrival to the score of dangerous service. It still is all of that. But much more!

The fire houses are havens of refuge when Nature is on a rampage. Thank you.

Vanguard to take

conductor to dinner

A pre-concert dinner with Albany Symphony music director Geoffrey Simon will be held Friday, Nov. 6, at 5:45 p.m., at the Nile restaurant, 255 River St., Troy.

The dinner is sponsored by the Albany Symphony Vanguard. For $16.50 reservations, phone Marcia Cockrell at 459-1229.

A preview of the concert will be held on Thursday, Nov. 5, at noon at the Albany Public Library with composer Paul Patterson and pianist Lisa Moore.

Harvest bazaar set at Delmar Reformed

A Bountiful Harvest Bazaar, sponsored by the Women's Guild of the Delmar Reformed Church, will be held on Saturday, Nov. 7, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., in the church at 386 Delaware Ave., Delmar.

A variety of booths will offer a wide selection of items to chose from, including homemade crafts, baked goods and holiday gift ideas. There will also be a white elephant booth and a lunch room.

Also available will be "Delectable Donations," a cookbook of home tested recipes created by members of the Delmar Reformed Church.

For information, call 439-9929.

'Play On' to be offered by the Village Stage

The Village Stage, Inc., will present "Play On," Rick Abbott's hilarious comedy-murder mystery beginning Friday Nov. 13 at the Bethlehem Town Hall.

The play is actually a double feature with two plays in one. One play is the story of a local theatrical group struggling to prepare a play for the public. The second play is the play that the company is trying to produce. It has humor, mayhem and confusion as the actors and actresses work together long after life's daily routines are performed, attempting to produce a play yet maintain normal lives. In this pressure-cooker environment humor naturally springs forth to relieve tension.

The play will be produced at the town hall auditorium on Nov. 13, 14, 19, 20, and 21, beginning at 8 p.m., and on Nov. 15, beginning at 2 p.m. Tickets, $5, are available at the door, the Papermill and Records'n Such at Delaware Plaza, Tri-Village Pharmacy at the Four Corners, and Windflower Florists in Glenmont Shopping Center.

New post master starts in Delmar

Tom Borcaro, an Albany native who has held a variety of jobs in the U.S. Postal Service, will take over as Delmar's new post master Saturday.

He replaces Henry Betke, who has been reassigned as post master of Ithaca, N.Y. Tom Jenkins has been acting post master in Delmar in Betke's absence.

A 20-year veteran of the postal service, Borcaro is moving into his first postmaster position, which is appointive position. "It looks like an excellent operation," Borcaro said of the Delmar Post Office.

Borcaro currently serves as station manager of the main Albany post office on Broadway. Starting as a letter carrier in 1967, he has served as supervisor of delivery and collection in Albany from 1979 to 1983, as manager of station and branches in Loudonville in 1983 and as general foreman in Albany in 1983 and 1984.

A formal installation ceremony will take place later this month.

Give Blood

Donating blood is a simple and safe process that may save the life of someone who is in need of a blood transfusion. The blood you donate may even save someone you know. The American Red Cross is constantly in need of blood donors who are in good health. The blood is shipped to places of need. Anyone between 17 years and 65 years is eligible to donate.

Your chance to help out is Wednesday, Nov. 11, when the Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit the Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Elm Ave., from noon until 6 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Delmar Progress Club. Give blood to save lives.
