Voorheesville settles bond issue

By Sal Prividera Jr.

The Voorheesville Central Board of Education will ask voters to approve a 20-year bond issue of over $8.9 million for asbestos removal and other capital projects in April.

The bond issue amount was set at $8,949,700 by a unanimous vote at Monday's meeting.

The bond issue vote will be held on April 13, if the district follows a proposed time line developed by Gene Grasso, district business administrator. He said the board "has finalized the scope of the work," but has to put together the specifics. The time line calls for the board to adopt the bond resolution, which would include the specifics, at its Feb. 13 meeting.

The largest portion of the bond issue, $5.4 million, will be used to pay for asbestos removal, correction of fire-safety code violations in both schools, and several costly building improvement projects such as a new heating system at the high school. The cost of asbestos removal at the two schools is $2,574,300.

The remainder of the $8.9 million will be used for program-related building improvements such as the addition of four classrooms at the high school, said Board President Joseph Fernandez. The improvements plan also calls for expansion of the high school library and cafeteria facilities as well as allowing the district to "cluster" grades seven and eight, he said. Fernandez added that the plan also includes providing more space for music and art.

Improvements at the elementary school include clustering grade one and kindergarten together on

Walter Motor files for Chapter 11

By Theresa Bobear

Walter Truck Corp. of Guiderland, the successor to Walter Motor Truck Co., once a major employer in Voorheesville, is attempting to reorganize under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

The company filed a petition in October of 1988 with the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of New York for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code as a debtor in possession, according to Henry Collins. Collins is an attorney with the Albany law firm of Cooper, Erving, Savage, Nolan and Heller, bankruptcy counsel to the firm.

Collins said the firm is reorganizing, focusing on ways to more productively and efficiently do their work.

"The primary problem was one of cash flow," said Collins. With advice from counsel, the firm was able to collect outstanding receipts, which were a major part of the problem, according to Collins.

Collins said the firm will be formulating and filing a plan of reorganization. Collins said the firm will continue on in business and will complete contracts currently underway.

According to William J. Wenzel of Voorheesville, former president of Walter Truck Corp. in Guiderland, the American Walter Motor Truck Company in Voorheesville, which had employed about 130 to 150 people, failed about 10 years ago. The company owned the building now occupied by Atlas Copco. Wenzel said he

Way stations to history

The inn built in 1836 by Nathaniel Adams, after whom Adamsville, the settlement which grew up around the inn, was named. Adamsville later became Delmar. The inn sat beside the Albany and Delaware Turnpike, chartered in 1805 to run from Albany to Otego in Delaware County. The inn has been converted into office space for the New York State Association for Retarded Children.

Built prior to 1843, the inn at Unionville also served the travellers on the Albany and Delaware Turnpike of 1805. At one time, William Wemple was the proprietor, and in more recent years the building was the home of the Slingerlands Players, a since disbanded acting group.

In the nineteenth century when agriculture was the chief source of livelihood for most people, the farmer who lived in the farther reaches of Albany county had to bring his farm produce to market in Albany by the only way that was available — horse and wagon.

Other modes of travel included riding horseback or travelling by stagecoach on roads that were poor. Distances were far and travel by wagon or horse was deadingly slow. Village and

The inn at New Salem was built along the Albany and Rensselaerville Road about 1830 by Aaron Van Schaak. He also built a store in here, and was the first postmaster when the post office was located at the inn. The building has a long history of serving food and beverage, and if all necessary permits are obtained, will be doing so once again as "Helderhouse" some time in 1989.

The inn at Feura Bush, on Route 32 is located along the early road that led to Onesquethaw and Greenville. When originally constructed, the inn looked much like the Unionville hostelry. It is located across from the Jerusalem Reformed Church, and has been made into a private residence.

country inns strung out along the turnpikes filled a need for the weary traveller to rest and refresh himself and his team.

The inns offered a place to eat and a bed in which to spend the night and were the forerunners of our hotels and motels of today. We still have a few of these old, Greek Revival style inns left in our vicinity and their very uniqueness should make them treasured property.

Life in a land in crisis

By Dan Button

Months of living in a Nicaraguan household while working on projects intended to ease the country's food shortages have given new perspectives to a Delmar economist who is paying his own way as a volunteer in that beleaguered land.

Frank Kramer, an associate professor at Siena College, is on a sabbatical leave during this academic year. From August to December, he worked in Nicaragua under the auspices of a California-based private organization, Tecnica, which helps place people with technical skills in countries where their expertise can be of assistance.

And tomorrow (Thursday), he will leave again for four more months of aiding Nicaragua's agricultural technology and economy. Much of his work is directed toward the staff at the national university in upgrading the production, transport, and marketing of the food supply, which consists largely of three basics: corn, rice, and beans. About 90 percent of Nicaraguans' caloric and protein intake is in these staples, augmented by coffee, sugar, and occasional chicken and dairy products.

"I'm trying to make a contribution to the production of food, so that poor people might have more to eat," Dr. Kramer explains. Among the challenges is helping local agricultural technicians determine what technologies will be of practical, profitable use. "What technology will bring the best return on the investment, will importing of tractors and pesticides, at great expense, pay off? Which crops would be most advisable? What role can cooperatives have beneficially?"

In the past two years, the quality of diet has been deteriorating, and malnutrition is quite common, Dr. Kramer reports. The country is lacking in many resources, and the civil strife, plus the U.S. economic blockade, have become a serious drain on the economy. As much as a quarter of the gross national product has been expended by the government on defense against the Contras.

Despite the years of warring, Dr. Kramer finds, the majority of Nicaraguans are living in an open society with free movement and a general sense of lack of oppression. He sees them as

Hamagrael roof design changes Addition plans approved

By Sal Prividera Jr.

The architectural designs for the additions at three district elementary schools were unanimously approved last week by the Bethlehem Central Board of Education, with one change.

The approved schematic designs for the Hamagrael, Slingerlands and Glenmont elementary schools included a roofing design change at Hamagrael.

The 10-classroom addition at Hamagrael was originally designed with an internally draining flat roof that was redesigned as an externally draining pitched roof following complaints from board member Bernard Harvith. Harvith, a former board president, voiced his opposition to having the internally draining roof at last month's meeting, when the district's architectural firm Stetson-Harza presented the schematics.

At the time, Harvith said that due to the problems internally draining roofs have caused in the district he "wish(ed) to take no responsibility for recommending any flat roof."

Architect Anthony Martino, in a letter to the board, said the new design was "technically, economically and aesthetically equivalent to that which was originally presented."

Superintendent Leslie Loomis said the change was recommended by the administration following discussions with the assistant superintendent for business and the assistant superintendent for buildings and grounds. The change was also discussed with Hamagrael Principal Joseph Schaefer.

Under the approved schematic designs: Glenmont will have an 11-classroom addition, a cafeteria addition, and a new gym station; Hamagrael will have a new gym station in addition to the classroom addition; Slingerlands will have a seven-classroom addition, a new two-station gym and a cafeteria converted from the former gym.

Other alterations will be made at all elementary schools, including expanded library space and site improvement work.

The $11.6 million 20-year bond issue will go before voters on Feb. 15.

In other business, the board authorized work at the Hamagrael and Slingerlands schools to correct the mold and mildew problems in the schools.

Assistant Superintendent for Business Franz Zwicklbauer said the cleaning of the unit ventilators was completed as recommended by Stetson-Harza and Adelaide Environmental Associates after their study of the problem.

The study recommended replacing roofing and insulation at the Slingerlands school; which will be done through the bond issue, Zwicklbauer said. Other recommendations for the Slingerlands school will be done as part of the maintenance budget and include:

- Diverting water away from the building. Zwicklbauer said the project will require "major regrading" because the neighboring property is higher. The work cannot be done until spring, he said.
- Repointing the foundation wall, if it is found to be necessary after the drainage work is completed.
- Cleaning the unit ventilators more often.
- Sealing any porous surfaces behind the cabinets in the classrooms. Zwicklbauer said the project would have to be done when school is out because it is time consuming.
- Creation of a positive air flow in the north wall of the building to decrease moisture.

Recommendations for the work at the Hamagrael school were similar to Slingerlands, but less extensive. The classroom storage cabinets in one room were removed and replaced with pegboard for students to hang their coats on. Prices will be developed for a similar procedure in eight more classrooms, Zwicklbauer said.

Cost figures for the entire project have not been determined yet and some of the work will proceed following architectural approval, Zwicklbauer said.

Veeder receives Eagle Scout award

Mark Veeder was "flying high" last Wednesday as the 18-year-old aerospace engineering student was awarded the coveted Eagle Scout award at a special ceremony held at the Voorheesville Elementary School.

Although the 1988 graduate of Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School completed the requirements for the Eagle last spring, the paperwork was not processed until he had left for college, so the official court of honor was held while he was home on semester break from the State University at Buffalo.

Dignitaries on hand for the ceremony led by area dentist Dr. Michael Jarus included Mayor Ed Clark, American Legion Commander Joe Armer, county legion scouting representative Bob Mudge, Elks representative Robert Daley and Eagle board member Edward Bogdan. Leading the benediction was Rev. Arthur Toole, with Troop 73 Scoutmaster Joe Colburn and assistant Ray Ginter taking part in the program.

Active in scouting since Cub Scout days, Veeder garnered 23 merit badges in earning the Eagle award. As a service project he built a horse shed for the Therapeutic Riding Center on Martin Rd. in Voorheesville. With the help of some of his fellow scouts and a few adult committeemen he completed the protective structure in the spring.

While in high school Veeder played football, taught French to elementary school students and was a member of the National Honor Society. He also spent a good deal of time working at the family Restaurant in Colonie.

Speaking about the merit badges he earned, Veeder, an avid fisherman, said he enjoyed the fishing badge the most, and had even spent several weeks at scouting's Florida adventure post, Sea Base, one summer, fishing, sailing and snorkeling. He felt the most challenging badge was Environmental Science, while the most interesting dealt with delving into the past of the community. A love for history is not surprising since Veeder himself is close to Voorheesville's past, living in the historic Voorhees house located high on the hill in the village overlooking the junction at Main and Prospect St. — a most lofty and fitting home for an Eagle. Lyn Staff

The new plans for the Hamagrael addition feature a pitched roof rather than a flat roof with internal drain.

Another delay for Price Chopper

The developers of the controversial shopping center proposed for New Scotland Rd. have asked the Bethlehem Town Board for another postponement for the presentation of their plans, while a citizens group continues to hammer away at the proposal.

BTR Development of Baltimore has asked that its presentation scheduled for Wednesday's (tonight's) town board meeting be postponed because company representatives have a conflicting commitment, according to the company's local attorney, Michael J. Hoblock. Hoblock said he hopes to have a new date by the end of the week.

BTR is proposing to build a shopping center with a total of 313,500 square feet of retail space, including a new Price Chopper supermarket, along New Scotland Rd. The company would extend the Slingerlands Bypass to meet the Cherry Ave. Extension, and would build four office buildings and a residential development to the west of the bypass. The developer has worked with Price Chopper on other area projects, and the supermarket chain has taken a leading role in promoting the plan.

However, local opposition has been strong, and last month Bethlehem Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick said he thinks the project is too large to be considered until the town develops a master plan, which will take about two years. Other town board members said they agree the project should not be considered unless it is scaled down.

Hoblock, who is a member of the Colonie Town Board, said Friday that the developers still want a chance to present their project as they outlined it at a community meeting Nov. 2. But he stressed that all his clients are seeking now is "to begin the process."

Usually, he said, project proposals are referred by the town board to the planning board. "And at the planning board, obviously, adjustments are going to have to be made," Hoblock said. The developers, he said, are aware that their initial submission "is not 'the plan,' in its final form."

The developers had said that the size of the project is dictated by the need to extend the Slingerlands Bypass — a need recognized by local and state officials and also by the developers. Ron Schleicht, Price Chopper's vice president for real estate operations, said last month that scaling down the project would be very difficult because of the traffic problem. Schleicht could not be reached for comment Monday or Tuesday morning.

However, the newly revitalized Slingerlands Homeowners Association continues to attack the proposal. On Monday the group released an 11-page "memorandum" to town officials challenging the traffic impact analysis filed by BTR with its project plan. The group, citing an unnamed "qualified traffic specialist", argues that the BTR analysis should have looked at a wider area, should have considered Saturday traffic, and failed to analyze the cumulative impact of the fully developed project. The memorandum presents its own analysis of traffic impacts in the area and concludes that the increase in volume "clearly underscores the lack of a long-term 'public benefit' that this mega-plaza is supposed to provide the community."

Looking ahead

The condition and adequacy of our streets and highways is a perpetual source of concern, and growing more heated than usual as the proposed "Bethlehem Village" Price Chopper development is viewed, pro and con. The existing access roads' ability to carry the resulting traffic is properly a factor in decision-making and planning.

Vitally necessary foresight is called for as we tackle the manifold problems that such a major development would create on top of all the other present and projected aspects of highway.

We have some outstanding examples of a lack of imaginative foresight here in our area. For good example, most residents of Delmar, Slingerlands, Elsmere, Voorheesville, and other communities regularly squeeze their way through the narrow passages beneath the rail lines that snake their way through our towns.

In the 1920s, when those underpasses were constructed, no one bothered to look ahead to the days when the volume of vehicles using these roads would make each underpass obsolete, as has been the case for many years. The highways themselves are limited by the dimensions of the channels through which they are routed. The end result is that the several communities in our towns are landlocked by another generation's lack of vision.

What's the good of contemplating the building of multi-lane roads to handle today's and tomorrow's traffic when the neck of the bottle remains fixed? (Incidentally, the state's Department of Transportation, following the practice of its predecessor, Public Works, continues the bottleneck tradition with the two-lane bridges built in the recent past. Another reason to proceed with caution — and foresight.)

Keep it simple

The fact that the committee studying the need for a community center in Bethlehem finally presented its report to the town board last month is a positive sign. We already know from the committee's survey that town residents want such a center. The report urges that the town hire a consultant to advise it on sites, programs, costs and funding possibilities.

We think this is a logical way to proceed. However, we are concerned that the momentum on this important project, first conceived nearly two years ago, has already dissipated because of the time the committee has taken to do its work. If Bethlehem is to have a community center the support of the town's citizenry is essential. Not only is there a great deal of tax money involved, but also there is a great deal riding on the willingness of community groups to help plan and support it.

The committee's report comes after the 1989 town budget has been passed, so the first hurdle is to find money for the consultant. Once that is done, great care should be taken to define the consultant's task and to insure that a strict timetable is established and followed. It goes without saying that the community's needs and concerns must be heard and incorporated into the design.

As for a site, the report is remarkably unhelpful. One of the possibilities that has been discussed is the present town hall on Delaware Ave. Another is at the proposed BTR/Price Chopper development on New Scotland Rd. Both interesting ideas, but ones to be considered with a great deal of caution. If a community center is ever to become a reality, it must be kept on a scale that town residents are comfortable with. Something as large as the town hall (not to mention the subsequent need to build a new town hall) could very easily bog down the entire enterprise. Why not keep it simple?

Honoring Lew Swyer

The late Lewis A. Swyer was one of the most active and effective patrons of the arts in this region, or for that matter anywhere in New York State. We in the immediate Albany area were fortunate that some of his interests were focused here.

Among these was the theatre informally known as "Capital Rep" on North Pearl Street in Albany, where for the past several years full seasons of repertory productions have engaged audiences with their variety, originality, and professionalism.

Lew Swyer was one of the original enthusiasts and significant supporters of Capital Rep. The organization that sponsors the productions has reached the point where the theater's tenancy must be terminated. As a result, Capital Rep must find — build, actually — a new home at a cost which is sure to run into the millions of dollars.

When that theater is a reality, it might most appropriately honor Lew Swyer, and honor itself by bearing his name. And to have that decision made as a fund-raising effort is launched would inspire many persons and organizations to hasten their subscription.

Take heart ...

... another sign of the forthcoming spring has made its timely appearance.

In all the old familiar places, you'll now find racks of Valentine cards and, even more significantly, row upon row of interesting heart-shaped boxes filled, no doubt, with toothsome chocolates (some of them filled with cherries in a sweet syrup).

That means that St. Valentine's Day is only a little more than a month away. And everybody knows that once we've passed mid-February, the winter's licked.

The hearts that typify the Valentine lovefest are the real thing, not the bumper-sticker kind of heart that begins with "I" and ends with "New York" or "apple pie" or "horses." Andy Rooney once did one of his wonderful pieces in which he spoke it this way: "I heart New York" and "I heart you."

That's right, Andy. To paraphrase P. Henry, As for me, give me the good old days when people weren't afraid to write out, and even say, I-o-v-e.

Bethlehem bond issue is called 'responsible'

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a concerned parent of high school, middle school, and pre-school students, and a member of a parent-school organization, I would like to comment on the Bethlehem School District's proposed bond issue and its upcoming vote on Feb. 15.

After studying the entire scope of the proposal, it becomes evident to me that the bond issue affects not only our elementary schools, but the whole system.

Support of this issue will not only stop future busing of our kindergarten students and relieve the overcrowding of the elementary schools, but it will also ensure that the elementary schools will remain neighborhood schools and that grade realignment in our schools (the movement of fifth grade to the middle school and eighth grade to the high school, for example) and split sessions will not be necessary.

Vox Pop

Information about the bond issue has been well covered in The Spotlight. Informational meetings presented by our school district are scheduled for the various schools between now and the Feb. 15 voting day. Contact your school's local PTA or parent group for the dates and times of the presentations.

When made aware of the total picture, you'll find that the bond issue is responsible, addresses immediate and future needs, and is necessary. Vote on Feb. 15.

Negotiations suggested before plan is offered

Editor, The Spotlight:

I call upon the residents and town officials of Bethlehem not to be overwhelmed and get pushed into inaction by the sheer size of the BTR/Price Chopper proposal and by the self-proclaimed voice of opposition of "We the People... residents of the Town of Bethlehem" expressed in the full-page ad in the Dec. 28 issue of The Spotlight. Rather, let us react rationally and constructively to the opportunities offered by the Price Chopper initiative.

As for "We the People," 124 of the 142 signers of the ad can be found in the 1988-89 Tri-Village Area Directory: of these 124 individuals, 101 are identified as residing in Slingerlands, while the remaining 23 reside in Delmar or Elsmere. This should make it clear that the loud opposition to commercial development in the area envisioned comes overwhelmingly from one particular area of town, and definitely does not represent the residents of the Town of Bethlehem.

More letters

Pages 7 and 8

As for the Price Chopper/BTR proposal, it should be noted that there is plenty of support for a new food market in Bethlehem, and that town officials have for years attempted to find a solution for this "urgent need" (Supervisor Hendrick, The Spotlight, Dec. 7), though I have not heard anyone who supports the large regional

Old friends to the rescue

The year-end holidays provided an opportunity for a bit of traveling about, rubbernecking, luxuriating in the homely appointments of a couple of country-type hostelrys, and being elevated by some museums.

In one of the latter, we toured a series of rooms that were arranged and decorated in keeping with what they called the yuletide tour. And among the dozen-and-a-half settings was an 18th century bed chamber complete with a tub for a sitz bath. Seated in the tub, her back modestly turned to the visitors, was a lady (at least, a papier-mache one) caught in the act of bathing.

Our guide remarked pointedly on the infrequency of bathing in those days and the general unavailability of facilities for the purpose. Compared to our present-day standards, she sniffed, well!...

I was thereupon reminded, but (as Archie always advised Edith) stifled myself without commenting on the Will Rogers' one-liner that was apropos.

Upon hearing statistics cited as to how many bathtubs Americans possessed in his day in highly favorable comparison with George Washington's day, Will drily remarked: "If George heard about that, he'd ask, 'What got 'em so dirty?!'"

Some oval office don'ts

My friend and colleague who writes the commentary that regularly appears above my weekly contribution (Probably because he is older!) had an item a few weeks ago that I've remembered. It was, in fact, one of his shorter items, and he speculated as to what President George Bush's "big mistake" would turn out to be. He mentioned that every recent President in a whole long string has made one grand tactical faux pas that created no end of bother for him, his administration, and the country.

I mention all this because one article listed in the January Reader's Digest table of contents on the cover was this: "Mistakes New Presidents Make."

The author, Fred Barnes (White House correspondent for The New Republic) takes a somewhat different tack from The Spotlight's columnist, but he has some very sage counsel.

"George Bush has traversed a whole wilderness of warning from sundry advisers in the weeks since he was elected President. But as he prepares to take the oath of office on Jan. 20, he can learn much from the thorny experiences of his predecessors. Here is advice culled from the often hard-learned lessons of presidencies past. It is advice that could determine whether Bush will indeed be the 'Chief Executive' or a man overwhelmed by the tidal wave of demands on his time, talent, and energy that will hit within hours of his....

"There is no formula to guarantee a successful presidency," and I have mine. In keeping with my theory, the songs of the 1930s and 1940s help to provide the glue that gives necessary perspective to our immediate state.

Readers of this column know of Uncle Dudley's fondness for Bing Crosby, and you've also seen references to Mary Martin, Gene Kelly, and probably some other great entertainers. (Have I mentioned Maxine Sullivan?)

A Christmas gift serves to renew auld acquaintance

Unrevealed to this point, however, is the name of Buddy Clark. What! you don't know of Buddy Clark? He was one of the best (though too-unrecognized) singers of the 1940s, but he didn't make it out of that decade because he was in a plane that crashed in a Los Angeles street on Oct. 1, 1949. Anyway, a keenly insightful person found a Buddy Clark album and put it under the spruce boughs on Christmas morning. As I read the album's jacket copy, I spied a familiar though almost-forgotten song title ("Have You Changed?"). The composer was, long ago, a very good pal of mine, lost track of almost since the night we celebrated — at a dozen Manhattan night spots — his imminent departure for France in 1943.

To shorten an already longish story, I was inspired, that Christmas night, to put on my Holmes' deerstalker hat and go to work decoding what might have happened to that old friend, so long lost. The result: Within no more than several hours, I was on the phone with him, asking, "Have you changed?" And a lot of other questions and news notes. Turns out, he's now White House correspondent for Radio Free Europe, and we pledged to get together at an early opportunity. So you see old songs do offer a continuity!

One more Christmas note, if you can stand it: A friend had sent me a news note about the retired principal of our old high school, who's still active at age 92. A Christmas card to him brought one in return:

"You spent three years at W.H.S., but I spent 31 years there, and I am glad I never left though it was at great financial sacrifice — but with great satisfaction. The teachers were my family and the students my concern. (I have outlived almost all of my wonderful faculty.)"

Don't those few lines sum up very effectively the teaching profession — the dedication of those who practice it with their sometimes-unwilling tutees as their "concern"?

Perhaps our teachers are another major factor in giving a sense of continuity to our days. (And perhaps Christmas cards do, too!)

That principal, by the way, has outlived not only his faculty colleagues, but also the school itself, which is no more.

author Barnes concludes. "The oval office is a laboratory for the unpredictable chemistry of character and circumstance. The results have sometimes been inspiring, sometimes disastrous. George Bush enters that laboratory with the opportunity to review and profit from the experiments — whether fortunate or failed — of his predecessors."

President Bush can learn from mistakes of his predecessors

Among the specific bits of advice that are offered to Mr. Bush are these: "Don't drive without a road map (a set of firm convictions about government and society); don't dawdle; don't lose touch with the world outside Washington; don't knuckle under to the bureaucrats, but rally them with strong leadership; don't be bullied by the press; don't play the TV card too often; don't be obsessed with leaks; don't underestimate the trouble your family and friends can cause you; don't forget that you are the boss."

I mentioned about a month ago my favorable impression of the new monthly magazine, World Monitor. Recent issues reinforce and strengthen that favorable reaction. It's a very solid publication, one of the best to my mind, if you want to know more about the world around you.

World Monitor is published (four issues so far) by the Christian Science Publishing

Society, and is an outcropping of the objective spirit of the daily Monitor. Prospective readers need not be deterred by any fear of preaching or proselytizing, however, for there's none of that in World Monitor. The closest approach is a page in each issue that's headed "For a Better World." In the two most recent issues, the writers have been the religion editor of the London Times and a Unitarian clergyman (in an interview with Bill Moyers).

Not only timely global concerns of politics and peace or war fill Monitor's pages. In the January issue, for example, is an article, "Seeds of Renewal" by a botanist (an "ethnobotanist," actually) on "a network of home-gardeners and plant specialists that keeps ancient species alive for today's good." Then there's Nat Hentoff on "A Jazz Fan's Fantasy," "The Muppets Take the World," "Tales from the Philippine Woods," and numerous others. On the other hand, meaty pieces abound also, such as "Memo to Mr. Bush: Read Those East European Lips," "Twilight of the Latin Dictators" and "Socialism in Crisis: China's Answer."

The cover price of World Monitor is $2.95. The regular subscription rate is $24.94, but an insert card offers a year for $17.70 (and a December insert card cut it to $14.97). You can subscribe by sending the necessary data and remittance to World Monitor at P.O. Box 11267, Des Moines, Iowa 50347. I feel justified in recommending it.

The RCS bond issue

This week's Point of View is by Mark Sengenberger, who is president of the Board of Education of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school district.

By Mark Sengenberger

School boards are required to make decisions concerning many issues, including addressing student academic needs, assuring adequate facilities, negotiating contracts with staff, and meeting diverse community needs. In a training seminar the suggestion was made that school board members should come equipped with "the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, and the foresight of Jeane Dixon."

My friends and family can assure you that I do not possess these qualities. Yet each week other board members and I meet to discuss, analyze, and vote on issues affecting students and the community. Many times these issues are complex and controversial, such as the building bond issues facing many area school districts. This may lead some people to question how school boards arrive at their decisions.

Do school boards have a crystal ball or are they blessed with extraordinary insight? The answer is, of course, no! School board members base their decisions on information gained from frequent interaction with school administrators, teachers, students, parents, and other district residents.

School boards want and seek input from district residents. However, for that input to be beneficial, it must be provided at the time that decisions are being made. Monday morning quarterbacking is not helpful! That is why the public's attendance at fact finding and informational meetings is so important.

Skeptics of the validity of school-district budgets and bond issues should familiarize themselves with the facts before voting

Last October, a bond issue was defeated in the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk (RCS) School District. Although the turnout was deemed "heavy," fewer than 25 percent of eligible voters bothered to vote. Attendance at public meetings was dismal. Furthermore, it was clear from letters to the editor in the local papers that many district voters were not well informed about the issues, despite a wealth of information distributed by the district and excellent coverage by newspapers.

People wrote that "the school board had not convinced them of the need for the bond issue." Yet these same people had never attended a public meeting, nor had they expressed their concerns to a board member prior to the vote. Others indicated that they had voted "no" because it wasn't clear that certain options had been considered. Had they attended a meeting, made a phone call or read the information distributed to them, they would have had their questions answered.

District residents need to understand that a bond issue vote is the culmination of years of work by the school board and school administration. A bond issue is brought to the voters only after the district has successfully completed a comprehensive project development process with the state Education Department. The need for new construction, its impact on student educational programs, and the cost to district taxpayers are carefully assessed and documented.

Because the process is so long, the timing of a bond issue vote is not always ideal. In the case of RCS, in October, some voters indicated that their negative votes were a backlash to other non-school-related tax and user fee increases.

The proposed bond issue, for $9.5 million, would make possible additions to the Coeymans and Becker elementary schools, as well as a library and physical education teaching station at the senior high school. The revote date is Jan. 25.

School boards do not have the luxury of endlessly debating issues and options or waiting for the best time to schedule a bond vote. When serious deficiencies exist, such as overcrowding in the schools, timely solutions must be aggressively pursued. Decisions must be made with the best information available at the time.

District residents can help assure that their school boards come up with the most cost-effective and educationally sound solutions by being actively and constructively involved throughout the decision-making process. People who can't or won't attend public meetings must make the effort to read the informational items distributed by the school district so that they can be informed voters.

As RCS brings its bond issue up for a revote and other districts present theirs, I urge you all to become informed voters and active participants in your school districts. We owe it to our children and to our future.

commercial center implicit in the BTR proposal. I commend Mr. Hendrick for his clear statement that such a massive project far exceeds the needs of the community. However, I am disturbed by the apparent reluctance shown by Mr. Hendrick in taking constructive action now. Waiting for the presentation of a specific proposal to the town and for the development of another "master plan" is a delay totally uncalled for. Instead, appropriate town officials should be meeting with Price Chopper now and negotiating to broadly shape a proposal which meets the needs of the community, before it is formally presented to the town.

In the 12 years that I have lived in Bethlehem, the town has experienced major residential development (without a master plan), while commercial/shopping development has been very limited, and as far as food shopping goes, there has in fact been a major decrease which has brought uncalled hardship upon the residents of this town. If Bethlehem has experienced uncontrolled growth in the past, this has occurred in the residential area, and a master plan may very well be needed to stop us along that path. But the already established new residential patterns must now be matched by appropriate supporting commercial services, and time is running out. Otherwise traffic at Four Corners, on Delaware Avenue, and at Delaware Plaza, which has already reached intolerable levels, will completely choke the heart of Bethlehem! This is an issue which our town officials should have been dealing with for years along with the approval of new residential developments. Responsibility for the present situation lies with past and present town officials, and simply calling for a new master plan now is not getting them off the hook.

I realize that any decision to rezone residential areas to commercial use is a painful and controversial one, but zoning patterns are not cast in concrete, and there is an established process for making such changes. It is here that the community as a whole has to be considered, and perhaps one should also take a more global look. After all, Bethlehem is an integral part of the Capital District. It is in making such hard decisions that our town officials can demonstrate what they are worth, and show vision and creativity.

I close with some observations which might help in assessing the merits of the proposed location for a food shopping center:

1. There are exactly three roads which connect Bethlehem to the core of the Capital District, where the majority of us works: Route 9W, Delaware Avenue, and Route 85/New Scotland Avenue. The first two already provide commercial services within the town. Given the urgent need for more food shopping services, the logical choice is the third road

2. The proposed location is at present minimally developed, thus the number of residents who will be impacted adversely is minimized.

3. Opponents of commercial development often cite Wolf Road as an example of what will be ahead of us; but let us note that Delaware Avenue, in spite of being overly commercial, is no Wolf Road. In fact, one must credit town officials and residents for having limited commercial development strictly to the road, while preserving the residential character of the neighborhoods adjacent to it (Just take a turn on any of the side streets of Delaware Avenue and look for yourself). I just do not see why a similar preservation can not be maintained along Route 85, especially if commercial development is kept at a substantially lower level than on Delaware Avenue.

4. Traffic patterns need to be studied. Looking at a map, it is not at all clear to me that traffic will be adversely affected. Rather, it appears likely that much traffic flow will simply change its direction, and that there will be a net decrease on Delaware Avenue, and possibly on Kenwood and Cherry Avenues as well. After all, Slingerlands residents now must use these roads for their food shopping (or where else do Slingerlands residents shop?), but with a food center in the proposed location, wouldn't they rather use that location which would be so much more convenient for them? Yes, many Elsmere, Delmar, and Glenmont residents might take these roads in the opposite direction to shop at a Price Chopper on New Scotland rather than at Grand Union. But we can also expect that many such residents who now already use Route 85 on their way to and from work would take care of their shopping on the way home, and thus would not contribute to any increase in traffic at all; indeed, such a stop on the way home would make a side trip to Delaware Plaza unnecessary (ever been at Four Corners between 4 and 6 p.m.), thus leading to a potential decrease in traffic on Delaware. Rather than wasting time waiting for a master plan, town officials should immediately commission a traffic flow study to get some precise answers to questions such as those raised above.

5. The extension of the Slingerlands Bypass to Cherry Avenue Extension is long overdue and should be incorporated in the proposed development. But the town should not let itself be bribed by developers like BTR in accepting their offer to pay for the extension in return for a massive project which far exceeds the needs of the town. The extension clearly benefits the Town of Bethlehem (including especially the few residents on New Scotland Avenue who stand to lose the most from a commercial area across from them or in their backyards), but also the region overall (i.e., the county and the state).

So why don't town officials get together with Price Chopper/BTR (or some other developer), and with county and state officials, and negotiate a plan to jointly finance the road extension? None of us will probably see the day on which the state will fully pay for this extension, but the opportunity is there now to work together in addressing long-standing and urgent needs, and to come up with solutions which, on balance, will benefit all parties involved.

Impact of development worth considering

Editor, The Spotlight:

As residents and business people in Slingerlands, we feel compelled to voice our opinion on the proposed Price Chopper complex. We believe that some important points regarding this project are being overlooked.

We have been in business (Hoogy's Village Corner) for 7 1/2 years running a family pizzeria, restaurant, and delivery service. The increased "population" that the Price chopper project would bring, could certainly enhance our present business, but there certainly are other factors to consider. The first of these is the traffic congestion coming from the Glenmont and Ravena areas as well as the hilltowns. We have worked diligently to cover the whole Town of Bethlehem with delivery service. The Four Corners, Kenwood Ave. and Cherry Ave. are already heavily congested. This congestion interferes with our prompt and effective delivery.

Increased traffic in this area would cause major problems on a road system not designed to handle the volume and would greatly interfere with any hopes of our offering efficient service to Delmar and Elsmere.

Main Square and other Delaware Ave. businesses, such as the plaza do not maintain 100 percent occupancy. Creating another business district may completely divert business from Delaware Ave. to the proposed complex. This would certainly hurt the many family businesses that have contributed to the "small town" atmosphere of the Tri-Villages.

Price Chopper contends that this would create jobs. Certainly it would, but Delmar businesses all have "help wanted" signs. A complex of this size would take any hope of prospective employees away altogether. We have had a serious lack of employees and run our business entirely with our family, with the exception of three employees. And this shortage has caused a "burning out" of our family, so to speak. The teenagers of our area would much rather work at a mall.

As parents, we don't want our children to work at a mall. As homeowners, we don't like the thought of a mall being so closely accessible to our children. We moved to Slingerlands so our children could walk to school and ride bikes without fear. Increased traffic would make our worst nightmare come true.

We hope that the merchants and the community will take the time to think about what we have said and will respond in a positive and responsible manner.

Development proposal opposed, traffic cited

Editor, The Spotlight:

We as business people (P.B.'s Subs) in Slingerlands and town taxpayers also agree with other businesses and residents of the community about the proposed shopping mall.

Yes, we need another grocery store but not such as the mall people are proposing. Let's not forget all those traffic tie-ups on Route 85, Blessing Road and New Scotland Road. In the current proposal, no plan to relieve traffic congestion is shown.

Would zoning change be widely beneficial?

Editor, The Spotlight:

I was glad to see the large amount of involvement in response to the proposed development in the Slingerlands area. Citizen input is an important process of our community.

There are a few important points to be made in response to this petition:

The Maryland-based developer is not requesting a zoning variance but a change in zoning, which in essence is asking for the law that regulates land usage in the area to be changed from residential to commercial. It seems to me that the petitioner would be required to demonstrate that such a change in land use would improve the "general welfare" of the community. Since it is hard to imagine that burying prime residential acreage of Slingerlands under tons of asphalt is improving the "general welfare," the town board ought to veto this petition immediately.

Since the town board is a legislative body, not a board of appeals, it is not required to do anything more than thank BTR Realty for their nice letter. The board need not respond to this idea any more than if I wrote and asked to change the zoning of Union Avenue or Font Grove Road to commercial because I wanted to build a movie theater.

As former co-chair of the Association of Slingerlands Neighbors, a grassroots organization active in obtaining Residential AA zoning in Slingerlands in the mid-70s, I urge all the residents of Slingerlands to support the Slingerlands Homeowners Association in the mobilization of community sentiment on this current issue. Our former treasurer, Bill Reese, will be presenting what remains in our organizational treasury to help continue the efforts of the Slingerlands Homeowners Association.

More arguments against shopping center plans

Editor, The Spotlight

There are many aspects of the proposed commercial development under discussion for New Scotland Rd. in Slingerlands that have not been aired which may open people's eyes. Briefly, they are:

Price Chopper will only be a tenant of BTR Realty, Inc., which is developing the project. Price Chopper can in the future move out again, leaving the community with only one major supermarket chain serving it. Who is to say that Price Chopper will not want to move into larger quarters or even smaller quarters if the industry decides that super supermarkets are not the way to go. Currently, Price Chopper is leaving a store on Rt. 146 in Clifton Park for a larger store. What will happen with this store should Price Chopper leave?

Many people have praised the potential tax revenues from this development. What should be noted is that whatever income is generated from this probably will be forced to cover the increased police and fire protection that will be necessary in addition to additional upkeep on roads and other vital services. The additional homes in this development would also put a burden on the school district, forcing it to further expand.

An increase in employment opportunities also has been praised if this development comes in. Throughout the Capital Region stores cannot find people to fill the $4.50 to $5 per hour positions which this development surely will create. How will the tenants of this development fill these positions when others have not?

How can the one-mile extension of the Slingerlands Bypass create better traffic flow and speed people through the area when there will be four new intersections and three new traffic lights?

People have said that the development is needed because the town needs another supermarket chain to provide grocery service. Why then was the farthest northern region of the town selected? Certainly a central location would be more convenient to most town residents.

As a Slingerlands resident, I can drive within 10 or 15 minutes (certainly no hardship in this day) to no less than 10 supermarkets in the towns of Bethlehem and Gunderland and in Albany. Why do we need a supermarket on every street corner?

I moved to Slingerlands a short time ago because it was one of the few communities in the Capital Region which did not have any significant commercial development. That is a quality which I am sure attracted many people. And it is a quality I firmly believe the hamlet should maintain.

Price Chopper clarifies historic house position

Editor, The Spotlight:

We appreciated the information and comments made by Allison Bennett in her recent article, "Landmark in path of progress," concerning the 18th century Peter McCutcheon house.

It is certainly not our intention to disturb a historic site such as the McCutcheon house. You can be sure that we will discuss the information in Ms. Bennett's good article with the developer so that appropriate measures can be considered.

Our interest has always been one of serving the public where we operate, and to be considerate of their shopping needs and the integrity of their community. We are pleased to have the information involving the proposed site of a Price Chopper market.

An extended family

The Gadea family with whom Dr. Frank Kramer lives in Nicaragua incorporates four generations plus occasional visiting nieces and nephews, so that anywhere from seven to 10 persons may be occupying the tin-roofed, brick-and-cement home built around a courtyard.

The extended family is headed by Tobias, who is from peasant origin but who became a small merchant and prospered. Because he soon took a position opposed to the Somoza regime some 20 years before it was ousted, he was jailed several times, and the family relocated in Honduras until the 1979 revolution.

Tobias proudly is president of the Esteli baseball club, the Cachorros (Cubs). The team plays in a 10-club league and travels by bus to other cities and the country for an 80-game schedule. The home grounds is complete with grandstand and scoreboard, and the fans — much more informally than is the practice in the U.S. — feel free to exchange personal comments with the players on the field.

Our major league teams are closely followed, and excitement is high during the World Series, particularly if a Nicaraguan is involved. Tobias is particularly fond of the Dodgers, and reminisces fondly about Gil Hodges, Jackie Robinson and other immortals.

Country in turmoil

"fairly supportive" of the Ortega government, in large part because of the division of land among individual farmers and cooperatives. Much of the lands distributed in this way were seized from the ruling Somoza family when it was overthrown in 1979 after 45 years. Even today, he notes, some large-scale farming goes on (mostly in rice) by mechanized, capitalist-oriented businesses.

Because the already-low standard of living has fallen drastically during the war and most people can see little hope of a viable economic future for their country or themselves, Nicaragua is experiencing a major "depopulation" — people fleeing by the many thousands to the United States and to other Latin lands. Most of those who are departing are the educated and skilled people on whom the country's long-term hope should rest. Some are seeking refugee status here, but most are "wetbacks" entering the U.S. illegally through Mexico.

"Unless the Contras are disbanded as a real threat, I don't see how the country can survive much longer," Dr. Kramer predicts. He suggests that the country's best prospect may be in making concessions to the United States, and doing whatever Washington says is necessary. Nicaraguans generally admire this country and our political system, he has found. And despite their gratitude to the U.S.S.R. for its assistance, they hold the Soviets in low regard. The Contras have very little support within the country now, in his opinion; they hold no towns, though some 12,000 are massed near the border in Honduras.

American policy, in Dr. Kramer's view, should be directed toward gaining the loyalty and friendship of Latin countries such as Nicaragua, rather than threatening them. He cites the case of an angry 10-year-old boy in the family where he lives in a 46,000-population city, Esteli, about 100 miles from the capital, Managua. The boy, whose father was killed in the war, declares his hatred for the U.S. and his intention, when grown, "to get a gun and kill anyone who comes into my country."

Dr. Kramer spent a month in Nicaragua in the summer of 1987 in a successful effort to determine how he could be of assistance by bringing his own training to bear on the nation's problems. It was then that he made arrangements leading to his return during his

the first floor, clustering grades two through four on the second floor and grades five and six on the third floor. Under the plan, the library, computer room and art room will be moved to the second floor. Work will also be done on all of the building's bathroom facilities.

Preliminary tax rates indicate New Scotland residents would have a tax rate hike of six percent in the first year when only interest would be paid, said Grasso. The tax rate increase would rise again to "closer to 10 percent" in the second year of the bond issue, when both interest and principal would be paid, he said. In subsequent years, the impact on the tax rate would decrease.

He is a native Californian, but his wife, Maribeth (Mickie) Lynn is a New Yorker (and an R.N.), and they decided that Upstate New York would be an ideal place to live. A son, Jeff Lynn, is a sophomore at Siena.

The return flight, by way of Miami, will require 12 to 17 hours, depending on luck in connections. From Managua, a trip northward to Esteli, will add another two hours or more to the trip, with road conditions a factor in the time. Dr. Kramer expects to return to Delmar by May 18.

Skating practice

Lots of skating (and falling down) were on tap Saturday at Bethlehem's Elm Ave. Park as the sub-zero wind chill factors lessened and everyone came out to enjoy the one winter sport not requiring snow in this so-far snowless winter. On the cover: A pickup hockey game takes place in one corner of the rink.

Burns votes against appointments

DeCecco named to planning board

By Theresa Bobear

Bob Burns' second organizational meeting may have provided a taste of the year to come for the Bethlehem Town Board — a year that will culminate in a town election next November.

After accepting Warren Kullman's resignation from the planning board at its organizational meeting last Wednesday night, the town board appointed Dominick DeCecco to the planning board and then appointed Robin Reed of Selkirk to fill the board of appeals seat vacated by DeCecco.

But for once, the selections were not unanimous. After his motions to nominate three candidates to the posts failed to win seconds, Councilman Burns, the only Democrat on the board, voted against the two appointments.

Burns took office last January, the first Democrat ever to sit on the Bethlehem Town Board. However, he did not challenge the Republican majority at that time, and has avoided confrontations in most cases since then. Last Wednesday, Burns said the people of the town spoke a year ago and said they wanted to end decades of one-party control. He said the board should extend to them the representation they requested a year ago. Burns said party affiliation — whether Democratic or Republican — should not be used as a criteria for appointments.

"We feel that we do a pretty good job of hiring people based on their qualifications," said Bernard Kaplowitz, town attorney and chairman of the Bethlehem Republican Committee, on Friday. "I'm surprised by Bob's comments. I felt the comments were politically motivated. He never questioned the competence of the people appointed. Someone should ask him how many Republicans he or his committee endorsed while he was vice chairman of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee. He should also be asked how many Republicans he hired or endorsed in his capacity as a deputy commissioner of a department of Albany County government." Burns is employed as deputy commissioner of the probation department.

At last week's meeting Burns first nominated John Smolinsky for the planning board. Smolinsky is chairman of the Bethlehem Citizens for Responsible Planning and has a background in architecture. Burns said Smolinsky would resign from the citizens group if appointed to the board. Silence punctuated the wait for a second. Burns also did not receive seconds on his motions to nominate Mary Powell and Mary Blake.

DeCecco is social studies supervisor in the Bethlehem Central School District. He said DeCecco had served as treasurer of the Slingerlands Community Players and as president of the Slingerlands Homeowners Association. DeCecco's term will expire on Dec. 31, 1989.

After stating that DeCecco's experience on the board of appeals had been cited as a qualification for serving on the planning board, Burns said, "I think it's probably time now to allow a non-Republican to get that crack at experience."

Hendrick identified Reed as a lifelong resident of the town, a teacher in the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District and a qualified candidate for the board of appeals.

After describing his nominees as "equally or more qualified," Burns made motions to appoint Smolinsky, Powell and Blake. None of the three motions was seconded. "Thank you for your support," said Burns in conclusion.

Reed was also appointed to the board of appeals by a 4 to 1 vote. Her term expires on Dec. 31, 1990.

"I can't believe it's a coincidence that all three people he nominated are enrolled Democrats that supported him in his campaign," said Kaplowitz on Friday.

After pointing out that DeCecco ran as a Democratic candidate for the Albany County Legislature about 10 years ago, Kaplowitz said, "It's not so clear that he's a product of the Republican party."

At the beginning of the organizational meeting Hendrick appointed Councilwoman Sue Ann Ritchko deputy supervisor for 1989.

The town board approved a salary of $47,712 for the supervisor and set salaries for council members at $7,145.

Kenneth Ringler was again appointed chairman of the planning board at a salary of $7,000. Marcia Nelson, a planning board member, was appointed for another term expiring on Dec. 31, 1995. The town board set salaries for planning board members at $2,647.

Charles B. Fritts was again appointed chairman of the board of appeals at a salary of $3,384. Board Members Robert J. Wiggand and M. Sheila Galvin were appointed to new terms expiring on Dec. 31, 1993. Thomas S. Scherer was appointed secretary of the board. The town set the salary for each member of the board of appeals at $2,647.

The appointment of Kaplowitz as town attorney at a salary of $26,793 was approved by the town board. Appointed as special counsels to the town attorney were the following: John T. Mitchell, planning board; Donald DeAngelis, board of appeals; Daniel Santola, board of assessors; Joshua Effron, police department; Dixon Welt, water district; Peter Bishko, sewer district, and Michael Smith, highway department.

The board also approved salaries for the following town officials: Bruce Secor, commissioner of public works, $50,509; Phil Maher, comptroller, $40,918; John Flanigan, building inspector, $35,576; Jeffrey Lipnicky, town planner, $35,076; Melanie Schmidt, assistant town planner, $24,709; Edward Kleinke III, planning board consultant, $3,581; Craig M. Sleurs, animal control officer, $15,157; Roger Fritts and Peter Wenger, town justices, $23,202 each; Martin Cross, highway superintendent, $42,833; Kenneth P. Hahn, receiver of taxes, $32,422; Carolyn Lyons, town clerk, $32,422; Paul E. Currie, police chief, $43,686, and Barbara Hodom, court clerk, $26,459.

In other business, the board:

- Designated The Spotlight as the official newspaper of the Town of Bethlehem.

- Adopted employees personnel policy manual changes, including an increase from two to three personal leave days allowed per year, the allowance of four weeks of vacation based on 10 years rather than 11 years of service, and an increase in the maximum number of sick leave days that may be accumulated from 80 to 90.

Gas station summit

Board, gas retailers to meet on amendment

A special meeting with representatives of gasoline retailers will be held by the Bethlehem Board of Appeals on Jan. 25 at 7:30 p.m. Charles Fritts, chairman of the board of appeals, said Wednesday the meeting would be open but informal.

During August the board of appeals drafted a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance dealing with the sale of non-automotive items at gasoline filling stations, which are in competition with convenience stores that offer gasoline for sale.

Last month the town board received a letter from the Gasoline Retailers Association of Northeastern New York, who requested an opportunity to discuss the issues involved. The town board forwarded the letter to the board of appeals for consideration.

In other business, the board:

- Granted conditional approval of a variance from the allowed percentage of lot occupancy to Mr. and Mrs. Phillip J. Thompson for construction of a porch addition at 95 McGuffey Lane, Delmar.

- Held a public hearing to consider Susan McCadam McDonald's request for a variance from the allowed percentage of lot occupancy to permit an addition at 15 Burhans Place, Delmar.

- Held a public hearing to consider Thomas P. and Bonnie J. Fahey's request for a variance from the required front yard setback to permit reconstruction of a window and roof overhang at 3 Wilhelmina Way, Glenmont.

- Held a public hearing to consider William J. and Rosa M. Belleville's request for a variance from the required rear yard setback to permit an existing deck and gazebo at 31 Bittersweet Lane, Slingerlands. The yard abuts railroad property.

The next meeting of the Bethlehem Board of Appeals will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 18. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Subdivisions discussed

Pre-preliminary discussion of three subdivision proposals highlighted the Bethlehem Planning Board's meeting last Tuesday night.

Preliminary plans for the proposed Googas Estates 27-lot subdivision of A-Residential land on Krumkill Road were referred to the town's planning department for review.

The board accepted an application for a proposed subdivision of about 61 lots to be known as Adams Woods. The development is proposed for A-Residential land located on Feura Bush Road, opposite the intersection of Jefferson Road.

The board also entertained preliminary discussion of the proposed Krumkill Manor subdivision of approximately 89 lots in an A-Residential district on Krumkill Road. The developer may decide to revise the project plans to show additional stub streets and a shorter street accessing Blessing Road.

A public hearing on the proposed Somerset Woods subdivision is scheduled for the planning board's next meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 17, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Some 59 single-family lots are proposed by the Morache-Keneally Development Corp. for the AA-Residential parcel on Wemple Road.

St. Thomas students Jessica Scisci, left, Sheila McCaughin and Christopher Van Woert, all pupils of English teacher Jane Thorp, display prizes won for the YWCA's Albany Black History Month Essay Contest. Their essays detailed the lives and accomplishments of Sojourner Truth, Harriet Tubman and Henry Johnson, respectively. Excerpts from their essays will be read on television along with those from other of the 28 winners representing each day of February, Black History Month.

THE YOUTH NETWORK

Students' Thoughts on Drug Abuse

The following are excerpts from letters written by members of the Bethlehem Networks Project Elementary Youth Advisory Group on the topic of alcohol and other drugs:

"I think that (the drug situation) in our community can be helped if parents would just take the time to talk to their children about alcohol and drugs. If we don't help this (situation), it will get bigger and bigger . . ." Douglas Rice and Susan Mannella, Elsmere School

"I think parents are not spending enough time with their children. Kids aren't open enough with their parents. Often the next thing they turn to is drugs." Betsy Languish, Elsmere School.

"I understand why people take alcohol and (drugs), but if we can eliminate those reasons, we can lower the rate of kids using drugs and alcohol in our area. If we also educate elementary kids before they get to the age of using drugs and alcohol, we can also stop the rate of teenagers using them. Paul Leonard, Clarksville School.

Regarding the Olympic disqualification of Canadian track star Ben Johnson, who tested positive for drugs after winning a gold medal in the sprint: "You can never win with drugs or alcohol. Don't be another Ben Johnson and take what you think is the easy way out. Say 'No' to drugs and say 'Yes' to life." Dorycn Bubeck, St. Thomas School.

Regarding beer ads on television: "If (kids) think that drinking looks cool, then perhaps they should talk to the families of victims killed by drunken drivers and see what effect drinking had on their lives. And perhaps they should also talk to people who are addicted to alcohol. Kids need to be told about the real effects, and not simply the advertisers' fantasy." Emily Spooner, Slingerlands School.

Math students win awards

Silver medals were brought home by five Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Junior High students who attended the Bishop Maginn Invitational Math Contest recently. Congratulations are in order for James Feuerbach, Kim Kotuc, Bret Mulligan, Kristina Schubert, and Seth Strobe. RCS competed with eight other schools and out of a possible 450 points, lost to Goff Middle School by only 10.

Women's fashion is topic

Maril Spaulding, a member of the Town of Bethlehem Historical Association, will speak on the topic, "By the Cut of Her Clothes," at the Thursday, Jan. 19, meeting at 2 p.m. Please note the time. The public is invited to hear Mrs. Spaulding, who is also a member of the Delmar Progress Club, as she shows slides of women's fashions dating from 1840 to 1940. The meeting will be held at the School House Museum in Cedar Hill. Refreshments will be served.

Girl Scouts clean up

The grounds of the A.W. Becker School are a lot neater as the girls of Brownie Troop 161 pitched in to pick up the lawn as part of their requirements to receive recognition in the Partnership Patch Program. The school was chosen as the object of their service project because the scouts meet there every Wednesday afternoon and appreciate the use of the building.

Elks serve breakfast

The Bethlehem Elks will warm up a cold Sunday morning with a Breakfast Buffet at the lodge on Rt. 144 in Cedar Hill on Jan. 15. With servings from 9 a.m. to noon, adults at $4.00, children under 12 at $2.50 and seniors at $3.75, will enjoy an "all you can eat" feast sure to warm and fill everyone up. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Soccer registration to be held

Spring cannot be far away as the RCS Youth Soccer Club will be holding its spring registration on Wednesday, Jan. 11, from 6:30 to 8 p.m., and Saturday, Jan. 14, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the RCS Junior High School. The snowdate will be Saturday, Jan. 21. Boys and girls who will be 6 years old by July 1 are invited to participate. For information contact Bonnie Kullman at 756-9756.

ASAP has openings

The After School Activities Program, Inc., (ASAP) still has several openings for the remainder of this school year and the 1989-90 year for afternoon kindergartners through sixth graders. The program recently expanded to include sixth grade students and can accommodate youngsters from school dismissal to 5:30 p.m. at the A.W. Becker School with a nurturing atmosphere and a lot of supervised fun. Contact ASAP, Inc., for further information and fees at 756-3933.

Schools to be closed

Please note that Monday, Jan. 16, will mark the observance of the birthday of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Schools, including RCS Central, will be closed for the day.

Another goodbye

And finally in the "this too shall pass" category: over the past year we have seen a change in the businesses in our area that shouldn't go unnoticed. First Heath's Dairy shut down bottling operations and eventually halted all production. As well, 3 Farms Dairy closed its retail store on Rt. 144, leaving many in the community without a wonderful source of fine meats and dairy products.

Now we must add to those gone: Craft's General Store in Cedar Hill and Mari-Anne's coffee shop on Maple Ave. in Selkirk. While neither of these businesses served thousands, they will be missed because of their convenience and the "small town" service and caring their owners provided to our community.

Input sought for road name

Area residents will be asked to offer suggestions for naming Albany County Route 55, running between Route 9W and Route 32, on Jan. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Grange Hall, Route 396, Selkirk.

Area residents are invited to attend and express their opinion and suggestions to Councilwoman Sue Ann Ritchko and Councilman Bob Burns.

Bethlehem police arrest Ravena man for DWI

Bethlehem police arrested a 47-year-old Ravena man for driving while intoxicated after he was stopped for a traffic violation on Rt. 9W on Monday.

During a routine record check, police found the man was wanted on an outstanding warrant by the Bedford Police Department in Westchester County. The warrant was issued for the man following a DWI arrest in 1980, police said.

Tri-Village Squares plan dance Jan. 21

The Tri-Village Squares will hold a square dance on Saturday, Jan. 21, from 8-10 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Delmar.

Featured will be caller Bruce McCue, who will call the mainstream with a plus tip.

For more information call 439-0490.

Elks searching for 'Mother of Year'

The Bethlehem Elks Lodge 2233 is presently searching for candidates for "Mother of the Year."

Those nominated should be mothers who have excelled above and beyond the norm, and should be residents of the towns of Bethlehem or Coeymans. To nominate for "Mother of the Year," send the mother's name and the reason why she is a good candidate. The choice should exemplify the virtues of motherhood in the home while also contributing time and talent to the welfare and betterment of the community.

The winner chosen by the Bethlehem Elks lodge will enter into the Capital District competition. The Capital District winner will then be placed into the state competition where the "Mother of the Year" will be selected for all of the state, and will be honored at the state Elks Conference in May.

No Elk affiliation is required to be nominated. Nominations can be sent to Ken Parker, chairman, "Mother of the Year," care of Bethlehem Elks Lodge 2233, Box 141, R.D. 1, Selkirk 12158, no later than Jan. 30.

For information, call 463-5058.

Emergency medical training offered

The After School Enrichment Program of the Third Reformed Church is sponsoring a certification workshop, entitled "American Red Cross Infant and Child CPR and Emergency Action Techniques." The workshop will be held on Thursday, Jan. 19, from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m., at the Third Reformed Church, 16 Ten Eyck Ave., Albany. To register call 463-7276 or 439-3313, by Monday, Jan. 16.

Finding ancestors in the records

On Thursday, Jan. 19, Mary Vines and Cari Palmer will present a discussion on resources for genealogical research in the Albany County Hall of Records, at the Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Ave., in Delmar, at 7:30 p.m.

The program is free and open to the public. To register call 439-9314.

Teacher named Ravena principal

By Sal Prividera Jr.

Diane Kilfoile, an elementary teacher in the Averill Park Central School District for 14 years, has been named as the new principal at the Ravena Elementary School.

She was appointed by the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Board of Education last week to fill a post that had been vacant since last spring. It is the first principalship for Kilfoile, who was also an assistant professor at the State University College at Oneonta.

She received her bachelors degree in elementary education at D'Youville University in Buffalo and her masters degree in elementary education from Russell Sage College in Troy. She also holds a masters degree in educational administration from the College of St. Rose.

After her first two days as Ravena's principal, Kilfoile said Friday she was "impressed with the kinds of activities the kids are doing in the classrooms."

She does not have an immediate plans for the school except to become familiar with the faculty, students and staff. She said she worked with several of the programs used in the school such as the whole language, effective schools and effective teaching models.

"One of the reasons I applied (for the principalship) was because I am impressed with the programs being used. I felt I could work well with the programs," she said.

Diane Kilfoile

She said she has worked with elementary curriculum and would like to work with curriculum in the RCS district.

Kilfoile and her husband, Harry, who is an administrator in the Rensselaer Central School District, have two children, Patrick and Diana.

Speak easy to get into Red Cross garage sale

The Albany Red Cross is finalizing plans for a gigantic three day garage sale on the weekend of Jan. 13 to 15. The event will be held at the First Prize Center in Albany.

The three day event begins at 6 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 13, with a formal gala using the theme of a 1920's speakeasy called "The Cotton Club." While dining on a sit-down dinner catered by Michael's of Green Island and dancing to the music of Doc Scanlon's Rhythm Boys. The dress is either black tie or period dress.

Ticket sales begin at $59.99 per person. On Saturday and Sunday, the plant will be turned into one of the biggest indoor garage sales ever to come to the Capital District. The doors open at 10 a.m. on Saturday and close at 4 p.m. and reopen at noon on Sunday. Admission is $2.

The gala and garage sale are all part of the Red Cross's efforts to raise money for worthy causes. Lois Touhey of Slingerlands is co-chairing the event that is intended to raise money for the Red Cross to continue to provide their diverse community services as well as world-wide relief for disaster, relief, health, and safety.

High school offer study skills seminar

With mid-term exams scheduled for the week of Jan 23, guidance office officials at Bethlehem Central High School are offering a series of study skills seminars for ninth grade students. Seminar topics will include how to study, how to manage time and how to take an exam.

The seminars will be scheduled after regular school hours, from 2:15 until 3 p.m., beginning on Jan. 17. For information call the guidance office at 439-4921.

Delaware Plaza store cash register robbed

Bethlehem police are investigating the theft of $323 from the cash register at the American Video store at Delaware Plaza Tuesday evening.

Police said a man approached the cashier and asked for change of a $20 bill. When the cashier opened the register, the male robber went behind the counter and took the money from the cashier, police said. The man then asked for the location of the store safe and left after he was told there was no safe, police said.

Voorheesville library nears completion

By Lyn Stapf

With the new Voorheesville Public School District Library close to completion, the Jan. 3 board meeting dealt primarily with last-minute details on the building and specifics of the subsequent move.

According to board President Sally Ten Eyck, the "punch list", or final check list of the library's progress is scheduled to be conducted this week to tie up loose ends on the $800,000 project.

Already the grey tweed carpet has been laid in the all the rooms covering the heating coils that line the slab floor of the reading room. The Formica-topped cranberry file desks have been set in both the board's anteroom and work room as well. Beamed light fixtures are suspended from the ceilings in the main reading room and both the blue and white ladies room and green and white men's room are in working order. The bi-fold modular doors with attached chalkboards are already installed in the community room, which will be able to be split in two sections as needed, and the mini-appliances are set in the staff room. Although the lighting fixtures are in, the display case that greets patrons in the main entrance is still to be installed.

Yet to come are the new book shelves and furniture for the reading rooms, staff room and community room as well as the circulation desk, which will sit in the middle of the main reading room separating the adult from the children's section.

Since completion is near, a good portion of the meeting dealt with plans to move items from the old library on South Main St. to the new facility on the corner of Prospect and Depot roads. The move is to be conducted by volunteers and will be coordinated by area residents Diane Relyea and Susan Rockmore assisted by committee members Diane Connolly and Jenny Cillis. Presently a volunteer work force is being recruited. According to the group all area residents are welcome to help but should stop in the library or call as soon as possible to sign up so that they may be scheduled.

As it is now planned, according to library director Gail Sacco, the library will close at 9 p.m. the evening of Jan. 18 and for the next week items will be moved by volunteers and library staff from the one building to the other. Finally, on the weekend of Jan. 28 and 29, the library's 30,000 book collection will be moved by scheduled volunteers, who will be bused with books from the Main St. facility to the new library.

Various local clubs and organizations have already been contacted to assist in the move both before and after the big weekend. Plans are also being made to have elementary school students assist with moving the library's junior section as a special in-school field trip.

Meanwhile, area businesses are being canvassed for donations to help defray the cost of the move. Although individuals will not be approached for money, anyone wishing to donate to the fund may mail their contribution to Ellsworth Probst at 9 Nancy Lane, Voorheesville, 12186. Checks may be made payable to the Voorheesville Library and contributions are tax deductible.

The library is scheduled to reopen on Feb. 13 with a formal dedication to be held later in the spring.

In other library business, it was decided that a part-time librarian will be hired for the first few weeks after the library reopening, assuring patrons that a professional librarian will be on hand at all times to acquaint them with the new facility.

Above: Library Director Gail Sacco takes members on a tour of the new Voorheesville Public School District Library facility. Also along for the tour is Jane Salvatore, former library director. Below: The ladder of success stands in the new and soon-to-be-occupied building on Prospect and Depot roads.

Lyn Stapf

The board also decided to purchase a security system from Albany Protective Services and a Gaffney phone system, both costing approximately $3,000.

The Main St. library building will be sold when the move is completed and library attorney Don Meachem is looking into the proper legal procedure for selling such a building.

The next meeting of the board will be held on Monday, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the new library.

Cross country skiing, instruction offered

The Heldeberg Workshop, Picard Rd., Voorheesville, will offer free cross country skiing and snowshoeing, on Jan. 22 from noon to 4 p.m.

From noon to 1 p.m., free instruction will be available.

Town water projects moving forward

By Cathi Anne M. Cameron

While this time of the year usually means "out with the old and in with the new", old subjects dominated New Scotland's second Town Board meeting of 1989.

Coming just three days after the board set its positions and salaries for 1989, last Wednesday night's meeting focused on four issues which received a good deal of attention in 1988 — water, waste disposal, the Larned and Sons mine, and cable television service.

Supervisor Herbert Reilly reported that the expected schedule for the water transmission contract of the Clarksville water district has been established.

The contracts were awarded Dec. 28 after being approved by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

According to plans drawn up by Laberge Engineering and Consulting Group Ltd., construction of the Clarksville water district will start this April 1. Following a 300-day period, the work will be completed in February of 1990. The cost for each of the approximately 160 residences in the district has been established at $261 a year for a 38-year period.

The supervisor noted that C.T. Male Associates had been hired to draw up plans for a water district in the Orchard Park area. Also, surveys soon will be circulated among Unionville residents to determine if that area has enough interest to support the formation of a water district there.

As far as waste disposal is concerned, costs continue to rise. The town currently pays a $30 per ton tipping fee to dispose of waste at the Albany ANSWERS plant.

Since New Scotland disposes of approximately 200 tons a month, this amounts to roughly $72,000 for 1989's tipping fees.

ANSWERS officials do not feel that the $30 per ton figure will be adequate this year given the rising costs involved in waste disposal. But as they understand that most of the municipalities participating in the project already have their budgets in place for the year, they have elected not to raise ANSWERS fees until 1990.

The 1990 fees will include ANSWERS losses from 1989. Preliminary figures put the 1990 tipping fee at $40 a ton — $10 more than the 1989 fee, and almost twice that of 1987. Costs would rise from the present $72,000 figure to $96,000 — a $24,000 difference that will have to be made up somewhere in New Scotland's 1990 budget or in increased taxes.

The town's recycling program to dispose of paper waste has also hit a snag. According to Mike Hotaling, T.A. Predel in Schenectady used to pay the town 60 cents per 100 pounds to recycle collected newspapers.

In December, Predel eliminated the payment, continuing the recycling at no charge. But as of the beginning of January, the company will charge the town $20 per ton for the papers, and that figure may rise. Firms including Albany's Consolidated Fibres are already charging local refuse contractors $30 per ton for the papers.

With the exception of John Sgarlata, who was an intervenor in the original law suit petitioning the town to prevent the mining, the board voted to extend the Larned and Sons settlement finalization deadline until May 4. The original four month and 10 day deadline was due to expire on Jan. 23. At that time, if there was no litigation pending against the mining company, the town would receive a $150,000 payment now being held in escrow.

As new litigation has been brought by Concerned Citizens for New Scotland and James Eberhardt, town attorney Frederick Riester advised the board to extend the deadline until May in hopes that all problems would be resolved by that time, and the town would then have access to the $150,000 payment.

Because there is litigation pending, Larned does have the option of cancelling the current agreement and picking up its original lawsuit against the town of New Scotland, but would have to cease mining if it did so. Reilly said he does not feel that is a direction Larned would consider, and said he is counting on that May date. "Most of all, we want to be out of all the headaches," he said.

Cable television service in New Scotland may be far less of a headache in 1989. The town has been notified by Cablevision (formerly Adams-Russell) of its intent to service the areas of Feura Bush, Clarksville, Unionville and parts of Wormer and Normanskill roads.

This comes after Lee Haeefe of Haeefe Cable TV Company proposed to do the same, including wiring some less inhabited areas of the town which did not interest Cablevision. Jan Gregory, an employee of the Cable Commission and an area resident, said she strongly supports Haeefe.

As Gregory explained to the board, Cablevision would be wiring from its old "head ends", or transmission points, whereas Haeefe would be installing new ones to provide his service. The difference in extending the signal from an old head end may be a worse picture transmission and more frequent power outages, she said. As Haeefe's system would be all new, the picture would be superior, Gregory said. Unionville resident Sharon Boehlke asked the board to look into requiring Cablevision to install new head ends with some form of power booster if they make a formal proposal.

Reilly also discussed a letter from the town of Westerlo announcing its intent to issue a cable franchise to Analytical Cable Consultants of Carmel, N.Y. Westerlo would be happy to offer the service to New Scotland as well, and Reilly said that "as Westerlo is on our southern border, we would be very interested."

In other business, the board:

- Clarified that the $450 specified from the Feura Bush Water District and $150 from other water districts at the town's Jan. 1 meeting was to be used for administrative billing and assessments, and was not an individual assessment for residents.

- Announced that Reilly has been asked to address the Association of Towns at its convention in New York City in February on the success of the town's repairs of Wolf Hill Bridge.

- Decided that the supervisor will meet with Guilderland Supervisor Kevin Moss to determine if a body of property in Robert Mitchell's Woodlawn development may be annexed to the town of Guilderland to provide the property owners with Guilderland water and road maintenance.

- Decided to undertake a cooperative effort with the village of Voorheesville to solve the pedestrian and traffic safety problems occurring on Maple Rd., under the railroad overpass.

- Stated that the final equalization rate for the year has been established at 6.29.

- Unanimously approved the purchase of a portable welder-generator for the town at $2,300, a $600 savings from list price.

Benefit set for injured volunteer

By Cathi Anne M. Cameron

Last May 9, while he was at work in Glenmont, Randy Jeune heard about a fire in Clarksville on his pager. As a member of the Onesquethaw Volunteer Fire Company, Jeune decided to answer the call. When he arrived at a home on Scutt Rd., the fire, which according to Jeune had originated on a neighboring property, had fully involved a storage building and some of the woods.

Jeff Mudge soon arrived as the pumper operator, and Jeune began to work the hose to fight the fire.

A day later, Jeune was in St. Peter's Hospital, awaiting the three-hour surgery that would put a steel plate and 13 screws in his left leg. After skidding on a fire hose coupling, he had broken both bones — the tibia and fibula — in his leg. "They said the chance of doing that was just like 'hitting the lottery, and I hit it alright,'" Jeune said.

Since then, Jeune has been in physical therapy, which he finished Nov. 2, and while he awaits the operation this fall to remove the pins in his leg, he exercises with an exercise bike and weights and stretches "so rigor mortis, I guess, don't set in."

"A lot of people think I just broke my leg, and I'm back to work. They don't know I had an operation and have to have another one," Jeune said. As the self-employed owner and operator of Delmar Sanitary Cleaners, Jeune has taken his trucks off the road, but doesn't find that the $150 a month compensation from the fire company and $1,200 a month from workman's compensation is enough. "It wouldn't be so bad, but we have our business expenses — business phone, fire and theft insurance, advertising," he added.

To help with expenses, a group calling themselves "fellow firemen and friends" of Jeune has organized a benefit for this Saturday in Clarksville at the fire hall.

While Nelson La Duke, chief of the fire department, made it clear that the department is not a sponsor of the event, and that its name was erroneously printed on raffle tickets for the event, he said

"We've never had a guy laid up this long, and he was hurt at the fire scene."

After Saturday's benefit, the Jeune's are still planning on taking their February trip to Daytona, Florida. Talking about the vacation, Jeune's wife Patricia said, "Randy and I are not on paid, voluntary road, and he deserves a vacation. He has been sitting on that couch for nine months, and this weather really bothers him. Our tickets were bought last year. We have lost a lot of money, and I have cut down tremendously. If they want to read the paper when the taxes come down, our name will be in it."

While both of Jeune's sons are employed and live at home, Patricia Jeune said, "our kids pay board, and they are helping to pay for the campsite and the gas."

"We had people who were injured, but not to this extent," said Onesquethaw volunteer and professional Albany firefighter Don Hendrickson. "It's not really a desperate-need type situation. The people wanted this. Everybody talked about (a benefit) but nobody took the initiative, so we thought we should start. Most people don't want the responsibility. Nobody ever said they were destitute, but it's going to be a long haul. It's a gesture of good will and kindness."

Jeune himself said he knew nothing about the benefit, although he did think something was going on. "They never sent me the 'News Nozzle' from the fire department, and that was the first time I didn't get (the newsletter) in 16 years, so I was wondering why."

"We don't ask no questions about the funds," said Patricia Jeune. "Mary Ann and Don Hendrickson, and Mrs. Clara Applebee, I know they are all involved, but I get nervous even talking about it. I don't know where we'd be without the Hendricksons. I'll tell you, you don't realize how easy you have it until you don't have it."

'Starting to come together' BC takes Mohonasen

By Bill Dixon

The season would seem to have turned around for the Bethlehem Central boy's basketball team. A victory Saturday over Mohonasen capped a major turnaround that began Dec. 20 in a game won by "second stringers".

Going into the Dec. 20 game against Scotia, the Eagles' record stood at a thoroughly dismal 0-6, the result of slump begun early in the year that could be attributed to BC's near complete lack of experienced players. The team appeared to start its games slowly, never fully recovering from wounds all but passively received in the first quarters. Defensive efforts were noted weaknesses, while up court the orange and black could depend only upon a few outstanding individuals who were unaccustomed to working together as a team. Understanding these flaws, Bethlehem worked to make the match with Scotia an exception to some of the old rules that had brought about the six straight losses. Two wins after a narrow victory over Scotia, it was clear that the match was more than an exception, it had also become a precedent. It was also clear that the team's sense of cohesiveness and maturity, though it had been slow in coming, had finally started to show itself.

Facing Scotia, tough odds were made even tougher for Bethlehem by a persistent case of the flu, which kept four of BC's starters out of the game. Contributing significantly to this tight and often unpredictable match were Craig Cristainsen, Tim McDermott and Matt Yeara. Although they were called onto the court as replacements for the flu-stricken starters, all three showed a quality of play too outstanding to be properly called the work of a "second string." Also deserving of mention is John Hansen, who, with but a few minutes left in the game's first overtime with BC behind by two points, showed a deft combination of luck, courage and skill by sinking a turn-around jump shot that tied the score. That tie was broken by the Eagles in the second overtime as they tallied their first league win of the season.

"I was really pleased with our performance," said Coach Jack Moser. "I think the team is really starting to come together now. And I know we're headed in the right direction."

The next week saw BC lose to Rensselaer on the opening day of the Helderberg tournament, which was hosted by Guilderland. But despite the lose, the Eagles were able to keep up both their confidence and discipline, finishing their tournament play by soundly defeating Voorheesville in a consolation match. For his outstanding performances in both games, Bethlehem senior Kyle Snyder was named to the all-tournament team.

Bethlehem then faced Colonie, one of the top-ranked teams in Section II, in what Moser describes as "a good game and a great effort from the team." BC surged early in the game, knocking the formidable opposition off balance to end the half ahead by one point. The third quarter saw the Eagles still holding strong against Colonie, but the visitors reassembled their ranks and soon gained a four point lead. The final score had Colonie ahead 68-57.

Last Saturday Bethlehem defeated Mohonasen 55-45. The Eagles were able to dominate the court for most of the game, with

The Indians' Tony Cary, No. 34, goes up for two under heavy coverage from Albany Academy during their game Friday.

R.H. Davis.

Snyder, Sean McDermott, Alex Hackman (whom Mosher described as the "steadiest player through this whole stretch"), and a recently returned John Reagan providing many of the game's more important plays. By half-time, BC was up by five points and by the end of the third quarter enjoyed an almost insurmountable lead. Sean McDermott scored 18 points and recovered 22 rebounds, while BC's defense closed ranks to fend off a last quarter rally. Mohonasen was able to temporarily cut the Eagles' lead to six, but some shrewd offensive maneuvering from Snyder served to keep the ball from Bethlehem's side of the court, which resulted in BC's recovery of four of the lost points before the games' end.

"We were really completely in control of that second half. We just reduced our turnovers, kept our concentration, and did our best to keep our lead," said Moser.

Tuesday, the team will take on Saratoga. On Friday, Bethlehem will face Burnt Hills. "The key to beating that team (Saratoga) is taking care of Tim Parker," said Moser. "They had him last year, and we beat them. So I know we can play with them. We'll have to work out some strategies and some plays for the game, but I have confidence in us. I know we can do it."

Blackbird matmen getting untangled

By Kevin Taylor

With a dramatic tie and a satisfying win, the Voorheesville wrestling team has finally begun to show some of the potential Coach Dick Leach knew was there.

On Wednesday, the Blackbirds played host to Cobleskill in a non-league match. With the Blackbirds trailing 36-30 and only the heavyweight match to go, things looked pretty dim for the Blackbirds. The only chance they had was for Chad Hotaling to pin his man, pick up the six points and settle for a tie, and that's exactly what happened.

Hotaling wasted no time in bringing the home crowd to its feet. He pinned his man in the first period of the match to give the Blackbirds a come-back tie. Other winners for the Blackbirds were Rick Leach, with a pin, and Josh Vink, Bob Blanchard, Tom Ravidia and Paul Novak with forfeit victories.

On Thursday, the Blackbirds traveled to Waterford for a league match. The Blackbirds came away with a 36-21 victory, thanks to good strategic move by Coach Leach. Leach had freshman Bob Staph take the forfeit victory at 145 pounds and moved his 145, 155 and 167 wrestlers up a weight class, which is a perfectly legal move. It promptly paid off as all three wrestlers who moved up won by decision or pin. These wrestlers were Ravidia, who collected a 7-0 decision at 155, Leach and Novak who both won with pins at 167 and 177 respectively. The Blackbirds also received a forfeit victory from Vink, a 2-1 decision from Blanchard and a pin from Hotaling to round out their scoring.

On Saturday, the Blackbirds were invited to wrestle in the Schenectady County Invitational Tournament. The team finished in sixth place out of 10 teams overall, not bad considering the strength competition such as Niskayuna, Amsterdam, Mohonassen and Linton.

The Blackbirds captured one second place, one third place and two fourth places. The second place finish was by Ravidia, who lost the championship match to John Nappi 2-1. Nappi was last year's Class A champion at 145. The loss was Ravidia's first of the year and left him at 12-1, best on the team. The third place finish went to Novak at 167 and the two fourth place finishes went to Leach and Hotaling at 155 and 215 respectively.

Coming up this week, the Blackbirds face a true test in Ravena, the Colonial Council leader. That match is Thursday at home.

Brown completes season on Red Demons team

David Ed Brown has completed play for the 1988 Dean Junior College football team in Franklin, Mass.

Brown played as a 5-foot-5, 160-pound running back for the Red Demons, who had a very successful season. The team compiled a 7-2 regular season which included impressive wins over other junior college teams. Their record earned them a trip to the East Bowl in North Carolina, the first post-season game ever for a Dean football squad.

Brown, a law enforcement transfer major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leroy Brown of Glenmont.

Ravena continues its downhill slide

By Curt VanDerzee

The dream season for the RCS basketball team is quickly turning into a nightmare. After getting off to a 6-0 start, their best since 1975, the Indians have lost four in a row. There are many reasons for the losses but the main ones are the defensive lapses and the inability to get any kind of offense going for long stretches of time.

On Tuesday, the Indians traveled to Schalmont to take on the Sabres. Shalmont jumped out to a 21-12 lead after one quarter and never trailed as they went on to win 69-63. The Indians were again led by the inside duo of senior Phil Nicewonger and junior Tony Car. Nicewonger had 19 points and 5 blocked shots and Cary had 16 points and 9 rebounds.

Friday night Ravena hosted Albany Academy hoping to get things turned around. The game was evenly played throughout the first quarter, with the Cadets taking a 17-12 lead on a 3-pointer at the buzzer. The Cadets held the lead through the second quarter going into the half with a 30-26 lead. In the second half turnovers and missed shots prevented the Indians from catching up as Academy pulled away for a 86-68 win.

This week the Indians host Coxsackie in a nonleague game on Tuesday on Friday travel to Cohoes.

BC may be back with win over Colonie

By John Bellizzi III

A key Suburban Council victory over Colonie last Wednesday, BC's first league win since Dec. 7, was the high point of last week's Bethlehem Central varsity wrestling action.

However, South Glens Falls narrowly slipped away from the Eagles in a non-league dual meet the following evening, marring what could have been a perfect week for BC. The Colonie victory improved Bethlehem's league record to 2-2, while their overall record went to 4-4 last week.

This week and next will see the strongest competition yet for the Eagles. In dual meets tonight and next Wednesday, Bethlehem is scheduled to face two of the most powerful wrestling teams in the Suburban Council — Saratoga and Burnt Hills. These two teams will provide the most difficult competition to date for this year's squad, but the Eagles have already proved their ability to compete with the council's powerhouses in their December Niskayuna dual meet. With another month's experience under their belts, the Eagles should be in shape to give both the Streaks and the Spartans a good match.

If these next two meets have even a fraction of the intensity of last year's showdowns, they will be among the most exciting of the season. Tonight's JV/varsity dual meet against the Saratoga Blue Streaks is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. at BCHS; next Wednesday's showdown is at Burnt Hills/Ballston Lake High School at 6:30.

Bethlehem defeated Colonie's

Wrestling

varsity team 50-24 last Wednesday. The Eagles picked up an early 12-0 lead as Anick Shah and Chris Brozowski accepted forfeits for BC at 91 and 98 pounds respectively.

A comeback at 105 pounds was thwarted in the third period by Colonie. Mike Ehrlich, down 4-2 in the second period of the bout came back with a takedown in the second period and a reversal in the third to take the lead, but he was escaped from and taken down in the final seconds of the match to lose 7-6, giving the Garnet Raiders three team points.

The next five Eagles easily disposed of their opponents. Jeremy Hartnett dominated the 112 pound match, winning a 9-0 major decision. At 119 pounds, Eric Brown disposed of his opponent in 3:02 for BC's first pin of the dual meet. Pat Leamy won the next match by a 16-0 technical fall, and Mike Leamy followed with an 11-2 major decision. John Gallogly pinned his opponent in the third period of the 138 pound match to increase BC's lead to 38-3.

Colonie picked up two victories in the next two weight classes, as Mark Farina was pinned at 145 and Ethan Beyer was outscored 4-1 at 155, but Pete Bragaw quickly got the Eagles back on track as he pinned his 167 pound opponent in the third period. Paul Vichot also won by fall in the 177 pound match. Colonie won the last two matches, pinning both Todd DeVoe and Don Thomas, but the Eagles had already secured the win.

South Glens Falls proved to be a formidable non-league opponent for the varsity Eagles Thursday night. In a very close non-league dual, South High outlasted the Eagles 30-24.

Brozowski pinned his opponent in 56 seconds at 98 pounds, putting BC on the board with six team points. South High earned four team points with an 8-0 major decision in the next match.

A key match at 112 allowed BC to hang on to the lead in team score. South High's wrestler got the first takedown, but Hartnett took the lead 5-3 during the first period. In the second period, South High took the lead 8-6. Hartnett came back in the last period, scoring a two-point near fall to end the match in an 8-8 draw, resulting in two team points for each team. BC still led the dual meet, 8-6.

Brown also came from behind in the third period of another very close match to emerge victorious 5-4. Pat Leamy was ahead 7-5 in his match when he met a rare defeat and was pinned in the 4:08, giving South Glens Falls the lead in team score 12-11.

Victories at 132 and 138 brought the lead back to BC. Mike Leamy held his opponent scoreless until the final seconds of the match, winning a 9-2 major decision. Gallogly had a 5-0 lead when he pinned his opponent in 2:49, increasing Bethlehem's lead to 20-12.

Farina was decided 7-2 at 145, and Bob Rodgers was pinned at 155, transferring the lead back to South High 21-20. Though Bragaw clearly dominated his match from the neutral position, he had difficulty turning his opponent to his back, and won a 9-1 major decision. Vichot successfully fought off of his back in the last two periods, and gave up only a 9-2 decision (worth three team points) rather than a pin (worth six).

The team score was tied 24-24 going into the heavyweight match, the final bout of the evening. Joe Emerich was pinned in 4:32, allowing South Glens Falls to clinch their non-league victory.

Bethlehem's junior varsity wrestling team improved its unblemished record to 5-0 league (8-0 overall) as it overwhelmed Colonie and South High last week. The Garnet Raiders fell to the Eagles 65-3 last Wednesday, with pins by Scott Mitchell, Nick Morrison and Scott Stefanik, a technical fall by Dave Pierce, and 16-4 decision won by Darryn Fiske. Against South High, Mitchell, Pierce and Kevin Schoonover won by fall, and Morrison won a 5-2 decision.

Bethlehem was also one of the stronger JV teams competing at last Saturday's Ballston Spa VJ Tournament. The Eagles produced two champions: Morrison at 119 and Schoonover at 126.

RCS takes third hosting wrestling tournament

By Josh Curley

Though Coach John Vishneowski had hoped to do better, the Ravena Wrestling team "gave 100 percent effort" and took third place at the RCS tournament.

Earlier in the week, the Indians crushed Albany Academy in a Colonial Council match up, 49-18. Five Ravena wrestlers won by pin: Bob Pelletier at 105, Geoff Demis at 119, Brian Goodrich at 126 pounds, 155 pounder Curt VanDerzee and Dan Egan at 215. Bill Stanton, Henry Mormile, Chuck Swaier and Jeff Friday won their matches by decision. "The kids wrestled much better than I had anticipated," said Coach Vishneowski. The victory brings the matmen to 4-0 in the league, tied for first with Schalmont, and extends their winning streak to 19 in a row.

Last weekend RCS hosted its annual tournament. The Indians finished third out of 11 participating teams.

Nine Ravena wrestlers placed at the tournament, including three champions: sophomore Shannon Cowles at 98 pounds, 145 pounder VanDerzee and Friday at 167, both seniors. "Cowles dominated his weight division," said Vishneowski. VanDerzee, who was seeded second, defeated a previously unbeaten wrestler. "Curt had a real tough weight class," said Vishneowski.

Demis, Dave Baranska and Egan finished fourth while Pelletier, Stanton and Mormile were runners-up. It was Stanton's first loss of the season; he fell to the eventual Most Outstanding Wrestler award winner.

Beekmantown (Section VII) won the tournament with 162 points. Ravena scored 145½ for third place.

"We were watching out for Hudson Falls (second place) expecting them to win," said Vishneowski. "Beekmantown just went by us."

The best individual records on the team are: Stanton (9-1), Mormile (13-2), VanDerzee (13-2), Cowles (12-2), Pelletier (10-2) and Friday (10-2).

Ravena faces Voorheesville on Thursday "I feel that they're one of the tougher teams in the league," said Vishneowski.

This weekend the team travels to the Canadian border to compete in the Peru tournament.

Bowling honors for the week of Jan. 1 at Del Lanes in Delmar go to:

Senior citizen men — George Bickel 234, Bud Kubisch 545 triple.

Senior citizen women — Phyllis Smith 188, 510 triple.

Men — Mike Sontz 299, Orvil Bates 679 triple, Marv Sontz 996 four game series.

Women — Sharon Lyons 235, Linda Hallenbeck 601 triple.

BC girls bowl over Colonie, Mohonasen, 5-1 in council

By Justin Cresswell

Those who turned out for the Bethlehem Girls Varsity Basketball game against Mohonasen Friday were treated to an excellent all around performance by the Eagles. But this year, that's nothing new.

The Eagles are off to a 9 to 1 start, including a 5-1 record in the Suburban Council, good enough for first place in the Gold Division. Using a dominating inside game and tough defense, the BC girls are able to jump out to early leads and deny opponents on defense using a ball-hawking match-up zone and occasional half-court presses. Led by Sophomore center Anita Kaplan, who averages 26 points a contest, the Eagles rolled over both Mohonasen and Colonie last week by scores of 55-33 and 64-51, respectively.

Even though Kaplan clearly leads the team, the other four starters are all good players and potential scorers. The best of these is senior forward and co-captain Julie Francis. She averages 14 points a game and also will eclipse the 1,000 point mark for her career in the next two or three games. At the other forward, senior Jennifer Flynn is a steady player who contributes every night. The back court is set with two more seniors. Both co-captain Amy Koski, a shooting guard, and Leslie Anderson the point guard, do a good job of distributing the ball. Junior Karyn Mendel provides scoring punch off the bench at guard or forward.

The Eagles also look good statistically. They average 57 points a game overall, but if the season-low total of 31 in their loss to Niskayuna is subtracted, that average is up to 60 per four quarters. Their defensive effort shows up on the score sheet as well, surrendering only 41 a contest.

Basketball

BC basketball fans can expect more of the same as the season progresses. "They get better with every game," says first-year coach Bill Warner. The crisp passing game and poach at both ends of the floor, not to mention the win-loss record, exhibit how the Eagles have prospered under Coach Warner.

Warner said that even though they take things one game at a time, the team's Feb. 8 match-up with overall Suburban Council leader, currently undefeated Shenendehowa is the biggest game on the schedule. Next up for the Eagles are three road games at Saratoga, Burnt Hills and Guilderland. The varsity girls also face a crucial God Division return engagement against Niskayuna on Jan. 28.

The success of the varsity has been matched by the junior varsity girls, with eight wins and only one loss. First-year coach Tom Ryan's charges are led by the scoring of talented freshman Lynn Doody, who averages 12.5 points a game but who has topped twenty points three times to date. Kassie Jeram at 10 points per game and Kerry Kitzpatrick at 8 points per game provide strong support on a team to which all eight players have contributed.

The freshman girls have split their four games in the early going. Although they are inexperienced, Coach Jessie Braverman says his team has been competitive in every outing. Jessica Williams and Tory McKenna average eight points each, and Kerri Plue and Megan Beyer set the pace in rebounds.

Blackbirds fall to Watervliet

By Matt Hladun

The distance 19 feet, 9 inches proved deadly to the Voorheesville girl's basketball team in their game against Watervliet last week. Watervliet poured in eight three-point baskets, upsetting the undefeated Blackbirds.

The game was tight throughout, with both teams never getting a lead by more than three points. At halftime, Watervliet had a 22-21 lead.

As they entered the fourth quarter, it remained tight. Voorheesville found itself only able to match the Cannoneers' three-pointers with two-point baskets, staying behind throughout the quarter.

The Birds used a full court press against Watervliet, but were unable to convert any steals. Meanwhile, on the other end of the court, Watervliet couldn't miss, hitting just about everything on their way to a 52-49 victory.

The Blackbirds were led by Tricia Carmody's 16 points and 14 rebounds, while Jen Elliott added 14 points.

The following night, the Blackbirds rebounded with a strong performance against Averill Park, leading throughout the whole game.

The offense performed better than the previous night, and the team was able to get the fast break to work en route to a 50-38 win. The win moved their record to 9-1 overall and 5-1 in the league.

Leading scorers of the game were Carmody, with 22 points and 15 rebounds, and Kim Sullivan, with 10 points and six assists.

This week, the team travels to Schalmont on Tuesday, is home on Wednesday against Albany High, and finishes the week at home against Holy Names.

Guilderville takes Johnstown, 42-34

By Zack Kendall

Guilderville, the combined Voorheesville and Guilderland swim team, won all but one event Tuesday as it hosted Johnstown. The score was 42-34.

Dave Washburn took first place in the backstroke, with a time of 1:04. He also placed first in the 200IM, where he achieved his personal best time for that event, 2:16.74. Gary Washburn placed first in the 50 freestyle, fly, and 100 free. Seth Rose won the 500 free, a race requiring both speed and endurance, with a time of 5:39.57. Scott Bowden took first in the 100 breaststroke, finishing in 1:09.35.

Once again, the 400 free relay team wiped out the competition with a time of 3:52.53. The swimmers in that race were Joe Tyrell, Seth Rose, Gary Washburn and Stephan Csiza. The team members attribute their success to lots of hard work, which brought about better times. They younger swimmers are improving rapidly, and there is no doubt that the team will someday be one of the best in the league.

Guilderville's meet with Scotia on Friday was cancelled because of Voorheesville's early dismissal, due to a water main break.

Senior Citizens

Blood pressure clinic

A free blood pressure clinic, sponsored by the Town of Bethlehem, will be held at Bethlehem Town Hall on Jan. 17, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Transportation is available by calling 439-5770.

Energy assistance offered

The Home Energy Assistance Program was developed to help individuals who are 60 or older and people living on a fixed or low income. Eligibility guidelines for the program are based on gross income figures for the month the HEAP application is made. If you received assistance last year, you will automatically receive an application for this year's program. Applications are mailed by the Albany County Department for Aging and Handicapped at various intervals.

A Senior Services Office volunteer will provide assistance in filling out applications to Town of Bethlehem residents 60 years and older. For information call 439-4955, ext. 77.

Dinner out scheduled

Come join us on Wednesday, Jan. 18, and take a friend to dinner! The Senior Van will pick you up at your home at an appointed time, and the group will be transported to the Old Center Inn, Glenmont. Reservations must be made in advance by calling the Senior Services Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary A. Cox

Gary Cox marries

Kathryn Ellen Caffrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Caffrey of Norwalk, Conn., and Gary Alan Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Cox of Delmar, were married on Nov. 5 at the First Congregational Church, Manchester, Vt.

Kathryn Caffrey, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Susan Cox, sister of the bridegroom, and Sharon Virgulak. William Cox, brother of the bridegroom, served as the best man. Ushers were Christopher Campbell and William Buchko.

The bride is a graduate of Brien McMahon High School and the Southern Montessori Institute, International, Miami, Fla. She is currently employed at the Equinox Resort and Spa.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, the State University College at Cobleskill and the Rochester Institute of Technology. He is employed by the Stratton Corporation, Stratton Mountain Vt.

The couple will reside in Bondville, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Murphy

Lisa Sheridan marries

Lisa Marie Sheridan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Sheridan of Delmar, and Carl Henry Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Murphy of Liverpool, N.Y., were married on Oct. 15 at the Delmar Presbyterian Church in Delmar.

The bride, a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, is currently employed as a receptionist for the Fidelity and Deposit Corporation of Syracuse.

The bridegroom is a chef at the Holiday Inn in Syracuse.

The couple plans to reside in Syracuse.
