Burns says appointees part of closed club

By Bob Hagyard

Town appointees come from "a closed club of loyal Republicans," Democrat Councilman Bob Burns charged last week.

No, replied Supervisor Kenneth Ringler, political affiliations have been beside the point.

Last Wednesday, the town board's 4-1 Republican majority okayed the appointments of Gary Swan to the planning board, James Morgan to the zoning board of appeals and Marilyn Corrigan as town public information director. Swan will serve the remainder of the term of Neal Moylan, who resigned for health reasons. Morgan would serve the final two and one half years of Swan's zoning board term while Corrigan replaces Moylan in a part-time, $10-per-hour position whose duties include the editorship of the town newsletter.

All three served as campaign managers for successful GOP candidates in last fall's town elections: Swan for Kenneth Ringler's unopposed campaign for supervisor, Morgan and Corrigan for council candidates Sheila Galvin and Charles Gunner.

The planning and zoning boards are "extremely important" to the town, said Burns in explaining his 'no' vote on the Swan and Morgan appointments. "It's time we opened the process up, stop rewarding people for their work on the part of political candidates."

The appointments, he went on, "will be sending the message that, unless you have spent some time with a Republican campaign, you will not be considered. He would vote against Swan and Morgan, "not as an expression they would not be

State health chief labels water district incompatible

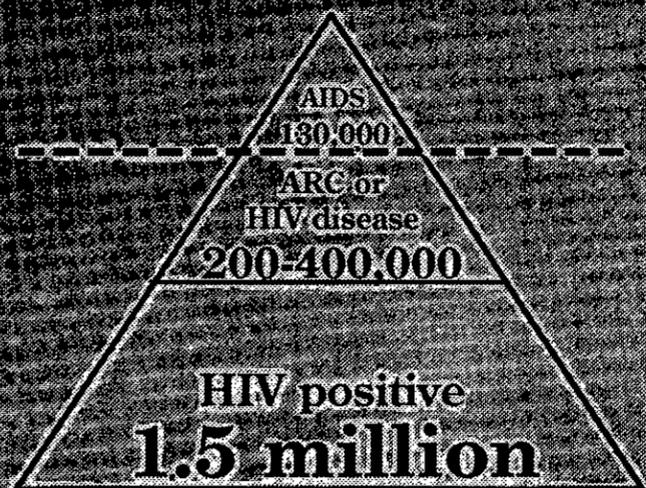

By Mike Larabee

New Scotland's proposed Tall Timbers/Orchard Park water district and the Hilton Road Larned and Sons gravel mine are "incompatible," according to Gilbert Faustel, chief of the design section of the state Department of Health's Public Water Supply Protection Bureau.

Issued in a May 4 response to the final environmental impact study (FEIS) on the Tall Timbers subdivision proposal, Faustel's statement indicates the possibility of DOH refusal of water permit applications once the system — touted as a solution to long-term contamination prob-

As shown above, more than 2 million Americans nationwide may be infected with Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV). New York State has more residents who have been diagnosed with AIDS than any other state in the country. ## Stay patient, stay married

By Debi Boucher

She first laid eyes on him at Union Station in Albany. She was 16 years old, he 19. It was 1916.

Elizabeth Darbecker Hempstead, 89, still vividly recalls her first impression of the man who would become her husband, Howard Hempstead. With the couple's 70th wedding anniversary coming up June 21, Elizabeth reminisces about those early days — and that first look.

"He had nice red hair, very fair skin, blue eyes," she says, adding that they did not formally meet that evening at the bustling station. "That was just the first time I noticed him." Evidently, Howard noticed her, too, for he soon showed up near her house in Glenmont, visiting a cousin who lived close by and "asking who the girl was."

Thus began a four-year courtship; the two were married in 1920. "In those days," she explains, "neither one of us made enough money to get married."

The union had a humble beginning, with the bride and groom the only attendees at a simple ceremony officiated by Rev. Fisher at Tabernacle Baptist Church on Clinton Avenue and Ten Broeck Street in Albany. There was no reception — "We were too poor to have all that fiddly-folly," says Elizabeth with a wave of her hand.

They made up for it in succeeding years, however, gathering with friends and family to mark the significant milestones in their marriage. Elizabeth singles Proposed site of American Ref-Fuel plant.

A Bethlehem Taxpayer And Its Neighborhood.

Located just south of the Port of Albany between the Agway and Cibro Petroleum tanks, the American Ref-Fuel plant would be far from the center of town and accessible only from the Port roads. Most people will see us only when they want to.

Though located adjacent to the Hudson, the plant will receive no waste via the river. The garbage from neighboring Capital Region counties will be trucked in on the Port roads. Some river water—roughly one one-hundredth of one percent of the average daily flow—will be used to cool the plant. This cooling water will not be returned to the river. Indeed, no process waste water will come from the facility.

After Ref-Fuel constructs its plant, the project will generate about $3 million in taxes for the community—money that can be used to help maintain the high quality of Bethlehem's schools.

As a member of the Bethlehem community, American Ref-Fuel will be responsive to its neighbors. Citizens living near our plant in Hempstead, New York have an office at the plant site where they can independently monitor operations. The same access and accountability will be extended to Bethlehem residents and their representatives.

As a good neighbor, Ref-Fuel will make further contributions to community life. But our biggest contribution will be providing Bethlehem and neighboring Capital Region communities with environmentally sound waste disposal well into the next century.

out their 17th and 50th anniversaries as particularly memorable occasions.

The Hempsteads take the longevity of their marriage in stride. "I don't think of it that way," replies Elizabeth when asked if she is awed by the number of years she has been married. "It's just normal; I take it day by day." With typical good humor, she adds wryly, "Sometimes you feel as if you were born married."

One of the keys to a successful marriage, she believes, is patience. "You can't be agreeable all the time. . . people get upset. . . but if they calm down, and think a little about it — love overcomes it," she concludes simply.

Many of today's young couples, she reflects, may not have cultivated the patience it takes to make marriage work. "I think people expect too much at one time, whereas if we wanted something, we saved for it — we never bought a thing on 'time,' or credit."

The Hempsteads still live in the comfortable farmhouse on Glenmont Hill they bought in 1944 — right next door to Elizabeth's childhood home on Anders Lane.

"I remember coming over here as a child," she says. "It was owned by two maiden ladies, and there was a great mirror in the parlor, and I used to primp and preen before it."

The 1989 house "was 95 years old when we bought it," Elizabeth points out, explaining that in five years, they were able to renovate the interior, but left the outside intact. Until last year, the Hempsteads maintained their lush, 8-acre property (originally a 16-acre plot) themselves, and gardened extensively. "I did a lot of canning," recalls Elizabeth. When Howard retired, he raised gladiolas for a time, and sold them to a local florist.

A seedsman for 39 years — during which time he rarely missed a day of work, his wife proudly affirms — Howard Hempstead next served 10 years on the New York State Thruway, and was on hand for the opening ceremonies back in 1954, when Governor

Thomas Dewey cut the ribbon at Station 23.

Howard's concurrent career as a musician involved Elizabeth, as well, and she recalls going to dances and functions in a variety of locales — "some nice, some not so nice," she chuckles — to hear his 5-piece band, in which he played banjo and saxophone.

One of the highlights of their marriage was a 6-week trip to California in 1928. The couple drove out in a Whippet, Elizabeth recalls (it was a Ford, insists Howard), with a bed behind the seats so they could camp out along the way. "That was fun," recalls Elizabeth fondly. "That was our big vacation."

The Hempsteads have no children, but have always kept busy with friends and relatives. Elizabeth reports that friends sometimes tease her for the number of social contacts she renews just by stepping into the local Grand Union.

"Well," she says modestly, "when you live in one spot 80 years, you've got to know somebody."

Howard and Elizabeth Hempstead of Glenmont will mark their 70th wedding anniversary this June.

capable, but because there are other people who should be considered, and this has got to stop," Burns said.

"I would not submit the name of any person who is not more than capable for the position," Ringler said. Later, he took issue with Burns's main point: "If anything, I have opened the process, and my other appointments demonstrate that: Martin Barr (planning board chairman, succeeding Ringler) was from a neighborhood association. To say we only considered politics isn't so.

"We had no problem with Mark Fitzsimmons as chairman of LUMAC (the town land use management advisory committee)," Ringler continued. "I don't know his party enrollment, but he works for the Albany County Planning Board, so I can guess." Fitzsimmons was recommended to the post by his predecessor, Charles Gunner, when Gunner was elected councilman last fall on the Republican ticket.

Fitzsimmons is an enrolled Democrat.

Burns voiced the same objections when the Corrigan appointment came up, but abstained from voting.

Swan, a Glenmont resident, is director of public affairs for the state Assembly minority office while Morgan is a senior attorney with the state Division of Equalization and Assessment counsel's staff. While boasting no career experience in journalism or public relations, Corrigan served in a number of administrative capacities in state government and the private sector for 13 years before joining the family business, Main Square, in 1987, where she performs administrative and computer work in a part-time capacity.

lems in the immediate area — is completed.

"In summary, our view is that gravel mining and well development within the area potentially affected by gravel mining are incompatible," Faustel said. He cited the "flow of groundwater toward the proposed wells through part of the area to be mined, the shallow depth of the aquifer, and truck/equipment access through the well site," as reasons for his conclusion.

The wells formerly served the old Tall Timbers golf course and are located on the northern end of the Galasi Group Hilton Road development site, directly between the 27-acre gravel mine and the Vly Creek. Reportedly capable of more than 100 gallons a minute, they are targeted as the primary water source for 67 homes in Orchard Park and on Route 155, and as a possible emergency backup source for the Village of Voorheesville.

"A large town problem could materialize if the proposed source should become contaminated after the Tall Timbers/Orchard Park/Route 155 'district' exists," said Faustel.

Town Supervisor Herbert Reilly said DOH holds "the key" to whether the town gets a water permit on the system. But he added that state Department of Environmental Conservation studies conducted before the mine opened in 1987 showed no effect on the aquifer.

"If they base it on the facts that were demonstrated by DEC, there will be no impact," Reilly said.

Faustel said the DEC ruling does not bind his agency. "They can decide what they want to decide," he said in a Monday interview.

Faustel said his concerns about the location of the system do "not necessarily preclude the proposed development or the desirable inclusion" of Orchard Park and Route 155 in a Tall Timbers water district. "But the source of the water should be elsewhere," he said.

Two weeks ago, the town board unanimously accepted the final environmental impact statement on Tall Timbers. The FEIS covers the entire 170-single family home development, though only 52 units are proposed in phase one of the project.

FEIS review is the final step in the State Environmental Quality Review (SEQR) process.

Co-op extension expands to offer AIDS education

By Mike Larabee

Cornell Cooperative Extension, best known for agricultural programs like 4-H and master gardeners, recently entered the unlikely field of AIDS education.

Thanks to a $45,000 grant from the AIDS Institute of the state Department of Health, the extension in Voorheesville has set up a new AIDS training program to help educate parents about AIDS. It is one of two grant-funded programs — the other is a recycling program — the Albany County agency started recently despite last year's 40 percent budget cut.

George K. Hecht, Cooperative Extension's county coordinator, said the program represents the "extension angle" to the AIDS crisis and does not target at-risk groups.

"It's designed for parents who

Index rates area homes affordable

According to the Albany County Board of Realtors, Inc., an increase of nearly $3,000 in the median price of Capital District region homes helped reduce the March Housing Affordability Index.

The index shows that families earning the median income in March have 108 percent of the income necessary to purchase a median-priced home. A greater number of sales of middle and upper priced homes resulted in a $2,813 increase in the March median price to $103,447.

The March, 1990 index is still two points ahead of the March, 1989 figure, and the Capital District is well above the 100 mark in housing affordability.

We are not amused

Having taken more than six weeks beyond their "deadline" for adoption of an operating budget for the State of New York, the legislators and governor who are responsible for the charade, have managed to keep a straight face throughout the tragicomedy.

As skilled politicians, they surely have their ears to the ground (if not their noses you-know-where). That being so, they must be aware that their performance has been trying our patience. It is hardly an impressive performance. Among its other failings is the disillusion that it casts over the entire "democratic government" thesis that they always praise.

And at the $400,000 a day which Comptroller Regan says is the interest charge for carrying on the additional borrowing necessitated by the farce, that's already about $18 million gone down the drain—without good reason or justifiable cause. Shame on those who willfully add this to the burden carried by the taxpayers for whom they love to declare their protective affection.

School districts and town governments

Editorials

obviously will welcome Governor Cuomo's belated opinion that the State's shortcomings should not injure them fiscally. They should be reimbursed ultimately, he said, for their additional costs for borrowing that the delay necessitates. Wishing does not necessarily make it so. The bill will, in any case, have to be picked up by the State, so the taxpayers get it in the neck in another form sooner or later.

A couple of rather apt expressions come to mind: "A plague on both your houses" is one, if the "houses" include the executive chamber. Another is the line attributed to Queen Victoria: "We are not amused."

Over the next six months, before their bids for reelection reach another "deadline," the second Tuesday of November, these same performers will be describing their sterling qualities and stellar service. Will we love them in November as, right now, we do in May?

A breach of trust

The distressing mishap at the Albany area's Red Cross blood bank had the makings of a disaster. That the results weren't any more shocking than they apparently were is true only by an unpredictable stroke of chance. Even a single instance of severe illness inflicted on an unsuspecting individual is too much, and inexcusable.

For generations, the American Red Cross has maintained a prime position in our confidently unconscious expectations. It is the symbol of caring. And of care.

The loftiness of Americans' regard for the Red Cross creates an unmatched trust, one figuratively in the hands of every one of its staffers. The trust has been breached by the uncaring carelessness of a person or persons somewhere down the line. Because the agency chooses to permit the responsible parties to remain faceless doesn't at all mitigate the offense. It does, however, implicitly raise the issue of accountability.

Unhappily, the Red Cross seems either incapable of determining the truth; or, if the truth is known, of speaking it. In this era of "public relations," a maxim of proper behavior is: Determine the facts, disclose them accurately, willingly, and promptly — no matter how distasteful they may be. The Red Cross compounded its grievous error by stonewalling on the matter of its ignorance or its guilty knowledge. The price has been in shattered public confidence and illusion.

Voluntary directors such as those at this agency, whose role is by no means merely honorific, need to step forward with plausible clarification.

Rise to follow

The Albany Symphony Orchestra has closed its season on an exultant note, and it seems fitting to contribute a grace note of our own in appreciation of George Lloyd, conductor for the final three concerts, the composer of two of the symphonies played, and the orchestra's music advisor for the season.

Next month, Mr. Lloyd will turn 77. But this is not intended as a chronological footnote; rather, a grateful observation of the example he sets with his jaunty style and, more particularly, his undaunted perseverance throughout a most unusual career marked for long periods by cruel disabilities that might have permanently floored many an individual. Instead, he has prevailed and today is gaining renewed recognition and acclaim for his three operas, four piano concertos, two violin concerts, and twelve symphonies.

New York State law says: Thou shalt not discriminate on the basis of age; and the Albany Symphony deserves high commendation for having given special meaning to the ideal. And Mr. Lloyd wins a standing ovation for his success in defying the limitations that some would impose.

Come and get it!

Vincent Ferraro's letter published this week (see box, Page 6) almost conveys to the printed page the heady redolence of pancakes, syrup, sausage and the other breakfast delicacies that bring many hundreds of us together in church halls, firehouse, and veterans' clubs throughout the cold weather. Their bonhomie helps mightily in seeing us through the winter and early spring. Some people say they couldn't make it without those breakfasts. Now, as the season changes, we're into steak and roast beef dinners, to be followed by clambakes. Good works aside, made possible by the proceeds, these collective meals are a grand aspect of life in these parts.

Avert a 'great loss' in wetlands, is plea

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am so pleased to hear our town supervisor say that he doesn't want us to be the dump site of the Northeast. My family has been living on Wemple Road for nine and one-half years. We have truly appreciated all that's around us.

In April, we eagerly await the return of the ducks and geese. We watch the muskrats swimming up and down the creek. The goldfinch and bluebirds busy themselves with the rebuilding of their nests. At night we fall asleep to the hooting owl and the peepers' call. In May, we watch for the young ones to be born. All are paraded around for us to watch. In July, we can watch mother snapping turtle labor for hours laying her eggs in the warm soil.

Every spring we get a call from the Audubon Society asking if they may once again do their bird count along the wetlands edge.

Of course all these events are fresh in my mind, yet all year long we are witness to the wildlife that inhabit this valley.

I have to wonder if the residents of Bethlehem have any idea of the number of species of animals in this valley. To name just a few: grouse, pheasant wild turkey, red-tail hawk, coyote, red fox, opossum, raccoon, deer, blue heron, green heron even mink. This is a small list, but I hope you get the idea.

Vox Pop

If we allow anything to endanger their home, I feel it will be a great loss.

We are all talking about Earth Day, ecology, and environment preservation to our children. We ask that all are aware of conservation. I certainly hope that the D.E.C. and the residents of Bethlehem will consider all that reside in this wetlands area when decisions are made as to how it can be used. It gives me great concern that a construction dump site is even considered when our wetlands are supposed to be protected.

Supervisor praises town's spirit, pride

Editor, The Spotlight:

Community Bethlehem! was intended to be a day of neighbors celebrating Spring with volunteerism, beautification and fun. To say the least, all these goals were met. On a beautiful Saturday morning, hundreds of residents spent hours working together to beautify our community.

From the Brownie troops, who did plantings, to the neighborhood associations and the Job Corps, who did litter pick-up throughout our town, there was a spirit of pride and renewed commitment to keep our community beautiful. It is impossible for me to name all the individuals and groups involved in this project in this letter, but I am sincerely grateful for their efforts. Through them, a spirit of pride has been rekindled in our town and I hope it will carry over throughout the year; however, to make it work, we must all be part of the effort.

I hope all residents and businesses will take time to look at their own property and through some small effort do something to enhance the beauty of their property and ultimately our community. Whether it be sweeping a sidewalk, pulling weeds along the right-of-way, or just picking papers up, if

A few modest proposals

Our legislators, President, and Governor have been fretting for so long about how to increase the revenues of the state and national governments that it seems a shame to require them to go it alone in their struggles with such a taxing problem. Wouldn't want their brains to become unduly fatigued, so your Uncle Dudley is volunteering to provide more solutions.

I offered several a few weeks ago, but to the best of my knowledge no governmental body has snatched them up despite their obvious merit. One of them, a program to license the nation's cats, was especially appealing to me, but I note that the cats who come prowling through the yard still seem to lack the proper tag. I also proposed a special tax on public utilities each time that they open up a street pavement. And then there was the tax to be levied on the benefits accruing to users of "frequent flyer" bonuses. All these are both valid and available for any shrewd governmental operative who wants to make use of them. I relinquish all rights.

It occurs to me, however, that perhaps some other revenue-raising steps are in order. Reading the papers and listening to the telly, I observe that our country seems to have another problem, this one relating to the consumption of mind and behavior-altering substances, and the commercial traffic in these. It appears that lots of people are making large sums of money in this business, and the worst part of it is that some of them aren't even American!

There do happen to be laws against this kind of enterprise. My

Using figures to advantage

I've mentioned in previous columns my having fallen for U.S. News (and World Report) in its present form. Recent issues have not diminished my pleasure in receiving it in the mailbox every week. Just as The Spotlight covers our town and area, you might say, U.S. News a satisfying view of the nation and the world.

But it is far from a pale rewrite of your daily newspapers, as news-magazines have tended to become, no matter how spiced up they try to make themselves.

I have several past issues in front of me now, and I'd like to review some of their contents, to give you a bit of the flavor.

The most recent issue that I have features a special six-page section on "Getting slim—How to find the right diet." But the articles (one page apiece) that attracted me most were by John Leo and David Gergen. Mr. Leo's was called "No, don't give me a number!" and focused on how figures can be misleading.

He cites, for example, a survey by the noted witchdoctor Betty Friedan, who cusses the New York Times for having only six percent women among everyone who was quoted on page one in a month.

Notes Mr. Leo: "We can take for granted that the press needs a heavier input from women and minorities.

mind goes back to the case of one of our nation's most famed home-grown celebrities, Al Capone. You may recall that despite a great deal of suspicion about the legality of this business activities, no law agency could get close to him until the tax people took over. Then it was an open and shut case: he was readily convicted of evading payment of his rightful tax burden (which in those days, nearly 60 years ago, wasn't so very onerous).

A tax on cocaine sales would produce much-needed revenue

Obviously, what we need to do is to put a tax on each transaction (a sales tax, I guess you might call it) between today's capones. "Here's a hundredweight of cocaine, amigo, you pay me six million U. S. dollars plus ten percent for Uncle Sam." (Just like Mario's Pop probably used to say, "And that will be three cents more for Rocky.")

This would bring in lots of welcome revenue for the coffers, and at the same time create a no-fail handle for grabbing the merchants on a tax-evasion rap if they didn't cough up.

All that cash would go to alleviate Mr. Bush's money gap, though perhaps he might choose to divvy with the states once in a while.

That wouldn't be enough, however, to solve our local problems. So here are a pair of devices that would be certain to evoke cheers and ready compliance from a major portion of the citizenry. I trust that one of my legislators will hasten these proposals to the proper committee up there on the Hill.

First, there's a bit of a solution for the controversial "smoking" and "no-smoking" sections in restaurants, etc. This will either eliminate the issue, or return the cash we need: A special head tax to be imposed on all restaurant patrons (airline passengers, etc.) who request to be seated in the "smoking" section. I rate this as a real gem, and one that authorities ranging from David Axelrod to Larry Linett will endorse.

The next revenue-raiser has a more universal application in principle, but only among people who drive automobiles. As is well known (loads of statistics back this up), the worst deterrent to smooth-flowing traffic is the left-hand turn. What we're going to do is to sell licenses entitling people to make left turns, the license to be prominently displayed on the rear window, thus warning the driver behind. For, say, $100 a year, you could obtain this right. Elsewise, try to make a left turn and whammo! a major fine plus the obloquy of all other motorists, immediate and vociferous.

This could reduce left turns, speed up traffic, and at the same time produce a nice piece of change for the treasury since all the plutocrats with a C-note to spare would be sure to flaunt their license, the one bearing the big "L." Don't say I didn't warn you, and don't forget where you heard it first.

"But," he asks cogently, "is a paper's job to cover the news as fairly as it can, or to parcel out front-page quotes by gender, ethnic heritage, or sexual orientation?"

"This is not a frivolous question. The quota system implied in (the Friedan survey) is now being taken seriously in the news business. Several newspapers are considering quotas for published photos of women and minorities. Among other things, quotas tend to be contagious. For instance, the Times front page in February has five stories about Catholics, but none about Protestants; 21 about Republicans, but only nine about Democrats. Do we really want to get into this?"

Are women ignored by the press -- and is that so terrible?

The article also mentions at some length a story that was published in the Los Angeles Times last month, headlined "Blacks take brunt of war on drugs." Mr. Leo contends that its statistic to the effect that "80 percent of drug users are white but most of those arrested are black" lacks any other numbers "to put it in context." The reader is left with the impression, he says, that "whites are conducting a relentless and totally unjustified race war against blacks."

Mr. Gergen's even shorter article (an editorial, actually) is one of a series that he's calling "Sixty-something." In it he eats a little crow and backtracks ever so slightly about a previous editorial on Social Security. He had argued that it's wrong that "half of all taxpayers — many of them young, struggling families — pay more in payroll taxes than in income taxes to support a Social Security system that is more generous than it should be to the wealthy."

He was apparently deluged with mail as a result of that position, and in this issue he takes up three of the main arguments and gives rather mild rebuttals. One of the most interesting factoids was this: "As recently as 1959 the maximum payroll contribution for an employee and employer combined was $240 a year. Today it is 32 times that amount."

The problem, he sums up, "is that in taking care of the poor we greatly expanded benefits for the wealthy, too." Personally, I suspect that Mr. Gergen (like so many other commentators) forgets that the country has a large number of citizens who are neither "poor" nor "wealthy," but who have reasonably factored in Social Security benefits as they try to eke out modest incomes.

"The Biggest Day"

Alan Mapes is director of the Five Rivers Outdoor Education Center located near Delmar. He numbers bird watching among his many outdoor interests.

By Alan Mapes

I wish I could fully share with Spotlight readers all the joyful and exciting fun of what is, for me, one of the best days of any year—the World Series of Birding. The what? It's also known as "The Biggest Day," and it's coming up this weekend.

Point of View

Each year (this will be the fourth for our local team of four), one Saturday of May becomes a marathon search for as many species of birds as can be seen in a single day. It takes place in New Jersey, focusing on certain birding "hot spots" (but any bird sighted within the state or over its adjacent waters is fair game—figuratively speaking only).

It's a 24-hour event, and our Biggest Day is but one of many "century runs" held throughout the country every spring when birds are at the height of their migration. New Jersey happens to be one of the best birding areas in North America, and its World Series attracts some 40 teams, each with four to six members.

I mentioned that I'd like to share the World Series with you—and while the experience must be vicarious, you do have an opportunity to take part. We have made an arrangement whereby every bird-watcher can participate very usefully. Our "Birdathon Pledge" for our supporters provides stipends for interns at Five Rivers and two other education centers of the Department of Environmental Conservation. Last year, we realized $2,400, which was nearly double the amount raised in 1988. This year our goal is $3,000. (At the end of this column, I'll provide some details on the pledges).

Our pledges average approximately 10 cents each (per bird sighted). Last year's returns, then, meant that a large number of people—in the neighborhood of 140—had pledged, for our team sighted 171 species. To attain this year's goal, we would need an additional 35 supporters. Perhaps one of them will be you?

With birds at the height of their northern migration, the 'World Series' is scheduled for this week-end.

There's something of an honor system innately involved in the Birdathon, but the regulations are very exacting: All species must be recorded on the day of the competition between midnight and midnight; only birds seen in New Jersey may be counted (no bird may be counted from any point in New York or Pennsylvania, even if the bird itself is in New Jersey); birds seen in the Atlantic or Delaware Bay are countable if the observer is stationed in New Jersey. (This becomes very abstruse; if you're on a bridge to good old Jersey you have to be more than halfway across for your sighting to count.) You can't make use of airplanes, helicopters, or recorded calls (but spotters are encouraged to personally imitate calls to the best of their ability.) The keenness of competition is suggested by the prohibition against intentionally flushing birds to prevent another team from seeing them. Undoubtedly, all the teams are scrupulous in their observations, but there's even a rule about how to report what you may "perceive to be an infraction of the rules." Needless to say, it's all in good fun—even taking into account the fatiguing demands of the 24-hour day, sometimes in miserable terrain or weather. (Yes, there is that, occasionally, in New Jersey.)

Our 171 species last May was a slight letdown from the 180 we counted on the previous Biggest Day. Among our number were the obvious ones: a northern cardinal, the redbellied woodpecker, the house finch, five varieties of gulls. But we also found a white-throated hummingbird, peregrine falcon, turkey vulture, red-throated loon, northern gannet, and American bittern, all of which our official checklist had warned us we'd be "lucky to find." We spotted our last reportable bird, the Chuck-Will's Widow, at 11 p.m. by the way. About 250 species are on the checklist, and the winning team each year nets just about 200. Our team finished 15th, slightly behind our traditional rivals, the Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology.

Our EnCon team is captained by Bob Budliger of Elsmere, director of the Bureau of Environmental Education and overseer of the three education centers (Five Rivers; Stony Kill in Dutchess County; and Rogers in Chenango County.)

Jim Suozzo of Slingerlands provides the team's sharpest eyes (Bob's ears are best). George Steele runs the department's environmental education camps, and is our owl-calling specialist. I'm the chief navigator for our impassioned swings into likely territories. I'm boning up off-season with an eye always on the feeders outside my windows.

Saturday's Biggest Day will be a truly big day for us. To everyone who pledges, I'll send an account of the World Series of 1990. A sponsor's pledge for five, ten, or twenty-five cents (per each species our team counts) can be sent to Five Rivers (Delmar 12054), for support of the student intern program either there or at one of the other two centers (please designate). And your inspiring support will be tax-deductible.

Sounds good to us

Editor, The Spotlight:

If a tree falls in the forest, and there's no one around to hear it, is there a sound?

Saturday, Bethlehem celebrated its first Community Bethlehem! Without the superb, comprehensive coverage by The Spotlight, the sound would have been too weak to be heard.

Over 40 community organizations joined forces to take on a clean-up or beautification task. Some 25 businesses contributed services, talents or financial support towards the success of the day. The schools, businesses, organizations, town staff and residents responded beyond our expectations. On behalf of all of the volunteer organizers, we thank them all.

Once again, we thank The Spotlight for the articles, the editorial and the special section providing your readers with all they needed to know.

It was a big sound indeed.

Hail the BC varsity baseball success!

Editor, The Spotlight

I note with concern your apathy toward the BC varsity baseball team and imagine some of the parents who have sons on their team have noticed it too.

The Eagles are enjoying an excellent year and are to be commended for their abilities but there isn't much in print about them.

On the other hand, there was a big spread about Voorheesville and their poor season. I am not unaware that in a short schedule a few bad bounces and that's the ball game. Tough luck, and I sympathize with them.

The lack of coverage for BC in view of their record leaves something to be desired from your sports staff.

Ah, those pancakes—and what they mean

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the Bethlehem Lions Club, I would like to thank all of those who patronized our annual Pancake Breakfast.

As president of the club this year, it was my privilege to greet and seat our patrons. I enjoyed meeting you, one and all.

This breakfast each year brings together almost all the Bethlehem Lions to meet the community. It's a "fun time" for us, as well as a hard day's work. This event literally brings a double meaning to the Lions' motto: "We serve."

Proceeds from Lions fund-raisers support many activities, among which are:

The Vials of Life, purchased for the town's senior citizen program; the Lions' senior citizens picnic; the purchase of eyeglasses, eye exams, large-print books, hearing aids, hearing exams, TDDs (telecommunication device for the deaf); funds to support the Police Bike Rodeo; the teacher-training program of Lions International, in the area of drug awareness; and, of course, donations of personal time and effort where needed by Lions members.

Vox Pop

The success of an effort such as our breakfast is highly dependent on support we receive from individuals and organizations: We would like to thank The Spotlight; Ruth Mendel and the Times Union; Norine Murray and the Grand Union Company; Doug Brownell and the Brownell Agency; and Stewart's of Delmar.

We hope to serve you again at next year's Pancake Breakfast!

A reader writes — and puts us to rights

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a Spotlight subscriber, for only a few months. I am pleased with it. Up to now I've had no reason to write to you, except that perhaps I should have complimented you and your staff a little earlier.

However, in the May 9 issue "Words for the week," was there a mix-up relating to the word "pastoral"? I must say never before have seen or heard anything like the definition given for the word "pastoral," though I am conversant with its commonly used meanings. Originally it pertained to shepherds. It is often used in that sense in English translations of the Bible, where the care and concern for those in the church, is expected of church leaders, hence the title "pastor." According to my Webster, all variations of usage relate in some manner to pastors, shepherds, and shepherd type care, or to the broader usage relating to rural scenes.

If I am in error please let me know. If it was an editorial error, (you are allowed those once in a while), for the sake of others, please make a correction in a future issue.

Arthur L. Comstock
Schenectady

Yes, indeed, we were in error! A glitch somewhere in the editing process combined a definition for "pastoral" and "Edwardian," and it slipped on through. Thank you for pointing it out, and for your kind words.—Ed.

Words for the week

Species: A category of biological classification ranking immediately below the genus or subgenus, comprising related organisms or populations potentially capable of interbreeding.

Onerous: Involving, imposing, or constituting a burden; troublesome. It stresses being laborious and heavy especially because distasteful.

Coffer: Chest, box; especially, strongbox. Treasury. (Usually used in the plural.) Also, the chamber of a canal lock, and a recessed panel in a ceiling, vault, or soffit.

Obloquy: A strongly condemnatory utterance; abusive language. Also, bad repute; the condition of one who is discredited.

Keep our heritage alive: week's theme

Editor, The Spotlight:

Our future has everything to do with our past, and that is the reason a week is set aside each year nationally to honor local history and architectural heritage. The theme for 1990's Historic Preservation Week is: "Keeping America's Heritage Alive."

In a proclamation, Governor Cuomo refers to "the leadership role New York State has taken for more than a century in preserving, protecting and enhancing our treasured historic resources." Through the 1986 Environmental Quality Bond Act, $21 million was made available for 134 preservation projects across the state.

The project includes transitional housing for the needy, the stabilization of national historic landmarks and funds to save 1905 and 1845 buildings in the Capital District.

"New York's investment in historic preservation," the proclamation states, "will continue to reap benefits for generations to come."

As president of our local preservation organization Historic Albany Foundation, I invite you and members of your family to attend the events and activities which will bring the region's rich cultural heritage to light. Throughout this week our organization is working with 12 other area groups to present a variety of activities to interest residents of all ages.

Join the walking tours of Washington Park, or come to a discussion of wampum production in colonial Albany. Bring the children and attend a slide lecture on the wealth of ornamental ironwork gracing our homes and businesses in the area.

See how the automobile has impacted area buildings and street-scapes, or listen to local visionaries discuss "Preservation in the Year 2020." Take a trip to Hyde Park, Johnstown, or Saratoga. They all have tours, demonstrations, and displays.

The week of events will show you that our area is special. It's exciting. It's worth preserving. And its progress should be reflective on and compatible with its past.

Preservation is good for business, it's good for tourism and it's good for our future.

For a brochure detailing these and dozens of other programs, call Historic Albany Foundation, 463-0622.

Legislation aids veterans' spouses

Spouses of veterans in nursing homes are urged to review the impact of new state legislation allowing them to keep more money for their personal care. In keeping with the federal Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988, New York has implemented legislation increasing substantially the amount of income and resources that can be retained by the spouse living in the community. ## End of the line in Selkirk

Conrail to close center following union vote

By Bob Hagyard

Emotions are running high among the 92-odd Conrail clerical employees at the doomed Selkirk transportation center.

The public corporation expects to save $4 million per year by consolidating 10 such regional offices into a single center in western Pennsylvania. No timetable has been announced and Conrail officials in Philadelphia remain tight-lipped about the labor dispute that prompted the move.

"We have been working under an old collective bargaining agreement for two years now," said Russell Oathout, division chairman of District 861, Transportation Communications International Union. The chapter represents the 92 clerical employees at Selkirk.

During that time span, the union's national leadership unsuccessfully sought a job-protection agreement with the public corporation. "Conrail is one of the only first-class railroads that does not have that type of agreement," Oathout said.

Prompting the union push, he explained, is the Conrail policy of transferring employees frequently. "I would estimate half of the employees I represent in this office have transferred in from other cities and states," Oathout said. Whether the number of transfers violates the old collective bargaining agreement is now under litigation.

Selkirk's was one of two union locals to favor the agreement reached between Conrail and the TCU leadership on April 24. A narrow majority of members in the other eight locals voted against it.

The pact would have meant consolidation of the 10 offices into six, with the Selkirk office remaining open. But in return, the union would have had to recognize the creation of additional "partially accepted positions," that is, clerical positions outside the union seniority system.

"It would have meant drastic changes in the seniority districts" as well, Oathout said.

Another unusual element in the vote: it took place three days after the agreement was reached, Oathout pointed out, amounting to a "straw poll" in which the leadership "contacted as many members as we could within the time limit."

While sympathetic to the national majority's concern over the seniority givebacks, Oathout expressed "disappointment" with the result of the vote.

New York State Attorney General Robert Abrams announced recently an agreement with the manufacturers of a leading water filter after the firm and several of its distributors made claims about drinking water in order to persuade consumers to purchase the filters.

The agreement requires the National Safety Associates to monitor its independent distributors more closely.

To ensure that distributors are marketing the product properly, NSA is required to send each consumer a questionnaire to find out what the salesman said about the current water quality during the sales presentation. Distributors who conduct water tests in a consumer's home must also give the consumer a disclosure form that clearly identifies what the test is for and its limits.

Smaller firm tapped for reval job

By Bob Hagyard

"Mr. Finnegan said he would come up here if there was a problem," recalled Councilman Charles Gunner.

On that promise, Bethlehem will pay Robert Finnegan Associates of Newburgh nearly one-half million to revalue all town properties. Turned down was Cole-Layer-Trumble of Dayton, Ohio, the self-styled "oldest, biggest and best" assessment firm in the country, which offered a slight price break.

The town board unanimously chose Finnegan last Wednesday.

Gunner couldn't remember who would be in charge if CLT were to get the contract. Councilwoman Sheila Galvin did: Jonathan Stevens, now supervising a reval project in Essex County.

"I called Essex County," said Galvin, "and they said he was committed to the project through June at least. Which raises the question in my mind about the continuity of staff personnel" for the Bethlehem job.

She said she also found that while Finnegan apparently had the better track record in public relations, there was also "negative feedback" about how CLT handled data gathering and conducted public information meetings elsewhere.

Galvin, who contacted both companies just before last week's decision, said: "Cole-Layer-Trumble is what they said — a large corporation, all right. I question the 'depth of the bench,' as they referred to (their workforce).

"I also question whether what we need is a large corporation," Galvin continued. "What we need is good people who deal with the residents as property owners, as people who have valid concerns about their interests in the property. In listening to Finnegan and his responses to our questions, he dealt with the questions we asked him and he responded. They weren't necessarily the answers that we would have liked to hear, but they were factual answers that dealt with the issues presented."

Further, CLT now has the contract to revalue the city of Schenectady, a $1.1-million job. "And somehow a million-dollar-plus project would tend to make us second-string, in terms of our cost and in terms of our project," Galvin said.

Supervisor Kenneth Ringler agreed: "I like the concept of the small company. The bigger company would give you the possibility of a 'deeper bench,' but I'm not so sure the quality would be there. The state Division of Equalization and Assessment wrote us that 'price should not be the first factor in choosing a vendor.'" Finnegan offered $451,800, assuming about 10,000 parcels in the town while CLT bid $449,700, assuming 11,000. The town board authorized Ringler to negotiate a contract under two assumptions of the town's: the base price will cover revaluation of the actual number of parcels (11,036, according to Assessor John Thompson) and payment of related postage costs by Finnegan, which hadn't figured them into the base price.

Attorney listed as one of best in U.S.

Gregory J. Mott, an attorney and partner in the law firm of Davidson, Fink, Cook, Gates and Mott of Rochester, has been listed among the best attorneys in the country in a biennial survey produced by New York publisher Woodward/White Inc.

Mott, son of Edward and Helen Mott of Delmar, is a resident of Pittsford (Monroe Co.) and serves as attorney for the Town of Pittsford Zoning Board of Appeals.

The contract would then be submitted to the full board for ratification, then work would begin. Completion target is May 1992.

The current town budget includes $150,000 to start the project, which is eligible for state Division of Equalization and Assessment reimbursement at the rate of $8 per parcel.

AFTER TOOTH EXTRACTION

Following the extraction of a tooth, the wound in the jaw usually heals within a few days without complications. If some swelling develops in the face, this is usually nothing to worry about and it can be minimized by the application of an ice bag to the affected region.

Actual bleeding should stop shortly after tooth removal. Nature's way of stopping the bleeding is the formation of the blood clot in the socket. Let nature do its job and do not disturb the formation of the clot. How?

Avoid creating a suction at the site. Do not take hot food or drinks for five or six hours, by which time the clot should be firmed. If you get hungry, drink a cold drink or eat soft, cold food. Avoid eating hard foods, and don't smoke.

If delayed bleeding occurs, fold a piece of gauze and bite on it for half an hour. A moistened tea bag will also do the job. If bleeding persists, by all means, call your dentist. Free bleeders, especially people with hemophilia, should tell their dentist BEFORE extraction so that he can take special precautions.

July recycling could be trashed

Mandatory recycling could become a reality in Bethlehem two months before the deadline for a solid waste management program kicks in.

The town board will consider the pros and cons of the much-discussed local law at a public hearing next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Bethlehem must file solid waste management program statements with ANSWERS' board and the state Department of Environmental Conservation no later than July 13.

If the local law is approved, trash collectors will be required to furnish bins for the collection of recyclable material. Residents would deposit their discarded newsprint, glass containers (clear, green and amber), plastic containers, corrugated cardboard, office paper and metal cans into the bin provided.

Each collector must file with the highway superintendent a recycling plan setting forth how recyclables will be separated from residential waste. Collectors who do not wish to separate recyclables from trash at the collection point must require customers to do so.

The hearing will take place in the Town Hall boardroom.

Clearing Hudson Avenue air

By Bob Haggard

About 70 Hudson Avenue neighborhood residents listened as town officials last week explained their side of the controversy on the drive to establish a senior housing zone in Bethlehem.

Seven weeks ago, Catholic Charities announced its intent to build a 50-unit senior citizen apartment complex on North Street with Section 202 HUD funding. Nearby residents formed the Hudson/North Neighborhood Association.

Concern centers on several large undeveloped tracts and what might go on them: the 3.2-acre senior site, owned by developer James Breen; the rest of the 50-acre Breen tract of which the senior site is a part; Hunter's Ridge, 62 single-family homes off McCormick Road to the northwest; and Hudson Glen, 130 mixed townhouse and condo units between the Hunter's Ridge site and Hunter Road. Much of the vacant area around the Hudson/North neighborhood is zoned for planned residential development, the highest-density zone in the town code.

The floating senior housing zone is "a protection for the community," said Supervisor Kenneth Ringler. PRDs, on the other hand, "would open the land up for uses that may not be appropriate." For that reason, he would erase some of the current PRD zones in the area from the zoning map.

And, to prevent the same problem, a sunset provision would be built into the floating senior zone language. "A lot of development is coming in under the guise of senior housing," Ringler said.

And there would be a "density bonus," since senior citizens "do not require the infrastructure, such as schools" which come into play when the town considers other forms of development. "And you don't have the traffic generation (rates) other forms of housing have. You have them, but outside peak hours."

Further, more senior rental housing "would keep rents down" in the rest of the town, the supervisor said.

Hudson/North association members "have a lot of legitimate concerns," Ringler said. "If the (senior) project is so detrimental, the town board will say it's not going to happen."

"But we have a senior citizen housing problem," he went on. "You might say we went to DePaul and asked them to propose something in Bethlehem — they have an excellent track record."

DePaul manages a number of Section 202 senior housing projects in the Capital District.

Promoting safer cars

The New York State Senate recently approved legislation that would require insurers to reduce insurance premium charges on automobiles with anti-lock brakes. The legislation would amend the state insurance law to provide lower premiums on private, non-commercial automobiles with factory installed anti-lock brakes or other devices that would reduce damages and losses. The present insurance law only provides a reduction of premiums on vehicles with safety belts.

Stones thrown back in miner's court

By Mike Larabee

Small scale quarrying of Onondaga limestone, ordered stopped by the town building inspector in 1987, may return to Groesbeck road at the southern end of New Scotland.

Stephen Giles, owner of a 35-acre parcel with abundant exposed deposits of the high-quality stone, was told by the planning board May 8 he has two options if he wants to reintroduce mining on the property — seek a use variance from the zoning board of appeals, or petition the town board for a zoning change that would allow quarrying in Groesbeck Road's RA (residential-agriculture) district.

James Blendell, attorney for Giles, said he would petition the zoning board because mining is "a sensitive issue in the town."

"I would probably have to wear a bullet-proof vest to go before the town board and and say I want a zoning variance so I can mine in the town of New Scotland," Blendell said.

According to Robert Hampston, chairman of the planning board, prior to granting a use variance the zoning board must address in order:

- Whether current zoning constitutes an economic hardship to Giles, depriving him of any possibility to earn a reasonable return on his property.

- Whether his problem is unique to the zone.

- What uses should be authorized under the variance.

John Bailey, attorney for the planning board, said one problem with granting the variance is that mining could not be maintained by the town.

"One of the principal stumbling blocks, there is no means really to regulate this thing once it is established and going," he said.

"Once it gets set up it will just be allowed to go," Bailey added that he felt the board did not have enough specific information about the possible environmental impact of the proposal to make a favorable or unfavorable recommendation to the zoning board.

The mining project would not need a state Department of Environmental Conservation study because it would not exceed 1,000 tons of stone a year, Blendell said. town board had previously enacted standards for monitoring such mining operation.

In 1988, the zoning board denied an appeal by N.Y. Quarry — the company then mining the limestone — that they be granted a similar use variance because quarrying on the site predated town zoning ordinances.

On the advice of Bailey, the board resolved to advise the zoning board not to approve the variance sought by Giles unless the

Tour with bikes

A bike tour benefitting the Capital District MS Society is expected to attract a large number of riders to the 150-mile jaunt arranged for the weekend of July 7 and 8.

All riders are expected to raise at least $150 in pledges for the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The tour will leave from Columbia High School, East Greenbush, and reach Marist College near Poughkeepsie that day. After an overnight there, cyclists will return by way of a slightly different route. The tour has been named "Roll by the Hudson."

The registration fee is $25 if received this month, and $30 thereafter until the July 1 deadline.

The MS Society has arranged for pre-tour bike inspection stations, in order to eliminate the possibility of serious injury caused by bike malfunction of faulty parts. Several bike shops are participating, and the inspection program has a dozen sponsors. The overall tour is principally sponsored by Keeler Honda, with a half-dozen co-sponsors.

Each 75-mile leg of the tour is to be "at a leisurely pace," with backup support. Overnight gear for riders will be transported to Marist College by vans. Rest areas, fully stocked, will be manned by tour volunteers every 15 miles along the route. The support system will include experienced ride leaders, mechanics, medical support, "sag wagons," and communications. In addition, the society and sponsors are billing it as "a fully catered bike tour."

A grand prize, said to be worth a minimum of $3,000, and consisting of two round-trip USA tickets to Orlando, with accommodations there, will go to the top fundraiser. Several other prizes will be awarded, beginning at $250 and ranging in stages up to $2,000, depending on the pledges that a rider brings in. (Proof of pledges totaling at least $150 must be received by the time of the tour; all pledges must be submitted by the riders by Aug. 1.)

Registration is to be completed through the Capital District MS Society (Shaker Park West, 421 New Karner Road, Albany 12205), and further information and necessary forms are available there.

□ AIDS

have kids coming home with questions about AIDS," he said. "It's not good when they don't know how to answer these questions in an honest and frank way." Hecht added that the program was designed to provide parents with information but "leave it up to them how they want to answer these questions about AIDS."

According to Coordinator Tanya Owens, the program has three primary goals — clarifying the myths and facts about AIDS, teaching skills to prevent its transmission, and teaching general techniques to help parents discuss sexuality with their children.

Much of the program's focus is on interactive exercises like brainstorming and role-playing, Owens said.

"That's how people build their comfort level. They need a chance to practice talking about it, a chance to use the terminology," she said.

So far, Owens said, there has been little response from parent groups in areas like New Scotland and Delmar — which she attributes to the sense of "insulation" with which wealthier and rural communities generally view AIDS.

"The feedback I've gotten from those areas is a feeling of 'It doesn't happen here,'" she said. "The tendency is still to think of it as somebody else's disease."

She added that one of the goals of the extension program is to keep the public from simply transferring its perception of "a gay person's disease" to a disease of blacks and hispanics in response to the demographical shifts AIDS is currently undergoing. "The point is it's not who you are, it's what you do," Owens said.

Latanya Middleton, a former AIDS educator with the Arbor Hill Community Center and now with the AIDS Institute, said it is as important for people in suburban and rural areas to learn about AIDS as it is for those in inner-city communities.

"This virus is everywhere," Middleton said. "It's not an Albany virus. It's not a Rensselaer virus. It's a Delmar virus as well."

Most of New York's 27,456 AIDS cases — a national high — have been in New York City and immediately outlying areas. But, according to state DOH figures, the numbers are rising upstate as well.

Of all New York counties north of Westchester, Albany County has the highest incidence of AIDS. Excluding state prisoners, only four of the most rural New York counties — Orleans, Yates, Wyoming, and Hamilton — had no reports of AIDS as of June 1989. As of last November, there were 106 AIDS cases in Albany County, 43 in Schenectady County, 20 in Rensselaer County, 21 in Saratoga County, 8 in Greene County, and 3 in Schoharie County. The Albany County total was up from the 85 reported the previous June — a 25 percent increase in 6 months.

In addition to knowing how to avoid contracting HIV (the virus commonly associated with AIDS), Middleton said, those in communities with relatively few individuals from at-risk groups have an obligation to learn about AIDS so its victims are not isolated.

"The more information that is put out, the better people will be able to understand," she said. "Every community needs to be AIDS-educated."

At a seminar last week at the state's Division for Youth's Watervliet Avenue, Albany office, a group of foster parents went through the first half of the program. Activities included a lecture on AIDS as well as a demonstration on how to clean needles with bleach and how condoms and spermicides should be used, and a long discussion on risky behavior.

"The list of what people need to know about AIDS goes on and on," said extension volunteer Joyce Holly, who directed the seminar.

"If you can't talk about it at home, you certainly can't talk about it with Susie in the back seat of the Chevy," she said. "If it's not OK to talk about it in the back seat of the Chevy, then kids are at risk."

Owens, who recruits and trains volunteers to conduct the seminars, emphasized that the program does not advocate any particular set of values.

"We get people who say to us maybe we should talk more about abstinence, especially for young people," she said. "We say if you want to give your children that message, then please give them that message. By sharing the facts with them, you can also share your values with them."

Baseball Eagles two up with four games to go

By John Bellizzi III

Despite a one-run loss to Niskayuna in extra innings last week, the Bethlehem Central baseball varsity is still comfortably on top of the Suburban Council Gold Division with no intentions of leaving that perch. The Niskayuna game marked the end of an eight-game winning streak for the Eagles, who are 9-2 in the league (12-2 overall) and in first place by two games.

Three Suburban Council opponents were overcome by the red-hot Eagles in the first week of May, as BC outlasted Guilderland, 5-2, rallied to defeat Saratoga, 10-7, and blanked Shenendehowa, 10-0 to clinch a winning season and a sectional berth.

Guilderland pitcher Daryl Hornberger only gave up three hits against Bethlehem April 30, but those hits and several walks allowed the Eagles a 5-2 victory. A five-run second inning told the story for BC.

Al Greenhalgh and Mike Murphy both walked and Andre Cadieux reached on a dropped third strike to load the bases. Matt Dennin drew another walk to force in a run. Craig Weinert knocked in two runs with a single and Scott Hodge batted in another with a sacrifice fly. Hodge also singled for the Eagles.

Jamie Mizener went the full game on the mound for the Eagles, pitching four shutout innings before the Dutchmen got on the board.

A seventh-inning rally pulled BC past the Saratoga Blue Streaks May 2 in a 10-7 contest studded with spectacular home runs from both teams. Despite a run each in the first and second and a two-run homer by Kevin Keparutis in the third, the Eagles trailed, 6-4, going into the final inning.

Keparutis led off with a walk. A two-run home run by sophomore catcher Matt Quatraro then evened the score. Greenhalgh singled and stole second and Murphy walked. Singles by Cadieux and Weinert and a three-run double by Alex Hackman gave the Eagles a 10-6 lead. Saratoga scored one in their half of the seventh.

After giving up three runs in the fifth, starter Hackman was relieved by Keparutis, who got out of a bases-loaded jam without further scoring and got the win.

"Kevin did a great job," said Ken Hodge, BC varsity coach. "He really pitched well when we needed him to."

Bethlehem's pitching success continued as junior Scott Fish hurled a three-hitter, striking out five as the Eagles shut out Shenendehowa, May 4. As the Plainsmen struggled for hits, Bethlehem's offense scattered 10. Quatraro led the way with two singles and a triple for three RBI. Hackman and Keparutis each had two doubles and one RBI. David Lorette batted in two Eagle runs with a single.

Bethlehem found itself on the winning and losing end of one-run games last week. Monday, Bethlehem defeated Mohonasen 2-1, avenging an April 18 shutout loss. That contest featured a pitchers' duel between Ryan Morgan of Mohonasen and BC hurler Hackman. This time Morgan and Mizener faced off, but the Eagles fared much better.

Mizener sent nine batters down on strikes, walked one and gave up five hits.

A run in the top of the ninth gave Niskayuna the edge over the Eagles last Friday, which Bethlehem lost, 10-9, in extra innings. A grand slam by Hackman, who also doubled in the game, helped the Eagles build a healthy 8-3 lead in the first four innings. But four Niskayuna hits and several BC errors allowed the Warriors to move ahead, 9-8, in the fifth. The tying run came in the bottom of the seventh when Hodge scored on a Keparutis triple, but Nisky scored the winning run in the ninth.

"We had a lot of opportunities to win that we didn't take advantage of," said Coach Hodge. "We left a lot of runners stranded in scoring position."

Hodge also chalked the loss up to Bethlehem's six errors. "It was the poorest defensive game all season," said Hodge.

Last week's scheduled games with Scotia and Oneonta were canceled due to weather conditions. The league game with Scotia will be made up; the non-league Oneonta game will not be.

A busy schedule awaits the Eagles this week as the end of the season draws near. Last night, BC was scheduled for a non-league game with Linton in Schenectady's Central Park. Today, a key league game has Gold Division rival Guilderland hosting the Eagles. Bethlehem will play Catholic Central in a home non-league game tomorrow, and the Eagles will host Shaker in another important league game Friday.

Minors: A glimpse at the bigger picture

In response to constituents who have requested information on the overall structure (i.e. nationwide) of minor league baseball, this week's essay is in the form of a clinic.

Those with a mild degree of interest or curiosity may treat it as a blackboard presentation, perhaps to clip and post on the door of the fridge for reference during the season. Sophisticates may leave the church before the sermon, but please forgive us for being rudimentary, and come back next week.

Alongside the nation's other broad-interest team sports, baseball stands alone in several ways. No other form of competitive athletics demands as much from the capacity of the human physique, and none of the other popular pastimes has such a vast and interlocking structure of training levels between college and the major leagues.

That first precept draws arguments from devotees of football, basketball and hockey that are automatically and authoritatively refuted by the second. Simply stated, top college stars jump directly to the NFL, NBA and NHL as overnight millionaires. In baseball, that is done by barely one in 5,000. Fewer than one in 30 players signing professional contracts make it to the major leagues, and for those who do, it takes four to seven years.

Further, there is only one authentic minor league in basketball, two in hockey, and none in football. Colleges supply all the needed numbers.

Which brings us to this week's clinic, a basic profile of the structure of Organized Baseball (OB) as it has stood for more than 100 years:

The 26 major league teams head a network of 170 teams in 17 minor leagues embracing more than 3,600 players. (In the late Forties, before television, there were more than twice as many leagues and teams; the state of North Carolina once had 44 teams in OB.) This umbrella is known as the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (NAPBL), which has its own commissioner and five levels of proficiency from rookie leagues to Triple-A. Here's the 1990 rundown:

Class AAA — Triple-A Alliance International League, 8 teams, American Association, 8 teams, Pacific Coast League, 10 teams.

Class AA — Eastern (8), Southern (10), Texas (8).

Class A — Carolina (8), California (10), Florida State (14), Midwest (14), South Atlantic (12).

Short Season Class A — New York-Penn (14), Northwest (8).

Rookie — Appalachian (10), Pioneer (8), Arizona (6), Gulf Coast (14).

Only five of these 170 operate independently, that is, without parental affiliation. They do all right with free agents, and major league clubs loan them surplus farmhands.

Looking a little closer:

The Triple-A Alliance, just one short stride below the bigs, permits the International League and the American Association, each with eight teams, to play an interlocking schedule and the two champions to stage a best-of-7 playoff. (In my youth that used to be known as the Little World Series; now it's the Triple-A Classic.) The Pacific Coast League has eight teams playing strictly intramural.

That makes 26 teams in Triple-A, one for each major league franchise. Ditto for Double-A.

The descending pyramid broadens to five leagues and 58 clubs playing a full season at Single-A, plus two leagues and 22 teams classified as short-season Single-A. At this level we get deeper into the hinterlands, bringing communal joy to thousands of fans living too far away to see a major league team "live."

In Class A, the Carolina League, the California League and the Florida State League are regarded as a shade faster than the Midwest League and the South Atlantic, but only insiders can tell the difference. That leaves short-season Single-A teams, which apart from

Most major league clubs have six "farm" teams. Usually, the minor clubs are locally owned and operated, with the major league organization supplying players, manager and coaches. A typical big league club has one Triple-A team, one in Double-A, three in Single-A (one of them usually short-season) and one team in the rookie classification.

Some of the big brass have different approaches. The Cardinals and Braves, for instance, each have eight farm teams. The Mets, Yankees, Dodgers and Padres each have seven, the Giants and Orioles only five. All 26 have at least two Class A teams, 22 also stock a short-season Single-A team. Six teams have two full teams at the rookie level, the Braves three and the Giants none.

Such is the picture that will greet the top 1,400 college and high school stars who in the annual amateur draft two weeks from now will be offered the opportunity to play baseball for money. The early picks will pocket from $50,000 to $250,000 as a signing bonus. Some will pass up contract offers in order to continue in college and take chances on a better draft next year.

Those who do sign face a rugged challenge. Only a few, like Mo Vaughn of the Red Sox and Tito Martinez of the Mariners, who played in the Eastern League last year, will start at a level as lofty as Double-A. The Mets' No. 1 pick in 1989, Alan Zinter, started at Pittsfield in the short-season NY-P, as did Eric Wedge, Boston's top prize, in Elmira of the same league. (Both were promoted later in the season.)

For a more intimate glimpse, take a peek at the Chicago Cubs, now in their 45th building year since the last pennant. The Cubs' 1990 directory lists 21 first basemen behind Mark Grace, 20 second basemen besides Ryne Sandberg, 22 catchers, and so on. In the minor league training camp at Mesa (the 40-man major league roster was locked out, you remember), there were 58 pitchers, 13 catchers, 42 infielders and 28 outfielders battling to make four minor league teams at three levels before the arrival of some 40 draftees in the Class of '90.

Among that Mesa crowd were

Ty Griffin, the highly acclaimed second baseman on the U.S. Olympic team at Seoul, the No. 1 pick in the 1988 draft, and one of the Cubs' top three selections in 1989. Griffin, having trouble hitting breaking pitches, is now up to Double-A at Charlotte in the Southern League, where he is being tried at third base, Wrigley Field's No. 1 problem at the moment.

Rainouts stall march to sectional berth

By Kevin Taylor

Rain, rain go away and come back another. . . Whee! might be the song being sung these days by Voorheesville tennis coach Tom Kurkjian after the Blackbirds had three matches canceled last week by rain.

The Birds did manage to get two matches in during the week, and came away with a satisfying 6-

Softballers extend streak

By Michael Kagan

The Bethlehem Central softball team extended its Suburban Council win streak to three games by outslugging Guilderland last Monday, 11-10, in a five-inning rain-shortened game, while losing a non-league game, 16-5, last Wednesday to Catholic Central. Their record is now 3-7 in the Suburban Council.

Monday's game was started by newly found freshman pitching star Linda Smith, who lasted until the fourth when Cheryl Lovelace relieve and finished the game. Smith led the team offensively with a double and a single. Kelly Ryan and Brenda Fryer each added a double.

The Eagles fielded only 11 players against CCHS, and coach Ann Medici said that approximately half were not feeling well, making it a "tough game."

A game was scheduled for last Friday in Scotia, but was postponed until sometime this week. It will most likely be played today (Wednesday) because the game which was scheduled to be played between BC and Mohonasen in Mohonasen has been canceled due to the measles outbreak there, creating an open date.

The team also played Saratoga at home on Monday and will face Columbia again at home this Friday at 4 p.m.

Bagel run signups

Signups are now being taken for the annual Bruegger's Bagel Run, June 10 from the Albany Jewish Community Center, 340 Whitehall Rd., Albany.

1 win over Schalmont. VC was then dumped hard by Academy, 7-0, in their other match. The rainouts, against Ravena, Waterford and Watervliet haven't been reset.

Against Schalmont, a team that had already beaten the Blackbirds, 5-2, the Birds pretty much had their own way. Junior Matt Hladun, playing at No. 1, wore down Jeff Monte and won away, 6-4, 6-1. Hladun may have played his best tennis of the season against Monte in the second set.

Tom Kurkjian, the Blackbirds' No. 2 player, won a see-saw battle with Dave Palmerino, taking the first set, 6-3, in convincing fashion before dropping the second set, 6-2, but regrouped to win the third set easily 6-2. No. 3 Kevin Relyea also appeared to be playing at top form as he disposed of Vinnie Exposito rather handily, 6-1, 6-4.

The Blackbirds would have swept the Sabres if Aaron Luczak had won at No. 4, but Luczak was stymied by Bill Story, 6-4, 6-4. At No. 5, Adam Keller came back from a one-set deficit to defeat Mike D'Orazio, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, in only his second singles match all year.

In doubles, the sophomore connection of Brian Goldstein and Dave Lancor was enough to put away Greg Bruhnas and Tom Whitey, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3. The senior duo of Ben Schwartz and Ryan Brennan won easily 6-1, 6-1.

It was a different story against Academy. Matt Hladun managed four games off Brian Byrne while losing, 6-2, 6-2. Tom Kurkjian lost, 6-2, 6-1. Kevin Relyea continued his strong play against Joe Wallace, but Wallace never lost control of the match and went on to win, 6-2, 6-3. Mike Parikh defeated Aaron Luczak, 6-1, 6-0. The doubles teams did not fair much better as Goldstein and Lancor were crushed, 6-2, 6-1. Brennan and Schwartz lost, 6-1, 6-1.

This week, the Blackbirds hosted Watervliet on Monday and then traveled to Academy for the Colonial Council Tournament on Tuesday. The semifinals and finals are set for today (Wednesday) at Academy, beginning at 3 p.m.

The Birds hope that the doubles team of Tom Kurkjian and Matt Hladun will bring them a winner.

THE HEATING SYSTEM OF TOMORROW CAN BE YOURS TODAY

ELPAN® electric and VANPAN® hot water baseboard heating systems are the most advanced heating systems in the world. They are the only ones that use the unique HEAT-ENCLOSURE® concept.

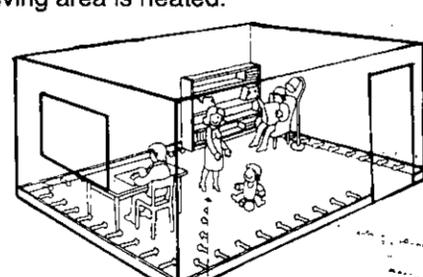

They enclose each room with uniform, homogenized, radiant heat to provide the ULTIMATE in comfort.

HEAT-ENCLOSURE® uses either electric or hot water radiant baseboard heaters only 1" wide by 5" high in place of the customary wooden baseboards on all four walls of a room to surround the room with a uniform low temperature source of radiant heat which results in completely UNIFORM temperature in the living area.

The RADIANT BASEBOARDS were developed in Denmark in the early 1970's and have been used in thousands of homes in Europe for almost twenty years. They have been proven in both laboratory tests and actual use to be the most ATTRACTIVE, COMFORTABLE, HEALTHY, ENERGY SAVING heating systems available for heating homes and buildings.

The HEAT-ENCLOSURE® radiant heat envelops the body in draft free homogenized heat and ensures the same temperature at the feet and head levels for the utmost COMFORT.

The radiant heat, which is light and pleasant, is strongest at floor level and diminishes upwards on the walls. This makes ELPAN® or VANPAN® perfect for rooms with cathedral ceilings since only the living area is heated.

The heat blanket created under the ceiling by other systems is eliminated with HEAT-ENCLOSURE®. Because the room is heated uniformly 30-40% ENERGY SAVINGS can be obtained over other systems.

HEAT-ENCLOSURE® is the greatest breakthrough in heating comfort since central heating.

It gives:
"GREATER COMFORT WITH LOWER ENERGY CONSUMPTION"

Installed and tested in thousands of American homes, ELPAN® and VANPAN® are now available for installation in YOUR home.

Friends to remember Glenmont woman

An evening to honor Gertrude M. McCaffrey, a former resident of Glenmont who died on Nov. 1, 1989, will be at St. Thomas School on Tuesday, May 22 at 7:30.

McCaffrey was a woman of vision who believed in caring for and protecting the earth. She worked enthusiastically with the Bethlehem Garden Club and its beautification committee which served the community in undertaking conservation projects.

She also organized and was chairperson of the town tree planting committee and spent many hours arranging and supervising the proper planting of trees to prevent erosion, to landscape, to beautify and to provide shade.

Reverend Robert Roos, pastor of St. Lucy's Church, Altamont will speak on A New Vision of our Environment and the responsibility we have to each other and the earth at the service at St. Thomas.

McCaffrey was a dedicated member of St. Thomas Church and was one of the first two women in the history of the Albany Roman Catholic Diocese to be installed as parish trustee. She was on the Parish Council, Human Concerns, Peace and Justice and past president of the Altar-Rosary Society.

She ministered to the needs of the residents at Kenwood and Good Samaritan homes. She directed the annual Christmas pageant and trained the young and old to be parish lectors.

A devoted wife and mother, McCaffrey lived in Colonial Acres, Glenmont and was very involved in their association and was a former president.

McCaffrey's friends have many fond memories of her on her hands and knees planting window boxes with petunias and geraniums, standing with a shovel as a new tree was planted, and weeding, watering and caring for the new plants that her committee had placed in the various parts of town.

The community is invited to share the evening in her honor.

A Memorial To Life...

It's a Matter of Caring

The time when you buy a monument is usually a difficult one. That's why you should choose a monument company that won't pressure you into buying before you're ready, either emotionally or financially. That's why we take the time to sit down and listen to what you want... and what you can afford. Then we'll explain all the options available to you. We'll let you know what you should look for when purchasing a monument, and what you should look out for.

It's simply a matter of caring. We listen, we explain. But most of all... we understand.

Winning with the Special Olympics

Special Olympics

New York

By Cathi Anne M. Cameron

This Saturday, more than 200 Olympic athletes, their coaches and training teams will descend on Albany's Blecker Stadium for a day of "summer" Olympic sports.

But instead of a variety of countries, these athletes come from a variety of local communities. And while they participate in running, long jump, shot put and a full scale of events, they face challenges far beyond those of most athletes, for these are Special Olympians.

"People that are handicapped over the years have excelled more than those without handicaps — for them to excel at their level is harder than for me at my level," said honorary Special Olympics coach and former New Jersey Nets player Lowes Moore.

Many athletes from the Bethlehem, Colonie and New Scotland areas will be competing, explained Special Olympics Head Coach Susan Handerhan.

"We have 53 going in my group alone from throughout the area, including Colonie and Delmar, and they are really looking forward to it," she said.

Handerhan, a vocational rehabilitation counselor at the Albany County Association for Retarded Citizens, said she sees a real difference between her pre and post-Olympic athletes.

"To see somebody making those increases day-by-day as we train, from not being able to make it around a track to having a real racewalker's stride, is wonderful," she said.

Handerhan's team, along with co-head coach Stephanie Allen, has been in training since March.

"We start with the paperwork in February," she explained "and practices start in March. We practice every Sunday from 9 a.m. to noon, and you really start to see the athletes in a different light. Just to see the increases — big and small — is something special, and that's what Special Olympics is all about."

Handerhan's team will be participating in track and field racewalks, runs, shot put and other events. "We also have participants in the ball toss, for the less coordinated, and three wheelchair athletes," she added.

Jim O'Rourke, a community recreational therapist at Oswald D. Heck Developmental Center, and a field coordinator for the games, is hoping for a good turnout on Saturday.

"We're trying to bring alive the spirit of the Special Olympics — that each person can do their personal best. But that also has to do with the crowd. We need recognition from the crowd for the athletes, so the more people we have in attendance, the better that recognition will be," he said.

O'Rourke finds that competing in the the Olympics brings with it a special lessons for his clients.

"Not only does it bring a special dimension to their lives in getting out and socializing and feeling positive about themselves, it also helps them strive for new goals, and most importantly, learn good sportsmanship — that it really is how you play the game, and not who wins. That's one of the major points of the games. That everyone who competes is a winner."

Susan Handerhan agrees.

Up, up and away

The countdown was on recently at Veeder elementary school in Colonie, as students from the gifted and talented program readied for the blast-off of their hand-made rockets.

Touring at Helderfest

Artisans from Voorheesville, Altamont and the Capital Region will help you celebrate spring at Helderfest, this Saturday and Sunday at the base of the Helderbergs.

The festive country tour is sponsored by Locust Knoll Artisans of New Salem, the Helderberg Workshop, Indian Ladder and Helderledge farms of Altamont.

Tractor rides, nature walks, craft fairs, sheep shearing, and garden lectures are just a few of the events scheduled for the weekend. Each of the Helderfest locations offers a peaceful country setting and a spectacular view of the budding Helderberg Escarpment.

Stop in at Helderledge Farm and stroll through the blooming gardens, attend gardening lectures, or browse through their unique collection of annuals, perennials, herbs, water plants and topiaries. The Polling Brook Morris Dancers will perform on Saturday.

Visit the Locust Knoll Artisans as they hold their lucky 13th annual Spring Show and Sale. Pottery, dried flower arrangements, quilts, baskets, porcelain dolls and woodworking are a few of the Early American primitive crafts on display.

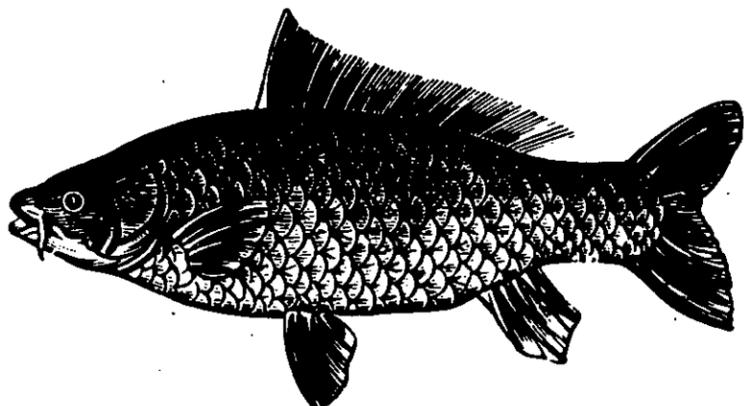

At the Helderberg Workshop, volunteers will be on hand to answer questions about their summer program for children, and lead walks on the nature trails in their springtime woods.

Finally, quench your thirst with cider from Indian Ladder Farms, or make time for a hearty lunch of homemade soups and sandwiches, topped off by a trip to their new Cold Apple Room for a crispy dessert.

While you eat, watch local weavers, quilters, sheep shearers and angora spinners demonstrate their crafts. Children will especially appreciate the tractor rides, with visits to a friendly collection of farm animals.

Maps of the Helderfest tour will be available at all locations. Also, watch for arrivals and signs along the roadway. Anyone visiting each of the four locations is eligible for unique prizes to be awarded.

Helderfest will take place rain or shine. For more information, contact Locust Knoll Artisans, Helderledge Farm or the Helderberg Workshop, all on Picard Road, or Indian Ladder Farms, on Rt. 156.

Time on the line

The season for walleye, northern pike, pickerel and tiger muskellunge fishing in our area is open.

"New York's waters provide anglers with tremendous fishing opportunities. Opening of walleye and northern pike season gives early season anglers the chance to catch a large variety of species," stated Environmental Commissioner Thomas Jorling.

Early season fishing for northern pike should be good on many Finger Lakes and larger Adirondack waters. Northern pike anglers should also try Saratoga Lake, Lake George, the St. Lawrence River and Lake Champlain.

Good waters to find tiger muskellunge are the Mohawk River, Susquehanna River, Otisco Lake, Lake Durant, Lime Lake and Findley Lake.

"You can just tell by the looks on their faces when they get their ribbons. There are lots of smiles. They know they've done something special," she said.

Handerhan's involvement will not stop this weekend, as she has three athletes, two of them from Colonie, attending the state Special Olympics at the Rochester Institute of Technology.

O'Rourke thinks the local, state and national Special Olympics will continue to grow.

"Three percent of our population, or more than seven million people, have mental retardation, and we haven't reached nearly as many people as we could with the good word about Special Olympics. Everybody involved, from the athletes, to the assigned 'huggers' at the end of the races, to the crowd, has a positive experience," he said.

O'Rourke added that more spectators would be appreciated at Saturday's event.

Albany Mayor Thomas Whalen III will open the games at 9 a.m. The newly-crowned Tulip Queen will be in attendance, along with a variety of local celebrities. Master of ceremonies will be Dr. James F. Lyng from the State University at Albany. The games will conclude at approximately 3 p.m.

Red Cross seeking student art for gala

Students in grades seven through 12 are asked to create a design incorporating the gala theme, "Clara's Drive-Up Diner." The evening is a black-tie event to benefit the Red Cross. Artwork should reflect the 1947 to 1954 period (post war era).

All artwork will be judged on imagination, detail, creativity, excitement, and originality. The winning entry will automatically be entered in the National American Red Cross Communications Excellence Awards Competition.

For information, contact Kathy Geary at 462-7461.

Fishing

The best early season pickerel waters are located in the southeast section of the state and on Long Island.

Walleye are particularly popular table fare. Northern pike, tiger muskies and pickerel have sweet, though bony flesh, so are more often targets of catch-and-release angling.

Based on last year's outstanding populations, this year promises to be excellent for walleye on a number of New York's lakes and ponds, particularly Oneida Lake and Lake Erie.

Although walleye fishing on Lake Erie does not usually heat up until June, anglers can look forward to catching lots of trophy fish over five pounds. Other good waters for walleye are Lake Champlain, Canadarago Lake, Chautauqua Lake, Great Sacandaga Lake and the Susquehanna River.

Numerous smaller waters throughout New York also provide good early season action. Anglers are advised to check their 1989-90 fishing guide for minimum length and daily limit regulations pertaining to each species and water they fish.

More information on local waters can be obtained from the nearest DEC regional fisheries office.

Free publication on warm water fishing is available from the department, "I Love New York Bass, Walleye, Pike, Panfish and Musky Fishing." For information, write to: NYSDEC, License Sales, Room 11, 50 Wolf Road, Albany, NY 12233-4790.

What kind of fish are in Lake Ronkonkoma? How deep is Central Park Lake in Manhattan? How do you get to the Fourth Binnewater Lake in Ulster County?

The answers to these and other fishy questions are available courtesy of a new series of lake atlases published by the State Department of Environmental Conservation.

Volume Four of New York State Lakes: a Morphometric Atlas of Selected Lakes, Regions 1, 2 and 3 provides detailed information on 80 lakes, ponds and reservoirs from the Hudson Valley area to Long Island, New York City and the Catskills.

Atlas Volume Two details the Capital District, Volume One covers the North Country, and Volume Three maps the Western Adirondacks.

All four volumes are available at a charge of $2.50 per book. The atlases may be purchased from the Department of Environmental Conservation in Colonie, 50 Wolf Road, Room 301.

Great minds don't always think alike.

Einstein failed algebra. Edison's teacher was convinced he was beyond help.

We're the Learning Center. We specialize in helping children of all ages become confident in their learning skills and achieve success in school.

Children who don't meet classroom expectations too often retreat from the effort out of fear and disappointment. The Learning Center reverses the retreat with patient encouragement, all incorporated into a thoughtful program of skill building that is individually planned for each student.

Because with friendly encouragement and a love for learning, a child can do great things.

Risk factors for adolescent drug abuse

The risk factors discussed in this series have been compiled by Drs. J. David Hawkins and Richard F. Catalano after extensive review of research findings in adolescent drug abuse. The findings should be interpreted like risk factors for heart or lung disease. That is, if your child or your family has one of these characteristics it increases your child's chances of developing a problem with alcohol or other drug use. However, it does not mean that having one of these factors guarantees that your child will have an alcohol or other drug related problem, just that the risk is increased. Conversely, not having any of these risk factors apply does not mean your child is immune from alcohol or other drug related problems.

1. Family history of alcoholism

Research from several perspectives has continued to demonstrate a link between family drinking problems and adolescent alcohol and other drug abuse. Boys with alcoholic fathers are up to four times more likely to abuse alcohol themselves. On the biological side, there is evidence that some children of alcoholics are genetically predisposed to develop alcoholism. On the environmental side, parents who are alcoholics provide a powerful role model that is likely to influence their children's behavior.

2. Family management problems

Family management problems have a consistent predictor of adolescent alcohol and other drug abuse. These problems include poorly defined rules for behavior, inconsistent consequences for rule violations, poor parental monitoring of children's behavior, excessively severe discipline, negative communication patterns including constant criticism and lack of praise, and other involvement of one parent and distance by the other. Children who grow up in homes where rules are not clearly stated and enforced have trouble knowing what is expected of them. If they are not rewarded for good behavior, then they don't know when they are doing good things or that their good behavior makes a difference. Similarly, if they aren't consistently and appropriately disciplined for doing bad things, then they can't develop a sense of right and wrong and the ability to use good judgment. These children have an increased risk of developing problems with alcohol and other drugs.

(Additional risk factors will be discussed in this column over the next few weeks.)

Making a claim for hi-tech damage estimators

It's just a little larger than a cordless telephone. It weighs less than three pounds. But, this powerful little hand-held computer, called the PC 1000, can be the key to getting your damaged car or truck back on the road faster and with less hassle than ever before.

The PC 1000 was developed by Automatic Data Processing, Inc. (ADP), the largest independent data and information communication service in the United States. ADP Automotive Claims Services, a major ADP division, provides computerized auto physical damage estimates, up-to-the-minute evaluations of "totaled" vehicles, and a parts locating service to auto insurers and auto repair facilities throughout the United States and Canada.

All of this information comes from the ADP database, which contains the identification number, name, and price for every part on more than 98 percent of the cars and trucks on the road since 1970. The amount of labor time required for thousands of steps involved in vehicle repairs is also available.

For the motorist, this means that a damage estimate and check can be delivered to any location, no matter how remote. The entire transaction is completed in a matter of minutes. At a drive-in claims center the procedure is the same. The car owner can go immediately to a repair shop, rather than rent a car and wait for the estimate to arrive in the mail.

The PC 1000 Portable Estimating System was created after two years of research during which the ADP staff worked with claims adjusters and managers. The question presented to these people was, "What do you need to do your job faster and more economically?" Following months of study and hundreds of interviews, the PC 1000 was developed for distribution by ADP Automotive Claims Services.

The PC 1000 functions effectively with a standard telephone or cellular phone and modem. It provides all of the tools needed by an estimator including an 80 column printer and a rechargeable battery which operates for up to 16 hours between charges. The rugged, all-weather unit has an easy-to-read display screen, simple menus, and prompts to assist the estimator.

The PC 1000 is being thoroughly field tested and is currently being distributed in the United States and Canada.

An auto accident is a trying experience. ADP, working in close association with insurance companies and repairers, has developed this new specialized technology for the benefit of everyone involved.

Weighing less than three pounds, the hand-held PC 1000 computer puts an auto damage claims estimator in touch with a variety of locations in the U.S. or Canada.

"Big transmission problem or minor adjustment?"

It takes an expert to know!"

Claude Akins

"Notice a leak under your transmission? A funny noise? Slipping gears? Now's the time to take your car into your nearby AAMCO center.

AAMCO center skilled mechanics will check your transmission out nine ways to Sunday. If it's just a small problem that looks like a big one, they'll spot it. Fact is, many of the cars serviced by AAMCO dealers wind up not needing a new transmission. Domestic or imported, automatic or manual, car or truck, come to AAMCO now. It may not be as bad as you think."

Advertising Director
Spotlight Newspapers, Inc.
Delmar, NY 12054

Dear Bob,

I have been advertising in The Spotlight since first opening my Delaware Plaza store in 1984. The Spotlight is not only cost effective but concentration effective, allowing me to reach a larger percentage of my market than the daily newspapers do.

The Colonie Spotlight, since its premier has been a pleasant surprise, with the response to our Spotlight ads always better than in other area newspapers.

While I'm at it, I would also like to compliment your sales staff, and especially, Bruce Neyerlin who is extremely courteous and efficient with follow up!

Keep up the good work!

Sincerely,

Laura Taylor
