Butcher shop closing after 27 years in Delmar

By Susan Graves

McCarroll's, The Village Butcher, is closing shop this Saturday. Not just for the usual two-week July vacation, but for keeps.

Jim McCarroll III, who has worked in the family-run meat market for 18 years said he and his family decided to close "basically because of changing times."

"There's too much overhead, not enough traffic," he said.

In addition, he said the popularity of beef has fallen off in the past several years. "Beef consumption is down." He said the store tried to expand offerings to include seafood and deli sandwiches, along with expanding its hours, but the approach didn't work.

Add to that the fact that younger, two-career couples have little time to spend shopping at small specialty businesses. "The bigger stores have everything from A to Z. People don't have as much time," he said.

McCarroll, 33, said he has given a lot of thought about what to do with the business, and the decision to close was an agonizing one. He said he and his father and grandmother, Ethel, were all involved in the decision. "It was a family decision. People can't be any sadder than I am. It's my whole livelihood."

He explained that the family thought this weekend would be the best time to close because the store, which has been in operation for about 27 years, usually shuts down for vacation at this time every year. The McCarroll family has been in business since 1921. They first opened a market in Albany before moving to Delmar.

"We thought this was the best time. It's a decision that had to be made. There's too much overhead and not enough volume," he said.

McCarroll's employed four full-time and five part-time employees.

Jim McCarroll is uncertain about his future and the future of the Delaware Avenue store. Right now, he's going to enjoy a two-week vacation.

McCarroll has no regrets. "The town has been very good to me," he said.

Wemple Road site eyed for demolition dump

By Mike Larabee

A proposal for a 21-acre regional construction and demolition landfill, which would swallow up to 100,000 cubic yards of debris a year, is in the early stages of the State's Environmental Quality Review (SEQR) process.

The landfill is proposed for a former sand mine on a 125-acre light-industrial-zoned tract north of Wemple Road between the Thruway on the west and Conrail lines on the east. The site would be accessed strictly from Bask Road off Route 144, according to Thomas Julien, project manager for Energy Answers, the firm performing the development work on the C & D Recycling proposal.

C & D partnership is an Albany-based consortium owned by Bill Ritz of A-Ritz Wrecking, a city demolition and general contracting firm, and Pat Mahoney, president of Energy Answers Corp., operators of Albany's Rapp Road waste processing facility.

According to Julien, the proposal includes a recycling transfer facility. He said C & D partnership hopes to deflect

Assessments process begins

By Susan Graves

The town of Bethlehem has signed a contract with Finnegan Associates, Inc. of Concord, Mass. to begin the process of reassessing 11,035 town properties.

All parcels, including vacant lots, church properties and commercial establishments will be reassessed.

At a press conference Tuesday, Robert J. Finnegan, president of the firm, said he's hoping work on the two-year project will begin as early as next week.

One "kick-off" event on the $443,000 project is a public informational meeting planned for July 23, at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

"The purpose of the program is to comply with a new state rule which requires that all assessors have a property inventory," Finnegan said.

Idyllic Main Square setting: Blessing or curse?

By Mike Larabee

By almost any standard, Main Square plaza in Delmar is an idyllic place to shop. Ample parking, elegant Colonial storefronts and meticulous landscaping create an atmosphere that, at least in terms of peace and quiet, is in sharp contrast with nearby Delaware Plaza.

In fact, a number of former and current retail tenants are saying, it's too quiet.

More than two years after its December 1987 opening, Main Square Shoppes at 326 Delaware Avenue is still fighting to win a permanent place in the hearts and minds of local consumers. "It's a beautiful location, but is that enough?" said Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Marty Cornelius. "Hundreds and hundreds of cars go by every day, but do they stop? Do they know what's in there?"

In there, in a pair of two-floor buildings with outdoor, wooden-railed walkways, are 23 office, service, and retail establishments ranging from Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream to the Chamber of Commerce to Dr. Minoo Buchanan, pediatric dentist. Some, like Cornelius — who says she's "happy as a clam" since she moved her office from Adams Street in February — and Toy Maker owner Dennis Frank,

Bethlehem centenarian offers sage advice

By Mary Ahlstrom

After listening to Ethel Pratt, who will celebrate her 100th birthday next month, it was clear that we live in a caring community. Ethel is lonely, but she is not alone.

I met my new friend the other day when I volunteered to deliver a package to her Delmar apartment.

When I knocked on her door a cheery voice called out "Who is it? please, come in." She was dressed in a neat house dress sitting in a comfy chair, her white hair fashionably styled. She looked like she was expecting company.

"My eyes are bad, I don't see so good, come closer so I can see you. Please sit down, who are you? What is your name? I'm so happy to have company. I do get so lonely."

Ethel Grace Pratt (Grace by the grace of God, her parents said when she was born to them late in their married life) was born in Albany and grew up in a house that's still standing a hundred years later in Arbor Hill. The family moved to Albany from Newfoundland after her grandfather, who was a superintendent in a copper mine, lost his eye in a mining accident.

Ethel received a teaching degree from the former Albany State College and was a home economics teacher for about 55 years. She never married, and consequently became the caretaker for her elderly parents and eventually two older brothers.

Ethel is surrounded by memorabilia. During my visit, we spent some time looking over her many photos including pictures of her mother and father. "Mother was older than dad," she said. And we looked at pictures of her three brothers and and three sisters, all long gone.

The phone rang and it was a grandniece calling from California. This niece calls every Saturday morning. Ethel still has family in California and Canada. She traveled to visit them when she was younger, and they still keep in touch. Ethel has come to rely on these telephone visits from assorted relatives and also local calls from friends and neighbors.

As for outside help, as Ethel puts it, "There is a 'angel' that comes in to help me every morning to get washed and dressed and prepare a simple meal." She hesitates to name her "angel" for fear of losing her.

Meals on Wheels is also available to her, and she has high praise for the food and the volunteers. Although she was once active with senior groups, now only on a rare occasion does she attend a senior function.

Ethel is able to read with the use of a magnifying glass, which she carries in one of many cloth bags. She loops the necessary bag around her wrist as she makes her way around her little apartment. Along with the magnifying glass, the bag contains her portable phone, TV remote control, magic marker for messages, and shopping wish list.

Arranged so there is enough room for her to get around with her walker, the furniture is strategically placed so she can get to the bathroom or kitchen to help herself to whatever the "angel" left ready.

Ethel has lived in the same apartment since 1964. Her ground-floor apartment lets her look out and almost see the world go by.

One possession that Ethel was anxious for me to see was her Bible. It was close at hand wrapped in a peach satin book holder, treated like a treasure. Ethel reads, remembers and relies on her Bible.

She had this request. Tell the people, "Just because you're old, doesn't mean you're brain dead. Old people can be repetitious, but they still have a few things of interest to say."

It's not easy to leave Ethel. But, after a couple of false starts finally the goodbye. As the door closes she calls out, "Thank you for coming, please come back soon."

Know what? I think as soon as I turn this in, I'll run over and see Ethel.

Town files injunction on disputed mausoleum

By Mike Larabee

Bethlehem town officials have filed an injunction with the State Supreme Court barring representatives of A.F.V. Enterprises Inc. from the Slingerland Family Mausoleum, a 19th century rectangular chamber cut into a hillock in the woods behind Hoogy's restaurant.

The vault is located on a 60 by 85 foot island within A.F.V.'s 1562 New Scotland Road property and is at the center of an ownership dispute between the town and Anthony and Fulvia Pizzitola, two of A.F.V.'s principals.

According to Anthony Pizzitola, the vault falls under the care of the Slingerlands Historical Integrity Trust, Inc., a not-for-profit corporation he formally created early this year. He said the town has never before shown any interest in maintaining the cemetery and only recently has made the site an issue in order, he believes, to block A.F.V. from developing the property.

In 1980, the town adopted a resolution designating the plot a historic landmark. The Pizzitolas say they were never notified of the resolution and that the town had no right to make the declaration in the first place.

The disagreement originated the week preceding the May 12 Community Bethlehem Day, when the Pizzitolas notified the Slingerlands Homeowners Association it would not be permitted to perform a scheduled cleanup of the site without showing proof of liability insurance. The cleanup was subsequently canceled, but Town Attorney Bernard Kaplowitz sent a letter warning A.F.V. that it cannot prevent access to either the cemetery or a 16.5 foot access right-of-way, both of which, Kaplowitz said, are town property.

"The town doesn't own it," Anthony Pizzitola said afterwards. "Let them prove that the right of way is theirs. Let them take us to court."

During an executive session two weeks ago, the town board moved to do just that.

"The suit has been brought to clarify the title and determine who the actual owner is," said Town Supervisor Ken Ringler. "That's what the courts are for."

According to Ringler, the Pizzitolas' deed specifically excludes the cemetery and right-of-way. He said Pizzitola is blocking the town from fulfilling its obligation to maintain the vault property. "He has no right to do that," said Ringler.

Homeowners question DOT payments

By Bob Hagyard

Orchard Park homeowners want to know why the state Department of Transportation compensated some Route 155 residents whose wells were contaminated by salt, but not others.

"We can document over 30 homes that have wells polluted by salt," said Joseph Cotazino, president of the Orchard Park Neighborhood Association. He claimed that, by offering to pay $1,000 settlements to five homeowners, DOT's Region 1 office has in effect admitted an association claim: that DOT's salt storage shed at the foot of Route 155 is at least partially responsible for well water problems in the area.

DOT has sent affidavits and vouchers to Frank and Ruth Vincent, Leland Wright, Mark Fiato, Leo C. Miller and James and Kathleen Giminiani, homeowners on the east side of the state highway whose wells are within the salt "plume" emanating from the storage shed.

Meanwhile, Cotazino and the association want copies of DOT files to determine how the agency decided why some homeowners were approved for payments and others were not.

After DOT denied a Freedom of Information Act request, Timothy Gilchrist, executive assistant to DOT Commissioner Franklin White, denied an appeal on the grounds that it was filed more than 15 days after the denial. But according to Robert Freeman of the state Committee on Open Government, a 30-day rule applies.

State law prohibits the agency from providing "information on how the agency awards direct financial aid," said John Taylor, director of DOT's Region 1 office. However a subordinate apparently complicated that legal defense by allowing Cotazino to review the records in person at the regional office.

As for the main issue, Cotazino says his association wants "Commissioner White and the supervisor of New Scotland to take a leadership role in this. DOT contends that a $1,000 payment will cover the costs of curing contaminated wells. But if you talk to area water purification companies, you will find that the cost of remedial systems is as high as $8,000. Further, the $1,000 offer won't cover half the expense of hooking up to a public water supply."

The association has contacted Assemblymen Richard Connors, who represents New Scotland, and Maurice Hinchey, who chairs the Assembly Environmental Conservation Committee, as well as state Sen. Howard Nolan. "We are looking for leadership from them, too, to get DOT to the table to decide what to do for these people," Cotazino said.

No public water supply is available for the homeowners. Voorheesville won't allow any more taps into the village mains outside its boundaries, while plans for an Orchard Park Water District, to cover homes in the subdivision and further north on Route 155, can't use well water from Tall Timbers until William M. Larned and Sons ceases soil mining operations in the area.

Clarksville residents bugged by culvert

To hear residents tell it, the latest threat to public health in Clarksville isn't nitrates in water the hamlet hasn't got.

It's an artificial swamp.

Or so say several residents of the hamlet's North Street-Fuller Lane neighborhood. To reach the Springer and Relyea residences, Fuller Lane vaults over a natural dip. Town highway crews threw a culvert into that causeway to ensure drainage.

Only it doesn't drain, and mosquitoes have risen up by the millions to pester the neighbors. Mosquitoes are carriers of heartworm and the virus that causes equine encephalitis, said James Dunn of 12 North Rd.

"You don't dare go outside after 7 p.m.," Dunn said. "We now have three to four feet of water, algae over the water, turtles and muskrats, and a stench you wouldn't believe. We have got rid of half of it at our own expense. Now it's time for the town to keep its promise to look at the culvert."

That promise, Dunn said, came from Supervisor Herbert Reilly, who reportedly promised in February that Michael Hotaling, town highway superintendent, would send a crew to measure the culvert height with a surveyor's transit

The neighbors still await that crew.

Acknowledging the unfulfilled promise, Reilly last week noted that it would cost about $26,000 to alleviate the problem by filling in the swampland, "nearly as much" to lower the culvert, if that is the cause of the problem.

say the plaza has been perfect. But some others, notably retailers, have criticisms.

"If I could get out of my lease, I would," said Joe Alcombright, owner of J & S Shoes. "If I had to do it over, would I come in again, knowing what I know now? I would probably not come in here."

That retailer and others say that when they agreed to pay higher per-square-foot base rents than Delaware Plaza (but below Stuyvesant Plaza in Guilderland) they believed mall tenants would be strictly, or at least mostly, what they defined as pure "retail" stores. Without the walk-in traffic they counted on from a clustering of 23 shops, they say they've had trouble surviving.

But Dennis Corrigan, speaking for an ownership partnership consisting of himself, his brother Thomas, and James Breen (of James Breen Real Estate, Second Floor, Main Square plaza), said mall tenantry simply represents the best available on the current market.

"Is it the absolute ideal mix? No," Corrigan said. "Do I think it's the best mix we could have gotten in the market? I say yes."

While agreement over what, exactly, constitutes "retail," "service," and "office" space is hard to find, the businesses at Main Square can loosely be broken down as follows — six retailers (including food outlets): The Toy Maker, Joyelles Fine Jewelry, Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, the newly-renamed Bagelicious bagel shop, Gingersnips Ltd., and J & S Shoes; six services: Tuxego Formal Wear, Lynn Finley Photography, Mary Scanlan Public Relations, The Magic of Music, Profile Hair Design, and Travelhost Travel Agency; seven offices: Noreast Real Estate, Minoo Buchanan D.M.D., Journey Chiropractic, Richard H. Green P.E. P.C., Richard A. Felch D.O., and the Chamber of Commerce; and three vacancies. A regional cellular phone distributor, will be filling one of the vacancies shortly, Thomas Corrigan said.

Dennis Corrigan wouldn't comment on allegations by former tenants, The Daily Grind and Babies Breath, that Main Square space was promoted as part of a strictly retail locale, citing of the possible extension of litigation with those stores. But Jeffrey Pfeil of Pfeil and Company, marketing consultants and leasing agents when the plaza opened, said that in his opinion it was not.

"I think it's evolving the way it was initially planned," said Pfeil. He said that from the start it was expected that the second level of the plaza would be predominantly service and professional office space, as are most second floor locations in two floor outdoor malls.

But Daily Grind proprietor Lee Cohen, who combined his former Main Square cafe and retail shop into his original Lark Street, Albany location after a spring court decision in favor of plaza ownership, disagreed. One of the first to commit to Main Square, he is bitter about his experiences at the Delmar location. Cohen said he was told and believed the plaza would be exclusively retail.

"You can blame it on the market and that's a very nice way out but there's a zillion malls out there and they're all getting retail," Cohen said. He said his new cafe on Lark Street has done more business in its first month than it did after two years in Main Square.

"Eventually, you can only lose so much money," said Cohen.

Pfeil said the Daily Grind departure, as well as the departures of Babies Breath and three other original tenants, was routine for three years of any mall's life.

"They've gone through a couple of tenants, which is bound to happen. There will always be some form of attrition," Pfeil said. "Some businesses are too weak to make it."

"Any business has to be fundamentally sound," said Corrigan. "It must be able to survive alone. To whatever extent they benefit by clustering together in groups, that's a bonus." Corrigan said he is satisfied with the mall's progress, noting that they have consistently met the occupancy percentage goals they were working toward from the start.

However, another current retailer, who also spoke on condition of anonymity, said the issues involved are more complex than simply routine attrition. On the one hand, as Corrigan says, businesses that won't stand up on their own, will not do well in a shopping complex either. But on the other hand, the retailer asks, don't so-called retail center rents imply an obligation on the lessors part?

"When business is good, we don't say thank you. When business is bad, we don't blame them," said the retailer. "But to ignore the fact that this is the direction we've started to go is crazy."

"I signed the lease, but I feel they have a responsibility. I don't know if it comes under legal, moral or ethical," the retailer said.

Still, not all current retailers are dissatisfied. New Joyelles Jewelers owners Mary Vail and Sharon Boudreau are enthusiastic about the location despite other retailer's complaints, which they said they were well aware of when they bought the store. Bagelicious recently closed two other area locations but elected to keep open their Main Square store because it was the most successful. In addition, Dennis Frank, owner of The Toy Maker, said his business is doing just fine at the plaza.

"I'm very pleased to be in Delmar, very pleased to be in Main Square," Frank said. "It's the best retail center in the Bethlehem area in terms of ambiance, parking and convenience."

Still, Frank said, he thinks there are people in the town who don't know Main Square is there. "My only recommendation is for people in this community to get out of their cars and get an ice cream cone and walk around the center," he said.

One man who'd love to see that happen is Tom Rowlands, owner of both the Ben & Jerry's at Main Square and Lark Street in Albany. Rowlands said that after a very slow second year, so far 1990 has been his most successful at the plaza.

"It'll never do what Lark Street has done," he said, but attributed that to intense competition in Delmar and Slingerlands and not an

JAPANESE BEETLES Timely Tips from Joe Huth (former Cooperative Extension Agent for Albany County)

Japanese beetle adults will soon be feeding on your roses, grapes and other plants! I have seen a Japanese beetle on marigolds!

The beetle has an interesting, but devastating life cycle. The adults emerge in late June and July and feed on many plants. They mate in July and lay eggs in sunny areas of the lawn. The eggs hatch during late July and August when the small grubs start feeding on the grass roots. During the cold weather, the grubs go deeper into the soil where they are protected. In the spring, they are bigger and hungrier and this is when you see bare patches in the lawn. During May, the larva pupate and are transformed into an adult beetle and the cycle starts over again.

Japanese beetle control is best accomplished at an adult stage and at the young larva stage. The adults can be killed with either Sevin or Methoxychlor. Both are quite safe to use and should be applied as a spray or dust as soon as you see the first beetles. Another way to control the adults is to use beetle traps with attractants. The young larva can be controlled by treating your lawn with Dursban, Sevin or Oflomol. This is best done in August or early September when the larva are small and near the surface. An alternating control measure is the use of milky spore disease which can be applied to the lawn and watered in. The advantage to using pesticides is that all kinds of grubs (and other soil insects) will be controlled while the milky spore disease is specific to the Japanese Beetle.

Grubs can ruin a lawn so keep after the beetles and their larva to prevent damage.

between 30 and 50 percent of material from the landfill into reuse and recycling programs.

The landfill would operate for 10 years and service the eight towns, five cities and one village included in the Albany ANSWERS watershed, Julien said.

According to David Stout, Department of Environmental Conservation (EnCon) project analyst, some confusion persists over whether C & D Recycling intends to grind up material before disposal at the site. He said that if that's the case, the state might require the installation of a double composite liner and leachate collection system — safeguards associated with full-fledged sanitary fills.

Stout said that, if unchecked, crushed construction and demolition debris can create air quality problems.

"History has shown that breaking construction and demolition material into little pieces causes it to decompose at a more rapid rate than it would otherwise," Stout said. Also, he added, it will decompose without oxygen because the material is packed together tightly, creating hydrogen sulfide — more commonly known as a rotten egg smell — and other vapors that can cause respiratory and other health irritations.

But Julien said early talk about crushing the material prior to disposal was an EnCon invention.

"That was EnCon coming up with that one. We're not going to be doing that," said Julien. "What they're confusing this with is a mechanical system. There are mechanical systems out there that will process demolition waste to an unrecognizable material. That's not what we're planning to do."

Stout said Monday the written C & D partnership application did not propose including any crushed materials in the landfill, though he is still concerned that leftovers from the recycling operation also planned for the site could find their way to the landfill.

"How can I be sure it won't go in if they have a crusher on the site?" Stout said.

According to Stout, the state has determined that the proposal may have a significant effect on the environment, requiring an environmental impact study (EIS).

Stout said EnCon had determined that the proposal could result in impacts on:

- Private wells serving existing area residences if leachate control is not adequate because no public water service exists.

• Air quality due to odor, combustion pollutants from the disposal operation, and the threat of fires.

• Nearby wetlands due to erosion, sedimentation, runoff and secondary effects such as water, sewer, and roadway extensions.

• Archaeological resources if other than use of the formally mined 21 acres occurs.

• Town roads not designed for large capacity trucks, since 250,000 cubic yards of sand and clay will be removed from the site and about 2,000 cubic yards of refuse would be brought in per day.

• Bethlehem's control on unauthorized dumping (now controlled by town ordinance) and the goals of the Regional Solid Waste Plan (ANSWERS), as well as its consistency with state and local plans.

• Land use planning because the landfill would require a Bethlehem use variance. According to EnCon, alternative siting of such a regional facility would have to be considered.

• Noise impacts from construction, operation and truck traffic.

In addition, at a Bethlehem Solid Waste Task Force meeting last week, Chair Bruce Secor and other members formulated a list of three additional aspects the EIS should examine:

• How the site would be supervised. The task force said the names of those who would monitor the facility should be included in the document as well as plans describing procedures for disposing rejected substances elsewhere.

• What the effect of grinding up the material on air quality would be.

• The proposed recycling program in detail.

absence of walk-in traffic that might come from a larger clustering of retail operations.

"I'm sure it does have some effect, but there's no way I can measure it," he said. "I don't think it could make or break my business, but, yes, it would be nice to get a little extra."

Frank credited Breen and the Corrigan's efforts to include as much quality retail at the center as possible.

"The ownership has been receptive in terms of the goals that we all have, which is to continue to work to make the complex a complete and full retail complex," Frank said, adding that he thinks the other tenants located there are appropriate.

Frank pointed out that the owners have turned away a number of applicants they felt weren't in keeping with the kind of quality outlets for which the mall is designed.

DENTURES - HANDLE WITH CARE

When is the most dangerous time in the life of dentures (sometimes called false teeth — but not by dentists)? The most dangerous period is when your dentures are out of your mouth!

Dentures should be handled carefully when they're out of your mouth. Dropping them even a few inches into a washbowl can break them. Hold your dentures over a towel or a basin half-filled with water. Then, should they slip from your hand, there will be a cushion to help prevent damage.

When dentures are out of your mouth for any length of time, they should be placed in water or a cleansing solution. If they become dry, they can warp. Dentures should NEVER be placed in hot water. Hot water can warp the plastic.

If your denture does break, do not try to put it together yourself. Solvents found in some glues can damage denture plastics and irritate your mouth. It is almost impossible to precisely align broken parts. If you try, the denture will fit poorly and be useless or, even worse, harmful. Go directly to your dentist for repair.

A suitable moratorium

The new proposal to freeze three current solid-waste disposal projects appears to be a well-advised move in the Bethlehem Town Board.

As Supervisor Kenneth Ringler explained, the board has been "discussing the idea of standards we might want . . . that could exceed EnCon regulations." The most recent proposal, that of General Electric for an incinerator-ash landfill in Selkirk, on top of two other major project proposals, seemed to make the freeze a timely necessity.

"I think this is the time for the appropriate use of moratorium," said the Supervisor. The morato-

Prosperity . . . posterity

Development and growth, so inevitable as well as essential in a healthy community, are not, however, invariably big "plus" words.

The vitality of any given community certainly depends on the presence of a population possessing the ability and the inclination to be economically productive and self-sustaining. Likewise, the community and its area must be able to support commercial enterprises that will create their own prosperity and, in so doing, endow the community and its people with a decent livelihood. The alternative, ultimately, is a lack of purpose, a failure of viability—a ghost town. And all this is predicated on a thriving system of free enterprise. That's not just a national slogan; it must operate effectively in every single locality.

Sometimes it seems that the system's advocates—"the boosters," as they're sometimes termed—focus on growth as such, without due concern for other necessary aspects of a vital social mix. It's this impression that the moratori-

The Albert legacy

It would be difficult, perhaps impossible, to find an Albany-area organization devoted to serving humankind that hasn't benefitted from the benevolences of Sidney Albert and his partner, Irving Kirsch.

Mr. Albert, who died unexpectedly last weekend, leaves an extraordinary legacy of awareness

Off on the low road

Regardless of whatever Pierre Rinfret's basic credentials for New York's governorship may be, his campaign has stumbled off to a dismal start. His own loose lips are to be blamed.

Mr. Rinfret loosed a barrage of attacks on Governor Cuomo that earn discredit not to the Governor but to himself. He assailed the Governor's character in terms that don't bear repeating, including his lack of a military service record.

We applaud the comment, in this respect, from

Recognizing Lew Swyer

Early last year, soon after Lew Swyer's untimely death, The Spotlight editorially suggested that an appropriate means of memorializing his many contributions to the arts would be the naming of a theater in his honor.

Now that desirable goal has become a reality. What has been known as the Studio Theater in Empire State Plaza has been renamed the Swyer Theater by the Legislature and Governor.

Let's light up: a good law

We believe that most people will be heartily in favor of a new law that ought to help traffic move more safely and expeditiously under certain difficult conditions.

As soon as you need to turn on your windshield wiper because of rain, snow, or other atmospheric conditions, you are going to be required to turn on your headlights. (This isn't effective until next January, for some reason—as though you'll need the next six months to adapt to this obligation.)

Many drivers now make a practice of turning rium, if approved, would give the town several months to consider new ordinances to govern landfills, incinerators, and other refuse-disposal operations. This shapes up as a highly desirable period for such consideration in the interest of sound judgments and decisions.

With this in mind, we suggest the timeliness of the accompanying editorial comment on moratoriums ("Prosperity . . . posterity.") ums described by Mr. Anthony Lee reflect on the part of communities in this week's "Point of View" column.

The natural assets of an area—those of a region or merely those of a suburb—do have an innate and irreplaceable value in themselves. When they are sacrificed, or when they appear threatened, the burden of proof becomes that of the would-be "developer" to demonstrate that a proposed alteration of such resources has truly redeeming features.

A new access ramp for a superhighway offers many benefits to the public. But the cloverleaf that will be required will eat up acres of once-tillable land or attractive, refreshing greenery, to be replaced by more tons of concrete.

With that over-simplified (and impersonal) example of "growth" in mind, communities and their officials, and boards, and planners do well to ponder proposals for change, and insist on due process in behalf of posterity.

and responsiveness to the special needs of others. Successful in business, he joined in philanthropic enterprise that probably was unparalleled locally for many years. Mr. Kirsch notes that the total of groups they have assisted was at least 220. Indeed a splendid legacy, not merely of altruism but of example.

a naval recruiting officer, to this effect: "I wish all eligible citizens would apply for military service—today—but I realize that this is not what the democracy we defend is all about. Someone who chose to pursue a college education is not necessarily a chicken anymore than someone who joined the military is necessarily a hero. . . . A lot of great Americans never served in the military."

Open-minded citizens who properly hope for a credible campaign on matters of substance, not on name-calling, must feel discouraged at this point by the Republican nominee's low road.

Mr. Swyer's commitment to theater arts and other cultural enterprise more than justifies the designation. His benevolences to such organizations were a source of much-needed material support and also of inspiration. The entire state owes much to his accomplishments on behalf of the arts, and this particular recognition is most fitting.

on the headlights when driving conditions are murky, both as a means of being able to discern the highway better and to ensure that other drivers (and pedestrians and cyclists) can see their approach. But, unfortunately, many other motorists ignore this safety practice and their darkened presence in a group of lighted cars makes the driving more hazardous.

Now there's to be an enforceable deadline on lighting up—when there's precipitation. Still hazy is the timing of "lights on" in twilight conditions; it's by the clock, without regard for actual visibility.

Why the town pool sometimes closes early

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to respond to last week's letter to the editor regarding the early closing of the Elm Avenue Park Pool on June 9 and 23.

On days when it is raining for most of the day and the forecast does not call for much improvement, the pool may be closed early. The sole reason is to save Bethlehem taxpayers approximately $60 per hour to staff the pool. It is difficult to justify this considerable expense to provide recreation for a handful of people who would use the pool during poor weather conditions.

I hope Mr. Kelly and others will understand that the decision to close the pool early is a judgment call. Our excellent staff has made the correct decision to close early a number of times throughout the years, thus saving thousands of dollars.

On June 23 we made the wrong call and steps have been taken to attempt to avoid closing quite so early. I apologize to anyone who was inconvenienced.

BC Class of '90 says thanks for the memory

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing on behalf of Bethlehem Central's graduating class of 1990 that attended this year's "Senior Celebration."

It is both difficult and rare to combine the people, services, and organizations of a community in order to provide for a specific group. Although it is difficult, when it does occur it brings a sense of pride and unity to members of that community.

We, as the Class of '90, had the privileged honor of enjoying the fruits of such an occasion. The after-graduation party provided for us was truly a terrific success! Without the dedicated work of the many parent volunteers and generous sponsors, our graduation would have been just another ceremony.

Instead, we will remember our graduation night because we all spent it together, one last time. That is something on which a price can never be put.

More letters on Page 8

We extend our deepest thanks to Bernice Christian and Marty Lazarus, the coordinators; all the parent volunteers, both of juniors and seniors; the American Legion, Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, Mickey's Sporting World, and all other sponsors who donated products and support, for making some amazing memories and starting an outstanding tradition! Thank you all!

UNCLE DUDLEY

The secret life of Uncle Dudley

It was 12:45 when I boarded the bus headed uptown. I'd been waiting on the corner for quite some time, and after getting on the bus I made a point of telling the passengers nearby that I had first tried for a ride at noon, and so I was going to be late.

The other passengers didn't seem to be much interested, though one lady across the aisle, near the window, looked back with a sympathetic smile, I noted.

As I just said, the bus was headed uptown, and the street we were on was Broadway in New York City, though the corner where I boarded greatly resembled the corner of State and James streets in Albany. The bus was crowded, and I was seated in the rear; in fact, it was as though I'd entered through a rear door. To tell the truth, in some respects the bus was more than a bit like a taxicab, a large one that would carry several passengers easily enough. There was a couple to my left who seemed to be personable, and they and I had an animated conversation, though the subject-matter really doesn't matter much, I guess.

Before the bus could pull away from the corner, a jazzy coupe (maybe a roadster) pulled from the extreme left lane across about three lanes of traffic, including ours, to make a right turn. Everyone was amazed by this, and I felt irked at the danger that was involved for all of us.

I tried to register, but the clerk was only the barkeep

At last on our way uptown on Broadway, I was interested, though not especially surprised, to observe that the paving was of cobblestones, making for a considerably rough ride. We made our way slowly through the dense traffic and after a rather long ride (during which I became later and later, for something), a street branched off to the left. I tried to explain to my conversational friends where it went, but regardless they decided to get off and walk in that direction.

It was at that stage that I realized that I, too, was where I wanted to go. Once on the street, I found my destination close by. It was a small but elegant hotel with a highly polished mahogany facade. I entered and told the clerk that I wanted to register. To my chagrin, it turned out that I was in the bar. Several paces farther on, however, through another doorway I found the proper lobby and walked up to the very low-key registration desk.

I explained to the urbane desk clerk (you know the type) why I was late. Just as I was speaking with him, someone walked past, behind me, and ruffled my hair. In a moment, I glanced off to my left to see who had done this, but could see only a female form, unrecognizable to me, disappearing in the distance down the lobby. I was somewhat put off by this, but the clerk took it in stride.

He gave me the registration form to fill in, and when I handed it back to him he studied it for just a moment before exclaiming, "Ah! Mr. (so-and-so)! And are you still playing safety to run back the kick-offs, the same as always?"

Before I could answer, the terrier moved against my leg, and I was ready to start the morning.

CONSTANT READER

Searching out 'the best'

"Democracy is institutionalized moderation in the face of vexation."

That's a sentence in a letter published in the most recent issue of U.S. News & World Report (July 9 issue; current as of the time I'm writing). It was an original reference that caught and held my attention. It's hardly a complete definition of democracy, but it's awfully good as a starter. It's a sentence that I would want to see incorporated in any effort at defining just what goes into the wonderful compound that is our land, our government, our people.

Only in last week's Spotlight, the Constant Reader noted the meager appearance of U. S. News. At that time I mentioned its 64 pages, of which only 15 (including covers) were devoted to advertising.

This July 9 issue, on the other hand, is a "special edition" (see the art in the adjoining column) and altogether it contains close to 90 pages. I counted 42 ad pages, nearly triple the previous week's total. The magazine's device of the "special edition" was well worth all the effort, and not merely in revenue. The contents are, again, excellent.

The magazine devotes 24 pages to text and striking graphics to present its "survey of American excellence today." All this falls into a half-dozen categories. But before getting into that I'd like to get back momentarily to that definition of democracy. It is in a letter-to-the-editor for a gentleman in Albuquerque. He wrote about the "culture wars" raging on such topics as abortion, gun rights, and flag burning. "All of these issues are about individual liberty and tolerance on the one hand and the power of the state on the other," in his opinion. "Both the extreme right and left are politically, if not psychologically, desperate because the great masses of Americans are moderates. . . . Why can't the self-avowed 'patriots' on either extreme live with that (his definition)?"

Another letter, from Arizona, states that flag burners' actions "indicate a malaise in our society which ought to be a cause for great concern. . . . the direct result of years of governmental ineptitude, mismanagement, deceit, and indifference to the plight of the less fortunate. It is as dangerous for a government to try to suppress indications of discontent as it would be for a person to ignore indications of malfunctioning organs. . . . A government is in deep trouble when it is unwilling to listen to what its people are saying or to heed their indications of discontent."

To this Constant Reader, the cogency of those expressions rivals the editorial by David Gergen, called "Lip Balm for Bush," which I read with profit. He names three presidential moves now urgently called for, describes the potential benefits to the country, and advises: "A defining moment has come for George Bush. (In taking his revised position on taxes) he looked like just another politician who neither says what he means nor means what he says. Now he must act to restore both presidency and the economy."

Now as to those "best" items that U.S. News has lined up for us. They include the most-admired people; the most inspiring national monuments and natural sites, the most provocative and entertaining new works of art and literature, the best ideas (from science to television), "the rest of American products, and 'the rest of the best.'"

To list the individuals or specific places or products without adequate explanation would be misleading. Instead, I'll quote briefly from an introductory essay on "the meaning of excellence in America today."

"Old-fashioned enterprise remains the most important ingredient. Effort. . . . dedication, discipline, and hard work. . . . If anything defines excellence in this country, it is the simple act of lending a hand where it is needed most (such as) the efforts mounted by everyday people in South Carolina after Hurricane Hugo and in San Francisco after the earthquake devastated parts of the city.

"For political purposes, that brand of selflessness has been packaged as an abstract concept called 'volunteerism.' But a prefabricated notion can't begin to explain the good that can be accomplished by dedicated people."

Many people responding to the magazine's survey defined excellence as honesty, integrity, and loyalty. "There is no denying, though, that we find too few national leaders and institutions willing to fight the good fight. Political courage seems to be in short supply.

Holding line on growth pressures

The contributor of this Point of View is a waterfront specialist with Scenic Hudson, Inc., a non-profit organization, based in Poughkeepsie, concerned with resources of the Hudson Valley between Albany and New York City.

By Anthony Lee

What happens when communities suddenly are hit with wave after wave of large development proposals? Should they accommodate growth at all costs?

Point of View

The answers are uncertain. What is certain is that growth pressures raise the necessity for communities to do long-range planning and put land-use regulations into place.

The overall quality of life, vast areas of open space, and healthy ecosystems are elements in our communities which we all treasure. At the same time, they are also what attracts development to communities. Growth pressures must be balanced with the need to preserve key elements in communities. Discussion or community goals should take place to avoid hasty development decisions. For it is these sudden development proposals which severely overburden local officials.

A development moratorium is an essential, effective, and legal tool which allows communities time to weigh carefully all the options to deal with growth.

Communities in the Hudson Valley, the fastest-growing region in the state, have faced scores of large development proposals. The sheer number of proposals have overwhelmed the understaffed local governments, many of whom serve on a part-time or volunteer basis. For these communities, a moratorium allows for a temporary restriction on development until necessary planning is completed and permanent controls such as zoning and master plan restrictions are adopted.

Moratoriums represent a chance to take a short breather so you can make up your mind "how you're going to go in the water," according to Richard Boos, a noted expert in land-use regulation with the New York Department of State. He adds: "You know you're going to go in—it's just a question of how."

Adoption of a moratorium is prudent action taken to protect the health, safety, and general welfare of the community.

Although communities can never remain the same over time, whatever changes that do occur can ensure that the quality of life will be enhanced, or at least, the negative impact minimized. A moratorium can be a key element in any attempt to preserve the values and treasures found in communities.

One of the most common reasons for adoption of a moratorium is to allow time for revision or adoption of a master plan or zoning ordinance. Because these actions may take up to a year a moratorium is an effective interim growth-control measure which ensures that any future development will be consistent with the goals and objectives set out by the community.

The moratorium protects the integrity of a new or amended master plan or zoning ordinance. Often, developers may "panic build" and race to gain approval for future developments before adoption or revisions to the master plan or ordinance can be made. This temporary measure affords the community time to thoroughly consider all options.

In revising or adopting a master plan or ordinance, a community can properly consider which types of development and areas are compatible with its goals for accommodating future growth. The adoption of a moratorium is prudent action taken to protect the health, safety, and general welfare of the community.

A popular misconception among landowners and developers is that moratoriums are used primarily to stop development completely and indefinitely.

Actually, a moratorium must meet specific criteria laid out by the state courts to prevent abuse and misuse which include a specific length of time, an action which justifies the need for a moratorium, and an intent to adopt or change a zoning ordinance or master plan.

In examining a moratorium's length and appropriateness, the courts will often look for a balance of "reasonableness" between the two. Lengths of one year are considered to be reasonable for revisions and adoptions or ordinances and plans. Three communities (Clifton Park and North and East Greenbush) all have extended one-year moratoriums for master plan revisions to a second year, without challenges.

Communities must also make material progress toward adopting a master plan or zoning ordinance for which the moratorium was enacted. A moratorium cannot be used to merely

Long Islander describes Ref-Fuel's team support

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am a dentist and resident of the Town of Hempstead on Long Island. I work and live with my family less than three miles from the American Ref-Fuel incinerator plant.

On June 26, I attended the Bethlehem Work on Waste meeting in the Town of Bethlehem.

I wanted to tell the audience of my positive experiences in dealing with American Ref-Fuel over the last year and a half. The format called for comments from the audience to be delivered last. Unfortunately for me, the panel's presentations and subsequent questions from the audience took up the meeting's full time and I was unable to share my thoughts. I understand community meetings with their emotional give-and-take can easily become lengthy affairs. I wish to commend the Bethlehem Work on Waste for running an informative and interesting meeting.

Vox Pop

With this lengthy preface out of the way, what I had wanted to do at the meeting was not debate the merits of recycling versus incineration. I don't presume any authority on that subject. But I have had first-hand experience with American Ref-Fuel as a soccer club volunteer, my non-paying avocation.

I approached American Ref-Fuel in early 1989, before the refuse recovery plant was operating, asking it to sponsor our annual East Meadow soccer tournament. Much to my amazement, the company said yes and asked what else it could do for us. (Anyone who has ever done volunteer solicitations knows how rare it is to get a positive response.) Over the last year and a half, American Ref-Fuel has donated over $15,000 to the East Meadow Soccer Club and has solicited several more thousands in sponsor money from other companies. American Ref-Fuel also supports other community organizations and events.

Our East Meadow Soccer Club has almost 800 participants living in approximately 650 households (some have two players per family). The vast majority of these families live within three miles of the American Ref-Fuel plant. In June 1989, our newsletter, went out to these families welcoming American Ref-Fuel to our soccer club. I wrote the article. I have never personally received a complaint or suspicious inquiry about the relationship between our club and American Ref-Fuel. To the contrary, I have received compliments on finding an active business participant for our tournament. As a club and as community members we are invited and have frequently used its boardroom for our meetings.

American Ref-Fuel has stated that it has a long-term commitment to our soccer club and its members in the community. I believe them!

'Incineration only postpones crisis'

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing to express my strong concern over the waste incinerator that is proposed by BFI/American Ref-Fuel for Cabbage Island in the Town of Bethlehem.

Pollutants such as heavy metals and dioxin will be released from the stack. At best, BFI/American Ref-Fuel will reduce the waste only to one-third of its original volume. What will remain is ash laden with toxic amounts of lead and cadmium. Under the present plan, this ash will be deposited into a landfill in Colonie. The toxic ash will be blown into the atmosphere and likely leach out of the landfill to contaminate water. While BFI/American Ref-Fuel is making its profits, Capital District residents will be breathing and drinking its toxic legacy for generations to come.

It seems to me that we as a nation should start trusting our common sense rather than the opinions and solutions of profit-driven companies. After all, it is these companies that have given us the environmental crisis we now face.

BFI/American Ref-Fuel boasts that its plant will be the answer to the Capital District's solid waste problem for the next 25 years. That is very doubtful. But even if it is, what do we do after that? Build even bigger polluting incinerators with more deleterious health effects? Within the U.S., the Northeast already has the highest cancer rates for both men and women. Making a commitment to waste incineration will only add to this rate.

Given that the solid waste problem will only be getting worse, a 25-year solution means very little. It's time we stop thinking in terms of time-limited, Band-aid solutions to our ecological problems. We should be working toward long-term resolutions that are as long-lasting as we hope our environment will be. Obviously, BFI/American Ref-Fuel's incinerator is not this solution.

By committing ourselves to incineration, we are acting selfishly. At best we may postpone the crisis a bit, but we will force our children to pay for our shortsightedness. Reduction of waste as well as recycling and reuse are technologies that we must move toward if we want a real long-term solution to the solid waste crisis.

Voorheesville teachers still without contract

Although Voorheesville teachers are without a contract, neither the school board nor the Voorheesville Teachers Association is rushing to remedy that.

Both sides talked from late April to early June, but couldn't reach agreement on a pact to follow the three-year agreement that expired on July 1. A month ago the teachers declared an impasse and called on the state Public Employee Relations Board to appoint a mediator. The mediator was scheduled to meet with both sides for the first time Tuesday (yesterday).

Minor disagreements remain on salary schedules and working conditions, according to Superintendent Alan McCartney.

"It's nothing major," McCartney said. "At some point, it just becomes a matter of what's in the fine print. It's been very amiable. We just need a third party to get a different point of view," he went on, adding that "the tough thing about schools is that a lot of outside things influence us."

Until July 1, teachers worked under a one-year extension of a three-year pact signed in 1986. In the years since, operating state aid to VCS has essentially been frozen at the 1986 level; McCartney expects a slight dollar decline in operating aid for 1990-91.

Saratoga to host summer biathlon

Saratoga area runners who want to experience one of the Olympic's most challenging events will have the opportunity when the Kingsbury Summer Biathlon Series comes to Saratoga on July 15. A field of some 100 runners is expected for the 5k event being held at the Saratoga Biathlon Training Center. Top male and female finishers will each take home $2,500; more than 20 other finishers will share the remaining $20,000.

Two pre-race safety clinics will be held at the Saratoga Biathlon Training Center, at 6 p.m. on July 13 and 14. For information, call 696-3961.

Shop will boost senior centers

Senior Service Centers of the Albany Area, Inc. is involved in the institution of a new "upscale" thrift shop dubbed the Madison Emporium. The shop will be located on Madison Avenue in Albany and will open on Aug. 7.

Proceeds from the Madison Emporium will benefit the programs and services of Senior Service Centers, such as medical transportation, Albany Meals on Wheels, Inc., Newgate Adult Day Services, Second Careers Employment Service and six senior centers in the area.

The Emporium will also be looking for volunteers to help work in the shop. Anyone who would be interested in donating a few hours a week in the store should contact Maria Colbert at 465-3322.

Take care of yourself

A four-week program entitled "Take Care of Yourself" will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. July 18 through Aug. 8 at Woman's HealthCare Plus, on Western Avenue in Guilderland. The program will cover diet, body sculpting, personalized exercise, stress management and health maintenance. For information, call 452-3455.

Workshop to cover all aspects of painting

A Handivan workshop on painting will be held on July 12 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Resource Center on First Street in Albany.

The workshop will include preparation before painting, stripping old paint, types of paint, choosing the right paint, selecting the right paint brush and roller, and proper care of brushes. For information, call 463-4267.

Voorheesville school personnel go extra mile

Ten members of the staff of the Voorheesville Central School District recently received the Extra Mile Award instituted this year by the board of education to recognize significant contributions to the schools in the areas of support for education, program development, staff morale, community support, student interest and learning environment.

Plaques were presented by board member Mary Van Ryn at the staff brunch on the last day of school to Sherry Burgoon, Laura Taggart, Joan Herman, Thomas Countryman, Patricia Flynt, Frank Faber, Lydia Tobler, Deborah Bradley, Linda Wolkenbreit and Alan McCartney.

Nominating considerations include creative leadership, inspiring others, special services above and beyond those expected and recognition by others as a force for constructive change in public education in the community or the state.

Playground events

Summer fun continues at the Voorheesville playground. According to Pat Miller, program director, a variety of activities have been planned for the next five weeks.

The events include: July 12, Mask making and bike workshop (students are asked to bring their bikes), July 17-Indian sand painting and a visit from the Albany County Sheriff's K-9 division, July 19- Glider designs and field day, July 24 -Tissue paper mosaics and dramatics, July 26-Wall hangings and dramatics, July 31-Jumping Jack puppets and dramatics, Aug. 2-Obstacle course and dramatics: Aug. 7 dramatics and Aug. 9-Carnival of Fun.

Miller is very enthusiastic about the carnival and is looking for students ages 12 through 18 to help man the booths. To arrange to help, contact Miller at the playground or leave a message for her at the Village office. Karen Cole will join Miller in the last three weeks of the program to conduct a drama workshop.

The playground program is held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon on the green behind the Village Hall. All children entering first grade are welcome. Younger children can attend if accompanied by an adult. All children are encouraged to bring a drink each day and a snack if possible. In case of inclement weather, the program will be canceled.

Reading in full swing

The summer reading club at the library is in full swing. Next week the club will welcome "Pip-the world's greatest clown" on Monday, July 16 for students in grades K through 3. Older students through grade six will learn the delicious techniques of cake decorating from area cake decorator Lyn Stapf. Both programs begin at 3 p.m.

The movie of the week to be shown on Thursday, July 19 will be Benji the Hunted. Movie goers are reminded that this week's movie Bedknobs and Broomsticks will begin at 2 p.m. on Thursday, July 12. This Disney musical fantasy received an Oscar for special effects and cartoon sequence.

The new "Chill Out at the Library" program begins this week with the "Compleat Beatles" a "rockumentary" on the fab four being shown on Thursday, July 12 at 7 p.m. Other programs scheduled for local teens include a visit from the rock band "Out of Control" on July 19, the movie Dead Poets Society on July 26 a drama workshop with Park Playhouse on Aug. 2 and the Star Trek movie Menagerie on Aug. 9.

Finally the first family concert of the summer will be held this evening, July 11 at 7 p.m. featuring folk group "Short of Breath." All are invited to the free program.

Black belt winner

Congratulations go out to Andrew Pakenas, son of Larry and Rosemarie Pakenas of Voorheesville, who was awarded a black belt in karate earlier this month from Northeast Tae Kwon Do Karate. Pakenas who will be an eighth grader at Clayton Bouton Junior-Senior High School in the fall completed both a written exam and a technique test to attain the honor.

Pakenas also was a player for New Scotland Pop Warner Football, St. Matthew's CYO basketball and the New Scotland traveling soccer team.

Elks leaders installed

Members of the New Scotland Elks Lodge 2611 who were installed to serve this year are: George Winters, exalted ruler; Steve Galusha, secretary; Chester Boehlke, treasurer; William Donaldson, chaplain; Larry Barkman, esquire; William Perrault, tiler; Steve Warden, loyal knight; Alselmo Lisboa, lecturing knight; Bruce Kane, leading knight; Kenneth Miller, inner guard and Joe Armer, Nick Mitchell and Charles Farley, trustees.

Concerts continue

The Village sponsored concert in the park series will continue this week with "Dusk 'til Dawn" a Ravana-based group who plays country music and songs from the 50s and 60s. Included in the group are Steve Deo, Chuck Boniface and Kevin Beachman. All are welcome to the program beginning at 6:30 p.m. in Hotaling Park on the corner of Maple and Voorheesville avenues.

Trappers to meet

The New York State Trappers Association will hold its 1990 state convention in Cobleskill, New York, from Aug. 31 to Sept. 2. For information, call 784-3935.

Breast screenings offered at markets

A specially designed and equipped mammography mobile from Glens Falls Hospital will be located in several Price Chopper parking lots this summer. A nurse practitioner will perform the breast screening tests, which will be interpreted by a board certified radiologist. The screening will include a consultation a health screening nurse from the hospital.

Women will be notified of their mammogram results within 48 hours and the patient's physician will also receive a copy of the written report.

A $50 fee will be charged. Appointments are necessary and may be made by calling 1-800-882-0121.

Financial planner promoted

Peter F. Luczak, CFP of Voorheesville has been promoted from a registered representative to senior account executive at Waddell and Reed Financial Services.

Luczak has been with the firm for six years and has the designation of Certified Financial Planner. He has had particular expertise in the areas of education planning and retirement planning.

HEEL PAIN?

Heel pain is one of the most common causes of foot pain. But few people know that there is a way to get relief—permanent relief—from this pain.

There are many reasons why your heel might be hurting. You may have flat feet, high arches, or a tight achilles tendon. You may recently have gained weight, or become involved in high-impact athletic activities.

But whatever the cause of your heel pain, there is a solution. You don't have to continue suffering this pain. You don't have to be satisfied with temporary solutions.

Podiatrists are medical and surgical specialists of the foot. They can help you with a variety of treatments to alleviate heel pain. In most instances, heel pain responds rapidly to proper medical treatment.

If you are suffering from heel pain, your yellow pages has a complete listing of Podiatrists. Call the one nearest you.

Buyer gives auto dealer high marks

By Bob Hagyard

Glenn Adams, owner of Adams Lawn Care in Delmar, is one happy customer.

Needing a pickup truck for his business, he stopped at the newly-opened New Scotland Auto Plaza opposite Stonewell Plaza on Route 85, and found exactly what he wanted — a green 1987 Ford Ranger XLT half-ton four-wheel drive pickup.

Eight months later, he's convinced he got a good deal.

"It's given me no problems," he said. "It pulls my trailer and lawn equipment and gets them where I want to go. It was the truck I wanted at the price I wanted and it's given me no trouble."

As it turns out, Adams was New Scotland Auto Plaza's first retail customer, back in December. Owners Ed Gendron and Voorheesville native Chuck Herchenroder began dealing new and used cars wholesale while waiting for the New Scotland Planning Board to approve conversion of the long-vacant Mobil service station property to retail sales.

It took awhile, about nine months, but they got the approvals they needed. By the time they fixed up the building and grounds to comply with town regulations, it was almost Christmas — the dead time of year for the industry.

A lot went into the fix-up: replacing the broken concrete in front with macadam, repairs inside the cinder-block building, abandoned by Mobil during the energy-crisis year of 1980, and installing planters and fences and such.

None of which matters if they can't move the cars off the lot. They haven't done badly at that — an average 12 to 14 sales per month from a lot that typically displays 20 to 25 vehicles. That display includes a diverse mix of new and used cars, pickup trucks, vans and the occasional boat or motor home. (The day the photo was taken, the dealers took in one of each.)

"Everything here is from local dealerships — no auction cars," said Gendron, a Rexford resident who worked at dealerships for 24 years before going into business. "We get them through dealers from Glens Falls to Hudson. The good ones we keep at the lot, the rest we wholesale. But you're not going to walk into DeNooyer (Chevrolet) or Armory (Garage) and get these cars at the prices we get them at. We've got to buy a lot of rough cars to get a few good ones."

"You need (to buy) about 100 to get the low-mileage ones we want to keep here and sell," added Herchenroder, a car salesman since 1977.

Intending to stay in business in New Scotland over the long haul ("We've got families," Gendron and Herchenroder said), the two emphasize personal service and follow-through on all sales. "Dealing with service windows at the bigger dealers can be a hassle. And," Gendron shrugged, "Service is what's popular about an operation like ours."

RCS re-elects board leaders

By Robert Webster Jr.

The annual organization of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District was the main order of business for the board last week.

Wayne Fuhrman and Maurice Satin, Ph.D., were both re-elected to their positions on the board as president and vice-president, respectively.

Rodger Lewis was named district clerk and Nancy Caswell was appointed district treasurer. The following positions were filled for the 1990-91 school year: Rose Stalker was appointed district tax collector, Simeo Gallo was named legal counsel, Gil Molella was designated as insurance adviser, Elizabeth Costanza was named as central treasurer, and Dr. Ira D. LeFevre was appointed school physician.

Last Monday, the board also approved a proposal to tear down the existing sports observation tower. Students will construct a new tower under the supervision of the school and its faculty.

Last January, a model of the proposed tower was built as a class project in shop courses at the high school, and it was proposed that the plans designed at the time by students be inspected by a professional contractor for approval.

The tower will cost an estimated $10,000, which will be raised through fund-raisers and donations.

The completion date has been set for fall of 1991, with work to begin this summer. The current structure has been deemed a hazardous site, and as such will be torn down. The old building was considered to be too low and not having enough storage space. The tower will be taller and include storage space, as well as handicap accessible restrooms.

Superintendent William Schwartz said the project was "Good for the community. . . it's good for hands on learning and for the students."

In other business, the board heard from Nancy Andress, director of special programs and instructional service, who discussed curriculum and instruction issues currently being looked at in the district. She reviewed programs being developed in the elementary, middle school and high school levels that are designed to develop in all students what she described as "the skills and knowledge normally associated with daily living. . . such as the ability to read, write and compute."

BC teacher hoping to bring Bard back to his classroom

By Sheila Davis

Teacher James Yeara is undergoing what he calls the most intense educational experience of his life. What's more, this fall, he hopes to bring that experience back to his drama students at Bethlehem Central High School.

Yeara, teacher of English composition and comedies (a drama elective), for five years at Bethlehem Central, has received a grant to study Shakespearean drama this summer. He is spending July commuting between his home in Delmar and Simon's Rock College in Great Barrington, Mass.

The college is the site of the seminar presented by Shakespeare and Company, a professional acting troop. Applicants submitted essays explaining why they wanted to be a part of the seminar and furnished references. Now 24 participants, including Yeara, are studying body movement, voice, stage combat, scene analysis and other aspects of drama.

The work is hard. "We work July 1 through July 29, Monday through Saturday, morning through 10 p.m." Yeara says. "But the most exciting thing about the seminar is that we're learning to approach the Shakespeare plays emotionally, not academically. We're learning it's all right to have feelings and emotions and to express them."

James Yeara

Yeara will use this new approach to drama when he directs Shakespeare's "The Tempest" at Bethlehem Central the first two weeks in December. The students chose to produce "The Tempest" despite its high degree of difficulty. A total of 45 people may be on stage at one time, for example, and 20 people working backstage.

Yeara is enthusiastic about his opportunity to work with his students and "to make a personal connection with the kids." He will use techniques learned this summer in producing "The Tempest."

Yeara has attended two seminars presented by the National Endowment for the Humanities, one in 1984 when he studied romantic poetry at Rice University and one last year when he studied Shakespearean drama at Brown University. Yeara was especially pleased when a Golub Scholar at Bethlehem last year designated him the teacher who had influenced her the most.

Yeara has a bachelor's degree from Nazareth College in Rochester and a master of arts degree from State University of New York in Albany. Yeara and his wife Claudia, a teacher at Glenmont and Elsmere Elementary schools, have four children. His family, he says, is his hobby.

Delmar woman wins award

Mary Talbot, director of development at the College of Saint Rose and resident of Delmar, was chosen 1990 recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Award. Talbot received her bachelor of arts degree in sociology and has served the college since 1973.

The distinguished alumni award recipient is chosen by the Alumni Association Award and scholarship committee for extraordinary professional and/or humanitarian accomplishments during the last five years.

Pathologist takes stand against pesticides

By Debi Boucher

One of the most vocal critics of the state Department of Environmental Conservation — and one of its hardest workers — makes his headquarters at Five Rivers Environmental Center in Delmar.

Although Ward Stone is critical of the DEC, noting that its involvement in research and field work has declined over the years, he has been with the department for 21 years, and shows no sign of giving up his position as wildlife pathologist.

Stone didn't start out an environmentalist, but simply a lover of wildlife who early on sought a career that would let him continue to enjoy tramping around in the wilderness as he had when he was a boy growing up in the Columbia

Ward Stone

County town of Austerlitz.

Years of seeing animals die of unnatural causes have turned Stone into a staunch opponent of chemical companies and other large corporations that pollute the environment.

For his outspokenness, he has received a great deal of media attention over the years, which he readily admits he doesn't mind at all. Recalling a battle with DEC Commissioner Thomas Jorling last year, Stone said, the commissioner and others charged that he liked to see his name in print and be on television. "And I do," said Stone with a grin.

Stone realizes the advantages of having his causes publicized, and has no quarrel at all with the media. "They've helped me a great deal," he said recently, speaking before a group of about 15 people in his quarters at Five Rivers, at a program entitled, "What's Missing in Environmental Reporting." The session, sponsored by the Empire State Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, covered a broad spectrum of environmental concerns.

During a slide show, Stone spoke about a number of pollutants that have harmed wildlife in New York, but his main emphasis was on pesticides that can — and do — kill birds and water fowl.

Responsible for wildlife throughout the state — "from frogs to moose," Stone has been called to countless sites to investigate unexplained deaths of wild animals. Often his studies reveal the presence of insecticides or pesticides, such as carbofuran, widely used in cornfields. "It takes less than a speck of this to be injected by a duck to be lethal," he said. There are differences in sensitivity to such substances among species, however. For instance, while a very small amount of the chemical diazinon — a phosphate pesticide in use for over 30 years — can kill a mallard duck, it would take a much larger amount to kill a bullfrog.

The EPA banned the use of diazinon on golf courses and sod farms nationwide in 1986; it is still used on lawns. Stone noted that the chemical can harm animals even when used as directed, in the amounts recommended.

But in some cases chemicals are abused. Stone recalled one case in South Bethlehem in which over 3,000 birds, from some 13 species, were poisoned when a corn farmer mixed parathion — a chemical developed during World War II for use in nerve gas — with rye grain and scattered it in his corn fields so the birds would not eat the corn.

Although prosecutions have occurred in some of these cases, Stone feels the focus should be on the companies that manufacture the chemicals, rather than the people who use them.

Despite his complaints that things don't move fast enough — he was confident, at 31, that diazinon would be banned, but didn't attend his first hearing on the issue until he was 47 — he remains optimistic. "There's hope that as a people we are changing, that we are becoming more aware of environmental problems and more willing to do something about them," he said.

"We have less time to clean up the earth than we did 20 years ago," said Stone, who remembers speaking at the first Earth Day conference in 1970, and two decades later made appearances at a number of Earth Day 1990 celebrations.

"I think we're going to do it," he said, "but while we're doing it there's no doubt that a lot of species will be lost."

Information session

The location of the information session being held by Empire State College on Wednesday, July 18 at 4 p.m. has been changed. The session will meet in Elston Hall, Rm. 411 at Schenectady County Community College instead of in the Tempo Building.

Assessments

He said he expected workers to be out in the field by mid-August. "The knocking on doors takes about 10 months."

A data collector will visit homes and ask homeowners to permit a brief inspection of the property. "These take about 10 minutes per home, and enable us to ensure that the assessor's record will be accurate for each property," he said. In addition to the interior inspection, the data collector will measure the exterior of the property and record any additional significant information.

In determining what properties are worth, the assessment firm must adhere to the New York state assessing or valuation system, Finnegan said, noting, "The state board will monitor the project very carefully."

All property is assessed using the same standard, he said, to "keep assessments fair and current."

In the first year of the revaluation, Finnegan will employ about 20 workers, including three five-person crews who will do the leg-work collecting the data. The other five employees will be office personnel.

The Finnegan workers will be housed in offices in the Adams Hardware Store building on Delaware Avenue, and will report to John P. Thompson, Bethlehem assessor. "He'll be our boss," Finnegan said.

During the second year, Finnegan said five or six professional appraisers will continue the revaluation process. Revaluation is set to be completed by May 1, 1992.

Town Supervisor Ken Ringler explained, "We are doing this (revaluation) because basically we had no option," in relation to the law. "The court won't bear a system not current and that may not be equitable."

According to Ringler, there will be a number of public meetings on the project to keep people informed about the revaluation process and progress.

Finnegan Associates, which does more revaluations in the state than any other firm, also has offices in Troy and Monticello. Finnegan beat out the largest U.S. reval firm, Cole, Lyster and Trumble for the Bethlehem job.

Students raise $2,700

Students at Slingerlands Elementary participated in World Book's Partners in Excellence Program and raised more than $2,700, that will be used to purchase six sets of World Book Encyclopedias, four sets of Childcraft encyclopedias, a set of World Book science encyclopedias, and a student dictionary.

Students collected pledges for every book they read during a seven week period. More than 133 students read more than 1,300 books.

Dear Friends,

Since 1921 the McCarroll family has served the Albany and Tri-village area with quality and dignified service for three generations.

Due to the decline in "old time" service and with the increase of "one stop shopping" by major supermarket chains we now find it necessary to close our doors—as of July 14, 1990.

It is with reluctance we have decided on this move and sincerely appreciate the loyalty of our employees, many friends and patrons we have enjoyed throughout these years—

It has been a distinct privilege. We thank you for your loyal support.

Three arrested on DWI charges

Bethlehem police arrested three people for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated last week.

Alexander M. Kash, 46, of New Baltimore, N.Y. was arrested for DWI on Monday, July 9, after he was stopped for traffic violations on Route 144, police said. He is scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on July 17.

Carol Ann List, 42, of Delaware Avenue, Delmar was arrested for DWI on Sunday, July 8, after she was stopped for traffic violations on Delaware Avenue, police said. She is scheduled to appear in town court on July 17.

Women's programs offered in Guilderland

Woman's HealthCare Plus is sponsoring a series of programs on health issues at its center on Western Avenue in Guilderland.

"Facing Endometriosis" from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on July 18 will teach participants about current medical treatments and the emotional aspects of endometriosis, a chronic illness that affects women during their reproductive years.

A two-hour class entitled "Parenting: the First Year," being held July 17 from 7 to 9 p.m., will help to answer questions about what to expect, how babies grow and how to enhance a baby's development.

"Skin Safety in the Sun" is the title of a program aimed at understanding prevention, diagnosis and treatment of skin cancer. The program will take place from noon to 1 p.m. on July 12. For information, call 452-3455.

Eddie Lee Pringle, 39, of First Street, Albany was arrested for DWI on Sunday, July 8, after officers stopped to investigate a disabled vehicle on Route 9W, police said. He is scheduled to appear in town court on July 17.

Fireworks confiscated

Bethlehem police confiscated light fireworks from four residences between 9 and 10 p.m. on the 4th of July.

The residences were on Dunbarton Drive, Rowland Avenue, Commonwealth Drive, and Elm Avenue, police said.

No arrests were made.

Fernbank Avenue home robbed

Police are investigating the theft of more than $1,000 in merchandise from Fernbank Avenue residence sometime between Sunday, July 1, and Sunday, July 8.

Two bicycles, jewelry, a portable stereo, five bottles of beer, and a bottle of wine were taken in the theft, according to a police report on the robbery.

Eagles may clinch Mantle title today

By John Bellizzi III

Five victories last week put Bethlehem a game away from the Eastern New York Mickey Mantle Baseball League pennant.

Burnt Hills, Bethlehem's nearest competitor, dropped two games last week to slide into second place while the Eagles (15-1 league, 17-1 overall) extended their winning streak to 9 as of Sunday.

One more win for Bethlehem or a fourth Burnt Hills loss will mean the title and first pick in the league draft for next week's state tournament. Bethlehem coach Jesse Braverman would use the draft privilege to add to his pitching staff.

Mike Aylward and Dave Miles combined for a shutout as Bethlehem routed Cohoes, 22-0, July 2. Mark Houston's grand slam fueled the offense. Bill Karins and John DiAnni each drove in three runs.

The Eagles notched a 7-2 non-league win last Friday against Sorensco Senior Babe Ruth. Matt Quatraro saw a rare pitching start, with DiAnni coming in for relief after three innings and Cameron Smith finishing off. Andre Cadieux batted in two runs.

Bethlehem overcame Watervliet 9-2 to open a home double-header Saturday. Houston picked up his fourth win, striking out eight and allowing two hits. Smith had three hits and two RBI and Quatraro had three hits, including a home run.

Sorensco's Mantle team then lost to the Eagles 10-4 in the nightcap. Matt Shortell struck out eight for his third victory. Cadieux drove in two runs on two singles and Frank Daley added two hits.

Sunday, Bethlehem defeated Brunswick 6-1. The pitching rotation disrupted by last weekend's Babe Ruth all-star tournament, Braverman called on Smith for the start.

"Cameron has a great arm," said Braverman. "He really throws hard." Smith, who has reportedly been clocked at 85 miles per hour this season, threw four shutout innings. "If Cameron has more opportunities to pitch, he will definitely become a very good pitcher," said Braverman.

Quatraro had two hits and an RBI for Bethlehem.

Two games with Twin Town were scheduled earlier this week. Last night Bethlehem was scheduled to face Twin Town away, and the Eagles will play host this afternoon at 5:30 at Bethlehem Central Middle School.

A non-league game follows against the North Albany American Legion team, Friday. League play ends Saturday afternoon at Watervliet.

As next week's state tournament approaches, the Eagles will be hard-pressed financially to make the trip. The tournament was held locally in 1988 and 1989, but with next week's event taking place in Auburn, the club is responsible for its own accommodations, meals and transportation, estimated at approximately $2,000.

Community support helped make the team's trip to the regional tournament in Holyoke a reality in 1988, and any assistance for this tournament will be welcomed. To donate, contact Braverman at 439-0895 or assistant coach John Black at 439-3283.

Tomboys second at Brunswick

Excitement was in the air as the Bethlehem Tomboys' under-16 all-star team captured second place in the Brunswick Invitational. After a narrow loss to Lansingburgh in the opening game, the Tomboys won their next three, advancing to the championship game Sunday night, where they were again defeated by Lansingburgh.

Last-inning rallies told the story in both Saturday games for Bethlehem. The Tomboys jumped off to an early 1-0 start against Lansingburgh in the opener after Lynda Smith hit a leadoff triple on the first pitch and scored on Regina Conti's bloop single. Bethlehem scored eight more in the top of the fifth to build a 9-0 lead. Smith, Kathy Stornelli, and starting pitcher Sheila McCaughin all drove in runs with doubles in the fifth.

The opponents also had a big fifth inning, scoring six runs. Two more in the bottom of the sixth cut the margin to one run. Lansingburgh then scored two more in the bottom of the seventh to edge past, 10-9.

The next game was decided in the final inning as well. Down 10-7 going into the seventh, Bethlehem rallied for seven runs and held off West Albany to win 14-12. Smith led the team in hits and RBI and McCaughin, Mandy Conway and Conti were on the mound for the Tomboys.

Sunday, Bethlehem won two to earn a spot in Sunday night's final, first defeating Watervliet 13-9 behind the pitching of McCaughin and Conway. Smith had an RBI triple in the three-run first inning and scored four times. Conti hit two singles and a double and Stornelli doubled twice.

Host Brunswick was defeated by Bethlehem 12-7. The Tomboys rallied for seven runs in the seventh. Smith, Dorthea Roberts, Conti, Allison Thomas and Robin Bellizzi all singled in that inning, and Emily Barnes hit a base-clearing triple.

Lansingburgh won the final 23-15. Barnes, Smith, Roberts, Conti, Bellizzi, Stornelli, Myers, McCaughin, Conway, Becky Goggin, Nina Terisi, Stephanie Sodergren and Kate Recene had hits in Bethlehem's effort.

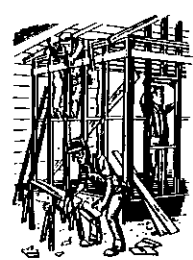

The team, coached by Pete Recene, Bob Conti, Jim Smith and John Goggin, will play in East Greenbush this weekend.

Road to the Bigs: so near, yet so far

For a young player making an orderly progression to the big leagues through four or five minor league seasons, there are a dozen who get bogged down for one circumstance or another.

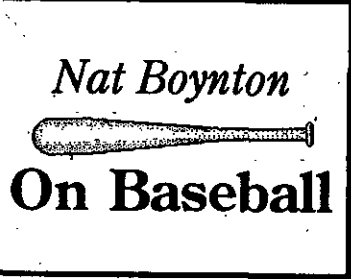

It's one of the world's toughest professions. Just ask Darren Chapin, at age 24 one of the most promising relief pitchers in the New York Yankee organization.

In his fifth season playing baseball for money, Darren is currently employed at Heritage Park. Despite several dismaying setbacks, he is happy there, his confidence unshaken.

But the Darren Chapin story is another reflection on the trials and tribulations of becoming a major league baseball player. Follow this personable, dedicated young man in his travail.

Chapin was the Yankees' sixth-round pick in the January free agent draft in 1986, signed out of junior college in Ohio. Had a respectable season as a starting pitcher in the Gulf Coast rookie league, earning a promotion to Oneonta in the Class A New York-Penn League.

It was kinda weird. I didn't pitch well in spring training in '87, and Tony Cloninger approached me to see if I would go to the bullpen. I went to Oneonta as a closer, and I had a very good year.

In fact, dogged good. Allowed only 6 earned runs in 40 innings in 25 games, 12 saves, 0.68 ERA. Ripe for a higher level in 1988.

Again I didn't pitch well in spring training. I don't know what it is. I was promoted to Fort Lauderdale in the Florida State League as a closer, got off to a slow start, but in May I got in the groove and went something like 34 innings without giving up a run.

His microscopic 0.86 in 63 innings so impressed Yankee brass that they put him on the 40-man major league roster for spring training '89, a rare jump from A ball. When the season opened, he was sent to Double-A Albany and within a month found himself promoted to Triple-A Columbus.

I was pitching well there, but it was weird seeing guys called up (to the Bronx) but not me. I'd been happy taking one step at a time, but I was anxious. It was a frustrating year. I was in bed three days with strep throat, and during that time one of the relief pitchers (Scotty Neilson) was called up. A month later I developed tendonitis, and the next day another reliever (Bobby Davidson) was called up. When I got off the DL (disabled list) I started pressing, pushing myself too hard. Things went backwards.

That was last season, and it did not end well for Darren. No 40-man roster invitation this spring, and it was back to Albany.

At first, I wasn't throwing as well as I was capable. I couldn't throw my slider, my mechanics were screwed up. I studied tapes, and Monk (Russ Meyer, A-C pitching coach) worked patiently with me, but I strained a ligament in my elbow and was back on the DL.

Last week Darren returned to action at Heritage, looking like a million bucks. The team was on a winning surge to first place, and the bullpen was a happy place to be.

I know now what adjustments I have to make. If I can do that, things will come together. I know I'm not ready yet, but I do know that I can pitch in the big leagues.

Look for his number next time you go to Heritage. He'll be coming out of the pen in the late innings, and he's a joy to watch.

co-managed by J. Di Anni and Skip Miles, with Randy Gambelunghe, Jr. and John Di Anni as coaches.

The team opened with a 10-1 win over Hudson Valley on Saturday in the tournament, hosted this year by Whitehall.

Mike Aylward pitched a three-hitter while striking out 10 and walking one. He also had two hits and three runs batted in. The 11-hit attack featured a home run by Josh Formica, a double by Chris Macaluso (2-for-3) and a double by Mike Breslin (2-for-5.)

On Sunday they beat host Whitehall, 12-3, as Dave Miles gave up 5 hits and an earned run while striking out 9. Formica hit his second home run and had a 3-for-3 day with 3 RBI.

Colonie, which beat Central 12-3 Saturday and Guilderland 11-4 on Sunday, faces Bethlehem at 5 p.m.

Obituaries

E. Elizabeth Frasure

E. Elizabeth "Betty" Frasure, a former teacher in the Voorheesville School District, died June 23 in the Harpeth Terrace Convalescent Home in Franklin, Tenn. after a long illness.

Born in Cape Girardeau, Mo., she was a graduate of South Eastern Missouri State University and the University of Colorado. After living in the Delmar-Slingerlands area in the 1950s, she moved to Brentwood, Tenn.

From 1961 to her retirement in 1972, Mrs. Frasure was a junior high school social studies and English teacher for the Voorheesville central schools.

After her retirement, she was active in community affairs and served as president of the Little Harpeth Club, Brentwood, and as chairman of the Beautification Committee. She was also one of the founders of the Brentwood Library and was awarded the No. 1 library card for her work.

She is survived by her husband, Kenneth Frasure; a daughter, Dr Nancy Frasure Smit of Montreal; a son, Kenneth W. Frasure of Nashville Tenn.; and a brother, Dr. Walter Bock of Sarasota, Fla.

Memorial contributions may be made to the E. Elizabeth Frasure memorial award fund, with checks made payable to the Voorheesville Central School District in care of Sarita Winchell, Voorheesville 12186, or to the Brentwood Library, 5055 Maryland Way, Brentwood, Tenn. 37027.

Arrangements were by the Williamson Funeral Home, Franklin, Tenn.

Willis B. Haker

Willis B. Haker, 77, of Kenwood Avenue, died Friday, July 6 at the Albany Medical Center Hospital after being stricken at home.

Born in Albany, he lived in Delmar for 42 years. Mr. Haker worked for the state Department of Audit and Control as an examiner of municipal affairs for 34 years, retiring in 1975.

He was a life member of the Delmar Fire Department, which he joined in 1950. He was also a past captain of the Delmar Fire Department Rescue Squad and was named Fireman of the Year in 1982. Mr. Haker was a member of the Albany Mens Garden Club and the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Albany.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothy J. Haker; a daughter, Joy Tallmudge of Latham; two sons, Jonathan B. Haker of East Greenbush and James W. Haker of Selkirk; a brother, John B. Haker of Delmar; and five grandchildren.

Arrangements were by the Applebee Funeral Home.

Contributions may be made to the Delmar Rescue Squad, Adams Street, Delmar 12054.

Fire department holds annual drill

The Elsmere Fire Department will hold its annual public drill on Tuesday, July 17 at 7 p.m. The drill will take place at the fire training grounds on Center Lane across from the McGee Little League Park.

This year's drill will feature a fully involved, free burning, multiple vehicular accident, which will be extinguished using conventional firefighting techniques. In addition, the Slingerlands Fire Department Heavy Rescue Unit will demonstrate the extrication of a simulated victim trapped in an automobile, and the Delmar Fire Department Rescue Squad will demonstrate advanced life support techniques on the victims.

A full review of the evening's activities will be presented by an officer from each of the participating fire and rescue units. At approximately 7:30, the fire engines and rescue units will arrive to begin demonstrating emergency procedures. Officers will be available at the conclusion of the drill to answer any questions that the audience may have.

Observers should bring lawn chairs or blankets to sit on during the presentation. Refreshments will be served. In the event of rain, the drill will be postponed one week until July 24 at the same times. For information, call the Elsmere Firehouse at 439-9144.

Youth soccer camps have summer openings

There are still openings in both soccer camps sponsored by the Bethlehem Soccer Club in August.

The Bethlehem Soccer Camp, an all-day camp for children ages 8 to 12, is scheduled for August 6 to 10.

The camp day includes skill training in the morning, with swimming, team tactics, and camp league games in the afternoon. National A license coaches Roy Pfeil (varsity women's coach at Hudson Valley) and Mike Campisi (varsity coach at Shenendehowa) are the camp directors. The registration fee for the camp is $125 for the first player from a family and $115 for each additional family member.

Bethlehem's Pee Wee Soccer Camp, held during the week of August 13 to 18, is for children 5, 6 and 7 years old.

The Pee Wee camp is specially designed for young children, with short skill training sessions and a camp league featuring small sided games. Bethlehem Central High School's freshman soccer coach Bill Silverman is the director of the Pee Wee camp. BCHS varsity and junior varsity players are the coaches. The camp offers two hour sessions each day. Children may register for either 9 to 11 a.m. or 5 to 7 p.m. groups. The registration fee for the Pee Wee camp is $45 for the first player from a family and $40 for each additional player from the same family.

For additional information and registration applications please call Bill Silverman at 439-6465.

VC networks with state on computer project

By Bob Hagyard

Wiring up Voorheesville Central's latest shipment of computers won't cost the school district much beyond what's in the 1990-91 budget.

Just the same, said Superintendent Alan McCartney with a laugh, district officials are "still negotiating" with the state Education Department for money on the project.

Voorheesville Elementary is one of 12 New York State schools to receive IBM computers under a $5 million state Education Department research and development program. Over the next six years, the schools will study the effects of technology on school operations and student achievement.

The "technology," donated by IBM, includes networked computers, student work stations, instructional software, and technical assistance. In turn, the schools will hook up to the state Education Department's Technologies Network Ties, and wire up buildings so classrooms can network to each other.

Grants were parceled out by a competitive process that favored schools already "committed to the use of technology for instruction," according to an Education Department statement.

Voorheesville's experience in computer education program dates to 1985 when a quirk in funding for the district's energy conservation program produced a surplus for the district. The $8.9 million building reconstruction bond issue approved by district voters in March 1989 included the cost of hard-wiring classrooms to permit computer networking in both buildings.

"The program does two things for us," Superintendent McCartney said. "It's supplying us with equipment we would have bought anyway, but over a period of years. Second, it provides us with teacher assistance and training we would have had to pay for ourselves."

Lecture to preview whale watch tour

The marine wildlife of the Tadoussac region of the Gulf of St. Lawrence will be featured in a lecture and slide presentation at the New York State Museum on Thursday, July 19 at 8 p.m.

Scott Marion, program director for Seafarers Expeditions, will give the lecture, a prelude to a whale watching adventure sponsored by the New York Museum Associates in the St. Lawrence Estuary in Canada from Monday, Sept. 10 through Saturday, Sept. 15.

The fee is $1,000 per person, $950 for museum members, and includes all transportation, services of two naturalist guides, most meals, deluxe accommodations for five nights, professional naturalist instruction, and two full days of whale watching.

Preregistration for the trip is required by Aug. 1. For information, call 474-5877.

State Museum offers trip to the opera

The New York State Museum is sponsoring an Italian opera trip on July 15. The trip features a buffet lunch at the historic Otesaga Hotel, a tour of the architecturally distinguished Glimmerglass Opera House and a matinee performance of Puccini's La Boheme. For information, call 474-5801.

Lisa Laidlaw, daughter of Dr. George Laidlaw and Grace Laidlaw of Delmar, and Kevin Robert McClure of Worcester Mass., son of Rita McClure and the late Robert McClure, were married May 19. The ceremony was conducted in the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle by the Rev. James Daley.

Leena Nicklas was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Andrea Laidlaw, Kyoko Matsumuro, Barbara Cavano and Cynthia Fulton. Neil Frederick was best man. Michael Laidlaw, Vincent Papineau, Michael Nuciforo and Reni Fitzpatrick were ushers.

The bride, a graduate of Lock Haven High School in Pennsylvania and Penn State University, is working toward her master's degree in speech communication at Penn State.

The groom graduated from Farmingdale High School and the State University at Brockport. He received a master's degree from the University of Maine and is a doctoral candidate at Penn State in speech communication.

Antiques fair to benefit Altamont Centennial

In collaboration with the Altamont Centennial Celebration, Oliver and Gannon Associates of Altamont will present an Antiques Show and Sale on Saturday, July 21.

Featuring 75 exhibits of antiques in all price ranges, the show will be held at the Altamont Fairgrounds from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Admission is $2.50 (or $2 with any ad) and will benefit the Altamont Centennial. There is ample free parking at the fairgrounds for several thousand cars.

With exhibitors from New York, Vermont, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Jersey, there will be both indoor and outdoor booths featuring clocks, decoys, American country painted furniture in original finishes, toys, tools, American and European paintings, formal Sheraton and Hepplewhite furniture, military items, rare old knives, books and estate jewelry.

Elegant Touch Caterers of Altamont will be offering a full menu of foods at the show, and there will also be cold drinks, ice cream and fast foods available throughout the day.

The Altamont Fairground is at the base of the Helderberg Mountain escarpment, on Route 146 (off Central Avenue).

For information, contact Oliver and Gannon Associates, P.O. Box 131, Atamont, NY 12009, 861-5062.

Albany yoga center starts dance class

The Albany Kripalu Yoga Center is sponsoring a class in DansKinetics. This program combines the fun and exhilaration of easy dancing with a comprehensive system of non-aerobic and aerobic exercises which build stamina, muscle tone, flexibility, and cardiovascular fitness. The class will take place on Thursdays from July 12 through Aug. 30 from 6 to 7:15 p.m. A fee of $48 will be charged. For information call, 869-7990.

Rinehart — Pasda

Jeffrey Rinehart of Delmar and Anne Stefan-Kopko of Oklahoma City, Okla., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Rebecca Rinehart, to Donald Pasda Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pasda Sr. of Whitehall, Penn.

The bride graduated from Bethlehem Central High School and Penn State University. She is employed by the Pennsylvania Social Services Union. The groom, a graduate of Whitehall High School and Penn State, also received a master's degree in public administration from Penn State. He is employed by the Phillipsburg, N.J. School District.

A wedding is planned for April 13, 1991.

Etchings on display

Hand-colored etchings of landscape scenes from Columbia County, Vermont and New York by artist Joseph Essig will be on display from July 13 through Aug. 4 at the Spencertown Academy Gallery.

The show, "Painterly Prints," will feature etchings made from copper plates, color printed and hand embellished. The gallery is open on Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 8 a.m. to noon, Thursdays and Fridays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Saturdays, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Spencertown Academy is located in the Columbia County hamlet of Spencertown on Route 203 between the Taconic State Parkway and Route 22. For information, call 392-3693.

Cynthia E. Daley and Patrick J. McCutcheon

Daley — McCutcheon

Cynthia E. Daley of Selkirk and Ronald F. Daley of Colonie have announced the engagement of their daughter, Kristen Leigh

Daley, to Patrick Joseph McCutcheon, son of Margaret and James L. McCutcheon of Hurley, N.Y.

Daley is a graduate of Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School, State University at Binghamton, and Mercy College. She is employed by Winokur & Associates, a private asset management firm in Old Greenwich, Conn.

McCutcheon is a graduate of the State University at Binghamton. He is employed with IBM in East Fishkill, N.Y.

An October wedding is planned.

No place like home for ice cream lovers

By Renée Hunter

Whether you're an ice cream connoisseur who prefers standard chocolate and vanilla, or are more daring and like flavors like pistachio pineapple, rainbow sprinkle and cointreau orange fudge, you're bound to find ice cream to delight your sweet tooth at the various stands and stores in Bethlehem and New Scotland.

Specializing in homemade ice cream with flavors like rootbeer sherbert, almond butter, and peanut butter and jelly, Toll Gate Ice Cream on New Scotland Road has been a family-run business since 1949, known for employing several area high school students over the years. The restaurant has special sundaes, including a merry-go-round (a small banana split) and a doughnut delight (a toasted doughnut with ice cream, home-made whipped cream, and syrup). The Toll Gate, open 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. during the week and until 10:30 p.m. on weekends, has tables with waitress service, or you can order your ice cream for take-out.

If you're in the mood for exotic flavors, Ben and Jerry's in the Main Square is the place for you. There are the standard flavors, plus ones like apple pie, rain-forest crunch, and cherry garcia. The company has also developed fruit ices, frozen yogurt and light ice cream for the health-conscious. According to Bob Griffin, who has worked at Ben and Jerry's for two years, the big seller is the chocolate chip cookie dough ice cream, although the flavor is more popular with kids than adults. The store has a variety of specialty items including egg creams and milkshakes. And if you are feeling particularly hungry, try the Vermonster. For $24.95, you get 20 scoops of ice cream,

Elizabeth and Kendall Drew enjoy a summer treat. Elaine McLain

10 scoops of walnuts, seven scoops of fresh strawberries, four scoops each of bananas and hot fudge, two scoops each of Heath Bars, M & Ms, Reese's and chocolate jimmies, and one brownie. Griffin said the store sells a Vermonster about every two weeks, usually for parties.

Ross', on New Scotland Avenue, sells five flavors of soft ice cream and a few kinds of hard ice cream. "The soft is definitely more popular," said Manager Gary Bleau. Orange soda floats are Ross' specialty and Bleau said that their most popular item is a twist cone dipped in chocolate. The drive-up stand, open 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. has a playground for the kids and picnic tables for the grown-ups.

Carvel Ice Cream Store at 222 Delaware Ave. has 17 flavors of hard ice cream and two flavors of soft ice cream. Carvel, which specializes in ice cream cakes, has several flavors of sundaes, including peanut butter, black cherry, marshmallow, and butterscotch. The store expects to have frozen yogurt by the fall.

If you are in the ice cream mood but don't want the fat and calories, go to TCBY in the Delaware Plaza. The store sells frozen yogurt, with flavors rotating daily. According to employee Corey Farbstein, there is always some variety of vanilla, chocolate, and strawberry, plus three other flavors. Two of the flavors are 100 percent fat-free, while the others are 96 percent fat-free. And if you want to "jazz up" your treat, there are about 15 different toppings to add to your frozen yogurt at TCBY, including peaches, raspberries, butterfingers and crushed cookies. The toppings can also be mixed in with the yogurt in what is called a Shiver. "A lot of people claim to be on those things called diets but then they add a lot of toppings and it's really quite funny," said Farbstein.

Tastee Freez on Delaware Avenue is a drive-up stand that has been in business since 1950. Jim Sheldon, the owner, said the stand is known for its 11 flavors of Boston Shakes, which are extra thick with ice cream and syrup on top. Tastee Freez always has a low-calorie treat on hand, either frozen yogurt or Skinny Dip.

Another drive-up stand, Tastee Treat on Route 85 in New Scotland, specializes in the homemade ice cream made on the premises. The flavors include maple walnut and pistachio pineapple, with orange pineapple and black raspberry being the most popular. There are picnic tables and a yard for the kids to run around.

Friendly's, on Delaware Avenue, has a walk-up counter and tables. With a complete ice cream menu listing items ranging from Reese's Peanut Butter Cup sundaes to watermelon wedges, you're bound to find something to satisfy your sweet tooth. Frozen yogurt is also available and there are many toppings to order, including granola, raisins and nuts.

And don't forget about the ice cream trucks that cruise some neighborhoods. With a wide variety of popsicle treats to choose from, ranging from tropical bomb pops to "frozen toes", be sure to flag the ice cream man down on those hot summer days when you want the luxury of a frozen treat without leaving your yard.

Guptill's offers fun for all ages

By Juliet Cowan

Guptill's skating rink and dance club provides a good time for kids of all ages. Guptill's prides itself on being able to entertain children, teenagers, and adults, according to Skip Guptill, the owner. He refers to his entertainment center as "affordable fun catering to middle America."

The dancing area is called Secrets and is patronized primarily by teenagers. Several teens mentioned meeting other kids and trying out the latest dance steps as the reasons they go to Secrets.

Angie Fordlee and Michelle Fiebke say they come to Guptill's every Wednesday through Friday night. "It's a good place to meet people," said Fiebke. "They play really good music and we like to dance," said Fordlee.

The guys who come to the dance club have similar reasons; to meet girls, said Keith Becker. John Bonetsky and Brian Beahn agreed.

The dance floor is located with a game room and snack bar in a separate room that is sound enclosed.

While the dance floor belongs to the younger generation, the skating rink is used by people of all ages. There is a lot of nostalgia at Guptill's, including old cars on a stage in back of the skating rink and signs from the fifties. An organist plays old-time roller rink music every Sunday night.

Some of the same people who skated when the place opened in 1950 are still coming, said Guptill. Families come from all over the Capital District and beyond.

Renée Adams enjoys a night of dancing at Guptill's dance club Secrets.

In addition to the main skating floor there is a "baby" rink for small children and a practice rink for those not ready to skate with the pros. A disc jockey plays top forty songs for the skaters and takes requests.

Guptill's has been open for 40 years. It joins Hoffman's Playland in Latham as the two oldest family-owned amusement places in the Capital District. Guptill's is listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the largest indoor skating rink in the world according to Guptill. "We have a floor larger than the Knick Arena," he said.

Guptill's is open 7:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Wednesday through Friday; Saturday afternoon from 1 to 4 p.m., and Sunday night. After Labor Day, the Sunday afternoon family skate will resume.

Shakers celebrated

By Renée Hunter

The second annual Community Awareness Day will be at the site of America's first Shaker settlement this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with activities ranging from an old-fashioned fishing contest to ox cart rides.

The events will be held at the former site of the Shaker's Church Family, between the Albany Airport and Heritage Park in Colonie.

The public is invited to the festivities, which are being held to promote the settlement, according to Shaker Heritage Society Director Diane Conroy-LaCivita.

"We want them to become aware of this site," she said. "It's a well-kept secret, but we don't want it to be."

"The day is geared toward children," said Conroy-LaCivita. "It's a great family day, and everything is free. You can't beat that."

The day's theme will focus on local history and its uniqueness through music and dance.

The program will feature several performances at the Shaker Meeting House. There will be Shaker songs and dances at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., the Horlepiep Dancers at noon, the South Colonie Friends of Music Dance Band at 1 p.m., the Colonie Town Band at 2 p.m. and the Tri-County Banjo Band at 3 p.m.

There will also be antique fire engine rides, hay and ox cart rides, tours of the Shaker site and demonstrations all day long.

A pie-eating contest for children will be held with the winner being the fastest eater.

"We said go and the plate had to be completely clean," said Conroy-LaCivita, referring to last year's successful contest which had 42 contestants. "We get the messy pies, too, like blueberry."

Across the street at the Ann Lee Pond, there will be an old-fashioned fishing contest from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. with prizes going to the people who catch the biggest fish. Participants must pre-register and bring their own equipment. There will be three divisions for the fishing contest, with divisions for children under age 9, ages 10-15, and over 16. Last year the contestants ranged in age from 3 to 87, said Conroy-LaCivita. To pre-register, call 456-7890.

Girl Scouts will be on hand to do face painting, and Boy Scouts will be working in the herb garden. Craft demonstrations of weaving, spinning, woodworking, broom making, and chair taping will also be given throughout the day.

Last year's Community Awareness Day saw about 1,000 visitors and Conroy-LaCivita expects a 20 percent increase in attendance.

The Shaker Heritage Society was organized in 1977 and incorporated in 1979 to preserve the history of the early settlers.

The Shakers, who were named for their lively dancing at services, believed in separation from the outside world, common ownership of property, celibacy, open confessions of sins, non-violence, equality of the sexes and races, and devotion to industry and perfection.

At their zenith before the Civil War, the Shakers had about 6,000 members who lived in 19 communities from Maine to Indiana and Kentucky.

The decline of the Shakers was hastened in the 1800s by competition from textile mills which provided jobs and inexpensive goods. The Shaker's strict rules and belief in celibacy also contributed to their decline.

The last Shakers moved from the community in 1938.

There are two remaining Shaker settlements in the country, located in Canterbury, N.H. and Sabbathday Lake, Maine.

Irish group to play at library's evening series

The Porters will present a concert of Irish music and American tunes at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 1 at the Bethlehem Public Library, as part of the library's Evening on the Green series.

The group, featuring John Haggerty, Mike Dunigan, Jimmy Ryan and Mike McLean, plays a variety of instruments including the 12-string guitar, mandolin, banjo, pennywhistle, electric base and keyboards. The Porters perform regularly at clubs and Irish festivals in Albany and the Catskills.

Evening on the Green programs are held on the library lawn at 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar and are free to the public. Listeners are invited to bring a lawn chair or blanket. If it rains, the Porters will play in the library's community room.

A question of good taste...

We would like to thank all the people who took the time to tell us how unfairly Vinod Chhabra reviewed the Capitol House Restaurant in the Times Union edition of June 3rd. We would also like to thank the regular customers who took the ad in the Times Union to take exception to the Dinner Date review. This advertisement is reproduced below:

Study shows drop in youth drug use

The University of Michigan's annual study of high school seniors places current use of drugs other than alcohol and nicotine at its lowest point since the survey began in 1975.

Of the Class of 1989, 50.9 percent had used an illicit drug, down from the 1981 high of 65.6 percent. Just under 20 percent are current users, defined as having used in the past 30 days.

The statistics concerning alcohol are less encouraging. While 60 percent have used alcohol in the last 30 days, the lowest percentage in survey history, 33 percent regularly drink to intoxication, having had five or more drinks in a row sometime during the two weeks prior to the survey. Less than 10 percent of the students surveyed reported no use of alcohol.

The results of the survey indicate that the likelihood of a young person using illicit drugs is only half of what it was 10 years ago. It should be noted, however, that this survey only reaches those students still in school and does not reflect the thousands of young people who drop out each year. Some thoughts on why illicit drug use has decreased will be discussed in next week's column.

SPOTLIGHT TEENSCENE

By Juliette Braun

If you're the type of person who likes to work on self improvement, there are a number of events this summer that you will enjoy.

Are you a young aspiring musician? If so, visit the Voorheesville Library on School Road in Voorheesville. On July 12, the documentary, "Compleat Beatles" will be shown. The film highlights the lives and times of the rock group and the "British Invasion." On July 19, the Out of Control Rhythm and Blues Band will answer your questions on how to prepare for the professional music scene. These activities are part of a teen directed program series entitled Chill Out at the Library. Both programs begin at 7 p.m. For information, call 765-2791.

Get in touch with your spirituality at two teen nights which have been scheduled as part of the Billy Graham Crusade. On July 12 Stefanie Kelly, a teenage pianist, will perform several of her own arrangements, and on the 14th the Joe Linn Trio will perform harmonies from the Redwood Chapel Community Church. These activities will take place at the Knickerbocker Arena in Albany, at 7:30 p.m.

If you need to tone up or just enjoy exercise, the YWCA has designed an aerobic program just for you. Teen Aerobics, designed with teens in mind, consists of easy to follow aerobic steps choreographed to popular music. Classes are held every Saturday at 11 a.m. For information, call 438-6606.

Attention Thespians! If you enjoy acting or the theater in general you will love Imagination and Improvisation for Teens, a class teaching professional skills in acting, scene study, and improvisation. The classes take place at Hudson Valley Community College through Aug. 26 from 1 to 4 p.m.

If you have an item exclusively for area teens, send it to TEENSCENE, Spotlight Newspapers, 125 Adams St., Delmar 12054.

Village summer concerts have something for everyone

By Lyn Stapf

Folks are rockin' round the park this summer as the Village of Voorheesville continues its annual Concert in the Park series on Sunday evenings.

According to Village Trustee Dan Reh who along with Bob Shutter of Goldrush productions coordinates the 9 week musical undertaking, the series has something for everyone with almost every kind of musical style represented.

Coming up this weekend on July 15 beginning at 6:30 p.m., the Ravena-based group "Dusk 'til Dawn" will do the honors offering the crowd their brand of country and 50s and 60s music.

On July 22, hometown talent will be featured as "JoJo and the Loners" with the talented trio Joe, Tom and Mark Kraemer on guitar, keyboards and drums, and Voorheesville's Jack Toritto completing the group on bass guitar.

Toritto's performance in the Salem Hillbillies reunion concert last summer was a crowd pleaser. The evening will include a number of Beatles favorites, some contemporary tunes, and classic rock and roll along with some original pieces.

"Moments Notice," a jazz group that has the notorious distinction of being rained out twice last year, but whose enthusiasm wasn't dampened at all by the experience, is performing July 29.

On Aug. 5, "High Noon" come to town. The group, whose speciality is country and top 40 songs, features Goldrush recording artist Brenda Morehouse Wagner as lead vocalist.

The "The Steve Bart Band" will return on Aug. 12. Performing tandem with Bart last year but given their own slot this year, will be "Steve Crockett and the Log Cabin Boys" coming direct from Nashville to present an evening of blue grass and old time country music on Aug. 16.

A group for the Aug. 26 concert is still under consideration.

The final concert on Sept. 1, Labor Day weekend will feature the local group "Goldrush," with the Shutter brothers. As tradition has it this last concert will be held on the Village Green behind the Village Hall giving everyone a chance to kick up their heels on the last official weekend of vacation.

All other concerts will be in Hotaling Evergreen Park on the corner of Maple and Voorheesville avenues. All are free and concert goers are welcome to bring a chair, blanket and refreshments. In case of inclement weather, check the signs for notice of cancellation. Cancelled concerts will not be rescheduled.

R & B band to play at Voorheesville library

At 7 p.m. on July 19th, the Voorheesville Public Library will host members of the Capital District's Out of Control Rhythm and Blues Band as the second installment of the library's five-part "Chill Out at the Library" series. The local band will discuss how young aspiring musicians can prepare themselves for the professional music scene. The evening may include impromptu jamming by the band.

Use of the wrong wax can ruin your new car's shine

Many commonly-used wax products can actually dull your new car's mirror finish. They use a combination of wax or silicone and a harsh, abrasive polish which causes tiny scratches.

The scratched paint can't reflect light as well as new paint. This results in an overall reduction in shine.

Your new car should not be exposed to these abrasives. It just needs washing and a follow-up with a good abrasive-free wax.

Early car wax products were abrasive-free. If an abrasive polish was needed, it was sold as a separate product and by the strength of the abrasive used, from strong to extremely mild.

The best waxes were made with imported Carnauba wax. Carnauba grows on a select group of palm trees that grow mainly in Brazil.

As the costs of gathering and importing this natural wax skyrocketed, chemists created cheaper "wax-less" substitutes. Abrasives were then added to these new products.

Since the change from Carnauba to man-made synthetics happened slowly, only the astute consumers realized they were getting less shine for their money. Today, it is difficult indeed to find an abrasive-free car wax containing the best grades of Carnauba, but it is worth the extra money and your labor to keep your car's gleaming shine.

LEASE A SAAB, NOT A COMPROMISE

ANNOUNCING THE SAAB NO MONEY DOWN LEASE.

"Make a list of the desirable design features in today's road cars," wrote one automotive journalist, "and it would describe the Saab." Which is why, if you've ever thought about such a list, there's never been a better time to visit your Saab dealer.

Because through July 31st, you can lease a car that inspires quotes like the one above for the cost of driving cars that inspire considerably less.

And for what amounts to a modest monthly fee, you'll be putting yourself behind the wheel of a car of anything but modest virtues.

In a Saab, spirited performance is combined with a superb safety record. One that the Highway Loss Data Institute shows to be the best in its class. Sensuous leather seats are combined with the practicality of fold down rear seats to create a carrying capacity that rivals a station wagon's.

SAAB

WE DON'T MAKE COMPROMISES.
WE MAKE SAABS

In short, you'll be getting a car that expands the capabilities of the performance car, while lowering the cost of enjoying them. A fact that your Saab dealer would be happy to highlight — along with a number of other flexible leasing opportunities — at your earliest convenience.
