Vocal residents prompt DOT action on crosswalk

By Susan Graves

Bethlehem residents know how to push the right buttons to get things done. The state Department of Transportation is responding to concerns about problems pedestrians have had at the intersection of Delaware and Elsmere avenues. The first change is that pedestrians who cross the street and push the traffic stop buttons on the poles will get a four-way stop, said John E. Taylor, DOT regional director.

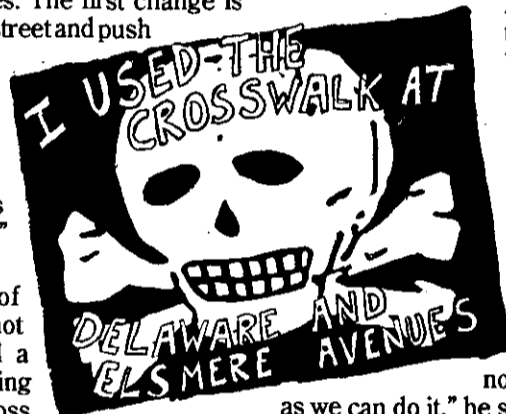

Last week, he said, he came to assess the situation himself as a result of a "whole pile of letters" sent to DOT.

He said a number of pedestrians he observed did not use the existing buttons, and a number of drivers were not yielding to pedestrians attempting to cross.

Taylor said he crossed the street four or five times, and that "A couple of times, I got pretty nervous." Still, he said, "The system as it is designed is adequate." Taylor said the four-way red light will only occur when a pedestrian pushes the button to activate it. He said pedestrians who fail to use the stop traffic buttons are actually in violation of the law.

"In any event, we'll be doing that (installing the four-way stop button) momentarily," he said Monday. There also will be sufficient time to cross the street, according to Taylor.

Taylor said DOT will also install a green left-turn arrow for vehicles turning left from Delaware onto Groesbeck Place. Though he said the intersection does not warrant the arrow under DOT criteria — "none of the warrants come close to being met" — the arrow will be installed nonetheless. "It will be done as fast as we can do it," he said.

Taylor said he will also respond to the residents who have written letters to DOT.

C & D landfill smoldering

By Susan Wheeler

A privately-owned South Bethlehem construction and demolition debris landfill, already the subject of two town lawsuits, is again smoldering.

The 3.5 acre Spawns Hollow Road landfill, owned by Glenmont resident Harlen Metz, began burning last Monday, June 10, according to Richard Hummel, Selkirk Fire Department district chief. He said Selkirk Fire Department volunteers worked nine hours last Monday to put out the underground fires, which are most likely caused by spontaneous combustion. The smoldering began again, and the volunteers were called out Friday to dig up and wet down the debris. He said Monday that the landfill continued to burn and that volunteers went out again in the evening.

The town's second lawsuit, served April 8, aims to properly close the landfill, according to Michael Smith, assistant town attorney and senior partner at Roemer and Featherstonhaugh in Albany. The suit, which names Metz and several waste management corporations as defendants, evolved from a mid-March 1991 fire, which also called for fire department volunteer cooperation in extinguishing it. The lawsuit, which will be updated to include the most recent fires, is comprised of two parts, he said. The first

High bidder to do reval

By Debi Boucher

The New Scotland Town Board voted at a special meeting Monday night to contract with Cole-Layer Trumble, an Ohio firm with offices in Albany, to perform a full data collection and re-evaluation on the town's 3,700 properties.

Assessor Richard Law III, who made the recommendation, argued strongly for his choice, saying, "CLT is the one I can work with most easily and get the most results from." Already in his court was councilman John Sgarlata, who had sat in on meetings between CLT, Law and representatives of the state Equalization and Assessment Board, which has mandated the town to update its data.

Councilman Craig Shufelt expressed "reservations," but went with the majority in the 3-1 vote. Peter Van Zetten provided the third aye, with Supervisor Herbert Reilly dissenting. Councilman Wyman Osterhout was absent.

Reilly said he based his vote on reservations; about the firm, which apparently ran into problems in its revaluation project in the neighboring Town of Knox; and his

Needles reappear in town recyclables

Another set of used insulin syringes was discovered in commingled recyclable materials collected in Bethlehem last week. "It showed up early last week in a load at the recycling center," on Route 32 said Bruce Secor, commissioner of public works.

The town was able to determine who the hauler was on the day the Maxwell House coffee can with the insulin syringes, labeled U-100, was discovered, he said. The town and Robert Wright Disposal are attempting to locate the resident who is placing the syringes with items to be recycled. "Wright is going to send a notice to all the people on that day's route," he said. If necessary, all the customers on the route where the syringes were discovered will be called, Secor said.

"What we really want to do is educate this individual," not punish him, he said. In April, Empire Returns of Syracuse rejected Bethlehem's recyclables after an earlier set of syringes was discovered. "Fortunately, we caught this can before it went out to Syracuse," Secor said Friday. One of the needles has been sent to the State Police lab for analysis, he said.

In May, two Bethlehem representatives went to Syracuse to check the material but found no syringes, which are medical waste. The men "actually went out and went over the load," he said.

Labor commissioner enforces wage laws

New York State Labor Commissioner Thomas F. Hartnett recently announced that he has ordered 15 area firms to pay over $100,000 in back wages, minimum wages, benefits, interest and civil penalties for violating state wage laws. The orders were issued during the first quarter of 1991.

An employer who fails to pay wages, benefits or minimum wages may be assessed a civil penalty and is assessed interest when an order to comply is issued. An order to comply lists wages due and owed, interest assessed to the date of the order and any civil penalty. Before issuing an order, the department attempts to negotiate a satisfactory schedule of payment with delinquent employers. If no agreement is reached, or if an employer fails to honor an agreement, the department issues an order to comply.

If the amount owed is paid within 10 days of receipt of the order, satisfactory compliance with the order is met. If the total amount is not paid within 10 days, interest will continue to accrue. An employer receiving orders to comply also has 60 days after the order is issued to appeal to the state Industrial Board of Appeals.

RCS budget flies in face of storm

By Regina Bulman

Despite a sudden storm and power outages throughout the district, the 1991-92 Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school budget was approved by one of the highest margins in the district's history.

Last Wednesday, voters approved the $18.5 million budget, which represents a 5.4 percent increase over last year and includes some teacher and staff reductions.

District officials said that a wind and rain storm and the loss of electricity from early afternoon until 10 p.m. didn't discourage voters from turning out at the polls.

The tally was 977 yes votes, 713 no votes and 41 blank votes. A special proposition concerning the purchase of new buses also passed by more than 150 votes. Maurice Satin, Sarah Hafensteiner and Russell Sykes were elected to fill three vacant board of education seats.

In what has been termed the most difficult budget year in history and with some neighboring school district budgets being turned down, RCS officials were concerned about budget approval. Last year, the budget was defeated but passed on its second vote. Before that, the last time a budget was defeated was in 1982.

District officials struggled to present a budget to voters this year, cutting the original budget proposal by $740,000 and pushing back the budget vote by a month because of delayed state aid figures. RCS officials were reportedly "relieved and pleased" by the budget approval.

One-car accident kills one, wrecks house

Investigators from the Albany County Sheriff's Department resorted to fingerprints to identify the victim of a fatal one-car accident that destroyed the front portion of a home on Route 85A early Sunday morning.

Sgt. Scott Giroux said fingerprints of the fatality, identified as George McGough, 37, of 1464 Dorwalt Blvd., Schenectady, were faxed to the FBI, which keeps criminal and civil records. McGough was identified at approximately 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

The van in which McGough had been a passenger crashed into the front of the Voorheesville home owned by David and Lisa Thackerah after the driver, Claude Kimball, 29, of 3 Lincoln Square, Albany, failed to negotiate a curve, according to the sheriff's department.

Kimball, who suffered a fractured spine and other injuries, was charged with driving while intoxicated and numerous traffic violations. He was admitted to Albany Medical Center Hospital, along with a second passenger in the van, Maria Argumedo, 38, of 44 Hackett Ave., Albany, who received head injuries. A sheriff's department report said both were uncooperative in identifying the dead man, who carried no identification. Argumedo is being charged with obstructing governmental administration.

An autopsy conducted by Albany County Coroner William Loetterle revealed that McGough died from a punctured lung and neck fracture. Investigation into the accident is continuing, Giroux said.

Rensselaer man indicted on sodomy charges

Following his arrest by Albany County Sheriff's Department investigators, a 44-year-old Rensselaer man was indicted June 11 for allegedly sodomizing a 5-year-old girl in New Scotland, according to Sgt. Scott Giroux of the Albany County Sheriff's Department.

William J. Stafford, of 1605 Second St., Rensselaer, was charged with two counts of first degree sodomy and one count of first degree sexual abuse, both felonies. The arrest was made by Senior Investigator Sarah Martin and Investigator James Klein, who conducted the investigation after a complaint was made by one of the child's relatives. Stafford was an acquaintance of the girl's family, according to Giroux.

Stafford was arraigned by New Scotland Town Justice Kenneth Connolly, remanded to Albany County Jail without bail and appeared in New Scotland Town Court June 6, at which time his case was referred to county court for grand jury action, Giroux said.

Frustration may account for school budget defeat

By Robert Webster Jr.

Residents had the final say on the controversial Voorheesville Central School District's proposed $10.4 million budget, and they responded with a resounding no by a more than 250-vote margin.

The $10,405,768 budget, which represented a less than one percent increase over the current $10,305,087 budget, was voted down 779-523, with 1,318 voters turning out to cast their ballots.

"There was a sense we were going to have difficulty with the community," said Board President C. James Coffin. "We had hoped there would be enough positive sentiment to carry it, but apparently there was not."

Superintendent Alan McCartney said, "It's been a difficult year ... the entire atmosphere has been one of frustration."

"It's obvious the tax rate (set at 12 to 14 percent) was unacceptable to the majority of the constituents, but there were other underlying problems," he added.

Business Administrator Anthony Marturano agreed, saying, "When we opened up the back of the machine, all we saw were numbers, not reasons why the people voted no."

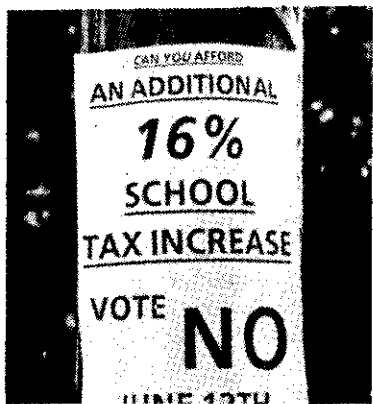

A "residual resentment" over the raises in the teacher contracts and a dissatisfaction concerning the length of time taken by the state to complete its budget may have trickled down to the school district, leaving only the budget to take the blows, said Coffin.

The Voorheesville Teachers' Association's new contract settlement with the district will provide teachers with salary increases of 8.9, 8.8 and 8.7 percent over the next three years.

"I can see where people are frustrated," said Coffin. "But if people want to send us a message because they have a problem with the (teachers) contract, give me a call. If you want to send the governor a message, that's fine, but it doesn't help our community to vote down the budget. It's just too important an issue."

Coffin said that while some members of the community have been critical, he has also been approached by individuals who understand the bind that Voorheesville and other districts throughout the state are in.

"You do get it from both sides," he said. "It is up to the board to

Although the actual tax rate was between 12 and 14 percent, this sign makes clear the feelings of some district residents concerning the tax rate.

come down on the side of the children and provide for their education. That is what we're elected to do and that is what we're going to do."

"We worked hard and long on this budget," said McCartney. "But we have a responsibility to the children to provide a good educational program ... we're just going to have to continue working."

The proposed 12 to 14 percent increase was a result of the district's loss in revenues, said Marturano, primarily in state aid. The district lost over $700,000 in aid, $143,000 in mid-year cuts for the 1990-91 school year and $570,000 for the 1991-92 school year.

In response to the aid cuts, nearly $1 million was trimmed from the proposed budget, resulting in drastic cuts in programs and staffing. The elimination of 11.6 full-time employee positions in the schools could lead to larger classrooms, said McCartney, but they would still be under the Capital District average, which is around 20 students.

The staffing cuts had some residents concerned, but still others wondering if it was enough.

"The budget committee and board worked very hard to produce this budget and did a good job of it," said Richard Mele, president of the VTA. "Unfortunately, there was the loss of a number of teaching positions, and that could affect the educational process. We really won't know until next year."

However, district resident and accountant William J. Wenzel, said that he felt a "proper effort" had not been made to cut the budget.

Unlike many residents, Wenzel found fault with the student to teacher ratio, stating that it was too high and additional cuts could be made in staffing to lower the tax rate.

"There has been a drastic reduction in state aid, but the tax payer shouldn't be tapped to make up the full difference," he said.

Board member Mary Van Ryn said that the community's reaction to the budget was "disturbing," partially because the board feels it is as "bare-bones as it can be."

"To strip this back even further, we could lose more teachers, up the class sizes and change the quality of this district," she said. "I'm bothered that people want something for nothing. They want the best, but they are not willing to pay."

Board member Thomas Thorpe said that he thinks it is not so much that people are not willing to pay for quality, but rather, "There is a fear, a lack of security. I don't hear comments about the school being bad. . . I hear fears that they may not be able to continue living in this community."

As of Monday night, the board had decided to adopt an interim budget, set at $1,443,552, which would allow the district enough money to function through August, or until a budget was passed.

Coffin said McCartney and the budget committee would take another look at the budget and break it up into a "base budget" which would contain expenditures necessary to run the district, and several propositions to be voted on separately. Those propositions could include library books, transportation and inter-scholastic athletics.

Also defeated was a $56,000 bus purchase proposition, with 632 no votes and 606 yes votes. The Voorheesville Public Library budget, which totaled $305,554, passed by a single vote, 614 to 613, and the one available library board seat went to incumbent Homer Warner, running unopposed, who received 698 votes.

In the school board elections, William Parmalee was chosen to fill the five-year term, which will be vacated by board clerk David Teuten June 30. Parmalee received 659 votes, while the other two candidates, Peter Murphy and Joseph Cotazino, received 214 and 246 votes respectively.

New store owner plans expanded selections

By Susan Wheeler

Butch Francis is back in business. His new grocery store, the Delmar Convenient Express, is located at 406 Kenwood Ave., the site of the former Handy Andy.

The deal closed Friday afternoon, and by Friday night Francis was cleaning windows and organizing shelves with the help of some of his former employees, said the one-time Convenient Food Mart owner. Francis, a Glenmont resident, said he had been working on the deal to secure the site of Handy Andy since last August, two months after his Selkirk food store was bought out by the Bonfare franchise. Now that there's work to be done at the new store, six of his former employees are returning, as well as former store general manager Mary Ann Weidman.

"It feels fantastic" to be back, Francis said. Former customers from the Ravena area have stopped in for a quick visit and to wish him luck, he said. "It's just great."

According to Joseph Trefiletti, owner of the former Handy Andy for 16 years, it was time for a change both in his personal and business life. He is looking forward to a career in real estate.

And Francis is on his way to making changes within the store. He said he hopes to have a New York style gourmet deli and a bakery up and running within six weeks. The deli will offer sandwiches to go, as well as soups and salads. Pizza will be made and baked on the premises, and the shelves will be stocked with approximately 500 more items, he said. "We're a customer service oriented business," he said, "and here to please the customer."

The store's produce department will be expanded and attention will be given to the fruits and vegetables to keep them moist and cool. Francis said he'll be spending $800 to $1,000 a week on produce. "We're going to feature a lot more variety," such as red and Spanish onions, strawberries and cantaloupe, he said.

Francis said that within a short time the store will highlight specials, such as a senior citizen discount day. The store's hours are currently 8 a.m. to 11 p.m., but will be increased to 6 a.m. to midnight once the deli is operating.

According to Weidman, the store's manager, customers are aware of the changes under way. She stressed that the additions to the market won't change the personalized service some are accustomed to receiving, such as having their bags carried to the car for them.

"This is a happy comeback," Francis said. "It's great."

Board cleans up 'pooper scooper' proposal

By Susan Wheeler

Town officials agreed to make language changes to the proposed "pooper scooper" law at last week's board meeting.

According to Supervisor Ken Ringler, the changes, made in response to a May 8 public hearing, would be "a way to attack the problem without being too burdensome with town regulation."

The proposed scooper law now would require dog owners to clean up feces left by their pets on any public road, street, highway, sidewalk or any public grounds or parks. Revisions made following the public hearing limited the law to private properties, but public areas have since been reinserted. Ringler said he felt roadways and sidewalks should be included because if they are not, then the dog droppings will be moved into the roadways.

Under the proposed legislation, dog owners would be required to clean up dog droppings on private property. A new addition to the law requires dog owners to clean up dog droppings on that portion of a front lawn owned by the town and maintained by the land owner, Ringler said.

The proposed law, which is being drafted by Town Attorney Bernard Kaplowitz, will not apply to police dogs or to guide dogs for handicapped people. Ringler said he looked at other towns' scooper ordinances and found that they included this exemption.

According to the proposed legislation, dog owners must clean up droppings and dispose of them "in a safe and sanitary matter" in a suitable container.

Councilman Frederick Webster agreed with the new language, saying that anything should be done for a suitable compromise to avoid pitting neighbor against neighbor.

A public hearing was set for the law, which will take effect 30 days after it is filed with the secretary of state, for Wednesday, July 10, at 7:30 p.m.

In other news:

- The board will consider imposing a local law to encourage delinquent water-bill payers to pay their bills on time. The law would require that a 15 percent handling and processing fee be assessed to those bills which were not paid before they went to Albany County for the relevy process.

According to Kenneth Hahn, receiver of taxes and assessments, the number of customers who do not honor the final water bill warning is increasing. Approximately 200 out of 11,000 customers are currently in arrears. He said that the customers openly admit that their practice of paying the bills late is to boost their income tax deductible. He said of those 200 customers, he would "have trouble finding two" that cannot afford to pay their bill.

According to Hahn, an account is charged a 10 percent late fee when it is not paid by its first deadline. After one year, the county is notified if the account has not been paid. The charge is then added to the following year's property tax bill, which is deductible.

Hahn said levying the processing charge on those accounts that cause additional postage costs, labor, phone calls and computer work makes sense. He said the purpose of the fee is to encourage deadline payment, make the revenue, approximately $27,000, available to the town and reduce the additional processing cost.

- The board appointed Sheila Fuller, who will leave her post as Bethlehem school board president next month, to fill the term of Robert Burns, who resigned last month. She will run as a Republican nominee for a seat on the board in November.

Coyne bows out, supports party candidate

By Debi Boucher

"It doesn't feel that bad at all, actually — maybe I needed a break."

There was a sense of relief evident in the words of Albany County Executive James J. Coyne Jr., commenting Friday on his recent decision not to run for re-election to the post he has held for 16 years. Weeks of speculation about Coyne's intentions ended Wednesday night at the county Democratic party's committee meeting when Chairman Harold Joyce read a letter from Coyne expressing support for party candidate Robert Lyman.

Coyne said he made the decision Wednesday morning, after concluding "it wasn't worth it" to jeopardize the careers of supporters by asking them to publicly back him in a primary.

He said future plans include writing "a couple of books" and possibly consulting businesses and government on privatization, an area that brought Coyne and the county national recognition in the past several years following proposals first to sell, then lease the airport to a private firm. Coyne

"He is a tough act to follow, and I don't think people realize that." John McEneny sees the county's latest move to hire Lockheed Air Terminal Inc. to manage the airport as a form of privatization.

The office of county executive is a "toothless tiger" in Albany County, Coyne said. "You have to be more than a ribbon cutter. You have to be creative and imaginative, and hopefully the people will agree with your ideas." Without that cooperation, "you may as well just get yourself a good sharp pair of scissors."

Despite limitations, Coyne said, his administration can claim a number of achievements, including the Corning Preserve, Heritage Park, economic development programs like the Altech fund, the recently-opened Olympic hockey training rink, the Albany Patroons and of course, the Knickerbocker Arena.

Assistant County Executive John McEneny cited the Knick as "just one example of how Jim Coyne's personality and imagination—and that little spark that can sometimes annoy people — has made a difference." McEneny said Coyne's willingness to take risks was one of his strong points. "You need that sometimes flamboyant style in a county executive," he said. "Most people would have built something along the lines of Glens Falls," instead of the 17,000-seat arena that opened last year. "You need that little bit of spark that makes people sometimes go out on a limb ... you wind up with a legacy that goes way beyond the individual."

Referring to Republican criticism of the civic center, Albany County Democratic Chairman Harold Joyce said, "The opposition was saying it would be a bad thing, but that's been taken away from them: It's a big success." Commented McEneny, "This was supposed to be the ruination of downtown Albany, and it hasn't happened." Instead, "It injected life into a dead downtown."

Although the civic center is "the most visible" achievement of Coyne's reign, McEneny said his administration of social services has made the county a model for other counties.

"He is a tough act to follow, and I don't think people realize that," he said.

Commending his leadership in the privatization issue, McEneny said Coyne would be valuable to the private sector.

But Coyne himself hasn't ruled out a return to politics: "Once it's in your blood, it probably stays there for a while."

Coyne, now 47, noted that he entered politics at a very young age compared to the two contenders now in the ring; Lyman is 50 and Republican Michael J. Hoblock is 48. "Chances are they won't make as many mistakes as I did," he said, commenting that youth has advantages as well as drawbacks. "You're willing to take more chances."

Declining to detail what he sees as his "mistakes," Coyne said some of his "judgments" drew criticism. He recently denied any wrongdoing in connection with $6,300 in travel expenses charged to the county's Industrial Development Agency, saying the trips were related to IDA projects; he resigned from the IDA over the flap.

Other damaging incidents involved a free car from a Ravenna dealership that later sold the county a car, and a scholarship awarded Coyne's daughter by a subsidiary of the Patroons during county negotiations with the basketball team. Coyne later returned the money. McEneny said the scholarship was "politically dumb — it wasn't illegal."

Also weighing on Coyne is an ongoing grand jury investigation into his finances.

"There's a feeling out there that once somebody gets elected he becomes infallible," said Coyne. "Everybody's human, that's why they have erasers on pencils."

Joyce said Coyne's decision to bow out was "probably in the best interest of Jim and his family." And avoiding a primary, he indicated, is probably in the best interest of the party. "In some ways they have a cleansing effect, and they're not necessarily bad," he said, "but you try to avoid them."

Said McEneny, "Jim Coyne's more short-term legacy is he left a united party behind him."

Historical museum open for season

The Bethlehem Historical Association on Route 144 at Cedar Hill is again open for the summer season, with hours from 1 to 5 p.m. every Sunday.

The museum is exhibiting artworks by Bethlehem artists, among them Katherine Van Allen, 1873-1967, whose watercolors of flowers are a favorite. Three generations of one Bethlehem family is represented in the works of Minnie Jacobson Wagner of North Bethlehem, Jeanne Stanley Brown and D.E. Stanley Brown of Delmar, presenting oils, watercolors and painting on china. A Hudson River landscape, painted in 1863 by Edwin Lewis, and an oil painting of the Van Wies Point School, done by Wilfred Thomas are also on display.

David Lithgow is represented by a large oil painting of Indians along the banks of the Hudson and the works of Henry J. Albright, 1887-1951, of Glenmont and Walter Launt Palmer, who resided in Glenmont, are also on display.

In addition, the museum has on view its permanent collection on schools, farming life, baskets, ice cutting material and many other artifacts from the early life and times of the Town of Bethlehem.

Workshop scheduled

The Bethlehem Christian Workshop is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year with a slate of 34 classes for Bethlehem youths from kindergarten through eighth grade on July 8 through 12.

The workshop began in 1966 even before its sponsor, Bethlehem Community Church, was incorporated, and has been held every year since, with the exception of 1990 when it took a year off to facilitate participation in the Billy Graham Crusade in Albany.

Courses encompass just about every area of interest to kids, including sports, nature, crafts, science, music — even a good grooming course and a course on dinosaurs.

In addition to long-time favorites such as racing wagons, hiking, circus and more, this year's anniversary edition offers a craft course centering on recycling for kindergartners and a "challenge" course for middle schoolers.

An integral part of every class is a Bible study presenting the essentials of the Christian message.

Classes are held at Bethlehem Community Church, Bethlehem

Lutheran Church, the Elm Avenue Town Park, a bowling class at Del Lanes and at several Bethlehem area homes. Morning classes run from 9 to 11:30 a.m., Monday-Friday and most evening classes from 7 to 9 p.m., Monday-Thursday. One afternoon course, The B.C.W. Crew, is a no limit, fun and games class for first through sixth graders from 1 to 3 p.m. weekdays.

As in past years, the Workshop All Family Grand Finale will be held at Bethlehem Community Church on Friday, July 12.

Nancy Bub and Chuck Jordan are co-directors of this year's workshop. Course descriptions and registration information were included in a special four-page insert in the June 5 issue of The Spotlight.

Farmers' market begins June 28

The St. Thomas Farmers' Market will open Friday, June 28, in the church parking lot on Delaware Avenue. The market hours are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each Friday through October.

Library employees get contract

By Susan Wheeler

Bethlehem Public Library employees have a contract after more than a year of negotiations. Library trustees recently unanimously approved the package, which calls for the establishment of an agency shop clause with 75 percent union membership.

The vote authorizes library Director Barbara Mladinov, and board President Joyce Strand, to sign the contract. According to Strand, no date has been set to sign the contract, but it will be signed "shortly." "We're pleased to have the contract resolved," she said. "It's been two and a half years of a lot of time and effort."

The agency shop clause was the remaining item in the four-year contract to be ironed out by trustees and union negotiators, according to Strand. The clause, to be effective (retroactive to) July 1, 1990, would require the library to deduct fees from all bargaining unit members' salaries each pay period. The fees, which depend on one's salary, will be sent to the Civil Service Employees Association to pay for services of the union to both members and nonmembers.

According to Karen Finnessey, union president and program coordinator for the Bethlehem Channel, all library full and regular part-time employees, excluding supervisors and student pages, were certified by the New York State Public Employees Relations Board (PERB) to comprise a union unit in March 1990. All 62 library employees are in the bargaining unit and have a choice to become a union member, she said.

The 75 percent union membership, about 47 employees, will be reviewed every six months, according to Strand.

Finnessey said she was glad the contract is resolved, but "very disappointed" that the board took the time it did to come to an agreement. She said union negotiators gave in on the agency shop clause to facilitate the negotiations. For example, union negotiators did not want the membership to be reviewed every six months, she said.

"I'm happy with most of the contract," Finnessey said. "It can work out really well if everyone gives it a chance." She said the employees received a fair and good salary schedule. In addition, they received representation "that can't be ignored" in the form of a labor management committee, she said.

Mladinov said that the approximately $1 million in personnel costs account for 60 percent of the $1.8 million budget. The New York State average is 65 percent.

Negotiations for the contract began in May 1990 and reached an impasse in October. PERB appointed a mediator, who in December was appointed as a factfinder to review the issue and make recommendations. The fact finder, Paul B. Curry, submitted his recommendations in late February.

According to Curry's report, the library did not want to establish an agency fee because it would require the majority of the employees to pay dues to the bargaining representative. The library contended that employees had no choice in whether to belong to the library bargaining unit since there was no vote, according to Strand.

In a union contract vote Thursday, June 6, Finnessey said all but three members voted. The contract was approved by all voters. She said she can not say how many voted because the library is asking for a 75 percent membership.

Strand said the board and union negotiators worked to make a "contract that everyone can live with."

Come out fighting!

The famous boxing referee Joe Humphries would end his last-second instructions to pugilists something like this:

"I want you to come out fighting! And may the better competitor emerge victorious!"

The latter comment was Joe's long-winded way of saying, "Let the best man win." But the earlier admonition is an apt one that applies to many kinds of contests — election campaigns, for good example.

Now that the two principal parties here in Albany County have finally come forth with their candidates for County Executive, let's hope that both will carry on vigorous campaigns over the next 20 weeks.

Republican Michael Hoblock promises to wage an issue-oriented campaign. "Issues" in politics presumably are segregated from irrelevancies and personalities, and in any case Mr. Hoblock already has lost his No. 1 issue, James J. Coyne's person. But the No. 2 issue remains — the Coyne record and his heritage.

Even though Robert Lyman, the Democrats' choice, prevailed when Mr. Coyne withdrew, he will have to carry the party's record of support for all the Coyne enterprises. It will be his burden to carry until he may somehow be able to shed it. The candidate's apparent readiness to defer to his county chairman is unlikely to build voter Spending 'cuts' — or increases?

Speaking of State spending, the unkindest cut of all comes now from Pierre Rinfret, erstwhile candidate for Governor, who points out that "cuts in spending" are only an illusionary figment, because actually the State will have $3 billion more in expenditures this year than last.

Such reductions as have been made, he insists, are only within the increases that are being imposed. Mr. Rinfret concurs that indeed "there are cuts in certain categories and that there are fewer increases than there would have been" — but there's no cut in total New York state spending in fiscal year 1992.

Mr. Rinfret condemns the variety of "economic threats" that politicians invented: They would have to cut back on school children's lunches, cut back on public education, close parks, cut back on care for the aged and indigent, and slash the daylights Informing the taxpayer: How?

The arrival of the latest round of handbills from public officials and governmental bodies serves to raise anew a nagging question: Should the recipients then receive the bills for these expenditures?

Stated another way, is the distribution of self-serving literature a proper function of, specifically, legislators, towns, school districts, etc.?

Obviously, publication and distribution of such "newsletters" means the incurring of a cost to the public treasury. The only way they can be paid for under existing practices is through a charge to an operating fund that can be replenished through an unmarked item in the taxpayers' bills.

Is it suitable for people who have been elected to office to employ tax money to further their own ends through this means of purportedly providing information that the public/taxpayers/voters need? That's the basic question.

A subsidiary issue is the actual worth of the "information." From the learned discourses of Senator Moynihan to the latest triumphs of local administrators, the value of that information needs to be scrutinized and confidence in him as a person of independent judgments.

Mr. Hoblock's problems center in the fact that he is not Fred G. Field and that he is saddled with the same tired "leadership" of his party in this county. It's a losing image (and record) that will not be easily shaken off.

The Albany County Airport fiasco and the Knickerbocker Arena cost overruns undoubtedly will be among the principal bones of contention. But in fact there's much more to question and to debate. We can hope that at least as much light as heat will emerge somewhere in this campaign. Perhaps there even will be time for decent projections of the future we can expect in finances, taxation, administration, and other unglamorous, down-to-earth items that properly involve county government.

By November, voters should be able to take the measure of each candidate — not only what he stands for, but also how much he will stand for.

Yes, may the better competitor emerge victorious.

out of state employment" — while state spending is budgeted to go up by $3 billion.

It is quite easy to agree with his allegation that "the financial management of this state is a disaster and a case study in incompetence, selfishness of special interests, and greed of politicians who, if they keep it up, will destroy the state and the city of New York by excessive taxation."

All the crocodile grief about regrettable cuts in state spending, Mr. Rinfret alleges further, has been only "to mask the politicians' desire to raise taxes on the people of New York."

Granting that his figures are accurate, his blunt conclusions are startling, and constitute a serious indictment of those who he says have deliberately misled us "in the most blatant way possible — the Governor, the Legislature, and the news media."

effectively evaluated. The critical point in the test should be:

Does this information actually serve a useful service, objectively judged? In the background, of course, is the overriding question as to the propriety of these expenditures of public funds.

Some such "newsletters" fall on their face with only scant perusal. One such currently in circulation clearly has nothing to say, then says it at length.

In a somewhat different category are the publications issued periodically by town governments, school districts, and even public libraries. These, too, represent a mixed bag of conceivably useful data but also scoring points for the establishment.

We believe that public debate on these practices is well deserved and timely. Perhaps some of those who issue such bulletins will have some telling points to offer; our columns are open to their responses. And, of course, a newspaper's function is to bring to the public the legitimate news which elective or administrative officers may produce. The Spotlight always seeks to serve effectively in this respect.

'I love Delmar'—but... what of individuality?

Editor, The Spotlight:

I love Delmar. It is a lovely community—peaceful, safe, and a wonderful place to raise children. Sociologically, we Delmartians are an educated group, family-centered, opinionated, articulate. We value our children, and do our best to raise them "right."

Yet I am discomfited by an observation I have made in my years as a mother struggling to "do the right thing" by my children. There appears to be a sizable group of vigilantes striding across the well-manicured lawns of our community.

I call this group the "Perfect Parent Patrol." Stationed on every block, armed with righteous indignation and moral certitude, they appoint themselves keepers of our community's children.

Concerned not only with education and drug use, they take on burning neighborhood issues likely play groups, toy purchases, toddler dress codes. Ever vigilant, they do not hesitate to voice their disapproval of a nonconforming parent and, as good Samaritans, tell you how you should be raising your children. Their children are, of course, perfect.

Vox Pop

I hesitate to voice this complaint for fear of having a copy of Dr. Spock's book burned on my lawn, and take refuge in my unimpeachable credentials in doing so. I have an advanced degree, but have chosen to be a stay-at-home mother. I am a PTA volunteer, a BOU booster. I even lead a Brownie troop. But my heart is impure; my thoughts do not pass muster of the Perfect Parent Patrol. Sure, like all Perfect Parents, I want to provide a strong moral foundation for my children.

I am, however, deeply concerned that in our rush to provide the best opportunities and experiences for our children, to oversee their lives as closely as we control the weeds on our lawns, we overlook certain values like tolerance, diversity, independence, respect. We may be a demographically

Impact of 'wasteshed' on Selkirk is deplored

Editor, The Spotlight:

By now, all residents of the Selkirk area must have become aware that the City of Albany is considering the area as its dump site.

Following the announcement on June 7 of 15 potential sites, it quickly became a reality to many Selkirk residents as they received a letter from the Town of Bethlehem informing them that the city is considering their property for possible location for the AN-SWERS wasteshed regional landfill.

Children at A.W. Becker elementary school will have a first-hand education on waste — because it may be as close as 1,000 feet (or perhaps 3,500) from the school. What a lovely environment for them to view and smell! Will this be healthy and safe?

Secondly, residents of Beaver Dam Road, northside of Maple Avenue, east of the Thruway, and Cottage Lane all may be left without homes. How inconsiderate to uproot all these families and to devalue property.

No longer will residents of the Village of Selkirk worry alone about just truck traffic. They'll have to contend with the smell of debris and the rumble of bulldozers as they level this trash. (Of course, the view may be somewhat breathtaking!)

Residents of Selkirk: Let your voices be heard. A meeting on July 1 at 7:30 p.m. has been arranged for Bethlehem High School.

But let's get this meeting at our Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School so more can attend because it concerns us — so many of us. Let your feelings be known to public officials on this matter.

Why here? The result will be homes uprooted, tax money lost, wetlands destroyed, and possible health risk to a residential area.

Pass or fail? Officialdom graded

The other morning on the "Today" program I listened with increasing interest to one of Bryant Gumbel's interviews.

The interviewee was a magazine writer and editor, Richard Sorian, and the subject was a review of the Bush Administration's performance on planning and executing a more effective health-care program for Americans. He offered "grades," just like a schoolteacher's assessments, on some of the key officials in the administration, beginning with Secretary of Health and Human Services Louis Sullivan and ending with the President.

Secretary Sullivan earned a B-minus; the President a C-minus. On the other hand, the new director of the Centers for Disease Control received an A. The Surgeon General was given a D and the head of the FDA, with a promising start in a brief term, an "Incomplete."

The comments were delivered in a dispassionate manner, with seemingly knowledgeable credibility. I found it to be an informative presentation, and it served to start me thinking about other ways in which a grammar-school grading system could be applied to other public officers closer to home.

If you were given an opportunity to grade your state, county, and community leadership, how would they do on the report card?

Starting at the state level, I would flunk almost every member of the immediate area's delegation to the Senate and Assembly — if for no reason other than that almost all of them are ineffectively in the wrong party. Namely, there are local Republicans in the Assembly which the Democrats control; and Democrats in the Republican-dominated Senate. But there are exceptions: Senators Joe Bruno (Rensselaer County) and Hugh Farley (Schenectady) are in the majority party and seem to function with a degree of relevance, especially Bruno.

All, however, are victims of the same disease — standing around waiting for the bosses to tell them what decisions have been reached in private sessions dealing with the state's finances.

As for our Governor, I give him a failing grade also. He talks a good game, especially when not confronting any real opposition, as in radio gab shows. But the state is in its present mess because Mario M. Cuomo had his eyes on something other than the ball for the past eight and one-half years. Having voted for him once, I'd never make that mistake again.

Here in Albany County, you may not believe this but I'd give Gentleman Jim Coyne an A over D-minus. He has looked terrible on a list of things—but when he wanted something enough he really performed. And that's one of the tests I'd apply (and which Mr. Sorian applied in his grading of the Bush health people). That is, could he accomplish what he set out to do — whether or not we might agree with the goal.

On the more local scene, an A with a gold star beside it will be awarded to the newcomer Ken Ringler, the Bethlehem supervisor. His active approach to most matters is a winning one — again, regardless of whether one might concur with his stance at any given time.

Supervisor Fred Field, the old reliable, necessarily wins an A but with a red star. Teacher notes that in order to win promotion he would have to become more of a risk-taker.

Over in Albany, Mayor Tom Whalen receives a straight A in what is probably the most complex and challenging day-to-day job of them all.

Looking over the report cards, I find that I should offer more on some of the agencies that we have to come in contact with: Transportation, which I would promptly flunk; Public Service commission, another failure (particularly after the Governor reconstituted it in his own image); Health, a barely passing grade because of a variety of wrong emphases.

One other public official that I've overlooked because he seems easily overlooked: United States Representative Michael McNulty, who has won a free pass from the media granting invisibility and unaccountability. The grade, then, is a kindly "Incomplete." Name his position on anything other than food for Ethiopians and I'll award you a prize. Don't cite the war vote in January, though, because our Congressman voted both ways that time.

What do Americans yearn for?

It never hurts to be timely when that's possible, and this week Constant Reader has precisely that opportunity.

The subject is a relatively brief piece called "A Persistent American Yearning" (Reading time: 13 1/2 minutes, as they used to advise you in the old "Liberty" magazine). The writer is James Reston, whose name you will quickly recognize as the former press agent for the Cincinnati Reds. Later, he did some writing with fewer adjectives and screamers (!!!) in his capacity as correspondent, columnist, and editor for "The New York Times" and "The Vineyard Gazette." He's now officially retired from both those publications, but he has returned to home plate as a designated thinker. In his "American Yearning" phase, he has well applied all the mental muscle of his rather advanced years, and straight from the shoulder delivered a Sunday morning sermon in "The New York Times Magazine" (that of June 16), taking as his text "The New American Order." More on that in a moment, but first a commercial message.

On one of the pages in which his article appears is an advertisement for one of the luxury hotel chains, and the ad's self-serving message is "A towel is never too big or too thick." That struck me as just the kind of flat declaration that I liked to read on Father's Day; in fact, it might well have substituted as the inscription on some of those Father's Day cards.

Back to Mr. Reston. You will enjoy reading his sharp prose, written in a more relaxed, pungent manner than I recall in many of his columns in the old days. I guess that one of his necessary chores was to chew up George Bush and sort of spit him out like so much bubble gum after allowing a few kindly words about what had appeared to be the President's promise.

Constant Reader

But he then moves on adroitly to take the President to task for some of his miscues, not the least of which he considered to be two minor-league wars. From the last, Mr. Reston notes, there emerged "a kind of 'Iraq swagger' of boasting that Uncle Sam was No. 1 and would now at last redeem the optimistic visions of Woodrow Wilson and the other prophets of eternal peace."

He then targets Mr. Bush's "new world order" and (after "mounting my old pulpit at The Times") proposes that the real need is for a "new American order."

He fixes a finite deadline of Jan. 1, 2000, and calls for certain realizable goals in the intervening years: Recognizing that the main threat to the nation's security came from within and not from abroad; permitting a strong and modified defense force; and conceding that "even America's resources are limited and should not be squandered on reluctant peoples who would rather fight than eat."

Some of his other modest proposals: Vice Presidents as reliable as a spare time; a longer school year to help produce smarter kids rather than "smart bombs"; a policy of telling the truth by Presidents and other leaders; refusing to amend the Constitution to fit temporary whims; and declining to police the bedrooms of the American people. He also wants presidential nominations to be returned to the smoke-filled rooms where candidates would be chosen by political colleagues who could assess character and ability to govern the country.

All pretty meaty stuff, written very pleasantly in an unpretentious style studded with disclaimers:

"I found that, to my delight and to the despair of my younger friends, the older I got and the less information and energy I had, the more dogmatic I became." And:

"Nobody listened to these fantasies, of course, but that's one of the nice things about being over 80: you don't care whether they listen, and even when they do, you can't quite hear what they say."

So I have no hesitation in recommending that you find a copy of last Sunday's "Times Magazine" and give yourself the pleasure of reading the rest of Mr. Reston's sage commentaries.

In the same issue, try to read William Safire's page on the language, in which he comes down hard on conversational pauses, particularly "y'know," but also "I mean" and "like."

'Retirement community' a first for county

Craig Duncan, executive director of The Eddy, an organization devoted to providing care and services to Capital Region's elderly, serves on the Governor's Life Care Council. Mr. Duncan is also project director of Beverwyck, a non-profit joint initiative of The Eddy and the Albany Guardian Society. Both are recognized for setting standards in the geriatric health care and services industry. As the first retirement community planned for Albany County, Beverwyck may become a model for other such developments in New York State. In this Point of View, Mr. Duncan clarifies several points about the concept of continuing-care retirement communities.

Point of View

By Craig Duncan

It's no secret that our society is shifting from a youth-oriented to a mature-oriented society. Americans are living longer and doing so with more health, more vigor, and more influence than any older generation in our history. Sixty-three million Americans now over the age of 50 may very well be the most powerful and affluent group in history. And, unlike most of their parents, most adults between 65 and 79 are living active and independent lifestyles.

As we age, we become more interested in being comfortable and safe, and near a community in which we may have raised families, developed professional careers, attended church or synagogue, known sickness and been treated by trusted doctors and nurses, shared interests, and enjoyed projects with friends and neighbors.

And, as we grow older, we may tend to be less impressed with what looks good but more by what feels good. Ease of use, ease of life becomes a more desirable lifestyle. Also, since we tend to feel somewhat more physically vulnerable, security is another comfort-related issue.

Financial security, as well as physical security, are other concerns. Men and women who have spent a lifetime working want to know that their resources are safe and secure.

With these concerns in mind, The Eddy and The Albany Guardian Society have joined together to develop Beverwyck, Albany County's first retirement community. In developing our community I have met many interesting and interested people, and am pleased that a good number have arranged to be residents of Beverwyck.

Because this is a new concept for the Capital Region, the "retirement community" lifestyle of Beverwyck needs some clarification. We describe Beverwyck as a traditional neighborhood with something special added. And that "something special" is the way that living areas and lifestyle are presented. Beverwyck's focus is on the convenience and comfort that will enhance personal enjoyment of life. That may mean companionship in activities to be available in the community, or the privacy of one's own living quarters. And, most important, each cottage and apartment will be equipped with an emergency response system so that assistance can be on the scene within minutes.

Beverwyck will provide amenities such as maintenance, security, housekeeping and laundry services, transportation as needed, on-premises dining, a library, a store, and recreational facilities.

The men and women who live in the community will have easy and convenient access to health services. If someone becomes ill or disabled, a case manager will be readily available to provide help in finding health care services. Further, the community will have assistive-living apartments designed for those who need occasional, but no continuous, assistance. And, if nursing home care becomes a necessity, residents will have priority access to other programs and facilities sponsored by The Eddy.

The Beverwyck campus will have choices of cottage and apartment layouts. There is an entry fee and a monthly service fee, determined individually, after a choice of living space is made in accordance with the individual's financial profile. Our goal is to provide the investment advantage of home ownership. (Seventy-five percent of the entry fee is recoverable by either the resident or resident's estate.)

We have come a long way from our image of "old folks." Older Americans are the most diverse age group in the population in virtually every regard. We at Beverwyck are excited to be part of the development of retirement communities to suit the needs of wise and vigorous mature adults. Shop around... have a look... see what's out there... and stop in at Beverwyck (on Krumkill Road in North Bethlehem).

Matters of Opinion

Individual

homogeneous community, but psychologically we are diverse. Let's value that diversity.

Certainly as parents it is our responsibility to communicate our values to our children. It is our job to teach standards of behavior and morality. And certain vital behavioral and moral issues demand a community-wide response, like alcohol and drug use. But what has happened to the individual?

Our universities are becoming bastions of politically correct thought, requiring that we sing the praises of cultural pluralism in unison—or else. Our suburban vigilantes require that we subscribe to a particular neoconservative brand of God-fearing child-rearing. Both liberals and conservatives claim to represent truth, justice, and the American way. Yet the American way was founded on individual liberties, with free speech and privacy guaranteed by the Constitution. It seems that in our efforts to create a perfect society and raise perfect children we are overlooking the very rights our forebears sought to ensure.

We all want to create a healthful, safe environment for our kids. We all want the best for them. We all want to be perfect parents. But none of us has the patent on truth. Many paths are open to raising happy, responsible, independent adults. One element is universal in the development of self-esteem, however, and that is individual respect.

Let us make sure we respect our individual children, and let's teach them, by example, to respect the individuality in each other.

'Life's truly important lessons': Joe Schaefer's gift to children

Editor, The Spotlight:

On June 7 a ribbon-cutting ceremony held at Hamagrael elementary school to open the new addition was attended by well over 300 people. The PTA planted a tree and buried a "time capsule" to commemorate the day, and several speeches were made. We would like to share with you the remarks made by Susan Volo, PTA vice president, so that all might know the feelings we parents have for our school:

"I would like to thank Dr. Loomis for his leadership and diligent efforts in spearheading the drive to build this addition. It was his vision that has made this all possible. And we are grateful.

"I would also like to thank the outstanding faculty here at Hamagrael. They are a most dedicated group of people and our children are fortunate to encounter them in their elementary years.

"However... with all that said, I must say — with all due respect to author Robert Fulgham — that even though it does sound comforting, all one needs to know in life is not learned in kindergarten. Learning is an ongoing process.

But I do feel, with some degree of confidence, that a great deal of what one needs to know is learned at Hamagrael school from the man

'All people are important'

we have honored by most fittingly asking him to cut our ribbon, Joseph Schaefer, our principal. So please bear with me as I rewrite Mr. Fulgham's essay:

"Most of what I really need to know in life I learned from Joe Schaefer.

"1. All people are important and it's worthwhile learning their names.

"2. Smile!

"3. People shouldn't cut in front of you in line — but these things happen and you will survive.

"4. Violence solves nothing.

"5. Everyone's birthday is important and should be celebrated.

"6. All people are different and have special gifts. The world has room for all of us. Run with your excellence and be all you can be.

"7. Don't be proud. Sometimes even the boss has to sweep the floor and wash the coffee pot.

"8. Have an open mind. If a child refuses vegetables in the cafeteria because he or she dislikes them and will only discard them — allow him (or her) to refuse them.

"9. Stand up for your beliefs, but learn to use the proper channels.

"10. Don't be rigid. Even if it is after hours and someone comes knocking on your office window because his buddy has been hurt on the playground, let him in. Caring does not go off duty.

"11. Black and white are not the only colors in life. You will do much better if you can recognize the color gray.

"12. Assemblies are important. There is comfort in a family.

"If you watch Joe Schaefer as I have, you know his gift to our children, and to us, has been immeasurable. It is so fitting that he cut the ribbon that will open our new addition, for it is to him that now we will entrust even more children. I know he will teach them, by his example, life's truly important lessons."

Twofold problem seen at crucial crossing

Editor, The Spotlight:

As letters published previously in The Spotlight have made evident, a serious safety problem exists at the intersection of Delaware and Elsmere Avenues and Groesbeck Place.

In my opinion, the problem is twofold and has to do with pedestrian crossing and the need for a left-turn signal for eastbound traffic on Delaware turning left onto Groesbeck.

Pedestrian Crossing:

I often cross at this intersection and on many occasions have had close calls. I wish to point out that the "walk" light is not long enough to allow the average person to reach the opposite side of the street. Senior citizens, small children, and young mothers pushing carriages put themselves in peril each time they cross; and (2) traffic does not stop from all directions; therefore, there is never really a safe time in which to cross.

The Department of Transportation should change the light at the intersection to a "Pedestrians Only" light which would be activated only when a pedestrian uses the pushbutton and creates a red light for all cars.

I live on the Groesbeck side of this intersection and often must turn left off Delaware to get to my home. This is quite a challenge! Traffic is heavy and moves fast — trying to get a safe break in traffic is very frustrating.

A left-turn signal would create a safe opportunity for drivers to turn, as well as improve the flow of traffic along Delaware Avenue.

DOT should give this matter the priority it deserves and act expeditiously in alleviating the dangerous condition at this intersection. To do otherwise would be negligent on the part of DOT and, for that reason, a potential source of liability.

I hope The Spotlight will keep this subject "on the front burner."
Delmar Faith H. Foster

Accident refutes DOT on 'Stop' at crossing

Editor, The Spotlight:

As recent letters to The Spotlight point out, we do need a "Pedestrians Only" crossing at Delaware and Elsmere Avenues — that is, the placement of a red light for all motor vehicles upon activation of the pedestrian pushbutton.

This is true despite the statement in February by Joseph W. Kelly of the State Department of Transportation to the effect that the department could not justify stopping all motor vehicle traffic when a pedestrian is crossing this intersection. Also refuting his statement, a child was injured on May 15 while attempting to cross.

This busy intersection becomes more congested each day. Contacting the Bethlehem Police, as suggested by Mr. Kelly, does not seem a permanent solution. Activation of the red light would be the logical answer.

Athlete was deserving of better recognition

Editor, The Spotlight:

I want to express my deepest regrets that a gifted athlete at Bethlehem Central High School was not recognized at the Bethlehem Athletic Association picnic and award ceremony on June 5. Not only did she fail to receive an award from her school, but her outstanding records and achievements, statewide and nationally, were not so much as mentioned. She is also an excellent student and to my knowledge a very nice person.

I feel compelled to write and say that if we are giving athletic awards only because someone is popular with the coach and there is little regard for athletic ability, then I believe we are ignoring talent to recognize other attributes.

I salute Anita Kaplan for being a shining athletic and academic light to our school. I truly do wish our athletic department would also recognize her.

Scholarship support at sale appreciated

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Panhellenic Association would like to thank the community for again supporting our annual benefit garage sale to raise over $2,000 for our annual scholarship awards. The excellent attention drawn to it by The Spotlight helped make this event a success.

We appreciate everyone's help in making a success of our only fund-raiser.

Special town art show is hanging at library

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Bethlehem Art Association and the Bethlehem Friends of the Library are sponsoring the first of three "Town of Bethlehem" art shows.

We would like to call attention to this year's show, which is currently hanging at the Bethlehem Library and will remain up through June. It is intended as a bicentennial fund-raiser and features work by 17 local artists.

A watercolor by V. Remington Rich, "The town of Bethlehem—Yesterday and Today," was awarded a purchase prize and selected to hang permanently in Town Hall.

A watercolor, "The Antique Shop," by Barbara Wooster, was purchased by the art association and will be presented to the Bethlehem Library for its permanent collection.

A series of limited-edition prints of "The Antique Shop" will be available at local shops for $25, with all proceeds to benefit the bicentennial committee.

Many thanks to the sponsors: "The Friends of the Library," Supervisor Ringler; Delmar Animal Hospital; Wilson and Hart, D.D.S.; Michael Comte, D.D.S.; Mary Scanlan public relations; Martin Schapiro; Florence Becker; John Hotchins; Marty Cornelius; Bagdon Environmental Associates; and A.L. Hofaker, Inc.

Views On Dental Health

Dr. Virginia Plaisted, D.D.S.

WHEN THE TOOTH MUST GO

There is no substitute that can replace the natural tooth for strength, longevity and usefulness. But, there are times when the best decision is to extract the tooth. For example:

- 1) To relieve overcrowding: Occasionally there are too many teeth in the dental arch. Overcrowding can produce diseases, loosening, crooked teeth and a bad bite.
- 2) A hopelessly diseased tooth: Occasionally, a general body ill can be cured by removal of such a diseased tooth. Usual cause is waiting too long to see the dentist.
- 3) Looseness: Teeth loosen as a result of periodontal disease and bone loss. If it is so wobbly with insufficient supporting bone to save it, kiss it goodbye.
- 4) Appearance: When a tooth is so crooked that it will produce an unattractive smile or bulging lip, it should probably be removed. (unless it can be reduced and crowned).

5) An impacted or imbedded tooth (normally the wisdom tooth), if it is a hazard to your oral health, should be extracted.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the offices of:

Clearing storm's damage —but salt on Carthage?

Editor, The Spotlight:

I join with The Spotlight and Supervisor Ringler in lauding and applauding the reaction of Niagara Mohawk people to the May storm that did considerable damage. They have great people on the phone, and the crew that arrived the next day to clear a real problem is really appreciated.

There is a lot of wood along Nimo's line between Wellington and Douglas—perhaps in other spots in town. I can only believe that engineering people will turn in accurate assessments of present and future problems.

Overhanging trees and branches must be cleared from close to the line. Please, no Roman vengeance of spreading salt on Carthage, but the right-of-way must be maintained.

Home Equity Loan		Sample Monthly Payment @ 10.5%
Amount:	Term:	Monthly Payment:
$20,000	20 years	$199.68
$30,000	20 years	$299.52
$40,000	20 years	$399.36
$60,000	20 years	$599.03

(Small Checks.)

Right now a Trustco Home Equity Loan is at a new low, low fixed rate of 10.5%. That's big news, because if you lock-in that rate right now, for 10, 15 or 20 years, your monthly payment might be as low as what you'd pay to borrow on a car!

Better yet, there are no fees or closing costs* with a Trustco Home Equity Loan. And a large part of your interest may still be tax deductible. Up to $100,000 is available (or up to 80% of the value of your home minus your mortgage)!

So, if you're thinking about borrowing on the house, why not get a lot for a little? If you want big money, but only one small monthly payment to worry about, get a Trustco Home Equity Loan.

Turtles' views on foods deserving of mutation

Editor, The Spotlight:

All across the country, school children are nearly mesmerized with the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. Like most popular fads, there is nothing wrong with that behavior. However, using the popular turtles to tell impressionable young children what they can supposedly do to "make a better planet" is wrong. In a book recently published by Random House, "ABC's for a Better Planet," the "Turtles" are used to advocate controversial environmental and animal-rights concerns.

The messages in "ABC's for a Better Planet" that pertain to agriculture are biased. They resort to scare tactics and half-truths. For example, under the section "M is for meat," the book suggests eating less meat because cattle consume a lot of the world's cereal crop—food that could be used for starving people. This is clearly a half truth. The U. S. has more than enough cropland to grow both feed grains and food crops. Furthermore, a considerable portion of a bovine diet is forage and roughage, which is grown on land usually unsuitable for cereal grains.

People around the world are not hungry because cattle are using up so much of the world's grain. The world hunger problem is result of political and economic problems, such as poverty and poor food distribution.

The "P" section on pesticides is no better. The book promotes the buying of organically grown fruits and vegetable, because "some pesticides are still in the food when it gets to the supermarket."

'People around the world are not hungry because cattle are using up so much grain.'

The truth is, farmers use only enough pesticides to protect crops from pests, such as insect, disease, and funguses. These pesticides undergo intense scrutiny by government scientists. In addition, they are used in minute quantities, and most food that is sampled is free of chemical residues.

This book, designed for children in grades K-1, is marketed in bookstores, as well as being available on the Troll school book order list. It is a book that is full of controversial and misleading statements. Just because you read something in a book doesn't mean it's accurate.

The review for this book is: both thumbs down. It's a lengthy commentary, not a book of facts on saving the planet.

To clarify confusion about society for MS
Editor, The Spotlight:

I hope you can help us clarify public confusion about the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and another group with a similar name.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Multiple Sclerosis Association of America (MSAA) are two very different and unrelated organizations.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is not affiliated with the MSAA, which is based in New Jersey and raises funds in several states. Donations to that association do not assist the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, the Capital District Chapter, or the Society's programs.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is the only national voluntary health organization in the United States that supports all phases of research, both in this country and abroad, to find the cause of, and prevention or cure for, multiple sclerosis.

The Capital District Chapter is one of 140 chapters and branches across the United States offering counseling, health-related, and support services for people with MS and their families, and comprehensive information about the disease. In our area, the Capital District Chapter, which serves 17 counties, provides counseling, information and referral, assistance in obtaining medical equipment, advocacy, educational programs and library services.

Bicentennial history benefit added special project funds

Editor, The Spotlight:

Members of the Bicentennial History Committee are grateful to numerous history-minded citizens and groups for their support in our recent campaign for funds to purchase "desktop publishing" equipment.

Dozens of people who wish to remain anonymous dropped items in a box at Town Hall for the Bicentennial History benefit garage sales held on June 8. We collected $685 at the sale. (The total may increase if several paintings are sold through local banks.) When this sum is added to cash donations received last spring, our bank account shows a balance of $2,736.40.

We're still a few hundred dollars short of our goal, but we now believe it will be possible to purchase the equipment sometime this summer. A special thanks to everyone who helped!

Bethlehem Recycling Corner

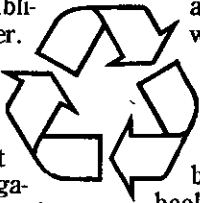

By Sharon Fisher, town recycling coordinator

Newspaper recycling needs extra education, especially since newspaper advertisements arrive in the mail, phone books appear on doorsteps and other publications use newsprint paper.

The daily paper is newsprint and can be recycled along with the inserts that come with that paper. If however, a magazine-like advertisement arrives, throw that in the trash instead. A local paper like The Spotlight can be recycled but the sticky address label must be ripped off. The same goes for advertisements on newsprint which arrive in the mail — rip off the mailing label.

There are some newsprint catalogs, such as a Realtors' magazine for prospective buyers. Remove the cover and the staples; the remainder is recyclable newsprint paper.

Put the recyclable newspaper in a brown paper bag or in a separate bin provided by the hauler for that item. (If the newspapers are loose in the bin, weigh them down, with a rock for instance, on a windy day.)

Magazines, catalogs, junk mail and phone books do not belong with newspapers. It takes a special process to deal with the glue and clay-coated pages which many magazines and junk mail ads have. The markets which take our newspaper now, cannot process the glued phone books or multiple listing books.

The recycling bin at town hall in April was arranged by New York Telephone. The phone books were taken to a facility which could handle the glue problem. Approximately 15 tons or 60,000 phone books were recycled after that special two-week collection. Watch for that next year when the NYNEX directories are published.

The Capital District phone directories will be arriving soon. Remember, they cannot be recycled with the newspaper. The company that publishes the book, Transwestern Publishing Co., does not have a recycling program at present; if you do not want the book, it gets put with the regular trash.

Library begins reading club

The Voorheesville Public Library is gearing up for its Summer Reading Club, open to children in kindergarten through grade 6. Children will meet each week July 8 through Aug. 21 and will have a chance to do something different at each session. There will be lots to do, from Lego building to a sock hop.

Grades K through 3 will meet on Monday afternoons and grades 4 to 6 will hold their meetings on Wednesdays. Registration for the program will be held on June 24 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., June 25 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. or June 26 from 1 to 9 p.m. When they sign up, participants will receive a folder with a reading log and a "passport" to help them "read 'round the world" as well as a schedule of all upcoming events.

If none of the registration dates are convenient, sign up anytime after with Young People's Librarian Nancy Hutchinson.

For information, call 765-2791.

The Onesquethaw Volunteer Fire Co. Inc. protects the hamlets of Clarksville, Unionville and Feura Bush in the Town of New Scotland.

Man charged with harassment

After receiving a concerned parent's report that an unknown man had made sexual suggestions to children in a New Scotland trailer park, deputies from the Albany County Sheriff's Department arrested Carlos Delacuesta, 32, of 1990 New Scotland Road, on charges of harassment.

He was also charged with unlawful possession of marijuana and criminal possession of a controlled substance seventh degree after K-9 units found the drugs in his car and residence. Delacuesta was arraigned by New Scotland Town Justice Kenneth Connolly and remanded to Albany County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail. He is due in New Scotland Town Court July 11.

Master gardeners Wally Lornell, left, Bill Tate and Phyllis Shilling look over the white Garden in Slingerlands.

Twilight garden tour slated in Slingerlands

The Ninth Annual Cornell Cooperative Extension of Albany County Twilight Garden Tour will take place Wednesday, June 26. This year's tour features private gardens in Slingerlands. The gardens will be open from 5 to 8 p.m.

On the tour will be four gardens along New Scotland Road, gardens on Slingerland Street, North Helderberg Parkway, and on Upper Font Grove Road. The gardens include plantings in rock gardens, rose gardens, perennial gardens, a vegetable garden, fern gardens, naturalized collections of day lilies and herbs.

The first three gardens on New Scotland Road are within walking distance of the parking areas in the Slingerlands Park and along the Kenwood Avenue railroad tracks. You will need to drive to Bollem's Garden on Slingerland Street, to the Yourno Garden on New Scotland Road, Dr. Gesche's garden on North Helderberg Parkway and to the White Garden on Upper Font Grove Road.

Tour brochures will be distributed at the Slingerlands Park, adjacent to the fire station on New Scotland Road. Watch for the red, white and blue balloons and garden tour sign at the park entrance. The brochures will be distributed from 5 to 7 p.m. Maps will be included so you can find your way from garden to garden. Balloons and twilight garden tour signs will designate all tour stops. Do not park on New Scotland Road; use side streets instead, being careful not to park on lawn edges.

The rain date for the tour is Thursday, June 27. For information, call 765-3500.

New Route 9W church sponsors events

The Albany South Ministry (ASM) invites all its community friends and neighbors to share in special times of celebration during the coming weeks.

Started in October 1990, the ASM is the combined creation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, the Upstate New York Synod, the former Faith Lutheran Church of Glenmont and the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit in Albany. The Rev. Wayne Moritz serves as its pastor-developer. Its goal is to develop a new church in the Route 9W area, serving the townships of Bethlehem and Coeymans.

Affirmation Sunday will be held on Sunday, June 23 at the church's new building site on Route 9W. A brief outdoor worship will begin at approximately 11 a.m., following morning services at Holy Spirit in Albany.

The church property is located on the east side of Route 9W, directly opposite the Jericho Drive-In Theater, approximately two miles south of Bethlehem center. Parking will be available on the grounds.

A gathering will be held on Thursday, June 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Grange 137 in Beckers Corners, to give interested people an opportunity to learn more about the ASM. Parents are welcome to bring their children, and refreshments will be served. The Grange Hall is located on Route 396 in Beckers Corners, just west of the intersection of Routes 9W and 396.

For more information, call 463-6224.

CDTA chief seeking county exec seat

By Debi Boucher

With last week's formal nomination as the Albany County Democratic Party's candidate, Capital District Transportation Authority Chairman Robert Lyman began his campaign for county executive minus the prospect of a potentially divisive primary election.

Commenting on County Executive James J. Coyne Jr.'s decision not to defy party leadership by seeking re-election, Lyman said, "I'm glad he was able to come to a conclusion which I think was in his best interest."

Lyman, who had been prepared to run in a primary, said Coyne has "done some positive things for the county." But he added, "The personal travails of Jim Coyne have overshadowed the achievements of the Democratic Party." With Coyne out of the picture, Lyman said he intends to run on his record as CDTA chairman.

He can also point to experience in county government, having served as county attorney from 1976 to 1984. Contrasting his background with that of Republican candidate Michael J. Hoblock, an attorney, who serves on the Colonie Town Board, Lyman, an Albany resident, said there are great differences between the two levels of government. Counties, he said, are responsible for administering many social services, including Medicare, mental health, aid to families and jails—"all things that town governments don't have to deal with."

He said the county has helped towns with "a substantial road resurfacing program" over the last five years that included not just county routes, but town roads as well. The county can also be proud of its tax record, he said. "The margin of increase is lower than any county in the state."

County Democratic Committee

Chairman Harold Joyce also cited taxes and social services in reviewing the party's record in county administration. "I'd match our record against any county in the state of New York," he said. "We've had miniscule tax increases, and the services are there," he said. "They're not very glitzy, but there's an awful lot of people who depend on them."

Citing Lyman's experience in county government and his work with CDTA, Joyce said, "I don't think there's any comparison in terms of experience," between the Democratic and Republican candidates.

Lyman, 50, said he felt ready to make the transition back to county government, bringing his recent experience with him. "I've loved every minute of CDTA," he said. "We've done a lot of positive things there for people who rely on public transportation every day of their lives." Now, he said, "The county needs the same type of pro-active management we've brought to CDTA."

Excavator starting new storage firm

By Susan Graves

Peter Frueh, who's been in the excavating business in Feura Bush for about 20 years, is beginning a new venture. Frueh is opening Bethlehem Self Storage on West Yard Road just off Route 32 in Feura Bush. "We plan on opening before the first of July," he said. He feels the advantage of the new business is its location since the closest storage facilities are in Colonie and Albany. "Really if you needed a locker, wouldn't you really have it closer to you?"

Frueh said people use storage facilities for a number of reasons. Some businesses need a place for excess bookkeeping records, and individuals often need a place to store things when they move or are remodeling or building a new home. Some people also use the larger storage facilities for boats in the winter or for antique cars. There are various storage spaces ranging from 50 to 100 to 2,000 square feet, he said. Once the new business gets under way, Frueh said he has plans to expand and build more lockers. Parkline of North Carolina is constructing the initial structures. The storage facility is made of galvanized steel and are impervious to wind and rain.

Space is rented on a monthly basis and the renter provides the lock and has the only key and sole access to the locker. The only restriction is that the renter access the locker during daylight hours, since there is no lighting inside. A chain-link fence will be locked at night, he said.

"Basically renting storage is like when you rent an apartment," he said, "It's almost like it's yours."

Frueh said he decided to start the storage facility because he had bought the land adjacent to his excavating business and "I felt that it should earn some revenue."

"I'm basically trying this to see what the demand is from New Scotland," he said.

Labor dispute delays school renovations

By Robert Webster Jr.

Renovations scheduled for Slingerlands Elementary School could continue into the fall if a plumbers' strike is not soon resolved.

The strike, which began about five weeks ago, has delayed the start of the renovation project slated for the elementary school, said Anthony Martino, vice president of Stetson-Harza, Inc., the Utica-based architectural firm overseeing Bethlehem Central School District's $11.7 million expansion project.

The expiration of the collective bargaining agreement between the plumbers union and the Mechanical Contracting Organization is the cause of the work stoppage, said Anthony Potenza, business manager for Plumbers and Steam Fitters United Association Local No. 7. The old agreement expired April 30, and the two agencies have been in negotiations since May 1 to draw up a new contract, he said.

The construction of 12 new classrooms at Glenmont Elementary School and 10 at Hamagrael Elementary School are nearly complete, said Martino. The renovations should be completed by the beginning of the 1991-92 school year, he said.

However, the project at Slingerlands is not near completion, said Martino. It is the most extensive, with new classrooms and a new gymnasium/auditorium under construction.

Martino said the project should be completed by the fall, but in the event that it is not, he suggested that the academic areas be renovated first, so as not to interfere with classroom instruction. The only upgrading left would be in the areas of the school offices and the main entrance.

Almost 80 percent of the work, included in the 1989 bond act for the district's ongoing building renovations, is completed, and the process is under cost at the moment, according to Martino. The district stands to have some $290,000 remaining of the $360,000 budget for emergencies and unexpected expenses, he said.

BC student wins honor

The state Board of Regents has awarded one of its three 1991 McGovern scholarships to Kate Hackman of Delmar. The $500 award, established by former Regents Chancellor Joseph W. McGovern, recognizes students for extraordinary academic achievement and participation in a broad range of extracurricular activities.

Hackman, the daughter of Larry J. and Sandra L. Hackman, is a senior at Bethlehem Central High School where she is managing editor of the 1991 issue of the school's award-winning literary magazine, The Thinking Reed. She has been a representative in student government, an editor of the yearbook, a participant in drama club productions and art competitions, a member of the writing club, and was elected to the National Honor Society. For eight years she attended weekend classes at the Empire State Institute for the Performing Arts and she has organized and taught several summer arts and crafts workshops for children.

Landfill

states that the landfill is a "public nuisance" because it has been on fire several times, while the second part states that it exists as a public nuisance in that there is always the possibility of it igniting and causing odors, he said.

Supervisor Ken Ringler said Monday that the town's goals are to put the fire out and to properly close the landfill. "Once it's closed, it will not continually be a problem," he said, "but it needs to be done right."

Ringler said that representatives from the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, the New York State Health Department and the Albany County Health Department, were on the site Friday to review the situation. He said state health department officials said that the smoke "could be a health risk."

According to Hummel, the smoke, which "smells almost like garbage," has been trapped low due to the recent humidity. He said that although volunteer firefighters keep trying to put out the fire, the situation was in "no better condition" Monday than it was Friday. Metz, who was unavailable for comment, found some of the smoldering material Monday as he worked to put out the fire, he said.

Hummel said volunteer firefighters used foam on the fire Friday, at a cost of $8,500 to the fire department. Although representatives from Waste Management of Greater Albany, a landfill client, recommended that the foam be used and said they will reimburse the department, he said that the endeavor was costly. More than 30 volunteers were present Friday for nearly eight hours. In addition, volunteers have responded to a fire at the landfill seven times since March, he said. "It is a nuisance and tough on the volunteers."

Smith said the first lawsuit, brought in 1989, is still pending and cites a town ordinance barring disposal of solid waste generated outside of town boundaries. The suit states that the waste management companies that dumped at the Spawns Hollow Road landfill have brought in waste from outside Bethlehem's boundaries, he said.

Ringler said he is becoming "very frustrated" and is "keeping the pressure on everyone" to ensure the landfill fire is put out and the landfill is closed down properly.

Volunteers to meet

The Albany Unit of United Voluntary Services will meet at the Tom Sawyer Motor Inn, 1444 Western Avenue, Albany on Thursday, June 20 at 6 p.m. A farewell dinner party will be held for former president Barbara Meyer and her family, who will be moving to Florida.

Guests and prospective members are welcome. For reservations, call 458-7699.

In addition to the letters, a petition was being circulated on Monday and one resident had even made a videotape about problems at the intersection at Delaware and Elsmere avenues.

Neighborhood concern heightened on May 15 when middle schooler Devon Hedges, 11, was struck by a car.

"I look forward to when that date isn't embedded in my mind," said Carol Schlageter, a resident of Groesbeck Place. "I feel strongly that this is a crosswalk that needs better engineering." Don Smith has made a video showing how difficult it is for pedestrians to cross. Smith, who lives on the Groesbeck side of Delaware, said pedestrians attempting to cross Delaware face a confusing and dangerous situation. The problem begins with the buttons on the poles to stop traffic. On the Groesbeck side, there are two buttons, and many pedestrians push the button to stop Groesbeck, rather than Delaware Avenue traffic.

The correct button is on the traffic side of the pole and out of sight for the pedestrian approaching Delaware from Groesbeck. But even when the right button is pushed, the pedestrian isn't guaranteed safe crossing. Smith's video shows several people beginning to cross with the walk signal facing cars making right turns onto Delaware from Elsmere. "The walk signal is on for five seconds and then flashes," which does not provide enough time to cross the street, he said.

Ken Ludlum, manager of Skippy's Music on Delaware Avenue at the intersection, employs an unusual strategy to cross the street. "If I make eye contact with them (drivers turning right onto Delaware from Elsmere), they won't stop," so Ludlum said he looks straight ahead, which he says helps slow the drivers down. In addition to letter-writing, Ludlum made a sticker pointing to the hazards to pedestrians. The sticker shows a skull and crossbones and reads: "I used the crosswalk at Delaware and Elsmere avenues."

Many residents had also contacted Supervisor Ken Ringler about their concerns. He said the DOT changes are "wonderful."

"I'm glad to see DOT has reacted to our request," to ease residents' concerns, he said.

Women's group plans resume exchange

The Network, a local affiliate of the National Association of Female Executives, is sponsoring a resume exchange and networking cruise aboard the Captain J.P. Cruise Line on Tuesday, July 23.

Keynote speaker will be Leslie Smith, associate director of NAFE, who will discuss networking. The cruise will also feature a resume exhibit covering 13 different career areas.

In keeping with the Mardi Gras theme for the event, masks and beads will be provided. A murder mystery will be staged, a buffet served and a cash bar will be available. Tickets are $25 for members and $30 for nonmembers; RSVP by July 5.

Radio operators find friendship, fun in hobby

Licensed amateur radio operators of the 250 member Albany Amateur Radio Association will practice their emergency communications skills in the worldwide Field Day contest, sponsored by the American Radio Relay League (ARRL) of Newington, Conn., on Saturday and Sunday, June 22 and 23.

The Albany club, nearly a third of whom are retirees, will utilize the height of the Glen Boone picnic area on the Herderberg Escarpment at Thatcher State Park to assemble and erect antennas and support structures. Mobile homes, trailers, and tents will provide shelter while portable generators will produce electric power for the elaborate radio transmitting and receiving equipment.

Tests such as the field day have traditionally provided emergency preparedness training to radio amateurs of all ages. Trained "hams" were instrumental in providing the first available communications channels out of Northern California after a major earthquake destroyed land-based communications systems in October 1989 and after Hurricane Hugo battered the Atlantic Islands and the Carolina Coast just weeks later.

Amateur radio has always been the hobby of choice for retirees from technical fields, many of whom helped to pioneer the advances in telecommunications that we all take for granted today. But recently, this avocation has seen an influx of new blood. This past February, the Federal Communications Commission adopted a major change in the rules governing the Amateur Radio Service.

Hams had always been required to pass an examination to demonstrate their proficiency in International Morse Code, but the rules regarding this requirement had become less and less stringent over the years as voice, video, and computer communication modes had come into more widespread use.

These days, anyone can obtain a "code-free" technician class license simply by passing a two-part 55 question written examination on basic communications principles, electronic theory, and electrical safety. Study guides and additional training information are available from the ARRL.

The Albany club has become as much of a tradition as it has a social and fraternal organization. The wide age range of the members is no barrier to friendships in this group. There is no generation gap in ham radio, according to Jack Donnelly, 62, of Colonie, who serves as public information officer for the club.

Donnelly, whose amateur radio call sign is WA2YBM, added "The young and old support each other here, we work together." Often the younger members supply the brawn to help erect antennas and towers and run cables, while the more senior members provide the experience, technical expertise, and training necessary for proper and safe operation of the equipment.

"Nearly everyone who is in ham radio now is there because they had an 'Elmer' (an older teacher-figure)," explained Stephan Anderman, WA3RKB, 37 of New Scotland. "My 'Elmer' was a gentleman named John Michaels who was a neighbor of my grandparents outside of Philadelphia. John was the first broadcast engineer for radio station KYW in Chicago when they went on the air in 1921. He related the entire history of radio when he 'Elmered' me and now I try to carry on the same tradition with the high school and college guys." Anderman serves as Albany ARA vice president.

Bouton seniors host picnic

Graduation rehearsal will be at Clayton A. Bouton Junior Senior High School on Thursday, June 20, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

After rehearsal, the class will host the annual senior class picnic on the high school lawn. Plenty of food and beverages will be served.

Commencement will be on the school grounds on Friday, June 21, at 7 p.m. In case of inclement weather, commencement will be at Achilles Rink, Union College, Schenectady at 7:30 p.m. Speaker for the event will be Michael Moak, valedictorian of the class of 1974. Congratulations and the best of luck to the 1991 graduating class.

Summer swim program begins June 24

Registration is required for swimming lessons at the high school's summer program. The session begins on Monday, June 24, with classes for pre-beginners, beginner/advanced beginners, intermediates and recreational swimmers.

There are also classes for parents and tots, aquatic exercise and basic water safety. Application forms can be obtained at the school office. The program operates on a first-come, first-served basis. Contact Terry Luyckx at 765-3314 for information.

Bethlehem residents lose power in rainstorm

By Susan Wheeler

About 2,700 South Bethlehem Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. customers lost power last week during the second intense rain storm in two weeks.

According to Nicholas Lyman, NiMo public relations director, a transmission line that feeds NiMo's Selkirk substation was knocked down by a fallen tree during last Wednesday's storm. The line services homes in South Bethlehem, Ravena, Glenmont and Delmar. The outage, which began around 1:30 p.m., was confined to areas around the substation, although there were some scattered interruptions elsewhere, he said. Power was restored by 10 p.m. that evening, he said.

When adverse weather causes residents to lose power, there are several precautions they can take to remain safe, Lyman said. He recommended that customers have on hand "Weathering Storm Emergencies," a NiMo brochure of home safety tips. The pamphlet, which can be obtained through the NiMo billing office, is sent to customers periodically.

The brochure offers tips for before, during and after a storm. Suggestions include having several working flashlights located "strategically" throughout the house. All family members should know the whereabouts of the flashlights, as well as where extra batteries are stored. A battery-operated radio should be available and tuned to a station which broadcasts weather information and progress reports. In addition, the brochure suggests that all emergency numbers, including the number of the local NiMo office, be kept in a convenient place.

The brochure suggests that an adequate supply of dried or canned food should be on hand, and drinking water if the residence relies on a well. If a storm is expected, turn the refrigerator to its coldest setting to extend the amount of time food can be kept without spoiling. During an electrical outage, open the refrigerator door as infrequently as possible to keep the food its coldest. Food will keep approximately seven hours in a refrigerator without spoiling; frozen foods will keep 24 hours.

If dependent on life-support equipment, register with NiMo. "Then we'll know that there's somebody on that circuit who needs special attention," Lyman said. The company alerts these customers to how long the outage will be, and provides a generator if need be. In addition, the company gives such individuals priority in restoring service, he said.

Lyman recommended that customers remain indoors during severe storms to avoid any possible injuries, especially those resulting from downed wires. Don't touch any downed wires, and remember that water conducts electricity. Fallen wires on cars can cause injury or death. Avoid contact with a person who is injured near a fallen wire.

In an electrical storm, stay away from windows, according to Lyman. Lightning can strike through the windows and jump to the body. Don't stand under a tree or pole in an electrical storm because the body can become a conductor if the tree or pole is hit by lightning.

When the power goes out, check with neighbors to make sure it's not a blown fuse. According to the brochure, contact the local NiMo office if the neighborhood is without power. All sensitive appliances such as televisions, microwaves and computers should be disconnected to avoid damage from lightning or a sudden surge of power.

After the storm, leave a light on to know when power has been restored. All appliances should gradually be reconnected to avoid overloading the circuits. Reset the refrigerator to its normal setting. Lyman said if the house had flooding, check with an electrician before turning on the power.

Bethlehem police make DWI arrests

Bethlehem police last week arrested three motorists on misdemeanor driving while intoxicated charges.

David E. Stafford, 24, of Coeymans, was arrested for DWI Saturday, June 15, after police found him slumped behind the wheel of his car parked along side of the road on Route 144, police said.

James Patrick Laverty, 36, of 34 Alden Ave., Albany, was arrested for DWI Sunday, June 16, after police found his car parked partially on Feura Bush Road, police said.

John L. Malone, 30, of Chatham, Mass., arrested for DWI Sunday, June 16, after being stopped while pulling into the Days Inn on Route 9W, was also charged with aggravated unlicensed operation, police said.

In other arrests, James Thomas Staples, 23, of 412 Kenwood Ave., Delmar, was arrested for felony DWI and felony reckless endangerment Friday, June 14, after being stopped for multiple traffic violations on Route 9W, police said.

Bethlehem's Mickey Mantle team continues winning steak

By Michael Kagan

So far, the only thing that's been able to stop the Bethlehem Mickey Mantle Baseball Team has been the rain.

Bethlehem picked up three more victories to bring its opening-season winning streak to 10, defeating Colonie on the road Friday, 8-4, crushing Latham, 12-0, at home Saturday, and nipping Guilderland 6-5 at home again Sunday. A game, scheduled for last Wednesday, was rained out.

Colonie, having broken a scoreless tie in the bottom of the sixth, led in Friday's game 2-0 going into the top of the seventh. Bethlehem broke through when it counted most. Eight consecutive Bethlehem batters reached base to open the inning, as eight runs came around to score. Chris Macaluso had a two-run double in the inning, while Mike Pelletier hit a two-run single and Mike Aylward an RBI single. Aylward (3-0), the winning pitcher, went all seven innings, allowing six hits while striking out six. Bethlehem made one error in the game.

Against Latham, southpaw Dave Miles pitched a complete-game two-hit shutout. Both hits came in the first inning. He struck out six and walked two. In addition, he retired 14 Latham batters in a row aided by the error-free defense that played behind him.

Josh Formica drove in five runs on three hits, including a two-run homer. Macaluso was three for three with runs scored, one RBI, a double and a triple. Mike Breslin added a two-run single.

Sunday's game against Guilderland was stopped after the sixth inning due to rain. Bethlehem was up, 6-5, and the game will count as an official game. Mike Gambelunge had an RBI triple, while Formica blasted his second home run in two days, his second of the season, for two runs. Aylward collected two more hits to make him 15 for 26 for the season. Ben Comtois had two hits, including a double, and drove in two runs. He also was the starting pitcher, going four and two-thirds innings. He allowed two earned runs. Miles (5-0) pitched to one batter in the fifth, striking him out, to earn the win. It was the second time Miles has posted a win this season for only one-third inning of work. Josh Lanni pitched the sixth inning for his second save.

Today (Wednesday) Bethlehem (9-0 league, 10-0 overall) will be at Twin Town for a 6 p.m. game. The team will meet the New York Angels from New York City Saturday in the first game of a non-league home and home series at 1 p.m. at Heritage Park. There is no admission charge. On Monday, Bethlehem will be in Chatham and in Watervliet Tuesday. Both of those games are at 6 p.m.

Soccer club's under-10 boys, under-16 girls teams post wins

Former Bethlehem soccer player Kara Matarrese, is now helping coaches Steve Mann and John Martin to coach the under-16 girls team of the Bethlehem Soccer Club.

The team is competing in the "A" division of the Capital District Youth Soccer League and has a current 3-2 record. Victories were posted against Clifton Park, Highland and Village. Bethlehem's losses have come at the hands of Guilderland.

The highlight of the outdoor season has been the team's first-place finish in the recent tournament, defeating Lake Hill 3-0 in finals.

O'Neill, Amy Perlmutter, Suzanne Rice, Jessica Sharron, Debbie Stewart, Alison Wenger and Kristen Van Duzer.

Bethlehem Soccer Club's Under-10 boys scored three goals to recently defeat Niskayuna 3-2.

Scoring the first goal on a downfield run was Tim Cooper, with an assist by Brendan Bannigan. Next to score was Brendan Dalton, who booted it in with an assist by Cooper. Bethlehem's third goal came off the foot of Kris Grajny from a pass by Matt Thibideau.

Holding Niskayuna to two goals were keepers Brendan Johnson and Toby Cushing, assisted by team members Andy Goodfellow, Josh Plattner, Peter Schron, Kevin Hotaling, David Horn, Dan Heim, Todd McCoy, Brian Quinlan and Jesse Bernstein.

In other recent action the team, coached by Bill Cushing, placed third in the Highland Invitational Tournament with four wins and two losses.

Capitals soccer club seeks campers

There are a few spots remaining in the Albany Capitals 1991 International Soccer Camps. The camps, open to youths ages 6-19, are directed by Capitals head coach John Bramley and feature instruction from top professional players. Each camper receives a t-shirt, soccer ball and a Capitals' game ticket in addition to instruction for the fee of $125. The camps run 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. A special camp for goalkeepers runs June 26-28 and open dates include July 8-12, 15-19 and 22-26. Call 456-3100 to register.

Bethlehem hosts bicycle rodeo

The 15th annual Bicycle Rodeo, sponsored by the Bethlehem Police Youth Bureau and the Parks and Recreation Department, is scheduled for Saturday, June 22, at Bethlehem Town Hall.

Bicycles will be registered and inspected from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Participants will be able to demonstrate their knowledge of safe bicycling on a specially designed course in the town hall parking lot.

The rodeo is open to bicycle enthusiasts of all ages. Refreshments will be available. Prizes, including several bicycles, helmets and accessories, will be awarded at the end of the day.

Club awards student

The Delmar Progress Club has awarded its 1991 scholarship to Christopher C. Dumper. He received the award based on his leadership, scholarship and service to his school and community. His accomplishments include membership on the school varsity swim team, involvement as a student senator and his work as a swim instructor at the town park.

BC class plans reunion

Bethlehem Central's Class of 1971 is planning its 20-year reunion for Oct. 12, 1991. Some class members' addresses are needed and can be given to Kerrilynn Rappe Rooney at 439-0883.

strong conviction that the project should be done in house. "I really believe we're going to be in for a lot of expense the town can't afford in these tough times," he said.

CLT's proposal was for $174,000, the highest bid received. Law said another $11,000 would be needed for "unspecified items" such as postage, computer hardware, state fees, phone lines and office space. Of the three firms that responded to New Scotland's requests for proposals, Finnegan Associates, of Concord, Mass., was the low bidder at $150,000, while Northeastern Appraisal Associates, of Buffalo, was priced at $169,000. Northeastern's price, however, did not include the cost of a performance bond for the project; CLT offered in a subsequent letter, according to Reilly, to provide the service free of charge.

Although Law had originally been leaning toward Northeastern, he said he changed his mind upon learning the firm — a relative newcomer to municipal revaluations — had been unable to secure performance bonds for two projects it would otherwise have been awarded.

Performance bonds, Law explained, ensure that if for one reason or another the firm stops work on the project, it will be completed without added cost. In the absence of a performance bond, he said, the town might have to start from scratch in the event work is stopped and thus incur added expense.

As for the low bidder, he said, "I feel Finnegan is involved in too many ongoing projects at this time and couldn't guarantee the manpower I feel we need to get the job done."

Indicating he felt the other two companies hadn't been given a fair shake, Reilly said, "It appears to me as though we were hand-holding one of the firms." On Tuesday, he said a meeting had been held between Law, Sgarlata, CLT and E & A officials on May 9—a meeting which he had understood was to include only CLT and Law. CLT was the only firm to participate in talks with E & A, Reilly said, and was also given the opportunity to negotiate on the price of optional photographs, offered by all three firms.

The photographs, which Law said were needed to verify the existence and identification of properties and to update his files, were originally quoted at $2.35 apiece by CLT, while the other firms quoted $1.75. When Law questioned the discrepancy, CLT came down to $1.75. "That was just an observation," said Law. The photographs, he said, were a minor item and "not a selling point as far as I'm concerned."

Arguing for an in-house revaluation, Reilly said the town should "avoid the potential problems" with firms "who, in my opinion, have a revolving-door relationship with E&A."

James Coffin, president of the Voorheesville Central School District Board of Education, disputed Reilly's contention that the job should be done by New Scotland residents. "You've got to bring in an outside group of people so that you get an unbiased result," he said. "It's the only fair way to do this."

Law said he would welcome "intelligent, experienced townspeople to help out" as part of each two-man team that will be visiting individual properties to collect data, as long as the second person was an outside professional. But "data collection is the easy part," he said. "Evaluation by professionals is the key to this."

Van Zetten said he had spoken with supervisors from other towns about revaluation, "and they all said if you do an in-house, you're crazy."

Al Moak recalled that the same question had arisen over two years ago when revaluation was being considered "There were a few towns that tried an in-house, and none of them finished." Recalling that town officials had debated the revaluation issue as early as eight years ago, when the project would have cost a mere $40,000 to $50,000, he said, "I don't know why we're sitting here talking about the same thing we've talked about for years. I think it's time to get off our butts and do something—quit the political brouhaha and act as representatives of the town."

Coffin, who was accompanied by other school members who came to urge action on the issue, said the town needed to take care of its tax roll inequities in order to avoid the continuing incidence of cases in which residents challenge their tax evaluations — often leading to settlements on school taxes. The only way to avoid tertiary cases "is to make sure all properties are fairly assessed," he said. "The important thing is that people feel they are all being treated equally."

Paul Nichols, a member of the grievance board for some five years, said residents often had valid complaints. "It's absolutely shameful what the assessment roll looks like," he said. "I wholeheartedly recommend we move with this posthaste, not because we have to comply with New York state, but in fairness to the residents."

Needles

Returns, one of the potential danger is to workers on the assembly line who manually sort through the comingled material. "It's obviously a tremendous problem," Secor said. "We cannot tolerate medical waste in recyclables." The needles that were found last week were packed tightly in the coffee can. If the can had not been detected in Bethlehem and had gone on to Empire Returns, the town would have been again rejected. "We're now back on good terms (with Empire Returns), we want to make sure we stay that way," he said.

Secor stressed the fact the town is not attempting to "persecute" the resident who is improperly placing the syringes with recyclable trash. "We'll try to work something out and help them" find an acceptable means of getting rid of the syringes.

Supervisor Ken Ringler said the town is attempting to "find out who did it and prevent it from happening again. I certainly hope this was someone who didn't understand," what can and cannot be recycled, he said.

Construction begins on Route 308

The Albany County Department of Public Works recently announced beginning this week, county Route 308 between routes 85 and 443 will be under construction.

The work includes widening of the existing roadway and paved shoulders. Improvements will be made to the existing drainage system as required. Full depth reconstruction will be performed at distressed pavement locations and at various areas to improve site distance and cross slope.

The contract has been awarded to Callanan Industries and will be administered and funded by the county. The work is scheduled to be completed by mid November.

Helen MacRae

A memorial service was held June 13 at the Wesleyan Health Facility in Wilton for Helen Leona Jewell MacRae, 85.

Mrs. MacRae died April 27 at her home in Delmar.

Born in Binghamton, she was a 1930 graduate of the State University Teachers College in Albany. She taught in Johnstown before moving to Delmar in 1941. Mrs. MacRae was a member of the First United Methodist Church in Delmar, a longtime member of the Delmar Progress Club and the American Legion Auxiliary.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur Hagy from the First United Methodist Church of Delmar officiated at the memorial service.

She was widow of Donald C. MacRae.

She is survived by a son, Douglas B. MacRae of Delmar; a sister, Doris Pope of Conklin, and her mother Helen Jewell, age 104 of Conklin.

Contributions may be made to the Bethlehem Senior Projects, Inc., 445 Delaware Ave.

Marie Shields

Marie E. Shields, 75, of Scotia died Friday, June 14, at St. Clare's Hospital in Schenectady.

A native of Bethlehem, she was a clerk for the state Department of Motor Vehicles in Albany for 12 years, retiring in 1976.

Mrs. Shields was a member and eucharistic minister of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church. She also was a member of its Rosary and Altar societies.

She was a former member of the Mothers' Auxiliary of the Scotia Little League; a former director of the Scotia Junior Bowling League; a member of the Ladies Republican Club; and an election board poll representative.

Survivors include her husband, Thomas C. Shields Sr.; a son, Thomas C. Shields Jr. of Latham; a daughter, Karen M. Jackson of Scotia; two brothers, Leon J. and Archille Godbout, both of Scotia; a sister, Asilda Dube of Scotia; and four grandchildren.

A service was held in St. Joseph's Church. Burial was in Park Cemetery.

Contributions may be made to the National Marfan Foundation, 382 Main St., Port Washington, N.Y. 11050.

Arrangements were by White Funeral Home.

Arline McChesney

Arline F. McChesney, 81, of Jamesville, died Monday, June 10, in Birchwood Health Care Center in Liverpool, Onondaga County.

Born in Canadensis, Pa., she had lived in Elsmere for 51 years before moving to Jamesville in 1989. She was a graduate of the University of Chicago.

Mrs. McChesney was a member of the Experiment for International Living.

She was a former member of the Trinity United Methodist Church, Albany, and the church choir. She was a member of University United Methodist Church, Syracuse.

Survivors include her husband, Dr. Evan W. McChesney; a son, Richard W. McChesney of Colorado Springs, Colo.; two daughters, Margaret E. McChesney of Jordan, Onondaga County, and Ruth M. Becker of Syracuse; a brother, Charles Feltham Jr. of Riverside, Conn.; two sisters, Jeanne Wool of Wilmington, Del., and Ruth Ferrari of Norfolk, Va.; six grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be July 6 at the University United Methodist Church, 1085 E. Genesee St.

A calling period will follow the service in the church.

Contributions may be made to the Trinity United Methodist Church.

Arrangements are by the Fairchild & Meech Syracuse Chapel.

Harriet J. Hodder

Private services will be held for Harriet J. Heumann Hodder, 93, of Delmar, who died Tuesday, June 11, at her residence.

Born in New York City, she had lived in Poughkeepsie for many years, before moving to Glenmont several years ago.

She was widow of Dr. Claude A. Hodder. Mrs. Hodder is survived by two daughters, Muriel D. Yapple of Boulder, Colo., and Claudia C. Way of Poughkeepsie; two sons, Harold E. Hodder of Glenmont and William F. Hodder; and eight grandchildren.

Contributions may be made to the Salvation Army soup kitchen.

THE YOUTH NETWORK

Risk factors play part in teen drug abuse

Here are six through ten of the individual risk factors for substance abuse (one through five were listed last week). When two risk factors exist, there is approximately four times the risk of problem behavior. When four risk factors are present, the risk of alcohol or other drug abuse is ten times greater.

6. Low degree of commitment to school: Factors such as enjoyment of school, time spent on homework and perception of the relevance of coursework are related to levels of drug use.

7. Alienation or rebelliousness.

8. Association with peers who use alcohol and drugs: This is one of the strongest predictors of drug use.

9. Favorable attitudes toward drugs: Belief that alcohol or drugs can't harm them, associating alcohol and drugs with good times.

10. Early first use of alcohol or drugs: Youth who begin before age 15 are at twice the risk of those who wait until after age 19.

Owens-Corning Fiberglas supports public television for a better community

Owens-Corning is Fiberglas

Family

By Robert Webster Jr.

The celebration of childhood and a chance to raise funds for area children is the order for the day at a benefit concert by the music and comedy duo Rosenshontz.

The concert, scheduled for Saturday, June 23, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., at Hoffman's Playland, Route 9 in Latham, will benefit the Children's Hospital at the Albany Medical Center, and allow area children an opportunity to actively participate in the music, songs and stories of Rosenshontz.

The critically acclaimed duo of Gary Rosen and Bill Shontz had very modest beginnings with their formation in 1974, when their concerts consisted of their playing at the Central Park Zoo to anyone who would stop and listen. With Rosen on guitar and Shontz taking care of the flute, clarinet and saxophone, with both contributing to the vocal responsibilities, the simple performances were enjoyed by children and adults alike.

In fact, those first concerts usually consisted of parents and their children, and the pair realized that there was an audience for their antics.

To date, the duo from Brattleboro, Vermont has performed throughout the United States and British Columbia and sold more than 70,000 copies of their numerous critically-acclaimed albums. In addition, they have had their own prime-time Emmy-nominated show out of Boston and another regular show on the Disney Channel.

Their songs look at all aspects of childhood, such as a child's attachment to a favorite toy or object in "My Security Blanket," when they sing "I'll give it up if you wash it in a hurry/ I'll give it up cause it's smellin' pretty dirty/ But when it's clean, I'll keep it till I'm thirty." However, Rosenshontz has a more serious side, but never downbeat, as demonstrated with the song "The Best that I Can" which was written in honor of disabled children.

One of the most popular aspects of Rosenshontz is the ability to appeal to audiences of all ages. With their family-oriented songs about bedtime, eating one's vegetables, teasing and telling the truth, they bring out the child in all of the audience members.

Rosenshontz makes music for children

"They are a wonderful group," said Lee Kaplan Meyers, director of Ronald McDonald House in Albany, which is sponsoring the event. "Wonderful, witty and humorous, they entertain children and adults alike."

Prior to the concert, Ronald McDonald will be on hand from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. to present a magic show to the children, and he will greet people as they arrive for the Rosenshontz performance.

Tickets for the show are $5 per person, with children under two admitted for free. Tickets are available at Hoffman's Playland and the Albany Medical Center Development Office and Service Cashier.

The concert is outdoors on the lawn, so people are encouraged to bring lawn chairs and blankets to fully enjoy the show.

For information, call 445-3322 or 785-3842.

Empire State Plaza sets entertainment schedule

Albany's Empire State Plaza is offering a string of free musical and cultural events this summer as part of its Summer 91 schedule.

By Kathleen Shapiro

Beginning next month, Albany's Empire State Plaza will once again be transformed into a center for music and culture, as the state's Office of General Services prepares to kick off its annual Summer '91 entertainment schedule of free events.

The festival activities begin on Monday, July 4, with the traditional Fabulous Fourth Festivities, held from 4 to 10 p.m. This year's program will include a variety of entertainment activities for the whole family, topped off by a display of holiday fireworks.

On Sunday, July 21, the Empire State Black Arts and Cultural Festival will be from noon to 7 p.m. Highlights of the daylong program saluting African-American history include musical entertainment, dancing, storytelling, arts and crafts, and food and refreshments.

On Sunday, Aug. 4, the festival will present Children's Day at the Plaza from 1 to 5 p.m. The program includes music by children's singer/songwriter Tom Chapin, storytelling, hands-on displays, educational activities, and a performance by the

On Wednesday, Aug. 28, International Day at the Plaza will be presented from noon to 10 p.m., with local and regional participants representing more than 40 nationalities on hand offering international cuisine and crafts. The event will be capped off by an evening concert featuring the New Xavier Cugat Orchestra, and performances by lambada and tango dance teams.

Evening concerts at the plaza include: The Glenn Miller Orchestra on Thursday, July 11; the Ink Spots and the Coasters on Wednesday, July 24; the Grammy Award winning Count Basie Orchestra on Tuesday, Aug. 6; and Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians on Wednesday, Aug. 14.

Concerts begin at 8 p.m. on the outdoor Plaza's main stage. If inclement weather occurs, the entertainment will be moved indoors to the Convention Center.

West Capitol Park lunchtime concerts will also be returning this year, beginning Tuesday, July 2. The series will feature local entertainers in concert from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. each weekday during July and August.

Gateway plans tour of Remington Arms

The Hudson Mohawk Industrial Gateway will sponsor a tour of Remington Arms Factory and Museum on June 19, at 9:30 a.m. as part of its series on military industry.

The bus tour of the plant and museum in Ilion, where famous arms have been produced, will be guided by leading arms authority Don Fangboner. Guns manufactured at the plant by the Remington family were used in the Civil War and World Wars I and II. A Dutch treat lunch stop is included in the tour.

For information, call 274-5267.

Garden Way tours reveal new industry

That's the subject of the tour sponsored by the Hudson Mohawk Industrial Gateway on Wednesday, June 26 at 10:30 a.m. as part of a series of tours based on the theme, Changing Industry.

Visit a factory that's changing to improve the environment by reducing chemical waste. Garden Way — internationally known manufacturer of the famous Troy-Bilt.

The cost of the tour is $5 ($4 for Gateway members). Reservations are required and can be made by calling 274-5267.

Arthritis Foundation launches campaign Arbor Day foundation offers free booklet

The Arthritis Foundation, Northeastern New York Chapter, kicked off its "Arthritis Research for a New Age" campaign recently at Sunnyview Hospital, Schenectady.

Joining in a planning session and formal launching of the campaign were all members of the chapters board of directors, led by Dr. James Strosberg, chairman, and Garry F. Douglas, vice chairman and head of the government affairs committee.

The foundation, a source of help and hope for an estimated 37 million Americans who have arthritis, supports research to find the cure for and prevention of arthritis and seeks to improve the quality of life for those affected by the disease.

For information, call 456-1203.

You can add thousands of dollars to the value of your home, bring songbirds to your neighborhood, and cut your energy costs up to 25 percent by planting and caring for trees.

A free booklet from The National Arbor Day Foundation, Conservation Trees, will show you how.

You'll discover how to protect trees during construction projects, correct tree planting steps, the importance of shading your air-conditioner, how to prune shade trees, and where to get local tree-care assistance.

For a free copy of this booklet, send your name and address to: Conservation Trees, The National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, NE 68410.

For information, call 462-7461.

Aquatic School offers summer of fun

Three days of sailing and/or canoeing on scenic Lake George, with lodging and meals, all for only $150. Better yet, seven full days for only $230. This unbelievable vacation opportunity is available at the National Aquatic School, sponsored by the Albany Area Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Trip to Israel planned to search for roots

Rabbi Baruch and Josette Frydman-Kohl will lead a 12-day tour to Israel from June 30 to July 11.

Coordinated by Ayelet Travel, the tour is designed "to explore our roots in our ancestral homeland, to provide a needed boost to the economy of the State of Israel and to demonstrate political solidarity with the citizens of the Jewish State," according to Frydman-Kohl.

The tour is open to families with children. For information, call 438-8039.

Fishing program seeks youth leaders

Ask any angler how he or she got started in fishing, and chances are the answer will be "someone showed me." That someone likely was a parent, relative or older friend who took an interest in the angler as a youngster. The result was a lifetime of wholesome outdoor leisure activity, and a lot of satisfaction for the one who got the new angler started.

Times have changed. There are fewer and fewer families leading the kind of lifestyle that allows them to be together for the purpose of 'passing it on. The 4-H

Sportfishing and Aquatic Resources Education Program (SAREP) has been designed to help youth get involved in fishing — responsible fishing. By training volunteers to be leaders in working with youth the program hopes to develop young anglers and outdoors people who know how to fish responsibly and ethically, and have an understanding and appreciation for the aquatic resources that supports the fishing.

For information on training weekends and applications call 372-1622.

New Route 9W church sponsors events

The Albany South Ministry (ASM) invites all its community friends and neighbors to share in some special times of celebration during the coming weeks.

Started in Oct. 1990, the ASM is the combined creation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, the Upstate New York Synod, the former Faith Lutheran Church of Glenmont, and the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit in Albany. The Rev. Wayne Moritz serves as its Pastor-Developer. Its goal is to develop a new church in the Route 9W area, serving the townships of Bethlehem and Coeymans.

During the past eight months Pastor Moritz has been calling on local residents. He has now made over 1,200 visits. Starting in Bethlehem Center, he has also visited the communities of Glenmont, Selkirk, Beckers corners, and the many residential areas along Elm Avenue, Feura Bush Road, and Route 9W. He is now calling in South Bethlehem and plans to soon begin visiting in Ravena and Coeymans.

Affirmation Sunday will be held on Sunday, June 23 at the church's new building site on Route 9W. A brief outdoor worship will be celebrated, beginning at approximately 11 a.m. following the completion of morning services at Holy Spirit, Albany. While not yet ready to build, the ASM will affirm its vision of a new community church. It also wishes to give thanks for the fine reception it has been afforded by the community.

The church property is located on the east side of Route 9W, directly opposite the Jericho Drive-In Theater in the Town of Bethlehem. This is approximately 2 miles south of Bethlehem Center. Parking will be available on the grounds.

An interest gathering will be held on Thursday, June 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Grange 137 in Beckers Corners. This will be an opportunity for people who are interested in the development of the new church to learn more about the ASM. Pastor Moritz will review how the ministry has grown so far and looks forward to hearing the hopes and dreams other people have for the church. Parents are welcome to bring their children. Refreshments will be served.

Susan Wooster from Albany received first prize for her watercolor work she submitted for the Bizarre Bazaar Community Art Show at the Bethlehem Public Library recently.

Local artists win at library show

The Bizarre Bazaar Community Art Show was held on Sunday, June 9, at Bethlehem Public Library during its seventh annual Library Day celebration. Eighteen artists entered 70 art works for the show, which was judged by Andy Masino of Bethlehem Central High School's faculty.

Barbara Mungall of Delmar won first prize for an oil painting, and Susan Wooster from Albany, won first prize for a watercolor. Carmen Holsapple of Albany won second prize for an oil painting and Micki Ahl of Feura Bush won second prize for a watercolor. Carmen Holsapple won third prize for an oil painting, and Barbara Wooster of Delmar won third prize for a watercolor. Honorable mentions went to Magry Wooster of Delmar for an oil and to Charles Schade of Slingerlands for a watercolor.
