Almost three months after Republicans named a slate of candidates, Bethlehem Democrats last week gave the town a choice for seven seats up for election this Novem-night, Aug. 22, Democrats nominated Slingerlands resident William F. McGarry Jr. to run against Republican incumbent Supervisor Ken-Ringler.

Also nominated at the caucus, held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in Delmar, were Slingerlands resident John E. Dorfman for town justice; VFW commander Thomas Skulteti for superintendent of highways; Michael Mogul Jr. for receiver of taxes; Florence I. Derry for town clerk; and James Banagan and Anthony F. Cornell Jr. for town council.

Banagan and Cornell are challenging GOP board members Frederick Webster and Sheila Fuller. While Webster is a fullterm incumbent, Fuller has only served the board since June, when she was selected by the Republican majority to replace Democrat Robert Burns who resigned. Burns was the only elected Democrat to fill a town board seat in the 20th Lucinda Wright, Voorheesville Elementary School's recently retired teacher, gave more to the school than her 50 years in the classroom. She donated her entire retirement incentive check toward upgrading the elementary school library's collection.

"It shows how much class she really has," Principal Edward Diegel said, "It was extremely generous and very timely. It shows how much Voorheesville is a part of her lite, and how much she cares for the students and the district."

Wright said her contribution to the school, "not too much more than a band aid," was made when she realized. the library would not receive much needed money. Voters rejected the district's $10,300 library budget, not considered part of the 1991-92 contingency budget recently approved by the board, in July's proposition vote.

The 1991 Town of New Scotland Citizen of the Year said she was planning on donating the money toward the upkeep of the elementary school's newly-built creative playground, named in honor of her.

But then Wright, a retired secondgrade teacher, said she thought, "The library could use it, because it needs it." The one-time donation, which she declined to estimate, is "just a little"

Diegel said he and the new librarian are "weeding out the collection" and looking to improve it with a cross-section of books, including reference materials. non-fiction and fiction for both younger and older pupils. "You can always add to a library; it never hits a plateau."

The district will recognize her "substantial" contribution in "some way," according to Diegel: He said each book purchased with money donated

According to Sheehan, who performed the tests at approximately 5 to 7 a.m. Monday, Aug. 19, at the construction and demolition landfill in South Bethlehem, owned by Glenmont resident Harlen W. He said the final results will be available within two weeks.

The sampling was performed at the request of Supervisor Ken Ringler after Spawn Hollow Road residents complained of headaches, nausea and sore throats from inhaling the fumes emitted from the landfill. The site has been emitting odors since smoldering began in mid-March

Teens arrested for frog, fish kill

By Mike Larabee

Albany County Sheriff's Department deputies recently arrested three teen-agers in connection with the indiscriminate shooting of frogs and fish in a New Scotland resident's stocked pond.

Seventeen-year-olds Sean M. Lozada of 2 Mason Lane, Slingerlands, John C. Thomas of 7 Normanside Ave., Delmar and Michael Gertzberg of 26 Woodmont Drive, Delmar all have been arrested and charged with second degree burglary, a felony, and fourth degree criminal mischief, a misdemeanor, for their alleged involvement in a Tuesday, Aug. 8, incident resulting in more then $10,000 in estimated damage to the property, according to Sheriff's Department Investigator Larry S. Walley.

Walley said the three were allegedly part of a larger group of youths who removed a rifle and shotgun from the residence then spent roughly three hours firing at different objects on the property, including frogs and bullhead catfish in a pond on the grounds.

They entered the residence, took the weapons out and proceeded to do some unauthorized target shooting," Walley said. "Evidently they killed all the bullheads and the frogs.

Walley said there was no damage to the home itself, but estimated damage to trees, a duckhouse, an outdoor speaker and other items in excess of $10,000. "It's hard to put a monetary figure ley said.

on frogs," he said.

Walley said it has been difficult to gauge how many frogs and fish were killed because the property owner couldn't say for certain how many there had been.

"Apparently the fish were somewhat tame because the children used to toss breadcrumbs on the surface and the fish would all come up and eat the breadcrumbs," said Walley. "But now they can't do that anymore because they throw breadcrumbs and nothing comes Lozada was arrested Wednesday, Aug. 14, and arraigned before Bethlehem Justice Roger Fritts, after which the case was transferred to New Scotland Town Court. He was released to his parents. Thomas and Gertzberg were arrested Friday, Aug. 23, and arraigned before New Scotland Justice Kenneth Connolly. They were remanded to Albany County Jail and released on $5,000 bail.

Stewart's targeting hilltown traffic

By Mike Larabee

The Stewart's Shop planned for the intersection of routes 85 and 443 is expected to draw lots of area residents as well as motorists headed to the Helderbergs for recreation, says Graham Franks, the company's real estate representative for the project.

There's a lot of people who live back in the woods," Franks said Friday. "It's very hard to count rooftops, but you see traffic day in and day out. They've got to live someplace.

The store, which recently earned final project approval from the New Scotland Planning Board, will be built at the site of the former Tam Tom Pizza.

Franks said the company still needs final approval for its sanitary system from the state Department of Environmental Conservation and the county Health Department, as well as final approval of plans by the state Department of Transportation.

'It's ready to go just as soon as we get those two things, and we expect that probably within 30 days," Franks said. He said he expects a November opening for

Glenmont Plaza Route 9W turn lane may end up in court

By Susan Wheeler

Glenmont Plaza developers want to open its proposed Route 9W entrance/exit without the construction of a left hand turn lane on Route 9W.

According to Bethlehem Planning Board Chairman Martin Barr, the board tabled the matter at its Tuesday, Aug. 20, meeting after discussion of the topic both in and out of executive session. The board is awaiting more information, and feels the matter may go to litigation, according to the chairman.

Barr said the board is concerned about accidents that might occur if traffic were to back up on the two-lane state highway while motorists wait to turn into the plaza, which was originally proposed as having access to Route 9W.

"There is heavy traffic on Route

9W and a number of large trucks," he said. In addition, a curve in the road "provides a potentially dangerous situation there.

The state Department of Transportation gave Glenmont Plaza developers a permit to build driveways on both Feura Bush Road and Route 9W, according to DOT's Jan Meilhede. He said the permit did not require a lest-turn lane on 9W, but it was incorporated into the permit because the town requested it. DOT believes there is no threat of traffic build-up or accidents if a left-turn lane is not constructed, he said.

Barr said DOT believes there is not enough room to construct a left-turn lane unless the curve in the road is modified. Plaza developers are currently in negotiations with the owners of Route 9W's Calvary Cemetery at the site to purchase a strip of land which rescind the request. They argued would become part of 9W, he said. It was indicated that such a purchase could be to provide the space needed for a left-turn lane.

Although he said he is "not quite sure what the cemetery is insisting on," there is concern that cemetery owners be protected from any liability after turning over the property. "Price is not the issue," Barr said.

Meilhede said DOT will review the Glenmont Plaza area one year after the site is fully occupied and the access way is opened. If there is a traffic problem, then the shopping center owners will install a traffic signal.

Because the board is waiting on making a final decision until it has more information. Barr said there is a "strong potential" for litigation between the board and plaza developers, represented by Robert Wakeman, an attorney with Coo- the matter. per, Erving, Savage, Nolan and Heller in Albany.

White said he proposes to open the restaurant, at the intersection of Kenwood Avenue and New Scotland Road, by early October.

In addition to serving pizza, the family-oriented restaurant will offer pasta dishes and salads, he said. The dining room will accommodate up to 72 patrons while takeout service will also be featured.

Town worker injured in mishap

A 57-year-old Town of Bethlehem employee recently received minor neck injuries after his car was hit by a motorist allegedly driving while intoxicated, according to Bethlehem police.

Anthony Morrell of 42 Brookman Ave., Elsmere, was driving northbound on Route 9W near Hague Boulevard Tuesday, Aug. 13, at 11:20 a.m. when his vehicle, a 1991 Ford four-door sedan owned by the town, was side-swiped by a 1978 Chevrolet two-door sedan driven by Leroy A. Bova Jr., 19, of Watervliet, police said. Bova, who failed to keep right, then hit a 1981 Chevrolet pick-up truck driven by Gary Francis, 23, of Franklin St., Albany, police said.

Bova was arrested on misdemeanor charges of DWI, and is scheduled to appear in town court Monday, Sept. 16, police said.

Morrell, who is a town building inspector, was taken to St. Peter's Hospital in Albany. He was treated and released the same day, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Just down the road from Henry Hudson Park in Cedar Hill, Selkirk, away from the hustle bustle of Delaware Avenue and the Four Corners, the Town of Bethlehem Historical Association meets in a former one-room school house turned museum at 1003 River Road, or Route 144, near its intersection with Clapper Road. The group strives to preserve the achievements and struggles of Bethlehem's past generations for the appreciation of today's resi-

Says William E. Tinney, outgoing president of the association, "The Town of Bethlehem Historical Association performs an important function in our community by providing an historical link to the past and by providing in many ways a living history of that past."

His successor, Sheila Giordano. agrees. "There's a lot of history in this area that I don't think most people are aware of," she said.

The association boasts a nationally-known collection of town geneological information. New information is continually being added to this library, and is available to the public, according to Giordano.

elsewhere. For example, between September 1990 to May 1991, six groups of school children working on town history projects and three scout troops visited the museum, according to the groups' recentlyreleased annual report.

The association's major fundraising event annually is its card party, held last year on Nov. 1 at the Bethlehem Elk's Club, which Giordano said is "always so much

Last year, this event, and accompanying raffle and boutique table, raised $1,061 for the association. Giordano added that the annual Christmas Tea always

Each month's association meeting features an expert speaker on a specific subject. Topics have included Dutch barns, doll and train collecting, local Civil War General William Benedict and artists during the American Revolution. The meetings draw "a real good turnout" of people of all ages, according to Giordano.

The group is now actively planning for the town's March 1992 to March 1993 bicentennial celebration and is also looking into possible trips, including one to Ellis Island, she said.

Giordano said she is trying to encourage more younger people to join the group and wants to dispel the conception that it is a club for old people."

The museum, as with the association, is non-profit. Maintenance of the building and grounds is provided by the town. During the summer, the museum is open to the public every Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Meetings of the association are held every third Thursday of every month, from September through May.

Matters of Opinion

Bethlehem Democrats' new faces

If George Bush can prosper politically through a war in the Persian Gulf, just possibly Bethlehem Democrats can do the same? That seems to be one strategy visible in the makeup of the ticket that the party is presenting this year.

A returned veteran of the Desert Storm campaign, Bob Conti, is the candidate for one of the County Legislature seats. And Bill McGarry, who helped spearhead a very well-received project to ship goodies and mementoes to hometown troops, is standing for Supervisor.

But they are only part of a ticket that will contest for every line on the ballot. And that is an accomplishment for which Matt Clyne, the party's town chairman, deserves a full measure of credit. The Spotlight repeatedly has called for effectively active two-party competitiveness here, as in all political jurisdictions, in the interest of sharpening governmental responsiveness and efficiency. Regardless of how well this 1991 ticket will perform at the polls, its emergence ought to be generally pleasing, even to the Republican opponents.

Editorials

To a considerable extent, the Democrats have drawn on politically untested citizens. That, too, has merit for certain advantages can be found in involving reputable residents who are not merely retreads. Interesting, as well, is the fact that Chairman Clyne and his committee have gone outside their party's membership for at least two of the candidates. The recruits from the Conservative Party (which normally is not easily associated with the major party's tenets) will be seen by some cynics as supporting the suspicion that in Albany County the Conservatives are only stalking horses, in the hoary O'Connell tradition of subversion.

To the degree that this slate can pull itself together in the next ten weeks with credible campaigning on persuasive issues, the election of '91 should be an interesting one hereabout.

Be it ever so humble

We can certainly sympathize with the country folks who tell more orderly people that they don't care to have their dwellings numbered, city-style. They'd rather be known as the family that lives up yonder a mile or so past the schoolhouse, or just as the people at the end of the lane.

Undoubtedly this reticence is true in every hollow and hill regardless of actual geography, but the quaint outlook is being encountered by Bethlehem officials who are trying to assign an identifiable street and number to everyone's abode. The purpose of the naming and numbering is laudable enough: it's preparation for the "911" emergency response system that will speed rescue equipment to your front

"It takes away the country atmosphere," is the rebuff that the forward-thinking 911 advocates are encountering at some did like the sound of 79 Wistful Vista . . .

addresses (you should excuse their expression). The residents remove their feet from the porch railing long enough to state firmly that they don't wish to have "a city address."

We see the point. Consider President Bush, for good example. He has that wellknown address — 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue — but whenever he gets a chance he scoots on up to Walker's Point, where neither the RFD nor the CIA, FBI, and IRS (much less KGB) have succeeded in numbering him and Barbara. So all the rustic folk have plenty of good precedent.

We suspect that freedom-from-housenumbering may be tied in with one or another provisions of the Bill of Rights, such as the right to bear arms. So have a care driving up that lane!

As a matter of fact, though, we always

Is Bethlehem a haven for activist crybabies?

Editor, The Spotlight:

Bethlehem's town fathers and Vox Pobmothers are pampering the crybabies, busybodies, and Chicken Littles in the town. In so doing, tion of the breed, as well as harming residents whose only contact with Town Hall is through their tax bills.

A recent newspaper article noted that Bethlehem has at least 15 neighborhood and communityaction organizations and this rivals the number in Albany that has nearly four times the population of Bethlehem. The article noted that some groups endeavor to solve neighborhood trash, utility, or road problems not being attended to by the town; however, most organizations fight a proposed activity or hammer home their ideas of how the rest of us should live.

In response to being advised of the disproportionate number of disgruntled citizens, the town's Supervisor said, "It strikes me that we have a community that likes to be involved and likes to be heard." That response is not unlike one that might come from and indulgent father when a neighbor complains about the antics of a spoiled

The chairman of the town's Republican Committee, when advised that members of one organization threatened to vote against the town officials if they did not get their way, reportedly said, "We do not look upon them as a political force." Sounds just like a father whose kid threatens to run

But who does the chairman think he is kidding when he says that? Obviously, local activist groups are a political force. I point to the following samples: The Slingerlands and Delmar bypasses were stopped by neighborhood opposition. So was a shopping center in Slingerlands. Two proposed senior citizen developments bit the dust because neighbors were concerned about traffic, vistas, etc. The burn plant and regional landfill are opposed, our land use and management regulations are to be replaced, and we no longer treat newcomers fairly because the crybabies were staining the Supervisor's carpet with their

> If one excludes northern Ireland, Bethlehem could set a Guinness record for the most disgruntled per capita. A sociologist at SUNY Albany has an answer: The suburbs have a large number of State employees, whereas the city has the working class. Even if I had a 10-foot pole, I would not touch that explanation.

> A recent issue of "Time" featured articles on the disconteted. It called them busybodies and crybabies, and noted that: "Twin malformations are cropping up in the American character: a nasty intolerance and a desire to blame everyone else for everything. Each approach, that of busybody or crybaby, is selfish and poisons the sense of common cause."

> I like this explanation for the proliferation of activists throughout America. But why does it seem they all are in Bethlehem?

I have heard that parents should pamper crybabies so they won't be screwed-up adults. In my opinion, we don't have more crybabies in Bethlehem than does Colonie or Guilderland; they are just more evident because they are pam-

Arecord for the most crybabies is nor something one wants to brag about. It's like having the most dog-owners who ignore a pooperscooper law. I think I will form a community action organization that combats pampering community action groups. I am going to call it BURP: an acronym for "Bethlehem Urge Reduced Pampering."

I welcome anyone who wants to join, especially members of the working class. If you share my concern for the sense of common cause, get out your crying towels and come aboard.

> "The wicketest game Still can be fun, If only it's played With mallets toward none."

Nor could I resist quoting it one evening not long ago when a friend reintroduced me to the sport of croquet. Note that I say "sport," because that's a significant distinc-

What the true believers call "backyard croquet" is termed by them as "a game," rather than a sport. Actually, this is what you and I and Aunt Nell did play in the backyard or side lawn, or wherever the terrain was almost flat enough and even reasonably smooth (except for the bare spots where Tigger had dug, and an occasional tuft of crabgrass). The game itself has been described by the writer Jesse Kornbluth as "a form of tag played with mallets

As for rules, he wrote, "All regulations not used on our lawn were bogus and not to be discussed.

Too many years ago, I stroked Because we were so vociferous pen to paper with a quatrain that and because it was our lawn, our equipment, and our iced tea --- we were able to convince all the people who played with us that what we regularly beat them at was croquet." He described games with a half-dozen players running after balls, aiming for nine wide wickets and a couple of goalposts.

But the sport of croquet—that's something else again. I'm looking at a book on the subject written by Jack Osborn, founder of the U.S. Croquet Association. It's illustrated by photos of such people as Averell Harriman, Sam Goldwyn, Darryl Zanuck, Tyrone Power, and Prince Michael Romanoff. Betting in this crowd sometimes went up to $10,000 a match.

We were much more modest in our little match the other evening. Our host had meticulously, painstakingly laid out a court to the exact dimensions prescribed by the official rules — but with only six wickets and a single post. The wickets are only three-eighths of an inch wider than the ball's diameter. Very precise, a great deal to remember - but it's color-coded to help you along (if you remember to behave suitably.).

Our host, with somewhat more experience, was very forgiving and tolerant of the blunders committed in the name of sport. He assured us on one thing that I haven't been able to verify elsewhere. He insisted that we should refer to the sport with a pronunciation something like "crokey." Perhaps that's right, but don't take my word for it.

There are all manner of refinements, ranging from a smasher (for driving wickets into the ground properly) to clips that will show each player where he (she) should head next, and a "deadness board" that keeps everyone up to date on what balls each player is "dead

We adhered to the dress code all white (very important). None of us shone in the match that went on for an hour and a half or so, but our more studious (and talented) host acquitted himself quite well.

Right now, I'm reading up on the grip (I prefer what's known as the Irish grip), to say nothing of the better stance, stalk, swing, and shot-making. In the next fortnight, I must make time for Jesse Kornbluth's "Winning Croquet."

And I'll be insisting on "mallets

Mining the golden years of Adirondack lore

This is the second of two installments of John Vinton's description of his unique career as "The Adirondack Storyteller." A collection of 28 of his stories is to be published in the near future by North Country Books. The following is adapted, with permission, from an article by him in "The National Storytelling Journal."

By and large, Adirondack guide stories are found in written literature, which is not only the earliest but also the largest source of Adirondack lore. Novels, stories, histories, and diaries have been pouring out of my adopted mountains for more than a hundred and fifty years, and the authors have run the gamut from Queen Victoria's maid of honor to Ian Fleming in The Spy Who Loved Me." I doubt that any other wilderness has been recorded and fantasized about so much.

Nearly half of my repertory comes from what I regard as the golden years of Adirondack literature, 1865-1880. The first author in this period was also my own first author, William H. H. Murray, a Boston preacher. No writer before him had ever quite captured the emotional resonance of the Adirondacks — the excitement of shooting rapids and catching trout, the comedy of stumbling over muddy canoe carries, the mystery of trees falling before a storm, the fellowship of the woods. He recounted all these in "Adventures in the Wilderness" in 1869. With Mr. Murray, one also encounters an important Adirondack tradition - the reading aloud or recitation of literary works. This was a favorite 19th-century pastime in the Adirondacks as elsewhere, and he was a popular platform reader of his own stories. They are made for hearing.

The tradition of recitation survives today in an old-timer at Sevey Corners. Ham Ferry runs a bar where he entertains customers with anecdotes and Robert Service poems. Another old-timer, Ken Campbell of Fine, entertains luncheon clubs with puns and humorous poems.

A second author published during the golden years of the late 19th century was Verplanck Colvin of Albany, who made the first survey of the region and wrote thrilling reports of his adventures climbing through the wild. In the midst of his reports came the story-filled Adirondack travel guide of Seneca Ray Stoddard from Glens Falls. This writer was also a pioneer photographer who lugged bulky 19th-century equipment up and down mountains and across America, Europe, and the Middle East. On an Adirondack trek in 1888 he took what may be the earliest picture of formal storytelling in America. In the 1890s he became a platform teller, a travelogue lecturer.

A fourth author was Charles Dudley Warner, editor and manof-letters from Hartford. Unlike the Rev. Mr. Murray, who preferred the lakes, Warner took to the peaks and wrote witty story-essays about mountain climbing, trout fishing, being chased by a bear, getting lost in the woods. He also immortalized his favorite guide, Old Mountain Phelps.

Finally there was Philander Deming, an Albany newsman who in 1865 invented the profession of court reporting. He was the only golden-age writer who ever lived year-round in the Adirondacks. His stories emphasize the tragic in pioneer life opium addition, infidelity, false accusations, child beating, suicide, and death from exposure. His writing was so admired that Deming societies were formed all over America.

Famous writers have continued to use the Adirondacks among them Irving Bacheller, E.L. Doctorow, Theodore Dreiser Joyce Carol Oates, and Laura Wilder. But most writers since 1880 have passed over the Adirondack experience, and used the wilderness merely as a stage for romances, mysteries, and interpersonal conflicts.

Indian lore is scarce, nor have I found many lumberjack stories. However, there are plenty of accounts of lumberjacks at work, and at Massawepie, an Adirondack Boy Scout camp, the husband of the camp nurse, Chris White, plays the role of an oldtime lumberiack by sitting in the woods where he can be discovered by campers. He then talks about logging and ecology and tells Paul Bunyan stories. Scores of children's camps ought to have engendered stories and reminiscences, but I know of only a few

The way I deal with Adirondack material may seem overly refined and technical to some tellers. My tastes, however, always have been more classical than folk (to borrow a differentiation commonly used in music). I love the 19th century English in many of my sources and retain as much of it as possible when I perform. However, action passages usually get modernized with shorter sentences and modern words. I often play a character from the past or engage in multicharacter dialogue. In these instances, I become a voice-actor who requires extensive daily voice work.

Life in review: a top-drawer gent

Readers of this column may recall a two-part review last spring of the substantial fragments published in "The New Yorker" of Clark Clifford's forthcoming memoir about four decades in national political life. Since then, the book has been published, and I have been reading it avidly, including the portions that I'd already read in the magazine.

Those portions ultimately totaled, according to my private estimates, well over 100,000 words, which is an extraordinary length for excerpts from a book manuscript. Such attention by "The New Yorker" by those astute editors could be viewed as indicative of the value placed on his retrospective reporting. My own comment was that the several articles, as published, would be well worth the time and endeavor of study and thought. The prose, I then wrote, was "unassailable.

lished by Random House, and ogy is both interesting and imporrepresented on The New York tant, and is not easily abbreviated Times' "best seller lists" for sevin this space. Each of the friends a congressional hearing will put it expressed disbelief that a man who could express himself in the manner and language that Mr. Clifford employs in his recounting could belatedly turn out to be a knowing associate of scoundrels. And each was most regretful to see such a distinguished career as his compromised in the way it is now being abused in some quarters. I find it an especially sad and also unlikely denouement. I have for many years thought of him as what that revered mentor, Colonel D. M. Ashbridge, would call "a topdrawer gent.

About one-third of the way through his book, as he describes his practice of the law in Washington beginning in 1950, Mr. Clifford uses a long footnote (about .700 Now back to the book, pub-tunate controversy." The chronol-

"When I was first informed that

United States law might have been violated (by BCCI)," he writes, "I was both appalled and embarrassed. . . . If the Federal Reserve Board and other authorities had been deceived, so had I. It was possible that I had been used, I realized with a combination of outrage and deep concern, by a group of foreign investors. The operations of First American, for which I had been responsible, had been honest, ethical, and successful.... No depositors had ever lost a penny. Nor had there been any misappropriation of funds from First American, no 'bailout' by the government; as in the colossal savings-and-loan scandals. But I realized that even while successfully running a large group of banks, it was possible that I had been deliberately misled. No event in my entire career caused me greater anger and outrage.'

The book, "Counsel to the Presirusal as an example of a career in public life at the highest levels and in the highest traditions of effective service in the national interest. I regret that it needed to be marred by inclusion of that footnote. A melancholy parallel can be found in his memoir on "the ordeal of Speaker Wright," which he saw as containing "elements of Greek tragedy." He notes that Jim Wright had, in 1989, "achieved his lifelong goal," but that all his hopes (for further rewarding service) "were jeopardized by questionable financial decisions.

Let's await Clark Clifford's full side of the story. Those who have read his account of his life in public service have to be confident that his motivations and performance ultimately will be discerned as proper and justifiable even though in a context filled with chagrin.

Adirondacks

I rehearse a new story for several months, revising and refining, until I've found what I feel is the best way to tell it. By then the text I've developed is memorized and, except for small changes, it remains in this form, a set piece. Interpretations are always changing, though, and audiences greatly influence delivery.

Finally, I should mention the performing facilities available to my modern-day invention: the usual libraries, town halls, and school auditoriums, but the uniquely Adirondack settings are my real joy. For example, there's an outdoor amphitheater not far from where Ralph Waldo Emerson camped, surrounded by tall, thin pines that sway to the slightest breeze. An A-frame lodge near Lake Placid has windows reaching two floors high that look out across a boulder-strewn pasture dotted with sheep and cows and beyond to the long sloping ridge of Cascade Mountain — a modern equivalent of the old cabins and inns that used to take in city folks.

There's the Ausable Club with its Victorian hotel and haute cuisine, its golf course, tennis courts, and bowling green, all set in the midst of the Adirondacks' most rugged peaks — a rare survivor from the gilded age. There's a money - the world could give.'

former ski lodge halfway up Whiteface Mountain that's now used as a weather station, a place where I once told the story of the miraculous recovery of Martha Rebentisch, and then stepped outside to see the night sky rippling with sheets of green and white light.

There's a perfectly proportioned room at Sagamore, the former Vanderbilt compound, a room paneled in spruce and wrapped in small-paned windows with an immense stone fireplace at one end. Wrought-iron fixtures hang from peeled-log beams overhead, and massive wrought-iron latches and hinges decorate the doors. The interior wood has been oiled and rubbed for a century. Speaking there is like talking in a cello. This sort of room, with its stuffed animal heads, is found in humbler versions all over the Adirondacks.

I especially love a lakeshore setting with a camplire at my feet and the evening light fading across the water, with neighbors gathered round on lawn chairs to hear the stories of their community. On such nights the words of "Old Mountain" Phelps are my words as well: "To have hours such as I did in these moun-uns. . . That's been worth more to me than. . . than all the money - than allll the

Should developers pay town regulatory costs?

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a result of my efforts to create six building lots from a parcel of property I own, Supervisor Reilly and Joseph Cotazino have painted me as a "big developer" who doesn't pay his bills. Allow me to set the record straight and put some of the real issues on the table.

First and foremost. I have not refused to pay the bill. I have merely asked "for the statutory authority which provides for the practice of passing town engineering costs on to individuals wishing to subdivide their land." To this date I have not received a satisfactory response.

My obstinacy about paying the town's engineering bills is no secret and never has been. My letter to Mr. Reilly and the Town Board was made part of the public record long before I became involved in local politics. I am still baffled, however, as to why it took our fulltime Supervisor 15 months to respond to my one-page letter.

The engineering bills the town wants me to pay are expenses incurred by the town in performing its regulatory functions pertaining to administration of subdivision and zoning rules and regulations. These are town expenses as clearly as are costs related to the maintenance of highways.

The real issue here is that a person who divides a piece of property, (primarily builders and developers) is perceived as having "deep pockets," and government can't wait to transfer to someone else town has been awarded, while tens the expenses it creates. Sure, many do pay this extortion and grumble quietly behind the scenes. If they refused to pay, their projects and erty. livelihood would go into the tank.

In New Scotland the necessity for full-blown engineering studies for building projects, large and small, has been used to stall and kill as much development as possible. I know of several instances in which town residents, not outside speculators, have suffered extreme financial pain as a result Seniors thank Lions of an over-zealous planning board. At the same time, we hear our elected officials mouth the words 'We need to expand our tax base.'

The latest move on the part of town government, including the planning board, is to attempt the imposition of zoning laws and subdivision regulation changes which are so restrictive that the basic rights of property owners are seriously eroded. Of course, this is all under the guise of developing a master plan.

A master plan and controlled growth are necessary, but the property rights of American citizens do not have to be trampled in the process.

Another major issue is the extent to which engineering firms are into the pockets of both the taxpayers and builders/developers of New Scotland. Clarksville Water District engineering and construction costs are over budget and headed for litigation.

Master plan engineering expenses are so far over budget that they will soak up a grant that the of thousands of dollars of engineering fees are being assessed to anyone wanting to subdivide prop-change five months before the filing season begins because many people-state tax administrators, accountants, computer programmers and IRS forms and publications writers need time to prepare for the upcoming filing season.

The Internal Revenue Service

One concern raised by practitioners dealt with elections taxpayers must make on timely filed returns. Practitioners felt that APEX did not provide the certainty that the current application process provides. This uncertainty raised questions as to whether and how these elections would be made under the proposed system.

The IRS estimates that 80 percent of taxpayers requesting extensions overpay their taxes by April 15 and receive refunds when they filed. The proposal would have eliminated the need for these taxpayers to file the current form 4868 by basing the extension on the amount of tax paid by April 15.

Town grinds way toward master plan

By Mike Larabee

In a joint meeting, members of New Scotland's town and planning boards last week continued to search for middle ground on a proposed new master plan and zoning ordinance.

Working without guidance from the professional consulting firm C.T. Male, the officials zeroed in on a key area of impasse in the zoning document — minimum lot sizes in rural zones — at last week's town hall meeting.

There's a group that wants small, one-acre minimum lot sizes, then there's a group that's pushing for the larger lot sizes as proposed in the first draft of the ordinance," said Planning Board Chairman Raymond Mackay afterward. "This is where all the public vocalness has been."

MacKay said he feels resolution of the issue would mean most remaining revisions of the ordinance proposal would involve easier detail and technical cleanup work. "I think the flood gates would open up and all the water would flow," he said.

During the roughly two-hour meeting, the two boards discussed the proposed master plan and its companion zoning ordinance and subdivision regulations in broad terms, formally agreeing only when and how to conduct future meetings.

Town board members agreed to let the planners bring C.T. Male consultants to their next discussion of the subdivision regulations, scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 17, but decided not to invite the firm to another planned Tuesday, Sept. 24, joint meeting.

Town Supervisor Herbert Reilly said it costs the town roughly $550 each time C.T. Male is used as meeting consultant. C.T. Male drafted the master plan and its accompanying regulations and will be responsible as well for document revisions.

"I feel we've gotten our money's worth out of the program," Reilly said with regard to the Latham firm's work so far. "I do think when we get done we'll have one of the best documents in Albany County. if not the best."

"That's your opinion," replied Councilman Peter Van Zetten. He said he has heard repeated criticism of the proposal because of rural zones that would require minimum lot sizes of three, five and 10 acres. In addition, fellow Republican Councilman Craig Shufelt took issue with the zoning plan over the number of zones proposed, charging that complexities in the ordinance would serve to discourage development.

The old one was complicated," Shufelt said. "We might want to make it a little simpler rather than more complicated."

The zoning proposal contains a total of 15 districts, with minimum lotsizes ranging from one-half acre in hamlet and residential areas with access to public water and sewer to ten acres in areas designated for resource conservation.

New Scotland land for sale

By Mike Larabee

New Scotland, facing an ongoing budget crisis, has put out the "for sale" sign on about 13 acres of town property.

The town is accepting bids on three plots of property in an effort to close a more than $100,000 1991 budget gap, according to Supervisor Herbert Reilly.

He said cuts in state aid monies to the town, a reduction in Consolidated Highway Improvement Program (CHIP) highway maintenance funds, and a reduction in county sales tax revenues have forced the move.

Reilly said last week that the town so far has received nearly 80 inquiries into the status of the properties, but had not yet been given any formal bids. He said bids on the plots would be opened at the town board's regular meeting Wednesday, Sept. 4, at 7 p.m. at town hall.

plot at the intersection of Picard

Road and Route 85A, 11 acres on Upper Flat Rock Road and one acre in Feura Bush next to the Feura Bush Park. Reilly said the Feura Bush parcel was separated from the 20-acre park when the park was established because of accessibility problems.

We decided we would survey a piece of it off and save it as an aside, just in case we ever needed it for a rainy day," Reilly said. "We've got a rainy day now. We got Hurricane Bob banging on our heads."

He said the 11-acre parcel is roughly half of a plot split by Flat Rock Road. The half not for sale includes a former town dump site,

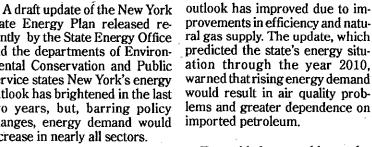

The Route 85A property was purchased in 1924 by the town and had been intended to hold a highway building, but ultimately was deemed too small, Reilly said.

Reilly said the three properties are expected to fetch roughly a total of $100,000. He said the board The properties are a one-acre has the right to reject any or all bids.

Two-thirds of the people interviewed in the recently conducted public opinion survey of facilities at Albany County Airport were from outside Albany County.

That is one of the most significant preliminary findings, confirming that the airport is "truly a regional facility," according to county Associate Planner Steve Iachetta. survey coordinator.

County officials have begun tabulating the findings, designed to gauge public opinion on the state of facilities at the Albany County

The four-page question naire will help guide the county in planning upcoming improvements to the airport, said Special Projects Director Michael Polovina. It will also provide public input on plans for the estimated $135 million future airport expansion.

The survey was administered earlier this month by interns from the county's Youth Bureau, who spent a week at the airport hand-and conducting interviews with patrons in the facility's concourse

used as regional facility

The survey was designed by the county with the help of Av Plan Aviation Planning Associates and Burns and McDonnell, the consulting firm selected this spring to design plans for an interim improvement project to the airport before more extensive expansion and improvement plans go into

In addition to asking for improvement suggestions, the questionnaire also focused on public opinion of existing airport services, including parking, baggage claim, ground transportation, and restaurants and shops.

The county's goal is "to get a firm handle on the services provided by the airport and get a good demographic profile of all airport patrons," explained Iachetta.

Preliminary tabulation of the surveys has shown mixed public responses to the facility. "Some contained well-founded criticisms ing out about 500 questionnaires in relation to (the airport) appearance, mentioning things like outdated furniture and other amenities," he said.

"But we also saw surveys where people said it was comparable to other airports of its size."

The upcoming interim improvement project, which is scheduled to begin next month and continue through November, is expected to remedy many of the complaints, according to lachetta.

"We'll see some real improvements in the next 60 days," he said.

Some of the modifications discussed at a meeting of the county legislature's Mass Transit Committee earlier this month included new signage outside the terminal, alterations to the double-door entrance to allow for better air temperature control, new restrooms at the entrance to the main lobby, and a complete revamping of the lobby area.

The county has plans to repeat the survey this winter, and will then compare the results from the two pollings, said Iachetta.

Metz and his lawyers, Burke, Cavalier, Lindy and Engel, P.C. of Albany, have signed a Department of Environmental Conservationproposed consent order which outlines proper closure procedures for the landfill, Ringler said. The consent order, which is now in EnCon's hands, sets forth closure measures, including a gas-venting system, which would be paid for through an escrow account. Money received by Metz from landfill client Waste Management of Eastern New York for the disposal of unprocessed C&D debris at the site will be put into the escrow account, maintained by Metz's lawyers.

Ringler said Michael Smith, the town's assistant attorney, worked out a settlement with Waste Management which allows them to use the landfill, in turn paying for its closure. In addition, the settlement includes the termination of the town's two lawsuits.

The first lawsuit, brought in stated that the waste management companies that dumped at the landfill brought in waste from outside Bethlehem's boundaries. The second suit, served April 8, named Metz and several waste management corporations as defendants and stated that the landfill is a "public nuisance." It evolved from a mid-March 1991 fire, which required fire department volunteer cooperation in extinguishing it.

We've resolved the litigation, however, there is still some language to be worked out," Ringler said. "They said they would make every good faith effort to complete the dumping by the end of December."The town proposes the site be closed by June 1, 1992.

Ringler said waste can be brought from areas outside of the town in order to expedite the closure. The local law barring the importation of waste generated outside of town boundaries will be lifted to complete filling the landfill,

Whether the landfill will accommodate waste by its deadline will depend on the availability of the waste and weather conditions, he said. All waste disposal must be completed by April 20, 1992, when Metz's current permit expires.

According to Gary Peck, En-Con regional attorney, the consent order and Metz's closure plan, submitted Aug. 15, have not been officially approved. He said the plan will be reviewed by EnCon engineers to ensure it follows all consent order guidelines. In addition, EnCon will inspect the landfill to make sure the site preparation work, the construction of a 2-foot soil wall between the old and new landfill cells, is completed, he said.

The consent order requires that once the gas-venting system is installed at the site and it is closed, Metz or future landfill owners must have the site monitored every three months, according to James Sacco Jr., EnCon sanitary engineer. The monitoring and maintenance of the landfill includes sampling of ground water at the wells, implementing the gas-venting system, and changing its filters if there are any problems, he said.

An inspection of the landfill cover is required and any soil erosion must be repaired. It will be monitored for at least 30 years, based on site conditions, he said.

Hoblock: reaction favorable Bird walks scheduled

By Kathleen Shapiro

Republican candidate Michael Hoblock says he has received favorable reactions from voters since obtaining the Independent line in his bid for Albany County execu-

"Many people have indicated to me that they can feel comfortable voting for me on an Independent line," including those who would not have voted Republican, said

The Colonie councilman and former state assemblyman secured his position on the November ballot last week after filing nominating petitions with the county Board of Elections containing 3,243 signatures from around the county. The minimum number of signatures needed is 1,500.

Hoblock said he felt the second line on the ballot would "have a major impact on the election outcome," since it will allow unaffiliated voters, as well as Democrats, Republicans, Conservatives, and Liberals to vote without using a party label.

"I've said right from the outset that this was not Republicans versus Democrats. This is a race for the people of Albany County, and we have to reach out," he said.

Hoblock also had a few words for Conservative voters. "I want to say a particular word to my many Conservative friends. This is now vour line to vote for me, the true conservative in this race," he declared.

Democratic candidate Robert Lyman currently holds the Conservative line on the fall ballot.

Bethlehem Recycling Corner

By Sharon Fisher, town recycling coordinator

Propane tanks from barbecues are difficult to dispose of because of the potential for explosion or fire.

Properly maintained, gas tanks can be safely used for many years. Propane tanks should be protected from the weather to prevent the steel casing from rusting. If rust occurs, wire brush or steel wool the area, then seal the outside of the container with an enamel or oil paint. (A good way to use up leftover aerosol paints.)

After a 12-year period, have the tank reinspected by a propane dealer. Two area inspectors are Suburban Propane on Fuller Road in Albany, and Agway Petroleum on Morris Road in Schenectady. There will be a slight fee but the certified inspection gives an additional five-year life on the tank. With continual upkeep, the propane tank will last longer than expected.

When purchasing a new barbecue, refuse the new propane tank offered in the package if you do not want two gas tanks. A spare tank of propane might be handy if you cook constantly on the barbecue though. (The gas always runs out when least expected!)

Reducing waste is good solid refuse management. Keeping things in proper condition ensures a longer life for household possessions.

Carrk retires after 34 years

By Regina Bulman

Born, raised, and educated in local schools, retiring high school principal Victor Carrk says he will sadly leave the RCS school district, but will continue to serve the community.

Effective Sept. 1, Carrk will leave the job he's held for 11 years and the district he has worked in

"I guess you could say I'm home grown," said Carrk. "I grew up in Ravena, graduated from what was then Ravena-Coeymans High School, and came back to stay after college.

Carrk was an athletic coach and physical education teacher in the district for 20 years before he moved up to assistant principal and eventually principal.

"He's a man who is excellent to work with and is admired by both students and staff," said RCS Superintendent William Schwartz, who was high school principal when Carrk was assistant principal. "Through his many years in the district, he's worked with students and teachers from all grade levels and is very much a part of the community."

Schwartz said establishing that vital school/community bond is one of the many assets Carrk brought to the job.

"His recognition that schools mirror the communities in which they serve was a great benefit to RCS," said Schwartz. "His close ties to the community helped bridge that gap.

Howard Engel, who has worked as assistant high school principal for 11 years, says educators and administrators like Carrk are hard to come by.

Today you don't see too many teachers or administrators staying in a district for 34 years. The trend seems to be much more mobile," said Engel. "Vic's experience and dedication is unique in education today. I don't think you'll find many others like him."

Carrk said one of the main reasons for his lengthy stay in the district is the students and staff he has worked with. He says the most positive memories he will take with him are of "class after class of tremendous young people."

Carrk's colleagues say he had a special closeness to students, which probably dates back to his coaching days, and that he was especially approachable for teachers and staff.

"He's just a warm, friendly person who's treated everyone equally," said Betty Costanza, Carrk's secretary for 11 years. Carrk is the sixth principal she's worked with. "He's always had an open door policy with staff and students.

Carrk said he's "seen it all" when it comes to changes in the district, but specifically points to the growth in student population. During his tenure, the district added the high school and middle school buildings and two elementary schools.

"I've seen many, many changes and all for the better," said Carrk. "RCS has been successful in keeping up with changing demands in education and technology.

And Carrk says continuing to meet changing educational needs and upcoming revisions to the state's Regents Action Plan is probably the biggest challenge that lies ahead.

"I know the district will continue to move onward and upward,"

Carrk himself is moving onward with his current campaign for Coeymans town supervisor. He says it's just another great opportunity offered to him and another step ahead in serving the commu-

"I guess he's going from one form of government to another," said Schwartz of Carrk's campaign-'It's no surprise to see him do other kinds of things. He's not a sit down and retire type of guy."

Carrk says he tried to plan his retirement announcement close to the end of the school year so that it wouldn't disrupt the process. He said he did get to say goodbye to the senior class, and friends and colleagues will be hosting a retirement party for him on Sept. 19.

As far as advice for his successor, Carrk says to take it all in. "Take advantage of all the talented people in this district, the teachers, the students, the staff. Individuals in this district have a great deal to offer."

Don't drink and drive

Since1987 DWI arrests in the Town of Bethlehem have increased steadily at an average of 23 percent each year.

In 1987, police arrested 87 drunken drivers. That figure rose to 109 in 1988 and to 128 in 1989. Last year, Bethlehem police made 199 DWI arrests and through July of this year they have made 97.

The police department has participated in county-wide STOP-DWI patrols as well as other strategies aimed at deterring DWI. Over the holiday remember three rules:

- Have a designated driver, if you are drinking.
- Do drive sober.
- Wear your seat belt.

Follow these rules and avoid becoming another statistic.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS:

"Don't worry, I'm a good driver!"

The trouble was, this good driver had a few drinks before he got behind the wheel.

Good driving requires more than keeping alert and driving defensively. What you do before you get into that car is even more important. If you drink alcohol and then get behind the wheel...no matter how good a driver you are...you become a danger to yourself, your passengers, pedestrians and other motorists.

This Labor Day Holiday, please don't drink and drive. We want you to have a safe holiday weekend.

Delmar resident works to terminate youth fitness problem

By Susan Graves

Delmar resident Donald Lindell is a terminator, too, when it comes to physically unfit youth.

Lindell, acting bureau chief in physical education for the state Education Department, along with celebrity Arnold Schwarzenegger who chairs the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, recently participated in the National Youth Fitness Summit in Washington, D.C.

The purpose of the gathering was to address the problem of youth fitness and stimulate action throughout the United States. The National Association for Sport and Physical Education, President's Council on Physical Fitness an Sports and the Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association sponsored the summit. "Statistics indicate the level of fitness has declined," throughout the country, Lindell said.

He attributes the decline to too fitness. much TV, too many TV games and junk food. "There are a number of children that can't even do one pull-up," he said.

He said Schwarzenegger is in the process of traveling to all 50 states to meet with people in education and other organizations who are in a position to affect youth.

Donald Lindell and Arnold Schwarzenegger

Schwarzenegger came to New York this spring and generated a lot of interest in youth fitness, Lindell said. "He met with us for nearly an hour. We were quite impressed with him.'

According to Lindell, Schwarzenegger has been one of the most active chairmen on the fitness council. The film star has already visited 25 states and plans to travel to the rest by the end of the year. In each state, he is delivering a strong message to the governor about the need for quality physical education programs for children, Lindell said.

As a result of the meeting with Schwarzenegger in New York, about a dozen people got together to work on the problem. "We decided we would establish a coalition to work on health and fitness," Lindell said.

One of the things his group is advocating is that parents do more with their children. He also said care must be taken to prevent New York's budget problems from impacting the physical education of youth.

Currently in New York, the fitness test for youth is being revised and changed to make it a more health-related evaluation, Lindell

A major problem related to youth fitness is poor eating habits. and Schwarzenegger is advocating eliminating junk food in the schools, "More children are overweight and cholesterol levels are higher," the actor said. Unfortunately, according to Lindell, not enough time is devoted to sound nutritional habits in the schools what with other major health problems the schools must address such as AIDS and drug problems.

A former physical education teacher, Lindell has worked for the state for 21 years. To participate in promoting youth fitness and help implement the state action plan, call Lindell at 474-5820.

by Wright may be stamped to indicate her gift to the school. "It leaves a further legacy of Ms. Wright with the books that will be purchased.'

Superintendent Alan McCartney said Wright's donation is "just an exclamation point at the end of her career." He said her contribútion to the elementary school, which "came from her heart," stands for what she is, a woman who "dedicated 50 years to education."

Democrats

chard American Legion Post in Elsmere.

According to Matthew Clyne, town Democratic Committee chairman, McGarry, of 17 Mullins Road, was selected from a number of people being considered for the office. "Bill is a good candidate who can run a hard-hitting campaign, not a personality contest," he said.

Ringler said Friday he and McGarry will have the opportunity to discuss the issues during the campaign and "not play political games.

McGarry said he has been interested in running for the office for several months, and has received support from town Democrats. He said he has no campaigning plans yet, but would like to "talk more to people" to discover their views on current issues.

He said if elected, he hopes to make several changes he views as needed. He said the town board is proceeding too quickly with its property revaluation project. "The town should slow down," he said. "It's going to hurt the old-timers that have been here 30 or 40 years."

The town-wide reassessment of residential property, undertaken by Finnegan Associates and targeted for completion July 1, 1992, would make taxes more equitable. Ringler said. He said the town needs to move ahead "to ensure the assessments are equitable and in accordance with the law."

In addition, Ringler said New York state controls the percentage senior citizens can receive in deductions. "We always take advantage of the largest reduction made available to us by the state.

'Mr. Burns was in favor of us moving ahead with the revaluation project," he said.

Clyne said solid waste disposal is the "biggest" issue on the Democratic platform. He said the town should "divide itself from the ANSWERS consortium and activate an alliance with neighboring communities" such as the Town of Coeymans and hamlets in Greene County. He said a regional landfill in the Town of Bethlehem, the sitings for which he said were "not thorough" and did not reflect a consensus among the ANSWERS consortium, is not the solution to the solid waste problem. "The landfill is a 19th century solution for a 20th century problem."

McGarry agreed that the town should pull out of ANSWERS and review available alternatives, such as incineration and increasing the recycling program. "We need to find out what the people want because they need to live with it," he said. "We should do whatever way's easiest. Recycling is good, it means less burning, less burying.

According to Clyne, other items on the Democrats' campaign platform include reviewing the possibility of bringing a supermarket into town, alleviating traffic congestion on Delaware Avenue from the Four Corners to Delaware Plaza and reducing commercial trucking through the center of Selkirk. "There's no question in my mind most residents are in favor of a new food store," he said. Although it is "not the town's duty to set aside land for a supermarket," he said interested retailers should not have to "jump through legal hoops," mentioning Price Chopper who expressed interest in land off of New Scotland Road, but was "put on the defensive right off the bat.'

Clyne suggested the town reroute Delaware Avenue traffic and "provide an artery through town" to alleviate congestion. He said traffic through Selkirk should be routed up alternate roads with the ability to handle the flow of trucks. In addition, restrictions should be made on heavy trucking through Selkirk, he said.

McGarry, a volunteer firefighter with the Slingerlands Fire Department for approximately six years, said he has not begun campaigning, but believes it will be a group effort among town Democrats. He said he has not been actively involved in politics, but decided to run for the office after there was "talk" among town Democrats.

McGarry and his wife, Rose, who have three children, two married daughters and a son in the Marine Corps, spearheaded the town's "Operation We Care" project during Operation Desert Storm. He said they have lived in Slingerlands for 21 years, and he has always been an Albany County resident. He has worked for the county in refrigeration and air conditioning for two and a half

Ringler, who worked with the McGarrys during "Operation We Care," said he enjoyed working with the couple. "I think that's one of the nice things about our community, that we're friends," he said. "Although I assume in the campaign we'll disagree on some issues without being disagreeable."

dissatisfied with the way public officials are doing business in the town."

Orchard Park is a 35-lot Baltisbuilt subdivision beleaguered by legal and well-water contamination problems. Both Reilly and Riester categorically denied any link between efforts to bring clean water to the project and the town's review of Swift Estates. "It's an absolute falsehood and fabrication," said Riester.

Reilly said, "I'm a public official. To what extent I have to put up with this abuse, I don't know. Certainly I'm not trying to extort any money out of him and I never instructed Fred Riester to do that."

Baltis last week provided The Stotlight with copies of his complaint, in which he alleges additionally that he has been "victimized by discrimination because of my ethnic background" and that his wife, Donna Baltis, has been the target of sex discrimination by town officials. The complaint makes no mention of specific instances of discrimination.

Donna Baltis is legal owner of the Swift Estates subdivision property on Swift Road. Peter Baltis immigrated to the United States from Greece in 1964.

Last week, Baltis made similar accusations against the town's planning board during public review of a different project. "I'm not coming here to be intimidated or deal with racists, bigots and hatemongers," Baltis said during dis-cussion of his plan to build 82 units of affordable housing on Route 85. "I know some members of this board don't like me, but that's too

"I really don't like him accusing me of being a racist or a bigot, Reilly said. "I'm furious about that." Reilly, who owns funeral homes in Voorheesville and Albany, said charges of discrimination could damage not only his political reputation but business reputation as

"I don't like him trying to damage my professional life. I don't think he has any right to do that,'

Riester acknowledged that he has asked Baltis to give monies toward the establishment of a water system in Orchard Park, arguing a contribution would have been in the developer's own best interest. But Riester said he has spoken out at public meetings in the past against the legality of linking the approval of one project with an-

Reilly said he and Riester have both helped expedite the technical study of Swift Estates water supply plans. "I worked my butt off to get that engineering work done,' he said.

Orchard Park was built in 1986 and 1987. Baltis alleges attempts at extortion took place roughly two years ago.

Punishment versus discipline

The following was developed by the Institute for Reality Therapy and is designed to demonstrate the advantages of discipline over punishment.

Punishment

- Expresses power of personal authority. Usually painful and based on the past.
- Is imposed on someone. Responsibility assumed by punisher.
- Options for individuals are closed.
- Essentially negative and short-term.
- · Open or concealed anger. Easy or Expedient.

Discipline

- Based on logical or natural consequences. Concerned with present.
- Responsibility assumed by individual.
- Options are kept open so individual can choose to improve behavior.
- Active teaching process involving close, sustained personal involvement.
- Friendly.
- Difficult and time consuming.

Those who like to fly will enjoy balloon rides at Adirondack Balloon Flights in Glens Falls.

Up, up and away... with strings attached

By Erin Elizabeth Sullivan

If gliding along the sky at about 1,000 feet sounds like an uplifting experience, Adirondack Balloon Flights in Glens Falls will provide the perfect journey for you.

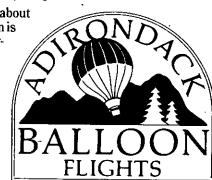

In its 14th year, Adirondack Balloon Flights will offer visitors to the Lake George region the opportunity to ride in a hot air balloon and view sights in the Adirondack and Green mountains only seen by North Country balloonists.

"Hot air ballooning is not a typical form of aviation," said Phil Jackson, balloon pilot for Adirondack Balloon Flights. "It is basically flying with a bubble of hot air," he explained.

How is the hot air balloon directed in mid-air? Piloting consists of moving the balloon up and down vertically. Pilots have no direct control over the balloon's direction and speed. A pilot uses the control he has to drift the balloon into air currents favoring the path he wishes to travel, said Jackson.

While Adirondack Balloon Flights thrills about 700 passengers a year, the fall foliage season is the most popular time for flights. "The changing of seasons and the colorful North Country attract the people," Jackson said.

If prospective sky voyagers have been grounded due to a fear of motion sickness, hot air ballooning is a great solution. "Aside from take-off and landing, balloon passengers will feel no sense of motion while in the air," said Jackson. He compared the flights to "standing stationary on a tall building and watching the scenery move by." The stable balloon supplies passengers with a solid base on which to take photographs or video pictures.

P.O.BOX 65 GLENS FALLS, N.Y. 12801 (518) 793-6342

Special events may take place in hot air balloons. Jackson said that Adirondack Balloon Flights has seen about six marriage proposals this year alone. The business has also set some marriages off to a flying start, with weddings performed in the air. While the ceremony would be small, there is enough room in the balloon (which holds up to six passengers) for the bride and groom, the person performing the ceremony, and two witnesses.

While hot air ballooning is fun for all ages, Adirondack Balloon Flights does not recommend their flights for children under 10 or adults over 70 years of age.

Balloon flights must be scheduled by reservation and are available seven days a week, April through November, with a limited winter schedule. Lofts begin around sunrise or approximately a few hours before sunset.

Institute provides artful looks in express tours

By Robert Webster Jr.

Are you up for dining with Da Vinci, or "doing lunch" with Renoir?

These artists and their works may not be on hand at the Albany Institute of History and Art, but the works of hundreds of other local and internationally known artists await at the institute as part of its "Artful Looks—Express Gallery Tours" series.

In its second year, the Artful Looks tours were conceived "to give people an opportunity to get close to the works here and talk about them in an informal mode," said Ted Lind, director of the institute's education department.

Attendance at lectures and programs has been good, said Lind, but "I began to notice that when people came here for a lecture they would trot in and then trot out. They didn't spend much time communing with the objects in the institute."

So a lunchtime tour was devised, one where participants have the option of lunching at the Luncheon Gallery in the Rice Building and then joining the tour for some post-dining discussion, or just joining the tour in progress.

"They are really just informal talks focusing on certain types of art or artists in our collection," said Claire Colonnese, a member of the education department.

A working knowledge of the nuances of art is not a prerequisite for taking part in the tours. She said many types of individuals attend the 20-minute to a half-hour tours.

"Distant View of Albany," top, by William Hart, is one of many paintings on display at the Albany Institute of History and Art. Inset, a group tours the museum.

'Coolidge' to appear at Van Buren site

Martin Van Buren National Historic Site on Rt. 9H near Kinderhook is continuing its celebration of the 75th anniversary of the National Park Service with a series of Presidential Living History programs entitled Parks and Presidents.

Actor Jim Cooke will step into character as President Calvin Coolidge on Sunday, Sept. 1 at 2 p.m. and offer a program focusing on our 30th president's administration and his establishment of Mount Rushmore National Monument. The program is free.

Bostonian Cooke has been involved in presenting the Coolidge characterization for many years. Utilizing Coolidge's speeches, letters and autobiography, Cooke has performed on National Public Radio and has appeared at Boston's Charles Playhouse.

He has also portrayed Coolidge in an Emmy awardwinning TV docudrama entitled "Campaign Fever."

Summer theater season moves toward conclusion with Labor Day's arrival

With a few exceptions, the summer theater season ends with Labor Day. Overall, the season achieved good attendance figures at most theaters even though artistically, the productions generally have been mixed.

Notable was the Park Playhouse's My Fair Lady which attracted capacity crowds during its six-week run at Washington Park in Albany.

Some urged keeping the production together for a few paid performances in Albany's Palace Theater for the Playhouse's benefit but there's been no confirmation.

The Williamstown Theatre Festival displayed the nimble production sense necessary in recession by moving Defying Gravity from a successful run at its Other Stage to the Main Stage for its season finale. It runs through Saturday with James Whitmore in the main role of the play about the Challenger accident. For more info, call (413) 597-3400.

The Berkshire Theatre Festival in Stockbridge, Mass., ends its season this Saturday with Neil Simon's comedy, California Suite, the first play written by the successful playwright after he moved to the West Coast. For more info, call (413) 298-5536.

All Night Strut is a production continuing beyond the summer (through Oct. 20) at the Lake George Dinner Theater at the Holiday Inn. This celebration of the music of the 30s and 40s opened June 18 and will be the longest running show of the season in the region. For more info. call 668-5781.

Another summer production, Smoke On The Mountain, will survive the summer also. This bluegrass musical, presented by LEAP Productions in July at the Ancram Opera House in Columbia County, moves to the Empire Performing Arts Center in September for two weeks. The production which sold out in its three weeks at Ancram, plays Sept. 7, 8, 12, 13, 14 and 15. For more info, call 473-1845.

The MacHaydn Theater in Chatham runs beyond Labor Day with its final production of the season, Joseph And The Technicolor Dreamcoat, Andrew Lloyd Webber's first musical. It opens Sept. 4 and runs two weeks. Meanwhile, the popular Fiddler On The Roof concludes performances this Sunday. For info on both shows, call 392-9292.

At New Lebanon, the Theatre Barn opens its final production Thursday, Aug. 29, with a modern version of Gilbert and Sullivan's HMS Pinafore. In the past four years, the theater has scheduled one Agatha Christie mystery and a Gilbert Sullivan operetta each season because they have become so popular with audiences. Pinafore runs through Sept. 8. For more info, call 794-8989.

The Jazz Club premiere closes out season at Dorset Theatre Festival

Producing director John Nassivera has long been fascinated by jazz music of the '30s and '40s. His new concept The Jazz Club chronicles life in the small clubs on New York's 52nd Street where black musicians brought their music from their Harlem origins. Their music integrated the African American tradition with Western European structure.

In its premiere at the Dorset Theatre Festival, near Manchester, Vt., The Jazz Club chronicles one night when a wealthy Englishman bribes the piano player at a small club to let him play for the young singer from Harlem. David Stone (T. Ryder Smith) is the son of a wealthy London merchant sent to New York to open an office. Instead, he becomes involved with the jazz music world which he's been infatuated with for years. He also plays a mean jazz piano.

There is surprise on the part of the singer, Rose Brown (Betty K. Bynum) when he plays for her and resulting conflict. Nassivera's script permits them to find similar tragedy in their background to realize a tentative friend-

Bynum handles the songs of the period with skill. The tall, willowy and exotic performer finds the essence of the music originated by the likes of Ella Fitzgerald, Bessie Smith and particularly, Billie Holliday in the haunting Strange

The musical segments are well done in this two-act production but Nassivera's script is choppy in the first act. Director Jill Charles finds it easier to weave the plot into the second act when the characters are more clear.

Atrio of fine musicians, Ken Crutchfield (drums), Quintin Franklin (bass) and Criag Rivers (saxophone) give excellent support to Bynum.

The production which may find its way to off-Broadway in the fall, continues through this Saturday at Dorset. For more info, call, (802) 867-5777.

Balloons

According to Adirondack Balloon Flights, sunrise offers the best flying conditions. Jackson suggests that passengers should plan three to four hours for the entire trip, from pick-up location off Exit 19 on the Northway to landing. Jackson said that the time aloft in the balloon is "roughly one hour." Refreshments and transportation from the pick-up are included in the $175 flight cost.

Discount rates for groups of three or more are available. For a group of three, $10 per person is deducted, $15 for a group of four, $20 for a group of five, and $25 for a group of six. Gift certificates may also be purchased from Adirondack Bal-

Along with wedding and engagement flights, American Balloon Works in East Nassau, another area hot air ballooning company, adds company picnics and champagne picnics to their special flights list.

"After landing, we set out a champagne picnic for the passengers," said Bill Eckert, balloon pilot for American Balloon

Hot air balloons at American Balloon

Works average in size from a capacity of three to a capacity of four to five passengers. The flights cover the panorama of the Berkshire Mountains and the foothills. "We also take in some farmland of Columbia County," Eckert added. The pick-up location is in Kinderhook, near the Ichabod Crane Central School.

American Balloon Works accommodates passengers of all ages. "We have had adults the age of 94 to small babies up in the balloons," Eckert said.

Champagne flights cost $185 per person and a 10 percent discount is offered for a family of four.

So layer your clothing and prepare for a breathtaking view while enjoying the first form of flying at a local ballooning .

Band contest highlights 14th Scottish games

For the 14th year, the Capital District Scottish Games will take place next weekend at the Altamont Fairgrounds, on Saturday, Aug. 31, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A major part of the games, sponsored by the Schenectady Pipe Band, is the northeastern U.S. Pipe Band Championship which attracts bands from throughout the northeast and Canada. Individual band members also compete for solo piping and drumming awards.

Dancing is another feature of the games, with Altamont on Games day also the site of the Northeastern U.S. Open Highland Dance Championship.

This event attracts more than 100 dancers who perform such traditional dances as the Seann Truibhas, Highland Fling, Sailor's Hornpipe, and the Sword Dance. In addition to the Scottish dancing, there will also be traditional Irish dancing demonstrated by the Mike Farrell School of Irish Step Dancing from Albany.

For music lovers, two well-known vocal and instrumental groups will be making return appearances.

The Porters, from Albany, featuring John Haggerfy on guitar and banjo, Mike Dunigan on guitar, Jimmy Ryan on melodica and pennywhistle, and Mike McLean on bass, mandolin, and keyboard, specialize in Irish and Scottish music and oldies from the '50s and '60s.

Once known as the Wild Irishmen, the Porters are the house band at Doc McCutchens's in Albany and also appear at Cheers and O'Flaherty's.

Also appearing for a return engagement are the Brigadoons, the foot-stomping crowd pleaser from Canada. Performing throughout the afternoon in the big tent, this four-man instrumental band specializes in traditional Scottish and Irish songs and ballads. Complementing both

Pipe bands from all over the United States and Canada will join in The Capital District Scottish Games at the Altamont Fairgrounds from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

the Porters and the Brigadoons will be performances by the Thistle Down Celtic Band

A special area of the fairgrounds is reserved for the Highland athletics. Perhaps the best known of the traditional events, involving a combination of sheer physical strength and agility, is the caber toss. The caber is a log which can vary between 17 and 20 feet long and weigh from 80 to 140 pounds. The competition is to toss the caber end over end and allow it to go 180 degrees, landing in a straight line from the point of toss.

Other events include "putting the stone" or throwing a 22-pound stone for distance with the use of only one hand; "throwing the weight" or heaving 28 and 56-pound stones with an iron ring for height over a bar; and "tossing the sheaf" or throwing burlap bag full of hay over a similar bar with a pitchfork. The events attract athletes from all over the United States and Canada.

One of the major spectator attractions is the exhibition of the 14 breeds of dogs which have their origin in Scotland, followed by a demonstration by the Albany Obedience Club of both basic and advanced obedience techniques.

A companion event is a demonstration of border collies herding sheep and geese as it is done in Scotland.

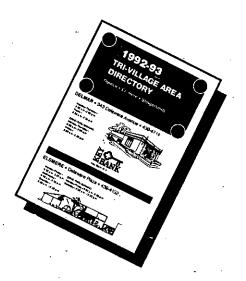

Also appearing will be the magnificent Clydesdale horses. Originating just southeast of Glasgow, the Clydesdale developed as a large, strong workhorse with a quick, smooth gait and a willing heart.

Other attractions include a variety of Scottish and other foods and beverages, vendors with clothing, shawls, Scottish and Irish recordings, maps and genealogical items.

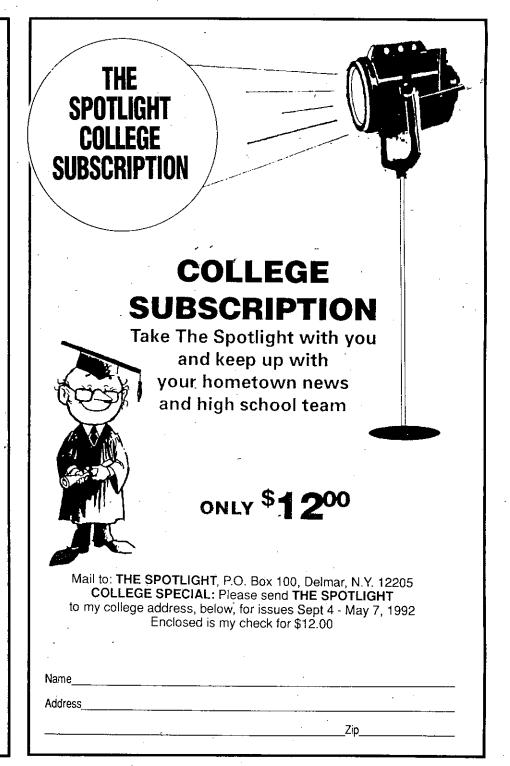

The opening ceremonies begin with a parade of tartans, a colorful procession of the various kilts and tartans by clansmen and women representing the various clans, followed by all of the pipe bands. Following the parade, all of the bands assemble on the field and play a selection of tunes and perform marching formations. There is another performance of the massed bands at the closing ceremonies

☐ Tours

"Whether you know a little about art or nothing at all, the tour is enjoyable," said Colonnese. While often some tour members know a great deal about art, she said, most tour participants are merely appreciative members of the public.

The institute encourages tour participants to break off afterwards to examine the works on their own and to initiate discussion about them.

"We've lost a lot being part of the television generation, especially the children" said Colonnese. "We're attempting to instill some museum values in people — real-life values."

With a 19-gallery collection that focuses on the culture and art of Albany and the upper Hudson valley region, with objects spanning the eras from the early 1700s to the present, the institute has several different tours on schedule for the 1991-92 season. Tours include:

Sept. 13 and 15, "Ride On—Travel Images;" Sept. 20 and 22, "Still Lifes;" Sept. 27 and 29, "Walter Launt Palmer: An American Impressionist;" Oct. 4 and 6, "H2O Works: Life Along the Hudson River;" and Oct. 11 and 13, "Humble Truths: Early American Paintings."

Other tours, which run through May, will offer inside looks at contemporary sculpture, porcelain and pottery from the Hudson area, furniture, lithographs, ancient Egyptian culture, artistic stereotypes in American culture, cityscapes of the Capital District and an exhibit on Albany's politicians.

There is no limit to the number of people who can join a tour. Colonnese said she has led "a group of one and groups of 50, whoever shows up."

The tours, which are free and open to the public, are offered every Friday at 12:15 p.m. and Sunday at 1:30 p.m. The Sunday tours were added this year after the weekday ones became popular with the lunch-time crowd.

"The Sunday tours slow down some," said Colonnese. Without having to rush to get back to work, tour participants take their time and "engage in some serious group discussions" concerning the works, she said.

"People come here to learn," said Lind,
"The objects are here to prompt dialogue and the tours are a great way to achieve that."

For information on any of the tours, call the institute at 463-4478.

Chubby Checker to twist at fair

Fairgoers will have the opportunity to twist with classic rock and roll star Earnest Evans, popularly known as Chubby Checker, and his band, The Wildcats, on Monday, Sept. 2 at the 151st Columbia County Fair.

Checker has recorded more than 20 albums and 40 singles during his career and produced classics such as "The Twist," "Twistin' USA," "Let's Twist Again," "Twist It Up," and "Slow Twistin'."

He will play two shows to conclude the five-day fair at 3 and 8 p.m. on Sept. 2. A fireworks display will follow his second

Admission to the Columbia County Fair is $4 for adults and free for children 12 and under. The fairgrounds are located in the Village of Chatham with entrances off routes 203 and 66.

For more information, contact Angelo Nero at 758-1811.

It is almost time for the new school year to begin. Get ambitious. You only go through school once so work hard and enjoy it.

For those of you in high school, remember the work you do now will lay the foundation for your future and may affect the way you study and who you become years from now.

Get involved in school activities. There is no better way to make new friends and learn about your ability to accept responsibility and affect change in your world. You will be surprised by how much you can accomplish. Remember, the difference between a successful person and an unsuccessful one is discipline. Budget your time and study hard, but don't forget to leave room in your day for something you enjoy.

The Albany YMCA on Washington Avenue will be offering a number of courses designed for teens throughout the early fall. Course offerings range from basic martial arts, gymnastics and swim classes to the Leaders Club and Youth and Government Club. The Leaders Club is for you if you're a junior or senior high school student interested in developing leadership skills.

The You Government program is for high school students who want to learn about the American democratic system while gaining skills in decision making and values. It models government on several levels — local, county, and state. For complete scheduling information, call 449-7196.

Learn sign language. It can be exciting to learn a new language and communicate with people you normally wouldn't get to meet. Sign language classes will be offered for 10 weeks at the Bethlehem Public Library on Delaware Avenue, Delmar, on Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 12. For information, call 439-9314.

Are you or someone you know new to this country? If so, the William K. Sanford Colonie town library may be able to help you. Beginning in October, the William K. Sanford Colonit town library will present a class for people 16 years old and up designed to help in the adjustment to this country. They will stress basic language training, life skills and employment preparation. Because the class is limited to 15 persons, it is important that students register now to assure placement. For information, call 458-9274.

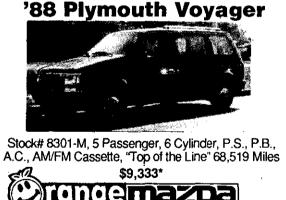

If you have an item exclusively for area teens, send it to TEENSCENE, Spotlight Newspapers, 125 Adams St. Delmar 12054.

From the World of Ford—style and safety

A customer may consider style, performance and value important factors when looking at a new car, but air-bags and other safety items have become equally important. Customers want styling and value for their money, and expect a certain level of safety to be built into the car they buy.

More that 1.5-million Ford vehicles equipped with air-bags are on the road today. An air-bag system with properly worn safety belts helps provide important additional protection for drivers in moderate-to-severe frontal collisions. Even in vehicles not fitted with air-bags, it is very important for all occupants to wear lap-and-shoulder belts to help keep them in place during a crash. A belt system can also keep vehicle occupants in place during a quick steering maneuver to avoid an accident.

Ford's new 1992 Crown Victoria sedans have a standard driver's side air-bag and offer an optional passenger side airbag as well.

Safety isn't limited to top-of-the-line models. A driver's side air-bag is standard equipment on the Ford sporty Mustang and is an option on the compact Tempo sedan as well.

Taurus, one of the best-selling models in the Ford line-up, also comes with a driver's side air-bag as standard equipment. Like other Ford passenger cars, Taurus models also have steel side guard beams in the doors, a safety-designed roof structure, flame-resistant interior material and child-safety latches on the rear doors.

The 1992 Aerostar and Econoline vans and wagons scheduled for introduction this fall will come with a standard driver's side air-bag as well. The new Econoline will be the first full-size van or wagon in the industry to be equipped with one of these safety devices.

An anti-lock braking system is another valuable safety feature. Four-wheel antilock brakes use a system of electronic sensors to detect when a wheel is approaching lockup. At that point, the system automatically cycles the brakes up to ten times a second—far faster than a driver could do manually-to help maintain steering control and bring the vehicle to a straight-line stop on slippery surfaces.

Four-wheel anti-lock disc brakes are standard equipment or available as an option on the Ford Taurus, Probe, Crown Victoria and Thunderbird. Rear-wheel anti-lock braking systems that employ mechanical sensors are standard equipment on all Ford Bronco, Explorer, Aerostar, Ranger, Econoline and F-Series light
