Delmar hosting county fire convention

By Susan Graves

The Delmar Fire Department hopes to paint the town fire engine red when it hosts the Albany County Volunteer Fireman Association Convention later this month. Public events, including two parades, a carnival and block dancing, will be Friday, Sept. 20, and Saturday, Sept. 21.

Board of Fire Commissioners Chairman Gerald J. Day said Delmar hosts the convention about once a decade.

Work on this year's convention began about three years ago. "It takes a couple of years to prepare," for the convention, which is expected to draw thousands of volunteer fire fighters and supporters as well as local residents throughout the Capital District.

All 65 men and 30 women who serve the Delmar department belong to the county association (Delmar is the only department with 100 percent participation) and are working on the convention and carnival.

The first in-house event will be a women's dinner and meeting on Wednesday followed by a men's dinner and meeting on Thursday. Day said about 350 are expected to attend the men's dinner, which will be served by Brooks chicken barbecue.

Public events begin at 7 p.m. on Friday with a Mardi Gras parade stepping off from Bethlehem Middle School, moving across Oakwood Place, then down Delaware Avenue to the station on Adams Street and Nathaniel Boulevard.

"It's quite a fun parade," with about 20 floats, clowns and a gala atmosphere, Day said.

After the parade, the carnival at the fire station will have games for children, including Mr. Bouncety Bounce and games of chance for adults, food, drinks and music for dancing. Festivities will continue until 11 p.m. The Newports will perform Friday night.

On Saturday, firefighters will participate in a formal dress parade, which will line up near the school district offices on Adams Place at 2 p.m. The parade will then move down Kenwood to Oakwood Place onto Delaware Avenue, then back on Delaware to the fire station. Sixty-one units will be represented in the parade including one from Delmar's sister station in Delmar, Del. "They'll be in line

Democrats launch campaign

By Susan Wheeler

Democratic constituents last week met candidates running for town and county seats up for election this November.

Democratic Committee Chairman Matthew Clyne introduced the candidates, as well as nine-term incumbent State Sen. Howard Nolan, during an informal "meet the candidates" gathering Tuesday, Aug. 27, at the Nathaniel A. Blanchard Legion Hall on Poplar Drive, Elsmere.

The recently-nominated town office candidates include William McGarry for supervisor; John Dorfman, town justice; Thomas Skulteti, superintendent of highways; Michael P. Mogul, receiver of taxes; Flo Derry, town clerk; and Anthony Cornell Jr. and James Banagan, who did not attend the meeting, for town council.

Bethlehem Democrats running for county legislative seats include Lee Griffin, 34th District; Frank Rooney, 35th

Bethlehem names planners

By Susan Wheeler

The Bethlehem Town Board last week unanimously appointed two new Bethlehem Planning Board members.

Chadwick Square resident Douglas C. Hasbrouck, a licensed professional engineer for nearly 30 years, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of board member Dominick DeCecco. DeCecco resigned to pursue his candidacy as an Albany County legislator for the 34th district.

Doris M. Davis, of 51 Greenleaf Drive, an active League of Women Voters member, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of former planner William Johnston, who retired from the board earlier this year.

Davis's term will expire Dec. 31, 1992, while Hasbrouck will be on the board until Dec. 31, 1996. Both will receive an annual salary of $2,918.

Davis

Hasbrouck, 56, who retired in April after nearly six years as executive secretary of the New York State Education Department's State Board for Engineering and Land Surveying, said he thought this was a "good time" for him to bring his technical background to the board.

"I can add some knowledge in that respect," he said.

The Brightonwood Road resident has served as assistant executive director for design and construction at the Facilities Development Corporation, director of the New York State Energy Office's Bureau of Resource Development and director of design and construction services at the Dormitory Authority of the State of New York. In addition, he has 13 years experience in engineering-related work at the state's

Local rescue teams free woman from cave

A Massachusetts woman was freed early Tuesday morning after being trapped in a Clarksville cave behind June's Diner on route 443, according to Inspector Reginald S. Saunders of the Albany County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff's Department deputies and local fire and rescue personnel responded to a call about 8 p.m. Monday. Beverly Schwartz, age 30, of Somerville, Mass. was trapped inside the cave, and her foot was lodged between a crevice in the rocks, Saunders said.

He said Schwartz was exploring the cave with Gary Lau, 37, of Marlboro, Mass. and Mark McNiff, 24, of Somerville. The three entered the cave between 2:15 and 2:30 p.m. While in the cave Schwartz's foot became wedged between two rocks at approximately 4 p.m. McNiff and Lau attempted to free her but could not.

According to the sheriff's report, Lau left the cave and contacted the Onesquethaw Fire Company at approximately 7:30 p.m. Under the direction of Chief Fred Spaulding of the Onesquethaw Fire Company a rescue effort was initiated. Thom Engle of the Albany Schoharie Cave Rescue Team also responded and assisted in the rescue effort. Other members of the Slingerlands Fire Company and the Albany Schoharie Cave Rescue Team were involved in the rescue effort.

Saunders said a special cave rescue team from Scott Air Force Base in Virginia was also summoned to the scene. At approximately 2 a.m. Tuesday, rescue workers successfully freed Schwartz's foot by chipping away some of the rocks where it was wedged. At approximately 3:45 a.m. Schwartz was brought out of the cave and taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital. She was suffering from exposure but her condition was good, Saunders said.

St. Thomas 21st picnic set for Sunday at park

The 21st annual St. Thomas family picnic will be at the Bethlehem Town Park on Elm Avenue from 1 to 6 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 8.

Picnic co-chairmen, Jim Kelly and Jeff Wendth, have arranged for family activities throughout the park, including tennis, softball and nature hikes.

Entertainment includes music by Skip Parsons Riverboat Jazz Band, magician Jim Snack and Mr. Bouncety Bounce.

Volunteers from the parish will cook and serve hamburgers, sausage and onions, hot dogs and chowder. Beer and soda will also be available.

This year's raffle prizes include an 11-piece patio set donated by J.C. Penney's, a bicycle from Eagle's Nest Bikeshop, a $100 gift certificate from Falvo's Meats, and a $200 savings bond from Union National Bank.

Other prizes have been donated by the Desmond Americana, Fowler's Liquor Store, Verstandig's Florist, Joyelle's Jewelers, Mayone's Wine & Liquor, Delmar Liquor, Linens by Gail, Slingerlands Sportscards and Delmar Sunoco.

Gift certificates have been provided by McCaffrey's Mens Wear, Gingersnips, Baby's Breath Florists, Something To Remember, Town & Tweed, The Shoppe, Nicole's, Stone Ends, Sutter's Mill, Garlic John's, The Toy Maker and Critic's Choice.

Raffle tickets are available after masses on Sept. 7 and 8 as well as at the picnic.

Village Girl Scouts set registration date

The Voorheesville Neighborhood Girl Scouts will welcome new members at their annual registration on Thursday, Sept. 12 from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m. at the Voorheesville Public Library.

Girls in Kindergarten through high school are welcome to join. Returning scouts can register through their troop leaders and are not required to attend.

Adult leaders and volunteers are needed.

Children to collect stones for marker

By Mike Larabee

A veterans memorial planned for New Scotland Town Park will be made of more than just the symbolic support of the townspeople behind it.

Organizers from American Legion Post 1493 in Voorheesville envision a monument built of stones gathered one-by-one by town children.

Leo Burgoon and Mike Martin, the post's two-man project committee, say they hope the memorial will be meaningful not just in recognition of the armed forces, but also as a long-lasting town connection for New Scotland's young people.

"We want the youth involved," Burgoon said.

At a town park event last week designed to draw attention to the project, Burgoon and Martin emphasized that the marker is a community effort and downplayed the role of the post.

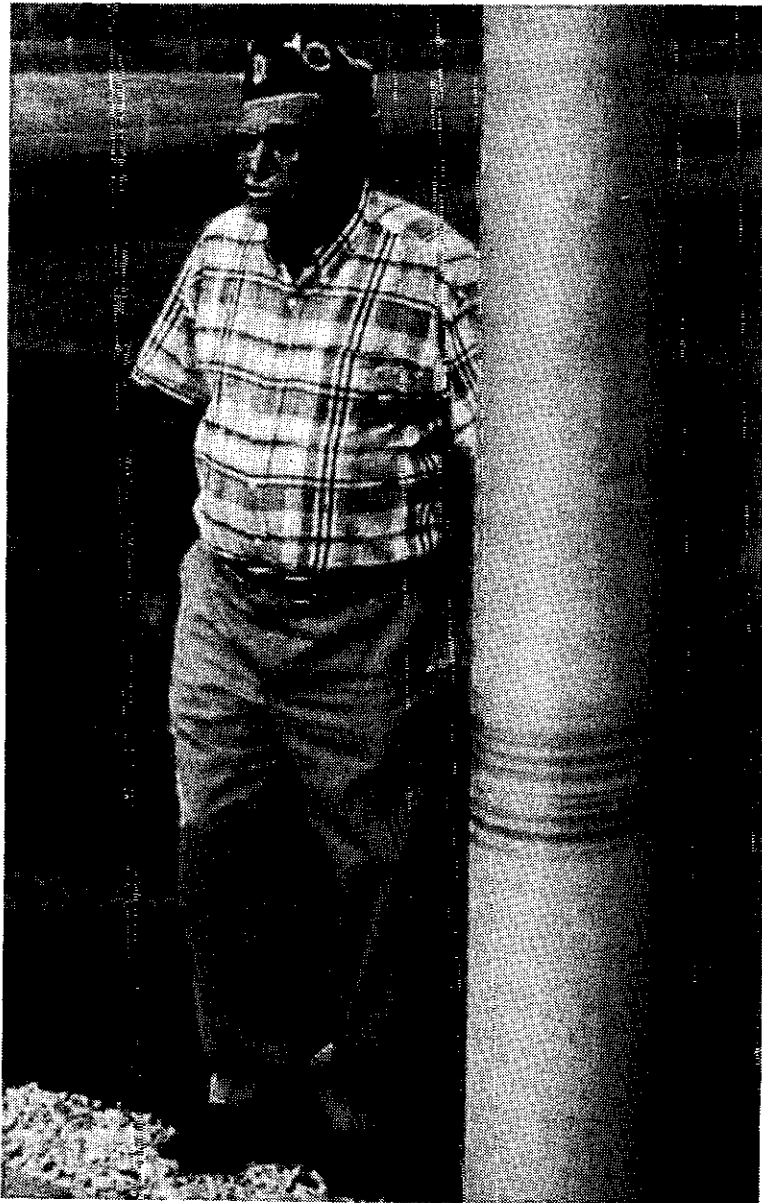

"The Legion is only the vehicle," he said.

The monument is planned for a recently-installed rectangular cement foundation at the foot of the Swift Road Park's flagpole, Burgoon said.

According to Burgoon, most of the $2,500 the Legion hopes to raise for the project is slated for the purchase of a bronze plaque. The marker will be constructed cobblestone-style by a professional mason and the plaque will likely be set at a 45-degree angle into the face of the cobbles, he said.

Burgoon said the plaque will read, "Presented to the Town of New Scotland, by the citizens of New Scotland, with stone gathered by the youth of the town, dedicated by those who served and consecrated by those who gave their lives defending this flag and the country it stands for."

The Legion hopes to collect the stones at the park in the weeks leading up to Veterans Day, Nov. 11, and is shooting for a Memorial Day, 1992, unveiling. The post got town board permission to put the marker in the park at a meeting earlier this summer.

Three town board members, Craig Shufelt, John Sgarlata, and Supervisor Ierb Reilly, were on hand with Burgoon and Martin last week.

Burgoon said stones should be indigenous to New Scotland and between two-and-one-half and five pounds, but Shufelt joked that enthusiastic children might be inclined to go beyond five pounds. "Wait until you see the ones my kids will bring," he said, spreading his arms wide and straining under imaginary weight.

Burgoon said donations toward the memorial should be sent to the legion and marked VET. Martin said excess funds would be used to mark graves in the New Scotland cemeteries. "In other words, we don't want to make a buck on it," he said.

Shufelt said he feels the marker will be a positive addition to the park. "We can't do enough for the services, for what they put on the line," he said. "There's no way to pay them back."

Environmental impact at issue on Onesquethaw development

By Mike Larabee

The New Scotland Planning Board last week deferred action on a key question in its review of a 16-lot Onesquethaw Valley subdivision proposal:

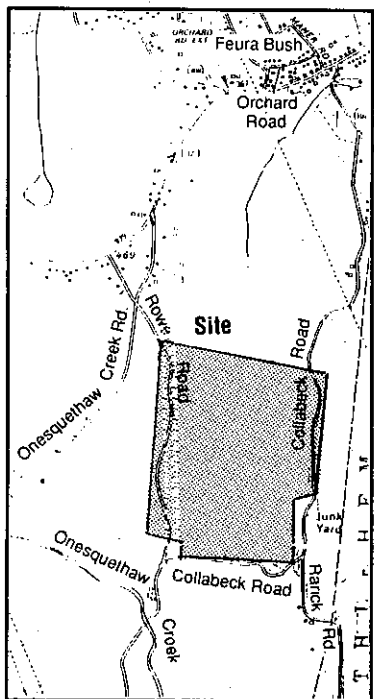

Does the proposal merit a formal environmental impact study?

Paul Hite, local representative for developer Kim Keil, conceded after the meeting that a "yes" may cancel the project or at least put it on hold for a period of time. He said delays and costs associated with the study would present serious obstacles to the development of Keil's 180-acre Rowe and Collabeck road property.

"You're talking months of delay," Hite said. "I don't want to say this factually, but I would anticipate that if my client were ordered to go to a full EIS that he'd probably drop the project."

"At this point he'd have to regroup and see what else could be done," he said. "Maybe he wouldn't drop it, but he'd put it on hold until he could make that determination."

Under State Environmental Quality Review (SEQR) law, review agencies must decide whether the potential impact of a particular project appears large enough to warrant an environmental study.

A negative declaration would mean the planning board does not believe the Keil project requires further examination, while a positive declaration would force the developer to move through the impact study process.

Members of the board deliberated the issue for about two hours during an early August meeting, and in the end decided they didn't have enough information to act. While Hite said the potential impact of the subdivision has been exaggerated, residents argued building on the property could affect nearby well water, accelerate the deterioration of local roads, displace bald eagles reportedly sited there and would damage the rural and historic character of the valley.

The subdivision would be made up of lots ranging from five to 52 acres.

Rick Dryden, president of the Onesquethaw Preservation and Conservation Association, said he is concerned the board is moving toward ruling the subdivision won't adversely affect the character of surrounding property.

"The opinions that I've heard at the meeting suggest to me that they are trying to as much as possible find a way for a negative declaration quickly and efficiently," he said.

'I'm beginning to think now that they (planning board members) are tired of this and they want to get it out of their hair.'

Rick Dryden

"I'm beginning to think now that they're tired of this and they want to get it out of their hair, that they don't want to upset Keil and Hite any more than they already have."

"I can tell you that those of us who live in this area aren't ready to give up the fight," he said.

Dryden said if the board makes a negative declaration, it should be connected to provisions designed to safeguard the integrity of Onesquethaw's historic district.

Man caught dumping at Metz landfill

By Susan Wheeler

Bethlehem police recently arrested a 26-year-old South Bethlehem man on misdemeanor charges of criminal trespassing after he admitted dumping a car battery, auto parts and household garbage at a privately-owned South Bethlehem construction and demolition landfill, according to Bethlehem Police Sgt. Joseph Sleurs.

Scott Derry, of Willowbrook Avenue, was arrested Aug. 20 after Officer Bruce Oliver confronted him with information regarding the dumping at the Spawn Hollow Road landfill, owned by Glenmont resident Harlen W. Metz Jr., Sleurs said.

The existing landfill is currently being capped with clay under Department of Environmental Conservation-outlined regulations. The unused portion of the landfill is expected to be filled by Dec. 31, or no later than April 20, 1992, when Metz's permit expires, depending on the weather and availability of debris. The town proposes the entire site be properly closed by June 1, 1992.

According to Sleurs, Metz called police to report the incident, which occurred Aug. 19. He said Metz found a car battery, auto parts and approximately nine bags of household garbage deposited Aug. 19 at the site. After investigation, Metz found Derry's name on several envelopes in the garbage, he said.

Derry admitted to dumping the garbage and items at the C&D landfill after Oliver's questioning, Sleurs said. He removed all the debris and was scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court Sept. 3, he said.

Town responds to Owens fire

By Susan Wheeler

More than 60 firefighters from three local departments worked nearly five hours Friday night to a cool molten glass leak at Owens-Corning Fiberglass in Delmar.

According to Delmar Fire District Chief Donald Cooke, all of Delmar's six trucks carrying 37 firefighters were called to the corporation on Feura Bush Road at approximately 9:35 p.m. When they arrived, he said there was a glass leak in the number one furnace. "Glass was running onto the supporting area, then onto the diked area below," he said.

Elsmere Fire District sent two trucks to give the Delmar company support, while and Onesquethaw Fire District responded with one truck, Cooke said. Their combined forces equaled approximately 25 firefighters, he said.

According to Cooke, the leaking molten glass spread no farther than into the catch basin underneath the furnace. The firefighters lowered the temperature of the 2,700 degree liquid glass with 13 hand lines of water, he said. "We cooled it with massive amounts of water."

This is the third time in approximately four years the Delmar fire company has been called to Owens-Corning for a molten glass leak, Cooke said.

Both Owens-Corning personnel and firefighters received minor injuries, he said. Three of the 11 injured were taken by waiting ambulance squads to Albany hospitals, he said, and treated and released the same night. Seven area ambulance squads, including Bethlehem, Onesquethaw, Ravena and Voorheesville were on the scene, he said. An ambulance squad from GE Plastics-Selkirk was also on standby at its quarters, he said.

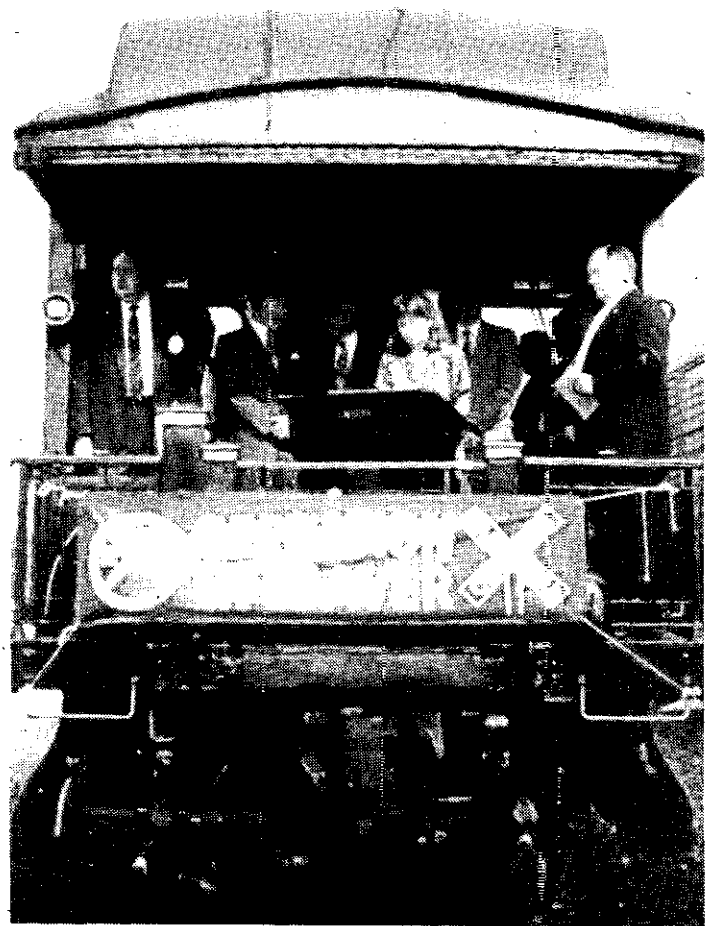

(There has been disagreement over where actual district boundaries fall relative to the subdivision site. One reason the board held off on a vote on environmental impact was so the historic district's location and legal status could be verified.)

"At least a dozen access roads will be required and those roads themselves will completely inundate the character of that site," Dryden said. "If they approve the subdivision with a negative declaration I want to see some provisions that would alter the way he has it laid out."

The board also delayed a vote in order to get a statement from the Department of Environmental Conservation on whether bald eagles or other endangered species inhabit the property and whether it would be legal to require the developer to provide bond monies in case construction vehicles damage town roads.

Planning Board Chairman Raymond MacKay also said he would ask county health officials whether the property is suitable for septic systems.

All aboard

On Tuesday, Aug. 27, local politicians and Conrail officials boarded a special train to promote railway safety. The train, dubbed "Operation Lifesaver Safety Express," started its journey at Conrail's Selkirk yards and made a first stop in Voorheesville en route to further stops in western New York.

Youth service matches employees, employers

Youth Employment Service (YES) is a free community service helping youths ages 14 to 21 find work and Bethlehem residents and businesses find reliable workers.

Residents needing assistance with housework, yardwork, babysitting, animal care or handyman work can call YES at 439-0503 for assistance. Businesses can also benefit from the service to obtain restaurant workers, delivery people, sales people, cashiers, stock workers and office workers.

Youths who are looking for part-time work can register with YES, which is located at the Parks and Recreation Department office at the town's Elm Avenue Park. The office is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

Library to display weavers' guild works

The Bethlehem Public Library at 451 Delaware Ave., Delmar, is hosting a new art exhibit produced by the Hudson-Mohawk Weavers' Guild through Sept. 27.

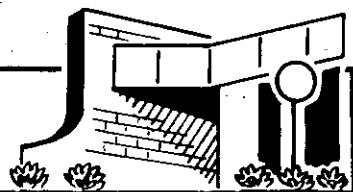

There will be an opening reception on Sept. 8 from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

The exhibit is entitled "Hanging by a Thread" and consists of a collection of handcrafted fiber wall hangings.

All are welcome and pieces will be on sale. For information, contact the guild at 452-5429.

Kids and parents will soon be migrating to the library for fall children's events. Preschoolers are invited to sign up for our "Feathered Friends" program to sing, build a nest together, create a craft out of feathers, and take a flight of fancy into the story world of birds. Ages 3 to 5 are welcome to join the flock on Sunday, Sept. 15 at 2 p.m. Please RSVP.

Parents and teachers are invited to explore alternative forms of schooling at "Options in Learning" on Monday evening, Sept. 16, at 7 p.m.

Representatives from the Alliance for Parental Involvement in Education (ALLPIE) Katherine Houk, Gail Bering-Porter and Seth Rockmuller will conduct a panel discussion on home schooling, Waldorf, and Montessori schools.

Waldorf Schools present a unique art oriented curriculum. The schools are informal and aim to develop a child's spirit as well as his intellect and body.

Well known in the U.S. since the 1960s, Maria Montessori's educational method is based on the belief that children develop best when allowed to learn at their own pace in a well-structured atmosphere. There will be an opportunity to examine ALLPIE and library materials. Please register.

Long ago and far away begins many of our favorite stories. From evil stepmothers to fairy godmothers, the legacy of fairy tales has sparked our imaginations. Children in kindergarten through grade 2 can celebrate the lore of trolls and princesses through storytelling and creative activities on Thursday, Sept. 19, after school at 4 p.m. RSVP by calling the Children's Room and for this "once upon a time" children are invited to come dressed as their favorite fairy tale character.

When signing up for Children's Room programs, note that program announcements may call for either registration or a simple RSVP. Registration is requested when it is essential to know how many will participate in a program. Programs calling for registration are not open to non-registrants. If you must cancel, please call to free a space for another child on our waiting list. RSVP is the other designation and is a request for response if you are fairly sure you will attend. This gives us an idea of interest and how to prepare. RSVP programs are open to drop-ins.

Wanted: BC grads for new hall of fame

By Susan Graves

Three local community leaders are working together to get a project off the ground and onto the walls of Bethlehem Central High School.

Principal Jon Hunter, Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce chief Marty Cornelius and Dave Paepke, head of the newly formed BC Alumni Association, are trying to spur interest in a Hall of Fame for the high school.

"We're looking for graduates who have done something for society," Cornelius said. Cornelius, Hunter and Paepke are trying to drum up support for the Hall of Fame in the community and from local business people. "Jon approached the board of directors of the chamber to help publicize the Hall of Fame," Cornelius said, "and the chamber liked the idea."

Paepke said he thinks donation of materials and services could keep project costs at a minimum. "I think it could be done relatively reasonably with donated labor," he said. "It would be a great thing for the alumni association to sponsor the Hall of Fame — if we only had the funds," he added. Hunter said developing the area in the school would cost about $3,000 and that the first fund-raiser would be a reception for alumni on homecoming day.

The area, planned for a corner of the foyer near the student entrance, "is a pleasant area where students pass through and could sit and read or talk to friends," Hunter said. Plaques with the names of the Hall of Famers would be hung on the walls.

He said the faculty is behind the idea to honor graduates, and has already started "naming names" for possible honorees. For Hunter, the Hall of Famers names on plaques would serve as immediate recognizable role models for the students. "Kids need quality role models," he said. And Cornelius added, "They're right here," products of a BC education. She said all graduates from last June and earlier are eligible for nominations.

Hunter said the Hall of Fame committee will accept nominations from the community. "It's an open community type of thing." Alumni, faculty, students, PTA, business people and community members are expected to nominate candidates.

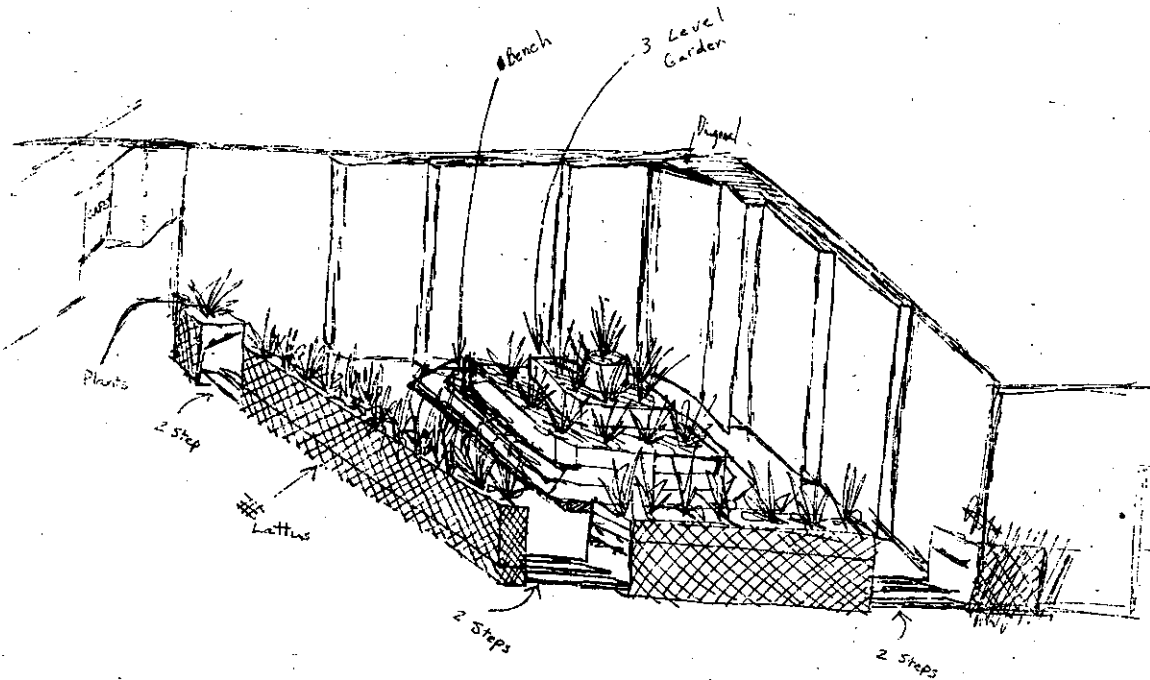

He said he expects four or five selections will be made the first year. When students return in the fall, "What better way is there than to meet a real live graduate" who has been inducted to the Hall of Fame.

Students in Andy Massino's art classes at BC have submitted designs for the Hall of Fame area. "A lot of the students know they get a good education here, but they're not cognizant of how far it goes and how much it can mean," Hunter said. "There are many artists, lawyers, doctors — right in our own community that our kids probably are not aware of," as being BC graduates, he said.

Bethlehem Alumni Association President Dave Paepke, BC Principal Jon Hunter and Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce President Marty Cornelius take a look at the area in the high school that is being considered for a BC hall of fame. Art students have submitted design plans for the area located just inside the student entrance. Designs, including the one shown on left are under consideration. The hall of fame committee is hoping to raise about $3,000 for the project. The first major fund-raiser will be held on homecoming day.

THINK EXPERIENCE

No more splinters, please

It's difficult to follow the presumed logic of the "We the People" political party that County Legislator Robert G. Prentiss says is being launched with himself as its nominee for reelection in a Colonie district.

In contemplating his action, we tend to take three exceptions:

First, additional splinter parties are a negative rather than a useful, desirable element in the local political scene. Strengthening of both the two major parties in order to be able to consistently present plausible candidates, to demonstrate effective ability to govern, and to withstand undue persuasion from minor parties' special goals — these are proper aims of the Democratic and Republican parties. So we must dissent from Mr. Prentiss's strategy (and that of any of his colleagues who may be inclined to jump in with him) on this score.

Further, the questions that Mr. Prentiss came forward with in announcing his faction are irrelevant in the extreme in relation to the business of the Albany County Legislature. He demands to know how his fellow-citizens "feel about DWI laws, seat belts, capital punishment, and abortion."

None of these is pertinent to the County Legislature's business, and bringing them up in such a context not only is meaningless but reckless. One of the last things we need is for a local legislative body to become sidetracked and overwhelmed by issues and non-

Prudence and pensions

A dispute between one area school district's board and some of its retiring teachers indirectly points up an overhanging question as to the public-policy wisdom of piling unscheduled benefits onto governmental employees just to get them out of the way.

Teachers, supervisors, machine operators, deputy commissioners — you name it, all were employed at an anticipated and accepted rate of compensation, with retirement terms accordingly described.

But some public bodies, most notably the State of New York, optimistically spent years hiring more people than conditions justified. Inferior projections of income from taxes (or "grants," essentially the same thing) and a lack of adequate hedges on rising expenditures have placed a variety of governmental units (including school districts) in a hole.

Solution: reduce the outgo by cutting the

Her name led all the rest

To say that Vivienne Anderson will be missed in the larger Albany community is a monumental understatement. For four decades before her death last weekend, she was a person of irreplaceable involvement in virtually every phase of activity that would elevate the human spirit. That she will be missed is an unhappy certainty; but if she had not brought her talents and zest to public life, the existence of almost everyone would have been poorer and drearier.

Dr. Anderson's long career in the formal aspects of education was brilliant. But it was in causes growing out of the educational and cultural experience that she most effectively brought her wide-ranging interest and abilities.

Many people came into contact with her or benefitted from her creative leadership through the arts, and it is on this portion of her professional service that some memorial tributes seem to focus. Actually, her participation was far broader. For the past several years, it was a rare civic organization that did not call on Vivienne Anderson to directly help in creating a successful event, or at the issues that are swamping governmental bodies at other levels.

Irrelevant, too, are the other questions raised on behalf of "We the People":

"Shouldn't you have a vote? Aren't you intelligent enough to be allowed to make a choice? Shouldn't the people decide for themselves what they want?" In response, he forecasts that his group will "take control of the government away from the politicians and give it back to the people."

Our third exception, then, is an inference that can be drawn from these words: that we ought to abolish the legislative bodies we choose to make tough, right decisions — as is true with all representative government — and instead encourage the mob to seize control. We can assume that Mr. Prentiss (and his cohorts, if any) do not have this in mind, but the imprecision of this opening shot by "We the People" is unsettling.

That is especially true inasmuch as Mr. Prentiss, while undertaking a new party, is the chosen head of his own party's members in the Legislature. There, it seems, is where he should focus his attention, or expect to be answerable to his colleagues as to how he views the Legislature's role, the minority party's, and his own responsibility.

staffing. Method: Not by dismissing the last hired, but by lopping off the oldest in service. Means: Sweetening — sometimes by very substantial amounts — the pension that they'll take with them. (They're leaving at an earlier age, with more money, thus creating a situation whereby the total paid out of pension funds inevitably be greater than scheduled through life-expectancy projections.

It may be that these "golden parachutes" are an answer to present budget crunches, but prudent hiring policies in the first instance surely would provide a more desirable long-term answer.

We also raise a question as to the suitability of removing experienced teachers (or other staff) rather than acting on an understanding reached with newly hired employees that their positions cannot be protected under all conceivable circumstances.

very least lending her enormous prestige to the roster of benefactors supporting the cause. There, due to the fortuitous conspiracy of the alphabet, her name almost invariably stood at the head of the list.

All these activities prospered not just one at a time, but in profusion at all seasons. How she managed to divide her time and energies in order to contribute so significantly to the varied endeavors has long been a mystery even to friends.

Even the multitude of public-spirited movements that she either created, directed, or aided eventually paled beside the statewide "Imagination Celebration" that she organized, coordinated, promoted, and gave meaning.

At one of the warm public acknowledgments of her tireless and zestful work, a popular song that she had written many years earlier was harmonized and joyously parodied. It was a happy occasion and it symbolized the extent of her gifts, not the least of which was her own personality. Yes, Vivienne Anderson indeed will be missed by her community.

Fire, ambulance crews win resident's gratitude

Editor, The Spotlight:

I have been waiting to write this letter for a long time.

There was a bad accident by my house last month in which two young boys were killed. The firemen from the Selkirk district responded quickly with various personnel from other groups.

I for one thank God I live in the Town of Bethlehem, where such a dedicated group of men strives to keep us safe, and come quickly when called.

We have an excellent volunteer ambulance crew that responds to all emergencies. This includes the whole tri-village area.

Thanks also go to the men who are now associate members, for they too were very active in the fire companies. We also have many wonderful women and men on our ambulance.

I am sure everyone has come in contact with a fireman or ambulance crew member, or knows of someone who did. My husband, who is now deceased, was also a fireman for many years and a past officer. He dearly loved being a fireman.

When our men left the accident scene later, they went to a mutual aid fire in Coeymans Hollow. In the past few years, I have seen many such incidents.

Tailgaters hazardous, attitudes need review

Editor, The Spotlight:

I was pleased to read the letter you published in your Aug. 28 edition from Fred Barnes on the subject of the dangers of tailgating drivers.

In recent conversations with friends on this subject, I have been surprised to realize the general feeling of annoyance and apprehension about this particular form of selfish behavior.

In Mr. Barnes's letter, however, he mentions that he's speaking of a driver who follows him just 30 feet back. Brother, that's a long distance compared with what some driver do! Many of them come up within three feet of my rear bumper and hang on. I am not a slowpoke driver, but I tend to be watchful of rules of the road, including speed limits and yellow lines.

Their bullying techniques speak very poorly for them as individuals, and they pose a terrible hazard for everyone on the road. Somehow, it seems to me, after 90 years of experience with people driving these juggernauts and costing millions of lives, the authorities in charge of testing for driver skills and safety factors ought to have been able to put the finger on these individuals who clearly have severe psychological problems.

I also have been surprised at the readiness of so many people to describe the worst offender in tailgating: (1) drivers of oversized vehicles, especially those sitting higher on the road than normal passenger cars; and (2) young women, especially in the low-slung cars designed for streamlined speed.

Publish more about this matter. Maybe some of the fallout might cause a few of those thoughtless drivers to look more closely at themselves, their attitudes, and their reckless behavior.

By any name, it rhymes with June and spoon

Editor, The Spotlight:

I was interested to read your Aug. 21 editorial, cleverly titled "Shine on, Sturgeon Moon." I must say that I never had heard of that particular designation, and I assume that your source was a valid one. It seems that folklore has endowed us with a plenitude of varying versions about what each full moon should be called. Much depends on which part of the globe the traditions and the sayings originate.

Quitting while you're ahead

I have a revelation to pass along about how to spot sure winners at the Saratoga track (for next year, of course), but first I would like to establish that I'm not an arbiter of horseflesh and definitely not a betting kind of citizen. For me OTB means "only the best."

I was about to write that the last time I visited a racetrack was in 1938, but then I remembered a certain afternoon in June 1940 when the news was that Paris had fallen to the Germans. I recall thinking then what a travesty it was to be watching ponies run on such a day. Since then, my principal connection with what Damon Runyon termed The Sport of Kings and Barbers has been to read Dick Francis's annual thriller based on that sport.

Now for the revelation. It came out in what Edgar S. VanOlinda would have called a postprandial conversation with a friend. (It had nothing to do with post-time.)

He told of his successes at Saratoga on one of the last days of this past season. Before one of the races in the middle of the program, he dropped around to visit the paddock while the entries were being walked about. There he observed, from not too distant a range, what he describes as a handsome and well-dressed young woman who also was watching their slow circuit. She pointed at one steed and exclaimed something like, "What a beautiful horse!"

My friend reflected that she must be the possessor of some sort of divine disclosure if not of a more material tip, so he took himself away from the pretty little scene and visited a window where he uttered the horse's number. It was a longshot, but he put down all his available change. Needless to say, the horse came in, and he collected a fine little bundle.

Before the next race was called, he retreated once more to the paddock, hopefully searching for the tipster. Alas, she was missing. But there, in the fringe of the knot of eager inspectors stood an equally handsome young woman. After a bit, she excitedly pointed to the few good qualities of a horse that we'll call Number 6.

Seizing his opportunities where he might find them, Friend took his leave from the paddock in time to find a place in line at a window that seemed to intimate special dispensation for longshots, for that is what Number 6 was.

We now call upon Paul Harvey for "the rest of the story": In a brilliant stretch run, Number 6 emerged as the winner by a whisker more than a nose. Our friend thereupon picked up several more large notes in return for his fistful of tickets. He was indeed doing well with his no-fail system, he thought as he hurried back to the paddock.

But this time, no handsome young ladies. Only the usual flock of old-timers bearing all the scars of countless jousts in these wars against probability.

My friend, who is no dummy, correctly interpreted this writing on the wall. He summoned his party, escorted them far from the oval, and splurged his winnings on dinner for them all at The Elms.

There must be a moral in such a story, and I've decided it is to be found in the words that make up the heading on this column.

Next year, however, please to remember the secret of my friend's winning system.

A chock-full, keenly edited magazine

I am greatly obliged to a friend down at The Spotlight offices for introducing me to a really different magazine—one that's new to me even though it has a 20-year history and, the publishers say, a million readers. When I dropped by for my weekly visit to turn in a recent "Constant Reader" column, my friend handed me a copy of "Country Woman." My eyes were opened, and I immediately resolved to pass along word of this lucky strike.

First off, I assess "Country Woman" as a periodical that is exactly what it purports to be and that fills very efficiently a demand that obviously needed such attention. For its specific audience, it must be a gem, but because it does its job so well, it is also a rewarding pleasure to leaf through regardless of one's interests. This occurs to me—the publisher's statement on page 3 characteristically employs straightforward grammar to lay down the rules: "Country Woman is happy to consider manuscripts and photos for publication but shall not be responsible for loss or damage." And, "Material in this publication may not be reproduced in any form without permission..." Throughout, it seems to me, Country Woman typically takes direct aim on its goals, states these clearly, and performs without equivocation. Its intended audience is officially described as "farm and country women and those who have moved from the country in body, but not in heart."

I do like a product that delivers what it advertises it will. "Country Woman" is for country women. Its 68 pages are filled with contributions from, and features about, women in such places as Markesan, Wisconsin; Wilsall, Montana; Nisku, Alberta; Boerne, Texas; Montezuma, Iowa; Crane Valley, Saskatchewan; Calhoun, Louisiana; Heber Springs, Arkansas; Sabetha, Kansas; and Frenchville, Pennsylvania. (That's only a sampling.) Best of all, the magazine is edited and published in Greendale, Wisconsin (53129). That town is another I've never heard of.

Constant Reader

The staff is entirely female—all 10 members shown in the masthead. The editor is Ann Kaiser, a jolly-looking, downhome type whom you can meet on the back cover and inside front cover in direct, first-person subscription appeals. (The issue is labeled as a "Collector's Edition," and seems to be a gathering of material from previous issues of the bi-monthly publication.)

Ms. Kaiser takes on a monthly chore that I particularly admire in comparison with most editors' actual involvement with their readership.

For the past 15 years, she has gone to work on 200 farms, ranches, and rural businesses "getting my fingernails and boots dirty... working beside women who've taken me on as temporary help so I could then write a detailed 'diary' of my experience for our next issue." (This time she's been on a ranch outside Ridgway, Colorado.)

Such dedication is striking, and probably is nicely indicative of the degree to which this magazine and its staff identify with the readership.

Country Woman

As you might expect, "Country Woman" is a trifle heavy on food and recipes, with 15 of the pages devoted to anything from "Mom's Golden Chicken Soup" to planting by the light (or dark) of the moon (in Weyanoke, Louisiana).

There's a recipe competition every issue; this month's winner (also from Louisiana) was "in the barn fixing a tractor" when she was called to hear that her Mexican Lasagna had won.

But the issue also goes into quilting and other crafts, with shorter features on decorating, antiques, travel, hairdos, views from the kitchen window, a visit to one reader's kitchen and a cup of coffee—and log houses and other structures put up by a woman. Everything centers around the traditional family; one of the best is "Grandma's Brag Page" (snapshots) and kids' smart sayings (From the Mouths of Little Sprouts). One article's titled "Her Farm Family's Filled with Kids!" (from Tyler Mountain, West Virginia). There's a regular light-hearted feature called "Why Farm Wives Age Fast." The testimony this time is from a would-be avocado grower in Lailua-Kona, Hawaii.

Altogether, I counted nearly five-dozen features of greater or lesser length; most are colorfully illustrated. (The photo credits are almost all to men.)

I used to know a magazine publisher who loved the word "chock-full" and always described his magazines that way. "Country Woman" is chock-full of on-target contents (unsullied by even a single line of advertising). For its spot in the marketplace, it's a lovely product.

The "Collector's Edition" bears a cover price of $3.95. The regular bimonthly issues have a stated subscription rate of $16.98 for a year's six copies, but one of those "subscription savings" inserts quotes $9.98. A bargain at either price.

Journeying in Lenderland: here's help from Alice

The writer of this Point of View article is vice president of the Mortgage Group, located in Albany. She published an article similar to this one in the August 1991 issue of the magazine, "Real Estate Today," the official publication of the National Association of Realtors. She also contributed an article for this column on May 1, on "shopping for a mortgage."

By Arlene Barbagelata

You finally found the right house and think you're going to be a homeowner. The termite test was negative and the structural and water tests were positive. You applied for a mortgage and anticipated moving day...

Point of View

But alas, the application was denied. Somewhere along the way you should have been introduced to ALICE P.

"Who," you ask, "is ALICE P.?" This is an acronym that will prompt you to prepare for providing good answers to a series of questions. This "Alice" has more obstacles to overcome than the Alice of Wonderland fame, who went through the looking glass and met the March Hare, the White Knight, and the Queen of Hearts.

The goal of this Alice is: No surprises. The White Knight didn't mind continually tumbling off his horse, but as a mortgage applicant you prefer a smooth ride. And by recalling ALICE P., you'll help yourself ride effortlessly through loan processing.

But using ALICE P. is like putting together a puzzle. Without all the pieces, you can't finish it. So let's look at each piece: Assets, Liabilities, Income, Credit, Employment, Property.

Assets

The first piece is assets. Most lenders want assurance that a buyer has sufficient cash available to close:

1. How much are you willing to invest in a home?

The key word here is willing. You need enough, but you have to want to use it.

2. What is the source of funds for the down payment and closing costs, and when will the money be available?

If funds are borrowed, they may or may not be acceptable. Lenders probably won't accept cash advances from a credit card or an overdraft from a checking account.

If there's a chance that funds anticipated for closing won't be available until after closing, consider alternative sources. For example, proceeds from sale of a home that isn't sold are obviously not yet available, so you may require bridge financing. Scout out sources of temporary financing before applying for the mortgage, not after.

3. How much of the cash available, if any, is a gift?

Lenders of conventional loans require that at least 50 percent of cash used for the down payment and closing costs be the applicant's own money. The lender must verify all gift funds.

Liabilities

Lenders also want to be sure borrowers' obligations don't exceed acceptable ratios for both housing and total debts. So the second piece of the puzzle is liabilities:

1. What are your recurring monthly obligations, including revolving charges and installment loans?

Lenders will go by monthly payments stipulated on the credit report or 5 percent of the reported balance. Borrowers often pay more than is required, so it's important to understand the lender's method of calculations. If any debts were satisfied recently, they may still be reported as unpaid on an out-of-date credit report.

2. How many payments remain on each installment loan?

Payments are counted as long-term debt if they continue beyond ten months for conventional loans or six months for FHA loans.

3. Have you cosigned for any loans, and if so, what's the monthly payment and how many payments remain?

Borrowers often forget that cosigned loans are their obligation. Helping a child purchase an automobile is admirable but that you are responsible for the payments if the child defaults.

4. Do you pay child support, alimony, or separate maintenance? If so, how much do you pay, and for how long will the payments continue?

5. Are you prepared to satisfy any debts before closing?

Borrowers sometimes believe they must pay all debts before they apply for a mortgage. Actually, you may indicate on the application which debts you will satisfy by closing. But you may want to wait until near closing before paying the debts. Should unforeseen circumstances stop the transaction the funds may have been spent needlessly.

Matters of Opinion

Income

Lenders are interested in how much income is available, where it's coming from, and how long it will continue. To solve the third piece of the puzzle, you will need to provide answers to these questions:

1. What is your gross income?

If you don't want to reveal your income, you can indicate the price range interested in and an approximate suitable monthly payment.

2. Do you receive income from sources other than salary? If so, what are those sources, and can you provide proof of that income?

Included would be commission, reported tips, interest, rental, pensions, trusts, alimony, etc.

3. If you're self-employed, what's your taxable income, and can you provide tax returns, financial statements, and balance sheets for the past two years?

Applications from self-employed borrowers will be flagged for special treatment by a lender.

Credit

Lenders often are more interested in buyers' credit than many buyers themselves are. A lender's concerns are: How much credit has been extended, and how timely have payments been? Get problems out in the open. Solve this piece of the puzzle by providing accurate answers to these questions:

1. Do you have a history of late payments? If so, why?

Lenders will seek reasonable explanations for delinquent payments. Inadequate explanations can mean rejection.

Underwriters understand and forgive, but they need to hear a good argument if they're to approve an applicant with a history of delinquencies.

If a lender denies an applicant's loan because of poor credit, the applicant is entitled to a copy of the credit report. In some cases, another lender might approve the loan.

2. Do you have any history of liens, judgments, bankruptcies, collection accounts, or charge-offs (losses a creditor has taken when you failed to pay off a debt)?

Many lenders won't accept customers whose backgrounds include bankruptcies. However, there are exceptions.

Is it possible to get a loan with an open judgment? Yes, if litigation is pending and insurance is in place to cover possible damages.

Employment

Lenders are interested in employment stability, so your employment record is the fifth piece of the puzzle.

1. Where are you employed, and how long have you been there?

Lenders look for a two-year history of employment, and you will have to explain all gaps. Time in college is generally acceptable. Job-hopping — if done for legitimate reasons, such as advancement — isn't a detriment, nor is changing jobs within the past two years if you have worked in the same or a similar field.

2. Are you considering a change of employment in the near future?

Applicants sometimes have plans to take other employment but fail to reveal that information unless asked.

Property

The final piece of the puzzle is the property. The lender will grant a mortgage based on the appraised value or the purchase price, whichever is lower. Before submitting a purchase offer, satisfy yourself that the property will appraise at the price offered.

1. Is the value justified?

When real estate values are appreciating or depreciating rapidly, you may get a low appraisal. This can cause havoc, particularly when you are going for a 95 percent loan. Buyers who want to purchase a house for $100,000 with a $95,000 mortgage will be disappointed if the property is appraised at $98,000. The maximum loan will then be based on 95 percent of $98,000, and the buyer will be faced with a higher down payment.

2. Does the condition of the property indicate that a lender will require repairs?

When the lender requires repairs before closing make sure the seller agrees with you on who'll pay for them.

3. Is the value in the building rather than in the land?

Lenders usually expect the building to be worth at least two-thirds the value of the property, though exceptions are allowed for unique properties or for properties in areas where land costs are very high.

The Looking Glass

If putting together this puzzle seems difficult, remember that you'll get fewer surprises from lenders if you do your homework. Ask yourself the right questions, stay upright in the saddle, and you should complete the journey in fine shape.

Supervisor nails Coffin, Van Wormer arguments

Editor, The Spotlight:

With regard to last week's letters to the editor, dealing with engineering fees owed the town by James Coffin, and claims made by Republican Chairman Van Wormer, I would like to make the following comments.

A. Regarding Coffin:

1) This is not a personal attack against candidate Coffin. It has been a long-standing town policy that subdivisions are to be reviewed by the town's engineering firm for the protection of all the townspeople, and that the costs are to be borne by the developer. This policy was supported by the vice-chairman of the Republican party at the board meeting of Aug. 7.

2) The engineering services were rendered between Jan. 29, 1989, and April 8, 1989. This review was necessary since the site involved NYS-designated wetlands, and because there were some concerns with the proposed cul-de-sac.

3) Since Aug. 3, 1989, candidate Coffin has received nine bills and two pieces of clarifying information at his request.

4) Interest began accruing with the Oct. 21, 1990 invoice. The town is neither a bank nor in the habit of giving out free money.

5) A phone conversation was held with candidate Coffin on Nov. 27, 1989, in which he assured me "the check is in the mail."

6) The unpaid bill was turned over to the town attorney March 25, 1991.

7) Candidate Coffin turned it over to his attorney April 14, 1991.

8) The planning board is made up of dedicated, capable men and women who have neither the time nor ability to do the review work of a professional engineering firm.

9) The town cannot afford to establish its own in-house, full-time engineering department.

10) If all developers who came before the planning board in the last four years exempted themselves from the town's reimbursement policy, the taxpayers would have had to pay in excess of $100,000 for these site plan reviews.

11) The Supervisor's office has tried to assist candidate Coffin's Whispering Winds subdivision in obtaining public water and cable t.v.

12) I urge Mr. Coffin, who claims to be a serious candidate for a council seat, to show support for the town's standards rather than try to undermine them.

B. Regarding Chairman Van Wormer, who has once again demonstrated his ability to shoot from the hip without checking the facts. The facts are:

1) The computer printout that Pat Thorpe was holding was a treasurer's report, not the encumbrance report which was prepared for the board's use. The encumbrance report was placed with the bills to be audited several hours before the meeting. Pat Thorpe was asked to give the monthly treasurer's report to the deputy supervisor, who was expected to arrive late. It is his duty to review this report.

2) The deputy supervisor, Peter Luczak, is not paid a salary for his services. He is a dedicated and capable volunteer. He was appointed at the Jan. 1, 1990 meeting to do the accounting work for the town, and for this he was compensated, as was his predecessor. For 1991, we have an outside firm.

3) Chairman Van Wormer, thank goodness, has not been as faithful to town meetings as he claims. He is the only person in my 16 years of town board membership who has been asked to leave a meeting because of his disruptive behavior.

Your Opinion Matters

In fact, I long have treasured a chronology of such designations as found in a book, "Country Wisdom" by Jerry Mack Johnson. These are the moons for each month, as found there. You will note that in half the cases there are alternative terms:

January	Winter Moon
February	Trapper's Moon
March	Fish Moon Fisherman's Moon
April	Easter Moon Planter's Moon
May	Mother's Moon Spring Moon
June	Stockman's Moon Mid-year Moon
July	Summer Moon
August	Dog Days Moon Woodcutter's Moon
September	Fall Moon
October	Harvest Moon
November	Hunter's Moon

December Christ's Moon
Christmas Moon

It's quite interesting that the Harvest Moon and the Hunter's Moon, for October and November, are one month later than mentioned in your editorial.

In connection with Harvest Moon, I was pleased that you reminded your readers that it was Nora Bayes who first popularized that song (somewhere between 1900 and 1910). I have had it in mind that it was introduced by Ruth Etting, but that was several years later.

I am appreciative of such down-to-earth editorials as this one. And for providing the space to hear me out—special thanks!

ANALGESIA: "LAUGHING GAS"

Some patients, for psychological reasons among others, don't take readily to the idea of an injection. What is needed is a form of anesthetic where the patient feels pretty good, where nothing could bother him, not even pain, and where he is completely relaxed.

Dentistry has an agent that can bring a patient to a high degree of relaxation and is easily administered, with almost no side effects. It's nitrous oxide, sometimes called "laughing gas." It has been used by dentists for more than a hundred years. When inhaled with a mixture of oxygen, it will lessen pain sensations and put the patient in a receptive frame of mind for dental treatment.

Nitrous oxide is not ideal for long, intricate procedures. Many dentists start treatment with nitrous oxide, and after the patient has reached a relaxed state, will augment it with a local anesthetic. When the treatment is completed, pure oxygen may be given to flush the gas out of the patient's system, and he immediately recovers to an alert state of mind.

Bethlehem nabs one in DWI sweep

By Susan Wheeler

The Labor Day Weekend was quiet for the Bethlehem Police Department, who participated in the Albany County-wide STOP-DWI Program.

The program, a blanket patrol involving the Albany County Sheriff's Department, New York State Police and municipal police departments, took place Thursday, Aug. 29, and Friday, Aug. 30 from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. each night. According to Bethlehem Police Department Sgt. Joseph Sleurs, the department beefed-up its force each night, with extra officers out on the STOP-DWI program. The department made a total of nine vehicle stops during the two nights, and one driving while intoxicated arrest. Saturday night there were three officers in three cars exclusively on the blanket sweep, he said.

According to Bethlehem, Police Department Lt. Richard Vanderbilt, this program was "a little slower" than the last sweep, held on the July 4 weekend, which netted four DWI arrests. "It's hard to say why it was slow," he said. "A lot of it depends on being in the right place at the right time. We tried to saturate every roadway in the Town of Bethlehem."

Bethlehem Police Officer William Cooke, one of the officers designated as part of the STOP-DWI program, said police must always have a purpose in stopping a vehicle. "We must have a reasonable and prudent cause for pulling over a vehicle," he said.

Cook said vehicles are pulled over that have moving violations, such as those that cross over the double yellow line, or have equipment violations, such as a missing head or taillight. Once the vehicle is stopped, the police look for clues to DWI drivers, such as the presence of an alcoholic beverage in the vehicle and check to see if the driver has red, glassy eyes and, broken or slurred speech, he said. "First and foremost we look for the odor of an alcoholic beverage," he said.

Police officers are specially trained to look for signs of drunken driving. Some, like Bethlehem Police Officer Timothy Beebe, who has been with the department nine years, have taken specific week-long training courses through the New York State Department of Criminal Justice that help identify possible DWI incidents. He said the course teaches the officers signs of drunken driving, field sobriety tests to administer to the vehicle's driver and films of DWI accidents. "Something like picking a coin off the hood of a car becomes a major challenge when the person is impaired," he said.

A saturation patrol is an enforcement and deterrent measure, Vanderbilt said. "We hope during the holiday period that people are doing their drinking at home at backyard picnics," he said, rather in drinking establishments. "Bethlehem's drinking establishments you can count on one hand."

According to Denis Foley, director of the county-wide STOP-DWI program, the saturation patrol, "an alternative to road sobriety checks," aims to stop drunken drivers on accident-prone roadways, such as Delaware Avenue. "Ironically, when we announce it (instituting the program), we have as great a success as when we don't announce it," he said. "Sometimes the arrests are higher."

In Bethlehem's case, Foley said many of the residents probably left for the weekend, causing less traffic on the roadways.

CDTA bus schedule shifted for village

The Capital District Transportation Authority (CDTA) recently announced a change in its service to Voorheesville.

CDTA's number 19 Voorheesville run will be eliminated, and two morning and two afternoon trips on the number 13 New Scotland Avenue bus will be extended into the village. This will replace the number 19 trips and will provide Voorheesville residents with improved service to and from Albany. There will be no disruption to the existing number 13 schedule.

The change has already taken effect, according to CDTA.

For information, contact Carm Basile at 482-3371 or Marisa Lyden at 482-3371.

Sale to benefit senior corporation

There will be a craft sale to benefit Bethlehem Senior Projects, Inc., on Saturday, Sept. 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 13 Brookview Ave., Delmar.

For more information, contact Mary Marinage at 439-1443.

Health services offer stress reduction course

Community Health Plan (CHP) and Delmar Health Center will offer a six-session "Stress Management" program beginning next Wednesday, Sept. 1, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Delmar Health Center.

The program is a six-week course for adults to study stress theory and learn various relaxation and stress reduction techniques. Participants will learn to understand their own reactions to stress and will learn management techniques including breathing and relaxation exercises, physical exercise, "mind traps," assertiveness, time management, guided imagery and visualizations.

The fee for the course is $27 for CHP members and $48 for non-members. Pre-registration and pre-payment are required by Sept. 6. For information, call the Health Promotion and Education Department at 783-1864, ext. 444.

Bus rates going — down

The Capital District Transportation Authority announced it has made two changes to its 18X Elm Avenue Express service.

The 18X service will circulate this area before leaving the Elm Avenue park and ride lot in the morning and after dropping customers at the lot in the afternoon. The time schedule of the 18X trips to/from the park and ride lot will not be affected. The $1.50 fare will be reduced to $1 and tickets will be available in books of 10 at a discounted price of $9.50.

CDTA Chairman Robert G. Lyman stated that, "The 18X is one of our newer services, so we are still evaluating its performance and how we can make it as efficient and convenient as possible." Lyman added, "We think that by extending the route and lowering the fare we will draw new riders to the route. Hopefully these changes will also encourage more customers to use CDTA's new park and ride lot at the corner of Elm Ave. and Route 32 in Delmar."

Detailed information about the 18X changes and updated route schedules can be obtained by contacting CDTA's Telephone Information Center at 482-8822. Information operators are on duty from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays and 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekends and holidays.

Voorheesville Public Library

By Christine Shields

Works by Delmar artist Susan Gillespie will be on display at the Voorheesville Public Library this month.

Currently pursuing a lifelong interest in drawing, watercolors and oils, Gillespie will be exhibiting her still lifes and landscapes, including many of local scenes.

An alumna of SUNY, New Paltz, Gillespie has done graduate work in Education at SUNY, Oneonta and Harvard.

In the past, she has taught quilting through the Continuing Education Program of the Bethlehem Central School District as well as lecturing on quilt making and history. In addition she has designed costumes and quilts. She is currently employed as a project manager for the New York State Governor's Office of Employee Relations.

Gillespie has previously exhibited at Hudson Valley Community College, the Bethlehem Public Library, the Colonie Art Association, and the Bethlehem Art Association. She serves as the treasurer of the Bethlehem Art Association.

A reception will be held at the library, located at 51 School, on Friday, Sept. 6, from 7 to 9 p.m. Refreshments will be served. For information, call 765-2791.

Albany college sets study workshops

The College of Saint Rose, 423 Western Avenue, Albany, is offering a series of study skills workshops this fall for adult students.

On Friday, Sept. 6, from 6 to 8 p.m., basic study skills will be taught.

Students will learn to use the library on Friday, Sept. 13, from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Techniques for writing college research papers will be discussed on Friday, Sept. 20, from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Workshop for children

The library will sponsor a Creative Writing Workshop for children ages 10 to 13 on Saturday, Sept. 14, from 1 to 5 p.m. Led by freelance writer Laura Ten Eyck, the session will give kids a chance to invent their own characters and setting and then combine them to create a short story. Ten Eyck teaches creative writing to children at the Helderberg Workshop as well as through the Writers in Rural Libraries Programs run by the Hudson Valley Writers Guild. Her work has been published in a variety of local and national publications. To sign up for the free program, contact the library at 765-2791. Enrollment is limited to 15 children.

Fall Story Hours will begin on Monday, Sept. 9, at 10:30 a.m. Story hours are also held on Tuesdays at 10 a.m., Wednesdays at 4 p.m. and Fridays at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. No registration is necessary, and there is no minimum age.

To celebrate Grandparent's Day, a special bedtime story hour will be held on Wed., Sept. 11, at 7 p.m. Bring the whole family along and don't forget grandma and grandpa!

Library hours for the fall are Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Finally, test-taking strategies will be explored on Friday, Sept. 27, from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

The college is also offering a comprehensive course in general insurance during the fall semester. The course is offered in two sections, one on Saturdays from Sept. 14 to Dec. 14, at 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and the other on Tuesdays and Thursdays from Sept. 10 to Nov. 14, 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

All the workshops are held on campus. For information, or to register, call 454-5143.

Historic mansion garners grant funds

Historic Cherry Hill mansion, South Pearl Street, Albany, recently received several monetary grants.

It received $4,000 in general operating support for 1991 from the New York State Council on the Arts and will also receive $1800 in 1992. In addition, the mansion was awarded $19,686 from the Institute of Museum Services, a federal agency, to be used during 1991-92.

Take a break, recreate

The Town of Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department's new fall mail-in registration is underway.

Program and registration information is contained in the recently-mailed Bethlehem Report. Extra copies are available at Bethlehem Town Hall and Elm Avenue Park offices.

Telephone and in-person registration for remaining openings will begin Friday, Sept. 6. Office hours are Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

For information, call 439-4131.

Local man voted to academy board

The Albany Academy Board of Trustees elected four new members to its board recently, including James Muhlfelder of Slingerlands.

He is president of J. deBeer and Sons of Albany and has held board positions with the Southern Indiana People's Alliance, Jamestown Area and Albany-Colonie chambers of commerce, Equinox and Albany Jewish Family Services. He is currently on the board of the Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association.

Muhlfelder graduated from the academy in 1966.

Church returns to fall schedule

The Delmar Reformed Church will resume its regular fall schedule on Sept. 8.

Sunday worship and Sunday school will take place at both 9 and 11 a.m. and the Sunday Sampler Adult Education and the children's program will continue from 10 a.m. to 10:50 a.m. on Sundays.

Nursery care is available all morning on Sundays.

For more information, call 439-9929.

Construction to begin on Saint Rose building

The ground breaking ceremony for the new science center at The College of Saint Rose will take place on Wednesday, Sept. 11, at 3:30 p.m. at the college campus, 990 Madison Ave.

College President Louis Vaccaro and college trustees will perform a ceremonial ground breaking for the new center, which is scheduled for completion in fall 1992. A reception will follow.

Department of Transportation.

"Doug presents very impressive credentials," Supervisor Ken Ringler commented. "I'm just so pleased that Bethlehem will be fortunate to benefit from his background and abilities."

Hasbrouck, who lived in Troy for 35 years before moving to Glenmont, said he sees his first several months on the board as a learning experience. He said he'll contribute to the board on issues on which he has some expertise. "It should be fun," he said.

Davis, a 25-year Delmar resident, said she was always aware of the planning board's importance and function in the community, but was never familiar with it firsthand until her involvement with the proposed Colonial Woodlands, an 11-acre subdivision in the center of Elsmere, began last October.

She and some neighbors approached the board with concerns about the impact the development would have on the neighborhood and on the environment, she said.

Through attending planning board sessions, even when Colonial Woodlands was not on the agenda, and researching the legalities involved in approving a subdivision, Davis, 49, said she realized first-hand that although the residents had legitimate concerns, there must be compromise.

"I had the intelligence to know you can't stop development in a town this size because the residents want it to stay the way it is," she said. "With thought and good planning, problems can certainly be eliminated."

Ringler said he was "very impressed" with how Davis looked into the legalities of the issues involved in approving a subdivision, rather than approaching the board just as a concerned neighbor. "She handled herself well," he said.

Davis, who has volunteered in the Bethlehem school district, with The Next Step, Inc. and for various fund drives, including the American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, said she has had no other board experience, but will find her time on the planning board "challenging."

She said, "I feel fully familiar with all they (the planning board) do. As a planning board member, I have a great deal to learn, and I'm looking forward to doing it."

Davis is a New York State Senate supervisor of correspondence and special projects for the majority counsel. She has previously served as an assistant to the New York State Senate Counsel's correspondence supervisor and as an English teacher at Columbia High School in East Greenbush.

Attorney challenging longtime county incumbent

By Mike Larabee

A geographic split in the 33rd Albany County Legislative District has translated into a split in the Republican Party itself this year, as a pair of candidates are set to go head to head in a Sept. 12 primary.

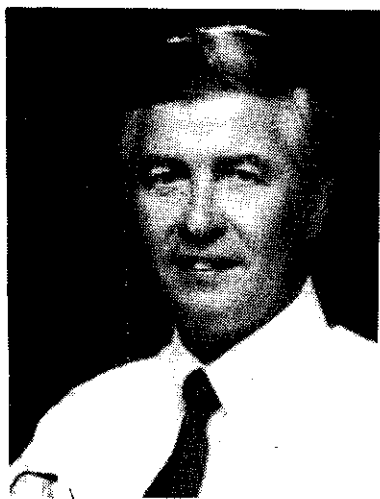

The primary pits 24-year incumbent Michael Ricci, a Voorheesville native and the choice of New Scotland Republicans, against William Young, candidate of the Guilderland GOP committee.

Young, 45, said he was approached about the seat earlier this year by Guilderland party chief Paul Laudato, who told him at the time that Ricci might not seek reelection. Young said that once Ricci made known his intention to run, local Republicans urged him to consider challenging in a primary. He said many Guilderland Republicans and some from New Scotland criticized Ricci for low visibility in the district.

"I was asked if I was still interested in running," said Young. "I thought maybe it was time for a fresh face."

"I have been here in Guilderland since 1976, I didn't know who the hell Mike Ricci was," said Young, an attorney with offices on Route 20 and a Weatherfield resident.

Ricci says he waited to announce his candidacy until after redistricting was resolved with Albany County Executive James Coyne's veto of this year's legislative proposal. He said he's "upset" by the Guilderland committee decision to endorse Young and that he wasn't invited to the committee's candidate caucus.

William Young

"I feel that myself and the Republicans in New Scotland were treated very shabbily," Ricci said. "He (Laudato) knew I wanted to run."

Efforts to reach Laudato were unsuccessful.

While Young suggested Ricci might be getting "complacent" in his approach to the seat, Ricci said experience with the Democrat-dominated legislature has taught him he can get more done by quietly going about his job.

"I find that I get more accomplished my way by doing exactly what my opponent accuses me of by being complacent," Ricci said. He said he finds the best approach is to meet with Democratic leadership and "reason with them" toward compromise, rather than make public issues out of partisan disputes.

"I could go to the floor and make a lot of noise but it will only get voted down," said Ricci. "You've got to understand the nature of the beast you're dealing with."

The 33rd district contains New Scotland town election districts 4, 5, 6 and 7, and Guilderland town districts 24, 25 and 26. According to 1990-91 county Board of Election tallies, there are 1208 enrolled Republicans in New Scotland and 885 in Guilderland.

Young, a partner in the firm Wein, Fenton, Young & Soronen, said much of his personal practice has been dedicated to lobbying on issue affecting fire districts, an interest he wants to carry with him into office. "Probably the most significant thing I've done in my career is to successfully lobby for the passage of the service awards bill," which lets volunteer firemen accrue benefits when approved by voters within their particular district.

Young said he's concerned about state cuts in fire training programs and would like to see Albany County take a leading role in providing instruction.

Michael Ricci

In addition, he said he wants the county to be more active in its oversight of the Knickerbocker Arena and that he thinks the Albany County Airport desperately needs upgrade work.

Ricci, 64, was born in the Main Street, Voorheesville house that he still lives in today. Now "quasi-retired" as he terms it, (he works part-time for Price Chopper at 20 Mall) he was a merchant at the former Ricci's Market in Voorheesville for 40 years.

"I'm very proud of Voorheesville," Ricci said. "I think it's a nice place to live. Regardless of politics, everyone is like friend and family. I walk down the street and just about every other car waves."

"My roots are pretty deep," he said.

Ricci said he is a "fiscal conservative" and favors a complete re-examination of county budget expenditures. He favors legislative reforms designed to give the public more access to county government, including referendums on projects like the civic center.

Ricci is a 40-year member of both the Voorheesville Fire Department and the American Legion.

Young is a member and past president of the Guilderland Kiwanis and serves on the town's Industrial Development Agency.

Young said he feels it will be an "uphill battle" to beat Ricci. "He's got name recognition," he said. "It's hard to beat a 24-year incumbent."

A look at the issues — No. 1 in a series

Quality of life:

Residents talk about the quality of life in New Scotland with increasing frequency. Our town rests near an urban center, yet we have so far resisted being gobbled up by endless miles of concrete, offices, and strip malls at every intersection.

On the other side of the coin, the services we enjoy are becoming increasingly more expensive because there are no new people or new businesses to share these rising costs. The price of maintaining life exactly as it is now will be ever-increasing taxes. The cost of town government will rise, just as our school taxes have.

The extent to which services are decreased to contain costs will have an immediate and significant effect on our lives and the desirability of New Scotland as an acceptable place to live. Decreased services and a changed perception about the town's willingness to pay for these necessities will also have an impact on the value of our property.

There are no easy or magic solutions to this dilemma. Quality of life is a topic that needs extensive and focused debate during this election.

I suggest that there is a compromise between life as we know it and an acceptable level of growth and development.

District, and Robert Conti, 36th District. Gerard Maney, incumbent county Family Court judge, also attended the meeting.

Clyne said the candidates reflect a "good cross-section of the town." McGarry, he said, is a "strong candidate for supervisor," and a "straight shooter, an honest guy."

According to Clyne, "We have committees for everything in this town, but no direction for which way we're going. Bill will put an end to that."

McGarry, a volunteer firefighter with the Slingerlands Fire Department for approximately six years, said he doesn't have much political background, but stressed the importance of talking with Bethlehem neighbors to receive their input on campaign issues. McGarry works for the county in refrigeration and air-conditioning.

Clyne said the issues McGarry and the other candidates will raise during the campaign include finding a solution to the solid waste disposal dilemma, traffic flow on Delaware Avenue, bringing one or two competitive supermarkets into the town and restructuring the town's revaluation project.

"We'd like to see as many new supermarkets, within reason, as we can," Clyne said. "Ideally we'd like to see one built in the western part of town, to help relieve the Delaware Avenue congestion."

According to McGarry, the candidates' strength is in canvassing the neighborhoods, during which they will be open to people's suggestions on the issues and other items of concern. "We'll see what the people want," he said.

Slingerlands resident Dorfman, a former Albany County assistant district attorney who is with the Albany law firm Bohl, Clayton, Komar and Della Rocca, has been practicing law for 21 years, according to Clyne.

"We're lucky to have a person of this caliber" running for town judge on the Democratic ticket, he said.

Banagan and Cornell, both of Delmar, are challenging GOP board members Frederick Webster and Sheila Fuller. While Webster is a full-term incumbent, Fuller has served on the board only since June, when she was selected by the Republican majority to replace Democrat Robert Burns who resigned. Burns was the only elected Democrat to fill a town board seat in the 20th century.

Banagan, a McGuffey Lane resident, is a former Albany County assistant district attorney who has had a private practice in Albany since early this year.

Cornell, who grew up in the town, said he never thought he would have the opportunity to run for a seat on the town board. Serving as a town Democratic committeeman for three years, he said, has given him valuable political experience. "We're going to run a good, positive, grass-roots campaign," said the Dover Drive resident.

Clyne said Mogul, who lives on Beaver Dam Road, Selkirk, is head time keeper and payroll clerk at Meehan Oversees Terminal of Albany and Roger's Terminal. He will work on the revaluation issue if elected to ensure that "all people in the town are assessed equally."

Mogul said no one's property taxes should be increased more than 10 percent, and that those on a fixed income should receive a fixed exemption.

Mogul said he has had much experience during his nearly 21 years with the terminal corporation, formerly the International Terminal Operator Co. "Dealing with finances is not uncommon to me," he said. In addition to his work-related responsibilities, he has been the secretary/treasurer of his union, ILA Local 1518, Port of Albany, for 17 years.

Clyne said Skulteti, commander of the Veteran of Foreign Wars Post in Delmar, would work hard if elected as superintendent of highways.

He said the party is fortunate to have Derry, a Bridge Street, South Bethlehem, resident, as candidate for town clerk. Derry is coordinator for the Albany-based Comprehensive Crime Victims Assistance program, and has been a trained emergency medical technician with the Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance service since 1982.

Griffin, a Gardener Terrace, Delmar, resident, is a retired Army major and an engineer with the New York State Dormitory Authority.

Rooney, of Merrifield Place, Delmar, is a sales manager with the State Department of Correctional Services Division of Industries.

Conti, of Elm Estates, Selkirk, a chief petty officer with the Navy and a Vietnam veteran who served during Operation Desert Storm, is a marketing support specialist with IBM in Albany. He is the twice-elected commander of the Blanchard Post, American Legion.

Nolan said this is a "watershed year for the Democratic party in Albany County," but the "real race" is for the county executive seat. Democratic County Executive candidate Bob Lyman said the Democrats "have this campaign on a positive note."

Business school plans seminar

The Office of Executive Development Programs of the School of Business, SUNY at Albany, will present a two-day seminar on "How to Use the Malcolm Baldrige Award Criteria for Quality Assessment and Quality Planning" on Sept. 12-13, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

By attending this seminar, participants will learn how to create and sustain a quality improvement environment by using Baldrige Award criteria to assess their company's "Total Quality Management Approach." Topics to be covered include: leadership, information and analysis, planning for quality, human resource utilization, quality assurance of products and services, quality results and customer satisfaction.

Town board holds hearing on rezoning application

By Susan Wheeler

Hunter's Ridge, a proposed 65-lot subdivision on undeveloped land between McCormack Road and Hudson Avenue, was again the topic of a proposed zone change during a public hearing at last week's Bethlehem Town Board meeting.

The proposal, which would amend the town's zoning ordinance and map, calls for zoning

McCormack Road's 65 acres, currently zoned as Residential A, to Residential AA; zoning 86 Planned Residence District (PRD) acres to Residential AA, and zoning 35 acres on the northerly margin of Hudson Avenue from PRD to Residential AAA, according to Town Planner Jeff Lipnicky.

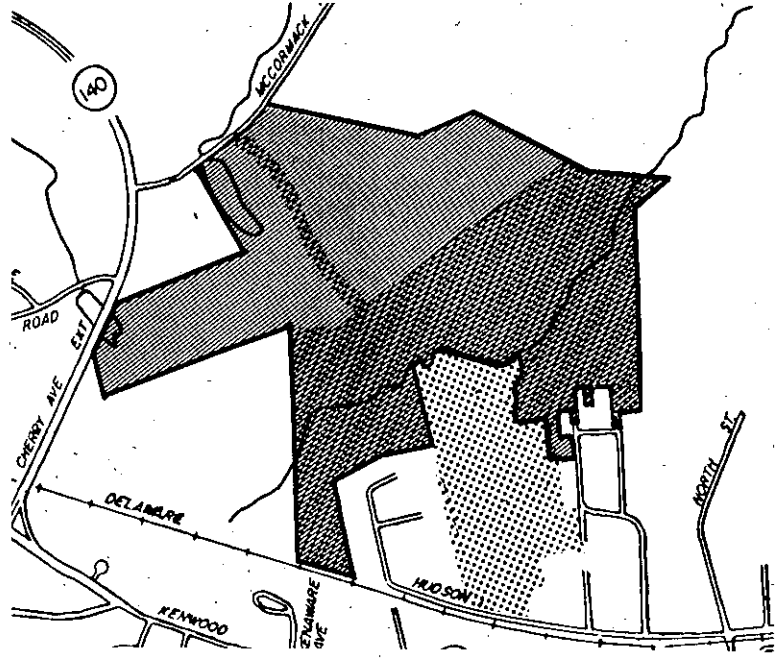

If the approximately 121-acre parcel, owned by Greenshade Consortium, Inc., does not receive final plat approval by the Bethlehem Planning Board within two years, the entire parcel would be deemed Residential AAA, or if construction has not begun within three years from the effective date of the local ordinance, then the land will be zoned AAA — whichever occurs first, the planner said.

Town Attorney Bernard Kaplowitz said the two-year limit placed on the land is a "reasonable time" for the planning board's approval. He said if the land is marked off under the more stringent AAA requirements, it will be the first land in the town so classified.

The property owners in May sought board approval of a plan to rezone part of the area from a Planned Residence District (PRD) to Residence A. The parcel is currently zoned under both PRD and Residence A standards. The PRD zone, which allows for higher density building, does not permit building within 50 feet of its boundaries, which would interfere with the group's former plan to build the subdivision. The board tabled the matter after considering marking it off under the more stringent AA or AAA requirements.

Greenshade's representative Nancy Alexander of C.T. Male Associates, P.C. of Latham said in July that up to 24 lots would have difficulty meeting AAA requirements. She asked the board to zone the entire parcel under AA standards. According to Lipnicky, the land meets density requirements for AA standards, however, lot width keeps certain lots from meeting AAA standards.

A 35-acre section of the PRD, the site of a proposed 130 townhouse/condominium project called Hudson Glen, is owned by another developer. The planning board, which reviewed Greenshade's request at its Dec. 18 and March 19 meetings, has recommended changing the entire district, including the portion not owned by Greenshade, from PRD to one of the residential zones. The owners of the 35-acre parcel are opposed to the zone change.

Property owner Rose Watkins wrote in a letter read by Supervisor Ken Ringler at last week's hearing that the 35 acres are "physically separated" from the larger PRD. "I am at a loss as to why these 35 acres are being treated differentially and perhaps, in a discriminating way," she wrote. She requested that the board not include the parcel in its rezoning action "at this time" and to continue to review alternative zoning and development plans.

North Street Extension resident Gerald Pittz, a neighbor to the proposed Hunter's Ridge, said he thinks the proposed subdivision is a "good idea." He said it will bring needed taxable property into town.

Marie Privler, a North Street Extension resident, said she thinks the subdivision will be "a beautiful addition which can only add value to the town."

New principal takes reins at RCS high

By Regina Bulman

When familiar friends and faces reunite for the first day of school today, there will be a new face in the crowd — Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School Principal Andrew DeFeo.

Selected by a special district search committee to replace Victor Carrk, who retired recently, DeFeo's first day at RCS also marks his first day ever as a principal.

Formerly the assistant principal at Guilderland High School, DeFeo technically began working at RCS high on Sept. 1, but actually spent a few weeks at the school last month preparing for his new position.

DeFeo said he's spent most of his time getting acclimated to the district and participating in teacher interviews and hirings. He was to officially meet senior high teaching staff yesterday.

"I'm very proud to be here," said DeFeo. "I've heard it said that Ravena is a very well kept secret and I'm starting to see that. It really is a community that cares about its kids."

Originally from Westchester County, DeFeo earned his Master's Degree from Harvard University and began his career teaching in Monticello, New York. He moved into South Colonie to teach Earth Science, general science and computer science before his most recent position as assistant principal at Guilderland.

DeFeo says his move from assistant principal to principal means he's now more responsible for internal and external school communication.

Andrew DeFeo

"One of the major roles of the high school principal is to bridge the gap between the ideas and goals of the administration and the teachers," said DeFeo. "I think you need to be a careful, clear communicator because most times the goals are similar, but they may get lost in lack of communication."

As far as specific goals for RCS, DeFeo says he would like to continue what he termed the district's "pro-active community relations."

"I would like to continue to bring in local businesses and parents and let them have a role and voice in the district," said DeFeo. "I don't see any reason why RCS cannot be the central part and focus of the community."

One similarity DeFeo says he already sees between RCS and other Capital District schools is that they are being asked to do more with less.

"I can see that another challenge will be meeting the needs of the students, parents and staff with the resources we have available," he said.

DeFeo and his wife Karen live in Albany with two young daughters, Kristen and Andrea.

Button club to meet

The Half Moon Button Club of the Capital District will meet at the Bethlehem Public Library in Delmar at 451 Delaware Ave., at noon on Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Special story hour at library

The Voorheesville Public Library will have a special bedtime story hour on Wednesday, Sept. 11, at 7 p.m. to help honor Grandparents Day, which is Sunday, Sept. 8. This will be a treat for the whole family.

The library's fall story hours begin Monday, Sept. 9, at 10:30 a.m. and also will be held Tuesdays at 10 a.m., Wednesdays at 4 p.m. and Fridays at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Author makes video

Dennis Sullivan, author of "Voorheesville, New York: A Nineteenth Century Railroad Town," has produced a 40-minute video of his book. The video depicts the history of Voorheesville and is available at Voorheesville Public Library.

Credit union offers bankruptcy advice

The New York State Credit Union is warning the public against the growing trend toward bankruptcy claims.

In 1984 there were only 284,500 petitions for bankruptcy nationally, but that number grew to 685,400 in 1990.

The union warns bankruptcy will not make many debts disappear, such as taxes and student loans and any large debt acquired soon before declaring bankruptcy. Additionally, the union advises that while declaring bankruptcy may

OF OUR INSURED.

Worry? Not them.

And why should you when you can protect your life savings with Long Term Care insurance?

Regrettably, many people do have to worry about the cost of long term care. Two in five older adults will require nursing home care¹ and costs average about $30,000 per year.² This can be a catastrophic expense draining you of the assets and savings you've worked so hard to build.

It doesn't have to be this way.

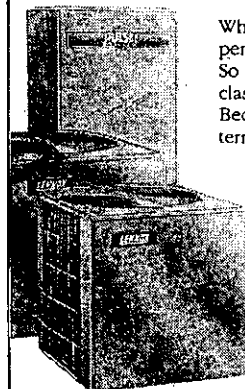

Worry-free coverage is available. To get more information on the long term care options available to you, call or write today.

BC girls 'competitive' on the courts

With a 10-2 1990 season, the Bethlehem Central High School girls varsity tennis team has already proved that it can withstand its Section II opponents. But this year, the girls have a new challenge with the loss of undefeated class of 1991 graduates Kristen Jones and Valerie Maeder.

This year's team is substantially younger. Just six of last year's 12 regular starters are returning. The team will include players from 1990's junior varsity team, adding a new style to Bethlehem's racquet-toting girls. Coach Grace Franze labeled the team "competitive" in describing its performances at daily practice.

If this season's team performance can match last year's, it is a good indication of what is to come. The new players will eventually become the backbone of future teams, giving BC the ability to continue its winning pattern.

Returning seniors include Tory McKenna, Nikki Reidy and Karen Yaffee. Juniors are Sara Novick, Maggie Plattner and Penny Silk.

The team's first match will be at Niskayuna Thursday, Sept. 12. The girls' first home match will be played Monday, Sept. 16, at the high school tennis courts.

Coeymans church holds auction, barbeque

The 36th annual "Lord's Acre Auction, Fair, and Chicken Barbecue" will be held at Trinity United Methodist Church, Route 143, Coeymans Hollow, on Saturday, Sept. 14.

The fair will begin at 10 a.m., the auction at 1:30 p.m. and the barbecue at 4:30 p.m. Festivities will conclude at 7 p.m.

An old-fashioned country auction and a silent auction will be featured. The barbecue menu includes chicken, baked potato, corn, tomatoes, cucumbers, rolls, beverages and ice cream.

Fees are $6.50 for adults and $3.75 for children under 12.

For information, call the church at 756-2812.

Josh Zalen

BC junior cycles across country

For most people, driving or even flying cross country is tiring enough. But Elsmere resident Josh Zalen took the extra step. He traveled from coast to coast on a bicycle.

After spending some time searching through catalogs for biking expedition camps for cyclists, it was a Seattle, Washington to Portsmouth, N.H. trek that finally caught Zalen's eye. The 15-year-old Bethlehem Central High School student set out June 30 with 10 others, all ranging in age from 15 to 17 years old, on a 58-day tour.

The bicyclists started out by taking a ferry to an island just north of Seattle. From there they proceeded across the island and took another ferry back to the mainland and continued the ride. Zalen and the other bicyclists were allowed a total of 11 rest days. "Every tenth day we stayed in a motel," said Zalen.

Zalen's journey took him through ten states, namely, Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, New York, Vermont and New Hampshire.

"It was enjoyable," said Zalen, who returned to Elsmere Aug. 21. "I got to see much of the country."

RCS Indians ready for grid-iron season

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Indians have started yet another football season in the Colonial Council. The Indians are led by senior tri-captains Pat Rafferty, Mike Hale and John Orsino. They will play a nine-game minimum schedule with more possible games.

Along with the captains there will be approximately 30 other team members. There is a race for the quarterback job between senior Joe Salin and sophomore Chris Romano. "The race is very tight; both kids have worked very hard," Head Coach Gary Van Derzee said.

Playing on the line will be seniors Chuck Seagul, Mike Reilly, Jim Whickham, Rob Moore, Chris Ricciardi, Keith Hotaling, John Orsino and Chris Denham. Seniors in the backfield are Bryan Sutton, Dave Leonard, Pete Gambino, Mike Hale, Pat Rafferty, Chad Rooney and Joe Salin. Underclassmen on the team include John Volker, Dave Baranska, Don Keeler, Steve Youmans, Jason Demarest, Dan Gallagher, Chris Noeth, Arc Losee, Elton Tune, Mike Jordan, Lenny Watford, Eric Powell, Aaron Dinardi, Chris Romano, Brian Filkins and Chris Stanton.

The Indians open their season with a scrimmage tomorrow (Thursday) against South Glens Falls. Ravena also has a five-way scrimmage at the high school at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 7.

Basketball club sets fall registration

The Bethlehem Basketball Club (BBC) will hold registration for 10 to 13-year-old youths at Bethlehem Town Hall Wednesday, Sept. 11, from 7 to 10 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 14, from 9 to 11 a.m. Club membership for the 1991-92 season is open to all residents of Bethlehem and students of the Bethlehem Central School District.

New players should bring a non-returnable copy of their birth certificate at the time of registration. The registration fee is $50 ($75 for a family with more than one child enrolled). Registration is on a first come-first served basis and is limited to 48 youths in each age division (10, 11, 12 and 13). For information call 439-7284 or 439-5320.

Wins math honors

Deborah Cousins, daughter of Velma M. Cousins and the late Dr. O.B. Cousins of Glenmont, was recently named the First Mellon Undergraduate Fellow in mathematics at Bryn Mawr College in Penn.

She is a 1990 graduate of Albany Academy for Girls in Albany.

BC parents found Soccer Booster Club

Bethlehem Central High School has a new Booster Club.

What started in late spring as a group of parents interested in giving support to the school's soccer teams became a reality during the summer. With less state aid to school districts, parents felt it was time to help out. Each year there is less money for the teams to update their equipment and each year more students participate in sports.

The Soccer Booster Club is unique in that it is a representation of the girls and boys varsity, junior varsity and freshmen/modified teams. The purpose of the club, according to its motto, is "to assist all girls and boys scholastic soccer teams by providing support in several forms, including financial".

Some of the club's objectives are to work with the district's administration, especially the director of athletics, and to work cooperatively with the Athletic Association and booster clubs of other scholastic teams on joint projects.

The club officers are Neil Brown, president; Bonnie Scott, secretary; Denise Gisotti, treasurer; Marge Kanuk, publicity. The next Booster Club meeting is Wednesday, Sept. 11, at 7:30 p.m. at Bethlehem Public Library.

V'ville, Westerlo share church softball title

Area church softball teams Voorheesville and Westerlo tied at 8-8 during game three of the playoffs. The two teams, the 1991 B division co-champions, decided to share the crown.

Meeting scheduled for Bethlehem athletes

On Thursday, Sept. 5, at 7:30 p.m., Bethlehem Central Schools will hold its fall "Meet the Coaches" night in the high school auditorium.

The guest speaker will be Ed Perka, a professional addictions clinician at Al-Care in Albany.

After his talk, the coaches will meet with their respective teams to cover rules, regulations and school policies. All fall student athletes are required to attend. Parents are also invited.

behind us," Day said. Companies from Rensselaer, Schoharie and Greene counties will also march.

The carnival will begin about 3 p.m. WQBK will broadcast live from 3 to 7 p.m., and carnival activities will last until 11 p.m.

Music on Saturday will be by the Get-gos. Block dancing both nights will be on Nathaniel Boulevard.

Visitors can park in both Bethlehem municipal lots and at the First United Methodist Church on 428 Kenwood Ave. and the Delmar Reformed Church on 386 Delaware Ave.

Delmar Fire Department President Edward Wroblewski and Chief Donald Cooke are convention co-chairmen.

Forty-one companies and 33 auxiliaries belong to the association, whose purpose in part is to try to improve fire service overall throughout the county. Day said one thing the association was responsible for was implementing the fire radio system for the rural hilltowns. "Everybody cooperates," he said.

Day said the association also lobbies for legislation to improve service.

Alzheimer's program established in area

The Capital District Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association is making the Helmsley Alzheimer's Wanderer's Alert Program available to families of Alzheimer's patients in the Capital District.

The program is designed to assist in locating lost people who are memory impaired and reuniting them with their families and care-givers.

Memory impaired persons who are registered with the program will receive a bracelet with the Wanderer's logo, an identification number, and a 24-hour toll free telephone number. The person's name and the words "memory impaired" will also be inscribed on the back. Each participant's identification number, description and other pertinent information is stored in the central registry's information bank.

Applications and more information are available from the Capital District Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, 85 Watervliet Avenue, Albany, 438-2217.

College to display student's photos

Marc Demoly of Delmar was recently honored by the Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) for photography.

Demoly's collection of photographs, entitled "Anise," will be shown at RIT's School of Photographic Arts and Sciences Honors Show.

He is a second-year professional photographic illustration major and a graduate of Lycee de Beauvais in France.

Delmar students win church scholarship

Rev. Warren Winterhoff of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church presented three area young people with the David Nestlen Memorial Scholarship at a worship service at the church recently.

Jason Fireovid, Lance Hansen and Adam Roberts, all Delmar residents, were co-recipients of the scholarship, which is presented annually by the church.

The Nestlen award is given to one or more college-bound graduating high school seniors. First consideration is given to those who are pursuing a serving profession, such as ministry teaching or nursing.

Extension to publish recycling newsletter

The Cornell Cooperative Extension of Albany County is offering a free new quarterly newsletter to provide recycling and other environmental tips to consumers.

The newsletter is funded by the City of Albany and the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

The title of the newsletter is "Recycling Answers," and is targeted at the ANSWERS communities, which include Bethlehem, Coeymans and New Scotland.

To receive a copy, call Cornell Cooperative Extension at 765-3500.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Clawar

Stankovich, Clawar wed

Kathleen Susan Stankovich, daughter of Anthony and Marguerite Stankovich of Glenmont, and Craig Stewart Clawar, son of Harry and Sybil Clawar of New York City, were married on June 22.

The bride is a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and the State University of New York at Albany. She is a financial analyst at Metropolitan Property and Casualty Insurance Company in Albany.

The groom is a graduate of Clarkstown South High School in New York City, and undergraduate and graduate programs at the State University of New York at Albany. He is a computer systems analyst, working as an independent consultant.

The wedding was conducted by father James Belogi and Rabbi Alvin Roth at the Bavarian Chalet in Guilderland. A reception at the Bavarian Chalet followed the wedding.

The bride was given in marriage by Anthony Stankovich.

Suzanne Syrett was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Jaclyn Grant, Randi Clawar and Kathleen Chylinski. Tiffany Stankovich and Brittany Stankovich were flower girls.

Thomas Hogarty was best man. Ushers were Michael Stankovich, Brian Stankovich and Patrick Mohan.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple resides in Guilderland.

Best man was Andrew M. Gordon. Ushers were Alan Karben, Dr. Keith Brecher, Dr. David Klahr, Dr. Paul Kowalski and Dr. Anthony Szema.

The couple resides in Guilderland.

Correction

Due to a paste-up error, the names of several attendants in the wedding of Cathryn Piccolino and Mark Abbey were inadvertently omitted from last week's announcement of their marriage.

Missing were bridesmaid Clare Moore, best man David Sevey and ushers Steven Piccolino and Timothy McCawley. Also omitted was a listing of the Abbey's honeymoon location and place of residence; after a wedding trip to St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands, the couple resides in Selkirk.

Obituaries

Charles J. Torre

Charles J. Torre, 47, of Delmar, an East Greenbush native, died Friday, Aug. 30, in Albany as the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident on I-787.

He was a graduate of Columbia High School and a communicant of Church of St. Thomas the Apostle.

Mr. Torre was employed by DeJulio Construction Co. of Albany at the time of his death. He had previously worked as a laborer for the Laborers Union Local 190 in Albany for 30 years.

He was a former member of the New York State Army National Guard for six years.

Survivors include his wife, Sandra M. Johnson Torre; three daughters, Gina Marie Torre, Carla Nicole Torre and Danielle Torre, all of Delmar; his mother, Sara Sidoti Torre of East Greenbush; a sister, Mrs. Ann Harrington of East Greenbush; and a brother, Anthony F. Torre of Niverville.

Services were held from the Rockefeller Funeral Home, Rensselaer and in St. John's-St. Ann's Church, Albany. Burial was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, East Greenbush.

Anna M. Weeks

Anna M. Weeks, 83, of the Good Samaritan Nursing Home in Delmar, died Tuesday, Aug. 27, at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany.

Born in Berlin, Germany, she lived in Middleport, Niagara County, and Owego, Tioga County, for several years. She was a long-time resident of Newark Valley, Tioga County and had lived in the nursing home for the past year.

Mrs. Weeks was a graduate of Middleport Teachers Training Class in Niagara County and taught in Middleport School system many years ago. Later, she worked for the Newark Valley National Bank.

She was a member of the Gem Rebekah Lodge and a member of Chapter B of the PEO Sisterhood.

She was a member of the United Methodist Church, Newark Valley.

Mrs. Weeks was the widow of James Weeks.

Survivors include a daughter, Carol Ann Green of Delmar; two grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Services were from the MacPherson Funeral Home, Newark Valley.

Burial was in Hope Cemetery.

Contributions may be made to the United Methodist Church.

High school students win RPI honor

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute has announced the names of high school students who have been awarded the Rensselaer Medal for outstanding achievement in mathematics and science during their junior year in high school. Local students receiving the award are Joyce Aycock of Glenmont, a student at Bethlehem Central High School; and Kathryn Ramsey of Voorheesville, a student at Clayton A. Bouton High School.

Renew passport to beat rate hike

By Kathleen Shapiro

If you're planning on getting a passport, do it before November 1.

That's the advice Albany County Clerk Thomas Clingan has been giving prospective applicants since last month, when the federal government announced proposed plans to raise the passport application fee for adults from $42 to $65 this fall.

The increased costs will apply to first-time applicants, as well as those who want to renew an expiring passport. Application fees for minors will also be raised from $20 to $30 under the government's proposal. Once issued, passports are valid for up to 10 years.

The U.S. Department of State is expected to approve the increases within the next few weeks, said Ted Gong, a management analyst with the department's Bureau of Consular Affairs, which handles processing of all passport applications.

The additional charges will be used to cover the rising cost of producing the documents, as well as paying for quality improvement measures such as the use of more durable paper and more sophisticated printing methods to prevent alteration of the documents, he said.

"The new fees may seem a little steep at first, but people will be getting better quality for their money," said Gong.

Officials are hoping to alert the public to the increases early in order to avoid the long lines that resulted just prior to the last passport fee increase in 1983, he said.

Local applicants seem to be taking news of the increase in stride, said Michael Yurschak, at clerk at the U.S. Postal Service's passport office in Albany.

"There have been a couple of people coming in who weren't too pleased, but it hasn't been too bad," he said. "When you break it down, $6.50 a year isn't that much."

Local passport officials say they have so far seen little increase in the number of applicants since the new fee increases were announced. "It shouldn't be a big problem for us here, since we don't do a high volume (of passport business)," Clingan explained. "I don't think we'll have the long lines here that they might have in some of the offices in New York City."

United States citizens are required to have a passport for travel to most foreign countries. Passports are not required for entry into Canada and Mexico, although they are a recommended form of identification.

Applications may be made at any county clerk's office or at the main post offices in Albany, Colton, Schenectady and Troy. Applicants should bring proof of citizenship, such as a prior passport, a birth certificate or a certificate of citizenship issued by the U.S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization; two identical 2 inch by 2 inch passport photos; a photo identification card with the applicant's signature, such as a driver's license, or a military or student identification card; and the proper fee.

Owens-Corning Fiberglas supports public television for a better community
Owens-Corning is Fiberglas

By Erin Elizabeth Sullivan

A unique Moorish mansion, exquisite landscape, including a heart-shaped lake and the beauty of the Catskill Mountains. These are just a few of the sights visitors to the Olana Estate on the Hudson River will see as they tour the fantasy mansion of Frederic Edwin Church and take a guided walk through the Catskill Mountains in the footsteps of the Hudson River artist.

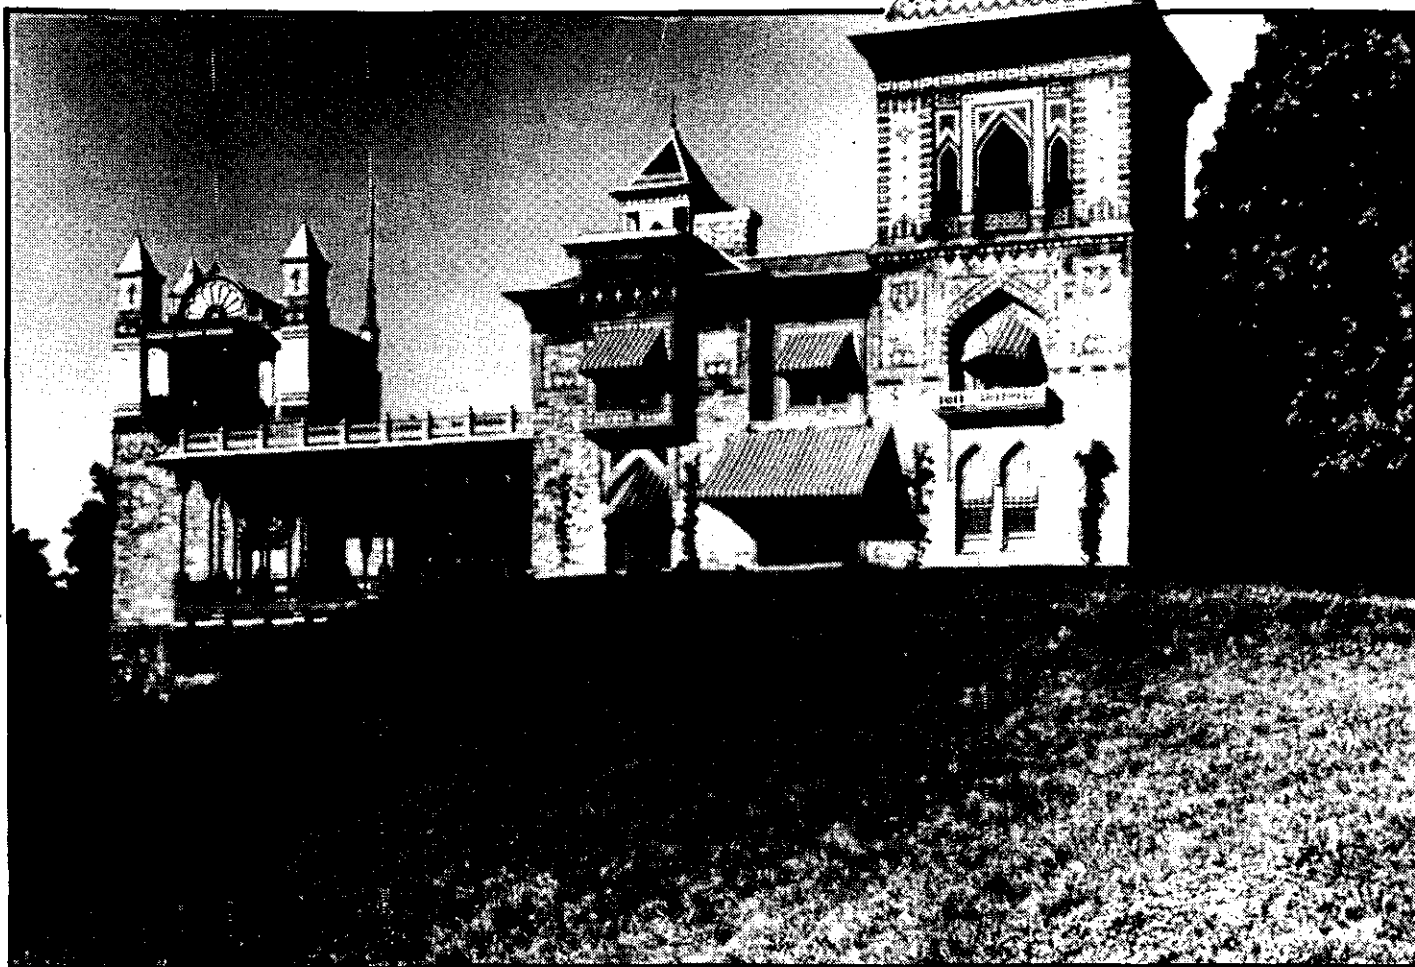

This is all part of a special day tour on Sunday, Sept. 22, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Participants will depart from the New York State Museum at 9 a.m. for Olana where a film will be shown on the life and works of Church and a tour of the Route 9G mansion will be given. A Catskill hike with naturalist Barry Hopkins will follow a bring-your-own picnic lunch on the Olana grounds.

Church was born in 1826. As a teenager, he came to the Hudson Valley region to study with artist Thomas Cole (founder of the Hudson River School of Painting.) From 1844 to 1886 Church lived with Cole. It was during Church's stay with Cole that he first saw the site for his future house.

Unlike many artists, Church was an accomplished painter in his own time. Unusually successful, he practiced an original form of transcendental painting. Church would travel around the world and paint huge landscapes of places that many people were not able to visit because of the cost. He then exhibited the works for an admission price. It was at one of these exhibits, "Heart of the Andes," in 1859, that Church met his wife, Isabel Carnes. They married in 1860. Together, they bought the existing 126-acre farm now part of the Olana Estate.

Calvert Vaux, the architect who designed Central Park, assisted Church in planning the mansion. (The original sketches are on display in the house.) Construction began in July of 1870 and after the house was detailed to Church's satisfaction, which included the addition of a heart-shaped lake and several trees and luxurious gardens, construction was declared complete in 1891. Church had been living in the house during part of the construction.

According to Virginia Cairns-Callan, immediate past president of the Friends

Artist Frederic Edwin Church's hilltop mansion in the Catskill Mountains was completed in 1891.

MOUNTAIN RETREAT

Painter's Catskill Mountain mansion makes for exotic day trip of Olana, Inc., since the completion of the house, "the Church mansion has only been occupied by members of the family. The estate has never changed hands."

The mansion has never been modernized or remodeled. After the death of Church in 1900, Sally Good Church, wife of Church's youngest son, Louis, contributed to the survival of the house's original interior. "This is unusual," said Cairns-Callan. "When a house is inherited by young people, for many their first instinct is to modernize the house."

For the two nephews of Sally Church, estate heirs in 1964, their first instinct was to sell the house and auction off its contents, including some intriguing collections. "Church was a squirrel," Cairns-Callan said. "He saved everything that came into the house. That resulted in many family collections." At the time, the appraised value of the house and land was $470,000 — about the price of a Church painting today.

However, realizing the historic value of Olana, an organization was quickly put together to save the property and the house. Olana Preservation Inc., headed by art historian David Huntington, raised funds to preserve the property with the help of the New York State legislature. In 1967, the preservation policy was passed by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The preservation of Olana has increased the value of Church paintings. Large exhibitions, such as that at the Smithsonian Institution's National Gallery of Art in Washington D.C., have been held specifically for Church's work.

The organization, the Friends of Olana Inc., continually raises money to "keep the property on hold," said Cairns-Callan. On Saturday, Sept. 7, Olana will celebrate its 100th anniversary. In addition, the 25th anniversary of the saving of the property by Olana Preservation, Inc. and the 20th anniversary of Friends of Olana Inc. will be celebrated.

An anniversary dinner/dance ball will take place at the Olana State Historic Site,

Mystery and magic mark Mac-Haydn cabaret

By Erin Elizabeth Sullivan

Audiences of the Mac-Haydn Theatre in Chatham will see company performers strut their stuff through the dancing and singing of the theater's second Daylite Cabaret on Saturday, Sept. 7, at 1 p.m.

The production has been given a new theme this year. The "Magical Mystery Cabaret" will feature performers and the master of ceremonies hidden behind masks. Unknown mystery guests, including an unidentified soprano singer, will highlight the event.

The actors and actresses in the cabaret are members of the Mac-Haydn Summer Stock Theatre, which is in its 23rd season. The company consists of about 25 young professionals who were discovered at conference auditions in cities from Washington D.C. and New York to Chatham. "Those participating in the cabaret have volunteered for the fund-raiser," said Peduzzi.

The theater's season runs from late May until September. Musicals, such as "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat," are the core of its performance schedule.

"The cabaret is a way for audiences to see the regular summer performers doing, in their own minds, what they do best," said Barbara Peduzzi, head of theater publicity. "The actors can cut loose and still show their talents." Those talents range from arias to tap dancing to show songs and comedy.

General admission tickets will be $20 per person and children under 12 will receive discounts. For reservations or information, call 392-9292.

While the house was not full, last year's attendance was "encouraging," said Peduzzi. "We are all looking forward to the cabaret," she added.

"Everyone enjoyed the performance so much last year, that we anticipate a great show."

SPOTLIGHT TEENSCENE

By Juliette Braun

It's easy to think of yourself as the type of person who's life really doesn't go through many changes. You have classes, friends, family and maybe work to worry about, but nothing really ever is altered drastically. But the truth is that you're going through changes.

Luckily, most of those will be gradual. You change mentally, through your thought patterns and value system. You change emotionally, growing apart from your family and developing independence. Lastly, you change physically from childhood to adulthood.

Do you want to earn extra spending money or are you planning ahead and saving for college? If so, the Town of Bethlehem offers a service which can help. It is called the Youth Employment Service (YES) and it is free to Bethlehem youths between the ages of 14 and 21. YES helps match area businesses and employers with young people looking for part-time work. Jobs available include babysitting, animal care, handyman work, restaurant work, deliveries, sales, cashier work, stock work and office work.

Register now! YES is located at the Parks and Recreation Department office at Elm Avenue Park. This office is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

Become a girl scout. Girl scouting has taught many participants valuable life and social skills, including how to cooperate and take on responsibility and of course how to have fun. A registration for the Voorheesville Neighborhood Girl Scouts will take place at the Voorheesville Public Library, South Main Street in the village on Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. For information, call 765-2451.

Attention Bethlehem Athletes! Bethlehem Central Schools will host its fall "Meet the Coaches" athletic night on Sept. 5 at 7:30 p.m. There will be a guest speaker and coaches will meet with their respective teams to cover rules, regulations and school policies. If you are a fall student athlete, you are required to attend.

If hockey is your game you will want to register to play for the Troy Youth Hockey Association at Frer Park in Troy on Sept. 6 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Sept. 7 from 10 a.m. to noon. Registration will also be held at the Albany Academy on Sept. 13 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Sept. 14 from 10 a.m. to noon. If you need equipment but don't want to pay new equipment prices, a used equipment sale will be held by the association for all registered players. For information, call 371-3786.

By Martin P. Kelly

Gilbert and Sullivan '40s movie makers In Theatre Barn's Pinafore production

Director Paul F. Hewitt returns for a third year to give his own twist to Gilbert and Sullivan at the Theatre Barn in New Lebanon. He previously updated Pirates of Penzance and The Mikado, the latter with 1960 Japanese yuppies.

He's moved the Victorian operetta, HMS Pinafore, to the mid-1940s as a movie musical about an American submarine. The British tars in this salty satire are now American gobs dealing with romantic class consciousness.

Martin P. Kelly

Hewitt finds additional fun in his concept, thanks to Wayne Barker's musical arrangements. Buttercup (Leslie Blumenthal) sings a South American beat as Carmen Miranda. The arrangements affect most the solo numbers while the chorus songs stay true to the Englishmen's metre. Changes in dialogue by Hewitt update the operetta and add to the satire.

Where the whimsical approach falters is in the character of Josephine, the captain's daughter smitten with a lowly sailor. Diane Mimno is a charming performer but she must sing her songs (Sorry Her Lot and The Hours That Creep Apace) as torch songs. The realistic touch which the high flying farce that's going on around her. These songs are highly romanticized to spoof young love. Here, that's not clear and the production falters.

The humor is done in broad strokes in both choreography and stage movement. Where the English approach is understated here comedy is burlesqued.

Despite its lapses, the production is full of fun if you don't take your Gilbert and Sullivan too seriously. The earthquake you feel is Gilbert and Sullivan revolving rapidly in their biers.

It continues through Sept. 8. For further info, call 794-8989.

Hearts of Fire readied for revival at Proctor's Theater for 8 performances

Maria Riccio Bryce's Hearts of Fire, a musical tribute to the courage of 17th century Schenectady pioneers, opens Sept. 17 for eight performances at Proctor's Theater.

A revival of last September's premiere, this musical involves 60 actors reliving the massacre which occurred in 1690 in the area now known as The Stockade.

The composer is also directing the production and has made several revisions. She was encouraged by Broadway producers at last year's production.

Alan Bryce, producing the show for his wife, says that these producers urged reduction of the cast size to less than 30 to reduce costs. "She resisted these suggestions for this show," Bryce says, "but, in the future (she's considering a show for next year) smaller casts will be a priority.

Meanwhile, 48 of the original cast of 60 have returned with the notable exception of Sophie Kozak, Riccio's sister who sang the pivotal role of Anna Van de Bogart. This year, Jean Foster will perform as Anna. John Allen returns in the leading male role, Jan Spoor.

Performances run Sept. 17 through Sept. 22 with matinees on Saturday and Sunday. For more info, call 382-1083.

Heritage Artists grappling with season and staffing

Despite lack of funds for staff, Heritage Artists at the Cohoes Music Hall continues to plan for a new season. Artistic director David Holdgrive is the sole staffer.

Government grants have been cut in half and won't be available until mid-September. At that time, the staff is expected to be hired to plan for the season.

Subscriptions have been coming in, according to board chairman William Grattan, "even though we haven't announced a season," he says.

The five-production season may include eight weeks of Little Shop of Horrors from mid-November through the holidays. Expected to follow is Lady Day, a show about singer Billie Holiday; Oh! Coward, a revue with Noel Coward's music; Groucho, A Life In Revue, a three-character retrospective of Groucho Marx's life; and finally, a book show, perhaps Annie Get Your Gun. The official announcement of the season is expected within the next two weeks.

Mansion

An anniversary dinner/dance ball will take place at the Olana State Historic Site, on Saturday, Sept. 7, at 6:30 p.m. Tickets will be $75 per person and those interested may send checks to the Friends of Olana, Olana Historical Site, RD 2, Hudson, N.Y. 12534. Membership to the Friends of Olana, Inc., is $20 per person and $35 per family.

Throughout the year, the Friends of Olana have a number of free events. One is their annual August Victorian picnic. On Oct. 5, the Friends of Olana will bring actor Daniel Region to the site to present a Frederic Church monologue. "He has been given access to the Church diaries and correspondence with friends, and he will be costumed to look like Frederic Church," Cairns-Callan said.

The Sept. 22 Olana trip is part of a series of Country Seats tours from Sept. 19 to 22. The tours will give patrons a chance to visit private and public houses along the Hudson River and hike in the Catskill Mountains. These tours are with the New York State Museum and fees are $36 per person, $30 for museum members. Pre-registration is required by Sept. 13. Call 474-5801 for information.

On Oct. 18, at 7 p.m., a lecture about Olana will be given at the Olana Historic Site by Dr. Gerald Carr, a prominent Church scholar and author of a catalog of Church's works.

On December 14 and 15, there will be an open house at the property, which will be decorated as it was for holidays in the 18th century. This event will be free and open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For information on how to visit to Frederic Church's mansion, call 474-5801.

Children's Museum hosts new exhibits

Five new exhibits at The Children's Museum at Saratoga include trains, mirrors, magnets and mysterious scents transforming the back room of the museum into a unique learning center featuring imaginative roll-playing, scientific experiments and creative writing.

In addition to the five new exhibits, the Children's Museum also maintains continuing exhibits — a model firetruck, firehouse, shadow room, architect's stable and city-scape. The museum, located in the Downstreet Market Place at 454 Broadway, Saratoga Springs, is open on Saturdays and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. For information call 584-5540.

Printing is an art

To the staff at Newsgraphics, printing is more than just a job — it is an art. We take great care to make sure every project we handle for our customers is given special attention. From a simple business card to a complex newsletter or brochure we take pride in our work so that you'll be happy with the end result.

We have an in-house design staff and state-of-the-art equipment to help take your ideas from rough sketch to polished finished product — and because we keep our overhead low we can do all this for a surprisingly reasonable cost.

Isn't it time you found a printer who really cared about your needs? Come to Newsgraphics of Delmar and place your printing projects — whatever they may be — in the hands of artists and craftspersons who care!

AL KAUFMAN

"IF MONEY DOESN'T GROW ON TREES, WHY DO BANKS HAVE SO MANY BRANCHES?"

Alarms, and more

Whoa—there went one! Depending on which statistics you read, in the United States a car is stolen approximately every 22 seconds. By the time you finish this article, another five or six of the 1,432,916 cars that get snatched this year will be heading for the border or a "chop shop" to be stripped down and sold in parts.

No laughing matter, we agree.

You realize, of course, that if a thief really wants your vehicle, he or she will steal it—security system or not. But you can up your odds tremendously by taking certain precautions, some of which you purchase and install, others you simply keep in mind.

Four out of five stolen cars' doors aren't locked when they're taken, says the Insurance Information Institute, and one in five are recovered with the owner's keys still in them!

The I.I.I. suggests the following ways to reduce the chance of your car being ripped off:

- Always roll up windows, lock the doors and pocket the key.
- Have your vehicle identification number etched onto the windshield, flip to and sunroof.
- Sharply turn the front wheels of the car to make it difficult to tow backward. On front-wheel-drive vehicles, engage the emergency brake and set the gear in park to lock all four wheels.
- Put packages and valuables out of sight.
- Keep the license and registration in your wallet or purse.
- Park in well-lighted, highly visible areas.

The I.I.I. offers free consumer information about auto, home and business insurance; write them at 110 William St., New York, N.Y. 10038.

The technology available in car security these days is phenomenal: The more sophisticated of these systems are integrated with such convenience features as remote-controlled locking devices and climate adjusters.

The simplest is a locking device on the steering wheel, such as the much-publicized The Club. This locks on the steering wheel, rendering it undriveable; it's endorsed by police departments in a number of U.S. cities. It doesn't however, prevent your stereo from being ripped off. The cost is around $50 to $60, and it's sold at auto supply stores and major department stores.

If an alarm system is more what you had in mind, for an affordable $100 you can install the FoxGuard I, a black box with a cord you plug into the car lighter. A red light alerts thieves of its presence; when triggered through a current sensor, a motion sensor and/or a glass-break detector, it blasts two sirens and a strobe light.

Passive security systems are those that automatically switch themselves on a few moments after you leave your car; some even lock the doors for you. These are the systems favored by insurance companies, many of which will reduce your premiums by as much as 10 percent (in some states they're required by law to do so).

The range of options in this category is staggering, the least expensive of which start at around $250. Some can tell the difference between a nudge from another car and an actual break-in.

Systems that must be armed manually can sometimes get you a 5 percent rate break from your insurance company; before you go shopping, call your agent and see if there are particular brands they discount for.
