Public to get chance for master plan input

By Mel Hyman

A long-awaited opportunity for Bethlehem residents has finally arrived.

A public hearing has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, at town hall on Bethlehem's proposed master plan.

Only once before has a master plan recommendations on topics such as transportation, land use, commercial development and conservation.

Numerous public hearings were conducted over the past winter on the draft master plan document. Public hearings in Slingerlands and Glenmont were particularly well attended because of pending large-scale commercial development planned for these areas.

Delmar residents also turned out in large numbers to protest what

The current document, prepared by the town's Land Use Management Advisory Committee, is much more substantial than the previous plan and contains was thought to be a LUMAC recommendation that a bypass from Delaware Avenue over to New Scotland Road be constructed next to Groesbeck Place.

Such was not the case, but LUMAC chairman Jeff Lipnicky met separately with Groesbeck Place residents to allay their fears.

Written comments on the proposed master plan will be accepted through Nov. 28 and should be addressed to the Bethlehem Town Board, in care of Lipnicky.

The town board is not expected to take action on the master plan until early 1995. For any part of the document to carry the force of law, it would have to be incorporated into the town zoning code or

Board might scrub changes to street names

By Mel Hyman

The residents of the various Bridge Streets, Center Lanes, Grove Streets, Pine Streets, Mosher Roads, Orchard Streets and Maple Avenues can rest easy.

The Bethlehem Town Board tonight (Oct. 12) is expected to rescind an August 1994 resolution approving name changes for the aforementioned streets, which in each case appear in different parts of town under the same designation.

The name changes were originally requested by the Bethlehem Police Department to eliminate confusion when the emergency 911 system goes on line Monday, Oct. 17.

Resistance to the name changes quickly surfaced, however, particularly from the residents of Bridge Street in Slingerlands. Nearly every resident of the street signed a petition requesting that they be allowed to keep their name — both for convenience sake as well as out of respect for local history.

Longtime Bridge Street residents Harvey Westervelt and John Hutchinson made eloquent pleas

Countdown begins for 911 emergency system

By Mel Hyman

Despite some networking glitches, the emergency 911 system for Albany County is scheduled to go on line Monday, Oct. 17.

Some foul-ups were reported during the testing phase last week in Bethlehem, but police officials are confident all the bugs will be worked out by start-up time.

"This occurs every place where 911 goes in," said Bethlehem Police Lt. Frederick Holligan. "This is a major undertaking. There are going to be some problems associated with it."

Slingerlands resident Ann Rymski said she dialed 811 last week as requested, so that the system could be tested. The results were less than satisfactory.

"When I first called I got a NYNEX operator who said she was getting calls for 911, but that she was not the person handling it. Then I hung up, called back and got a 911 operator who knew nothing about the testing and was really obnoxious."

If the 911 system is full of bugs then perhaps its start-up should be postponed until November or December, Rymski said. "It seems like a colossal mess to me. It's scary because people in Bethlehem could get a NYNEX operator who could be anywhere in the state of New York and not even know where Albany or Selkirk is."

Bethlehem Police Sgt. Joseph Sleurs attributed the glitches to NYNEX and the wide variety of telephone exchanges in the town. "It's a NYNEX problem. It's not our doing. We've been having a number of problems down in Selkirk where they ran out of 767 numbers. For awhile some of our calls were going through the Albany Police Department."

The 811 testing number should never have been given out to the public, according to Tom Catino, Albany County 911 coordinator.

"It was not a number that should have been given to the population at large. It was only a number for the county and

Five silly sisters grace Village Stage's 10th year

By Susan Graves

If you're one of those local aficionados who make a habit of following the Village Stage productions, you won't want to miss the production ending its 10th season.

The cast is currently rehearsing for "Nunsense II," to be performed on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15, at 8 p.m. at Bethlehem Central Middle School on 332 Kenwood Ave. in Delmar. A final dress rehearsal free performance for senior citizens will be at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

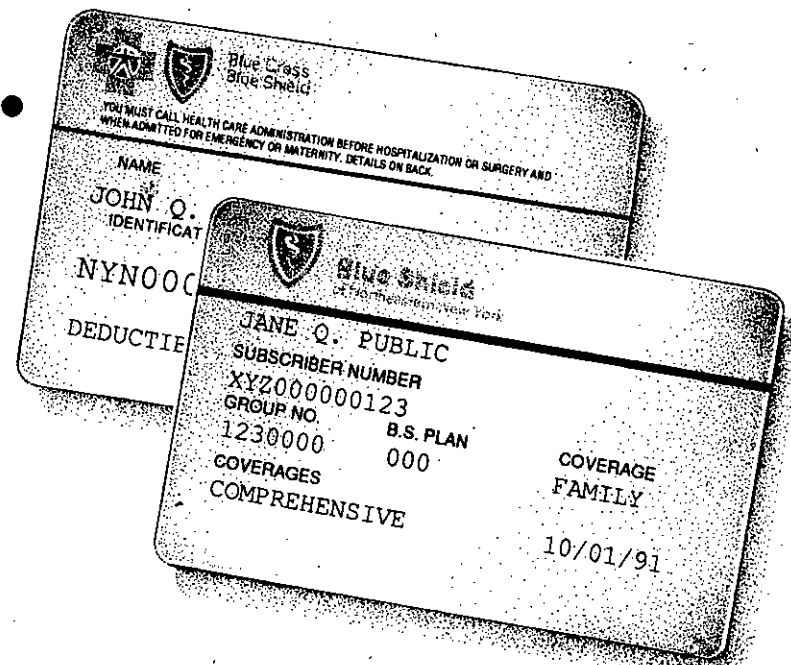

"Nunsense II: The Second Coming," is more of a continuation of the antics of the five Little Sisters of Hoboken who delighted audiences in the original "Nunsense," according to Leo Schoos, who handles Village Stage publicity. "Where else can you get a soft shoe routine, Elvis Presley, a bingo game, a can-can dance and a roller derby ballerina?" Schoos quipped.

BC enrollment continues to grow

By Dev Tobin

Enrollment growth in the Bethlehem Central School District continues to exceed projections, Superintendent Leslie Loomis told the school board at last week's meeting.

Loomis said that district enrollment was up 168 students to 4,421 this year, an increase of 4 percent over last year, and well above the projection of 100 that the current budget is based on.

"Our continuing rapid enrollment growth is troubling because we recognize that the financial limitations in the community are very real," Loomis said.

No new teachers are needed to be hired to deal with the influx of new students, which was primarily at the elementary (52) and middle school (96) levels, and class sizes remain within the ranges approved in this year's budget process, Loomis added.

With both the middle school and high school buildings near capacity, Loomis said he was "concerned that we not face a period of accelerated residential growth in the town of Bethlehem."

In a related matter, the board approved hiring the architectural firm of Dodge, Chamberlin, Luzine & Weber to consult with the district's long-range planning committee, which is looking at whether the district's facilities are sufficient to handle anticipated growth over the next 10 years.

Our continuing rapid enrollment growth is troubling because we recognize that the financial limitations in the community are very real.

Leslie Loomis

The long-range planning committee will report its preliminary findings at the next board meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 19, at 7:30 p.m.

In other business, two Brockley Drive residents commended Bethlehem Central High School administrators for their quick response to complaints about students hanging out across from the school.

"We're back on the road to a safe environment," said Christine Welch of 2 Brockley Drive, who, with her husband Dick, had brought the problem to the board's attention at its Sept. 21 meeting.

"The high school administration has followed through, and the response has been overwhelming from the neighbors," Christine Welch said.

Directly across Delaware Avenue from the high school, Brockley Drive had become a hangout for up to a score of high school students between 2:10 (the end of school) and 3 p.m. (when the late buses leave), the Welches told the board.

Loomis thanked the Welches for taking the time to come back and report to the board.

In another matter, Loomis noted that the BC's public relations specialist Kristi Carr won several awards from the New York State School Boards Association for her work in the 1993-94 school year.

Loomis also announced that eighth-grader John Bragle has been selected to sing in the National Honors Boys Choir concert in Washington, D.C., in March.

Sales tax holds line on NS property taxes

By Dev Tobin

For the third year in a row, New Scotland residents will see a property tax decrease due to the county's imposition of an additional 1 percent in the sales tax, and continued growth in sales tax revenue.

"The sales tax is much fairer than the property tax. It's been a lifesaver for us, and for the county too," said Supervisor Herb Reilly.

The projected 1995 tax rates will be $1.35 per thousand of assessed value for residents of the town outside the village of Voorheesville (an 8.8 decrease), and $1.11 per thousand for village residents (a 6.7 percent increase).

New Scotland's budget is divided into two parts — the A fund, for programs that include the village of Voorheesville, and the B fund for town programs outside the village.

Since the village receives its own sales tax distribution (which has helped reduce the village tax rate in recent years), the effect of the increased revenues from the sales tax, and the consequent decrease in the property tax rate, is only felt in the B fund.

Reilly has budgeted an extra $65,000 in sales tax revenues for 1995, up to a total of $1,175,000.

"This is a guesstimate, because we still have two quarters to come in yet. It could be more than that," Reilly said.

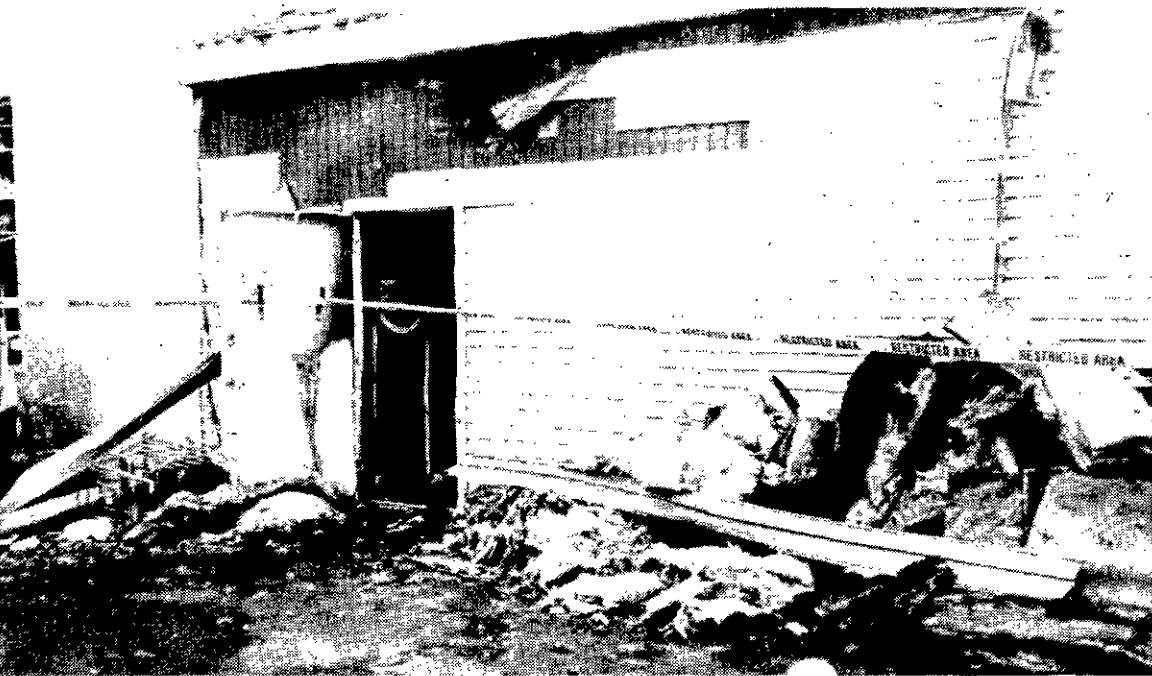

In Reilly's tentative 1995 budget, A fund spending is $812,578, up 9 percent from 1994's $745,411; and B fund spending is $2,334,586, up 7.7 percent from last year's $2,166,465.

Reilly said that the town will become totally debt-free in 1995, paying off notes for the revaluation project completed in 1993, underground fuel tank removal and replacement and a new salt shed (paid off one year early).

After being criticized last year for proposing 5 percent raises for town employees, Reilly this year put a 3 percent raise in the tentative budget.

Highlights of increased A fund spending include $20,000 for work on two bridges, $5,000 for a senior citizen transportation, $3,725 for a new computer program for town justices, and $2,500 for a new computer for the assessor's office.

Highlights of increased B fund spending include about $109,000 for a new dump truck and pickup truck, both equipped with snow plows, for the highway department.

Sunday blaze closes beverage center

Bethlehem Police are investigating the cause of a Sunday night fire that ravaged the inside of the Delmar Beverage Center at 242 Delaware Ave.

Luckily, someone who was passing by the store at about 8:15 p.m. noticed smoke coming from the building and alerted police. When the Delmar and Elsmere Fire departments arrived the blaze was fully involved, but had not yet reached the roof.

"If we didn't get the call when we did and it had gone through the roof," then the building might have been destroyed, said Elsmere fire chief Richard Webster.

As it was, the fire caused extensive damage to the walls, ceiling and stock in the retail section of the store. Webster said the fire appeared to start in the back of the retail area where empty boxes and recyclables were stored.

The blaze was finally extinguished at about 11 p.m. There were no injuries reported.

Delmar Beverage has been in business at this location for 24 years without any prior incidents, except "for a few break-ins," said Nancy Vinci, wife of owner Jim Vinci. She speculated that the fire might have been electrical in origin, although Police Det. John Cox said no conclusions have yet been drawn.

Asked whether the family planned to eventually reopen the business, Vinci said "most likely. My son has been training to take over."

NS may expand town hall

By Dev Tobin

Ten years after its last expansion, New Scotland town hall will, pending town board approval, more than double in size, allowing the assessor's office and building department and to move from the New Salem highway garage.

Supervisor Herb Reilly gave board members information on the addition at Monday's meeting.

The proposed addition would add 3,040 square feet to the building's current 2,540. The estimated cost is $243,000 for the addition, $38,000 for alterations to the existing structure, and $17,000 in architect's fees.

The fees have been included in the 1994 and 1995 budgets, and the construction costs will be borrowed, Reilly added.

The next step is to retain an architect for the project, Reilly said, with construction expected to begin in the 1995 season.

Besides offices for the assessor and building department, the project includes an office for the town justices, larger offices for the supervisor and town clerk, a larger meeting room/court room and a bathroom, ramps and public address system to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Possible project additions that the board will consider include a basement with a lunch room and storage, a new heating plant and a new security system.

Also at Monday's meeting, Dr. Michael Belin of Old English Road complained about the quality of roads in the exclusive Heldervale development off Route 85.

"We're caught in the middle," Belin said. "We need a road we can drive on before this winter."

Old English Road was never accepted as a town road because the top course of pavement was not laid down by the developer, according to Town Attorney John Biscone.

"The developer just never followed through with it, and now we don't know who can dedicate the road to us without a (title) search," Biscone said. "The town board should keep this on the agenda until we get to the bottom of it."

In other business, the board:

- Heard that the 72-hour pump test of the proposed Orchard Park Water District production well was "pretty good," according to Reilly.
- Appointed Donald Cootware to the zoning board of appeals, to replace the late Fred Carl.
- Approved asking the state Department of Transportation to lower the speed limit, currently 40 mph, on Route 32 in Feura Bush.
- Scheduled a budget workshop for Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 7 p.m. in town hall.

Youth project solvent — at least for this year

By Susan Graves

The Bethlehem Networks Project is alive and well — at least for this year.

Networks coordinator Mona Prenoveau said that funding from two grants from the governor's portion of drug free school money along with a lot of support from the community will keep the agency afloat. Last year, Networks' future was in jeopardy when its budget was slashed. "Through the years, grant funding dwindled to half," said Prenoveau, "and each year, we have to renew (grant applications)." Networks ultimately received grants of $39,465 and $36,575 to operate this year.

"In '93, we were notified we would not be getting the amount we expected, and we didn't expect to get any more," she said.

But "One of the nice things that happened was an outpouring of support and a tremendous letter-writing campaign ... that was very encouraging," she said. "Also Main Square was very generous in helping find new quarters," for the Networks offices. "It's really amazing how nice people are," she added. Networks is now housed in part of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce offices in Main Square.

Networks, which develops and supports activities and programs for youth, was formed in 1988, and has since distinguished itself for its role in a number of local projects, including an informational flier on the law and teen drinking and a video on teenage drinking.

Networks also in conjunction with Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited has supported and formed a number of community groups committed to youth, including the Community Partnership and Bethlehem Middle Works. Middleworks attempts to make the middle school more "user friendly" to parents. For the past two years, it has organized a welcoming picnic for incoming sixth-graders and their families, where parents are invited to participate in the live of the middle school. About 550 people attended this year's picnic, Prenoveau said. "Middleworks is really about parents and empowering parents."

Networks also sponsors scores of programs on parenting and related issues throughout the year.

On Tuesday, Oct. 18, Home on your own training for fourth-and-fifth-grad pupils and their parents will be presented at the First United Methodist Church, on 428 Kenwood Ave. from 7 to 9 p.m. This program along with many others is co-sponsored by various community organizations.

Home on your own is being sponsored by Networks, School's Out, Inc., Bethlehem schools and the Bethlehem police department.

On Nov. 7, from 7 to 9 p.m., Networks and the school district will present Systematic Training for Effective Parenting. For information on the parenting and other upcoming programs, call Networks at 439-7740.

But despite its involvement and success, the future of Networks is still uncertain, according to Prenoveau. "As far as I'm concerned, it never looks good, you never know."

Democrat board hopeful calls opponent 'bland'

By Mel Hyman

The race for the open Bethlehem Town Board seat has heated up with Democrat Bill Burkhard claiming GOP Councilwoman Doris Davis is "as bland as pabulum," but Davis said her challenger is name-calling using desperation tactics.

The repartee surfaced as Burkhard prepared to put up his campaign signs around town. Davis,

I think it's sad that (Burkhard) has resorted to name-calling and that he feels desperate enough to resort to such negative tactics.

Doris Davis

who was appointed in January to serve out the remainder of (Supervisor) Sheila Fuller's term, has had her lawn signs up for several weeks now.

"We're leaving the station," said Burkhard. "Within a few days our campaign will be in full swing."

The Democrats' campaign message over the next four weeks will be that Davis stands for "business as usual," Burkhard said. "I personally don't see where Doris has espoused any particular program or talked about any specific issues. While she may be a nice person, she's as bland as pabulum."

"I think it's sad that (Burkhard) has resorted to name-calling and that he feels desperate enough to resort to such negative tactics," Davis shot back.

"When he uses that figure of speech, it shows that he has not done his homework....I've worked very hard over the past several months to reach out to people and let them know my views."

Davis begins the last month of the campaign with a decided edge given her victory in last month's Conservative Party primary.

Burkhard, a former town Democratic chairman, said he plans an aggressive door-to-door campaign, hoping to capitalize on lingering doubts about the town's new $13.9 million water treatment facility which draws water from an aquifer underneath the Hudson River.

He also challenged Davis to debate the issues "at any time or place."

Davis stands by her vote in favor of the water plant, citing several state reports certifying that the new water supply is safe and free from pollutants.

"Business as usual in this town means excellent service," Davis said, particularly from agencies like the town highway department, which had an exemplary record in removing snow last winter.

Regarding Burkhard's offer to debate, Davis quipped, "I haven't heard anything about it."

Matters of Opinion

Doin' it right

The budgeting process in New Scotland is complicated (there are a town budget, a Voorheesville village budget, and a fund for town programs that village residents benefit from). But it appears homeowners who live in town but outside the village for the third consecutive year will get a property tax reduction, this time of 8.8 percent.

As was the case earlier in Voorheesville, increased county sales tax revenues get the credit. Village trustees reduced property taxes by almost 8 percent in April, despite an almost 20 percent increase in expenditures. The tentative New Scotland budget will increase overall spending by 9 percent in the portion of the budget attributable to the village, and by 7 percent for the rest of the town.

The point behind all these numbers is not to make your eyes cross, but to demonstrate that local government, if it wants, can indeed find ways to return a substantial portion of any increased revenues to the taxpayer. The feat is particularly impressive in New Scotland because the town board simultaneously has been waging all-out war on its debt. Supervisor Herb Reilly maintains that despite the tax reductions, New Scotland will pay off the last of its outstanding bonds next year.

Poisoning turkeys

Pesticides, herbicides, insecticides. Wonderful concoctions. They save home gardeners countless hours, backstrains and scuffed knuckles in their pursuit of botanical splendor. They'll kill every bug, weed, beetle and worm in sight.

One of our favorites used to be a liquid insecticide called Rotenone/Pyrethrins spray. It not only is fatal to Japanese beetles, but, when sufficiently diluted, will de-flea the cat. We also liked a powder, aptly named Doom, which, when sprinkled on the lawn, eventually would seep down in and nail the beetle's larvae before they could metamorphose. We gave up both, however, when we discovered the residue also killed bees and butterflies, that our vet sold an otherwise harmless shampoo for the cat, and that we had no idea what else the Doom was doing down there beneath the grass.

Another super-killer is diazinon. This stuff wipes out so many creatures it takes 95 separate entries in the Ortho Home Gardeners Problem Solver to cover them all. It is used commercially in lawn sprays, should be applied only by a professional, and is so toxic they tell you to hose down the lawn immediately after application. Even then you shouldn't walk on it for 24 hours. Which means it can do serious harm to humans. So it should be no surprise that it also has been killing wild turkeys, mourning doves and songbirds.

Now as you might guess, in this age of environmental correctness, there are remedies, quite natural, for almost all lawn and garden problems. For instance, it is amazing what a little warm, soapy water will do to aphids. Dragonflies and ladybugs are the hit men of the insect world, and you can order a supply through the mail. Complete compilations of other natural defenses for our grasses, shrubs and trees are available in libraries, bookstores and from environmental agencies and even some conscientious garden centers. Of course, they take longer and don't have quite the 'scorched-earth' effect on the local insect kingdom. But they work well enough so your neighbor won't sneer at your petunias. Anyway, a cardinal lying dead on its back is a pretty disgusting sight, too.

No 911 'til Monday

Albany County's new 911 emergency reporting telephone system (to reach the police, the fire department or an ambulance) goes into effect at 11 a.m. Monday. That's Monday, October 17. The number will not be effective before that date and time so, should you have an emergency before then, you should continue to use the appropriate number listed inside the front cover of your telephone book. Remember, no 911 until Monday at 11 a.m.

To learn is to experience, not memorize

The author of this Point of View is the director of The Learning Space, an independent day school for children who otherwise would attend grades K through 8.

By Debbie N. Pepin

Why do we continue to insist that children attend schools?

I am sure that most of you would respond with some variation on the response, "to be sure they learn necessary basic skills." Who can disagree with that statement?

The problem I see with it is that we are unsure what are the "necessary basic skills" as well as how to measure that they are learned at an acceptable level.

Our own experience has taught us that the only measurement is an objective test and/or grade. Parents, students, schools or even the State determine what is an acceptable score or grade. Does receiving a grade of 75 mean that a child has learned the information? Can some students learn the material and get a 75 while others would need a score of 90 to have learned it? Why do some students know the information but still not do well on tests?

Unfortunately the response to this quandary has been, in some cases, outcome-based education. And OBE has become a highly misunderstood, political and confusing term. Many groups working to ban outcome-based education have led people to believe that OBE intends to let students "talk about touchy, feely sorts of things" and not worry about facts.

Instead of using terms, I would suggest simply a response to the original question—what is the real purpose of an education? We want our children to learn tasks to the level that they can perform them successfully and repeatedly over time. That means that a student should understand well enough to explain or demonstrate that learning without studying (better known as cramming). It also means that we want a child to be able to respond even when the question is asked out of context—in other words, a student needs to be able to regularly apply his or her learning.

The meaning of the verb educate is to "draw out," not to "put in." Learning is something we must experience. The challenge of education is to develop in children a sense of active engagement within themselves. Experts tell us, practitioners show us, and children model the fact that learning curves are highly related to the "use value" of knowledge. In order to draw out children's innate learning capacities and creativity children must identify with the material that is being taught. In other words, to be vital, education must be active.

The children we educate today will be living in a far different world than their parents or teachers. To thrive children must develop their creativity and critical capacities to maximize their intellectual flexibility, acuity and capacity for growth.

Education, in the true sense, is experiential because experience turns knowledge into action and behavior. This is especially important in an era when knowledge itself is being transformed at a fantastic rate. The most important skill determining a person's life pattern has become the ability to learn new skills, to take in new concepts, to assess new situations, and to deal with the unexpected. The competitive ability is the ability to learn.

Education is the only industry in which the worker and the customers are the same—the students. Students do most of the work, and they must discover how to learn and and to learn more than just facts. Education is a marriage of process and products. To make sure the process works efficiently and the products turn out well, communication among students, teachers, parents and the community at large is essential at every stage.

The Learning Space is based on developing world class students who focus on reasoning and not recall. Their individualized learning plan is written every six months with their parents, coach (since that is the role of a teacher), and relevant others. Learning is measured by regular performance reviews that include examples of work, interviews by a team, written narratives, and regular input by parents. Children talk about what they learned instead of what grade they received. All of this is done in an environment that is the "real world," two children to every computer, office space, and a respect for their learning style.

Education is the only industry in which the worker and the customers are the same—the students. Students do most of the work, and they must discover how to learn and and to learn more than just facts.

We need all of our children, not just our best and brightest, to become self-directed learners. That will afford them success in the coming century.

Your Opinion Matters

Property 'owned' in trust for future

Editor, The Spotlight:

Regarding September 28, 1994's editorial titled: Mall 'Problems', I agree with the assertion "... it is common knowledge that malls anchored by discounters such as K-Mart invariably devastate small independent competition." I strongly object to the conclusion that after "... the mating dance... Then construction will begin." The SEQR (State Environmental Quality Review) process is not a mating dance.

SEQR Regulations 6 NYCRR Part 617, sec.617.1b states:

"In adopting SEQR, it was the Legislature's intention that all agencies conduct their affairs with an awareness that they are stewards of the air, water, land and living resources, and that they have an obligation to protect the environment for the use and enjoyment of this and all future generations." Sec. 617.1c states: "The basic purpose of SEQR is to incorporate the consideration of environmental factors into existing planning, review and decision-making process of State, regional and local government agencies at the earliest possible time."

As lead agency, the Town Board followed the requirements pursuant to Article 8 of the Environmental Conservation Law by submitting a Final Scoping Document to which the developer, (The Rubin Organization, Inc.) responded with an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) as required by SEQR. At their meeting on 9-20-94, the Town Planning Board accepted the consultants' report on the DEIS, and after finding the DEIS incomplete it passed

No funding, no mandates

Editor, The Spotlight:

By the time you receive this, Congress probably will be recessed—back home to ask voters to send them back to Washington for another stint. The 103rd Congress can be credited with a lot of debate, but little action. They could have passed a few measures that would have been expensive and inappropriate to deal with the problems at hand. Fortunately, they failed to do so. On the other hand, there are many things they should have done—and didn't.

For instance, Congress could have passed the President's bureaucratic health care boondoggle or one of its House or Senate clones. If they did, we'd be looking forward to higher taxes, health care rationing, employer mandates and a bigger federal government with all the red tape that entails. Fortunately, public pressure produced enough heat on Congress to stall the bigger government/health care bandwagon until better public policy could prevail.

Also, the federal budget is annually fueled by runaway spending. The annual budget deficit runs in the hundreds of billions of dollars and the national debt is well on its way to $5 trillion! The problem: the President doesn't submit a balanced budget; Congress the document on to the Town Board, which will independently determine its completeness.

The assertion that the Rubin Organization Inc., (or any other developer) "... should be permitted to build what it likes on the property consistent with zoning regulations" fails to acknowledge there are requirements (such as SEQR) beyond zoning laws that developers must meet in order to receive approval for their projects. I would like to point out that The Rubin Organization's proposal for "Southgate Commons" is not in keeping with the findings in the Town Planning Survey, August 1991, p.44: in which 67.7% of the respondents would discourage large shopping centers or malls. The proposed 423,000 sq. ft. project is outside the parameters suggested by the draft Master Plan which recommends shopping centers be built to community scale within the range of 100,000 to 250,000 sq. ft. or less of GLA (Gross Leasable Area).

It is also my opinion that, ownership of property is not license to destroy either the land, the environment or the community in which it is located. Acceptance of this proposed project is not an imminent conclusion. By conducting this complicated and lengthy process, the Town Board is fulfilling its obligation to the SEQR requirements, and its responsibility to protect the community.

As this process continues, we should remind ourselves that our 'ownership' is temporary, and that doesn't approve one; and we as voters let them get away with it. Congress had an opportunity to change that by approving a Constitutional amendment to balance the budget. However, they passed a budget that contains a couple of hundred billion in red ink, and it probably will end up being more.

On the environment, Congress was supposed to approve a rewrite of the Clean Water Act this year. Though they didn't, the good news is they didn't pass the bill in the House Public Works Committee that would have put the future of many U.S. farms in jeopardy. We all want clean water, but not by passing bad public policy. Efforts to control farm runoff should be voluntary, or, if procedures are mandated to protect our water for everyone, then the dollars to fund the mandate should be provided. In other words, no funding, no mandates! Clean water is everybody's problem.

Voters need to question their congressional representative about what they did and didn't do. They must also question their opponents about where they stand on the important issues facing this country.

Bethlehem seniors say thanks

Editor, The Spotlight:

Each year since 1989 a garage sale held by Lori Breuel Realtors has benefitted three groups. Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, Bethlehem Festival and Bethlehem Senior Projects, Inc., all work within the community to provide programs, needed items and equipment for town residents. On behalf of Bethlehem Senior Projects we would like to thank Lori and the employees of Lori Breuel Realtors who worked so hard during the year to make this annual event a success once again.

Bethlehem Senior Projects is a community-based nonprofit corporation which works with Bethlehem's municipal senior services department to help the elderly of the community remain as residents through the funding or sponsoring of additional services and programs.

Programs include senior transportation, the Bethlehem Food Pantry, monthly screenings and displays for independent living and equipment purchases including accessible equipment for the Elm Avenue Park, the Town Hall and senior vans.

Thanks to individuals and groups like Lori Breuel Realtors, Bethlehem Senior Projects is able to fund services and programs for the elderly within Bethlehem.

Lundine: I think we make a difference

By Susan Graves

Stan Lundine examines his priorities every four years or so. The Democratic lieutenant governor running with Gov. Mario M. Cuomo said this year he decided if he was asked, he'd run.

"In the end, I decided I love what I do. I think we're making a difference in people's lives," Lundine said.

Lundine said he did not spend his life "wanting to be lieutenant governor," and was surprised when he was tapped by the governor initially in 1986 since he had supported former New York City mayor Ed Koch when he ran in a gubernatorial primary against Cuomo in 1982.

Lundine, who spoke recently at a gathering organized by the Enterprising Women's Leadership Institute, admitted this year would be "a tough election fight."

"But that's not because of the quality of the opposition," he added, citing rather the "anti-incumbent" mood, perhaps related to two simultaneous "megatrends."

Lundine said the end of the cold war and ongoing technological development have had a profound effect on people's lives and views. "I'm not putting down our opponents. I thought all through July and August, do I want change? Clearly the people want change," in their lives.

Ultimately, Lundine concluded that change was of the essence.

"The thing we want to make clear is we're running again because we want change," he said.

But Cuomo and Lundine differ from GOP hopefuls George Pataki and Elizabeth McCaughey in how change in New York should be affected, particularly when it comes to cutting income taxes.

The Pataki-McCaughey plan to reduce the state income tax, Lundine contends, would simply shift the burden to the property taxpayer. "It would raise the property tax. ... It would have a major detrimental impact," he said. "Why make a massive shift to the local level?"

"You give us four years. We think we can show positive progress a number of areas," Lundine said.

Remodeling business takes high-tech approach

By Mel Hyman

Home remodeling is going the computer route.

Instead of having to look at some faceless blueprints, you can see just what that renovated kitchen or extra bedroom will look like in three-dimensional color.

If it sounds pretty high tech, it is. But Slingerlands contractor Ric Kaplowitz has been keeping up with the latest computer software available and these days admits to enjoying the design and planning aspects of remodeling "even more than banging nails."

You can still see a copy of the blueprints for that new family room, but it's hard for most people to visualize what the end-product will be based on a bunch of lines and numbers.

"If they want to change the size or configuration of a cabinet or (kitchen) counter," Kaplowitz said, "We can make the changes right on the computer screen and show them the end-product in just a matter of minutes."

Kaplowitz, 31, has been working in construction since he was in high school.

He continued to work-time as a carpenter during the time he was attending college and studying for a degree in construction engineering technology.

After working for various local builders, Kaplowitz decided to strike out on his own given the brisk pace of the home remodeling market.

"What I'm finding lately is that a high percentage of people are opting to add onto their existing homes simply because making repairs and improvements is far preferable to buying another house or building new.

"They can get the dream house they've always wanted at a much lesser cost," Kaplowitz said.

"You're going to spend $200,000 or $250,000 to start with for anything out of the ordinary."

Another reason for the recent remodeling boon seen in Bethlehem and elsewhere in the Capital District is also due to the fact that people seem more inclined to stay put these days.

"People don't want to change their school district, especially when it has a good reputation," he said. "That's a big one."

Kaplowitz said he keeps up with the latest trends in the remodeling business by attending national trade conventions and maintaining memberships in groups like the National Association of Home Builders.

Police arrest 8 for DWI

Eight people were arrested recently on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Elaine Collins, 43, of 428 Maple Ave., Selkirk, was stopped at 2:30 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 22, for failing to keep right on Route 9W, according to Bethlehem Police Sgt. Joseph Sleurs.

She was charged with DWI and released pending a future appearance in town court.

John T. Conboy, 67, of 344 North Mohawk St., Cohoes, was stopped at 2:23 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 25, for failing to keep right on Route 32, police said. He was charged with DWI and released pending an Oct. 18 appearance in town court.

Tyrone R. Blackshear, 24, of 29 Dove St., Albany, was stopped at 5:45 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 25, for failing to drive within the pavement markings on Route 9W near the Big M Truckstop, police said.

He was charged with DWI and released pending an Oct. 18 appearance in town court.

Kevin Klein, 54, of Murray Avenue, Delmar, was stopped at 1:50 a.m. Monday, Sept. 26, for failing to keep right on Elm Avenue, police said. He was also charged with DWI and released pending an Oct. 18 appearance in town court.

David M. Smith, 25, of Ketchum Lane, Voorheesville, was stopped at 5:15 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 2, for not wearing a seatbelt while driving on Route 85, police said. He was also charged with DWI and released pending an Oct. 18 appearance in town court.

Joseph Kelly, 39, of 52 King St., Troy, was stopped at 1:46 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 1, for failing to keep right on Delaware Avenue, police said. He was also charged with DWI and released pending a future appearance in town court.

Jane Beale-Thompson, 31, of Magnolia Terrace, Albany, was stopped at 1:20 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 8, for speeding on Delaware Avenue, police said. She was also charged with DWI and released pending an Oct. 18 appearance in town court.

Michael Rutherford, 47, of Indian Ledge Road, Voorheesville, was stopped at 9 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 28, for failing to stop for a stop sign on Route 85A in New Scotland, according to the Albany County Sheriff's Department. He was also charged with DWI and released pending a future appearance in New Scotland Town Court.

NiMo gripes about tax bill

By Dev Tobin

Like most taxpayers, Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. waited until the last minute to pay its Bethlehem Central School District tax bill.

Unlike most taxpayers, NiMo used the occasion to issue a press release complaining that it is taxed unfairly relative to its uneasy partners in the power generation business.

The release notes that NiMo is the district's biggest taxpayer, this year paying $5.7 million, about 22 percent of the district's total property tax revenue. Most of that payment, $4.3 million, is for taxes on the Albany Steam Station on Route 144 in Glenmont.

"Niagara Mohawk supports public education, but we are concerned about the disproportionate share of taxes the company pays throughout the state," said NiMo President John Endries.

The power company pays much more in local taxes per megawatt than independent power producers like Selkirk Cogen, and, at the same time, is required to purchase power from the independents at an inflated price, Endries said.

"Niagara Mohawk's tax burden, combined with other competitive threats, seriously jeopardizes the continued operation of the Albany Steam Station and other major generating plants," said Endries, adding that the Glenmont plant "now operates at a more limited capacity because of a surplus of power required to be purchased from other sources."

In July, NiMo lost a state Supreme Court suit that sought to reduce the Glenmont generating facility's assessed value from about $257 million to about $38 million.

Had NiMo been successful in its suit, it would have punched a more than $3 million hole in the school budget, leading to a tax increase for other taxpayers of more than 10 percent.

The court decision and the press release are not unrelated, in the opinion of BC Superintendent Leslie Loomis.

"It is unusual that Niagara Mohawk is interested in making a public relations point on an issue that has already been decided in court," Loomis said.

Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller, a former BC school board president, was puzzled by the release.

"I don't know what they're doing," she said. "The court agreed with the town and the school district that the NiMo assessment was fair."

NiMo spokesman Steven Schaefer said that the power company is appealing the Bethlehem assessment case to the Appellate Division.

Communities like Bethlehem should be prepared if economics force higher-cost generating facilities to close, Schaefer said.

"Where communities are over-reliant on property taxes paid by Niagara Mohawk, it will be more of a problem if we are forced to close than if saner heads prevail and fair and equitable assessments are made," Schaefer said.

Correction

The Bethlehem town budget pie chart in last week's Spotlight that highlighted proposed 1995 expenditures contained two errors.

The portion dubbed sales tax should have been designated highway fund, which will comprise 17 percent of expenditures. About 11 percent of expenditures are earmarked for general government support, instead of 12 percent.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1984, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- Bethlehem's 1985 preliminary budget called for general fund spending of $5.22 million (up 7.3 percent) and highway spending of $1.92 million (up 3.5 percent). The combined town tax rate for both general and highway purposes rose 2.3 percent, with water rates up 7 percent and sewer rates up 5 to 6.5 percent.

- New Scotland's 1985 preliminary budget called for $1.5 million in spending, an increase of 10 percent from 1984. The proposed tax rate for town residents outside the village of Voorheesville only rose .0009 percent, while village residents' town taxes were up 3.3 percent.

- Eight months after a fire claimed two lives and destroyed their house, Calvin and Patricia Harter moved into a new three-bedroom home on New Scotland South Road, built largely by volunteer "house-raisers" from the Onesquethaw Fire Department and St. Matthew's Church.

- The Bethlehem Republican Committee re-elected all its officers — Bernard Kaplowitz, chairman; Thomas Scherer, vice chairman; Kathleen Becker, secretary; and Dixon Welt, treasurer.

Congregation honors pastor

The congregation of Delmar Reformed Church recently held a surprise service to honor Pastor Robert A. Hess on his 15th anniversary at the church and his 30th year in the ministry.

In addition to hymns, prayers and gifts, Pastor Hess was recognized for his local community service in a proclamation from Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller.

Longtime family friend the Rev. Willis Jones from Scotland attended.

Pastor Hess and his wife Glenda's sons Bruce and Matt, also attended, with Matt flying in from California for the service.

The Rev. Donald Troost of the Albany Synod and the Rev. Richard Lake, retired minister from the Third Church in Albany, along with several members of the congregation led the pastor appreciation service.

More than 125 church members and friends attended the service and reception.

Pastor Robert Hess of the Delmar Reformed Church speaks to friends who organized a surprise service and reception for his 15th anniversary at the church and his 30th year in the ministry.

RCS Community Library expands service hours

The new sign in front of the public library at 106 Main St. marks the beginning of operations at RCS Community Library.

The library is now open from noon to 8:30 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday and from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Expanded hours are the first step toward improving public library service to the residents of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District. Modernization of the reference collection will be the next visible sign of growth. Other goals for the first year of operation are increased professional staff and location at a more physically accessible site.

The new library received its charter from the New York State Board of Regents on Sept. 23. A public referendum on June 22 approved creation of the new library district, which has the same boundaries as the school district.

Voters also approved the library budget and elected seven trustees. Board members are: Mary Lou Youmans, president; Donna Crisafulli, vice president; John Curley, treasurer; Mary Ann Shubert, secretary; and Daniel Frye, Virgil Meliti and Edward Shea.

The RCS Community Library succeeds the Ravena Free Library, chartered in 1956 to serve residents of the village of Ravena. In recent years, the Ravena Free Library also received support from the town of Coeymans through an annual service contract.

Archivists to discuss film censorship

Filmmaker Stanley Kubrick once called the state Archives looking for one of his movie scripts. He had thrown out his copy. Other film producers and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences regularly call this repository of 70,000-plus movie scripts.

And where is this world-class collection located? Hollywood? New York? Paris? No, it's a stone's throw away at the state Archives in Albany.

On Wednesday, Oct. 19, 7:30 p.m., in honor of Archives Week, the library will host state archivists William A. Evans and Richard Andress, who will tell the fascinating story behind this unique collection.

The free presentation, "The Motion Picture Commission Says You Can't See That in New York," is about how, from 1921 to 1965, the commission reviewed all films shown in the state, licensing only those it deemed suitable for viewing by the public.

A print of the film and a script had to be submitted to the commission and the print was returned, but the scripts were retained.

The talk will be illustrated with scripts, posters, slides and still photos from films.

According to Evans, a reverse curve existed in regard to a film's popularity and the likelihood of its being censored.

"There's a mythology in Hollywood about fighting the censors, but in truth, when it came down to money and getting their films distributed, producers were most cooperative. They didn't even get surly. There's nothing in the film industry like the freedom of the press issue that exist in journalism," Evans said.

Evans finds the Motion Picture Commission's story full of irony. Probably because of Prohibition, early censors were not concerned as much with sexual innuendo as with law and order issues.

In 1934, Hollywood began to regulate itself with its own production code. "Louis B. Mayer himself was the puritanical, grandfatherly type, but the financial pressures were so great, he had to hire a censor to stop himself from making dirty movies," Evans said.

After 1934, the Motion Picture Commission dealt primarily with foreign films.

"The foreign films are the frosting on the cake," says Evans. Each film has both an original script and an English translation. Because distributors wanted to crack the New York City market, the script of virtually every foreign film shown in the U.S. in those years is in the Archives.

From the records they left behind, Evans has found the censors didn't have much of a sense of humor and sometimes censored strange things.

For example, in 1939, as Hitler prepared to invade Poland, censors objected to the pacifist film "All Quiet On the Western Front" as being anti-German.

Who were the censors? According to Evans, "They weren't crusaders. They had no special background or training. Most were middle class women who were hired off civil service lists."

In the final analysis, the films vindicate themselves. Evans said, "These women spent a career looking at uncensored movies, and they didn't go crazy, or become criminals or prostitutes. There's just not that much smut up here."

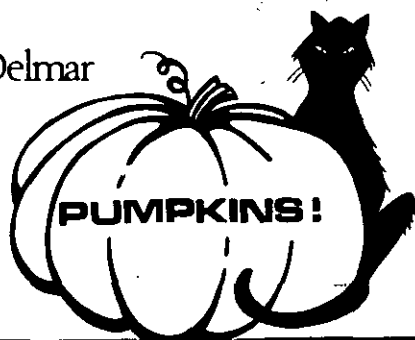

To attend, register by calling the reference desk at 439-9314.

Also, in honor of Archives Week, the library will exhibit business memorabilia from its local history collection throughout the month.

Photographs, Tri-Village Directory ads and a collection of matchbooks distributed by local businesses are featured in the display located in the exhibit case.

Dental Implants - The Blade Implant

The blade implant is used whenever the root form implant (the implant of first choice) can not be used because of the lack of available bone. The blade implant is used when the bony ridge has adequate height but inadequate width of available bone. It is the second choice implant selection.

The blade implant is an endosteal (implant placed in bone) titanium metal implant and is shaped like an anchor or perforated metal plate with a head which is used as the abutment for a dental prosthesis. The blade implant may be fabricated as a 2-piece submergible implant requiring two stages of surgery or 1-piece, needing only a single stage of surgery.

The blade implant used in both the upper and lower jaws, but more frequently in the lower jaw because of better bone density and quality. The blade implant is used more often to replace multiple missing teeth, usually as a fixed bridge prosthesis in combination with natural tooth or other implants. The disadvantage of the blade implant is its inability to withstand lateral forces, therefore, adequate bone density and splinting the blade implant to other implants or teeth is important for success. Only in very specific situations should the blade implant be used to replace a single tooth.

The blade implant has been used successfully for over 30 years and was the most used implant until the root form implant designs and surgical techniques improved and made it the implant of first choice. In a following article we will discuss the indications and use of the subperiosteal implant (implant that lies on top of the bony ridge).

Diligent to discuss Mayan culture

Ancient civilization buffs will be able to temporarily enter the mysterious world of the ancient Maya on Wednesday, Oct. 19, when David Diligent presents a lecture/slide show delving into the everyday lives of the Indian culture that lasted for more than 4,000 years.

Voorheesville Public Library

The program will cover the origins of human beings in the New World and the different theories on how the Maya rose to heights that surpassed the Romans and Greeks in many ways.

The 7 p.m. lecture will also go into depth on how the Maya, both commoner and elite, lived and thought and how they felt about the nature of reality.

Diligent will also show how warfare, agriculture, trade, astronomy, rituals and religion were the glue that held this civilization together.

The two-hour participatory workshop will even teach those attending how to count in Mayan and will draw parallels between the demise of the Maya and our current environmental crisis.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

For information, call the library at 765-2791.

The Thursday Night Poets will meet on Thursday, Oct. 13, at 7 p.m.

The very active group will be reading their works the following evening at the Broadway Art Gallery at 991 Broadway in Albany, and those who would like an opportunity to hear this talented bunch are cordially invited.

The life stories memoir writing group under the direction of Susan Riback is back in session this fall and meets Saturdays through Dec. 17 from 10 a.m. to noon.

For information, call Riback at 475-0151.

A family story hour to celebrate Columbus Day is scheduled at the library tonight, Oct. 12, at 7 p.m.

V'ville girls putting it all together BC girls meshing well

By Jacob Van Ryn

The Voorheesville girls soccer team continued its surge to the top of the Colonial Council last week with a 4-0 victory over Schalmont.

Erikka Jackstadt scored the first goal for the 'Birds and Regan Burns finished the scoring for the team, but in between those two goals were two goals by junior Kristin Conley.

"She has improved immensely," said 'Birds coach Jim Hladun. "I now feel that she can play her anywhere on the field, and she will do a good job."

"Schalmont was a good test for us," Hladun continued. "They have a lot of speed, but we were able to control the ball, and basically eliminate that threat"

Earlier in the week, the 'Birds defeated Averill Park, 1-0. Averill Park did not lose a single starter to graduation, and returned three Colonial Council All-Stars, so the 'Birds knew they were in for a battle

"Personally, I picked them to be one of the contenders for the league title," Hladun said. "With the whole team returning, I knew that they would be a solid team."

The only goal of the game was scored by Conley about 20 minutes into the contest. It was set up off a beautiful cross by Jane Meade.

Again, it was the Voorheesville defense with another strong game. "We are without a doubt one of the strongest defensive teams in the area," Hladun said. "When we get performances from all our defensive backs, (Jen Adams, Kristin Dougherty and Jessica Reed) like that, we are very difficult to beat." The play of the midfield and the defense is especially strong. Senior Cristie Arena and freshman Meade control the ball well. They set the table for the offensive attacks and do an outstanding job of it

The Birds defense is one of the best around. Recently, they have been doing an outstanding job keeping the opposition from getting many good scoring opportunities.

The other key part of the defense, the goalie, has done an outstanding job all year long.

Junior Angie Berg is the keeper and has played well throughout the course of the season.

The Bethlehem girls soccer team (7-3-1) continued its winning ways last week and are on the way to establishing itself as one of the top competitors in the Suburban Council.

BC tied powerhouse Burnt Hills 1-1 on Wednesday, Oct. 5, in what may have been their best game of their season. Senior Jessica Romano headed in a corner kick for the lone Bethlehem goal.

"If we play like we did against Burnt Hills in future games, we should be able to compete against anyone," said senior captain Janice Gallagher.

"The team is really coming together," said Gallagher. "The new and the old players are getting to know each other and play together well."

The girls face a tough match on Saturday, as they travel to Clifton Park to play Shenendehowa.

Soccer boosters meet

The Bethlehem Central Soccer Booster club will hold its next membership meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at Bethlehem Central High School at 700 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

Funding for seventh and eighth grade soccer, development of a capital fund and banquet arrangements will be discussed.

For information, call Jane Combes at 439-5367.

Barbeque feast set

The Bethlehem Soccer Club will hold a Brooks Barbeque featuring chicken or ribs from noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 22, at the Elm Avenue Park.

Ticket discounts are available by ordering in advance. Information is available by calling Kathy Decker at 439-3530.

Amsterdam spoils BC homecoming

By Joshua Kagan

Supposedly, an easy team is scheduled for a high school's annual homecoming football game. But Bethlehem's football team (1-5) did not face a weak opponent at its homecoming game on Friday, Oct. 7, when Amsterdam (4-2) defeated the Eagles 21-0.

"Amsterdam's obviously a good football team. We were realistic in that we were outgunned," BC coach John Sodergren said. "Amsterdam's one of the better teams in the area. They'll be fighting for a spot in the Super Bowl."

After a scoreless first quarter, Amsterdam jumped out to 14-point lead on two touchdowns, one of which was set up when the Rams blocked a Bethlehem punt deep in Eagle territory. Amsterdam scored its third touchdown on its first possession of the second half.

With Amsterdam up 14-0, the momentum seemed to swing toward the Eagles. On the Rams' kickoff after their second score, Nate Kosoc raced up the left sideline for an apparent touchdown.

But the play was called back on a holding penalty against BC. The Eagles did not have another strong scoring threat until the final drive of the game when the outcome was no longer in doubt.

"I think the game came down to five or six plays," Sodergren said. "They blocked a punt which hurt us. We had a touchdown brought back which was a backbreaker."

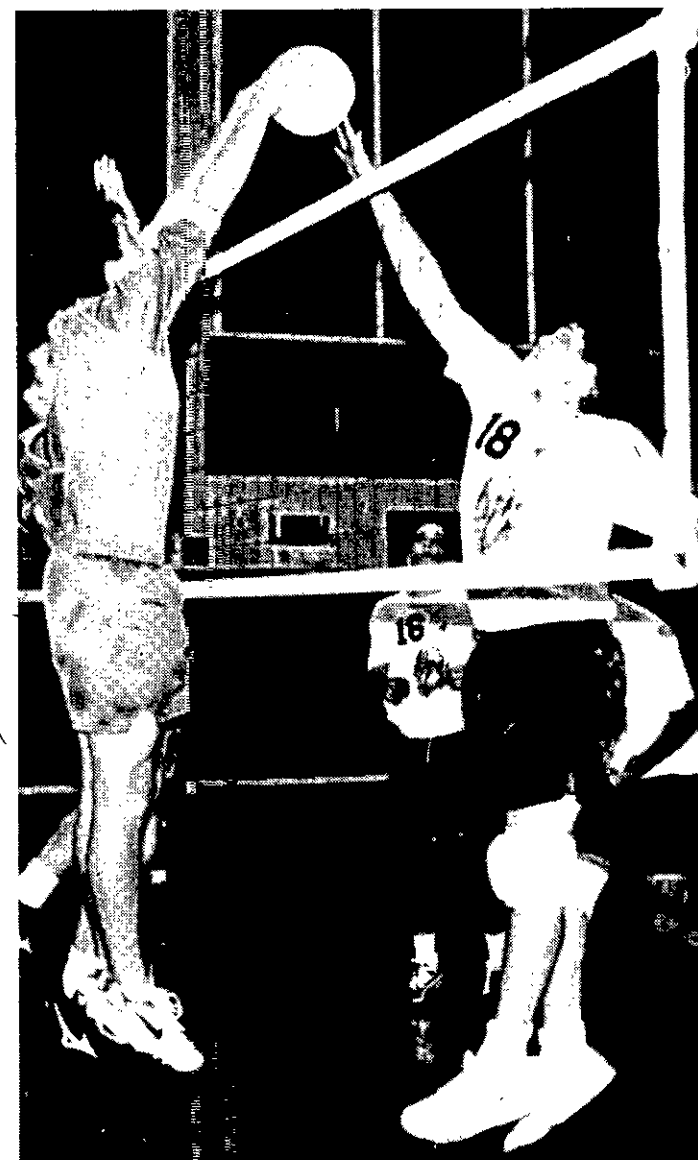

Starting Bethlehem quarterback Josh Naylor was injured in the first half and backup Dan McGuire came on to play the remainder of the game.

It was not immediately clear if Naylor would miss more playing time.

"McGuire had very little time in practice," said Sodergren. "He played very well under the circumstances."

Bethlehem next plays at Christian Brothers Academy (4-2) on Friday, Oct. 14, at 7:30 p.m.

V'ville girls break into win column

By Josh White

After dropping their first eight games, the Voorheesville girls' volleyball team earned their first victory of the season last week over Waterford.

This year's LadyBird volleyball team consists of 12 players. Included in the squad are senior co-captains Chrissy Paraso and Jamie Conklin along with Nicole La Mora as well as juniors Ann Marie Pjero and Jessica Greiner.

The underclassmen are sophomores Melissa Martin, Denise Throop and Kristen Frederick.

Rounding out the team are freshmen Erin Young, Amanda Grieco, Jessica Walsh and Kristine Robertson.

Volleyball

Coach Jim Ascone has not been disappointed with his team's play. "Despite our record, the team is playing more consistently and getting better," said Ascone.

"The girls give a 100% effort every time they are out on the floor and that is what I feel is important right now."

Ascone feels his team is in a rebuilding period. "This year we have five, first-year freshmen playing which is about half of our team. We haven't had a junior varsity team in almost five years."

It's hard to put a competitive team out on the floor when trying to gather experience first is more important."

"Emma Willard, Schalmont, and Ravena are the teams to beat in our league," said Ascone. "I feel we are in the lower echelon, but should be able to compete with the likes of Holy Names, Watervliet and Cohoes."

Fund-raiser planned

The Bethlehem Varsity Cheerleaders are planning a chicken barbecue for Friday, Oct. 21, at Bethlehem High School from 5 to 7 p.m., before the football game.

The cheerleaders are planning the barbecue to raise money for their trip to the national cheerleading competition in December. The barbecue costs $6 for adults and $5 for children under 12.

RCS loses at the buzzer, 14-13

By Kevin VanDerzee

The Indians of RCS (Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk) traveled to Rotterdam Friday night for a Capital Conference Western division match-up against Mohonasen.

Coach Gary VanDerzee couldn't have been more right when he said the game would go down to the wire, as the Mighty Warriors of Mohonasen came from behind to defeat the Indians 14-13.

"We played a good game and made a few good plays, but just came up short on the scoreboard," Van Derzee said.

RCS received the ball on the opening kickoff and began their drive on their own 35-yard line. On the fourth play of the drive, quarterback Steve Burns found flanker Jim Pasquini for a 48-yard touchdown pass. Jeremy Stanton's extra point attempt was then blocked, leaving the score 6-0.

Going into the second quarter the score was tied at 6. Midway through the second quarter, linebacker Mike Hoffman intercepted the ball and returned it to the Mohonasen two-yard line.

Stanton proceeded to take the first play from scrimmage, two yards for a touchdown. He then followed with the extra point to make the score 13-6.

The score remained 13-6 until just under two minutes remained to play. On a fourth and 14, the Mighty Warriors stopped the Indians and took over on their own 30-yard line with one minute and 30 seconds on the clock.

Indian linebacker Bill Wooten knocked down a Mohonasen pass as time ran out, for what appeared to be an Indian win.

The game did not end though as RCS was called for a pass interference penalty giving the Mighty Warriors one last play from the two-yard line.

Mohonasen's final play was successful, making the score 13-12.

The two-point conversion was good, and it was a frustrating defeat for RCS, 14-13.

RCS will be on the road this Saturday to play the Cadets of LaSalle at the Hudson Valley Community College football field.

"This game will be to see who gets the sectional bid. We're going to have to come out and play well," VanDerzee said of this week's game against LaSalle.

Sapienza praises defense in 17-0 loss

By Joshua White

The Voorheesville Blackbirds' opportunity to pull an upset over league rival Watervliet fell short on Saturday in a 17-0 defeat at Watervliet.

In their sixth week of play, the Blackbirds held their own for most of the game with the undefeated Cannoneers. But once again, it was the Birds' lack of ability to put points on the board which made the difference.

The struggling offense has now compiled a combined eight points over the last three games.

"Despite the score, I felt we played our best game of the year," said head coach Joe Sapienza. "We had a real lack of confidence on offense. Every week we have so many opportunities, it's inevitable."

"The general feeling of mine from both the kids and the crowd was a lack of confidence that we weren't going to score."

"We have not learned to capitalize on offense," he continued, "and are making mistakes we shouldn't be making."

Nevertheless, one bright spot on offense was junior running back Sean Devine, who ran for 71 yards on 13 carries.

"Sean could have easily had 100 yards rushing if we didn't have to play catch up during the final quarter," said Sapienza. "We tried to counter a lot more with him this week using inside trap plays."

Sapienza was satisfied with the play of his defense. "We played phenomenal defensively," he said

"Despite one drive at the end of the third quarter, we stepped it up on defense."

"Playing a deep Watervliet team with only 19 players, I felt we were competitive."

The Blackbird defense was led by junior linebacker Griffin King (11 tackles) and junior tackle Art Mosley (eight tackles).

"Griffin has been solid all year long and Artie is getting better every week," said Sapienza. "I feel the defense is growing around them."

"Players such as John McGinty, Ryan Foster and Darrick Zwack stepped it up as well."

The Blackbirds play host to Taconic Hills on Saturday, Oct. 22, at 1:30 p.m. in the annual homecoming game.

before the town board on Wednesday, Sept. 14, in an effort to keep Bridge Street in Slingerlands from being renamed Pelzer Place.

Supervisor Sheila Fuller quickly reacted by putting the name changes on hold until all the residents of the affected streets could make their feelings known.

Fuller said that not everyone was unhappy with the name changes, but in the interest of those adamantly opposed she decided that if a way could be found to retain the original street names, that would be the best solution.

It turned out that after checking with the NYNEX phone company, the street name changes were not necessary after all to comply with the 911 system.

"Each of the streets happened to be in a different zip code and in a different fire district," she said. As long as those parameters were met, NYNEX said there would be no problem routing emergency calls to the right address.

"Fortunately, it worked out," Fuller said.

"Maybe we had some input on them," said Hutchinson, whose house at 36 Bridge St. dates back to the late 1700s. "I'm glad they recognized the history of the area. I checked back, and I don't think the Bridge Street in South Bethlehem is any older than 15 years."

Bridge Street in Slingerlands was named in 1909 when a bridge was built from Old New Scotland Road over to Kenwood Avenue.

When they removed the D&H railroad bridge to make room for the Slingerlands Bypass, Bridge Street became a dead-end street.

Hutchinson said he remembers the old blacksmith shop on Bridge Street that closed in 1937. "That's when it would cost you $2 to shoe a team of horses."

subdivision regulations.

Town Councilman Ted Putney, one of three members of LUMAC who served for the entire five-and-a-half years, described the master plan as "extremely comprehensive and well-balanced."

He said that when the committee sent out a lengthy questionnaire on what kind of town residents wanted to see in the year 2,015, an amazing 53 percent of those queried responded.

"We sent out a 53-question survey to every fifth voter in the town," he said. "We were told by the experts to only expect from 10 to 15 percent of people to respond.

"It's the most important document that we could have in terms of what ultimately happens to all of the land in the Town of Bethlehem."

NYNEX to give out to private individuals and businesses" so that testing could be conducted in a controlled environment.

It's completely understandable that confusion resulted in Bethlehem last week, Catino said, since the system is unpredictable during the testing phase.

"There have been expected problems, not just in Bethlehem, but throughout the county during the testing phase conducted over the past several weeks, Catino said.

As problems have cropped up, they have been resolved, he insisted, although there is no guarantee that the system will work flawlessly when Monday rolls around.

Cannes comes to Albany

Eclectic film festival slated for Palace Theatre

By Susan Graves

If your calendar is short on action this weekend, you might want to sample "the reel thing" at a two-day film festival organized by local resident Michael Ellenbogen.

The program of short films, billed as the First Annual Metroland International Film Festival, will be at the Palace Theatre on Clinton Avenue in Albany on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15 and 16.

Ellenbogen said 38 films will be shown in six programs during the festival. "I decided I really wanted to do an annual festival — especially in October. There's no better time than October in the Northeast," he said.

The Palace is lending the theater for the festival, which the organizer hopes will become an annual event. Ellenbogen, in turn, will donate a major share of the festival revenue to the Palace in the hope that film will again become a major part of the theater's programming.

"We hope that potential lies within this festival," he said. "Albany needs a sort of cultural renaissance."

The Palace was built as a major movie house in 1931. For this weekend's festival, seating will be restricted to a 500-seat area at the front of the theater.

The festival will showcase works of independent filmmakers from around the country. Films with local ties include "Chronicle of War in F Sharp" by Ellenbogen, a Bethlehem Central graduate, and "A Counter Fancy," by Brian Cange, formerly of Colonie. Many of the filmmakers whose works are scheduled to be shown will be at the festival to introduce and discuss their work.

Ellenbogen has been airing films in New York City, Vermont, Saratoga Springs and in the Albany area for several years. He said he thinks he caught the film bug when he first saw a blockbuster film as a child. "I honestly think it was Star Wars that got me interested," he said.

He remembers the lines of moviegoers snaked around the theater waiting to see the George Lucas classic. "It's just a spectacular movie. ... To see something like that at age 8 or 9 was earth-shattering," he said.

Ellenbogen's passion for cinema was rekindled in college when he took a film course. "I even like the sound of film running," he said.

Independent filmmaker Michael Ellenbogen is organizing the First Annual Metroland International Film Festival, at the Palace Theatre on Clinton Avenue in Albany on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15 and 16. Below: Rick Singer (Stephen Lloyd) is questioned by his boss (Paul Barry) in Lloyd's film "In the Company of Ghosts."

Following his graduation from the University of Vermont, luck took over for Ellenbogen, who landed a job with an independent filmmaker in New York City. He was visiting a friend who had just landed a job as a production assistant for a low-budget feature film, and asked him if there might be something he could do. When the friend twisted an ankle — knocking him out of commission — Ellenbogen landed the assistant's job, launching his career in cinema.

(Ellenbogen's friend eventually rejoined the project, and Ellenbogen also kept his job.)

Although the title sounds good, Ellenbogen said, a production assistant on a low-budget film is expected to do a little bit of everything. Although at first he ran errands, he later helped to build sets and perform other tasks. The experience, he said, helped him on his way to making his own film.

Ellenbogen also began presenting "mini-festivals," called Full House, under Jack of Hearts productions in New York City. He then took "the show on the road" to a monthly presentation at the Mother Earth Cafe and, as the audience grew, to the Steamer 10 Theater in Albany.

Following this weekend's festival, Ellenbogen hopes to begin to distribute mini-festivals on a national and international basis in a new company called Passport Cinemas.

The 38 films in this weekend's festival will be broken down into six programs, each lasting about two-and-one-half hours.

Tickets to the Albany festival are $24 for a full two-day pass, $14 for a one-day pass or $6 for general admission. Reduced prices for students and senior citizens are $20 and $12 respectively.

For information about the festival, call Ellenbogen at 435-0735.

Nunsense II closes out 10th season for the Village Stage

With the production of Nunsense II this Friday and Saturday, the Village Stage of Bethlehem is winding up its 10th season.

Nunsense II is the sequel to Nunsense, one of the most popular little musicals ever written. About eight years ago, playwright Don Goggins had 28 professional productions being presented at the same time.

When he opened Nunsense II off-Broadway in New York two years ago, the original Nunsense was still running.

The Village Stage will present the musical at the Bethlehem Middle School Auditorium at 8 p.m. on both nights.

Martin P. Kelly

Nunsense II picks up about six weeks after the Little Sisters of Hoboken presented their first benefit musical in the original Nunsense. At that time, they were raising money to bury some of their comrades who were poisoned when the cook tried a new recipe.

Now, the good sisters are trying another musical.

Judy Lamprecht who claims 50 years of staging musicals and variety performances, is staging this comic musical for Village Stage. In the past, she's directed The Fantasticks, Ballroom, Bells Are Ringing and Mornings at Seven for the Bethlehem group. Caren Lessner is the choreographer for the production and Rosemary Edwards is the pianist.

The cast of nuns has Janice Manning, Peggy Nelson, Anne Bishop, Nelly Brown Bunk and Norma Irvine. Leo Schoos is the only male in the cast.

Tickets at $8 are available at local retail outlets, including the Paper Mill at Delaware Plaza, Tri-Village Drugs, Delmar, and Mangia, Slingerlands.

Revival of The Miracle Worker honors author Bill Gibson's 80th birthday

Now in its 19th season, the New York State Theatre Institute is coming full circle with its presentation of William Gibson's The Miracle Worker, the first play produced by the group when it opened for business at The Egg in Albany. Gibson's play will not only open the new season this Sunday, October 16, it will also be a tribute to the playwright's 80th birthday.

NYSTI has long been associated with Gibson who wrote three original scripts for the company during the past 19 years. He wrote Goodly Creatures, Handy Dandy and the musical, Rag Dolly. The last was toured to Moscow and later opened on Broadway.

The Miracle Worker, examines the trials of Annie Sullivan, the woman who taught the blind and deaf Helen Keller.

In this production which runs through October 29, Ed. Lange has newcomer to the company Meghan Cary playing Sullivan. Cary has extensive regional theater credits. Kate Hettesheimer, an eighth-grade student from Albany, plays the rebellious Keller.

Members of the company who have played in other productions of The Miracle Worker for NYSTI are returning to their original roles. They include Joel Aroeste who plays Keller's father and John T. McGuire who is the doctor. Erika Newell plays Captain Keller's wife and Carole Edie Smith plays the young girl's aunt.

Student and evening performances at Russell Sage's Schacht Fine Arts Center, Troy. Info & tickets: 274-3256.

Schenectady Civic Players opens with 18th century comedy classic

This Friday, the Schenectady Civic Players open their new season at the Church Street theater with Richard Sheridan's 18th century farce, The School for Scandal.

The production continues on Saturday and then plays again Wednesday through Sunday, October 19-23.

Long held as an example of the finest of English farces, it influenced Oscar Wilde and Noel Coward.

Director Joseph Fava, veteran Schenectady director, is staging this brittle farce with Doug deLisle and Michael Steese as the silly noblemen deal with the trouble that can be caused by malicious gossipers.

The women in the cast include Joan Justice, Fulvia Brun Hickman, Carolyn Salt and Joanne Westervelt.

Tickets and information available at 382-2081.
