Bethlehem first town to tune to 77 channels

By Mel Hyman

Congratulations Bethlehem. You're officially the first municipality in the Capital District to have 77 TV channels your residents can surf through in case they have trouble falling asleep.

The state-of-the-art system was switched on last week, and virtually the entire town, except for a few isolated spots, is now on line.

Cable upgrades are being undertaken in several other areas of the Capital District, according to Bethlehem town comptroller Judy Kehoe, who said Bethlehem is the first to have a fiber optic/coaxial cable

Couples seek stop action for Marie Rose

By Mel Hyman

A second lawsuit, as well as a court injunction, have been filed against the proposed Marie Rose Manor senior housing development in North Bethlehem.

The court injunction seeks a stop-action order that would prohibit any clearing or building on the six-acre site at the end of Marquis Drive until the declaratory lawsuit filed against the project last month has been settled.

The site, which is owned by the Catholic Diocese of Albany, is just a stone's throw away from the Dutchbrook development — a complex of single-family homes that includes Marquis Drive and Clifton Way.

The DePaul Management Corp, the housing arm of the Diocese, has completed the approval process and could be ready within the new few weeks to begin

Decker votes as expected

By Dev Tobin

The sun rises in the East, water flows downhill, and New Scotland Councilwoman Clare Decker supports the same zoning law that her late husband did.

After her appointment last week to fill out Councilman Richard Decker's term, Clare Decker said she would "make every effort to develop my own point of view." But in the end, she did what both supporters and opponents of the controversial zoning law expected.

Without a word of explanation, Decker seconded the resolution, then cast the deciding vote to send the proposed zoning law to a public hearing on July 6.

The signs on both sides of the curve in front of Bethlehem Lutheran Church on Elm Avenue foretell what experienced drivers know — slow down for a severe, 90-degree curve.

An inexperienced driver's failure to heed the sign, which suggests slowing to 20 mph in the 35 mph zone, led to a serious one-car accident Saturday night, according to Bethlehem police.

Anthony Carona, 16, of 16 Wallace Drive, Delmar, was driving his parents' 1994 BMW northbound at about 7 p.m. when he lost control on the curve. The passenger side of the vehicle smashed into a tree in front of 86 Elm Ave., seriously injuring Abigail Miller, also 16, of Concord Drive in Glenmont.

Police Lt. Frederick Holligan said that "excessive speed was apparently involved" in the accident, but noted there is "no indication" that alcohol was involved.

BC board mulls tech needs

By Dev Tobin

The Bethlehem Central school board reviewed two-thirds of the district's long-range planning needs at a work session last week.

Overall, the district's long-range planning committee has recommended spending about $13.7 million in three areas — classroom and library space at the middle school and high school, district-wide maintenance and instructional technology.

The board requested that the space issue be broadened to consider possible capacity problems at the elementary level, and a committee of administrators, teachers and parents has been appointed to work over the summer on that issue.

Last week's session focused on maintenance and technology.

The $4.3 million maintenance proposal addresses "obvious needs," said Franz Zwicklbauer, assistant superintendent for business.

He said "very worthwhile projects" that would cost another $1.8 million "didn't make it this time, but will need consideration down the road."

About half of the proposal deals with roofing repair at every school except Hamagrael and Glenmont, Zwicklbauer said.

The high school roofing project, estimated at $963,300, will complete the replacement of the building's original roofs, he added.

Board member Dr. Stuart Lyman questioned the cost and necessity of a $123,000 irrigation project for the high school athletic fields.

"I have three acres under irrigation now, and it cost nowhere near $123,000," Lyman said.

Board member Pamela Williams noted that residential water users in Bethlehem "are on reduced usage now," and asked "Will the town sell us water" for irrigation?

Zwicklbauer said the irrigation was necessary to protect a $357,000 investment in the fields made in the last bond issue. He added that he will look into the supply question and whether there are less expensive ways to do the job.

Joanne Davies, supervisor of occupational education, noted that the board should reconsider the $42,000 in chalkboard replacements at the middle school, Clarksville, Glenmont and Hamagrael.

She said the dust generated by chalkboards poses problems for classroom computers, and recommended that the board look into using "whiteboards" instead.

Regarding the $4.1 million technology proposal, Judith Wooster, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, explained that it was needed "because we can't afford to fall behind more."

The proposal would provide a three-computer station for each elementary classroom, and double the number of computers in the middle school and high school, Wooster said.

The proposal also would fund automating the schools' libraries, and networking the district's computers among themselves and to the outside world, she said.

Board member Dennis Stevens said that the rewiring work should be done all at once — for voice, data, video and fiber-optic — even if the latter were not to be used immediately.

Board member Happy Scherer, noting recent thefts at the high school, questioned whether there would be adequate security for the computers, televisions and camcorders in the proposal.

Board president William Collins said that explanations of the per-unit cost of the proposal's various components should be available well before any proposition vote.

"That's something we panicked about with the technology proposition (approved by the voters in May), and we should do it now, rather than panic at the end," Collins said.

Appeals board to meet

The Bethlehem Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, June 21, at the town hall, 445 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

The application of John and Shelly Terzian, 11 Euclid Ave., Delmar, will be heard at 7:30 p.m. The board will also hear the application of Celeste Bellizzi of 53 Broackley Drive, Delmar, at 7:45 p.m.

Restaurant robbers remain at large

Bethlehem Police have some solid leads in the recent burglary of Boston Chicken on Delaware Avenue in Elsmere.

Police Lt. Frederick Holligan said several people have been interviewed who reportedly "saw the suspects casing the place prior to the robbery."

On Sunday, June 4, several thousand dollars was stolen from the eatery during a 9:30 p.m. break-in. While no arrests have been made, police have been able to put together descriptions of the suspects through the assistance of passersby.

Entry to the store was gained when one of the two black men managed to scale an 11-foot fence that shielded the store's Dumpster.

Police speculate that one of the two, gun-brandishing male suspects stood on his partner's shoulder and managed to grab on to the edge of the roof.

"From there, we think he went hand-over-hand to the (Dumpster) fence," Holligan said.

During the heist, a black woman and the two men forced five store employees at gunpoint into the store's walk-in cooler.

They were rescued at about 10 p.m. the same evening, but only after the burglars had emptied out the cash drawers and safe.

No other Boston Chicken restaurants in the Capital District have suffered break-ins, Holligan said, so police are treating the heist as an isolated incident.

Anyone with information about the incident should call the police department at 439-9973. Police are still uncertain as to the make and color of the getaway vehicle.

V'ville's Leach retires as wrestling coach

By Joshua White

Richard Leach, widely regarded as one of the most successful and dedicated coaches ever at Voorheesville's Clayton A. Bouton High School, has decided to step down after 25 years as head coach of the school's varsity wrestling team.

Leach

Leach decided to retire from wrestling this past spring.

"There is a lot of emotional commitment and time and energy that go into coaching," said Leach. "At this point, it seemed to be more of an effort than it ever was."

In his more than two decades of coaching at Voorheesville, Leach compiled a total of 207 wins. Leach also had the opportunity to coach two-time state champion Jeff Clark.

Looking back at his career, Leach has had many memorable moments. However, there are two that will stand out in his mind forever. The first was coaching Mike Kavanaugh, his first Section II champion, and the other was coaching his son Rick's first wrestling match on the varsity.

"What I will miss most is the day-to-day contact with the kids," said Leach. "Kids have always been a part of my life and I have seen them at their best and worst."

According to his wrestlers, Leach's influence as a coach has always gone beyond matters of technique and training.

"He is a very special person with a lot of character," said Clark. "Mr. Leach has that extra dimension that can bring out the best in people. He is one of my greatest influences and has played an important role in my development as a wrestler and a person."

Darren Ascone, who holds the Voorheesville school record for most wins in a four-year career and currently wrestles for the University of Buffalo, said, "It is amazing the vast knowledge he has of the sport. He is a motivator and knows how to communicate with athletes."

Jim Cook, who was co-captain on this year's squad, said he feels he couldn't "have learned the sport" without Leach's guiding hand.

"He always gave 100 percent," said Cook. "He brought his teams together and would listen to your personal problems."

Leach plans to remain involved in Voorheesville athletics. Months after resigning from the wrestling position, Leach was tapped to succeed Philip Davis as the district's athletic director.

"I didn't retire from wrestling to take the job," said Leach. "Everything was unexpected and happened kind of quickly."

"I feel this is a new step for me," added Leach. "I have lived in the community and my children have grown up here."

Leach started his career as an elementary school teacher. When he heard about the position open at Voorheesville, and that there would be a coaching opportunity, it was a deciding factor in his accepting a job with the district.

In addition to being a health teacher and district health program coordinator for 20 years, Leach has also coached varsity football and baseball. He has been a Natural Helper advisor at the school for many years as well.

His family also has a long history with the district. Both of his children attended Voorheesville schools. His son, Rick, 24, graduated from SUNY Buffalo and coached with him two years ago. His daughter, Nicole, 21, is a senior at SUNY Oneonta majoring in psychology.

Leach's wife, Karen, has also been a strong supporter of Voorheesville sports. She led the community effort to raise funds for the Buckley Fitness Center, a weight room in the high school that was dedicated in the memory of the late Thomas J. Buckley. Buckley was a longtime Voorheesville football coach.

"Coach Buckley was a great person and taught me most of what I know," said Leach. "He was my mentor and he is greatly missed."

With his new job as athletic director, Leach will give up his teaching responsibilities in the health department.

"What I will miss most about teaching is discussing the day-to-day real-life issues in class," said Leach.

Preparing for the upcoming school year, Leach will step into his new position this summer.

"Next year I will be teaching physical education and working with coaches, parents and athletes," said Leach. "I look forward to sharing my experience with community members and especially young coaches. I'd like to share some of what I've learned over the years."

"He's a great person and there's nobody in this building who knows more about working with kids," said Davis, who has been athletic director for the past four years. "It's a natural stepping stone for him."

Peaceful plantings

Hamagrael Elementary School pupils gather to dedicate their new Peace Garden Friday. As part of their work on the project, pupils donated $255 to St. Anthony's Hospital in Oklahoma City and $140 to Camp Opportunities to provide summer camp programs for under-privileged kids.

Bethlehem water records reviewed

By Mel Hyman

What does the record show?

That's the question people were asking last week in light of the charges by former Bethlehem Councilwoman Sheila Galvin that she was misled about the purpose of the town's new $13.9 million water system.

A review of the minutes of two critical meetings more than three years ago involving the system, which taps an aquifer underneath the Hudson River, seems to refute Galvin's claim that the project was then intended only for industry.

At a Dec. 11, 1991, town board meeting, James K. Fraser Jr. of J. Kenneth Fraser Associates outlined the options for meeting the need for additional water. Fraser said that a water treatment plant on Clapper Road (now near completion) could "incorporate the new water supply into the existing water system" of Bethlehem.

At the same meeting, former Supervisor Kenneth Ringler noted, "We have a situation ... that we are going to be able to take care of our future needs for a long period of time and in the most economically feasible manner. I did want to emphasize that these facilities aren't going to be built to accommodate industry."

Backtracking a bit from remarks she delivered to Clearwater for Bethlehem on Wednesday, June 7, Galvin said that while an occasional reference may have been made about using the new system for public consumption, "It was mentioned only as a possibility for the far distant future in case we faced some kind of emergency."

In the view of other town board members at the time, however, the emergency was right at hand with the August 1990 notification by the city of Albany that it was cancelling its water contract with the town as of Aug. 31, 1995.

During the Jan. 8, 1992, public hearing on the new system, several references were made to its use for residential purposes.

Fraser is quoted in the minutes from that meeting as saying that the new system would be "taking care of the residential expansion" of the town for the next 50 years, when the town's population is expected to exceed 40,000.

Later at the same meeting,

Galvin offered a motion that called for the issuance of $10.7 million in serial bonds for construction of the new system.

Ringler called Galvin's claims "unbelievable - no one ever said this would be for industry alone."

Anything can be taken out of context and reinterpreted, he said, but right from the start "nothing was hidden from the public."

Galvin, who served on the town board from 1990 to 1993 and did not run for re-election, said she had no idea the new system would go on line as a residential water supply until years from now - when the town's population warranted it as a result of "major new developments."

"The way it was sold to us was that there was this immediate need from Selkirk Cogen and that just maybe, years from now, it could be used for residential" purposes.

Fraser responded last week that there was never any doubt that the study his firm undertook at the town board's request was aimed at meeting the needs of the "entire town ... not just for industry, but for residential, commercial, what have you."

NS plans to remedy developer's default

By Dev Tobin

Houses in the Heldervale IV development off New Scotland Road are big and expensive, but the streets resemble what you'd find in an ill-maintained trailer park.

Residents have regularly complained over the past year about the condition of Westover and Old English roads, both of which never received a top coat of pavement.

At last week's town board meeting, Bob Curley of Westover Road said that two bicyclists recently "took a header" after hitting potholes on the rough road.

"The road's a joke," Curley said. "We pay $13-14,000 in taxes, and I'd hate to try to sell my house with the condition the road is in."

Developers normally delay putting in the top coat until construction work that requires heavy vehicles is complete.

New Scotland, like most towns, requires that the developer establish an escrow account that would pay for the top coat.

The original developer of the project, Vincent Laviano, has left the area, and the whereabouts of an $18,000 escrow account to finish the roads is in doubt, said Town Attorney John Biscone.

The town has informed the current developer of the project, Belmonte Builders, that no more certificates of occupancy will be issued until the matter of the missing escrow is resolved. Seven lots have been developed in Heldervale IV, and six are open, according to codes enforcement officer Paul Jeffers.

But, after several years of wear and tear on unfinished surfaces, it will cost a lot more than $18,000 to bring the roads up to the town's specifications, noted Councilman Scott Houghtaling.

The current estimated cost is more than $85,000, and would involve totally rebuilding Westover, Houghtaling said.

The town is committed to doing the work as soon as possible, Houghtaling said, but cannot do it with town highway department crews.

The town board resolved to accept bids on the project until July 10 at 10 a.m.

Haggerty's closes again

Haggerty's is for sale.

The Delaware Avenue restaurant and bar recently closed its doors for the second time in two years, and this time it's for good, said co-owner Diane Acosta.

"It would be four years that we've had it this July," said Acosta. "I'm sad about it because I thought we could have made it work, but we didn't start with enough capital."

"We certainly had a lot of backing in the community. The last six months were great. We just looked into the future and thought it would be a long time before we turned a profit."

The building is owned by former state Sen. Howard Nolan, who is also a partner in Delaware Plaza, just across the road.

BC school board reviews district goals

By Dev Tobin

For students, June is a time when their achievements are measured by the numbers—final grades and averages, class standing and Regents test results.

June is also the time when the Bethlehem Central school district measures itself against its goals for the year, and prepares revised goals for next year (see box).

Although progress on some of the goals is hard to quantify, there are some numbers that attest to the creation of a more positive climate, especially in fewer incidents that require official student discipline.

"The disciplinary statistics from the middle school and high school are particularly revealing," said Superintendent Leslie Loomis.

At the middle school, referrals for administrative disciplinary action declined by more than 40 percent, from 1,421 in 1993-94 to 845 this year, and out-of-school suspensions fell almost off the chart, from 90 in 1993-94 to eight this year, Principal Steve Lobban reported.

In part, the out-of-school suspensions were reduced through a new in-school Saturday suspension, which was served by 18 students, two of them twice, Lobban said.

The dramatic declines are largely the result of middle school staff "taking other approaches" to discipline problems, "dealing with it themselves before referring a student to the administration," Loomis said.

At the high school, Principal Jon Hunter reported "a trend of decreasing incidents in fighting, smoking and theft."

Hunter noted that "reported student theft," usually 20 to 25 a year, was down to 10 this year.

The actual number of students disciplined for smoking is up this year, but Loomis noted that was due to "greatly increased enforcement," and that there has been noticeably less smoking in the rest rooms this year.

The high school has also begun its own six-session smoking cessation program for students, Hunter added.

In adapting the goals for next year, Loomis noted that parents and staff had suggested putting a higher emphasis (the first goal, rather than the fourth) on student academic achievement.

The new goals also include an emphasis on communicating student achievement results district-wide.

The school board will meet tonight to adopt the goals for 1995-96. The meeting is at 8 p.m. in the district office at 90 Adams Place.

Also on the agenda are an update on the status of state aid for 1995-96, a discussion of long-range planning with architect Marty Weber, and a presentation honoring Glenmont Principal Don Robillard, who is retiring this year.

BC goals change slightly

Comparing BC's goals for next year with the district's goals for this year, subtle changes in emphasis are evident.

1994-95 goals

1. Stakeholders in each building will develop an action plan for creating a more positive operating climate characterized by mutual respect, and procedures for assessing growth.

2. Stakeholders in each building will develop and implement action plans which concentrate on:

- developing positive interaction among staff, students and parents;
- increasing positive student behavior and intervening creatively to reduce negative student behavior;
- valuing diversity;
- exercising collective responsibility for buildings and property;
- increasing the number of students involved in meaningful school and community service.

3. The district will engage in long-range planning and make decisions regarding technology, long-term maintenance, and the capacity of the middle school and high school.

4. Each building and department will continue to work on improving student achievement through consistent high standards, effective assessment, and shared decision making.

1995-96 goals

1. To review the current status of student achievement, by building and department, identify specific improvement targets, implement plans to achieve targets, and collect and communicate results district-wide.

2. To support initiatives that focus on student personal and social responsibility through:

- positive interaction among students, staff and parents
- student involvement in school and community service
- the reduction of destructive student behavior against self, others or property
- appreciation of and respect for diversity
- intervention for at-risk students

3. The district will make long-range planning decisions and seek community support to address increasing enrollment and space needs K-12, to effectively integrate technology into the curriculum, and to provide for long-term maintenance of district facilities.

4. To use cost-effective approaches to improve the quality of the educational program through reallocation of resources and promotion of efficiency and innovation.

Mission of mercy to Mozambique

By Susan Graves

The First United Methodist Church in Delmar is collecting medical materials for the hospital and supplies for the orphanage at Chique in Mozambique.

Norm Elfeldt, chairman of the mission committee, said medical and dental supplies and tools are desperately needed in Mozambique. "Anything, a box of nails, nuts, bolts, anything" will be gratefully appreciated, he said.

A receptacle for donations is located in the church parking lot on 428 Kenwood Ave. in Delmar. The box will be shipped to Mozambique in July, Elfeldt said.

Orphanage needs include: single-size beds and bedding, wash basins, extra large cooking pits, plastic dinner and flatware, sewing machines and school supplies.

All types of medical supplies including medicine and instruments are being collected. Elfeldt said even something as basic as aspirin is needed.

Volunteers in Mission Members from the Troy Methodist Conference, including Dawn Bailey from Delmar will accompany the donations to Mozambique. Bailey, 35, said she had heard about the devastation in Mozambique two years ago and this year decided to apply as a volunteer. Bailey, a nursing student at Maria College, said her 7 and 12 year-old children will stay with her mother while she is away. "I just became intrigued," she said.

Bailey, along with 19 other volunteers, will leave the U.S. on July 10 and return Aug 4. She expects to do both nursing and construction work during her visit. Bailey is in her last year of nursing school at Maria College.

She said statistically, Mozambique is the poorest country in the world. During its civil war 100,000 civilians were killed in a two-year period, Bailey said.

Along with the bins with donations, Bailey and her fellow volunteers will hand carry suitcases of medicines and antibiotics.

Bailey said her children, Vanessa, 12, and Casey, 7, have been collecting bottles and cans as their contribution to the relief efforts. So far the children have collected $34 to donate to the Mozambique effort. "I think this has made my family more aware" of what is going on in the world, Bailey said.

And so far, the community's response has been "wonderful."

"It's been incredible — churches, kids in school, just about everyone has helped out, she said.

Depending on their skills, the volunteers will work either at the hospital or with building projects, said Elfeldt. On Saturday, July 8, the materials that have been collected will be packed in two 20 foot containers for shipment.

To arrange to make a donation or for information, call Elfeldt at 439-3879 or Bailey at 439-2843.

Fact finder's advice could solve impasse

By Dev Tobin

After almost two years without a contract, the Voorheesville school board and the Voorheesville Teachers Association have not come close to resolving their differences over how much teachers' pay should go up.

So, Sumner Shapiro, a fact finder from the Public Employee Relations Board, was engaged last fall to try to resolve the impasse.

In his 39-page decision, Shapiro recommended that the district and the teachers come together on a five-year contract with the following increases — 3.25 percent in 1993-94, 3.5 percent in 1994-95 and 1995-96, 4 percent in 1996-97 and 4.25 percent in 1997-98.

Shapiro called his recommendation "a reasonable balance between the teachers' justifiable desire to maintain an average salary position among regional schools, the board's fully rational concern about tax rates and the very real need for a moderate and palatable presentation to the district's voters."

The teachers' union was seeking 5.9 percent annually, with increments, and the school board was offering 2 percent for 1993-94, 3 percent for 1994-95, 3.5 percent for 1995-96, and the lesser of 3.5 percent or the increase in the Consumer Price Index for the final years of the contract, also including increments.

The teachers' union argued that the district has the ability to pay at the 5.9 percent level because of district residents' relative affluence and because the Voorheesville teaching corps "is constituted generally of veteran teachers whose experience, competence and dedication have helped the the district achieve numerous awards and recognition."

The board said the average annual increase in salaries for the previous six years was more than 10 percent, far more than the average raises received by other teachers and more than double the increase in the cost of living.

The board said Voorheesville's true tax rate is higher than that of neighboring districts, and that district voters have clearly demonstrated "reluctance to undertake further tax burdens."

The board argued that teachers should not be immune from what many district residents have had to face — "the new competitive economic realities (of) essentially holding the line in compensation (while) working harder."

Negotiating teams for the teachers and the board will meet today, June 21, to see if they can come to an agreement, according to Superintendent Alan McCartney.

Matters of Opinion

Water politics

It's clear, water politics goes on.

Editorials

Albany Mayor Jerry Jennings says he won't negotiate to supply the water Bethlehem wants to have at a reasonable rate until after the election. This appears to be a purely political ploy to keep the water issue "hot" during this year's political campaigns.

Many people in Bethlehem believe that it would be preferable to continue to obtain residential water from the Vly Creek and Alcove reservoirs. And this would be possible if Albany were to continue to sell us the water our town would like to have at a fair price. Supervisor Sheila Fuller wants to do this, but Albany wants to raise this cost by forcing us to buy more water than we need for residential use.

For months now, the citizens' group, Clearwater for Bethlehem, has been working to keep industrial and residential water supplies separate. They should get behind Fuller to accomplish this.

Not Brockley's too!

Last Saturday, June 17, the door of Brockley's Delmar Tavern closed forever. One more locally-owned family business in Delmar has succumbed to, as people rather glibly say, "the times."

The owners, Greg and Nancy Brockley, are the second generation to run the restaurant. It was started by Greg's late father, Frank, and uncle, James, and has been in operation for 43 years.

The Brockleys give several reasons for closing the restaurant. The bar business has diminished because of the strict enforcement of the DWI law. Fast food and take out eateries, of which Delmar and Elsmere have many, have taken business away from Brockley's. And in common with other of our business people, the Brockleys feel that business suffers, as theirs has, when the economy is poor.

After so many years in the restaurant business, and having learned to cook when he was in second grade, Greg Brockley says that what he's going to miss most now that the restaurant is closed is the people.

The loss of Brockley's at Delmar's Four Corners is sure to be felt deeply for a long time.

Bear this in mind...

Now is the time for all homeowners with lawns, gardens and shrubs to pay attention to the town-wide prohibition against watering between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. This restriction, in effect until the end of October, is necessary both to conserve water and to lessen excessive demands on our town's water system at this time of year.

Sprinkling during the heat of the day isn't such a good idea, anyway. It's then that the sun's rays counteract the sprinkler's efforts and much of the water is lost through evaporation. Also, drops of water on grass and plant leaves act as magnifiers, causing unsightly burned areas and plant damage.

You'll be doing your plants a favor and obeying the law if you water before 10 a.m. and after 8 p.m.

Changing times test Albany Med

The author of this Point of View is chairman of the board of directors and president and chief executive officer Albany Medical Center

By James J. Barba

In America, the land of instant service and technological marvels, we have come to expect quick, high quality results when we have a serious disease. And we don't expect to have to remortgage our home to get them. In fact, isn't it our employer's responsibility to pay for our health care? Or the government's? Traditionally, both have been footing a large share of our medical bills and most of us have had very little out-of-pocket expense to pay.

This comfortable health-care financing scenario is, of course, fast becoming a thing of the past. Due to scientific advances that rely on high technology and the increasingly labor-intensive nature of providing health care, the costs associated with high quality care in this country have been rising astronomically throughout the past decade. And businesses and government, facing tough economic times, have been sending all providers of health care a very clear message: "Enough is enough!"

Both have been restricting the amount of money they're willing to pay for health care, and health-care providers and consumers have begun feeling the effects. Larger out-of-pocket payments for all of us and marginal profits, if not deficits, for many health-care provider organizations and institutions have resulted.

In recent years, a phenomenon known as managed care has been sweeping the country — attempts of big business and insurance companies to limit costs. This — coupled with the flat-lining of government funds provided for care of the poor and elderly and for research — is putting an incredible crunch on academic centers like Albany Medical Center as well as on community hospitals and a wide variety of other health-care organizations.

I am deeply concerned about the threat these societal forces pose to institutions like ours. The Albany Medical Center consists of one of New York state's largest and most sophisticated hospitals (the Albany Medical Center Hospital), one of the nation's oldest medical schools (the Albany Medical College); and one of the region's most active fund-raising organizations (the Albany Medical Center Foundation).

Since becoming affiliated with the Medical Center some 21 years ago, I have never taken this marvelous institution for granted and I don't think any of us can afford to. With 5,700 employees, it's one of the largest employers in the Capital Region. But even more significant is the fact that it is the only health-care organization in the region dedicated to the three-fold

Water system not intended for industrial use only

Editor, The Spotlight:

I see Ms. Galvin has joined the Through-the-Looking-Glass group, for whom right is left and nothing is really as it is. Ms. Galvin adds a new element to the fictions they have proclaimed loud and often over the past year, by claiming that the water system was intended for industrial use only and that she was hoodwinked into believing that not a drop of Hudson River water would flow to residential water faucets in town.

She says, "The town board minutes (of Dec. 11, 1991) speak for themselves. The purported purpose of looking into this source was because of the growing needs of Bethlehem's industrial community."

Ms. Galvin is right on one point: The town board minutes do speak for themselves.

So how did she miss the lengthy analysis of residents' current and projected water needs, presented at the outset to explain the need to supplement our primary source? How did she miss repeated references to both residential and industrial water use throughout the discussion?

mission of patient care, biomedical research and medical education. And it offers many patient care services — such as kidney, pancreas and bone-marrow transplants, level one trauma care, and the region's only full-fledged children's hospital — that are available nowhere else in the area. Thanks to the Medical Center, there are few occasions when it is necessary to seek treatment outside of the Capital Region.

If the Medical Center were not here, and there were no similar institution, we would not be able to attract brilliant men and women to come here and treat the most acute forms of disease and trauma, to teach young men and women the latest technologies and therapies in patient care and to do the advanced research that improves the health and life span of everyone in the region.

To adjust to new economic realities of the marketplace, the Medical Center has been making a number of efficiency improvements and these have already been reaping dividends. For example, last fall our hospital was named one of the Top 15 academic hospitals in the nation. This was based on a study which compared cost, efficiency and quality data. Similarly, our medical school is at the cutting edge in curriculum development, having revised its course offerings to prepare more primary care physicians, which the evolving health-care system is demanding.

Our next step will be to concentrate on participating in the development of an integrated delivery system for the region. Such a sys-

Letters

Perhaps she did not comprehend the mathematics of the problem, which I admit are daunting. Vly Reservoir provides about 3.8 million gallons of water per day, which in 1990 approximately equaled our average daily water use.

During summer periods of greater residential water use in 1990, the peak was 5.7 million gallons per day, thus the need for a supplementary supply. That extra 1.9 million gallons exceeded industry's average daily water use.

Projections were presented that by the year 2040 the average daily water requirement would be 9.2 million gallons with peak days of 13 million or more, and that industry would use about 40 percent of the water. We would need an average of 5.4 million gallons more per day than Vly Reservoir provides. Even on an average day, industrial use would not account for all supplemental water use, much less on peak days.

tem consists of an alliance of health-care providers who commit to work together to provide a full range of services that are as high quality and as cost-effective as possible. Such a regional network would include other hospitals, nursing homes, home health-care agencies, and other health-care providers and would permit the Medical Center and its allies to compete more successfully for managed care business in the future.

And we must do all of this while remaining true to the part of our mission that is dedicated to advancing the frontiers of medicine and finding new treatments and therapies for the most troubling diseases of our time, including AIDS and cancer. I am delighted to report that progress in this area continues to be impressive. We are one of the national centers for AIDS clinical drug trials and for Parkinson's therapies, and recently hosted the U.N. World Health Organization's international conference on skin cancer.

It's going to be a very tricky balancing act, indeed, to ensure that the Albany Medical Center continues to thrive during these challenging economic times. But based on the excellence of our staff, the hard work being done now by board members and the management staff at the Medical Center, and the ongoing community support of our institutional programs, I am confident that the Medical Center will emerge from the 1990s as the leader of a stronger, more efficient regional-based system of care that will benefit all residents of our region and simultaneously will move toward becoming a nationally recognized academic health sciences center.

In thirteen and a half pages of minutes, there is no statement that the water was to be only for industrial uses.

There is one phrase within a long question from Mr. Ringler regarding whether "we are going to be taking this directly to the industrial uses of the Town initially to meet their needs." The answer was that one consideration was to introduce the water in the industrial area as the "area of heaviest hydraulic loading"; it in no way implied that would be the sole use of the water.

In fact, Mr. Ringler "did want to emphasize the reason he asked the question regarding industry is that these facilities aren't being built to accommodate industry, we need these new facilities to meet our own needs currently."

And, Ms. Galvin wasn't "hoodwinked" because what she was led to believe is true: Hudson River water will not be flowing to our taps. From the same town board minutes, Mr. Gunnar asked, "I thought it was said that there would be surface water access as well to the River?" The answer was no. Mr. Gunnar went on to explain that he asked the question because "I thought it was important for people to know we are not taking water from there (the river)."

Another theme in the Looking Glass fiction is that "thousands and thousands of Bethlehem residents," as Ms. Burtis puts it, are opposed to the new water supply. Your reporter explains, "Clearwater collected more than 2,000 petition signatures last year objecting to the use of the new system for drinking water."

Unfortunately, your reporter didn't check his facts. Fewer than 2,000 Bethlehem residents signed the petition, not more than 2,000 and certainly not thousands and thousands. And the significance of those signatures is far from clear. Surely I wasn't the only person who was told the petition was to keep us from drinking Hudson River water. It was presented to me by such a sweet, sincere woman that I would have liked to believe her. But since I knew that we wouldn't be drinking Hudson River water in any event, I didn't sign. I had already spent hours reading the public records in the library; I doubt that everyone whose signature appears had been able to do the same.

Albany's Mayor Jennings also uses Looking Glass, in-is-out, thinking. He says he doesn't want to complete negotiations by August, when our current water contract runs out, because "I don't want it to be placed on the political battlefield." Excuse me, but Mr. Jennings' logic eludes me. Surely if the negotiations are completed months before the election, they would, de facto, be removed from the political battlefield.

By the way, how much extra is it going to cost to purchase water we don't need from Albany?

Christine S. Deys

Bad situation made better

Editor, The Spotlight:

On June 7, the Bethlehem Central High School track teams planned an end of the season celebration with presentations of awards and gifts. Unfortunately, the spirit of the occasion was dulled by the theft of the girls' team coaches' gifts. The packages, which were wrapped and addressed with the names of Coach Hill and Coach Curtis, were taken from a locked car in the parking lot in front of the school. The black and orange jackets were specially ordered for the coaches and were paid for by the members of the girls' team.

When the theft was discovered, a police report was filed. The insurance policy on the automobile didn't cover the loss. Upon learning of this, the Bethlehem Central Track Boosters Club offered to pay for another order of the jackets. The distributor, Godfrey's Sporting Goods, when hearing of the incident, offered to provide replacements at cost.

It's very sad that someone would be so cruel as to steal gifts, knowing who they were for and knowing how this would affect the members of two of our high school's teams.

It's nice to know that the Boosters and the merchant have the ability to make a bad situation better.

We need paid service now You are all champions

Editor, The Spotlight:

An incident occurred in our neighborhood last weekend that served as a blunt reminder that although the town offers a wide spectrum of services, it is still lacking a full-time paid ambulance service.

One of the children in the neighborhood had a medical emergency and 911 had to be called. It took the ambulance approximately 20 minutes to arrive. Fortunately, the child's medical condition was not adversely affected by the response time.

The town should again address the issue of a full-time paid ambulance service. This is one time when the town should be proactive rather than reactive. It should not wait for a tragedy to occur before deciding that this is a service we cannot afford to be without.

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Saturday, June 10, I watched the Voorheesville softball team finish second in the state tournament. It was a great game that was very exciting right up to the end. I want to talk about what this season meant to me as a parent of a player from Voorheesville.

It is great to see your children reach goals they set and to be successful in their quests for victory. It gets more exciting to see a new player each game step up and take control of a situation and come out as the hero of that game. It is great the way the players support each other and show understanding on and off the field.

Many years from now, they will not remember who had what hit, but they will remember the songs they sang on the way to each game and the fun they had this year, the laughter and the tears.

To the three seniors who must leave us this year. We in the stands will miss your smiles and determination. It was your leadership and your wisdom that kept this team going. To our coach: We thank you for taking over this year and showing the girls that winning and having fun go hand in hand. You did it like a champion.

The Voorheesville softball team did not win the big dance this year but they had a lot of fun on the way there. Next year will present new goals and challenges for each of you. The most important challenge you will face next season will be to remember it is a game, and games were made to have fun. Great year, ladies.

Get involved with plans for mall

Editor, The Spotlight:

The public comment period on Southgate has begun and will last until Saturday, Aug. 19.

Southgate is the proposed large regional shopping center construction on Route 9W across from Glenmont School.

Citizens Monitoring Southgate urges the public to get involved and call or write the town with their thoughts on this project.

We urge you to oppose the project as being too large or to insist that if the project is built it be done right.

Southgate is a huge project and we will all have to live with what is built. We see a number of significant problems with the project, including traffic, community character, air quality and impact on the environment.

For more information on the project we invite interested persons to attend our next meeting on Wednesday, June 21, at 7:30 p.m. at Glenmont School.

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Garden Club does a splendid job keeping the flower boxes filled with color all year round in the Town of Bethlehem.

Why can't Delaware Plaza do the same? I enjoy the lovely hanging flower baskets but, why not plant colorful flowers at the entrance to the Plaza too.

I would certainly enjoy a colorful entrance to the Delaware Plaza and I'm sure others would too.

Make your own book in Writers' Workshop

This summer, the Bethlehem Public Library will sponsor its Fourth Annual Children's Writers' Workshop.

Children in grade-three or higher in the fall are eligible to join. The group will meet weekly on Fridays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. from July 7 through Aug. 4.

Members of the workshop will have an opportunity to meet several local writers, while learning to write, edit, illustrate and bind their own books. The books will remain in the library for a year for other children to read and enjoy. Adult volunteers are also needed to assist with the program.

Children will be honored at a reception on Tuesday, Aug. 15, at 7 p.m. Young authors who participated in last year's workshop will be invited to come and bring their books home with them.

For information or to register, call the children's room at 439-9314.

Last year, Jessica Blackwell wrote The Pet Sitters in the writers' workshop. She also illustrated the cover shown above.

Join up to travel the world

The library's "Read the World Over" Summer Reading Club begins Monday, June 26.

Club members can tour other countries through colorful displays, great books and special events on Thursdays.

The club is open to all area children entering first-grade up to eighth-grade. Adults who enjoy reading aloud to family members can also join this year.

Young people register by setting a goal for the number of books they want to read this summer. Club members report on books read Monday through Friday, from July 3 to Aug. 11.

Members can write, draw or tell about the books they read. Adults report time spent reading aloud with family members.

Families are invited to list their favorite books and, if they wish, include photos of family read-aloud times.

Beginning July 13, there will be a special program on Thursdays at 7 p.m. for reading club members.

Dancer and choreographer Carolyn Kaye will kick off the series with "Rhythms and Visions of India and the Middle East" on July 13. Student volunteers will lead "Guess-a-Book Games," an exciting evening of book-related games on July 20.

Food will be the focus of "Global Treats" on July 27, and singer-songwriter Tom Sieling will lead an "Around the World Song Tour" on Aug. 3. The Scotia-Glenville Children's Museum will magically transport Club members to Spain for "Juegos Del Verano" on Aug. 10.

Club members and parents who have successfully reached their goals are invited to celebrate a summer of reading with a "Back Home Again" party hosted by DJ Terry Ryan, "Mr. Detroit," on Thursday, Aug. 17 at 2 p.m. or 7 p.m.

Young people who are learning disabled, visually impaired or who have a physical disability can also register for the club and request books in braille, large print or books on tape.

Librarians at the New York State Talking Book and Braille Library in Albany will select books based on age, gender and interests and will send books to the library or directly to a young person who is registered. For information, call the youth services desk at 439-9314.

The library is hosting exhibits by four local artists through June 30. In the catalog area is a display of Raku pottery by JoAnn Axford, a member of Troy's Hudson River Clay Factory potters' cooperative and Heldeberg Workshop teacher.

Raku, a form of decorative, fired pottery, was originally used to produce ware for the Japanese tea ceremony.

Assemblage art created by Ruth

Young is on display in the adult book area. Assemblage is a three dimensional collage-like, 20th-century art form made by fastening together fragments and objects of all sorts that create amusing and even startling effects.

Oil paintings by two Voorheesville residents, Robert Alft and Bethlehem Art Association President Jean Eaton, are on display in the foyer gallery.

Jean Eaton's country home is the inspiration for the 23 oils and framed prints of birds and nature scenes in her exhibit.

Alft's landscapes feature the colors of changing seasons and familiar locales.

TV-31/Bethlehem, the library's public access station serving the towns of Bethlehem and New Scotland, will be on hiatus until June 30 to prepare for connection to the area's recently upgraded fiber-optic system. Regular programming will resume Monday, July 3.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

Dental X-Rays

Patients oftentimes wonder about the importance of dental x-rays. There is a common misconception that dental x-rays are taken only to look for cavities. The fact is that we take x-rays to safeguard the health of our patients - to protect them from tumors, cysts and infections in their gums and jaws, as well as identifying cavities.

This is why we say dental x-rays actually save lives. When caught in time, most problems are relatively simple to care for. Believe it or not, there are 288 different diseases which can develop in the mouth and jaws. Many of these can only be found on dental x-rays. Obviously we hope to detect any such disorders before they become more serious, and in time to keep the patient from any suffering or ill health.

It is not pleasant to talk about, but people do die from diseases which originate in the mouth. Death usually occurs when the disease travels and lodges in another organ such as the brain, heart or kidneys. The death certificate may not list "oral disease" as the cause of death; however, some deaths attributed to "brain abscess" or "kidney failure" may have originated in the mouth.

It is a harsh reality, but many patients will testify that had they delayed having x-rays taken their outcome may have been a tragic one. The importance of dental x-rays is a topic everyone should be fully aware of.

Three teams vie for top spot in Tri-Village league

By James A. Williams

Jeffrey Levine, CFP, Horticulture Unlimited and Howard Banner, DDS, all posted two wins last week to advance in the standings as the 1995 Tri-Village Little League season moves through the final week of play.

The victories by Levine and Banner put both teams in close contention for the division lead, now held by Farm Family Insurance, by only a game.

"Anything can happen," said Levine coach David Kidera, whose team has won five straight games since the Memorial Day mid-break.

Tri-Village LL Majors Division

Farm Family Insurance	11-4
Jeffery Levine, CFP	10-5
Howard Banner, DDS	10-6
Klersy Building	9-7
Davies Office Refurbishing	8-7
Jawbreakers	7-8
Messina and Cahill	6-9
Burt Anthony Associates	6-9
Horticulture Unlimited	6-10
Friedman and Manning	3-13

Levine defeated Burt Anthony Associates 10-9 on Friday, June 16, and came back the next day, to score a crucial victory over league leader Farm Family 12-9.

The story in game one, according to Kidera, was the strong pitching of Craig Hermann, a big, quiet 12-year-old who has seen limited mound action this season. Hermann pitched four innings of no-hit ball although he gave up a run when he walked a batter who eventually scored as the result of several defensive miscues and crossed the plate on a sacrifice fly out. Hermann faced only 16 batters, just four more than a perfect game over four innings.

Game two for Levine, with Farm Family Insurance, was a see-saw affair. Farm Family scored three runs in the first inning, then watched the lead disappear in the third inning, when the Levine men came back with three runs to tie the score.

From that point, Levine scored three runs in each of the following three innings and never lost the lead. Farm Family scored three runs each in the fifth and sixth innings, but was behind 12-9 at the end of the game.

Josh Burnett pitched for six innings, and hitting honors went to Jon Nowak with a triple, double, single and three RBI, Adam Rodriguez with a triple, single and 3 RBI, and Jon Levine with three singles.

In defeat, Farm Family's Mark Bulger and Aaron Griffin each had two hits and two RBI, and Paul Wolfert pounded out two doubles.

Howard Banner, DDS, which had an 8-2 record at the mid-break, but slumped into a four-game losing streak after that, bounced back to post two consecutive wins, 16-9 over Klersy Building on Wednesday, June 14, and 10-6 over Messina-Cahill on Saturday.

Banner's game had all the earmarks of its first encounter with Klersy earlier this season when they were tied at the end of regulation play, and went into extra innings, eventually losing 5-4.

There were extra innings this time, too, when the score became knotted at 9 after six innings. But, the difference this time was that the Bannermen pounded out seven big runs in the top of the seventh and pitcher Ryan Williams retired the side in order to win the game going away.

Brandon Cary hit a triple and single in the game, while Mason Jones and Dan Cook each hit doubles. Singles were also tapped out by Jones, Williams, Mike Hoghe, Seth Cuzdey and Mike Banner.

The story in game two, similar to the Levine game, was the pitching of a 12-year-old who had not pitched all season. Dan Cook, in his first mound appearance, pitched three innings of shutout ball, striking out five Messina-Cahill batters, and giving up only one hit. Cook also helped his own cause by belting a double to drive in the go-ahead run.

Sr. Babe Ruthers win three, maintain unbeaten record

By Scott Isaacs

The Bethlehem Shredded Eagles remained undefeated in Senior Babe Ruth League play, winning three more games last week, taking their record to 7-0.

The Eagles have been dominant this season in their quest to make the state tournament in July.

On June 13, Bethlehem dismantled Gunderland II, 12-0. Nathaniel Sajdak notched his third win with a complete game five-hitter. No batters were walked, and he struck out six.

Kevin Blanchard paced the offense with two hits and four RBI. Todd Everleth was 3 for 4 with two stolen bases. Aaron Thorpe hit a RBI triple.

On June 14, Colonie II attempted to knock the Eagles off their perch, but failed, losing 6-5 in eight innings.

The short-handed Eagles cinched the game in the top of the eighth, when Ted Hartman singled, went to third on Keith Riccio's single and scored on Andy O'Brien's clutch single. O'Brien had three hits and three RBI, and Everleth added two hits. Thorpe got the win, striking out eight in four innings of relief.

On Sunday, the red-hot Eagles scorched Central 8-5 in sweltering heat. Sajdak garnered his fourth win of the season, topping it off with his first career home run, an inside the park shot in the sixth inning that gave the Eagles a four-run cushion.

Bethlehem plays Colonie I tonight, June 21, in a battle of the unbeaten. The rivals will lock horns at Bethlehem Central Middle School at 6 p.m.

The trophy, a pewter tray, is given to the cadet who contributed the most valuable service to athletics.

Houston graduated from the academy and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army.

Area bicycle racers taking to the road

Team Superclub and the OTRCC will continue its rural Albany Twilight series of bicycle races on Thursdays, June 22 and 29.

Babe Ruth bats heat up

The Bethlehem Babe Ruth bats heated up last week in both inter-league and away games.

At the 13-year-old level, Houghtaling's Market behind Ryan Sweeney's complete game victory on the mound and a booming triple and double, thrashed Central of Albany 12-4. Tim Hwang went three for four to help the winning cause.

In an away game at Sorensco, Houghtaling's was tripped up 6-0. Greg Ciprioni and Ben Levine had the team's only two hits.

Anaconda split a pair, beating Blanchard Post 12-8 and losing to Sorensco 12-5.

In the victory, Adam Zaranko had two line-drive doubles and Pat Davis a double and single. In the loss, John Roth hammered a long double and scored two runs to key the Blanchard effort.

In 14- and 15-year-old action, Tucker-Anthony lost a heart-breaker to Twin Town 7-6 in an extra-inning contest. Brian Yovine pitched seven strong innings in vain. Mike Quackenbush went three for four at the plate, and Jeff Taylor made a couple of sparkling catches in the field.

Matt Reuter struck out 11 and gave up only five hits to lead Farm Family over Otto Olds 12-2. Jason Hessberg and Brian Davies each had three hits. Matt Kelly singled, doubled and scored both runs for Otto. Farm Family leads the league with a 9-2 record.

Owens Corning stayed close bringing its record to 8-3, with a 12-2 romp over Callanan Industries. Evan McQuide pitched a two hitter and Darin Huggins played superb defense at third base.

V'ville 'Birds will have big cleats to fill in '96

By Joshua White

The Voorheesville girls' softball team will have big cleats to fill next year, according to their coach.

But right now, she is savoring this year's victories. "It feels unbelievably great," said head coach Nadine Bassler. "I'm very, very happy for the team to get this far. The girls deserve all the credit. They did the work to get here."

Voorheesville can claim that they are the number one ranked Class C public school in New York state since Seton Catholic, the state champion, is a private school. In addition, other accomplishments in the season included winning a second straight Colonial Council Championship and capturing the No. 1 seed in the Section II Tournament.

The Lady Birds finished the 1995 season with an overall record of 23-3.

"The biggest accomplishment I saw was that the girls played as a team from start to finish," said Bassler. "Also, they enjoyed each other and had fun."

Larina Suker, the 1995 Colonial Council MVP, pitched remarkably for the Lady Birds. She hurled two no-hitters during the season and had a career-high 20 strikeouts in the semifinal win over Hampton Bays. Voorheesville received clutch hitting from unsung heroes Deah Burnham and Jane Meade throughout the state tournament. In addition, Jen Delaney and Lauryn Lloyd were both valuable members at the plate and on the field. Sara Growick will be remembered for some of her game-saving catches in the outfield.

But the play of three seniors, Kelly Griffin, Kristin Dougherty and Cristie Arena, will be missed most from next year's squad.

"We have some big cleats to fill in the infield next year from losing Kelly, Kristin and Cristie," said Bassler. "Their stability, experience, confidence and leadership will be lost from this team."

If everything continues the way it has over the past two years, the Lady Birds will win the state championship next year. Last season, Voorheesville lost in the state semifinal game. This year, they reached the state championship and lost. However, that accomplishment is easier said than done.

The pitching power of Suker and Delaney should bring the team's strength back next year. The infield seems to be the major question mark. Players such as Christina Schachne, Elicia Schachne, Meade, Tia Sullivan and Nicole Daigle will compete for spots in all four positions. Voorheesville's outfield will remain solid with the return of Burnham, Growick and Lloyd.

Nonetheless, Bassler doesn't want to think about next year.

"I just want to enjoy what we have accomplished this season," she said.

board's recommended zoning law. Monday, the town board agreed without voting on two of the changes — increasing minimum residential lots sizes in commercial and industrial zones to one acre, and increasing minimum lots sizes with water and sewer from one-half to three-quarter acre in the RA zone.

After almost a year of often-heated debate, the controversy had been winnowed down to how large the new R-2 zone in the northeast quadrant should be.

Decker joined Councilwoman Victoria Ramundo and Councilman Edward Donohue in support of a larger two-acre zone, and Supervisor Herb Reilly and Councilman Scott Houghtaling continued to oppose expanding the R-2 zone.

The larger R-2 zone had been requested by many landowners in the area of Hilton, Krumkill and northern Font Grove roads, Donohue noted.

Donohue said that any developer who would like to have smaller lots in that zone could apply for a planned unit development through the town board, giving the town "proper controls."

But not all landowners in the disputed area want larger lots.

The new R-2 zone as proposed includes 75 lots of the proposed 170-lot Tall Timbers subdivision on Hilton Road, which would have been allowed in the medium-density residential (MDR) zone that the planning board recommended for that area.

And Dr. Steven Lynch, who owns land on Font Grove Road, argued that he did not want his land to be rezoned.

"I bought the property with one-acre zoning, and did not vote or sign a petition" for larger-lot zoning, Lynch said.

The public hearing on the proposed new zoning law will be on Thursday, July 6, at 7 p.m., in the auditorium of Clayton A. Bouton High School, Route 85A. The town board is then expected to approve the new law at its meeting on Monday, July 10, at town hall.

Channels

benefit from enhanced picture quality and fewer breakdowns, Kehoe said.

The system upgrade, conducted by Cablevision of Rensselaer, was started last summer and completed in early April. A mailing to all cable subscribers was sent out recently notifying them of the changes and what additional channels they could expect.

Monthly rates are not expected to change significantly, according to Cablevision spokesman George Smede. "They'll go up somewhat" depending on the type of package a subscriber chooses.

For subscribers to the bare-bones cable package, Broadcast Basic, the monthly charge will remain $7.20.

Family Cable, which offers 29 channels, will cost $21.02. From there, though, the sky's the limit, since a plethora of channels can be added on to these packages — at an extra cost of course.

To take advantage of the upgraded system, subscribers will need to exchange their old converter boxes for new ones. Cablevision has opened an office in the former Northeast Savings Bank office at the Town Squire Plaza in Glenmont so that consumers can make the exchanges locally and not have to travel to Rensselaer.

The Cablevision office on Route 9W is open Monday through Friday from 2 to 7 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Suit

constructing the 50-unit apartment complex for low-income seniors.

The stop-order request was filed by attorney Douglas Fisher (and his wife, Cheryl) along with attorney Rona Devane (and her husband, Michael) on behalf of the residents of Dutchbrook.

The most recent lawsuit was filed against the town board, challenging its July 1, 1993, designation of the Marie Rose Manor site as a senior citizen residential district. The site was formerly zoned single "A" residential.

The lawsuit, which also names the Sisters of Holy Names of Jesus and Mary of New York Province Inc. and the DePaul Management Corp., seeks to annul the zoning change, claiming that the town board's action was "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of its discretion, an error of law, not supported by substantial evidence and a violation of lawful procedure."

The gist of the issue, Fisher said, is that the town zoning code stipulates 11 criteria by which the town board must abide in designating an SCRD.

"We say eight out of the 11" do not apply in this instance, Fisher said. For example, one of the criteria stipulates that a senior citizen residence district be linked by a pedestrian thoroughfare with nearby services such as shopping.

"There are no sidewalks (planned) at Marie Rose Manor and there are no sidewalks on Marquis Drive, Fisher said.

The initial lawsuit challenged the site plan approval granted by the town planning board, citing questions over parking, building setbacks and environmental impacts.

It's unfortunate that it's reached this point.

Sheila Fuller

Despite the spate of legal action, town officials remain supportive of the project, as does the Catholic Diocese.

"It's unfortunate that it's reached this point," said Supervisor Sheila Fuller. "Many of our senior citizens are looking forward to moving in there. Does this mean we won't have a place for our low-income seniors? Many of them want to stay in this community."

Fisher said that it's been no easy task putting together all of the legal documents, noting that he spends all his free time working on the case.

The residents of Dutchbrook feel strongly about the issue, he said, and while supportive of the concept of senior housing, remain opposed to the site picked out by DePaul Management.

Jr. Museum's collection gets all dolled up

By Joshua Kagan

The Junior Museum in Troy will unveil its newest permanent exhibit, a collection of dolls from around the world, on Sunday, June 25, with a multicultural family program.

"The dolls have been in our collection for many years," museum Education Director Ellen Sullivan said. "They've basically been used for short temporary programs. We discovered boxes and boxes of these dolls and thought they would make tury when middle class families began to be able to take vacations and brought dolls home as souvenirs.

"It's a huge variety," said Sullivan. "Some are collecting dolls children wouldn't play with. Others are well-worn and well-loved by children."

Sullivan said dolls are "the universal plaything" and can be used as more than an entertaining diversion.

"The dolls can be used in two ways," she said. "You can teach about the physian excellent display."

The exhibit will showcase dolls from various cultures and time periods, including some rare and valuable dolls. Highlights of the exhibit include:

- Brownie dolls, which are "good-natured mischievous goblins who do good deeds for people" according to Sullivan. The dolls, based on a Scottish legend, were the subject of several children's stories from around the turn of the century.

- Peg wooden dolls made in 17th, 18th and 19th-century America as a diversion for girls and women. The dolls, which range in size from several inches long to life-size, contain moveable limbs. Girls and women would make clothes for their dolls.

- Corn-husk dolls, dolls commonly made by the Iroquois.

- Parisian dolls, dolls popular in the 1800s that were dressed in the latest fashions from Paris.

The exhibit also includes elaborate Chinese dolls marking the emperor and empress, a World War II-era American doll depicting a U.S. soldier and a variety of foreign dolls popular in the 19th cen-cal composition of dolls and you can use them as tools to teach about other cultures."

Multiculturalism will be a recurring theme during the exhibit's opening. There will be clothes from various cultures children can dress up in, books on world cultures from the Book House in Stuyvesant Plaza, and a variety of ethnic foods from area restaurants.

Museum educators will run doll-making stations from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Participants will make dolls that are used in various cultures. They will make Inuit finger dolls, a finger puppet used by Inuit women during ceremonial dances; Central American Worri dolls, which children would tell their worries to before going to bed; Kokeshi dolls, a simple Japanese wooden doll with bright clothing; and Akuaba dolls, dolls from Ghana that were carried by girls who wanted to have children some day or by women who wished their children to be healthy and beautiful.

The museum is preparing to move to a new location at the Winslow Building on the campus of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. This building is four times larger than the museum's current location, and the doll exhibit is one of several new exhibits that will be used to fill the additional space.

The Junior Museum is located at 282 Fifth Ave. in Troy. To reach the museum, take I-787 north to Cohoes, turn right onto Route 470, cross the Hudson River into Troy, continue straight, then turn right onto Fifth Avenue. The museum is a brick building six blocks from the turn. It has organized family programs in science, history and the arts for 41 years.

For information, call the museum at 235-2120.

Major summer theaters open this week with British and French comedies

Two venerable summer theaters in western Massachusetts open this week with comedies by a contemporary English playwright and a French writer considered the best 100 years ago.

The Williamstown Theatre Festival, with almost 35 years of operations, opens tonight (June 21) with a production of Alan Ayckburn's Time of My Life, a comedy about older couples trying to adjust to new ways of doing things.

Meanwhile Friday night, (June 23), the Berkshire Theater Festival which extends back into the 1930s, will present a new adaptation of Georges Feydeau's farce Rue De L'Amour which is set in Paris at the turn of the century.

Martin P. Kelly

For Williamstown, the company is firmly in the control of artistic director Peter Hunt who took over seven years ago when the founder Nikos Psacharopoulos died.

Ayckburn's comedy is the first at Williamstown by this prolific British playwright who is known here as the English Neil Simon. Time of My Life runs through July 2. Reservations are at (413) 597-3400.

For the Berkshire Theater festival, this will be the first year under the direction of Arthur Storch who took over for Julianne Boyd. This year Boyd has her own company at Great Barrington.

Storch has for years been the chairman of the Syracuse University theater department and artistic director of the

His season of plays is a departure in that they introduce new works including the adaptation of Feydeau's farce along with a production later of Cowgirls, a new country western musical involving the adventures of six women on tour.

The last play of the season at the Berkshire Theater Festival will be Kafka's Wick, an American premiere about Franz Kafka by Alan Bennett. Rue de L'Amour plays through July 15. Reservations: (413) 298-5536.

Nomadic theater group plays again in Forever Plaid at Spa Little Theater

Heritage Artists which for years struggled to stay at the Cohoes Music Hall as its permanent professional company, now rises Phoenix-like each summer to present the musical Forever Plaid at the Spa Little Theater on the SPAC grounds.

Forever Plaid, the musical about a heavenly quartet of singers who return for one more performance of 50s and 60s music, has proved to be a popular show throughout the country. Heritage Artists had hoped to present it at Cohoes but finally got a chance to do it in the area.

The company's artistic director David Holdgrive has scheduled the show through July 16 with performances Wednesday through Friday evenings at 8:15 p.m. and Saturdays at 5 and 9 p.m. There are also Wednesday and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m.

Reservations and information available at 587-3330.

Two theaters offer summer classes for youngsters in drama training

The MacHaydn Theater in Chatham and the Park Playhouse in Albany are both offering summer opportunities for school age children.

The eight weeks of classes offered at the Chatham-based MacHaydn Theater are designed for children of ages six to 15. They will be trained in performing skills and also have an opportunity to see professional actors work on the summer season at the theater. There is a tuition fee.

Later in the summer, the students will be presented in a performance of a play designed for them by the teacher, Edgar Acevedo. Information is available at 392-9292.

Holligan said that Carona had received his driver's license "within the past month." He added that Carona had just passed another vehicle on the short straight-away before the curve.

Holligan noted that both teens were wearing seat belts, and that airbags had deployed also. But front air bags provide limited protection in side-impact crashes.

Both Carona and Miller were taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital by the Delmar Rescue Squad. Miller is listed in serious condition Tuesday with head and spinal injuries. Carona was treated and released Saturday.

Holligan said that the accident was still under investigation, and that no charges had yet been filed, as of Tuesday.

"In all likelihood, there will be some charges," Holligan said.

Normanside golf tourney to benefit Camp Good Days

Camp Good Days and Special Times will hold its seventh annual Golf Tournament of Love on Monday, July 10, at the Normanside Country Club on Salisbury Road in Delmar.

The tournament will raise funds for the camp, which benefits local children touched by cancer, AIDS, severe burns or violence.

Golfers and corporate sponsors will be treated to lunch, a full day of golf (including on-course food and beverage service), a cocktail hour, dinner and awards.

Cash awards will go to the four best teams. There will be a chance to win a 1995 Acura Vigor for a hole-in-one. There will also be a raffle, with prizes including two round-trip tickets to anywhere in the continental United States on USAir, four tickets to a Buffalo Bills game, and a trip to New York City, including overnight accommodations and tickets to a Broadway show.

Benita Zahn, health reporter for NewsChannel 13, will serve as mistress of ceremonies.

The tournament fee is $200 per golfer. There are several corporate sponsor levels, beginning at $100. For information, call Mike Simpson at Camp Good Days and Special Times at 438-6515.

In Delmar The Spotlight is sold at Convenient-Express, Stewarts, Tri-Village Drugs and Sunoco Elm Ave.
