RCS hangs tough on rules

28 percent of class not on stage

By Dev Tobin

Most of the local media fixated on two Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk seniors who were not allowed to attend their high school graduation because of an overly disruptive senior prank.

But more than a quarter of the senior class was not at graduation for a more basic reason — failure to complete the requirements for a diploma.

RCS Principal Andrew DeFeo said that the number of non-graduating seniors (48 out of a class of 170, or 28 percent) was slightly higher this year, and emphasized that high school diplomas are not handed out on the basis of social promotion.

"If we accept the idea that students learn and mature at different rates, then it follows that not everybody is ready to graduate from high school after 13 years of school," DeFeo said.

Father: Settlement debases son's life

By Jared H. Beck

Twenty-five-year-old Howard Corman ate dinner one last time with his mother, Judith, and brother, Aaron, at their Delmar home on Wednesday, March 13, 1991, and then took his motor scooter out to visit friends.

He never came back home.

Driving on 9W to the Albany house he shared with his father, Selig, Corman crashed into the rear of a Canadian tractor-trailer making a turn. The trailer was overloaded, and its back lights were out, making the rig impossible to see at 9:30 p.m.

As Corman's broken body lay in the middle of the road, a passerby stopped and yelled to the driver to get out of his rig, set up flares and tried to help Corman. But the driver ignored the frantic plea and instead pulled into the nearby Big M Truck Stop, where he fell asleep. Moments later, a pickup truck came along and hit Corman

More than four years later, the Corman family has finally received compensation for Howard's wrongful death, accepting the insurance company's offer of $140,000 Friday, June 23. The main cause of the Town water restrictions could get tougher

By Susan Graves

The Bethlehem Town Board will consider adopting more stringent water conservation regulations at tonight's meeting at town hall.

The Vly Creek reservoir is low — nearly as low as it was in 1985, a very dry summer — and some town residents are not complying with the existing regulations, which limit use from before 10 a.m. and after 8 p.m.

The new restriction would apply to houses with even numbers on even-numbered days from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and the same time periods and for odd-numbered houses on odd-numbered days.

Watering also would be limited to three hours or less a day.

Bruce Secor, commissioner of public works, requested the new restrictions because of the combination of the light snowfall last winter and the below normal rainfall in the spring.

"We're just simply not an irrigation company," said Secor. And with July and August ahead, "We're not exactly going to have monsoons."

Secor said too much water use taxes the system. "Even when nothing is wrong, you have to use the system appropriately," he said.

The problem is exacerbated by residents who are not following the existing limits on sprinkling, said Secor.

Secor said most nearby towns have already adopted the more limiting water conservation measures.

"There's an awful lot not abiding by it," said Supervisor Sheila Fuller.

Fuller said she expected the board to pass the new restrictions. "It is serious; the reservoir is at its lowest point since 1985," she said.

Bruce Secor

Although people who have violated the sprinkling rules have so far only received warnings, in 1985 violating the ordinance was considered a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $50.

N. Scotland Republicans pick slate

By Dev Tobin

Two years after being shut out from the town board for the first time in history, New Scotland Republicans chose a former Voorheesville village trustee to head its ticket in this town election year.

Richard Langford, who stepped down this spring from the village board after 16 years of service, said the all-Democratic town board "seems a little disoriented now. The board should get things done by listening to all sides, then making decisions that will help the whole town."

Langford said he will "lead the town into the 21st century, rather than just reacting to problems as they occur. We need to look ahead, plan ahead, and get the job done."

BC teacher gearing up to cycle for Red Cross

BC middle school art teacher Kathy Nelson is on a roll — or soon will be. In October, Nelson and a friend, Suzanne Sullivan, will be travelling on a 1662.8 mile bicycling fund-raiser for the American Red Cross.

She said she was inspired by several of her colleagues at the middle school who have bicycled for various charities.

Nelson, 31, said she will be training from two-to-three hours six days a week to prepare for the West Coast International Classic. "I hadn't cycled in 10 years, so I need to do a lot of training," she said.

She and Sullivan also need to do a considerable amount of fund-raising for the trip. Both women need to raise double the amount of the cost of the trip, said Nelson about the event which was created by Tim Kneeland & Associates, Inc. Bicycle riders through Kneeland sponsored events have raised more than $9 million for various charities.

Nelson said she chose the Red Cross because it is fundamentally a volunteer organization that helps in everything from major disasters to single-family house fires. "I really think what they do is incredible," she said.

And according to Nelson, 91 cents of every dollar raised for the Red Cross goes directly to victims. "I think a lot of people aren't aware of the work" the Red Cross does," Nelson said.

Before school closed for summer vacation, a group of Nelson's students went door-to-door in their neighborhoods collecting money for the trip. "Some raised over $80," said Nelson who has promised to write to the students during her journey. "I want them to see that if you set a goal and work hard, you can accomplish whatever you want to."

The seventh-graders who are working to raise money are: Lisa Maxwell, Amie Slater, Lainey Forrest, Lauren Sinacore, Danielle Butler, Joey Carlino, Katie Dwyer, Vicki Picarazzi, Stephanie Hollner, Sara Carlson and Robert Shaye.

"I wanted to do this because I think it is a good idea to help others who are in need. I don't think people know how much the Red Cross helps people," Carlson said.

Nelson and 23 other riders will launch their month-long trek from Victoria, British Columbia and finish in Tijuana, Mexico. The bike riders will cover anywhere from 50 to 90 miles per day.

"I expect some days will be more of a challenge than others," said Nelson, who added that she's always been "an adventurer."

"I like the idea of travelling in an unmotorized vehicle," across a big part of the country.

To help sponsor Nelson's trip, write to: Pledge for the Red Cross, PO Box 2459, Albany 12220-0459.

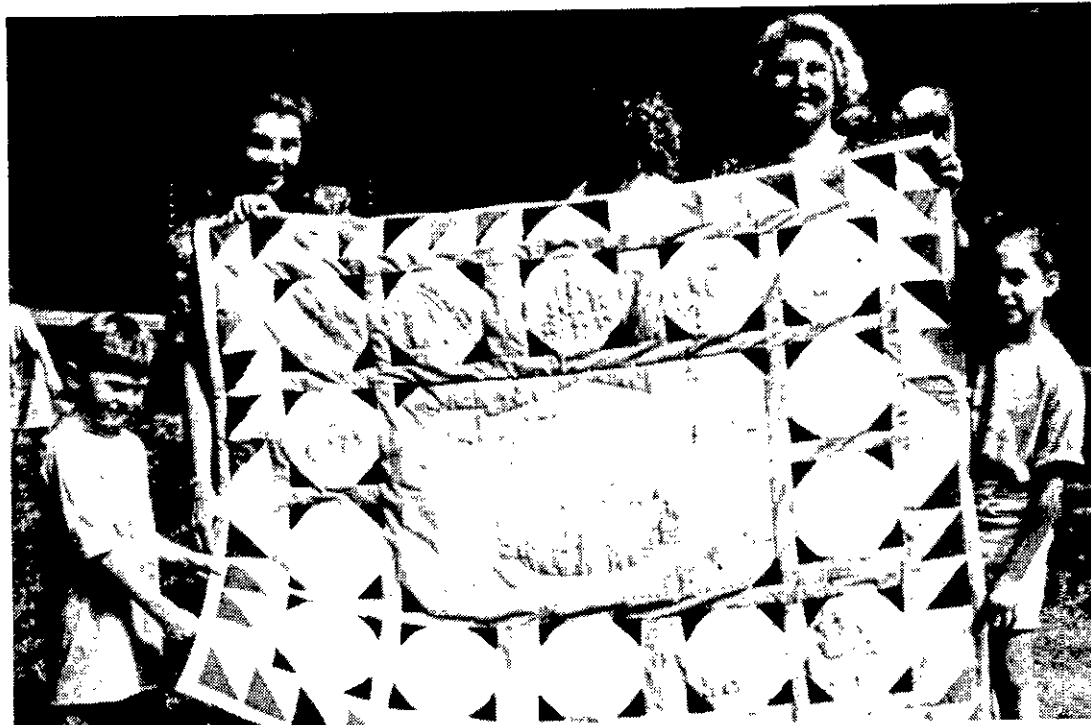

"We greatly appreciate the efforts that Katherine is making on behalf of the Red Cross and thank you for pledging your support to her bicycle challenge," said Nance Kelly Racette, director of development and communications for the Red Cross.

Nelson said she is hoping to raise $5,000 by July and "even more by September."

Burglary suspects nabbed

Bethlehem Police arrested three people recently in connection with two separate incidents.

Michael J. Lumbre, 19, of Weiss Road in Albany, was arrested on Wednesday, June 21, and charged with second-degree burglary and petty larceny in connection with the August 1993 burglary of a home on Magee Drive in Glenmont, police said.

A set of silver flatware and a silver service were taken during the break-in. Lumbre was released on his own recognizance pending a July 18 appearance in Bethlehem Town Court.

On Wednesday, June 14, two teenagers were arrested in connection with the theft of car parts at Geist Bros. Automotive on Frontage Road in Glenmont, police said.

Arrested and charged with grand larceny and criminal trespass were James Moutray, 18, of Asprion Road in Glenmont and Jeremy Mizener, 16, of Glenmont Road in Glenmont, police said.

They allegedly entered a fenced-in area at Geist's and stole car speakers and radio equipment, according to Bethlehem Police Lt. Frederick Holligan.

The suspects were caught on videotape by a nearby surveillance camera, Holligan said. They were released to the custody of their parents pending a July 18 appearance in town court.

Dueling petitions precede final act of New Scotland zoning controversy

By Dev Tobin

When New Scotland Councilman Edward Donohue proposed a larger two-acre zone in the northeast part of town, he said that an "overwhelming" number of residents there wanted larger lot zoning.

"We have to listen and give extra weight to the voice of the people in that area," he said.

Donohue added that his proposal was a form of "zoning by petition" — the lines were drawn based on the impact of the numbers on petitions.

After several months of acrimonious debate, the town board is close to a final decision on a new zoning law (a public hearing is set for July 6, with a final town board vote on July 10).

The last bone of contention is whether several hundred acres around Hilton, Krumkill and Font Grove roads (including half of the proposed 170-lot Tall Timbers subdivision) should be added to a new two-acre minimum zone.

The current version of the zoning law amendments follows the rough outlines of a compromise proposed by the late Councilman Dick Decker, who proposed larger lot sizes in areas where a majority of landowners wanted them.

Councilwoman Victoria Ramundo said that the town board should pay attention to "overwhelming" expressions of public opinion in the context of good zoning for the town.

But "overwhelming," like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder.

We have to listen and give extra weight to the voice of the people in that area.

Edward Donohue

An analysis of the petitions filed with Town Clerk Corinne Cossac following a February public hearing shows that many people in the area of Hilton, Krumkill and Font Grove roads (though nowhere near the 200 claimed by larger-lot advocates) do indeed favor larger lot sizes.

Many more people signed a petition to keep town lot sizes where they are (one-acre minimum, half-acre with water and sewer, for most of the town including the northeast section), but few signatories are from the northeast area.

The petition filed by the Krumkill, Normanskill, Font Grove, Hilton and Wormer Roads Homeowners Association (which has opposed the development of Tall Timbers for almost 10 years) contains 94 signatures representing 72 households, but only 57 signatories from 44 households are from the northeast area.

An addition to that petition, with about 60 more names from 35 households, was sent to the planning board during its consideration of the zoning law amendments in March and April.

On the other hand, a petition to maintain one-acre zoning garnered 335 signatures from 289 households, with only 10 signatories coming from the northeast area.

But Anthony Genovesi found 30 neighbors (from 24 households) on Font Grove Road willing to sign a recent letter asking for zoning that would permit development of Tall Timbers, and subsequent extension of public water to the surrounding area.

Cossac said that her review of the petitions shows that "probably a majority, but not an overwhelming majority" of people in the northeast area favor larger lot sizes.

Karen Moreau, who collected signatures in opposition to larger lot sizes, said that it "doesn't make sense" that many people who live on lots smaller than two acres signed the petition asking for larger lots.

In any event, "Zoning law should be based on the master plan, not on petitions," Moreau said.

School board reinstates BCMS English teacher

By Dev Tobin

At its regular meeting last week, the Bethlehem Central school board approved reinstating Howard D'Arcangelis as a middle school English teacher.

D'Arcangelis had been suspended without pay for the 1994-95 school year following his April 1994 arrest in Albany on a drug possession charge.

Loomis said that D'Arcangelis had successfully completed inpatient and outpatient substance abuse treatment, which was a condition of his reinstatement.

D'Arcangelis is a tenured teacher with 26 years experience, and was paid $56,726 in the 1993-94 school year.

In other business, the board considered whether to allow a BCHS senior to take a new BOCES program.

The New Visions program takes a different tack for occupational education — immersing college-bound high school seniors in an intensive year-long exploration of careers in health care, criminal justice, aviation and engineering.

At last week's school board meeting, Leslie Cook, a registered nurse and certified English teacher, said that the New Visions health care program will be offered for about 15 students for the first time next year.

The integrated academic program involves one day of classroom work in subjects like English, Participation in Government, economics and health policy, and four days of clinical observation work at Ellis Hospital, Cook said.

New Visions students could also take one or two Advanced Placement courses in the afternoon at their home high school, Cook noted.

But, since Bethlehem Central has a policy of offering occupational education through its apprenticeship program, the New Visions program is not available to BCHS students.

Accompanied by his parents, Andrew O'Brien, a senior next year at BCHS, asked the board to make an exception to its policy and allow him to take the New Visions program next year.

Superintendent Leslie Loomis replied that the district had to make many difficult cuts affecting dozens of students during its budget deliberations, and that he would therefore oppose spending about $6,000 for a special program for one student.

"The model is attractive, and will be a wonderful opportunity for the small number of students involved," Loomis said. "But I have real questions about this being a priority if we can't afford an early intervention program for at-risk students and teaching staff to maintain elementary class ratios."

Several courses with prospective enrollments in the teens were also eliminated in the budget, Loomis added.

"There are 280 kids in this class who didn't know about this," said board member Peter Trent.

The board decided to consider O'Brien's request, and reach a final decision at its meeting on July 5.

In another matter, Franz Zwicklbauer, assistant superintendent for business, said that the district's property and casualty insurance bill for next year will be $51,000 less than budgeted.

Zwicklbauer also noted that the district will receive about $183,000 more in state aid in 1995-96 compared to this year, but warned that that figure was artificially high since it included two years worth of growth aid.

New BCHS classrooms needed

By Dev Tobin

Finding space for 10 additional classrooms at Bethlehem Central High School without new construction would be unfair to the school's teachers, so the district is considering adding four new classrooms to the high school.

The need for at least 10 more high school classrooms to handle record enrollment was identified as a top priority during the district's long-range planning process.

Under the previous plan, which would have created the 10 rooms solely through renovation, teachers would lose the faculty room and a faculty workroom.

Without the two faculty rooms, teachers during their free periods would be "crowded into 40 workstations in a fairly small balcony area of the library, and that's not conducive to good education," said Superintendent Leslie Loomis.

The other two rooms that would not be renovated for general classroom uses are a BOCES classroom and two small music rooms.

Board member Happy Scherer noted that the music staff and parents preferred the status quo for the two small rooms.

The revised plan removes rooms that "are least expensive to convert" later if necessary "and have the most onerous effect, particularly on the staff," Loomis said.

The three rooms (two faculty and one BOCES) would be "our margin for growth" if enrollment grows beyond projections, as it has recently, he said.

The costs of converting the two faculty rooms and the BOCES room would be negligible, and the work could be performed by the district's maintenance staff over the summer, Loomis added.

Not converting the BOCES room means the district will receive $21,700 in annual rent for the room, Loomis noted. Also, not renovating the music rooms will avoid spending $33,000.

The architect for the project, Marty Weber, presented two options for the new classrooms at last Wednesday's board meeting.

Both options involve new construction of four first-floor classrooms connected to the two-story section in the rear of the school.

One option, costing an estimated $830,000, would build off the existing glassed-in hallway connecting Wing B with the two-story section; and the other, costing an estimated $977,000, would build off a new corridor connecting the science wing with the two-story section.

Either option would be in addition to the $1,965,500 estimated cost for classroom and library expansion and renovation at the high school that has already been proposed by the long-range planning committee.

Weber said that he favored the more expensive option, since it would create a courtyard and provide an enclosed passageway between two currently unconnected wings of the building.

Board member Dennis Stevens pointed out that, with the courtyard enclosed, doors that open to the courtyard would have to swing into the building and could never be locked.

Weber acknowledged there is a security concern with the courtyard.

"It's possible people could get into the courtyard, then get into the school," he said. "But it's not a unique problem — many schools have courtyards."

Matters of Opinion

The 4th of July

Editorials

The Glorious Fourth—the snaps, crackles and pops and the booms, flashes of light and exploding stars of fireworks are reminiscent of the sounds and sights of battle known intimately by those patriots at Lexington and Concord in April 1775 who skirmished with the British.

It wasn't until June 7, 1776, however, that Richard Henry Lee of Virginia moved in Congress "that these United Colonies are, and ought to be, free and independent States." This was followed by the formation of a committee to decide on the contents of a declaration of independence.

Apparently, Thomas Jefferson drafted the declaration and John Adams and Benjamin Franklin, in consultation with Jefferson, amended it. Congress voted for independence from Great Britain on July 2 and on July 4 the Declaration of Independence was approved by Congress without dissent. It is said that when John Hancock, president of Congress, put his well-known flourish at the end of the document, he said, "There, King George can read that without spectacles!"

Over the years, July 4 has been considered an auspicious date for the inauguration of many enterprises. On that date, for example:

Gov. DeWitt Clinton lifted the first spadeful of dirt, beginning construction of the Erie Canal in 1817. The cornerstones of monuments to George Washington were laid in Baltimore in 1815 and in Washington, D.C., in 1848. The French formally presented the Statue of Liberty to the American people in 1884. Truman declared the Philippines independent in 1946. Alaska and Hawaii were admitted to the Union in 1959 and 1960 respectively, and on July 4th of those years, the new American flags were first raised in our newest states.

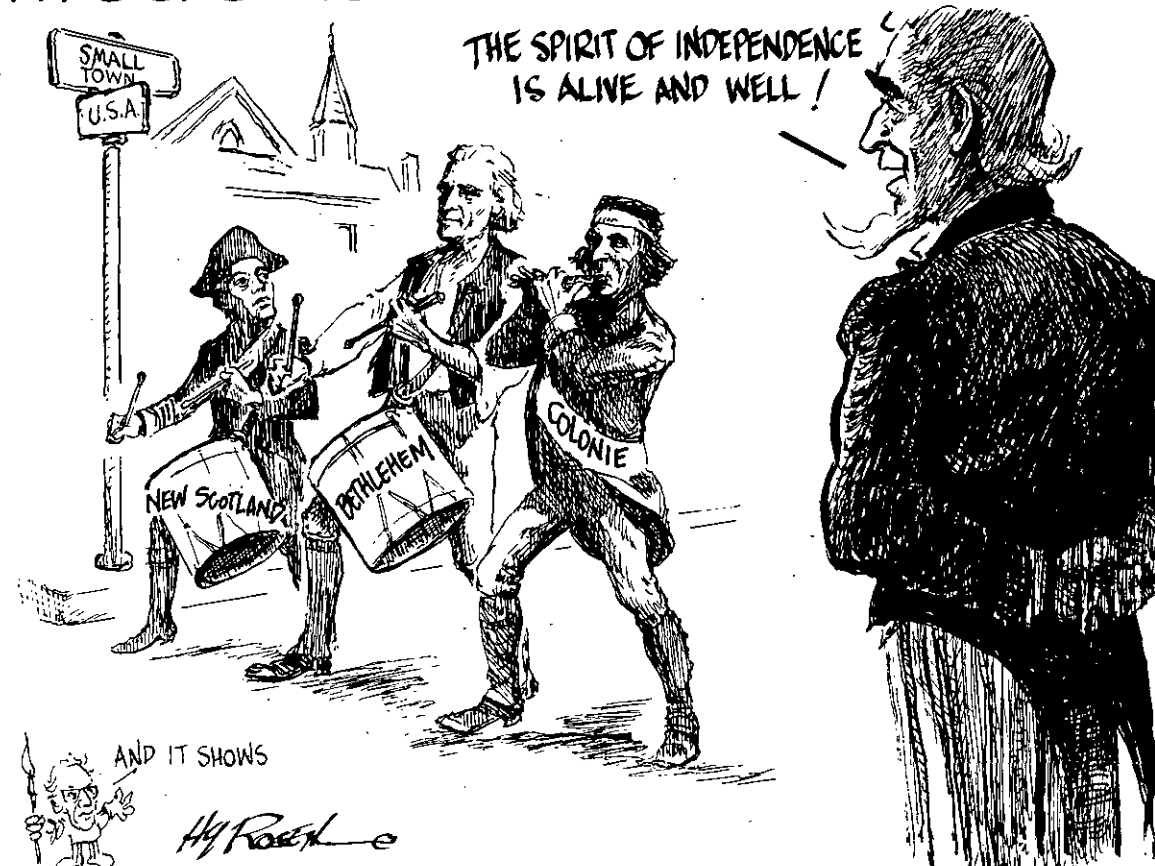

Independence Day is a day of nationwide festivity. Public beaches and parks are crowded. The smell of cooking hotdogs and hamburgers permeates the air. There are parades with bands, veterans' groups, marchers and floats.

It's good for us to spend some time on the 4th, thinking soberly about some of the ideas expressed in the Declaration of Independence:

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. ... Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. ... And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

It has also been said that at the birth of the Declaration of Independence, Hancock said, "We must all hang together." Franklin replied, "If we don't, we shall all hang separately." After all of the trials and tribulations of the past 220 years, we're still hanging in there, together.

Oklahoma: We can't and won't forget

The author of this Point of View is a resident of the Town of New Scotland. She is the Administrative Assistant to the Chief Executive Officer at The Child's Hospital.

By Sharon Boehlke

When I heard about the Oklahoma City bombing, my first reaction was disbelief, followed by anger and sorrow. How could this happen in the United States? As the hours passed and the death toll rose, all we could do was pray for the people who had been in the federal office building there.

At that time, I was finishing a month-long promotion called "Where's Bart?" to benefit The Child's Hospital. Bart was a huge stuffed bear and clues about his whereabouts were given on local radio stations. Eventually, Bart reached Child's and is now in our pre-op pediatric surgical area.

A second promotion was being

held then, too, for hospital employees. The prize, a life-sized white polar bear named Paaka, was won by Carole Stevens, an operating room technician.

As she watched TV, Carole was touched by the sight of children, and adults, in Oklahoma City who had lost loved ones in the bombing—they were carrying and hugging teddy bears. She decided that she'd like to give Paaka to a hospital there where children could hug her as they hugged Bart at Child's.

She told Bryan Jackson, president of WCDA in Guilderland, one of the stations that had helped us with our promotion. He said he'd find transportation for Paaka.

It wasn't long before we were making plans for Paaka to fly to Oklahoma City, where she would leave the plane with a check in her paws, a donation to help the victims of the bombing. Soon, news of our campaign to raise funds was being broadcast over WCDA.

In the meantime, we had made contact with St. Anthony Hospital, located just four blocks from the bomb site. It was the first hospital to assist patients injured by the explosion. In the first 24-36 hours after the bombing, over 500 patients had been treated there and the hospital's expenses were approximately $468,000.

Soon after the first radio announcement of our fund-raising campaign, contributions started to arrive at the radio station and Child's Hospital. It was clear that Capital District residents had identified themselves with the people of Oklahoma City. Funds were collected at the Capitol during lunch hours, at rest areas on the Northway (where truckers were especially generous), in Crossgates Mall, state agencies, schools, fire companies, rescue squads, and a fund-raising event at Evergreen Country Club. Schoolchildren held bake sales and their schools' PTA groups often matched the amounts they raised. Air transportation for Paaka, Brian, and me was donated by United Airlines.

On Friday, April 28, we and news teams from TV Channels 13 and 6 flew to Oklahoma. When we left the plane, Paaka was carrying a check for $31,000, the amount that had been donated during the nine days of our fund-raising campaign.

the ruined federal office building and even on the torn and twisted face of the building itself. Thousands of people, including us, were wearing purple and white ribbons to symbolize the loss of innocent lives. Each time I see a waving flag, now, the memory of Oklahoma City transforms its red and white stripes into purple and white ribbons.

For Bryan and me, it was an exhilarating experience to witness the outpouring of donations from so many people here in the Capital District who wanted to help. And we were humbled by the appreciation expressed by people in Oklahoma City who were thankful for the support offered by people from so far away.

Get behind Clearwater: represent the full story

Editor, The Spotlight:

In an editorial in the June 21 issue of The Spotlight, you suggest that Clearwater for Bethlehem get "behind Mrs. Fuller" to work with her to effect the separation of the residential water system, so that only industry will receive water from the new Hudson River water source. Since your paper has "covered" this issue and Clearwater's involvement in it for the past year (your editorial states we have been involved for several months), your suggestion is somewhat incongruous with the history of our involvement in this project.

For the past two years Clearwater for Bethlehem has tried to work with our Town Government for a constructive reevaluation of this project. During this period of time we have presented material to Mrs. Fuller that contends with both financial and scientific issues related to this project. After the town's consultants, the designers of this project, had to request an additional $3.4 million because of cost overruns, bringing the total cost of the project at this time up to $28 million (over the life of the bonds), we suggested to Mrs. Fuller that an independent consultant be called in. However, our attempts to work with Mrs. Fuller and the Town Board have been repeatedly ignored, rejected and misrepresented in this paper and in the public forum.

Letters

Clearwater for Bethlehem, a non-partisan citizens' group, has been presenting educational programs about this issue for the past year at the public library. We have invited Mrs. Fuller to participate. She has refused. None of this should be "news" to this paper. So it comes as a surprise to me to find an editorial suggesting that we join forces with Mrs. Fuller to work for what we consider the general and financial health of our community.

Mrs. Fuller has made no commitment to separate the systems. In fact when we attended the Town Board meeting on May 10, after she announced the possibility of separating the system, (Times Union on 4/29/95), she told us there were no design changes necessary for effecting this separation. After adamantly asserting for over a year that separating the systems was impossible, on May 10 she declared that no design changes are necessary to separate the new Hudson River water system from the existing water supply. Which of these assertions is the truth?

We ask The Spotlight to get behind Clearwater and represent the full story in its historical accuracy.

It wasn't a very clever prank

Editor, The Spotlight:

This is an open letter to the high school student who set fire to the old sofa I had left on my front lawn for the trash.

Apparently you were quite proud of yourself for committing such a clever "prank." You have even bragged to your friends about it at school. I wonder if they share your sense of humor. Admittedly, I do not.

I did not find it funny to look out my window at 1 a.m. in the morning Sunday, June 18 to see a blazing fire on my front lawn and fire trucks surrounding the area. I don't imagine the firemen thought it was very funny either since they were awakened from their sleep and taken from their families. I'll bet your parents would not have chuckled with light hearted amusement had you set the fire on their front lawn.

Did you ever consider the fire might have spread up my dry lawn onto my home? I imagine not. Your vision of yourself as a jolly prankster are misguided. You are nothing more than a vandal. I would like to thank the person who reported the fire, and I would especially like to thank the firemen for putting out the blaze.

We're proud of Taps player

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Memorial Day, a service was held at the grave of Nathaniel Adams Blanchard, after whom our local American Legion Post was named. The Bethlehem Central High School senior, who played Taps at this service, received an honorarium which he returned with a letter to our parade chairman, Ray Russum.

He student wrote that he considered himself fortunate to have had the opportunity to play Taps in honor of the many Americans who have made the supreme sacrifice for their country. He requested that the honorarium be used by the Post for a charitable purpose in honor of our servicemen.

The young man's donation, along with our own, will help pay for an outing on the Hudson River this summer for several recovering servicemen from the Sam Stratton V.A. Hospital.

It's far from being over

Editor, the Spotlight:

The water for the new Bethlehem supply is coming from the Hudson River. In a letter from the New York State Department of Health dated June 1, 1994 it clearly states, "The intake is an infiltration gallery which will be supplied primarily by the Hudson River." This letter is in the Clearwater file at the library.

Last week a letter writer told you the water is not Hudson River water and claimed the people who circulated petitions opposing drinking Hudson River water deceived you.

As one of the people who collected signatures at the library all last summer, who talked to you at the pool, at soccer games and Picture Day, who manned a booth downtown on Earth Day, and who have met with Health Department and DEC officials, I would like to say to you once again: The Town of Bethlehem intends to draw water from the Hudson River for industrial use and residential drinking water. This is scheduled to occur in late 1995 or early 1996.

We will see you around town again this summer. If you can't make it to the library to read the Health Department letter, we will be glad to give you a copy of it.

Thank you to all of you who signed petitions opposing the use of Hudson River for drinking water. Don't give up. This is a long way from being over.

Don't cut technology program

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a graduate from the middle school last week, I would like to explain the importance of the school's technology program.

It gives students, both female and male, a chance to explore the way today's world works. In this program, students study new advancements in hydroponics, maglev, solar engineering and computers, as well as the basics of structural engineering, architecture and design. Students also get a chance to work with power tools. All of these are important aspects of many of today's jobs.

There is currently a movement to end the technology program. Some people think that it is a waste of school time and tax dollars. That is certainly not the case!

Many students, including myself, enter the middle school having little or no knowledge of technology. However, they leave having a very wide background in many technological fields. For example, if someone had asked me a year ago to explain maglev vehicles, I might have known it had to do with magnets. Now, I know quite bit about it and have actually built a working mini-maglev vehicle. Knowing about maglev will be crucial in the near future, particularly since a maglev train may be built from Albany to New York City. I have also learned how to use power tools safely. This has been helpful since I am interested in theater, which includes building sets. In short, technology is a very worthwhile subject.

It would be a terrible mistake to cut the technology program out of the budget. This course is valuable to all students whatever they may do in the future. I have been fortunate to have been able to take this course. Future students should have the same opportunity.

Those were really the good old days

Editor, The Spotlight:

Her remarkable letter of June 14 certainly outlined the Town of Bethlehem past and present.

I remember well the magnificent Christmas creche annually erected in front of the old Town Hall. It was painted, with pride, by Leon Schenker and Joe Todak, two of our great former art teachers.

And the White Christmas? Rolly Truitt (supervisor of music) and Danny Smith (Mrs. Sydney Smith) were the leaders who spearheaded an entire town in a tremendous dedication of community brotherhood and loving care for the needy.

You see—we Conroes moved to Delmar from Alfred in 1934, when I went to Claire Schmitt's fifth grade in the old Delmar grade school (which never should have closed).

Our days at Bethlehem Central provided us the best education in a school rated number one in the State of New York, under the supervision of the incomparable Hamilton H. Bookhout.

Teaching instrumental music there was a most rewarding experience for 29 years when I came back as a faculty member, working with revered teachers who incited dedication to the process of learning.

Returning again for the 50th Class of '42 reunion in 1992 was a shock! The little Tri-village has completely disappeared. The monstrous Glenmont four corners is appalling. And now you want to expand further across from the Glenmont School.

The population of my 60 years in Bethlehem has quadrupled without the heart that built it.

Clear thinking for Bethlehem

Editor, The Spotlight:

Over the next twenty years, Selkirk Cogen will pay approximately $60 million in town and school taxes. During construction there were some 700 jobs and there are 43 permanent positions. These people are our friends and neighbors and they pay taxes and consume goods and services in Bethlehem.

Currently there are two other large corporations reportedly considering locating facilities in Bethlehem. Each will generate taxes and provide local employment. Availability and cost of water are among the important considerations in making such determinations.

More concrete evidence of the benefits of economic development can be found in a comparison of your town and water tax bills over the last two years.

Clear thinking for Bethlehem.

Clyne's silence is deafening

Editor, The Spotlight:

How long are Matt Clyne and the local Democratic party going to hide behind Clearwater for Bethlehem?

When is Matt Clyne going to announce his position on the new independent water supply?

Perhaps taking a position on the water issue will put him at odds with the Democrats. Or maybe, taking a position on the water issue will not be politically expedient in the world of Albany back room politics. Certainly, many of us remember those days when decisions affecting thousands of people were made in back rooms by political bosses with little or no practical public policy-making experience.

Or maybe he will wait until a few days before the election and send out different mailings to different groups in the community espousing his positions on both sides of the issues. Oh, wait, I think that's what was done last time he ran for office.

Regarding the water issue, Mr. Clyne's silence is deafening. He is running to be a leader in Bethlehem, yet hiding behind Clearwater is not indicative of leadership qualities. He should be honest and out front with his agenda and positions.

Letters

Since Sheila Fuller first ran for the school board some fifteen years ago, her positions on issues have always been known. If you did not know them, all you had to do was call her and ask her. I know this because I have done so.

Steven Hunter, president of St. Anthony Hospital, wrote me that "Paaka will proudly symbolize a very kind act of care and compassion from our sister city, Albany. Our pediatric staff and patients will always know who Paaka is and what she stands for."

To date, over $80,000 has been raised and sent to St. Anthony Hospital, the result of a truly voluntary effort generated by people's concerns for their fellow human beings.

I must admit that I am very proud of what Bryan and I did to help the people of our "sister city." I feel that we provided a way for people productively to express their outrage and grief over the bombing in Oklahoma City.

We will continue to keep the fund-raising efforts active as long as there is a need. Donations can be sent to: The Child's Hospital, c/o Sharon Boehlke, 25 Hackett Blvd., Albany, NY 12208. Checks should be made payable to: St. Anthony Hospital Disaster Fund.

Galvin replies on water article

Editor, The Spotlight:

I read with interest your article titled "Bethlehem Water Records Reviewed" in the June 21 issue of The Spotlight. In response to the comments made in said article concerning "immediate" residential needs serving as the catalyst for the stamped to the banks of the Hudson, the "party line" spewed forth resulting in the consideration of the proposal was that with the impending closing of the tap of available water from the city of Albany, the needs of the town could not be met without resort to a supplemental water source or sources.

The level of need, clearly according to the figures put forth was caused as a result of the demand generated solely by the industrial users of the town with the added demand anticipated to the demand figures factored using the Cogen usage, but the cost of the system and source of payment also were factored in by those leading the Trojan horse into the board room to show that the actual users causing the increased demand who would be using the water, would be paying for the new system. The cost of the bond issue would be borne by the industrial users whose demands caused the need.

Your article is absolutely correct in stating that I favored the investigation of the Hudson River alternative and the construction of the new system based upon the facts as presented. However, I disagree completely with the claims that the Hudson River water was presently as intended from the inception of the consideration of the project to flow into the taps of the residential users. The fallacious reasoning that leaps from a statement of an intent to "incorporate the new water supply into the existing water system" to the conclusion that, therefore, the Hudson River water automatically would be assumed to be flowing into the residential taps of the town is ludicrous.

Any new water system logically must be "incorporated" into the existing system; however, it does not follow, of necessity, that the water itself must, therefore be commingled. The intent, as expressed and as heard by me as at least one member of the board was that the need, the demand and the resulting flow of the proposed water was to be from the Hudson River aquifer to the industrial users of the town for their use and to meet their needs.

I stand by the statement which I made at the Wednesday, June 7 Clearwater meeting which were videotaped in their entirety. I am not a paid consultant to the town nor am I seeking elective office. I speak only as a concerned resident of the town seeking truth, accuracy and implementation of the democratic process of representative government.

Rail lines could be used for commuter travel

Editor, The Spotlight:

Recently the fate of the CP Rail, Delaware and Hudson railway through Bethlehem and New Scotland has been the subject of much discussion in The Spotlight.

The possible conversion of the railroad right-of-way to a highway would only solve a small portion of the problem. Granted it would divert traffic from main collector streets such as Delaware Avenue, Kenwood Avenue and New Scotland Road. This however, does not address or solve the more serious and overruling problem, the bottlenecks where these highways enter the City of Albany. It is only expected that congestion of traffic will occur where four lane roadways converge into two lane city roads. We could make all kinds of grand plans on how to get traffic to the City boundaries in a better fashion only to have cars backed up miles in the suburbs for lack of a sufficient highway system within the city. Watch the traffic any morning, Route 85, Delaware Avenue, Route 9W, the Northway, I-90, they all experience slowed and in some cases stopped traffic during rush hours.

The most feasible solution to the problem of increased traffic congestion is to reduce traffic volume. Rather than converting the railway to a highway, institute commuter rail service to the area.

As pointed out by one of your readers, the trip to downtown Albany by rail, even many years ago, was quicker than by automobile. The City of Buffalo has seen the light and has a commuter rail system. In 1994 the New York Susquehanna and Western Railway initiated commuter service in Syracuse. I think it's high time the Capital District look seriously into a commuter rail system. It would be a travesty and a serious mistake to abandon any rail lines with commuter rail potential.

Albany is unique in that it has rail lines with commuter potential spreading like spokes of a wheel from the urban center. There are natural destinations in; the Everett Road area, Rensselaer and downtown Albany just blocks from State and Pearl Streets. In addition to the Delaware and Hudson line through Delmar which could serve communities such as Altamont, Voorheesville, Slingerlands and Delmar, there are several other lines worth consideration.

The CP Rail line North of Albany offers potential commuters from Saratoga, Clifton Park, Mechanicville, Waterford, Cohoes, Watervliet and Menands.

In the case of the line through Delmar which is not yet abandoned, the Capital District Transportation Authority has the ability to obtain the line for commuter use. We should all urge that they consider a solution that would benefit the most people and that would have the more long range answer to our traffic problems.

Bleaching

How we look is very important today. People spend a lot of effort on how they look: hair, make-up, clothing, etc. But, don't forget to check your smile when you are looking in the mirror.

Dark teeth can take the natural glow out of your complexion and eyes. Bleaching dark teeth is a popular new cosmetic technique. It is a relatively safe, comfortable procedure for most people.

However, ask your dentist before you buy any over the counter bleaching products or whitening toothpastes. Bleaching teeth with decay or leaking restorations is not recommended.

If you want to spruce up your appearance, don't forget to check your smile.

Traffic circus plays in Slingerlands

Editor, The Spotlight:

The circus is in town. You can find the clowns weekday mornings (around 7:45 a.m.) at the intersection of Routes 140 and 85 in Slingerlands. I've never seen such harebrained antics by fellow drivers on their way to work.

As you approach Route 85 from 140, your legal choices are to get into the right lane for a right turn or into the left lane to go straight or left. Most morning traffic lines up bumper-to-bumper in the right lane. Frequently, drivers in a bigger hurry than you will dangerously cut off those in the right turn lane to save a few precious seconds—no one like to wait in lines! But to my astonishment, I've observed many a Bozo perform the following outrageous and illegal maneuvers; a right turn from the left lane (a strategic move to the head of the line) which forces surprised law-abiding drivers to hit their brakes; a right turn from the shoulder of the road (a less common way to beat the line); and a left turn from the left lane followed by a 180 degree about face in the middle of the intersection. It's those about face in the middle of the intersection. It's those times I wish I drove a beat up jalopy so I could ding one of these idiots instead of having to begrudgingly backoff.

Anyway, it's a performance many morning drivers have witnessed and a show that shouldn't be missed. You'll either laugh or scream. Entertainment and excitement rolled into one. Come one! Come all! The circus is here...and it's free!

Winning team deserves kudos

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Sunday, June 25, closing ceremonies were held at Magee Park. At that time, teams were assembled and honored for their play in the 1995 season.

I would like to single out a team, Certified Allergy Consultants, who achieved a record of 14 wins and 2 losses. This resulted in a first place finish in the Intermediate Division. Since only Major Division standings were reported in the Spotlight during the regular season, I would like to recognize these 10 to 12 year olds for the achievement and team work. Along with coaches John Dalton and Ken Geurtze, I want to thank each parent for the support of the team during the season. The Certified Allergy Consultants team was composed of James Carusone, Joe Carusone, Ryan Dalton, Matt Drislane, Josh Gaul, Brian Geurtze, Sean Myrtle, Dan Otero, Bryan Pittz, Nitin Roper, Joe Shulan and Michael Walker.

These kids played like champions and should be applauded for their remarkable record.

Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance refutes complaint on slowness

Editor, The Spotlight:

This has reference to a letter in the June 21 issue of The Spotlight from Bruce Lombardo of Glenmont, regarding an alleged slow response by the Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance Service to an emergency medical situation in his neighborhood.

In light of this very serious allegation and Mr. Lombardo's obvious negative opinion of our volunteer service, we feel the need to clarify the situation, and respectfully disagree with him as to his perception of the response time to this emergency.

The facts speak for themselves, and we invite Mr. Lombardo to review the records, which are public information.

According to the log of the incident, Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance responded to the call and arrived on the scene 13 minutes after being dispatched by the Town. Our first responder, an Advanced Emergency Medical Technician, drove directly from her home using her personal automobile, and arrived on the scene just two minutes after dispatch. That is substantially faster than Mr. Lombardo's estimate of 20 minutes.

Our first responders have medical equipment in their vehicles, and emergency care was administered by an EMT until the ambulance arrived on the scene to transport the patient to a local hospital. From the time the ambulance was first dispatched, the patient arrived at the hospital 26 minutes later.

Letters

Not bad, in our opinion.

We beg to differ with Mr. Lombardo, but having a paid ambulance could not guarantee better or faster service than was provided. Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance, differing from most other ambulance services in the area, schedule their volunteers in order to assure that calls are answered in a timely fashion, and that the ambulance always has an assigned crew.

Our first responders are instructed to go directly to the scene, rather than having the ambulance wait for a full crew before responding. They use their own vehicles and burn their own gasoline, and most of all, they are not paid. They are taking valuable time away from their own interests, their families, and many times they pay for their own advanced training.

Vital, sometimes life saving emergency service is administered in minutes by these dedicated individuals. The ambulance physically arriving on the scene is only part of the picture—many times our first responders have the situation well in hand before the ambulance even rolls out of the station.

Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance Service has been serving as totally volunteer operation for 39 years, and even with some 500 calls per year, we have been able to answer all emergencies and provide well trained and professional emergency medical service to the community in a timely fashion, saving millions of taxpayer dollars over the years.

No one is perfect, no service is perfect (not even paid), but as volunteers we strive to do the best job we possibly can serving our community, and we hope our residents appreciate the service that has been provided for so many years.

Just remember—if you need us, we will be there.

If you are over the age of 60, the library has a project to keep you busy this summer.

We are looking for people with interesting stories who are willing to try their hand at writing them

- Tell a story you would want your great-grandchildren to know.
- Describe a spiritual experience that had a strong influence on your life.
- Relate the funniest or best thing that ever happened to you.

In the fall, send us your story as an entry in our Legacies contest. Local entries will be reviewed by a panel of judges at the library. One entry in each category will be chosen for submission to the third annual national Legacies competition sponsored by the non-profit Leibovitz Foundation, where it will be eligible for cash prizes.

Applications are available at the circulation desk or through the lifestories workshop. The deadline for submissions is Nov. 15.

down. We invite you to get out your pen and paper, or your computer, and —

- Tell a story of when something happened that changed the direction of your life.
- Describe the greatest challenge you ever faced in your life.

Because summer is a laid-back time everywhere, including the library, it is an opportune time to book our community room for meetings and programs. FOOD, PICNICS and Summer Fun

By Elaine Jackson Cape

The smoke from hundreds of barbecue grills gently wafting over the suburbs is a sure sign of summer.

The first barbecue of the season is always a special treat. However, many people don't realize that there are a host of hidden dangers lurking under the hood of that trusty old grill.

According to Larry Isabelle, chief fire inspector for the Colonie Office of Fire Prevention and Control, improper use of a charcoal or gas grill can cause anything from minor burns to serious injury or even death.

One of the most serious problems Isabelle remembers is a car fire caused by a full propane tank stored in the trunk on a hot day. The fire began, he said, when the heat increased the pressure inside the tank, causing propane to leak into the car. When the driver turned the ignition, the gas burst into flames, causing serious injury.

On a similar note, Isabelle also recommends keeping the lid on the gas grill open when you push the ignition switch. "If the grill fails to light when the cover is closed, the gas builds up in the confined space. Then, if it does ignite, it can explode — blow the cover right off."

Isabelle hasn't seen too many problems with charcoal grills recently, mainly due to the increasing popularity of the propane types. "They're much easier," he said.

However, with both models, it's very important to keep the grill at least 10 feet away from any flammable materials or structures. The heat from the coals can cause a wooden structure to catch on fire, he said, or a house with vinyl or plastic siding can actually melt.

Another no-no, according to Isabelle, is to add more lighter fluid to charcoal that is already burning, since the flames can travel up the stream of fluid back to the whoever is holding the can, causing serious burns.

Charcoal-grill users must also dispose of the ashes carefully, since improper storage — in a paper bag, for example — can be dangerous. "Sometimes, you think they're out, but they're really not," he said. "If the ashes are still hot, they can cause a fire."

Although most people think of their grills as a common household appliance, and think they know everything about them, Isabelle stressed that it's important to read and follow manufacturers' directions.

"The manufacturers' instruction booklet contains everything you need to know to use the grill safely. If you read it carefully and follow the safety tips, you won't have any problems."

Another danger often associated with summer barbecues is serious illness caused by food poisoning from improperly cooked or handled meat, chicken or fish.

According to a brochure put out by the United States Office of Consumer Affairs, "Safe Food to Go," more than 2 million people a year suffer from food poisoning. And most of it, said Barb Stevens, staff associate at the Cornell Cooperative Extension of Albany County, is preventable.

One problem, Stevens said, is that people often don't realize that cooking and storage methods which would be perfectly safe in the winter can be dangerous in the summer.

"Normally, in the winter, it's okay to leave food out of the refrigerator for up to two hours. But in the summer, especially when the temperature goes over 90 degrees, one hour is the limit."

The one-hour limit also includes the time food spends on the table. For example, many people let hot foods cool off before they put them in the refrigerator. "Hot food won't hurt the refrigerator. As soon as you're finished eating, put it away."

Refrigeration is essential, she explained, to slow down the growth of bacteria that lurks on all meat, fish and poultry. At room temperature, these bacteria can multiply very rapidly.

Another essential element in preparing food safely is to cook it thoroughly, to kill as many bacteria as possible.

"We recommend that people cook their meat until the juices are clear. Hamburger should be brown all the way through. Steak can be light pink in the middle, but definitely not red," Stevens said.

According to Lisa Verstandig, also of the cooperative extension, the most dangerous meat is chicken, because of the possibility of salmonella. "It's absolutely essential to cook chicken thoroughly, because of salmonella," she said.

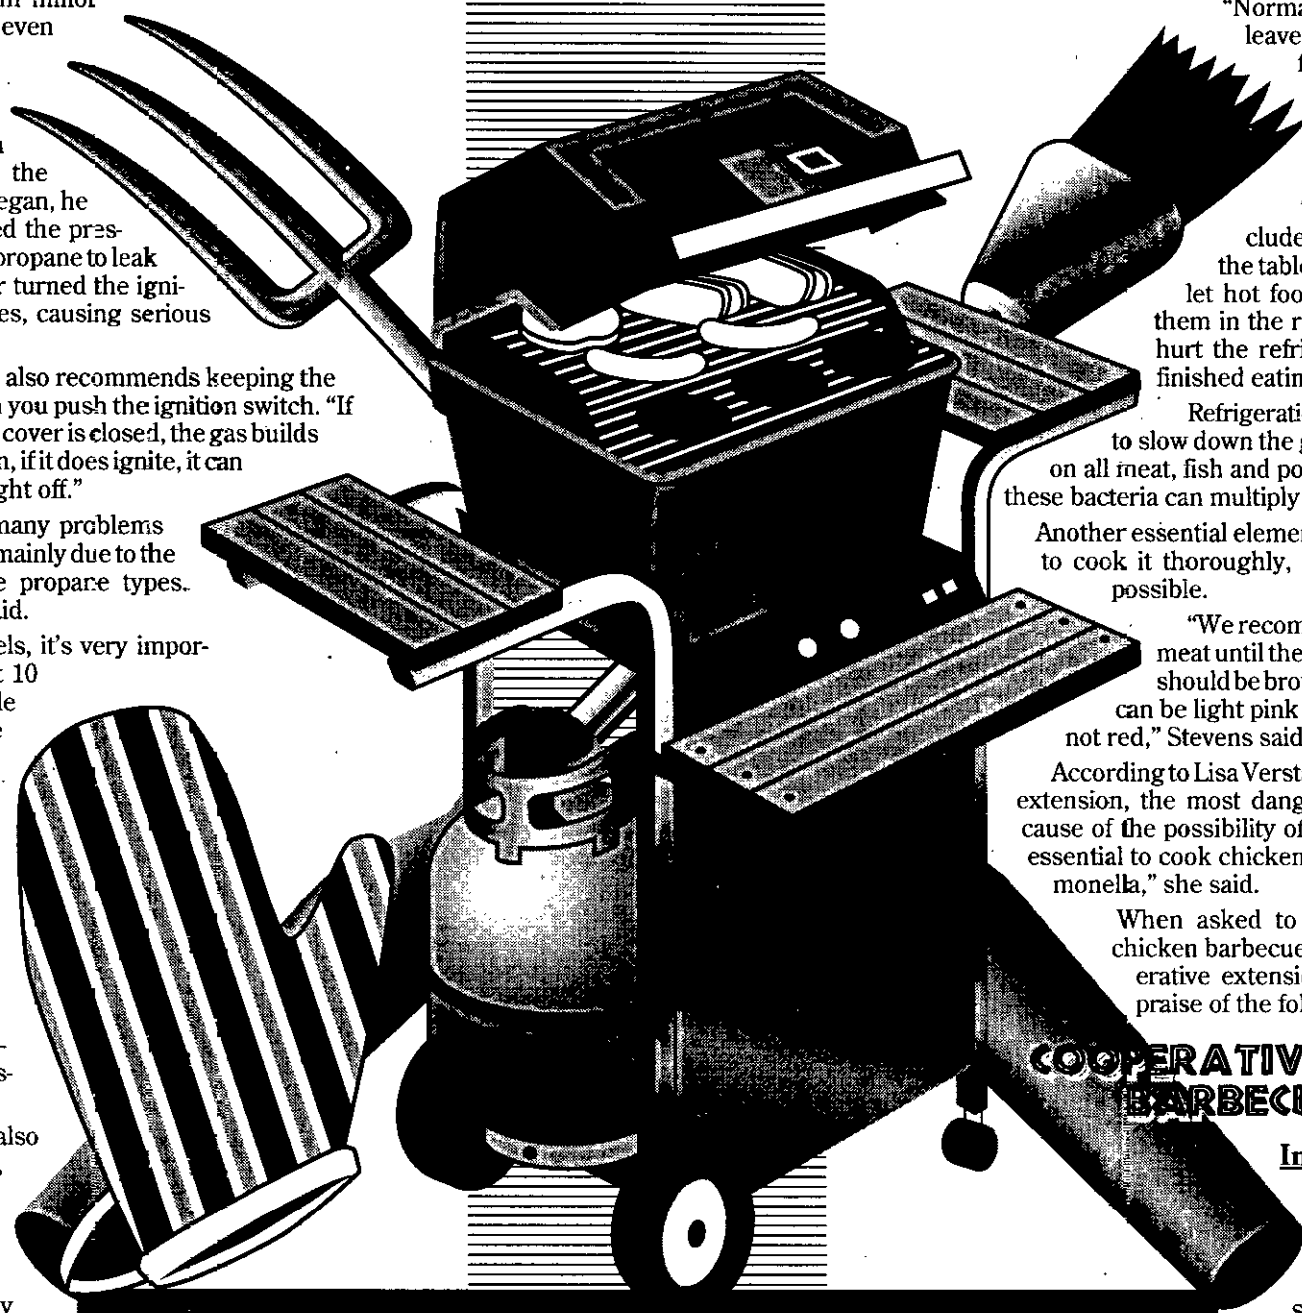

When asked to recommend their favorite chicken barbecue sauce, the staff at the cooperative extension was unanimous in their praise of the following recipe:

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION BARBECUE SAUCE

Ingredients: 1/2 cup cooking oil, 1 cup cider vinegar, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 1/2 teaspoons poultry seasoning and 1/4 teaspoon white pepper.

Instructions: Mix above ingredients thoroughly and marinate up to five chicken broiler halves for 12 to 24 hours. Grill 4 to 5 inches from hot coals for 30 to 60 minutes, basting frequently. (Cooking time will depend on size of chicken pieces.) Juices should be completely clear when chicken is pricked.

"This is absolutely the best chicken you've ever tasted," Stevens promised. "The recipe used to have an egg in the marinade, but we had to take it out because of the danger of salmonella. But the chicken tastes just as good without it."

TIMELY TIPS FOR A SAFE BBQ SEASON

Gourmet picnics not just for tailgate affairs

By Tom Murnane

When planning a picnic, it's important to remember to bring the "two Bs": a blanket and a basket of food and drink.

What goes in the basket, however, can range from sandwiches and soda to a variety of exotic delicacies.

For those who don't have the time or expertise to assemble more than bologna sandwiches and chips, several local deli operators offer gourmet packages that can make the ordinary something special.

For between $7 and $35, picnickers can order meals ranging from simple box lunches to more elaborate, cooked-on-the-premises dinners from Durlacher's Delicatessen at Newton Plaza on Route 9 in Latham or Conlon's Delicatessen and Catering Inc. at 579 Delaware Avenue in Albany.

In both cases, it is suggested that orders for more elaborate picnic meals be phoned in 24 hours in advance.

"Whatever someone wants to have for their picnic, we can tailor-make it for them," said Kathy Leibach, manager of Durlacher's, which 8 months ago moved to its larger Latham location from Albany and now offers expanded catering and sit-down eating.

Conlon's, which now occupies Durlacher's former Albany store, is a stone's throw from the town of Bethlehem.

"We can do as fancy as they want or as simple as they want," said Dan Conlon. "I've even done candlelight picnics, with things like shrimp cocktails and cheeses, for people who are getting engaged."

Charles Houghtaling, his wife, Ann, and son, Dale operate Houghtaling's Market in Feura Bush. Doug Persons

Prices vary depending on how elaborate the order is, he said.

While both delis offer a wide selection of soda and beer, if customers want wine with their picnic, both Conlon and Leibach suggest picking up a bottle of a favorite white or red wine at a liquor store.

For larger outdoor barbecues/picnics, Houghtaling's Market on Route 32 in Feura Bush offers a wide selection. With a full complement of cookers, Houghtaling's can do large outdoor parties featuring meals ranging from the usual fare of steaks, burgers or hot dogs, to the less-ordinary pheasant, duck, venison, and yes, even pig, said owner Charles Houghtaling.

For picnic information, call Durlacher's at 782-7063, Conlon's at 465-3762 or Houghtaling's at 439-0028.

Potatoes with real pizazz

Dan Conlon has agreed to share the recipe for his very popular Red Bliss Potato Salad:

Ingredients

- 3 lbs. cubed Red Bliss potatoes (cooked)
- 1 onion, diced
- 1 green pepper, diced
- 2 Tbsp. horseradish
- 1 Tbsp. Dijon mustard
- 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
- 1/4 cup red wine vinegar
- 1 oz. olive oil
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 Tsp. salt
- 1 Tsp. pepper

Clean and cook potatoes. Combine potatoes, onions, peppers, and set aside. In a separate bowl, mix remaining ingredients, blend well, and add to potato mixture. Chill and enjoy!

Kids need more time outdoors, less with TV

More than ever, experts are stressing the importance of outdoor play for young children. Not only do kids get exercise, but they also engage in activities that are important for their overall development.

However, youngsters today are getting less romping time outdoors and more television time indoors.

A report from A.C. Nielsen Company stated that preschool children currently spend an average of 30 hours per week watching television.

That's nearly 41 1/2 hours per day. Although many programs offer valuable educational messages, they should not be considered a replacement for outdoor physical play.

Dr. Katherine Karlsrud, clinical instructor of pediatrics at Cornell University Medical Center and assistant attending pediatrician at The New York Hospital Cornell Medical Center, says, "Outdoor play is essential for young children, because a stimulating, active environment has lasting effects on a child's physical and social behavior."

So, how do you get the kids outside? One good tool is a backyard play set that can be set up in your own yard and has slides and climbing features.

Parents should look for play sets that are sturdy and well-constructed.

And consider a bird feeder to get kids interested in the outdoors.

It's also a good idea to choose a play set that will hold your child's interest for a long time. So, get the kids outside for some backyard fun.

And remember, backyard play sets should be used according to manufacturer's ground-surfacing guidelines and product instructions.

Ice cream licks summer blues

By Joshua Kagan

Summertime brings more than just a rise in the mercury. Along with the balmy weather comes the familiar chimes of the ice cream man, cries of persistent children and a large boost for the ice cream business.

"We get a lot more customers. Business probably doubles in the summer," Jim Waldbillig, owner of the Carvel's on Loudon Road in Latham, said. "You can't beat the summer. The warm weather brings people out."

True, ice cream does help a hot summer day slide by. However, severe heat waves that bring temperatures well into the 90s may render people too weak to make it all the way to an ice cream shop.

"When it's very hot, people stay home in the air conditioning, in their pool," said Taster Treat manager Tom Bruno. "Up to about 85 degrees is a real good day here." The Voorheesville shop aims to be open when such days are plentiful; its season runs from April to October.

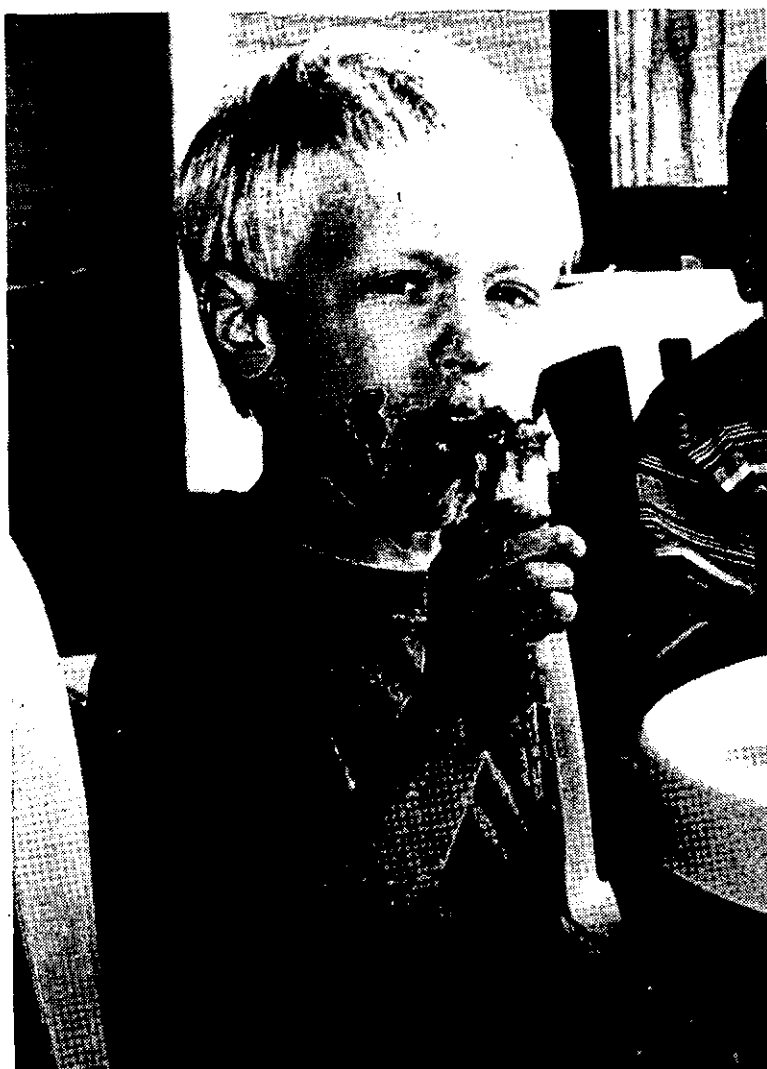

"On really hot days, the days are pretty slow, but the nights are good," Waldbillig said. "People stay home during the day and come in after dinner when it's cooler."

When the weather gets too hot, ice cream may just become too difficult to eat. "The ice cream melts all over people and it gets too messy for them to handle," Rosemary Albanese, manager of Frank's Ice Cream and Restaurant, said.

Ice cream may be a steady standby every summer, but different types have become more popular in recent years. Many people now try flavors such as chunky monkey and New York super fudge crunch rather than traditional flavors like chocolate, vanilla and strawberry.

"People are interested," said Jason Brooks, manager of the Ben & Jerry's scoop shop in Main Square in Delmar. "The names catch them. And they taste good."

Bruno said, "Some of the creative flavors do better today." Some of his best-selling flavors are orange pineapple, black raspberry and mint M & M.

According to John Loy, manager of the Friendly's restaurant on New Loudon Road in Latham, "We still sell a lot of vanilla, chocolate and strawberry." But newer flavors, namely chocolate chip cookie dough, are increasingly popular.

Healthier forms of the food are also increasingly in demand as more people order low-fat or no-fat ice cream or frozen yogurt.

Albanese said sales of low-calorie ice cream have increased 50 percent in the past decade. "People are looking for a more healthful way to treat themselves," she said.

"They have gotten more popular lately," Loy said. "People are getting more health-conscious than they were five, 10 years ago. Plus, they've got the same taste."

"A lot of your younger people, teenagers, are getting low-fat desserts," said Bruno. "But we still have a strong regular hard ice cream following."

He estimated that 40 percent of Taster Treat's sales now come in healthier foods.

Develop good sun sense

As summertime temperatures soar, a day of "fun in the sun" can take a toll on your whole body — not just your skin. In fact, having good "sun sense" goes far deeper than topical creams and lotions.

Here are a few tips that will help you beat the heat this summer:

• Practice "safe sunning" — Always wear sunscreen, preferably one with a sun protection factor greater than 15. The golden rays of sunshine can be friend or foe. With a little caution, you will bronze, not burn.

• Wear a hat — A wide-brimmed hat looks great, keeps you cool and holds the sun's rays at bay.

Turner tosses no-hitter in TVLL

By James A. Williams

The final week of Tri-Village Little League play was marked by some exciting personal performances and uncertainty about who the regular season champion will actually be.

Farm Family Insurance, which began the season having trouble hitting the baseball, steadily improved its game and rose to the top of the standings by season's end with a 13-4 record.

They were followed closely by Jeffery Levine, CFP, which also had a somewhat rocky start, but cruised through seven straight victories in the last half of the season to establish a 12-5 record.

Elsewhere around the league last week, pitching performances were superb, and some batters were losing baseballs over the major division's deep outfield fences.

Jon Albert provided all the scoring punch for his team on Tuesday, June 20, pounding out two, two-run homers en route to the Jawbreakers' 5-2 victory over Howard Banner, DDS.

The first homer came with two outs in the bottom of the first inning after Banner pitcher Danny Cook walked Jawbreaker catcher Billy Tierney.

It was just the second pitching appearance for Cook, who struck out six batters in three innings of work.

The second round-tripper came in the bottom of the fifth inning off pitcher Seth Cuzdey, again with Tierney scampering home ahead of him.

Also in the home run department, T.J. Rohrbach, Horticulture Unlimited's first baseman, lined a shot over the left field fence to provide Horticulture's only score in its 1-0 loss to Levine.

Meanwhile, in a makeup game on Thursday, June 22, Burt Anthony Associates hurler Nathan Turnertwirl a nifty, no-hit game, leading the Associates to a 10-3 victory over the Jawbreakers. Turner struck out 13 batters and walked five.

All the Jawbreakers' scoring resulted from the walks and some defensive mistakes, including two dropped pop-ups.

The major offensive effort came from the bats of Alan Lewis, who had two singles, a double and three RBI; and from Ian Grovenger, who had two doubles and two RBI.

Clarke Doody, with a running catch in the outfield, and Brendan Munnely, with a good performance in the infield, helped Turner keep his no-hitter intact.

Anaconda wins title

The Bethlehem Babe Ruth League crowned a champion in the 13-year-old division when Anaconda Sports rallied to defeat Brunswick 9-8 last week at the Bethlehem Town Park field.

Trailing 8-3 after five innings, the victors scored four runs in the bottom of the sixth to close the gap. Led by John Hanley's infield single and Adam Zaranko's stinging double, they plated the tying and winning runs in the seventh. Anaconda finished at 10-5-1.

Play continues at the 14-15 year-old-level with make-up games scheduled this week to determine a champion. In an exciting contest at Sorensco, Good Sports emerged victorious, 7-6. Leading the way was Matt Bratrud with two hits and Josh Spencer, who pitched four strong innings.

The All Star portion of the Babe Ruth season will commence this week, with contests scheduled at the 13 and 15-year-old levels. Both tournaments will be held at Cook Park in Colonie. For the first time, there will be a separate 14-year-old tournament, with games at Central Babe Ruth in Albany.

Colonie drops Eagles

By Scott Isaacs

The Bethlehem Shredded Eagles finally lost in Senior Babe Ruth play, losing at home to hot-hitting Colonie I, 12-6, on Wednesday, June 21.

The Eagles were bound to slip at some point, and all facets of their game faltered at once. Their offense was shut down, paced only by Ted Hartman and Andy O'Brien, who slapped RBI singles.

Bethlehem now needs to defeat Colonie at least once in their final two meetings to ensure a trip to the state tournament on July 22.

The Shredded Eagles have now reached the halfway point of the season, and look to be in good shape, leading District V with a 7-1 record. Colonie I is in second place at 6-2.

Team leaders include Todd Everleth, batting .545 with a team-leading 12 hits and 12 steals, while playing flawlessly at third base.

Also, Nathaniel Sajdak has been spectacular on the mound, earning a 4-0 record with 23 strikeouts and only 10 walks in 27 innings. He has a 1.56 ERA.

The team faces North Colonie tonight (Wednesday) and Hoosick on Thursday, June 29, at BCHS.

Bethlehem Bandits on top of heap

After achieving a 29-3-1 record in indoor soccer, the Bethlehem Bandits Under-8 travel soccer team continues to elude its competition.

Currently the Bandits are in first place in the Capital District

Youth Soccer League with an 8-1-1 record.

The Bandits continue to rely on teamwork and effort. During a recent tournament the Bandits came away with championship honors by allowing one goal all day.

The highlight of winning the tournament was defeating two arch rivals: the Niskayuna Tomahawks and the Saratoga Hawks. The Bandits shut out both of these higher-ranked opponents.

Mantle team off to a quick start

The Bethlehem Mickey Mantle Baseball team has completed the first three weeks of its season, and the Blue Eagles are off to a fast start.

Their 8-1-1 record places them in second place in the 16-team Eastern New York Mickey Mantle Baseball League.

Four different pitchers have contributed to the team's success. John McCormick is 4-0 with wins (two) against Rotterdam, Sorensco (Southern Rensselaer County) and Colonie. He has struck out 33 batters in 23 2/3 innings.

Chris Brown has victories over Scotia and Saratoga, allowing only one run in 12 innings. Matt Tulloch threw six innings of one-hit ball against the Columbia Flyers, and Mike DelGiaccio earned a win with four innings of shutout relief against West Albany.

Several different players have supplied the hitting. Cory Czajka has 17 hits in the first 10 games, including a home run and seven RBI. Geoff Hunter has driven in 13 runs and Rich Petri has 15 hits and 12 stolen bases.

Chris Dimuria has two doubles and two triples among his 13 hits. Lead-off hitter Jeff McQuide has driven in 11 runs on 11 walks and eight hits. Catcher Dan Conway has driven in 11 runs on 10 hits, including a triple and a home run.

Second baseman Jesse Brozowski has stolen five bases and driven in five runs while playing exceptional defense. Center-fielder Joe Lengfeller has six RBI and five stolen bases and right-fielder Craig Garver has been the team's hottest hitter of late with four hits in his last six at bats.

This week the Blue Eagles will host Cohoes on Saturday and South Troy on Sunday at the Bethlehem Town Park.

Student actors earn kudos

The Vincent J. Crummles Acting Troupe, a student group at Bethlehem Central High School, was recently named first runner-up in the Shakespeare performance category in the 1995 National High School Theater Competition for its production of "Macbeth."

The production was praised for its "kinetic presentation, depth of characterization and clarity of verse speaking." The troupe performed seven shows of "Macbeth" in December.

This is the second time the troupe has earned a national ranking in this competition, which is run by Bravo Cable Network, making it one of the few groups nationally to be honored more than once. Members also earned first runner-up status in 1991 with their production of "The Tempest."

The competition is an annual event open to all high schools in the country. Judges base their decisions on a video tape of the productions.

Some students knew in September that they would not have enough credits to graduate, but others had "a sense of apathy" about their senior year studies, DeFeo said.

"We struggle with some students who have the perception that they can coast through and still get a diploma, but certain standards have to be met," DeFeo added. "The bottom line is we will not give a diploma to a kid who hasn't earned it. This isn't something wrong—it's something right we are trying to do."

DeFeo noted that he had instituted a summer program beginning in 1992 that will help about two-thirds of the non-graduating seniors earn enough credits to graduate by the end of August. Some will also complete their high school graduation requirements at local community colleges, he added.

"It takes longer, but most of them do graduate," he said.

Seven or eight students need to complete the state-mandated Participation in Government class (including a public presentation at RCS), which is available in summer school, DeFeo said. Students who failed to complete part of the required course will have to make up just that part (i.e., the presentation), not the whole course, he said.

The non-graduation rate should not be taken out of context, DeFeo said, emphasizing that the district's drop-out rate has continued to decline, and that the percentage of students earning Regents diplomas this year reached its highest level since 1979.

Linda Marshall, president of the school's Parent-Teacher-Student Association, said that the group supports the administration's policy of "sticking to high standards" for graduation and "not condoning kids goofing off for the last part of senior year."

The RCS non-graduation rate was higher than that of the two other districts in The Spotlight coverage area — Bethlehem (13 out of 256, or 5 percent) and Voorheesville (six out of 85, or 7 percent).

Debases

The New York State Trial Lawyers Association, said, "If he (Corman) were a 50-year-old doctor with a wife and children, then the settlement would've been worth over a million dollars."

The inequities in the law have prompted about 20 groups statewide to push for change. The groups are urging passage of state Senate and Assembly bills that would allow magistrates to recognize emotional loss when awarding compensation to the parents of wrongful death victims. In addition to the Trial Lawyers, among those pressing for change are Remove Intoxicated Drivers (RID), Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), Parents of Murdered Children, and Justice For All.

The Senate bill, sponsored by James Lack (R-Hauppauge), is currently in the rules committee, while the Assembly version, sponsored by Helene Weinstein (D-Brooklyn) is ready for a vote on the floor. However, with the legislature's session set to close by the end of the week, "The bill may get lost in the shuffle," noted Brad Maone, a spokesperson for Weinstein.

Even if the bill doesn't reach a vote this year, the issue will almost certainly resurface in January when the Legislature starts up again. Selig Corman expects to join the fight for change by then, out of strong dissatisfaction with the manner in which his son's case was handled.

"Howard was working for Ponderosa. He really enjoyed it and wanted to pursue further training in food preparation," Corman said. "There should be some type of consideration for the loss of Howard as a human being."

Kermani, who said New York is one of just 18 states that doesn't consider emotional loss in wrongful death cases, stressed that extensive lobbying efforts would continue over the summer.

"We need to amend the law so our children's lives are no longer priceless in our eyes, but worthless in the eyes of the law," he said.

"Let's be fair about it ... the full measure of justice should be available to those families," said Joseph Glazer, an attorney with the Trial Lawyers Association. The law as it exists "negates the value of his (Corman's) son's life."

Albany attorney Paul Wein, who represented the Corman family, concurred. "There is no greater loss than the loss of a child, but the law doesn't let you take that into account."

Avenue with his wife, Debra, and their four children.

The GOP committee reached outside the party for its two town board candidates. Both Mark Dempf and Michael Fields are registered independents.

Dempf said he would "bring a little more calmness and cooperation" to the board, which despite its all-Democratic makeup, has been seriously divided over the zoning law amendment issue.

"There's not only a wedge on the board, but also a big wedge in town now," Dempf said. "Everything seems so divisive, and I don't know that that's necessary."

A professional engineer with Vollmer Associates, Dempf has served for several years on the town water committee and also provided volunteer advice to the town highway department.

Dempf, 34, lives on Rowe Road with his wife, Toni Marie.

Fields said he got involved because he "was just looking for good government. This is a good opportunity to help out — weigh the situations and make good judgments."

Fields, 57, is manager of plant engineering at Albany Medical Center Hospital. He lives on Mountainview Street with his wife, Kathleen, and their three children.

The ticket is anchored by three longtime incumbents running for re-election — Town Clerk Corinne Cossac, Town Justice Kenneth Connolly and Receiver of Taxes Marilyn Holmberg.

The Republican candidates "bring extraordinary expertise, exhibit strong leadership qualities and will represent all areas of the town equally," said Judi Von Ronne, town committee chairwoman.

Von Ronne said that the Republicans will not field a candidate for highway superintendent this year "so we can put all our energies and finances into the town board race."

bout 25,000 Capital District residents are expected to celebrate Independence Day with the Fabulous Fourth Festivities at the Empire State Plaza in Albany.

The Tuesday, July 4, festivities will be topped off by the Price Chopper fireworks display, which will begin at approximately 9:15 p.m.

The fireworks show will begin at the conclusion of a performance by The Mamas and the Papas, the 1960s band that will highlight the evening performances. The new incarnation of the group includes original leader John Phillips, his longtime friend and collaborator Scott McKenzie, Deb Lyons and Lisa Elesland. They will present hits such as "California Dreamin'" and "Monday, Monday." The band last performed in the Capital District in 1993 during the summer concert series at the plaza.

Doc Scanlon's Rhythm Boys, a local swing dance band, will open for The Mamas and the Papas. They will perform tunes by Louis Jordan, Glenn Miller, Nat King Cole, Chuck Berry and Marvin Gaye.

The Fabulous Fourth Festivities are organized by the state Office of General Services and sponsored by Molson, Rose & Kiernan, Inc., Omni Albany Hotel, 102.7 WEQX FM and Country 107.7 WGNA FM.

The celebration will begin at 1 p.m. with the afternoon-long Music Made in America Street Festival on State Street next to the Plaza. The street festival will feature food and craft vendors, rides for children, family entertainment and various musical performances.

A family variety show in the spirit of vaudeville, Professor Marvel's Old Time Medicine Show, will entertain children of all ages during the afternoon.

Seven music groups will perform on multiple stages throughout the street festival, beginning with The Luster Kings, a band rooted in the 1950s rock of Elvis Presley, Chuck Berry, Eddie Cochran and Carl Perkins.

Country artist Nathalie Cote will follow the Luster Kings. Her band, which includes local guitarist Dave Malachowski, will perform songs from her album "Lonely Hearts Like Mine." Bill Kennedy's play scheduled at Capital Rep next spring

William Kennedy, the Pulitzer Prize-winning Albany novelist, enters a new literary field next spring when his play, Grand View, written with playwright Romulus Linney, is given its world premiere as part of Capital Repertory Company's season in Albany.

Kennedy dipped his toe into playwriting with this first effort about a 1944 local political fight last summer with a reading of his first draft of Grand View. He joined with Obie Award-winning playwright Linney in a collaboration with funding from the Pew Charitable Trusts—Theatre Communication Group National Theatre Artists Residency Program.

Grand View will open May 8 for a four-week run.

Newly-appointed artistic director Maggie Mancinelli-Cahill has selected a season for Capital Rep that will also include another work new to the area, Pretty Fire, and written by a local person, Tony Award-nominee Charlayne Woodard. Woodard went from local community productions to the highly successful Ain't Misbehavin' on Broadway.

Woodard may also perform in this autobiographical work about a young girl growing up in Albany with a dream of performing. She has performed this work in New York and Seattle. This will be the first local production of the show.

The Capital Rep season of six plays will open October 11 with a production of Moliere's Don Juan by Moliere.

The holiday production next season will include a production of A Tuna Christmas, a sequel to Greater Tuna, a two-character spoof of radio and small towns. This show opens November 15 and run through December 17.

Following Pretty Fire (if Woodard is available), the theater will mount the largest Capital Rep production in its history. Grapes of Wrath, the dramatization of John Steinbeck's powerful 1930s novel, It opens February 21 and runs for a month. This production will have 33 cast members, virtually unheard of in regional theater.

The local premiere of Junk Bonds by Lucy Wang continues the season March 27 through April 21. Here, the playwright, Lucy Wang, chronicles the macho, fast-paced world of junk bond selling on Wall Street.

Kennedy's play closes the season.

New dinner theater opens in Colonie with Same Time, Next Year

The Curtain Call Dinner Theater opens Jun 30 for a 10-week run through September 3 at the Albany Marriott Hotel on Wolf Road with a production of the comedy, Same Time, Next Year.

The company which last year did Last of the Red Hot Lovers at the Holiday Inn in Saratoga Springs, has moved into the more populous Albany area, near all the hotels at the airport.

The two-character comedy was first done in the 1970s.

Dinner and show will be presented nightly except Monday with matinees on Sundays and Tuesdays.

Info, reservations at 458-8444.

Theater veteran just can't retire as Storch takes over festival

Arthur Storch is a man who had his fill of theater, spending 18 years as head of a drama department and a nearby regional theater. This was following a career as a TV and Broadway actor and director. This summer season, he's artistic director of the Berkshire Theater Festival in Stockbridge, Massachusetts where he's trying to recapture the days of Arthur Penn and William Gibson who in the early 1970s created a festival atmosphere for the theater.

While not always successful, the Penn-Gibson dynasty did produce some exciting theater and encouraged new work along with doing some classics. A flawed production of Dracula with Frank Langella, for example, encouraged a more polished presentation on Broadway with the same actor and won all sorts of awards and a long run.

Now Storch, who taught at Syracuse University and ran the Syracuse Stage, a regional Equity company, is doing classical plays this season at the Berkshire Theater Festival and introducing premieres of new works, including Cowgirls.

Girl Scouts forming new Legacy network

By Susan Graves

The Hudson Valley Girl Scout Council, based in Delmar, has launched a new project designed to bring former Scouts back into the fold.

Dowling

"We're always hearing 'They were an Eagle Scout' (in reference to prominent men's backgrounds) so what we're trying to get is that 'old girl' network going," said Sue Dowling, director of communications for the council.

Legacy will recruit professional women in the community to form a network and serve as role models for today's Scouts.

Dowling said Legacy will attempt to enlist alumnae and friends of Girl Scouting: to provide role models, to offer opportunities for alumnae to serve as benefactors, mentors, consultants and to act as community ambassadors to the general public about the importance of Girl Scouting.

Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller remembers her days as a Scout with the troop at St. James Parish in Albany. "I used to look forward to the outdoor trips," she recalls.

Fuller also said her troop would volunteered at local hospitals. "We delivered water to the patients," she said. Later in her life, Fuller said she served as a Girl Scout leader when her daughters were younger.

"We're hoping for a wide range (of women) in different careers," she said. Dowling said that despite a "real different perception" between Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, girls who stay in Scouting throughout high school, really take away a better sense of themselves.

"Follow through and teamwork gives them that sense of accomplishment," she added.

Dowling anticipates that legacy will eventually develop a speakers' bureau. "A lot of women who join will have a common bond," she said. The council will continue to recruit throughout the summer and later will schedule its first big event.

The membership fee for Legacy is $25.

For a brochure about the new group, contact the council at 439-4936. The Hudson Valley Council serves about 7,000 girls in Albany, Rensselaer, Columbia, Greene and southern Saratoga counties.

Golf tournament to benefit Camp Good Days

Camp Good Days and Special Times will hold its seventh annual Golf Tournament of Love on Monday, July 10, at the Normanside Country Club on Salisbury Road in Delmar.

The tournament will raise funds for the camp, which benefits local children touched by cancer, AIDS, severe burns or violence.

Golfers and corporate sponsors will be treated to lunch, a full day of golf (including on-course food and beverage service), a cocktail hour, dinner and awards.

Cash awards will go to the four best teams. There will be a chance to win a 1995 Acura Vigor for a hole-in-one. There will also be a raffle, with prizes including two round-trip tickets to anywhere in the continental United States on USAir, four tickets to a Buffalo Bills game, and a trip to New York City, including overnight accommodations and tickets to a Broadway show.

Benita Zahn, health reporter for NewsChannel 13, will serve as mistress of ceremonies.

The tournament fee is $200 per golfer. There are several corporate sponsor levels, beginning at $100. For information, call Mike Simpson at Camp Good Days and Special Times at 438-6515.

Enjoy this 4th of July...

FAMOUS LAST WORDS:

"Don't Worry, I'm a good driver!"

DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE!

FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK

Good driving requires more than keeping alert and driving defensively. What you do before you get into that car is even more important. If you drink alcohol and then get behind the wheel — no matter how good a driver you are — you become a danger to yourself, your passengers, pedestrians and other motorists.
