Traffic, sticky question for Chopper plaza plan

By Mel Hyman

What will happen to the traffic situation on New Scotland Road between the time a proposed Price Chopper shopping plaza is built and the Slingerlands Bypass Extension is constructed, if it ever is? That's the question concerning Bethlehem planners as they continue consideration of the supermarket/retail complex eyed for the corner of New Scotland and LaGrange roads.

While town planner Jeff Lipnicky does not see the issue as a major stumbling block at this time, the question of congestion on New Scotland Road between Blessing Road (near Blue Cross/Blue Shield) and Cherry Avenue Extension needs to be addressed. The project is pending before the town planning board, which needs to make a recommendation to the town board on CHOPPER/page 16

Above-ground septic failure becomes couple's nightmare

By Dev Tobin

A Swift Road couple's dream house has become a nightmare after its above-ground septic system failed earlier this year. The failure was the impetus for a new, more stringent village law regulating above-ground (or "fill") septic systems. But for Robert and Susan Callendar, the new village law is too little, too late. Robert Callendar appeared before the village board of trustees last week to ask for an emergency connection to the Salem Hills Sewer District, which ends just 300 feet from the couple's property line. "It's been eight months of pure frustration," Callendar said. "Our engineer told us we're lucky it was a dry winter, or we would have had a California mudslide" in the front yard. He explained that two portions of the SEPTIC/page 16

11 homes affected by gas in wells

By Dev Tobin

A gasoline spill of unknown origin has contaminated wells serving 11 households on Upper Flat Rock and North roads outside Clarksville. The state Department of Environmental Conservation has provided in-home filtration systems for the affected households, but residents say they want to be connected to the nearby municipal water supply of the Clarksville Water District. "These chemicals are known to cause cancer, liver damage and birth defects," said John Kimmey of North Road. "There are a lot of young kids on this road. We need water now, and we need help from our town to get it." A strong petrochemical odor was first GAS/page 17

Johnson Stationers to close doors

Wayne Johnson

By Susan Graves

Another longtime, family-owned Delmar business is calling it quits. Citing a problematic economy and the popularity of mall shopping, Wayne Johnson said he will close his Delaware Avenue business in August. "In 1978, it was a lot easier to open a business," he said. "Today the challenge is almost insurmountable." Johnson noted that a large number of Bethlehem residents work for the state, and said he believes that those workers have cut back on their spending. "People got scared and hesitate to spend money they don't have," Johnson said, and consequently business has dropped off dramatically. "I guess some just don't have the money." Last January, Johnson said, business was good, and he thought the business had turned the corner, but in February, "The bottom fell out." Johnson also said he thinks that many Bethlehem residents also hold the misconception that, "When you're in Delmar, you're going to pay a higher price any place" you shop. What the consumer loses, however, is service and personal attention, according to Johnson. Johnson said he and his family "went through a lot of soul searching" before deciding to close. Still, he is optimistic about the future, believing that "as one door closes, some new door opens" somewhere else. Johnson said his mother, Harriett, will also miss the business, where she has worked since it opened 17 years JOHNSONS/page 16

Local doctor receives belated sheepskin

By Dev Tobin

Higher education was a fast-track affair during World War II. Those who remained in college attended school all year round so they could be available for the war effort as quickly as possible.

For Dr. Levon Bedrosian, the track was so fast he went from being a freshman at Union College to a freshman at Union-affiliated Albany Medical College in 16 months as part of the Navy's V-12 program.

As a result, Bedrosian never received a bachelor's degree, even though he received his M.D. in 1947, and has been practicing medicine ever since.

In June, Union rectified that by awarding Bedrosian a bachelor of science degree, "almost posthumously," joked the 70-year-old Elsmere resident.

Bedrosian is now medical director of Child's Hospital and clinical professor emeritus at Albany Medical College, in addition to his longtime private practice in obstetrics/gynecology.

Bedrosian noted that he started at Union as a freshman, then joined the Naval Reserve.

"The Navy was anticipating needing a lot of doctors" for the expected "long, drawn-out and bloody" invasion of Japan in 1946, he said.

"Thank God that didn't happen," he said, recalling that no one at the time knew that the atomic bomb even existed, much less that it would force a Japanese surrender without invasion.

Although he was never acti-

vated during World War II, he was called to two years of active duty during the Korean War, serving in Army hospitals in Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and Valley Forge, Pa.

Bedrosian was eligible for a Union bachelor of science degree because he competed two years there, did not receive a bachelor's degree elsewhere, earned a higher degree, and distinguished himself in a field requiring ongoing education, according to college officials.

Bedrosian said that Union became aware of his situation (and that of seven other wartime students) several years ago, and asked him to send in a curriculum vitae summarizing his graduate education and professional accomplishments.

Instead of attending graduation "with all those 22-year-olds," the eight "post-facto" bachelors celebrated by going out to dinner and to a church service with a college vice president, Bedrosian said.

St. Thomas students earn scholarships

Bridget Heilsberg, John Mauro and Kathryn Daley, recent graduates of St. Thomas the Apostle School, have received scholarships to area Catholic high schools.

Heilsberg was given a four-year, $4,000 scholarship to Bishop Maginn High School. She earned the award by being named top student in the eighth grade at St. Thomas.

Mauro received a scholarship of $3,200 to be used over his four years at LaSalle Institute. It was awarded based on his academic record and performance on LaSalle's entrance exam.

The Academy of the Holy Names gave Daley a one-year grant of $250 based on her academic record, test scores and application.

Area brokerage house rated tops in survey

Edward D. Jones & Co., which maintains a Delmar office at 316 Delaware Ave., was rated as the best of 21 leading, full-service brokerage houses by a recent Money magazine survey.

The survey was conducted by an independent financial consulting and testing service.

The firm is the largest of its kind in the U.S., with over 3,000 offices nationwide.

Town library changes video loan policy

The Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar, recently changed its video loan policy.

Non-fiction video cassettes, including instruction, how-to or documentary videos marked with red tape, can now be checked out for a two-week period.

Specific tapes may be reserved at the media center or reference desk for 25 cents.

V'ville trustees mull hazardous collections

By Dev Tobin

The village of Voorheesville has a "once bitten, twice shy" attitude about sponsoring household hazardous collection, Mayor Edward Clark said at last week's board of trustees meeting.

Regular solid waste pickup will not take items such as paint, cleaning products and pesticides, so special collection days have been set up in many localities to help people get rid of potentially dangerous waste that typically

Our bill from ANSWERS came to $130 per user. I talked to our four users, and they said it cost about $16 per can of paint — more to get rid of it than to buy it.

Edward Clark

sits for years in garages and basements.

Clark rolled his eyes when he recalled a previous collection, handled through the ANSWERS consortium.

"Our bill from ANSWERS came to $130 per user," Clark said. "I talked to our four users, and they said it cost about $16 per can of paint — more to get rid of it than to buy it."

Kevin Jobin-Davis, a village grant-writing consultant, reported that the cost of disposing of household hazardous waste has come down substantially in the last few years.

But he noted that the village's net cost for a one-day collection, similar to that recently run by the town of Bethlehem, would be about $2,500.

One way to hold the cost down even further is to separate out latex paint, which represents about 60 percent of the waste that comes in, and bring it to a local paint recycler, Jobin-Davis said.

About 8 percent of Bethlehem households participated in that town's household hazardous waste collection day in May, a turnout which organizers called a great success.

The same level of participation would equal about 70 village households, and Clark wondered if the village should go through such a "big production" for so few people.

Also, Clark said any collection program would "have to have great controls" to prevent "infiltration" by non-village residents.

"We ought to try to get a sense (whether) this is what the community wants," said Clark, after he moved to table discussion of the issue until the board's next meeting on July 25.

The board also heard from Roland Eberhard of 59 Maple Ave., who complained about the deteriorated condition of the sidewalk in front of his house.

Eberhard offered to remove the severely cracked concrete, but Clark said he would like to look at the sidewalk first.

"If the village is responsible, we should do all of the work," Clark said.

Eberhard replied that he hoped the village would do something about the problem this summer, because he just did not "want to go through another winter" with the sidewalk in a state of disrepair.

In another matter, Village Attorney Don Meacham requested, and the board approved, scheduling public hearings on two local laws prior to the July 25 meeting.

One hearing will deal with a technical amendment to the recently approved local law limiting above-ground septic systems, and the other will deal with strengthening the village's subdivision regulations, Meacham said.

Town takes over BCMS after-school program

By Mel Hyman

Operation and management of the PIT after-school program is being taken over by the Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department.

The town board last week agreed to begin administering the program, which is run out of the Bethlehem Middle School basement, starting this fall.

Now in its fourth year of operation, the PIT offers middle school students a chance to relax and socialize from 2:30 to about 3:50 p.m. when school is in session.

The facility has also been open one Friday evening a month and town Parks and Recreation commissioner Dave Austin said he plans to retain that schedule, plus possibly adding an occasional Saturday night.

Up to now, the program has been run by Holly Billings, the former president of BOU (Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited), who served as project director.

"It's been run so well by Holly and the PIT board for four years now that I can't envision making any major changes," Austin said.

The facility, which underwent

a major renovation several years ago when it was reopened after a long hiatus, offers students three pool tables, two ping pong tables, air hockey, a graffiti wall, a lounge area with music and a snack bar.

The renovation was truly a community effort since about $40,000 worth of improvements were made despite only $8,000 in cash being available from a school district bond issue.

While Billings said she planned to remain active with the program, she wanted to divest herself of the paperwork involved.

For the past several years, the Albany County Youth Bureau has provided funding to pay for the salaries of PIT supervisors and keeping on top of that is a major task.

"I'm not a business person," Billings said. "You have to figure out taxes (for PIT employees) and each year you also need to prepare a new grant application. I've been doing it all on my kitchen table."

"I'll miss the kids and I'll probably end up hanging out in the PIT myself just to keep in touch with them."

The remaining balance in the PIT, Inc. checking account will be transferred to the town, plus any remaining funds due from the county Youth Bureau.

Money to reimburse the PIT for operation of the program from January through May 1995 has not yet arrived from Albany County.

"The biggest draw for the kids is each other," Billings said. Besides the recreation, "It gives them an opportunity to socialize with their friends that they often don't have during the school day."

Middle school officials are happy to host the program because it gives students something to do and a place to go prior to boarding school buses at 4 p.m.

"They like it because it keeps them out of the hallways," Billings said.

Besides offering use of the middle school basement for free, the school district has agreed to clean and maintain the facility.

Austin said he may try to expand the activity offerings. Currently, artist Maryann Delaney comes in weekly to "work with kids on drawing."

But it's probably best to keep the atmosphere low key. After a long day at school, the "kids are most interested in being able to just hang out and relax," he said.

On the average, about 30 to 40 pupils per day visit the PIT. During the past school year, a total of 3,606 sixth, seventh and eighth graders dropped by the PIT.

"It's been growing steadily," Billings said, "and it's turned into a terrific thing."

Board nixes independent water study

By Mel Hyman

In the latest skirmish between the Bethlehem Town Board and the forces allied against the town's new $13.9 million drinking supply, a request by the Clearwater for Bethlehem group to hire an independent consultant was rejected.

Clearwater member Fran Royo told the board last week that there was some confusion in the community about whether it was economically feasible to direct the entire supply to the town's industrial sector off Route 32 and not have it available for public consumption.

Royo quoted from a town official who during last summer's public hearing on the project said it would be "very costly" to retrofit the system so that none of the water, which emanates from an aquifer underneath the Hudson River, would flow out of residential faucets.

Earlier this year, Royo said

Supervisor Sheila Fuller clearly indicated that it "would not be a big deal" to direct all of the water to industry.

In response, Fuller stood by her oft-stated position that until the town can agree with the city of Albany on a new contract for a supplemental water supply, discussion of how a switchover could be effected was futile.

Fuller said she has been assured that the switchover can be accomplished without huge expense, and that she was not willing to ask taxpayers to pay for an independent consultant when the information needed was already in hand.

Councilwoman Doris Davis said commissioning another engineering study would "open (the town board) to more criticism at an additional expense by the same people who have been criticizing

(the project) all along."

Attempting to sum up the board's sentiment, which was solidly behind Fuller, Councilman Ted Putney said, "I think we have all the information we need."

The water system is due to go on line in late October. Unless a deal is struck with Albany for the purchase at least 250,000 gallons of city water per year, the new system, that derives water from an aquifer beneath the Hudson River, will be used as a backup supply for the residential sector during periods of peak demand.

Clearwater spokeswoman Linda Burtis said the purchase of 250,000 gallons of Albany water to supplement the town-owned Vly Creek reservoir would "not be enough to keep the people off the Hudson River supply for very long. ... Sheila Fuller is making a promise that is impossible to keep."

Assessment appeals drop again

The number of grievances filed with the Bethlehem Assessor's Office continues to decline from the high point reached in 1992.

In 1992, right after the town-wide revaluation, when all the parcels in Bethlehem were reassessed to reflect their full market value, the number of grievances skyrocketed to nearly 1,400.

That number has declined steadily since then until last year when 265 grievances (including 20 commercial/industrial parcels) were considered by the town's Board of Assessment Review.

A total of 163 grievances were filed in 1995, according to town assessor Dave Leafer, a net drop of 102 from the previous year. Included in this year's total were

16 commercial/industrial parcels

Of the 165 challenges made this year, 104 were successful, which reduced the town's total taxable assessment by $2,433,750.

Overall, the total taxable assessment in the town of Bethlehem increased $21,362,504 this year.

Last year's total assessment was figured at $1,929,949,771, while the total for 1995 was $1,951,312,275.

Leafer attributed the assessment increase primarily to new construction in the town. Most of that new construction has been additions and improvements to existing homes, such as decks, patios, in-ground swimming pools and additional rooms.

Tank taken care of

The removal of underground fuel tanks has become a regular sight the past few years at present and former gas stations, but this one was dug up behind the Peter Harris store on Kenwood Avenue last week. The fuel oil tank had been unused for 50 years, and there was no indication that it had been leaking, according to workers involved in the excavation.

MackKay retiring, cited by engineering society

By Dev Tobin

We take high-speed, limited-access roads like the Thruway for granted, thanks in large part to the safety engineering work done by people like Raymond MacKay Jr.

MackKay

After a 38-year career as an engineer with the state, MacKay will retire later this month as director of the Thruway Authority's Office of Maintenance Engineering Operations and Planning.

"It's been a rewarding and interesting career, but after 38 years, it's time to move on," he said.

MacKay's state service is even longer, if you count the summers he worked at the former Delmar Game Farm while attending Bethlehem Central High School.

MacKay said that while road design itself hasn't changed much in the past 40 years, safety "appurtenances," such as guardrails, signs and striping have increased considerably in quantity and quality.

A resident of Orchard Hill Road in New Scotland, MacKay arrived in his present job one month before the collapse of the Thruway bridge over the Schoharie Creek in 1987.

MacKay called the bridge collapse "tragic," but noted that subsequent tougher bridge inspections and increased maintenance work led to "tremendous improvements in bridge safety."

He added that the forensic work on the bridge collapse gave transportation engineers a better understanding of "scour," the wearing away of bridge abutments by fast-moving water.

Although he won't be around to oversee it, MacKay said that the transition to a 65 mph speed limit later this year will be smooth.

"All we have to do is change the signs," he said, adding that the Thruway was engineered for higher speeds when it was built in the 1950s.

MacKay was recently honored as Professional Engineer Manager of the Year by the New York State Society of Professional Engineers.

MacKay is a member, and past chairman, of the New Scotland planning board, and will not seek reappointment when his term runs out at the end of next year.

In his first year on the board, MacKay cast the deciding vote in favor of the controversial Larned gravel mine on the former Tall Timbers golf course, and does not regret it.

"No one knew what was going on there unless you were at the light (on Route 155) when a truck came out," he said. "And it provided income to set up the Orchard Park water district."

MacKay said that the master plan and zoning law amendment process, now near completion after eight years, "has got to find a balance between two very articulate and vocal factions—one which says don't tell me what to do with my land, and the other which says zone my neighbors' land for larger lots."

MacKay's retirement plans include preparing to sell his home on Orchard Hill Road so he can concentrate on year-round golfing and fishing at his new home in North Carolina, where winter is like our early spring.

He is licensed as a professional engineer in North Carolina so he can "do a little consulting work" on rainy days when the fish aren't biting.

race, and a 2K kids' race, on Sunday, July 16.

The 2K race is for children age 12 and under, and the 5K and 10K races are for ages 10 and up.

The first-ever Tour de Parc races will be run mostly off road, said Quinlan Davey, who is helping to organize the event at the town park on Elm Avenue.

"A couple of the hills are real hummers. It's a nice tough little course," he said.

Registration will start at 8 a.m., and the races will begin at 8:30. The first 100 runners who register by mail will receive a free T-shirt.

Three local businesses, Delmar Chiropractic, Fitness for Her and Waddingham Footwear, are sponsoring the race. Davey said 66 trophies will be awarded to runners in the three races.

The event will be the boosters' main fund-raiser for the year. The track and field booster club formed several years ago when one coaching position was going to be dropped because of budget constraints, Davey said.

Through the Boosters' intervention, the coaching position was retained. "From there the Booster Club grew," he added.

This year, the club taped meets for students to use in college portfolios, to show to their families, or to help them improve running techniques, Davey said.

He said there is tremendous interest in track and field among BC students. "The number of kids involved is enormous."

To register for the race, send a $10 check payable to BC Track Boosters to: Quinlan Davey, 398 Elm Ave., Selkirk 12158. For information, call Davey at 439-7242.

New owner at helm of pizzeria

By Mel Hyman

Making it in the business world is never easy. It really helps, however, when you're able to build upon an enterprise that has always been successful.

Marylou McMahon had the good fortune of doing just that when earlier this year her husband Harry discovered that the popular Delmar Pizzeria restaurant located at the Four Corners was for sale.

"We talked about it (the uncertain economic climate)," McMahon said, "but we felt since the business has always been profitable here, we would forge ahead."

The McMahons have owned the business for only three months, but Marylou has seen nothing to make doubt her decision.

Moreover, she has found the people who frequent the establishment to be a friendly lot. "That's what I enjoy the most," she said. "Working with the customers."

McMahon said she spends between 40 and 45 hours a week in the restaurant. Harry has a full-time job of his own so Marylou is left to run the store and supervise the six employees by herself.

But she doesn't shy away from it, and now that her three children are grown, it's like taking on a whole new career.

As far as she is concerned, the only thing needed at the Delmar Pizzeria, which has been in business at 365 Delaware Ave. for about 35 years, is perhaps a little fine-tuning.

To that extent, there is already a new menu in hand.

For starters, there is basic pizza with a choice of 18 different toppings. You can order all sorts of combinations and permutations, if you'd like, such as a pizza with pepperoni, black olives, mushrooms, hot peppers, broccoli and salami.

But pizza isn't the only culinary delight. There are multiple types of subs, heros and salads. And don't forget about the wings, calzones and mozzarella sticks.

While she has never been schooled in gourmet pizza-making, Marylou did pick up some culinary secrets while cooking for the public school system in Ontario.

More recently, she ran a pizzeria in Rotterdam for about a year with her son David, who has since sold that operation and like his mother, gone into business elsewhere.

Matters of Opinion

Kids and driving

Editorials

Recently, a one-car accident resulted in the 16-year-old passenger's being listed in serious condition at Albany Med with head and spinal injuries. The driver, also 16 years old, who had received his driver's license about a month earlier, was treated and released from the hospital.

The investigating police officer said that the accident was apparently caused by the inexperienced driver's failure to obey posted speed signs. The driver lost control of the car on a curve and smashed into a tree.

Interestingly, both young people were wearing seat belts and the air bags had been deployed. The police officer said that front air bags provide only limited protection in side-impact crashes.

Could this accident have been avoided? Most probably. A more experienced driver and one who obeyed the posted speed limit would probably not have crashed into the tree.

"Speed kills" is a warning we've all heard and read many times, most likely in anti-drug commercials. But it's also applicable to drivers of automobiles, motorcycles, and other motor vehicles. Speed and Driving a motor vehicle is a serious business. Parents of new drivers bear a responsibility as great as that of the new drivers to make sure they understand the necessity to obey speed signs and the dangers of speeding to themselves and to others. Parents and new drivers should take their responsibilities seriously.

Making a difference

The Bethlehem Networks Project is a community-wide organization. It is dedicated to reaching out and taking action where our town's young people are concerned. It helps and encourages parents to raise healthy children who can reach their full potential.

One of the most important aspects of the project is the promoting of our community businesses, families, schools, in fact the entire community, to be proactive in preventing drug and alcohol use by our youth. All year long, our community is asked to help by contributing time and effort to making a difference in the lives of our youth.

Many organisations, businesses and individuals are supporting this worthwhile project. More are needed. If everyone helps, we will truly be a community involved in the present and future of our young people.

Water regulations

New regulations for use of water in Bethlehem have been in effect since the meeting of the town board on June 28.

The change was necessary because the water level in the Vly Creek reservoir is low and many people were not complying with the previous regulations.

These regulations were made to ensure that we don't run out of water. We should make sure they are followed.

Watering lawns: Is it wilt vs. guilt?

The author of this Point of View is an agent for Albany County Cooperative Extension, a master gardener and certified nursery professional.

By Kenneth L. Carnes

Homeowners and Northeast lawn care professionals share a major challenge this summer — keeping lawns and gardens from wilting. In the Capital District we are six-and-one-quarter inches below normal rainfall, which according to the national weather bureau is a "moderate drought."

Watering our outdoor investments during drought stress has changed with recent horticultural research. When it comes to lawn irrigation, research indicates that frequent, shallow watering is more beneficial and practical than deep or heavy watering during summer droughts.

According to Dr. Norman W. Hummel Jr., Cornell's turfgrass specialist, during the spring months turfgrass roots are actively developing in deep (12 inches) soil and are able to use soil moisture from a deeper soil profile. But in the summer, roots deteriorate so plants must obtain water from the soil surface. Therefore, shallow watering provides more usable water for the lawn.

Flower and vegetable gardens and landscape beds are another story. They require infrequent, deep and heavy watering to moisten the top 6 to 10 inches of soil. Occasional wilting can cause leaf scorch and reduces flower and fruit production.

To keep all ornamental gardens healthy: Soaker hoses work great for narrow areas; organic mulches keep soil moist, choke out weeds and keep the root zone cool; and dead-heading old flower and seed heads will encourage healthy branching.

The amount of water needed per application should be in the range of two-tenths of an inch for a sandy soil. This amount of water should penetrate the top four inches of soil in an ideal situation. Thatch layers, air temperatures, grade angles and dry surface tensions are all variables which could affect water penetration. So check the depth you are watering periodically to determine if you are applying adequate amounts of water.

Pre-dawn irrigation is preferred to any other time of the day. Evaporation will be kept to a minimum by applying water between the hours of 3 to 9 a.m. Most of the later loss by the plant is used for cooling during hot spells. Light syringing with water in the mid to late afternoon can reduce temperatures in the plant canopy, but gardeners should refrain from watering between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Rapid evaporation and water droplet magnification can cause leaf damage and flower spotting and they can also waste valuable water.

With water bans and restrictions, we are often limited to irrigating between 6 and 9 p.m. These evening hours are not ideal because it is then that soil-borne diseases and flower blights are frequently spread. If given a choice, early morning watering is best.

The keys to maintaining healthy lawns regardless of weather conditions are: proper summer mowing at three inches; slow-release summer turf fertilizer; and one to one-half inches of water per week. The drought tolerance benefits of the spring and summer application of potassium are reduced wilting tendency and healthier root systems. Annual potassium rates should be at least half that of nitrogen.

By having your soil tested (contact Cornell Cooperative Extension), you can determine if potassium is in sufficient supply. Usually a normal application rate of two pounds of potassium per 1,000 square feet per year is a sufficient amount to apply for reducing drought stress.

You can improve the appearance of your lawn and gardens by proper watering, but you can also ruin it if you are careless. Don't waste water by watering every day. A few waterings should keep your lawn fairly green during the summer. But with water restrictions, often our cool-season grasses (bluegrasses) will wilt and turn brown to conserve energy.

If the grass has a purplish cast and if footprints remain after you walk across the lawn, then your turfgrass is going dormant until weather conditions change. By not irrigating, the lawn remains dormant, does not grow and does not require mowing. Keep all foot traffic to a minimum and refrain from parking vehicles on law areas to prevent further damage to soil structure and grass blades.

You can improve the appearance of your lawn and gardens by proper watering, but you can also ruin it if you are careless. Don't waste water by watering every day.

Remember — the concept of watering frequently and at shallower depths does not mean that your lawn and garden require daily watering. Water restrictions will limit your use of water between early morning and early evening. If given a choice, early morning is best.

By following these simple steps, you can be sure that your turf areas and garden beds will look their best during a drought or when there are water restrictions in the Capital District.

Research funds are critical

Editor, The Spotlight:

As House of Representatives Speaker Newt Gingrich has noted, the government's funding of medical research has reaped many benefits over the years, and must be continued on into the future at advanced levels.

A significant example of the importance of research funding is Alzheimer's disease, the most expensive uninsured illness in this country, impacting 40,000 families in the Northeastern New York region and 4 million families nationwide. As baby boomers age, that number is projected to skyrocket to 14 million by the year 2050. Already, it costs this country $100 billion annually to care for Alzheimer patients. Finding a way to delay the onset of Alzheimer's for just five years could reduce by 50 percent the number of people with the disease and save the country as much as $50 billion a year. This can be done only if the momentum of current research continues and Congress increases Alzheimer research funding by a modest $50 million to bring the 1996 fiscal year investment to $360 million.

Letters

Government investment today can mean lives free of Alzheimer's and billions of dollars in savings for our future. We encourage everyone to inform your legislators active in Washington that their support of research funding is critical.

Time to move forward

Editor, The Spotlight:

Anthony Genovesi's letter in the June 14 issue of The Spotlight concerning the need for water deserves a response. I agree that 49 years is long enough for the residents of Font Grove Road—indeed the residents in many areas of the Town of New Scotland—to wait for water. However, I do not agree that the only real prospect for a safe and adequate water supply is the Tall Timbers project. That project may be good for the town but its merits should be judged on the basis of the plan if and when a proposal is filed. Meanwhile, as we should have learned from the delays suffered by Orchard Park residents who waited for years for water promised by Tall Timbers, the need to pursue the supply and distribution of water should not be held hostage to large-scale development.

I believe that the town can and should finance a water system. For example, rather than spend $300,000 to expand town hall, perhaps we should form a town water district and fund infrastructure development to supply water where it is economically feasible and desirable to do so. Similarly, perhaps we should impose cable franchise fees like many municipalities to generate much needed revenues. And, if neither of these ideas is desirable, I am confident that through responsible planning, financing can be obtained.

Unfortunately, most of my first 18 months on the town board have been consumed by zoning issues. Hopefully, we are in the final stages of this year-long effort and I and other responsible citizens will be able to devote our full energy to resolving our long standing water issues.

The lack of a water supply is not the problem. The ongoing City of Albany/Town of Bethlehem controversy proves that enough water exists. Albany seeks to sell more water than Bethlehem wants to purchase. Bethlehem, which has the benefit of the Vly Creek Reservoir located in the heart of New Scotland, has infrastructure in our town to bypass our residents and deliver water to Bethlehem.

hem. No wonder they do not need water from Albany. But we do. Similarly, the Town of Guilderland obtains some water from Albany and, like Bethlehem, has infrastructure in place that may be used to obtain water from Albany for New Scotland.

Given that funding can be pursued to develop distribution lines and that the supply exists if the various municipalities would pool their water resources and work together, the only missing link is the commitment by responsible elected officials to work together in a non-partisan manner to resolve the important water issues. A New Scotland committee for regionalized water can serve as the driving force to ensure that our citizens' needs are addressed.

I hope that Mr. Genovesi will agree to serve on the committee and I invite letters of interest from concerned citizens, landowners, developers and residents, which may be sent to me at town hall before Monday, July 31.

I ran for office in part because of my frustration with the town's failure to respond to the citizens' need for such a basic service. Rather than be a part of the problem, I decided to be a part of the solution. I am proud to have played a part in moving Orchard Park closer to a safe and adequate water supply after many years of unfulfilled promises. Their eight-year delay is too long; so 49 years is certainly a disgrace.

The easy answer is to sit and wait and hope a benevolent developer will address our problems. It's also easy to point out why something cannot be done and criticize rather than participate.

I call on those who truly want to resolve the long standing water problems in New Scotland to work with the New Scotland Committee for Regionalized Water. It's time to move forward together to bring water to New Scotland wherever it is economically feasible.

As I said when I ran for office, together we can make a difference.

Thanks for making difference

Editor, The Spotlight:

I want to thank the Delmar community for their incredible support during our "Most Wanted" Lock Up to benefit the local chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

The June 22 event pledged an all-time high of $13,000. Special thanks to Lock Up participants who dedicated their time and efforts to raising funds for MDA's local and patient service program, and to the generous contributors.

Thanks also to the following sponsors: DelMare Restaurant for donating the room and refreshments and Cellular One for donating cellular phones and air time.

The dollars you raised translate into direct local patient services that benefit people who live right here in our local community. Support groups, our MDA clinic at Albany Medical Center, MDA Summer Camp, assistance with wheelchair purchases—these are just some of the services MDA can provide because of your support and generosity. Thank you for making a difference in the fight against neuromuscular disease.

More roads lead only to more roads

Editor, The Spotlight:

Recently, there have been many articles and letters to the editor concerning the abandonment of the local D & H railroad tracks.

The three main options for the use of these tracks have been made quite clear: 1. convert the tracks to a bike/hike path, 2. keep the tracks a railway, and 3. convert the tracks to a highway.

I strongly support converting the tracks to a bike/hike path. The Capital District Transportation Committee has estimated that there will not be enough users of a commuter rail on these tracks for another 25 to 30 years and there is obviously not a large enough demand to support a freight line. I also believe that converting this right of way to a road would have devastating effects on the communities of Delmar and Slingerlands.

First, a new highway would affect an incredible number of "backyards." Many residents of Bethlehem would lose the peace and quiet that they moved here for. A large portion of the roads that border the D & H tracks run parallel to and very close to them.

The D & H right of way is only about 72 feet wide. How much wider would the highway have to be? The road might actually become many people's backyards. This would lower property values. On the other hand, it has been shown that property adjoining recreational trails has benefitted from an increase in value.

Requests to real estate agents for property near recreational trails has recently surpassed requests for property near tennis courts.

Letters

Would you rather have pedestrians in your backyard or cars and trucks?

Next, highways, such as the one proposed, inevitably lead to the need for more and wider highways. We can look at the LIE on Long Island as an extreme example. Widening the LIE in the past has made the commute from parts of Long Island to New York City more appealing. This led to more development, more traffic and the continued need to widen the LIE.

Our proposed highway would inevitably increase development in the Hill Towns, increasing traffic through Bethlehem and leading to the need for more or wider roads. We need to work on decreasing the traffic through Bethlehem, not increasing it. Developers would benefit the most from this highway and we would benefit the least.

Third, as in much of the United States, we here in the Capital District rely too heavily on the car. Fossil fuel supplies are limited. In the next 10 to 20 years, we will likely be faced with skyrocketing fuel costs similar to those in many European countries (gas is $3 to $4 per gallon in Germany).

Many of these countries dealt with this problem by developing outstanding public transportation systems and bike/hike paths that people enjoy using and by encouraging people to car pool. Putting our money into new highways now will very likely prove to be wasteful in the future. We must look at the long term.

ful in the future. We must look at the long term.

Finally, if you look at a map of the Capital District, you'll notice that there is very little open space around the City of Albany. Our town contains some of the largest areas of undeveloped land near Albany. It should be preserved at all cost. More and more, we are realizing the importance of open space and biological diversity. Let's not lose this precious natural resource.

Let's work toward things that will make our town a good community. When people can bike or walk safely to a neighborhood store or park, seeing their neighbors on the way, they feel good.

When people car pool and take public transportation that works, they feel good. When people breathe fresh air and hear less noise, they feel good.

More roads lead only to more roads. Bike paths and improved public transportation make sense.

Let's do everything we can to make Bethlehem a good place to live. It's our community.

Let's enjoy the right of way

Editor, The Spotlight:

In response to Mr. Thomas J. Coates' letter in the June 14 issue of The Spotlight regarding the D&H right of way through Delmar, Slingerlands, Voorheesville, Altamont and Delanson:

Mr. Coates seems to be afraid that someone may actually enjoy the use of this right of way, other than a railroad that has seen fit to all but abandon the line. Mr. Coates seems intimidated by the purported hordes of bicyclers, hikers and, yes, snowmobilers who may enjoy being outdoors.

I have read very little about whether the line has actually been abandoned yet, and whether or not the Albany County Natural Resource Committee even has jurisdiction over this area yet.

If this right of way does someday become a "haven for snowmobiles," among other things, I feel it would become an asset for the people that enjoy being outdoors.

As for policing the speeding masses who may or may not be allowed to snowmobile during the winter months, I am sure that the Albany County Sheriff's Department, which does maintain a very modern snowmobile patrol, could probably be somehow coerced into this task. If you haven't figured it out yet, I am a very avid snowmobiler, and take great exception to having the sport I love maligned.

In Hamilton County, where I snowmobile, people who enjoy the outdoors in winter are welcome. Local snowmobile clubs, in conjunction with hiking and biking clubs, cross-country skiers, and state and local authorities, help to sign, maintain and police the trail system all year long. It is part of the responsibility that we who use these areas must accept to keep them open for all who wish to use them.

If the railroad line or the county does decide to keep the line open as a scenic railway, great. At least the line will be used for something and not just left to decay, as it is now.

I personally would like it to be dismantled and turned into a trail system for everyone, provided provisions are made for its upkeep. If that happens, I think Albany County could be an even better place than it is now.

Residents deserve answers

Editor, The Spotlight:

Everyone wishes Councilwoman Decker the best. However, I must take issue with the process used by the New Scotland Town Board to select our new representative.

After attempting to fill the vacant seat on the council in a secret meeting prior to the official town meeting, the board rammed the appointment through at its regularly scheduled meeting with no notice, no attempt to solicit applications from other citizens interested in the position and no opportunity for town residents to question the candidate on her views or beliefs.

The proceedings reached comic heights when a judge, hidden in the vestibule, emerged with a Bible to administer the oath of office so that the newly selected official could join the meeting already in progress.

All of this was orchestrated by one councilperson, in spite of the fact that the town Supervisor agreed with town residents that the selection process should have been an open, more democratic one. The unannounced appointment made after pleas by many at the meeting for more time to consider the appointment is reminiscent of old style, boss-dominated political tactics.

The reservations about the appointment raised at the meeting by many are valid at a time when the board is apparently divided with respect to the new zoning laws. Concerns that the personal financial interests of some town residents may be at the heart of the promotion of the proposed new zoning laws that would put the brakes on the development of the existing Tall Timber project for less than altruistic reasons were dismissed, even though a document stating that intent was circulated.

Town residents deserve answers to some specific questions:

- Are there special interest parties seeking to purchase the Tall Timber property?
- What relationship exists between these interested parties and members of the Town Board?
- Is the interest in purchasing the Tall Timber property related to the proposed changes in the Town Zoning laws?
- Who will the proposed zoning changes financially benefit?

The repeated outbursts at public meetings and attempts to undermine the town supervisor must cease. The argumentative behavior toward town residents is disrespectful and is a disgrace. The continual bickering among board members and the circus-like environment that our town meetings have been reduced to will not be tolerated by the voters of New Scotland.

Road map for future action

Editor, The Spotlight:

The results of a Bethlehem Central survey conducted this spring were just sent home with report cards to all parents of high school students.

The purpose of the survey was to assess the issues of mutual respect and discipline at the high school. It was initiated by the High School Shared Decision Making Team, composed of 15 members representing students, parents, faculty, staff and administration. These same constituencies were polled with more than 1,000 responding, a 45 percent return rate. The committee wants to emphasize that this survey is "a road map for future action." It confirmed assumptions based on observation, and will help prioritize the committee's future work.

Now the committee will formulate programs to increase mutual respect and make discipline more equitable and effective. These educational concerns are recognized nationwide as areas for improvement.

This survey was one directive undertaken during the first seven months of this consensus-building endeavor by the committee.

We encourage anyone interested in discussing the results and/or helping develop plans for next year to contact a parent representative: Maureen Geis, Phyllis Hillinger, Judy Thomson or Mary Ann Vogel.

Article was disservice to community

Editor, The Spotlight:

Your article in The Spotlight of June 21 about the robbery at Boston Chicken in Elsmere was a disservice to the community and an affront to those of us who eschew racism in any of its many forms.

Letters

I refer to the only description your reporter provided of the woman and two men who allegedly committed the crime and that is that they were "black." Since the writer shared no further information about their appearance and since they cannot be apprehended on the mere basis of color—although many of us can be and often are harassed solely because of it—it would behoove you to apologize to your readers for the reference and to omit it in the future rather than add to the racism that is pervasive in this country.

Years ago newspapers across America ceased publishing the race or color of people when the use of it alone served no useful purpose. The Spotlight should have been in the forefront in this regard; instead, regrettably, it is yet bringing up the rear.

La Verne Hamilton

Delmar

Editor's note: The reference to the Boston Chicken suspects as being black was supplied by the Bethlehem Police Department solely for the purpose of helping to apprehend them. This is a journalistic policy followed by nearly all Capital District media.

Thanks for deeds well done

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Monday, June 19, Officer Raymond Linstruth was assigned to a traffic detail on the Delmar bypass at Kenwood Avenue, diverting traffic while road repairs were being made.

The temperature was in the 90's, the humidity was extremely high and the officer stood outside of the police car for several hours.

'Improved' cable a disaster

Editor, The Spotlight:

I had to smile, no, actually laugh, at the story about Cablevision in the June 21 issue of The Spotlight. As far as my household is concerned, the new cable is a disaster.

I have a total of five stations that have a blurred picture since the "improved" cable was installed. After four phone calls to the company and no response, I gave up.

To add insult, I have to buy grass seed to fix the lawn where they dug. And I have to pay higher rates.

No wonder Mrs. Fuller had her political smile on in the photograph—the town's cut will probably rise.

So much for improvements.

Assembly should pass bill

Editor, The Spotlight:

There are many reasons why the NYS Assembly should pass a zero tolerance for teens bill, meaning that when tested with a 0.02 percent to .07 percent blood alcohol level, the teenager would lose his/her driver's license for six months and pay a $125 fine.

Very recently, in one weekend, four teens were involved in two crashes and landed in critical care units at two area hospitals. In the Delmar crash, the police did not request an alcohol test, because no one witnessed the crash and there were no alcohol containers at the scene, ergo, no probable cause for a test was present. We don't know if the crash was alcohol-related, as a result. The other crash in Delaware County, was alcohol-related since the driver appeared to be intoxicated, and therefore met the probable cause test. His alleged BAC was .09 percent.

If the zero tolerance for teens bill were law (it passed handily in the Senate last week, and in the U.S. Senate), the reasonable suspicion to request a test would be the crash itself.

There were 1.1 billion cans of beer sold to high school children last year. That's 20 percent of all beer sold! If teenagers perceived that they would lose their license if they had one beer before driving if caught, which they would in the blanket patrols now in place, I believe teens would forgo the beer to protect their license. Call Mr. Silver (455-4100) and ask to have A-2364a moved today.

Pay for board of education members?

Editor, The Spotlight:

Without disparaging any current school board members, I offer these thoughts for the consideration of residents in the school district:

We live in a competitive society. We offer our services to various organizations without benefit of pay. However, the school board oversees a budget of many millions of dollars.

Historically, we have observed few people stepping forward to enter a contest that when completed successfully gives so little credit and draws so much abuse. For this we expect top notch talent and expertise.

I believe remunerative recognition would attract some very qualified candidates. We pay our teachers, administrators and other personnel but not our policy-making board. Are we expecting too much?

Does this make sense? The cost is trivial, the benefits...I leave this to you.

Agree or disagree—make your thoughts known.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

Dr. Thomas H. Abele, D.M.D. Dr. Geoffrey B. Edmunds, D.D.S.

Making teeth look good again

Perhaps some years ago you had your dentist perform some gold bridgework but the white facing of the crowns have discolored. Maybe there are areas along the gum line where the gold margins are visible. When you look into your mouth, it makes you uncomfortable because your teeth don't look as good as they could, especially when you smile.

Perhaps you have some old fillings that have become tarnished, and this makes you self-conscious, too. The fillings have protected your teeth from decay, and still do; and the bridgework has done its job in taking the place of missing teeth. But you want your teeth to also look as attractive as possible.

You don't want other people to be reminded of the restorative work done on your teeth every time you open your mouth.

If you want your mouth to look as natural as possible, ask your dentist what he can do about it. With today's cosmetic dental techniques, such as capping with porcelain, defects can be treated to make your teeth look good again.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the offices of:

Reformed church fetes its longtime members

By Megan Corneil

Not many of us can even remember events that took place 50 years ago, but the Delmar Reformed Church recently held a special service commemorating its members who have belonged to the church for 50 or more years.

There are 29 such members in all, including Janet Vogel, who has been a member of the church for 62 years. "I just consider it to be my church. I like the people, I like the things that it does, and I'd like to think I made some contributions to its life," she said.

Vogel grew up in the area and attended the church since she was a child with her family. Her brother and sister were also honored at the ceremony.

Elaine Gregory has been a member since 1935. She attended Sunday school as a child, was married in the church, and her children were baptized there. "I suppose that my favorite aspect of the church is the friendliness. If I ever have a problem or some trouble, I know I can call them for help."

Gregory has also been involved in several of the church's volunteer activities over the years, including the Women's Guild, Sunday school and putting together the church's monthly newsletter.

The Rev. Dr. Robert A. Hess, senior pastor at Delmar Reformed remarked, "Certainly, their presence is an indication of their loyalty, dedication, commitment, and faith to both the Lord and to their church."

Other 50-year and more members are: Huldah Patterson, 85 years; Ethel Snyder, 68 years; Evelyn Freudenreich, 66 years; Florence Hehre, 65 years; Harold Yeomans 65 years; John Winne, 65 years; Florence Jackson, 65 years; Evelyn Drake, 64 years; Ruth Hale, 64 years; Luella Voorhees, 64 years; Ruth Taylor, 63 years; Edna Radley, 61 years.

And Marian Van Woert, 60 years; Willis Vogel, 60 years; Jean McCormack 59 years; Lawrence Welter, 59 years; Irving Van Woert, 57 years; Frances Winne, 56 years; Leora Gazel, 55 years; Marilyn Fryer, 53 years; Louise Babbitt, 53 years; Alice Doyle, 52 years; Robert Jackson, 52 years; Isabella Williams, 52 years; Wilson Young, 52 years; Edith Cox, 51 years; and Ronald Walter, 50 years.

Melcher leads Farm Family to playoff win over Levine

One of the most exciting regular seasons of the Tri-Village Little League came to an end last Thursday when co-champions Farm Family Insurance and J. Levine CFP squared off to decide which team would be the league representative in the City and County Tournament.

As has been the situation all year, it came down to the final out before Farm Family could claim a 2-1 victory.

During the regular season, both teams compiled 13-5 records. Levine had won the two previous meetings. The first game went to extra innings with Levine topping Farm Family, 3-2. The second contest was an uncharacteristically high-scoring affair that ended with a 12-9 score.

In the playoff contest, 12-year-old Mark Melcher was on the mound for Farm Family. Prior to the game, Melcher had been averaging two strikeouts per inning and limiting opposing squads to a paltry .185 batting average.

Melcher was up to the task against Levine, as he delivered a five-hit, 11-strikeout performance.

Levine used two pitchers in the contest. Craig Hermann, a big hard-throwing righthander, started the game and pitched two impressive innings while limiting Farm Family to one run.

Josh Burnett took over for

Little League

Levine in the third inning and limited Farm Family to two hits.

The game began with Jon Levine bouncing a high infield hit. Levine had been torrid in the second half of the season and may be the quickest batter from home to first. The next batter, Jon Nowak, rapped a hard ground ball to shortstop Mark Bulger who flipped to second baseman Chris Kasarjian for the out.

In the bottom half of the first, Bulger, Farm Family's leading hitter at .560, singled and was moved to third by cleanup hitter Aaron Griffin. A sterling defensive play by Mike Follett on a liner by first baseman Paul Wolfert averted any scoring.

In the bottom half of the second, Farm Family was able to generate the game's first score. Rick Root, who is one of the strongest boys in the league, delivered a base hit and was knocked around by catcher Kenny Porter.

Levine struck back in the top half of the third. With no one on and two outs, centerfielder Adam Rodriguez roped a double to the fence. Burnett followed with a sharp single to create the tie. Second baseman Dan Kidera scratched out a hit but was left stranded, leaving the score tied at 1-1.

From that point on, both Melcher and Burnett were looking strong. Farm Family was set down in both the third and fourth innings. Fine outfield catches by Levine and Rodriguez and a key play by Kidera thwarted two scoring opportunities for Farm Family. Farm Family centerfielder Jean Laraway grabbed her second long fly ball to preserve the advantage.

In the bottom of the fifth, Kasarjian, using his excellent speed, beat out an infield hit and eventually scampered home with the winning run on a wild pitch.

Melcher was looking strong. In the sixth, he was able to record his 10th strikeout for the first out. The second batter, Nate Raymond drilled a fastball into left field. Melcher regrouped to get the next batter for the second out.

Levine then placed a ball perfectly for his second hit and stole second to create a second and third situation with two outs.

In what may be remembered as one of the finest tests of pitcher and batter, Melcher was able to get Nowak to hit an off-speed pitch.

As the ball was making its way to shortstop, Melcher bounded from the mound, grabbed the ball with one hand, pivoted, and threw a strike from his knees to the outstretched Wolfert for the final out and victory.

Key plays in the game were also made by Farm Family's Evan Gingold and Martin Bonventre and Levine's Billy Combes, Matt Glisson and Trevor Collins.

In a post-game ceremony, all players were congratulated on their fine efforts.

Bethlehem Hawks fly high

Bethlehem's youngest travel team, the under-7 Hawks, distinguished itself this season with a 11-0-1 record.

The 14 youngsters, ages 6 and 7, often surprised their opponents with a display of discipline and control unusual in such young players.

Through that control, said their coach, Andy Giordano, the players were able to dominate the middle of the field.

Jim Potter was assistant coach.

"This was a building year for these players. They're a team to watch," said Giordano, a former Bethlehem varsity soccer player who played in Bethlehem's youth soccer programs in the 1970s.

Tomboys team wins softball tournament

By Jackie O'Brien

The Bethlehem Tomboys 12-and-under All-Star team did it the hard way, as it storied through three grueling games on Sunday, June 25, to take the championship in the ninth annual Westland Hills Invitational softball tournament in Albany.

The Bethlehem "A" All-Star team put itself in a precarious position by blowing a late lead in a Saturday, June 24 game against the host club (Westland Hills). But a convincing win over the Bethlehem "B" team, followed by the Sunday sweep, gave the Tomboys the title.

The "A" team's title march began with a 15-run outburst in the fifth inning of the Saturday contest against Bethlehem's second unit. Megan Dole led the offensive outburst with a single and a double. She drove in four runs in the game.

On Sunday, Bethlehem took on Miss Shen's "B" team. It was close for awhile, but in the fourth inning, Bethlehem blew their opponents away by scoring nine runs. The team's offense was led by Jackie O'Brien, who hit two doubles, and Betsy Brookins, who punched out three singles.

Excellent defense was also one of the focal points of the game, with outstanding efforts contributed by first baseman Beth Filkins and second baseman Tracy Bukowski.

Brookins, the "A" team's starting pitcher, survived a shaky start to come back and shut out Miss Shen over the last two innings for the 24-10 victory.

The win kept Bethlehem's slim title hopes alive, giving them a rematch with Westland Hills.

Lindsay Wilkinson put on the pitching display of the weekend, striking out 17 batters in the Tomboys' 16-2 win. With the game tied at 1-1, Bethlehem finally broke through in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

O'Brien sparked the 12-hit attack with an inside-the-park home run, while Bukowski scored four runs for the winners.

Manager Gil Brookins had no reserves available for what was now a triple-header, and the combination of miserable heat and fatigue on the part of the players was taking its toll.

Bethlehem fell behind 2-0 in the first inning against Westland Hills and could manage just one hit until the fourth. Willow Eyres' RBI single scored Bukowski. Then Dole stepped up to the plate and ripped a double to score Eyres and tie the game for Bethlehem.

The Tomboys added a run in the third, then took advantage of three Westland Hills errors to ice the game with a five-run sixth. Brookins led off the inning with a double and Kate Wiley's RBI single was sandwiched between the Westland miscues.

Pitchers Brookins and Wilkinson combined for the 12-5 victory. Laura Ricciardelli doubled twice and scored twice.

The 12-and-under All-Stars are now 7-4, with a 3-3 record in Hudson-Mohawk league play.

Mixed results for Ruth teams

The 13-year-old Bethlehem Babe Ruth team beat Hudson Valley at Cook Park in Colonie, rallying from a 4-2 deficit to score eight runs in the fifth.

Ryna Venter pitched five strong innings to help Bethlehem earn a 12-7 victory. Greg Ciprioni had a key, pinch hit single and Ryan Sweeney a hard-hit double to spark the offense.

On Sunday, Bethlehem succumbed to Central of Albany, 8-3. Held to three hits, including Justin Friedman's single, Bethlehem stayed close thanks to excellent defensive play by shortstop Mike Carney.

defensive play by Mike Carney.

In 15-year-old action, Bethlehem lost to Whitehall, 8-1. Jeremy Dievendorf pitched well and catcher Brian Davies was solid.

Mantle team catapults into 1st

The Bethlehem Mickey Mantle team took over first place in the 16-team Eastern New York League by winning two out of three games last week. Bethlehem's season record now stands at 10-2-1.

The confrontation for first place took place last Thursday against Latham at the Bought Baseball Complex. With two outs and no one on base in the top of the seventh, Bethlehem trailed 6-4. Graig Garver started the rally with an infield single. Geoff Hunter kept things going with a hard single up the middle.

Then Cory Czajka, the team's leading hitter, delivered a clutch two-run double to tie the score. Rich Petri drove in the winning run with a single to left center. Mike DelGiaccio, who pitched 5 2/3 strong innings, was relieved by Matt Tulloch, who got the win. Jesse Brozowski had two hits, including a triple, and scored two runs.

On Saturday, July 1, Bethlehem traveled to Cohoes and came away with a 12-3 victory. Chris Brown earned his third victory of the season, allowing only one hit and no earned runs in six innings. Brozowski and Czajka had three hits each, and Jeff McQuide had two hits and scored two runs.

On Sunday, July 2, Bethlehem suffered its second loss of the season, 15-4, to the third place South Troy Dodgers. Thirteen hits by the Dodgers combined with nine errors by the Blue Eagles resulted in the loss. Czajka had two singles, and Petri had a single and a three-run homer.

Bethlehem plays Scotia on Wednesday (July 5) and then Clifton Park and Twin Town at the Town Park on Saturday and Sunday.

Night basketball begins Golf tournament aids Camp Good Days

By Scott Isaacs

It's a good thing there are no houses around the town park on Elm Avenue. That way residents won't be disturbed by the sound of dribbling basketballs in the late evening.

Midnight basketball has made its way to Bethlehem in the form of the Bethlehem Basketball Teen Summer League, a 9 to 11 p.m. operation that will have its inaugural season this summer.

Operating on donations, including use of the Bethlehem Town Park, a $500 grant from Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, and equipment from the Bethlehem Basketball Club, the league sports six teams and 42 players, as well as paid referees and scorekeepers.

The league was created by Greg Sack and Ted Hartman, students at Bethlehem Central High School, who wanted an organized outlet for basketball that appeals to older players past their Bethlehem Basketball Club years.

"Some of the most intense basketball games take place on the playground baskets of Delmar," Hartman said, "be it at the Lutheran Church, the town park or at neighborhood baskets."

The purpose of the summer league is to harness that energy into an organized, competitive atmosphere for 16, 17 and 18-year-old players."

Play began on Sunday, July 2, and continues at the town park every Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday until Aug. 17.

Anyone age 16-18 interested in becoming a substitute should call Hartman at 439-3291 or Sack at 439-1931.

Benita Zahn, health reporter for NewsChannel 13, will serve as mistress of ceremonies.

fill system have collapsed, and that as a result his front lawn is remarkably green and healthy, despite the worst drought in years.

Callendar said that the system was installed on top of clay and shale, and that the slopes of the mound were not in compliance with the approved drawings.

But building a new above-ground system may not solve his problems, he noted.

"No one can guarantee that an alternative septic system will work on that property," Callendar said.

Village Attorney Don Meacham explained that the village allows new out-of-district connections to its water system in rare cases of extreme hardship where the connection is recommended by the county health department.

Meacham said that the village should follow the same procedure with out-of-district sewer connections.

Callendar responded that county health department officials had told him that the best way to solve the problem is with a sewer connection, and that he would get that recommendation in writing for the village. He also said that he would provide village officials with a copy of his engineer's report on the failure of the system.

While connecting to the sewer system would be expensive (at least $10,000), Callendar maintained that it would be more cost-effective in the long run than trying to fix the failed fill system.

Mayor Edward Clark noted that the village does not want to "open avenues to let another 10 people on the system because we let you on. We're constrained by the capacity of the system — we can't add everybody."

Public Works Superintendent William Hotaling said that the district normally operates within its limits, only exceeding them on rainy spring days because of problems with "infiltration/inflow" from storm water.

Chopper

whether the 31-acre parcel eyed for development should be rezoned from residential to commercial.

Price Chopper wants to build a 99,000-square-foot shopping plaza, which includes a 63,000-square-foot supermarket, a handful of retail stores, a small office building and a bank.

Price Chopper officials have said that any increase in traffic on New Scotland Road would be minimal because the plaza would primarily attract customers from the immediate Bethlehem/New Scotland area.

According to Lipnicky, the company has provided the necessary information on the project's impact on the intersection of New Scotland Road and Cherry Avenue Extension — even offering to make intersection improvements designed to improve the flow of traffic.

But is the Price Chopper complex going to create "a lot more traffic, or a little more" on the half-mile portion of New Scotland between the proposed plaza and Blessing Road? Lipnicky asked.

Ostensibly, the added volume of cars traveling on that stretch of roadway will be reduced considerably once the bypass extension is in place, he said, but "realistically" that may not occur until the turn of the century.

"It could be 2001 before the bypass (extension) is open to traffic," Lipnicky said. "What will happen in the meantime?"

And there is no guarantee the extension will ever be built, he said, given the severe budget cutting going on in Washington these days.

"When (the bypass extension) will happen is anybody's guess," he said. "No funds have been allocated and no construction date has been set."

The overriding question, Lipnicky said, is "Do you accept a little more traffic on New Scotland Road so that we can get another supermarket in town? What's the trade-off? Is it a planning question or more of a policy question? I'm not really sure."

Supervisor Sheila Fuller declined comment on the proposal until the planning board's recommendation was ready. She did say she's received many phone calls recently from people asking, "What's going on with Price Chopper?"

Joanne Gage, Price Chopper vice president for consumer affairs, said the company looks forward to being back on the planning board agenda this month, hopefully at the July 18 meeting.

The added information on traffic requested by the planning board should be arriving this week, she said.

"After the next planning board meeting, we're hopeful it will go back to the town board and that we can move it along quickly after that."

Robert Miller, president of the Windsor Development Corp., which is overseeing the project for Price Chopper, said "The study will show that there will be a few seconds delay at the intersections, but it will not pose a serious interference to the flow of traffic."

On the other hand, "Since I assume Price Chopper will do some business, it will probably lessen the traffic in other areas of town, such as Delaware Avenue."

Not everyone is in a rush to see the project approved, however. Mark Haskins, past president of the Slingerlands Homeowners Association, said he placed little stock in the traffic projections made by Price Chopper and its engineering consultants, because "I've never seen a traffic study commissioned by a developer that said a project shouldn't be built."

The traffic study commissioned by the town's Land Use Management Advisory Committee, which prepared the town master plan now under consideration, concluded that the site being eyed by Price Chopper should not be rezoned commercial until the Slingerlands Bypass Extension is in place.

The project is certain to increase traffic congestion in other areas as well, Haskins said, such as the stretch of Route 85 between Cherry Avenue Extension and the New Scotland town line.

"Here we have Chopper coming in like they have for the past six years and jumping the gun," Haskins said. "As a state worker, I know what's happening with budgets in New York and Washington and there is a very good chance that unless an area is an absolute disaster, that new roads will not be built."

Moreover, many people from Slingerlands are patronizing the new SuperValu store in Voorheesville, Haskins said, so "I have to question the need for it."

The project, dubbed Price Chopper Community Center, is expected to create about 350 jobs and generate an estimated $57,000 in town taxes and $131,000 in school taxes each year, according to the developer.

Gas

noticed by Kimmey on May 28. He called the Culligan water treatment company, which confirmed that the water had gasoline in it.

EnCon has paid for activated carbon filtration systems; which cost about $3,500 plus maintenance, for the affected wells, Kimmey said, adding that the cost of hooking up to the Clarksville Water District will be less in the long run.

Kimmey noted that filters on the Culligan equipment, which are supposed to last six months, have had to be changed after two weeks due to the amount of contamination in the water.

Even after filtration, the water is not good enough to drink, according to North Road resident Dottie Faranda.

"Our clothes smell like gas (after washing in the filtered water), and it's got to the point that you don't want to take a shower in it," much less drink the filtered water, said Faranda, who has been been "carting water up from Albany" for drinking and washing.

"We've been taking a lot of sponge baths with Albany water," she said.

A letter from William Christensen, a regional spill investigator for EnCon, to New Scotland Supervisor Herb Reilly said that lab analyses of the well water have found high levels of benzene and methyl tert butyl ether (MTBE), both chemical components of gasoline.

The MTBE level in Kimmey's water was 9,600 parts per billion, well above the 50 ppb standard for drinking water, according to the test results.

Christensen said that two underground fuel tanks with small pin holes were recently dug up at the Tommell farm on Stove Pipe Road, but he added that EnCon has not been able to confirm that the farm tanks are the source of the aquifer contamination.

He said that the department will be installing monitoring wells at the Tommell farm and at other sites in the area to attempt to determine the source and extent of the contamination.

Kevin McMillen, president of Kleen Resources, a hazardous waste cleanup firm on North Road, said that his company was drilling monitoring wells around the perimeter of its site, as well as at the Tommell farm.

McMillen emphasized that there have been no spills by his company in its four years at the site, but said that a prior hazardous waste cleanup company, Domermuth Environmental, had experienced a gasoline spill there in the late 1980s.

McMillen said that a recovery well that was pumping out the contaminants in 1989 had the effect of "emptying" neighboring wells, so the remediation project on that spill was never completed.

Christensen asked Reilly to provide an estimate of the cost of extending the Clarksville Water District about one mile up North Road and onto Upper Flat Rock Road.

Generally, state Superfund monies, administered by EnCon, will provide funding to remediate chemical contamination of drinking water supplies.

Bob Cook, the town's water advisory committee chairman, estimated that extending the water main would cost about $30 a foot, or approximately $160,000 a mile.

The water advisory committee will consider the issue of an emergency extension of the Clarksville Water District at its meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in town hall. The town board will likely discuss the matter at its meeting Monday.

"I think we're in good shape to do something constructive," Cook said.

Reilly said that the town "wants to get moving and solve these people's problems. We have the water and the elevation" to extend the line without any additional capacity or storage expense.

Celebrate Bavarian culture at Alps festival

By Joshua Kagan

Hunter Mountain will serve up a taste of German and Austrian culture during its annual eight-day German Alps Festival, scheduled from Thursday to Sunday, July 6 to 9 and 13 to 16.

The "Granddaddy of All Festivals" will feature more than 80 entertainers from Europe, about twice the number from last year, in addition to several American acts.

"This was the first festival that came to Greene County," Guy Garraghan of Hunter Mountain said. "That's why it's the granddaddy of all festivals. It's one of the premiere festivals in the region. You don't have to be Bavarian or Austrian to enjoy it."

Various music groups will perform throughout its eight-day run. Bands slated to play each day include Stadtkapelle Lauingen, a 30-piece Bavarian brass band, Die Hogener Lunen, a 35-member German vocal group that will present folk songs of the northern part of the country, and the Austrian folk group Goiserer Spitzbaum.

The Stratton Mountain Boys, a group which has performed at many past festivals at Hunter, will also perform daily.

"We have great bands from Germany. We have great American bands, too," Garraghan said. "But when it comes to duplicating the sound of Austria and pleasing the crowd, the Stratton Mountain Boys are a huge success."

Other entertainers schedule to appear include: The Dominos International (to perform daily), The Jimmy Sturr Orchestra (to perform July 8 and 15), Frank Hanner (to perform July 16), the Jersey Knickerbockers (to perform July 15), Jolly Joe (to perform July 8), Toni Noichle (to perform daily) and Ingo Froehlich (to perform daily).

Garraghan said that while most festivals of this kind limit themselves to certain cultural areas of Germany, Hunter's focuses on more than the mountainous areas of Austria and southern Germany. "Whenever you see a German Alps festival, it usually sticks to Bavaria, but we've gone one step beyond that by including northern German culture."

Other features of the festival are daily pony,

CALENDAR • ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Bavarian folk dancers and a "Captivating Kids" contest are among the activities to watch during the eight-day German Alps Festival at Hunter Mountain July 6-9 and July 13-16. The festival will feature 80 performers from Germany and Austria, crafts and plenty of food and brew.

trail and wagon rides, performances by strolling musicians and folk dancers (known as schuhplattlers) and daily demonstrations about honey bees and the peregrine falcon. Honey bees at work can be seen in a class cage. They will also be handled by nature educators each day.

There will also be daily demonstrations regarding the falcon, a common bird of prey in Europe.

There will be entertainment for kids each day of the festival as well from clowns, a magician and a comedian. Children 3 to 10 years old can participate in the M.I. Hummel Look-Alike Contest on Saturday, July 15. In the contest, kids will pose before judges in costumes designed to make them look like M.I. Hummel figurines, traditional German dolls. The figurines and other authentic German and Austrian crafts will be on display at the festival. Craftspeople will be on hand to create new pieces and discuss their work.

"The festival really has something for everybody," Garraghan said. "It's like a three-ring circus."

A variety of foods and drinks may be sampled throughout the festival.

"You can't go to a festival without eating," said Garraghan. "We'll have authentic German food. We have a unique set-up—we'll have over 100 beers from all over the world, but it's not a beer blast. We serve a large quantity of beer in a classy manner."

The gates will open at 9 a.m. on each date and music will begin at noon. The festival will end around 11 p.m. on weekends and 9 p.m. on weekdays.

Hunter Mountain is in the town of Hunter in the northern portion of Catskill State Park in Greene County. It is on Route 23A, which can be reached from Route 9W. For information, call Hunter at 263-3800.

A couple of Damn Yankees now on area musical comedy stages

The Broadway revival of Damn Yankees which opened two years ago and carried through several seasons, brought new interest to the George Abbott musical.

Now, two local theaters have latched onto that interest in productions which are currently being presented.

At the MacHaydn Theater, popular actress Kathy Halenda has returned to the Chatham company to play the tempestuous role created by Gwen Verdon in the 1950s. Halenda has worked with the Chatham theater during the past decade while spending winters touring in major musical productions throughout the country.

This show about a middle-aged man willing to trade his soul to become a great baseball player, runs through Sunday. Reservations at 392-9292.

But, for devotees of the show who can't make it to Chatham, the Park Playhouse in Albany is staging its own version in Washington Park. This is a full-blown production with large sets, big cast, bright costumes and orchestra.

The show which just opened in the amphitheater near the lake, plays until August 13 Tuesdays through Sundays. Seats can be reserved for $7 but most of the seats in the 2,500-seat theater are free. Info and reservations at 434-2035.

Berkshire Theater Festival starts with 100-year old farce that works

The opening production of the newly-revitalized Berkshire Theater Festival in Stockbridge, Massachusetts has started the season with laughs. The 100-year old Feydeau farce 13 Rue De L'Amour, adapted for American audiences, is a solid hit.

SPOTLIGHT

By Martin P. Kelly

As most of Feydeau's farces, this comedy is based on marital hijinks when a husband is caught in an indiscretion which he proceeds to explain his way out of while his wife tries a dalliance of her own.

Slamming doors and frantic characters are the keynote of this farce and director John Rando has kept the show moving at a breath-taking pace. Any less of a pace would permit the viewer to realize the silliness of the plot and the silliness of the characters.

In this production selected by artistic director Arthur Storch, there is no worry about that. Through July 15. Reservations at (413) 298-5575.

Former Berkshire artistic director now running new theater nearby

Julianne Boyd who for the past several seasons was artistic director of the Berkshire Theater Festival, is now settled into a new venture of her own, the Barrington Stage Company, with a production of Lady Day at Emerson's Bar and Grill. Set in the Macano Inn in Housatonic, Massachusetts, the first production of the new theater's season, features Lanie Robertson as the famed singer Billie Holiday.

Martin P. Kelly

For Boyd, this new venture gives her an opportunity to do productions she couldn't do at Berkshire. For example, after Lady Day closes July 16, the company will open The Diary of Anne Frank which will be presented August 2 through August 13 at the Consolati Performing Arts Center in Sheffield, Massachusetts.

This theater will also be the venue for readings of four new plays from August 17 through August 20. One of these plays will be selected to be produced by the Barrington Stage Company in the summer of 1996.

Boyd is also offering free tickets to young audiences for these last two productions in order to attract a younger crowd to complement the primarily middle-aged and senior audiences which now attend theater.

Info/reservations area available at (413) 528-8888.

Company opens at Theatre Barn as revival of Sondheim musical

The Theater Barn opens Company, its third production of the summer season, Thursday (July 6) at New Lebanon in Columbia County.

This Stephen Sondheim musical is among the most popular of the composer's works with its tuneful tale of urban relationships. Company runs through July 16.

Reservations and information available at 794-8989.

Around Theaters!

Forever Plaid, Heritage Artists musical production at the Little Theater on SPAC grounds until mid-July (587-3330). Same Time, Next Year, dinner theater at Albany Marriott through September 3 (458-8444). Othello, Shakespeare tragedy at Shakespeare and Company, Lenox, Mass. through August 27 (413/637-3353).
