GM eyeing Selkirk for rail car plant

By Mel Hyman and Tom Murnane

The General Motors Corp. is taking a serious look at the Selkirk area for a new locomotive assembly plant.

GM recently won a $70 million contract to supply the Long Island Railroad with 23 locomotives, the first of which is scheduled for delivery by March 1997.

Hoping to take advantage of a highly skilled population of workers, many of whom had been laid off by General Electric, the company for weeks had been focussing on a 22-acre parcel in Glenville, Schenectady County.

But GM and its Milwaukee-based project partner, Super Steel Products Corp., began rethinking the Glenville site after a group of residents threatened to sue to block the plant's construction.

As a result, company officials have been considering alternative sites, including land adjacent to the Conrail freight yards in Selkirk.

A new 162,000-square-foot plant would cost about $6 million and would take about six months to build. The facility is projected to provide

Windstorm ravages Delmar area

By Dev Tobin

For many people, Saturday's fierce windstorm was yet another reminder of how fickle this area's weather can be, and how dependent we are on electricity.

But for Kara Dumper, 19, of 514 Huron Road, going out for coffee or getting through a day without television were small discomforts compared to the terror of having a towering oak tree crash into your bedroom.

"The wind woke me up, then I heard the tree starting to snap," a still-shaken Dumper said later Saturday morning. "I curled up in a ball on the bed, and everything came falling down on me."

The tree came within a few feet of Dumper's bed, and also seriously damaged an adjacent bathroom. Dumper and her family had to evacuate the house because of the damage, and made plans to stay with friends over the weekend.

The tree came from neighbor Reuben Silver's yard, and was there when Silver's house was built in 1963. The tree was uprooted by the 80 mph winds, and also knocked a smaller maple tree onto the Dumpers' home.

"We investigated taking it down, but it looked pretty good, and after all, it withstood all the other storms," Silver said.

Repairs to the home are expected to take about two months, Dumper said. The family will reside in a motel room while work is under way.

Local fire and highway crews were busy all of Saturday responding to calls of trees on roads or wires.

The storm's most severe effects were felt in the Delmar area. Roads like Kenwood Avenue, Union Avenue, Winne Road, and Elm Avenue East were closed for hours Saturday as workers cleared away trees and wires.

"We had a six-man crew at the garage for another project when the storm hit," recalled Gregg Sagendorph, Bethlehem's highway superintendent. "We responded immediately, and brought another dozen men in. We had all the trees out of roadways by 2 p.m. Saturday."

Democrat committee dumps Reilly

By Dev Tobin

The Reilly team is in tatters.

Two years ago, Supervisor Herb Reilly led "the Reilly team" to an unprecedented Democratic sweep of four town board seats.

But the New Scotland Democratic Committee, led by Chairman Mike Burns, has ward Donohue and newcomer Patrick Brown, also a Democrat, for the two town board seats up in November's election.

"We're going on the recommendation of the town Democratic Committee," said Conservative Co-chairman Tom Keenan.

Running as a Democrat, Reilly had received the Conservative designation for his seven previous races (four for supervisor and three for councilman), but this time, Reilly "just doesn't measure up," Keenan said.

Reilly said that Keenan had assured him of the designation in June.

"Tom Keenan told me that I was the candidate based on my track record," said Reilly, noting that the town has "one of the lowest tax rates around" and is completely debt-free.

"I tried to call him to get the petitions, and he was always 'too busy,'" Reilly said.

"Obviously Mike (Burns) was a part of it," Reilly said. "He basically usurped the responsibility of the (town Democratic) committee. The committee is being told to jump and how high by Burns."

The town committee is due to officially choose its slate on Thursday, July 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Voorheesville American Legion hall.

Reilly said he has "been on the outs" with Burns because of his position on the

Court decision may spell doom for Marie Rose

By Mel Hyman

A preliminary injunction has been granted barring the DePaul Management Corp. from constructing the Marie Rose Manor senior citizens' apartment complex in North Bethlehem.

State Supreme Court Judge Thomas Keegan has ruled that plaintiffs Douglas Fisher and Rona Devane have a persuasive argument in challenging the Bethlehem Town Board's decision to rezone a 5.8-acre site at the end of Marquis Drive (off Krumkill Road) as a senior citizen residential district.

Fisher's complaint questions whether the town board properly determined whether the Marie Rose Manor proposal meets the minimum requirements of an SCRDP.

The stop action order does not take effect until the plaintiffs have posted a $500,000 bond, which Fisher said he is looking into. But whether or not the bond is posted,

Cops nab 5 for DWI

Local police arrested five people recently on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Peter G. Verhagen, 51, of Flatrock Road, Clarksville, was stopped at 10:30 p.m. Monday, July 10, for crossing a double line to pass on Delaware Avenue, Bethlehem Police said. He was released pending a future appearance in town court.

Linda Jenkins, 45, of 553 First St., Albany, was apprehended at 12:52 a.m. Wednesday, July 12, after an officer noticed her vehicle parked partly on New Scotland Road, Bethlehem Police said.

She was released pending a future appearance in town court.

Todd J. Fuller, 20, of 5 John St., Selkirk, was apprehended at 2:55 a.m. Tuesday, July 11, after his vehicle became disabled near the junction of Route 144 and Glenmont Hill Road, Bethlehem Police said.

He was released pending a future appearance in town court.

Adalberto Vega Luis, 37, of 315 Main St., Gunderland, was stopped at 9 p.m. Thursday, July, for a traffic violation on School Road in New Scotland, according to the Albany County's Sheriff's Office in Voorheesville.

He was released pending a future appearance in town court.

Philip Donato, 37, of 63 Groesbeck Road, Feura Bush, was stopped at 12:30 a.m. Sunday, July 9, for a traffic violation on Route 32 in Bethlehem, according to Sheriff's deputies in Voorheesville.

He was released pending a future appearance in town court.

Sheehan to receive BC grant

Teige Patrick Sheehan, son of Robert and Anne Sheehan of Slingerlands, was recently awarded a full doctoral fellowship to continue his studies in the field of neuropsychology at Boston College.

He attended Boston College as a presidential scholar and a member of the honors program, and recently graduated as a Scholar of the College.

Sheehan is a 1991 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School.

Town mulls county paramedics

By Mel Hyman

Guiderland has it, Colonie has it, and so does the city of Albany.

If the town board appropriates about $370,000, then Bethlehem could have around-the-clock, seven-day-a-week paramedic coverage as well.

In a presentation last week, Inspector Thomas Fargione of the Albany County Sheriff's Department offered to provide the town with two "first response" emergency vehicles, equipped with the latest life-saving equipment and the trained personnel to man them.

The program is aimed at filling in the gaps left by the seven volunteer paramedics who work with the Delmar Ambulance Squad under the auspices of the Delmar Fire Department.

While these volunteers are trained in advanced life support systems, they provide coverage only to the Delmar, Elsmere and Slingerlands area and are not always available 24 hours a day.

The paramedic program being offered by the sheriff's department would provide coverage to Glenmont, Selkirk, North Bethlehem and any other area of town where a 911 call emanates.

"You are being well-served" by the Delmar Ambulance Squad, Fargione told the town board. "Historically you've had one of the best paramedic programs in the area."

At the same time, "It's become very difficult for you to meet the growing demand for paramedic support," Fargione said, which is where the county program will come in handy.

"We'll be here strictly to augment" the ambulance squads, he said. "They will continue to operate independently."

The Bethlehem Ambulance Squad located in Selkirk operates with emergency medical technicians who, while providing a useful service, do not have the same level of training as paramedics.

Paramedics log more than 2,000 hours of training before they are certified, according to Elsmere Fire Chief Richard Webster, and unlike EMTs, they can administer drugs and medication.

They're also trained in the operation of cardiac monitoring equipment and heart defibrillators.

"They bring the emergency room to your house," said Delmar Fire Chief James Kerr. "We welcome the additional support."

"The number of calls from Delmar and Bethlehem has been steadily increasing," he said. "But it's North Bethlehem where the calls have taken a huge jump," especially given the development spurt under way and the opening of the Beverwyck Retirement Community.

North Bethlehem is served by the Western Turnpike Rescue Squad from Guiderland.

About 1,800 ambulance calls were logged for the town of Bethlehem last year.

Most of the time a paramedic is available from Delmar, Kerr said, but, "Most of the time is not good enough. The whole town should be protected by trained paramedics, without a doubt."

Fargione said that if the town board approves the allocation, the county paramedic program could be "up and running by October." The $370,000 allocation would include $260,000 for paramedic salaries, about $50,000 for vehicles and about $50,000 for equipment and miscellaneous expenses.

The allocation should be significantly less in subsequent years, he said, because the "first response" vehicles normally last about three years and the heart monitoring equipment lasts "a very long time."

The entire program, including the paramedics, would be under the direct supervision of the Albany County Sheriff's Department.

"If you don't like us after one year," Fargione told the board, "just get rid of us. We're not locked into this for the next 10 years."

N. Scotland may reconsider lower-price paramedic plan

By Mel Hyman

When the Albany County Sheriff's Department first proposed an advanced life support program for New Scotland last year, it would have cost the town about $135,000.

Under that arrangement, paramedic coverage for New Scotland would have been lumped together with coverage for the towns of Berne, Westerlo and Rensselaerville.

Under the latest proposal unveiled at the Bethlehem Town Board meeting last week, the bill for New Scotland would drop to $92,000 — if it joins forces with Bethlehem.

The cost decrease is due to the common geography shared by New Scotland and Bethlehem, and the easy access that "first response" emergency vehicles stationed in Bethlehem would have to Feura Bush, Onesquethaw and Voorheesville.

If New Scotland votes to become a participant with Bethlehem in the project, there would be a third "first response" vehicle stationed in Bethlehem that would be dedicated to covering New Scotland.

It would mean savings for both towns, since they would share in the operating cost. The cost for Bethlehem, pegged at $369,000 if the town goes it alone, would fall to $276,839.

New Scotland Supervisor Herb Reilly said he has yet to be briefed on the Bethlehem consolidation proposal, but would not be averse to considering it.

"We'd certainly sit down and talk with them about it. Ninety-two thousand is a lot less than what we would have had to pay to go in with the Hilltowns, but it's still a lot of money."

New Scotland decided not to join the Berne/Westerlo/Rensselaerville group last year, Reilly said, because "that would have been an enormous amount to raise in taxes."

Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller said she would like New Scotland to join. "I will be contacting Mr. Reilly shortly," she said.

Clyne plans challenge for Conservative line

By Mel Hyman

Fasten your seat belts. Bethlehem Democratic chairman Matt Clyne plans to challenge Republican Supervisor Sheila Fuller for the Conservative Party line in the November election.

The last time around — in 1993 — Clyne wrested the all-important Conservative line from Fuller in a September primary. His margin of victory was one vote.

But that one vote translated to about 440 Conservative Party votes for Clyne in the general election. The odds against him winning the line again are slim — if only because he must convince enough of the town's 215 enrolled Conservatives to write in his name on the primary ballot.

Realizing the importance of every vote in his battle to unseat Fuller, a one-term incumbent, Clyne is determined to try to repeat his primary success of two years ago.

"I figure (the Conservative line) will be worth about 500 votes," he said. "I decided to go for it."

But even without the Conservative line, Clyne predicted that the entire Democratic ticket, which also includes Theresa Barrowman and Joseph Duclos for the town board, John Weidman for receiver of taxes and Michael Kornstein for town justice, would "do very well."

"I think there are a lot of issues in the town that people are upset over," he said. "There's a lot going on, I can tell you that. Much more so than in 1993."

The town's new water system is not "not the only issue, by far," he said. "The proposal to convert the D&H rail line into a road I think is a big issue. I think it's preposterous. It doesn't make any sense at all, and it could ruin half a dozen neighborhoods."

Kornstein and Weidman will automatically be on the ballot for the Conservative Party primary in September. Clyne, who must first collect the necessary number of signatures on opportunity-to-ballot petitions, must rely on voters writing in his name in the proper place on the voting machine.

In 1993, he came within 54 votes of becoming the first Democratic supervisor in more than 100 years.

NS accepts bid on roads for Heldervale

By Dev Tobin

The time is now to rebuild roads in the Heldervale IV subdivision, although some of the necessary legal work, including securing a related escrow account, have yet to be done.

Dipping deep into next year's road repair budget, the New Scotland town board accepted the $85,240 bid by Callanan Industries of South Bethlehem to rebuild and put a top coat on Old English and Westover roads.

Homeowners in the exclusive area have complained regularly over the past year that the roads have deteriorated to the point they are a safety hazard because they never received a top coat.

Normally, the top coat of pavement is not laid down until construction and site work that requires heavy equipment is complete.

The initial developer of the subdivision, Vincent Laviano, left the area and sold his interest in Heldervale to Belmonte Builders.

The road project will be funded by a tax anticipation note this year, which will be paid off by next year's tax revenues. The elusive escrow account, believed to hold about $18,000, will help defray part of the project's cost.

"This is basically an advance on next year's roads," said Councilman Scott Houghtaling.

"Who's going to pay, and how much, is still the issue," said Town Attorney John Biscone.

BC math supervisor retires

By Dev Tobin

Phil Gibbons began his career in math education two years before the Sputnik shock, and ends it with Russians and Americans orbiting the earth together.

The national commitment to improve math and science education in the wake of Sputnik in 1957 helped Gibbons earn master's and doctoral degrees, before he came to Bethlehem Central 18 years ago as supervisor of math.

After Sputnik, the whole cycle started. The government blamed the (aerospace) companies, the companies blamed the graduate schools, the graduate schools blamed the undergraduate schools, and the undergraduate schools blamed the public schools.

Phil Gibbons

"After Sputnik, the whole cycle started. The government blamed the (aerospace) companies, the companies blamed the graduate schools, the graduate schools blamed the undergraduate schools, and the undergraduate schools blamed the public schools," he recalled.

To remedy the perceived problem in math and science education, the National Science Foundation began offering grants to teachers to pursue advanced degrees, a program Gibbons took advantage of.

But Gibbons feels that, then as now, the quality of American math education has been getting a bad rap.

For example, "The kids who are mathematically capable are going farther than ever before, some completing two years of college math before they graduate from high school," Gibbons noted.

An essential element of effective math instruction—homework—often conflicts with the busy schedules of middle and high school students, Gibbons said.

"Math is not a spectator sport—it requires practice and practice to get the skills and understanding," Gibbons said, adding that sports and other extracurricular activities tend to cut into the time available for homework for many students.

"If they end up with 90 minutes for six different subjects, many barely do the minimum," he said.

Like most veteran educators, Gibbons has noticed an almost cultural change in students.

"Kids have less ability to concentrate and pay attention, so teachers have to be more active and creative," Gibbons said.

The BC math program, with six levels of ability grouping, is a good fit for the district, because it provides "various ability levels to meet the needs of all kids," Gibbons said.

In retrospect, BC was "an outstanding academic place to work, with fine administrative support and outstanding parent cooperation," he said.

For his retirement, Gibbons will keep his hand in math education, working with student teachers from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and the University at Albany, and possibly teaching a methods class.

"I'll try to make them overtly aware of the demands that will be placed on them in dealing with today's students," he said.

Gibbons also plans to take up golf and "to spend as little time in the woods as possible" as he learns how to play.

Residents meet tonight with NS water committee

Residents of North and Upper Flat Rock roads whose wells have been contaminated by gasoline will meet tonight with state health and environmental officials and with the town's water committee.

Gasoline byproducts have been detected in large quantities in the well water of 11 residences, which are currently receiving bottled water and treatment at state expense.

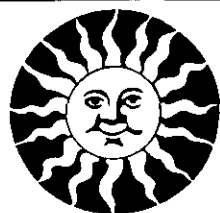

Residents of the affected area can meet with state officials at 6 p.m. and with the water committee at 7 p.m., both at town hall.

In a related matter, farmer Sam Tommell of Stove Pipe Road said he had been informed by state officials that the gasoline contamination did not come from his farm.

"I don't want people to think we're polluters," said Tommell, who raises and markets all-natural-fed beef, "no drugs or hormones," in the local area.

A letter from a state Department of Environmental Conservation official had noted that two underground tanks on the Tommell farm were found to have pinhole leaks after excavation.

Matters of Opinion

Dom DeCecco

Editorials

After teaching for 36 years and serving as supervisor of social studies during that time for 23 years, Dom DeCecco probably knows as much about the profession as anyone and a lot more than many in the field.

He's retiring from Bethlehem Central and his leaving will be a loss to the school system.

But Bethlehem Central's loss will be the University at Albany's gain, because Dom will start teaching a couple of courses there this fall in the School of Education.

We've heard it said that methods courses in education teach students 10 ways to open a window and 10 ways to close a window. We can be sure, having known Dom for almost 30 years, that his university students will learn a great deal more than that. So the University at Albany will benefit from his teaching and ultimately we all will when the Bethlehem Central school district has his graduates on its staff.

Dom is continuing his work in local politics as Albany County Legislator representing the 33rd district (including Slingerlands and Voorheesville) and will be running for re-election this year.

With his new academic schedule, Dom and his wife, Pat, will be able to do more traveling. They have plans to visit Columbia and Chile in South America next year.

Our schools and students have been fortunate to have Dom as a teacher and supervisor of teachers during his distinguished career in the school district. We wish him well in his new career.

Stormy weathered

During the past weekend, a severe wind, rain, lightning and thunder storm whipped through our area. Many trees were uprooted and much damage to property occurred. Downed power lines left areas without electricity. In some places fallen trees and branches blocked streets so that travel was interrupted.

Fortunately, there was no loss of life or serious injury to any of our residents.

The Bethlehem police and fire and ambulance companies deserve our gratitude for promptly and effectively responding to all of the emergency situations.

We agree with the statement issued by our town supervisor Sheila Fuller, a couple of days after the storm. She said in part: "On behalf of all of us in town government, I want to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to all of those who were so helpful and caring during the weekend emergency. . . . It's moments like this that make me proud to be part of this wonderful community."

The Pit's still it!

It's good news that operation of the Pit, the after-school program located in Bethlehem Central Middle School, will be taken over by the Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department.

The Pit was successfully headed by Holly Billings during its four years of operation. When she resigned this past spring from Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, many people wondered about the future of the Pit. Holly is going to remain active in the program while leaving the administrative paperwork to others.

Dave Austin, town Parks and Recreation administrator, has said that the after-school program will remain just about the same as before. It will be open from 2:30 to about 3:50 p.m. when school is in session and one Friday evening a month. In the future, though, an occasional Saturday night may be added to the schedule.

Yes, it's good news that the Pit, where some 30 to 40 kids socialize each day before leaving for home after school, will remain the popular spot to go.

Growing older — it's all in the mind

The author of this Point of View is Community Services Coordinator for the Town of Colonie Senior Resources Department.

By Lois M. Siegel

These questions are asked by many people of all ages:

Is a senior a state of mind or a physical being? Does becoming a senior happen after a certain birthday?

I have found in my decade of work in the Senior Resources Department that one cannot characterize a senior, and there is no such person as a "typical senior."

For example: Is a senior an 84-year-old that teaches tap dancing and continues to take lessons? Or is a senior a 55-year-old that feels it is time to go into a nursing home? Older citizens run the full gamut of interests, abilities, activities and physical endurance.

No longer can an older citizen be labeled a senior because of their physical appearance or their birth year, for everyone is an individual.

The following poem was found in an OWL publication in 1990 and shows how our thinking needs to change to the present way of looking at and being a senior.

The Vacant Chair

*The rocking chair is vacant
by the window in the sun.
The knitting is forgotten,
the mending not begun.
For Grandma on her motor bike is zooming here and there.
As happy as a lark, as free as the air.
There's no one in the kitchen
baking ginger bread,
Grandma's at the gym
learning karate instead.
If you need a baby-sitter,
for Grandma do not look.
She is busy at her typewriter,
writing a new book.
Grandma got tired*

*of sitting half the day,
So she goes to the studio
to practice ballet.
If you're down by the river
believe what you are seeing.
Grandma is down there,
going water skiing.
And just to fill out her day
(I'm not romancing),
Grandma has joined a class
to learn belly dancing.
Oh, Grandma is a darling
I don't mean to knock her.
I'm merely trying to tell you,
Granny's off her rocker!*

So what is your idea of a senior? Do you feel your birthday age or are you of a different mind? Remember: It is wise not to use labels but seek to know the person.

Seniors are individual persons — no two exactly alike!

Is he a suitable role model for our children?

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am totally dismayed and disgusted that Mr. D'Arcangelis has been reinstated as a teacher at the middle school.

Talk about lessons in life — this one teaches our kids a good one, don't you think? Another blow for the D.A.R.E. program; another disaster caused by liberal education policies.

What does it take to get fired from a government job these days?

Letters

Murder? Rape? Child molestation? Even then, if the perpetrator "pays his debt to society," do we reinstate him to a highly paid, trusted position, where he serves as a role model for our vulnerable young people?

I think he should be cleaning toilets somewhere, or turning big rocks into little rocks with a pickaxe, and he should be behind bars to keep him away from our kids.

I wonder if Kevin Byng needs a job. Remember the former Albany Public Works Commissioner who was arrested for robbing a store last week and is known for running from the police about every other week on his motorcycle? He should see Dr. Loomis and the Bethlehem School Board — they'll probably hire him.

Water and town economy Host an exchange student

Editor, The Spotlight:

Bethlehem's year-round restrictions on residential lawn sprinkling have been made more stringent by recent town board actions.

Many communities in the Northeast will face increasing water shortages. Albany has not had a ban on lawn sprinkling since 1966. Bethlehem has had a year-round ban.

In 1993, Bethlehem residential water use averaged 2.55 million gallons per day (MGD). This was less than the average daily industrial use. In 1995, the average daily industrial water use increases to 3.53 MGD or 1.0 MGD more than our residential use. Summer time represents a peak demand on residential and industrial use. How did our problem develop?

On April 2, 1992, Bruce Secor, commissioner of public works, recommended that the town board approve Cogen's proposal to buy a guaranteed 1.6 MGD of water from Bethlehem and that the town guarantee to furnish up to 3.4 MGD. Over 90 percent of this water does not have to be of drinking water quality. The town board unanimously approved the water agreement within one week without any discussion by board members.

Our existing water system was

built and paid for by town residents. The residential user pays on average 25 to 100 percent more for every 1000 gallons of water than industry.

The lucrative industrial water agreement and the placing of increasing restrictions on residential water use with no restrictions on industry indicates the priorities of our elected officials.

What are the economic benefits to the Town of Bethlehem?

Cogen was developed through the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency. Cogen makes a payment in lieu of taxes based on an assessment of 25 percent of total plant costs. Residential assessment is based on 100 percent of property value.

The Bethlehem Central School District receives no taxes or payments from Cogen or other South Bethlehem industries.

Shouldn't our elected officials have questioned the multi-million dollar water agreement with Cogen and anticipated the emerging problems and concerns of many residents?

Editor, The Spotlight:

Now that the summer is in full swing, most of us are thinking about vacations and family gatherings, and school is the furthest thing from our minds. For scores of young people from Europe, Asia and South America, however, one of the greatest adventures of their lives is just a few short weeks away, and school is all they can think about.

The young people I am talking about are foreign exchange students. Kids from all over the world, from every walk of life, who are preparing to spend anywhere from a few weeks to an entire school year in the United States. It should be one of the most fantastic experiences they will ever have. If it happens. And right now, it is a big "if."

There are numerous programs that sponsor student exchange students in our area, and they are all suffering the same problem — an extreme shortage of American families to host these wonderful kids.

Over the past six years, I have had the pleasure of hosting exchange students from around the world, and the experience has been one of the most rewarding in my life. As a parent, member of a local school board and community resident, I can recommend this experience to anyone who has an empty bed and a little love in their heart.

Hosting can be done by almost anyone — single or married, with or without children. It can be done for an entire school year or as little as four to six weeks, depending on the program. The cost is minimal — room and board. The kids come over fully insured, and are required to bring their own spending money as needed. They usually have a good command of the English language, and are, by and large, bright, energetic kids, who want to make this a better world for us all.

I would like to invite every member of our community to consider hosting a child this year. I know, first hand, that these kids are welcomed at all of our local high schools and contribute far more to the family and school community than it takes to support them.

If anyone would like more information, please feel free to call me at my home in the evening, at 756-9098, or call the local high school guidance office and see if they have a program that they feel comfortable with. You'll be glad you did!

Correction

Editor's note: The last two paragraphs of Jared H. Beck's Point of View, which were omitted by mistake from last week's issue of The Spotlight, are printed below.

The accumulation of knowledge can be a scary thing to some because the logical, detailed exploration of our world can shake loose tightly held traditional beliefs. This fear of knowledge has further manifested itself in a societal abandonment of true studying and learning. For example, too frequently we think that problems can be solved by purchasing computers for the classroom. The efficacy of a school is measured by student test scores relative to other schools, class size, or by how many kids go on to college. No doubt, technology is a vital part of modern education. But we should never lose sight of the fact that real learning occurs when students explore their surroundings and draw their own conclusions with the guidance of a teacher.

Luckily, I've been privileged to have had many wonderful teachers both in and out of school. From them, I've picked up a lot of useful skills that I think will come in handy next year, so I'm really much more eager than nervous about going off to college in the fall. Harvard, with its grand history and size can be intimidating, but as long as I keep my nose out of the fellows' cuzjohn, I think I'll be OK.

Welcome to Price Chopper

Editor, The Spotlight:

Last week I spent a few days with my daughter in the small town of Kittery, Maine, and while reading their very limited newspaper, I saw a short note that read, "It is so refreshing to have another supermarket on our street; it gives a chance to make a choice — welcome to our town."

I immediately thought to myself, here we are, a town of over 30 thousand people, give or take a few, and we have one market to shop in. And now the people in Slingerlands do not want another market because they choose to go to the one in Voorheesville, which is all well and good because of the proximity of their area to that market.

Do we have to cater to their needs? What about the people in the other parts of town, especially the southern end? It all boils down to one question and that is: "When are we going to get the Price Chopper?" If Slingerlands doesn't want it, why can't it be located more centrally in the town? They are ready to build in our town, if only we will give them the go ahead. What's the deal?

Thanks for the memories

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of our children, their families and the Ravena Elementary Planning Committee, I would like to thank the following people and organizations for their participation in our recent June 9th Community Festival commemorating our closing:

Cherokee Ridge Pony Express, Albany County Sheriff's Patrol, Albany County Health Department, Albany Fire Birds, Mr. Bouncety Bounce, Boomhower's Petting Zoo, Channel 13, CHOICES, Coeymans Police, Coeymans Dive and Rescue Team, DARE, Girl Scouts, Ravena Head Start, Bob Kovachick, K-mart, Marshall's, McDonald's, PARCS, R-C PTO, Ravena Fire Company, Ravena Rescue Squad, Ravena Police, Ravena Welding, Stewart's, Mike Hardy, Mary and Lena Canali, The Dardanis, Sheila Haight, Karen and Heather Holleb, Dick Brooks, Linda Marshall, Joy Mayo, Mary McCabe, Kelly McNamara, Mary McLarman, Vern Schermerhorn, Tim Tucker's RCS students from "Participation in Government" class, Kathy Wolfe, Ravena Elementary BLT, Building Staff and the RCS Board of Education.

I would also like to thank Phyllis Ingraham, Tammy Krzykowski, Jan Lincoln, and Ro Woodard. As we close Ravena Elementary, I hope that our families and the RCS Community will long remember this most festive and fun-filled evening as a celebration of our children, the most precious natural resource we have left on earth!

We'll miss the farmers' market

Editor, The Spotlight:

I have noticed an alarming happening during the past several months. Many small businesses have closed up shop. Even the farmers' market at St. Thomas Church has been terminated. It was a place where not only could you get the fruits and veggies needed to satisfy the American Heart Association requirements but you could always run into an old friend. Instead of fresh, local products grown by our neighbors, we get Grand Union's finest truck-in.

Our flag is desecrated

Editor, The Spotlight:

As an adherent to the U.S. Flag Code, Title 36, United States Code, Chapter 10, as amended by Public Law 344, 94th Congress, approved July 7, 1976, it gives me concern that it is being violated by the selling of a tiny replica of the American flag on which is imprinted "Made in China."

The item is one and one-half inches wide by one inch high, mounted on a toothpick. Retailers, I learn, purchase it for resale from Oriental Trading Company based in Omaha, Nebraska.

Its presence reminds me of the June 14, 1995, news article by Ana M. Alaya of the Knight-Ridder news service in Washington, D.C. In the Times Union it was headlined, "Solomon seeks a ban on foreign made American flags."

The U.S. Department of Commerce must take blame for allowing the importation of this flag-desecrating product.

It's a patent example for supporting Congressman Solomon's move for a ban on the importation of foreign-made American flags, especially when they're emblazoned with the name of that foreign country.

While the code has no enforcement provisions, its Section 176(g) establishes that "The flag should never have placed upon it, nor on any part of it, nor attached to it any mark, insignia, letter, word, figure, design, picture, or drawing of any nature."

Don't play in the streets

Editor, The Spotlight:

While driving home from Dunkin' Donuts on Lincoln Ave., I saw two young boys playing ball in the middle of the street. One of the boys did move to the side of the street while the other boy stayed in the middle of the road.

I stopped and said to the child, "That's real smart, kid, to stand in the middle of the road."

As I drove away, I saw the child's lips moving, saying an obscene phrase to me.

I put the car in reverse, hoping Delmar to see where the child lived. A woman came outside and I told her what had occurred. She stated, "They play in the street." I also told her what the child said to me. Naturally, the boy denied saying the obscene phrase.

In my opinion, there is no need for children to play in the street. If they must play in the street, children should be taught to move to the curb when they see an approaching vehicle and also to "curb" their mouths.

Community spirit appreciated

Editor, The Spotlight:

As I passed through the Four Corners last Saturday morning, I saw Karen Kermani, president of the Bethlehem Garden Club, carrying large plastic containers from her car to the large planters which help to make the intersection more attractive. When I inquired, she informed me that she was watering the flowers to prevent their dying as a result of the extraordinarily dry conditions.

Karen's Saturday morning activity is one more example of the quiet dedication and sense of community spirit and service of so many of our town's residents. Such deeds too often are unnoticed and unappreciated. Such people make Bethlehem a truly special place.

I'd like to express my sincere appreciation and thanks.

Stop! Do you hear a train?

Editor, The Spotlight:

Last week I wrote a letter explaining that the car I was driving was hit by a train at the Adams Street crossing of the D&H railroad. I'd like to present more information and some suggestions.

Letters

I have been informed by the railroad company that the signals were working properly at the time of my accident. The fact that they didn't function properly when tested immediately after the accident was a fluke caused by the slowness of the train. Without making any judgement on the validity of that statement, I will just inform you that, according to the New York State Department of Transportation (NYSDOT), the signals there are about 70 years old. The great majority of drivers I observed were relying completely on those signals.

The DOT also informed me that even though the railroad owns that right of way, the signal system may not be improved without direction from DOT. The DOT had planned to improve the signals at that crossing, but stopped because the line will be abandoned in about a year.

So until the line closes, the signals we have are all we'll get. That's not the railroad's fault. All I can say is, it's an antiquated system, so don't rely on it too heavily.

The DOT says the railroad doesn't need permission to cut away brush on its property. I am still working to obtain better sight distance.

As it is now, depending on the seating arrangement in your vehicle, if you are driving northbound you may not have a clear view of the track until you are close enough to be hit.

At the time of my accident, and probably again in September, 14 school buses per day use that crossing. The sight distance needs to be improved as soon as possible.

Getting to things you can do to be more safe: Be aware that cars today are designed to give you a smooth, quiet ride. In other words, they are designed to block out noise from the outside.

If your windows are closed, things like bells and train whistles may be muted to below your level of consciousness. If your radio or air conditioner is on, you may not hear those sounds at all.

Of the vehicles I observed, 36 percent of northbound drivers had their windows open only slightly. That's the way I had mine the day of the accident. Believe me, the windows are still a quite effective barrier to sound if you don't have them rolled down past your ear.

Since the signals are questionable and the sight distance poor, please be sure you are listening effectively as you approach that crossing.

Bridget Burke

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1985, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

• The hamlet of Clarksville in New Scotland would get public water by 1986 at a cost of about $175 a year, according to representatives of the Laberge engineering consulting firm. The project had received a $400,000 grant from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development and a $1.3 million grant and loan package from the Farmers Home Administration.

• Inspired by the song "We Are the World," six Bethlehem Central Middle School students — Darren Cannella, Fred Pape, Ethan Eldridge, Kristina McCoy, Michelle Hylan and Heather Hawlen — spearheaded a campaign that raised $445 for Ethiopian famine relief.

• Voorheesville Sand & Gravel had secured a state permit to operate a gravel mine on 27 acres of the former Tall Timbers Country Club.

• The Bethlehem Babe Ruth 14-15-year-old All-Stars won the district championship and advanced to the state tournament. Key players were Paul Evangelista, Mike Hodge, John Lindsay, Joe Ganley, Jeff Boyd, Jeff Pesnel and Peter Russo.

Bethlehem Recycling Corner

By Sharon Fisher, town recycling coordinator

Because of the late delivery of the Transwestern telephone books, the town of Bethlehem will keep a recycling bin for old directories and multiple listing books at town hall on 445 Delaware Ave. in Delmar through Friday, Aug. 11.

Residents can also drop off directories for recycling at McDonald's in Elmsmere and all local Price Chopper supermarkets through Aug. 14. Please remove plastic bags from the books.

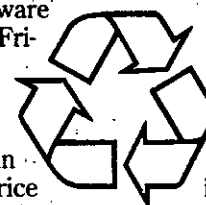

Paperboard box recycling will resume on Monday, Aug. 14, at town hall. Remember that single layer cardboard boxes for cereal, cookies and crackers are acceptable. Flatten all paperboard boxes and remove contents and liners. Do not include refrigerator or freezer boxes.

What do you do with the waxed liner bag you remove from the cereal box before recycling? This bag can be cut to fit between freezer items such as hamburgers or baked goods such as cookies.

If pizza dough or a pie crust needs to be rolled out, the waxed paper bag will protect the counter surface and the dough can be peeled off without tearing. Homemade chocolate-dipped candy can be dried on the waxed liner bag. When hardened, the candy will slip off easily. Wet garbage can be contained in this leak-proof bag to control odor, before throwing in the regular trash.

Residents have been very enthusiastic about these special programs. As long as the recyclables continue to be dry and clean, and markets exist for "oddball recyclables," the separate collections can continue.

Storm creates outages, damages area trees

A powerful storm awakened residents early Saturday as clear early morning skies suddenly turned greenish-black and high winds swirled. Although the storm was not officially declared a tornado, several residents report having seen funnel clouds near the Hudson River.

The wind battered trees, causing power outages and damage to some homes. No one in the immediate area was hurt.

DeFeo wins award from school association

Andrew DeFeo, principal of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Senior High School, has been designated principal of the year by the Capital Area School Development Association.

DeFeo, who has just completed his fourth year as principal, was nominated by the RCS staff for "his vision for the school, an ability to share in the decision-making process, courage in decision-making, an outstanding record of professional and staff development, and an ability to communicate effectively."

DeFeo has helped to inspire a meaningful and conscientious student government, increased cooperation between the school and local businesses and industry, added courses and programs to benefit the entire student body, and spearheaded the application and receipt of numerous grants to help the school better serve the community.

Truck routes considered

Trucks and other emergency vehicles entering the proposed ANSWERS landfill could be routed along Old Ravena Road, according to John Munsey, a C.T. Male engineer. Munsey made this statement at the May informational meeting at the high school. He did

'Beach reads' are in

"Beach Reads" have arrived! A passel of brand new paperbacks is on our display along with some hardcover favorites.

Voorheesville Public Library

Pick up a couple to read poolside or take with you on vacation. New titles will be added at intervals over the summer to lure you into light-and-easy reading for hot, lazy days. Stop in soon and stop in often as the turnover is rapid for these popular books.

The kick off of our Together at Twilight concert series is tonight, July 19, at 7 p.m. on the library lawn.

Musician Tom Sieling will be performing a multi-cultural musical tour of the world to entertain young and old alike. "Sing Around the World" to the accompaniment of guitar, banjo and harmonica as Sieling engagingly presents music from ballads to foot-stomping blues. Bring lawn chairs or a blanket. The concert will move indoors if the weather is not cooperative.

It's a week of beginnings as "Cool Kids' Cinema" starts on Thursday, July 20. Little Foot and his prehistoric plant-eating friends will entertain in the animated movie The Land Before Time II. Drop off the kids at 2 p.m. for the 74 minute film. Free popcorn is on the menu, bring your own drink box. "Cool Kids" will meet Thursdays through Aug. 24. No sign-up is necessary.

Summer Reading Club next week features an exotic visit from India when Veena Chandra appears with her sitar and her sari at the Monday and Wednesday meetings from 2 to 3:30 p.m. on July 24 and 26. Kids in the younger group on Tuesday will be studying the stars with the Junior Museum from 2 to 3 p.m.

The library is closed on Saturdays until after Labor Day.

Electric City Chorus to perform in series

The Electric City Chorus will present a concert at the library's Evening on the Green series on Wednesday, July 26, at 7:30 p.m.

The men's group sings turn-of-the-century barbershop favorites and popular songs in four-part harmony. The 65 members of the group perform in quartets and in ensemble.

Check It Out

Bethlehem Public Library

The chorus, founded in 1944, is the Schenectady chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America. There are more than 80 national affiliates.

All concerts are free and open to the public.

Bring a lawn chair or a blanket. If it rains, the concert will be performed in the community room.

Members of the "Read the World Over" Summer Reading Club are invited to an evening of fun at Guess-A-Book games on Thursday, July 20, at 7 p.m.

Steeplechase, Recognition, Reading Roulette, Jigsaw Jackets and Character Climb are some of the fast-paced games members can play.

The library is hosting several exhibits this month. In the foyer gallery, local artist Robert Moylan is displaying gouache paintings, which are watercolors done in opaque rather than transparent colors.

Moylan's 18 works features local scenes such as the Cohoes Falls and the Adirondacks.

Fifty seven glass oil and vinegar cruets from the private collection of Delmar resident June Lee are on display in the adult book area. Lee has been collecting since 1983 and purchased most of her pieces from antique shops and flea markets.

Delmar artist Mark Peckham is displaying his sketch books of drawings of local historic buildings. Peckham, who works with fountain pen and sepia-colored ink, works for the state Office of Historic Preservation. Several of his sketches are included in the Bicentennial book, Bethlehem Diary.

Greyhounds as Companions, a non-profit organization that finds permanent homes for retired racing dogs, is the focus of an informational display by Delmar resident Pat Colitsas.

The companions are planning a greyhound walk through Delmar on Saturday, July 29. For information about the walk, call Colitsas at 768-2579.

International dolls from the collection of Michelle Kennedy, 4, are on display in the children's room. The exhibit highlights the reading club's theme "Read the World Over."

11-year-old all-stars on verge of District title

By James A. Williams

The 11-year-old Tri-Village Little League tournament team last week defeated Colonie's all-stars, 7-2, to advance to the championship game.

Also on Thursday, July 13, TVLL's farm team, which is made up of 10 and 11-year-olds, beat Colonie, 9-5.

The farm team then scored a 9-5 win over West Albany on Friday, putting them in the district championship game against Pine Bush National, the only team to defeat them in the tournament.

Meanwhile, the other two TVLL teams, the 11-year-olds and 10-year-olds, have been eliminated from tournament action, losing two games each last week.

The 11-year-olds' victory came as a result of steady pitching from Mark Bulger; good defensive play by Dan Kidera, John Andrews, Ryan Williams and Parker Brown; and explosive hitting by

Little League

Matt Treadgold and Jimmy Morrill.

Bulger went the distance for the Tri-Villagers, giving up Colonie's two runs in the top of the first inning. The right-hander scattered four hits over five innings and issued five walks.

Treadgold, one of the club's chief hitters, rapped a single in the third inning knocking in a run and powered a solo home run in the fifth inning.

In TVLL's big third inning, Morrill stroked a double to the wall, driving in Treadgold. Then Aaron Griffin singled, putting Tri-Village up 4-2.

The Big Orange team from Bethlehem stands undefeated in the tournament, awaiting the outcome of the playoffs in the losers' bracket of the double-elimination tournament.

Tri-Village and Colonie could square off again in the championship game scheduled this week.

Thursday's victory was the 11-year-old's third straight win since the Little League's District 13 tournament began on Sunday, July 11.

Win number two was against Pine Bush National of Guilderland on Monday, July 12. The Tri-Villagers defeated the Pine Bush squad, 9-3, behind the three-hit pitching of Williams and the big bats of Treadgold, Bulger and Steve Maltzman.

The farm team sent Brian Guertze to the mound on Thursday, July 13. Guertze scattered four hits and struck out 13 batters on the way to the victory.

The hitting stars included Tom Frankovic, who rapped off two singles and drove in two runs; along with Jon DeWolf, Carter Thomas and Chris Bub — all of whom collected two hits in three times at bat.

In the win over West Albany, the TVLL farm team was led by Thomas, who handled the pitching chores and allowed only three hits in five innings.

John Cameron carried the big stick for the TVLL, going 3-4 and driving in three runs.

Lance Ellers also went 3-4, plus he drove in two runs.

Sam Brody drove in an insurance run in the bottom of the fifth with a double to the wall.

The 12-year-olds meanwhile ended their season on a disappointing note, losing their second and final game of the tournament to National of Albany in the last of the sixth inning, 11-10.

Alan Lewis smacked a three-run homer for the TVLL.

MAKING WAVES

By Jared H. Beck

Exercise is especially important for senior citizens, but exercising in water provides the added benefit of a refreshing swim.

Maybe that's why classes such as "Hydroswimnastics" at the Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School, "Adult Water Workout" at the Bethlehem Central High School, and the Jewish Community Center's "Water Walking" have seen growing popularity over recent years.

Age no factor for seniors in theater group

By Martin P. Kelly

What separates theater from many of the other professions or interests people have is that age is not really a factor. Fortunately for many community theaters in the region, the older generation remains involved and, in many instances, the anchor to their operations.

Certainly, the Village Players of the tri-village area is an example. Here, the almost 20-year old organization, whose members like nomads in the desert, wanders about the area doing at least two shows a year. The senior members keep the theater in operation.

Jean Stranzle of Selkirk, one of the original members of the Village Stage, is typical of the people who make the organization work.

Retired almost 10 years from the nursing profession, Stranzle has done a little of everything with the group.

"I've acted, built scenery, sold tickets, assisted in the direction of plays and served as vice-president," she says. "I never wanted to be president because after years as a supervisor of nurses, I had my fill of making decisions."

Now, with her husband, Stephen, also retired, she also goes to the Good Samaritan Home in Elsmere every Thursday to entertain the residents.

"We say the rosary, sing a hymn and then I hit them with 'Dark Town Strutters Ball,'" she says. "Steve tells a few jokes and we keep it going for an hour or so."

Stranzle also tours the area's senior meetings to appear in a two-person show, Don't Feed The Ducks, with Michael Edwards, another retiree, who is also president of the Village Stage. Edwards retired from the state, did some more schooling and is now on the part-time faculty of the Academy of Holy Names in New Scotland.

His wife, Rosemary, also teaches at the school and through their efforts, the Village Stage players recently were able to use the school's arts center for its spring production of Where's Charley.

Helping with that musical was another local resident, Judy Lamprecht. She first began her community theater work with the Slingerlands Players which, in their heyday, packed the Bethlehem Central High School auditorium with its shows.

"When the Players bought their own place, an old stage coach inn several miles from the school, it started to lose its audience," Stranzle says. "It began to do more avant garde plays of the 1960s and lost general community support."

What was forgotten, Stranzle says, is that theater "should entertain first and foremost. If the audience learns anything, that's a bonus." She complains that the theater of the 60s and 70s began to get preachy and boring.

At the time of the Slingerlands Players highpoint of their existence, a young teacher, Richard Feldman, was active with them. As a teacher, he directed the lavish and popular musicals done by the students at Bethlehem Central high school. He also made a name for himself as a choreographer among area community theater groups.

Now retired, Feldman still does some occasional work with community theater, some teaching at Siena College and leads several bus trips each year to Broadway musicals.

Richard Harte of Elsmere, a retired state employee, who has long been active in community and semi-professional theater, is as busy as ever. He played a role with Where's Charley last spring for the Village Players and is in the Riverview Entertainment Productions non-Equity company which tours the region.

Jean and Stephen Stranzle enjoy entertaining seniors at the Good Samaritan Nursing Home.

Martin Kelly

In that group, he is the detective in a murder mystery and plays Legs Diamond in a musical spoof of the gangster's last days in Albany. In recent weeks, he has performed in Lake Placid, Cobleskill, Lake George, Glens Falls as well as locally with the group.

On his own, Harte also writes and directs little mystery shows for community benefits in the area.

Another actor long associated with the old Slingerlands Players is Tom Wathews, now a retired teacher who lives in Clarksville, tending his small farm and staying active in theater. He was the director of the Village Stage's Where's Charley production and plans to continue working with the group and other community theaters.

What each of these participants in local theater point out is that it remains an outlet for their imagination and intellectual stimulation. More than that, they remain "young" in spirit because they work closely with other generations as peers.

"You can have a group of people on stage of various ages, ranging over four decades," Stranzle says. "They're each dependent on one another to make that play work because the only thing that counts is talent and not age."

The former nurse, a native of Amsterdam, got her first brush with theater when working at Doctor's Hospital in New York in the mid-40s. "I had to attend to Marilyn Monroe, Spencer Tracy, and Ethel Merman during my time there," she says. "Margaret Truman had her first child there, and her father visited her along with a whole group of secret service men."

It was Merman who told Stranzle that her husband was returning from European military service.

"Merman was married to Bob Levitt at the time and he was doing service as the port master in New York," Stranzle says. "She heard me talking about Steve and the outfit he was with and she found out from her husband that the Queen Mary was bringing that Army group home and told me the exact day."

From her association with Merman and others like her at the hospital, Stranzle became enamored with theater and now, at 75, she continues to pass on the kindness shown by the Broadway star to nursing home residents.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

Dr. Thomas H. Abele, D.M.D.

Dr. Geoffrey B. Edmunds, D.D.S.

Becoming Accustomed to Your Dentures

There are over 45 million Americans who wear some kind of denture. 45 million! That's more than the total populations of California and New York. Obviously, you are not alone.

At first your dentures may cause some problems because your speech habits were formed using your natural teeth. Not everyone experiences the same problems, but they can generally be overcome with patience and daily practice. Some of the more difficult letters to pronounce (d, l, n, t) are those which require the tongue to touch the roof of the mouth directly behind the two front teeth. Speak slowly. Read out loud to yourself and listen. Practice in front of a mirror and watch yourself talk. Learning to talk with your new dentures may take time, but don't be discouraged. With patience and practice, your dentures, your mouth and tongue will all begin to work for you.

After the break-in period, properly fitted dentures should normally not hurt your gums. There are times when a tiny seed or food particle can get trapped between your denture and gums. If this happens, you may feel soreness and discomfort. Don't continue chewing or you may further irritate your gums. Rinse the seed or food particle out as soon as possible.

Your mouth, like the rest of your body, is in a constant state of change. Your dentures will not change. The gum tissue that supported your natural teeth, however, will begin to recede. This may come from bone resorption under the gum tissue and your dentures may become loose and uncomfortable because of it. This happens to many people at varied rates, but these changes will occur. Usually your dentist will suggest a relining of your existing denture or possibly a new denture if necessary.

Reverse mortgage can enhance lifestyle

By Mel Hyman

It's no secret that a sizable portion of the nation's seniors have to struggle to make ends meet because their pension (if they even have one) and Social Security checks are inadequate.

For those seniors who own their own home, however, there is an option to remaining poor.

Reverse mortgages allow a senior to take out a loan against the value of their property, yet remain in their home until they die or decide to move out.

As long as you live in the house, no repayments are required. Once you leave the home permanently, the lien against the house held by the lending institution comes due and the property can be sold.

The proceeds of the sale are used to pay off the loan and any profit left over can be claimed by the heirs.

While the number of private lending institutions offering reverse mortgages is still relatively few, the Federal Housing Administration of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development is quite active in this area.

"We get quite a few inquiries on it, and we might process three or four (reverse mortgages) a month," said John Petricco, HUD coordinator for upstate New York.

Legislation approved by Congress permits the FHA to insure reverse mortgages for seniors. To qualify for a Home Equity Conversion Mortgage, a homeowner must be at least 62 years old and live in a single family home or condominium.

The amount homeowners can borrow depends on where they live and the appraised value of their property. Under current law a senior can borrow from $77,197 up to $152,362, although a new program set to begin this fall from the Federal National Mortgage Association will grant reverse mortgages on property up to $203,000 in value.

Reverse mortgages aren't for everybody. For one thing, it could prevent seniors from passing on their most valuable asset to a family member.

Once seniors have moved out of their homes, however, if their heirs can come up with the money to pay off the reverse mortgage, then they could save the home for the family.

Because reverse mortgages are not that profitable and involve a great deal of paperwork, only two financial institutions in the area actually handle them.

Attorney Jeanine Ehrlich, regional director of reverse mortgages for Saxon National Mortgage Bankers, Ltd., of Ravena, said while reverse mortgages have been available for six or seven years now, they are only now becoming popular because many seniors "still have the preconceived notion that the bank is going to come in and take away their home."

But nothing could be further from the truth. The title and ownership of the home remain in the homeowner's name until they leave the premises permanently. That could be 10, 15, 20 or 30 years. There is no time limit attached.

If the amount of the loan provided to the homeowner exceeds the value of the house (based on the sale price), the FHA guarantees the lender that they will be reimbursed the difference. No deficiency is charged back to the homeowner.

"Part of what makes reverse mortgages so unique is that the homeowner does not have to make repayment on any amount borrowed for as long as they live in their home," Ehrlich said.

According to Saxon, an FHA-insured reverse mortgage ensures that homeowners will never be forced to sell or vacate their homes. In addition, "the borrowers (or their estates) will never owe more than the loan balance or the value of the property, whichever is lower; and no assets other than the home can be used to repay the debt."

While reverse mortgages might not be for everybody, you also don't have to have to be "property poor," so to speak, to seek such an arrangement.

"I've talked to seniors as young as 62 or 63 who want to travel, buy a car, or make improvements to their home and they've decided this is one way they could do that," Ehrlich said.

"Then there are seniors in their 80s who just can't keep up with their property taxes and this allows them to do that and to remain in their homes. ... In many cases a reverse mortgage can give them double the money they're now receiving from Social Security and a small pension."

Job center helps seniors find work

Club 55+ Job Center is recruiting individuals 55 or older looking for work to assist them in developing skills necessary to find employment.

Included in Club 55+ job training is classroom and individual instruction in career guidance, resume preparation, interview techniques, office practices and procedures, dressing for success, job placement assistance and job search workshops.

The job center also refers people to appropriate training in areas such as computers, travel and tourism, home health aid, customer service and electronics.

The center's services are free to income eligible people.

It is offered through the Northeast New York Alliance of Business at Career Central at 230 Central Ave. in Albany.

For information, call the Alliance of Business at 447-5981.

NiMo offers budget plan

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. offers a Budget Plan to make it easier for customers to manage their monthly bills by spreading their annual energy costs over 12 months.

For customers on the Budget Plan, Niagara Mohawk looks at their annual energy cost over the past 12 months and divides it by 12 to arrive at a monthly budget payment amount. Although the monthly budget amount can change up to four times during the year, many people find the Budget Plan makes it easier to manage monthly payments and avoid higher bills in the winter. Adjustments may be made if necessary for customers to avoid a large make-up payment at the end of the year.

At the end of each 12-month period, a final balance is calculated. If the customer paid more than the actual service charges over the plan year, their payment in the settlement month will be reduced accordingly.

If the customer has an outstanding balance, it can be paid all at once or added to the next 12 budget payments, with no finance or service charge. The plan is ideal for people on fixed incomes, or anyone who prefers budgeted payments throughout the year.

For information, call 1-800-NIAGARA, ext. 139.

AG offers tips to avoid remodeling nightmares

This article was written by state Attorney General Dennis C. Vacco.

Now that summer is here, many New Yorkers are sprucing up the house. Some home owners are considering an addition or doing other construction work to make their homes more enjoyable or convenient.

While there are many competent professionals in the home improvement industry, there are also rip-off artists who will take your money and run, start jobs they never complete or do shoddy work.

One common scam involves "inspectors" who appear at your door pointing out "dangerous defects" that need immediate attention to ensure your safety. Or driveway companies that will use often inferior "leftover" materials for a discount price.

There are some basic rules that homeowners should follow in order to avoid becoming the victim of a scam.

- Never agree to have work done on the spot. Determine exactly what work you want done, then seek out a qualified contractor.
- Shop around. Get several estimates from reputable contractors that include specific information about the materials and services to be provided for the job.

- Get references. Check with the Better Business Bureau, prior customers, banks and suppliers (If you live in New York City, Westchester, Nassau or Suffolk counties, check your local consumer affairs office). Also ask for references for any subcontractors on the job.

One common scam involves "inspectors" who appear at your door pointing out "dangerous defects" that need immediate attention to ensure your safety. ... Never agree to have work done on the spot.

- Get it in writing. Insist on a written contract that includes the price and description of the work.
- Don't pay unreasonable advance sums. Negotiate a payment schedule tied to the completion of specific stages of the job. Never pay the full price up front.

Consumers have an unconditional right to cancel the contract until midnight of the third business day after the contract was signed. Cancellation must be done in writing.

Contractors are legally required to deposit all payments received prior to completion of a project in an escrow account or post a bond to protect these payments.

If the contractor or subcontractor who does the work is not paid he might have a claim against the customers' property under the Lien Law.

The best way to protect yourself is to be armed with the facts and the law.

If you have a problem with a contractor, contact my office as soon as possible so your damages can be minimized.

You can file a complaint, or receive a free "tip sheet" on home improvement scams, by writing to the Attorney General, Room 218, The Capitol, Albany 12224.

Gene research aids Alzheimer's cause

Discovery of a new gene associated with early-onset Alzheimer's disease brings us one step closer to knowing the causes of the degenerative disorder, and points to the need for increased funding for research, according to the Alzheimer's Association's Northeastern New York Chapter.

The research, published in the June issue of Nature, announces the discovery of a new gene on chromosome 14, mutations of which may cause early-onset Alzheimer's disease. It is estimated that between one and 10 percent of persons with Alzheimer's disease, or as many as 400,000 Americans, develop the disease before age 65.

"Now that these genetic mutations on chromosome 14 have been identified, further research is needed to learn how the mutations cause Alzheimer's," said Marvin R. LeRoy, executive director, adding "We will not see progress in this or any other Alzheimer studies without increased federal funding for research."

While Congress considers major increase funding for Alzheimer's research by $50 million this year, to at least $360 million. Finding a way to delay Alzheimer's symptoms for just five years could reduce by half the number of people with the disease and save as much as $50 billion annually, according to the association. "Since Alzheimer's appears to be identical regardless of the age at which you get it, this research has significant implications for all four million Americans with Alzheimer's," said LeRoy.

The study, "Cloning of a gene bearing mis-sense mutations in early-onset familial Alzheimer's disease," was done by a team led by Dr. Peter St. George-Hyslop at the University of Toronto. The Alzheimer's Association helped fund the research. The association is the only national voluntary health group dedicated to conquering Alzheimer's disease through research and providing support to people with Alzheimer's disease.

The association's Northeastern New York Chapter serves the more than 40,000 people with Alzheimer's disease, their caregivers and family members in the 16 county area with programs including Helpline, Safe Return, and many educational offerings.

For more information, call the chapter office at 438-2217, or write to Alzheimer's Association Northeastern New York Chapter, 85 Watervliet Ave., Albany 12206.

Cosmetic Laser Facial Rejuvenation

Signs of Skin Aging

Facial skin tends to loosen and sag with time. Any number of environmental assailants may accelerate the development of wrinkles. Cigarette smoke, stress, excess sun exposure, poor nutrition and alcohol can all damage your skin. No one needs to live with these problems today. Fine wrinkles and lines around your eyes and mouth can be smoothed. Deep laugh lines and frown lines can be softened. Acne scars and surgical scars can be minimized.

Physicians now use the Silk Touch CO<sub>2</sub> laser to rejuvenate facial skin. Depending upon the type and depth of the wrinkles, one or more sessions may be necessary.

Generally this surgery is done with local anesthesia and requires a few minutes to perform. There is a short post-operative period when one has the appearance of a deep sunburn, but there can be minimal disruption of a personal routine.

Is the Silk Touch Laser Right for You?

A physician will take a medical history, evaluate your skin type and your desired results when determining if you are a candidate for the Silk Touch skin rejuvenation. Together, you can decide if your expectations are realistic and define appropriate goals.

If you would like to discuss Silk Touch CO<sub>2</sub> laser facial rejuvenation, call for an appointment at:

Adult day care provides much needed service

By Sue Lombardi

Americans are selling themselves short. We waste our time chasing after artificial, cosmetic images of youth and ignore the living treasures among us who have been weathered with time and shine with the glow of insight and experience.

Other cultures recognize and celebrate the natural processes of life which bring on the beauty and wisdom that is only acquired with age. In the Far East, older people are revered and cared for above all else.

In Europe, older women are seen as beautiful and sophisticated. Maturity is deemed a desirable attribute. In Native American cultures, elders are seen as teachers to the young and keepers of tradition.

It is merely the way of our culture for the young to leave the nest and find their own path, often moving far away and leaving aging parents behind. This can make contact infrequent, and caregiving difficult. Without family or community supports, many people end up with medical or financial problems that, left unattended, lead them down a road of permanent disability or physical or mental deterioration.

Nursing homes often appear to be the only solution for families or individuals dealing with poverty, frailty, disabilities or mental illness. Victims of Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia are especially vulnerable.

Luckily, there are social service programs and dedicated people who strive to change these damaging attitudes and address the realities of our society in regards to aging. Senior resource and service centers, caregivers groups, outreach projects and housing initiatives all aim to address the needs of the elderly and keep them happy, healthy and independent for as long as possible in the community. Adult day services, in particular, address the problems faced by many individuals and families who want a safe, "uninstitutional" environment for themselves or someone they love as they deal with the physical and cognitive challenges of growing older.

Adult day service programs provide services for an individual or family in the community while the participant is living at home or with a caregiver. The programs are usually situated at a senior center, or sometimes as a part of a hospital or other medical facility.

In the case of Colonie Senior Centers Inc., the adult day service program, Bright Horizons, is on-site at the Fiddlers Lane center.

Local members support AARP

Call Wyoming senator out of line

By Dev Tobin

U.S. Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyoming, evidently doesn't like the American Association of Retired Persons, the nation's largest senior citizen organization, and sponsored highly publicized hearings recently looking into the group's commercial and lobbying activities.

AARP, either itself or in joint agreement with outside businesses, is involved in insurance, prescription drugs and credit cards, among other commercial activities.

The thrust of Simpson's criticism is that there may be conflicts of interest between AARP's businesses and the advocacy, service and educational roles it plays as a not-for-profit corporation.

Simpson also questioned AARP's acceptance of government grants on the one hand while lobbying the government on the other.

Despite the unprecedented criticism by a national leader, local AARP members say they strongly support the organization, especially its commitment to fight budget cuts in Medicare and Medicaid.

George Weber of Delmar, past president of the Tri-Village AARP chapter, said Simpson appears to have "a long-term grudge" with AARP.

He noted that the local members had discussed the hearings, but that no one had resigned due to the Wyoming senator's criticism.

Weber acknowledged that AARP receives government grants, but explained that the National Rifle Association and more than a thousand other not-for-profit groups also lobby while receiving government grants.

Weber said that the grants are used "for programs that help people like Tax-Aid and 55 Alive (a driver safety program)."

AARP and its membership will remain strong opponents of Republican plans to limit the growth in Medicare and Medicaid spending, which "will be very hurtful to some people," Weber said.

"We're not opposed to a balanced budget, but we are opposed to nailing those two entitlements," Weber said. "We don't think that Medicare and Medicaid caused the deficit, and we want people to be treated fairly."

Milton Kaplan, a board member of the Tri-Village chapter, said, "I don't know what Simpson's problem is."

Kaplan suggested that AARP's political stands in favor of national health insurance and against Medicare and Medicaid cuts, both generally at odds with the positions of congressional Republicans, probably lie at the root of Simpson's criticism.

Kaplan said that an aggressive campaign to root out fraud in Medicare and Medicaid would be more productive than the Republicans' proposed cuts.

As to the issue of commercial activities, Kaplan said that the prescription drug plan, for example, "is as good as anything I've seen and really helps people who have no other benefits."

Tips for a heat wave

The American Red Cross issued the following tips for coping with the effects of a heat wave:

- Slow down. If done at all, strenuous activity should be done during the coolest part of the day, usually between 4 and 7 a.m.

- Stay indoors if possible. If air conditioning is not available, stay on the lowest floor out of sunshine. Remember electric fans do not cool, only circulate the air.

- Wear lightweight, light-colored clothing. Light colors reflect away some of the sun's energy.

- Drink water regularly, even if you do not feel thirsty.

- Avoid drinks with alcohol or caffeine, which make the heat's effects worse. This is especially true with alcohol, which actually dehydrates the body.

- Eat small meals and eat more often. Avoid foods that are high in protein which increase metabolic heat.

Program helps people plan for long-term care

The impact of long-term care costs can be a catastrophe waiting to happen for today's seniors and their families. A recent study found that the average cost of 20 Albany area nursing homes was $60,000 per year. The cost of home health care is estimated to be $30,000 per year. At those prices, the savings of many seniors would not last long and seniors would be forced to liquidate assets to reach Medicaid-mandated levels before receiving Medicaid benefits, (which are welfare).

Fortunately, there is a way to protect assets and savings from the costs of long-term care. The New York State Partnership for Long-Term Care is a program founded to help seniors address the costs of long-term care through the use of insurance coverage. The partnership, headed by Gail Holubinka, recently was recognized with a national award from the Council of State Governments.

The partnership has been such a critical success that Holubinka wrote in a recent newsletter, "inquiries are arriving from people all over the nation who want to know how the partnership is being carried out in New York. Frequently, the callers express a wish that a program like the partnership could be available in their states."

Many seniors, unfortunately, put off planning for their long-term care needs. An authority on long-term care, a founding member of the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys and a columnist for the Washington Post Senior Supplement, is attorney Harley Gordon.

In his book, "How to Protect Your Life Savings From Catastrophic Illness and Nursing Homes!" Gordon responds to the question of when long-term care insurance should be bought by writing, "at the first moment you become concerned over the cost of possible future long-term care and you decide that Medicaid is not for you."

That advice could be a blessing for seniors and their families if they follow it. Gordon's book is an excellent guide to avoiding the difficulties involved with Medicare, Medicaid and Medicaid trusts by using a long-term care insurance plan like the New York State Partnership.

The decision to plan for long-term care needs can be a difficult first step for some. However, the decision to delay or forgo a Long Term Care plan could be financially and emotionally catastrophic for you and your family. Such a catastrophe does not have to happen. Seniors should consider their options with an insurance and partnership representative as soon as possible.

Center offers vision services for elderly

The Capital District Center for Independence offers a Outreach and Vision Screening Program to elderly blind and visually impaired individuals.

The purpose of the program is to identify individuals over 55 who have a vision problem and link them to appropriate community services in order to allow greater independence in the home and the community.

In the program, the center conducts outreach seminars to health and community workers, a consumer survey to identify the service needs of blind and visually impaired people over 55 and conduct vision screenings at several sites in the Capital District.

The services are free.

The Center for Independence also offers free vision screenings at senior meal sites and apartment complexes throughout the Capital District for elderly people who are not able to attend a screening at a public site.

During the home visit, the center will provide information about community services available to visually impaired individuals. Adaptive aids and appliances for those with failing vision will be demonstrated and information on how to obtain such aids will be given.

Screenings given by the center are not complete eye examinations and should not be substituted for proper medical eye care.

The Outreach and Vision Screening Program and the free home screenings are made possible by grants from the state Commission for the Blind and Visually Handicapped (CBVH).

Another CBVH grant allows the Center for Independence to offer information sessions on various community programs for the elderly, focusing on services for the visually impaired.

The informational presentations cover four major eye diseases: cataracts, glaucoma, diabetic retinopathy and macular degeneration. They also cover services of the CBVH and services for the visually impaired available through New York Telephone, Niagara Mohawk and the state Library.

The sessions also include demonstrations of several aids and appliances designed for the visually impaired.

Other topics covered at information sessions include the STAIR service from the Capital District Transportation Authority, obtaining a handicapped parking permit, the RISE Radio Reading Service and other services provided by the Center for Independence.

There is no charge for the sessions.

The center is at 845 Central Ave. in Albany.

For an appointment for a home visit or times of information sessions, call the center at 459-6422. For information on the Outreach and Vision Screening Program, ask for Diane Norton, the coordinator of the program.

Tips for efficient air conditioning

For most of the year, upstate New Yorkers are concerned with staying warm. But the dog days of summer are here with a vengeance and keeping cool is a top priority.

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. offers the following suggestions for keeping homes air conditioned in the most energy-efficient way possible:

- Don't cool unoccupied rooms, but don't shut off too many registers with a central system either, or the increased system pressure may harm the compressor.
- If your air conditioner has an outside air option, use it sparingly. It is far more economical to recirculate and cool the indoor air than to cool the hot outdoor air down to comfortable temperatures.
- Always keep all doors and windows closed when operating an air conditioner.
- Do not operate a whole-house fan or window fans while using an air conditioner.
- Most people are comfortable with the thermostat set at about 78 degrees Fahrenheit, but ceiling fans can increase the comfort range.
- Reducing humidity will increase comfort at even warmer temperatures. Use a bathroom exhaust fan when you shower, don't dry firewood in your basement, don't vent your clothes dryer inside and keep house plants outside during the summer.
- Clean the air filters on room air conditioners monthly. They should never be allowed to get dirty enough to impede air flow. The condenser should be cleaned by a professional every other year, or even yearly in dusty conditions.
- Central air conditioning units should be inspected, cleaned and tuned by a professional once every two-to-three years to extend the life of the unit and reduce electricity consumption. Check with a service technician about a proper maintenance schedule.

Historical society seeking suffrage info

The Rensselaer County Historical Society is planning an exhibit and program about suffrage-related activities in the county. In 1920, the 19th Amendment giving women the right to vote was passed, and women went to the polls for the first time.

RCHS staff would like to meet and talk with local women who either made their first trip to the ballot box in 1920, or who have interesting anecdotal information about what it was like in the early years of the suffrage movement in this century.

Materials such as letters, photographs, buttons, banners, pamphlets or newspaper and magazine articles are also sought for the exhibit.

To be a part of the project, call the Rensselaer County Historical Society at 272-7232.

Bellevue Hospital gets quality care approval

Bellevue Hospital was recently accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations as a result of its demonstrated compliance with the commission's nationally-recognized health care standards.

Michael Mangini, administrator and corporate executive officer of the hospital, called the recognition "proof of an organization-wide commitment to provide quality care on an ongoing basis."

"Our classes provide positive social experiences," said Jeanette Gottlieb, a water exercise instructor at the JCC. "People drag into the pool in the beginning, but come out with a smile on their face at the end."

For seniors, the JCC, at 340 Whitehall Road in Albany, offers three separate programs. "Hydroschwimmastics," a regimen of stretching, bending and range of motion activities, is offered Monday through Friday at 8:30 and 11:30 a.m., and Sunday at noon. "Water Walking," a class especially helpful to those with arthritis and osteoporosis, is scheduled on Monday and Friday at 10:30 a.m. in the winter, and Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. year-round.

The "Wet Workout," a class in aquatic aerobics, is offered on Tuesday and Thursday at 6 p.m. during the summer, on Sunday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. in the winter, and on Tuesday and Thursday at 9:30 a.m. year round.

Gottlieb ranked the "Wet Workout" as the most strenuous class with "Water Walking" as the least strenuous. "Our goal is to keep people moving," she said, "but we also tell participants to listen to their bodies. If it hurts, don't do it."

Gottlieb stressed that aquatic exercising is ideal for many seniors because the water's buoyancy takes pressure off the limbs. "Water is a very forgiving place to exercise," she said. "People who have difficulty walking find it easier to do in the pool and feel good about themselves."

Class fees are $60 for 10 classes and $100 for 20 classes, with half price reductions for JCC members. "Hydroschwimmastics" is open to members only. For information, call the JCC at 438-6651.

But area seniors don't have to venture to Albany for a workout in the pool. Both Bethlehem Central High School, at 700 Delaware Ave., and Clayton A. Bouton Junior-High School, Route 85A in Voorheesville host classes of their own in water exercise.

"Hydroschwimmastics" starts up again on Monday, Sept. 18, at Voorheesville and will be offered on Monday and Thursday from 7 to 8 p.m. The low-impact routine, which is open to adults of all ages, but has a large senior turnout, is performed to music and taught by Vikki Bastian and Liz Foster.

Registration will be held the week before classes begin, and seniors are advised to sign up promptly, because as adult education Director Jim Hladun warned, the popular class "draws participants from all over the area and is generally packed." Fees have not been set for "Hydroschwimmastics" as of yet. For information, call 765-4241.

"Adult Water Workout," sponsored by the Town of Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department at Bethlehem High, runs on Monday and Wednesday through Aug. 2, from 10 to 10:50 a.m. Facilitated by Dot Weller, the course costs $14 for one day per week, $28 for both days.

Health proxy cards available

The Healthcare Association of New York State (HANYS) and the New York Chapter of the Society for Patient Representatives (NYSRP) have launched a state-wide effort to help New Yorkers stay involved with their health care decisions. Through this initiative, all New Yorkers will be able to call an 800 number or their local hospital to receive wallet-size "health everyone to sign and carry a wallet-sized health care proxy as the most effective means of assuring that your treatment wishes will be known and followed even if you cannot speak for yourself."

"The health care community feels strongly that all New Yorkers should exercise their right to self-determination by completing a health care proxy," said Daniel Sisto, HANYS president. "We hope that this effort will both raise awareness of the importance of having a health care proxy and encourage all New Yorkers to play an active role in their health care decision making."

By state law, a health care proxy enables competent adults to appoint someone they trust to decide about treatment on their behalf if they are unable to decide for themselves.

The appointed agent can consent to or refuse any treatment, service or procedure to diagnose or treat the patient's physical or mental condition. Health care providers such as doctors and hospitals must comply with the agent's decision.

The wallet-size proxy cards are available at no cost. To obtain copies and information regarding the proxy law New Yorkers can contact the patient representative at their local hospital or call 1-800-242-0004 and leave a name, address, and the number of cards wanted.

HANYS represents more than 400 non-profit and public hospitals, nursing facilities, home care agencies, hospices, and other health care providers across New York State.

The New York Chapter of the Society for Patient Representatives, an affiliated chapter of the National Society for Patient Representation and Consumer Affairs of the American Hospital Association, has more than 200 members and represents 11 hospitals and health care facilities in New York State.

For information, contact Jeanne H. Cross at HANYS at 431-7600.

Adams keeps perfect record intact

By Joshua White

League leader and defending Adams was given its first scare of the season on Wednesday, July 12 in the Voorheesville adult basketball league.

Adams, which had previously defeated all of its opponents by double-digit margins, was unable to wear down a pesky Klopfer team. At halftime, Adams only held a three point lead, 33-30, and both teams had chances to win down the stretch as the game went into overtime.

However, Adams (5-0) was too strong during the overtime period and upended Klopfer, 66-57. Marty Gordinier turned in another solid performance with 25 points.

George Klopfer scored 21 to lead his own team (1-3).

Basketball

In other action on Wednesday, July 12, Sapienza won its second game in a row. Despite a slow start and trailing at the intermission 28-15 to Taylor, Sapienza used its bench to defeat an undermanned Taylor squad, 41-40. Dean Decker led Sapienza (2-3) with 10 points. Jeff Caimano had a solid offensive game for Taylor (1-4).

Rockmore (4-1) kept pace with Adams by dismantling cellar-dwelling Crisafulli, 72-36. Mark Larkin was high man for the winners with 20 points. Joe Robichaud led Crisafulli (0-4) in scoring for the third game in a row with 18 points.

On Monday, July 10, Adams broke the three-way tie for first place with an impressive win over Rockmore, 57-47. Gordinier led Adams with 18 points and Larkin led Rockmore with 13.

Also on Monday, July 10, Zongrone improved its record to 4-0 to remain in first place with Adams. Andy Bayus (Zongrone) 15 points and Mike Vink (Taylor) 10 points were the leading scorers.

Sapienza earn its first victory of the season with a 44-21 decision over Keller. Jeff Freyer netted 14 points for Sapienza and Voorheesville High School stand-out Mike Beadnell scored 12 for Keller (1-3).

This week's action will provide a battle for first place when Adams takes on Zongrone.

Rangers finish with a 10-2 record

The Bethlehem Rangers under-10 soccer team recently completed a successful season, finishing with a 10-2 record in the third division of the Capital District Youth Soccer League.

The Rangers finished first in the Bethlehem Beeline Tournament, first in the Blue Division, with a record of 5-0 and second in the Valley Creekside Soccer Classic.

They also finished second in the Red Division with a record of 4-1-1, second in the Bethlehem BOT Tournament with a record of 1-0-3 and third in the Guildersland Soccer Tournament.

The team was led throughout the year by the midfield play of Bob Barrowman and Matt Glannon. Their fine defense and passing initiated a fast-paced offense and kept play in their opponents' end of the field. The offense was led by the high-scoring right forward Brendan Tougher, the quick-footed center Tony Casaro and left forward Sean McManus. The offensive attack was further aided by left forward

Soccer

Evan Gall, center/forward David Medvesky and right forward Scott Braaten.

The offensive attack became more effective when the players began using crossing passes from the sides of the field, which placed the ball in front of the goal for easy scoring opportunities.

The defense was anchored by the outstanding goalkeeping of Andrew Osterman and the aggressive play of fullback Dominick Ciprioni.

They were assisted by the sure tackling of Doug DeMarco, the solid, all-around play of Brendan Ennis, the quickness of Matt Swiatowicz and the steady left foot of Andrew Blickensderfer.

The Rangers were coached by Ken Gall and by assistant coaches Mike Glannon and Mike Medvesky.

Shredded Eagles head for Rockland County

By Scott Isaacs

The Bethlehem Shredded Eagles destroyed Colonie I last Wednesday, 11-1, to clinch the District V title and advance to the Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament in Rockland County with a 12-4 record.

The game was highlighted by the dominant pitching of Nathaniel Sajdak, who finished the season with a record of 7-1, and Kevin Blanchard's three-run homer.

"This season has been particularly gratifying," said coach Neil Isaacs. "Two years ago we won just one game. This year, everything came together during an 11-1 start. When the district title was on the line, we played our best baseball."

All the players contributed. Sajdak, Blanchard, and Aaron Thorpe provided great pitching, with Thorpe and Blanchard tossing no-hitters. All three contributed timely hitting and great defense as well. Todd Everleth batted close to .500 and played a spectacular third base.

Ted Hartman and Jeff McQuide gave us the strong catching we needed," Isaacs said, "while our track team of Chris Leonardo, Brian Rice, and the always hustling Beaker O'Connell created havoc on the basepaths with their blazing speed."

John Czajka and Andy O'Brien played suprisingly well defensively, according to the coach, but "All of the players need to continue their strong play for us to have a chance at a state title."

The Eagles play this Sunday in Rockland County in the opening round of the tournament.

subdivision on Hilton Road.

Proponents argued the larger lot sizes would preserve the town's rural character and ease pressure on school taxes. Larger lot minimums were supported by a board majority consisting of Councilwoman Victoria Ramundo, Councilman Edward Donohue, and the late Councilman Richard Decker (who died in May — his wife Clare was then appointed to succeed him in June).

Reilly said that he will contest the Conservative line with an opportunity to ballot primary, where his name would have to be written in, while Decker's name appears on the ballot.

Reilly said he will also seek the designation of the Independence Party, founded by businessman Thomas Golisano in 1994.

Windstorm

Highway department crews are concentrating this week on picking up branches brought down by the storm, Sagendorph added.

"We normally have two or three trucks picking up brush in the summer, but now we have 12 trucks out there," he said. "That's why we're here."

Sagendorph praised his crews. "They came in immediately and got the job done," he said.

Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller agreed. "Because of the timely efforts (of the highway crews), residents suffered only temporary and minor inconvenience in getting about the town," she said.

In New Scotland, the major damage was in the Onesquethaw Creek area, according to Darrell Duncan, highway superintendent.

Roads closed for at least sev-

Repeated efforts to reach Burns were unsuccessful.

The Republican candidate for supervisor, former village of Voorheesville trustee Richard Langford, also had sought the Conservative designation.

If Reilly succeeds in his opportunity to ballot, then Conservatives could also write in Langford's name, noted Judi VonRonne, chairwoman of the town Republican Committee.

"I find it amusing when Democrats, especially this slate, which is in favor of large-lot zoning, run on the Conservative line when their philosophy is a far cry from the Conservatives," VonRonne said.

The supervisor position is for a two-year term and pays $39,010 this year.

eral hours Saturday included Clipp Road and Indian Ledge Road, he noted.

"But I'm glad we didn't see anyone with houses or cars damaged," he added.

About 2,500 Niagara Mohawk customers lost power in Bethlehem and New Scotland, according to NiMo spokesman Nicholas Lyman.

Service for most of those customers was restored Saturday, but some did not get their power back until Monday, he added.

"We're still doing some cleanup," Lyman said Tuesday.

The Delmar area was especially hard-hit because of the large number of mature trees and the fact that distribution lines are run behind houses, which makes restoring power more difficult, Lyman said.

Dems choose slate

By Dev Tobin

Clare Decker, who was appointed in June to the town board to fill out the remainder of her late husband Richard Decker's term, is the choice of the New Scotland Democratic Chairman Mike Burns and the county Conservatives to be the next supervisor.

Also on the Democratic/Conservative ticket for town board will be incumbent Councilman Edward Donohue and newcomer Patrick Brown.

Incumbent Democratic Supervisor Herb Reilly has indicated that he will challenge the Conservative designation in an opportunity to ballot (see story on Page 1).

Decker, 56, said she was running to "provide leadership that will unite people."

On the major town issue, the new zoning law, Decker said that the time has come "to put it behind us and move ahead."

She added that she would not initiate rezoning the proposed Tall Timbers subdivision for larger lots. The 170-lot subdivision on Hilton Road had become the focal point of the zoning controversy, and was zoned to allow half-acre lots with water and sewer in the final compromise of the zoning law debate.

Decker holds a doctorate in education, and has taught at The College of Saint Rose and Russell Sage College. She is currently a board member and consultant with the Learning Disabilities Association.

"I have transferable skills and experience, and the capability and the time for the job," Decker said.

Decker lives on Swift Road with her two children.

Donohue, 52, is running for a full four-year term, after winning a two-year term in 1993 to serve out the remainder of former Councilman John Sgarlata's term.

Donohue said the the zoning law debate "turned into quite an episode, but it accomplished a lot. Now we have a plan that will serve the town right away."

Donohue said that his strength on the board was "working with people to find a compromise."

With the zoning law in place, "Now we can be a little pro-active, especially in bringing in new commercial and industrial projects," Donohue said.

The town should find out what potential new businesses need (i.e., water, sewer and/or better roads), and work to provide the necessary infrastructure, he added.

Donohue lives on Swift Road with his wife and their four children. He is a senior systems analyst at the state Workers' Compensation Board.

Brown, 38, said he got involved in town issues as a supporter of the ad hoc committee on amending the zoning law, which had advocated two-acre density for most of the town below the Held-erberg escarpment and outside the hamlets of Unionville, Feura Bush, Clarksville and New Salem.

The density sliding scale was "very creative and intriguing to me as a lawyer, and I got involved in trying to get that ordinance passed," Brown said.

The eventual zoning law did not include the density sliding scale, after the planning board recommended against it.

"New Scotland is on the threshold of development that can change the character of the town," Brown said. "But development has to be organized and controlled so it doesn't run wild."

Brown said "the impetus came from me" to run for town board, and that he contacted Councilwoman Victoria Ramundo, chairwoman of the ad hoc committee, who encouraged him.

Brown is an attorney in private practice, and formerly served in several legal posts in the administration of former Gov. Mario Cuomo. He lives with his wife and their twin daughters on Hemlock Ridge Road.

Grafton Lakes is the cool place to be this summer

Picnics, games and workshops keep visitors hopping

By Joshua Kagan

Grafton Lakes State Park will become the center for a number of summer family programs during July and August, hosting a variety of educational, athletic and recreational events.

Troy's Junior Museum will offer several educational programs this week. Kicking off the line-up is Paul Rosenberg, who will lead traditional dances during "Homespun Dance" at 2 p.m. today, July 19, at the park's amphitheater.

In "The Old Fashioned Way," participants will perform typical household tasks of the 1850s and see how lifestyles and technology have changed by using some of the museum's 19th-century artifacts. The program will begin at 2 p.m. on Thursday, July 20, at the park's tent.

Museum events will continue next week with "Bird Brained," a wildlife program slated on Tuesday and Thursday, July 25 and 27, at 2 p.m. at the park's tent.

Naturalists will present an introduction to the habitat and behavior of birds. There will also be a chance to see some birds live during a presentation by Wayne Trimm, a wildlife artist and educator, on Wednesday, July 26, at 2 p.m. at the park's amphitheater.

The museum programs will focus on insects the following week. "Insect and Insight" will be presented on Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 1 and 3, at 2 p.m. at the park's tent. Ebie Brown will share her knowledge of insects and other small animals during "Creepy Crawlies" at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 2, at the park's amphitheater.

The museum has offered summer workshops at the park for several years. For information on any of the Junior Museum's programs, call the museum at 235-2120.

The park will also host several other special events, beginning with the ROUSE Picnic on Wednesday, Aug. 9. The picnic, which is for area senior citizens, will take place in the Deerfield picnic area.

Visitors to Grafton Lakes State Park enjoy a crowded day at the beach during the recent heat wave.

"They'll have a big picnic with maybe hundreds of seniors there," said park spokeswoman Melodee James, noting that the event will feature card games, a pot luck lunch and a variety of other events for seniors.

The fifth annual Beach Volleyball Classic is scheduled on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 19 and 20. Local teams signed up for the event will collect donations from sponsors, with the proceeds going to benefit Easter Seals. Albany radio station 103.9 FM/The Edge is co-sponsoring the event.

"They'll be encouraging people to register and help raise money," said James. There will be also be plenty of prizes for winners of the tournament.

In past years, the event has attracted mostly organized teams sponsored by local businesses, she added.

The park's summer special events calendar will wind down with the 10th annual Run for the Roses on Sunday, Aug. 27. A five-kilometer race begins at 9 a.m., followed by a one-mile Kids' Fun Run at 10:30 a.m.

The 5K race will be split into male and female divisions by age. There will be groups for runners 14 and under, runners ages 15 to 19, ages 20 to 29, ages 30 to 39, ages 40 to 49, ages 50 to 59, and 60 years old and up.

About 500 athletes are expected to run, said James.

"The race is pretty popular. It's been going on for quite a while," she said. "Every runner gets a rose when they cross the finish line, regardless of their place. It's a nice race."

The entry fee for the 5K race is $10 before Aug. 25 and $12 after that date. The entry fee for the kids' run is $6. Proceeds from the Run for the Roses will benefit Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Rensselaer County.

Grafton Lakes State Park is on Route 2 in the Town of Grafton. From Albany, take Interstate 787 north to Route 7. Follow Route 7 through Troy and into Brunswick, then turn right onto Route 278. At the end of Route 278, turn left on Route 2.

All the special events are free to the general public, however there is a $4 charge per car to enter the park.

For information, call the park at 279-1155.

Park Playhouse founder returns in comedy at Crooked Lake House

Mimi Scott, the founder with her late husband, Barry, of the Park Playhouse in Albany will return to the area for two weeks in August to star in a dinner theater production of The Housekeeper at the Crooked Lake House in Averill Park.

The production will be presented August 2, 3, 9 and 10 at the well-known restaurant on Route 43 and 66 with dinner at 6:30 p.m. followed by the show.

Scott who moved to New York following the death of her husband four years ago, still maintains a home at Burden Lake in Rensselaer County near the restaurant where she'll be performing.

The two-character play by James Prideaux also features New York actor Bill McHugh, and deals with a monastic bachelor brought back into the 20th century by a homeless, eccentric domestic.

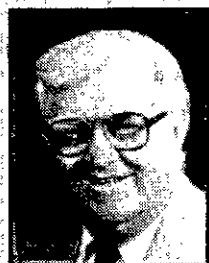

The two are currently breaking in the production with a production at Montauk, Long Island.

The Scotts gave impetus to the large scaled musical productions now being done at Washington Park in Albany when they took over and recruited talent from New York City to combine with local performers and technicians.

They also gained city and corporate backing to bring the yearly budget up to a quarter million dollars.

When Barry Scott died from cancer, his wife worked one more year with the theater and then turned it over to the present producers who this summer are presenting Damn Yankees.

Scott frequently appears on talk shows in her other profession as a psychologist. Mainly, she has been doing summer

Dramatization of D. H. Lawrence story next play at Berkshire Theater Festival

A new play adapted from the D. H. Lawrence novella, The Fox, opened this week and continues through July 29 at the Berkshire Theater Festival in Stockbridge, Massachusetts.

This love triangle of a man and two women struggling for domination has been adapted by Allan Miller who also directs. The company is now in its 67th season.

Reservations/information available at (413/298-5536).

Mystery theaters are afloat on Hudson during summer

The Captain J. B. Cruise Line in Troy is presenting mystery dinner theater each Tuesday night through October when it offers Trouble at the Tory Tavern.

Meanwhile, the Spirit of St. Joseph will present the six-year old mystery theater, The Recital, Friday, August 11 on its evening dinner cruise down the Hudson.

Both mysteries involve the audience in a murder and its solution.

Trouble at the Tory Tavern is a 1774 historical spoof dealing with conflict between the colonists and the loyalists around Albany during the Revolutionary War.

The Recital which has been played all over northeastern New York State for more than 150 performances, deals with an aging opera star doing a local recital as part of her world tour only to run into some dire circumstances.

The historical mystery includes cast members Pam Osik who wrote the play, Criss Macaione-Bilodeau, Prudence Penny, Marilyn Semerad, Debby Caldwell, Bruce G. Hallenbeck, Mark Abele, Colin Richard and Jim Riviello.

The Recital's veteran cast includes Sylvia Horwitz, Richard Harte, Edward Dahlstedt, Carol Jones, Michael Ryan, Mary Caldwell and Larry Maranville.

Reservations for the historical mystery are at 270-1901 and The Recital at 449-2864.

Round Lake Summer Theater seeks cast for August production

Actors, singers and dancers for the more than 40 roles in The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas are being recruited by the Round Lake Summer Theater.

Auditions will be held Monday, July 24 and Tuesday, July 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Round Lake Auditorium. Singers must bring sheet music and dancers need dance clothes for the tryouts.

The production will be presented the last week of August and the first week of September. Further info: 889-7141.

welding and assembly positions, with salaries starting at $10 to $16 an hour.

GM officials have already made several trips into the town over the last few weeks, according to Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller.

"They're looking at three sites in our industrial area. They had asked for this to be confidential because of their ongoing negotiations with Glenville.

"They will be returning to town, possibly during the week of July 23rd. I'm waiting for them to confirm this."

Fuller said GM was considering one site that appeared more attractive than the others because of its infrastructure (water, sewers and roads).

"We sent out a packet detailing the particulars of every site," she said.

The Selkirk rail yards, a major northeastern railroad hub, are an attractive location for industry, regardless of whether the area is picked for the new factory, said local rail expert and city of Albany

Parks Commissioner Richard Barrett.

"From Selkirk, you have the world in front of you, right at your feet," Barrett said. "Selkirk serves as the gateway to the northeastern rail theaters, connecting New York, New Jersey and Boston, the South, as well as Chicago in the Midwest and out to the West Coast."

Several other sites are being considered by GM, including the former Delaware & Hudson Railroad locomotive repair plant near the Watervliet Arsenal in Colonie.

"It's the only place around that needs only a little work to get up and running," Barrett said. "The roof needs to be replaced and the heating system's in need of repair, but it could be done for a fraction of the cost and much faster than building a new plant."

Joanne LeSage, spokeswoman for the Albany-Colonie Chamber of Commerce, would not comment on the specific sites being proposed, except to say that a formal proposal (on behalf of the Albany County locations) would be made to the company "sometime next week."

Bethlehem musician at summer arts camp

Robyn Scherer, 13, of Delmar, is attending the Interlochen Arts Camp for eight weeks this summer.

A trumpet player, she is spending her fourth summer at Interlochen.

During the past school year, she was selected to play in the Empire State Youth Orchestra's Wind Ensemble, the state Band Directors' All-State Middle School Honor Band and the Suburban Council Band.

Scherer will enter eighth grade at Bethlehem Central Middle School in the fall.

She is the daughter of Happy and Harry Scherer of Delmar,

McEwan to head up community foundation

Edward McEwan of Delmar was recently elected president of The Community Foundation for the Capital Region.

The foundation administers charitable funds established by individuals, families, businesses and non-profit groups that benefit the Capital District.

Marie Rose

Fisher said he would move next week for a final judgment in the case given that "Judge Keegan has now found that there is a likelihood of success."

Added Fisher, "I think it's the beginning of the end" for Marie Rose Manor.

Bethlehem Town Attorney Bernard Kaplowitz said Judge Keegan's decision was not a setback for DePaul Management (the development arm of the Albany Catholic Diocese), but merely "preserved the status quo until the case is decided."

All of the necessary approvals for the 50-unit affordable housing development have been granted.

Selkirk woman named Employee of the Year

Selkirk resident Kellie Fox was recently designated an Employee of the Year by the Mercycare Corp. board of trustees.

Fox is supervisor of rehabilitation services at Our Lady of Mercy Life Center.

A second court case challenging Marie Rose Manor is also pending in state Supreme Court. It is aimed at revoking the planning board's favorable decision on the project site plan.

The residents of Dutchbrook, a community of single-family homes along Marquis Drive and Clifton Way, object strongly to the senior housing project, claiming that it will create safety problems and lead to a decline in property values.

Grebert lands job with Child's Geriatric

Anne E. Grebert of Glenmont was recently named director of fund development and public relations at Child's Geriatric Organization, the parent company of Child's Nursing Home.

Grebert will be responsible for internal and external communications, fund-raising initiatives, publications, marketing materials and media relations.

She previously served as director of community relations and development at Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson.
