Clyne, Murphy clash on finance disclosure

By Mel Hyman

Democratic supervisor candidate Matt Clyne is hopping mad over questions raised about his honesty by Bethlehem Republican committee chairman Brian Murphy.

Reacting to charges made last week by Murphy that no financial disclosure forms had been filed on behalf of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee since 1991, Clyne said Murphy was blowing smoke in an attempt to divert attention from the issues.

Clyne

Murphy

In a press release issued Friday, Murphy charged Clyne with shielding the names of contributors, the amounts that contributors have donated and how they are spending their money.

"The Democrats in Bethlehem have been running a campaign of lies," Murphy said. "It's ironic their advertising talks about honesty and openness, but their campaign is based upon dishonesty and secrecy."

Union pres, students plea for contract resolution

By Katherine McCarthy

An overflow of teachers and a number of students attended Monday night's school board meeting in Voorheesville as the continued lack of a teachers contract dominated the public input portion of the agenda.

Richard Mele, president of the Voorheesville Teachers Association, stood to "offer advice to all who care about this district. The contract must be settled now for the good of the district."

Student government president Matt Fields echoed Mele's sentiment, stating that the "real victims are the students."

As the deadline for college applications approaches, students and parents voiced concern that contract negotiations were interfering with the writing of recommendations.

Student Deah Burnham said that some teachers had stated that they would not write recommendations until the contract

Petition forces vote on NS town hall

By Dev Tobin

It was a long shot, but Councilman Scott Houghtaling gave it a try anyway after last week's New Scotland town board meeting.

Houghtaling asked fellow Democrat, and current town board candidate, Pat Brown not to submit a petition that would require voter approval of a proposed $300,000 addition to town hall.

Brown replied that he had to keep faith with the people who had signed the petition, and the next day, he submitted the petition, with 280 signatures, 53 more than necessary.

The town board will meet Monday to decide when to schedule the special election and whether to use all eight polling places in town.

The vote must be scheduled for no later than Nov. 20, but cannot be held on Election Day, since it was submitted too late to be printed on Voters in New Scotland will decide next month whether town hall should be expanded.

Pollution cleanup set at Four Corners

Within the next two weeks, the excavation work at the Four Corners in Delmar will be finished and the former site of the Getty gas station will be blacktopped.

To all our friends in the Town of Bethlehem

For many years we have had ongoing requests from Bethlehem residents for a Price Chopper to be built in the town. Over the past 18 months as we met with the Town Planning Board, many of you enthusiastically cheered us on and we thank you.

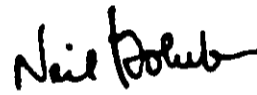

We have spent much time and effort developing a Price Chopper that complements the community and satisfactorily meets its shopping needs.

The time has come for the residents of the town to voice their opinions. If you are eager for a Price Chopper in the Town of Bethlehem, we ask you to come and show your support at the upcoming public hearing. Too often, only those in opposition to a project attend public hearings. Don't let that happen in Bethlehem.

If you want another supermarket in your community, we urge you to come and let your voice be heard!

BC board to make final bond decisions

Cost of long-range needs nears $14M

By Dev Tobin

With final decisions expected tonight, the Bethlehem Central school board met in two special work sessions last week to move toward consensus on a proposed bond issue.

The bond issue is the fruit of a yearlong long-range planning process that addresses needs for more classroom space to deal with expected peak enrollment in the next decade, a substantial investment in instructional technology and catching up on maintenance projects.

Decisions are needed tonight so that a vote on the bond issue can be scheduled in December, according to Superintendent Leslie Loomis.

The board, working off a list of options for the bond issue that ranged from $10 million to more than $14 million, trimmed some items, including two proposed classrooms at the middle school.

But the total cost of the borrowing will likely be in the range of $14 million, with the possible addition of a $600,000 wireless networking system to link computers in the district's seven schools.

Loomis noted that the wireless system may cost more at first, but should save money over time compared to leasing lines from the telephone or cable company.

He added that the wireless system will also provide a higher level of service.

The tentatively approved items include:

- An Early Learning Center (six new classrooms) for all the district's kindergarteners, proposed for Slingerlands Elementary School. Cost: $1,255,000.
- A new library, conversion of the old library to four classrooms, four new classrooms, renovation of science classrooms, and a new internal/external communication system at the middle school. Cost: $3,054,000
- An expanded library, modifications and renovations that will gain eight additional classrooms, and a new internal/external communication system at the high school. Cost: $2,138,500.

- A major investment in instructional technology (computers, including infrastructure (wiring and file servers), library automation, hardware, software and specialized science and math programs. Cost: $4,041,586.

- A long list of maintenance projects, including paving parking lots at Slingerlands and Clarksville elementary schools. The final cost of the maintenance piece (estimated at up to $3,387,300) is uncertain, because the cost of several roofing projects may be lower if asbestos removal is not needed.

Franz Zwicklbauer, assistant superintendent for business, reported that the cost to a homeowner with an average assessment of $128,000 for a $14 million bond issue would be $48.64 a year at most.

That cost would go down slightly each year after 2000, and at the end of the 20-year bond, it would be $32 a year.

Some parents expressed concern over the choice of Slingerlands for the Early Learning Center, since an elementary planning committee had recommended either Hamagrael or Clarksville.

Jim Schwab of Parents for Excellence said that his group supported adding elementary capacity, but was "surprised that the board would favor an option not recommended by the committee."

Schwab suggested that the board could put the Early Learning Center in the bond issue, then reconsider where to build after the bond issue passes.

Elementary parent Anita Stein said the process "appeared very open until last week, when the board chose an option that had not been made public" until late in the process.

Loomis said that at first, the board was advised that Slingerlands might be more expensive to develop than the other sites, but further investigation showed that it was comparable to Hamagrael, and less expensive than Clarksville.

Clarksville's costs were much higher due to additional transportation expenses and the need for a new gym station, Loomis said.

Siting the Early Learning Center at Slingerlands will balance the classroom space gained at all five elementary schools, Loomis said, and "give us flexibility so we don't have to move families around" with always controversial elementary redistricting.

The board supported the Early Learning Center concept over building classroom additions, because the center has the potential to increase the quality of education, Loomis said.

The board meets tonight at 8 p.m. in the district office at 90 Adams Place.

Town and residents will have to fight for North Road water district extension

By Dev Tobin

The town and residents of North and Upper Flat Rock roads where gasoline has polluted the aquifer will have to buck established policy to get the state to pay for a water district extension to resolve the problem, according to an attorney negotiating for the town in the matter.

Attorney Dean Sommer gave an update on the North Road situation at last week's town board meeting.

Sommer has been retained by the town to try to get the state's Oil Spill Fund to pick up all or most of the costs of extending the Clarksville Water District up North and Flat Rock roads, where an underground gasoline spill has contaminated about a dozen wells.

Sommer said that the state's policy is to try to maintain the current remediation strategy — carbon filtration for wells and bottled water for drinking — as long as possible because of the relatively low cost compared to more than $500,000 for a water district extension, which the town and the residents want.

The Clarksville Water District is adjacent to the affected area on North Road, but the cost of extending it is high due to the amount of rock that would have to be removed during construction.

Sommer reported that he was trying to negotiate a "mixed-funding" alternative, where money from the owners of a hazardous waste cleanup firm thought to be responsible for the spill and from the state combine to provide enough to pay the extension's construction costs.

In other business, Robert

Mitchell asked the board to either refund or provide back-up information on $2,000 in bills he paid for engineering consultant C.T. Male's review of a subdivision he proposed in 1988 and 1989, but never commenced construction.

"I was never told I was going to receive these bills," Mitchell said. "I have asked for documentation (of the bills) from the town and from C.T. Male. I'd like to see their time sheets and work output, or I want my money refunded."

Supervisor Herb Reilly told Mitchell that hiring outside engineers to review subdivisions was standard procedure in the town's planning process.

Town Attorney John Biscone noted, "I don't think there's any liability on the part of the town, and I don't think the town's taxpayers should pay a bill to review a subdivision."

Councilman Scott Houghtaling suggested, and the rest of the board agreed, that the town will send a letter to C.T. Male asking for time sheets and any other work product related to Mitchell's subdivision.

In another matter, town Republican Chairwoman Judi VonRonne asked the board to consider using just one polling place and paper ballots for any future third-party primaries.

VonRonne noted that the town would save about $2,000 by consolidating its eight polling places into one at town hall.

She added that the paper ballot procedure would eliminate a repeat of the situation this year, when a majority of write-in votes were disallowed due to confusion over where on the voting machine the write-in votes were supposed to be recorded.

In other business, the board:

- Appointed Gloria Ozimek to the planning board, replacing Ray MacKay, who retired. Ozimek will serve the remaining two years of MacKay's term.

- Heard that the town's drug testing program for heavy equipment operators and heavy truck drivers could be run in conjunction with Albany County, at a savings for both the town and the county.

Price Chopper hearing slated

A public hearing on the application to rezone a 21.6 acre parcel at the junction of New Scotland and LaGrange roads from residential to planned commercial district is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26.

A brief presentation on a proposal to construct a 99,000-square-foot shopping center on the parcel, should it be rezoned, will precede the public hearing.

Representatives of the Windsor Development Group will describe plans to build a 63,000 square-foot Price Chopper, along with 25,000 square feet of retail space, on the wooded parcel.

The town planning board has made a favorable recommendation to the town board on the rezoning request.

Deputy receiver looks to experience, ability

By Mel Hyman

Deputy Receiver of Taxes Nancy Karins is looking for a promotion.

Whether she receives it and is elevated to the $33,000-a-year receiver of taxes position will be decided by the voters of the town of Bethlehem on Nov. 8, when they choose between her and the Democratic candidate, John Weidman.

Karins

Karins has been the deputy to Receiver of Taxes Kenneth Hahn for the past five years. All totalled, she's been working in Hahn's office for the past eight years.

And it's just that experience she's been emphasizing throughout this campaign as she goes door to door in the town.

"Experience, knowledge, proven ability and trust. That's what I'm running on," she said.

"I intend on continuing what Ken Hahn has been doing for the past 32 years — being service-oriented, taking care of people first, and maintaining an open, friendly atmosphere."

Karins said she is committed to "taking the extra steps" so people can avoid problems penalties for late payments.

"We make sure the bills go to the right bank," in case there's confusion about bank mergers, or the refinancing of homes.

"We handle $48 million a year," she said, "so there's a trust factor there. Our accuracy rate, which is right down to the penny, is considered amazing. And it's all from procedures we have put in place and followed."

Karins also credits the high quality of work performed by the office staff, including the efforts of M. Alfhild Merritt, who has been a full-time volunteer for the past several years.

A native of Bethlehem, Karins, 47, said she has come to truly appreciate the town and its assets after having lived in other parts of the country.

A Republican committeewoman from Glenmont for the past four years, she had also worked as a reference assistant at the Bethlehem Public Library.

Regarding her opponent's desire to implement a monthly payment schedule, Karins said it's best to take a go-slow approach.

"This is something that's been in the works for years, and it still has to be passed by the Albany County Legislature and the town board."

While it sounds good on paper, Karins said she has serious reservations about it, believing that it will cost people more money when penalties kick in.

She also said that the office visited the homebound when necessary, and held extended hours on the last day of tax collections.

"I really enjoy working for the people of the town, and I want to remain part of the Republican team that has served the town so well."

County to close down Creble Road for repair

The Albany County Department of Public Works has announced that Creble Road at the General Electric Selkirk plant will be closed to all traffic beginning at 6 a.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 25.

The purpose in closing the road is to replace the existing, badly deteriorated railroad crossing.

The work will be performed by W.J. Riegal and Sons Inc., and be paid for by G.E. Selkirk. The work is expected to take seven days to complete. A detour will be set up as part of the project.

Challenger focuses on need for change

By Mel Hyman

You might think the receiver of taxes position might not generate much interest.

But candidate John Weidman, 40, has been keeping the fires burning by crisscrossing the town of Bethlehem since the middle of summer trying to convince people that it's time for a change.

Weidman

The current receiver of taxes Kenneth Hahn, while he has a good command of financial matters, has been in office for the past 32 years and not much in terms of innovation has been done during that time, Weidman said.

"I really feel that the department needs to be brought up to date. The office should be fully computerized and modernized."

Weidman has other ideas he's been pushing as well. "I will try and provide extended hours during tax season, such as opening on Saturdays," he said.

For people who have fallen on hard times and need to discuss their money problems, Weidman plans to set aside a part of the office where residents can talk privately about their financial affairs rather than having to do so at the counter.

One idea that received much attention, and which has been criticized by his Republican opponent Nancy Karins, is implementing an installment plan for paying taxes.

A bill is pending in the Albany County Legislature authorizing municipalities to offer an installment payment option, and if it passes the Bethlehem Town Board should consider it, Weidman said.

"I've talked to several local banks and they all tell me there's no problem with putting something like this together. And it will not cost the taxpayers anything extra. Oneida County already offers this."

Weidman said he's been struck by the number of people he's talked to who mistakenly believe that the receiver of taxes can reduce the tax levy. "I will certainly do what I can, perhaps by forming a committee, to have the town board lower taxes by reducing costs."

A resident of McCombe Drive in Delmar, Weidman has lived in town his entire life. He owns a promotional marketing business, and prior to going into business for himself he was the marketing director of Saratoga Raceway.

Two years ago, Weidman, who is making his maiden political run, switched his party enrollment from Republican to Conservative. His name will only appear on the Democratic line this year, however, as Karins won a September primary for the Conservative line.

Weidman promised that, if elected to the $33,000-a-year post, he would not go in and clean house, but merely try to update the office and offer creative solutions to the problems that come up.

Delmar counsel named to Bethlehem IDA board

By Mel Hyman

Thomas B. Connolly of Delmar has been appointed counsel to the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency replacing town attorney Berna R. Kaplowitz.

Connolly

Connolly was named to the unsalaried position last week by the five-member town IDA. A private practice attorney with McNamee, Lochner, Titus & Williams, Connolly could receive a fee, however, when a bond closing is made for an IDA project.

Connolly said he has worked closely with IDAs all over the Capital District in connection with financings by Fleet Bank, and is familiar with IDA proceedings.

He is a graduate of Williams College and Yale Law School, and a former vice president of the New York State Bar Association. He is also a former president of the Bethlehem Council of Parent-Faculty Organizations and a past president of the Hamagrael School PTA.

His appointment comes only a week after Joseph P. Richardson was named to the IDA board replacing Peter Bakal.

"I've known Mr. Connolly for many years and have been impressed with his work and his desire to work on behalf of the town," said Bethlehem IDA chairman Ted Putney. "I'm delighted he has been willing to accept this appointment."

Putney said that Kaplowitz, who has been IDA counsel since the agency's inception in 1978, indicated some time ago that he wished to resign.

"I prevailed upon him to stay with us until we had completed all of the changes that were necessary as a result of the state legislation affecting IDAs.

"Mr. Kaplowitz has been with the IDA for a long time and has served it very well," Putney said.

- Detectives Ted Wilson and Joseph Mastriano were honored for "being instrumental in the arrest of several suspects in a regional burglary ring."

- Telecommunications supervisor Maureen Bartkus and telecommunicator Mark Becker were honored for their "outstanding contributions in implementing the E-911 system and the department's computer-aided records management system.

- Telecommunicator Brian Sleurs was honored with a chief's achievement award for, on two occasions, talking people out of suicide attempts.

- Officer Robert J. Berben received the Safety Belt Award given

- Gene L. Minshell Jr., a private citizen, received an outstanding citizen award for his unselfish acts leading to the apprehension of two robbery suspects believed to be armed with a deadly weapon.

Blanket DWI patrol nets 31 for seat belt violations

Bethlehem police officers cited 31 drivers for failing to wear seat belts during last weekend's blanket DWI patrol.

The city of Albany had the second highest number of seat belt violators with nine.

One local man was charged with driving while intoxicated in Bethlehem. Joseph Richard Johnson, 30, of Selkirk, was stopped at 4:43 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 14, after nearly striking a patrol car on Pictuay Road, police said.

He was charged with a felony count of DWI, and a felony count of aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle. He was sent to Albany County jail pending a preliminary hearing on Oct. 19.

A total of 28 DWI arrests were made countywide during the sweep, which was conducted between 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 13, and 5 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 14.

Bethlehem police issued 56 summonses overall during the sweep. A total of 520 traffic stops were made, with 82 of them coming in Bethlehem.

Matters of Opinion

Bethlehem forum set

Editorials

As we suggested in past weeks, the Albany County League of Women Voters has agreed to join with The Spotlight in sponsoring Bethlehem Forum Night '95 on Nov. 2.

We are pleased that this renowned group has joined us in this opportunity to present the candidates for Bethlehem town offices before the public.

All the candidates have accepted invitations, including Democrat candidates Matthew Clyne (supervisor candidate) and Theresa Barrowman and Joseph Duclos (town council candidates).

They will face three Republicans: Town Supervisor, Shelia Fuller; incumbent, Doris Davis; and council candidate, Bob Johnson.

It is important also that Bethlehem residents will be able to submit questions on all topics of interest Thursday evening prior to the forum.

Questions will be chosen from these suggestions by the League who will then use them as part of a formal presentation.

Readers have generally agreed that a forum open to all topics of community interest is the preferable means of informing the public and for giving greater opportunity to hear a candidate's views on all matters.

We urge all residents to be at the Bethlehem Middle School on Kenwood Avenue Thursday, Nov. 2, for the two-hour debate beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Price Chopper review

Equally important for Bethlehem residents is the informational meeting concerning Price Chopper's proposal to build on New Scotland Road near the junction with Cherry Avenue Extension.

This Oct. 26 meeting at the Bethlehem town hall gives all residents an opportunity to hear the plans for this new boon to the community.

While we are aware of opposition to the project because of increased traffic on New Scotland Road and more commercialization of a generally residential area, we are convinced that overall this project is more a win-win situation for the community than some suggest.

Price Chopper, long considered among the best companies for community involvement and for supporting charitable causes, is also a competitive retailer who will give our residents an opportunity to shop without having to leave the immediate area.

Until a continuation of the bypass is constructed, there could be some increase of traffic, up to 10 percent. Yet, that seems a small price to pay for the $8 million project that will be built there and the increase in employment.

Most important, it is estimated that Price Chopper will pay upward of $200,000 a year in school taxes without adding one pupil to the school population. This proposal, passed by the Bethlehem planning board and waiting for town board approval, is a sound one.

The informational meeting Oct. 26 at 7:30 p.m., is the community's opportunity to learn more about the new enterprise. We urge everyone to attend.

Man for his time

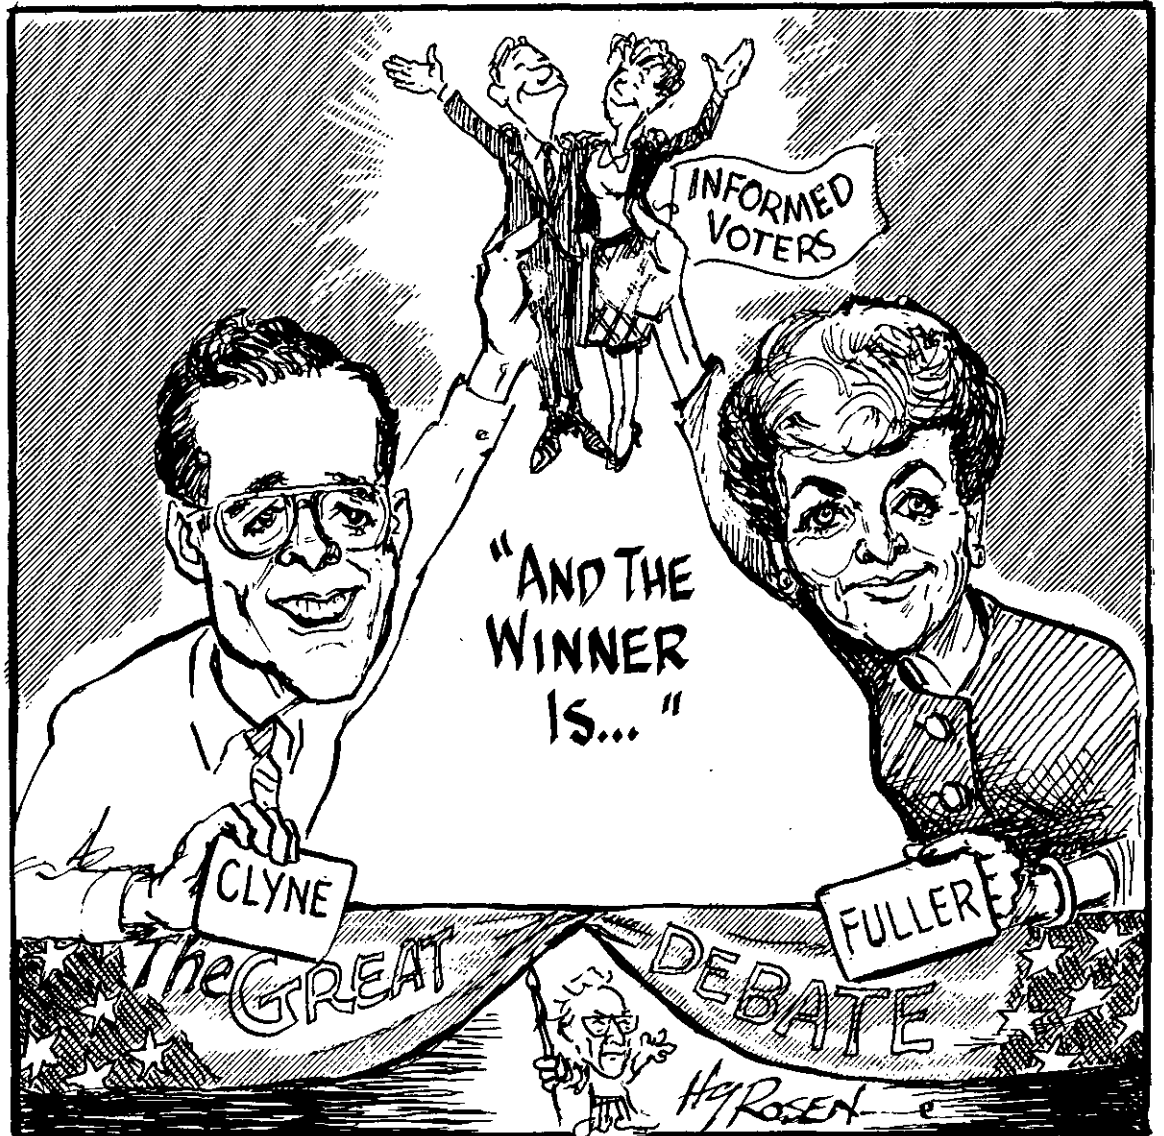

Based on Joseph P. Richardson's background, the Bethlehem Town Board made a wise choice in appointing him to the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency.

The Delmar resident is a senior vice president with Albank and determined to do all he can to create jobs within the town.

A 33-year veteran of commercial banking (he handled the first tax-exempt bond in Albank's history), Richardson is intent upon helping bring business to the town of Bethlehem.

He appears to be the right man for the right job at the right time!

was a source of frustration to have let that wonderful source of family history slip out of my life without tapping into it.

I did remember my mother told me my great-grandfather, Lawrence Deery, had come over from Cork. It was the only information I had, but I thought it was a start. I soon learned that it was more of a dead end, for the tourist woman's response was repeated over and over from others I asked. "Deery is not a Cork name," they said. It was a mystery I needed to resolve.

Yet, the tourist information woman proved to be more help than she realized. She directed me to the library where I fell into the hands of Tim, an enthusiastic young man eager to be of assistance. After he, too, assured me that Deery was not a Cork name, he dug out a reference book that placed the Deerys in County Derry in Northern Ireland. Standing there in a Cork library at the southernmost end of the country, I was as far away from my ancestor's home as the tiny isle would permit.

It dawned on me as I listened. People don't move around much in Ireland. If the Deerys originated in Derry in 1254, chances are they're going to still be there in 1995, possibly in the same house! Tim asked if I had any additional information that might help. I answered hesitantly and feeling a bit foolish. "Well, there was some talk of a family castle."

The young man's attempt to keep from grinning met with only half success, but he led me upstairs to the history section and produced another book. This one said the Deerys were an erenagh family, which he explained, was appointed by the Bishop to oversee his lands.

"Could such a family possibly live in a castle?" I asked. Tim beamed his agreement that we had likely turned up some interesting information and asked if there were any more books I wanted to see. "Is there a telephone book handy," I asked. He nodded and disappeared, returning in a moment to hand me a slip of paper. It contained one name, James Deery. A local Cork address and telephone number were noted as well.

Kathleen Deery answered the phone and when I introduced myself and stated my purpose, I heard her call to her husband. "Mrs. Jamison's on the wire. She's come all the way from America to find her Deerys!"

I accepted their invitation to visit them at home and over a glass of Irish Mist I browsed through the family picture album. There, an old photo of my host's two great-granduncles caught my attention. He explained that Patrick and John had left Ireland in the late 1800s. "They settled in a little place you've probably never heard of called Providence, Rhode Island." I caught my breath. That's where I was born!

The link of Patrick and John with my great-grandfather Lawrence Deery came to me in an unexpected way. Later, I wrote a letter to my mother's only living cousin. He wrote back that Lawrence, his grandfather, had died before he was born, but that he remembered Patrick and John coming to the house on holidays. Part of my mystery has been solved.

But was there a castle? Is it standing still? If I go back, will I find it? Was it there when Cromwell invaded Ireland and took over the castles and land that went with them? What part in history did the Deerys play; what part do they play now?

A book I read about a Peggy Deery who lost two sons in the fighting that has plagued the Northern Ireland for the past 40 years, fails to answer other questions. Were they heirs to the castle now forced to live in dire poverty in Derry's infamous Bogside? Would my Grandmother have known!

My experience is surely similar to that of many other people, among them friends whose grandparents came from Europe. A yearning for knowledge of family history is probably universal.

Many people spend thousands of dollars for a professionally researched family tree and coat of arms. Others spend countless hours in libraries, civil archives, and parish church records piecing together their roots.

But, often, as I did, people forget to tap the closest resource available, our relatives, particularly our grandparents.

Lucky are those who still have an elder or two who can pass on the tales they were told as youngsters. My advice to them is to get their stories on tape or video for future generations, for these are the gems they won't find in a file.

A friend of mine who had been associated with theater for more than 40 years, learned two years before his Ireland-born mother died in a nursing home that she had acted on stage as a teenager in Ireland. She had never told him, and he had failed to ask. It was only when a nursing home administrator talked to his mother about her past that the fact was learned.

We need to ask the questions of our elders. As for me, now that I am the grandmother, each of my grandchildren will have a book about their forebears with all the anecdotes I can find to bring them back to life.

I'll give them the clues to find out more about an American president with links to the family, as well as an army officer killed by Indians in 17th-century Rhode Island and a Civil War officer decorated in battle.

Then, there's the link to the Irish patriot and poet, Padraic Pearse. They are colorful characters who will make history live for these children with the links I've been able to provide them.

Library memories bring holiday joy

Editor, The Spotlight:

Muttering and insinuations have aroused my curiosity as to what the truth is about three problems.

Two have been explained.

Q. Why don't we see the life size creche during Christmas season? A. It was blown over and damaged.

Q. Why was the joyful Christmas pageant discontinued? A. Lack of volunteers.

Q. Who complained about the Progress Club Christmas decorations in the library? A. Identity unknown. Lack of information has caused muttering of anti-this and anti-that.

Christmas, translated from Latin means birth of Christ. Outside of church that meaning is lost. Commercialism has turned it to buy, buy, buy. But, it is a bright spot in a dark winter.

I have been thinking of the library of my childhood in Philadelphia, the New York City library with the lions and recently the beauty of the one in Parliament building in Ottawa, Canada, the special quiet in all of them the awesomeness and the joy of all those books, available for me to read.

So, let us leave "the inner sanctum" of our library to the color of books. We all enjoy the artistic talent of Bethlehem residents displayed in the corridor.

Let us enjoy the color, lights, greens, and creativity of Progress Club members in the corridor and community room. All are hung with the pleasure of working together to brighten the community.

The cogeneration factor

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to address the Bethlehem water issue from a perspective other than water quality. The increased demand for water is due in a major way to the two million gallons a day needed for the Selkirk Cogen plant. This facility uses water to reject heat not being used by the cogeneration process. Cogeneration is supposed to be a more efficient process. So why do they need to waste two million gallons a day or 700 million gallons a year?

The cogen plant was financed by the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency with low interest bond money. A high-priced power sales contract with the cogen plant is part of a significant increase in Niagara Mohawk electric rates that has recently been in the news.

The cogen plant has received a low interest loan from the town, a no cost investment for a major water system upgrade, and all electric users are subsidizing the high priced power that the cogen plant is selling to Niagara Mohawk.

It is true that the plant generated jobs and the cogen investors are receiving a significant return on their investment, but what did the town residents receive?

I will leave that for the residents to decide.

New Scotland for better, not worse

Editor, The Spotlight:

With regard to Democratic town supervisor candidate Clare Decker's recent letter to the editor, I am reminded of a line from William Shakespeare's Hamlet, that she "doth protest too much."

Her letter was to refute statements made in an ad that Mr. Reilly was dumped by his own party. Mr. Reilly and Mrs. Decker have not been able to work effectively with Council-woman Ramundo, a powerhouse, along with town resident John Egan, in the Albany County Democratic machine.

In Mr. Reilly's case, he consistently argues with Ms. Ramundo. In Mrs. Decker's case, she just sits quietly and defers to the real commander-in-chief of the town Democratic party, Ms. Ramundo.

In my 16 years on the Voorheesville Village Board, I had never witnessed anything like the petty bickering that the totally Democratic board now displays, on a regular basis. The Egans, Reillys, Deckers, and Ramundos have certainly succeeded in "bringing the city to the county!"

Unfortunately, New Scotland is the laughing stock of the county. The solution to this problem is clear. Residents of the town of New Scotland should elect the Republican slate that is running for town board, consisting of myself, Mike Fields and Mark Dempf. Mr. Reilly has denied residents and even other town board members a voice in town government. Out of fear of scrutiny by his fellow Democratic board members, Mr. Reilly develops policy in secret and then springs it on the citizens with little warning.

An example of this problem was the recent fumbling attempt to build an addition to the town hall. It is clear that no matter who is elected as councilman in November, Mr. Reilly will continue to fight with the whole town board.

Even when opinions differ, the supervisor must demand that all board members act professionally, and not run roughshod over procedure, nor argue with each other to the point that nothing is accomplished. This is not the present situation with Mr. Reilly. It will not happen with Mrs. Decker either. Consider these points carefully.

I believe that I represent the only choice for town supervisor that will result in returning town government to a professional and open condition, where productive meetings can occur to retain our town's best features, and planning will result to make it even better.

Democrat opposes ad

Editor, The Spotlight,

As a registered Democrat, I am embarrassed by the Democratic committee's ad in The Spotlight which states "If we can't eat the fish, we shouldn't drink the water."

Of course we can't eat the fish from the proposed water source because there are no fish in the aquifer. If there were, they would be fine to eat, as the water is fine to drink.

The aquifer holds water that has gone through a natural purification process. The aquifer is a separate and different body of water from the Hudson River.

I would be very concerned if these Democrats were elected into office, considering their failure to differentiate between an aquifer and river shows a lack of research and knowledge.

CLARE DECKER

BEAT Herb Reilly in the open Democratic Caucus by a vote of 72 to 59 and in the Conservative Primary by a vote of 25 to 5.

WHY? Because people are tired of sellouts to developers, high taxes, and business as usual.

CLARE DECKER:

- would rather cut taxes than spend nearly $400,000 of your money on the unneeded Town Hall expansion proposed by Mr. Reilly.
- opposes overdevelopment that would further increase school taxes, overcrowd classrooms and clog your roads.
- has the HONESTY and INTEGRITY New Scotland deserves.

Construction of new homes doesn't balance school costs

Editor, The Spotlight:

A recent letter to the editor suggested that "dense" residential development is good for school taxes. That belief is so blatantly incorrect that I feel I must respond.

It is beyond dispute that residential development increases school taxes. In fact, a comprehensive study of that subject was done last year by Leslie Loomis, superintendent of Bethlehem Central School District. Loomis' study was not hypothetical. Rather, it was a study of the actual tax impact of four developments built in Bethlehem in the last few years.

After factoring in the expense of educating the students from those new developments, Dr. Loomis subtracted school taxes paid by the new homes and the amount of state aid received for the new students.

He found that there was a substantial shortfall, and that it increased school taxes for everyone in the district. Dr. Loomis concluded simply "Residential development does not pay for itself."

I live in the Voorheesville School District and, like most people, have been alarmed at the dramatic tax increases we have experienced over the past 10 years. Was it only a coincidence that the Weatherfield Development was built during that same time? If 170 homes are also built at Tall Timbers, will that have the same effect?

I, for one, can't afford to do more. The fact is that the cost of educating a student at Voorheesville Central exceeds $9,000 per year. A home valued at $150,000 pays about $3,000 per year in school taxes and state aid chips in about $2,000 more. That leaves a shortfall of about $4,000 if a house sends only one student to school. Many homes, of course, send more.

The argument that residential development will improve our state aid formula is also ridiculous. The formula is based on wealth. Does anyone seriously believe that people moving into homes in Tall Timbers, proposed to start at $200,000, will have low incomes? That's pure nonsense.

It will have just the opposite effect, as Weatherfield did. And anyone who thinks that the state, with its budget woes, will be increasing its aid to us is living in a fantasy land.

The only real way to help control skyrocketing school taxes is to have responsible controls on residential development and, at the same time, encourage clean industry and commercial development. Clare Decker's proposals not only make sense, they're right on the money.

What is really scary is that Herb Reilly, as well as all of the Republican candidates for town board, believe that dense residential development should be the future for New Scotland.

They should open their eyes and look at what the experts are saying. Such continued ignorance could cost us all a great deal in the years to come.

School garden applauded

Editor, The Spotlight:

Hats off to those responsible for the beautiful gardens and landscaping around the middle school. I was told this was the work of a volunteer committee of staff and parents from the school. They call themselves the Climate Committee and raise the funds from the spring craft's fair held each year.

The results of this activity are far reaching, not only do they improve the aesthetics of the school and community, they demonstrate pride, dedication, and a wonderful cooperative effort between teachers and parents.

I applaud these efforts and know the community joins me in my appreciation and enjoyment of the middle school outdoor improvements.

Candidate urged to learn job first

Editor, The Spotlight:

In this dreary political campaign season replete with specious allegations and incivility, it is refreshing to know that John Weidman, Democrat candidate for receiver of taxes and assessments, offers some comic relief to the dazed electorate by going to and fro about the town making promises and offering to do things that would make a practiced rainmaker blush with envy.

Want Bethlehem Central school classes downsized? Forget about Bethlehem School Superintendent, Les Loomis and the elected school board. Just vote for me and it will be done, Mr. Weidman tells a captive audience of parents at the middle school.

Tax cuts? No problem, says Mr. Weidman. I'm your man. Just overlook the fact that only the supervisor and the town board has the vested power to raise and lower town levies, and that school budgets are voted on in May.

How about a monthly plan for paying school and town taxes? Mr. Weidman will fix one up, pronto. Never mind that New York state law prohibits such a practice and always has.

Before Nov. 7 finally arrives, I fully expect to hear that Mr. Weidman is going door-to-door telling folks that of course he's faster than a speeding bullet and can leap tall buildings in a single bound. Just vote for him and see.

Instead of trying to make rain with Bethlehem voters, Mr. Weidman might be well advised to spend a bit of time learning something about the job he seeks.

But if he did, Mr. Weidman might find to his regret that he has neither the experience nor the qualifications for the office.

Sign display thanks

Editor, The Spotlight:

The New Scotland Republican Committee would like to thank the homeowners of New Scotland who are displaying our candidates signs on their lawns for this election year.

To answer a question we have heard more than once, we have kept the signs particularly compact and included the entire slate on both sides so as not to turn your front yards into poster pandemonium. Of course, we will still be using our four large sets around town for those of us, like myself, who are having a little trouble with the small print.

Thanks again to those who are interested enough to get involved. You really are true blue.

Judi Von Ronne

New Scotland Republican Committee Chair

New Scotland needs leadership

Editor, The Spotlight:

Midge McGraw-Bulgaro's letter to the editor compelled me to echo her sentiments that it is time New Scotland elected a leader who can bring our town together.

It is crystal clear that our current supervisor, Mr. Reilly, can't even work with his own "team". He couldn't work with the Republicans when they were in the majority, he fought with his fellow Democrats (namely John Sgarlata and Dick Decker) when they had the majority, and now he can't get control of an entirely Democrat town board.

It's time to say goodbye to this kind of nonsense. Regarding Mrs. Decker, it is obvious to anyone who attends town board meetings that, she is the new figurehead for the "Ramundo faction," as Mr. Reilly puts it, and certainly not representative of the town as a whole. Her actions at the town board meetings are not those of a leader.

It seems obvious to me that we need some new faces in town hall. There are choices in November which may be this town's only road to a productive town government.

I urge the voters in New Scotland to cast the only votes that make sense in light of the current havoc in town hall.

Don't knock the honor roll system

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a parent of a Bethlehem Central Middle School student, I would like to comment on the idea that grading there is too lenient and that too many students are on the honor rolls.

According to the Carnegie Foundation, the middle school years are the turning point in a child's education, the time when a student begins to take control of his or her own learning.

This is the point at which a student can be turned on (or off) to learning.

When a student achieves an average of 80 percent or higher at BCMS, they are rewarded with inclusion on the honor roll. For most students, this is earned through their hard work and effort.

At this critical point in their educational development, we should encourage them to continue to put forth their best effort by including them on the honor roll.

The high percentage of children who achieve an 80 average or better must not concern us. If every child puts forth the required effort, they should each be so praised. What is wrong with everyone succeeding?

Holding out

Editor, The Spotlight:

It does not seem strange that Mayor Jennings with his need for extra money wants to wait until November to deal with Bethlehem about a contract for water.

Could it be to keep the political pot boiling and maybe get Matt Clyne elected supervisor of Bethlehem? Then the Mayor could call the shots to his boy Matt in Bethlehem.

It's so easy to forget what a great town Bethlehem is.

- > Town taxes are fair — they've been cut without any loss of services;
- > Our Parks and Recreational Programs are among the finest;
- > Our Highway Department is unparalleled;
- > And we've never lost that wonderful sense of community that makes Bethlehem such a special place to live and raise a family.

It's also easy to forget that Bethlehem is so great because of Republican stewardship.

Look around. With a change in leadership, we could easily become just one more extension of Albany.

"The local justice system is indispensable in establishing the character and fabric of a community. At its best, it should be fair, honest and compassionate. In Bethlehem, I believe we have accomplished this."

— Judge Peter Wenger

Bethlehem is a great place to live. Our Town Court System is a big reason why. It's no accident that our crime rate is low and that our Town Court is respected throughout the Capital District. Much of the credit goes to Judge Peter Wenger.

For sixteen years, Judge Wenger has been a guiding force in the Court. His integrity, innovation and commitment to the Town have made Bethlehem a better place to live.

Judge Wenger:

- Initiated the Honor Court Alcohol Program in Town Court.
- Introduced Community Service as a sentencing option.
- Helped establish Albany County's Community Service Sentencing Program.
- Serves as a member and Secretary of the Bethlehem Youth Court Advisory Board.
- Is a graduate of BCHS, Union College and Albany Law School, Cum Laude.
- Served for 25 years with the New York Air National Guard, achieving the rank of Lt. Colonel. His commendations include the Republic of Vietnam Service Medal.

Early registration for Tri-Village LL

The Tri-Village Little League will conduct registration in two weeks for the 1996 spring season.

The signups will be held at the Bethlehem Town Hall on Saturday, Nov. 4, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.; on Thursday, Nov. 9, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. and on Tuesday, Nov. 28, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The November registration is a month earlier than in past years. to ensure that all the kids that want to play will not be left out.

Also, those eligible to play in the major division will need to register, because there will be a limited number of teams and players on each team.

Those who do not make the registration on time may have to be on a waiting list.

A total of 661 registered players participated in the Tri-Village season last year, and many more are expected back this year.

The league also tries to organize the 6-through-9-year-olds in neighborhood or school teams, so they will be among their friends.

That takes considerable time and effort, which is another reason for the earlier registration.

The registration fee has been increased this year from $25 to $35 per individual player, or $60 for a family registration.

But families will be asked to make an extra donation at registration this year to help defray the costs of adding a new field, refurbishing two other diamonds, uniform expenses and player participation trophies.

"We want to thank all those who gave a little extra last year, and those who participated in the 50-50 raffles at the ball park," said Ken Boynton, TVLL player activities director. "We're going to need that kind of help again next spring."

One of the more important needs of the league this year is board members and volunteers.

Nearly a half dozen board members resigned at the end of the season this year, mostly because their children have graduated from Little League and moved up to Babe Ruth baseball.

Volunteers may express their interest in serving on the board or in other capacities at registration times.

Taxes

The announcement of a 2.7 percent tax cut is a pre-election gimmick designed to mask a six percent increase in spending. The cut is not a reflection of the present administration's fiscal planning. Rather, it reflects increased revenue due the Town from the one percent increase in the county sales tax. In point of fact, sound fiscal management appears to have taken a back seat to political gimmickry.

The present administration has done virtually nothing to expand Bethlehem's commercial or industrial tax base over the past four years.

We believe that clean, light commercial development (e.g., companies which specialize in the design, manufacture or distribution of high tech, precision engineered or medical equipment) is compatible with the objective of maintaining the Town's rural-suburban character. We would create an Office of Economic Development to identify and match appropriate locations with suitable commercial enterprises.

However, the Town must do more than simply expand its commercial and industrial tax base; it must identify alternative sources of revenue, sources which generate revenue above and beyond real property taxes.

Specifically, we believe the portion of our riverfront just south of the Port of Albany should be utilized by the Town for economic development purposes. Businesses could be developed here, in conjunction with the Port, which would provide substantial revenues and jobs for our Town.

Let's bring Bethlehem into the global economy and derive some revenue from an expanding foreign trade. We can no longer fund our budget primarily from real property taxes.

Development

Over the last ten years, the Town's lack of planning has resulted in runaway residential development which has had a negative impact on many existing neighborhoods. There seems to be no restriction upon the manner in which new development may intrude upon established neighborhoods.

We propose the Town initiate measures to ensure, by way of fairly stringent restraints, that new development not adversely impact the character of existing neighborhoods.

The LUMAC plan is a starting point. However, we do not feel it should be incorporated wholesale as part of the Town zoning ordinance. It has to be fine-tuned and must respect the rights of existing landowners to market their property with the expectation of a reasonable return on their land.

We will work to balance the many diverse interests involved with land use planning.

Supermarket

Years ago, there were three supermarkets in the Town of Bethlehem. For too long, there has been only one. This unfortunate state of affairs reflects a lack of initiative on the part of the Town administration to attract a competitive supermarket.

Official negligence has fostered a climate of desperation in which any proposal, no matter what its scope, scale or impact, is viewed as acceptable, provided it includes a supermarket.

The recent decision by the Town Planning Board to sign off on the proposal to locate a Price Chopper in Slingerlands, without the benefit of an Environmental Impact Statement, strongly suggests the presence of a "done deal".

This is the latest example of the crisis management approach to planning and government by the present administration.

Let's keep the damage to a minimum. If elected, we will prevent the further commercialization of established neighborhoods. We will also work to locate additional supermarkets in areas which will not disrupt existing neighborhoods.

Schools

Presently there is virtually no coordination between the School District and the Town. This has resulted in an overcrowded school system and an escalating school tax.

We propose that the Town planning process evaluate the impact of residential development on the School District. School District officials should be made part of the process.

We also propose that the Town assist the School District with land acquisition and building construction to facilitate the inevitable expansion of the District.

Southgate

We oppose the construction of a regional shopping mall at this troublesome location on Route 9W near the Glenmont Grade School.

The Town and/or school district should give serious consideration to acquiring this tract for future recreational or scholastic use.

Hudson River Water Plant

We opposed this project two years ago as an unnecessary duplication of existing services. At this point, we have gone full circle and now the present administration is attempting to extricate itself from a very unpopular position by promising to segregate the industrial and residential water supplies.

Under no circumstances will we approve residential consumption of Hudson River water. As far as the cost of segregating the system, we feel it is a cost that should be borne by the beneficiary of the project, Selkirk Co-Gen. Since Bethlehem residents will not derive any benefit from the system, they should not have to pay for it.

We are also troubled that the Town did not require the design engineer, who made a substantial amount of money from this project, to post a performance bond. Given the experimental nature of the water system, the Town should obtain a performance bond from the design engineer or acquire its own insurance policy.

Rails to Trails

At this point, it seems likely that the D&H rail line will be abandoned by its present owner, CP Rail Systems, in 1996. This will present both opportunity and challenge to our elected Town officials.

In the event that the rail line cannot be utilized for railway service, we favor the conversion of the rail bed to a recreational trail.

In our view, Bethlehem has the most to lose should the rail line be converted to an intra-county highway.

Time is of the essence. If elected, we would move quickly to line up the support of neighboring communities to prevent the creation of a cross-county highway.

A New Approach to Town Government

Our theme is initiative and planning. Most of Bethlehem's current problems are the direct result of years of inaction on the part of Town government.

We believe the function of government is not merely to deliver essential services. It must also improve and enhance the quality of life of Town residents. This is our goal, and this is where we differ from the present administration.

We also feel that part of the problem is the "siege mentality" that permeates every layer of Town government. If elected, we will listen, not lecture.

Academy gridders stymie RCS Indians

By Danielle Hummel

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Indians couldn't hold off the still unbeaten Cadets of Albany Academy in a Capital Conference game last Saturday.

With this 13-3 victory, Academy clinches the Western Division championship.

On the game's opening drive, the Cadets returned the kickoff to midfield, and then worked their way down to score the only touchdown they would need.

Though the offense did some scoring, this game was won due to the Cadets' defense. Their defense came up with three interceptions and three fumble recoveries, killing Ravena's drives.

Standout runningback Matt Frese had 64 yards on 23 carries, while quarterback Steve Burns was 4 for 19 passing. The Cadets man-to-man coverage broke up Ravena's passing game, while they kept Frese in check.

Ravena's lone three points were off Norris Ackert's 30-yard field goal kick. With nine minutes left in the fourth quarter, Academy scored again to put the game out of reach.

The Ravena defense, led by Steve Ross put in all-around, solid effort by keeping the Cadets to only 13 points.

Ravena now stands at 5-2 in the Capital Conference and occupies third place behind LaSalle.

BC boys meshing at the right time

Michelle Kagan

The Bethlehem boys soccer team started last week out on the right foot with a 3-0 shutout over Burnt Hills, improving the Eagles' league record to 7-3

"It was a big game for us," BC coach John Bramley said. "I thought we were ready. We deserved to win."

Will Cushing assisted Kevin Russell in the only goal made in the first half. In the second half, aided by assists from Chris Wenger and Brian Swartz, Ben Samuelson-Jones and Tim Wenger both scored to record the shutout over Burnt Hills.

BC goalkeeper, Dave Goodfellow made seven saves keeping the ball out of the Eagles goal.

BC continued its winning streak with a 2-1 victory over Niskayuna, improving its league record to 9-2. Tim Wenger scored in the first half. Niskayuna scored early in the second half to tie the game.

"We had a defensive mix-up," said Brian Swartz. "They had a nice shot."

Swartz broke the tie with six minutes left in the second half.

Soccer

"The turning point of the game was when our goalkeeper, Dave Goodfellow got hurt," said Swartz. "After that we worked harder because we wanted to win the game for Dave."

BC finished the week with a tie of 2-2 against Colombia. Kevin Smith scored 22 minutes into the second half by booting the ball into the right corner of the goal off an assist by Greg Couper.

Swartz said that the Colombia offense was able to score on BC by using a lot of speed.

"When Niskayuna gets the ball they can do a lot with it," said Swartz. "Our defense has been playing well, and we can't expect them to play good every minute of every game."

As of Thursday, Bethlehem had four key players out because of injury.

"We've realized that the players that are out are our stronger players," Swartz said, "so we come together and play more as a team."

V'ville win streak comes to an end

By Matt McKenna

The Voorheesville girls soccer team knew it wouldn't last forever.

An 11-game winning streak ended last week with a loss to Lansingburgh. Lansingburgh is led by senior goalie Laura Gregor, who has a record 59 career shutouts.

On Tuesday, Oct. 10, Kate Barnett scored the only goal for Lansingburgh in the 1-0 victory. Gregor had 10 saves in goal, while Angie Berg had six for Voorheesville.

"We had several opportunities to score, but we just didn't capitalize," said coach Jim Hladun. "We hit the post a couple of times, and she (Gregor) dropped the ball once, but no one was there to finish."

The 'Birds came back on Thursday, Oct. 12, and blanked Averill Park, 4-0. Jane Meade and Shannon Magee scored two goals each as the girls raised their record to 12-1 in the league. Berg had 13 saves in net for her 10th shutout of the year.

On Saturday, Oct. 14, Voorheesville held its annual Homecoming game against Holy Names. Meade, Kristen Conley, Jen Delaney, and Julia Guastella each scored as the team rolled to a 4-1 win. Berg had to make only six saves in the net.

With a 13-1 record in the league and 14-2 overall, Voorheesville is still out of reach in the Colonial Council race. This does not mean they are taking it lightly. They are now focused on building momentum for sectionals.

Blackbirds romp over Chatham

By Adam Cole

Sean Devine's five touchdowns and team defense proved to be the difference in Voorheesville's 34-22 homecoming victory over visiting Chartham last Saturday.

Devine set the tone two minutes into the first quarter with a 48-yard punt return for a touchdown to put the Blackbirds ahead, 8-0. Devine also had touchdown runs of six, 9, 11 and 74 yards, for a total of 149 yards on the day.

The Blackbird defense once again proved that it is one of the best around. Senior linebacker Griffin King and junior halfback Mike Robichaud led the defense with 12 tackles each.

Seniors Art Mosley and John McGinty added 10 tackles each.

The defense also intercepted five passes. Catching the interceptions were King, Lon Bullinger, Kevin Griffin, Mike Oliver and Dan Rissacher.

Darrick Zwack and Ryan Foster blocked kicks for Voorheesville.

The victory sets up a showdown on Friday between Voorheesville and Rensselaer. If the 'Birds win they will compete in the first round of the sectional playoffs the following week.

V'ville boys chalk up 9-1 record

By Matt McKenna

The Voorheesville boys soccer team rolled through another week of Colonial Council soccer.

The Blackbirds were propelled by a victory over arch-rival Watford on Saturday, 1-0.

On Wednesday, Voorheesville traveled to Red Division champion Cohoes. Cohoes entered the game with a record of 9-1, but the 'Birds came out with a 3-0 win.

Chris Dutkiewicz, Greg Sanderson and Kevin Burns all scored. Mike Beadnell had seven saves and Mark Panthen one in the net.

On Friday, Albany Academy traveled to Voorheesville for the Blackbirds' annual homecoming game. The team had very few scoring opportunities until sophomore Brett Fortran scored from 35 yards out with seven minutes left.

Dutkiewicz added a goal from the exact spot with 30 seconds left to secure the 2-0 victory. Beadnell made three difficult saves in goal.

With that win, Voorheesville (9-1-2, 9-4-2) clinched the Blue Division championship and put the team comfortably ahead of Cohoes for the league title.

The Blackbirds have two games remaining — one at Ravena and a crossover game at Cohoes.

"We've proven that we can play with anyone in the league," coach Bob Crandall said. "We move the ball well, but I would like to see us score more."

With only 28 goals this season, the Blackbirds have had to play good defense. Their record is a tribute to Beadnell, and defenders Greg Casler, Bryce Fortran and Steve Pilatzke. They hope this will push them through to the state tournament.

BC girls beat Shen

By Ted Hartman

The Bethlehem girls soccer team scored perhaps the soccer program's greatest victory ever last week by knocking off Shenendehowa, the number two ranked girls team in the country.

The 3-0 win marked Bethlehem's first-ever win over Shenendehowa in girls varsity soccer and gave Shen its first loss of the season.

The game highlighted a week that saw the Eagles ring up three shutouts; the other two coming against Columbia and Gunderland, with finals of 2-0 and 4-0 respectively.

Senior captain Kiley Shortell's play in goal was a major reason for BC's success against Shen. She made 13 saves and allowed no goals. This not only kept Shen from scoring, but also gave the Eagles confidence. After a scoreless first half, offensive output came from senior Kate Sherwin, sophomore Kate Smith and freshman Lilly Corrigan.

"Everybody played their best game against Shen. The longer we were able to stay with them, our confidence grew," said BC coach Dave Kszanznak.

The Eagles beat Gunderland on Saturday on the strength of goals from Sherwin, junior Meg Stevens, sophomore Emily Haskins and Smith.

Condors whip Scotia squad

Sparked by a swarming defense that caused three fumbles, the Bethlehem Pop Warner Junior PeeWee Condors took an early 24-6 lead and coasted to a 36-19 victory over Scotia-Glenville.

Pop Warner

The defensive line was led by Don Ballard and Devon Nolan, while Joe Berrios, Shawn Bukowski and Ryan Eder also contributed with solid hits.

Brendan Rhatigan and Matt Corroll helped shut down the Scotia ground game.

Offensively, Josh Rucinski created his own highlights film with a number of dazzling runs. Anthony Liverri had another big day running through holes opened by Will Ryan, Bob Bestler and Tim Moore. Greg Pankow scored his first touchdown of the year.

The Junior Midget Hawks went down to Watervliet 26-6. The offense was led by Bob Hazen, Erik Stegman and Andy Bratrud with support on the offensive line from Kyle Kelly, Matt Hennessey, James Wheeler, Andre Perillat and Ryan Connors.

The Hawks got excellent field position due to the punting of Steven Sanchez.

Dennis Clarke had a quarterback sack in the second quarter. Other defensive standouts were Dave Sargent, Justin Winne, Zach McDaniel and Pat Thomas.

There was a touchdown in the third quarter by Dan Tripp from the 45-yard line. The defense also forced fumbles, one of which was recovered by Tony Walters in the fourth quarter.

Other offensive contributions were made by Mike Spinelli, Nick Gudewicz, Matt Melnikoff and Terrance McNally.

the general election ballot.

Supervisor Herb Reilly said that the special election would cost the town as much as $6,000, if eight polling places are used and an informational mailing is sent out to town residents.

The all-Democratic town board remains split on the town hall issue, as Councilwomen Victoria Ramundo and supervisor candidate Clare Decker signed the petition, while Reilly, Houghtaling and Councilman Edward Donohue did not.

By the same 3-2 margin, the board decided at its September meeting to go ahead with the project, which would double the size of the current structure, providing more storage space and room for two departments housed issue was settled. Privately, Burnham stressed that she was on the teachers' side and wanted the contract settled for the good of the students.

School Superintendent Dr. Alan McCartney first defended the time that teachers take to write recommendations, as they also consider them very important. He later stated forcefully that the courts were quite clear, that recommendations must be written, and if a claim could be substantiated that a teacher was not writing recommendations due to contract negotiations, he would file the appropriate papers.

Mele responded that the teachers were obligated by law to write recommendations, and would continue to do so. He stressed that writing recommendations was a judgment call on the part of the teacher, and even in years without contract negotiations, a teacher may not have written a recommendation.

Student Mike Beadnell commented on the tension in the room, and said he was "begging both sides to settle. It is affecting the students and the whole community."

Board President John Cole, in response to parent Kathy Odell's query as to whether the negotiations were at a standstill, responded that they were not. "We're negotiating. There are many items that we have come to agreement on."

Reilly has included $39,121 for the first payment of a 10-year bond in his tentative 1996 budget. He said that since the town is debt-free and has been able to cut taxes in recent years, now is a good time to undertake such a project.

The issue threatens to divide town Democrats yet again, and many of the players are the same as with the recent, controversial and divisive zoning law debate.

The petition sheets were carried by vocal supporters of more restrictive zoning like Brown, Lyon Greenberg, Jim Finnigan and Sharon Boehlke.

In the yearlong debate over the zoning law, Reilly favored less restrictive lot size minimums, which he believes led to his being denied the Democratic nomination for reelection.

Reilly questioned whether the petition was valid, since one of the people who carried it, and gathered 74 signatures, is apparently not a current resident of the town.

Karen Lonnstrom stated on the eight petition sheets she witnessed that she resides at 15 Overlook Drive in Voorheesville, but she is listed in the 1995-96 Nynex phone book as living on Madison Avenue in Albany.

At a special meeting Monday, the board decided, on Town Attorney John Biscone's recommendation, not to pursue a challenge to the petition landscaping for the parcel, you've got a wait ahead of you.

Pollution

Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller said the town is still waiting on clearance from the state Department of Environmental Conservation, certifying that the site is pollution-free, before closing on a deal to purchase the property from owner John Treffiletti.

All of the underground gasoline storage tanks have been removed, but gasoline contamination of soil and groundwater was found during the excavation, according to Keith Gertz, an environmental engineer for EnCon.

To remediate the pollution, Gertz said Getty's contractor is installing an air sparging and vapor extraction system in a small shed adjacent to the Mr. Subb side of the building.

The remediation process involves blowing air into the ground which returns to the shed with volatile fumes, which are then vented in accordance with EnCon regulations, Gertz said.

"They're allowed to discharge a certain amount of vapors, which will disperse like car exhaust," Gertz explained. But if the vapor discharge exceeds state standards, it would have to be treated, he added.

"This is a very aggressive remediation," Gertz said. "I'd be disappointed if it doesn't clear up in two years."

Aside from concerns over liability for the cleanup, the town "could have the park there now — there are no health concerns with the site as long as no one's drinking the water," Gertz said.

The shed had originally been proposed for the center of the site, but for aesthetic reasons, the town asked that the shed be erected near the building, Fuller said.

Pipe for the remediation system had to be laid to accommodate that request, which is the reason the site was dug up again last week.

"It's unfortunate it's developed the way it has," Fuller said, "but you can't change it."

Views On Dental Health

Dr. Virginia Plaisted, D.D.S.

Technology and Dentistry

As we move further into the computer age, it is starting to affect dentistry in a very positive way.

We now have "head lights" on the dental handpieces which greatly improves visibility and therefore shortens the dental appointment. Video cameras have lenses that make it possible to take pictures and videos of the oral cavity in just a few moments.

There are other numerous improvements on the horizon. Digital radiography will improve the accuracy of diagnosing cavities and gum disease, while decreasing radiation. Digital radiography should be available in the next few years.

The good news is that dental disease will be diagnosed sooner and treatment will be shorter in time and less invasive.

So remember your check-ups because early dental disease does not hurt!

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1985, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- The proposed $1.5 million 1986 budget for New Scotland would increase taxes by less than 1 percent for Voorheesville village residents and cut taxes by less than 1 percent for town residents outside the village. The budget included 6 percent raises for most town employees, and 8 percent for the full-time elected officials — supervisor, town clerk and highway superintendent.

- The Bethlehem town board approved a new law requiring that all-terrain vehicles be registered, limiting hours of operation, and mandating that ATV operators undergo safety training.

- Hundreds of students, alumni and friends of the late Voorheesville football coach Tom Buckley attended a pre-game ceremony at which the school's football field was renamed in Buckley's honor. In the game, undefeated Voorheesville and neighboring rival Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk played to a 15-15 tie.

Planners consider compost project

By Dev Tobin

Compost can be more than a pile of leaves and kitchen scraps in the backyard. To New Scotland entrepreneur Scott Schaible, compost is a material much in demand by landscape contractors, golf course superintendents and gardeners. And Schaible intends to meet that demand, while also helping local farmers dispose of manure from their livestock.

Schaible's business, Freedom Organic Soils Inc., was established last year on New Scotland South Road, and he came before the town planning board last week with plans to expand it by adding a 4,000-square-foot pole barn and to buy the land he has been leasing from Chester Boehlke.

"If one can get excited about poop, you're looking at him," Schaible told the board.

He said that there is no shortage of raw material for his compost, and that no neighbors have complained about the smell.

The board scheduled public hearings on Schaible's two special use permit applications for 7 p.m. on Nov. 14.

The board also scheduled a Nov. 14 public hearing on Heldeberg Workshop's plan to build a small pond for fishing and nature study on its Picard Road property.

A BETHLEHEM NETWORKS PROJECT

Volunteering pays off

Summer is often a difficult time for youngsters who have a lot of extra time. For the past three years the Bethlehem Community Partnership has published a Summer Volunteer Opportunities Brochure for students.

The following article was written by Owen Smith, a Bethlehem Middle School student. Owen had a very positive experience working as a volunteer for The Spotlight. Students volunteered at other locations such as Bethlehem Preschool and the Bethlehem Library.

By late June of last summer I was feeling bored of lying around and doing nothing, as many 13-year-olds are. So I decided to set out and find a job. I looked in the Summer Volunteer Opportunities Brochure put out by the Bethlehem Community Partnership, and found many places that sounded like they would be fun. One location was the Spotlight Newspaper. The brochure said that ages 15 and up would be considered for the position. I called the number in the brochure and spoke to Mona Prenoveau, coordinator of the Bethlehem Networks Project. She told me I could call the Spotlight. I spoke to Dick Ahlstrom the publisher of The Spotlight, and he asked me to come in for an interview. He offered me a volunteer position working one day a week.

I worked at the front desk taking phone calls, classified ads, dealing with people who came to the office, working on the computer with subscriptions, and doing any other office work that needed to be done. It worked out so well I ended up volunteering four days a week instead of one.

What I learned this summer was of far more value than money. I learned responsibility, how to deal with the public, and what it is like to have a place to go instead of just doing what I please.

I will continue to work one day a week during the school year and more next summer.

I want to thank Mona Prenoveau for suggesting The Spotlight, Richard Ahlstrom for accepting me, Corrine Blackman for answering my many questions, and the rest of the people who work at The Spotlight who couldn't have been nicer or more helpful.

A volunteer position is something other kids should look into. If you are interested, pick up a copy of the Summer Volunteer Opportunities Brochure next year.

Clyne responded. Clutching a large pile of papers, he said every dime raised for the party since he has been chairman is documented.

"Nearly all of our fund-raising has gone through two different vehicles," Clyne said. "The Committee to Elect Matthew J. Clyne and the '95 Campaign Committee. All the receipts and expenditures of those two committees have been filed with the Albany County Board of Elections, and Brian Murphy is well aware of that."

"The Bethlehem Democratic Committee has raised almost nothing," Clyne said. "We're not sitting on any pile of money. The last check I wrote to the Tri-Village Little League bounced, and I made it up myself. I'm a little bit upset that Brian Murphy is trying to utilize this thing."

"They have a faltering campaign, and this is an indication of how desperate they're getting. He also has a personal stock in this election with two attorneys from his law firm, Bernie Kaplowitz and Don DeAngelis, on the town payroll."

Added Clyne, "With all the contributions (town Republicans) get from the developers in town, I'm sure they are a lot more well-heeled than the Bethlehem Democratic Committee."

Murphy brushed off the criticism and said regardless of how much the Bethlehem Democratic Committee had raised, it was still required to file twice a year with the county Board of Elections.

"Are they saying everybody else has to do it except them? They have a bank account. They have fund-raisers," Murphy said.

"If (Clyne) can't keep the books straight when he is required to account for a few thousand dollars, how can anyone trust him to keep the town books straight when he would be responsible for millions of dollars?" he said. "As everyone knows, the voters in Albany County have seen this act before."

Murphy also criticized Democratic county legislative candidate Bill Burkhardt for failing to file campaign disclosure forms either for his 1994 race for town board or his current campaign to unseat Republican James Ross.

Burkhardt said the expenses incurred by these campaigns are being paid out of his own pocket, except for a printing bill paid for by the Democratic Committee.

"It's my understanding that if you don't raise anything, you don't have to file," Burkhardt said.

Murphy produced documentation showing that Burkhardt was fined twice by the state Board of Election this year for failing to file financial disclosure forms on behalf of county legislator George Kansas, D-Delmar, since he was treasurer of the Kansas campaign.

"The first (judgment) has been paid, and I understand the second judgment was suspended because the forms were submitted and the penalty was waived," Burkhardt said.

'Baby-sitters Club' author to visit area bookstores

By Joshua Kagan

Ann M. Martin, author of The Baby-sitters Club books that have enthralled thousands of young girls, will visit the Capital District this week.

Martin will stop at several local bookstores on her two-year nationwide "Best Friends" book signing tour.

She will be at I Love Books at 380 Delaware Ave. in Delmar on Thursday, Oct. 19, from 6 to 8 p.m. On Friday, Oct. 20, she will visit the Book House of Stuyvesant Plaza in Guilderland from 3 to 5 p.m. and The Bookmark in Newton Plaza on Route 9 in Latham from 7 to 9 p.m.

It has also led to several spin-off book series, videos, games, trading cards and a fan club. The fan club was started in 1988 and now has more than 60,000 members.

"She's got really interesting characters," McCoy said. "They're real people. They do real things, get in and out of trouble. The girls who read her books can relate to them."

A portion of the profit from local sales of Martin's books will be donated to charity. Martin will donate money to the charity of each store's choice. She has asked stores to help the homeless in particular.

The Bookmark will make a contribution to the Marillac Family Shelter at 195

SPOTLIGHT ON Family Entertainment CALENDAR • ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

"We're very excited about it," said Denise McCoy of The Bookmark. "She's certainly a significant figure in children's literature. She has a very wholesome message in her books."

I Love Books Owner Melissa Steen echoes her sentiments. "I can't believe we have someone so important, someone who has sold over 100 million books. That's an incredible number," she said. "This is the biggest author that's been here in a long time."

There are more than 100 books in The Baby-sitters Club and Baby-sitters Club mystery series, which first appeared in 1986. The popularity of the series, which deals with a close-knit group of girls who have had various babysitting adventures, led to a movie produced by Columbia Pictures that was released over the summer.

Washington Ave. Extension, an emergency housing facility, and is encouraging people to bring in books to donate to the shelter as well.

On Saturday, Oct. 21, from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Martin will visit Northshire on Main Street in Manchester Center, Vt., and from 5 to 7 p.m. at Media Play in Schenectady. Her publicity firm has estimated that 400 fans will greet her at each stop.

"They tell us the signings have averaged 400 people, but up to 1,000 have showed up," Steen said.

"She is so well-known that people are really reacting to her," said McCoy. "This is an important visit because a lot of the big authors skip over this area. This will be the biggest name author to visit our store."

Ann M. Martin, author of The Baby-sitters Club books, will be visiting area bookstores, including shops in Colonie and Delmar. On Thursday, Oct. 19, she will be at I Love Books in Delmar and on Friday, Oct. 20, she will visit The Bookmark at Newton Plaza in Latham.

Sondheim's Into The Woods opens at Schenectady Light Opera House

Stephen Sondheim has been known for years as the sophisticated writer of music and lyrics for shows that capture the contemporary relationships of men and women.

When he has strayed from the present day as in A Little Night Music, the sophistication is still present.

While no less clever and witty, Sondheim ventured afield when he wrote Into The Woods, a Tony Award-winning musical which blended fantasy with an ingenious plot.

Not an easy production to do, nevertheless Ted Rucinski of Latham has staged the musical for the Schenectady Light Opera Company's first presentation of the year.

Opening this Friday (October 20) for two weekends, Into The Woods presents Little Red Riding Hood, Cinderella, the Prince, Jack of Beanstalk fame and a host of others in plots that extend the fairy tale most people know.

Sondheim did the "what if?" examination of these fairy tales and goes behind the "happy ever after" endings of most of these stories.

Rucinski has assembled more than a dozen performers to capture the essence of these fairy tale characters which will please children and intrigue adults.

The six performances will include Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. A Thursday performance has been added on October 26. Tickets are $15 (half price for children under 13). Reservations available at 377-5101.

Palace makes push for one-week stand of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol

After two years of struggling to establish a tradition of Dickens' A Christmas Carol in Albany, producers working with the Palace Theater may have found the formula.

SPOTLIGHT

By Martin P. Kelly

They are now promoting sales of tickets by announcing that John Astin will return this year to play Scrooge, a role he created last December with a touch of whimsy and a personal stamp on the part.

Rather than do an extended run like the three weeks of two years ago and the two weeks done last year, the company will appear for seven performances beginning the night before Thanksgiving and concluding the following Sunday.

Then the company will tour to four different cities, hoping to pull audiences who won't get a chance to see A Christmas Carol during the holiday season.

Three years ago, producers attempted to do almost a month in Albany alone and did not do well, playing to half houses on the average.

Last year, the company split four weeks with Philadelphia and again, the show did poorly. Convinced that the idea is sound, this year the show will be given greater exposure.

Albany area actors are being recruited, especially among those actors who worked with the production the two previous years. Ticket information is available at 465-4663.

Proctor's busy these next two weeks with wit and wonder among the shows

The first of the school day programs at Proctor's Theater in Schenectady will be presented Monday, October 23 when Theatreworks USA company brings its production of The Little Prince to the theater for a 10 a.m. performance.

This children's classic has been adapted into a musical tale of the prince who does good works.

Children and adults will also be drawn to the now classic Broadway musical, Fiddler On The Roof, in a new production touring with Theodore Bikel in the leading role. Long identified with the role since he first played it on Broadway as a replacement, Bikel is now the only major star travelling with the musical about the plight of Russian Jews at the turn of the century.

Fiddler On The Roof plays for three performances, Wednesday October 25 at 8 p.m. and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Thursday, October 26.

For the grownups, Mark Russell, the Washington piano-playing satirist, returns to the area to lampoon politicians and celebrities as he has done for the past 30 years. His one-man show will be presented Thursday, November 2, with an 8 p.m. curtain.

On the following day, November 3, a new musical adaptation (not the Disney version) of Beauty and the Beast will be brought into Proctor's for three performances, Friday at 8 p.m., and Saturday, November 4, at 2 and 8 p.m.

Information and reservations on these shows available at 346-6204.

Local dealers got what's hot!

For car dealers and buyers alike, it's like Christmas morning when new models come out. And in 1996, there's something for everyone, whether it's imported or domestic, a truck or even a version of the new BMW convertible.

Keeler excited about new lines

At Keeler Motor Car Co. on Troy-Schenectady Road in Latham, people are buzzing about the new line of Honda Civics, BMWs and Land Rovers.

Land Rover, the English car maker that offers the well-known Range Rover sport utility truck, is coming out with a new version of the Range Rover's sister sport utility, the "Discovery," which was the most popular truck in its class in its first year in 1995, said sales manager Robert Maizner.

With a base price of $30,000, the 1996 Discovery's new features include a more powerful engine, power seats and larger 18-inch wheels for improved on-road use. "You'll get better handling and firmer suspension, that's for sure," Maizner said.

Also at Keeler, if it's a "Beemer" you want, it's a "Beemer" you'll get, including the hot new car, the Z-3 Roadster convertible two-seater, which is listed at $30,000 and is BMW's first true sports car, Maizner said.

And the Z-3 is not made in Germany, but in South Carolina. "People in Germany driving this car will be driving an American-made BMW, which is a little ironic," he said.

And a special treat for BMW fans will debut in January with the new 528, replacing the 525 series and offering a new engine and body, he said.

Honda sales manager George Hooley said the new line of Civics, which were introduced last week, are the first new models in four years. The Civic has been fitted with a new 1.6 liter engine for better performance. The larger wheel base of all Honda models, including the Civic, offers a smoother ride, while Honda's patented four-wheel, double wishbone suspension — a new addition to the Civic — assures better cornering ability, Hooley said.

Also new in Civics, and standard now in all Hondas, are dual airbags and side impact bars.

Hooley said he was particularly excited to see the new HX Honda Civic Coupe, a car which continues the model's gas-frugal ways with 39 mpg in the city and 45 on the highway, Hooley said. "We haven't even seen the car yet, but it looks great from the brochures we have seen."

While the Accord will remain the same, a new line of Honda's top model, the Prelude, will be unveiled in December, Hooley said.

The new Civics are priced at $9,980 up to $16,280, while the Accord will range from $15,100 for the basic four-door sedan, to $22,550 for the four-door EX.

The Accord, which is made in Ohio, was rated by Automotive News earlier this year as the second-largest selling car in the United States, behind the Ford Taurus, Hooley said.

Taurus the rage at Byrne

At Jack Byrne on routes 4 and 32 in Mechanicville, all attention has been focused on the redesigned Taurus, the nation's best-selling car. This year, buyers will have two models to shop from: the GS model with a 16 valve, V-6 or the LX version with a 24-valve overhead cam, said sales manager Jeff Peetz.

"It's totally redesigned from the ground up," Peetz said. Some of the best new features include split-fold rear seats to allow for more trunk space and the instrument panel has been placed in a more "user-friendly" way, he said.

Volvo's side-impact airbags release from the rear of the seat instead of the door. The seat release increases safety.

Jettas, Mazda 626 hot choices

Jettas are once again the hot ticket at Cooley Mazda and Volkswagen in Rensselaer.

Sales manager Jim McDonald said part of the reason may be Volkswagen's 10-year or 100,000-mile limited power train warranty. The new 1996 Jettas, which arrived at the dealer showroom last week, include power locks, power steering, anti-theft security and dual airbags as stan-ard features.

The newly re-styled 626 will likely be the most popular entry in an expanded Mazda model line, said McDonald. The sleek and aerodynamic looks of the 626 carry over to other new models in the Mazda line which include: the gas-frugal Protege, the sporty 626 upgrade called the MX6, the luxury car Millenia and the MPV, a family van. The new line of Mazda trucks have also just arrived, McDonald said.

Marshall's goes 'down under'

At Marshall's Transportation Center on Route 9W in Ravena, sales manager John Sterrett said the unique Outback is a hybrid between the smaller Subaru line and the larger sport vehicles. "It's set to compete with the Jimmys and Broncos, but it's not exactly the same," said Sterrett. "You get the versatility of the sport vehicles, but with better handling and gas mileage."

The base price for the Outback is about $22,000.

Subaru also has several models in the Legacy line, which comes in four-door sedan or sportwagon models. The Legacy L, LS and LSI models come with varying upgrades such as sun roofs and leather interiors.

Subaru's entry level vehicle is the Impreza, which comes in two-door coupe or four-door sedan models as well as a sporty upgrade. The base price is $13,994, Sterrett said.

Each of the Subaru vehicles comes with all-wheel drive, a feature that has long been a popular selling point.

Sterrett said Subaru sells more all-wheel drive vehicles than all other brands combined.

Also new at Marshall's (who also sell Jeep/Eagle, Chrysler and Plymouth products) are the 1996 GMC Trucks. This year, the GMCs have generally been given a sleek appearance, Sterrett said. The new GMC Jimmy is a good example. "It's more aerodynamic, and it's also got more space," he said.

Larger models in the GMC line are the Yukon, which has a larger chassis and larger engine and the Suburban, the largest of the General Motors sport utility vehicles.

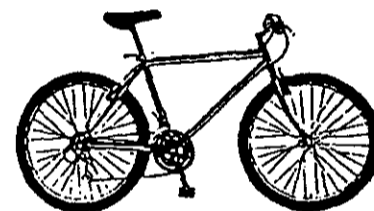

On the truck end in 1996, GMC will continue to offer the Sonoma and Sierra, two top-sellers for the line. Most popular, said Sterrett, are the club coupe models of the Sonoma and Sierra, which include an extended cab as well as a driver's side airbag.

Checking exhaust system is necessary task

Have you checked your exhaust system lately? Manufacturers recommend checking the exhaust system for wear and tear three to four times a year at changes of seasons. As part of the inspection, owners should:

- Look for white, powdery deposits on pipe joints and connections to the manifold. This usually means that a gasket is leaking or that the bolts holding the joint together are loose.
- Starting the engine, then watch and listen to the exhaust-pipe joint. If you see exhaust puffing through the joint or hear a popping sound, the gasket may need replacing or bolts may need tightening.
- Look from beneath the car at every part of the exhaust system for cracks, holes, extreme rusting and general damage.
- Check to see if hanger assemblies are intact. An otherwise intact part can be damaged by a loose connection.

Volvo continues tradition of safety

Long known as the car for the sensible, safety-conscious driver, Volvo upped the ante in 1995 with the addition of side-impact air bags on its Turbo vehicles. This year, the side airbags will be standard throughout the Volvo line, said Nemith sales manager Marty Hebert.

Unlike some other manufacturers, Volvo's side-impact airbags release from the rear of the seat instead of the door. The seat release increases safety, Hebert said, because the driver's seat position does not affect how they will be protected by the airbag.

Also standard on the Volvo line are daytime running lights, another standard feature added last year.

"Volvo has always been known for safety. This is just a continuation of that," Hebert said.

The Volvo line includes the front-wheel drive 850 series in sport sedan and sport wagon models. Manufacturers suggested retail price runs from $26,600 to $38,900.

Experts say brake job should include wheel cylinders

You've just had the rear brakes on your car serviced with new shoes and resurfaced brake drums. Things are going smoothly until, one day, the rear brakes start grabbing, are uneven in their performance or, in the worst case, lock up. The return of your car to the shop reveals the problem: a failed wheel cylinder, which has leaked brake fluid and contaminated your new brake shoes.

The wheel cylinder can be either a one- or two-piston type (see Figure 1), and converts hydraulic pressure into mechanical movement to force the brake shoes against the drum, which in turn causes the car to stop.

The conditions for wheel-cylinder failure often begin when the shoes are replaced, according to instructors with the Wagner Brake Training Center in St. Louis. The pistons of the cylinder, which push away from each other and have pushed apart even further because of thin brake lining, are now pushing under a tighter area because of the new, thicker lining.

The rubber cups of the pistons have begun rubbing over some corrosion that has built up within the cylinder, leading to the cups' breakdown or tears and eventual brake-fluid leaks. The driver realizes something has gone wrong when he experiences uneven braking, grabbing or lock up, as well as a low or "spongy" brake pedal.

If the wheel cylinder is leaking, normally there will be a good chance that the brake shoes are ruined. Brake fluid diminishes the effectiveness of the friction material, and once any of the brake shoes on a vehicle have been covered with brake fluid, the brake shoes should be replaced.

Wheel-cylinder failure has been found to be more prone to occur on smaller cars than mid- to large-size cars because of the rear-brake designs normally used on smaller cars. Wagner Brake engineers explain that brake designs used on smaller cars (and even some half-ton pickup trucks) are predominantly for nonservo-type drum brake systems. Larger vehicles also use wheel cylinders, but they normally have servo-type drum brake systems (see Figure 2) on the rear. Nonservo brake systems produce a smaller amount of braking energy than servo brakes, which isn't bad since the front-wheel brakes perform most of the braking, especially if the vehicle has front-wheel drive.

Car owners need to be aware that definitions of "brake job" vary, add Wagner Brake training instructors. For some technicians, a brake job may involve only replacing the brake pads or brake shoes, while others have a practice of doing a more comprehensive repair, repairing or replacing exactly what's needed. As part of a thorough brake repair, the wheel cylinders from both sides should be removed and carefully inspected for leaks, tears or wear. Even if there are no obvious signs of leaking, inspection might indicate a repair is needed. Wheel cylinders can be rebuilt using a dedicated repair kit or replaced with an aftermarket-designed replacement. Both of these are proven methods for getting the wheel cylinders back to their original operating condition and, in the long run, will help make a better, safer braking system.

The best thing a car owner can do is to discuss with the technician what will be done on the brake system and explain the options involved for the price offered.

Don't 'brake' down this winter

After a summer of heavy driving, it's important to check your brakes and perform the proper maintenance and care, according to car repair experts. Wet roads and fallen leaves that are a part of every autumn can make stopping more difficult at a time when your brakes are most needed: during the "back-to-school" season when there's an influx of school children and vehicles back on the streets.

Expert say drivers should look for these signs to detect wear and tear on their brakes:

- The brake pedal needs to be depressed lower than usual in order to engage;
- The brake pedal requires excessive pressure to halt the vehicle;
- The pedal feels soft or falls away under pressure;
- The car grabs or pulls to one side when the brakes are applied;
- Noises like grinding sounds or squeals occur when brakes are applied.

These problems should be checked out as soon as possible by a qualified mechanic.

To help ensure that a vehicle's brakes are operating at peak condition, experts recommend checking your car's brake fluid. "Brake fluid is one of a car's many fluids that is often overlooked by most drivers, but just as important to the operation of a car as is motor oil," says Dave Shannon, STP product manager.

Poor visibility can cause accidents

Rain, snow, sleet, ice and fog — it's no secret that winter is the most difficult driving time of the year. When it rains, snows or sleets, a driver's visibility can become greatly impaired, and poor visibility is even more of a serious safety hazard on winter's slick and slippery roads.

Whether it's a family vacation, a weekend getaway or just a trip to the grocery store, there are four simple steps to take that can help improve visibility while driving:

- Replace windshield-wiper blades that are cracked or frayed.

- Fill the windshield-wiper fluid reservoir.
- Apply a water repellent to the windshield.
- Coat the interior of the windows with an anti-fog product to prevent fogging up.

Another possible precaution is to apply a thin coating of rain repellent to the windshield every month. Water repellents allow drivers to concentrate on the road, instead of worrying about seeing out of the windshield.

Winter weather can be tough on your car's finish

Snow, rain, ice, road salt and gravel — all can contribute to the deterioration of even today's durable finishes. Yet, there are some simple things you can do to help protect your vehicle's paint this winter and throughout the year.

"Caring for your vehicle's paint is definitely a good investment," says Bill Wicklund of Wicklund's CARSTAR Collision. "A well-maintained finish will be a big plus when you sell or trade in a vehicle. More importantly, the paint is designed to help protect the sheet-metal parts from rusting away, which could result in a safety problem."

According to Wicklund, one of the best ways to protect your vehicle's finish is to park it in a garage, out of the elements, whenever possible. If you do have to park outdoors in the winter, don't use an ice scraper on anything but the windows; you could damage the finish trying to scrape snow or ice off painted surfaces.

If you live in an area that uses road salt to melt ice or snow, Wicklund says it's a good idea to frequently clean and rinse areas of the vehicle where salt might collect. This includes the engine compartment and wheel wells, lower trim pieces, and inside door edges.

Clark Plucinski of BCP Autobody, Col- lege Park, Md., says gravel used to im- prove traction on slippery roads also can damage a vehicle's finish.

"You should slow down, not only to avoid losing control of your vehicle, but also to reduce the amount of gravel you're kicking up onto your vehicle and the ve- hicles behind you," Plucinski recom- mended. "Stay far enough back from the vehicle in front of you that you're not driving into a spray of gravel."

Plucinski said road gravel and grime should be rinsed from the vehicle as often as possible.

Other ways to protect your vehicle's finish throughout the year include:

- Avoid parking in direct sunlight, particularly in the summer. Parking in a garage or shady area is almost always better, but also try to avoid parking under trees that may drip sap onto your vehicle.
- Remove any tree sap, bird droppings, gasoline or other harsh materials from your vehicle's finish as quickly as pos- sible.

- Wash the vehicle when it is cool and parked out of direct sunlight. Wet it down thoroughly, then wash using warm water, a clean, soft wash mitt or sponge, and a car-wash soap. Never wash any panel unless it is thoroughly wet. Start with the roof and work your way down and around, rinsing each section as you finish. To rinse, take the nozzle off the hose and just let the water flow freely over the entire car. Dry it with a clean chamois or soft towel.

- Wax your vehicle at least twice a year. Wax only when the vehicle is clean and cool. Keeping it in an enclosed area will help prevent dirt and dust from blowing onto the finish while waxing. Use a high-quality car wax, apply it with a wax applica- tor, and remove it with a clean, soft cloth.

If part of your vehicle needs repainting because of vandalism or an accident, choose a repair business carefully. Poor paintwork may not affect the safety of your vehicle, but it is likely to have a big impact on its resale value.

Proper car care enhances value

In today's uncertain economy, it's important to protect all of your investments, including your vehicle — car, truck or van. According to Stu Mandel, president of the International Carwash Association, it's especially important to care for your vehicle during the fall and winter.

"In addition to preserving its long-term value, it will help you to keep your vehicle looking new for a longer period of time," Mandel said.

Mandel also answered the following questions about car finish care.

Q: Isn't rain a natural, cost-effective car wash?

A: No. Rain and snow contain acid that eats away at the paint and finish of vehicles. After acid rain falls on a car, the water evaporates, but the acid remains. Concentrated by sunlight, this acid can become so strong that it will eat through the finish, ruining the vehicle's paint and appearance.

Q: If my car has a high-gloss "clear-coat" finish, do I still need to wax it?

A: Yes. Most new cars have a high-gloss clear-coat finish that is easily damaged from acid rain. The sun's ultraviolet (UV) rays, salt, and road wear and tear also damage cars. Wax is an effective and efficient way to shine and protect a car's finish.

Q: Aren't hand washings safer for my car and the environment?

A: No. Dirt that collects in wash water, sponges and chamois will scratch the paint. Hand washings use nearly twice the amount of water as compared to professional car washes. Cleaning solutions used by professional washes are biodegradable and safe for the environment. High-pressure water at self-serve and professional washes cleans cars better and faster.

AAA recommends car checkup before cold weather begins

It's 7 a.m., and the driveway is a sheet of ice. Sound familiar? For motorists who drive to work, Mother Nature can create major problems for the morning commute. And for these motorists, time is very short. Not only is breakfast out of the question, but clearing the ice from the driveway becomes the most important chore of the morning.

But getting out of the driveway is only half the battle. Before driving in winter conditions like wet, cold and icy weather, the American Automobile Association suggests motorists check, or have a mechanic check, the following items:

- Recharge or replace weak batteries. If appropriate, check the fluid levels, and make certain the battery posts and cable clamps are clean and tight.
- Check the headlights, parking lights, directional signals (front and rear), taillights and brake lights for proper operation.
- A fall tuneup can alert motorists to damaged ignition wires, a cracked distributor cap or worn spark plugs, each of which can make ignition difficult or cause sudden breakdowns.
- To avoid skids on slippery surfaces, brakes should be checked regularly and, if needed, properly adjusted to ensure equal braking.
- Tires are the only contact the automobile has with the roadway, so make sure each tire is properly inflated and in good condition.
- Check the radiator and hoses for leaks and cracks. If needed, fill the radiator with a high-quality antifreeze like Prestone.
- Windshield wipers should be checked regularly for operation and the windshield-wiper reservoir kept filled.

Experts offer five tips for wiper care safety

A clean windshield is a safety feature you can't drive without. Rain and snow are not the only hazards that can cloud your ability to clearly see the road. Mist, mud, salt, road grime, heat, smog, insects and even bird droppings can challenge the performance of your windshield wipers.

No matter what climate you live in, when it's your windshield against the elements, you want dependable wiper blades. It's easy to tell when you need to refill the windshield washer fluid, but have you checked the condition of your wiper blades lately? Why wait until it's drizzling and your wipers only smear dirt on the windshield to inspect the blades?

Windshield wiper manufacturers recommend the following care tips.

- Check the condition of your windshield wiper blades at least once a month when performing routine car maintenance or cleaning. Don't wait until you're driving in hazardous weather.

- Clean the wiper blades with a damp rag when cleaning the windshield. Wipe free of dirt, grime and bugs.
- Wiper blades should be firm and smooth from end to end, not "dried out."

Put used motor oil in its proper place

More than half of all motorists change their own oil, and according to the U.S. EPA, these "do-it-yourselfers" generate more than 200 million gallons of used motor oil annually.

Unfortunately, EPA estimates that only about one-third of this oil is properly collected and recycled. Instead, many DIYers simply dump this valuable resource in their backyards or into the sewer drain. As you might guess, this practice is damaging to ground water, streams and rivers.

For example, it only takes one quart of used motor oil to foul 250,000 gallons of

Prepare now for winter driving

The benefits of getting your vehicle ready for cold weather are twofold: increased peace of mind and increased vehicle life. Indeed, one survey of ASE-certified Master Auto Technicians indicates that consumers could extend the life of their vehicle by 50 percent or more through regular maintenance.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), the non-profit organization that administers national certification tests to automotive technicians, offers the following tips to help motorists get ready for winter. Some of the tips are easy; others require a professional technician.

- The basics — Begin by reading the owner's manual and becoming familiar with the various components and systems. Follow the recommended service schedules.
- Housekeeping — Wash and wax your vehicle to protect its finish. Inspect lights and bulbs. Replace worn wiper blades, and keep plenty of washer fluid on hand. Carry emergency gear — a shovel, a blanket, etc.
- Battery — The only accurate way to detect a weak battery is with the professional equipment available at a good repair shop. However, do-it-yourselfers can handle routine care: scraping away corrosion from posts and cable connections, cleaning all surfaces, and retightening connections. Be sure to wear eye protection and gloves.

- Engine oil — The oil and filter should be changed as specified in your manual.
- Cooling system — The cooling system should be flushed and refilled about every two years. The level, condition and concentration of the antifreeze should be checked periodically. The tightness and condition of drive belts, clamps and hoses should be checked by a pro. Let the engine cool off before working on the radiator.
- Engine performance — Problems with rough idling, hard starts, stalling or diminished power should be corrected before cold weather sets in. Describe any changes in performance to a qualified technician. The air, fuel and PCV filters should be replaced as specified.
- Heater/defroster — To ensure comfort and safety, the heater and defroster must be in good working condition.
- Tires — Rotate tires about every 5,000 miles. The air pressure should be checked once a month; let the tires "cool down" first. Examine tires for cuts and nicks, uneven wearing, and cupping. Check the spare, too. Note that some of today's body styles and tire packages are not compatible with tire chains.

• Brakes — Brakes should be inspected as recommended in your manual or soon if you notice pulsations, grabbing, noise or longer stopping distances.

• Finding good auto service — Ask friends and associates for recommendations. Contact local consumer organization regarding reputation, complaints, etc.

Look for orderly conditions, modern equipment, customer-service awards and an attentive staff. Policies regarding diagnostic fees, labor rates and guarantees should be posted.

Don't let sidewall information leave you 'tired' out

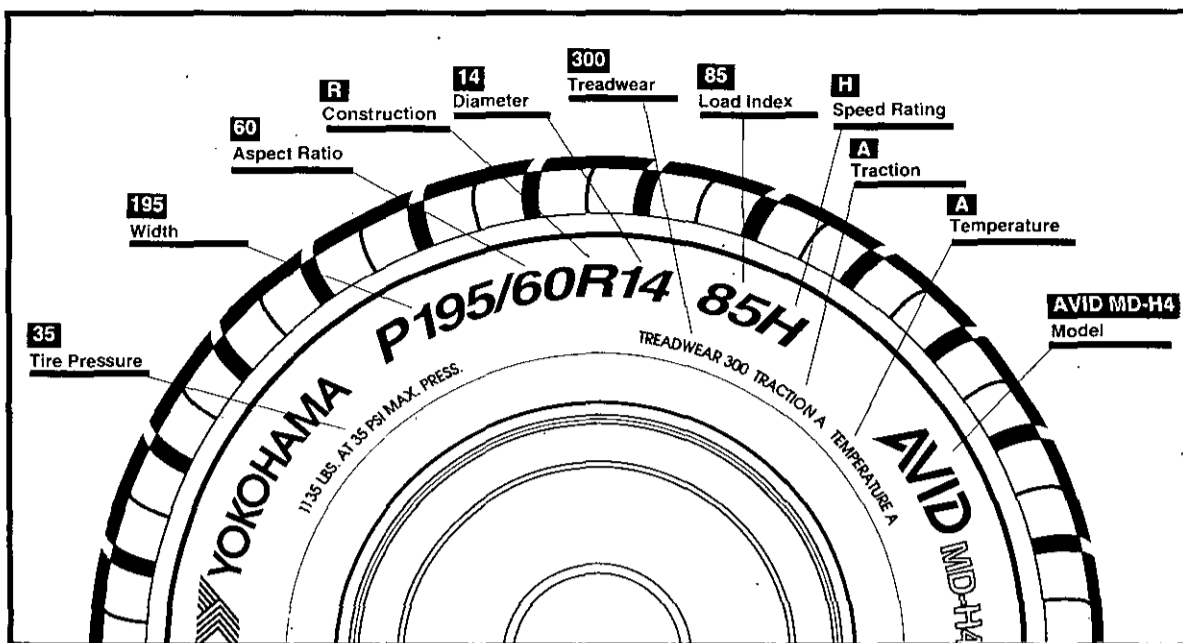

When purchasing new tires for your vehicle, it is important to select the right tires to meet your specific needs. By understanding different tire characteristics that can affect your vehicle's performance you can make a more informed tire-purchase decision. Although there are no tire encyclopedias, most of the information you need can be found right on the sidewall of the tire.

"The items contained on the sidewall provide valuable information that can be utilized for maintenance purposes and when purchasing tires," said Rick Brennan, marketing manager of consumer products for Yokohama Tire Corp. of Fullerton, Calif. "It's also important to learn what the other designations represent in order to understand the performance characteristics of the tire."

To better understand what each component means, here is a breakdown of each piece of information.

1135 LBS. AT 35 PSI MAX. PRESS. — This refers to the maximum pressure the tire is to be inflated. It is usually in small print and situated close to the rim. Tire pressure is measured in PSI, or pounds per square inch.

P195/60R14 — This is the size of the tire indicating the width, aspect ratio, construction type and diameter of the tire.

The "P" simply shows this is a passenger-car tire. The 195 is the width of the tire in millimeters. The 60 refers to the tire's aspect ratio, which is how tall the tire is compared to its width. For example, an aspect ratio of 60 is 60 percent as tall as it is wide. Generally, the lower the number, the better the handling characteristic, but the ride will be more harsh. "R" pertains to the tire's radial construction, and 14 is the tire's diameter in inches.

85H — This indicates the tire's load index and speed rating. The load index corresponds to the 85, which indicates the load-carrying capacity of 1,135 lbs. per tire at the tire's maximum speed. The speed rating defines the maximum sustainable speed at which the tire is certified to operate under ideal conditions. Speed ratings are given letter values that range from 112 mph for an S rating to above 186 mph for Z, based on the performance capabilities of the tire. In this example, an H rating indicates that the tire is capable of sustaining speeds up to 130 mph.

TREADWEAR 300 TRACTION A TEM-

PERATURE A — These markings provide comparative manufacturer information on the tire's treadwear and temperature ratings based on government-mandated tests.

A 300 treadwear rating means that the tire's estimated tread life is three times greater than a government-standard 100-rated tire.

Traction ratings pertain to the tire's ability to stop on wet test surfaces of asphalt and concrete under controlled conditions. The temperature grade of a tire refers to how well the tire can withstand heat buildup.

AVID MD-H4 — This refers to the tire's brand name.

Yokohama also recommends the following list of "tire check-outs," to be performed on a regular basis.

- Conduct visual inspections once a month to ensure that tires don't have cracks, punctures or other problems.
- Check each tire's inflation pressure every three to four weeks to ensure they are inflated to their maximum pressure. Check more frequently in cold weather, as air molecules shrink as they get colder; this affects the pressure inside the tire.
- Balance and align your tires once a year. Unbalanced tires can produce a vibrating steering wheel; this can lead to uneven tire wear and suspension damage.
