Even newspaper carriers fall prey to downsizing

By Dev Tobin

The advice of colonial newspaperman Benjamin Franklin that the early bird gets the worm has inspired hundreds of local kids in their first job — delivering papers for the morning Times Union.

Newspaper routes offer boys and girls as young as 11 a chance to earn some money while managing a small business right in their neighborhood.

Besides the money, parents, as well as current and former carriers, cite the job's character-building qualities, such as diligence, reliability and learning how to deal with people.

As late as April 1995, a Times Union circulation manager, in a story about an exemplary youth carrier who won a trip to England, called the paper's carrier force "the backbone of our business — without carriers, we wouldn't need reporters, mailers or anyone else."

But the cold hand of corporate downsizing has changed the newspaper delivery business at the Times Union. The profitable paper is in the process of ending its policy of dropping off papers at the carrier's home, instead requiring carriers to pick up papers at a central location.

Carriers in Bethlehem have been notified that they will have to pick up their papers at a depot on Route 9W in Glenmont beginning this month.

Loomis: Teacher's injury not due to student fight

By Dev Tobin

To say that Bethlehem Central Superintendent Leslie Loomis was surprised by Monday's front-page story in the Times Union is like saying we had a little snow last week.

The story about a teacher who was injured while breaking up a fight between two high school students angered Loomis, since he thought he was being interviewed for a "regional article on the issue of student behavior" and because, according to BC records, there was no fight.

"I was misled badly and don't appreciate it," Loomis said, calling the story "highly inaccurate."

According to the newspaper story, business teacher Gail Shaw suffered a "smashed wrist after trying to break up a fight between two students" on Sept. 28.

Loomis said that, according to district records, Shaw "intervened in a verbal argument between two students, and helped keep it from becoming a fight... and twisted her wrist while restraining one of the students."

Loomis added, "There was no fight,"

Conrail explosion rocks Selkirk home

By Mel Hyman

It was "exactly a quarter to 12 and I was watching TV," when it seemed like "the house jumped off its foundation and came back down again," recalled Ron Johnson of Old Ravena Road in Selkirk.

When the dust settled, Johnson said his wife thought it might have been an "earth tremor." As it turned out, it was a tank car filled with 31,500 gallons of liquid propane that exploded at Conrail's Selkirk rail yard a mile or so away.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board have determined during a preliminary investigation that the explosion might have resulted from a

Board freezes spending

High claim losses pose threat to district

By Dev Tobin

For the past three years, the Bethlehem Central School District has been able to save on the cost of its Blue Cross/Blue Shield health insurance coverage through a kind of self-insurance — paying claims plus an administrative cost instead of paying premiums.

As long as BC's insured have been relatively healthy, the district saves money. But self-insurance is risky, and several large claims can throw a fiscal monkey wrench into the district's budget.

There is no good time for this to happen, and now is no exception, according to Superintendent Leslie Loomis, who requested and received school board approval for an immediate spending freeze through the end of the school year at last week's meeting.

The problem is "unforeseen, unexpected, unusually high claims losses" that exceed what was budgeted for Blue Cross/Blue Shield this year by $279,000, according to Franz Zwicklbauer, assistant superintendent for business.

Combined with an estimated loss of $80,000 due to reduced assessments for several commercial properties, the district is facing a $20,000 deficit this year, instead of the estimated $80,000 surplus that would have been rolled over into next

St. Thomas suffering growing pains

By Mel Hyman

The St. Thomas Parish School in Delmar was built in 1956 and except for a new boiler, a new roof and new windows, it hasn't changed much.

And neither has St. Thomas Church, which was finished in 1962. So to deal with the needs and demands of an educational facility and a parish operating in the 1990s, church officials are planning a major expansion.

But before the school and the parish can join the '90s, zoning variances will be needed from the Bethlehem Zoning Board of Appeals.

A recent public hearing on the proposed expansion of the parish and the school drew a large crowd to Bethlehem town hall. A handful of residents from central Delmar expressed reservations about the size of the project, its impact on parking and the loss of green space in the Kenwood Avenue/Adams Place vicinity.

The blueprint before the ZBA calls for a 7,863-square-foot addition to the school, which would bring the facility up to 28,951 square feet.

The school expansion would entail additional classrooms, a new space for the parish's after-school religious education program and an addition to the north side of the gymnasium to accommodate a cafeteria, kitchen and storage room for tables and chairs.

The most pressing need of the school right now is the cafeteria, according to John Pellettier, chairman of the parish building committee. Currently, children eat their lunches on the auditorium stage, three feet above the auditorium floor.

"It's a safety issue," Pellettier

said. "We've had several instances in which minor injuries were sustained from kids falling off."

The cafeteria could also be used for senior citizen luncheons and parish youth group meetings.

"We need the two extra classrooms so that we can create a separate computer lab," Pellettier said. "We're trying to bring our technology into the '90s, so that we can be competitive with other schools."

There are about 250 pupils in St. Thomas School, from pre-K through eighth grade.

There are about 1,100 children in the after-school religious education program, which meets on Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays, Pellettier said. "Some of these classes are forced to be held in the homes of teachers" because of insufficient classroom space.

According to neighborhood spokesman Doug Zeno, parking has been an issue for many years, with some residents upset with vehicles parking on the sidewalks and lawns. "Kenwood and Adams are narrow streets to begin with," he said. "It gets real tight on weekends sometimes. People weren't saying anything before because they didn't want to cause problems. But now with this $3-million-plus expansion, we feel they should be addressed."

The expansion of the school, Zeno said, would bring it to 10 percent above the lot occupancy allowed for the zone. "They're also asking for setback variances. We're concerned that the area will look just like downtown (Delaware Avenue) where the buildings keep getting closer to the street."

While there have been two meetings between neighbors and parish officials on the project, several of the concerns remain unresolved, Zeno added. "We're not convinced they have been willing to dialogue in good faith. It's not a question of us against them. A lot of people in the neighborhood attend the church. We just want to get together with them, and make it nice for everybody."

"We met with the Central Delmar Neighborhood Association on two different occasions and incorporated some of their suggestions into the revised drawings we submitted to the town," Pellettier responded. "We retained more green space and added landscaping."

The ZBA will need to resolve the parking problem, Pellettier said. Right now the parish is about four spaces short of what is required by the zoning code.

The other variance concerns the zoning code provision that allows no more than 20 percent of a parcel to be built upon.

For the parish, the main component of the expansion concerns the need for a new chapel, according to the Rev. James D. Daley, pastor of St. Thomas. The current chapel seats only 40 to 45 worshippers and sometimes, especially during the Lenten season, more than 100 people attend the daily Masses at 7 a.m. and 12:15 p.m.

A new chapel would also provide a place for small funerals and weddings, instead of having to use the main sanctuary all the time, which is expensive to heat during the winter, and can often feel lonely and barren when there are only a handful of people attending a service, Father Daley said.

About half of the funerals at St. Thomas involve fewer than 30 people, and it's not a warm feeling to be walking past all those empty aisles to reach the casket, Rev. Daley explained. The main sanctuary seats about 800 people.

"We also want to build a gathering area between the church and the rectory," Pellettier said, where worshippers could meet before and after the service to share liturgy and socialize. It could also serve as a social hall for small receptions, particularly after a funeral.

"We need the gathering space," Father Daley added, "especially when it's too cold to stand outside. Part of our reason for being here is to build community, and you can't build community if you can't get people together."

There are plans to upgrade the rectory as well by adding office space. "Father Daley doesn't even have his own office for meetings or consultations," Pellettier noted. "He has to use a corner of the main office."

Pellettier said that at the neighbors' request, "We will be meeting with some of the neighbors who have property adjacent to the school about some fencing issues, possibly this week."

The channels of communication have always been open, he said, and "will remain open."

DA to review Slingerlands burglary case

The cases of two Bethlehem men arrested in connection with last week's break-in at the Bethlehem Terrace Apartments clubhouse have been referred to the felony unit of the Albany County District Attorney's office for review.

While District Attorney Sol Greenberg decides how to handle the cases, defendant Christopher Arnold, 21, of 13 Bedell Ave., Delmar, remains in the Albany County jail for violation of parole. Arnold was released from state prison last July after serving two and a half years for vehicular manslaughter.

Defendant Mark Herzog, 21, of Bethlehem Terrace Apartments in North Bethlehem is free on $7,500 bail, according to Assistant District Attorney Richard Hartunian.

The case of the third suspect, a 16-year-old minor, will be handled by Albany County Family Court.

All three defendants have been charged with felony counts of second-degree burglary and third-degree criminal mischief after allegedly stealing stereo and phone equipment from the clubhouse and then trashing the premises on a return visit.

BC 1996-97 budget adds middle school teachers

By Dev Tobin

Facing growing enrollment and uncertain revenues, the Bethlehem Central school board tentatively decided last week to add a half-team of 3.2 full-time-equivalent teachers to the middle school next year.

Superintendent Leslie Loomis noted that even with the additional staff, the average class size in the middle school is projected to rise from 23.6 to 23.9 next year, as the school gains an estimated 62 pupils.

Citing uncertain state aid and a looming deficit, the board decided not to add another half-team by a 4-2 vote.

At the elementary level, the average class size will drop from 23.5 to 23.2, Loomis reported, and he recommended transferring one teacher from Glenmont to Hamagrael and another from Glenmont to Elmsmere.

"I feel these are the best elementary numbers since I've been here," Loomis said, noting that the range of average class sizes among the district's five elementary schools (22.9 to 23.4) is the narrowest in his experience.

"Every school will have better class sizes than this year," he said.

For the first time next year, the district will have an "integrated primary class" of first-, second- and third-graders at Glenmont.

"This model is widely supported in the research," Loomis said.

Continuing its 1996-97 budget deliberations, the board will consider high school instructional staffing and programs, equipment and revenue tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the district office at 90 Adams Place.

The board will consider other aspects of the budget according to the following schedule:

- March 20 at 8 p.m. — Report on health insurance claims losses, and discussion and review of decisions made at prior sessions.
- March 27 at 7 p.m. — Final decisions and budget adoption.
- April 17 at 8 p.m. — Budget public hearing.

The public vote on the budget will be May 8.

All meetings are tentatively scheduled to be held in the district office, while the public hearing has traditionally been held in the middle school auditorium.

Also, nominating petitions for school board candidates are available at the district office. Three board seats are up for election this year, those currently held by Happy Scherer and Pamela Williams and recently vacated by Peter Trent.

Petitions must contain at least 90 signatures of district residents, and must be filed in the district office by 4:30 p.m. on April 8.

North Road pollution victims told they'll lose bottled water

By Dev Tobin

Trust of government officials is evidently in as short supply as the remnants of an underground gasoline products spill in the North Road area of Clarksville.

Monday night in New Scotland town hall, representatives of the state departments of health and environmental conservation presented the case for discontinuing state-funded supply of bottled water to residents of the affected area.

According to well sampling conducted in late February, none of the residential wells have detectable levels of acetone, and only two wells have detectable levels of methyl tert butyl ether (MTBE), a gasoline byproduct.

The MTBE levels are well below the state drinking water standard of 50 parts per billion (ppb). When the sampling was done last June, levels of MTBE were as high as 15,000 ppb, and acetone levels were as high as 3,100 ppb.

The state officials' contention that carbon filters could handle the small amount of pollution remaining, so bottled water was no longer necessary, was met with anger.

"You want the residents to trust you, and we don't," said John Kimmey, who first noticed the spill in late May. "We will never drink this water again under any circumstances."

"It makes us uneasy that you really don't know what's going on and want to take our bottled water away," said Kathryn O'Rourke.

"Removing the bottled water is an unnecessary risk with the dry season still to come," said Veronica Sturn.

Residents were also angered by the possibility that Kleen Resources, the former North Road hazardous waste cleanup firm that is the probable source of the spill, may receive a state contract to help in future remediation of the spill.

"Take the message back — we don't want them in our homes monitoring this," said Scott Andrews. "They should pay you" for the remediation work.

EnCon official Mark Domagala noted, for the first time, that the MTBE/acetone spill was a separate event from a 1988 spill on the same property by Domermuth Environmental Services.

"They are definitely two separate spills, based on chemical variations," said Domagala, noting that neither the 1988 spill nor the 1995 spill were reported, as required by law.

State Michael Hoblock, R-Colonie, said he will follow up with the attorney general's office on the enforcement proceeding against Kleen Resources and the Domermuth firm, which still owns the land.

Allan Geisendorfer of EnCon estimated that the state has spent in excess of $270,000 so far on the 1995 spill. He added that the state is unlikely to provide any funding for an extension of the Clarksville Water District to the affected area if the pollution levels continue to be below state drinking water standards.

New Knuffels wins planners' approval

By Mel Hyman

It's been a lengthy and somewhat arduous process, but Dr. Anthony Signorelli finally received site plan approval for a new day care center for 45 to 70 children on Delaware Avenue just past Bethlehem Central High School.

The planning board last week gave Signorelli the go-ahead to construct a two-story day care center/office building.

Before the new building can go up, however, the former Uncle Albert's restaurant and bar at 808 Delaware Ave. will need to be razed.

Signorelli hopes to begin construction in July "at the latest" and, counting on two to three months construction time, the new day care center would be open in early fall.

While he's glad to finally have planning board approval, he said he's little miffed that it took so long.

"They've been making a big deal about all these minor things the past several months," he said.

Issues kept coming up such as placement of the dumpster, lighting, colors and whether there will be stone or brick on the outside.

"I can't figure them out," Signorelli said. "They come out with guns blazing about certain things like what shade of tan we're using on the siding, then they turn around and drop it. So who knows. I'm just glad we're done with site plan approval. I'm ecstatic over what it will be like over there."

Planning board chairman Doug Hasbrouck said while certain aesthetic questions came up during the review of Knuffels, the primary board concerns related to parking and the turnaround radius that buses would have pulling in and out of the driveway.

This is not the first time developers have expressed concerns with delays due to the board's review practices, according to Supervisor Sheila Fuller.

But people need to understand that "it's normally a two-way street. No one's perfect," Fuller said. "People are quick to say that the planning board has been holding things up, but we need to look at the big picture here, and the need for the applicant to respond appropriately to the concerns brought to the board's attention."

In business since 1947, the new Knuffels will for the first time in a while have plenty of space, Signorelli said. Currently located at 159 Delaware Ave. behind the state Dormitory Authority offices, the center is limited right in what it can offer its children, who range from infants through fifth-graders.

The new facility will have an expanded playground (about 10 times the current area), additional recreational and educational space, plus an infants' room for newborns.

A total of 33 parking spaces are planned on the one-acre site. Signorelli, a pediatrician by profession, has operated Knuffels since 1987.

He said his traveling day camp, which has grown in popularity over the past few years, would continue to operate this summer while the new center is being constructed.

Town board sets hearing on changes to peddling law

A public hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight (Wednesday) to discuss proposed changes to the town's peddling and soliciting ordinance.

The town board is looking into ways to upgrade the ordinance and provide better protection for residents from unscrupulous or unlicensed solicitors. The ordinance was last revised in 1964.

Also on this week's board agenda is a public hearing at 7:45 p.m. on designating Jefferson Road and Manor Drive in Glenmont as through streets with stop signs erected on:

- Penn Lane for traffic from both directions.
- William Paca Court for traffic entering from the east.
- The north end of Hancock Drive for traffic entering from both directions.
- Manor Drive for traffic entering from the east.
- Patriot Drive for traffic entering from the west.
- The south end of Hancock Drive for traffic entering from the east.

The town's traffic safety committee is proposing the changes as a way of better controlling the traffic going to and from Bicentennial Woods and Feura Bush Road.

A third public hearing scheduled for 8 p.m. would create a yield intersection at Kenwood Avenue and County Route 31 in Glenmont.

Other agenda items tonight include:

- A request from town Building Inspector John Flanigan pertaining to the accumulation of sick leave.
- Recommendation from Parks and Recreation Commissioner Dave Austin to authorize signing an agreement with the Helderberg Workshop.

V'ville board agrees to fund improvements

By Dev Tobin

The village of Voorheesville will begin funding improvements to the storm sewers in Salem Hills this year, according to its preliminary 1996-97 budget.

"We're trying to right an old wrong," said Trustee Susan Rockmore, the village's budget officer.

At last week's budget workshop, Rockmore said that the sewer work was the major expenditure change proposed in next year's budget.

There's no federal or state money available for these projects, so we're on our own.

Susan Rockmore

She recommended that the village set aside $80,000 for the work next year, and whatever is necessary to complete the job in the following year.

"There's no federal or state money available for these projects, so we're on our own," Rockmore said. "I believe we can do it in the next two budgets without borrowing."

This year's appropriation will fund engineering work for the storm sewer extensions, and, if all goes well, the start of construction in the fall, Rockmore said.

Controlling "infiltration/inflow," primarily from stormwater and sump pumps, into the Salem Hills sewer system is a key first step before necessary renovations to the 30-year-old system can begin.

Improvements to storm sewers, like roads and bridges, are funded through the village's general budget, while specific improvements to the sewer system would be funded through the sewer district budget.

The village appropriated $1.2 million for its general fund in the current fiscal year, and the local tax rate went down about 19 percent, due mostly to continued strong sales tax revenues.

Rockmore said that the proposed total appropriations for 1996-97 will be ready in about a week.

"The sales tax still looks fine, but I wonder how long it will last," Rockmore said.

The extra 1 percent on the sales tax is probably permanent, Rockmore said, but she worries that the county may change the tax's distribution formula to the detriment of localities or that overall sales tax revenue may decline due to the economic situation in the Capital District.

As with the storm sewer project, the village has tended to use some of the extra revenue for infrastructure needs or for tax reduction, rather than for programs with employees, Rockmore explained.

"If it goes away, we haven't built up all kinds of programs that we can't fund anymore," she noted.

Another budget workshop may be necessary this month, Rockmore said, and the tentative budget should be ready by the board's regular meeting on March 26.

The board will schedule a formal public hearing on the budget in April, and the budget will be adopted at the board's regular meeting on April 23.

Making Teeth Look Good Again

Perhaps some years ago you had your dentist perform some gold bridgework but the white facing of the crowns have discolored. Maybe there are areas along the gum line where the gold margins are visible. When you look into your mouth, it makes you uncomfortable because your teeth don't look as good as they could, especially when you smile.

Perhaps you have some old fillings that have become tarnished, and this makes you self-conscious, too. The fillings have protected your teeth from decay, and still do; and the bridge-work has done its job in taking the place of missing teeth. But you want your teeth to also look as attractive as possible. You don't want other people to be reminded of the restorative work done on your teeth every time you open your mouth.

If you want your mouth to look as natural as possible, ask your dentist what he/she can do about it. With today's cosmetic dental techniques, such as capping with porcelain, defects can be treated to make your teeth look good again.

Man charged with arson for torching pickup truck

A New Scotland man has been charged with arson for allegedly setting his pickup truck on fire and then trying to collect the insurance money.

William C. Vanhoesen, 21, of Terrytown Road, was arrested this week by members of the Albany County Sheriff's Department Criminal Investigation Unit and charged with third-degree arson, second-degree criminal mischief, insurance fraud and conspiracy.

He allegedly poured five gallons of gasoline over his pickup truck, and set the vehicle on fire in an attempt to collect the insurance money on the vehicle, according to senior investigator Craig D. Apple.

Vanhoesen reportedly owed $17,500 on the vehicle, and was having money problems, police said.

The pickup truck was found destroyed in the New Scotland landfill on Flatrock Road on Monday, Feb. 26. Vanhoesen reported the truck stolen to sheriff's deputies the same day, police said, and in the days to follow he contacted his insurance company in an attempt to collect the $17,500.

Also arrested in connection with the incident was Thomas Meyer, 21, of 203 Delaware Turnpike, New Scotland. He was charged with fourth-degree conspiracy for assisting Vanhoesen prior to the fire.

Both suspects were arraigned before New Scotland Town Justice Kenneth Connolly. Vanhoesen was sent to the Albany County jail with no bail, and Meyer was released on his own recognizance.

Local voters contribute to Dole romp in New York

U.S. Sen. Bob Dole's smashing victory in the New York Republican presidential primary was reflected in poll results from Bethlehem and New Scotland.

Locally, as elsewhere in the state and the country, Dole enjoyed near-unanimous support from the GOP establishment, which delivered the votes to back up its endorsement.

The actual votes for three delegates and three alternates to the Republican convention in San Diego varied. What follows are averages of the votes received by each of the candidates' six delegates and alternates.

In Bethlehem, Dole delegates averaged 804 votes, while Forbes delegates averaged 379 votes and Buchanan delegates trailed with an average of 194 votes.

In New Scotland, Dole delegates averaged 117 votes, Forbes' slate was second with an average of 85 votes, and Buchanan delegates again were third with an average of 31 votes.

Penance service set at St. James Church

The penance service is part of a retreat organized by St. James Church centering on the theme "The Lenten Gospels" from March 25 to 28.

Participants have their choice of attending either a morning session at 11 a.m. or an evening session at 7 p.m.

Drama club's the thing for supporters

By Susan Graves

Jill Rifkin and Wendy Lefkovich, co-presidents of the Bethlehem Theatre Support Group, are on a mission from Dionysis. Although they are both busy at work on BC's upcoming production of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream, they are also looking forward to establishing a drama club at the school to provide an opportunity for more students, who want to be involved in theater to get involved.

"We have been very much concerned that dozens and dozens (of students) try out, but only about half get in," said Rifkin.

She and Lefkovich said they both have children come home disappointed, and they'd like to ease that blow for upcoming thespians at BC.

At it currently stands, there are only two productions a year at the high school and one, a musical, at the middle school.

"We'd like to create an opportunity so more kids can get involved," Lefkovich said.

The drama group is hoping to realize that goal by renovating one room at the high school — which would continue to be used as a regular classroom — for club meetings and performances, such as staged readings and one-act plays.

Rifkin said the group is hoping to raise about $5,000 for lighting and sound equipment and "possibly a small platform for a stage."

In BC's "Midsummer Night's" playbill, the group will begin its fund-raising effort.

Lefkovich and Rifkin said about 90 students have already expressed an interest in the new club, and that BC Principal Jon Hunter has been very supportive of their efforts thus far.

The theater group will also launch a letter-writing campaign to area parents, businesses and the corporate sector. "We're going to be reaching out," Lefkovich said.

Rifkin likened the need to another aspect of school life — sports. "If a kid doesn't make varsity, there's an opportunity to do JV or modified sports," and that opportunity should be available to students who want to participate in some aspect of theater. "We cognizant of the fact that 48 groups are competing for time and school resources. ... But this stuff is crucial," she said.

The room, Rifkin said "is desperately needed, we want to make dreams come true."

Give V'ville pensions

Voorheesville firefighters deserve a pension plan like those adopted by most of the surrounding towns in our area.

Editorials

The volunteers provide a round-the-clock, sometimes life-saving service to the community. And in addition to their hours spent actually fighting fires, they also participate in rigorous training programs.

The firefighters' argument that the plan is essential to attracting new members is valid. Numbers of new volunteers have dwindled in the past several years, and a fire company can not function effectively without sufficient numbers of men and women in its ranks.

Further, the pension plan is not just a giveaway — the volunteers must earn it through participation at fires and drills, meetings and other department events.

Although the initial cost of the program seems high — a 39 percent increase in the village property tax rate — the actual 48 cents per thousand of assessed valuation for taxpayers is a negligible price for the return they receive.

We hope Voorheesville taxpayers agree, and will vote to accept the plan on April 16.

Board acts wisely

The Bethlehem town board acted prudently in rejecting New Options on Waste's application for 11 variances to the town's solid waste ordinance. Bending the existing law for one company could pave the way for others to try to do the same.

The company's proposed site in the Port of Albany is also troubling, as several town board members have pointed out. This year's flooding underscores the board's concern about the flood plain and potential devastation to the Hudson River.

NOW's plan was fraught with too many potential environmental time bombs, not the least of which, was accepting municipal garbage at the site. As Councilman George Lenhardt said, "The disadvantages far outweigh the advantages."

Councilman Ted Putney is right by suggesting a middle ground. We hope New Options will develop a proposal that will be more palatable to the town and to the environment.

The company should take care to dot its environmental i's and cross its t's before returning to the board.

Chamber fetes winners

Nearly 300 people braved the snowstorm last week to pay tribute to the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce honorees for 1996.

The four — Bill Cushing, citizen of the year; Vicki and Rick Bylsma, community spirit award; and Jerry Jonas, business person of the year — are all "people who take the ball and run with it," says chamber President Marty DeLaney.

A Bethlehem Central High School senior summed up the Bylsmas' contribution in helping develop Project Adventure. "They went way beyond the call of duty," giving not only their time, but also their own resources to make a course with non-competitive games, group problem-solving initiatives and a ropes course.

BC physical education supervisor Fred Powers credits the couple for creating a vision for one of the best challenge courses on the East Coast.

In much the same vein, Bill Cushing, as a BCCO member and a board member of the soccer club, "puts in countless volunteer hours, all for the benefit of the children."

And last but not least, Jerry Jonas, owner of the Garden Shoppe, pitched in to help to create the Bethlehem Community Arboretum at the high school. Jerry Jonas not only designed the plans, but also helped plant and stake the trees.

Taking chances part of the risk

Trying is how to succeed in business

The writer of this Point of View is the owner of I Love Books in Delmar.

By Melissa Steen

Independent business owners all over the town of Bethlehem banded together recently to form a task force called Bethlehem First. The point of this group was to help us figure out how to keep customers shopping in this town.

Virtually every business owner has had to face relatively new competition from major chains which opened huge stores in nearby towns.

When on earth can we compete when they are bigger, better financed, better stocked than we can ever hope to be?

My answer is we cannot and should not try to compete in these ways. I choose instead to create a unique environment using both merchandise and services that appeal to my customers and encourage them to return over and over again.

What makes for a unique retail environment? I firmly believe in variety and change. The stores I have seen fail were those that limited themselves.

I began as a bookshop only, but there was a need in the town for much more than books, I listened to what my customers were requesting and little by little I added sidelines. Now the shop is perhaps only half books, but I am selling as many or more books as I did when that was all I carried!

When customers enter the doors of my shop, they never know exactly what they will find, but they know there will be a wide variety from which to choose.

I believe it is necessary to take chances on merchandise. Whenever I add new merchandise to the mix, I try to add enough to make an impact.

It is also vital to keep the merchandise changing, if it doesn't sell, put it away and put something new in its place. Shoppers can usually sense when merchandise is stale, and they won't return if they always see the same products getting dusty.

Point of View

Another vital tactic is to move the merchandise around the shop. Once a product has sold from one location, move it to another and replace it with something new. This keeps the shop looking fresh and encourages regular customers to look around the shop in places they might have missed the last time they were in.

likely to place a special order or ask for a recommendation from someone in their community, from someone they know.

Do not underestimate the power of a smiling staff. When customers sense a warm friendly atmosphere, I guarantee they will spend more time shopping.

The community will also appreciate the little extras that a small business can offer. These include donations to schools, libraries and organizations, as well as services such as free gift wrapping, personalized special orders and in-store promotional events. Fill a niche in the heart of a town and the business will thrive along with the community.

There is room in the retail

Personalized service is also key to the success of a small business. I get to know my customers by name so that when they shop again it feels more like a visit to a friend than a chore.

The goal is to be certain that every place someone looks, they find interesting merchandise and realize one trip to the shop simply is not enough.

Personalized service is also key to the success of a small business. I get to know my customers by name so that when they shop again it feels more like a visit to a friend than a chore.

Customers are much more world for both the super-sized chains and the smaller independent stores. Although we've all come to expect the overwhelming selection of goods that the chains offer, we also still appreciate and desire the friendly environment of the smaller shops.

In this impersonal corporate society, a small community shop offers a less intimidating, much more pleasant and satisfying shopping experience.

Writer likes Delmar service

Editor, The Spotlight:

With all the talk recently about the decline in business in our community and the need to patronize local companies, I wanted to share my experience with a Delmar business.

I recently utilized the services of Delmar Auto Body and was extremely pleased with the results.

Proprietor John Borst was efficient, genuinely pleasant and very accommodating. He made arrangements for a rental car and finished the work on my car in half the time projected.

Most important, the job was well done and Mr. Borst turned what can be a very irritating process into a simple affair.

I highly recommend the services of Delmar Auto Body and commend Mr. Borst on his business philosophy.

BC student questions police at school

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing regarding the two letters written about the police in Bethlehem Central High School.

I am a ninth-grader at BCHS, and I was shocked to see no student letters lately concerning this pressing issue.

Both of the letters written stated good points and bad points. I would have to agree with Mr. Languish when he said either get involved or stop complaining. This goes for the students at BCHS also.

Many students I know don't like the presence of armed policemen at our school, but the students don't do anything to make a difference.

In my opinion, I just don't see the point of having these policemen invading our school community.

Mr. Languish said in his letter that he knows what goes on at school dances, but does he really? With all due respect, I don't think an adult is capable of fully understanding what goes on with students.

Speaking from a student's point of view, I don't feel that the situation in our high school is so out of control that having armed policemen in our school is a necessity.

I recently approached Officer Vince Rinaldi and listened to him tell me the point of his and other policemen's presence in our school community.

He patiently listened to me voice my opinion that I totally respect his opinion, but I don't agree with it. He told me he was there as a school resource officer. My question was, isn't that what D.A.R.E. officers are for? I didn't seem to get a clear response to that question.

It seems to me that placing officers into our school was a hastily made decision and needs to have some serious student input from the Student Council or other student organizations that are supposedly here for the purpose of letting students have some input on what goes on in their school.

Also, I don't know about other students, but I am not sure of the exact reason for these policemen being here. The whole process was never fully explained and the purpose was never clearly stated.

School officials need to get organized and explain, maybe at a school-wide assembly, the reason why these policemen are in our school.

I don't know about the rest of the students, but I feel left out of a major decision that is affecting me and the rest of the students every day. The student community has to deal with it, not the parents.

3 cheers for parents involved in BC schools

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing this letter in support of Ed Languish's letter in the March 6 issue.

Hip, hip, hooray! Your letter hit home, Mr. Languish. I was thrilled to see someone respond to "Name Submitted".

It is an absolutely correct assessment that the same people/parents are always the same ones involved with PTA, after-school committee projects, playground project fund-raisers, etc.

I know this firsthand because I am one of those involved parents in my children's schools, in community sporting events (my company sponsors Tri-Village Little League teams every year) and community-sponsored projects.

If Mr Name Submitted does not care for police presence in the high school, then possibly he is not aware of the fact that their need is completely appropriate. (Does he know that the middle school's nickname is

"The Middle School from Hell?")

Given the constraints the high school administration is working under, their use of Officer (Vince) Rinaldi is commendable. I am a BC graduate and I know what went on in the middle school and high school, and I will bet my last million dollars that it is still going on there today.

If Mr. Name Submitted objects to the presence of Officer Rinaldi, then get up and do something about why "good little Johnny" needs a DARE officer in school.

I don't mean to go on and on, but if Mr. Name Submitted can use the energy required to write a letter of complaint, then wouldn't his/her child benefit from the expenditure of that energy on a worthwhile project, like volunteering at the school or attending a school administrative function and voicing his/her concerns there?

Matters of Opinion

No armed police, please

Editor, The Spotlight:

The following are the top ten reasons why armed police officers should not be stationed in Bethlehem schools:

They aren't necessary here. It would be far better to practice quick response-time drills to the high school and save police resources for police-related business.

It sends a message to kids that they can't be trusted.

It speeds the realization that we live in a violent world, that guns are good, and that might makes right. Plenty of time for that later. Let them be youngsters a while longer.

The police will get bored, and they will magnify minor events to justify their presence.

This whole episode reinforces the suspicion that the DARE program (despite its great merits) is like a gateway drug to increased authoritarianism.

The mere presence of a gun increases the chance of a shooting.

I witnessed three of our police officers flirting with two teenage girls at the Stewart's on 9W a few weeks ago. There's a thin blue line between good-natured public relations versus the potential mix of hero worship with mid-life crises.

Bethlehem is being overdeveloped to raise tax dollars, and this is how we should waste that revenue?

Number nine is a minor point, but I think this would be somewhat awkward for the high school children of these officers.

Finally, I don't mean to knock our good cops with any of the above points, and I wonder if anyone has surveyed them to see how they feel about this plan.

Article on new club fields dubbed misleading

Editor, The Spotlight:

We are writing on behalf of the Bethlehem Soccer Club in response to the Feb. 21 issue of The Spotlight article "Town park targeted for new playing fields." The article incorrectly reported that "The shortage of playing fields for Bethlehem's baseball, softball and soccer may soon be a thing of the past," and it incorrectly suggested that the playing areas subject to improvement at town park would be served by water and electricity.

We attended the Feb. 14 town board meeting where the project was approved. Supervisor Sheila Fuller acknowledged that the project was not going to solve the problem of athletic field access in the town but rather it was a step in the right direction. In other words, the town will continue to have a shortage of playing fields, including soccer fields, after the project is completed. The additional soccer fields planned for the Route 32 area of the park will not receive water or electric service under the town's plan.

Setting the facts straight is important not only for the community at large but especially for the parents, coaches, children and others who belong to the Bethlehem Soccer Club.

The club, which is operated solely by volunteers, has been developing soccer fields on Wemple Road at its own expense relying on the strong backs, stout hearts, and generosity of its members as well as corporate and other business contributors. There continues to be a need for the "SoccerPlex" on Wemple Road, and the club is working diligently to have the site ready this fall. The town's improvement project is extremely worthwhile, but with all the sports clubs in town expected to grow steadily in the years to come additional solutions to the playing field shortage will have to be found. Any suggestion that the field shortage is over could undermine the work that has been done and the work that still must be done to establish soccer fields on Wemple Road.

The Bethlehem Soccer Club is committed to working with town and school district officials and representatives of the other sports to increase the number of quality playing fields over the months and years to come.

Honor society chapter welcomes your input

Editor, The Spotlight:

This is an update on the status of the National Honor Society chapter at Bethlehem Central High School.

On Jan. 31, three students, two faculty members, three parents and BCHS Principal Jon Hunter met to review the issues regarding the continuance and criteria for the BCHS National Honor Society chapter.

The discussion included:

- The need to recognize academic excellence as well as the national organization's requirements for leadership, service, and good character.

- Faculty concerns about selection criteria, the integrity of the process and follow-through by students to maintain the standards of the NHS.

- Parental and student concerns about losing the national affiliation.

- Perceptions about the importance of NHS selection in the college admissions process, and the need to communicate the criteria and selection process to the entire BCHS community.

The group recognized that NHS selection is an honor "bestowed," not automatically determined by grades, and considered three options:

- Leaving the national organization, and establishing an in-house "cum laude" club.

- Staying affiliated with the national group, but revising the process currently used.

- Disbanding the NHS and focusing on the awards assembly and honor graduates.

After discussion, the group unanimously selected the second option as their recommendation to the BCHS shared decision-making team.

The next meeting will focus on developing specific steps to address problems of process, faculty support and communication. As the discussions progress, further information will be provided through BCCO and the Student Senate.

If you have ideas to share, send them to the NHS subcommittee, c/o Bethlehem Central High School, 700 Delaware Ave., Delmar, NY 12054

Book sale to feature silent auction on items

In addition to books and videos of all kinds at rock-bottom prices, this weekend's book sale will feature a silent auction. Some of the items on the block are typewriters, Apple IIe integrated hardware and software, TV monitors and VCR carts, a six-channel mixer/amplifier, a revolving dictionary stand, an oak swivel office chair and a complete 1993 World Book encyclopedia.

In a departure from past sealed-bid auctions, this year's bids will be public. Bidders will write their names, phone numbers and bid amounts on tags attached to each item.

Bids on most items will start at $1 with whole dollar increments required.

One exception will be the encyclopedia, which will begin at $100. Multiple bids will be allowed.

The auction will close one hour before the end of the book sale on Sunday. Winners do not have to be present and will be notified by telephone. Three days will be allowed for pick-up, with defaults going to the next lowest bidder.

The sale will be in the library community and board rooms Saturday and Sunday, during regular library hours.

Books will be sorted according to type and genre, with hard covers selling at 50 cents and paperbacks for 25 cents. Price of media materials will vary, up to a dollar for videos.

To ease crowding, children's books will be displayed separately. Because the event is heavily attended, parents are urged not to bring very young children or children in strollers.

Book sale browsers are encouraged to view two hall exhibits this month. Oils and watercolors of flowers by Slingerlands resident Raymond Decker are on display in the front hall gallery. A member of several local art associations, Decker is a familiar exhibitor in the Capital District.

His watercolor "Ye Olde Hollies" was featured on the cover of the 1994 Bethlehem & New Scotland Telephone Directory.

Decker is president of the Niskayuna Brush & Palette Art Group.

The nature photographs of Carson Laroche-Fisk are on display in the back hall gallery. This exhibit of more than 20 color prints includes photos of familiar sites in Albany County and more exotic locales in Greece.

Most of the artwork on display is for sale. Price lists are available at the circulation desk.

Ladybirds first-ever appearance in state tournament

Voorheesville girls take aim at state hoop title

By Matt McKenna

The Voorheesville girls varsity basketball team made history last week, as it became the first girls team in school history to advance to the state tournament.

The Blackbirds will play Marcus Whitman of Rochester in the state semifinals at noon on Saturday at Hudson Valley Community College in Troy.

Last Wednesday, the girls played Corinth in the class C-CC championship game for Section II. Corinth came out of Class C with a record of 15-8, and had a distinct height advantage with six-foot, two-inch center Erin White. This did not seem to worry the Blackbirds, who were looking to make their record a perfect 24-0.

Voorheesville came out of the gates quickly, and used a pressure defense to force Corinth into early mistakes. This continued into the second period, as Corinth tried to counter with their height advantage inside.

Corinth managed to keep it close as the Ladybirds led 28-19 at the half. The only scare of the game came in the first four minutes of the third quarter when Corinth crawled to within three points, 32-29. From there Voorheesville went on a 19-0 run, which put the game out of reach. The final score was 51-31.

"These kids just like to win," said coach Jack Adams. "They have a lot of stamina and quickness, and we tried to dictate the pace as much as we could today. Corinth made a nice run at us in the third quarter, but our kids dug in and did what they had to do."

Sophomore Jane Meade led the Blackbirds with 16 points, five steals, and four rebounds, including six straight points during Voorheesville's fourth quarter run.

Becky Dawson added 12 points, nine rebounds and two steals, and Kristin Person chipped in 10 points.

This brought Voorheesville to the state regionals, where they faced Canton, the champion of Section X. The Ladybirds wasted little time as they opened up a 16-8 lead after the first quarter. The Golden Bears had constant problems with the Voorheesville press.

The two teams played evenly in the second period with each scoring 11 points. The Blackbirds then outscored Canton 11-5 in the third quarter, and held on for the 50-35 win.

Voorheesville finished the game by making 13 of 17 freethrow attempts in the second half. Person led all scorers with 14 points, while Meade had 12 and Dawson had nine.

"We picked up our game defensively and that helped us on the other end," said Person. "We passed the ball really well and waited for the open shot."

"We want to go all the way," said Adams. "When you go this far, you have to take advantage of the situation. One loss and you're out."

Junior Erikka Jackstadt attempts to drop in one for V'ville. Elaine McLain

Sharks perfect in Greenbush

The Bethlehem Soccer Club's Under-12 boys team, the Sharks, emerged victorious from the Greenbush Soccer Club Annual Tournament.

The team's perfect record included 2-1 and 1-0 victories vs. Greenbush A and B teams and a 2-0 win over Colonie in divisional play.

The Sharks netted playoff victories against Brunswick, 1-0, the Bethlehem Rangers, 1-0, and a final 2-1 win over Amsterdam to end the tournament. The combination of Erik Turner and Mike Nuttall in goal and the defense of Andrew Swiatowicz and Mike Hoghe held the opposition to two goals throughout tournament play.

Soccer

Fine offensive play yielded goals by Nitin Roper, Erich Minnear, Steve Maltzman, and Steve Hoghe with help from Matt Patry and Erik Lowery.

The Sharks return to tournament play on March 23 in Schenectady.

Playoffs start in BBC

Indiana, down by a point with seconds to go, won the opening Bethlehem Basketball Club Big Ten playoff game against a game Purdue squad, 44-43.

Mike Nuttal went coast to coast for the deciding bucket, and Michael Walker's aggressive defense proved invaluable for the victors. Ryan Dalton's last-minute free throw put Purdue ahead before the game's final play.

Iowa, with Brendan Hughes swishing in 17 and David Sargent sweeping the glass clean, beat Michigan State, 40-33. John Cameron's tough inside play and four points led the losers.

In similar fashion, Ohio State upended Michigan, 41-33. Steven Pascone and Noah Bacon combined for 24 in the victory. Eric Herd and Andrew Caplan led a late Wolverine charge.

Steve Maltzman's seeing-eye assists inspired Northwestern in a 46-30 win over Wisconsin. The Badgers were led by Alison McKee's strong rebounding effort.

In the final opening round contest, Penn. State showed it will be a factor in remaining post-season play by defeating Minnesota, 34-30.

Mike Hoghe had 7 for the winners, while Chris Sgroi's hustle led the Gophers.

In NBA playoff activity, the Sonics continued their winning ways as Ben Odell bulled his way in for six in a 48-43 thriller over the Knicks. Rob Shaye played great defense in the near upset.

With Steve Watt at the throttle of a well-oiled machine, the Nuggets beat the Bulls 36-33 in a contest not decided until the final seconds. Elliot Freeman played superbly for the Bulls.

The favored Suns beat the Magic, 43-30. Matt Via's errorless ball handling set up a multitude of easy baskets for the winners. Pat Davis scored five in defeat.

In an exceptionally high-scoring contest, the Spurs ran up and down the court for 61 points as they beat the Rockets by six. Mike Pascone dropped in 18 for the winners, while Liam Gallagher scored 10 in defeat.

Clarke Doody's 10 points and aggressive moves in the paint highlighted Clemson's 64-32 shocker over Duke. Mike Messina and Jon Nowak teamed up for 10 to pace the Blue Devils.

The Tarheels from North Carolina blew away Maryland, 40-25. Michael Bannon's great rebounding and full court defense led the winners. Dan Teitler had six in defeat. Derek Suparmanto was too much for Virginia to handle as Georgia Tech beat Virginia 40-29. Brian Anderson's excellent effort proved fruitless in the loss.

And in the finale, Wake Forest edged Florida State 51-42. Jim Foster had six in the win. Ed O'Keefe kept the Seminoles in the game with a slew of good plays.

and there never any mention of a student striking her."

One of the students involved was suspended for one day for harassment, but Loomis said that the penalties for fighting and/or striking a teacher are more severe.

Shaw, in her first year at BCHS, has been out of work on workers' compensation since Oct. 12 due to the wrist injury, Loomis said.

"We feel badly that one of our staff members was injured in the course of performing her job and hope that she'll be back in the spring," Loomis said.

"This is frustrating, because our district and high school have been doing everything we can to ensure a safe, orderly environment conducive to learning," Loomis said, noting that the school board approved hiring an additional hall monitor at the high school this year.

On the larger issue of whether or when teachers should intercede in physical altercations, the district should clarify its policy, said

Roberta Rice, president of the Bethlehem Central Teachers Association.

"We need a policy that's clear to all staff," Rice said. "Teachers can be liable if a child is injured, whether or not we intervene."

In response to the teachers' concerns, school board president Pamela Williams spelled out the policy in a letter to Rice dated Feb. 9.

Williams stated that the district expects "staff members (be they administrative, instructional or support) to actively intervene in student fights or other acts of a physical nature ... commensurate with their ability and in the exercise of their best judgment under the prevailing situation."

Williams also stated that the district "will continue to support staff members in their performance of the above responsibilities," including liability coverage.

Explosion

weak joint near the top of the metal tank car where a previous repair had been made.

The force of last Thursday's blast, which created an incandescent orb that lit up the southern Albany County landscape, fortunately did not cause any injuries, according to Conrail spokesman Bob Libkind.

The fire lasted only a few minutes and was mostly extinguished by the time Selkirk firefighters arrived on the scene.

The tank car ruptured, and was blown apart in two pieces, Libkind said. "It did some damage to the track and some adjacent cars."

One of the sides of the car was discovered nearby in the rail yard, while the other was found almost a mile away near the Route 396 overpass.

The propane car was owned by the Union Tank Car Co., and had originated in Sarnia, Ontario. It was waiting to be hooked into another train line destined for Suburban Propane in West Albany.

"There were one-inch steel plates on both ends of the car," Libkind said. "That's where there would be a puncture if it occurred from a coupler."

But there did not appear to be a puncture, he said, and tank cars carrying chemicals are not designed to simply explode.

"We're still trying to figure out what happened," Libkind said. "The Federal Railroad Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board are also looking into it."

Back on Old Ravena Road, Johnson said, "It sounded like two trucks coming together out on Route 9W." But almost like a TV commercial, the annoyance came and went without anyone really knowing what happened.

Lorraine Smith, community liaison for Selkirk Cogen, was touring the rail yard at the time of the blast, and was only a short distance away when she noticed a "huge fireball" that "dissipated almost as quickly as it appeared. We were headed toward our cars, and were on our way to the hump area," which is where the rail cars are connected and where the explosion occurred.

"It was really a sight to see," she said. "I'd only seen things like that on television before. You could really feel the heat" from the explosion.

"It makes me sad to see this type of thing happening because they really have an extraordinary safety program there," Smith said.

Supervisor Sheila Fuller said she was relieved that no one was hurt at the rail yard, although she added that the "recent incidents that have taken place down there are a real concern to me."

In August, a Conrail worker, Lewis Laramie, was killed when he was hit by a train while trying to make a hookup.

year's budget, Zwicklbauer said.

"I hope the freeze will take care of the deficit and maybe generate a small surplus," Zwicklbauer said.

Loomis said that the district has engaged a consultant, Albany Health Associates, to "confirm and review the losses and look at the long-term impact" of the increase in claims.

Loomis added that the board will receive a full report on the losses and the consultant's recommendations at its March 20 meeting.

The freeze includes:

- Cutting off all purchases, except those which are state-aided, such as textbooks, library books and software.

- Allowing purchase of emergency items only upon approval by central administrators.

- Eliminating all custodial overtime, unless approved by the business office.

- Suspending use of custodial time for PTA functions.

- Limiting substitutes for custodial and clerical workers.

- Requesting a voluntary curtailment of field trips.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1986, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- Bethlehem Supervisor Robert Hendrick said the town will consider improving its sidewalk snow removal. "I took a walk from town hall to the Four Corners, and it's a dangerous situation," he said.

- In a front-page feature story on St. Patrick's Day, Jim Dunn of Elsmere recalled growing up in County Galway. "Everyone went out to find shamrocks and wore a little sprig of it to Mass in the morning," he said. "It was a religious holiday — all the parading is an American phenomenon."

- The Bethlehem Central School District and the Bethlehem Music Association commissioned a band composition, "Hudson River Suite" by composer John O'Reilly, that premiered at the district's music festival.

- The Village Stage produced Jerome Kass' Ballroom, starring Tom Matthews, Peggy Nelson, Pat Eckhardt, Norma Irvine, Terry Jones, Muriel Nevens and Jeanne Stranzle.

Card of thanks

It is 2 a.m., and I am sitting here in quiet solitude. I have passed through the most difficult days of my life on this earth. I cannot express my feelings of grief over the loss of my beloved son T.J., but neither can I express the feelings I am experiencing at the same time of such great joy and comfort which I have received from family, friends, neighbors, classmates and from some of you whom I have never met, but who have had a similar loss.

From a world so full of difficulty, confusion, sorrow, stress tragedy and grief comes a new light. The expressions of love, compassion, concern and caring for my family and me have gone beyond my realm of comprehension.

I have read each card, embraced each of you and thanked God for the presence to absorb all your memories and thoughts of my lovely child. You have taught me more about his wonderful spirit than I already knew and have filled our hearts to overflowing with peace.

I have not appreciated you, nor did I know the genuine goodness and kindness of the community where I was born and raised. I will never have adequate words to express the admiration I have for each of you. Your letters, poems, physical presence, words, cards, gifts of food, contributions, flowers and love will never be forgotten. You are forever embedded in our hearts and souls. You have taken away my fears and uncertainties.

Though we will always miss T.J.'s physical presence, energy and smile, you have given us an unforgettable tribute to his life. His soul and gentle spirit will live on forever. You have lifted our hearts to unrivaled heights, and he shall not perish from us.

We are left in awe of you and will cherish these days and memories forever. May God bless you as richly as we have been blessed. You will be in our hearts and thoughts forever.

Love each other, treasure each moment, appreciate and respect each other so there will be no regrets—sometimes we don't get a second chance—and smile, you are all angels.

With our sincerest thanks and gratitude,

The family of T.J. Smith

Olympic champs take to the ice at the Knick

By Josh Kagan

The Winter Olympics may be two years away, but past Olympic heroes will perform this month in the Capital District.

The Discover Card Stars on Ice 55-city tour will stop in Albany on Friday, March 29, with a 7:30 p.m. performance at the Knickerbocker Arena on South Pearl Street in Albany.

This, the 10th anniversary tour, features 1992 Olympic champion Kristi Yamaguchi, 1984 Olympic champion Scott Hamilton, 1984 and 1988 Olympic champion Katarina Witt, 1992 silver medalist Paul Wylie, 1984 silver medalist Rosalynn Summers, four-time world champion Kurt Browning, 1992 silver medalists Elena Bechke and Denis Petrov and the pairs Susanna Rahkamo and Petri Kokko and Cristine Hough and Doug Ladret.

"We wanted only world champions, Olympic champions, U.S. champions," said Bob Kain, the show's co-executive producer. "We would not have chorus lines, props or cartoon characters. It would be designed as a skater's show."

The tour is dedicated to the career of Ekaterina Gordeeva and Sergei Grinkov, 1988 and 1994 Olympic champions. Grinkov died last November.

Stars on Ice will feature original productions and music from stage and screen productions. This year's music includes music from "Hair," "Casper" and several other films and plays, a "Spaghetti Western" with music from "Don Juan DeMarco," and a finale with the full cast skating to songs by John Lennon and Paul McCartney.

"The show is a celebration of Scott's original idea and its development over the past decade," director and co-producer Sandra Bezic said. "This is not just a show. It has evolved into a family; a company of friends. The ensemble pieces reflect that idea of the company performing together. These moments have become as important as the solos."

Family Entertainment

The tour began in 1986 with Hamilton's desire to showcase athletic talent and creativity. He and Kain began a five-city America Tour that year, which soon expanded as more and more well-known skaters joined the cast.

Hamilton is a veteran of several professional skating tours and competitions and has served as a skating commentator for CBS since 1985.

Hamilton was faced with a mysterious illness, originally thought to be terminal, that caused him to stop growing at the age of 2. He eventually recovered and began to grow, although he remained small throughout the rest of his life. He now stands at 5-foot-3. Doctors attributed his recovery to his intense physical activity through skating and the cold atmosphere of ice rinks.

The tour will benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation of America, which aids children with life-threatening illnesses. One dollar from each ticket will be donated to the local Make-A-Wish chapter.

Tickets prices range from $25 to $35. To charge tickets call 376-1000. For group sales information call 487-2100.

Former Olympic champions Scott Hamilton and Kristi Yamaguchi will be on hand when The Discover Card Stars on Ice tour comes to the Capital District on Friday, March 29, for a 7:30 p.m. performance at Knickerbocker Arena on South Pearl Street in Albany.

Schenectady Civic Players unfazed by TV production of Jake's Women

As luck would have it, conflicting with the opening of Neil Simon's latest comedy, Jake's Women, due this Friday (Mar. 15) at the Schenectady Civic Playhouse, a television production of the show was done on NBC 10 days ago.

Not only that, but the original star, Alan Alda, was in the lead as he was in the Broadway production. The dilemma was, of course, if the television show was very good, who'd want to see the stage version in Schenectady. Conversely, if the show was bad, then people might believe that the show was not worth seeing.

As it turned out, Alda's performance was terribly underplayed but there was enough in the production to make a viewer believe that the show might be worth seeing if handled differently. The direction of the TV version was listless, leaving a number of fine actresses high and dry.

Now, the Schenectady troupe with Robert Hegeman in the lead, is plugging away, convinced that Joe Fava's staging of the comedy will find the true measure of the script.

Jake's Women is somewhat autobiographical for Simon with the character of Jake standing in for the writer. It is clear that Simon was still thinking of his late first wife whom he idealizes in this play with its flashbacks. Jake's second marriage (like Simon's marriage to actress Marsha Mason) is foundering.

What local actress Denise Cross has found in the role of the second wife is that it is an extension of a role she played six years ago when she played the female lead in Chapter Two. In that play, also autobiographical in nature, Simon was writing about his marriage to an actress shortly after grieving for his first wife who has died.

"It astounded me when I first read the script," Cross says. "I found myself saying, 'I know this woman'."

Jake's Women opens Friday and plays through Sunday and then opens again Wednesday, March 20, for five more performances.

Theater Voices presents Ray Bradbury play about childhood summer memory

The latest production of a stage reading by Theater Voices will be a little known Ray Bradbury play, Dandelion Wine, dealing with a man nearing 40 returning to agonizing childhood memories.

The production which opens Friday (Mar. 15) at the Albany City Gallery in Albany for four free performances through Sunday afternoon, is directed by Doug deLisle with a cast that includes 11 actors, including Steve O'Connor of Loudonville.

Bradbury is best known for his fantasy and science fiction but Theater Voices has devoted itself in the past 10 years in bringing plays to the public which would not normally be produced fully because of economic limitations.

The production will also be broadcast once over WAMC-FM, a public radio station in Albany that reaches five states.

Proctor's books Grand Night For Singing, a Rodgers and Hammerstein revue

Saturday (Mar. 16), Proctor's Theater in Schenectady brings some of the best Rodgers and Hammerstein music to the stage in A Grand Night For Singing, a revue featuring five performers. The revue includes selections from all of the musicals written by these two icons of Broadway musical theater.

Reservations/info: 346-6204.

Young actress takes hold in roles at Theatre Institute in Troy

While classified as a parttime actress/teacher at the New York State Theatre Institute in Troy, Mychelle Vedder is fast becoming recognized for the talent she has displayed in the past four years throughout the region.

Currently in the new production of Murder on the Nile which opens Sunday (Mar. 17), she will soon be in rehearsal as the lead in the American premiere of Earhart, the drama about 1930s aviator, Amelia Earhart.

Now, it's learned that Vedder will also be cast as Beauty in the company's production of Beauty and the Beast, the last presentation of the season.

Unico System® —

Air Conditioning and Heating

No matter when your home was built, or what its physical configurations are, installing the Unico System is always a possibility. Authorized Unico System contractors have installed thousands of these systems across the country and in Canada, in homes that were built without central air conditioning and in those homes where existing systems have proven inadequate. There's a Unico System solution for your home—let us show you.

With Unico System— Your Home Can Have Central Air

What It Means For Your Home

Removes More Moisture

Unico System removes up to 30% more moisture than conventional central air conditioning systems. That means more comfort for you, even at higher thermostat settings. And because Unico System is adaptable to a variety of air cleaning devices, your home's air will be fresh and pure.

Draft Free

Unico System works on the principle of aspiration. Cool streams of high velocity air enter a room, creating gentle circulation without drafts. You enjoy even room temperatures from floor to ceiling.

Because Unico System uses aspiration, drafts are eliminated and each room enjoys comfortable, even temperatures.

Conventional air conditioning often leaves house with hot and cold spots, as well as uncomfortable drafting.

Unico System Versatility— Heat Your Home with an Add-On Heat Pump

Your Unico System will not only provide outstanding cooling in the summer, it can also be used to heat your home during cold winter months. The system works with the heat pumps of most major manufacturers to provide the same exceptional comfort in winter that you'll receive in the summer months. An added feature of the Unico System is the higher temperature (20° to 25° F higher) of air discharging from the outlets compared to conventional heat pump systems.

The Unico System air handler removes heat from indoor air to outdoor heat pump where it escapes into outside air.

The heat pump removes the heat from outside, transfers it to the Unico System air handler and this warm air is then circulated throughout your home.

Quiet

You'll feel the Unico System's cool comfort, but you'll hardly hear it. The last 36-inch section of duct has flexible, sound absorbing tubing that provides quiet air flow from each individual outlet. The central return air grill also connects to sound absorbing duct to maintain quiet operation.

Little or No Remodeling

Unico System flexible ducts snake through and around existing construction. There are no unsightly, cumbersome metal ducts. The compact Unico System air handler can be installed in attic, basement, or even closet installations, allowing it to meet almost any installation challenge. The architectural integrity of your home will be preserved when the Unico System is installed.

Fits Any Decor

The barely noticeable outlets blend in with any decor, whether they're installed in the ceiling, floor, or wall. The Unico System avoids the staining of walls and ceilings that can occur with metal registers and diffusers.

A Hole New Approach to Air Conditioning

The character of your house won't be blemished by large or unsightly registers. Just these small outlets deliver the highest degree of comfort available today.

Carriers

For carriers under the age of 16, the new policy marks either the end of the paper route or the beginning of a new part-time job for mom or dad, picking up papers in pre-dawn darkness.

Many carriers old enough to drive and with access to cars have decided to give up their routes, because of the extra time involved.

"I liked it a lot and didn't mind getting up in the morning, but I'm not sure it's worth it now," said David Blabey, a Bethlehem Central High School senior who delivers 40 papers in the Wexford Road area of Delmar.

"They're making these paper routes inaccessible to kids," said Matt Zalen, also a BC senior, who delivered 40 papers in the Wisconsin Avenue area of Delmar. "It was my first job, and now adults are taking over the routes and doing 400 to 500 papers. For little kids, I don't know what else they can do."

Zalen's mother Valerie said the carrier job gave her son "a sense of independence and responsibility — he knew he was able to do something a lot of other kids wouldn't do."

Carriers in Voorheesville have been picking up their papers before dawn in Guilderland since October, and carriers and their parents are not thrilled about it.

Kevin Burns has been managing a route in Salem Hills, along with his brother, for almost 10 years, said the new system means he has to get up about 30 minutes earlier, or "The customers get their papers later."

Burns said he'll continue with the route "until school gets out, then I'll find another job."

The new distribution system is not without risks, both physical and financial, for high-school-age carriers.

Two Voorheesville carriers were involved in a property damage auto accident during last week's snowstorm while returning from the Guilderland depot.

Steve Pilatzke and Leibe Meier collided on Route 155. No one was seriously injured, but the damage to Pilatzke's car may eat up more than a month's worth of earnings from the paper route, according to his mother.

"It's been such a hassle this winter, and then we get this scary phone call at 6:30 a.m.," said Cathy Pilatzke, adding that her son had to get up 45 minutes earlier because of the depot system.

The distribution change also affected one of the area's busiest adult carriers, Dick Hazen of Colonie, whose 600-paper route included large parts of Slingerlands and New Scotland.

Hazen said that he used to pick up his papers at 2:30 a.m. off the Times Union's loading dock, but the new system meant that he couldn't get papers until 3:30 a.m., officially, but often as late as 4:30 or 5 a.m.

"You can't give good service to 600 people when you get your papers at 5 a.m.," Hazen said.

When Hazen wrote a letter to his customers in November explaining why they were getting their papers later, he said he got a "fantastic response" from the customers, but the Times Union relieved him of the route.

Times Union management did not return calls seeking comment, but Melissa Locke, president of the Newspaper Guild there, said that the delivery change will mean the loss of "25, maybe more" full-time driver jobs.

Locke said, "I hate to see the tradition go by the wayside, and I hate to see the loss of good, mid-range salaried jobs."

Locke explained that management, citing economic reasons, insisted on the change, and the union could only negotiate the best "enhanced severance package" possible for the laid-off drivers.

She added that it's a "pretty sad" commentary on the local economy that adults, who need to pay "the mortgage and bills," will do a job traditionally performed by children in suburban communities.

The Gazette, the second-largest circulation daily in the Capital District, has no plans to discontinue delivering papers to carriers, according to Stephen Wilary, the paper's circulation manager.

"We're a family-owned newspaper, and we do things the old-fashioned way," Wilary said.

The Gazette's delivery costs are also less than the Times Union's because it contracts with its delivery drivers, Wilary said.

Besides saving on salaries with the new system, the Times Union will also save on maintenance, insurance, gas and other costs related to its van fleet, "a lot of money," Wilary noted.

Many larger dailies are moving away from youth carriers because of safety, liability and economics, according to Diane Kennedy, president of the New York Newspaper Publishers Association.

THINK OF IT AS A SAVINGS PLAN.

We'll show you how a new Weil-McLain
Gold Series oil boiler could save you hundreds of dollars on your heating bills.

The fact is, many older boilers operate at only about 60% efficiency. That means that as much as 40% of the fuel you're paying for could be going right up the chimney. The new Weil-McLain Gold Series oil boiler operates at over 84% efficiency — so it can save you enough money in oil bills to pay for itself in a few short years.
