Fuller to give farmers chance to air views

By Mel Hyman

Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller has scheduled a public forum for Monday, June 17, during which time farmers and large landowners can voice their concerns about the low-density zoning recommendations in the proposed town master plan.

Drawn up by the town's Land Use Management Advisory Committee, the master plan recommends increasing minimum lot sizes to curtail development and preserve open space in the mostly rural sections of Bethlehem.

Large landowners, particularly farmers whose holdings have been in their families for generations, have objected to the master plan provisions affecting them, claiming that low-density zoning devalues their land and limits their options.

It is my intention to have the concerns of farmers and large landholders addressed and reviewed.

Sheila Fuller

The five remaining members of LUMAC will attend the special forum to speak with farmers about their concerns.

Reilly error creates shortfall

Water district faced with $117,000 tab

By Dev Tobin

Nothing has been easy for Orchard Park residents in their nearly decade-long quest for municipal water to replace private wells contaminated with iron, methane and salt.

Now, as the final pieces of the Northeast Water District are ready to fall into place, a bookkeeping error by Supervisor Herb Reilly has left the district with a $117,000 shortfall.

Construction of the water district, which will serve about 115 homes in the Orchard Park-Forest Drive-Maple Road area, is scheduled to take place this season.

The shortfall can be made up for by reducing a storage tank and generator and by stretching out the payback period for the project's bonds, the town board learned at a special meeting last week.

Reilly explained that he discovered the Holocaust survivor gives students living history

By Katherine McCarthy

Holocaust survivor Anton Segore is a diminutive man who seems to grow in stature when he talks about his mission in life — telling future generations about the dreadful reality of Nazi Germany's campaign to exterminate European Jewry.

Addressing students at Clayton A. Bouton High School recently, he said that his mission has become even more important these days, as eyewitnesses are dying of old age and closet anti-Semites are putting forth the notion that the Holocaust either did not happen, or wasn't so bad after all.

Segore has only one question for those who deny the existence of the gas chambers, people like the Ku Klux Klan and other contemporary Nazi sympathizers.

"Where are my family?" he said, holding aloft the picture of himself as a child with his family of 14. "Only three of us survived, where are the others?"

In 1944, at the age of 17, Segore and his family were taken from their home in Budapest, Hungary, to live in a ghetto, where their movements were restricted and all their valuables taken away.

"We heard rumors through the years" about death camps, Segore told the intent audience. "But when we heard these

Hoffman's eyes former eatery for car wash

A car wash and oil change operation is planned for 55 Delaware Ave. Doug Persons

By Mel Hyman

The star-crossed property at 55 Delaware Ave., home of five different restaurants over the past 10 years, may soon be the site of a combination car wash and oil change operation.

Hoffman's Car Wash is seeking to turn the former eatery into a mechanical car wash with a Jiffy Lube. The Latham-based company has a purchase contract for the parcel contingent on approval from the Bethlehem zoning board of appeals.

The land is zoned commercial and a car wash is a permitted use under the town zoning ordinance, but the ZBA must still review the project as far as its impact on the neighborhood and the environment, before it can be approved.

Police nab robbery suspect

Bethlehem Police made an arrest in one this week and are investigating three more break-ins that occurred over the weekend

Donald L. Randall, 42, of Jay Street, Schenectady was arrested by police in connection with the May 8 armed robbery of the Days Inn on Route 9W.

Randall is accused of threatening a clerk and stealing $276 from the motel's cash register. He was charged with second-degree robbery and petit larceny. He was sent to Albany County jail without bail.

Sometime early Saturday, the front door of the West Wok restaurant in Glenmont Plaza off Route 9W was pried open, police said, and about $70 was removed from the cash register. Nothing else was reported stolen.

Also on Saturday, the manager of the Cumberland Farms store on Route 9W told police that when she opened the business at 6 a.m., she discovered that $2,219 was missing from the safe. There were no signs of forced entry.

On Sunday, June 9, a resident of Fisher Boulevard reported that his home was broken into and several pieces of antique furniture (oak sideboards) were stolen. Police believe that a mid-sized pickup truck was used to transport the stolen goods.

Art lessons to begin in Delmar July 1

The Artists' Studio on Delaware Avenue in Delmar will offer classes in drawing, painting, photography and mixed media for children and adults starting July 1.

Classes will run from two to four weeks.

For information, call 478-0645.

Library sets meeting on holiday policy

A special meeting of the Bethlehem Public Library board of trustees has been scheduled for Monday, June 24, at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the formation of a Community Advisory Committee, which will advise the board on a policy for holiday decorations and/or displays.

The meeting will be at the library at 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar and is open to the public.

BCHS Class of '56 to hold July reunion

The Bethlehem Central High School Class of 1956 will hold its 40th reunion on Thursday, July 20, at the Holiday Turf Inn on Wolf Road in Colonie.

BOU revs up for Dad's Day

There's still time to get in on the 12th annual Father's Day Race and Community Walk set for Sunday, June 16, at Hamagrael School on McGuffey Lane in Delmar.

The event will start with a community walk at 8:40 am. Registration is not required for the walk.

Registration for the kid's one-mile race and 3.5 mile race begins at 8:30 am. The kid's race begins at 9:30 a.m., and the 3.5 mile race begins at 10:00 am. All ages and genders are welcome.

Registration forms are available at each elementary school, the middle and high schools and the Elm Avenue Parks and Recreation office. Runners can register on the morning of the race at Hamagrael School. There is a $5 entry fee per runner. All proceeds fund BOU activities for the youth of Bethlehem.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three finishers in each age group. All parent/child teams will receive a certificate.

For information or to volunteer for the day of the race, contact Joni Goldberg at 439-6470 or Bob Salamone at 439-7460.

Police make 2 DWI arrests

Bethlehem police recently arrested two people on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Linda M. Gilligan, 36, of 130 Poplar Drive, Delmar, was stopped at 7:50 p.m. Saturday, June 8, for driving at an unsafe speed on Delaware Avenue, police said.

She was charged with DWI and released pending a future appearance in town court. Officer Scott Anson investigated.

Thomas M. Van Slyke, 42, of Hackett Street, Selkirk, was stopped at 6:17 p.m. Friday, May 24, for following too closely on Route 9W, police said.

He was charged with a felony DWI, first-degree aggravated unlicensed operation (his license had been revoked for a prior DWI conviction) and resisting arrest, police said.

He was sent to Albany County jail without bail. Officer Robert Berben investigated.

Summer reading club set to begin

Children entering grades one through eight are eligible to join the Bethlehem Summer Reading Club, which runs from June 24 through Aug. 9.

As part of the program, students can report their reading progress in person at the library, located at 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

Progress is registered on a punch card in half-hour blocks of time. The end of the program will be celebrated with a members-only party on Aug. 15. Entertainment will be provided by magician, escape artist and reading advocate Mike Carnevale.

Neighbors protest plan for State Police station

By Dev Tobin

The conventional wisdom is that a neighborhood police presence is about as popular as a cute puppy. Once again, the conventional wisdom is wrong, at least along one stretch of Route 32 south of Feura Bush.

Raising concerns about parking, traffic, noise, lighting, the potential for escaped criminals, impact on property values, and the commercialization of a residential zone, several neighbors of a proposed State Police substation near the intersection of Route 32 and Flat Rock Road told the New Scotland planning board they did not want the station in their back yard.

After talking to many of his neighbors about the proposal, Dave Gregory of Route 32 put it bluntly: "Everybody I approached was against a police station. No one wants to buy a house near a police station."

Tina McKay of Route 32 said she was concerned that the station's activities may pose a threat to her four children.

Builder Gerald Robetoy said that the State Police contacted him regarding the suitability of adapting the raised ranch under construction into a police station.

He said that the house would be expanded to about 4,000 square feet to accommodate the State Police's needs.

He noted that his contract or lease agreement with the State Police is pending planning board approval.

The State Police will be leaving their Selkirk substation when the lease expires early next year, and are looking for a new station site closer to where most of its calls in southern Albany County are coming from — New Scotland and the Hilltowns.

Board chairman Robert Stapf said it would be imprudent for the board to act before knowing more specifics about the proposal, such as the number of parking places needed and the estimated amount of traffic the station would produce.

He suggested, and the board agreed, that Robetoy come back with more information at the board's next meeting on July 2.

Stapf noted that a police station is a special use allowed in a residential zone, so Robetoy does not need a variance or a zoning change. "But we would want it to look residential to fit in with the other structures in the area," he said.

Board member John Loucks, a Feura Bush resident, said he would be in favor of "anything that would slow down traffic and eliminate accidents" along Route 32.

But Loucks added that the proposed station's parking should be all in the rear of the building.

Robetoy's plan to have visitors' parking in front "looks too commercial, like a public garage," Loucks said.

Board member Annick Belleville suggested that a State Police representative attend the July 2 meeting to address the neighbors' concerns.

County honors local foster parents

By Mel Hyman

If you think parenting is tough, consider Tom and Lucy Monroe of Upper Flat Rock Road in Clarksville.

They have taken in 12 foster children over the past five years, sometimes in the middle of the night. Several of the kids were sexually abused or came from homes where one or both of the parents were drug-addicted. At the very least, they lacked love and positive role models.

For their efforts, the Monroes were recently honored as Foster Parents of the Year by County Executive Michael Breslin. But recognition was the last thing the Monroes had in mind when they embarked upon this path.

"We were on a trip with our church (Delmar Full Gospel) to Mexico," Lucy recalled. "We were helping build an addition to the mission in Juarez."

The mission was a place where people, especially children, could come for food and shelter when they have nowhere else to go.

"The woman who ran the mission would find children foraging through local dump for food," Lucy said. "She also found some children stuffed into refrigerators and just left there."

"When we came back, we wanted to do something here" to alleviate the suffering of kids, she explained. "A situation came up (in 1991) where a relative of a relative had two children who were sexually abused, and she couldn't care for them because she was going back to work fulltime."

There was no home available for them, "So we volunteered our own," Lucy said. "We took them in even before we had finished our training" with the county Department of Social Services.

That was the beginning, and since then there have been 10

Tom and Lucy Monroe

more, one of whom came for a repeat stay and another who was back and forth three times. All of them eventually returned to their homes, which even though strong attachments were made, has always been the Monroes' goal.

"We believe in reconciliation with the parents," Lucy said. "We don't want to replace their parents. We hear from all of (the foster children). They send us Christmas cards and pictures, and in one way or another keep in touch."

The "only stressful times have been when we've had four or more kids in the house at one time," Tom said. "But it's really no different from having four kids of your own."

A large, burly man of 52, Tom raised three children of his own — all of whom are grown. While he gives the outward impression of a being a no-nonsense guy, he is also warm and friendly, which seems the perfect demeanor for a foster father.

Lucy, 48, never had children of her own, although she has done an certifiably excellent job in her capacity of a foster mom. Besides her household responsibilities, she also serves as a trainer in the county's Foster and Adoptive Parent Prevention Program.

"It keeps you young and energetic," Tom said. "It makes you feel like you're back in your 20s, because you have to keep track of trends and what the kids are into these days."

The most rewarding part is "seeing the parents straightening out their lives and the kids going home to where they belong," Lucy said. "A lot of these parents never acquired parenting skills. They're almost like children themselves."

"We've had good relationships with most of the parents," Tom said, "although there are some others who seem like they fallen off the deep end."

The Monroes "view their fostering as a spiritual calling," said Barbara Lynch, foster homes adoption supervisor for the county department of Social Services. "They are two of the kindest, most nurturing and flexible people that you're going to find."

The need for foster families has increased significantly over the past several years, Lynch said, not just in Albany County, but throughout the state and the country.

"A lot of it is attributable to the substance abuse and the domestic violence problem in our society," she said. "It has to be a very serious situation for us to reach the point where we need to displace children."

For information on how to become a foster parent, call Lynch at 447-7515.

V'ville board OKs contract with support staff

By Katherine McCarthy

The Voorheesville school board approved a five-year contract Monday with United Employees of Voorheesville, the union which represents the district's support staff.

The five-year agreement, from July 1, 1995 to June 30, 2000, for the approximately 86 support staff includes an average salary hike of 3 percent per year. The previous three-year contract had included increases of 4 1/2 percent.

The agreement also establishes a "single rate of pay" for district bus runs. Anthony Marturano, assistant superintendent for business, explained that previously, drivers were paid a base rate, and then "extra" trips, for example, a kindergarten run in the middle of the day, were assigned and paid for separately.

Under the new agreement, drivers will be paid one rate regardless of where they go, and assignment of extra trips will be standardized.

The new contract allows the district to determine the dental insurance carrier for UEV members, proved that benefits are substantially the same as those currently offered.

Marturano said the district has already saved money by successfully negotiating for less expensive health insurance, and hopes to save more with the flexibility in dental insurance.

Contributions from new employees for health insurance will change. Employee contributions are currently 10 percent for Blue Cross and nothing for an HMO. New employees will contribute 10 percent for either choice.

Several board members of the board praised the successful contract negotiation. Board President John Cole extended special thanks to outgoing board member William Parmelee, the team of UEV negotiators, Sarita Winchell, district treasurer, Marturano and Superintendent Alan McCartney.

Parmelee said that the UEV had been open-minded and willing to settle, and that "It doesn't take four years to settle a contract," referring to ongoing negotiations with the Voorheesville Teachers Association, whose members have now gone three years without a contract.

Board member C. James Coffin said, "For those concerned with the direction of the teachers' contract, this shows the board will engage in substantial negotiations."

Despite the impasse with the teachers' union, Marturano pointed out that a number of contracts have been settled, including the UEV, the administrators' contract, and the non-union Managerial Confidential Employees.

"Let me put it this way," Marturano said. "The faculty is the only one without an updated contract."

Chopper to get go-ahead

Construction of a 99,000-square-foot shopping center anchored by a Price Chopper supermarket could begin this month provided that building project approval is granted tonight, June 12, by the Bethlehem town board.

Earmarked for the junction of New Scotland Road and Cherry Avenue Extension in Slingerlands, the shopping center would include a 63,000-square-foot Price Chopper, a bank building (to be occupied by Albank), a medical arts building and a handful of retail storefronts.

Price Choppers officials hope to open the complex by December. Last December, the town board voted 4-1 to approve a zoning change for the 30-acre site.

The board will also schedule a public hearing for July 10 on the traffic safety committee's recommendation to designate Kenwood Avenue a through street between Delaware Avenue and Route 32. If so designated, stop signs would be erected at the intersection of Kenwood Avenue with Lavery Drive, Mason Road, Clermont Street, Harrison Avenue, Ridge Road, Alden Court, Greenleaf Drive, Pine Street, Maywood Road, Woodridge Road, Pinetree Drive, Hoyt Avenue and Winne Place.

V'ville school leaders buoyed by budget vote

By Katherine McCarthy

Voorheesville residents last week approved a $12.7 million school budget, in a 697 to 433 vote.

Nicholas Faraone, co-founder of the Voorheesville Taxpayers Association, was elected to a five year term on the board of education, with 478 votes outdistancing John Schachne with 337 votes and Steven Greenberg with 239.

The Voorheesville Public Library budget of $471,050 was approved with 693 yes votes, and Nancy Mosher was elected library trustee.

School Superintendent Alan McCartney was pleased with the vote, noting that historically a turnout of more than 1,000 voters is not a good omen. "It's outstanding," he said. "It's good to have the budget in place, so we can start planning and put things out on bid early."

"This budget is the result of many years' work," school board President John Cole said. "About five years ago," he said, "State aid was really chopped, and we had to pull about 10 percent out of our budget. We've been living with that ever since, and I don't anticipate any growth in state aid."

Cole pointed out that in spite of that reduction, Voorheesville still has nice class sizes. "Our teachers and administrators are doing a good job," Cole concluded.

He said he had not felt any strong opposition from the community before the vote.

Cole said as far as teacher contract negotiations are concerned, "The community feels the majority of the budget is made up of teachers' salaries. We are trying to control that item as much as possible, and that was reflected in the vote."

Both Cole and McCartney attributed the large and favorable turnout to a strong candidates' race. "It was a solid race," Cole said.

Faraone, executive director of the chapter of the American Heart Association, pledged to honor the vote of confidence given him by working hard to ensure the best education possible for Voorheesville students. "The issues were more complex than taxes vs. education," Faraone said, noting that quality education and maintaining the tax rate are not mutually exclusive.

Faraone has earned a reputation as a school budget watchdog. His prepared victory statement promised to "always consider seniors and families on fixed incomes who are asked to carry an ever increasing burden each year so that we may provide an excellent education for our students."

Until final assessment values are available in August, and the town of New Scotland's challenge to the equalization rates are decided, the tax rate remains unclear. In a best case scenario, there will be a zero percent tax increase for the town of New Scotland.

Elsmere native to bike for research

By Susan Graves

Elsmere native Deborah Knight, who now calls Vineyard Haven, Mass., home, will give her Harley a workout this summer.

She's planning a 51-day jaunt circling the country with Women Riding for Research to benefit the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

Knight, whose parents Alfred and Kay Schermerhorn still live in Elsmere, said she learned about the fund-raising ride last year at the Americade in Lake George.

"I knew it's something I had to do," she said of the fund-raising Pony Express Tour '96, which begins June 29.

Until several years ago, Knight said she enjoyed simply riding as a passenger on her husband's motorcycle, but then she caught the bug when her sister began riding motorcycles. She said she took the Motorcycle Safety Foundation course and began shopping around for a bike of her own.

"The bike I felt most comfortable on was a Harley — I felt like I'd always been on that bike," she said.

Knight said she decided to join the Pony Express tour this year partly because one of her best friends died of breast cancer.

"It was very, very difficult," she said. "When I realized that 47,000 others were going to die this year, I knew it was something I had to do."

She said riders are seeking pledges for the fund-raiser and also to help to defray the cost of their expenses for the trip which will cover about 300 miles each day. Riders are responsible for their expenses, which will be about $5,000, Knight said.

The riders will begin their 14,300-mile trek on June 29 in St. Joseph, Mo., and move around the country toward their eventual destination of South Fork Ranch (of former TV series Dallas fame) on Aug 18.

During the ride, many riders from local motorcycle clubs have signed on for legs of the tour. In addition, "Ride-in for a Cure" events are planned along the route to generate money for breast cancer programs in their areas. All of the money that is raised will go directly toward breast cancer research.

Knight said many of the principal riders in the tour are riding in memory of a family member or loved one.

Contributions for the tour can be sent to the Susan G Komen Pony Express Tour, PO Box 121, Vineyard Haven, Mass. 02568.

RCS voters OK packages

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District residents approved a $24.7 million spending for the 1996-97 school year, by a vote of 719 to 616.

Also approved was a proposition to spend up to $492,000 to buy eight school buses, by a vote of 757 to 566.

Three members of the board of education were also elected. They are Shirleen Kreplin, with 798 votes; incumbent Maurice Satin with 776 votes; and incumbent Anthony Schwartz with 652 votes. Incumbent Josephn Laux finished fourth with 576 votes.

Also appearing on the ballot, but separate from the school district propositions:

Residents approved a $125,259 budget for the RCS Community Library by a vote of 735-589 and elected three library trustees: Kathleen Kelleher-Assael (790); Edward M. Shea (755 votes); and Susan Van Alstine (732 votes).

N. Scotland planners OK projects

By Dev Tobin

The New Scotland planning board approved one storage proposal and endorsed a variance for another at last week's meeting.

The board OK'd Chester Boehlke's site plan for Tractside Industrial Park off New Scotland South Road.

Boehlke wants to erect four steel Quonset-hut buildings (three of 5,000 square feet and one of 3,000 square feet) and relocate one wooden building of 440 square feet.

The buildings will be used for cold storage of motor homes, boats and trailers, Boehlke said.

There are currently several motor homes, boats and trailers on the site, which concerned board member William Childs.

"I assume if we come back next spring, we won't see what we see now," Childs said. "I hope it gets cleaned up and stays cleaned up."

Boehlke said that, with the new buildings, all the motor homes, boats and trailers will be under cover.

"I understand the intent of the board and I want to set up a nice place to store," Boehlke said.

While the board approved Boehlke's site plan unanimously, there was no similar consensus on Donald Wagner's proposed self-storage business at the intersection of Route 85 and New Scotland South Road.

The board endorsed an area variance for the project by a 4-2 margin, with board members Annick Belleville and Gloria Ozimek voting no. The zoning board of appeals, which meets on June 25, will have the final say on the variance.

Roz Robinson, representing Wagner, noted that the board had previously approved a use variance for the project without opposition.

She explained that 50-foot setbacks from the roads' rights-of-way "create practical difficulties" in siting the two self-storage buildings, containing 76 units, on the parcel.

Robinson noted that the prior home on the site, and most other buildings in the area, do not conform to the 50-foot-setback requirement.

Belleville said she found self-storage buildings in general to be "very unattractive."

Robinson replied that the project is a "clean, low-traffic, low-noise facility in a commercial zone," and that "an area variance can't be denied on aesthetic grounds."

She added that Wagner was willing to work with the board on screening and traffic flow.

In other business, the board:

- Sent to the ZBA with unanimous endorsement the setback variance request of Timothy and Jeanine McCune for a two-family home they plan to build on Forest Drive. The board also set a public hearing for July 2 on the McCunes' special use permit request for the two-family dwelling, which will include an in-law apartment for Jeanine McCune's mother.

- Sent to the ZBA with unanimous endorsement Denise Garrah's setback variance request for an addition to her home on Route 155.

- Scheduled a public hearing for July 2 on Al Cook's special use permit application for a pond on his Dunbar Hollow Road property.

Faso announces bid for 6th Assembly term

By Mel Hyman

Republican John Faso has announced he will run for a sixth term in the New York State Assembly.

He's been successful on all prior occasions, and despite an anti-Pataki backlash that created problems for the GOP in some county elections last year, he is confident he can turn back the challenge being mounted this year by Bethlehem Democrat Rena Button.

Twice before he's faced a Democrat from the town of Bethlehem, which is the largest municipality in the 102nd Assembly District. In 1994, he outpolled Anthony Schwartz of Selkirk, and in 1992 he breezed past Delmar attorney Joseph Glazer.

Only "time will tell" whether the anti-Pataki sentiment that surfaced last year will reappear this November, Faso said. But even if some bad feelings do linger because of layoffs and relocations of local state workers, he expects voters will judge him on his record of providing constituent service to the district.

"I think people vote for or against an incumbent based on their record," Faso said. "I have always been accessible to citizens in my district and am proud to have assisted countless individuals, local governments and businesses with their specific problems with state government."

While there is always pain attached to the task of budget-cutting, Faso said voters will ultimately appreciate Pataki's attempt to bring fiscal responsibility to the budget process and make New York more competitive.

"High taxes and out-of-control state spending are not yet a thing of the past," he said. "And there are those who still seek a return to the disastrous policies which caused a massive loss of jobs in our district and the entire state of New York."

Faso declined to rule out another attempt for higher political office. His campaign for state comptroller two years ago fell victim to a deal at the GOP state convention that gave Conservative Herb London the Republican nomination in return for his support of the Pataki ticket.

"I never say never," Faso said. "But it's much too early to speculate."

Button chided Faso for his political ambitions. "Someone who is continually running for higher office is not someone who can be effective in serving his district."

Faso, 43, lives in Kinderhook, Columbia County, with his wife Margaret and their two children. He is a graduate of Georgetown University Law Center.

The 102nd district includes all of Schoharie County, all of Greene County except the city of Catskill, three towns in Columbia County and Bethlehem, Coeymans, Westerlo and Rensselaerville in Albany County.

V'ville board fails to reach consensus

By Dev Tobin

After a second meeting in two weeks, the Voorheesville village board still has no consensus on a proposed zoning law amendment that would restrict building on slopes and near watercourses.

The board tabled the matter at last week's special meeting because "We want to find a way that everyone can support it," according to Mayor Edward Clark.

At the board's regular May meeting, Trustees Kevin Garrity and Susan Rockmore said that the new law may go too far in restricting property-owners' rights.

The proposal would prohibit building within 100 feet of a continuous watercourse and on slopes greater than 30 percent, and would require applicants to provide the planning commission with slope stability data, grading plans, and erosion control plans if they want to build on a slope between 12 and 30 percent.

In other business, the board OK'd a point system for qualifying for the fire department's pension program, which was approved by the voters earlier this year.

Firefighters need to earn 50 points each year to qualify for the pension, and can earn points by responding to 10 percent of the department's fire calls (25 points), attending drills (one point per drill, 20 points maximum), attending training courses (one point per hour of training, or less, depending on course duration), sleeping in or standing by at the firehouse (one point per night or four-hour stand-by, 20 points maximum), serving in elected department positions (25 points maximum), attending official meetings (one point per meeting, 20 points maximum), and miscellaneous activities like fire house work days, parades and competitions (one point per event, 15 points maximum).

Give dads their due

Fathers do adapt.

While the fortunate fathers who are rewarded this Sunday with remembrances from their children can take pride in the day, they also have seen the term "father" suffer some real setbacks in recent times.

"Dead-beat dads", "absent fathers" and "child-abusing fathers," are terms which chip away at respect due other men who assume this very important role in society with responsibility and enthusiasm.

There's no question parenthood is a dual responsibility and fathers who have accepted this role, even when there is social turmoil or family disruption, experience the joy of having contributed to the betterment of the next generation.

Economic, social and political upheaval have put extra stress on parenthood in these past two generations and made the role of father far more integral to the well-being of children than at any other time in history.

We have moved from the Norman Rockwell vision of fathers when people's lives were less complicated. Now, the role of "father" has a more comprehensive meaning with inherent pressures.

That so many men surmount these pressures of a changing role of "father" and carry out their responsibilities so well is a tribute to their ability to adapt to the needs of this generation.

V'ville: Heed voters' voice

The Voorheesville school district voters have spoken, passing a budget with a .97 percent increase and electing a school board member who is concerned about holding the line on spending.

Nick Faraone, who was one of the founders of the Voorheesville Taxpayers Association last year, far outstripped his two rivals for the one seat, polling 478 votes to their 337 and 239 votes.

The message is abundantly clear. School district staff must come to grips with reality. The days of five and six percent yearly raises are over, as they have been for some time for many others in the work force. School district spending must be curtailed.

The teachers, who are entering their fourth year without a contract, will likely only alienate the already overburdened taxpayer even more, if an agreement isn't made soon. Settling, even though it might mean less dollars in pocket, would likely be better for teacher morale at the school.

The Voorheesville teachers undoubtedly do a fine job, but working without a contract must tax their energies to the limit. We hope they and the school board are able to reach an agreement on a new contract soon for everyone's sake.

Hats off to Ladybirds

Although the Voorheesville girls softball team didn't make it to the state finals on Saturday, being toppled in the semifinals by Notre Dame of Utica 4-1, the sluggers did prove their mettle for the third year in a row. The team is tough and gutsy and deserves praise for their overall effort.

With team leaders like pitcher Larina Suker, who received the Aileen Durant Award and was named the Colonial Council's Most Valuable Player, the girls played consistently throughout the season, winning their third straight regional title. Suker struck out more than 300 batters this season and enjoyed the support of a strong defense to bring the team to the semifinals.

Perhaps next year will be the charm for coach Nadine Bassler's Ladybirds.

In the meantime, the entire Ladybird team deserves kudos for its sterling performance this year.

Chamber pushes workers' comp reform

By Wallace Altes

The writer of this week's Point of View is president of the Albany-Colonie Regional Chamber of Commerce.

For many employers, the cost of workers' compensation in New York is more than double what competitors in other states pay. On average, costs are more than twice what they were in 1987. In order for New York businesses to remain competitive, fundamental workers' compensation reform must take place this year.

The members of the Albany-Colonie Regional Chamber of Commerce believe that real reduction in costs will occur only if legislation alleviates the fundamental problems in New York's system that led to higher costs and greater burdens for employers. The eventual legislative reform package should reduce rates by 25 percent and address the most uncompetitive aspects of New York's system.

Several fundamental reforms are necessary, including:

• Repeal Dole vs. Dow

This 1972 Court of Appeals decision created a breach in the "no-fault" nature of the workers' compensation system. Under this ruling, third parties, such as manufacturers of equipment, who are sued by injured workers are permitted to involve the workers' employers in the lawsuit. Eliminating the Dole standard should result in at least a six percent reduction in premium costs. A repeal of Dole vs. Dow in no way affects an injured worker's right to sue the manufacturer of the product that caused the injury. The exclusive remedy, no-fault principle of workers' compensation is also breached by New York's Labor Law Sections 240 and 241. These so called Safe Place to Work rules establish absolute liability for construction sites, putting building owners and contractors in a position to face exposure to costly lawsuits, above and beyond workers' compensation, even when an injury was caused by a worker's negligence. New York is the only state in the nation with Dole vs. Dow or "safe place to work" scenarios.

• Fight fraud

sation system could deliver benefits faster, more efficiently and with greater dependability. Further, a time limit for permanent partial disability must be implemented. Nearly all other states have established medical guidelines: thirty-eight states also have a limit on the length of time allowed for permanent partial disability.

• Make managed care more useful and efficient

Since the Managed Care Pilot Program was enacted in 1993, it has been plagued with setbacks caused by prohibitive administrative procedures and burdensome paperwork. After more than two years, only five companies have entered the pilot program. The program should be amended or redrafted to allow managed care to become an accessible and viable program for the majority of employers in the state.

In addition, these incremental reforms are necessary:

to regularly certify that the condition or circumstance of their disability still exists.

• Safety in the work place

Legislation must be enacted to assist employers to improve safety. Employers who refuse to cooperate with work place safety programs should face strong penalties.

Employers should inform their legislators that workers' compensation reform must include action on these provisions. Fundamental legislative and administrative reform is critical to improve fairness, lower costs and to allow New York state to retain jobs currently located here and to attract new businesses bringing new jobs to the state.

Town needs to address Route 144 traffic

Editor, The Spotlight:

In regard to your May 15 edition headline "Town puts brakes on heavy trucks," I am happy the town has responded to the problem of the residents of Beaver Dam Road.

Now the town board and traffic safety committee need to address years of pleas from River Road (Route 144) residents to alleviate the high-speed truck traffic past their homes. As one source in the story noted, "There's not a single light on 144 all the way north to the Port of Albany." Trucks with no local destination rocket past our homes, as a high-speed alternative to the Thruway.

To date my wife and other residents have had a measure of success in dealing directly with major haulers who consistently use this route, but it is time our public officials lend their voices to the effort to improve safety on River Road.

Program important at BC

Editor, The Spotlight:

In last week's Spotlight, Karl Parker lambasted the "World of Difference" program at Bethlehem Central High School.

I was disheartened to learn that Mr. Parker feels the program is a waste of school time. On the contrary, the program is necessary and an important part of the education of our children.

In an ideal world, parents would be teaching their children tolerance and understanding and respect for one another. Unfortunately, as a society, we are failing to do that effectively.

When children walk the high school halls and hear a host of derogatory names or see hate messages scrawled on bathroom walls, it is time for some positive intervention. I applaud the BC school district for taking that step in trying to teach tolerance and eliminate hatred.

Letters

Mr. Parker mentions that it is difficult enough for teachers to teach "the three Rs" during the school day. But unless a climate is created in which all children feel comfortable and safe, how can any learning take place?

This problem is not unique to Bethlehem. It is becoming more prevalent in our society. Intolerance is becoming acceptable.

However, the Bethlehem school district has recognized that "A World of Difference" is a start toward reversing prejudice.

Other school districts are following Bethlehem's lead. This is not a matter of doing what is "politically correct," but rather doing what is in the best interest of all the students of Bethlehem.

Lot sizes need review

Editor, The Spotlight:

A woman who has lived in town all her life and whose father had worked for the town told me she had heard we need three-acre lots which are nine times bigger than the normal lots and she wondered why. I also wonder the same thing.

Lots under the existing AA Residential District are 15,000 square feet and older lots in the Delmar/Elsmere area are about half this size, so the new proposed zoning would encompass 15 old lots to one new lot.

She said her children would not be able to live in town and be near her if the new zoning regulations are enacted. How can a family or older citizens living on a fixed income afford nine normal lots to put one house on and then be able to afford the associated taxes?

In addition, the costs to install roadways, sewer and water at today's prices would be in excess of $180,000 to service very few residents because of the proposed large lot requirement. Wouldn't it be wiser to have smaller lot requirements and distribute these costs to a larger resident population, keeping prices more affordable for the average working family or retired couple?

In my opinion, these issues have been pushed under the rug by LUMAC and should be given serious consideration.

Taking of land puts freedom at risk

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am a resident of the town of Bethlehem who, less than five years ago, purchased a fairly large piece of property as an asset for myself and my children. But now, what I thought was a security for my family is being jeopardized by LUMAC's pending decision.

Joseph Gughemetti and Eugene Wheeler state in The Taking that "America was not a creation of freedom of speech and religion alone, but a struggle of individualists to achieve their own possessions through personal sacrifice and labor. Property rights were as fundamental as any other right and when the property earned through the labor of one's life was confiscated, then the value of that life was also confiscated."

My concern is not only for my assets, but also for an even deeper issue of what's right and wrong and for the principles this country was founded on. I think we need to get back to basics.

All American Sanitation expands into the town of Bethlehem

As some of you know, we are a private, family-owned business serving the Town of Bethlehem area. We have lived in the Town of Bethlehem for the past ten years where we have chosen to raise our family. The sanitation field has been our livelihood for many years.

With the recent sale of our competitor's (Robert Wright Refuse) commercial route to a Connecticut firm, we are prepared to offer both residential and commercial customers our service backed by over twenty years experience.

We have recently offered a FREE month with service activation at a monthly rate of $16. This includes a new waste wheeler and recycling bin.

BECAUSE of this offer by All American our competitor is "now" reducing their rates to $15 and giving 2 free months service if you stay on as their customer. It has become very apparent as to what they are trying to do. (Suppress the growth of our company.)

WOULD our competitors have made this offer available to their customers had it NOT BEEN for All American expanding their business?

We want to be able to give you the best service at a reasonable rate. We will match our competitors with 2 Free Months service and a monthly rate of $15.

As a resident of the town, we hope you give us the opportunity to service you, making All American your choice in Sanitation Service.

Sincerely,

BC program worthwhile

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing in response to Karl Parker's letter to The Spotlight about "The World of Difference" program at Bethlehem Central High School. In his letter, he stated, "It is not the job of the schools ... but the responsibility of the parents ... to teach their children the values of respecting others." He also states that prejudice "out there" is uncommon and not a norm. Speaking as the president of this program, a student at BC and a member of the community, I disagree.

Awareness of differences and respecting others should be something that is taught in the home. If this were happening, we would not have as much of a problem. A walk down the halls at BC gives you an earful of derogatory slurs. The idea that we should "lighten up" suggests that we should ignore the program. We cannot bury our heads in the sand and hope prejudice will go away and that people will somehow learn to be more respectful of one another.

Response to the training of the entire ninth-grade in the World of Difference program has been quite positive.

about what our group does they want to be involved as well. Our group has tripled in size and at least 15 teachers and administrators have already completed the program. We have also received a tremendous amount of positive news coverage from the media. We are not trying to change the world, just raise people's awareness. Why would anyone want to get rid of a program that strives for good?

Our efforts are student-run. We are not depending on teacher assistance, except for some support and involvement when they choose to get involved. We are doing this by ourselves because we believe there is a problem. When all students treat one another with mutual respect, we will have reached an important goal.

Writer urges support for recreational corridor

Editor, The Spotlight:

It has been widely reported that Canadian Pacific may abandon its rail line through our town. A group of conservationists, naturalists and hiking and biking enthusiasts have been working hard on behalf of the community to secure funding and overcome bureaucratic hurdles in an effort to turn the rail corridor into a recreational pathway and a park.

This corridor goes from the Port of Albany up the Normanskill gorge through Delmar and Slingerlands, passing the business district, passing beneath the cliffs at Thacher Park and onward through Altamont to Duanesburg. It passes through some of the most amazing natural areas in the world, right here in our own back yard.

One important advocate supporting this effort is Mark King of Albany County Planning, who was interviewed recently for a Spotlight article. He has devoted a tremendous amount of his own personal time to this effort. On behalf of the people of the town of Bethlehem, I would like to thank King for all his efforts. His most recent accomplishment is securing a $1.8 million grant to fund the initial conversion of the rail corridor for safe recreational use, providing safe street crossings, surfacing material and other trail amenities — at no cost to town residents.

Another player to convert the rail corridor is Scenic Hudson. They have proposed to provide funding to purchase the rail corridor on our behalf. The amount of money that Scenic Hudson could provide will be between $1 million and $2 million, depending on the final appraised value of the property. They would then turn the corridor over to our local authorities, at no cost to town residents.

There are, however, several hurdles in the way of the project. Short line rail companies have proposed purchasing the line, even though it is unlikely they will have funding. It is possible that if the efforts of short line or other suitors delay the purchase by Scenic Hudson long enough, the grant money will disappear due to time restrictions on its use, making it impossible to purchase the corridor and convert it to recreational use.

In fairness to the community, I ask that those involved in efforts to run a railroad there to please expedite the process. I also ask that town residents stand up in support of the project to create a new recreational corridor by contacting town supervisors and county legislators to demonstrate and voice support. We have relied too heavily on the goodness of local naturalists and conservationists. It's time for everyone who would use this resource to stand up.

It would be a shame if all the hard work of Mark King and Scenic Hudson were wasted.

Library should strive to keep books program

Editor, the Spotlight:

We have been privileged to attend the Books in the Morning program given by Helen Adler at Bethlehem Public Library. They were the best presentations and discussions that we have heard since our college days.

Mrs. Adler obviously spent long hours in preparation. We believe that she should be supported and funded by the Bethlehem library for the fall 1996 series.

Mrs. Adler is a retired English teacher from the Bethlehem school system. In all probability, she taught some of your children and introduced them to a lifelong appreciation of ideas and values transmitted by the written word.

We support the library and strongly feel it should provide Mrs. Adler with the necessary means to continue to bring a quality program to our community.

Today, parents and grandparents are encouraged to be role models. By our example, we encourage our youth to read and ponder the written word.

More support for program about books

Editor, The Spotlight:

I attended the Books in the Morning discussion group at Bethlehem Public Library given by Helen Adler. Her method is to present a well-thought-out and documented background of the author and setting before opening the door for discussion. A great deal of preparation is involved.

Groups like this make the library a center for ideas and growth. The library should do everything it can to encourage and support the continuance of Books in the Morning and similar programs. Isn't this what a library is all about?

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Community Library's Young Writers' Workshop will start on Wednesday, July 10. The five Wednesday meetings will be from 1 to 4 p.m.

The program is limited to 15 writers ages 10 to 14, and participants must attend at least four of the five meetings. At the July 17 and 24 meetings, storyteller Marni Gillard will help participants develop story ideas and techniques.

An evening reception on Aug. 14 will mark the completion of the course.

Registration for the program is under way. For information, call 756-2053.

"Team Up With Books" is the Olympic-inspired theme of the summer reading club. The program is designed to encourage children to read throughout the summer.

The club will meet at Feura Bush Library on Thursdays at 2:30 p.m., Becker School on Thursdays at 1 p.m., and Oakwood Manor Community Room on Tuesdays at 10 a.m.

MS group to meet

The Multiple Sclerosis Self-help Group of Albany County will meet on Tuesday, June 18, at 2 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

The self-help group provides an opportunity for education, sharing and socialization for those with MS, their families and friends.

For information, call 427-0421.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1986, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- After receiving five three-year contracts, Bethlehem Central Superintendent Lawrence Zinn's contract was renewed for just one year, through June 1998, by the BC school board.
- Wildwood Residential Services opened a group home for 10 neurologically impaired adults at 232 Gay St. in Delmar.
- The new president of the Albany County League of Women Voters was Susan Richmond of Delmar, who took over from Sally Webb of Glenmont.
- The Village Stage awarded a $1,000 scholarship to Bethlehem Central High School senior Eric Stilan.
- The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk girls softball team lost in the sectional championship game, ending its season with a 16-3 record. Key players were Terry Baker, Fran Losee, Jackie Mulligan, Natalie Fitzgerald, Karen O'Brien, Marie Setford, Tracy Tucker and Amy Kane.

Glenmont CEO receives award

Robert W. Lazar of Glenmont, president and CEO of New York Business Development Corp., was recently named recipient of the lifetime achievement award from the Albany-Colonie Regional Chamber of Commerce's Small Business Council.

The award is presented to an individual demonstrating progressive, long-term achievement in business or industry. Since becoming its president in 1987, Lazar has expanded his organization's loan portfolio from $13 million to $150 million.

Lazar serves on the board of the New York State Small Business Development Centers, Mount Saint Mary College and The Sage Colleges.

Lazar is a member of the board of directors of the Center for Economic Growth and the Capital Region Technology Council.

Three bloop singles and the V'ville dream is over

By Matt McKenna

The Voorheesville softball season ended abruptly on Saturday when the girls lost in the state semifinals, 4-1, to Notre Dame of Utica.

While it was a disappointing note to finish on, the girls did compile a stellar 23-4 record.

Softball

The Blackbirds started out on their road to the final four with a trip to the Clifton Commons where they met Saranac. Senior Larina Suker threw a one-hitter and struck out 10 as Voorheesville eked out a 1-0 victory.

The 'Birds picked up their lone run in the second inning when Suker hit a triple to left-center. She scored on a single by Lauren Lloyd.

"I was surprised we didn't hit better," said coach Nadine Bassler about the Saranac game. "I think we were a little overanxious. In the last five games, we faced five different styles of pitching. But with Larina being on, it was all we needed."

This put the Blackbirds where they had been the past two years — just two games away from a state softball title. Two years ago they were beaten in the semifinals, and last year they won their semifinal game, but lost the championship game.

Suker started off well on Saturday, striking out four out of the first six batters. But after two were out in the third inning she allowed a ground ball single to center. An error put runners on first and second, and three consecutive bloop singles made the score 4-0.

Voorheesville got on the board in the fourth inning when Jane Meade walked to lead off. She moved to second on a wild pitch, and took third on a ground out. She scored on another wild pitch.

Suker hit a two-out triple in the seventh, but was left stranded. Suker threw a nine-hitter, while striking out seven. Voorheesville tallied only two hits.

"This loss hurts, especially more than the previous two," said Bassler. "I've coached a great bunch of kids that I have to see leave now. The five seniors are a very special group of kids."

Voorheesville is losing their pitcher-catcher tandem of Suker and Jen Delaney, as well as infielders Elicia Schachne, Deah Burnham and outfielder Sara Growick.

Suker finished her career with a record of 77-18. She amassed 1,026 strikeouts over the span of her four years on the varsity.

BC girls lax team primed for future

Prior to this year, the Bethlehem girls lacrosse team had not won a game during its five-year existence.

Under the direction of first-year coach John Battaglino, however, that changed as the girls finished the 1996 season with a 5-10 record.

"I saw a lot of potential with this group, and I demanded a commitment," Battaglino said. "This was not a club; it was going to be a team. The girls started off slow. I threw a lot at them early on, and spent a lot of time teaching not only basics, but where to look when they had the ball."

Cold and rainy weather this spring didn't help with the team's preparation. "The first time we were on a fully lined field was for our first game," Battaglino said. "At one point, conditions got so bad I incorporated mud slides into part of our practice."

The players continued to improve over the course of the season, and they began to play "very competitive lacrosse," Battaglino said. Following four close losses during the early part of the season, the tide turned as the girls upset Niskayuna, which had previously beaten Section II champion Saratoga.

"We are definitely a young team on the rise, and we surprised a lot of people this year," Battaglino said. "I have freshmen and sophomores who are not well-kept secrets any more. Every coach and even the officials have complimented the kids on how much they've improved, and how we were knocking on the door to becoming a strong team."

"When we beat Niskayuna 10-9, we busted through the door and went on to win three out of our next four games, outscoring opponents we had lost to earlier in the season by a combined 35-19 margin."

Members of the varsity team included Sarah Bigelow, Chrissy Cedilotte, Lily Corrigan, Winnie Corrigan, Sara Curtin, Melissa Dominelli, Kate Doody, Shauna Dowd, Jill Dugas, Jesse Fein, Marni Hillinger, Sarah Hotaling, Katey Link, Jen Luck, Jennifer MacDowell, Nadine Maurer, Megan McDermott, Kate Muhlfelder, Dana Romanoff, Erica St. Lucia, Megan Stevens, Melanie Thornton, Grace Tsan, Amy Venter and Alli Voetsch.

Battaglino said he is interested in getting a larger number of players involved in the program.

Bulldogs finish 2nd

The Bethlehem Bulldogs, the under-12 girls soccer team, recently placed second in the Valley Soccer Club Creekside Classic Soccer Tournament at Cobleskill.

The Bulldogs triumphed over Catskill and Valley, tied Guilderland, and were defeated by Malta, the first-place team, by only a point.

The Bulldogs' defense was formidable. Kate Metevia, Jessica Menrath, Katie Fage, K.J. Mann, Meghan Blake and Beth Pesnel were in top form.

Forwards Kristen Byrnes, Emily Bernier, Sarah Virgil, Lauren Sullivan, Emily Cohen, Liz Murphy, Stephanie Holmes and Brianna Bubeck were relentless.

Goals were scored by Virgil, Byrnes and Menrath.

Goalkeeper Megan Volo made many terrific saves. She also won the first-place trophy in the tournament shoot-out.

Steve Mann is the head coach of the Bulldogs. He is assisted by Dick Szenson. The team plays in a tournament in Guilderland on Saturday.

Rangers place second in tourney

The Bethlehem Rangers Under-11 soccer team placed second in last weekend's Bethlehem Bee Line Soccer Tournament.

The Rangers finished with a 3-0-1 record. The Rangers were scheduled to meet the Hoosick Falls Panthers for the championship when heavy rain and lightning hit. The final game could not be played and the Hoosick Falls Rangers finished ahead of the Rangers on points.

The Rangers began the day with a game against Latham Circle. Latham Circle came out aggressive, but still fell to the Rangers by a score of 2-0. Ranger goals were scored by Bob Barrowman on a penalty kick and Brendan Tougher on a cross from David Medvesky. The outside midfield play of Michael Canavan and the sweeper play of Matt Swiatowicz aided in the win.

The second game matched the Rangers against the Lakehill Lightning. The Rangers had beaten Lakehill on Thursday, 4-2, however, Lakehill got a bit of revenge for that loss by scoring a goal in the final minute of play and the game ended in a 1-1 tie.

The lone Bethlehem goal was scored by Emily Petraglia. John Thibdeau played a fine game in goal under heavy Lakehill pressure.

The next match pitted the Rangers against the Greenbush Gladiators. The Rangers rebounded from the previous game and came away with a 2-0 victory. Goals were scored by Matt Glannon on a corner kick from Evan Gall and by Medvesky. Fine defensive performances were delivered by Dominic Ciprioni, Colleen Bardelli and Sean McManus.

The next contest pitted the Rangers against Brunswick, and they played their best soccer of the day in scoring a 6-0 victory.

Two goals each were scored by Tougher and Matt Curtin. Single goals were scored by Tony Cassaro and Barrowman. The defense was anchored by Brenden Ennis, Patrick Farley and Jeff Pappalardi played strong from their midfield positions.

Shredded Eagles prevail BC tennis duo sparkles in state tourney

By Scott Isaacs

The Bethlehem Shredded Eagles notched their first win in the Eastern New York Connie Mack League last week in dramatic fashion, beating the South Troy Dodgers, 5-0.

The victory came as a total surprise to nearly everyone involved, as South Troy boasted a lineup of all-star proportions, with seven of its nine members on the Suburban, Big 10 or Colonial Council All-League teams.

Pitcher Nathaniel Sajdak stymied the Dodgers, allowing only four hits and walking two. He did not strike out a batter, but gained 11 of the 21 outs via groundballs. His pitching was backed up by the sterling play of Mike DelGiaco, forced into action at second base due to Brian Rice's illness.

Connie Mack

Bethlehem struck early against South Troy starter Jim Reddick as Todd Everleth's two-out single in the bottom of the first brought home Jeff McQuide and Dan Conway to push the Eagles out to a 2-0 lead. Insurance runs were added in the bottom of the third, as Chris DiMuria and Everleth knocked successive singles to drive in runs.

Everleth later scored the fifth run in the fifth inning, when he singled and advanced to third base on Sajdak's grounder. South Troy posted no serious threats after the fourth inning, when Sajdak worked out of a bases-loaded jam to preserve the shutout.

Sajdak was elated following the game. "This is easily the best game

I've ever pitched. Even though I wasn't overpowering them, I hit my spots and made them take bad swings. The defense was superb, especially the play of Everleth at third and DelGiaco at second.

"Hopefully, I can build on this experience" he added, "knowing that there is no team in this league that is unbeatable."

Dolphins slate signups

The Delmar Dolphins Swim Club has slated new member registration for its summer program on Friday, June 14 and Tuesday, June 18, from 6 to 7 p.m. at the administrative conference room at Bethlehem Central High School.

The club is open to children 6 to 18 who are residents of the town of Bethlehem or the school district. Athletes must be able to swim 25 yards without assistance.

For information, call Joann Hill at 439-8309.

BC junior Marc Borzykowski and freshman Chris Grajny recently represented Section II in the New York State Tennis Championships held at the U.S. Tennis Association complex in Queens.

The duo was one of three doubles teams out of Section II. They managed to reach the semi-finals despite being unseeded in the sectional tournament. They captured the third and final spot by beating Schuylerville.

This sent the team to Flushing Meadows where they defeated a team from Section 5 in the first round, (6-2, 6-4). In the second round the team faced a Section II opponent and won (6-4, 7-6), with a 7-2 tie breaker in the second set.

In the quarterfinals the two won in straight sets again, (6-3, 6-2), against a Section I team. The semi-finals pitted the tandem against a Section I team as well. However, the season was brought to a close with a (6-2, 6-4) loss.

"It was surprising how well they did at States," said BC coach Derek Minkler. "With metal toughness, they came back from defeat with great confidence."

Father's Day

Give Dad the Perfect Gift for Father's Day...

Don't Drink and Drive!

Happy Father's Day

Good driving requires more than keeping alert and driving defensively. What you do before you get into that car is even more important. If you drink alcohol and then get behind the wheel — no matter how good a driver you are — you become a danger to yourself, your passengers, pedestrians and other motorists.

Unfortunately in Albany County, most DWI fatalities involve passengers.

New member to serve on board

The library is pleased to welcome Nancy Mosher to its board of trustees.

Mosher, a member of the Friends of the Library, has a long record of service and dedication to the library, and we look forward to her involvement on the board.

Thanks also to Robert Barron, who was on the ballot, and to the community for demonstrating its commitment to the library at the polls. The library attempts to be responsive to community needs and tries to provide the best educational and informational services possible.

Ideas and suggestions from the community are always welcome.

The Friends report that Memorial Day activities were a smashing success. Almost everyone walked away with a bag full of books, and the bake sale was reduced to crumbs in a very short time.

Thanks to bookbinders Elizabeth Moore and Ralph Weller who demonstrated their craft and Arnold Patashnick, who gave free appraisals of old books and materials.

The "Take a Chance on June" raffle is off and running. Stop by and get your ticket to be eligible for the daily drawings throughout the month.

The Every Other Thursday Night Poets meet on June 13 at 7 p.m. The group will read from their work on Tuesday, June 18, at 7 p.m. at the William K. Sanford Library in Colonie.

Art Expressions adult sketch club will meet tonight, June 12, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Bring materials for drawing or painting.

Institute memorabilia reflects 20-year history

The library is honored this month to display "Setting the Stage: Design from the Collection of the New York State Theatre Institute." This retrospective contains production posters, photography, costume illustrations and set models and is displayed with accompanying explanatory text in the front and rear hall galleries.

Bird as part of the 1986 cultural exchange.

In addition to the posters, there are five miniature set models, built by Eldon Elder, Robert Klingelhofer, Mark Baird and Victor Becker. Renderings by NYSTI's award-winning costume designers and color production photographs by Fred Richard, Timothy Raab and Joseph Schuyler round out the exhibit.

Exhibition of "Setting The Stage" was made possible through the generosity of the Institute and the interest of library patron Ed. Lange, who is also the Institute's associate artistic director. Lange has directed about two dozen productions in his 15-year tenure with NYSTI, more than half of his career total. His most recent work is Beauty and the Beast. The library is grateful for his efforts in bringing this exhibit through our doors.

Our thanks are also extended to Velma Bushell, who has donated a generous portion of her button collection for exhibit this month in the library's display cases. Buttons made of wood, whalebone, horn, taguanut, lucite, and mother-of-pearl commemorate everything from classical composers to nursery rhymes. There is even a card of old "Bond Street Spats" buttons and a souvenir button glazed with volcanic ash from Mount St. Helens!

The library is a veritable museum this month. Don't miss us!

Louise Grieco

The concept of founding director Patricia Di Benedetto Snyder, the Institute begins its 21st season this year. Its mission is to produce high-standard professional theater while using its productions as teaching vehicles. In-service work, outreach, internships, and the theater arts school are all part of this unique educational venue.

Committed to international cultural exchange, the Institute was the first company from the U.S. to perform in the former U.S.S.R. when cultural relations resumed with that country. The Institute has also brought performances to Canada, France, Italy, Jordan and Israel.

The library display provides a public window into the art and design of theater. Posters from Peter Pan, the institute's inaugural performance at the Egg in 1978, to last season's Beauty and the Beast showcase the work of illustrators who have achieved national and international acclaim.

Included are many posters by Winslow Pinney Pels (Our Town, The Wizard of Oz, The Secret Garden), as well as the work of Timothy Raab (The Crucible), Dahl Taylor (Murder on the Nile, To Kill A Mockingbird) and others. Of special interest are two posters designed by the Moscow Musical Theater for Rag Dolly and Blue

Bethlehem library plans youth art show

Young artists are invited to submit their work in the Bethlehem Public Library's art show entitled: "Art On The Rise: Art by the Youth of Bethlehem."

The deadline for applications is Sept. 9. The show will take place in the library's community room on Sunday, Sept. 15.

School-aged children residing in Bethlehem can submit up to two works in any of the following categories: oil or acrylic painting, sculpture, photography, drawing, watercolor, printmaking or mixed media.

The winners from each category will be invited to display their work in a month-long group show at the library.

For information, call 439-9314.

Hoffman's

Not much of the former 5,700-square-foot restaurant will remain once the backhoes and construction crews arrive, according to William J. Simpson, senior vice president and project engineer for Hoffman's.

"There will be one wall left standing," he said. Otherwise it will be an entirely new building consisting of about 7,300-square-feet. Adjoining the car wash facility will be a three-bay Jiffy Lube. The facade of the building will be colonial brick with a gray asphalt shingle roof.

The pending sale of the former Back Home Buffet comes about six months after its owner, a Japanese bank, spurned a purchase offer by Albany restaurateur John Manning who wanted to turn the building into a delicatessen/banquet house. The building and land are appraised at about $350,000.

The restaurant has been vacant since late 1993, and the bank foreclosed in March 1995.

The Delmar Hoffman's will feature a complete service car wash, including an express detailing service. Construction of the new facility is expected to take six to 12 months once the ZBA gives its approval, and site plan approval is granted by the town planning board.

A public hearing on the project is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, July 10.

Simpson said several combination Hoffman's/Jiffy Lube operations are on the drawing board and should be up and running in the not-too-distant future.

"We recently bought the Jiffy Lube franchise for this area," he said. Besides Delmar, joint facilities are also planned for Halfmoon, Hudson and Kingston.

Getting your car washed and serviced at the same location is the wave of the future, Simpson said.

"It's just the kind of customer service people are looking for," he said. "It's similar to the changes service stations have undergone. Instead of a station that just pumps gas, all of the new ones have convenience stores attached where you can buy newspapers and milk."

Hoffman's one-stop operation should set it apart from competing facilities on Delaware Avenue such as Delmar Car Wash and Quick Lube, Simpson said.

problem when preparing a spreadsheet for the project's engineering consultant, C.T. Male Associates.

The money, from a district seed money account that included $150,000 from the adjacent Larned mining operation and $77,000 in state legislative member items, plus interest, was used to pay for drilling test wells and preliminary engineering work on the district, Reilly noted.

As soon as he recognized the problem, Reilly said he authorized an informal audit by the town's auditor, Williams Matt & Rutnik.

"Before we went to Audit and Control (for state approval of the district), we had to have a supply, and that's where the money was spent," Reilly said. "There's not a penny missing."

Several board members expressed concern that stretching out the payback time would change the financial arrangement that residents who signed petitions for the district had agreed to.

"It's important what the people were told, how much money for how many years," said Councilman Scott Houghtaling.

"It's a fairness issue," said Councilwoman Victoria Ramundo.

Reilly said that eliminating one of two storage tanks would save about $50,000, and that eliminating the emergency power generator would save approximately $20,000. He added that the county

Post office working to stop dog attacks

In observance of Dog Bite Awareness Week from June 10 through 17, the Delmar Post Office and the Humane Society are reminding all local pet owners to make sure that their pets are properly restrained so that they don't attack letter carriers or others.

Farmers

Also expected are members of the town board, who will be voting soon on whether to adopt the master plan as the town's development blueprint for the next 20 years.

"In order to obtain a broader understanding before any decisions are made regarding the land use management plan, it is my intention to have the concerns of farmers and large landholders addressed and reviewed," Fuller said.

Councilwoman Doris Davis welcomed the special session.

"I'm certainly open to making changes that seem reasonable," she said. "I think everyone on the board is receptive to what the farmers think. No one has closed any doors on this."

The special forum will take place from 3 to 9 p.m. at the town hall, 445 Delaware Ave. The meeting time was arranged so as to provide farmers with ample opportunity to attend, Fuller said.

stories, we said, 'Oh, come on, this is the 20th century. The Germans are an intelligent people, they wouldn't sink that low.'

Segore recalled that they were told they'd be relocated to the East, where they would receive special treatment.

"The East was Poland, the death camps, and the special treatment, the gas chambers," Segore said.

For three and a half days, the Segores were crammed in a hot and humid cattle car with 65 people, with just a bucket for relieving themselves and no food or water.

Ten percent of the people in the car died, Segore said, before reaching Auschwitz-Birkenau, the major German death camp in southwest Poland, in the middle of the night, to be greeted by screaming SS guards and snarling German shepherds.

A Polish Jew told Segore where he was, and that people were gassed and burned there. "He walked me to where people lining up for factory work, it was sheer luck," Segore said.

As the Red Army pushed the German Army first out of the Soviet Union then out of Poland, the Nazis moved prisoners westward in an attempt to hide their crimes, Segore said.

From Auschwitz, Segore was sent to Buchenwald in Germany, site of medical "experiments" that frequently involved injecting inmates with diseases.

From there, survivors were marched to Mauthausen, and two weeks later, on to Gunskirchen in Austria, a camp in the middle of the woods with no water and eventually no food for the inmates.

On May 5, 1945, the 71st Infantry Division of the U.S. Army liberated the camp and saved Segore's life.

"I weighed 40 pounds, I was a skeleton walking," he said.

Segore returned to Europe for the 50th anniversary of the end of the war, where he met up with his liberators.

"One hundred and forty GIs who had liberated the camp were there," he said, "and I shook all of their hands."

Segore asked one former soldier how they had found the camp, which was in the middle of the woods and not on any map.

The answer was appalling — their commanding officer wanted to find out what the stench was, and his troops followed their noses to the starving inmates.

Segore recalls finding a can of Spam, eating the whole thing, then collapsing.

"I hadn't had any decent food for a year," he recounted. "I was taken to a hospital and spoon-fed for six months. They couldn't even get an IV into my veins. It was a Roman Catholic hospital, the nuns saved me."

Segore said he vowed to himself in the camps that he would survive.

"I survived because 51 years ago I adopted an attitude that nothing would beat me," Segore said. "I also vowed that as long as I live, I'll keep talking about it. God could call me tomorrow, and the Holocaust deniers are waiting for the survivors to disappear to spew their lies."

Segore hopes that remembering and speaking about the past will help stem hatred in the future.

"Hatred starts in your home. You hear it from your parents, your grandparents, things about Jews and blacks, guineas and Polacks. Don't hurt your fellow human being because he's different," Segore urged. "Don't hate. You'll be a fine citizen if there's no hatred in your heart."

Segore strives to live up to his urgings, wearing a "Don't Hate" button and a yellow Star of David emblazoned with the words, "Never Forget."

Segore said it would be foolish to hate today's Germans. "I might dislike them," he said, "but I'd never hate them."

One mistake Segore says he'll never make is to leave the U.S., which, ironically, his parents had.

His father was an electrical engineer who had worked with Charles Steinmetz at General Electric in Schenectady. Segore's parents married here, and returned to Hungary in 1904.

Segore is thrilled to be an American and was happy to be drafted into the U.S. Army in 1950, serving in the Signal Corps in Korea.

"I was a corporal," Segore said, "and as proud as if I'd been a general."

He urged the students to be active Americans, to find five to 10 minutes to be informed.

"Who's your legislator?" he asked. "They make laws, write to them, they especially like to hear from students."

More important, Segore advised the students to follow those laws, and particularly to fight discrimination, which he still perceives as a problem in America.

"Laws are good," Segore reminded the audience, "but who implements the laws"

Asked if he ever went back to Hungary, Segore said he had been reluctant to return.

"Would you go back to a country that strips away your citizenship, says you'll be deported, that you're no longer Hungarian, and then turns you over to SS butchers," he asked bitterly.

In 1976, though, he did return, when his one surviving brother said he had a special present for him. Segore showed the audience the railroad watch he had been clutching like a talisman as he spoke.

Palm-size and silver-edged, he said it had belonged to his father, and explained that before the war, when jewelers repaired watches, they engraved the owner's name in the watch.

In 1971, Segore's brother was working in his own jewelry shop when a man came in with a watch to be repaired.

"My brother read our father's name and shouted at the man, 'You are the SS' and tried to grab him. He ran, leaving the watch behind," he said. "So in 1971, the watch comes back to its rightful owner."

Segore firmly believes in the value of education. He has spoken to over 7,000 school children since 1960, when he began sharing his experience. He feels gratified when he receives letters telling him he has made a difference.

"Try your best," he said. "Aim high, have an attitude. Listen to your teachers. Teachers spend time discussing, pouring their hearts out. Learn and be aware. Urge your parents to exercise their constitutional right. Vote! When you're that age, you vote too."

It is clear that Segore savors the life he fought so hard to open. Ten years ago, Segore had open heart surgery for the second time.

When told he only had a 40 percent chance of making it, he said, "Go ahead, doctor, I already gained 40 years."

Segore spoke courtesy of the Holocaust Survivors and Friends Education Center, which has an office and library in Latham Circle Mall.

Linda Wolkenbreit, assistant principal for the middle level and director of humanities, said teachers saw a need to invite Segore to the school after Jewish stars were drawn on some students' lockers.

Next year at the high school, the Anti-Defamation League will conduct its "A World of Difference" workshops, which are designed to teach students to respect each other's differences.

A BETHLEHEM NETWORKS PROJECT

MiddleWorks gains national recognition

Congratulations to MiddleWorks, a group of caring people at Bethlehem Central Middle School, for the national recognition they have earned. During the 1994-95 school year, they created a booklet, "Parent to Parent, A Guide for Bethlehem Central Middle School Parents." The handbook won an Award of Excellence in the National School Public Relations Association's Publications and Electronic Media Contest.

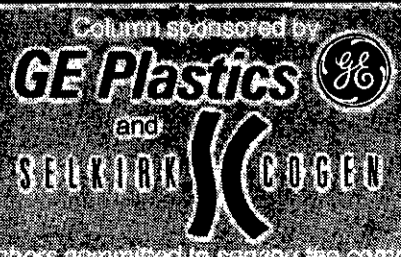

There were 788 entries in this year's contest, and MiddleWorks received one of 72 awards. The winners will be on display at the association's seminar in Phoenix, Ariz. in July, and Bethlehem MiddleWorks will receive a plaque.

The "Parent to Parent" handbook was written to help with the important job of parenting. The handbook includes ideas, thoughts and tips from parents, guidance counselors and community members.

MiddleWorks surveyed parents about curfews, allowance, bedtimes, TV viewing and other issues. The results of the survey are included in the handbook to help parents see how other parents feel about critical decisions affecting their children.

Last fall, the handbook was distributed to all middle school parents at open houses. This fall, the handbook will be given to sixth-grade parents.

MiddleWorks began as a task force of the Bethlehem Community Partnership. Other MiddleWorks initiatives are the sixth-grade family picnic in the fall and the dessert reception for fifth-grade parents in the spring.

RCCA hosts Troy's Riverfront Arts Fest '96

By Joshua Kagan

The Tulip Fest may have been a wash, but Capital District residents will get another shot at an outdoor festival with the Riverfront Arts Fest '96 this weekend on and around River Street in Troy.

The Arts Fest, which is put on by the Rensselaer County Council for the Arts, will feature many musicians, including four prominent blues bands, who will play on two stages and a variety of activities for the whole family.

"The blues players are very well-known by blues followers," general coordinator really been an evolution of different activities."

This year's arts fest, which is expected to draw 25,000 to 45,000 people, depending on the weather, will feature the Labatt Blues Stage and the Celebration Stage. On Saturday, June 15, on the blues stage, Tommy Castro will play at 5:30 and Magic Slim & the Teardrops will play at 7 p.m. On Sunday, June 16, Big Jack Johnson will play at 3 p.m. and Carey Bell will play at 5 p.m.

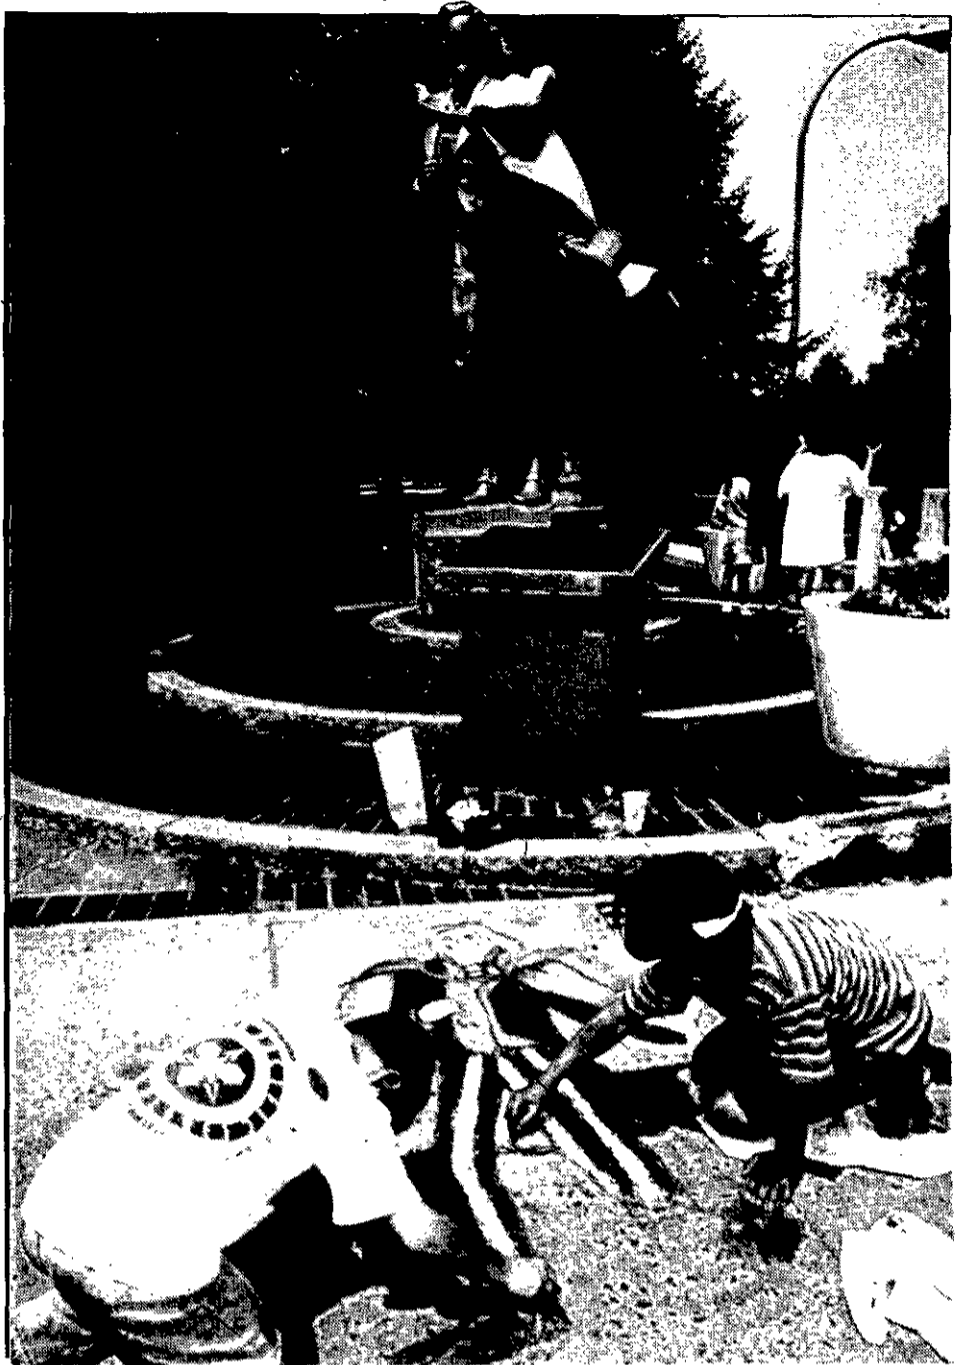

Alex Torres and the Latin Kings, who have played locally on numerous occasions, will headline a diverse line-up of music on the Celebration Stage. Torres "is really great and has a following of his own," Williams said.

This year's festival will highlight a new venue—an Arts How-To Pavilion. Artists will demonstrate their skill at various techniques that are covered in RCCA programs. "We decided to feature some of the things we teach in our classes."

The unique street-painting competition is also planned. Anyone can enter, and children are especially encouraged to do so. One hundred to 125 painters are expected to take part.

"It's really great to watch the street painters," said Williams. "After a couple of hours they're covered in chalk. It's quite a sight."

RCCA will give out about $1,000 in prizes in the competition. There are separate prizes Sidewalk painting is just one of the many featured attractions at this weekend's 31st Annual Riverfront Arts Fest in Troy, the oldest arts festival in New York.

Amy Williams said. "We have a lot of other activities and music for people who don't follow blues. There's a lot of things for a lot of people—that's what makes it engaging."

This is the 31st annual arts fest, which makes it the longest running arts festival in New York.

"We don't let it get stale," Williams said. "Every year we try to do something new. It's for kids. An additional $700 will be given out in a fine arts competition at the festival.

There will be plenty of children's entertainment at the Kid's Crafts Pavilion, the Busker's Faire and the Children's Stage. Magicians, puppeteers, jugglers and hands-on craft activities will be featured.

"We're trying to cater to families who are looking to do something special on Father's Day weekend."

There will be plenty of gifts available at the Riverfront Craft Sale for late Father's Day shoppers. There will also be plenty of vendors selling a variety of food.

The arts fest will run from noon to 8 p.m. on June 15 and from noon to 7 p.m. on June 16.

For information, call RCCA at 273-0552.

The Egg cuts back dancing for new 96-97 season

With potential cutbacks in its budget from the state The Empire Center at the Egg in Albany has reduced its season from 40 events this past season to 34 performances this coming season.

The cuts are mainly in dancing events which executive producer Joan Roberts admits have not drawn well.

In their stead, more children's shows will be presented. Roberts faces a cut of almost $125,000 from last year's state appropriation of $550,000.

She's now booking more affordable events such as "emerging artists" and family programs, mainly shows designed for children which are palatable for their parents.

Roberts is sticking with the successful cabaret program where New York soloists take their turns in Albany. However she is concentrating these acts mainly during six weeks in the winter and moving the programs from Monday nights to a potentially more promising Friday night schedule.

Also on the schedule are some appearances of a Gilbert and Sullivan troupe but the main attraction during this new season will be two nights (Nov. 1 and 2) of appearances by Spalding Gray and his story-telling.

Info at 473-1061.

Williamstown starts 42nd season with Tennessee Williams' play

One of Tennessee Williams' lesser known plays, The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore, opens the Williamstown Theatre Festival June 19 with Academy Award winner Olympia Dukakis playing the role of the eccentric mother.

For Dukakis, the return to Williamstown is recognition of her kinship to the company where, as a young actress, she cut her professional teeth. Eventually, she went to Broadway and films while also running her own theater company in New Jersey. All this while raising a family.

While the Williams' play is being presented for two weeks for an audience, the full company will be rehearsing for the extravagant comedy-drama The Royal Family. The expansive play deals with a theatrical family and as written by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, it is a little-disguised look at the famed Barrymore stage family.

Reservations at (413) 597-3400.

Colonie Spotlight Theatre plans auditions for Rumors June 26, 27

The seven-week Colonie Youth Summer Theatre program, sponsored by the Town of Colonie Parks and Recreation Department, has scheduled auditions for roles in Neil Simon's Rumors at 6 p.m. June 26 and 27 at the Shaker High School auditorium. Students age 13 to 21, from south and north Colonie are welcome to audition. Rehearsals will run Mondays through Fridays 6 to 10 p.m.

Jason Bockis is the program director and is interested in technical and support staff for the production which plays for two nights August 9 and 10.

Martin P. Kelly

A smaller variety show will also be staged during the summer from among the participants in the program.

Bockis can be contacted at 783-2760.

Theatre Institute retrospective on view in Bethlehem Library

As it finishes its 20th anniversary season, the NYS Theatre Institute is exhibiting a retrospective of its many productions at the Bethlehem Library through June 29.

Production posters, costume and scenic designs, and production photography of scenes from the many shows over 20 years are on display. The display commemorates the opening production of Peter Pan in 1978 through the most recent Beauty and the Beast.

MacHaydn Theater opens The Sound of Music

As its second production of the summer season Chatham's MacHaydn Theater opens a revival of The Sound of Music tomorrow (June 13) as a matinee.

This is a unique opening time initiated last season by MacHaydn which takes advantage of bus tours which only see shows during the daytime.

Running for two weeks, the well-known show tells the story of the Von Trapp family of singers escaping the Nazis prior to World War II.

Reservations available at 392-9292.

Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS in MOST GOOD GOLFERS PLAY EITHER A SLIGHT DRAW OR A FADE ON MOST OF THEIR TEE-TO-GREEN SHOTS. REASON IS THAT IT'S ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO HIT THE BALL DEAD STRAIGHT TIME AFTER TIME.

DRAWING THE BALL FROM RIGHT TO LEFT GIVES YOU A LOWER FLIGHT AND EXTRA ROLL FOR MORE DISTANCE. FACING THE BALL GIVES YOU GREATER HEIGHT AND A SOFTER-LANDING SHOT FOR GREATER CONTROL.

GO WITH THE SHAPE THAT STRENGTHENS YOUR WEAKNESS.
