Spurlock renounces Bethlehem IDA funds

By Mel Hyman

Bethlehem Councilman Ted Putney — who is also chairman of the town's Industrial Development Agency — was caught off guard Monday by Spurlock Adhesives' decision to withdraw its application for $7.5 million in tax-exempt bonds.

Spurlock

Spurlock executives, who want to build a $9.5 million plant on Route 144 in Glenmont to produce liquid formaldehyde and formaldehyde-based resins, advised Putney of their decision less than an hour before the IDA's 4 p.m. meeting.

The purpose of the meeting was to reconsider the IDA's previous decision not to seek lead agency status for the environmental review of the project.

As a result of Spurlock's intention to seek other means of financing, Putney said it was futile for the IDA to send a new letter to the state Department of Environmental Conservation stating its desire to

The lead agency ball is in the state Department of Environmental Conservation's court.

Sometime within the next several weeks, EnCon will decide whether it will cede lead agency status to the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency for the environmental review of the $9.5 million formaldehyde production plant proposed by Spurlock Adhesives for an

But that doesn't mean the town plans to relinquish control of the project to EnCon.

NS board nixes '97 tax cut

Using surplus too risky, majority says

By Dev Tobin

Maybe after five years of property tax decreases, made possible by steady growth in sales tax revenues, New Scotland taxpayers have come to expect a tax cut every year, as Supervisor Herb Reilly contends.

But using what may be a temporary surplus in the highway fund to deliver another tax cut in 1997 is too risky, a town board majority firmly told Reilly at two budget workshops in the past week.

The board unanimously adopted a $3.8 million preliminary budget Monday that will raise taxes slightly for town residents outside the village of Voorheesville, while village residents will see a big drop in their town taxes.

The surplus of about $65,000 developed because town highway crews spent so much time working on emergency repair projects related to disaster-level storms that they were unable to complete maintenance and repair projects scheduled for 1996, Reilly said.

The town has been reimbursed more than $300,000 for the storm-related work by the Federal Emergency Management Agency. But the estimated surplus represents maintenance work that still needs to be done, even if it could not be done this year, argued Councilman Scott Houghtaling, the board's liaison to the

Bethlehem looks to regulate tower sites

By Mel Hyman

Rather than proposing a moratorium on the construction of cellular phone towers in Bethlehem, town attorney Bernard Kaplowitz has come up with a proposed local law to regulate them.

"What purpose would a moratorium serve? By law we're not allowed to prohibit them, so it made sense to deal with the problem now rather than later," he said.

After researching the topic and checking into how other communities have handled the proliferation of wireless communication towers, Kaplowitz proposed a local law that places several restrictions on cellular phone towers.

At last week's meeting, the town board

What we're trying to do is regulate where they can go, and the ways they impact the environment.

Bernard Kaplowitz

scheduled a public hearing on the proposed legislation for Wednesday, Dec. 11, at 8:05 p.m.

"They're cropping up all over the country," Kaplowitz said. "The federal government has ruled (through the Federal Communication Commission) that these are public utility structures, and as such we have no power to keep them out. What we're trying to do is regulate where they can go, and the ways they impact the environment."

The construction of cellular phone towers in upstate New York has mostly occurred beside interstate highways such as the Thruway and the Northway, so motorists can use their cellular phones. The towers range in height from 75 to 200 feet, and connect cellular phone customers with the regular telephone network.

Three towers have been approved in

V'ville school facilities face overflowing future

By Katherine McCarthy

Like many suburban school districts with good reputations, Voorheesville schools' enrollment is growing.

Anthony Marturano, Voorheesville's assistant superintendent for business, alerted the school board to the implications of that fact during Monday night's meeting, when he presented the second part of his facilities report.

With classrooms already at maximum capacity and enrollment continuing to increase, Marturano and the committee of 18 who have worked on the report during the last 13 months, had some basic advice for the board — Act, and act now.

"Our No. 1 recommendation," Marturano said, "is to tackle the hard issues now, not next year, not in the spring, but now."

Although the committee closely examined areas that need work, it stopped short of making specific recommendations about how many new classrooms should be built.

"We had a dilemma about how specific to get," Marturano said. "We've purposely said, 'We don't know what you'll do, but please do something.' Please sit down, and see what you can do to make changes."

Committee member Dean Sommer clarified the purpose of the report.

"We tried to defer to the board," he explained. "We didn't feel the specifics were part of our charge. For instance, we had suggested hiring an architect, but took it off. We wanted to report to the board regarding the need, and let the board discuss specifics."

Besides the need to immediate action, the committee also recommended increasing storage; moving the sixth grade to the high school; upgrading playing fields ("Our school and grounds are in use relentlessly," Marturano said.); looking to share services with other governmental entities, like sharing bus parking with the village of Voorheesville; and building classrooms at the high school.

Marturano noted that the lack of proper facilities is beginning to influence programs at the school. For instance, students are required to take 6 1/2 credit hours, but frequently there is not space to teach the electives that would make this possible.

"I don't mean to be flip or disrespectful," he said, "but this is moving like a herd of turtles. Now we've got the Grim Reaper looking in the face of our programs."

At Monday's meeting, Superintendent Alan McCartney presented his enrollment figures, which bore out Marturano's fears.

Since 1991, the elementary school population has risen from 662 students to 738, an increase of 11 percent. Harder hit is the high school, where the enrollment went from 527 in 1991 to 626 in 1996, an increase of 18 percent.

McCartney's projections for the next five years show a decline of almost 9 percent in the elementary school, but continued growth at the high school, with an increase of nearly 11 percent in population.

McCartney explained his estimates are derived from the Albany County birth rate, and the "survival ration," or the number of students expected to complete their schooling in the district, as well as an estimated new building of three or four new houses a year.

McCartney's figures also do not reflect proposed large developments in the district like Claremont Estates and Tall Timbers, which could add as many as 50 students to the district for a few years in a row as early as 1998.

McCartney's recommended looking at the facilities problem from a curriculum point of view.

"Our main concern is to make sure we provide academic space for our kids. We need to decide what our curriculum will be and design the space around it," he argued. "After the course is set, someone could come in to look at things and we could begin to get rough dollar estimates."

Marturano recommended that the board and the committee meet in a public session soon to discuss the committee's findings.

V'ville teachers look to arbitration

Contract dispute unresolved after more than four years

By Katherine McCarthy

Binding arbitration may be the next step for Voorheesville teachers, now in their fourth year without a contract.

Voorheesville Teachers Association president Mark Diefendorf seemed discouraged following a recent membership meeting, which he described as "volatile."

"I presented the latest salary 'what if' scenario," Diefendorf said, "and it was overwhelmingly rejected."

Both sides continue to work on numbers, and other issues like health insurance co-payment. The most recent salary proposal from the VTA is a 21.6 percent increase over six years; the school board's proposal is 19.04 percent for the same period.

The allocation of retroactive pay remains an outstanding issue. Diefendorf estimated that 50 of the district's 100 teachers were at the membership meeting in early November. To ensure that he had quorum for binding arbitration, he then circulated a petition among the entire membership, which showed that about half wanted to look at the possibility of binding arbitration.

Diefendorf is reluctant to take this step.

"Binding arbitration takes the vote out of the teachers' hands," he explained. "An arbiter will choose one side or the other, not the middle. An arbiter could go either way. The VTA has no say-so."

The executive committee and negotiating committee were scheduled to meet Tuesday to consider what to do next.

"There is also post-fact-finding mediation," Diefendorf explained, "which would come beforehand. We'd like to take all steps possible."

Diefendorf speculated that the recent contract settlement in Berne-Knox-Westerlo has made Voorheesville teachers eager to settle their contract.

"Berne-Knox-Westerlo has stirred up the water and established new rules in people's minds," he said. "The top salary at Berne-Knox-Westerlo is now $66,000. We're looking for $62,500 for the end of our contract."

Diefendorf pointed out that except for the top levels at BKW, Voorheesville's proposed contract is equal to or surpasses the remaining steps in the salary schedule.

School board President John Cole said that the Voorheesville contract compares favorably with the BKW settlement.

"Some things about the Berne-Knox-Westerlo settlement are disturbing," Cole said. "Like where the money went. The first three and last three steps saw the increase. It doesn't do much for the core."

Cole pointed out that both sides in Voorheesville are trying to equitably meet the teachers' needs.

"How teachers react to the Berne-Knox-Westerlo settlement will depend on where they are (in the salary schedule)," he said. "That's where the challenge is."

Cole declined to comment on binding arbitration, as he has not yet heard directly from Diefendorf.

Contact between the two sides has fallen off some, although Cole said both sides are available to meet with each other.

"Mark asked for some time to do some things, and my travel schedule has prevented us from meeting," Cole said. "We've kept in indirect contact."

Diefendorf said he and colleague Frank Faber have received some criticism for "going behind closed doors" to negotiate with Cole.

"People were also upset about the questionnaire," he said, "but that's my prerogative as president. The shy people should get a voice. Binding arbitration is new and unfamiliar ground. Before we go forward with it, I want a quorum."

Diefendorf added that following the meeting, some teachers approached him to say they would like to find another way to settle the contract dispute.

"Personally, I'd like to settle this, cut our losses, and put it behind us," Diefendorf said. "I'm not excited about binding arbitration, which takes it out of our hands. But I'm representing everybody, and marching to the orders of the membership."

Local churches plan Thanksgiving service

The Bethlehem Area Ministerial Association's Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service will be Sunday, Nov. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, 35 Adams Place, Delmar.

Choirs from nine area churches, directed by Peg Dorgan, accompanied by Jennie Moak at the organ and a brass choir, and joined by clergy and membership from the churches of Bethlehem, will come together for a service of praise and thanks to God for the bounty of the past year. The entire community is invited to participate.

The program will include prayer, Scripture, selections from Handel, Brahms and Bach, as well as Craig Courtney's more contemporary "One Faith, One Hope, One Lord," and a moving arrangement of "Eternal Father Strong to Save" by David Van Deusen, a local composer-arranger.

Midway in the program, the Bells of Praise from Delmar Presbyterian Church, directed by Tom Hyde, will add a different voice to the chorus of thanks.

The free will offering donated during the service will be forwarded to the Interfaith Partnership for the Homeless.

Prior to the service, the choirs will share dinner provided by the Hospitality Committee of St. Thomas Parish and served by the St. Thomas Youth Group.

Participating choirs include those from Bethlehem Community Church, Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Community United Methodist Church of Slingerlands, Delmar Presbyterian Church, Delmar Reformed Church, First United Methodist Church, St. Stephen's, St. Thomas and Unionville Reformed Church.

Local storytellers revere magic of spoken word

By Katherine McCarthy

Bethlehem storytellers Marni Gillard, Joni Goldberg and Dee Ellen Lee are excited about the Tellabration scheduled for Friday at the Whisperdome of the First Unitarian Society in Schenectady on 1221 Wendell Ave.

Tellabration is an evening of storytelling for adults, and the local participants are looking forward to drawing grownups into the magic of the spoken word.

"Storytelling's not just for children," Goldberg said.

"Storytelling's coming back," Lee added. "In our world of computers and TV, storytelling is participatory; there's human contact."

"People are hungry for stories and contact," Gillard said, explaining that an audience affects how she might tell a story. "They're co-creating it. We tell stories by images, and connect with the audience. The basic story stays the same, but the feeling or meaning can shift, so that we learn something too."

The National Storytellers Association coordinates Tellabration, which takes place the weekend before Thanksgiving at 150 national sites. It is sponsored here by the Story Circle of the Capital District and the Adult Program Council of the First Unitarian Society of Schenectady.

The Story Circle has been in

existence since 1983, and has about 100 members. It meets every fourth Tuesday at the Schenectady or Scotia/Glenville library.

Tellabration co-producer and Story Circle member Jane Ainslie stressed that there are no readings at the event.

"Tales are learned," she said. "At Story Circle, we tell stories, ask for input, feedback, new ideas. We exchange information about storytelling and keep a calendar of events."

Goldberg, who is resident storyteller at Bethlehem Public Library, said she reads a story until she knows it, and then "lives with it for awhile. It's like magic. One day I'll wake up and know the story."

Goldberg chooses her material from folk tales. "I might be attracted to one because of where it came from; I might look for stories that revolve around a theme, or a story might speak to me."

Lee has used storytelling as a healing form, conducting workshops on storytelling at the Mandala Center for Creative Wellness and at The Center for Body Mind Awareness in Albany. Some of Lee's original stories are suggested by real-life events.

"I might share an anecdote from my past," she said. "It's why I like adult audiences; they help you flesh out events."

Lee is clear that the stories she tells choose her. "Sometimes, after several tellings, it becomes clear why I'm telling a certain story," she said. Lee has recently recorded an audiobook entitled "A Gentle Giant and Other Stories."

Gillard draws frequently on her memories to create her original stories. "I tell a story about a little girl and the ballet," she said, which draws on a Degas print she had as a child, that even then was a source of imaginary games for her.

Gillard sometimes tapes a new story, and spends time thinking about it to make the story part of herself.

"Sometimes I'll draw images to get away from the words," she said. Gillard draws on her 20-year teaching background in her storytelling, offering performances and workshops at her Story Studio in Delmar.

She is the author of "Give a Listen: Stories of Storytelling in School" and "Storyteller Storyteacher: Discovering the Power of Storytelling for Teaching and Living."

She also travels nationally and is on the board of directors of the National Storytelling Association.

None of the three women set out to become storytellers. Gillard has always incorporated storytelling into her English classes, primarily through Jeannine Laverty of Saratoga Springs. In the early '80s, Gillard attended a storytelling workshop with Laverty, and then joined the Story Circle.

She took a leave of absence to do storytelling, and eventually found her focus as a storyteller.

"It's bizarre to me that it became a career," she said.

Lee also credits Laverty with setting her on the road to storytelling. "I grew up with storytelling in my household," she said, "but I had gone to a dinner program with Jeannine and started storytelling at the same time that I was teaching nursery school in Latham."

Lee started out by doing a mother/daughter dinner, and in three months, learned five stories, setting herself on the road to full-time storytelling.

Goldberg's storytelling grew from volunteering at Hamagrael Elementary School when her son was a first-grader.

"I picked up 'Twenty Tellable Tales' by Margaret Reed McDonald, which had no pictures. I assumed I'd just have to tell the story," Goldberg laughed.

"I have very dry skin, and it hurt to turn the pages," so storytelling was a good alternative. "I used the kids as guinea pigs," she said.

Goldberg, Gillard and Lee will join six other storytellers at Tellabration. The program includes original stories as well as folk tales from Irish, African and native American traditions.

"This is a personal art in an impersonal world," Ainslie said. "Everyone involved is connected by the common thread of the story, although each brings his or her own personal perspective to it. That is why we see storytelling as such a powerful community building tool."

Tellabration begins at 8 p.m. and tickets are $7. For information, call 370-3700.

Teens learn new meaning of fast foods

Teen-agers go without food for 24 hours? No way!

But that's what 11 members of Bethlehem Lutheran Church's High School Youth Group did recently in a "Fast for Food" fundraiser for the Capital City Rescue Mission.

For 24 hours during their semi-annual lock-in, the teens consumed only water and fruit juice. In return, members of the congregation and the community pledged money for the successful completion of the fast.

Participants busied themselves with various projects for the church — a play rehearsal and set construction, videos and late-night bowling.

Youth group vice-president Lauren Rice reported that the group "did all this work for the church while we were starving."

When asked how it felt to go so long without food, Matt Cook observed, "I didn't really think about it except when we weren't busy."

It wasn't always easy for everyone.

Megan Huggins said, "We were watching 'Toy Story' and there was pizza in it. Then all I thought of was pizza, pizza, pizza!"

"It was hardest when we reached 9 p.m., because we realized we still had 12 more hours to go," Alissa Johnson said.

Tom Craig joked, "We did a lot of counting down."

The group faced its most serious test when they had to make a trip to the Grand Union to purchase additional juice.

Other "Fast for Food" participants were Katie Susser, Greg Bozzella, Jon Adams, Sam Cook, Tara Rooney and Christie Balluff.

The three adult leaders of the project, Margi and Scott Bohler and Ruth Rice, also fasted.

Margi Bohler was surprised when she developed a sustained pain in her stomach about half way through the fast.

"I realized then that some people have that pain all the time," she said.

She found that the fasters were willing to go to sleep a bit earlier than other non-fasting lock-ins.

Youth Group Secretary Alissa Johnson, who proposed the fast after learning about the concept at an event in Utah last summer, recalled some resistance when she first suggested the idea.

Many group members didn't believe it was physically possible to do without food for more than an hour or two. Twenty-four food-free hours proved to be a challenge they were willing to tackle, though, when they realized that there could be a substantial benefit to homeless people who never have enough to eat.

Many of those who made pledges indicated they did so not just to provide financial support to a worthy cause, but also because they felt that the teens would be more compassionate if they had a personal experience with hunger.

For their efforts, the youth group raised almost $500. They plan to turn these funds over to the Capital City Rescue Mission when they visit there Nov. 24 to conduct a worship service and serve dinner.

The Rescue Mission was the logical recipient of the fruits of this project since the Youth Group has had an ongoing relationship with the Mission for many years, and the need there is tremendous.

In retrospect, the teens viewed their fast as a success.

"It was a good way to help raise money for hungry people," said Balluff. "Even 24 hours without food was hard, but it made me feel good to do it."

Thieves raid Wickes

Wickes Lumber Co. on Route 9W in Selkirk is closed for business, but that didn't deter thieves who broke into the facility last week and stole thousands of dollars worth of tools.

Sometime late Thursday or early Friday, burglars broke the lock on the gate in front of the lumberyard and, once inside, stole tools and equipment worth "thousands and thousands" of dollars, according to Bethlehem Police Lt. Frederick Holligan.

"They grabbed what they could," Holligan said. "They had to have a large vehicle or truck to move all the property that was stolen. They removed a serious amount of stuff."

The facility is still used by other Wickes stores that need equipment repaired, such as forklifts, Holligan said. The estimated loss is more than $37,000.

A few years back, when the outlet was still open for business, it was also hit by a "fairly large-scale burglary," he recalled.

BCHS theater group gets $3,600 from McDonald's

The Bethlehem Theatre Support Group is nearly halfway to its goal of raising the funds needed to refurbish an existing classroom at the high school for use as a small theater.

The group received a check for $3,600 from Ronald McDonald House Charities, which will be used to purchase the sound system.

"We are profoundly grateful to Ronald McDonald House for giving us this generous contribution," said Wendy Lefkovich, co-president of BTSG. "This represents one further step towards our goal of ensuring that every student at Bethlehem Central High School who wants to participate in theatrical productions will have ample opportunity to do so."

Attending the ceremony at Ronald McDonald House were co-presidents Lefkovich and Jill Rifkin, as well as club secretary Sarah Lefkovich and club members Lucas Gray and Jeff Kaplan.

Prior to awarding the grant, Dan Formica, owner of the McDonald's in Elsmere, conducted a site visit to evaluate the theater group's renovation plan.

"It's wonderful to have the chance to give back to the community, and it's certainly for a fine cause," Formica said. "We're glad to do anything we can to benefit the town's youth."

Matters of Opinion

Give thanks to Equinox

Equinox Thanksgiving Day Dinner organizers are once again planning the largest and longest-running community feast in the area. In its 27th year, the event brings people from all walks of life together to ensure no one goes hungry or is left alone on Thanksgiving Day.

More than 5,000 people throughout the Capital District will partake of the meal, which seems to miraculously materialize on the last Thursday in November.

But every year, Equinox organizers agonize over their "miracle," which is really brought about by hundreds of hard-working volunteers and all kinds of contributions from individuals and businesses in the area.

The problem is that with only a seven-day countdown to Thanksgiving, there is simply not enough to go around, and organizers are turning to the community for support.

For a contribution of $15, turkey and all the trimmings can serve a family of five proving that a little can go a long way. Only the greater community can help make the annual miracle happen.

Monetary contributions can be sent to Equinox at 306 Central Ave., Albany 12214. Those who want to make a donation of food or supplies can call 434-0131.

Local control is crucial

The people of Bethlehem have spoken, and the town IDA and town board have listened.

The IDA, which had previously given lead agency status to EnCon to examine Spurlock Adhesives' proposal for a plant in Glenmont, and the board agreed that one or the other local bodies should try to take the helm. At a public hearing last week, about 300 residents and representatives of a newly formed citizens' group detailed health, safety and environmental concerns stemming from formaldehyde transport and emissions.

As we suggested several weeks ago, the town should be a governing player in this process; it would be foolhardy for it not to. The Department of Environmental Conservation will certainly have input in determining just how Spurlock will impact Bethlehem, even if the town board or IDA is in the lead agency driver's seat. Residents need to know town officials have their best interests in mind and need to know the officials have the clout to represent those interests in the State Environmental Quality Review process.

In a project that has already triggered great community concern, there is no room for error. Once all the facts are in and reviewed, we can expect a reasoned decision about whether or not to allow Spurlock to carry out its plan here.

RCS one step closer

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Indians romped over a team from Gouverneur Saturday bringing them within one game of the state championship at the Carrier Dome in Syracuse.

The Indians will play Brewster at Dietz Stadium in Kingston on Saturday at 3 p.m. and the team is hoping their fans and well-wishers will come to the game to cheer them on. Undefeated throughout the season, the RCS football squad clinched the Class B Section II title and are hoping to go all the way to the state title.

We wish them well; they have certainly proven themselves worthy athletes. Go RCS!

Win-win for arena

The action taken by the Pepsi Cola Allied Bottlers of Latham to offer a total of $3 million to Albany County to change the name of the Knickerbocker Arena to "Pepsi Arena" is a win-win situation.

Not only does Albany County get $300,000 a year for 10 years to help pay off the costs of building the six-year old facility, but the deal also provides a marketing plan that would make P. T. Barnum green with envy.

Learn ABCs of report card review

By Cathy Hull

The writer of this week's point of view is director of the Sylvan Learning Center in Albany. She is a New York state certified teacher in special and business education and has extensive experience in curriculum development.

This month, most Capital District students will bring home their first report card of the school year. For parents, this report is an important indication of their child's progress in school. Reviewing your child's report card can be a positive learning experience for both you and your child, particularly if the grades meet your expectations. It can, however, be a time of turmoil for the entire family if the report does not live up to parents' expectations.

Regardless of what a child's report card indicates, there are a number of steps that parents can take to reinforce good performance, identify problems and seek out ways to avoid problems in the future.

Here are some suggestions for parents:

- Review the report card with your child, calmly and without being judgmental. Set aside a time when you will not be rushed and able to give full attention to your child. Postpone the review if you are upset or angry. Both you and your child should be calm when the report card is discussed.

- Praise the accomplishments and positive performance reflected on the report card. No matter how disappointed you may be with the overall report, there will always be something worthy of a compliment. Perhaps one grade has gone up slightly from last year, or a teacher commented on good behavior in class.

Your child might be uncomfortable, nervous and somewhat defensive about having a discussion about the report card, particularly if this is not the norm in your family. You might mention that you appreciate the time the child is taking to discuss the evaluation. Let your child know that your goal for the meeting is to help him or her to be more comfortable and to do better in school. When a child is confident and has strong self-esteem, it is likely greater academic advances will be made.

- In addition to reviewing grades, ask about your child's feelings and opinions. What would the child like to see changed? If grades have dropped, ask the child why this might have happened. If grades are inconsistent, look for a pattern. Are problems occurring in subjects that require a lot of independent reading?

Often a student who is having difficulty is able to read the words, but does not fully comprehend the meaning of complete passages. Does the child do better on objective (multiple choice, true/false) tests than on essay or written tests? Is the child unusually stressed-out about test-taking? Assure your child that many other students experience the same anxiety and that there are supplemental programs that will help.

- Actively listen to your child by going beneath the words to the meaning and emotion. Listen to what your child might not be saying. Are there any social or personal circumstances that are interfering? Is the child being picked on or bullied by other students? Is the child having difficulty seeing what the teacher is writing on the chalkboard or hearing what is being said? Does the child have a hard time concentrating or staying focused?

Don't forget to talk about sufficient sleep and proper nutrition. Insist on a nutritious breakfast. Tell the child that your love will remain constant regardless of grades, and emphasize that you want to help.

- Encourage your child to set realistic, yet challenging, goals to improve study habits and performance in class. Ask the child how he thinks he could do better and ask how you can help. Establish both short and long-term objectives.

- Develop a routine together to improve study habits. Arrange for a quiet place to do homework, away from the TV and other household activities. Set aside a specific time for homework, as well as time for fun. Many students procrastinate about long-term assignments until the last minute, or they might complete it as assigned and not be able to find it to hand it in.

These students need assistance with organizational skills and time management. Offer suggestions to help develop these skills or seek professional assistance at your school or from private sources. Remember that studying is the child's responsibility; your responsibility as a parent is to guide your child and provide a loving, nourishing environment conducive to academic growth.

- Don't wait for surprises the next time report cards come out. Make an appointment with your child's teachers now. Prepare for that meeting by writing down questions you have and take the list with you to the meeting. At the meeting, ask specific questions about your child's performance and for the teacher's recommendations for change.

Ask about homework schedules — is homework assigned each day or weekly? Ask about grading policies. Write your home and work phone numbers and addresses on a card and ask the teacher to keep in touch with you.

- Get help from a supplemental education provider to overcome skill gaps. Look for a program that is tailored to your child's specific needs and provided by professionally trained, certified teachers. Visit the instructional site to be sure that the environment is caring and one that will build self-confidence and self-esteem.

Spurlock absence seen as bittersweet victory

Editor, The Spotlight:

The fact that Spurlock Adhesives did not even send a representative to the Bethlehem IDA's public hearing last week is viewed as a bittersweet victory by Bethlehem Citizens for Clean Air.

Obviously, Spurlock did not want to face an unwelcome reception with hundreds of citizens voicing health, safety and environmental concerns.

We feel that any potential good neighbor would have been present and answered the questions of worried residents.

We applaud Ted Putney and the IDA for reversing their earlier decision not to seek lead agency status.

We were further heartened at the Wednesday meeting when Ted

Letters

Putney agreed to put three contingencies on the IDA funding. Specifically, that there will be no funding unless the IDA is lead agency to ensure there will be a full environmental impact study, to effect a catastrophe plan and to clean up the brownfield before the plant is allowed to begin operation.

Bethlehem Citizens for Clean Air wants to assure all residents that we will continue to be a watchdog group, watching Spurlock, EnCon and town officials to make certain that all the concerns of town residents are addressed.

Pupil protests new plant

Editor, The Spotlight:

People all over Bethlehem have expressed concern over a proposed formaldehyde plant in Glenmont. The plant would produce formaldehyde, which is a preservative, and formaldehyde-based resin, used in furniture and building products.

I'm deeply concerned about the welfare of the town's air and water supply. This supply could be contaminated by fallout which would affect an area about 12.5 miles in radius from the plant. This type of fallout has been linked to cancer and defects in humans and wildlife.

As a student at Bethlehem Central Middle School, I am unhappy at how the town is handling this proposal. The town board should have conducted a hearing prior to considering this plant. Furthermore, I am surprised and disgusted that the town board would even look into a polluting chemical plant locating anywhere near a residential area.

I believe this project should be stopped right away, before it gets out of hand. There are many more suitable places where a plant of this nature could be built. I think it's great that we are trying to create new jobs in our area, however, not at such an environmental risk.

Based on the facts, there is no reason why a polluting chemical plant should be built in Bethlehem or the surrounding community.

Writer wants more user-friendly neighbor

Editor, The Spotlight:

Last week, the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency held a hearing on Spurlock Adhesives' plan to build a formaldehyde plant in Glenmont.

More than 300 people filled the seats in town hall and stood crowded in the hallways to become informed and to voice opinions, concerns and fears.

The IDA provided estimates of tax revenues that the plant would generate over the next 10 years and explained the role of the state and the IDA in the process. This information put to rest the concern that the town was "selling out" to industry with enticements. In fact, it was Spurlock that contacted the IDA and not the other way around.

Most of the concern over the formaldehyde plant, however, has more to do with health and safety than with revenue. We wanted to ask a representative of Spurlock Adhesives important questions regarding the operations of the plant and measures that would be taken to ensure the well-being of the people in the area, but our potential new "neighbor" decided not to attend the hearing.

One is left to speculate that Spurlock, had they decided to attend, would not have been able to put our minds at rest. With no Spurlock representatives to speak to, the citizens voices their concerns and opposition to the plant to each other and the IDA.

I would like to share some of the concerns I have about the formaldehyde plant.

Spurlock Adhesives plans to manufacture hundreds of millions of pounds of formaldehyde every year on the banks of the Hudson River on a site now owned by Niagara Mohawk Power Corp.

Barges of methanol would be shipped up the Hudson to supply the starting material, and trucks would haul the formaldehyde through our community to deliver to its users.

Formaldehyde and methanol are both flammable, toxic materials, but Spurlock has provided no plans for evacuating people in the case of a fire or explosion at the plant nor have they provided plans for cleaning formaldehyde spills on our streets. If a methanol spill were to occur in the Hudson River, there would be no opportunity to clean it up because methanol dissolves in water. Spurlock has not informed the town of the potential for this kind of accident nor the potential consequences.

Probable consequences of a spill include a massive fish and animal kill, poisoning any drinking water derived from the Hudson and complications for the Niagara Mohawk plant which uses Hudson River water for cooling.

Formaldehyde is a poison, causes mutations in human DNA and has been shown to cause cancer in animals. There is some debate about whether formaldehyde actually causes cancer in humans because there have been studies which draw conclusions both ways on the issue.

Perhaps in 30 years, the people in this area could provide the statistics that finally settle the matter once and for all. Formaldehyde also causes eye, nose, throat, lung and skin irritation at levels down to one part per million.

The town does not know exactly how Spurlock would control formaldehyde emissions from the plant, which Spurlock has estimated to be well over a thousand pounds a year. We also do not know how formaldehyde levels would be monitored.

Keep in mind that pouring less than an ounce of formaldehyde in our yards or down the drain is a violation of the law for the rest of us.

I believe that most of the people who attended the public hearing to speak out against the formaldehyde plant are not against bringing industry of any kind into the town of Bethlehem.

Most seem to be in favor of an industry which provides more than 15 to 30 jobs without the potential health and environmental risks associated with a formaldehyde plant.

With a little more effort, I believe that the community can find a better new neighbor that will provide more jobs and less of a threat. It would certainly be worth the delay.

Speed limit should be lowered

Editor, the Spotlight:

I read with concern Janet Brizzell Tripp's letter in last week's Spotlight on the danger of speeding vehicles to the residents of New Scotland Road, and I join with her in urging the town to petition the state to try to lower the speed limit on that road.

I recall that there have in the past been similar letters by residents of Route 144, and I suggest that the town speak on behalf of those Bethlehem residents as well.

Matters of Opinion

Imagination blossoms on business proposal

Editor, The Spotlight:

The recent flurry of letters regarding the proposed formaldehyde plant down my way brings to mind a conversation I recently had with a fellow passenger on an international flight from Europe.

He represented a large industry in the Netherlands and was on his way to the Albany area to find a site for a plant his employer wanted to build. He noted that, with Albany being part of a former Dutch colony, he might be welcomed with open arms.

He told me what business he was in and asked if there might be a suitable place for it in my community. Before answering him, I thought of the claims that would be flung at him when he sought a building permit.

The plant would have a lot of fenestration and that would mean the area would be covered with broken glass if a cyclone hit it. There would be the inevitable product spills and the waste from the operation would be processed and used again after being stored for some time. These factors would open up the possibility of a "brown site."

Genetically engineered products would be processed and who knows what effect they might have on the genes of the residents of our community. Refrigeration is used extensively in this industry and that means more holes in the ozone layer and big sunburns.

Then there are the odors that come from the products. No one wants their air space invaded by those odor things.

Let's not forget town hall in the search for disasters that might befall us. We would have to endure another game of "heads, we want it, tails, we don't." No, sir, 15 jobs and one half million dollars in tax payments are not worth the suffering our grown-ups and little tykes would endure.

My response to his question was — if you want to come to our town, before you get back on the plane to go home, the local activists would be cruising the library grounds and shopping malls, waving their petitions and shouting: We don't want any tulip farmers in Bethlehem.

Clean air is essential

Editor, the Spotlight:

Before moving upstate from Long Island 11 years ago, my allergist warned me to make sure I picked a place to live on a weekday, since emission plants are closed weekends.

He had looked for a section in Maine to build and picked a site on a weekend. Before leaving, on a Monday, he went back. Fumes from paper mills necessitated his changing to a different location.

Because of doctor's orders, for more than 30 years, I have had no rugs in our house. The doctor forbid me to have them because of formaldehyde in rugs. Clean air and preventive measures are essential to my life and breath.

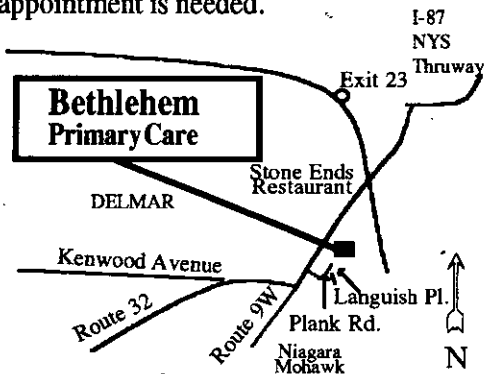

I am strongly against added air pollution, no matter how little, not only for myself, but also for children coming into this world. Formaldehyde emission is unacceptable and a health hazard to all.

If EnCon makes mistake, residents will lose out

Editor, The Spotlight:

The proposal by Spurlock Adhesives to build a formaldehyde plant in our town was considered by the Bethlehem IDA on Nov. 12, and by the town board on the following night.

There were many professional people from the town who testified as to the adverse health effects caused by formaldehyde. There is no question that real or "perceived" health effects will cause a significant decrease in property values near the plant.

The town board has taken the position that they will not allow the plant if there are adverse health effects, but the board also said the state Department of Environmental Conservation will determine the health effects. But the EnCon engineer who attended the IDA meeting couldn't answer any question on air pollution from formaldehyde or how it would be monitored.

Letters

In the past, EnCon recognized the impacts from "perceived" health effects and came up with a plan to compensate property owners nearby a proposed low-level radioactive waste burial site. No town took the offer. One town supervisor said he would rather go to jail than issue a building permit. After spending over $40 million over a nine-year period, Gov. George Pataki abolished the low level radioactive waste commission.

Unfortunately, for many town residents, if the state makes a mistake, it will be impossible to reclaim the value of their property once the formaldehyde plant is built.

Big team fan praises athletes' achievement

Editor, The Spotlight:

Between the Hudson River and the foothills of the Helderbergs, we find wonderful creatures called the Bethlehem freshman volleyball players.

These young athletes come in assorted hair colors and styles, sizes and personalities. However, they all have the same goal — to play every second of every game to the best of their ability and to go undefeated for the season.

Bethlehem. They can be found on BCHS honor lists, shopping, in their church or temple, at home doing their homework and chores, as well as participating in school activities.

Parents love them, classmates cheer them, kid brothers sometimes annoy them and their coach has pride in them as he guides them toward their goals.

This goal was not easy to accomplish. There were times during the season when they nearly faced defeat. But the coach made adjustments and they pulled through. The coach and the girls reviewed their skills and strategies, and the coach told the girls they must keep their focus, self-discipline, self-confidence and sense of teamwork.

When they faced defeat, they showed their true spirit. They knew if they believed in themselves, they could overcome the threat of defeat and they did.

When they were ahead, and victory was near, they never maligned an opponent nor rested on their laurels.

Yes, BCHS volleyball players are wonderful creatures. They are loyal, punctual and hard-working. They are BCHS' representatives on the court. They may not always be champions — they may even take their turn at defeat, but you can be sure win, lose or draw, each player has done her best.

I congratulate each girl. A record of 36 straight victories in match and tournament competition was an astounding achievement.

And so as they move toward the challenges of the future, Blair Brewer, Katie Fuller, Megan Fish, Kristen Fredette, Katie Gold, Jenna Grant, Kim Hitter, Kristy Lagrange, Jennifer Macri, Valerie Messina, Elena Oldendorf, Jessica Rarick, Laura Ricciardelli, Heather Shumelda, Molly Spooner, and Amy Wilbur and coach Keith Gunner have our best wishes.

Tower

the last three months in Bethlehem, and the town board asked Kaplowitz to investigate what could be done to deal with a possible onslaught of tower applications in the future.

Given the uncertainty over the health impact of long-term exposure to radio signals, Kaplowitz proposed that, until medical research puts the question to rest, the maximum number of cell towers allowed in the town should not exceed 10 percent of the total number of towers existing in Albany County at the time that a new application is made.

Also, all cellular tower applications would have to go to both the town planning board (for site plan approval) and the zoning board of appeals, for a use variance. Currently, only the ZBA needs to approve applications.

Other provisions of the proposed local law include:

- All obsolete or unused wireless antennas must be removed within 60 days of cessation of operations.

- No new cell tower can be approved unless the applicant makes a good faith effort to "substantially demonstrate" that the proposed tower cannot be located on the site of an existing or planned cell tower.

- The distance between a cellular phone tower and any neighboring building must be at least 50 percent of the height of the proposed tower.

- The tower cannot reasonably interfere with the view from any public park, natural scenic vista, historic building (or district) or school.

- The color of the proposed cell tower must be light in tone.

- The tower cannot disturb or diminish reception of radio, TV, telephone or similar signals for nearby properties.

Kaplowitz said the proposed law is not set in stone and that the town board may propose changes.

The most recent cell tower applicant in Bethlehem was Bell Atlantic Nynex Mobile, which won approval for a 180-foot tower off Jolley Road in Glenmont.

In the opinion of Bell Atlantic Nynex Mobile real estate manager Joseph Ross, municipalities like Bethlehem which are seeking to regulate cell towers are blowing the problem way out of proportion.

"It's unbelievable. I think it's become a political issue, because it's just not warranted," he said. "It annoys me that it's taken such a political direction considering how benign (cell towers) are."

"Even if they doubled the number of towers there are today, there still wouldn't be much of an impact," he said. "In the 10 years we've been in the cellular phone business, we've had only one application in front of the town."

Ross said Bell Atlantic Nynex Mobile had no immediate plans to erect another tower in town.

"Bethlehem is really safe. They're not going to be sprouting up all over the place," he noted. "Wherever we can share a tower or a location, we're determined to do that."

Ross said he doubted the future will bring a dramatic increase in cell towers.

"I drove up I-90 the other day, along Fuller Road, past Stuyvesant Plaza and out to Gunderland, and I passed 10 high-tension monopoles. That's far more than you're going to see around here in the next 10 years," he said.

Rare book fair to benefit Albany Institute

The Albany Institute of History & Art will present the 22nd Antiquarian Book & Ephemera Fair on Saturday, Nov. 23, at the New Scotland Avenue Armory in Albany. This annual fair showcases the finest in rare and out-of-print books and ephemera.

Considered the largest of its kind in upstate New York, the one-day event is recognized for the quality and diversity of material presented by more than 80 dealers from across the U.S.

Among the 200 plus tables, collectors can find rare books, prints, autographs, manuscripts, maps, first editions and fine bindings. Booths will also feature children's books, miniature books, vintage photographs, valentines, trade cards, political material, posters, broadsides and postcards.

The fair will begin at 8 a.m. with a two-hour "early buying preview," and will continue until 4 p.m. Admission to the preview, which includes a continental breakfast, is $10. General admission to the event is $4.

For information, call the Albany Institute at 463-4478.

Tax

highway department.

"I cannot support taking $65,000 out of highway maintenance," Houghtaling said. "I'll step up to a tax increase before (supporting) that."

Houghtaling added that the town would risk losing some of the FEMA aid if an expected audit were to conclude that the town used FEMA money indirectly to cut taxes.

"I recommend the most conservative route — spend every FEMA dime on FEMA projects, and if there's a fund balance next year (after the audit and catching up on maintenance), use it to reduce 1998 taxes," Houghtaling said.

Councilman Michael Fields said his experience with FEMA

(after storm-related floods in his Voorheesville home) was that the agency insists that its grants and/or loans be verifiably spent for the purpose intended.

"It pays to do these things right, especially if we need FEMA money in the future," Fields said.

Responding to Reilly's comment that taxpayers expect tax cuts, Houghtaling said they are more likely to expect tax increases, and are pleasantly surprised when tax cuts develop.

"I've tried to keep a constant decline to offset the impact of revaluation" on longtime residents, Reilly said.

Houghtaling replied that the 11 percent tax cut last year for town residents outside the village of Voorheesville was a "huge wind-fall" and that the estimated tax hike for 1997 (about 1.2 percent) would result in a tax rate far lower than that of 1995.

He added that, in real dollar terms, the estimated tax hike would cost the owner of a $100,000 house, about average in New Scotland, $1.50 more in 1997, compared to this year.

While town residents outside the village face a tax hike, village residents will see their town taxes fall by about 14 percent under the proposed budget, Houghtaling noted.

"I'm proud to put my name on a budget like this," Houghtaling said.

The board majority of Houghtaling, Fields and Mark Dempf also decided, over Reilly's objection, to pay off a $90,000 note that the town used to pay for highway work while waiting for the FEMA reimbursement.

Reilly argued that the town could earn more than $1,000 in interest by not paying off the note early.

Paying off the note right after the FEMA check arrived "is what we had originally agreed to do," Houghtaling said. "You know how good it sounds when we can say we're out of debt."

The board will hold a public hearing on the preliminary budget and town support for volunteer emergency services, and then adopt the budget, tonight (Wednesday) beginning at 6:30 p.m. at town hall.

Firefighters rescue two in Tuesday blaze

Firefighters rescued two women from the smoke engulfing a Victorian-style mansion on New Scotland Road in Slingerlands Tuesday morning.

The women, whose names were not readily available, were treated at the scene by emergency medical technicians. No injuries were reported.

The fire call was received at 9:33 a.m. When Slingerlands volunteers arrived at the scene, there was a heavy smoke condition inside the house.

Firefighters spotted the two women calling for help from a second-story window, and they quickly set up a ladder and escorted them to safety.

"We think it started in the second-floor bedroom," said Delmar fire chief James Kerr, "but it's still under investigation."

Formerly referred to as the Miner House, the 1599 New Scotland Road property is owned by Kenneth R. Parker.

Slingerlands, Delmar, Elsmere and Selkirk fire departments responded to the scene.

Clarksville could be key to water woes

By Dev Tobin

The solution to pressure problems in the Feura Bush Water District may lie a few miles away in Clarksville, according to Bob Cook of the New Scotland water advisory committee.

Cook reported to the town board at last week's meeting that the relatively new Clarksville wellfield has plenty of capacity and that substantial growth in the immediate Clarksville area was unlikely.

"The only way to find out if it is feasible is to do a study," Cook said. "It's a source of water we should be thinking about."

Design flaws in the Feura Bush system, which is supplied with Albany water via Bethlehem, have created persistent problems with low pressure that would cost an estimated $45,000 to fix, Cook noted.

Plus, "New Scotland has no control over the cost of water to Feura Bush," which is set by Bethlehem and related to the Albany out-of-district rate, Cook added.

The water committee solicited a proposal from the engineering consulting firm of C.T. Male to do an economic feasibility study, but Cook said the estimate of $4,850 for the study seemed "a little high."

Cook said he would solicit a similar proposal from the J. Kenneth Fraser consulting firm and ask C.T. Male if "they could sharpen their pencils" on their price.

In a related matter, the town of Bethlehem informed New Scotland that the 1996 water rate for the Feura Bush and Swift Road water districts will be $3.05 per thousand gallons.

In another matter, the board appointed Edward Holohan of Wynantskill to administer the pension programs for the New Salem and Onesquethaw volunteer fire companies.

Fire company representatives had expressed dissatisfaction with the current administrator, who is based on Long Island, and urged the town board to replace him.

In meeting with the board at a recent budget workshop and explaining how the town has been paying too much into the pension programs, Holohan "has already provided us with services beyond what the current administrator has done," Councilman Scott Houghtaling commented.

In other business, the board:

- Approved change orders on the town hall addition for gutters, covering asbestos floor tile and more electrical outlets.

- Issued a negative declaration under the state environmental quality review law for the Krumkill Road Water District.

- Was notified that the town will receive $80,000 state grant to rebuild the Waldenmaier Road bridge over the Vroman Kill.

- Received a petition from 37 residents of Koonz Road requesting a 25 mph speed limit there.

- Was notified that the town's equalization rate for 1996 will be 102.49, an improvement over the state's original rate of 99.55. The lower the equalization rate, the more town residents pay in taxes to school districts and the county, relative to residents of other towns.

Girl Scout reception to bid leader farewell

The Delmar Girl Scout Neighborhood will host a reception for members of the local Girl Scout community on Sunday, Nov. 24, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Elm Avenue Park meeting room.

The reception is being held to say good-bye to Kay Zolezzi, who is leaving the area. Zolezzi has been a Girl Scout leader, trained Girl Scout leaders, served as an encampment director and worked hard to promote camping for Delmar area Girl Scouts.

For information, call 475-0429.

Fire destroys Delmar home

Investigators suspect that an electrical problem might have caused the fire that partially destroyed a Meads Lane residence last week.

The fire at 361 Meads Lane was called in at 6:23 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13, by a passing motorist who stopped and alerted the residents, John Nock and Janice Brown-Nock, who own the house.

The fire is thought to have started in a detached, wood frame greenhouse just to the rear of the main building, according to Delmar Fire Chief James Kerr.

The greenhouse is only four or five inches away from the main house, and investigators believe that the heat of the fire in the greenhouse "probably broke a window" in the main house allowing the flames to spread.

The fire has been labeled an accident. The rear of the main house was severely damaged, although the front of the building survived pretty much intact, Kerr said.

Responding along with the Delmar Volunteer Fire Department were the Onesquethaw, Selkirk, Slingerlands and New Salem fire departments.

Firefighters remained on the scene until about noon.

Bethlehem Recycling Corner

By Sharon Fisher, town recycling coordinator

Three ring notebook binders have nine lives because they are not for school use only.

If the cover is slightly damaged, scribbled with graffiti or old, change the binder's appearance by covering it with a favorite contact paper. This will dress up the binder and hold the spine securely together.

Where do you keep photographs or newspaper clippings, matchbook or baseball card collections? Purchase the proper insert pages for a redecorated binder and you will have an organized collection that can be neatly displayed.

Where are the receipts for household appliances and tools and warranties for the family vehicles? Locate them easily by consolidating them into binders. Use a hole punch to prepare the sheets for insertion into the binder then label the spine for easy reference.

Binders are also useful for small children's activities. Cut out pictures from magazines, paste onto pages in the binder and create a story with your children to share with family and friends. Help kids start a personal photo album or a keepsake memento book. For a play activity, make an A-frame dollhouse by first removing the rings, then cover the roof with contact paper or glue on material. Decorate with scraps of cloth and pieces of rugs. An alternative is an A-frame toy garage. Decorate appropriately.

Do you attend organization meeting where minutes are kept or business functions with handouts by the dozen? Organize them according to topic or date for quickly locating documents.

Do you keep magazines for valuable content and then forget which magazine contains that desired project, recipe or exercise?

Patterns for quilting, knitting, sewing and other projects can be consolidated in a binder where they can be quickly retrieved.

Finally, if you need to prop open a door, use a binder as a doorstop. It is the perfect shape.

Church to conduct ecumenical Thanksgiving service

The churches of New Scotland invite everyone to the annual ecumenical Thanksgiving service on Sunday, Nov. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church of New Scotland on Route 85.

St. Matthew's Church, the First United Methodist Church of Voorheesville, the Presbyterian Church of New Scotland and the New Salem Reformed Church co-operated in creating this special service.

Music will be by the community choir, under the direction of Ken George and Madge Devine. The Rev. Peter Krug, pastor of the New Salem Reformed Church, will preach. Refreshments will be served after the service.

Methodist women planning holiday bazaar

Voorheesville's United Methodist Women will hold their annual Christmas missions bazaar

NEWS NOTES

Voorheesville

on Saturday, Nov. 23, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the church social hall on Maple Avenue.

Christmas crafts, baked goods, international gifts, books and white elephant items will be for sale. Lunch will be also be served.

Profits from the bazaar help fund the church's global and local mission ministries. For information, call Hope Griffiths at 765-2005 or Barb Cureau at 765-2693.

Cubs to collect food Saturday

Cub Scout Pack 73 will collect food bags for the needy on Saturday, Nov. 23, starting at 10 a.m.

Residents are asked to fill the bags they received last week with non-perishable food in unbreakable containers and place them outside their front door for pick-up.

For information, contact Tim Selby at 439-6216.

Conference day set at elementary school

Friday, Nov. 22, is a conference day at the elementary school. Classes will be dismissed at 11:50 a.m.

Schools in the district will be closed for the Thanksgiving recess on Nov. 28 and 29.

Pupils need to place yearbook orders

Pupils at the elementary school can place orders for this year's yearbook through Nov. 22. The cost is $15, and checks should be made payable to the Voorheesville

PTA.

Students must order their yearbook now to guarantee that they will receive it in June. This yearbook will be at least eight pages longer than last year's. All profits support student activities.

PTA organizing family night

The PTA is planning an elementary school family night at Knickerbocker Arena for Saturday, Dec. 14, at 7 p.m. when the Albany River Rats play the Rochester Americans.

Reduced rate tickets cost $9.50 for adults and $6.50 for children. There will be a free raffle, pictures with Rowdy and choice group seating. The deadline for ticket orders is Thursday, Dec. 5. Tickets will be delivered at school by Dec. 12. Ticket order forms have been sent home with all pupils.

For information, call Jeff

Klembczyk at 765-4987.

Seniors slate holiday party

The New Scotland Senior Citizen's annual Christmas party is set for Wednesday, Dec. 18, at 1 p.m. at Western Turnpike Golf Course in Guilderland. The cost is $16.50 per person. Everyone is encouraged to bring a $4 grab bag gift. To make a reservation, call Lois Crounse at 765-2109.

The senior citizens won't meet on Wednesday, Nov. 27, the day before Thanksgiving.

Board to review budget plan

The New Scotland town board will hold a public hearing to review the 1997 budget tonight, Nov. 20, at 7:10 p.m. at town hall on Route 85.

Starting at 6:30 p.m., the board

Reading program logs success

The month-long Parents as Reading Partners program at the elementary school was a big success. Approximately 400 students completed all four weeks.

Kindergarten through third-grade classes with the best overall participation won pizza parties. Pupils in grades four through six who completed the entire program will also have pizza parties.

Lab school sponsors NYC trip

The Bethlehem Central Lab School will hold a bus trip to New York City on Saturday, Dec. 14.

The bus will leave the high school parking lot at 6:45 a.m. and drop the students off at Rockefeller Center in New York City.

Participants will have the entire day to shop and visit.

The students will be picked up

Third-grade pupil Matthew Miller won the grand prize of an electric train set. Pupils also won sweatshirts, videos, books and magazine subscriptions.

Special thanks to Smith's Tavern of Voorheesville and Mohawk Valley Railroad Company of Schenectady for donating prizes.

Thanks also to the hard working PTA volunteers for a great program.

V'ville enacts snow regulations

Snow emergency regulations are in effect in the village of Voorheesville from Nov. 15 until April 15. Parking is prohibited on all village streets between midnight and 6 a.m. Any vehicles violating the regulation will be ticketed.

at the drop-off spot at 5:45 p.m. and return to Delmar, with a rest stop along the way for dinner.

The cost is $25 per person. The proceeds from this trip will benefit the Bethlehem Central Lab School Scholarship Fund.

For information or to make reservations, call Nancy Hallock at 439-0780.

Delmar Rotary passes on trophy

The Delmar Rotary Club of Delmar had the distinction of being the first Rotary Club in New York state to display the Preserve Planet Earth Ecological Marathon Trophy.

The Rotary International Ecological Marathon began in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in June 1992. The goal of the marathon is to promote the objectives of Rotary's Preserve Planet Earth program.

The program goals include motivating Rotarians and others to practice environmentally sound lifestyles, increase the number and diversity of environmental service projects carried out by clubs and districts, and to encourage inter-club cooperation to help Preserve Planet Earth.

The trophy has traveled over 20,000 miles from club to club. At the conclusion of the marathon, the trophy will have traveled the distance equal to three times around the world.

The trophy started on its journey during the United Nations Meeting on the Environment, ECO 92. Thus far it has traveled through Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Panama, Costa Rica, Honduras, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Belize, Mexico, the west coast of the U.S., eastern Russia, Alaska, and Ontario, Canada. The marathon will conclude next June at Rotary International Headquarters in Evanston, Ill.

Accompanying the trophy are log books containing photos and brief statements from the clubs which have displayed the trophy. While in Delmar, the log book was signed by members of the Rotary Club and guests Pat Pappert, Doris Davis, Jim Baines and Stephanie Willet.

The trophy was passed on by Melody Burns, president of the Delmar Rotary Club, to Terry Phillips, Rotary district governor. The trophy is now touring the southeastern U.S.

Authors to deliver Wenzl lecture

Allison Bennett and Shirley Dunn, co-authors of Dutch Architecture Near Albany: The Polgreen Photographs will present the library's seventh annual Wenzl Lecture on Sunday, Nov. 24, at 2 p.m. in the community room.

Check It Out

Bethlehem Public Library

Bennett, who was Bethlehem town historian for eight years, is the author of four books on local history, including The People's Choice: A History of Albany County in Art and Architecture (Albany County Historical Association, 1980). She has also written numerous feature articles on historic homes for The Spotlight.

Dunn is a founder of the Dutch

Barn Preservation Society and author of The Mohicans and Their Land, 1609-1730 (Purple Mountain Press, 1994). She appeared at the library in 1991 as one of three lecturers in the series "Bethlehem Before the Europeans."

The library's lecture series was begun in 1990 in honor of long-time Delmar resident Theodore Wenzl, who served as library trustee for 43 years, including 18 years as president of the board. The lectures, which have traditionally been scheduled during American Education Week, carry forward Wenzl's lifetime involvement in education.

Lecturers have included University at Albany President Vincent O'Leary, Judy Genshaft, Harlow Robinson, Rosemary Nesbitt, Cherry Hill curator Christine Robinson, and author Dan Hofstadter.

Bennett and Dunn's new book contains detailed photos of Dutch-style houses taken in the 1930s by Waldron Polgreen of Albany. Some of these will be shown as slides during the talk. Dutch Architecture Near Albany is in the library's collection.

The friends of the Bethlehem Public Library will host a reception following the talk, which is free and open to the public.

BCHS collecting food for county pantry

Members of the community are invited to drop off any non-perishable food items at Bethlehem Central High School's main office at 700 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

Donations will be distributed to the Food Pantry of Albany County.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1986, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- Voorheesville Central School District voters approved building a new $890,000 library at the corner of Prospect Street and Depot Road by a more than 2-1 margin. "I think the result shows real support for the library," said Edward Donohue, president of the library's board of trustees.

- Bethlehem Public Library Trustee Ted Wenzl's proposal to donate a house at 17 Borthwick Ave. to the library for a museum drew opposition from neighbors on the residential street. "This is a neighborhood, not a commercial area. We just don't want it," said Alan Hoffman of 19 Borthwick.

- James Morgan of Dowerskill Village, the Bethlehem town historian, was appointed to the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school board, replacing Frank Filippone, who had resigned.

- The Voorheesville football team finished the year with a double-overtime 18-12 win over Hudson in the sectional playoffs. Key players for the 9-1 Blackbirds were John Meacham, John Traudt, Jeff Mazafferro, Kevin Kelly, Rich Kane, Chuck Giantasio, Bruce Kiniski, Marty Gordinier, Frank Donnelly, Tom Donohue, Ed Sapienza, Jayson White and Roger Ginder.

Attorney to present program tonight

Local attorney, business consultant and former Albany County legislator George Kansas will share his observations on how you can live the life you've always dreamed of tonight, Nov. 20, in the community room.

Voorheesville Public Library

Also at 8 p.m. at Page Hall on the downtown Albany campus, the Writers' Institute presents Frank McCourt reading from his best-selling memoir Angela's Ashes. If you are not familiar with this absorbing book about an Irish family in the 1930s, why not put it on reserve?

In celebration of the Thanksgiving harvest season, the renowned Storycrafters will perform at a Sunday program called "Apple, Corn and Pumpkin Leaves" Nov. 24, at 3 p.m.

Barry Marshall and Jeri Burns are internationally known tale-tellers and award-winning radio hosts who perform throughout the Northeastern U.S. and the British Isles.

All ages are invited to attend.

The library will close at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 27, and re-open on Friday for regular weekend hours — 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Nimblefingers, which meets on Tuesdays, and the Saturday morning lifestories group will continue uninterrupted throughout the winter. New members are always welcome.

Our thanks to Diane Luci of Appleblossom Lane who already responded to our cookie plea in the Bookworm. We asked holiday bakers to come up with an extra batch of goodies for us to store in the library freezer to use as needed for program refreshments. Luci was the first of what we hope to be a long line of contributors.

Remember that the library maintains a food collection basket near the circulation desk for contributions of non-perishable foods to be distributed locally through St. Matthew's Human Concerns Committee. Now is the time to give.

Nine gallons donated at Scout's blood drive

Meghan Smith's blood drive, undertaken as part of her Girl Scout Gold Award project, was a definite success.

That's Smith's conclusion, anyway, and it's hard to argue when 80 people show up ready to donate blood, and 72 of them are accepted.

In all, 72 pints were donated to the American Red Cross during the Nov. 9 blood drive at Bethlehem Lutheran Church on Elm Avenue in Delmar. And that means three or four times that many people could benefit — perhaps in life-threatening situations — because each pint of blood is broken down into plasma, red cells and white cells.

"Most people don't realize how far it can go once it's broken down," Smith said.

The eight people not accepted had various problems, such as high blood pressure, low iron count, a history of hepatitis, or else they suffered from a cold, Smith said.

The blood is now in the possession of the Red Cross and it will be given to patients throughout the New York/Pennsylvania region.

Smith is a senior at Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School.

RCS heads to Kingston for the state semifinals

By Meghan Smith

They are headed where no other football team from Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk has gone before.

RCS will face Brewster at 3 p.m. on Saturday at Dietz Stadium in Kingston in the semifinal round of the state tournament.

RCS is one game shy of going to the Carrier Dome in Syracuse, and the winner of the RCS-Brewster game will play there on Sunday, Dec. 1.

The Indians won for the 11th straight time last Saturday as they whipped Gouverneur High School from St. Lawrence County, 35-14, in the quarterfinal round of the state tournament for Class B schools.

As RCS and Gouverneur came face to face at Queensbury High School, school spirit was evident with drums pounding, people cheering and screaming, and several former students forming the wave.

Gouverneur had their eyes set on running back Matt Frese, just like every other team has this season. But it was junior quarterback Steve Ross who once again rose to the occasion, both with his passing and his defense. He completed seven of 10 passes for 115 yards and three touchdowns. He also was named the game's Most Valuable Player on defense.

After the huddle at halftime, the team walked onto the field with the determination to win the game.

Gary Vanderzee

Despite Gouverneur's attempts to contain him, Frese still managed to rush for 174 yards on 26 carries. He was named the Most Valuable Player on offense, as he scored twice in the fourth quarter.

BJ te Reile had two catches for 52 yards.

Gouverneur came out strong in the first quarter, taking an early lead when Nate Leonard scored on a 16-yard pass play. RCS came right back with Robert Nieves catching an 11-yard touchdown pass from Ross. At halftime, the score was 7-6.

"We had a sluggish start, and the team was not very sharp," said coach Gary Vanderzee. "Gouverneur was a stronger team than we expected, and we were taken by surprise."

"After the huddle at halftime, the team walked onto the field with the determination to win the game," Vanderzee said.

In the second half, Ross completed an eight-yard TD pass to Gary Jones. Then Jevon Sebring scored on a 12-yard pass and RCS had a 21-6 lead.

Place kicker Norris Ackert of RCS was perfect on the day with five points after touchdown.

Tony Carrk, Kevin Reinisch and Tony Litner played excellent

RCS quarterback Steve Ross threw for three touchdowns during the Indians' 35-12 win over Gouverneur on Saturday. Doug Persons

Seymour & Russell top the list of honors for BC soccer team

By Annette Grajny

The Bethlehem boys soccer team closed out its best season in 22 years, reaching the sectional championship round.

Several of the players received recognition for outstanding performances this year. Junior Kevin Russell was nominated by coaches to the Suburban Council First Team and the Section II All-Star team.

Russell was also recognized for his outstanding play as one of four players from the section nominated for All-American status.

Russell began playing at a very young age. "I could barely walk, yet I started playing soccer immediately," he said.

He plays year-round on the Albany Alley Cats, and helped the Adirondack team win a bronze medal at the Empire State Games held this summer in Buffalo.

Russell's varsity career began when he moved up from the junior varsity level as a freshman, and helped BC win its first round game in sectionals by scoring two of the team's three goals.

Sophomore Jason Seymour was nominated to the Suburban Council's Second Team. Like Russell, Seymour started playing at a young age.

He started playing varsity as a freshman, and finished this year as the team's leading goal scorer. Seymour keeps in practice by playing year-round for the Capital-United Select Team.

Kevin Smith and Brian Schwartz were nominated by the coaches in Section II to play in the Suburban Council Exceptional Seniors Game.

The team's annual team banquet was held on Sunday, Nov. 17, and additional awards were given out. The Player-of-the-Year Award, in which the players themselves vote, went to seniors Dave Levine and Ben Samelson-Jones, who finished in a tie.

The Spirit-of-the-Eagle Award went to Schwartz. Dave Maher won the Janet Morrison Memorial Award.

The Scholar Athlete Award went to Corey Whiting. Next year's captains, chosen by Bramley, will be Russell and Greg Cooper.

Coach John Bramley said that individual success was partly due to the strength of Bethlehem's youth soccer.

"A couple of years ago, Bethlehem saw a major change in the development of high-level, premiere youth soccer leagues. These players compete at a high level all year. They are products of good training. You can see the results for yourself."

Bramley likes the team's chances for next year. "We will have 10 returning players, in addition to any new up-and-coming talent," he said. "Bethlehem's looking good for the next few years. We are now recognized as one of the top four teams in this area, which is something that only developed recently."

In addition to Russell, Cooper and Seymour, other veterans returning to the lineup will be Toby Cushing and Greg DeMarco, along with Justin Pinchback, Josh Plattner, Jared Alston, Brendan Dalton and Andy Goodfellow.

Blatnick to address coaches & players

Former Olympic gold medal wrestler Jeff Blatnick of Niskayuna will speak at the annual winter Meet the Coaches Night at Bethlehem Central High School on Monday, Nov. 25, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Bethlehem Central Athletic Department, the meeting is mandatory for all winter athletes. Parents are also urged to attend, according to BC athletic director Fred Powers.

Blatnick will speak after the individual team meetings. The Bethlehem Central Athletic Association will serve refreshments in the cafeteria.

BC girls swim to fourth place finish

By Kristin Albert

The Bethlehem girls swim team topped off a fine season last weekend with a fourth place finish in the Section II championships at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy.

Erika McDonough, Elyse McDonough, Sarah Hotaling, Maggie Wolfert, Nadine Maurer, Kelly Bannigan, Kim Link, Merri Rice and Maggie Tettibach anchored the Eagles strong showing.

Several girls swam in the sectional preliminaries, but didn't make it to the final round. They included Meghan McBride, Shannon Tougher, Kate Link, Diana Kelly, Sara Gold, Katie Keller, Lynn Ianacone, Leah Sajdak and divers Jill Pappalardi and Tara Ornoski.

Maurer and Erika McDonough, both of whom qualified for the state meet, were the top performers for Bethlehem.

Maurer will swim in the 100-yard breaststroke, after having taken third at sectionals. She also placed seventh in the 100 butterfly.

Erika McDonough won the 200-yard individual medley in a new school record time.

Her sister, Elyse McDonough was fourth in this event after being top qualifier in the preliminaries.

Erika also placed fourth in the 100 backstroke, while Elyse finished 13th in the 500 free.

Wolfert, Maurer and the McDonough sisters placed second in the 100-yard medley relay. The girls set a new school record and just missed qualifying for the state meet by less than half a second.

Tettibach finished fourth in the 50 free and 13th in the 100 backstroke. Hotaling won the consolation heat of the 100 backstroke, and finished 14th in the 500 free.

Bannigan achieved a personal best time in finishing 15th in the 100 free.

At the close of the championships, the Kenneth Smith Swimmer Scholar award, which is handed out annually to the most deserving swimmer in the section, was awarded to Wolfert.

Seventeen schools competed in the sectional tournament with Shenendehowa coming out on top.

BC finished its season with a 5-2-1 record. Coach Sandi Banas said "The season ended really well. There were problems as far as cohesiveness within the team, but during sectionals, [they] really came together."

Hoop clinics set

Basketball clinics for girls in grades three through six will be held on the following Sundays: Nov. 24, Dec 15, Jan. 5, 12, 19, 26, Feb. 2, 9 from noon to 2 p.m. in Bethlehem Central High School's lower gymnasium.

These clinics will help to develop all of the basic skills involved in the game of basketball.

Jim Murray will be instructing the athletes in shooting, ballhandling and much more.

The cost is $70. Applications are available at BCHS athletic office, BCMS nursing office, elementary schools or by calling Kim Zornow at 439-6241 or Murray at 439-2007.

Falcons denied a shot at championship

Hawks to play in Super Bowl

Despite a picture-perfect touchdown pass from Zach Brandow to Sean Myrtle with only three minutes left in the game, the Bethlehem Pop Warner PeeWee Falcons were upset by a spirited Albany Titans squad on Sunday.

The 7-6 loss denied the Falcons a berth in next week's PeeWee Super Bowl.

Albany scored on an 80-yard punt return by Terence Stanfield in the first quarter to take an early 7-0 lead. The play held up as the Falcons had trouble solving the Titans' defense until late in the game. Even then, Bethlehem had a chance to win it, as the rugged Falcon defense forced a fumble with two minutes left.

But Stanfield rose to the occasion by intercepting Brandow's long pass intended for Josh Goldberg, snuffing out Bethlehem's final chance at a victory.

The entire Falcon defensive unit — led by Kevin Neubauer, Josh Rucinski, Anthony Livreri, John Sterrett, Pat Traynor, Don Ballard, Jeremy Irving, Mike McGuire, Nate Pannucci and Devin Nolan — was around the ball all afternoon.

On offense, Alex Burke, Mark Gansky, Matt Robbins, Nick Russo, Robin Singh, Chris Regal, John Davis, John Hamm, Nick Radko, Jeremy Trotta, Jeff Beach, Jerry Saliba and Quinn Wilson all posted outstanding efforts.

It was a highly successful year for the Falcons who finished 9-1 on the season.

Coaches Keith Ortale and Cliff Nolan expressed pride in the Bethlehem players after the game. Falcon football coordinator Lynn Brandow said, "It doesn't get any better than this. It's too bad one team had to lose."

In the second playoff contest of the afternoon, the Junior Midget Hawks stubbornly hung on for a 3-0 win over the South Troy Warriors to advance to the Junior Midget Super Bowl.

Sunday's game was a replay of the Hawks' Warrior regular season game four weeks ago which ended in a scoreless tie.

For four quarters the offensive lines of both teams were confronted with defenses determined to stop their every advance. Each team fought with equal conviction and perseverance as regulation time ended with the score 0-0.

Playoff rules stipulate a four-play per team tie-breaker. Bethlehem won the toss and elected to go on defense first.

South Troy had four chances from the 10-yard line to get into the end zone. The impressive Hawks defense stonewalled them.

It was now the Hawks' turn. The Warriors' defense stopped the Hawks' offense on the first three plays, but quarterback Mark Bulger kicked the game-winning field goal sending the Bethlehem Pop Warner Junior Midget Hawks to the Super Bowl, which will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Bethlehem Central High School field.

Spurlock

Putney said, because the town board last week officially stated its interest in becoming lead agency in case the IDA was not given the opportunity.

Spurlock President Irvine Spurlock said the company planned to complete a full environmental impact statement and that it was probably "a mistake" not to have attended last week's public hearing on the project.

"On Tuesday morning, it became apparent that 'The nature of the meeting had soured for us. That it was taking on an adversarial tone, and we weren't prepared to be put on the hot seat. We felt it might only inflame things even more."

"Personally, we felt very bad about not attending," he said. "We were not totally surprised that there were concerns. We'd be foolish if we were. We just didn't appreciate the level of concern and weren't prepared to answer specific questions because our application (to EnCon) is still not complete."

Spurlock said the company remained committed to the project. "We looked at 15 other sites, and this is our first choice. It has a lot of very compelling benefits for us. The warehouse already on the site. The deep water channel (the Hudson River) that we need to bring in our raw materials (methanol). We personally feel good about taking an idle site that is currently a brownfield, which can't be used for anything else, and putting it back on the tax rolls."

As a result of new technology, Spurlock said the level of formaldehyde emissions from the proposed plant would "not be detectable." But the company is obliged to provide "worse case scenarios" for the chemical plant as part of its environmental assessment.

"We don't have any hidden agendas," he said. "We haven't tried to sneak in here in the middle of the night. We just want to be good neighbors. We hope to gain enough trust from the citizens to do that."

Boy Scouts planning annual Sportsmart

Boy Scout Troop 75 will hold its annual Sportsmart on Saturday, Nov. 23, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at Bethlehem Central High School, 700 Delaware Ave.

A wide variety of used athletic items will be on sale for discounted prices. Those who want to sell items can drop off equipment from 9 to 11:30 a.m. the morning of the sale.

For information, call 439-5749.

Lead

industrial site off Route 144 in Glenmont.

The decision on lead agency was supposed to be wrapped up by Thursday, Nov. 21, but EnCon's desire to conduct the state environmental quality review (SEQR) process was challenged last week by both the Bethlehem IDA and the Bethlehem town board.

The IDA, which had originally declined lead agency status, officially reversed itself on Monday (Nov. 18), although IDA chairman Ted Putney announced the about-face prior to a public hearing on the project on Tuesday, Nov. 12.

The town board last week went on record as being interested in assuming lead agency status in case the IDA did not receive it. Both boards stated their desire that Spurlock be required to complete a full environmental impact statement.

Under SEQR, the lead agency determines whether a project will likely have an impact on the environment (a "positive declaration," in SEQR terms). After a positive declaration, the applicant must prepare a comprehensive environmental impact statement, which the lead agency then must accept to keep the project alive.

EnCon environmental analyst Joseph Dlugolenski said the dispute over lead agency status would be adjudicated by EnCon Commissioner Michael Zagata, and that a decision would be forthcoming in six to eight weeks, although it could come sooner if all the parties are prompt in explaining their positions.

Spurlock was hoping that the environmental review would be completed by February, and that it would have its permits in hand in the spring.

About 15 to 30 jobs would be created if the plant goes on line.

More than 300 people attended the IDA public hearing on Tuesday. Many residents seemed apprehensive about the company's plans and wanted more information, which was not possible since Spurlock executives did not attend.

Some were dead-set against the project, however, and let town officials know it.

"Even if it's declared safe, is there anyone here who will believe that report?" asked Andrew Amico of Elmsmere. "I moved here a year ago from Westchester County because I thought this was a desirable community. Clearly, if the plant moves in, this could not be considered a desirable community."

Dr. Sherman Gates of Glenmont, a retired physician, said, "Advanced studies now show that relatively low levels of formaldehyde precipitate asthma in some people," Gates said. "I can't see taking this paltry sum (of taxes) for this health risk. It's appalling."

Thomas Prasthofer of Delmar, an assistant professor of biochemistry at Albany College of Pharmacy, spoke of his own experience.

"I worked with formaldehyde and became sensitive to it, suffering sinus headaches and mucous membrane damage," he said. "You're not allowed to touch any animal fixed with formaldehyde. There are certainly a lot of reasons to be concerned about this plant."

"I live about a half mile from this proposed plant on Wheeler Road," said Steve Wiley. "The suggestion that this will not have a serious environmental impact is outrageous. My son has asthma, and I just spent three hours with him up at CHP (Community Health Plan). There is absolutely no reason to do a quick, short job on this."

Thomas McCauley of Glenmont, who also has an asthmatic child, said that asthma cases are "on the rise in this country," and lately "there are more deaths from it. There is some concern about whether it could be from the environment."

Carol Butler, who lives on Van Wies Point, said, "I'm a mother. I have a little girl and I'm probably the closest in proximity (to the plant). I'm very proud to live in Bethlehem. We spend a lot of money telling our kids how drugs can be harmful and then for a few lousy bucks, we expose them to chemicals that could be life-threatening."

The only pro-Spurlock comment of the evening was voiced by the first speaker of the evening, Rosemary Wargo of Delmar. "I see no problem with the plant. There are strong laws in this country to protect the public health. The EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) has standards that chemical plants must adhere to."

The last of the scientists to speak was Bridgit Burke of Delmar.

"I have personal experience with the effects of formaldehyde, having worked with it for the past 20 years," she said. "It doesn't kill you right away, but it can lead to slower thought processes, a diminishment of lifestyle and a curtailment of activity."

Perhaps the most dramatic moment came when Walter Ayres of Elm Estates approached the microphone with his 10-year-old daughter Monica, who he said wanted to make a statement.

"My mom said if we inhaled the fumes we could get cancer or have respiratory problems," she said. "If there are children playing on the playground, it could cause them to get sick. I brought a petition into (Glenmont Elementary) school. I've already gotten kids to sign it, and when it's done, I'm going to give it to Supervisor (Sheila) Fuller."

Youth Network

A BETHLEHEM NETWORKS PROJECT

MiddleWorks helps ease transition

MiddleWorks is a group of parents, teachers, administrators and interested community members. The goal of MiddleWorks is to help parents stay involved in the lives of their middle school children. We offer workshops to educate and empower parents on topics such as self-esteem and study skills. Each fall, we sponsor a Welcome Picnic for sixth-graders and their families. During the spring, we assist with the orientation of parents of fifth-graders to the middle school by hosting a coffee and dessert.

MiddleWorks conducted a survey on parental concerns such as curfews, bedtimes and discipline. The survey results were published in our Parent to Parent Handbook, which won a national award. In addition to the survey information, the handbook contains information about how to host a middle school party, how to handle rumors and clever ways to be involved in your child's school.

Last spring, MiddleWorks created a pamphlet for parents and students that lists activities available to students after school. This pamphlet was distributed in the fall. MiddleWorks recently initiated an After School Activities Program which offers pupils the opportunity to take art or drama classes for eight-week sessions.

We have new and exciting projects to work on this year, and we need your help. If you would like to become part of MiddleWorks, call 439-7740.

Volunteers at Equinox prepare for T-day feast

By Alvaro E. Alarcon

The annual Equinox Thanksgiving Day dinner promises to do what it has done for the past 26 years: serve or deliver 5,000 traditional Thanksgiving meals, replete with turkey, ham, sweet potatoes and pies for the region's hungry, homeless and homebound.

But perhaps as important is that each dinner is made possible through the efforts of more than 1,000 volunteers. The event fosters the spirit of community in a day and age that needs it most. Slingerlands resident Lauri Rosmarin-Plattner, who has worked with Equinox for 12 years and is this year's co-chairwoman of the Equinox Thanksgiving Day Dinner committee, describes the goal of the dinner to "make the community feel like a community and to help those in need."

Rosmarin-Plattner believes that an important aspect of the dinner is volunteers who reach out those in need in a single celebration of the traditional holiday. The Equinox dinner stands out in the memory of all those involved with it, Rosmarin-Plattner says, because "In this day and age of busy people, there are so few community-run events organized that make you feel connected."

Volunteers, who range from teenagers to senior citizens, praise the spirit of the dinner and the long days and nights spent preparing for it. The strength of the volunteers never fails.

More than 1,000 volunteers will

For the 27th year Equinox, Inc. will prepare thousands of Thanksgiving dinners for the lonely and the needy. Over 1,000 people volunteer there services to help guarantee the success of the event.

Although Mendonca describes preparations for the dinner as being "very overwhelming," she's confident that everyone will go home with a full stomach and a warm heart. "It's so amazing — the people that have been doing it year after year know what's going on."

Bob Zick, who along with his wife and co-chairwoman of the dinner Sue Zick, will volunteer for the dinner, said working for Equinox is "one of the most satisfying events in my life." Describing himself as a "worker bee," Zick, like many volunteers at the dinner, has had an intimate relationship with the Thanksgiving experience over the past few years. He said it is "A fantastic, warm community event, an outpouring of love seen in the personal contribution of time."

People and organizations that want to donate materials should call the Equinox Thanksgiving Day hotline at 434-0131. The hotline also handles requests for deliveries. Cash contributions are also needed. A $15 contribution allows a family of six to receive a delivered meal; a $50 contribution serves 20 individuals in a traditional, family style, sit-down dinner, complete with silverware; and a $75 contribution feeds 50 people. Checks should be made payable to Equinox Thanksgiving and sent to Equinox, 306 Central Ave., Albany 12206.

While Equinox is well-known for its Thanksgiving Dinner and Chocolate Festival, it also manages a youth shelter, a crisis center and counseling for drug abuse.

Dinner is served from 1 to 4 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day at First Presbyterian Church at 362 State St. in Albany. Dessert is served downstairs in the Eighth Step coffeehouse.

For information on Equinox programs, call 434-6135.

handle 5,000 pounds of turkey, 1,000 pounds of ham, 40 cases of sweet potatoes, 6,000 apple and pumpkin pies, 33 cases of apples, oranges and bananas, 400 dozen dinner rolls and 1,000 pounds of butternut squash. That's only part of the menu, and green beans, fresh fruit, pies, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes, ham and turkey are still needed.

Volunteers will also deliver 4,000 meals to the hungry and lonely in a 25-mile radius around Albany. Janna Mendonca, who is coordinating this year's dinner for the first time, says that volunteers are still needed, especially for the cleanup on Friday. All leftover food is taken to area shelters and food pantries.

Schenectady Civic Theater plans holiday reprise of Capital Rep play

A five-character comedy, Seasons' Greetings, is in rehearsal for a Dec. 6 opening at the Schenectady Civic Theater.

First performed in the region three years ago as a holiday production by the Capital Repertory Company, it later went to Broadway for a respectable run.

Ted Rucinski, a veteran actor from Latham, heads the cast in the play which deals with a Catholic family welcoming an atheist into its midst.

Joining Rucinski in the cast are Sally Farrell, Melissa Putterman, Hoffmann, David Lewis and Paul Quirini, all actors who have worked previously with director Chris Wilber.

Seasons' Greetings, written by Tom Dudzick, a playwright from Buffalo, plays Dec. 6-8 and 11-15.

A special performance of the comedy will be given Tuesday, Dec. 10 for the benefit of the Schenectady Day Nursery. The show is underwritten by Mohawk Valley Physicians.

Reservations and information are available at 382-2081.

Annual Adirondack Theater benefit features performers from Rent

The Adirondack Theater Festival will have members of the cast from the Broadway musical, Rent, appear Jan. 27 at the French Mountain Playhouse in Lake George as part of its third annual winter benefit.

Festival artistic director Martha Banta and founding member Gilles Chiasson who have been working on the Rent production for the last two years in New York, had an inside track on gaining the help of the cast.

Martin P. Kelly

SPOTLIGHT

By Martin P. Kelly

Previous benefits have had Jason Robards and Elaine Stritch appear prior to the season. This year the season will open June 12 and play through July 6.

Information and reservations for the Jan. 27 event may be obtained by calling 798-7479.

New play about Shakespeare due at Masque Theater Dec. 13

A Bard Dreaming, a new play by local playwright Carol Bosselman, opens Dec. 4 for a run through Dec. 18 at the Hudson Valley Community College where the Masque Theater of Troy will present the production.

Colony producer Stephen Boaden is supervising the production of the play.

This script looks at Shakespeare, the man and not the literary legend. Almost 25 years ago William Gibson wrote A Cry of Players which also touched on Shakespeare's family life and his eventual running away with a theater troupe to London.

Information and reservations are available for this production at the Maureen Stapleton Theater on the campus at 459-4961.

Schenectady Symphony features Michael Emery at Proctor's Dec. 1

Concertmaster and violinist Michael Emery will be featured in Symphonie Espagnole with the Schenectady Symphony Orchestra 3 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 1, at Proctor's Theater.

Emery who has been with the Schenectady Symphony for a number of years, began studying the violin at age 10 locally. At 12 years of age, he was selected to perform in Carnegie Hall.

Emery is also concertmaster for the Utica and Catskill Symphonies and is on the faculty of Skidmore College.

In addition to the Symphonie Espagnole, the concert will also include Beethoven's Symphony No. 2 and Barger's Symphony No. 1.

Reservations are available at 346-6204.

Watthews heads Mr. Scrooge cast in title role for musical on Dec. 5-7.

Veteran performer and director Tom Watthews, of Voorheesville, will play the title role in the musical, Mr. Scrooge, which will be seen in three performances, Dec. 5, 6 and 7, at the Bethlehem Central Middle School on Kenwood Avenue in Delmar.

Richard Harte of Elmsmere is staging this musical with more than 30 performers as the holiday production presented by the Village Stage community theater.

Johanna Marvin plays Tiny Tim and Steve Suriano will be seen as the child's father, Bob Cratchit.

Reservations are available at various retail outlets in Delmar and Voorheesville. Group rates are available by calling 439-9068.

AROUND THEATERS!

The Importance of Being Earnest, Oscar Wilde's classic farce, opens Friday, Dec. 22 for a month's run at the Capital Repertory Company's Market Theater in Albany (462-4531). A Christmas Carol, Charles Dickens' play opens Nov. 27 for 12-performance run (465-0681). They're Playing Our Song, Neil Simon musical at the Schenectady Light Opera House Dec. 6-15 (399-9359).

FORWARD

If you are going to serve and go to the net, it's important to concentrate on the serve before you worry about the volley.

You need to move quickly after the serve to get into proper volley position. After your serve, if your first three steps are very quick, you should get close enough to the net to hit your first volley in the air, roughly around the service line.

Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS

SHOULD YOUR WAISTS BE COCKED DELIBERATELY OR INVOLUNTARILY AS YOU SWING BACK?

THE ANSWER IS THAT GREAT GOLF HAS BEEN PLAYED WITH QUITE A FEW DIFFERENT KINDS OF WAIST ACTION.

EXPERIMENT TO FIND WHAT WORKS BEST FOR YOU THEN STICK TO IT.

PERSONALLY, I SEEK

A FEELING OF MY WAISTS COCKING INVOLUNTARILY IN RESPONSE TO THE MOMENTUM OF THE SWINGING CLUBHEAD STARTING AS THE CLUB PASSES HIS HIP HEIGHT.
