Fuller details case for lead agency role

By Mel Hyman

Supervisor Sheila Fuller has outlined the town's reasons for desiring lead agency status of the proposed formaldehyde plant in Glenmont in a letter sent to the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

EnCon, which is also seeking lead agency status for the $9.5 million project, had set a deadline of Thursday, Dec. 5, for the town to make its case.

EnCon Commissioner Michael Zagata will make the final decision in about two or three weeks.

Fuller met with town attorney Bernard Kaplowitz and public works commissioner Bruce Secor on Monday before composing her letter.

Fuller

Essentially, the town needs to demonstrate to EnCon that it is deeply enough involved in the fate of the project to warrant its having control over the environmental review.

Spurlock Adhesives of Waverly, Va., is seeking to build and operate a chemical plant next to the Niagara Mohawk power station on Route 144 to serve industrial formaldehyde customers in Schenectady and throughout the Northeast.

Fuller said the town would be impacted in a number of ways by the project.

First, wastewater from the plant will be discharged into the town's sanitary sewer system.

Developer redesigns senior housing plan

By Mel Hyman

A 110-unit apartment building for senior citizens is being proposed for Route 9W in Glenmont.

Bethlehem planners met to discuss the project last night, which has been on the drawing board for more than a year in various configurations.

In July 1995, developer Jason Minick initially proposed building 33 single-family homes on 29.5 acres of cornfields currently owned by Vincent and Kathryn Spinosa.

But that proposal "didn't fly too well," according to planning board chairman Doug Hasbrouck, because the parcel is long and narrow and "goes back too far for proper access by emergency services."

In March 1996, Minick returned with a plan to construct three separate buildings containing 111 apartments for senior citizens. But that plan ran into problems when town building inspector John Flanigan advised the planning board that the land would need to be subdivided for the project to proceed.

The latest proposal would entail construction of a single, 110-unit apartment building for people 55 years old and older. There would be 222 parking spaces available on site.

The project lies in a commercial zone, and is located directly across from Hague Boulevard and the entrance to Dowerskill Village.

About 50 percent of the parcel would remain open space, and it's expected that the roadside farm stand operated by the Spinosas near Route 9W will continue.

"I would think that they would be getting more business than ever" with the arrival of the new residents, Minick said.

The rents will be geared toward the Panel backs off Town Squire bankruptcy

By Mel Hyman

The latest on the fate of the Town Squire Plaza in Glenmont, which was slated to go on the auction block last week, has owner Eugene Moramarco breathing a bit easier.

The last-minute reprieve from foreclosure, issued by a bankruptcy appellate panel meeting in New York City, contains some cause for optimism.

The Nov. 25 bankruptcy panel decision noted that the request for a stay in foreclosure proceedings by the plaza's owners, Country Squire Associates of Carle Place LP, "is not frivolous, and there is a substantial possibility of success on the merits."

That's just what Moramarco has been waiting to hear, because he and his business partners have been working overtime to find a way out of their financial dilemma. Country Squire was forced to seek protection from creditors two years ago by filing for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Town Squire Shopping Center may have a new lease on life, with a stay of a foreclosure auction.

That action was taken after Rochester Community Savings Bank initiated foreclosure proceedings in April 1994 as a result of Country Squire's failure to make the necessary payments on a $1.7 million loan issued by the bank.

Moramarco said the key to his attempts at reorganization is the lease negotiated with Grand Union earlier this year that allows the grocery chain to lease 46,000 square feet of unoccupied space at the

Glenmont professor wins teaching honor

John Denio of Glenmont recently received the Distinguished Teacher of the Year Award from Albany College of Pharmacy. The award, given in recognition of excellence in teaching, is conferred by the students.

Denio teaches economics, health care economics, organizational systems theory, management and pharmacy administration at the New Scotland Avenue school.

Denio

A lifelong resident of the Capital District, Denio was born in Troy and raised in Melrose.

He earned a bachelor's degree in inter-disciplinary studies and an master's degree in health systems management from Union College in Schenectady. He also has a master's degree in business administration from Russell Sage College in Troy.

As an undergraduate at Union, Denio played soccer and basketball.

Upon graduation, rather than seeking employment as a civil engineer, he pursued his passion for sports by accepting a position as the men's basketball coach at Albany College of Pharmacy.

He continues to work as assistant coach of the men's basketball team today and, in his free time, coaches for the Bethlehem Soccer Club.

Describing his philosophy of teaching, Denio said, "Challenge, but don't intimidate; give and gain respect; know what you are talking about, but be willing to admit it when you don't; help students think about the subject, the profession and the future; offer options; be relevant and have a chocolate chip cookie ready every once in a while."

A teaching veteran of 20 years, Denio sees students as "naive, hopeful and inquisitive."

But nowadays they show evidence of coming from "difficult home situations," and often "need a little pat on the back," he explained.

He also finds students today heavily focused on getting the diploma and less involved in the day-to-day activities of college life.

The small size of Albany College of Pharmacy is one of the college's strengths, Denio said, because "It is hard to get lost here. We all wear so many hats that it is difficult for the students to avoid us."

Involvement and communication might also be the keys to being a successful teacher, he said, since students appreciate a professor's openness to people and ideas.

John grew up as one of the 18 children in the family of Dom and Margaret Denio. His father, now retired, was a respected teacher and coach at LaSalle Institute in Troy and the former Linton High School in Schenectady.

Although he admits he never thought about being a teacher while growing up, John Denio acknowledged that he is proud to be following in his father's footsteps as a coach and teacher.

V'ville board rejects Rodrigue rezoning request

By Dev Tobin

In a rare divided vote, the Voorheesville village board decided not to rezone a residential parcel owned by Claude Rodrigue adjacent to his commercial/industrial complex off Voorheesville Avenue.

In a prior public hearing on the matter, Robert Burns of CR Drywall argued that it was unfair to enforce the village's 50-foot setback requirement between residential and commercial zones when Rodrigue owned property in both zones.

"We don't need a buffer between ourselves," Burns said.

He noted that eventually Rodrigue may want to erect another building on the three-acre site, which has been improved and leveled this year with fill from the St. Matthew's addition.

At the hearing, neighbors opposed the rezoning, but noted that Rodrigue could receive a variance that would achieve much the same result, but with site-specific conditions that would provide acceptable screening and use restrictions.

A majority of the board — Mayor Edward Clark and trustees Daniel Reh and Harvey Huth — agreed, while trustees Susan Rockmore and Kevin Garrity supported the rezoning.

Clark pointed out that while Rodrigue is a good neighbor, a future owner of the property may not feel bound by informal agreements on screening and use.

Clark said he took into account that the neighbors "were concerned about the activity on the site, the setbacks, and that there be restrictions" related to noise and screening, which could be formalized in the variance process.

In another matter, the village got some good news regarding state funding of infrastructure projects.

Clark said the state will provide a $75,000 grant, secured through Sen. Michael Hoblock's office, for rebuilding the bridge that carries Stonington Hill Road over the Vly Creek. The bridge has been identified as contributing to area flooding.

Clark added that the state Department of Transportation has committed to rebuilding a culvert under Maple Avenue as part of its work on the two Maple Avenue bridges over the Vly Creek next year. The 80-year-old culvert has also contributed to area flooding.

In other business, the board appointed two new members to the planning commission — Ed Blackmer and Nancy Moser.

Clark also reported that the village has applied for a $350,000 grant through the Capital District Transportation Committee to create "pedestrian linkages" between the village center, the library and Salem Hills.

Village Stage presents musical Scrooge

With a cast and crew of more than 50 Bethlehem residents, Mr. Scrooge, a musical adaptation of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol, opens Thursday, Dec. 5, for four performances at Bethlehem Central Middle School at 332 Kenwood Ave.

Produced by The Village Stage, Mr. Scrooge is directed by Richard Harte, a veteran director and performer.

The cast features Tom Watthews, a retired Bethlehem Central High School teacher, in the role of Scrooge created by British actor Albert Finney on television, where the show first appeared.

Watthews has acted and directed for Village Stage previously and has appeared on area stages during the past 30 years.

Steve Juriano will play Bob Cratchit, and Johanna Marvin of Hamagrael Elementary School will play Tiny Tim.

Harte's staging will incorporate the ghosts who bedevil Scrooge during his redemption as a miser on Christmas Eve in Victorian England. Played by William McColl, Ron Rivers and Margot Phillips, these characters take Scrooge through his life to point out his faults, and remind him of the true spirit of the holiday.

Tickets for the performances are $5 and $8 and are on sale at the Paper Mill in Elsmere, Four Corners Luncheonette in Delmar, Mangia in Slingerlands, Super-Valu market in Voorheesville and at the door. Group rates are available.

For information, call 439-9068.

Rehearsing for Mr. Scrooge are Sarah Misenheimer, Tom Watthews and Jordan Coughtry.

2025 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176

Some BCHS science students go for research gusto

By Katherine McCarthy

On a recent Tuesday during lunch period, about 30 science students met in biology teacher George Seymour's classroom at Bethlehem Central High School for a special presentation. With his Power Book attached to a TV monitor, senior Jeffrey Ciprioni presented the results of his two-year project for the science research he began last year.

With an occasional glance for confirmation at his mentor, doctoral candidate and Siena instructor George Rapp, Ciprioni presented his "Analysis of Call Frequency in Hyla versicolor, the Gray Tree Frog," discussing the number of variables he studied to determine the ability of a gray tree frog to attract a mate. Ciprioni fielded questions, seeming perplexed by only one: "So, are you done with this project now?" "I think I am," he said.

"These students are pioneers," Seymour said. "They're working on real projects, not just taking a lab. No one knows the outcome of his or her project. Now they're doing science." The research class is designed to last three years, and students who qualify for it take it in addition to the regular science requirements at BCHS. Students identify a project they would like to work on, find a mentor in the field, and set out to see what they can discover.

Seymour serves more as a guide than a teacher, instructing the students in the use of DIA-LOG, an on-line research service, helping them narrow down their interests to a specific topic, and assisting them in finding a mentor. Each student has a large binder to record research, keep copies of articles read, log phone calls as well as meetings and appointments with mentors, and to record grants and contests they plan to enter.

Every three weeks, Seymour meets with each student to review his or her progress. The class as a whole holds a symposium at the school in June, and students are required to enter the Upstate New York Junior Science and Humanities Symposium and the RPI Science and Engineering Fair. Students are strongly encouraged to enter the prestigious Westinghouse competition. More than 50 students applied for the fewer than 30 spots in the class.

In spite of the daunting amount of work, students are enthusiastic about the opportunity for hands-on science. "I've done a lot of things I wouldn't have in high school," Ciprioni said, recalling the Friday and Saturday nights — often from early evening until dawn — he and his mentor spent in hip boots at McCormack Road Pond, picking up frogs and marking them with toe clippings, recording their place in the pond and the number of calls they made in one minute.

Nancy Oberheim, also a senior, has worked with Marlene Belfort, a research biologist at the state Health Department's Wadsworth Center, learning techniques of microbiology in her project entitled "Inteines — Autocatalytic, Self-Splicing, Internal Portions of Post Translational DNA." Oberheim offered simpler praise for the science research course: "You're learning what you want."

District science Supervisor Bruce Tulloch is very pleased with the program, one that the Bethlehem administration had been interested in implementing for some time. "We have the kind of kids who can do this," he said. "This is an opportunity to add a different dimension to the science curriculum. It provides a unique opportunity for kids interested in pursuing science to a doctoral level. This is an experience that frequently doesn't come even in the undergraduate years."

Tulloch also said this course fits into the district's goal to pursue inquiry-minded science classes. "We can point with pride to George's class," he said. The number of scientists and researchers in the Bethlehem community, Tulloch felt, helped to make the course possible. "The community has been great in providing people," Tulloch said.

Seymour is also pleased at how willing scientists are to take on projects and mentor Bethlehem students. Rapp, who also spent weekend nights marking tree frogs for his doctoral work, found the mentoring experience a two-way street. "I had taught high school for five years, so I was anxious to help out," he said. In the end, though, he found that Ciprioni helped him with his research. "The wood frogs I was studying came out first, then Jeff's," Rapp said,

"and Jeff helped me with my research. He's independent, dedicated, and has good ideas. I advised him on science, but really, he did his whole project by himself."

Bethlehem is in the lead as the state seeks to implement even more science research courses. The courses started eight years ago in the Byram Hills school district in Westchester County by science teacher Dr. Robert Pavlica.

In six years, Byram Hills had seven Westinghouse scholars, which drew the attention of Dr. Daniel Wulff, director of the Upstate New York Junior Science and Humanities Symposium and professor of biological sciences at SUNY Albany.

Wulff, a former Delmar resident, now spends a great deal of his time encouraging school districts throughout the state to send their science teachers to Pavlica's workshops in an effort to make the science research courses a state-wide standard. "This is the only time in all of education, from K through 12," Wulff said, "that a teacher says, 'What are you interested in?'" Wulff had high praise for Seymour and the BCHS class. "George is a gifted teacher, and the district supports him," he said. "The course works particularly well in Bethlehem, where there are educated, affluent parents, and professional scientists at place like the Wadsworth Institute and Albany Med."

Wulff, in fact, hopes that Bethlehem will soon add another science research course to meet the demand. Seymour, for now, is pleased with the science research class, and the skills the students are learning. As he approaches his 25th year of teaching, he is clearly delighted with the science research class. "I've waited my whole career to teach this class."

Church check heist leads police to Elsmere market

By Mel Hyman

Don't leave your purse unattended — even in church.

That's the lesson from last week's caper at the Grand Union in Elsmere that started at St. John's-St. Ann's Church on Franklin Street in Albany.

During the Sunday, Nov. 24 church service, someone stole valuables from a female parishioner's purse. A checkbook, a payroll check and credit cards were among the missing items.

On the following morning, a middle-aged woman entered the Grand Union in Elsmere and tried to pay for her groceries with one of the stolen checks.

The store clerk was a bit leery because of a lack of identification, and she checked with the store manager who had been tipped off the same morning that a Grand Union check cashing card had been stolen in Albany the previous day.

The female suspect and a male who was with her were seen loitering around the store's ATM machine for an inordinate amount of time by the store manager whose suspicions had already been aroused, according to Bethlehem Police Detective John Cox.

Quick thinking on the part of the clerk prompted her to follow the customer outside and take down a license plate and vehicle description before the suspect made her getaway.

At the same time, a middle-aged male who was with the woman in the store took off on foot toward Albany, police said.

That's when the Bethlehem police sprang into action. Officer David Harrington pursued the check-kiting suspect out of town and on to I-787 before finally apprehending her in the South End of Albany.

Sgt. Paul Roberts accosted the male suspect near Bob's Produce on Delaware Avenue. A computer check run on the male suspect, Barry D. Lewis, 40, of Green Street, Albany, revealed that he was wanted by the Albany Police Department on a charge of third-degree assault. Lewis was turned over to Albany police for processing.

The check-kiting suspect, Lulu Mae Johnson, 47, also of Green Street, was charged with second-degree possession of a forged instrument and fourth-degree possession of stolen property, both felonies. She was sent to Albany County jail pending a bail hearing in Albany County Court.

Bethlehem police were able to connect Johnson with the stolen valuables from church after the victim identified the suspect from a photo spread of six women at police headquarters.

"She ID'd the suspect as the woman sitting in the pew behind her in church," Cox said.

Despite numerous arrests and prosecutions, check-kiting remains a major problem at local grocery stores, according to Police Lt. Richard Vanderbilt.

Police nab 3 for DWI

Bethlehem Police recently arrested three people on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Michael D. Paolucci, 31, of 204 Derzee Court, Delmar, was stopped at 12:55 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 30, for speeding on the Slingerlands Bypass, police said.

He was charged with speeding and a felony count of DWI. He was released on $2,500 cash bail. Officer Chris Pauley investigated.

Anthony J. Spallane, 38, of 8 Krank St., Albany, was stopped at 1:36 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 28, for weaving on the Delmar Bypass, police said.

He was charged with DWI and failure to keep right. He was released pending a future appearance in town court. Officer Chris Pauley investigated.

Donald Freuhwirth, 28, of 8 Bertha St., Albany, was stopped at 3:40 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 19, for speeding on Route 32, police said.

He was charged with DWI and released pending a Dec. 16 appearance in town court. Officer Brian Hughes investigated.

Cootware in training at Fort Benning

Army National Guard Pvt. Matthew J. Cootware has started basic infantry training at Fort Benning in Columbus, Ga.

During the training, he will receive instruction in drill and ceremonies, map reading, tactics, military customs and courtesies, and first aid.

Cootware is the son of Kathryn and Donald Cootware of Voorheesville. He is a 1995 graduate of Clayton A. Bouton High School in Voorheesville.

Court cases adjudicated

The following dispositions have been recorded in Bethlehem Town Court:

Anthony T. Bussey, 37, of 38 Hanover Drive, Delmar, arrested on Jan. 28, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated. His license was revoked for six months, and he was fined $500 plus a $90 surcharge.

Willie J. Buxton, 20, of Spawnshollow Road, South Bethlehem, arrested on April 28, pleaded guilty to aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and was fined $200 plus a $90 surcharge. A charge of driving while intoxicated was dismissed, and a charge of unlawful possession of marijuana was reduced to disorderly conduct, for which he was fined $100.

Michael Bellamare, 40, of East Durham, arrested on May 11, had his charge of third-degree falsification of a report reduced to disorderly conduct, and he was given a conditional discharge.

Thomas M. Van Slyke, arrested on May 24 and charged with felony DWI and first-degree aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, pleaded guilty to driving while ability impaired. He was fined $300 plus a $25 surcharge, and his license was suspended for 90 days.

Nicholas H. Halpin, 17, of 25 Euclid Ave., Delmar, arrested on Aug. 25 and charged with driving while intoxicated, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of driving while ability impaired. He was fined $300 plus a $25 surcharge, and his license was suspended for 90 days.

John Erik Swift, 36, of 13 Leaf Road, Delmar, arrested on Sept. 12 and charged with driving while intoxicated, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of driving while ability impaired. He was fined $300 plus a $25 surcharge, and his license was suspended for 90 days.

All defendants pleading guilty to DWAI were ordered to attend a victim's impact panel and a drinking driver program.

Library to host stories and tunes for winter

Guitarist, songwriter and storyteller Cathy Winter will give a family performance at the Bethlehem Public Library of songs and stories that have carried inhabitants of the northern hemisphere through the winter.

"Stories and Songs for the Season of Lights" will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 17, at 7 p.m. in the community room at the library, located at 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

Winter, who lives in the Capital District, has toured throughout the U.S., Canada and England.

The program is free and open to the public.

Hanukkah's message

The Jewish holiday of Hanukkah, beginning at sundown Thursday, is an eight-day festival that commemorates the victory of the traditionalist Maccabees over the Hellenistic Syrians who attempted to eradicate the Jewish religion as part of their plan to Hellenize their entire kingdom.

The Syrians took various steps to achieve their goal, and one of them was to desecrate and defile the Temple in Jerusalem. After a three-year struggle, the Maccabees took back Jerusalem and rebuilt their place of worship. According to tradition, a small amount of consecrated oil, for use in the menorah, was found within the Temple precincts. Although it was only enough to burn for one day, the oil lasted for eight days, and the festival was established for this length of time to commemorate the miracle.

We can all learn a great deal from this tale of triumph. Certainly Hanukkah has taken on a heightened meaning in the United States merely because of its proximity to Christmas, but it still carries a lesson of hope.

Hanukkah is about fighting for what we believe in. It transcends religious affiliation and it represents an instance where in a distant time and a distant place a people stood up for what they believed in and fought unwarranted oppression and persecution. And then for one brief period of time in a dark house of worship, the light we take for granted today, burned gloriously for eight days in a flame fueled on only enough oil for one day.

Happy Hanukkah!

Know road rules

The ad hoc citizens group concerned about pedestrian safety and the Bethlehem town traffic safety committee headed by Lt. Richard Vanderbilt are both headed in the right direction. Their efforts to educate and advocate conformance to the rules of the road are commendable.

With the recent loss of two Bethlehem young women in car/pedestrian accidents, it is incumbent on all of us to practice those rules when driving and when walking or bicycling.

Walkers should face traffic. With so many streets in Bethlehem without sidewalks, it is common sense when walking to be able to see approaching traffic and move out of the way. Walkers and joggers should use sidewalks whenever possible. Pedestrians (and bicyclists) should also wear bright clothing and reflective markings, during early morning and early evening hours:

Bicyclists should ride with traffic, not against it. And, those age 14 and younger should — it's the law — wear helmets. Children must learn these rules at home and in school, and be reminded of them on an ongoing basis. Last but not least, drivers must be alert, follow the speed limit and use common sense when pedestrians are in the roadway.

As one recent letter writer to The Spotlight pointed out, it is clear pedestrians and cyclists all too often fail to follow the traffic rules, and this failure is simply an accident waiting to happen.

Feed the hungry

Equinox has logged another Thanksgiving Day dinner, that fed thousands throughout the region. Despite the mind-boggling logistics, everyone was fed the traditional holiday meal in style.

But this Thursday, just one week from Thanksgiving, people will go hungry. Local food pantries need replenishing and will continue to be depleted after the holidays. This week, the Postal Service is conducting its annual food drive.

Through Saturday, Dec. 7, you can help by putting one non-perishable food item in your mail box. You can also drop off food at post office lobbies.

Albany's Catholic Charities continue to serve those in need

A beacon in times of emergency

By Joseph Mahoney

The writer is a volunteer for Catholic Charities. He is public information officer for the Attorney General's Office.

In a tidy apartment decorated with family photographs, a white-haired widow relaxes in her rocking chair, content that she can live independently in neatly kept and quiet housing for senior citizens.

In a nearby suburb, friends are urging a young couple to get family counseling and decide to do what's necessary to improve their marriage rather than split up.

And in a local town, a single mother with two pre-school children drops them off at a child care program, then heads to vocational training courses so she can acquire the skills she needs to find a job with a future.

The common denominator empowering the people in all three of these scenarios is Catholic Charities of the Albany Diocese.

Formed by a special act of the New York State Legislature in 1917, Catholic Charities has blossomed into a multi-faceted agency that now serves more than 173,000 individuals of all races and religions every year in 14 counties of Northeastern New York.

All across the Capital Region, Catholic Charities is a lifeline for the hungry, the sick, the addicted, the forgotten, the lonely, the poor and the immigrants who are moving to this area with not much more than the shirts on their backs.

In an economy where the prospect of homelessness is a mere layoff away for too many, it is critically important that Catholic Charities receive the community support that it needs to serve those in desperate straits.

Consider the bright-eyed orphans born with the HIV virus in their blood and who are afforded a nurturing, caring refuge at Farano House operated by Catholic Charities.

Point of View

ties in Albany. Consider the scores of domestic violence victims who find emergency lodging at shelters operated by Catholic Charities in various locations throughout the region. And reflect on the dozens of pregnant teenagers and single parents who benefit from the wide array of comprehensive services offered by Catholic Charities.

Sister Maureen Joyce, the executive director of Catholic Charities, said the agency's mission reflects the Catholic Church's ethic of serving people in need in ways that respect their dignity and enable them to achieve their God-given potential.

All across the Capital District, Catholic Charities is a lifeline for the hungry, the sick, the addicted, the forgotten, the lonely, the poor and the immigrants who are moving to this area with not much more than the shirts on their backs.

"The delivery of human services by Catholic Charities is the outward expression of its concern for all those troubled by the social ills of society," Joyce said. "These services are a response to the signs of the times and take varying forms as new needs emerge."

Catholic Charities has vigorously responded to human misery and anguish wherever the kindness, soothing touch and boundless energy of its staff and volunteers have been needed.

And the good works do not stop here on the home front. For instance, when a bomb demolished the federal building in Oklahoma City, killing of children and adults, Sister Marguerite Tierney of St. Joseph's in Latham was dispatched by Catholic Charities to assist the devastated community there while bodies were still being pulled out of the rubble.

Many of the vital programs offered by Catholic Charities were launched during the 15 years that Sister Serena Branson piloted the agency.

With her unwavering enthusiasm and keen insight into how to make programs run more effectively, she continues to be a living inspiration for any in her midst. Programs such as Mercy House, Catholic Charities Housing Office and Hispanic Outreach services, all initiated under Branson's guidance, have become indispensable resources in the region's social services safety net.

And where would the Capital District be without the St. Charles Lwanga Center, the emergency shelter for homeless men. Or Sunside Center, which serves people in Troy? Or Community Maternity Services, which serves young mothers and children across the diocese?

It is precisely these programs that keep the streets of the region from resembling bleak scenes out of a Charles Dickens' novel.

Catholic Charities programs are working because they put the concept of charity into action, delivering essential services to the disenfranchised and victims of personal misfortune rather than simply paying lip service to a problem. What the staff is about is putting the tools of personal empowerment into the hands of those who utilize these efficiently administered programs so they can grow and reach their potential as human beings.

Every day, the staff and volunteers of Catholic Charities share their time, their talents, their compassion and their love. In a world where it is too easy to find callousness and indifference, they are dedicated to helping.

Now all they need is a little bit of help from the rest of us.

Bethlehem should be tough on traffic law violators

Editor, The Spotlight:

In the town of Bethlehem, we've had three children killed by motorists in the past three years. None of the drivers were charged in the accidents. No tickets were issued.

Were the kids really at fault? Or was the town at fault for not providing sidewalks and crosswalks? Or were the drivers at fault for not being more vigilant?

Is it fair to blame three children for accidents in which they died as pedestrians?

Motorists must begin to drive more carefully, to obey laws and to reduce speed in town. It is not enough to blindly drive at the speed limit. Many times it is necessary to drive below the speed limit, especially when pedestrians and bicyclists are on the roadway. According to the law, pedestrians and bicyclists have the right of way in many instances.

In Bethlehem, we need side-

walks to separate pedestrians and cars on all streets and roads. We need stricter enforcement of traffic laws by town police. Bethlehem must establish a reputation as a town where negligent driving, speeding and running stop signs are not tolerated. We must become a town where tough enforcement of traffic laws and zero tolerance for motorists who break the law.

We must become a town where pedestrians have the rights due them under the state Vehicle and Traffic Law regarding right of way, crossing streets and cycling. Otherwise, more children will be killed on our streets.

Take closer look at EnCon rules

Editor, The Spotlight:

Last week's Spotlight article indicates that Spurlock Adhesives, who propose to build a formaldehyde plant in Bethlehem, must adhere to tough EnCon rules. Let's take a careful look at these rules.

The air quality permit will be issued based on an EnCon guideline not a standard, according to a draft New York state Air Guidelines for the Control of Toxic Ambient Contaminants.

This is not a Health Department guide. The guideline has a number of shortcomings.

EnCon has not developed guidelines for assessing the toxicity of mixtures of air contaminants.

In the absence of background data, EnCon assumes that the background concentrations are zero for non-criteria pollutants. Terrain effects and elevated receptors are not considered.

Maximum and annual air concentrations of contaminants can vary by a factor of 500.

The excess risk is based on an adult breathing 20 cubic meters of air per day for a 70-year period, resulting in a projected excess cancer risk of one in one million. The guides fail to recognize other vectors of exposure such as water and food, population density and individuals in the population that might be at greater risk.

The community cannot depend on EnCon's air guidance to meet all health and safety concerns.

Sherwood Davies

Protestors fail to understand concept of relative risk

Editor, The Spotlight:

Recent protests over the proposed formaldehyde plant in Glenmont demonstrate a lack of understanding of the concept of relative risk and its application to environmental issues.

According to an article in The Spotlight, state standards for formaldehyde emissions are set at a level that could result in a lifetime risk of one additional case of cancer per million people. Since Bethlehem's population is about 25,000, we'd have to wait 40 lifetimes (or 40 generations) for that additional case of cancer to occur. Even if the risk were 10 times higher, we'd still have to wait four generations, about 200 years, for that additional case of cancer. One cancer (not necessarily fatal) in 200 years. That is a small risk especially in contrast to some other hazards in Bethlehem.

In the last six months, two young people in Bethlehem have been killed while walking on streets in areas where there are no sidewalks. If there are no additional pedestrian fatalities in the next six months, the death rate will be two per year for pedestrians. If that rate continues for 200 years, 400 people will die walking in Bethlehem.

Those people who would like to make the town a safer place to live could make a valuable contribution by applying their energy to the sidewalk issue. I suspect a crowd at a town hall board meeting demanding sidewalks would very quickly get results that would benefit all town residents for many years to come.

Thanks to fire department

Editor, The Spotlight:

About a week ago, we heard a knock at our front door at around 5 a.m. A jogger had noticed that a pole of leaves along the curbside by our house was on fire.

Running outside with phone in hand, I quickly grabbed the garden hose, turned on the water and began watering down the yard. At the same time, I called 911. Within just a few minutes, fire department personnel were on the scene followed quickly by the fire trucks.

The efficiency, competence and courteous manner of all the fire personnel that arrived on the scene is deeply appreciated. Bethlehem can be very proud of the fire department and the professional manner in which they conduct themselves.

We would like to extend our sincerest appreciation for the fine work the department did containing the fire and preventing any serious damage or injury.

Whitings say thank you to community

Editor, The Spotlight:

We don't know how to begin to express our thanks and gratitude to everyone in the Bethlehem community. The outpouring of love, support, prayers and offers of help has been truly overwhelming and has given us comfort during these darkest of days. Friends and neighbors have been and continue to be a great source of strength, offering their help in innumerable ways, including running errands, making meals and providing a shoulder to cry on.

Teachers from all of the schools Sarah attended, Tri-Village Nursery School, Slingerlands Elementary, the middle and the high school have all expressed their condolences, sent gifts of food and contributions, and offered understanding, support and encouragement to Corey and Andrew. A special thank you to the boys varsity soccer team and parents who provided several meals for us. Even people we didn't know have called or written to express their sympathy and offer words of comfort and support. We cannot adequately convey our gratitude to the caring strangers who got out of their cars at the accident scene to help Sarah, to be with her, to hold her hand, so that she would not be alone.

The Bethlehem police, especially Detective John Cox and Detective Chris Bowdish, were especially kind and caring during their investigation of the accident. Thank you to the rescue squad who responded so quickly and provided emergency treatment en route to the hospital and to the very compassionate doctors and nurses in the pediatric intensive care unit at Albany Medical Center.

The young people of this community, friends of Sarah, Corey and Andrew, have been truly amazing in their maturity and compassion and their willingness to share their feelings and offer comfort and support to all of us. This community should be proud of them.

To Sarah's friends, we'd like to send a special message. Be brave. As one young friend so aptly expressed, this has been a transition from childhood to adulthood for you. Work hard and play fair, for Sarah was committed to these ideals and she would want you to be committed to them as well. Have fun, but be safe. We don't need any more tragedies. Keep her always in your hearts.

Mark calendars for next year's ecumenical music program

Editor, The Spotlight:

What a wonderful town I live in. I attended the recent Thanksgiving service at the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle in Delmar sponsored by the Bethlehem ministerial associations. The service featured choirs from nine churches, an exceptional bell choir and a brass ensemble.

An estimated 900 people attended, not counting the 100-plus choir members from the combined churches.

I want to thank each participant and particularly the director of the combined choir, Margaret Dorgan, bell choir director Thomas Hyde and organist Jennie Moak.

During the service, as I looked around me, I noticed people from various faiths. What a wonderful communion of people. I then vividly remembered my mother teaching me, "There is only one God, but many ways to reach him. We are all God's people."

It was a beautiful community-building service. If you missed it, put it on your calendar for next year now, and get there early if you want a seat.

Woman returns to career first love with electrolysis business

By Mel Hyman

Paulette Chadraoui of Delmar spent the first 14 years of her life in Lebanon.

Now 35, Chadraoui noted that her native country has dramatically changed, and it's painful to compare what it was like then to what it has turned into now as a result of the military occupations by Syria and Israel.

"Originally, it was beautiful," she said. "The whole country. The scenery was just wonderful, and it was a popular tourist area" for people from around the world.

Aesthetics and beauty are values that Chadraoui holds on to not just in the fond memories of her homeland, but in her life's work as well. Even though she went to Russell Sage College in Troy for accounting, she returned recently to the one vocation she has always felt attached to — electrolysis.

She discovered this profession back in 1979 when she returned to Lebanon for a brief time and visited with an aunt who worked as an electrolysisist.

"I learned it from her," Paulette said, "but when I came back to the U.S., I chose not to pursue it because it still wasn't that popular here; certainly not as popular it was in Europe."

But like many people who eventually gravitate back to their first love, Chadraoui decided to go for broke and do whatever she had to in order to succeed in the field.

"Even though you don't have to be licensed or certified in New York state, I decided to get my certification anyway by going to school in New York City," she said. "I thought it would be good in case I wanted to open my own business."

Starting last month, that's exactly what happened. Chadraoui now operates Coco's Electrolysis from an office at 230 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

Paulette Chadraoui

"Establishing myself in business has always been my goal," she said. "I've been living in Delmar for about three years, and since I consider this my home, it seemed like the logical place to open a business."

Women of all ages — and men too — have concerns about facial and body hair, she explained, and electrolysis is still the most effective treatment.

Whether it's eyebrows, fingers, legs, arms, backs, people seem to prefer smooth skin mainly because it makes them feel better about themselves, Chadraoui said.

But she doesn't want to be just like every other electrolysisist around. She has a different one.

"I want to be the affordable one," she said. "I don't want people to think that it's going to cost them a fortune to look beautiful, in whatever way they think."

Coco's is be open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. or by appointment.

Thanks to Indians for thrilling year

On Sunday, scores of fans from the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk community headed west to see their team's grand finale at the Carrier Dome in Syracuse.

The Section II Class B champion Indians faced off against the Springville Griffins. With a scoreless game at halftime, the teams were evenly matched. Toward the end of the third quarter, the Griffins scored a touchdown, picking up an additional three points near the end of the game. The nine points earned the Griffins the gold, with the Indians picking up the silver plaque.

Coach Gary VanDerzee received an award for his work with the second-place team. Quarterback Steve Ross and offensive guard Tony Lintner also garnered awards.

Congratulations and thank you to the entire team for a spirited and glorious season, that brought the whole district together.

Acting troupe to present Camino Real at BCBS

Bethlehem Central High School's Vincent J. Crummles Acting Troupe will stage Tennessee Williams' Camino Real Dec. 12, 13 and 14 at 7:30 p.m., and Dec. 15 at 2 p.m. in the high school auditorium on 700 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

The play will be directed by Joe Phillips, who will be assisted by student director Sarah Rosenthal. The technical adviser is William Morrison.

Tickets are $5 for students and $7 for adults. Thursday's performance is free for senior citizens.

Saheer Umar as Kilroy, James Bell as Casanova and Sloan Grenz as Gutman are featured performers. Other key players are "Kristen Reinertsen, Michelle Brandone, Hilary Eldridge, Sarah Feedore, Jacob Ingalls and Susannah Gordon-Messer.

The play is a dreamscape, and its events are the nightmare of the sleeping Don Quixote de la Mancha. It takes place in an undefined location at the end of the Camino Real — the royal road. Its inhabitants are archetypal characters stuck in a crumbling walled plaza that is a port of entry and departure — with only a desolate "terra incognita" lying beyond the wall. Characters have to decide whether to linger in this empty place and waste away or move to the great unknown beyond the wall.

Program features holiday giving tips

'Tis the season to be charitable, and the library offers a guide to prudent generosity. "Tips on Charitable Giving," scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 10, at 7:30 p.m., will address two important consumer concerns: how to obtain information on charities, and how to identify and avoid charitable solici-tions, and the role of professional fund-raisers will also be presented. Kelly Mercure, assistant attorney general for the Charities Bureau in the state Attorney General's office, is the guest speaker.

Ongoing library tours of the career resources center continue tonight, Dec. 4, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Thursday, Dec. 5, from 9 to 11 a.m.

The tours will focus on specific career-oriented reference materials and provide a brief overview of the library's electronic job search sources.

Youth services preschool film series continues Friday, Dec. 6, with four films for children ages 3 to 6. Showtime is 10:30 a.m. and lasts about 30 minutes.

A puppet performance of "Hansel and Gretel" is the highlight of "Gingerbread Day" on Sunday, Dec. 8, at 2 p.m.

Children will help to construct gingerbread houses after the show. Registration is limited and there is a waiting list.

Registration is necessary for all of the above programs except the preschool films. Call 439-9314 to register.

Postal Service gears for avalanche

The U.S. Postal Service is ready for the avalanche of greeting cards and parcels that add so much joy to the season. Customers will find extended hours, new holiday stamps, packing materials and gifts at many of their local post offices.

Highlights of this year's plan to expedite service include:

- Extended hours and extra days at many post offices.
- Lobby directors will work to keep lines moving quickly.
- Vending equipment to make stamp purchases will help customers avoid waiting in line.
- Credit and debit cards are now accepted at most post offices.
- Prepaid Phone Cards in denominations from $5 to $100 are available as gifts.
- "The Rudolph, Frosty & Friends" sing-along video is for sale at major post offices.

• Wrapping materials — bubble wrap, tape, boxes, envelopes and tubes — are available at many post offices and postal stores.

• Priority Mail and Express Mail will speed delivery.

• Deck your cards with contemporary or religious holiday stamps: images of Christmastreetrees, presents and Santa going down the chimney; traditional "Madonna and Child" stamp taken from the work "Adoration of the Shepherds," and a new stamp for Hanukkah issued jointly with Israel.

Springville quashes RCS title dream

A few bad breaks and it's over

By Meghan Smith

The dream season for the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Indians ended at the Carrier Dome in Syracuse on Sunday.

RCS put up a valiant fight but eventually fell 9-0 to the Springville Griffins (ranked No. 1 in the state) from western New York.

Both teams entered the game with 12-0 records. Prior to the game, the question was whether game No. 13 would be lucky. Unfortunately for Indians, it proved not to be.

It was a tough defensive struggle throughout. The first half ended in a scoreless tie. The Indians turned back several Springville scoring drives, but could not dent the end zone themselves.

The key factor in the game was the four turnovers made by RCS. The Indians had been able to avoid mistakes on the way to the championship game, but two fumbles and two interceptions severely hurt their chances.

Springville failed to break through the RCS defense for most of the game before their star running back Mark Rendell broke through the left side of the line for a 74-yard touchdown run.

Their two-point conversion attempt failed, and the score remained 6-0 until Springville made a field goal with only a few minutes left in the game.

The Griffins' defense held RCS running back Matt Frese to 97 yards on 21 carries. He nearly broke through for several long runs, but was tripped up at the last second by Springville defenders. Quarterback Steve Ross picked up 32 yards on six carries but had a tough time in the passing department.

"The team made its mistakes at the wrong time," said coach Gary Vanderzee. "We knew it would be a good game, but tougher than the others. After all, it was a game between the two best (Class B) teams in the state.

"Springville played the game like we have played all year. We just didn't come up with any breaks. It was very disappointing to end the season with a loss."

"Even though we lost, we still got there and that says something," remarked senior Tony Carrk. "We did great all season long. The game could have gone either way, but the cards fell in favor of Springville."

"This was no better place to finish but in the Carrier Dome," said Mark Deyo. "It's my senior year, and it meant a lot."

While disappointment was the predominant emotion among the legion of fans and supporters who attended the game, the feeling among the players was still one of pride.

"I think we had a really good season," said senior Dave Schwartz. "Everyone played their hearts out, and it is disappointing to lose because we expected to win and came up short."

Still and all, "It was a great ride," he said. "I am proud to be on this team and couldn't be happier to play with each and every guy."

As the players walked off the field, many of them with tears in their eyes, they were given a standing ovation by their fans. It was a season that will last forever in their hearts as well as the history of the school.

The Bethlehem Lions Club will conduct its eighth annual Eagles look impressive in season-opening meet

By Andy Macmillan

Warming up to the theme from Star Wars, the Bethlehem wrestling team began its season with a bang on Saturday.

The Eagles took on CBA, Scotia, Cobleskill, and Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk in a four-way dual meet at home. Bethlehem beat each team in convincing fashion — 66-18 over CBA, 54-30 over Scotia, 45-24 against Cobleskill and 63-12 over RCS.

The team was led by senior captains Andy Loux (112) and Matt Wagoner (125) and juniors Dave Kaplan (145) Matt Brookshire (125) and Tim Leonard (119), all of whom were undefeated.

Loux, Leonard and Wagoner (who participated in the state championships last year) had four pins each. Dave Sherrin (152) went 3-1, including a one-point victory over rival Jess Brozowski of RCS.

Mike Delucco (160), Sean Demarest (135), Tom Hotaling (103), and Erick Kotlow (140), also went 3-1 for the day. Jason Hessburg, Dennis Lenhardt, Dave Woodworth and Paul Rappocio all contributed strong efforts.

Loux is optimistic about the 1996-97 season, but he cautions that "There are a lot of good teams in the section this year, and we'll have lots of close matches."

Bethlehem's strongest competition is expected to come from Shenendehowa, Niskayuna, Burnt Hills and Colonie.

BC hockey team shows strength

By Andrew Hartman

The Bethlehem ice hockey team showed some definite signs of maturity last week as they narrowly missed chalking up two games in the win column.

Led by captains Ethan Drake and Mike Coker, the Eagles took on Big 10 rival CBA at the Albany County hockey facility. With many Bethlehem fans in attendance, the team fell behind early, but BC's Dan Coccozza assisted Brad Colacino to tie the score 1-1.

Early in the second period, CBA scored again, but Bethlehem answered back with a Jeff Smith goal to leave the score tied going into the final period.

CBA broke the tie early in the third and scored a late goal to make the final score, 4-2.

The team was disappointed, but enthusiastic, because many things had come together.

"We were good, but we got tired," Smith said. "We played decent, but we weren't at our best."

On Saturday, hoping to even their record and build some momentum, the Eagles took on Troy.

With key saves by Adam Dimuria, Bethlehem held Troy scoreless for the first two periods, although Troy's goalie was similarly effective, as he also kept the Eagles from breaking through.

Early in the third period, Troy scored their first and the only goal of the game. Bethlehem continued to play hard, but couldn't quite put it in the net, as Troy emerged with a 1-0 win.

"It is tough playing such a hard game and losing by a goal," said Colacino.

"From a coach's point of view, what we've seen is excellent," said first-year coach Paul Machelor. "We are very pleased. We just have to learn to play intense hockey for three full periods."

V'ville girls looking to repeat

By Matt McKenna

The Voorheesville girls basketball team opens their regular season this week looking to capture another Colonial Council title.

The Ladybirds compiled a 25-1 overall record last year on their way to the Class C state semifinals. They rang up an 18-0 record in league play.

With four starters returning from last season's team, they look to be up near the top again.

The returning starters for Voorheesville are seniors Kristin Person and Becky Dawson, and juniors Jane Meade and Regan

Basketball

Burns. Meade was the co-MVP of the Colonial Council last season while leading the team in scoring. Natalie Portanova, Eva Sbardella, Erika Jackstadt and Jen Adams are also coming back this year.

Newcomers Lauren Lloyd, Cynthia Reed, and Jen Redi are expected to add to the Blackbirds depth.

Coach Jack Adams has yet to decide who is going to replace Jyll

Klebeck in the starting lineup.

"The four returning starters make for an experienced and rather strong team," he said. "We still have to get more chemistry together, but we are coming along nicely and working hard."

Playing in this league, though, really gets us ready for later on in the season," he said.

Voorheesville opens its season this Friday at home. It will not be a walk in the park, however, since both Holy Names and Schalmont have some strong players returning from last year, and they will test the Blackbirds early on.

CGHS squeaks by BC

By Tim Kavanagh

The Bethlehem girls basketball team is off and running, trying to continue the success it has had in recent years under head coach Kim Zornow.

After winning their first contest of the season against the Blue Streaks of Saratoga, the Eagles lost 45-41 to host Catholic Central in the championship game of the Lady Crusader Roundball Classic on Saturday.

Nicole Conway led the way against Catholic Central with 11 points. Magan Sellnow had eight points and 11 rebounds, while Kate Smith and Bridget Murray both chipped in seven points.

The team's overall play was "pretty good, but not great" in the tournament finale, Zornow said, and "Our turnovers were a key to the loss."

In the tournament first-round game, the Lady Eagles controlled Saratoga from start to finish as they posted an impressive 55-32 win.

This time out, Bethlehem was led by Sellnow, who had 14 points and nine boards. Conway poured in 12 points, and Karly Decker scored eight points.

Looking ahead, Zornow noted the team's inexperience. "It's a very young team. The two point guards are new to the varsity."

The key to the team's success, she said, is to continue rebounding well, as they did in the first two games.

This year's team consists of freshmen Bridget Murray and Lauren Murray; sophomores Kate Strait and Lily Corrigan; juniors Erica St. Lucia, Conway, Smith, Decker, and Sellnow; and seniors Jen Gould and Leigh Stevens.

The girls' next game is Friday at 7:30 p.m. vs. August Martin in the first round of the Shenendehowa Tip-Off Tournament. The championship and consolation games are scheduled for Sunday.

Hausman knocks down all the pins

Phil Hausman bowled a perfect game last week at Del Lanes in Delmar.

Second, "Because a portion of the Spurlock project lies within the floodway of the Hudson River, it may require additional review by the town prior to the issuance of a building permit," Fuller wrote.

Perhaps the most important issue, she said, is the fear that emissions from the plant could endanger public health. The project is "of great concern to the residents of our community," she wrote.

Fuller said personally she was satisfied that the "very stringent" emission standards for formaldehyde set by the state Health Department would prevent any problems.

But at the same time, there is always the worst case scenario to be concerned about, such as a truck accident or chemical spill. The fact that the plant is within close proximity of residential areas such as Wheeler Road does not inspire confidence, she said.

Sigi Moriece, spokeswoman for Bethlehem Citizens for Clean Air, said local control of the project was essential because while EnCon might have expertise in air emissions and bulk storage of chemicals, it does not have knowledge of health and safety issues and cannot gauge what effect the plant will have on property values.

"We should be able to evaluate these things locally and not be mandated to from above," she said.

Economically, the Spurlock plant is expected to create from 15 to 30 jobs and generate nearly $700,000 in taxes (over the first 10 years) to Albany County and the town's general fund, highway fund, water district and the Bethlehem Central School District.

Spurlock also intends to clean up petroleum contamination that exists on the site at an estimated cost of $860,000.

Spurlock representatives were unavailable for comment although they recently stated their intention to meet with residents of the community to help allay their concerns and answer specific questions about the project.

Delmar doctor to head Altamont health clinic

St. Peter's Altamont Health Center recently named Delmar resident Barbara E. Hauser, MD, JD, as the facility's new staff physician.

Prior to this position, Hauser was at Albany Medical Center, where she completed a combined residency in internal medicine and pediatrics.

Hauser and her husband reside in Delmar with their three children.

middle-income senior. A one-bedroom apartment will likely go for $450 a month, including heat, while a two-bedroom apartment will rent for $550 a month, including heat.

Bankruptcy

rear of Town Squire in an effort to keep any grocery competitors from moving in.

Grand Union, which used to be located in Town Squire, moved to Glenmont Plaza on the other side of Route 9W several years ago.

While Town Squire may be considered the stepchild of local shopping centers because of its 50 percent vacancy rate, Moramarco insisted that it could once again be a viable operation.

"Our goal is for it to remain a retail facility," he said. "We envision some exciting things happening, but we don't like to mention things that are still in the works."

In any event, until the black cloud of foreclosure is removed, any plans for the revitalization of Town Squire are moot, Moramarco said.

Country Squire has owned the shopping center since 1989. The 15-acre parcel that the plaza sits on belongs to Robert and Donald Wiggand, who stand to lose their property if the foreclosure proceeding against Town Squire culminates in the center being sold at auction.

The plaza was supposed to be sold to the highest bidder at the Albany County courthouse last week before the bankruptcy appellate panel stayed the action — and foreclosure — until all of the issues could be studied.

"I'm pleased to hear that maybe (Moramarco) can pull this out," Bob Wiggand said, "especially where it concerns Donny and me."

The Wiggands' land is in jeopardy because the ground lease signed for the property 1971 makes it subordinate to the mortgage held by the bank.

"This is a dog-eat-dog business," Wiggand noted. "A few years ago, we thought Kmart was ready to put a 30,000 foot addition on to their store, and all of a sudden Southgate came along and they (Kmart) were wine and dined in Detroit, and it never came to pass."

Southgate Commons, a 425,000-square-foot shopping center proposed for Route 9W less than a mile north of Town Squire, has been bottled up in the environmental review process for the past three years.

When Glenmont Plaza was built several years ago, the developers of that plaza went "door-to-door" in Town Squire trying "to romance" the tenants and attract them to the other side of the road, Wiggand said, from "CVS and Key Bank, right down to Windflower and the laundromat."

Christian talk to focus on 'coming home'

Local author and speaker Virelle Kidder will speak on "Coming Home for Christmas" at the Bethlehem Community Church at 201 Elm Ave. in Delmar on Thursday, Dec. 5, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Kidder is the author of two books, Mothering Upstream and Loving, Launching and Letting Go, numerous articles in national magazines, and is a contributing editor for Today's Christian Woman. She is also a frequent conference speaker and guest on Christian radio.

Everyone in the community is welcome.

For information, call 478-0144.

Book group to meet at Bethlehem library

The Bethlehem Public Library's Book Discussion Group will discuss Susan Schaller's A Man Without Words on Tuesday, Dec. 17, at 7:30 p.m.

The group meets on the third Tuesday of each month in the adult lounge at the library at 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

Copies of the current title are available at the reference desk.

Survival skills for parents

If you are feeling challenged by parenting issues such as poor communication, conflict, discipline, curfews, school problems, sibling battles and peer relationships, you are not alone.

There are other Bethlehem parents who have experienced these same struggles and are available to offer you their support and guidance.

"Parents for Parents" is a new initiative which will match you with a helping parent with whom you can discuss your concerns and possible solutions.

"Parents for Parents" is designed to provide support and survival skills to parents of adolescents who are having difficulties with the challenges of raising an adolescent.

If you think you might benefit from being involved in "Parents for Parents," call Mona Prenoveau at the Bethlehem Networks office, 439-7740.

All information will be kept strictly confidential and there is no charge.

Skiing is believing

By Alvaro E. Alarcon

For downhill skiers, this time of year is religious. Skiers eagerly anticipate the salvation brought when ski trails are graced with snow. West Mountain has been planning for its opening day, Dec. 14 (weather permitting) by carving new trails, introducing new prices and sponsoring several exciting events through the winter.

West Mountain Ski Area is located just three miles west of exit 18 of I-87 on West Mountain Road in Glens Falls. It has 124 acres of skiing terrain on 22 trails for a wide range of capabilities, from easiest to most difficult. Night skiing is available on 70 percent of the terrain. More than two-thirds of the terrain is covered with artificial snow.

West Mountain has an ambitious calendar of events this winter. The mountain's staff will open the New Year festivities on Dec. 31 by skiing down the mountain with torches and dancing in the main lodge to the band "Prey for the Rain." Skiing is $15 and goes from 7 to 10:30 p.m.

West Mountain's "Rock the Park" snowboard park will be hot with competition during a contest on Feb. 1. The entry fee is $20 and includes registration and a lift ticket.

Fun is in store for competitors and spectators alike in the Feb. 15 "Chili Cook Off/Firefighters Challenge," which will have competitions of chili recipes as well as "firefighter" skiers who will race down the mountain attached to hoses. A $10 entry fee includes the lift ticket and competition.

"Extreme Games" on Feb. 22 will have mountain bike races, a sled dog "Big Air" contest, and a parabolic ski and snowboard carving contest. West Mountain is equipped to rent Elan SCX Parabolic skis, which have an hourglass shape and possess superb turn carving and edge holding characteristics. Bill Irwin, who worked with Elan in developing the ski, said that "people will be learning to ski quicker and more easily with the fun factor turned way up."

Ingenuity will determine the victors in the fifth annual "Coors Light Cardboard Sled Race" on March 1. Individuals or groups of up to six people will make a sled out of cardboard and race in it. A trip, cash and trophy is in store for the winners. Pre-registration is required and is $25.

Racers will try to cross a 100-foot long water hole in the "Slush Cup Jump" on March 15. The day will also feature games and entertainment. The entry fee is $15.

Individuals with a last name that begins with "Mc" will ski for free on March 17, St. Patrick's Day. There will be a party for all, even those without a drop of Irish blood, in the evening.

David Henahan said that last year at this time, people were more concerned with the cost of skiing at West Mountain than with the conditions of the slopes. While the mountain has increased its capacity, prices have remained reasonable.

Weekday prices for four-hour lift tickets at West Mountain range from $4 for seniors over age 70 to $20 for adults. Weekend prices for four-hour tickets are more expensive, ranging from $20 for seniors to $27 for adults. Eight-hour passes are about five dollars more expensive, regardless of the day. Weekend prices also apply during holiday periods.

Families should note the Family Weekend and Holiday Plan, in which the first three family members can ski for four hours for the price of $67 and for eight hours for $80. Additional family members are $16 for four hours and $20 for eight hours under the plan.

The mountain is open Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Holiday prices apply the week of Dec. 26 to Jan. 1 (the mountain is closed Christmas Day).

For more information or skiing conditions, call West Mountain at 793-6606.

A Christmas Carol grows into mature production now in its fourth year

With the decision to keep the production of A Christmas Carol at the Palace Theatre for its holiday run, the stage presentation of Charles Dickens' Victorian novel has developed into a mature vehicle with a fine blending of Equity actors and excellent local performers. In the previous three years, the production travelled to other cities during the holidays.

Frank Hauser's adaptation of the classic is a brisk offering of the redemption of a miserly merchant on Christmas Eve. Hauser's staging maintains a fast pace.

Much of the credit is due to John Astin's portrayal of Scrooge. This veteran actor has become wonderfully comfortable in the role as he returns for the third year to play the classic character. Astin gathers the caustic and sardonic nature of the character without going over the edge. He also finds wry humor in the role.

A new Tiny Tim is played by a self-assured Shannon Rafferty who offers a spunky young lad, aware of his affliction but not disabled emotionally by it.

John Richard Allen returns for a fourth year as Bob Cratchit, the put-upon clerk in Scrooge's shop who is a strong, loving man as husband and father. The role has become fully established by Allen with this year's production.

Again, Don Perkins returns to add humor and spice to the production as Fezziwig, a man whose love of life and people is in direct contrast to Scrooge.

Others in the large cast who score well are Joseph Quandt in a variety of roles, and Mary Brazeau as young Scrooge's fiancée and then as Mrs. Cratchit, among others.

Martin P. Kelly

SPOTLIGHT

By Martin P. Kelly

Robert Wydert is particularly good as young Scrooge who develops from a man who cares for others to one who becomes enamored with money. There is poignancy in his playing.

This is a production to see. It runs through Saturday, Dec. 7. Reservations/info at 465-4653.

Nutcracker ballet companies abound in area holiday performances

Starting with the performances of the Northeast Ballet company's production of The Nutcracker Saturday and Sunday (Dec. 7 and 8) at Proctor's Theater (346-6204), there will be six productions of this century-old holiday ballet in the next several weeks.

This weekend, also, the Malta Ballet Company with Lourdes Lopez and Jock Soto of New York City Ballet company will present The Nutcracker at The Egg in downtown Albany. Performances are Friday, Dec. 6 at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 7 at 3 and 7:30 p.m. Reservations: 473-1845.

The Capital Ballet with the Albany Symphony Orchestra will be seen in the famed ballet Dec. 13-15 at the Palace Theatre (465-4663) where a 10:30 morning performance will be given Dec. 13.

Meanwhile at the Cohoes Music Hall (235-3064) on Dec. 13 and 14, the Youth Ballet & Dance Company will do The Nutcracker with a matinee Dec. 14 at 2 p.m.

The Saratoga City Ballet will perform The Nutcracker Dec. 21 for two performances and Dec. 22 at the Dance Theatre, Skidmore College (893-2357).

Among the oldest companies in the Albany region, the Albany Berkshire Ballet will perform The Nutcracker at 3 and 7 p.m. on Dec. 22 and 7 p.m. Dec. 23 at the Palace Theatre (465-4663).

Three community theater productions open this week for holiday season

The musical adaptation of A Christmas Carol will open Thursday (Dec. 5), when Mr. Scrooge is presented by the Village Players at the Bethlehem Central Middle School on Kenwood Avenue in Delmar.

The company, composed of residents mainly of the town of Bethlehem, will have almost 50 people in the cast, directed by Elsmere resident and veteran director/performer Richard Harte.

Tom Matthews plays the title role, originated by Albert Finney. Others in the cast include Steve Juriano as Cratchit, and Johanna Marvin as Tiny Tim.

The performances continue through Sunday with a 2 p.m. matinee. Evening performances are at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at retail outlets and at the door.

In Schenectady, the Light Opera Company is opening the musical They're Playing Our Song for two weekends, beginning Friday, Dec. 5. The 1979 musical with book by Neil Simon and music by Marvin Hamlisch deals with a couple of song writers whose collaboration turns romantic. The musical is being directed by Barbara Mahlmann and will be seen through Dec. 15 at the group's Opera House on State Street. Reservations at 399-9359.

In Albany, the Albany Civic Theater opens Catch 22, a stage adaptation of Joseph Heller's classic novel of World War II. Directed by Doug DeLisle, the cast features David M. Girard as Yassarian. The production runs through Dec. 22 with performances Fridays through Sundays with 4 p.m. matinees on Saturdays and 3 p.m. on Sundays. Reservations at 462-1297.

SUNDAY SYMPHONY

Series for Families

DAVID ALAN MILLER - Conductor/Music Director

DECEMBER 8 • PALACE THEATRE, ALBANY • 3:00 PM

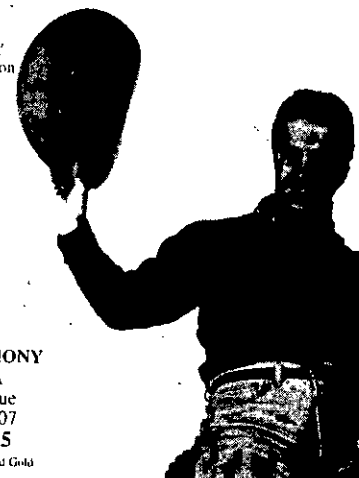

The Last Reindeer Roundup

Santie Claus is in a lot o' trouble. Someone done took off with every last one o' his reindeers. There's only one feller kin help him, the world's greatest reindeer rustler, Cowboy Dave. Travel the musical world with him, figurin' out who took 'em. Lots o' purdy holiday music and classics too!

ADULTS $11/CHILDREN (under 12) $5* (*plus $1 handling)
General admission tickets available at the Palace Theatre Box Office (518) 465-466, and all Ticketmaster locations (518) 476-1000.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY
The perfect introduction to classical music. In an informal setting you can relax and enjoy the concert as you treat your family to a fast-paced hour of live symphonic entertainment.

STAN SMITH'S TENNIS CLASS

HITTING THE BALL AT YOUR FEET

When moving to the net, you should always try to hit the ball in the air. Unfortunately, many players are slow to react when moving to the net and are caught in the middle of the court.

If you stand in the middle of the court, the ball might bounce before you reach it — what is called a "half-volley." In that case, you will have to "short-hop" the ball, taking a short backswing, bending at the knees and keeping your wrist firm.
