Town hall having bad air days

By Mel Hyman

Maureen Bartkus, a robust woman who has been handling emergency calls to the Bethlehem Police Department for the past 17 years, was suddenly in dire distress herself.

She was on the job at 7:15 a.m. Thursday when she started feeling sick. And she was not alone.

The entire three-member crew manning the communications switchboard started experiencing symptoms including tightness in the chest, prickly skin and watery eyes.

They remained at the controls, however, as experts from the state Health Department and the state Department of Environmental Conservation were called in to try to discover the problem.

They came up with nothing, but still the symptoms persisted, so when the afternoon shift came on and some of the same complaints were made, the telecommunicators moved their operations to the mobile communications van in back of town hall.

Bartkus was back on the job Friday morning in her capacity as shift supervisor when she started vomiting and feeling faint. She was evacuated by stretcher and taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital for observation.

"It hit us all at the same time, at about 7:15 (a.m.)," Bartkus said just prior to taking sick the second time. "I ordered everybody out (of the communications control

"None of us really smelled anything," Bartkus added.

LUMAC fails to draw consensus

By Mel Hyman

Town board members hoping for a consensus in favor of the proposed master plan found anything but that during last week's public hearing.

Even some recent changes in the document failed to win over the Rural Landowners of Bethlehem, who turned out in force to voice their disapproval.

"Several years ago, my family and I purchased 150 acres across from the Jericho Drive-in (on Route 9W) as an investment," said Debbie Eberle of Cherry Avenue. "I like green space like everyone else, and I don't want to see the town ruined, but I think they should consider every parcel on an individual basis."

If the land use plan is adopted, the "zoning recommended for this area would mean that lot sizes would increase dramatically," Eberle said, "and the value of my land would decrease just as dramatically. As a single parent, I just don't want to see that taken away."

Delmar 'Comeback Kid' spruces up Four Corners

By Katherine McCarthy

Steve Bolduc, owner of Keystone Builders in Delmar, has been in the building and renovation business for 21 years, and is currently renovating a building at 388 Kenwood Avenue at the Four Corners. For the past four years, though, Bolduc's main renovation project has been himself, in a battle with leukemia.

Squinting in the rare April sunshine at the progress he's made in the center of town, he seems pleased with his success, both professionally and personally. "Four years ago, I had a bone marrow transplant," Bolduc said, "one year after being diagnosed with leukemia. I go every six months for a check-up now, but the bone marrow transplant really is a cure. I feel I'm cured."

Ironically, Bolduc was working on a project at the home of Bob Bellizzi when he was diagnosed with leukemia. Bellizzi himself was recently diagnosed with leukemia, and the community rallied to help him find a bone marrow donor. "Five years ago, Bob was telling me to hang in there. Now it's the other way around," Bolduc said.

Bolduc said it definitely helped him to be able to talk to someone to help him through the process. Although it was a tough thing to go through at the time, Bolduc now sees his illness as a good thing. "It made me stronger," he said. "I'm not afraid of anything any more."

After the diagnosis, Bolduc was told he'd be out of commission for a year, to protect his weakened immune system. "I couldn't be around people," he said. "No movies, no dinners. I was a prisoner in my own house." This also meant he had to step back from his business.

Bethlehem becomes 1st to convict on new law

By Mel Hyman

The town of Bethlehem recently became the first municipality in Albany County to convict someone under age 21 of violating the state's new zero tolerance law.

Under legislation passed last year, if you're under 21 and caught driving with a blood alcohol content of at least .02 but not more than .07 percent, then you are deemed to have been driving a motor vehicle after drinking alcohol and you stand to lose your license for six months and be fined $125.

A BAC of .02 percent is roughly equivalent to having one 12-ounce beer, one mixed drink or a six-ounce glass of wine in your system.

Last month in Bethlehem, an 18-year-old man was stopped by police and found to be in violation of the new law.

"He was sent to a DMV (state Department of Motor Vehicle) hearing and the judge suspended his license for six months," said Bethlehem Police Lt. Richard Vanderbilt.

"Last week, we detained another teen-ager, 16, for the same offense," Vanderbilt said. "He was also arrested for possession of pot (a violation)."

A third zero tolerance violator, a 19-year-old Clifton Park man, was apprehended at 6:30 a.m. Sunday, April 13, traveling west on Delaware Avenue near Bethlehem Central High School. He was stopped because he failed to signal and when Police Officer Brian Hughes approached the driver, he reportedly detected a strong smell of alcohol.

Both cases have yet to be presented to DMV, Vanderbilt said.

Drivers who are found to have a BAC between .05 and .1 percent can be charged with driving while ability impaired — a more serious offense which is punishable by a fine, license suspension and/or jail time, although still not a misdemeanor. To reach the misdemeanor driving while intoxicated level, a person must have a BAC of .1 percent or more. Gov. George Pataki recently proposed lowering that to .08 percent.

The idea behind the zero tolerance law is not to punish underage drinkers by giving them a criminal record or a stiff fine, but to "change their habits" so they realize that getting behind the wheel after drinking alcohol is not acceptable, Vanderbilt said.

"When you're talking about a young driver with little or no (driving) experience, even a small amount of alcohol can affect their ability to drive," Vanderbilt said.

Of course, teen-agers should not even be experimenting with alcohol because it is against the law, he added.

Those under 21 with any prior alcohol-related motor vehicle offenses on their record will have their licenses revoked for one year if found to be in violation of the zero tolerance law.

Vanderbilt said Bethlehem police have received special training in how the zero tolerance law should be applied, and will use that training later this month to instruct members of other police agencies.

"With help from (attorney) Peter Gerstenzang, we have developed a guide for presenting cases zero tolerance cases to DMV," which makes the final decision on license suspension or revocation, Vanderbilt said.

County STOP-DWI Coordinator Denis Foley said Bethlehem had a model program.

"With the first four violations we had, two from Albany and two in Guiderland, the (DMV) hearings were postponed because the police departments needed more documentation than they had," Foley said.

The evidence requirements in the zero tolerance law are quite stringent, Foley said.

Police arrest six on DWI charges

Bethlehem police and Albany County sheriff's deputies arrested six people recently on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Kathleen J. Boice, 34, of Pheasant Run, Voorheesville, was stopped at 11:25 p.m. Saturday, April 12, at the scene of a property damage auto accident on New Scotland Road near Fisher Boulevard, police said.

She was released pending a May 6 appearance in town court. Officer Brian Hughes investigated.

Harley R. Schrom Jr., 22, of 25 Cottage Lane, Selkirk, was stopped at 2:31 a.m. Sunday, April 13, for driving without headlights on Maple Avenue in Selkirk, police said.

He was released pending a May 6 appearance in town court. Officer Charles Radloff investigated.

Charles A. Shufelt, 35, of Westerlo, was stopped at 4:18 a.m. Sunday, April 13, on Delaware Avenue in Delmar, according to the Albany County Sheriff's Department.

He was charged with a felony count of DWI and violation of probation. He was sent to Albany County jail by Town Justice Peter Bishko.

Anthony J. Maxstadt, 17, of Honey Hollow Road, New Baltimore, was stopped at 4:17 a.m. Saturday, April 12, for making an improper turn along Route 9W in Glenmont, police said.

He was released pending a May 6 appearance in town court. Officer Robert Markel investigated.

Lisa M. Feil, 34, of Lasher Road, Selkirk, was stopped at 2:37 a.m. Saturday, April 12, for crossing the center line on Route 9W, police said.

She was charged with failure to keep right and released pending a May 6 appearance in town court. Officer Chris Hughes investigated.

Darryl W. Ford, 34, of Second Avenue, Albany, was stopped at 1:52 a.m. Friday, April 11, after police responded to a report of a disturbance near Bender Lane.

He was released pending a May 6 appearance in town court. Officer Thomas Heffernan investigated.

NS nears decision to join ALS

By Dev Tobin

Everyone agrees that having 24-hour paramedic service in New Scotland would be a good thing, but the $75,000 question is how to pay for it.

As the cost of providing advanced life support (ALS) in New Scotland has gone down since it was first proposed three years ago, town officials are more willing than ever to commit to it, despite uncertainty about future growth of the program.

"It's a nice project, but we want a long-range budget and some assurances that the town will get the service it pays for," said Supervisor Herb Reilly.

Councilman Mark Dempf has been working to get ALS off the dime this year.

"If it kills me and they need to put me in the ambulance, it will happen this year," he said. "We've been dealing with this long enough; let's get it done."

Sheriff's Inspector Thomas Fargione, coordinator of the ALS system in southern Albany County, told the town board Monday that ALS not only saves lives, but also increases the quality of life for people in situations where prompt medical attention can lessen long-term effects of illness or trauma.

"Hospital stays are shorter because we get there quicker, bringing a lot of cutting-edge equipment to the scene," Fargione said.

Fargione explained that the system's two vehicles in Bethlehem and one in the Hilltowns could cover New Scotland adequately, with the help of mutual aid when needed.

"With New Scotland, we will be busier, but not stretched beyond our resources," said Fargione, adding that the ALS car is first on the scene on most calls.

Dempf said about 20 to 30 percent of all ambulance calls require some ALS services, like intravenous drug administration.

The town could use sales tax revenues to fund ALS, provided the village of Voorheesville also participates, Reilly noted.

Reilly said he had spoken with Voorheesville Mayor Edward Clark, who is "in favor, as long as there's some chance of insurance recovery" of ALS charges.

Based on population, Voorheesville would pay 27 percent of the town's ALS assessment, or $20,250 of $75,000, Reilly said.

Fargione said the ALS program would help facilitate recovery from insurance companies, which he estimated could be as high as 25 percent of the total cost.

Dempf said he favored New Scotland providing ALS as a town-wide service, even if doing so causes a small property tax increase.

"Everybody wants this and understands it will cost some money," Dempf said. "I'm willing to take a chance on raising taxes and being thrown out of office to do this."

Without any recovery or village participation, the impact on town property taxpayers would be either about 15 cents per thousand of assessed value or about $23 per parcel, noted Councilman Scott Houghtaling.

The town board scheduled a special meeting on the ALS issue, to which Clark and Fargione are invited, for April 28 at 7 p.m.

DOT commits to fixing V'ville bridge

By Dev Tobin

After funding flood-damage cleanups in Voorheesville twice in the past four years, the Federal Emergency Management Agency wasn't about to let the situation in the Vly Creek floodplain worsen.

As a result, the state Department of Transportation will rebuild the controversial Stonington Hill Road bridge, which upstream residents have complained about for decades, according to village Mayor Edward Clark.

That's good news for the village, which recently learned that a $75,000 grant to fix the bridge had fallen through following the election defeat of former state Sen. Michael Hoblock.

DOT was already committed to rebuilding the bridge that takes Route 85A over the Vly near the elementary school, and residents feared that increased high-water flows under the new bridge would get dammed up by the 30-year-old twin culverts under Stonington Hill Road.

When these two small culverts will become one big culvert next year, resident hope Vly Creek flooding will become less of a threat.

FEMA agreed with the residents, warning DOT that the increased flow exceeded FEMA regulations.

"This will improve the situation greatly, beyond what is required by FEMA," Clark noted.

DOT plans to install a single 8-by-20-foot precast box culvert, "much larger than what we have there now," Clark said. "We're very happy to have that done."

The village has agreed to maintain the new culvert, Clark noted.

The new culvert will lower the flood elevation between the two bridges by at least two feet, according to DOT project engineer Stephen Longtin.

Michael Fields, of Mountain View Road used a FEMA loan to raise his garage up away from the creek after last January's flood.

"This sounds good to me — it's what we've been fighting for for 20 years," Fields said. "All the neighbors will be happy."

Another reason for happiness is that the village will not have to pay for the project, Clark noted.

"The context before is that we would have to pay for the work, and we were reluctant to pay for something they designed and controlled," Clark said.

Because DOT builds bridges and culverts to state highway standards, the village may have had to "pay for a lot of work we didn't need" for a culvert under a village street, Clark explained.

The project is scheduled for the 1998 construction season, so as not to conflict with the village's centennial celebration in 1999. Stonington Hill Road will be closed for about a month for the construction, with traffic detoured via Mountain View Road.

Public hearing slated on BC budget tonight

By Dev Tobin

The Bethlehem Central school board will hold a public hearing on the 1997-98 budget at its meeting tonight at 8 p.m. at the district office, 90 Adams Place.

The board adopted a budget for next year of just over $41 million (6.2 percent more than this year) at its March 26 meeting. The budget calls for an estimated 3.7 percent tax rate increase for district residents who live in the town of Bethlehem and 2.5 percent for district residents who live in the town of New Scotland.

Most of the spending increase (3.7 percent of the 6.2) is due to payments related to the $14.8 million bond issue approved by voters in December 1995, according to district officials.

The tax impact of the 1997-98 budget is therefore not as great as the spending increase, since the district receives state aid for approximately 57 percent of bond issue-related expenses, but only about 22 percent for general educational expenses.

The budget includes seven additional teachers, two at the elementary level and five at the high school, which are "essential to deal with increased enrollment," said Superintendent Leslie Loomis.

"This budget meets student needs and at the same time keeps the tax rate increase lower than it has been in recent years," Loomis said.

Also on the ballot will be a proposition for seven new buses at a cost of $389,440 — four 66-passenger buses at $73,110 each, two seven-passenger Suburbans at $26,000 each and another wheelchair van/bus at a cost of $45,000.

Voters will also decide whether the district should purchase about 30 acres across Van Dyke Road from the high school for $140,000. The land will be available for possible future expansion of school facilities or athletic fields.

Running unopposed for two school board seats are incumbent Lynne Lenhardt and newcomer Richard Svenson. Three-term incumbent William Collins decided not to run for re-election.

The budget vote will be May 7 from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. at Bethlehem Central Middle School, 332 Kenwood Ave.

Also on tonight's agenda will be a presentation on the middle school study skills program, Strive for Success.

The board will also consider a proposal to increase the School's Out afternoon daycare program from two elementary schools to all five district elementary schools next year.

N. Scotland positions for best cell tower deal

By Dev Tobin

The New Scotland town board voted conditional approval of leasing part of the Feura Bush water tower property to Sprint Spectrum for a cellular telephone tower at its meeting Monday.

The project still needs formal approvals from the town planning board and zoning board of appeals, as well as review and approval of the final contract by town attorney John Biscone.

The basic contract calls for a $6,000 annual lease payment to the town, but Supervisor Herb Reilly said the town may be able to acquire free or low-cost cell phone services and/or a two-way radio repeater as part of the deal.

The experience of other towns and villages in negotiating with Sprint has influenced New Scotland's stance in the months-long process.

"Voorheesville could have done better, but they didn't ask," noted Councilman Michael Fields.

Councilman Scott Houghtaling said the contract should include a provision requiring that Sprint dismantle the tower if it becomes inactive.

He added that the town should also try to consolidate cellular sites, so that there are not cell towers practically next to each other, as is the case along the Northway in Clifton Park.

Reilly said the lease payments could be applied to financing a connector between the Feura Bush water district, which is supplied by the town of Bethlehem, and the Clarksville water district, which is supplied by its own wells.

In other business, the board:

- Adopted a formal sexual harassment policy.

- Discussed but took no action on how the money for volunteer firefighter pensions is invested.

- Scheduled a household hazardous waste day for May 17 at the ANSWERS facility on Rapp Road in Albany. Residents must register in advance by calling the highway department.

- Approved the small Krumkill Road water district, just over the Bethlehem town line.

- Discussed, and referred to the town water committee, a request for a water district by residents of Altamont Road, just over the Voorheesville village line.

Delmar man arrested for workers comp fraud

A Delmar man faces a felony charge of workers compensation fraud.

Michael Goldman, 53, of 195 Winnie Road, was charged with one count of first-degree offering of a false instrument last week in connection with an alleged attempt to collect workers comp payments for a bogus injury claim, according to state Attorney General Dennis Vacco.

It is alleged that on Dec. 30, 1994, Goldman submitted documents to the state Workers Compensation Board claiming that he sustained a back injury while working as a meat cutter at a local Price Chopper store.

In the documents, Goldman said he had no pre-existing history of the same type of injury. Goldman collected nearly $21,000 in workers comp checks for that alleged injury.

As it turned out, Vacco said, Goldman had just one year earlier received a lump sum compensation award of $25,000 for a back injury he said he sustained while working as a meatcutter at the Edwards Food Warehouse in Latham.

That injury, he claimed at the time, prevented him from doing similar type work, the attorney general's office said.

"Simply put, cheaters never prosper," Vacco remarked. "I am serious about rooting out workers compensation fraud and Mr. Goldman is exhibit A."

"Anyone, not only claimants, who commits workers compensation fraud is in trouble," said Don DeAngelis of Delmar, recently appointed inspector general of the workers comp anti-fraud unit. "We will pursue prosecution of employers who cheat on their premiums, insurance carriers who falsify records, lawyers who create phony cases and doctors who double bill."

Goldman was arraigned in Bethlehem Town Court and released pending a future court appearance.

Button: Faso run no surprise

By Mel Hyman

It should come as no surprise that Assemblyman John Faso, R-Kinderhook, recently re-elected to a sixth term, may be setting his sights on higher office once again, according to his challenger from last fall, Democrat Rena Button.

Faso recently announced plans to step down as chairman of the Assembly Republican campaign committee, which would release him from a substantial time commitment should he decide to go for the GOP nomination for state comptroller next year.

During last fall's campaign, Faso denied having any plans other than serving another term in the Assembly, although he refused to rule out another bid for statewide office.

Button, who won Bethlehem and Albany County and gave Faso his toughest race since he was first elected in 1986, said that she took Faso to task during last year's campaign for focusing more on his political ambitions than on his constituents.

"It's obvious that he is still interested in running for state comptroller or he would have closed down the committee formed on his behalf the last time he ran, and he didn't," Button said.

"That's one of the things I mentioned in my campaign," she said. "Perhaps it would be better if he spent more of his time trying to find some peace in the budget negotiations, since he considers himself such a financial expert."

Besides the town of Bethlehem, the 102nd Assembly District includes all of Schoharie County, all of Greene County except for the village of Catskill, three towns in Columbia County (Kinderhook, Stuyvesant and Stockport), and the towns of Coeymans, Westerlo and Rensselaerville in Albany County.

"Since I'm relinquishing chairmanship of our campaign committee after two (election) cycles, naturally, there is speculation that I will be looking at the '98 comptroller's race again," Faso said. "And I have to say the thought has crossed my mind, but at this point it's way premature. I won't be considering anything until the end of '97."

Four years of being head of the party's campaign committee is "enough self-torture for anybody," he quipped. "It's like being head of the office barbecue or running the annual outing to Lake George for the Cub Scout troop."

Faso campaigned tirelessly for the Republican nomination for state comptroller in 1994 and appeared to have the inside track until he was pressured by party leaders to step aside in favor of conservative Herb London, who ultimately lost to Democrat H. Carl McCall.

'Strawberry Supper' set in Feura Bush

A "Strawberry Supper" will take place on Saturday, May 3, at the Jerusalem Reformed Church in Feura Bush. Servings are at 5 and 6:15 p.m.

Celebrating Passover

Passover, the Jewish holiday commemorating the deliverance of the Jews from Egypt, begins Tuesday with Seders on the first and second nights of the seven-day celebration.

These Seders feature foods that symbolize the hardships Jews endured during their departure from Egypt. For example, during the entire Passover time, only matzoh (unleavened bread) is eaten as a reminder that there was no time for the Jews to leaven their bread in their haste to leave the country.

Tradition also dictates that special utensils that have not been contaminated by leavened foods be used in the preparations of meals.

We join in this celebration of freedom and deliverance that has become a lasting spring ritual and a reminder to all of us of the struggle of captive peoples who endured and fought for their freedom.

Bridging the gap

Now you see it. Now you don't. Now you do.

In 1996, after former Sen. Michael Hoblock told Voorheesville Mayor Ed Clark the state would contribute $75,000 toward replacement of the Stonington Hill Road bridge over the Vly Creek, all seemed to be well.

But that was just a week before the election. After Sen. Hoblock lost, so did Voorheesville at first blush when the money was no longer forthcoming, and the village was told the grant was evidently revoked.

But last week, Voorheesville found out from the state Department of Transportation that it was planning to replace the existing culvert over the Vly Creek at no cost to the village.

Perhaps, this is an example of all's well that ends well, but it still smacks of something that is rotten in the state.

In Hoblock's Oct. 29 letter to Clark, getting the money for the bridge work was apparently a done deal. But what happened after the election is anyone's guess. Hoblock was gone and so was the money. Evidently his loss was Voorheesville's as well.

Since this is not an election year, perhaps Mayor Clark can rest easy that the state will do what it has said it would. But then again, he has heard that before. We hope this promise from DOT is one that can be counted on.

Look at bright side

Despite the recent exodus of businesses like Green's appliances and Speedy Photo, on Delaware Avenue The Spotlight has been inundated with requests to feature new businesses who have already opened or will open here soon.

Gloom-and-doom thinking won't turn things around in the business community in Bethlehem, but entrepreneurs willing to open their doors here should help infuse new life in the community.

Perhaps the attitude that the glass is half full rather than half empty will also help to restore faith in the business community at large. Many businesses, even small ventures have already proven that they can work and work well here.

We wish the newcomers well, and we will feature all those that we know about in a story along with a photo whenever possible.

Don't hesitate to let us know about your business plans.

Our advertising representatives are excited about the new businesses they are talking to and so are we, because it's an indication that business people haven't given up on the town.

New ideas for doing business and new business ventures can only be good news for the future of the town of Bethlehem and its residents.

Freedom of Passover takes many forms

By Anshel O. Weiss

The writer is executive director of Jewish Family Services of Northeastern New York

Without a doubt, whether Jew or Gentile, all of us will be touched somehow by the symbols of Passover in the next few weeks.

Some of your Jewish neighbors may already have begun the arduous, yet celebratory, task of cleaning their homes from top to bottom purging any remnants of leavened bread (chometz) from cupboards, that dark space between refrigerator and cabinets or the couch in the den.

This cleaning ritual gets our homes ready for the celebration of freedom which approaches each spring — Passover. Families and friends will gather at Seders to retell the story of the Jews' flight from Egypt. They had to leave so quickly no time was left to wait for their bread to rise. So instead, they took unleavened bread (matzoh) into the desert.

Others may have no idea of Passover's significance, but can't help notice the prominent displays of matzoh, gefilte fish, sponge cake and other Passover delicacies in local supermarkets. They may never go to a Seder in their lives, but they subconsciously are aware of its existence due to the sheer force of retail marketing.

Whether Passover is immediately pertinent to a person's life or not, the events commemorated in this holiday are continually relevant for each one of us — Jew and Gentile alike.

The story of Passover and its rituals is a gateway to understanding contemporary struggles of liberation against national oppression and exile. For instance, the Jews who now live in "freedom" in the former Soviet Union must face, as their ancestors did, a rising tide of anti-semitism. Or, in Zaire, people have been uprooted and exiled from their homeland. They have been swept across national boundaries to satisfy the political power struggle of a handful of people.

Point of View

There are countless more examples that draw parallels between the Passover story and what is taking place in our world today. We each can read the newspapers, voice concern for what is going on and go back to our own daily tasks. But possibly the most important lesson of Passover is that thinking and speaking of ideals such as freedom is not enough. We must act so that these ideals are a living part of our daily existence.

Not everyone can fly off to various parts of the world and become a freedom fighter. Nor, would we want to. But, there is plenty of opportunity to breathe life into the ideal of freedom right here at home. We just have to change how we think of freedom and reach beyond our familiar notion of political liberation.

Try to think of freedom as helping to empower the human spirit to carry on despite what may seem to be unsurmountable odds, just as the Jews did in Egypt.

Freedom could be helping needy adults and children get fed. The Temple Beth Emeth Social Action Committee does that each week by operating a soup kitchen at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church on Central Avenue in Albany.

Or, freedom could be visiting a homebound elderly person on a weekly basis to break his or her barrier of isolation. Outreach workers from Jewish Family Services do this through our Elderly Community Outreach Services. Freedom could also be the simple, but scary, act of challenging a person who has just said something racist or homophobic.

While the intention of these deeds strive to free the human spirit, the actual deeds can also be considered "tzedaka." Literally translated as justice or righteousness, in contemporary Judaism, tzedaka has also come to mean charity. Not charity in the sense of giving money to assuage guilt, but charity as a community responsibility to make sure people's basic needs are met.

That is why organizations such as Jewish Family Services are constantly trying to raise funds. On behalf of the community, the work JFS does embodies tzedaka. We constantly work to meet people's needs whether it's helping a Russian refugee attain citizenship or assisting mentally ill people find their way or educating families about Jewish heritage and culture. JFS works to unburden the human spirit (freedom) and meet people's needs (tzedaka).

The rabbis of long ago taught that if a person has been blessed by God with more than enough to meet one's needs, that person is obligated to share that blessing with others.

As we prepare for Passover, let us keep that obligation in mind. Our blessings come in many different forms. Just sharing the Passover story of freedom with those who may not know it can be the tzedaka that frees just one human spirit.

Resident dismayed by vote on abortion

Editor, The Spotlight:

I write to express my disappointment with Sen. Neil Breslin's vote on the partial birth abortion bill.

For many years, Sen. Howard Nolan and Assemblyman Dick Conners voted pro-life and were not concerned about being re-elected because of their stand for life. I respect them for their stand and was proud to have them represent me.

During the debate on this bill, Sen. Breslin said that he was not a doctor and could not make this decision for a woman. He is not a banker or educator either, but he has no problem voting on these kind of issues.

Recently, I have read statements by Sen. Breslin concerning the poor and downtrodden. His vote on the partial birth abortion issue shows that this is only rhetoric, since he is unwilling to protect the most vulnerable and defenseless in our society.

I do not understand how any father can support any form of abortion.

I pray he will reconsider his position and support the ban against this barbaric procedure.

BC production rivals very best of Broadway

Editor, The Spotlight:

Congratulations to the entire cast and crew of Grease. Bethlehem Central High School's Stage 700 presentation rivals the best of Broadway.

The energetic young women and men on stage truly made the '50s live again. Their singing, dancing and comic talents are more than "solid," way past "cool," and had the audience "all choked up."

Kudos to James Yeara, director; Fran Cocozza, choreographer; and Joe Farrell, musical director.

Thank you to all those in front of and behind the scenes who so brilliantly demonstrate "We Go Together."

Such creativity, like "greased lightning," is destined to electrify audiences in Bethlehem and way beyond.

Drivers should stop at pedestrian crosswalk

Editor, The Spotlight:

A recent incident at the marked crosswalk in front of the Post Office on Delaware Avenue in Delmar moves me to call upon the Capital District Transportation Authority to alert all of its drivers to use caution at all crosswalks.

When I was attempting to cross the street while carrying a hand-held stop sign, a bus had stopped for the traffic light at Kenwood Avenue.

As the bus approached me, the vehicle accelerated before its screeching brakes brought it to a halt.

I urge all drivers to be more observant at this crosswalk and all crosswalks for the safety of all pedestrians.

LUMAC proposal flawed and should not be adopted, woman says

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing to address the concerns that I heard voiced at the April 9 town board meeting regarding the proposed LUMAC plan. It is obvious that the town board is not satisfied with the master plan in its current form as submitted by the LUMAC committee.

However, as disturbing as it seems to consider adoption of LUMAC's proposal as a "reference resource," it is even more ludicrous to adopt it as a Comprehensive Master Plan. Even LUMAC committee members and other proponents who spoke at the meeting had to concede that the plan still had problems, yet continued to urge its adoption as a reference resource immediately. Where's the fire?

Some proponents said they did not want to see Bethlehem become like Colonie or the dreaded Long or Staten islands. Those residents like the rural charm of his community and wanted it to stay that way. Who doesn't?

Others patted LUMAC committee members on the back and said that because they had put so much time and effort over the past eight years that the town board should adopt it as their reward. Wake up! LUMAC committee members are not children who put in a valiant effort on a "from the heart project." These are grown men and women from the community, many of whom are professionals, who have presented a flawed proposal.

Public policy is based on sound reasoning, good planning and well-designed data. It is not adopted because someone volunteered a lot of hours. Public service is a thankless job.

The overwhelming theme of the proponents was that they wanted to be protected from the ever-increasing urban sprawl that was threatening to immediately consume the remaining rural property in the town. They said growth in the town needed to be controlled so that rural areas could be protected. After all, that is why they came to town 10 or 20 or 50 years ago.

Granted, the town has certainly grown since I arrived on the scene in 1963, but really, think about it, where has growth occurred? Right in the heart of Delmar and Slingerlands. Weren't proponents listening when Mr. Kleinke told them that only three (count them) residential permits were issued outside the sewer district for all of 1996. All the rest were issued for inside the sewer district. It would appear that the best (and cheapest) way to control urban sprawl into the rural areas would be to not expand the sewer district! I didn't even need to spend a dime or do a survey to figure that out. At the growth rate of three houses a year, we ought to have rural areas in the town completely filled in several thousand years. I don't think LUMAC's plan was intended to serve that long.

LUMAC committee members would have you believe that this is a well-constructed policy document based on a valid, well-designed townwide survey. Mr. Tessoriero unequivocally refuted the methodology and general nature of the survey with respect to its use in forming policy. This survey is not defensible as a measure of townwide attitudes and beliefs regarding development, land use or environmental protection.

It is not even defensible as an instrument to collect any policy data. When something is really important, you never use a mailed survey. This is usually taught in the first chapter of any research methods textbook. In fact, the minutes of the LUMAC committee make reference to a SUNY professor telling them not to do a mailed survey. Mailed surveys are for graduate students and magazines to find out what color lipstick people wear.

Nearly half of the survey respondents were 60-years-old and older, and many were in their '80s. Mailed surveys over-represent people who have time on their hands to fill them out. Since the No. 1 occupation of this survey's respondents was retired, I guess they are the ones who had time to fill it out.

Out of the more than 1,700 responses, only 37 people were in the 18-34 age group. This group was underrepresented by a factor of 5 to 1.

Where will the 18 to 34-year olds be in the next 20 years? Right here, educating their children, going to work, opening businesses and paying taxes.

It is well documented that survey responses vary greatly by age, and yet even the most rudimentary and basic analyses were not performed to control that known bias.

In addition, at no time did the survey ask respondents to assign relative weight and rank to those elements the resident deemed the most important. A policy document cannot be derived from an instrument whose design does not allow a respondent to assign relative priority and express what deprivation a citizen is willing to endure to achieve those priorities.

I don't intend to address the specific points of the plan that I and other members of the much-maligned Rural Landowners of Bethlehem find objectionable. It is the entire process that I find objectionable.

Proponents of the plan act as if this is a dire emergency and that adopting a plan regardless of whether it is a good or healthy plan is of the essence.

Adoption of this plan in any form is a poor idea. It is rife with errors and baseless in reality. Based on the facts, it should not be adopted in any form. Its adoption in its present form would only increase the strife that exists.

I have often asked myself that if my several times great-grandfather, who held Mrs. Fuller's seat in the 1850s had adopted this plan, would I be able to afford to live here?

Children's room staff should take big bow

Editor, The Spotlight:

Since this is National Library Week, it seems opportune to salute the staff of the children's room at Bethlehem Public Library.

Through their wonderful story hours and many special programs, they make a trip to the library truly fun while introducing little ones to the marvelous world of literature.

Accompanying three set of grandchildren to toddler, pre-school and kindergarten through grade-two events, I have observed their joy and delight (and sometimes squirming) as these dedicated professionals reveal through story, song, film, puppetry and crafts the magic and wonderment inherent in reading.

Together, we have enjoyed many special events such as the Teddy Bears Picnic, the Mad Hatter's Tea Party and holiday programs throughout the year and well as sessions celebrating the work of Marc Brown (Arthur), Ludwig Bemelman (Madeline) and H.A. Rey (Curious George).

Letters

But perhaps the best testimonial of all came from our two 4-year-olds — sitting on the living room floor surrounded by their books and pretending to be "Polly," one of the library's many fine storytellers.

How fortunate we are to have such devoted people in our community. I encourage others to sign up for the imaginative and entertaining programs they offer. You and your children will be glad you did.

Grease was truly spectacular

Editor, The Spotlight:

The performances of Grease by Bethlehem Central High School's Stage 700 demonstrated the acting, singing and dramatic talents of the students magnificently. This was indeed a group effort on the part of the students, directors and parents. And, it was fun! How gratifying that so many people from the community turned out to see teen-agers at their finest.

We congratulate the marvelous directors: Fran Cocozza, her smash dance and movement ideas thrilled us; Joe Farrell, his wonderful student musical ensemble and work with an enthusiastic stage crew yielded stunning sets and backdrops; and finally Jim Yeara, whose steadfast insistence on excellence brought out the best performance the high school has seen in years.

We recognize the results of expert drama training in a poised,

We thank the parent committees for their hard work: Becky Marvin, Laurie Finkelstein, Nancy Johnson and Bonnie Genovese, costumes; Laura Jacobs and Ben Marvin, ticket co-chairs; Karen Lobel, refreshment chair; Lynn Rutschmann, makeup chair; Ellen Kelly Lind, ushers chair; Sherrie Einhorn and Bonnie Genovese, publicity chairs; and David Lefkovich, Jen Abelson, John Bragle and Owen Smith, playbill students.

Without all the parent and stu-

Workshop takes kids back to nature

By Mel Hyman

Some of the rural parts of New Scotland can be truly idyllic during the nice weather, so it's no wonder that the Onesquethaw Environmental and Cultural Workshops held in Feura Bush each summer are a success.

This will be the sixth year for the workshops, co-directed by photographer Joanne Hoose. Education is just as important as recreation and fun during the workshops, which are held in the middle of the Onesquethaw Creek Valley on the Dryden Farm.

This is an historic area containing the oldest house in Albany County. Arrowheads and clay pipes are regularly discovered in the surrounding fields, Hoose noted.

The Onesquethaw workshops "give kids (from 6 to 12) the opportunity to get down and dirty and commune with the earth," Hoose said. Plant, bird and insect identification are an integral part of the program.

Barbara Miller of Feura Bush, whose 11-year-old twins Rebecca and Emily have participated for the last six years, said, "They always want to come back. It's a unique kind of camp that includes an educational program as well as lots of outdoor activities in a beautiful setting where they learn respect for the environment and history of the area."

"We like going to the creek,

Children don't mind getting dirty in Onesquethaw summer workshops. They, in fact, develop a real feel for Mother Nature.

discovering new places and sitting around the fire reading stories," Emily said.

"Appreciating nature and all its implications is our main concern," said co-director Sheila Audet. "Civilized living today often isolates us from nature. Roasting corn over an open fire, harvesting clay from the creek bank for pottery and tracking animals on a creek walk gives kids the opportunity to experience life the way it was hundreds of years ago."

The first two weeks of the Onesquethaw workshops (July 21-Aug. 1) are devoted to Native American culture. The second two weeks (Aug. 4-15) will focus on colonial culture. Camp hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. Before-care and after-care are available at an additional cost.

Painting totems on stone with natural pigment, carving medicine sticks, stitching leather pouches and reed weaving are some of the activities planned for the Native American weeks, while candlemaking, bookmaking, cooking and beading are part of the colonial weeks.

For information, call Hoose at 768-2807.

Nature sketching slated at Five Rivers

Local artist Mary Ann Delaney will present two nature sketching workshops for children at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center at 56 Game Farm Road in Delmar on Tuesday, April 22, and Thursday, April 24, from 10 to 11 a.m.

Children ages 6 to 12 years old will explore the theme "Birds: the Builders," gathering pictorial ideas from field study and Five Rivers' extensive collections.

Participants must preregister by this Wednesday, April 16.

For information, call 475-0291.

EMS Day scheduled in Selkirk on May 17

The second annual EMS Day will take place at GE Plastics at 1 Noryl Ave. in Selkirk on Saturday, May 17, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The event will include prizes, competitions, Emergency Medical Services demonstrations, trauma conferences, and an Albany Med Flight Helicopter display.

Reservations are required by May 5. For information, call 475-5312.

Spring farmers market now open in Delmar

Catholic high school students rally at Siena College April 25

High school students from 15 counties will gather Saturday, April 25, at Siena College for an all-day youth rally as part of the 150th anniversary of the Albany Roman Catholic Diocese.

Workshops will be held throughout the day, followed by a dinner and a special liturgy celebrated by Bishop Howard J. Hubbard.

The program will include music by Tony Melendez, a classical guitarist who was born without arms but plays with his feet.

The workshops will consider contemporary spirituality in the light of the millennium, as well as conflict resolution, sexuality, self-esteem and preparing for the future.

High school students and adult chaperones may register until April 21 at 453-6630.

The cost is $15 for the day, which includes materials, refreshments and dinner.

Youth detention center under way

Construction has begun on the new 16-bed Capital District Youth Center on a four-acre site behind the Albany County Correctional Facility off Albany-Shaker Road.

The detention center's ground-breaking took place earlier this month.

"This regional facility will save taxpayers money by housing juvenile offenders who otherwise must be sent to remote facilities at a tremendous cost to county residents," Albany County Executive Michael Breslin said.

The ground-breaking took almost four years to arrive at, as Albany, Rensselaer, Saratoga and Schenectady counties worked with the Capital District Regional Planning Commission to find a suitable site for the Regional Juvenile Secure Detention Facility.

They eventually agreed that the site near the Albany County correctional facility was the best.

John Buono, former Rensselaer County Executive, and now chairman of the regional planning commission, said the facility is a step towards regionalism.

"By working together, we will be able to provide selected local government services through a cost-effective regional approach," said Buono, who is currently executive director of the state Dormitory Authority.

Former Albany County legislator Paul J. O'Brien is now the president of the detention center.

Bonds have been issued to raise the $5 million to cover the costs of construction. The total construction cost for the detention center will be approximately $3.5 million.

The facility has been designed to permit expansion to 24 beds.

The center will be in full operation by Oct. 1.

It's a race to the finish line for 451 runners

The largest number of participants ever — 451 — crossed the finish line in the ninth annual Delmar Dash Sunday. Tom Dalton of Schenectady was the men's division winner, and Amy Herold of Clifton Park was the top female runner. Dalton, top left, finished the five-mile road race in 24 minutes, 57 seconds. Eight-year-old Tyler Robbins, bottom right, was stationed at the finish line. Jeffrey Brooks of Albany won the men's 19-and-under division. Kate Metzger of Averill Park won the 19-and-under women's category. Steve Cammissa of Clifton Park was the 20-29 age group winner, and Judy Guzzo of Niskayuna won the same category for the women. Vinny O'Brien of Troy was the men's 30-39 age group winner, while Nancy Nicholson of Queensbury won the 30-39 women's category. Dale Keenan of Selkirk was the 40-49 age group winner for the men, and Harriet Jacob of Delmar was the 40-49 women's winner.

Jeanne Finley leads writing workshop

Writer Jeanne Finley leads the two-part workshop "Writing Poetry and Fiction From Your Life" at Bethlehem Public Library on two Saturdays, May 3 and 17, at 10 am.

The workshop will focus on the triggers and techniques of fiction and poetry, and how to turn personal stories into good fiction.

Finley has published numerous poems, stories, essays, articles and book reviews, and given readings and workshops throughout the state for many years.

She served as assistant to the directors of the New York State Writers Institute, State University of New York, from 1984-1991, coordinating such programs as the Visiting Writers Series, the writer-in-residence program, the Public Radio Book Show and various film series and festivals.

This free workshop is the last in the series "Writing Your Life," funded in part by Poets and Writers Inc. through public funds which it has received through the New York State Council on the Arts, a state agency; and by the New York State Council on the Arts Decentralization Program, which is administered in Albany and Schenectady counties by the Albany/Schenectady League of Arts Inc.

The series is geared to senior citizens and others who wish to translate their life experiences into art. No prior writing experience is required.

To register, call 439-9314.

Comeback

Although his son Bob, who was 21 at the time, had begun working in the business, he was too new to fully take it over. "My business definitely suffered," Bolduc said, "but it made me want to get back as quickly as I could." Bolduc confessed that he went against doctor's orders, doing as much work as he could, avoiding people to maintain his health. "News spread quickly that things weren't doing well," he said, and the combination of his poor health and the sluggish economy slowed his business down.

But Bolduc stuck with it, determined to turn things around. "I'd rather be on the offense than the defense," Bolduc said, an attitude that led him to quickly decide to get the bone marrow transplant. As he began to feel better, he focused on his business and family life, and is pleased with the results. "It's taken till now to get the business running well again," he said. So well, in fact, that the company has outgrown their current offices at 196 Delaware Ave., leading Bolduc to purchase and renovate 388 Kenwood for more space.

"Business is coming in so fast I can't keep up with it," he said. "Home construction has picked up again, which is a good sign."

Currently, Bolduc employs nine people, among them an office manager, carpenters, as well as his two sons, Bob and Dan. Bolduc also uses a lot of subcontractors, people he trusts, who have worked with him for a long time. One of his most recognizable renovations is the orthodontists' office at 279 Delaware Ave., site of the old McCarroll's butcher shop.

Bolduc brought the property on Kenwood Avenue just a short time ago. "It was once a beautiful building," he said. "There were tin ceilings, and other features that had been destroyed. I've focused on renovations for 21 years, I could see the beauty in it."

Bolduc said he is making a statement with the renovation of this building. "People are always complaining about the Four Corners," he said. "I'm making an effort to bring it back, and maybe some others will too. There are beautiful buildings at the Four Corners."

The Four Corners renovation will also bring Bolduc and his wife Carol back to Delmar; they plan to live in the building on Kenwood Avenue. Bolduc describes himself as "third generation Delmar," although he and Carol have lived on a 100 acre farm in Westerlo for the past 16 years. "We're ready for a lifestyle change," Bolduc said, and that means returning to the town where he's done business for the past 21 years. Although Carol owns a Mr. Subb that she operates in Lake George in the summer, Bolduc said Keystone Builder's work has been almost exclusively in Delmar.

Bolduc graduated from Syracuse University with a degree in construction, and training in drawing, after which he returned to Delmar to open Keystone Builders. Today, he cites his key to success as the design additions and new homes that he builds. He's doing a lot of work on family rooms, kitchens, bedrooms and bathrooms, all of which he describes as "good investments."

Although he is excited about the computer capabilities his firm uses, Bolduc also likes to work on paper. "It's more personalized and creative," he said, "and you can show more on pen and paper." Bolduc enjoys working with client's ideas and offering his own ideas, bearing cost in mind. "I always try to work the design towards the client's budget," he said.

Bolduc knows that reputation is everything in his business. "This is a small town, and you have to be good, or people talk." He is more than up to the challenge, and looks forward to moving into his new office by the end of the month. "Business is very strong because I'm able to put 100 percent into it," he said. "Life is only here for a time; you need to make the best of it."

department wing of the town hall, did detect something, however.

"Every time I went from here over there, a couple of times, I did smell something slight. I can't say what it was," Markel said, "but I did feel slightly dizzy after coming out of there."

Several days after the incident, the mystery continues. DEC and DOH investigators found nothing. And Bethlehem public works commissioner Bruce Secor had town workers dismantle all of the lighting apparatus to make sure the fluorescent light fixtures were not giving off fumes.

Just to be safe, Secor had workers replace the overhead fluorescent lighting ballasts with electronic devices. The ceiling tiles were also replaced and the rugs were shampooed.

Supervisor Sheila Fuller called in an outside consulting firm — Clean Harbors Environmental Services Co. of Glenmont — to search for clues.

"They looked through the offices (in the police department), the ceiling tiles and the basement, and they didn't find anything," Fuller said. "The only thing they suggested was the possibility of the lighting ballasts emitting an odor."

The police telecommunicators will continue to operate from the mobile communications center which late Friday was relocated to Selkirk fire station No. 1 on Route 396 for protection and access to computers.

On Tuesday morning, the mobile van was returned to the rear of the town hall. The police telecommunicators are expected to return to their former quarters some time this week although no date and time have yet been decided on.

All 911 calls are being routed to the Albany County sheriff's substation in Voorheesville, which is relaying messages back to the communications van where they will dispatch the appropriate emergency services personnel.

Town planner Jeff Lipnicky (who also serves as chairman of the Land Use Management Advisory Committee) said the document, which after eight years of discussion could be ready for a final vote by the town board within the next few weeks, should not be seen as a comprehensive land use plan, but as a principal resource to guide future development.

But Lipnicky's watered-down description of the master plan did not satisfy many in the crowd.

"The only concession the town gave us, in an 11th-hour change, was reducing the density from three to 1.5 acres," said John Mead, president of Rural Landowners of Bethlehem.

The plan still calls for putting thousands of acres into a new, highly restrictive "environmentally sensitive" zoning category, he said, which would not only severely limit residential development, but would also prevent property owners (under certain conditions) from harvesting timber or extracting minerals from their land.

Mead asked that Councilman Ted Putney abstain from the voting, due to a "conflict of interest since he is a member of LUMAC."

Putney said he had no plans to honor that request.

"Everywhere else, people involved in working on legislation vote on it, so of course I feel it's appropriate for me to vote on something I helped draft and fervently believe in," he said.

If the plan is approved, Putney said the recommendations for zoning changes should be implemented within the next two years. Before any zoning amendments are made by the town board, however, there will be public hearings and discussion as to the merit of all proposed changes.

Putney denied that there were any last-minute revisions designed to win support.

"They were announced in January after several meetings with the rural landowners," he said.

Supporters for the plan were also in attendance, and their calls for its adoption as a way to limit suburban sprawl, improve the transportation network and restrict industrial development to specific areas, were no less urgent.

"The details of the plan have been exhaustively debated," said John Smolinsky of Delmar. "You have heard from many advocates who see advantages of the plan, and from a few opponents who believe their self-interests are not served."

"This plan provides vision and guidance for the town's future," he continued. "It was prepared by the town's professionals, guided by a broad-based advisory group and has considered the opinions of a multitude of constituents. Adopting this plan should be proud moment for you. It will be for me."

Mary Barry, who described herself as a 20-year resident of Elsmere, said, "I'd like to applaud the efforts of all of those who have worked so hard and strongly urge you to vote yes. I think it's critical to pass a plan for orderly development, for the benefit of all residents."

And Jim Dombroski of Glenmont, who is active in the effort to stop the Southgate Commons shopping mall, said he was "displeased by all the rhetoric in the paper" about the master plan, and he asked the town board to "protect the interests of all residents and not just the special interests."

The town faces "significant growth pressures in the residential sector" and the LUMAC plan would address that, he said. Plus the document would dictate where commercial development should take place rather than having to "rely on citizens' groups, traffic studies and experts. I ask you not to delay it any further. The town needs it in order to build a diversified base."

But the opponents would not be assuaged.

"I have a 96-acre parcel, and I object to its designation as 'environmentally sensitive,'" said Barbara Carkner of Selkirk.

"We already have state and federal regulations in place," she added. "Why do we need additional restrictions from the town? Let the natural constraints of the land dictate development."

Her land represents an investment for the future, she said.

"Who will pay market value for it when half is not developable?" she asked. "There are a lot of wonderful points to the plan, but let it be a plan for all the residents, not just suburban homeowners."

V'ville fire department offering scholarship

Voorheesville Volunteer Fire Department members are offering a scholarship to a graduating senior from Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School in Voorheesville this year.

The scholarship will be awarded to a student who has demonstrated a commitment to volunteering for the community and who is pursuing continuing education at an accredited institution or in a recognized training program.

Students interested in applying for the scholarship should contact their school guidance department.

Youth services line up school recess programs

Youth services have a lineup of programs for vacationing school children that includes animals, animation and abracadabra.

Pat Faddegon brings in her rolling barnyard on Wednesday, April 23, for two presentations: "Farm on Wheels" at 11 a.m. for children age 4 to 7, and "From Fleece to Fiber" at 1 p.m. for youngsters in grade-two and up.

The morning program will mix facts about farm animals with les-petting zoo, her mobile barnyard is designed to impart a sense of respect for farming and farm animals.

Faddegon's program is presented in cooperation with Albany County Cooperative Extension and the state Department of Agriculture and Markets. Thusfar, there is a waiting list for the morning session, but the afternoon session is still open to registrants.

Two more youth services programs round out the week for kids. The 1939 animated classic Gulliver's Travels is paired with the modern Wallace and Gromit feature A Grand Day Out on Thursday, April 24, at 2 p.m.

This two-hour presentation is appropriate for school-age children.

On Friday, April 25, at 2 p.m., "Abracadabra" will present some answers to the age-old magic show query, "How do they do that?" Children in grades-two to five will learn some tricks of the trade and facts about famous magicians.

Call 439-9314 to register for "From Fleece to Fiber" and "Abracadabra."

The animation festival is a drop-in event. All programs are free.

Hike set Saturday to raise money for Thatcher Park

Join your neighbors for a walk to benefit John Boyd Thatcher State Park on Saturday, April 19, from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The hike in the park is approximately three miles long.

Participants can pick up pledge sheets at the park office or from sponsoring businesses. The top 10 fund-raisers will receive free T-shirts. All of the money that is raised will be used for trail maintenance.

SuperValu, Olsen's, New Salem Garage, Long Lumber and Indian Ladder Farms are some of the local sponsors.

The National Parks and Conservation Association started the March for Parks program eight years ago, but this is the first year that Thatcher Park has participated.

Hikers under age 18 must have permission from a parent or guardian to participate. The hike starts from the Indian Ladder parking lot at the park. Entry is through the main pool gate.

For information, call the park office at 872-1237.

Schools to close for spring recess

Schools will be closed for spring recess from Friday, April 18, through Friday, April 25.

Elementary school Principal Edward Diegel reminds parents that April 24 to 30 is TV Turnoff Week. He encourages families to take a one-week recess from TV viewing and spend time reading, exercising and taking part in family activities.

Legion to serve chicken barbecue

The American Legion Post on Voorheesville Avenue will dish up a chicken barbecue on Sunday, April 20, at 4 p.m.

Full dinners cost $7.50 per person and include chicken, baked potato, vegetable, dessert and beverage.

Reservations are required and can be made by calling 765-4712.

Highway crews to collect brush and lawn debris

The annual spring brush and lawn debris cleanup starts Monday, April 21, and runs through Friday, May 23, in the town of New Scotland.

Neatly stacked brush and bagged leaves and other lawn debris will be collected. Biodegradable paper bags must be used. They can be purchased Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the highway garage on Route 85.

For information, call the highway department at 765-2681.

Learn how to make old-fashioned candy

Karen Putnam of Maple Hill Farms in Cobleskill will demonstrate the old fashioned candy making technique known as sugar on snow and discuss the crafting of maple products on Sunday, April 20, from noon to 3 p.m. at Indian Ladder Farms on Altamont Road.

Sugar on snow is made by boiling maple syrup and dropping it onto snow or shaved ice to create a sweet, waxy taffy.

The Yellow Rock Cafe and bakery will offer a special menu featuring maple syrup. Apple pancakes with maple syrup, maple apple pudding and maple bakery items will be served on Sunday.

For information, call 756-2956.

Friends name new officers, honor volunteers

Melodies of Homespun Harmony highlighted the day at the volunteer reception on April 13.

Members of the quartet belong to the Electric City Chorus, which will perform in July at a Together at Twilight concert. If you enjoyed this past week's entertainment, don't miss Electric City on July 16.

Mary Ann Morrison, outgoing president of the Friends of the Library, was among the volunteers honored. She announced the new officers for this year. They are: Alan Kowlowitz, president; Karla Flegel, vice president; Sarah Corcione, secretary; and Elizabeth Conniff-Dineen, treasurer.

The library also recognized book sale coordinator George Moore, who continues to devote many hours on the library's behalf and Conniff-Dineen who has been an invaluable resource. Marilyn

Lecture to debate topic of life on Mars

The last in the five-part Natural History Lecture Series co-sponsored by Five Rivers Environmental Education Center and the University of Albany's Atmospheric Science Research Center will be offered on Tuesday, April 29, at 8 p.m. at Five Rivers at 56 Game Farm Road in Delmar.

Keith Ratcliff, professor in the department of physics at the University of Albany, will discuss "Is There Life on Mars?" The claim that life existed on Mars three and a half billions years ago has evolved into recent debates involving astronomers, biologists, chemists, geologists and physicians.

For information, call 475-0291.

Stracuzzi was cited for her special touch of providing refreshments for the increasing number of adult programs at the library.

These special Friends also received a Friends of the Library gift mug.

Volunteers are needed and are being recruited to sort books and tend the cash register at the book sale and to donate goodies for the bake sale on May 22-24. Don't forget to buy a raffle ticket for the Friends of the Library quilt.

Eagles take doubleheader from Colonie

Bethlehem off to fast start

By Andrew Hartman

Despite not having injured pitcher Mike DelGiacco in the lineup, the Bethlehem baseball team opened its season by winning three of its first four contests.

In the home opener against Shenendehowa, junior Matt Tulloch pitched six innings, allowing three runs and striking out six. The Eagles had their hitting shoes on against the Plainsmen as Dan Conway smacked two doubles and knocked in four runs.

Brian Davies singled, doubled and had two RBI as the Eagles opened up the season with a 13-6 victory.

On Thursday, the Eagles played a solid game against Shaker but couldn't quite hold on to a lead late in the game. Geoff Hunter led the offense with two singles and a bases-loaded triple. The Eagles lost, 9-7.

After the Shaker game, the Eagles wanted to sweep Colonie in a Saturday doubleheader and end the week on a high note. And they did just that.

In the opening match, Tulloch pitched the first complete game of the season for the Eagles, ringing up five strikeouts along the way.

Jeff McQuide contributed a single and double, and Davies punched out two singles and an RBI in the Eagles 7-6 victory.

McQuide, in his first start of the season, earned a complete game, striking out seven and sur-

Bethlehem's Matt Tulloch pitched a complete game against Colonie Saturday as the Eagles took two from the Garnet Raiders. Doug Persons rendering only five hits. Cory Czajka keyed the offense with a grand slam home run as Bethlehem went on to win, 6-2.

"We are pleased," said coach Jesse Braverman. "We played a tough schedule. I thought we could have won the Shaker game, but we did win several close games this week. Our pitching was good this week, despite the injury to Mike DelGiacco."

The Eagles play Niskayuna and Queensbury this week.

Sting drop previously unbeaten Albany team

Facing an undefeated team, the Bethlehem Sting U-12 boys soccer team struck early and never fell behind, beating the Albany Millionaires, 12-7, to take their division's indoor soccer season championship at the Washington Avenue Armory.

"The keys to our success included a very strong passing game, consistent on-field communication among the players and taking advantage of opportunities in front of the net," said head coach Tom Barone.

"I'm pleased because it was a clear and decisive win against an excellent team," he said. "The kids have worked hard all season on techniques and stamina, and both really showed tonight. We won because of our strength, not because of the other team's weakness."

A balanced scoring attack was evident with seven players contributing to the final score. Devin Breen, Jason Hoogkamp and Brian Turner led the scoring.

Ben Hager and Tom Lackner were outstanding in the nets, making key saves against an increasingly aggressive Albany offense.

In the first half, Liam Brennan and Breen both struck early for the Sting, establishing a take-charge attitude that held for the entire game. At the half, the score stood at 4-3, with additional Bethlehem goals by Brian Turner and Lackner.

Showing maturity and determination, the Sting began the second half with five unanswered goals. Peter Cioppa, Hager, Breen and Hoogkamp all contributed to the scoring.

One of Hoogkamp's two second half goals was a header off a strong boot by Scott Braaten. Albany managed three more goals, but the Sting managed three more of their own by Hoogkamp, Breen and Turner.

Mike Barone, David Kadish, Craig O'Connor, Evan Romanoff and Colin Stanton joined Braaten in mounting a spirited defense, frustrating what had been a winning combination for Albany in a previous meeting between the two teams this season.

Coach Barone, who is assisted by Joe Brennan and Pete Kadish, said, "Playing indoors is tough because fewer players can be on the field, and as a result, we could not roster everyone for this game. I'd like to thank Joe Cardamone, Rick Rodgers, Will Sherman, Dan Swartz and Brian Wasserstein for their efforts during the indoor season. Without their help, we wouldn't have made it to this game."

The victorious Sting team and their parents celebrated with an ice cream party at the Toll Gate in Slingerlands Friday night.

BC net stars still undefeated

By Alli Tombros

The undefeated Bethlehem boys tennis team had a successful week of match play, beating both Niskayuna and Colonie.

On Thursday, Bethlehem defeated Niskayuna 7-2, and on Friday, they took Colonie, 8-1.

Thursday's match was thrown into temporary suspense when captain Marc Borzykowski was forced to default his match due to an injury incurred earlier in the week that resurfaced.

His teammates came together, however, with Matt Treadgold, Kevin Russell, David Perlmutter, Mark Katz and Dan

Burrell all registering victories in singles play.

The doubles teams of Ian Morgan and Jon Caplan along with Dave Phillips and Kevin Moehringer beat their opponents in two and three set matches, respectively.

Borzykowski's injury required a shift in Friday's lineup against Colonie. Treadgold, who is only in eighth-grade, was forced to take over the No. 1 spot. He proved he was up to the challenge, winning easily, 6-0, 6-0.

Perlmutter, Burrell and doubles player Tom Hitter, who were each playing higher on the ladder than they were used to, were also victorious. Once again, Morgan and Caplan won easily in two sets, and the doubles teams of Dan Herd and Phillips, along with Martin Smith and Luke Dwyer, followed suit.

Borzykowski's injury will keep him out of match play for an undetermined amount time and force a shift in the ladder for matches coming up this week.

"I may try playing this week," said Borzykowski, "but I think it says a lot that we can still win handily without me or Kris (Grajny) playing. That says a lot for the depth of our team."

The Eagles play Guilderland today (Wednesday) at home.

Reality sets in for V'ville girls

By Matt McKenna

The Voorheesville girls softball team, Section II champs last year, received a dose of reality last week.

The Blackbirds hit the road for three games and came back with only one win. The two losses equaled their total number of losses from last year.

On Monday, the team traveled to Schalmont to take on the Sabres in the opening game of the Colonial Council season. The 'Birds broke the game open early as they scored nine runs in the first inning. Schalmont rallied, but Voorheesville put the game out of reach with five more runs in the fifth.

The final score was 17-6 in favor of the Ladybirds even though they were out hit by the Sabres. Lauren Lloyd led the team with a single and a double, and Natalie Portanova contributed a double. Tenth-grader Liz Duncan gave up 10 hits in her first game on the mound.

That brought the girls up against first-place Averill Park, which came into the game with a 2-0 record. Again, the girls got off to a fast start, scoring two runs in the first, but from there on it was all Warriors.

Brittany Burnham was the starting pitcher for Voorheesville, and she had a problem with control. Duncan spelled her in the third, but gave up five more runs as Averill Park cruised to a 18-2 victory.

Kristin Castle tossed a one-hitter for Averill Park, striking out six batters. Jan Rissacher had the only hit for the Blackbirds, an RBI single in the first inning.

"It's hard when you have to play a team like that early in the season," said coach Nadine Bassler. "We've got some young players, and we're still trying to get in a rhythm. They played a great game, and their pitcher is extremely hard to hit."

The Blackbirds finished the week at Cohoes, which entered the game winless on the year.

Duncan gave up three runs in the first two innings but then settled down to shut down the Tigers the rest of the way.

Voorheesville batters had a hard afternoon. They tried to make a run at it in the sixth, scoring two runs, but in the end fell short, 3-2. Rissacher again led the team with a single and a triple.

Grady rolls perfect game at Del Lanes

Micky Grady bowled a 300 game last week at Del Lanes. Other high scores included:

Sr. Men: Lou Picarazzi 235 and 851 four games; Steve Walley 232; Dick Neumann 581 triple.

Sr. Women: Doris Aupperle 195; Agnes Neumann 498 triple; Judy Dedes 498 triple.

Men: Mike DeLorenzo 735 triple; Bill Cornell 963 four games.

Adult/Junior Men: Steven Vnuk 258 and 680 triple.

Women: Chris Rossman 221; Judy Carkner 554 triple; Travis Davey 221 and 557 triple.

Girls: Antoinette Yaggle 251, and 537 triple.

Track team fares well

By Karly Decker

The Bethlehem boys track and field team started off the season dominating both Burnt Hills and Niskayuna in their first home meet last week.

Bethlehem scored 108 points to Nisky's 59 and 94 to Burnt Hill's 79. Matt Clement came in first in the 1600-meter run with 4:40. The 400-meter relay team, consisting of Jeremy Macarin, Matt Reuter, Andy Karins and Khalid Umar also placed first.

Bethlehem runners took first and second in the 110-meter high hurdles. Andy Gregory finished in 17.7 seconds with Jeremy Mulich following right behind. Tim Moshier came in first in the discus, and Kris Darlington took first place in the triple jump.

"Going into the meet, I didn't think we'd perform well, but despite the cold weather, the team rose to the occasion," Clement said.

The boys also had a strong showing against Columbia and Colonie Thursday. They beat Colonie 105-76 and were nosed out by Columbia, 92-90. The 4x800 meter relay team of Andy MacMillan, Keith Campbell, Scott Rhoades and Tim Kavanagh finished first in 8:45.8. Clement took first in the 1600 meters and placed second, just slightly behind Kavanagh, in the 800 meters. Mulich came in first in the 110-meter hurdles.

Umar took first in both the long jump and triple jump events. His winning triple jump extended 42 feet, five inches.

"We've performed very well for so early in the season," said coach Dave Banas. "We're looking forward to getting into big invitational meets and being a competitor there."

This week the boys have a tough schedule with meets against Shaker, Saratoga and Mohonasen.

On Friday, the girls track team lost to Niskayuna and Burnt Hills.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1987, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- New Scotland Supervisor Stephen Wallace decided not to run for re-election, after 14 years in the town's top post. "I think it is time for somebody else," Wallace said.

- There were contests for both Bethlehem Central school board seats on the 1987 ballot. Incumbent Velma Cousins was challenged by Greg Maher and Nathaniel Boynton; and incumbent Barbara Coon was challenged by Pamela Williams.

- Four people filed petitions to fill the Voorheesville school board seat being vacated by Peter Ten Eyck. The four were Janet Breeze, Kris Jackstadt, James Jones and Judith Shearer.

- Spending was up 10 percent in the tentative 1987-88 Voorheesville village budget, but the tax rate was down 25 percent, due to increases in sales tax and state aid revenue.

- Bethlehem's only radio station, WWCN on Kenwood Avenue, was sold and went off the air.

- Neighbors of a proposed group home for seven mentally retarded adults on East Road in New Salem organized to oppose the project.

March for Parks hopes to raise dollars and sense

By Zack Beck

In 1927, more than 150,000 people jam-packed the Saratoga Battlefield to celebrate the opening of a new national park.

Seventy years later, the Friends of Saratoga Battlefield invite the public to "March Back in Time for the Future of Saratoga Battlefield" at the group's fourth annual fund-raiser on Saturday, April 19.

"We're not expecting as many people as who came 70 years ago," joked program director Gina Johnson.

Participants can walk, run, bike or drive a route of their choice through the battlefield. There are prizes for those who raise $15 or more for the Friends' park support fund.

Battling in a good-natured competition to raise funds will be Schuylerville and Stillwater fourth-graders, who will duke it out to see who can raise the most money. Also participating in a competition will be Schuylerville and Stillwater town officials.

"This year's event will feature a lot of activities for the whole family," said Johnson.

A 10 a.m. cannon blast will kick off the walk with a ceremonial ribbon-cutting by Alice Peterson, a long-time community resident who attended the 1927 event.

Walkers and bicyclists will be joined by Smokey the Bear, McGruff the Crime Fighting Dog, Llamas of Saratoga Woods, Kokorokan Karate, Boy Scouts and others for the march through the battlefield.

From 11 a.m. to noon, brass band music will be performed by the Nassau Community Band.

Visitors to this Saturday's "March Back in Time for the Future of Saratoga Battlefield" will be treated to a variety of events to commemorate the founding of the national park 70 years ago.

Other activities include: a hammer dulcimer performance by Jack Reber at noon; a program about the Roosevelts' influence on the battlefield at 12:30 p.m.; an exhibition by Kokorokan Karate at 1 p.m.; a silent auction at 1:30 p.m.; and Debbie Bailey's one-woman theatrical depiction Baroness Frederika von Riedesel, Hessian Gen. von Riedesel's wife, at 1:45 p.m.

There will also be day-long living history demonstrations by Revolutionary Times Trappers and Hunters and the 2nd Continental Artillery Unit.

At 2 p.m., a cannon fire will close the 1997 March for Parks.

According to Johnson, March for Parks is part of a nationwide celebration of Earth Day to raise money and awareness for public parks. At Saratoga National Park, the funds raised by the event will be put toward a much-needed replacement of the visitor center's 30-year-old film.

"This is a great family event and a fun way to welcome spring back to the park," said Johnson.

Saratoga National Historic Park is off Route 32 in Stillwater.

For information, call Johnson at 664-9821.

Capital Rep benefit to feature Gregory Peck in solo Egg appearance

As a tie-in with its production of To Kill A Mockingbird which closes this Sunday, Capital Rep will play host May 5 for an appearance by Gregory Peck, the veteran Hollywood star who played the Southern lawyer in one of his most successful films.

His film version of To Kill A Mockingbird opened 35 years ago and during his career, starting in 1944 and continuing to his most recent film, Other People's Money in 1991, Peck has starred in some of the most successful films ever done in Hollywood.

The consummate film actor, Peck will appear on Monday, May 5 at the Hart Theater in The Egg to present A Conversation with Gregory Peck.

The receipts of the evening will go to benefit Capital Rep which is now in the midst of starting a summer production program (Always, Patsy Cline) and also offering a summer school to train youngsters in the STAR (Summer Theater at the Rep). Auditions will be held Wednesday, April 23 from 5 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, April 26 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Sunday, April 27 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. for the 30 students who will be accepted into the program.

For information, call 462-4531.

Schenectady Light Opera Company opens Evita April 25 for two weekends

The stage version of Evita which has proved to be more enduring than the recently released film with Madonna, will be reprised for two weekends by the Schenectady Light Opera Company.

Opening on April 25, the show will run for seven performances at the opera house on State Street in Schenectady.

Staged by Matthew T. Teichner who is making his SLOC debut,

Martin P. Kelly

SPOTLIGHT

By Martin P. Kelly

the show features Joan M. Morgan as Evita, William J. Spillane as Che and John Mahoney as Peron.

This tale of the Argentine dictator and his movie actress wife who captivated and controlled the South American country in the 1960s, has a sinister Cinderella tone to it. Andrew Lloyd Webber's music and Tim Rice's book and lyrics have endured for almost 20 years.

The Schenectady production plays Friday, Saturday and Sunday the first week (April 25, 26 and 27) and Thursday through Sunday the second week (May 1-4).

Reservations and information are available at 377-5101.

Riverview to present Love Letters with different casts in dinner productions

Following a custom that was established Off-Broadway when Love Letters was first written, Riverview Entertainment Productions will present three different casts during its four-performance run of A.R. Gurney's Love Letters starting Saturday, April 26.

The difference between this format and the one in New York is the Riverview production is part of a dinner theater operation while the New York presentation was done on Monday nights, the dark night on Broadway, and featured a different Broadway couple each week.

Here, at the First United Methodist Church of Delmar, two separate casts will perform Saturday, April 26 and Sunday, April 27. One cast will perform on May 3 and 4.

Janet Stasio and Richard Harte will first play the couple who write letters to each other throughout their lives, revealing their own characters and poignant relationship to an audience through the simple reading of these letters. They appear Saturday, April 26.

Gurney's characters, two wealthy WASPS grow from childhood into middle age, capturing the audience which is permitted to follow their lives and become attached to their triumphs and defeats.

Grace Hepburn and Larry Maranville will perform as the couple on Sunday, April 27.

The following week, May 3 and 4, Carol Jones and Michael Ryan take over the roles as the couple.

This play replaces the originally scheduled Jakes's Women which was restricted for this area after its announcement.

Dinner is served at 5 p.m. all four nights. The two-act show follows after dinner.

Reservations and information are available at 463-3811.

The Empire Center plans auditions for I Never Saw Another Butterfly

When a touring production of a family show, I Never Saw Another Butterfly, was cancelled by the traveling company for May 21, the officials at the Empire Center at the Egg decided to produce the play itself because of the audiences that had already come to the performance.

Executive director Joan Roberts at The Egg will use the production as a test for the potential the venue has for doing its own plays and musicals.

Auditions will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, April 22 and 23, from 6 to 8 p.m. for actors to perform in this production. Richard Creamer, a theater veteran who now works with the Impulse Theatre and Dance, will hold the auditions and stage the play. Information on auditions is available at 473-1061.

LEGAL NOTICE

VOORHEESVILLE CENTRAL SCHOOL DISTRICT NOTICE REGARDING ABSENTEE BALLOT PROCEDURE
 NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to Board of Education action taken December 9, 1991, the following procedures must be followed to procure an absentee ballot to be used for elections conducted by the Voorheesville Central School District.

An absentee ballot and application will be mailed to each qualified voter who requests such in a signed letter provided the voter meets the criteria listed below:
 The person will be unable to appear to vote in person on the day of the school district election for which the absentee ballot is requested because he/she is, or will be on that day:

a) a patient in a hospital, or unable to appear personally at the polling place because of illness or physical disability or;

b) because his/her duties, occupation or business will require him/her to be outside of the county or city of his/her residence on that day;

1) Where such duties, occupation or business are of such a nature as ordinarily to require such absence, a brief description of such duties, occupation or business shall be set forth in the affidavit.

2) Where such duties, occupation or business are not of such a nature as ordinarily to require such absence, the application shall contain a statement of the special circumstances that such absence is required; or

STAN SMITH'S TENNIS CLASS

HIGH TOSS

It's important to hit the ball on your serve with your arm completely extended. But many players toss the ball unnecessarily high, forcing them to hit the ball as it comes down — when it is travelling fastest.

Make sure your toss isn't too high, as this will make your timing on the serve easier. It should be about the height of your racket and arm above your head.
