Local 'institution' ends 45-year V'ville reign

By Mel Hyman

Seated in the living room of her Voorheesville home — the same house she has welcomed customers into for the past 45 years — Shirley Le Vie could barely contain her grief.

Not just for sudden illness that has asking what was up, this is one sad situation.

"When you do the same thing from the time you've been a kid, you don't know what to do anymore," she said, "except to go to the hospital seven days a week. I've taken three days off in the last 45 years and they've all been for funerals.

"It hurts me just to say it," she continued, "but this has been our whole life and if I could just get just one thing across, could say that we love our customers."

While Shirley spoke about the past and a very uncertain future, Albert was outside tinkering in the fields — trying to keep busy and do what he could until his next doctor's appointment.

"Even if we didn't open full-time this year, I was still hoping to do some work around the farm" he said. "Right now, I think I'd rather die than not be able to work."

Shirley was 19 and Alfred 23 when the couple moved to Maple Road soon after getting married. And they've had one of the most successful area farming operations since then.

"We got married in March and we opened the stand in June or July," Shirley recalled. "(Alfred) graduated from struck her family, but also because this was the week she and her husband Alfred were expecting to reopen their farmstand for business

A local institution since 1952, Le Vie's has closed shop for good, as another family farmstand fades into history.

When you have the same routine for decades, a break in the cycle can be enough to break your spirit. Shirley tried to put the best face on it she could last week, but for the scores of people who have been calling and stopping by the past few weeks

Stone Ends motel suffers growing pain

By Mel Hyman

For the past three years, business has been sluggish at the Stone Ends Motel in Glenmont.

To turn things around, owner Mukesh Marash wants to expand the Route 9W motel by building a second story and turning the whole thing into a Comfort Inn.

But before he can expand from 30 to 50 rooms, he needs an area variance from the Bethlehem zoning board of appeals, which held a public hearing on his proposal last week.

Basically, Marash wants to build an entirely new motel from the foundation up. He plans to remove the roof trusses and completely redesign the structure to meet the space requirements of the Comfort Inn chain.

Along with a second floor, there would an addition tacked on to the building so that hallways and balconies could be incorporated.

The 30 existing rooms are "very small," Marash told the zoning board; only measuring 10 by 18 feet (including the bathroom).

As a result, the only people satisfied with the accommodations seem to be construction workers who "mostly stay for a week or a month," he said. But "with the construction industry being soft the past few years there are lots of vacancies."

By converting the motel into a Comfort Inn franchise, Marash said he hopes to cash in on the marketing and promotion offered by the company and eventually attract a different clientele. Otherwise, the "way things are now, I just can't compete with Howard Johnson's and Days Inn."

ZBA chairman Michael Hodom asked Marash to provide the board with financial statements showing how the business had slumped. He also requested another set of architectural plans because the existing blueprints were confusing and difficult to make out.

CDTC plans more work for Delaware Ave.

By Mel Hyman

The reconstruction of Delaware Avenue from Euclid Avenue south to the D&H railroad overpass is on the horizon.

A project similar in scope to what was recently completed in the Delaware Plaza area is tentatively scheduled for the year 2002. The $3.86 million project was recently recommended for funding by the Capital District Transportation Committee

Horse riding center calls for volunteers

If you'd like to help out and have some fun at the same time, consider becoming a horse leader.

Volunteer horse leaders and side walkers are needed two hours each week during Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday or Sunday classes at Albany Therapeutic Riding Center at 182 Maritn Road in Voorheesville.

No experience with horses is necessary, and training will be provided at the center.

To volunteer or for information about what the job entails, call the riding center at 765-2764 or 458-2572.

Horseback riding for people with disabilities will begin today, June 25 and run through Sept. 28,

Man nabbed for burglary

Police charged a Delmar man with a felony count of burglary in connection with the theft of money from The Garden Shoppe on Feura Bush Road.

Spencer T. Myers, 28, of 648 Feura Bush Road was charged with third-degree burglary and petty larceny Saturday for allegedly stealing cash from the business, police said.

Police made the arrest after setting up surveillance after receiving reports of missing funds from the office, said Bethlehem Police Lt. Frederick Holligan.

Myers, who was employed at The Garden Shoppe, allegedly entered the building after hours and removed cash from the office.

He was also cited for violating parole and sent to Albany County jail without bail. Detectives Chris Bowdish and John Cox investigated.

Crisis group seeks help

The Albany County Rape Crisis Center is seeking adult volunteers interested in staffing its 24-hour emergency hotline.

Training sessions will be held Monday and Wednesday evenings through July 2 at the Albany County Office Building at 112 State St. in Albany.

Volunteers staff the hotline from their home, responding to crisis calls from victims of sexual assault. They may also provide assistance and support at hospital emergency rooms or police departments. Volunteers sign up in advance for seven-hour shifts, covering mornings, afternoons, evenings or overnights.

For information, call 447-7100.

Cops charge man for bicycle theft

An Albany man was caught stealing a bicycle from Birchwood Plaza last week, police said.

Shane T. Wood, 28, of Madison Avenue, was arrested and charged with second-degree burglary (a felony) and petty larceny at about 4 p.m. Thursday, June 19, according to Bethlehem Police Lt. Frederick Holligan.

The owner of the bike happened to be looking out the window of his Birchwood Place home when he spotted Wood walking down the street. Wood then allegedly entered an attached garage and tried to ride away on the owner's mountain bike valued at about $260, Holligan said.

Before he could get away, the owner grabbed him and held him until police could respond. Wood was also charged with criminal impersonation for giving police wrong information after his arrest, Holligan said. He was arraigned before Town Justice Stephen McQuide and sent to Albany County jail without bail.

Wood was also charged with violation of probation, Holligan said.

Police arrest woman for DWI

An Albany woman was charged with driving while intoxicated last week, police said.

Wamber Jean Wolf, 32, of 575 Washington Ave., was stopped at 1:25 a.m. Saturday, June 21, after police were notified about a vehicle driving the wrong way on New Scotland Road.

Bethlehem police officer Chris Hughes spotted Wolf's vehicle as she was attempting to back out of Maher Road onto Route 85 in an unsafe manner. Hughes then notified the vehicle crossing the double line on New Scotland Road and pulled it over.

Wolf was released in her own recognizance pending a future appearance in Bethlehem Town Court.

Reilly reconciles with NS Dems

By Dev Tobin

After one election running and winning on his own as an Independent, New Scotland Supervisor Herb Reilly is back in the Democratic fold.

Reilly said town Democratic chairman Michael Burns had invited Reilly to top the Democratic ticket this fall.

Burns and other Democratic leaders "feel I'm the best they have for the job," said Reilly, who won a three-way race in 1995 with about 47.5 percent of the vote.

"In a two-way race, I hope most of the 800 who voted for (1995 Democratic supervisor candidate) Clare Decker will support me," he said.

Reilly has been a Democratic presence on the town board since the late 1970s, serving 10 years as a councilman before winning the town's top post following the retirement of Republican supervisor Stephen Wallace in 1987.

But in 1995, Reilly lost the support of the Democratic committee, largely due to a bitter dispute over the town's proposed zoning law.

In running for his sixth two-year term, Reilly said he had a "good track record," pointing to three new water districts (Northeast, Clarksville and Font Grove) and two extensions of the Swift Road water district, the new master plan and zoning law, the com-

Scott Houghtaling, a candidate for a second four-year term this year. "He's proven he's a winner, and people like him."

Reilly said he believes the Democratic ticket, which includes Town Justice Thomas Dolin and Highway Superintendent Darrell Duncan, will also secure the Conservative and Independence party munity center in New Salem and the town hall addition, erasing a $340,000 deficit when he first took office and reducing taxes in recent years.

Reilly's record is in the eyes of the beholder. Town GOP chairwoman Judith VonRonne said the Republican ticket of Douglas Shearer for supervisor and Andrea Gleason and Mark Pelers for town board will cite issues like the $200,000 cost overrun for the Northeast Water District, the incomplete town hall addition, and the lack of a long-range plan.

One running mate welcomed Reilly's return to the top of the Democratic ticket.

"If Herb wants to run, I'd love to run with him," said Councilman lines on the ballot.

But the ticket is still incomplete, with no one yet winning the committee's nod for the other town board seat on the ballot, currently held by Victoria Ramundo, who has decided not to run for re-election.

The Republicans won two town board seats in 1995 with the election of Mark Dempf and Michael Fields, so the Democrats need to sweep the town board races this year to maintain the majority they first won in 1991.

The Democratic committee has also evidently not found candidates to challenge two Republican incumbents, Town Clerk Corinne Cossac and Receiver of Taxes Marilyn Holmberg.

BC network bids sought

By Dev Tobin

The Bethlehem Central school board has decided to seek bids for a microwave-based wide area network (WAN) to link computers in the district's seven schools together and to the Internet, but not without the strong opposition of one member.

The work is part of the $14.8 facilities/computer bond issue voters approved in December 1995.

Michael Fanning, one of the project architects, explained that the microwave system, with towers of up to 100 feet at each school, had been approved by the state Education Department and so was ready to put out to bid.

In developing the original proposal for the bond issue two years ago, the school board decided on microwave since its operating expenses were much less than those of a system run through fiber-optic telephone lines.

In addition, Fanning noted that the district's microwave towers could be configured to generate revenues from cellular telephone companies, whose plans for towers of their own have disquieted town officials.

Board member Dennis Stevens said going ahead with the "short-sighted technology" of microwave was a mistake.

"I'm absolutely opposed," he said. "In two to four years, this could be obsolete."

Stevens argued that a fiber-optic system would provide wider band width capability and could be up and running more quickly than a microwave system.

While the board decided to put the microwave system out to bid over Stevens' objection, it also asked Fanning to prepare a rough cost and capability comparison of the two systems in time for board review during a special meeting before the high school graduation June 27.

"We should have the same information" on both the microwave and fiber-optic options, said board member James Schwab.

Whichever system is ultimately chosen, the installation work should begin as soon as possible, said Judith Wooster, assistant superintendent for instruction and the prime mover behind increasing the district's computer capabilities.

"The sooner we can realize the full potential of networking, the better," Wooster said. "We had hoped to be ready in September, and every two, three or four months we have to wait makes a difference."

Study cites ways to cut BC bus costs

By Dev Tobin

While state aid to public school districts goes up in absolute dollars from year to year, it has steadily declined as a percentage of overall school budgets for many years, nowhere so significantly as in transportation.

The Bethlehem Central School District, like all districts, used to receive state aid for 90 percent of its transportation expenses. In the past three years, the state contribution to BC has shrunk by half, to about 45 percent, so the incentives to find efficiencies in the district's transportation system are greater than ever.

That's the gist of the half-inch-thick Student Transportation Efficiency Study of BC's bus system recently completed by Transportation Advisory Services (TAS). The study's $10,000 cost was funded by a state grant.

Close call in condo pool

By Mel Hyman

Quick thinking on the part of a parent saved the life of a 4-year-old Delmar boy Saturday. The boy had apparently jumped in an outdoor pool and was in danger of drowning.

Kevin Wiegand of Ellsworth Avenue was at a child's birthday party Saturday afternoon in the Woodgate condominiums (between Kenwood and Cherry avenues) when he "got into water over his head and stopped breathing," according to Peg Clement, also of Delmar.

Clement said she pulled Wiegand from the water as soon as saw what had happened and performed mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Several adults were at the party, but Wiegand had apparently strayed from view.

"This was sort of a wake-up call

The study looks at the 1995-96 school year, in which BC spent $3,214,313 on transportation, 8.6 percent of the district's $37.3 million budget that year.

The study found that the system transported 4,045 students (86 percent to BC schools) using 63 vehicles with an average mileage of almost 83,000. The district's fleet routing efficiency is a relatively good 81 percent, the report noted.

While the BC "operating cost per route vehicle" was $46,020, about 50 percent higher than the TAS database average of 108 upstate districts, the BC system's annual miles traveled was 884,940, 92 percent more than the upstate average.

The study also found that the typical full-time driver at BC earned $17.68 an hour, and would cost the district as much as $26.73 an hour at maximum benefit levels. "No. 1, that parents need to be ever-vigilant as far as watching their kids. Just don't take your eyes off them when they're near a pool."

"And No. 2, people have to keep up-to-date on their first aid, CPR and even the Heimlich maneuver if they want to avoid a tragedy someday," she said.

Bethlehem paramedics "showed up really quick," she added.

"I was grateful and surprised that they were there so soon," she said.

Wiegand was "out of the woods" by the time they arrived, she said.

The boy was then rushed to Albany Medical Center Hospital where he was kept overnight for observation and released on Sunday morning, according to hospital spokesman Ned Hoskin.

The study is "thorough and very useful," said Superintendent Leslie Loomis. "We'll be working over the recommendations."

Loomis noted that some recommendations involve contractual issues, and will be the subject of negotiations with the Bethlehem Central United Employees Association, which represents district support staff. The contract between the district and the BCUEA expired a year ago, and the two sides are currently at impasse, awaiting appointment of a fact-finder, Loomis said.

The study's recommendations include:

- Replacing full-time drivers who retire with part-time drivers.
- Upgrading the department's computer capabilities.
- Exploring cost-effective ways to contract out some bus runs.
- Finding ways to share private/parochial runs with other districts.
- Transporting private/parochial students to the high school first, then to their respective schools.
- Having the district transportation supervisor submit a monthly report.
- "Catching up" on bus replacement, to reduce the fleet's average age and related maintenance costs.
- Holding a vote on increasing student walking distances, if it can be shown to save money without compromising safety.

New laundry runs more than hot and cold

By Mel Hyman

If your image of a laundromat is that of a long line of washers along one wall and a set of dryers sitting right across, then you probably haven't visited the new Thrifty Laundromat in Delaware Plaza in Elsmere.

Proprietor Sejal Shah always wanted to own this type of business, but she wanted to do it her way, which involved offering more than a self-service operation.

There is no dearth of those around, so she figured if she could separate herself from the rest of the crowd she'd have a winner.

It's a bit too early to render a verdict on that score, but there's certainly more to Thrifty Laundromat than a bunch of machines.

For example, if you need some shoes repaired, you can drop them off at the store and they'll be taken over to Empire Shoe Repair on New Scotland Avenue in Albany — a long-established business with a solid reputation.

Let's say you suddenly need some copies made. There's a copy machine as well as a fax machine on the premises. There's even Airborne Express service in case the package you're sending needs to get there fast.

How about taking a class in ceramics while you're waiting for the spin cycle to come around? Free ceramics classes are offered each Tuesday and Thursday between 9 a.m. and noon in a separate room in the laundromat.

There's also a kids playroom inside and complete dry cleaning

Sejal Shah, left, and assistant Rachael Dames of Delmar, have more than laundry services to offer. Mel Hyman service is provided by Regal Dry Cleaners of Colonie.

Shah and her husband relocated to the U.S. from Bombay, India in 1975. Sejal's first business was a laundromat in San Francisco. Five years later, the family moved to upstate New York where they acquired the Budget Motel and Kerslakes Apartments in Ravena.

In December 1995, Sejal was back in the laundromat business after purchasing the Center Square Laundromat in Glenmont.

But this was still a rather small facility so when the opportunity came to acquire a much-larger laundromat that had recently closed shop in the Delaware Plaza, she jumped at the opportunity.

"This was my dream come true," she said. "I gave it the same name that we used for the first one we had in San Francisco."

Doing business at the plaza has been a pleasure thus far, Shah said. "It's a very cooperative atmosphere around here. The owner of Windflower sent over a beautiful bouquet and she took 200 of our fliers to use with her mailing list.

"The Subway guy put our fliers in the subs he was selling and other store owners came over to greet us personally."

Plaza management has also been helpful, she added, especially co-owner Howard Nolan who is a "very pleasant guy to work with and Mr. (Norris) MacFarland who is a very nice guy."

Shah received a bachelor's degree in business before moving to the U.S. and she gives every impression of being an astute entrepreneur.

Since seniors comprise a fairly large percentage of the plaza clientele, they are entitled to discounts at Thrifty.

For teen-agers hanging out and waiting for their clothes to dry, there is a mini arcade in the rear of the facility.

Now if they would only offer some classes in Indian culture.

V'ville valedictorian reminisces

By Katherine McCarthy

When Kristin Person steps to the podium to give her valedictory address at Voorheesville's Clayton A. Bouton High School Friday, she'll see lots of familiar faces.

"I lived here all my life," Person said recently. "I'll miss the people here, and the small town atmosphere. It will be hard to leave all my friends."

Person won't be leaving everyone when she begins college at Notre Dame this fall; her older sister Jennifer will be a junior there.

Kristin Person

I lived here all my life. I'll miss the people here, and the small town atmosphere. It will be hard to leave all my friends.

Kristin Person

"I visited her, and we went to a football game," Person said, explaining part of what is drawing her to the Midwest. "I loved the tradition of it, like following the band into the stadium. Going to Notre Dame will definitely be different. I think it will be a good change. I'm looking forward to meeting a lot of new people."

At this point Person anticipates being a business major. "I'll get more specific later," she said, "after starting out with a general business major."

Person has been an avid basketball player for her "entire life," she said. She's played on the varsity team since eighth-grade, and was co-captain this past year, helping to take the team to the state Final Four competition. Person has also played summer basketball in the American Athletic Union since she was 11, playing in the nationals in states as far as Tennessee, Florida and Indiana.

Although she said basketball

Recognition Dinner and the Sports Foundation for Scholar/Athletes dinner, both of which included a number of schools in the Capital District. Person was named the Tandy Technology Scholar, an honor in the math and science field, and received PEF's Joseph Scacalossi scholarship. She received the Dartmouth Club book award, the Clarkson Leadership award, the John Robert Larabee award, the Navy's honor award, and the Dollars for Scholars award.

Person said one of her favorite classes at Voorheesville was Chris Mastro's English 11 class. "The whole class got together, wrote and produced a play," she said. "That was great." Person also credited assistant principal William Furdon for some of her success. "He really supported me," Person said. "He helped me out a lot with college applications and student government. He was the teacher I took to the Scholars Recognition Dinner."

With a successful high school career behind her, and a promising college education ahead, Person's immediate plans for the summer are clear, "I've just finished playing basketball," she said, "and I want to spend some time with my friends."

has taken up most of her extra-curricular time, Person was vice president of the student government during her senior year, and secretary during her junior year. She has played clarinet in band since she was in fifth-grade, and was on the Mock Trial Team for two years, serving as a lawyer at the regional competition. Person has a long list of awards to credit, including being voted Most Likely to Succeed by her class.

Person was chosen to represent Voorheesville at the Scholars

Hamagrael kids learn through service program

By Dev Tobin

Service Learning is the kind of program that makes back-to-basics critics of public education cringe. But Service Learning at Hamagrael Elementary is not just a feel-good volunteer program devoid of educational merit, teachers told the Bethlehem Central school board at last week's meeting.

With the help of a $5,000 grant, Hamagrael students participated in a variety of community service projects, including visiting nursing homes, putting together teddy bear "pal packs" for Ronald McDonald House, donating food to homeless people and helping publicize a bone-marrow donor drive for a local man.

Hamagrael principal Diane Kilfoile said that students kept a journal of their Service Learning activities, reinforcing their language arts skills. At the meeting, about a dozen students read from their journals, getting an early taste of a communications skill that terrifies many adults — public speaking.

"We encouraged about 10 people" to get screened for a possible bone marrow match for local baseball coach Bob Bellizzi, said third-grader Kevin Burriesci. "We helped hit a grand slam for Bob Bellizzi."

Teacher Christine Schade noted that the bone marrow match project coordinated with a "growing healthy" unit.

"I thought it would be scary, but it wasn't scary at all," said second-grader Megan Braaten of her volunteer work at Good Samaritan Nursing Home.

"I feel the same at Good Sam when I visit with my therapy dog," said board member Happy Scherer, who helps train dogs that work with the blind and in hospitals.

Teacher Mary Szczech noted that the Service Learning projects helped pupils "work a lot better in cooperative groups," another life skill that some adults still struggle with.

High school students presented another Service Learning project at the meeting — their exit poll of voters in the district election May 8.

The students demonstrated another level of communications skill, presenting the poll results on a large computer monitor using a data analysis program they designed.

As might be expected when the budget passes easily, the poll of 353 voters found that 62 percent thought the budget was "just about right," while 31 percent thought it was too expensive and 7 percent thought it was too lean.

As in last year's poll, The Spotlight was voters' No. 1 source of information on the budget, cited by 64 percent of respondents. The district's Highlights, mailed to every resident, was cited by 62 percent.

Matters of Opinion

On to life's stage

The class of 1997 will cross the stage this weekend in graduation ceremonies that mark the end of one journey and the beginning of another.

Graduating from high school is a defining moment in our lives, a symbolic, unofficial welcome to adulthood.

For most, graduation is a symbol of freedom to make decisions without censure from parents or teachers. For some, graduation is a high point in their lives, but for others, it triggers feelings of uncertainty.

Have I chosen the right college, the right branch of the service, the right job? And after all the graduation parties are over, just what will I do with my time?

Life can be scary indeed, dear graduates, but also glorious. Blessedly, we usually get a share of both the good and the bad things that befall us when we step into those adult shoes.

Later on in life, we might not remember much or any of our high school commencement speaker's message or even who the speaker was, but we do always remember how it felt to move from the carefree world of childhood to a world full of responsibility for our actions as we crossed the school stage to life's.

We wish our graduates congratulations and luck along their journey.

Set right example

Lynn Finley's point of view column this week underscores the pressing need for adherence to traffic safety laws by both drivers and pedestrians. In Bethlehem last year, two young lives were cut short in accidents that devastated the community.

Children and adults must follow the rules to protect themselves. We are all vulnerable and accidents can and do happen here.

Adults, in particular, should set an example of using the roadways correctly when walking, jogging or cycling. Children who see adults flaunting the rules will likely tend to do the same thing, despite what they're taught in school. This is a matter that requires a community-wide consensus in order to prevent another tragedy on the streets.

Despite the small-town aura of Bethlehem, its streets and roadways are heavily trafficked, and will get worse as more people move into the community. We have moved far beyond the era when you could count the number of cars that used any given street in a day.

We urge walkers and joggers to get on the safety track, set an example for the kids, get off the wrong side of the road and leave the Walkmans at home.

It's time for us all to put safety first and foremost.

Thanks for 45

When a local "institution" closes, it's like losing a good friend. And that's the way many people feel about the closing of Le Vie's farm stand in Voorheesville, a mainstay in the community for nearly half a century.

If illness had not beset the couple, the Le Vies likely would have opened for business as usual this year, with their famous produce that drew customers from throughout the region. But no one is sadder to see the business close than the Le Vies themselves, who not only offered some of the best in farm stand fare, but also provided employment opportunities for generations of young people, who learned what the work ethic is all about.

As New Scotland Supervisor Herb Reilly says, the Le Vies are the salt of the earth, whose business certainly made a difference in the community.

We wish the Le Vies well, and thank them for 45 years of bountiful harvests enjoyed by countless residents in Bethlehem and New Scotland.

Make safety a No. 1 priority

By Lynn Finley

The writer is founder of a pedestrian safety group in Bethlehem.

The last day of school is hurtling toward us at breakneck speed. The day the school doors close, the roads open to additional cyclists, Rollerbladers and children playing outside just having a good time.

The "lazy, crazy, hazy days of summer" arrive filled with promises of relaxation, vacations and waking up each morning worrying about which friend to call, rather than doing last night's homework in today's study hall. Nothing to worry about, just have fun, right? Well, almost right.

Lurking on the roads, along with our children, are 3,000-pound metal behemoths. The intelligence of these creatures is only as good as the smaller creature behind the steering wheel.

Some of these beings are very intelligent and guide their shiny metal monsters with care, obeying the signs in town that state how fast they may go.

Others don't notice the signs, for they are concentrating on arriving at their destination in a timely manner. They're thinking about the house they are in the process of selling, a business presentation they are about to give, their ex-husband's (or wife's) lawyer, what to make for dinner or any other thoughts that come to mind as they breeze through town.

Some drivers are involved in extremely important phone conversations, and some are even brushing their teeth or applying mascara.

While I would not argue that any of these people cannot chew gum and walk at the same time, I do question their ability and judgment to drive a car while so preoccupied with other tasks. Your children and mine are sharing the same territory as these drivers in their very powerful vehicles. The children are vulnerable, and we need to protect them through our actions, as well as by teaching them how to protect themselves by taking their own precautions.

Point of View

As parents, we need to take the time to ensure our children know the rules. Ask your child, "If you were walking on this street right now, where would you be?" or "If you were riding your bike, which side of the street would you be on?"

Rather than tell children the rules and risk being tuned out as you drone on, involve them with questions and answers about safety measures they can take as pedestrians or cyclists.

You might be surprised by their response. Rather than tell children the rules and risk being tuned out as you drone on, involve them with questions and answers about safety measures they can take as pedestrians or cyclists.

Insist they have a light in their bike. Demand they wear a helmet and be consistent in punishing them when they don't.

If they walk after sunset, make sure they have some light reflective material on their clothing and have them wear a reflective vest, which can be purchased through Bethlehem Citizens for Pedestrian Safety.

Discuss the importance of being able to hear approaching traffic, which precludes the use of a headset while Rollerblading, running or cycling.

If your children are driving, talk to them about using a car phone only when parked or forbid the use of the car phone completely.

Will kids argue about the rules? Of course. Will you be declared the most overly protective parent in town? Probably. Is the battle worth it? Definitely. It will save lives.

Our children are fortunate to have adults in town watching over them and trying to protect them from calamity. But who is going to watch over the adults? What about the woman I see every morning, strident in her aim of walking for health — on the wrong side of the street. Or the man pushing his baby in a stroller, again, on the wrong side of the street.

What about the adult runners who are adamant in their quest for good health and long lives, who consistently defy the odds of achieving just that by jogging on the wrong side of the road, wearing a Walkman. Sadly, the adults in town who ignore the rules set a poor example for our children, while endangering their own lives.

A concerted effort is required on the part of children, parents, drivers — young and old — as well as the recreational pedestrians on Rollerblades, bicycles and skateboards. We all need to watch out for our own welfare as well as for the welfare of others. The rules do not apply to a select group of citizens. They apply to everyone who leaves the house in the morning, whether in a car, on a bicycle or on foot.

Let's all have a safe summer by taking responsibility for ourselves by checking our speedometers as we drive through town going the speed limit, not 5 or 10 mph faster, and by following precautions to keep us safe as pedestrians.

Glenmont volunteers shine

Editor, The Spotlight:

Nationally, there has been a call for renewed commitment to volunteerism and a serious look at programs that work. We at Glenmont Elementary School are very proud of the commitment of our volunteer parents, grandparents and members of the community.

Without their support, there are many programs and extras, we would have to do without.

Through the efforts of our volunteers, we are able to run the Jump Start reading program for first-graders, Parents as Reading Partners, Parents as Fitness Partners, the after-school enrichment program, the school banking program and the annual science and authors fairs.

Volunteers are also our partners at Nature's Classroom, in the Big Backyard and in our efforts to bring as many cultural experiences as we can to the children.

There are volunteers in classrooms reading with children, guiding children as they revise and edit stories, teaching children to keyboard, helping children discover the many ways to access information with a computer, talking about the way our bones and muscles work, supporting kindergartners as they make their first numbers, letters and words and explaining the hows and whys of a science investigation.

Our volunteers are an integral part of the school community.

You will find them in the library, on field trips, helping with plays and musical productions, at the laminating machine, in a chair comforting a worried child, helping the photographer on picture day, putting the yearbook together and just about everywhere you could use an extra set of hands.

So, as the rest of the nation looks into volunteer programs that work, we at Glenmont invite them to come see ours and to meet our tremendous pool of volunteers.

Thanks for carnival support

Editor, The Spotlight:

In May, Slingerlands Elementary School PTA sponsored its annual carnival. Hundreds of children and parents enjoyed games, food and prizes in an atmosphere of family-oriented fun.

The event was as successful as it was because of the strong support of many local businesses whose contributions we would like to publicly acknowledge. Thanks to: Drs. Serling, Decker, Sbuttoni and Boghosian, Mailboxes Inc., Del Lanes, Grand Union, My Place & Co., Stewart's, Albank, I Love Books, Carvel, Coconuts, Mangia, The Village Shop, Delmar Travel, Dr. Harold Wilson and Dr. Joseph Hart, Delmar Dental, Dr. Marino Baselice, The Toymaker, Bruegger's Bagels, The Paper Mill, Bryant Asset Protection and Hanifen Construction.

We would also like to thank Main Square Shoppes and The Spotlight for publicity.

The carnival raises funds for many worthy activities at the school. Our success would be impossible without the important contributions of the school staff, the families and many generous businesses.

Family is grateful for community support for child

Editor, The Spotlight:

I want to advise Spotlight readers that the goal to raise $6,000 for a service dog for our son Kevin has been reached. I received a call from the New England Assistance Dog Service this week and was informed that not only did we attain our goal, we exceeded it by $600.

We are very happy, and Kevin is thrilled that the dog he has been waiting for two years will graduate with him on Oct. 27 from the NEADS training center in West Boylston, Mass. I was cautioned that Kevin has to meet the dog and a final match must be made, but if everything falls into place, and we are confident it will, the dog will be home in Delmar in a few months in time for its first Christmas with Kevin.

Right now, the dog is still in training. It appears that Kevin will be matched to a mid-size female that was saved from the pound.

Her name is Hope. During the last two weeks, Kevin, his parents and possibly aides who must all work with Kevin will be trained. In fact, the extra money raised will be used to defray the cost of the aide's travel.

We wanted to thank all Spot- light readers who contributed money to this cause. We received money in large and small amounts from both organizations and individuals, and every penny of it will make a difference in one child's life.

NEADS said that if any additional money does come in, donors will be given an option to have the money returned or applied to another person in need who is seeking a special dog. Alternatively, if you had planned to contribute and didn't get around to it, please do not be discouraged. Just look around, the need is there.

One such need was reported by the Spotlight in the June 11 article on 4-year-old Stephen Smith. Stephen is in the final stages of kidney failure with one hope, an expensive kidney transplant.

Though Kevin's problems were related to a very different origin, they were life-threatening at the time. We know what Stephen's parents are going through, and we urge anyone who might have helped Kevin to now assist Stephen. Donations can be sent to the Stephen Smith Fund at any Key Bank branch.

Chef Dale Miller received two awards. He was named 1997 Chef of the Year by the Capital District/Central New York chapter of the American Culinary Federation. The American Culinary Federation is a national association of 25,000 professional chefs. Miller also received the award in 1991.

The Capital Region Chapter of the Confrerie de la Chaine Rotisseurs, an international organization dedicated to promoting fine dining and preserving pleasures of the table, also presented Miller with its Star of Excellence. Miller was given the award for his commitment to outstanding cuisine and for going beyond the call of duty for the local Chaine.

Susan Malbin, reference librarian and archivist at Voorheesville Public Library and Governor Thomas Dewey Graduate Library at the University at Albany, recently gave a talk entitled "Making Old Manuscripts Available on a Small Library Budget" at the American Library Association Conference in San Francisco.

Voorheesville Public Library was asked to contribute to the session on the care and preservation of archival documents because it has successfully preserved and made accessible brittle, unreadable 18th century local documents by building and using an in-house humidification chamber. The documents include indentures, deeds and maps, which have been processed and sent to the New York State Library for inclusion in the national file.

Explore the world close to home

Next time you're in the library, plan a little expedition to the map collection. Located behind and to the right of the reference desk, these materials are currently being reviewed, revamped and updated.

A large cabinet holds several types of maps. The top drawer has just received a new addition: a home buyer's map for Albany and Rensselaer counties that includes information on grants and special programs available for prospective home purchase.

Bethlehem tax maps occupy the next four drawers. These are the most heavily used in the collection, referred to by current or prospective residents to determine boundaries, lot dimensions and ownership.

A comprehensive index by owner and parcel number is located in the blue binder on top of the cabinet. Two index maps, one for North Bethlehem and one for South Bethlehem, can be used to locate property.

Below the tax maps are New York state topographical maps, organized alphabetically by place name. Many areas are represented; an index map grid indicates the maps we have. The bottom drawer will soon contain maps of hiking trails in New York and surrounding New England states.

A file cabinet, just to the right, holds a complete set of county road maps for New York state, as well as road maps for each U.S. state, Mexico and the Canadian provinces. World maps for countries in Asia, Europe, the Middle East and South America are also housed here.

Maps in these two cabinets are for reference only and cannot be borrowed, but maps in the pamphlet files do circulate. These include oceanic and astronomical maps — but if a trip to the ocean floor isn't in the offing this summer, try the U.S. and international travel files.

U.S. files are arranged alphabetically by state, with separate folders for well-known tourist sites. International files are arranged alphabetically by country and contain a section especially for cruises. Travel files contain state and country maps, current brochures, touring maps and other helpful information. A nearby carrel stocks the most popular Fodor's guides for this year

If day trips are more your speed, check out the annual "Summer Happenings" display on the table underneath the stairs. Take-home brochures for every taste are available — state Plaza and Museum events, historical sites, summer theater, concerts, opera and ballet and cruises on New York's inland waterways. Sites of interest in New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts are represented here.

Let the library be your travel agent. Map out your summer with us.

Reign

Voorheesville (now Clayton A. Bouton High School) in 1946. He was born in Albany and moved out here when he was 6 months old.

"I graduated from high school in Schenectady," she said, "and moved out here in '52."

The couple's modest but elegantly decorated home was originally a barn and storage shed. Alfred's ingenuity and hard work turned it into the family home where they raised two daughters and entertained hundreds of customers and friends over the years.

Originally, the farm consisted of about 200 acres, and in its halcyon days, the sweet corn was abundant and beans, carrots and tomatoes were everywhere. What they didn't sell at the stand, they sold to the Beech Nut company for baby food.

"We also had apples, pears and lots of raspberries," Alfred said. "We grew a lot of raspberries back then, not strawberries. Now it's just the reverse."

"It was our sole livelihood," Shirley mused. "We had no other jobs. We had 20 people working for us every year, and I loved every one of them. The first thing I told them after they were hired was that our customers are our guests and they should be treated as guests."

Sunday was a big day for Le Vie's Farm Market back in the '50s and '60s because folks were still accustomed to taking a Sunday drive out in the country and stopping to pick up fresh produce along the way.

"Now everyone's in a hurry," Alfred said. "They want to pick up everything all at once."

Tim Bradley, who's graduating from Clayton A. Bouton High School this month, was hoping to work at the farm stand this summer for the third straight year.

"It was a good summer job for me," he said. "I was the only person working there who was still in high school. Everyone else was in college."

To say that Le Vie's was a busy place is something of an understatement, Bradley said. "On Saturdays and Sundays it was non-stop. They would line up in the parking lot for 10 or 15 minutes before it opened and as soon as the doors opened they would flood right in. Their corn went like crazy and so did the strawberries and blueberries."

New Scotland Supervisor Herb Reilly described Alfred as "the salt of the earth. A real gentleman. They provided a lot of employment for our young people for years and years."

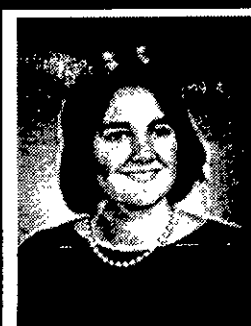

"The kids would work in the fields harvesting," he said. "(The Le Vies) taught them the value of working and being diligent. ... Anyone and everyone in the community stopped there."

So what's a person from Delmar or New Scotland to do now after they've always stopped at the same place for their sweet corn and tomatoes?

"I have no plans for the future," Shirley said. "I know I'm not saying this very well, but all I want people to know is that we love them."

Bethlehem girls beat Vermont team

The Bethlehem Bengals under-14 girls recently chalked up back-to-back victories against Monument (Vt.), and New Scotlan.

The Bengals displayed a balanced attack in both games with goals by midfielders Callen Fishman and Danielle Butler and forwards Kate Loomis, Anne Hessberg, Adele Certner and Laura Osterman scored a hat trick against New Scotland. Hannah Olmstead chalked up several assists and set up her teammates for scoring opportunities.

Midfielders Brianna Farver, Lauren Sullivan and Caitlyn Gertz have provided a strong link between the defense and the attack. Amy O'Donnell, Jenna Engelstein, Lauren Marar, Kalin Jaffe and Deanna Bushart out hustled their opponents, pushing the ball upfield on the attack.

Outstanding defensive play kept scoring opportunities at a minimum in both games. Sweeper Jessica Menrath did an excellent job directing the defense. Full-backs Kaitlin LaPierre, Kristen Corrigan, Kate Wiley and Lisa Maxwell held their ground against Monument and New Scotland. Captain Stephanie Sherman continues to excel as the team's leader and goalie.

"The girls are really coming together and playing team soccer," said coach JoAnn Menrath. "It has been exciting to see the girl's step up their level of play. They are now looking to pass the ball and work the shot at every opportunity."

The girls also enjoyed success at the Bethlehem Beeline Tournament, taking home the first-place trophy. Stephanie Sherman did a tremendous job in goal with shut-outs in every game. The keys to victory included excellent team play, crisp passing and determined movement with and without the ball, according to Menrath.

Bandits edge Niskayuna for title

The Bethlehem Bandits under-10 soccer team captured first place in the Niskayuna Invitational Soccer Tournament with victories over Niskayuna, Clifton Park, Lakehill, Pittsfield and Syracuse.

On Saturday, the Bandits won three of four games based in large part on excellent defensive play from midfielders Scott Strogatz, Chris Lee and Justin Puccio along with strong support from sweepers Cecilia Corrigan and Jeffrey Dolder.

Karen Cioppa, Zachary Sherman, Vanessa Patry and Corey Alston helped key the offense, which was sparked by the scoring of Elan Backer and Chris Dudek. Ryan Virgil and Pat Doyle shared goaltending duties.

On Sunday, after battling

Ramapo Valley to a tie, the Bandits went on to beat Niskayuna on two goals from Dudek with assists from Backer and Strogatz. The team then defeated Syracuse in their last game with Cameron Brown leading the way.

The Bandits and Niskayuna Tomahawks tied for first, but Bethlehem was crowned champion by virtue of a tiebreaker.

Mantle team routs Clifton Park

By Andrew Hartman

The Bethlehem Mickey Mantle team took two of three games last week, including an impressive win over Clifton Park.

Pat Hughes pitched a fine game and the bats were hot as Bethlehem overcame Albany, 11-6. Hughes went six innings and recorded 10 strikeouts. He helped his own cause with two singles and three RBI.

Greg DeMarco doubled, belted a home run and had three RBI. Calvin Brown singled and had three RBI.

Bethlehem played a strong game on Friday against

Mickey Mantle

Lansingburgh but came up short, 3-2. Matt Elfeldt pitched two scoreless innings, and Brown came on in relief, striking out six and walking none.

Brian Hahn had a double and an RBI. Ryan Sweeney poked a single and drove in a run.

The Eagles more than made up for the defeat by routing Clifton Park on Saturday, 5-4. Ricky Long had three singles and an RBI. Pete Bulger singled, doubled and had an RBI. Elfeldt poked two singles, a triple and scored two runs.

Ryan Venter was the winning pitcher. Evan McQuide and Sweeney came on in relief.

"We had good week, winning two out of three games," said coach Jesse Braverman. "In two of those three, we hit and scored a lot runs. That is what we need to continue to win. We are looking forward to defeating some of those teams with records similar to ours."

The Eagles take their 7-2 record into Latham and Colonie this week. They finish at home with a Saturday game against Schenectady.

Poor fielding dooms Shredded Eagles

Offense is not the problem for Bethlehem's Shredded Eagles.

The Capitaland Men's Baseball League team pounded out 25 hits and 18 runs against a tough McNulty team Sunday, but still lost both ends of a doubleheader.

A porous defense proved to be the Eagles' downfall as they lost the opener 11-10 and the night-cap, 12-8.

The Eagles were close to victory in both games, but their fielding errors negated some strong pitching by Nathaniel Sajdak and Kevin Blanchard.

"Until we begin to field ground balls and make accurate throws, we will continue to lose," said coach Neil Isaacs. "The hitting has come around. I hope the defense does by this weekend."

Sajdak, Scott Isaacs and Mike O'Connell led the offense with five each hits on the day.

Chris Bannigan contributed three hits and three RBI. John Kuta knocked in two runs.

The team's next encounter is

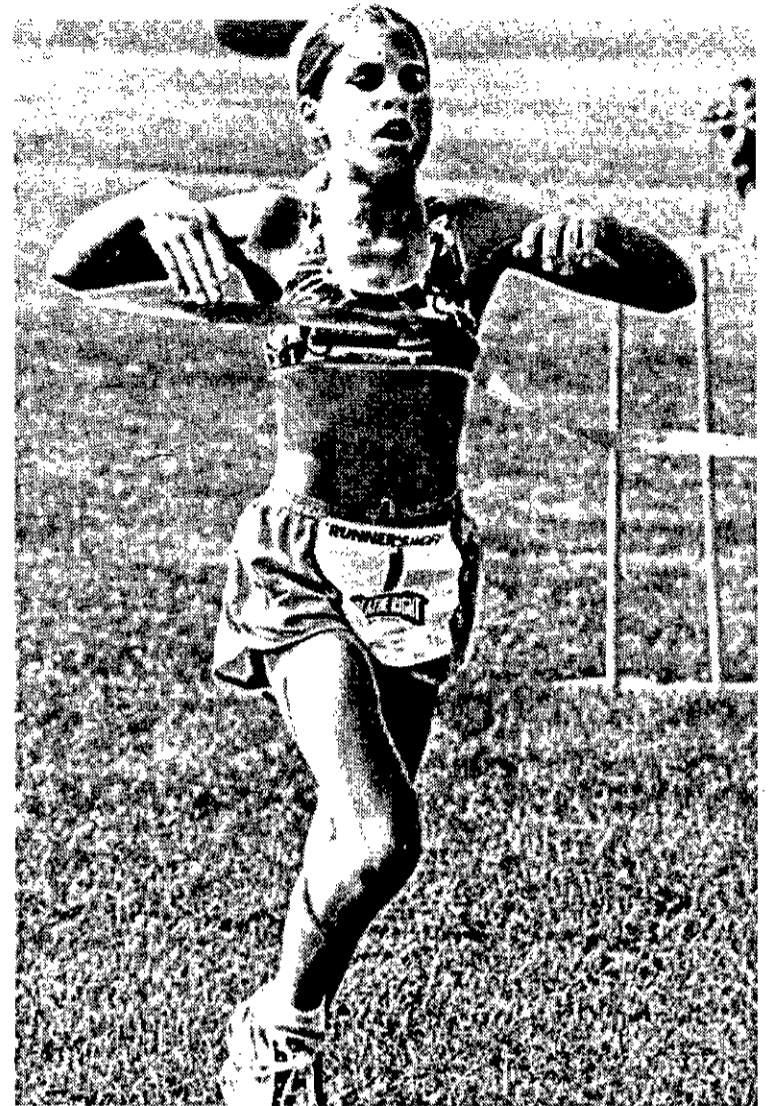

Saturday at Southgate Field in Loudonville.

Registration open for summer programs

The Bethlehem parks and recreation department has openings in many summer programs.

The all-day playground program provides games, arts and crafts and lots of fun for children entering grades one to six. It is held at Hamagrael School from 9 a.m. to 4:15 a.m. beginning June 30. Children may preregister for one to seven weeks.

Booklet helps kids cope with cancer in family

By Katherine McCarthy

When Lou Sussman started first grade in the fall of 1988, he had a new red backpack and some Ghostbuster badges he wanted sewn on it. Rather than see it as just another back-to-school chore, his mother, Sherrey Goldstein, found her perspective altered by a mastectomy that had recently removed a cancerous lump from her breast.

"I was immensely grateful to be able to sew those badges on," Goldstein said.

Goldstein had gone for a routine mammogram that showed "something," and during a biopsy that doctors believed would yield nothing, Dr. Howard Hetter visually identified ductal carcinoma in situ, that hadn't shown on the mammogram.

"If he hadn't found that," Goldstein said, "it later would have been obscured by the scar tissue from the biopsy."

Goldstein elected to have a mastectomy followed by detailed tissue analyses; the boy entering first grade and his little sister were her biggest motivators.

"I had a 3-year-old and a 5-year-old, and I wanted to be around for them," she said simply.

Those children, Lou and Arielle Sussman, are teenagers now, and with their healthy mother, have recently completed an even bigger project than badge sewing.

They have self-published a booklet, "My Mom Has Cancer, but I Can Handle It," which talks about the impact on children of a parent's cancer. The book, written from the perspective of a fifth-grade boy whose mother has survived cancer, is available at I Love Books in Delmar, The Plaza Bookstore in Albany, The Little Book House in Stuyvesant Plaza, and The Open Door in Schenectady.

"My kids' lives were seriously disrupted when I had cancer," Goldstein said. "I started looking for books to explain to the kids what had happened, but the ones I found dealt more with 'What Is Arielle Sussman and mother Sherrey Goldstein and father Yale Sussman and son Lou pose for a family portrait.

Cancer?" Nothing addressed the impact on the kids' lifestyle."

A few years after the surgery, Goldstein sat down with her kids and started brainstorming for the book.

They changed some things to make it more universal, like a main character older than her children had been at the time.

The parent in the book has an extended hospital stay and follow-up chemotherapy, while the children stay with their grandmother.

Goldstein, on the other hand, was only in the hospital for a few days, and didn't have any chemotherapy.

"We thought it would be good for the main character to talk about his experience in retrospect," Goldstein said, "to let kids know that, one way or another, you get through this."

In the book, the main character talks to his grandmother, his father, the school nurse, his rabbi.

"Our message is that you survive by reaching out," Goldstein said. "You need help; isolating is dangerous."

Goldstein said the message to parents is to give their kids access to people.

In addition to helping children cope with a parent's illness, Goldstein said she wanted to write — and illustrate — the book to gain a sense of closure and hope.

Dr. Haider Goussous, who performed Goldstein's surgery and to whom the book is dedicated, had encouraged her to get the kids talking.

"I asked them what had upset them, what made them feel better, and what they did to feel better," she recalled. "Sometimes it was upsetting, and you realize there's still pain, and it should be talked about."

Goldstein speaks with great pride about her children. "Arielle was a great help with the illustrations in the book. Lou is a wordsmith; he recently had a piece published in the local paper."

The booklet Goldstein wrote with her children became a family affair when her husband, Yale Sussman, edited it.

Goldstein said she sees the publication of the family's book as part of her "Betty Ford work."

"You know how Betty Ford went public and said she had breast cancer?" Goldstein asked. "She did a lot to make that OK."

On a more immediate level, Goldstein said her emotional healing first began when she called a friend who had also had cancer. In turn, she now takes the time to talk to people who need to talk.

Even before publication of the book, she sent photocopies of it to people who had heard about it, and called to request it.

"I survived, and this is my payback time," Goldstein said. "I'm Jewish, and feel I was delivered from this. I have to say thanks somehow."

CDTC

which has finalized its transportation improvement program (TIP) for the next five years.

The reconstruction of Delaware Avenue, which will be aimed at relieving congesting and improving traffic flow, is not the only project in the works for the town of Bethlehem.

Two other projects are scheduled for funding in the heart of town. Resurfacing Cherry Avenue between Kenwood and Delaware avenues — along with new sidewalks and curbing — is slated to begin in 2002. And reconstruction of Elm Avenue from Delaware Avenue to the Delmar Bypass is also scheduled for 2002.

The sudden infusion of highway funds in Bethlehem represents something of a switch in CDTC priorities, according to town planner Jeff Lipnicky.

The new TIPS funding list places more emphasis on community-based projects, Lipnicky said, because CDTC members recently decided that "They already had allocated a substantial amount to major highway improvement programs (such as the Slingerlands Bypass Extension scheduled to start in 1999) and that it was time to strike a more even balance."

There was a pent-up demand for smaller scale projects aimed at improving pedestrian safety and easing the flow of traffic on local thoroughfares and some of that demand is met through the 1998-2002 TIPS agenda.

Three of the 12 "pavement projects" recommended by CDTC for funding are in Bethlehem. One of the 12 "pedestrian projects" slated for funding is in Voorheesville, where a $320,000 reconstruction of sidewalks in the village area is on tap for 2002.

Details of the Delaware Avenue road reconstruction are sketchy at this point, according to Dick Carlson, regional planning and program director for the state Department of Transportation.

"One of the things we'll be looking at is easing congestion in that area," he said. "That might include some features to increase capacity at intersections, such as creation of left-hand-turn lanes."

One problem engineers could run into on Delaware Avenue is that "much of the commercial development is so near the roadway."

Similar to the recent road project in front of Delaware Plaza, the DOT plans will be subject to public review and comment. The plaza reconstruction project, which included creation of left-hand-turn lanes into Normanskill Boulevard as well as the plaza, was scaled back as a result of opposition by residents during a public hearing in January 1995.

Portions of the half-mile stretch between the plaza and the railroad overpass (where Delaware Avenue narrows from four lanes to two) will definitely see new sidewalks and curbing as well as a new road surface.

The reconstruction of Cherry Avenue is expected to cost about $1.24 million and the work will be overseen by Albany County since it is a county road.

The reconstruction of Elm Avenue is expected to cost $1.33 million and, like the other projects, is being undertaken to bring the road up to modern standards. This is also a county road and the work will be overseen by Albany County.

"I think it's a very positive direction that they're taking," said Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller. The reconstruction of Delaware Avenue is "desperately needed for a smoother traffic flow, as well as for safety reasons. You can certainly see the difference around the plaza."

Motel

The owner of Uncle Milty's Glenmont Diner, next to the Stone Ends Motel on Frontage Road, asked the board to consider his plight if the variance was granted and the project approved.

"As it is, it's hard to see the diner from (Route) 9W," said owner Frederika Fotiu. With the enlarged motel, which would jut out another nine feet on each side, "You wouldn't see the diner until you pass right by it."

Fotiu said she was unaware of the expansion plans prior to being notified about the public hearing.

The neighbor on the north side of the motel, the highly regarded Stone Ends Restaurant (which has no affiliation with the motel), supports the expansion, according to project consultant Richard Green.

Restaurant owner Dale Miller was not at the public hearing, but said he approved of the concept.

"I would like to see it upgraded and improved because it obviously detracts from my business the way it is now," he said. "I always get people asking me, with this furrowed look on their brow, 'Oh, do you own the motel too?'"

The restaurant was built in 1955 by Henry Junco, Miller recalled, and the motel was constructed later on, around 1962. Miller bought the restaurant from the Junco family in 1986, a year before Marash acquired the motel.

"I think the norm for most motels and hotels is that they usually renovate every five years or so," Miller said.

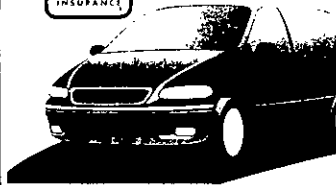

Once the motel is modernized and expanded, "The restaurant's business will improve," Green told the board. "For years, there was a working relationship between the two such that when there was a special function like a New Year's Eve party, people would party and be able to sleep in the motel."

When asked by the board why the expansion would solve his economic woes, Marash said, "Even if I were to go in and renovate (with new furniture, draperies, etc.), people would walk in, see this very small room and say, 'Wow.'"

The ZBA has 62 days to decide on the area variance.

Classic car show scheduled for Days Inn

The Days Inn in Glenmont will be the scene of an antique car show this weekend.

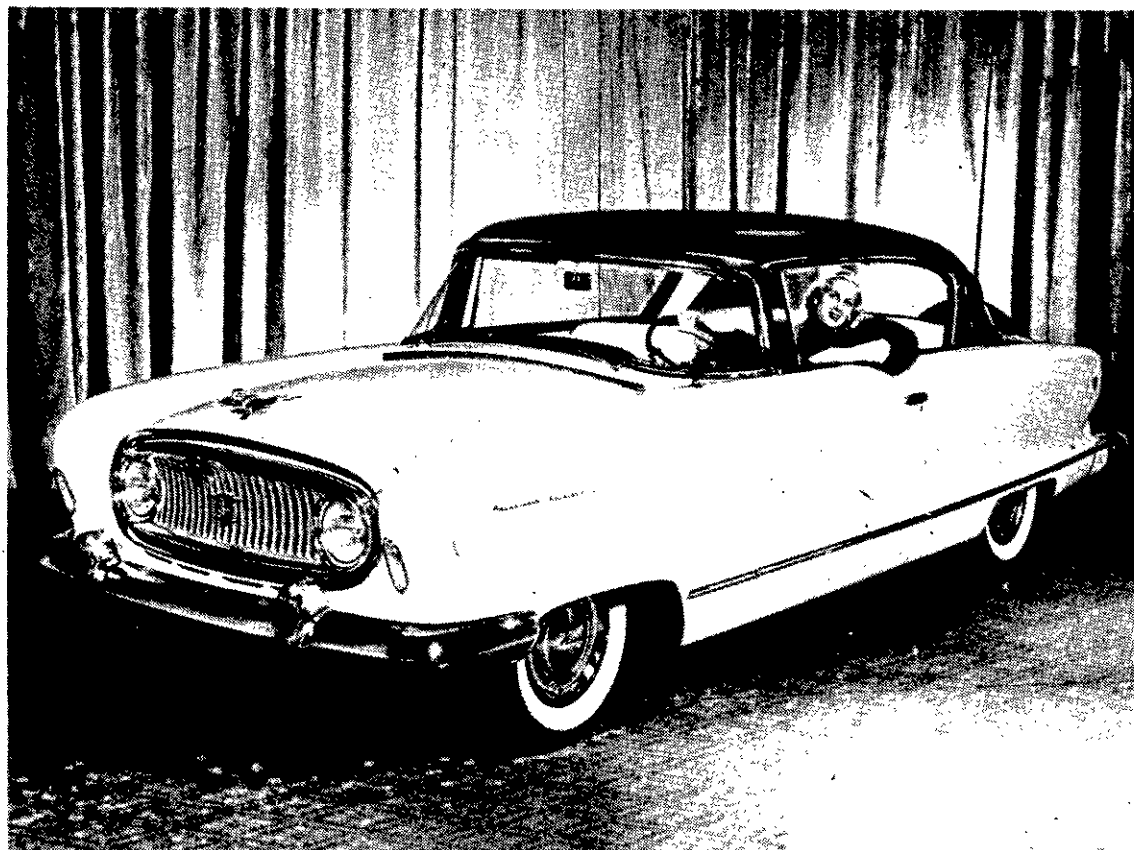

The sixth annual AMC Rambler Auto Show is slated for Saturday, June 28, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. So if you've ever wondered what the inside of that 1940s Nash Rambler or Hudson looked like, here's your chance for a bird's eye.

The public is invited and there is no charge to check out the more than 120 Ramblers, Hudsons Metropolitans, Javelins, Pacers, Jeeps and AMCs, all of which were manufactured by American Motors in the not-so-recent past.

Trophies will be awarded to the best-looking and preserved vehicles. The awards will be presented at a Saturday night banquet. Space at the banquet is limited to 200 people, so it's best to reserve in advance.

In case you happen to own an antique car, you'll find plenty of things to spark your interest such as vendors with parts, memorabilia and written histories about the vehicles on display.

For information, call Richard Silber at 439-3639 or Tim Tracy at 372-4929.

This classic Nash Rambler, minus the driver of course, could very well be on display this weekend.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1987, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- After voters rejected the Voorheesville school budget for the second time, the school board adopted a $6.8 million contingency budget that was $12,000 less than the defeated spending plan. Voters approved propositions for transportation, extracurricular activities and interscholastic athletics and equipment, so the tax rate hike for the 1987-88 school year was about 21 percent.

- John Mitchell was appointed to the Bethlehem planning board, replacing Dennis Corrigan, who had been appointed to the town board.

- The town of New Scotland opened a new park in Feura Bush, with picnic tables, a baseball field and basketball courts.

- After 11 years as Voorheesville village treasurer, Blanche Monaghan retired. She was replaced by Lauren Tedesco.

- Mary Ann Wierks of Delmar was ordained as a minister of the word and appointed as minister of education and outreach at Delmar Reformed Church.

- Ground was broken for the controversial new firehouse on Russell Road for the Elmwood Park Fire District in North Bethlehem.

ROLLING ON THE RIVER

Festivals liven up summer

By Alvaro E. Alarcon

Two Albany street festivals on June 28 and 29 promise a fun-filled weekend. Both the Art on Lark festival and Fleet's Albany Riverfest will demonstrate that the region has plenty to offer in the arts, cuisine and old-fashioned fun.

Art on Lark, the finale to several similar festivals this year, will take place on Saturday, June 28, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sponsored by the Lark Street Neighborhood District Management Association, Art on Lark is an exhibition of fine arts, crafts and music showcasing artists and crafters from the region. Art on Lark draws regional artists with national reputations.

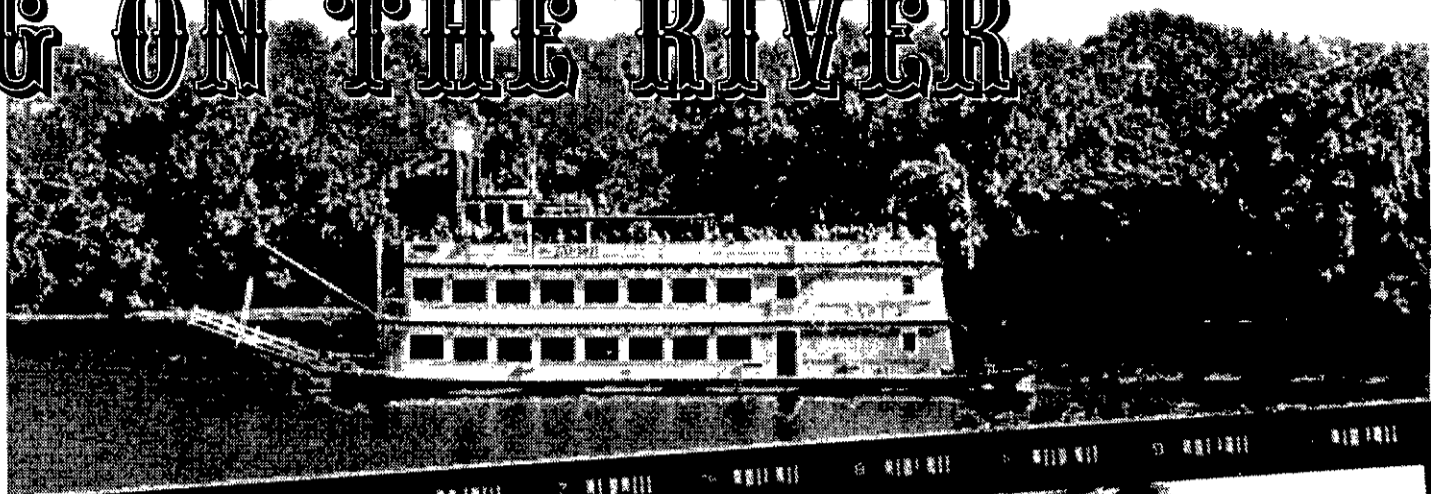

Victoria Stoneman, executive director of the Lark Street Neighborhood Management Association, says, "Arts are a very important part of the Lark Street community. We have real talent ... it's nice to have a venue here in our own backyard."

Stoneman worked alongside a group of community leaders, which included merchants and city officials in addition to artists. Not only is Art on Lark "a great way to promote regional artists," according to Stoneman, but it shows the diverse elements that make Lark Street a gem in the city. "The merchants are really pleased ... the street looks alive and vibrant."

"People are very loyal to this area. Our whole organization is made up of volunteers," Stoneman said.

Here's an overview of Saturday's offerings:

- A broad array of artists will display work on the street and in the galleries.
- The young and the young at heart can participate in Creative Chaos, an event in which they can exercise their imagination.

Scenes from last year's Riverfest highlight a perfect day of entertainment on Albany's waterfront.

Joe Elario

- Sidewalk chalk art contest with an $100 first prize.

- Plenty of live music, including that of Michael Eck and Patti Kilrain.

- Lark Street merchant displays.

- Diverse Lark Street bistros and restaurants.

Art on Lark was planned to coincide with the Riverfest from noon to 9:30 p.m. on Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. A trolley will run continuously between both festivals.

Riverfest is "a festival to commemorate the Hudson River and its role in Albany's economy and culture," according to Molly Wise, public relations assistant for the city of Albany. The event will show what Albany had to offer as well as bring renowned musical acts such as Richie Havens, headlining the show, and Alex Torres and the Latin Kings.

The schedule for both days is packed with music and activities for adults and children.

Saturday's schedule includes:

- At 2 p.m., The Staziaks will perform rock & roll.

- At 3:15 p.m., T.S. Ensemble will present Italian folk music.

- At 4:40 p.m., reggae is played by Supa Kumba.

- At 5:45 p.m., The Barefoot Boys will play bluegrass.

- At 7 p.m., Out of Control Rhythm & Blues band will perform.

- At 8:15 p.m., Alex Torres & The Latin Kings.

- The festival will wrap up on Saturday with a lighted boat parade by the Albany Yacht Club followed by fireworks at 9:15 p.m.

The fun will continue on Sunday with Hair of the Dog playing Irish folk music at 1 p.m.

Also included are:

- A 2:15 p.m. blues performance by Bluz House Rockers.

- Richie Havens performing at 3:45 p.m.

A farmer's market, food court featuring the cuisine of various regional chefs, a wine tent, craft fair, children's rides and a reactor simulation theater are also on tap at the festival. The reactor simulation theater encompasses 18 participants in a virtual or made-up reality.

Both events are free. Costs enter the picture only for the purchase of food, merchandise, and ride tickets.

Volunteers are needed for Albany's Fleet Riverfest. To volunteer, call Wise at 434-5132, ext. 204.

For information on Art on Lark, call the neighborhood's management association at 434-3861.

Film workshop present reading of new script by David Bunce

A relatively new format will have its second session Wednesday (June 25) when Caffe Dolce on River Street in Troy, presents David Bunce's film script, Incisions, as part of Movies Without Pictures.

Begun in April, the staged reading of a movie script gives a screenwriter a chance to hear his or her script as it is read by experienced actors.

In Bunce's case, he will have the help of actors he's worked with at the New York State Theatre Institute for a number of seasons.

A script which he has been working on for several years ("We videotaped about five scenes last summer"), Bunce, a Colonie resident, is now aiming for actual filming next summer once he has had time to do whatever rewriting he needs to do.

Described as a psychological thriller in the tradition of Alfred Hitchcock's Frenzy, the story deals with redemption with a man getting a chance to right a past wrong.

Since a screenplay consists of dialogue and narrative description of what is shown on a screen, the workshop will have actors reading the dialogue while a narrator will describe the action.

Actors performing in the reading are: John Romeo, Joel Aroeste, Mychelle Vedder, Eileen Schuyler, Erika Johnson Newell and Richard Walsh.

Seating at Caffe Dolce begins at 7 p.m. with the performance at 7:30. The performance is free of charge.

ACT presents its 12th annual Directors Showcase this weekend

Three young directors will exhibit their talent this weekend (June 26-29) with one-act plays at the Albany Civic Theater on

Martin P. Kelly

Second Avenue in Albany.

This is the 12th year the theater has presented this showcase and a number of rookie directors have gone on to stage major productions at ACT and other community theaters after their experience.

This year Leslie Javarone French, Sandor Nagar and John Nicles will direct the three one-actors that comprise the theater evening.

The production will be presented Thursday-Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets for non-members of the theater are $2 each.

Information on the program may be obtained at 462-1297

Dorset Festival opens On Golden Pond as trip to the past in theater lore

A theatrical production which was successful in regional theaters and off-Broadway but which gained its main fame as a film with Henry Fonda and Katharine Hepburn, is being revived by the Dorset Theatre Festival this weekend for a two-week run.

The summer playhouse near Manchester, Vermont opens On Golden Pond Thursday night, June 26, in a revival staged by Jill Charles.

She said that "people fell in love with the film version so we thought we'd do the stage version which started the trip to the movie."

For those not familiar with the play, a retired man makes his yearly summer trip to a cabin for a season of fishing, accompanied by his wife of 40 years. His cranky personality is softened by a young boy who is left with the couple by their daughter.

The engaging play by Ernest Thompson made its first impact almost 20 years ago and still holds up for its simple tale of relationships, old and new.

The production runs through July 6. Reservations and information are available at 802/867-5777.

Irving Berlin classic opens at Mac-Haydn Thursday

With Irving Berlin's fame fading as the years move on, the Mac-Haydn Theatre in Chatham stages a reminder of the skill and artistry of a man who lived deep into his 90s and was productive for eight decades.

His Annie Get Your Gun which the Columbia County theater opens as a Thursday matinee (June 26), was the hit of Broadway 50 years ago with Ethel Merman playing the young western girl who was a sure shot with a rifle and became the star in the Buffalo Bill show.

Merman reprised her role on Broadway 15 years later when she was in her 50s and made the musical work once again.

The rousing score written by Berlin is testimony to his talent. At Mac-Haydn, Melissa Giattino will play the Annie Oakley role, returning to Chatham where she was well-received last season, particularly as Polly in Crazy for You.

During the past winter, she appeared with the Rockettes in Myrtle Beach.

Rob Richardson returns to Mac-Haydn after a two-year absence to play Frank Butler, a role introduced on Broadway 50 years ago by John Raitt who still uses some of the songs as his encores in concerts, particularly with his daughter Bonnie Raitt.

Reservations and information are available at 392-9292

“HI, NEIGHBOR. HAVE YOU TRIED OUR CHEESE?”

Cabot cheddar cheese, butter and other dairy foods are offered with pride by your nearby dairy farmers. The same farmers who, together, own the Cabot Creamery.

And what that means is, every time you buy a Cabot product, you're helping to support 395 family farms near you in New York and throughout the Northeast. You're helping to preserve a way of life that's been important here for generations. And you're getting some of the freshest, purest, best-tasting dairy products made anywhere.

Since 1919, your nearby farmers have been working this land, tending the herds and gathering milk. And as long as you keep buying, sharing and enjoying Cabot products, they'll keep right on doing it.

Welcome Summer

It sure looks like our furnaces can stay off for some time anyway. FINALLY!!

Father's Day was a huge success this year. Our sales were up thanks to you and great books such as Dilbert, Jeff Foxworthy, Undaunted Courage, Angela's Ashes and the entire spectrum of golf books.

In addition to Father's Day, June also brings Graduations. Friar Tuck is stocked with great cards as well as great book ideas. Year after year, Dr. Seuss' Oh the Places You'll Go continues to be the favorite gift idea. Another suggestion would be What Color is Your Parachute which deals with finding your career and happiness in life. Why not try one of Life's Little Instruction Books or how about a cup of Chicken Soup for the Soul which comes loaded with wonderful uplifting stories sure to satisfy any appetite.

With Graduation over, maybe you will have time to curl up and relax with a new book by your favorite author. If you enjoy reading romance, Patricia Garwood, Catherine Coulter and Mary Jo Putney all have released their best selling novels into paperback. Just the right size for vacation or lazy summer reading.

If nonfiction books are more your style, the New York Times has reviewed such titles as Into Thin Air which is a personal account of the Mt. Everest disaster. Underboss by Peter Maes is the inside story of life in the Mafia. Billy Graham's biography Just As I Am and Conversations with God are also on the top ten list this week and are selling like hotcakes.

With summer begins the end of Regents Exams and the beginning of required or suggested reading lists for students. Friar Tuck has acquired many of these books and we have them displayed in the front window. Please bring in your list and we will assist you in locating your summer reading. If we are temporarily out of stock on a particular selection, we would be glad to order your book for you and have it in a few days.

HAPPY READING!!!!
