State GOP elects Faso minority chief

By Peter Hanson

Republican state Assemblyman John Faso was elected minority leader Monday, March 2. The 45-year-old legislator from Kinderhook, who represents Bethlehem, Coeymans, Ravena and Westerlo, will govern the 53 Republican members of the state assembly.

The opportunity for Faso to pursue this post arose when Buffalo-area assemblyman Thomas Reynolds announced last week he was leaving the position to run for Congress. Faso will take the reins from Reynolds March 16 and serve until the end of the year.

Faso, who has been elected to the Assembly six times during his 10-year tenure representing the 102nd District, is up for re-election in November, so his tenure as majority leader will be slightly more than nine months. If he retains his seat in November, he will have to be re-elected as minority leader as well.

"I'm confident that I'll be able to establish a good record so that my colleagues would (want) to keep me in the position," Faso said.

"I'm very happy for him," said Brian Murphy, Bethlehem GOP chairman. "They made a great choice — John's bright and articulate."

A fiscal conservative who began his career as a Democrat, Faso said his plans for the coming months include trying to lower the government's debt and spur business growth.

"My focus is more in the development of private sector jobs," he said. "There are possibilities in what the government can do, (such as) leveraging public dollars and private dollars."

Faso

One of the projects Faso said he's excited about is the computer-chip fabrication site under discussion for Bethlehem, and another is the $500 million U.S. Gen power plant being built in Athens, Greene County, which is part of Faso's district.

"One of my favorite pet projects is a Selkirk bypass," he added. Faso wants to help develop new roadways that would allow the construction of an industrial park in Selkirk. This would create jobs and add to Bethlehem's tax base. Another advantage would be "getting trucks off Route 396," which Faso described as "a very unsafe road."

Although the 53 Republicans in the state assembly are outnumbered by 76 Democrats, the majority leader, Sen. Joseph Bruno, is also from the Capital District. "Having a leader like Joe Bruno in the Capital District is enormously beneficial," Faso said. "Whatever added incremental benefit can be added (by me)"

Town files water suit

J. Kenneth Fraser accused of negligence

By Peter Hanson

On Friday, Feb. 27, a summons in the town of Bethlehem's lawsuit against the Rensselaer-based engineering firm of J. Kenneth Fraser & Associates was filed in Albany County Court. The town is suing Fraser because the water infiltration system Fraser designed is not pumping as much water as the engineer said it would.

Alessi

The nine-page summons, which was prepared by LeBoeuf, Lamb, Greene & MacRae, the law firm representing the town, accuses Fraser of "professional neglect and breach of contract." The water system, which is supposed to pump six million gallons of water daily but only pumps two million gallons daily, went on-line in December 1995.

Robert J. Alessi, the LeBoeuf, Lamb attorney who advised the Bethlehem town board to file the suit at its Jan. 28 meeting, said the summons is the first volley in a legal duel that could take anywhere from a matter of weeks to a matter of years.

Immediately, Fraser's legal representative, the Rochester law firm of Harter, Seacrest and Emery, has 30 days to respond to the summons. Harter, Seacrest has several options, including filing a motion to dismiss, counter suing and answering the summons.

Alessi said if Harter, Seacrest answers the summons, they can either admit or deny culpability in any of the suit's several allegations of negligence. Also, the firm may counter sue one of its subcontractors. This tack would allow Fraser to shift blame for the water system's

Theater/restaurant eyes Delaware Plaza

By Peter Hanson

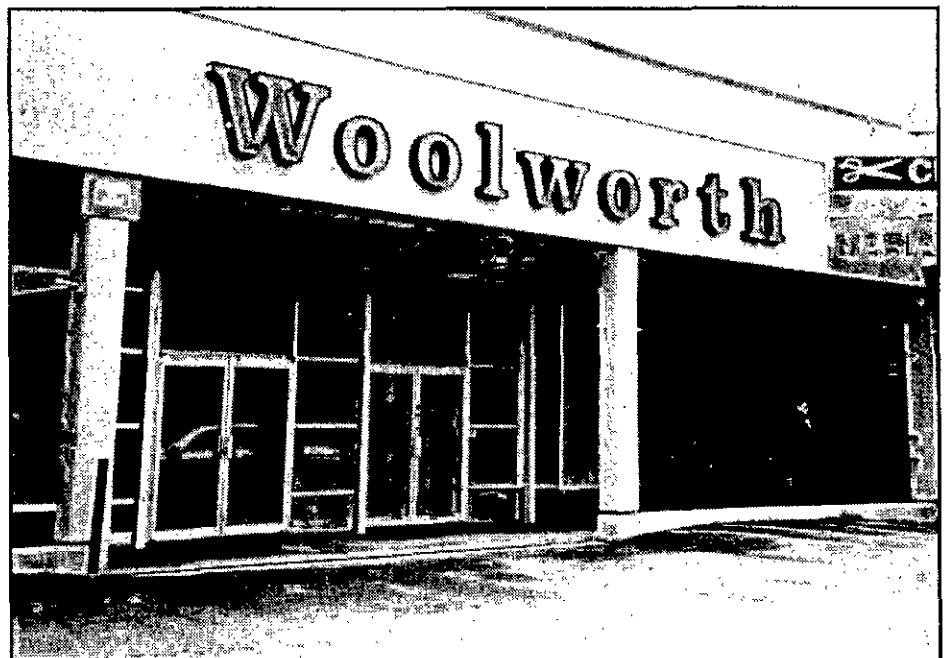

Bethlehem residents who don't like driving to Albany or Guelderland to see movies may get their wish later this year if current negotiations lead to an Off-Broadway Theater & Grill franchise moving into Delaware Plaza in Elsmere.

Joseph O'Hara, president of Broadway Sports & Entertainment, the Saratoga-based parent company of Off-Broadway Theater & Grill and the sports bar franchise Broadway Joe's, said his firm is considering sites in Elsmere, Colonie and Latham for possible Off-Broadway locations.

O'Hara's company opened the first Off-Broadway Theater & Grill in July 1996 in Saratoga Springs. The facility has two theaters equipped with three-tiered dining areas where patrons eat meals and watch movies simultaneously.

"We've been looking at (the Woolworth's site) for four or five months," O'Hara said. "We're considering a two or

Cops seize pot, weapons in Glenmont

By Peter Hanson

Bethlehem police recently confiscated nearly 100 marijuana plants during a search of a Glenmont home, which led to an arrest on drug charges.

Police arrested Scott J. LeClerc, 35, of 720 Route 9W in Glenmont for unlawfully growing marijuana, criminal possession of a weapon and criminal possession of marijuana in the second degree.

At about 3:45 a.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 25, a Bethlehem ambulance was called to 720 Route 9W because LeClerc had overdosed on heroin, police said. When police arrived on the scene, they saw several potted marijuana plants in plain view.

While LeClerc was transported to the emergency room at Albany Medical Center, police secured the residence until a search warrant was issued later in the day by town justice Teresa Egan.

An Albany Med spokeswoman confirmed that LeClerc was treated and released Feb. 25.

Police confiscated 96 marijuana plants in this Glenmont house.

Officer Wayne LaChappelle said Bethlehem's K-9 Aaron, assisted in the search, which involved about five police officers and took about two hours. LaChappelle said Aaron's part in the search took about 20 minutes.

"When I got there with the dog, he located a large quantity of marijuana plants," LaChappelle said. "I had to put him up through an attic, and while he was going up, the trap door fell in my head. I got a concussion."

LaChappelle said once Aaron entered the attic, he fixed on a marijuana plant coming from "underneath a hidden mattress. He hit on a suitcase, and in it was a huge, pre-packed bag of marijuana."

During the search, police confiscated the following items: 96 marijuana plants and two pounds of marijuana; $1,891.88 in cash; two loaded rifles and one empty rifle; ammunition for the rifles; grow lights and potting soil; and "assorted drug paraphernalia" including syringes and scales.

LaChappelle and Detective John Cox both said the amount of drugs found during the search was normal for a "small" marijuana dealer.

Cox said the department knew about the LeClerc's business, but didn't have any evidence before the Feb. 25 search. "We had been told there was some heavy activity at the old Heath's Dairy," Cox said, "but we hadn't gotten enough information yet."

Cox said he believes other people were involved with LeClerc, who is unemployed, and said it's possible LeClerc's accomplices may continue selling drugs while his court case is pending.

"Whether (his business) is shut down or not is up to him," Cox said. "It depends on how much trouble he thinks he's in and how much time he thinks he's gonna do."

LeClerc has at least one felony conviction on his record, and Cox said papers found during the search of LeClerc's home indicated he has several other court actions pending. Although LeClerc is currently looking at a jail sentence of four to seven years, "It could be more" if a judge classified him as a "persistent felon," Cox said.

LeClerc is scheduled to appear in Bethlehem town court Tuesday, March 17, at 4 p.m.

Bethlehem police nab four on DWI charges

Bethlehem police recently arrested four people on charges of driving while intoxicated and arrested a truck driver for an alcohol violation.

Leroy Lane, 50, of 408 McClellan St. in Schenectady was arrested for an alcohol violation Tuesday, Feb. 24 at 11:53 a.m.

Lane was driving a delivery truck along Delaware Avenue in Eismere when he was stopped by officer Jeffrey Vunck for driving without a seat belt. Officer Vunck detected an alcoholic odor, and asked Lane if he had been drinking. Lane said he had consumed six beers, so Vunck administered field sobriety tests.

Lane was not arrested for DWI, but his blood alcohol content was high enough that he was in violation of federal regulations governing the sobriety of truck drivers.

He was given an appearance ticket to appear in town court Tuesday, March 10, at 4 p.m.

Richard H. Mosall, 47, of 138 Kenwood Ave. in Delmar, was arrested on charges of DWI on Thursday, Feb. 26, at 12:16 a.m.

Mosall was observed driving on the wrong side of Kenwood Avenue in Delmar and officer Scott Anson turned on his emergency lights while he was near 96 Kenwood Ave. Mosall failed to stop until pulling into his own driveway.

Mosall was given an appearance ticket to appear in town court Tuesday, March 17, at 4 p.m.

Wayne Kevin Humphrey Sr., 46, of 953 Route 9W in Selkirk, was arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated Thursday, Feb. 24, by officer Robert Markel. The arrest was based on a warrant stemming from a DWI incident that occurred Feb. 18.

John Alan Wagner, 31, of 660 Feura Bush Road in Delmar, was arrested on charges of DWI Sunday, Feb. 22, at 12:54 a.m.

Wagner was observed driving on the white dotted line while traveling southward on Route 9W in Glenmont. When he turned onto Route 32, he stopped on the road's shoulder. Officer Thomas Heffernan administered several field sobriety tests, which Wagner failed.

Wagner was given an appearance ticket to appear in town court Tuesday, March 3, at 4 p.m.

Brian Rhodes Downes, 50, of 179 Adams St. in Delmar, was arrested on charges of DWI Friday, Feb. 20, at 12:57 a.m.

Downes was observed crossing the double yellow line on Delaware Avenue in Delmar several times before he turned onto Adams Street and was stopped by officer Heffernan. Heffernan administered several field tests, which Downes failed.

Downes was given an appearance ticket to appear to appear in town court Tuesday, March 3, at 4 p.m.

NiMo outlines proposed power plant conversion

Utility plans to sell Albany Steam Station

By Peter Hanson

Representatives from Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. explained their proposed conversion of the Albany Steam Station to the Bethlehem Energy Center at the Bethlehem town board's Feb. 25 meeting.

The proposal, which was detailed in the Feb. 11 issue of The Spotlight, is part of NiMo's divestiture of its power-generating plants. The divestiture is in accordance with deregulation ordered by the state Public Service Commission (PSC).

NiMo representatives said they plan to sell the Albany Steam Station, but before selling it, they want to get a state certificate that permits the conversion as an incentive to potential buyers.

The PSC application process will take about a year and cost NiMo between $1 million and $2 million. Project director Michael J. Mathis said the idea is to have a conversion certificate in place so the plant's next owner can begin construction immediately after purchasing the plant.

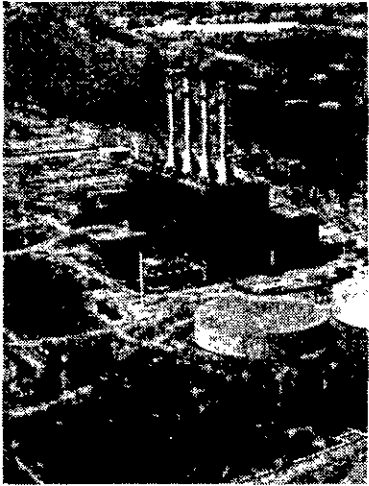

The proposal involves changing the plant from a steam-powered plant to a combined-cycle plant, which will be powered by steam and a combustion turbine. Mathis said the advantages of the new design would include an 80 percent gain in generating capacity and a 98.5 percent decrease in "peak water usage," meaning the amount of water pulled from the Hudson River to cool the superheated water inside the plant.

Although the Albany Steam Station is currently assessed at $257 million, the actual value of the plant is much lower, Mathis said. NiMo's financial interest in it is about $37 million, which is the differential between what NiMo has spent on the plant and what it has recovered from sales of the plant's electricity.

But when NiMo begins the process of auctioning the plant in the summer, Mathis said, having the conversion certificate in place could raise bids past the $37 million break-even point and give NiMo a substantial profit.

Mathis said he expects the change in ownership of the plant to occur in mid-1999, pending PSC approval.

The decision to issue the conversion certificate rests with the PSC, but part of NiMo's application process is a public involvement program, through which Mathis and other company representatives convey information about the proposal to residents of affected towns.

Albany Steam Station

The presentation at the Feb. 25 town board meeting was part of the public involvement program, as is tonight's, March 4, information session at Glenmont Elementary School on Route 9W in Glenmont. The session, which begins at 7 p.m., is open to the public.

On Friday, March 6, at 9:30 a.m., NiMo will have its second conference with the New York State Board on Electric Generating Siting and Environment (BOEGS), an ad-hoc committee formed by the PSC. The conference, which is open to the public, will be held in meeting room A on the third floor of Core 4 in the Empire State Plaza.

At the conference, issues including environmental impact and the necessity of modernizing the plant will be discussed.

During the Feb. 25 board meeting, Mathis told the board and the audience that NiMo has set up a $150,000 slush fund to help municipalities study the engineering and environmental impact of the conversion.

The fund is a required part of the PSC application process, and the administrative law judge overseeing NiMo's dealings with the PSC has jurisdiction over how the money will be spent. Town Supervisor Sheila Fuller expressed interest in getting some of the money to pay for an independent analysis of the proposal by an engineering firm.

"We, as the applicant, have no control over (the fund)," Mathis said.

Fuller also raised the question of what might happen if no companies bid on the plant when the auction begins this spring. "If we don't get any responsive bids," Mathis said, "we would see that other people don't share our view that this site has great potential."

Mathis did not say what alternatives NiMo has planned, but its December 1997 pre-application report, which is available for review at Bethlehem Public Library, said options include "mothballing" the plant for future renovations, closing it down permanently and running it as is until the existing equipment becomes obsolete.

BC board hears budget requests

Transportation, operation departments suggest projects

By Lisa K. Kelly

The Bethlehem Central school board is considering recommendations presented by the transportation and operations and maintenance departments at its meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 25.

The preliminary fundamental operating budget allocates $80,106 for projects to improve district buildings. The board will make its final decisions on these items on March 25.

Due to the limited funds allocated for such projects, board president Happy Scherer asked Bruce Houghton, director of operation and maintenance, to read only priority one recommendations which total $186,900.

Houghton said the 12 priority one projects would increase accessibility to buildings, add instructional space to Hamagrael Elementary School, recondition the upper gymnasium floor at the middle school and reconstruct the front parking lot at Clarksville Elementary School.

Superintendent Les Loomis said the board put its decision making process on hold until it has a chance to review additional information about the projects. The board toured schools Monday night to look at existing problems.

Houghton was also asked to look into getting lower estimates for many of the projects. They include renovating a restroom at the high school to make it handicapped accessible at a cost of $24,000, fire code provisions for operation and maintenance buildings estimated at $9,000 and creating an additional classroom and making alterations at Hamagrael for an estimated cost of $38,000.

"When we first looked at this project, we only looked at the aspect of the converting the speech and reading room," Scherer said. "We were under the impression that the cost of the renovations would be relatively low."

The Hamagrael proposal suggests changing space currently used for speech and reading classes into an instructional room. The school's locker room would become a speech reviewed for other options.

O'Shea said the board wants the fire code provision reviewed with Houghton and town building inspector John Flanagan to see if there is any other way of meeting requirements.

The transportation department also presented its recommendations to the board. Director of transportation Robert Peters recommended a revised bus proposition for the 1998-99 school year.

Peters asked the district to purchase two small buses, one for 20 passengers, the other for 10 passengers and two wheelchairs. The original proposal was for one small bus.

He also suggested that the district buy one seven passenger four-wheel-drive Suburban, one 20 passenger bus and one 30 passenger bus. The total proposal would cost $504,000.

O'Shea said Peters revised the proposition to replace buses based on condition, not age. "It becomes more costly to maintain a bus than to purchase a new one," O'Shea added.

The proposal also includes replacing motors in seven natural gas buses with better natural gas motors or diesel engines. "We have the opportunity to use natural gas and energy money," Loomis said.

Scherer said the board wants to make sure it creates a cost-effective budget resulting in a tax rate district residents will support.

The next regular school board meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, March 11, at 8 p.m.

A budget work session on the kindergarten through 12th-grade instructional program and equipment will follow the regular meeting.

It becomes more costly to maintain a bus than to purchase a new one.

and reading room.

To accomplish this the district would have to remove lockers and enclose the bathroom area.

Scherer said she thought it was a good idea to re-evaluate the recommendation because of the cost and questioned the practicality of removing lockers, when the district may decide the school needs a locker room in the future.

Scherer also said the board wants to look at its options for the handicapped accessible restroom at the high school.

"There are a lot of options," she said. "One could be built out of nothing, we can install a stall in an existing boys' bathroom, or we can create a handicap unisex restroom out of an existing restroom. We want to get the best bang for our buck."

Assistant superintendent for business Steven O'Shea said the handicapped accessible restroom and the Hamagrael project will be

New Scotland board discusses Tall Timbers, North Road water

By Katherine McCarthy

The Tall Timbers development and North Road water district were on the agenda at a special meeting of the New Scotland town board last week. At the request of Tall Timbers' developer Robert Iovinella, the town board gave lead agency status to New Scotland's planning board.

The town board and planning board will continue to work closely on the project, with the planning board handling environmental issues and the town board reviewing water and sewer issues.

"A couple of weeks ago you were here looking for the town board to be lead agency," town board member Scott Houghtaling pointed out, questioning the developer's request for the change.

"We felt that the board was uncomfortable with that," Iovinella's attorney, Donald Zee, responded. "We've spoken with the town attorney about a number of issues, and would like to have the town board handle water and sewer issues, and the planning board oversee other planning aspects. We hope that both can run simultaneously."

Zee pointed out that Iovinella would only need to update the environmental impact statement done in 1990, when the development was first proposed.

A new application would not need to be filed under the state Environmental Quality Review Act, Zee said, as this was not a question of designating a lead agency, but transferring one.

Iovinella would prepare a supplement to the impact statement that would take into account the water system the town has installed since then, as well as new traffic patterns and changes in the school population.

As for the developer's time frame, Zee said they were looking to get building permits for May of 1999, and need to start building the infrastructure this summer.

The town board approved the change in lead agency status with board member Mark Dempf abstaining.

In its continuing efforts to get water to North Road, the board also authorized the engineering company C.T. Male to spend up to $3000 to submit an updated pre-application to the Department of Health for what is now called the Clarksville Water District Improvement project.

C.T. Male will also file a completed application and do the necessary engineering work for the proposed project. Supervisor Herb Reilly will set up a separate account for these funds.

Kate Frank, a grant writer for C.T. Male, explained that the Department of Health is administering a new project, the Drinking Water State Revolving Loan Fund, which provides a minimum of subsidized loans, and a maximum of grants, to municipalities working on drinking water projects.

Whether and how much aid a town qualifies for depends on the number of points a project receives.

"Our goal is to build an infrastructure that is affordable to the town of New Scotland," Frank said. "We've made contact with the public works department, and our engineers are looking at the well source and possible additions to the project."

Frank explained that the Department of Health usually sets a required number of points, but that number could change depending on the number of completed applications they receive.

Should New Scotland receive enough points to make the project viable, a completed application would be due by April 15.

shortcomings onto another party.

William H. Helderich, the Harter, Seacrest attorney representing Fraser, said his client's strategy will be to shift blame onto Rust Environmental & Infrastructure, the subcontractor who did the "hydrogeological" work on the water infiltration system.

"Our understanding is there is not enough water (coming into the system)," Helderich said. "Fraser doesn't believe it's a design problem and if it, it's not Fraser's design problem."

"As far as Fraser is concerned, there is no design defect," he added.

Despite his contention the system's design is sound, Helderich said Fraser would fault the water intake portion of the system if the case proceeds. Seemingly contradicting himself, Helderich then said, "We're not saying Rust did anything wrong."

Helderich said he will ask LeBoeuf, Lamb to provide "more specific information about the allegations" during the discovery process — the phase of litigation following the summons — and said he expects to file a third party action against Rust, which would seek to hold Rust accountable for damages.

One issue the summons does not address is the amount of damages the town is seeking. As he said during his Jan. 28 presentation to the town board, Alessi feels the town should be cautious in revealing information about the suit.

"The challenge is to harmonize as best as you can the fact that the town is a litigant ... and having information go to the public," Alessi said.

Keeping strategy confidential strengthens the town's stance in court, Alessi said, but that doesn't mean town residents can't follow the ongoing litigation. "Many times the litigation documents are very informative of what's going on," Alessi said. Court papers such as the summons are available for public review.

The water system Fraser designed cost the town more than $13 million and it is about 66 percent less efficient than Fraser promised. Although these facts suggest the town will be seeking damages in the millions of dollars, Alessi declined to comment about dollar amounts, but he did offer one note about speculation on this topic.

"Saying that we were asking for $13.9 million, one could take the inference that the (water system) is worthless," Alessi said. Throughout the lawsuit process, Town Supervisor Sheila Fuller, Commissioner of Public Works Bruce Secor and others have said the water system is worthwhile even if it only pumps two million gallons daily.

The water system's detractors include residents Linda Burtis and Sherwood Davies of the self-described "watchdog" group Clearwater for Bethlehem. Burtis and Davies have repeatedly told the town board they feel the water system is a waste of money.

Problems with the water system began almost immediately after it went on-line, but the town did not seek legal recourse until last July, when it retained LeBoeuf, Lamb to explore the possibility of suing Fraser.

Although several reports have placed the law firm's billing to the town at $30,000 so far, Alessi said that as of Dec. 31, 1997, LeBoeuf, Lamb had billed the town for $11,903.75 in legal fees and $419.36 in office expenses, for a total of $12,323.11.

At the Jan. 28 town board meeting, Alessi estimated the cost of filing the lawsuit as $7,000 to $15,000; these costs will be in addition to the $12,000 billed last year.

Alessi said the town will be informed of developments in the lawsuit. "(There will be) regular communications with the town or the appropriate town representatives," he said, "(but) it's not all going to happen at the public town board meetings."

Alessi said it's impossible to guess when the lawsuit might be resolved. A settlement is possible at any time, but a jury trial could take years. "The decision as to how to resolve this matter will be 100 percent the town board's," he said.

is helpful."

Faso said having two assembly leaders from this area could help move local projects to fruition, but noted that decisions on some major projects are made by the executive branch.

"The movement of state labor jobs from Albany to Troy was done by ... the Office of General Services and the governor's office," Faso said. Bruno advocated moving jobs to Troy — his own district — but, ultimately, the decision wasn't his to make.

Faso said more state job moves are on the way. In addition to the recently announced plans to move workers from the state office campus to downtown Albany, Faso said the Alfred E. Smith building in Albany is badly in need of renovation and modernization.

"There is going to be a fair three screen development there."

Delaware Plaza owner Howard Nolan declined to comment about ongoing negotiations, but said Broadway Sports is not the only company interested in the Woolworth's site. He also declined to comment about rumors that a dollar store and a General Nutrition Center may split the plaza's other large vacancy, formerly the site of a Revco pharmacy.

Even if Off-Broadway takes occupancy, it will not use the entire Woolworth's site. Patrons would enter through a foyer and pass a sports bar-type cafe before moving through a corridor. In the corridor, there would be entrances to different theaters, as in conventional multiplexes.

Off-Broadway shows second-run theatrical films on 35-millimeter projection. Screens are about 20 feet high, compared to about 40 feet, which is the norm for regular movie theaters.

amount of consolidation of state jobs," Faso said.

Born in Long Island and raised in Queens and Long Island, Faso was a Democrat until his college years. He attended SUNY Brockport and Georgetown University Law Center.

Faso said four things drove him away from the Democratic party: The attitude that criminals have greater rights than law-abiding citizens; the impulse toward high taxation; the "stick-your-head-in-the-sand" attitude toward foreign policy; and the lack of understanding that true economic growth begins in the private sector.

But Faso said he doesn't fit the clichéd picture of a bottom-line Republican who slashes funding to social programs in order to balance budgets.

"It's kind of the Winston Churchill admonition," Faso said. "A man who is not a liberal when he's 20 has no heart, and a man who's not a conservative when he's 40 has no head."

Off-Broadway generally carries films for short runs, although the Mel Gibson thriller Ransom played for six weeks last year. Occasionally, popular films like The Full Monty play return engagements. Like Casablanca play special engagements.

New films become available as soon as they are pulled from first-run release at theaters like Hoyts 18 Megaplex in Gunderland and the Spectrum Theater in Albany.

The restaurant offers lunches and dinners in the $6 to $10 range. Private birthday parties can be arranged as well.

O'Hara said he expects to announce a decision about Delaware Plaza by the end of this month, but he added he is also negotiating with business partners about possibly developing two or three franchises at the same time.

He said he wants to begin construction on the next Off-Broadway Theater & Grille by June 1, so if Broadway Sports and Delaware Plaza management reach an agreement, the Elsmere franchise could be open for business by the end of the summer or early fall.

Senior care facilities come in many varieties

Although CMI's senior housing project has been in the news since it was proposed for a location near the Bethlehem Public Library last year, it's easy to get confused about the difference between senior housing and other types of senior care.

To clarify the different types of senior care, Bethlehem senior services director Karen Pelletier provided excerpts from A Directory for Consumers and Their Families, a publication of the New York Association of Homes and Services for the Aging.

Adult Care Facilities (ACFs). This is a broad category including several levels of care. ACFs provide group meals, a safe environment and activities such as field trips or recreational programs. Most ACFs offer private rooms and private or shared bathrooms. Some varieties of ACFs are:

Adult Homes. These are group homes with residents inhabiting single rooms instead of full apartments; bathrooms may be shared or private. These homes may have medical personnel on staff and personal assistance is usually available for residents' daily activities.

Assisted Living. These programs offer a compromise between group care and home care; participants attend some functions at group homes and receive some personal or medical services at home. People who use assisted living may be on Social Security or Medicaid.

Assistive Living. Similar to assisted living, but participants may not be on a regular schedule of services. People who use assistive living use group home or personal services as needed.

Enriched Housing. These are group homes that do not have medical or support staff on hand but add such services as needed.

Enriched housing facilities provide the same social interaction benefits as adult homes.

All of the different types of ACFs are overseen by the state Department of Social Services through the Office of Housing and Adult Services.

Adult Day Care. These facilities offer safe environments for seniors whose health allows them to remain in their homes at night but requires some kind of medical or social supervision during the day. They are overseen by the state Department of Health.

Continuing Care Retirement Communities (CCRCs). These areas allow seniors to enter at a low level of care and add more services as needed. For example, a senior could enter the community in a private apartment, then move to a group-care facility or a nursing home as his or her needs evolve.

Home Care. This term describes medical or personal services provided in seniors' homes; these services include bathing and housekeeping.

Life Care. These facilities are similar to CCRCs; the difference is life-care facilities guarantee they will be able to meet residents' future needs, whereas residents of CCRCs might move from apartments to nursing homes as their needs evolve.

Nursing Homes (aka Skilled Nursing Facilities). These facilities provide 24-hour medical and social services to the frail elderly and chronically disabled. Prospective residents must undergo a screening process.

Retirement Communities. These areas provide independent living in apartments or cottages on a campus-like setting. Services provided by the community include group dining, transportation and housekeeping.

Senior Housing. These facilities consist of apartments that provide independent living for the elderly, and features include handicapped-accessible bathrooms and emergency call buttons.

Senior housing facilities, such as the one CMI wants to build in Delmar, are overseen by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and other agencies.

Senior housing facilities are not subsidized. Instead, they offer living quarters to residents whose incomes enable them to pay monthly rents commensurate to those of regular apartments in the area.

Town offers wealth of senior services

By Peter Hanson

"You've got to come see this," Bethlehem senior services director Karen Pelletier said to the reporter in her town hall office. "It's like the Rockettes." Pelletier led the reporter to an auditorium two doors away, where about 50 women were dancing in step as part of an fitness program called Seniors in Motion.

As instructor Theresa Mattson bent her hips and arched her arms to set the rhythm, the women bent and arched right along with her, laughing and smiling as they did so. "That's what getting older is all about," Pelletier said. "Doing the things you always wanted to do."

Mattson's class, which is offered two days a week on a pay-as-you-go basis, is just one of the many senior services offered by the town of Bethlehem, Albany County and New York state. In fact, there are so many options available that choosing between them can be difficult.

Finding the right programs or services for an aging loved one is often confusing, Pelletier said. Contacting state or area agencies for aging is often a first step. They can, in turn, refer to county or local offices for more specific services.

Pelletier cited U.S. census statistics that put the number of Bethlehem residents aged 60 or older at 5,630 in 1990. The census information estimated that number will boom to 7,555 in the year 2010, when baby boomers reach retirement age, and nearly 10,000 in 2020.

The town of Bethlehem offers nearly two dozen senior services on a regular basis, ranging from group meals and classes to individual financial counseling and blood pressure screenings.

Pelletier's office publishes a bimonthly newsletter called Senior Services News, which includes schedules of upcoming classes and events as well as information about ongoing programs.

One of those programs is the senior van, which transports residents from their homes to doctors' offices, grocery stores and even hair salons. The drivers are seniors themselves, so drivers develop camaraderie with their passengers, just as Mattson does with the students in her dance class.

Developing neighborly relationships is a big part of what the senior services office does, Pelletier said. And as Bethlehem's senior population grows, the senior services office will grow with it.

For information, contact the Bethlehem senior services office at 439-4955, or call the Albany County Department for the Aging at 447-7177. Either of these offices can refer callers to publications or other phone numbers where specific questions can be answered.

That's what getting older is all about. Doing the things you always wanted to do.

Karen Pelletier

Matters of Opinion

Senior champions

Bethlehem is good to its senior citizens. The town Senior Services Department is staffed by people who are always willing to go the extra mile for seniors. This week, the gold star goes to Karen Pellettier for providing The Spotlight with important information about services within the town and in Albany County. In addition, she compiled a definitive list of senior home and health care terms. Pellettier says the terminology can be confusing, since there are so many types of care in today's market

It's important for both seniors and their families to know exactly what options there are for people who may need to change their living arrangements or get help in their homes. Seniors have a choice as to the level of care they may need now and in the future.

Seniors need to know that they are valued members of the community, and that help is there for the asking. Whether it's a trip to an appointment on the senior van or an entertainment outing, Bethlehem seniors are assured that someone is always there to lend a hand.

Many Senior Services volunteers are seniors themselves and realize what we need most as we get older.

It's comforting to be a part of a community that respects and looks out for its senior population.

Plaza may be reeling

It seems that some good news is actually on the horizon for Delaware Plaza. Off Broadway Theater & Grill is planning to move into the space formerly occupied by Woolworth's in the Elsmere mall.

The theater/restaurant would certainly enhance the plaza as a destination point for people both in Bethlehem and Albany. It's been a long time since Delmar has had a theater, and residents would likely find it more convenient than trekking to Albany or Colonie to see a film. Perhaps this new unique business will give the plaza a real lift. It's about time.

Though not as definite, there is also talk of a dollar store and general nutrition center possibly coming to the plaza, which also would help revitalize business there.

We hope these new businesses come to the plaza, which has recently lost several of its longtime mainstays.

Spruce up the place

Have you gotten the bug yet? If you've made a list of what needs to be done to fix up your home or apartment, you've probably caught home improvement fever, which usually strikes toward the end of winter.

That's probably because being indoors so much gives us more time to focus on worn wooden floors, discolored paint, dimly lighted dingy corners and some rooms that have an overall worn-out look, not to mention what winter has done to the outside of your abode.

This week's home improvement supplement could be a life saver for your home project. Our stories cover a broad range of topics, with lots of ideas for sprucing up things just in time for spring.

Take the plunge: make priority items on your list of home to-dos come true. And remember, as one of our supplement stories says, it doesn't always cost a fortune to create a new look; sometimes a fresh coat of paint is all you need to make all the difference.

For the more ambitious, there are stories on the merits of vinyl siding and if light is a concern, there's an article on indoor lighting and one on solariums, which help us better utilize nature's rays.

The subtle art of communicating

By Elizabeth L. Reid

Elizabeth Reid practiced Marriage and Family Therapy for 10 years in Slingerlands. In December of 1997 she joined Center Square Counseling Services at 245 Lark St., Albany.

Couples often say they no longer communicate with each other. Their initial conversations may have been music to each other's ears. With the passage of time, the notes are flat. What couples mean when they say they no longer communicate is unique to each couple. No longer communicating can mean anything from constant fighting, to loss of closeness or tense silences.

Different needs can lead to a breakdown in communication. Will's work puts him under intense pressure every day. He wants home to be a place to relax. His wife and kids need the house at night to be a place for play and stimulation. His desire for quiet gets him to stay at work longer and longer hours. Donna complains that he was never there to have a conversation.

Differences in the way we express ourselves can lead to diminished communication. Cleo is angry that things never seemed to go her way. She resents that Tony always thinks he is right. She can't find a way to feel valued in their conversations so she gives up trying to discuss important decisions with Tony. She just lets him think she agrees with him.

These two couples could benefit from couple's therapy.

Couples Will and Donna, Cleo and Tony use blame to try to resolve their problems. Assigning blame is a major blockade in resolving problems.

Will and Donna blame each other. Will thinks Donna can't relax or be supportive of his needs to relax. Donna thinks Will likes working more than being with the family. Neither one is at fault in this situation. If they could talk about it without blame, they might figure out a way for Will to have some relaxation time before he joins in the family activities for the night.

Point of View

Cleo blames Tony. Cleo thinks Tony is the whole problem. Tony seems like he has to be right. His style may be authoritative but his intentions may be equalitarian. Because Cleo loves equal, he doesn't know that she doesn't agree with him. Once she finds a way to speak up even when he seems to think he's right, he begins to concede there might be two right ways to do things and make decisions.

The first step to better communication is understanding how much variety exists in our styles of communication.

Difficulties in many couples are differences in use and style of language. The job of the therapist can often be translating the two different language styles of the couple. The first step to better communication is understanding how much variety exists in our styles of communication.

As a therapist I think of myself as a translator whose goal is to keep the conversation from breaking down. I watch my own and my client's use of language to see what effect we have on each other as we converse.

I search for new words or new ways to say what I hear when each partner tells their side of the story. I try to say things in ways that bridge the gaps between them. Sometimes, I say things two ways: different words or phrasing for each person in the room.

Juliet likes depth and spirituality in her sharing. She says, "Ron, can't we have deeper conversations?" Ron is trying hard. He's a practical guy. He doesn't know what she means. He later in the session he brings out a brainstorming list for a business project. It explores his thinking and feeling for a job from many angles and levels. Juliet agrees that "brainstorming" might be something like what she means by "deeper." They agree to try brainstorming sessions about their relationship to see if she feels more satisfied with their conversations.

Henry simply wants to be heard. Eliza is eager to do the right thing. She is an action-oriented helper. Henry likes to process his thinking.

Henry says "Did you hear me?" Eliza answers, "I did see something about that later." He is looking for, "Yes, I heard you." She thinks he wants her to take care of it. He feels she always takes over. I tell them about their different approaches and needs. They both say, "Oh, is that what you mean?"

Eliza is relieved. She says, "I can try just to say I heard you, but I feel I have to take care of everything you mention. Sometimes it gets to be too much for me. Let me know when to listen and when you want something done. It will be a relief."

Henry says, "I do appreciate all the things you do, but sometimes I just want you to listen to my thinking. It would help to make a distinction between listening times and action times."

The task of a couple's therapist is to return the music to the couple conversations: to help couples learn and keep using each other as resources, to translate language differences, to find the meaningfulness of the relationship. Finding effective ways of communicating with your partner is important to keeping the music alive in your relationship. Few couples understand their differences in use and style of language can cause discord. When we can understand our differences, we can harmonize to meet the complex challenges of relationships.

Del Lanes advocate says writer off base

Editor, The Spotlight:

I have just finished reading the letter from Ms. Asprion regarding Rock and Bowl at Del Lanes. I can only say that she is way off base. Del Lanes goes to great lengths to create a family atmosphere.

My husband Marvin and his staff work very hard to promote a safe and enjoyable Rock and Bowl on Saturday nights. Yes, there is a bar and public smoking, but Rock and Bowl is for everyone, not just teenagers.

Del Lanes has opened its doors to teens to come and bowl with their friends so they are not walking the streets. What happens before these teens arrive or while they are hanging out on Delaware Avenue is uncontrollable.

Like Ms. Asprion said in her letter, "Before you drop your teens off at Del Lanes, you might want to check it out first." Great idea, but let me add you might want to check out what those teens are doing before they arrive at Del Lanes. You might be surprised!

Collection on display

Royal Copenhagen porcelain from Elaine Kesner will be on display this month in the showcase. Plates are sculpted in relief and hand decorated under the glaze in cobalt blue. Each plate depicts a Danish scene, complete with animals, ships, village churches, castles and children.

Each mold is destroyed after it is used for a year so that the older plates become more scarce and sought after. Kesner says collecting the porcelains can be challenging and addictive. When you stop by the library, be sure to take a look at them.

Voorheesville Public Library

"Fruit and Flowers" is the theme in the hall gallery with expressionistic paintings of Julia Molloy.

In the kitchen galley, Pleasant Street artist and library sketch group member Cindy Graham will display a selection of mixed media pieces.

Both Molloy and Graham are also active in the Bethlehem Art Association.

The youth services department will celebrate women's history month by featuring historical fiction from Scholastic Press. A Journey to the New World: The Diary of Patience Whipple and I Thought My Soul Would Rise and Fly: The Diary of Patsy a Freed Girl are two of the series of books which encourage girls of today to experience the lives of young women during difficult times in American history.

The library will highlight the month with a Diary Lovers program on Friday, March 20, at 4 p.m. for kids who keep or would like to keep their own diary.

The same day at 1 p.m., there will be a special program for adults featuring popular music of the World War II era. Mark your calendars and join us for "When the Lights Go On Again."

The sketch group meets tonight from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. No signup is necessary.

Watercolors on exhibit in gallery

Watercolors by Raymond Decker are on display in the north-west gallery this month. The library was the site of Decker's first art exhibit in 1984.

"Art in my retirement has been a large part of my days," said Decker. Flowers are a favorite subject and theme. Decker has Landscapes and portraits by John L. Moore are on display in the southwest gallery. Moore was a graphic designer for more than 40 years, beginning in the Army during World War II.

Moore studied at the Art Center School in Los Angeles and later at the School of Applied Arts in Zurich. He managed his own design business in Delmar for 16 years. In his retirement, he took up serious painting, choosing acrylic as a medium because it mixed easily and dried quickly. "However, acrylic has its own special quirks and imposes its own demands," Moore said, "such as controlling the color values."

Kevin Millington's scale model airplanes are in the large case this month. They include such contemporary military fighters as the F-15 Eagle, A-10, AV-8B Harrier, Tornado, Jaguar, F-117 Nighthawk and F-14 Tomcat.

The small case contains 1960s nostalgia with Patricia Setford. She shares her collection of Beatle memorabilia, including record albums, magazines, dolls and pins. The youth services case contains Lisa Bouchard's collection of wee things from Ireland.

Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited displays information about its organization on the bulletin board, and tax forms are available in the lobby.

DEC selling trees and shrubs

The state Department of Environmental Conservation is selling tree and shrub seedlings through March 31.

The seedlings, which are produced at the department's Saratoga nursery, provide a variety of conservation species for planting on private land throughout the state.

Conservation plantings improve wildlife habitat, curb soil erosion, provide windbreak and beautify the landscape while increasing forest area.

Trees and shrubs also purify the air we breathe by absorbing carbon dioxide for the atmosphere.

New York landowners are eligible to participate in the program. The minimum order for most tree and shrub species is 100 seedlings, which requires approximately one quarter acre of planting space.

A mixed packet of 25 wildlife shrub seedlings is available for backyard wildlife planting.

Landowners can get planting advice from their nearest DEC forestry office or private forestry consultant.

For information, call 587-1120.

He coordinated Junior Carnival Homecoming weekend and Spirit Week. Baron's other activities include philosophy club, mock trial team, model congress, school yearbook and Dollars for Scholars committee.

He also finds time to volunteer at his church and as a lifeguard.

BCHS to host debate tournament

Bethlehem Central High School's debate team will host a tournament on Saturday, March 7, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the high school.

Debate team member John Hanley said there will be eight events including Lincoln-Douglas debate, extemporaneous speaking, original oratory, dramatic and humorous interpretation and duo interpretation.

Hanley said that extemporaneous speaking is the toughest category. Competitors are given a subject when they arrive. They have 30 minutes to research the topic and prepare a seven minute speech on a note card.

"The best extemporaneous speakers forego the note card and speak off the top their heads," he said. "It's really fantastic to hear the good extemporaneous speakers."

In the Lincoln-Douglas debate category, competitors will debate the resolution that civil disobedience is justified in a democracy. Karen Solomon, the team's parent adviser, said declamation speaking is memorizing a previously written speech such as Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I have a dream" speech.

The Bethlehem Central High School debate team currently has 15 members.

Hanley said they hope to raise about $1,000 from the tournament to help pay for travel to other tournaments this year and next. Entry fees are paid by participants.

"I look forward to doing more tournaments next year," Hanley said. "Because you can really learn a lot."

The community is invited to attend the tournament free of charge at the high school at 700 Delaware Avenue in Delmar.

Bethlehem moves to semifinals after Saturday's win

By Christine Potter

The Bethlehem Girls Varsity Basketball team will advance to the semi-final round of sectionals, after defeating Niskayuna on Friday, Feb. 27, 49-31.

Bethlehem jumped off to a quick lead in the quarter finals scoring the first 12 points of the game.

Niskayuna fought back to come within three at the half. Bethlehem pulled away in the second half with tight defense and points off of fast break opportunities.

Nicole Conway led the team with 12 points, six steals, five rebounds and four assists. Katie Smith was also a high scorer with 12 points, four steals and five rebounds.

Bridget Murray contributed with eleven points, which included three three-point baskets. Karly

If Bethlehem wins, they will advance to the sectional finals Friday, Feb. 6 at Hudson Valley Community College.

"We're working hard to prepare for Colonie," said Kim Wise. "We need to step up our game because each game get harder."

"We need to get our intensity back up," said Smith. "If we do then we'll play well."

"When you go into sectionals, your record doesn't matter," said Decker. "It's 0-0.

"Each game is a win or lose situation. As a senior, I want to go on as far as we can because this is it," she added.

BCH hockey team finishes season 7-9-1

By Andrew Hartman

In their final game of the season, the Bethlehem Eagles (7-9-1), finished off their season with a sectional loss to Burnt Hills on Tuesday, Feb. 17.

After a one week hiatus from the ice, the Eagles played Burnt Hills at the Albany County Hockey Training Facility in a quarterfinal contest.

Junior Jim Corrigan started off the game in proper fashion with two goals in the first six minutes of the game.

With 25 seconds left in the period, Burnt Hills got on the board to trail the Eagles by one goal.

Jeff Smith helped Bethlehem take a two-goal lead, but Burnt Hills seized an opportunity with a penalty shot.

Bethlehem lost the game as Burnt Hills scored two goals in the final period.

The Eagles season was put to rest with a 4-3 loss.

"We played well. We hadn't played a game in a week," said coach John Battaglino. "This was an aggressive solid game. I feel that (Greg) Cooper had a strong second half of the season.

"Other guys also stepped up and contributed. I was pleased, this was the highest Bethlehem had ever been seeded in the sectionals.

"We just allowed them (Burnt Hills) to get some high percentage shots on goal.

"We should have scored more than three goals. We hoped to get four or five goals this game."

Battaglino said he sees potential for the team, but feels it will be a rocky road next year after losing three defensemen.

"I expect an improved commitment and confidence in what the team accomplished," he said.

Battaglino said he got to know the players this year and understands their commitment and the organizational aspects of this particular program.

Ladybirds sink Cannoneers

By Chris Bonham

The Voorheesville Girls Varsity Basketball team continues to preserve their undefeated record (21-0), trouncing the Watervliet Cannoneers, 64-20 last Saturday in a Section II Class game on their home court.

In a close first quarter, the Cannoneers were down by only one point at the buzzer. Watervliet had six points and Voorheesville was a point ahead.

The Ladybirds dominated the second quarter holding the Cannoneers to only two points, while the Birds scored 28 points giving them a 35-8 half time lead.

Coach Jack Adams played his reserves mostly in the third quarter earning 11 points, while

Basketball

Watervliet was only able to muster 10 more points.

The Birds scored 18 points in the fourth quarter.

Jane Meade was the leading scorer for Voorheesville, making 11 of her shots giving her 23 points and five assists. Caryn Adams had four assists and 12 points. Regan Burns followed up with an additional 10 points.

Voorheesville, the defending Class CC champions will meet Schuylerville in the semifinal round play at Colonie High School tonight at 7:30 p.m.

A Glenmont man wins Booster's $10,000

By Lisa K. Kelly

The Bethlehem Hockey Boosters held its $10,000 raffle drawing Saturday at Bethlehem Town Hall.

Glenmont resident Jack Ehring's name was drawn for the $10,000 grand prize by town Supervisor Sheila Fuller.

"I was pleasantly surprised," Ehring said. "When you buy something like this, you don't expect to win."

Ehring, who was not present at the drawing, said he bought the ticket to help the organization which supports the Bethlehem varsity hockey team and pee wee hockey club.

The club also gave away 10 $100 prizes, one of which went to senior varsity player Jeff Smith.

Smith said he was surprised he won because he hadn't bought a ticket. "I plan to buy a house in Cape Cod and a Jaguar," he quipped.

Harriet Guglielmo from Delmar also won $100. She said she was hoping for the $10,000 prize. "I bought 50 tickets."

Mike Mullen, president of the booster club said the tickets were sold by club members and their families.

"This is a great representation of the community's support," said coach John Battaglino.

This year was Fuller's third year drawing the names for the raffle. "Its one of the fun parts of my job," she said.

If you have a home to sell, Fraida has two words for you:
Sooner...
More...

During 1997, Fraida's clients have, on average, sold their homes 2 months sooner and for 4% more than the average Albany County home seller.* Her clients saved 2 months of housing costs and realized 98% of list price, vs. the market average of 94%. * This means they realized, $7,500 more in their pocket than the average home seller did in 1997.

*Based on a comparison of Fraida Varah's statistics and the Capital Vah's Multiple Listing Service statistics of resale homes in Albany County for the period January 1, 1997 to December 31, 1997.

Fraida was the top agent in Albany County in 1997 in number and dollar volume of homes sold with over 90 transactions and $11 million in volume.

Eagles lose quarterfinals

By Karly Decker

The Bethlehem boys varsity basketball team faced Bishop Maginn in the sectional quarterfinals last week.

The Eagles ended their season with a 71-62 loss, and a 12-9 record.

Bethlehem went into the game seeded sixth, making them underdogs against third seeded Maginn.

The Eagles trailed Maginn by three points in the first quarter and fell further behind in the second period, 30-21.

The Eagles came out with incredible determination in the third quarter and scored 20 points.

With 2:17 left in the third quarter, Geoff Hunter shot a three-pointer to put BC up 40-39, giving Bethlehem the lead.

The Griffins kept up the intensity and were able to put in five more points moving the score to 44-41.

With two seconds left on the clock, Chuck Abba Jr. got fouled while shooting a three-point basket, but still scored tying the game, 44-44.

The majority of the fourth quarter was back and forth, but Maginn hit a couple of key perimeter shots to pull them ahead and on to the semifinals.

"Everybody played with a lot of heart and emotion," said Hunter. "It just came down to them (Griffins) hitting a few shots in the fourth quarter and us not."

In their last game of the season, Hunter and Abba scored 14 points a piece, while Brendon Dalton and Mark Svare added 11 and 10 points respectively.

Coach Chuck Abba said he was proud of how the players worked and played with enthusiasm.

"I was very happy with the season," said Abba. "We had a number of quality wins and many exciting games."

"I'll miss our seniors," he added.

Spring Training

Orchestra presents family performances

By Katherine McCarthy

Ah, the crack of the bat, the oil in the glove and sliding into home plate.

There's nothing better, except maybe the baton on the podium, the rosin on the bow, and a thundering crescendo. That's what's in store on March 8, when the Albany Symphony Orchestra lines up for "String Training" as this year's second Sunday Symphony for Families.

Following the sections of the symphony is easier than keeping stats on your favorite team, with "Coach Dave" at the helm. Conductor David Alan Miller will introduce the sections of the ASO music team, then put them all together for a terrific game. The grounders and strikes this time, though, will be excerpts from works by Glinka, Tchaikovsky, Gounod, Dukas and Britten. A special percussion section piece is sure to delight young listeners.

Also sure to please are the Albany-Colonie Diamond Dogs mascot and team members, who will be on deck to greet the children before the concert begins.

The Sunday Symphonies for Families started about five years ago, when Miller became the "manager" of the ASO team, according to Terry Tyson, public relations and marketing coordinator for the Albany Symphony Orchestra. "The Sunday Symphonies a redesigned for children age 3 through elementary school," Tyson said.

"David Alan Miller is trying to interest the children in music and make it fun for them. He gets them up a lot during the concert, and throws questions to the audience so it becomes very lively and interactive. 'String Training' seemed like a good way to get ready for spring. I'm sure it'll be great; our conductor is a real ham."

The concerts are about an hour long, and provide families with a fun and relaxing way to enjoy time and music together. For each concert, Miller creates a character and theme that appeal especially to elementary age children yet entertain audiences of all ages.

Some of his past characters include Cowboy Dave and Michigan Miller and the ASO Raiders. So far this season, audience members have met Albany Symphony Orchestra conductor David Alan Miller lines up a winning team for "String Training," this year's second Sunday Symphony for Families.

Superorchestraman in "Art Attack," and at the May concert, will follow "Commander Dave" to explore Antarctica with the 109th Airlift Wing of the New York Air National Guard.

Prior to each concert, Miller visits area schools, providing students with the opportunity to "Meet the Maestro." Since the start of this program, Miller has spoken to more than 40,000 students in his effort to transform music education into a magical adventure. Often, he reverses roles, and the students get a chance to conduct Miller while he plays the piano.

"String Training" is brought to the community by Price Chopper and will be held at the Palace Theater on Sunday, March 8, at 3 p.m. The audience is encouraged to wear their baseball hats — that way they'll blend in better with the orchestra.

Famed Thornton Wilder play opens March 10 at Capital Rep

With its next production, due March 10, the Capital Repertory Company in Albany, is stepping back to a less sophisticated time, the 1930s with its production of Thornton Wilder's Our Town.

When Wilder, the Pulitzer-winning novelist and playwright was a student at Yale University in the 1920s, he experimented with playwriting, yet his first major writing came several years after graduation with the publication of his Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, The Bridge of San Luis Rey, in 1927.

The novel asked the question of why certain people are involved in a tragedy when a rope bridge collapsed in South America, plunging saints and sinners to their deaths. There was no answer but the question was intriguing.

A little more than 10 years later, Wilder burst on Broadway with his play, Our Town, which examined a small town, Grover's Corners, New Hampshire and its residents with a sympathetic and insightful tone that established a format for movies and plays through the late 1930s and 40s.

What Wilder did in this play was almost sacrilegious at the time. He wrote the play to be done without scenery and urged simple props. This was done in an era when scenery was everything and often made up for weak plots and weaker performances.

Because of its seeming simplicity, Our Town has been among the most produced 20th century plays, in the United States and throughout the world. Almost every high school drama club has done the play as each generation of students pass through and colleges have also fallen under its spell.

While done less on a professional level in the last several decades, it still provides an opportunity for a rewarding production. In dealing with the human condition without the trappings of time, Wilder asked questions about self, family and community in Our Town.

SPOTLIGHT

By Martin P. Kelly

Answers were provided in the audience's minds and hearts as they related to the event of young love flourishing in the small town and the tragedy that evolved from that romance.

Early in the history of the Williamstown Theatre Festival, back in the 1950s, the producers got Wilder, then a summer resident of the Berkshires, to play the narrator in the play. He readily agreed as he had done previously with other theaters. While not an actor, the playwright, professorial in appearance, enjoyed doing the role.

Maggie Mancinelli-Cahill, the producing artistic director at Capital Rep, who is staging this play, has been a fan of Wilder's work for years. Not only is she captivated by the philosophical message but, as a producer, excited about the simplicity of production. But, she is also aware that simplicity can bring greater responsibility to tell the story more vividly in performance.

The production of Our Town opens March 7 and 8 as "Pay-What-You-Will" events and then in previews March 10-12. The official opening is Friday, March 13. The production continues through April 12. Info/reservations are available at 462-4531.

Former teen idol appears in Bye Bye Birdie at Proctor's

Troy Donahue, a teen idol from the 1950s with his movie performances and his TV show, Hawaiian Eye, is now renewing his musical comedy career by appearing in the touring production of Bye Bye Birdie.

The show plays one performance Friday, March 6 at Proctor's Theater as part of his nationwide tour.

Donahue plays the role of the promoter of a Presley-type teen idol, Conrad Birdie, whose potential induction into the army causes havoc among his fans.

When done as a film in the late 1950s, it introduced Ann-Margaret as an exuberant fan. From that point on she rose to stardom.

Reservations and information are available at 382-3884.

Irish revue plays weekend at Delmar Methodist church

The salute to St. Patrick's Day, Irish Echoes, will be performed Saturday and Sunday, March 14 and 15 at the First United Methodist Church of Delmar on Kenwood Avenue, in a dinner theater presentation.

This annual revue, produced by Riverview Entertainment Productions, features folk songs and popular ballads familiar to those who enjoy celebrating St. Patrick's Day along with comedy and dances celebrating the holiday.

The cast includes Dick Harte, Bill Hickman, Grace Hepburn, Janet Stasio, Donna Panzi and Bill Carmello.

The company will perform earlier in the week in Cobleskill. Reservations and information about this production may be obtained at 279-9247.

Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS

HITTING GOLF SHOTS LONG AND STRAIGHT REQUIRES BUILDING REAL "SNAP" INTO YOUR SWING. THE EASIEST WAY TO DO THAT IS TO CREATE SPRING-LIKE TORSION BETWEEN YOUR UPPER AND LOWER BODY.

THE TIGHTER YOU COIL ABOVE THE WAIST AGAINST RESISTANCE FROM BELOW THE WAIST THE MORE TORSION YOU CREATE TO DELIVER AS CLUBHEAD SPEED AT IMPACT.

THAT'S WHY "TURN" IS ALWAYS SUCH A KEY WORD FOR TOP PLAYERS.

STAN SMITH'S TENNIS CLASS

DOUBLES NET POSITION
The proper net position depends on your level of play. Better players stand farther back. Generally, stand about halfway between the center line and the sideline.

Some players prefer to stand a little farther back, so they can reach lobs more easily. However, when standing too far back, the ball has a tendency to dip below your waist and you'll have to hit a more difficult low volley. Also, by standing too far back, you give more room to your opponent to hit the crosscourt shot.
