

4 DWIs adjudicated

Four individuals charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) each pleaded guilty to lesser charges of driving while ability impaired (DWAI) in Bethlehem Town Court on Sept. 21, while a fifth individual sought a jury trial on similar charges.

Robert Francis Prusinski, 29, of 16B Murray Drive, Glenmont, was arrested on May 28 on charges of DWI and reckless endangerment. He appeared in Town Court last Tuesday after several previous adjournments of the case, and requested a jury trial of his case. Judge Theresa Egan ordered the case adjourned until a trial date could be set, most likely in November.

Erin Maureen Keegan, 36, of 28 Marietta Place, Albany, entered a DWAI plea in response to charges stemming from her arrest on July 23. Keegan was ordered to pay a $300 fine and an additional $30 state-mandated surcharge, and had her license suspended for 90 days.

Andrew Bates Taylor, 37, of Washington, D.C., was arrested on Aug. 7, and also entered a DWAI plea. He was fined $300, assessed a $30 surcharge and also had his license suspended for 90 days.

Jeffrey M. Sperry, 56, of 101 Euclid Ave., Albany, who was arrested on Aug. 24 entered a DWAI plea, and was fined $300, assessed $30 and faced a 90-day license suspension.

The fourth case involved Charles Louis Bianchino, 23, of 316 Elsmere Ave., Delmar, arrested on Sept. 1. Bianchino also had his license suspended 90 days and faced a $300 fine and $30 surcharge.

The judge also ordered participation for all four in a drinking-driver remediation program and a victim-impact panel.

Deputies arrest 4 on DWI charges

By Joseph A. Phillips

The Albany County Sheriff's Department has reported four recent arrests in the Town of New Scotland involving charges of driving while intoxicated (DWI).

A felony DWI arrest occurred on Sept. 5, when a vehicle driven by Jeffrey A. Schraa, 42, of Hannacroix was observed on Route 32 crossing the center line.

According to the police report, deputies observed an open container of an alcoholic beverage in the vehicle.

Schraa was charged with felony DWI owing to an additional charge of consumption of alcohol in a motor vehicle.

He was also ticketed for failure to keep right. He was arraigned in New Scotland Town Court and ordered to appear at a later date to answer the charges.

Schraa could also face additional legal troubles as a result of his DWI arrest.

He was arrested in June by Bethlehem police and charged with unlawful dealing with a minor for allegedly selling tobacco to a minor while working as a clerk at a Cumberland Farms store in Selkirk.

That charge was adjourned in contemplation of dismissal in August, but could be reopened if he is convicted of the felony count.

An earlier arrest by deputies on Aug. 11 involved Michael A. Russo of 110 Ketchum Road, Knox, who was stopped on routes 85 and 85A in New Salem for failure to keep right.

After field sobriety tests, he was taken to the Voorheesville substation and charged with DWI and the traffic offense.

A license check also led to a charge of unauthorized operation of an automobile, a felony. He is due in Town Court to face the charges.

A Sand Lake resident also faces unlicensed operator and DWI charges stemming from an incident in Voorheesville on Sept. 11.

Arthur J. Densmore, 37, of 16 Linderman Road in Sand Lake was stopped on Voorheesville Avenue for failure to keep right, and a license check revealed the alleged operator violation.

Dinsmore was charged with DWI and felony unlicensed operation of a vehicle, and arraigned in Town Court; he is due to reappear in Voorheesville Village Court at a later date.

Also facing charges after a Sept. 17 incident is Robert T. McGeehey, 53, of 29 Maple Road, Voorheesville.

Responding to a call reporting an erratically driven vehicle on Maple Road, deputies stopped McGeehey's vehicle.

Following field sobriety tests, McGeehey was charged with DWI, endangering the welfare of a child, and unlicensed operation. Arraigned in Town Court, he was due in Village Court on Oct. 4 to answer the charges.

Getting to know you on principal's agenda

By Jim Wegielewski

Clarksville Elementary School's new principal, Dave Ksanznak, is on a mission. He often roams the hallways at dismissal time, when they are teeming with children, to make sure he meets all of the students.

"I'm trying to get to know all the students here at Clarksville, and am trying to find something unique about each child I meet," Ksanznak said.

Ksanznak was the principal of Cocksackie Elementary School for two years, and prior to that he taught fourth-grade at Glenmont Elementary for eight years.

Being a principal "is a huge responsibility," Ksanznak said. "Not only are you a leader, but I'm also responsible for the entire school's safety, and helping establishing curriculum."

But donning the principal's hat doesn't mean that Ksanznak has stepped out of the teaching ring — he still works with a math group once a day, and meets with teachers weekly to discuss academic plans.

"I was looking for a small school like Clarksville that allows me to work within the classroom," Ksanznak. "There's an open relationship with parents, teachers and me; and because of that we work together and accomplish a lot."

One of the challenges that Ksanznak faced was the school's fourth-grade English Language Assessment (ELA) scores from last spring, which were in the lower tier for district schools.

The test recently changed format from multiple choice to note-taking, writing and reading comprehension. Ksanznak feels the new tests are fair.

"We're helping students prepare for the new state assessments as soon as they come into our building, even though it is considered a fourth-grade test," Ksanznak said.

To improve students' skills on the test, Ksanznak called on Clarksville teachers at every level to review the test and plan activities that will help establish the skills it requires.

To achieve this goal, faculty meetings now start with a sharing time. Teachers explain what they are doing in class, so they can generate ideas on how to better compliment each other's curriculum.

"We need to be involving all teachers working together, art, physed., chorus, music... we need to begin developing the whole child," Ksanznak said.

But learning, Ksanznak adds, is a continuous process for teachers and principals as well.

"This is a school where the teachers are learning as well — it is important for student to see us learning, and see how important it is. At this level of education, we're helping kids set the tone for their whole educational career," he said.

Volunteers bring Cherry Hill to life

By Katherine McCarthy

Everyone's familiar with Historic Cherry Hill, the majestic yellow house at 523 South Pearl St. in Albany, but many area school children know something the rest of us don't: the house is alive.

Thanks to the efforts of volunteer museum teachers, more than 2,200 school children visit Cherry Hill each year. They learn about the house, built in 1787 for Philip and Maria Van Rensselaer, and the five generations of their family that lived there until 1963.

The children are the ones who make the house come alive, as they take on the roles of various family members, and experience history first-hand.

Right now, Cherry Hill is recruiting volunteer museum teachers for the program geared for third- to fifth-graders, entitled "Learning to Look Through Five Generations."

Through role-playing, the students learn about changes in domestic technologies, food, clothing, furnishings and recreation.

Two of the current teachers, Linda Dunkerley and Cecilia Fano, can't say enough good things about the program. Museum teachers are required to work six hours per month, and both Dunkerley and Fano do much more than that.

"You can book your time in advance, and pick the times you want to teach," said Fano, a retired teacher who has volunteered at Cherry Hill for the past six years.

"The freedom of scheduling is great," said Dunkerley, a seven-year volunteer who also works part time at Cornell Cooperative Extension.

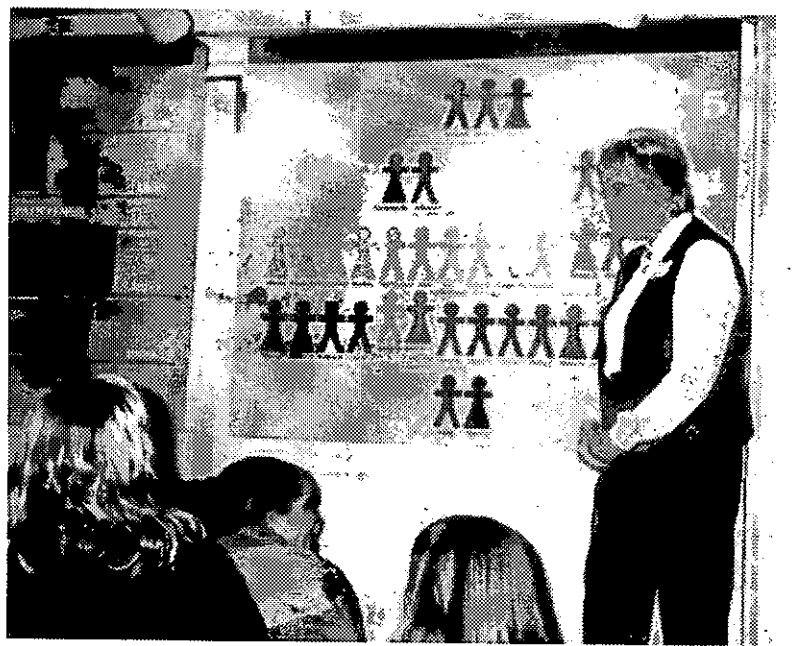

Both women became museum teachers through their love of history.

"I came to a luncheon, and talked with some of the museum teachers," Fano said. "I'd just retired from 38 years of teaching high school and college, and this was a great thing to do."

Cherry Hill looks for volunteers who've had some teaching experience teaching, although it doesn't have to have been in a formal classroom setting, but could have been Scout leadership, teaching religion, or working in summer programs. Dunkerley fit that bill, having been a 4-H leader for years.

"I love children and history," Dunkerley said. "I was a 4-H leader, but took a job that gave me less time to do that. At Cherry Hill, I'm doing things I really enjoy."

When students come to Cherry Hill, they are broken into small groups of 10 to 12 per teacher.

Cherry Hill volunteer teacher Linda Dunkerley loves showing children around the home.

Teachers lead an interactive tour for an hour and a half, helping the students choose the family member they'd like to play.

"By the time they get through the rooms, they really identify with their character," Dunkerley said.

"They'll say, 'Was that my bed?'" Fano said. "We really talk to them as that person."

Cherry Hill's education director Becky Watrous said that the children are prepared before they tour the mansion.

"We work with classroom teachers to develop the curriculum," Watrous said. "We have so much information about the people that lived here that we can tell real stories, and give the children real quotes."

Just as Cherry Hill provides teachers and schoolchildren with copious information, it also provides intensive training sessions so that volunteer teachers are well prepared for their stints with the students.

Volunteers need to sign up by Oct. 19, and the three-month training begins in November.

"There's a lot of training, and observation," Watrous said. "Current teachers also serve as museum teacher mentors. When the volunteers are done with the training session, they're confident."

Volunteer director Denise Carnell, who said she started as a volunteer at Cherry Hill and never left, pointed out that there are many extras for the volunteers.

"There are four volunteer meetings every year, and we bring in experts to lecture on different topics," she said. "There's an annual recognition day, and volunteers take a trip every year. Last year we went to Peebles Island and toured the lab and the archeology of the area. In the past, we've gone to Valkill, Eleanor Roosevelt's home, the Albany Rural Cemetery and

Smith College."

The trips all relate to the house itself, a home Eleanor Roosevelt once visited. Emily Rankin was a member of Smith College's graduating class of 1911.

"This makes the information richer," Dunkerley said.

"The personal rewards are many," Fano added. "We're learning all kinds of detailed history, and meeting other people with similar interests."

Watrous said that Cherry Hill's volunteer program has won the Junior League's Patricia McGuinness Yates Award for outstanding volunteer programs.

"This is due largely to the quality of our volunteers," Watrous said.

Historic Cherry Hill became a public trust in 1964, bequeathed by Emily Rankin, the last surviving descendant of Philip and Maria Van Rensselaer, who had the farmhouse built on 900 acres overlooking the Hudson in 1787.

Carnell said that Catherine Rankin, who lived in the house from 1857 to 1948 (through the Civil War and both World Wars), was most responsible for preserving her family's home and its contents.

Today, its vast rooms with furnishings dating from the three centuries of its existence contain some 20,000 artifacts and 30,000 manuscripts.

All of this means that when children come to Cherry Hill, they are able to lift heavy old flatirons, see the Chinese pieces that Catherine Van Rensselaer Bonney brought back from her missionary days, and view closets full of clothing from hundreds of years ago.

To volunteer at Historic Cherry Hill, contact Carnell or Watrous at 434-4791 by Oct. 19.

Toddler dies in tragic accident

By Joseph A. Phillips

A Glenmont couple are mourning the death of their 19-month-old daughter in a tragic accident outside their home last Friday evening.

According to Bethlehem police, Tabitha Deming died as a result of head injuries suffered when she was struck by the family car in the driveway of her Maewin Avenue home. Funeral services were planned for yesterday at the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle in Delmar.

According to police reports, the accident occurred while her father Christopher, 33, was working on the car at the same time the girl was playing elsewhere in the front yard. He reportedly moved the car forward in the driveway, unaware that Tabitha had gotten in front of the vehicle, and accidentally struck her with one of the front tires.

She was pronounced dead at Albany Medical Center Hospital shortly after 5 p.m. No charges are pending in her death.

In addition to her father, she is survived by her mother, Patricia; sisters Samantha, Lisa and Elizabeth, brothers David and Daniel, and Dean Erno; great-grandfather Robert Glastetter, and grandparents Donald and Isabel Glastetter and Ethel Grove.

Memorial contributions in her name can be sent to the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children, 516 Carew St., Springfield, Mass. 01104.

Friendship withstands test of time, distance

By Katherine McCarthy

I met Bernd nearly 20 years ago, when I was a terrified college student braving a junior year abroad — well, junior semester — in Mainz, Germany. We met in one of those slightly embarrassing moments that started that rare shortish blond guy went past. "There are a couple of real cuties down the hall," I said.

My assumption that Fritz, who'd just walked by, was German and didn't speak much English, turned to embarrassment when he returned, and in an accent as flat as the Kansas plains he'd come from, said, "Hi. Y'all must be the new Middlebury students."

When his roommate, who turned out to be Bernd, met me later, and introduced himself as "the other real cutie," I could only laugh.

My friend fell hopelessly in love with Bernd, a not uncommon occurrence. He has a John Denver-like appearance, an outgoing personality, and the kind of charm that has always drawn women to him. Only I seemed impervious to it, gaining a good friend instead of another bruise on my heart.

When I returned to Mainz to do graduate work, Bernd was still there, finishing up his law degree. I lived on a small floor in the same dorm with him, shared only by Karen, an American, and Manfred, whose love for Karen finally overcame his shyness.

Once, we all gathered in Bernd's room to watch two of our Persian friends move from our dorm to the one next door. They transferred a lot of their goods on a bicycle, clowning and dropping things for us, as we applauded their moves.

"I think I'll make a movie," Bernd said. "I'll call it 'Two Persians and a Bicycle.'"

One of the regular visitors to our floor was Uli, Bernd's good friend and fellow legal student. Eventually, Karen, Manfred, Uli, Bernd and I moved into an apartment together, a European sort of "Friends."

Sometimes, Bernd would invite us to his parents' home in a marvelously untraveled, scenic area called The Westerwald, or as Bernd liked to tell Americans, "The Vest Vood Forest." As students, experiencing proper beds, a living room and a fully equipped kitchen was like a trip to a spa.

Bernd's hometown, Hachenburg, has a picturesque cobblestone marketplace, complete with a fountain and half-timbered shops and houses, and Ernst's, a charming old pub/restaurant with a tin ceiling, leaded windows, a ceramic oven in the corner and wooden tables and benches. Ernst greets everyone by name, and an evening spent there helped us understand the indefinable nuances of the German word for ambience — gemutlichkeit.

When I moved to New York City, Bernd was a regular visitor. He and Uli came one autumn, and when they left, I was devastated at the distance between us.

They came another year when Karen and Manfred got married in Pennsylvania a few days after Christmas, and spent more time in New York, where they were amazed at the number of parties around New Year's Eve. In particular, they wondered at the American art for small talk.

Many Germans are irritated by the amount of personal information Americans share at cocktail parties, preferring instead a Teutonic silence they interpret as "deep," but Bernd saw the pleasantness in even the most superficial kind of connection.

When Bernd came again, it was alone, in the spring. He had become an athlete by then — a transformation completely at odds with the student who used to sleep till noon, when the dorm's Hausmeister brought the mail and banged on Bernd's door with a loud "Aufstehen!" (get up).

Now, Bernd borrowed a bicycle and rode from Manhattan all the way out to Brighton Beach and back.

After finishing his law degree, Bernd moved back to Hachenburg, where he is the town's gentleman lawyer. Before our children were born, Chris and I visited there on any excuse we could. Our favorite trip coincided with Kirmess, the village's annual five-day celebration. OK, the torchlight parade in the marketplace made us nervous, but the beer tent with a live band was a special treat.

In another year, Bernd met us in Ireland, where he trained for his first triathlon on rough country roads. We'd get daily updates as we met locals in the village.

"I saw your German jogging on the mountain road this morning."

"I saw him cycle past the creamery at lunchtime."

And he freely admitted that the best part of swimming across the harbor was climbing up onto the pier in front of the pub, where somebody always handed him a pint of Murphy's for his efforts.

There were always women in Bernd's life; the phrase "serial monogamy" seemed custom-made for him. City girls, local girls, college girls, working girls, and he eluded all their attempts at marrying him. Then, last year, the Christmas card came.

"There are signs and miracles in the world," he wrote. "I asked a woman to marry me, and she said yes."

In the finest tradition of the man who avoids marriage, he'd met and fallen for Sabine with lightning speed, and so we planned a summer vacation around his wedding. We thought of all we'd show our kids on this trip: a different language, a foreign culture, incredibly high-fat foods and the wonderful custom of coffee and cake at four every afternoon, half-timbered houses and ancient castles.

But even more important, I wanted to show them a strong friendship. I wanted them to know that a friendship can endure across a cultural and language gaps, across an ocean, and across the years, until one day, years later, you dance with joy at your great friend's wedding.

Bethlehem women training for fund-raiser marathon

By Katherine McCarthy

On Oct. 25, Bethlehem residents Lisa Finkle and Ruth Wallens will be in Dublin, Ireland.

They won't be sitting comfortably in the Abbey Theater or perusing Irish art at the National Gallery, though; they'll be running in their first marathon, a Leukemia Society Team in Training event that raises money to fight the disease.

Finkle and Wallens, like all of the other runners, will be wearing bracelets with the name of the leukemia patient whose struggle they will honor by running the marathon. Both are running in honor of two local children with leukemia, and the thought of those children has helped them train for their first marathon.

"I think about how difficult training for this was, and then I think about how difficult it must be to be 6 years old and have leukemia," Finkle said.

In addition, Wallens is running in honor of a friend with cancer. "It's not leukemia," Wallens said, "but I was feeling like I wanted to help."

Wallens' honoree is 8-year-old Nick Amirault of Glenmont, who was diagnosed with leukemia just before his 4th birthday, and is now in remission.

"This month marks one year since he's been off chemo," said Nick's mother, Mary Amirault.

Nick's road has been nearly as long as the one Finkle and Wallens will run; after his diagnosis, he was hospitalized for a week, followed by a year of intense chemotherapy treatments and medication at home. His monthly hospital visits now will mostly monitor the effects of the treatment on his growth and hormones.

"We take it a day at a time," Amirault said.

Wallens talked Finkle into participating in the marathon, which suited her. "I recently turned 40," Finkle said, "and in the back of my mind, I wanted to do something I'd never done before. This gives me a chance to do that, and to do something for someone else at the same time."

Although Team in Training holds marathons — and 100-mile bike rides — in different locales, both women chose Dublin because they had the option to walk it.

"We thought at first we'd be running and walking," Finkle said, "but now we're hoping to run all 26.2 miles."

Both women were relatively fit when they started training, although neither had run more than two or three miles.

It was when running nine to 10 miles became comfortable that we started to think we could run the whole race," Wallens said.

They started training in April, increasing their distances by 10 percent a week.

"It's a job," Finkle said. "You have to keep running. On a day when I would normally say I have too much to do, I know I have to run."

Now, the women are running four or five days a week, with one long run on the weekend.

"We did 16 miles, then rested and did 10 the next week," Wallens said. "Ten seemed like we hadn't run at all."

With the marathon fast approaching, they are now tapering down to shorter runs, letting their bodies heal, and starting to stock up on carbohydrates.

Katherine McCarthy

Both credit Team in Training with supporting them along the way. Siena College track coach Jim Bowles has mentored Finkle and Wallens as they prepare for the race. In addition to offering technique suggestions, Bowles has also supplied professional advice when Wallens had tendonitis and lost four weeks of training.

"I had my doubts as to whether I'd be able to run in the marathon, but could call Jim ... he told me, week to week, how to build back up again," Wallens said.

Runners have met on Sundays for Team in Training group runs, ensuring that everyone has someone to run with.

Since the marathon raises money for the Leukemia Society, both women had personal goals of raising $4,200.

"So many people have helped," said Wallens, who has raised about $5,000. "It's amazing how easy it is to raise money for a good cause. I've had people thank me for doing this."

Finkle, with about $6,000 in donations, said people have asked her if they could donate.

Both women said their families have supported them. Wallens, a freelance writer, and her husband, Bill, have two children, Max, 8, and Zach, 11. Finkle and her husband, Bruce, are the parents of three children, Ben, 11, Evan, 8, and Brianna, 6.

"It's good for the kids to see us doing things like this," Finkle said.

When the marathon is over, both women will probably continue running. Wallens admits to being bitten by the marathon bug, and can see herself continuing. Finkle said this one is enough for her.

"I'd like to keep doing 10 to 15 kilometer runs," she said, "but this was all-consuming. The time factor is too big when you're raising kids."

Both women agree, though, that they will finish the Dublin marathon. "We're close enough in time that we've agreed we'll try to stick together," Finkle said.

"People are trying to help," Wallens added. "Everyone's doing it for someone else."

The President proclaimed that "the era of big government is over!" That message has fallen on the deaf ears of the Albany Political Machine. Albany County has 39 legislators which makes it the biggest county legislature in the entire state of New York.

Reducing the size of the legislature from 39 to 19 would save you and your neighbors more than $300,000 per year. The money could be used for:

Family farm dilemma

The O'Connell family, whose land abuts Voorheesville high school, is literally in a tough spot. They are fighting the district's attempt to take more of their land by eminent domain. The situation is currently in limbo, although the state department of Agriculture & Markets has indicated the acquisition would hurt farmers in the area.

Editorials

But the O'Connell's argument goes beyond that. The family believes their rights as private property owners is being impinged upon. They also believe that should the land be taken, their privacy would be jeopardized.

Their argument has some validity, since the district's proposal would plunk an athletic field within 50 feet of their home. The O'Connells sold the land for the existing school and playing fields many years ago, never thinking they would be forced to give up more of it.

We think the family's rights in this instance should be given serious consideration. Perhaps the district needs to go back to the drawing board to determine whether taking the O'Connell land is the only alternative expansion possibility.

Too many farms and too much farmland have already gone the way of bricks and mortar, and this, in a sense erodes America's agricultural history. Of course, this is not to say that our children don't deserve the best we can give them educationally, but our children also need to know an important part of their heritage — that of a country steeped in agricultural roots and the rights of individuals.

Already winners

Lisa Finkle of Delmar and Ruth Wallens of Slingerlands will be off to the Emerald Isle later this month. But it's not just a run of the mill vacation they're planning; they'll be running in a marathon to raise money to support leukemia research.

These two women illustrate what makes this community so special, which, in essence, gives more than lip service to the golden rule.

Both women, who admittedly are not seasoned runners, have been training for months to prepare for the marathon. When they suffer some of the inevitable pain of training for a 26-mile run, both say they think of the person they're running in honor of, which gives them the courage to continue.

We wish them well and extend our support and thanks for they're willingness to do something for their dedication to the leukemia patients they are running for.

These women have truly shown us what it means to be winners.

NiMo offers heating safety tips

By Mark Frank

The author is crisis communications coordinator for Niagara Mohawk.

With the arrival of autumn and cooler temperatures, Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. advises its customers to be aware of a few basic guidelines when it comes to using natural gas safely.

Natural gas energy has an excellent safety record. However, safely using any energy source requires an understanding of the specific fuel and how to use it properly.

Natural gas is not manufactured but formed naturally from the decayed matter of plants and animals that lived millions of years ago. While natural gas is composed of several different kinds of gases, its main ingredient is methane a nonpoisonous but highly combustible gas.

Like any fuel, natural gas is safe as long as it is used properly. Failure to properly install and maintain natural gas heating equipment (or any heating equipment) can cause an explosion or fire or produce deadly carbon monoxide.

Niagara Mohawk crews are continually testing, repairing and improving the underground natural gas delivery system. Despite the company's best efforts, the chance exists that, at some point, a gas leak could occur in or near a building or structure. Many times, gas leaks are caused when the ground heaves as it freezes and thaws.

Niagara Mohawk adds a harmless odor to natural gas so customers can tell if there is a gas leak in or near their home. Here are the steps to follow should a natural gas leak occur:

- Call Niagara Mohawk immediately at 1-800-892-2345 if a faint odor of gas is detected. Call any time you think that you may have a gas leak. A faint smell of gas is never OK.

- If the gas odor is strong — or if a hissing sound is heard — get all occupants to leave immediately. From a neighbor's telephone, call Niagara Mohawk at 1-800-892-2345 to report the smell of gas.

- Do not call from inside your home or use your telephone for any purpose. Do not strike a match or switch on lights or any electric appliances. Any of these may cause a spark that could start a fire or an explosion.

- Do not allow anyone to return to your home until Niagara Mohawk tells you that it is safe.

- Never try to put out a fire that you suspect may be caused by escaping gas. Don't try to control it — instead, leave immediately.

Carbon monoxide is a highly poisonous gas — the same substance that comes out of a car's exhaust pipe. It is produced by the incomplete combustion of common fuels. If unattended, carbon monoxide build-up can cause severe illness and even death. The problem can be especially severe during the coldest weather, when houses are closed up tight and heating units run much of the time. Elderly people, people with illnesses, children, and anyone who spends most of the time indoors during the winter are especially susceptible.

Carbon monoxide build-up and poisoning are most often caused when a heating appliance is not working properly. Here are some important suggestions you can take to protect yourself, your family and your home:

- Before the heating season starts, have any fuel-burning furnaces, space heaters, water heaters or fireplaces checked by a professional heating contractor to make sure vents are properly installed and clear. All gas heating appliances and your water heater must be vented to the outdoors. Make sure that the contractor also inspects your chimney flue.

- If converting an existing furnace to natural gas, have the furnace flue inspected at the time of installation. Then have it inspected again the following heating season, and periodically after that.

- Never use your natural gas oven for space heating. It is designed for cooking purposes only.

Carbon monoxide is colorless, odorless, tasteless and nearly impossible to detect. Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning are similar to the flu and include headaches, weakness, confusion, tightness of the chest, redness of the skin, dizziness, nausea, sleepiness, fluttering of the heart and loss of muscle control.

If you suspect that carbon monoxide poisoning is occurring in your home, take these steps immediately:

- Turn off your furnace. Do not restart it until the furnace and flue have been inspected and are determined by a professional heating contractor to be safe.

- Open windows and doors to ventilate living areas.

- Go outside and breathe deeply.

- If symptoms are severe, get immediate medical attention.

BCHS student resents store's 'discrimination'

Editor, The Spotlight:

This letter is about the harsh discrimination faced by BCHS students when entering Stewart's at the corner of Delaware and Cherry avenues.

The store will not permit more than five students to enter at a time, in fear we may steal something.

However, adults are allowed to enter in as large a group as desired. Hasn't it ever occurred to the owner of Stewart's that adults could just as easily shoplift as any high schooler?

Six teen-agers do not make a criminal, so it's not the number that they're worried about, shouldn't they be worried about the entire number of people that they let into the store?

But that's not the case; they're just worried about the entire number of teen-agers they let into the store. When people enter the store, only the teen-agers are being watched, in which case, isn't everyone more likely to steal something?

Is the owner of Stewart's ignorant or just rude? What is being done is stereotypical and wrong. If this is not illegal, then it should be.

Not only is Stewart's losing money by doing this, they are losing the respect of me and many of my fellow classmates. I hope whoever made this decision will reconsider.

Writer was off base about planners

Editor, The Spotlight:

I must comment on Helene Sovern's letter in the Sept. 29 edition. Her understanding of the role and responsibility of town government boards and officials in regulating development is confused and mistaken.

First, she is critical of the Bethlehem town planning board for not preventing new housing subdivisions. The planning board has no power to prohibit developments. Its role under the law is to ensure that they are built in compliance with zoning, highway, water, sewer and other requirements.

Certain developments, which by virtue of their environmental impact have a significant effect on school populations, would be subject to review under the State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA).

To assume that no members of the planning board have children, and therefore don't care about issues that impact schools, implies a terrible level of subjectivity in the work they do.

Then she finds fault with "the same people" for being down on the new Stewart's near the high school. That, however, was a matter that came before the Bethlehem zoning board of appeals, not the planning board.

Finally, she appears to assume that the planning board has some role in approving a private contract to lease retail space in Delaware Plaza, a matter not subject to any such review. If Ms. Sovern has a problem with the type of store at Delaware Plaza, she needs to register her complaint with the owner of the plaza. This is not a matter under the jurisdiction of the planning board.

As regular readers know, news about the activities and responsibilities of the town's governmental boards and officials are well covered in this paper. It is difficult to understand what the point of the letter was, given the errors and misunderstandings noted above.

Selkirk resident raises concerns about RCS expansion plan

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am greatly concerned with all the, for lack of a better word, propaganda, that has touted in the local media and our school district concerning the proposed $50-million building project bond that the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk board of education is attempting to foist upon the residents of our district this December.

While it is too soon for me to say whether or not I can support this bond, I can recognize the "red flags" that I see with this bond and the way it is being presented, and I sincerely hope that my fellow residents of the RCS school district identify them as well.

The first red flag is the date of the proposed vote: December. Why the rush? Why is the district proposing to present this bond between Thanksgiving and Christmas, when people's minds are on the holidays, and the last thing they will be thinking about is a bond vote? This is too reminiscent of last year's bond vote on the removal of the storage tanks, which was held in July, two short months after the school board and budget vote, at a time when everyone was on vacation, so approximately 500 people or less than 1 percent of the eligible voting population, made the decision to put the entire district population $350,000 more into debt.

The second red flag is the disturbing fact that, in all the material being distributed by the district A (the Chalkboard), the price tag for the bond. Fifty million plus is conspicuous by its absence. Is the district having some difficulty defending this large amount of increased debt for district taxpayers?

The third red flag is the timing of the release of this proposal, a month before Election Day. Board President DeLuca is the Democratic candidate for the county Legislative seat, currently held by Peter Clouse. Is it possible that Mr. DeLuca is using his position as school board president to promote this bond in order to satisfy the needs of the district's special interest groups, groups Mr. DeLuca may feel he needs in his quest for office? While I doubt this is the case, the "cloud of suspicion" remains.

The fourth red flag is the heavy emphasis the district is placing on the fact that approximately 78 percent of this project is state aidable. Let's get that fallacy out of the way immediately: "state aidable" simply means that, instead of paying for the proposal through our property taxes only, we'll be paying for it through our income and sales tax payments as well as our property taxes. Maintenance for most of the project (between $120,000 and $200,000 annually for the pool alone) is not factored into the overall cost of the bond.

The fifth most alarming red flag is the lack of detail being presented by the district relevant to what exactly is contained in the bond. I have been fortunate to have obtained a copy of the Aug. 10, "Scope of Work and Budget Summary" for the project that was compiled by the architects, Dodge Chamberlin Luzine Weber Associates, which gives a line-by-line breakdown of how the money is going to be spent. There is some pretty scary stuff here. For example, $1.5 million is being proposed for air conditioning at the high school, with $112,000 of this allocated to the gym alone; $220,000 is allocated for a new concession stand/storage building, neither of which will be heated, and none of which is aidable — and the list goes on. Why have no dates been announced for public forums on this bond? Why are residents being denied access to the full picture of what they will be getting for their $50 million plus investment?

I would strongly recommend that every resident obtain a copy of the "Scope of Work" proposal. This should be available from the district office. If you have difficulty obtaining a copy, call me at 756-9098 and I'll be happy to get a copy to you.

We must all be better informed on this subject before the district attempts to ram this project down our throats. I would ask every resident to insist that the board of education schedule at least three open forums on the bond at various locations throughout the district and prior to the forums, make a detailed, line-by-line analysis of the expenditures available to the public in as many places as possible. An informed electorate is an intelligent electorate, so let's get the facts before we make up our minds on this important issue.

Diabetes walk organizer says thanks

Editor, The Spotlight:

When I looked over the sea of orange and black T-shirts worn by members of Bethlehem Cares, our townwide team that participated in the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation's Walk to Cure Diabetes on Sept. 26 at Corporate Woods in Albany, I knew we really do have a caring community.

A total of 128 people walked as part of Bethlehem Cares. So far, we have raised just over $14,500 and donations are still coming in! This was the first year for our team, and it looks like we raised more money than any other non-company team that participated in the walk. That's something that our community can be proud of.

In all, the walk drew about 3,000 walkers and more than 200 volunteers, and $350,000 was raised for diabetes research. The day was marked by great weather, great food and great entertainment. Everyone who came had a really good time raising money for a really good cause.

We would like to thank all of the members of the local business community that sponsored our team T-shirt, sold our paper sneakers, donated gift certificates and services and displayed our posters and brochures. We would like to extend special thanks to The Spotlight, which helped us to get the word out to people in our town, and to Father James Daley and the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle parish for their wonderful support.

If you participated in the walk as a member of Bethlehem Cares and want to share your thoughts or suggestions with us for next year, feel free to call us at 439-6894. If you did not participate but would like to make a donation to support research to find a cure for diabetes and its complications, it's not too late. Just send your check, made payable to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, to us at 65 Boylston Drive, Delmar 12054.

Once again, thanks to all.

NiMo clarifies storm work

Editor, The Spotlight:

A point of clarification on your coverage of Hurricane Floyd: While Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. sent crews to the lower Hudson Valley and metropolitan New York City in anticipation of the storm's arrival there, those crews were dispatched from our Syracuse and Buffalo areas.

Some of the crews never made it to their original destination, but instead were immediately diverted to the Capital District after the storm hit here. Others were pulled off duty in the New York City area and immediately traveled to the Capital District to restore power here to await a storm that turned out to be far worse than predicted.

During the course of restoring service in Eastern New York, our local forces were assisted by crews from throughout the Niagara Mohawk system, as well as by crews from Hydro Quebec, Northeast Utilities and private contractors.

And even though the storm caused extensive damage, our customers were patient and helpful, which was greatly appreciated by all who worked so hard to restore service.

Yard waste pickup begins this month

By Sharon Fisher

The writer is the town of Bethlehem recycling coordinator.

Properly prepared yard waste is picked up by the town of Bethlehem Highway Department or you can compost it in your back yard or leave lawn clippings on the lawn to save time, energy and add nitrogen to the soil.

Place yard waste curbside in reusable containers or paper bags. They should not weigh more than 50 pounds. Note that plastic bags are never allowed for yard waste.

Yard waste paper bags can be purchased three for $1 at all town facilities. Please put only natural plant waste in the bags or containers placed curbside.

Plastic flower pots, trays and plastic seed starters can not be composted or recycled. They do not belong with yard waste. Rocks, metal, toys or trash in yard waste containers or tape on bags might damage or clog the grinding equipment used at the town's new compost facility. Throw these items in the trash.

Finished compost and wood chips are available at Bethlehem Compost and Wood Chipping Facility, 1244 Feura Bush Road (Route 32) heading toward GE. Bring shovels and containers. There is leaf compost, screened and unscreened, and tons of wood chips.

The facility is open to residents and nonresidents, as well as commercial venues, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon. Our fall special is wood chips of any quantity, free of charge.

During spring cleanup (the month of April exclusively) and fall (about mid-October) leaves can be left loose curbside. Those are the only times that vacuum trucks are used. Year round, brush must be stacked neatly at curbside in lengths of not more than 6 feet. Do not obstruct the road with brush, leaves or grass piles.

There is a state vehicle and traffic law that states: "No person shall throw or deposit upon any highway any glass bottle, glass, nails, tacks, wire, cans snow or any other substance likely to injure any person, animal or vehicle upon such highway."

It also states, "any person who drops, or permits to be dropped or thrown, upon any highway any destructive or injurious material which interferes with the safe use of the highway shall immediately remove the same or cause it to be removed."

This law includes yard waste placed in the road. Please avoid accidents and prepare yard waste properly for curbside, not roadway pickup.

The topic for the final program on Nov. 4 will be pests around the home and their identification and control.

Displays feature local artists' talent

Judy Larkin's multi-disciplinary interests are reflected in the watercolors displayed in the southwest gallery this month. "Living Seasons" uses painting and poetry to illustrate our Northeastern seasons.

Larkin also includes a fifth group of paintings that represent the seasons of the human life and mind.

She began her professional life as a composer and music teacher. Her poetry grew out of the composition of musical lyrics and liturgical works. Lately her schedule "has allowed the long-awaited space" to pursue graphic arts in several media. She credits Five Rivers Environmental Education center with providing the inspiration for her painting and poetry. The Center recently awarded her a first prize in its first art and photography show.

Larkin is a member of the Bethlehem Art Association and has shown her work at various area locations.

In the northwest gallery, Jean Eaton's exhibit "Birds and Such" reflects her particular interest in our Northeastern avian friends. She has painted birds for the New York Audubon Society's Hollyhock Sanctuary in Selkirk and the U.S. Golf Association commissioned six ink drawings for publication in conjunction with its national nest box program for golf courses.

A past president of the Bethlehem Art Association, Eaton has won the association's People Choice award and several honors at local juried exhibitions. She is also an active gardener — an interest which has strongly influenced her art.

The Birchenough case honors Decorative Painting Month with the work of various decorative artists. The exhibitors are members of the Capitolers, the local chapter of the National Society of Decorative Painters. Later this month (Oct. 21) the library continues the theme with a demonstration of decorator block painting and glazes by library staff member Sue Black. Call 439-9314 to register.

The smaller display case features photos, instruments, trophies and history of the Adamsville Ancients Fife & Drum Corps. The youth services case displays Jesse Pulitzer Kennedy's miniature car collection.

The bulletin board display promotes our October film festival

"Exit Laughing" (Oct. 8 to 10) with a lecture on the subject Oct. 14 — Call 439-9314 for information and to register.

The festival celebrates State Humanities Month and is made possible with funds from the New York Council for the Humanities and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Physically Speaking

by Nick Valenze, P.T.

WOMEN ATHLETES' KNEES

According to the National Collegiate Athletic Association, women who play soccer and basketball experience 3-5 times as many anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) injuries as their male counterparts. The ACL controls the pivoting motion of the knee and, along with the hamstring and quadricep muscles, helps stabilize the joint. If these muscles are not strengthened sufficiently, the ligament may bear more force than it can withstand and tear when the athlete jumps or twists. To withstand the twists and turns of aggressive sports, hamstring muscles should be at 60% to 70% as strong as the quadriceps in male athletes. In female athletes, the ratio stands at 45% to 55%, because women tend to rely more on their quadriceps when jumping and pivoting.

Sidelined by injuries caused by accidents or overuse? We help athletes, sports stars and weekend warriors to get back in the game in the shortest possible time...and stay there. If your recovery isn't progressing as fast as you'd wish, or if you are experiencing soreness, pain, or reduced physical ability, ask your physician for a referral. ## Delmar man named distinguished professor Daniel C. Levy of Delmar, an internationally renowned scholar of Latin American and comparative politics and of higher educational policy has been appointed to the rank of distinguished professor by the SUNY board of trustees.

The designation is the highest a state university educator can attain and is a rank above that of full professor.

Levy has been a University at Albany faculty member since 1981 and he's joint appointments in the departments of educational administration and policy studies (EAPS), and Latin American and Caribbean studies, and an affiliated appointment in the department of political science. He is also a member of the university's Public Policy Program.

Levy's research focuses on discovering and analyzing the strength and resiliency of civil society, where it is typically ignored or underestimated.

Considered an authority on higher educational privatization, he is also recognized for his work in Third Sector (nonprofit organizations outside the public and for-profit private sectors) studies.

He has lectured at nearly all the leading universities in the United States, and in Africa, East Asia and Europe.

Levy's books have been translated widely and critically acclaimed. Among them are Education and the State in Latin America: Private Challenges to Public Dominance (1986); Building the Third Sector (1996); and Myth, Reality, and Reform: Higher Education Policy in Latin America (1999).

He is now working with co-author K. Bruhn on a new book, "Mexico and the Struggle for Democratic Development."

Levy has a doctorate in political science from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

His work has attracted international recognition, including visiting professorships and competitive fellowships from organizations such as the Ford, Mellon, and Spencer foundations, as well as three Fulbright awards.

Levy said he was gratified by the distinguished professorship appointment. He added that he enjoys teaching and particularly his interaction with students.

"Most of the EAPS students are professionals in their fields," he said. "Together, we tackle the challenge of interrelating practical knowledge and broader concepts."

Eagles grounded as Niskayuna's Nappi runs wild

By Noah Feit

On a pleasant autumn evening, the Bethlehem Central High School (0-5) football team was ambushed on its annual homecoming game. Before a highly vocal massive crowd, the Eagles were blown away by Niskayuna High School (4-1), eventually losing 32-0.

After fumbling away the game opening kickoff to the Silver Warriors the Eagles never had a chance. By the game's third play from scrimmage Niskayuna had a 7-0 lead it would never relinquish. Leading the Silver Warriors charge was supremely talented junior running back Chris Nappi. The diminutive dynamo averaged over eight-yards per carry and scored four touchdowns in Niskayuna's rout over BCHS, three running and one on a half-back option pass. As if his offensive exploits were not enough Nappi also played wicked defense from his linebacking position and held for all of Niskayuna's kicking attempts. Leading by 32 points at the half Niskayuna took mercy on the Eagles and did not play Nappi in the second half, curtailing what might have been a 300-yard rushing evening for the junior.

Bethlehem tried to counter the Niskayuna assault with a trio of its own runners, but could do little early when the game was still close. Seniors Joe Donnelly and Eamon McNiff teamed with sophomore Pat Heenan to lead

Bethlehem Central High School defenders Dan Santola (66) and Steve Hallock (78) have to team up in order to tackle Niskayuna High School's elusive running back, Chris Nappi, in Friday evening's game. Niskayuna beat the Eagles in their homecoming game 32-0. Jim Franco the Eagles charge. Unfortunately, the threesome had little success living up to the laurels of their opponent. In the second half, with the game out of reach, senior Chris Pace gave the crowd something to cheer about when he blasted through the line on a series of big runs for BCHS.

Defensively, the Eagles were on their heels all night long. Bethlehem did not help itself with a series of damaging turnovers that added fuel to the Niskayuna fire, giving the Silver Warriors more opportunities to continue their relentless onslaught. Seniors Dan Santola and Tim Cronin along with sophomore Dan Hazen did their best to pace the Eagles defense. The trio was rather formidable in the second half as they shut out Niskayuna who had numerous chances, but could not capitalize.

This Saturday the Eagles will attempt to capture their first win of the season when they travel to Burnt Hills for a matinee game at 2 p.m.

Lady Plainsmen field hockey team squeaks by Bethlehem

By Noah Feit

The spectators at Friday's varsity field hockey game between the Shenendehowa High School Lady Plainsmen (4-2) and Bethlehem Central High School Lady Eagles (4-5) had no idea that the final outcome of the game would be decided within the first minute. Capitalizing on an early Bethlehem defensive lapse, Shen's Lindsay Wolk blistered a stroke, set up by a pass from Danielle Wilbur, into the Eagles goal past a sprawling Kelly Cheeseman. Shen had an early lead, which the Lady Plainsmen would make stand up for the duration of the contest, winning 1-0.

Set against the backdrop of a blossoming autumn at BCHS, the game had a picturesque quality. The action that unfolded on the field was not quite as lovely. Rugged defensive intensity and a muddy playing field inhibited the two teams from playing an aesthetically beautiful game.

"Tough field conditions really hurt the offense," Shen head coach Deb Frevola said after her squad's victory.

Both teams were forced to deal with the quagmire beneath them and adjusted as best as they could. Although it was the Lady Plainsmen who scored early, it was Bethlehem who dominated the majority of the action.

Rebounding from the early deficit, the Lady Eagles were led by senior forwards Alissa Kind and Betsy Drake, who forced much of the action deep in the Shenendehowa zone, in front of the Lady Plainsmen's cage. Despite some trouble handling passes and setting up quality shots, Bethlehem fired away with a flurry of strokes. Under heavy fire, the ironically named Shen goalkeeper Lauren Salvo distinguished herself as a premier net minder deflecting all shots as she shielded her cage.

Despite BCHS's furious effort to draw even, the first half ended with Shen maintaining the upper hand. As the second stanza began, there was more ebb and flow to the contest's action. Both teams took turns firing away at each other's goals, only to be denied after taking what certainly seemed to be sure scores. Along with the two stingy goalies, the game's most valuable players were its midfielders. Players like Bethlehem's Katie Riegel would create turnovers and reverse the direction of play while others like Shen's Abby Copeland set up plays with long, accurate passing strokes to advancing forwards. But it was the play of BCHS's courageous captain Becky Hoghe that best captured the essence of the game.

After dominating a good deal of the action on defensive and in the midfield zones throughout the first half, Hoghe suffered a serious injury when she collided with a Shen player in a mad scramble for a loose ball. To make matters worse, Hoghe was struck on the head by a stick as she collapsed to the ground. In obvious pain, Hoghe mustered up the strength to leave the field under her own power after receiving what appeared to be a serious injury. Damaged and dazed, Hoghe fought through the pain and returned to the game in a valiant effort to help her team. Unfortunately for Bethlehem it was not to be. Shen was able to make its early goal stand up.

"The early defensive breakdown negated a phenomenal effort and cost us the game," disheartened Bethlehem head coach Kat Cunningham said.

This week the Lady Eagles will attempt to bounce back from the loss as they host Cossack-Athens on Oct. 4, on the road at Burnt Hills on Oct. 6 and back at home for Columbia on Oct. 8. All games are scheduled to start at 4 p.m.

Bethlehem Pop Warner teams valiant in victory and defeat

Bethlehem Pop Warner's Sea Hawks of the Mighty Mite Division lost its second game of the season 6-0 to the Ravena Indians on Sept. 19. After surrendering an early score the Sea Hawks shut out the Indians for the final three-quarters of the game. Some of the defensive stalwarts included Matt Cerone, Ted Abriel, Mike Bonacci, Sean Quinlan and Justin Notaro.

The quarterback tandem of Sean Kennelly and Andrew Bettinger thrilled the fans with a few exciting plays and were nicely complimented by gainers from

John Taber, Jack Kenny and Nicholas Youngblood.

In other Pop Warner action, the Junior Midget squad traveled to Ballston Spa to play the Scotties. Unfortunately, the Hawks were overmatched by a tough Scottie squad, eventually losing 31-0. Despite the final outcome of the game the Hawks were received fine performances from Matt McKenna, Ryan Eder, Dan Mulhall and Brian Ira.

The Hawks were 0-3 on the season when they entered what turned out to be their matchup most exciting game of the season on Oct. 3. Playing against the tough Saratoga Colts, the Hawks found themselves buried in a deep hole trailing 20-0 at the half. What appeared to be a rout in the making was changed when the Hawks looked more like a phoenix as they rose from the ashes and came out fired up for the second half. Bethlehem scored three straight touchdowns, shocking the Colts with a suddenly explosive offense and a tenacious defense.

Craig Orner ignited the second half explosion when he scored the first Hawks touchdown. Soon thereafter, Orner was joined in the scoring column by Geoff Wilcox and McKenna, who sparked the raucous crowd when he plowed through the line en route to a 36-yard touchdown scamper.

The Hawks defense was resurgent as well, when they stifled the previously fluent Colts attack. Bethlehem's stingy defensive line led the way when Neal Plummer, Daniel Klob, Ryan Murphy and Prescott Heighton acted like a brick wall. Other defensive stalwarts included sack master Matt Carroll, Tim Hannigan, Steve Hannigan and Mulhall, who recorded a big interception.

Unfortunately for the Hawks, the deficit was too great to overcome. After turning in a sensational performance for much of the second half, the Colts were able to notch one last score as time expired, defeating the Hawks 26-18.

The game was best summed up when Carroll said, "We weren't prepared in the first half. We came out ready in the second, it was just a little too late."

Also in play for Bethlehem Pop Warner were the PeeWee division Condors who lost a back-and-forth struggle to Belmont 14-0. With the exception of two lapses, the Condors played strong defensive football. Maintaining their exceptional defensive play, the Condors squad bounced back as the PeeWee division team recorded the first win for Bethlehem Pop Warner this season.

The Condors shut out the Rotterdam Raiders 16-0 on Oct. 3 to gain their second victory in a row. Bethlehem used a total team effort as it dominated the Raiders from the opening kickoff on offense and defense. Joe Parafore, Matt Johnson and Dan Unright all gained yardage for the Condors, while Nick Gonino played the role of game breaker as he scored on two long touchdown runs.

Bethlehem did not squander the lead as the defense anchored by Ryan Cerone, Patrick Bergquist, Will DeRuve, Chris Massie and Ryan Cassidy kept Rotterdam off of the scoreboard. Both Johnson and Bergquist snared interceptions and Unright made a sensational touchdown saving tackle to preserve the white washing.

Look for Bethlehem Pop Warner action every weekend in the upcoming months.

A WONDERFUL PLAY OF COLOR

It is quite appropriate that opal, which is known for its unsurpassed display of color, should be the birthstone for the autumnal month of October. Its characteristically unusual, intense display of flashing colors owes itself to its unique formation process, which is different from that of other gems. It is opal's internal composition of hydrated silica spheres that create the light interference needed to produce the mini-rainbows seen from without. The arrangement of the spheres, which vary in size and pattern, is responsible for the different colors. Because there is little to be gained by faceting opal, it is invariably seen either cut flat or cabochon. The more brilliant the color, the more valuable this gemstone.

Opal, October's birthstone, has been described as "made up of the glories of the most precious gems... the gentler fire of the ruby, the rich purple of the amethyst, the sea-green of the emerald, glittering together..." If you are looking to increase the treasures in your jewelry collection, we suggest a visit to JOYELLES JEWELERS, 318 Delaware Ave., in the Main Square Shoppes, to see our selection of this most unusual gemstone. When you see something you particularly like, put it on our "Wish List" so we can "hint" to anyone shopping for a special gift for you what you'd like.

RCS high to host annual open house

The annual open house for parents and community members will be held on Thursday, Oct. 7, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Senior High School on Route 9W in Ravena.

The open house begins with a chance to meet the principal, after which participants can then report to homerooms and follow each child's schedule.

bridges. Collectively those funds dropped slightly, owing mainly to the fact that last year's budget included emergency road repairs that are not anticipated next year.

After the overall salary increase, the largest new expense in the budget is a proposed $26,200 added to the parks department appropriation for a new truck and for repairs to the tennis courts at Wallace Park and the soccer field at Feura Bush Park.

More than $15,000 in additional funds will be allocated to upgrade computers in the town clerk's office, to the building department to improve computerized mapping, and to network all of town hall's computers. Similar increases for the highway department will fund new vehicles as well as the first full year for a new highway employee recently added to the payroll, and a new deputy animal control officer will be hired.

Additional four-figure increases will help pay for a rise in auditing fees, mandated by changes in federal regulations, and rising insurance costs for the town's historical society. Also leading to increases are the proposed hiring of a part-time handyman for town hall, and roof repairs for the community center in New Salem.

Debt service will remain essentially the same. A bond note for purchase of a highway grader was paid in full two years ahead of schedule, out of a higher-than-expected fund balance this year. That will offset the cost of Krumkill Road repairs being added to the debt.

A paper decrease for ambulance services resulted from last year's one-time-only early payment of the ALS charge to Albany County. A similar drop resulted from Project Hope's family services for children being paid for out of Family Court funds, thereby removing the cost of the program from the town budget. Other modest savings will be made in the youth services budget for a summer youth soccer program at Clarksville Elementary School that never materialized.

Reilly said he was pleased with the modest increases, compared to the reduction in tax assessments.

"We're doing quite well on sales tax, showing an increase of revenues of more than $28,000 for the first two quarters of this year alone, but we've budgeted conservatively," Reilly said.

Land

O'Connell pointed out that the 20 acres of his land that adjoin the school are his best; much of the rest of his property is wetlands.

O'Connell moved into his house in 1967, after having lived across the street for a number of years. He raised four children, all of whom attended private schools, as O'Connell wanted them to have a Catholic education.

His sister, Ellen Corcoran, moved onto an acre of the land in 1973, where she and her husband, Tom, built a home, and raised four children, all of whom attended Voorheesville schools.

"We only took 1 acre," Corcoran said, "because it was all we needed, and we knew the rest of the land was right here."

If the school district is successful in its acquisition of the property, and if district voters approve a $16.9-million bond proposal to finance proposed additions, playing fields will run up to a new property line at the O'Connell and Corcoran homes.

"We built a beautiful garden, and a terrace so we could take advantage of the view of the fields and the mountain," Corcoran said. "We sit out and listen to the opera. We hear the soccer games, the band, and the football, but it's still a distance away, and we don't see it. What will we do when they play soccer games at 4 p.m. in the afternoon, and when summer soccer's under way?"

Corcoran gestured toward pine trees that shield the high school from view. "I know the kick board is over there," she said. "My kids helped paint it. We hear the whistles, and know the games are being played. But never in my wildest dreams did I imagine that it would be 50-feet outside my door."

Corcoran spent years attending school sporting events, and her son Justin, a lawyer who has spoken on his uncle's behalf at school board meetings, helped coach soccer at the school.

"The too-bad part of this is that I'm not anti-education, and I'm not anti-sports," Corcoran said. "I taught social studies. My husband is a former music teacher. We believe strongly in all of it. We also love our property, we love how private it is, and we love the security. Plus, this is a working farm, and more farms are dependent on it."

The land clearly evokes strong memories for Corcoran.

"My father was 42 when he died," she said. "I was 11. The first summer we were here, we had a garden. He helped me plant the lettuce, and showed me where to pick wild strawberries in the field. In the winter, we would ice skate where it's wet. We had a raft in the middle of the ice to sit on, and sometimes we'd see beaver."

"As you get older," Corcoran said, "the land means more to you. You gain sensitivity to time, place and beautiful things. It's so gorgeous here. You come outside and feel a sense of being and where you belong."

O'Connell is resolved to fight to keep his land in whatever way he can. As part of the eminent domain proceedings, the state Department of Agriculture & Markets has prohibited the school district from taking final action on its acquisition plans before Nov. 3, by which time Ag & Markets will make its recommendations.

The school board has postponed plans to hold a bond referendum vote on Nov. 24, to consider those recommendations.

O'Connell called this development a "substantial start." He rejected the board's repeated claim that the high school needs additional space.

"The space claim is bogus," O'Connell said, "and they won't admit that yet. They say the laws about space requirements were made in the '70s, and aren't applicable any more. That's the law, though. The laws we live under were made in the 1700s; do they want to reject those? They've contrived to present a false need."

O'Connell is also concerned that if the plan goes through, the district could decide to put a bus garage on the property, which already contains plans for an access road. The district removed the garage from the architect's plans, but O'Connell remains concerned.

"Once the land is theirs, it's theirs," Corcoran added.

The siblings also pointed out that the land will need a fair amount of work to overcome an existing slope. "We used to tobaggan where they plan to build playing fields," she said.

Corcoran also talked about state aid, which would pay 71 percent of the project's costs. "I thought state aid was to standardize learning opportunities," she said, adding that state aid comes from tax dollars.

"It's a difficult situation," O'Connell said. "It's not the truth that we're the bad people. It's also a double-edged sword. We pay our taxes, and now we have to pay legal fees to try and keep our land."

O'Connell said he has heard from people who do not want the district to take his land.

"People will see the truth," he said. "They're an intelligent community, and they'll be able to make up their minds about how to vote on this project."

Sister Anne Smollin, author of Jiggle Your Heart and Tickle Your Soul and How to Like What You See in the Mirror, will speak at Bethlehem Central Middle School's media center on Tuesday, Oct. 19, at 7:30 pm. Her topic will be Respect for All.

In recent months, communities throughout the country have been reacting to tragedies involving our youth. We have seen how hate and mistrust of differences have caused young people to erupt in violence.

Smollin will discuss the importance of respect for self and others, and how this leads to recognition and appreciation of diversity.

There are no simple answers to our nation's recent tragic events, however we can work together to promote respectful behaviors in our community.

Smollin is always interesting and entertaining, and everyone is invited to the program.

CALENDARS ♦ ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Autumn in the Northeast means leaf-peeping season. The three-day Columbus Day weekend, at the height of peak color for much of the Capital District and the North Country, affords an opportunity for a voyage of discovery to sample the spectacle, only slightly diminished by the summer-long drought and still a feast for the eyes.

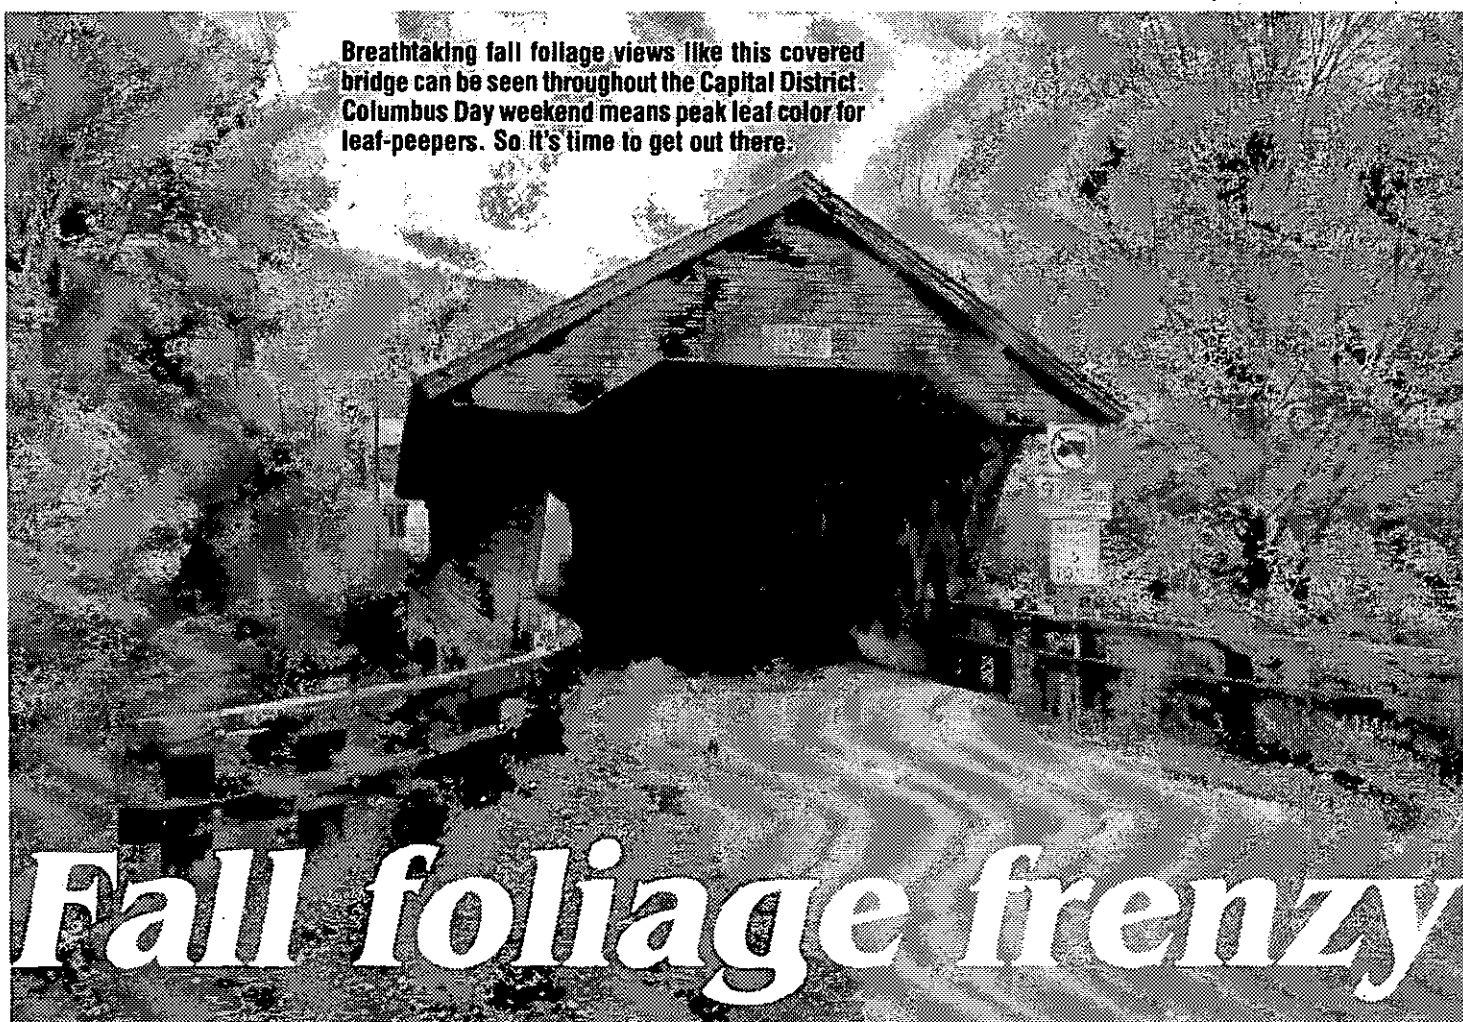

A few suggestions for sampling the local color:

Take The Long View. Several sites offer spectacular vistas easily reachable from the Capital District.

In fact, one such vista is squarely in the heart of downtown Albany. On a clear day, the Observation Deck on top of the Erastus Corning Tower, the tallest building in Empire State Plaza and the tallest in the state north of Manhattan, offers in October a 360-degree panorama of the Capitol District swathed in nature's coat of many colors.

A car ride into the Helderbergs, down Route 85 in New Scotland, can lead to another spectacular view, from the overlooks atop the Helderberg Escarpment in John Boyd Thacher State Park. The wooded plain that stretches out below the cliffs is visible as far as Albany in the distance. But Thacher offers the added advantage of a close-up view in the picnic areas around the park. Barring inclement weather, the Indian Ladder Trail, which hugs the base of the cliffs, is open for an easy hike. And you can't beat a roadside stop on the way back home at the Toll Gate in Slingerlands to savor one last home-made ice cream cone before the onset of winter.

A bit further afield, Prospect Mountain on the edge of Lake George offers a short drive up Veterans Memorial highway to what is known locally as the Hundred-Mile View. It truly earns the moniker on Columbus Day weekend, showing off from its 2000-foot-plus summit not only the Breathtaking fall foliage views like this covered bridge can be seen throughout the Capital District. Columbus Day weekend means peak leaf color for leaf-peepers. So it's time to get out there.

Fall foliage frenzy

High Peaks region but the Green and White Mountains of New England to the east and the village of Lake George spread out below. There is also a mile-and-a-half hiking trail to the summit for the more hardy, following an old railway bed.

Leave The Driving To Others. Speaking of Lake George, the Lake George Steamboat Company offers daily cruises departing from the Steel Pier in the village on three lake steamers to view the fall foliage from shipboard.

A two-hour luncheon cruise aboard the "Lac du Saint Sacrement" departs daily at noon through Oct. 24, and on Sunday, Oct. 10, the season's final champagne brunch cruise will bubble forth. The daily cruises on The "Mohecan" to Paradise Bay, a secluded spot on the far northern end of the lake, a two-and-a-quarter-hour excursion that departs at 2:15, will wrap up with the Columbus Day holiday.

So will the Saturday and Sunday one-hour jaunts aboard the paddle wheeler "Minne-Ha-Ha", with five or six departures daily; the paddle wheeler will add a Monday schedule for Columbus Day. "Minne-Ha-Ha" also sets sail for a Friday evening fireworks cruise on Oct. 9 at 8:30 p.m. For information on schedules and prices, call 668-5777.

Deeper into the North Country, Old Forge Lake Cruises offers a two-and-a-half-hour journey aboard the "Clearwater" and the "Uncas" through the Fulton Chain of Lakes, and Columbus Day Weekend is the last hurrah of the summer season. Four fall foliage cruises depart daily over the weekend from Old Forge, which can be reached via Route 28, either at Exit 23 on the Northway or from Route 12 off Exit 31. For schedule and fare information, call 315-369-6473.

One can also reach Old Forge by taking the Adirondack Scenic Railroad out of Utica, which has two trips a day on Saturday and Sunday. The two-hour train trip pulls into historic Thendara Station for a four-hour layover before returning. Several scenic excursions also depart from Thendara to visit the Adirondack wilderness if you prefer to keep your whole visit on the rails. For information, call 315-724-0700.

Operating from North Creek, the Upper Hudson River Railroad also offers weekend leaf peeping excursions throughout the month, departing from the historic station where Teddy Roosevelt learned that he would become president after the death of William McKinley. There's no better time of year to find out why T.R. was such a fan of the Adirondacks than the autumn, and a two-and-a-half-hour train ride along the Hudson to Riparius and back is a bully way to experience it. And the railroad offers discount fares for Columbus Day. Call 251-5334 for details.

Hit The Road. Leaf-peepers can load up the family van and hit the region's scenic highways and byways for a closer look at the changing colors. Some recommended routes: westward from Duaneburg out Route 20, turning south to take in Cooperstown on the shores of Otsego Lake; east into the Green Mountains by way of Route 7 out of Troy, turning north in Bennington toward Manchester; Route 2, the Mohawk Trail, winding through the Berkshires east of Williamstown; and along Routes 73 and 86 through Lake Placid in the North Country, winding up at High Falls Gorge, one of nature's wonders, to view its 600-foot waterfall.

Information on these and other scenic drives can be obtained by calling the state Division of Tourism at 1-800-CALL NYS, or through its Web site at <http://iloveny.state.ny.us>.

Columbus Parade steps lively in Albany

The beat will go on for marching bands attending this year's Columbus Parade scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 10.

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Coming at the peak of autumn, Columbus Day affords civic groups and Italian-American organizations in the area a dandy opportunity for picnics, festivals and family activities in the last gasp of a crisp Indian summer holiday weekend.

The largest of all such local observances is the Columbus Parade and Italian Festival set for Albany on Sunday, Oct. 10. Sponsored jointly by the City of Albany and private organizations including the Sons of Italy, the West Albany Italian Benevolent Society and the Italian Community Center, it is now in its eighth year and has become a draw for thousands for a day of music, family fun and, this being an Italian fest, food galore.

It all kicks off with a parade stepping off at 1 p.m. at South Main and Western avenues, heading down Western until it runs into Washington Park. This year's grand marshal for the parade is state Court of Appeals Justice Joseph Bellacosa, and Albany Mayor Gerry Jennings is the honorary chair of the Festival Committee.

Also joining the line of march will be more than a dozen bands, including high school units from Lansingburgh, Mohonasen and Christian Brothers Academy; the Albany Police Pipe Band, lending a Celtic flavor to the festivities; and musical entries including Brass-O-Mania, the Dixieland Ambassadors, the Yankee Doodle Band of Rensselaer and the Mechanicville Fiesta Band.

Marching units from many of the participating Italian organizations will mingle with classic cars, members of the Cyprus Temple Shriners, and floats from Proctor's Theatre and the Uncle Sam Pageant in Troy.

When the parade reaches its finale at the Washington Park Lakehouse, it kicks off a day-long fiesta of music, dancing, and Italian cuisine, with civic groups and vendors turning out in force. A beer and wine garden will be set up near the Lakehouse, and free games and rides for children are also available as the street festival, which organizers liken to the Big Apple's Feast of San Gennaro, continues until 6 p.m.

For information on the festivities, call 445-0711.

RID

"We are not protecting Mr. Gunner. His actions are entirely his own," Loomis said. "But I don't believe the school district has the legal option to connect the DWI arrest with his employment status."

Gunner's arrest took place shortly before midnight on Sept. 26. Bethlehem police Officer Brian Hughes observed Gunner's vehicle eastbound on Kenwood Avenue in the vicinity of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle.

According to the police report, Hughes pursued the vehicle after it crossed both center-line and shoulder markings, nearly struck a curb, and braked abruptly before turning onto Delmar Place without signaling. Hughes eventually stopped the vehicle on Fernbank Avenue near Keith Road.

After administering field sobriety tests on Gunner, Hughes attempted to place him under arrest. But Gunner's passenger, identified as Nancy Ellen Dunmore, 38, of 121 Kenwood Ave., Delmar, attempted to pull Gunner away from the officer as he was being handcuffed.

Officer Christopher Hughes, assisting at the scene, wrestled Dunmore to the ground. She suffered a bloody nose in the incident, for which she was later treated at Bethlehem police station by an Albany County paramedic, and then transported to St.

Peter's Hospital for evaluation.

According to arresting Officer Brian Hughes' report, Gunner subsequently resisted multiple attempts to force him into the police vehicle before finally being subdued. Hughes suffered an injured wrist in the incident, and both officers filed use-of-force reports with their supervisors.

Gunner, charged with resisting arrest and DWI, was ordered to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on Oct. 5. Dunmore was also charged with resisting arrest as well as obstruction of governmental administration, and was ordered to appear in Town Court on Oct. 19.

Martin expressed disappointment in the incident.

"When I heard that, I felt such a shame for our community. It was such a hurt," she said.

"This is Mr. Gunner's business, this is his problem," Loomis said. "But I don't appreciate the fact that it reflects on our district, our staff and our students."

He said he had received "several" calls and a letter at his offices urging action against Gunner, whose teaching certification was suspended for a year in 1993 by the state Education Department over charges of improper conduct involving a student.

Loomis said he anticipated no disciplinary action in this case. "It is my understanding that this is outside of the school day and has no bearing on his teaching responsibilities, and cannot have a bearing on his employment."

But Martin, noting "zero-tolerance" suspension policies in several other local school districts, disputed that.

"If he had been accused of public lewdness on a Saturday night, not connected with his school responsibilities, would he be allowed to stand before his students on Monday morning? Would (Loomis) then say, hey, what he does on Saturday night is no concern of mine? I don't think so," she said.

But while noting that he is entitled to the presumption of innocence until trial, Martin added, "They could have, without loss of pay, assigned him to different non-teaching duties until this is cleared up. They could have suspended him with pay. That would have shown the community that the school district is serious about drunk driving."

"If he's found guilty, Mr. Gunner, as far as I'm concerned, has undermined all the work that I and Anna Russo (her fellow county RID coordinator) and all the members of RID have done for years in the schools," Martin said. "I'm a former teacher, and I think you're held to a higher standard because one of your roles is as a role model for your students."

"If he used obscene language in the classroom, he would have been suspended. If he was accused of assault, he would be suspended. But with DWI, the public perception is, everyone does it," she said. "But I think of drunk drivers as snipers, out there killing indiscriminately. In today's day and age, there shouldn't be any reasonable person who doesn't know that DWI is a crime, with serious consequences."

Martin said: "I would like to say to Dr. Loomis, do they have a policy to deal with that? Legally, they have to have a policy concerning employees with drug and alcohol problems. Once alcoholic beverages begin to interfere with your normal, everyday life, you have an alcohol problem."

"This is his (Gunner's) decision, his judgment, and he will have to stand up for that," Loomis said. "But there is a good deal of law and case law that pertains to this, and our hands are tied."
