Bethlehem Court joins county drug program

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Bethlehem will sign aboard next fall to a new program designed to provide nonviolent, drug-dependent criminal defendants with an alternative to incarceration in exchange for coming clean.

At a press conference last Thursday at the Public Safety Building in Albany, Bethlehem Town Justice Theresa Egan joined Judith Kaye, chief judge of the Court of Appeals; Albany County Executive Michael Breslin; Thomas Keegan, Albany County Court administrative judge; and District Attorney Sol Greenberg to announce that town courts in Bethlehem and Colonie, along with County Court, would soon join Albany City Court in the Albany County Drug Court program.

The three local courts join more than 400 other jurisdictions nationwide in implementing the alternative sentencing program modelled on one launched in 1989 in Dade County, Fla.

"We have a huge drug problem in the state of New York, and we have a huge drug problem in the courts," Kaye said, citing statistics that three criminal defendants in four in the state test positive for some form of substance abuse.

"We know that substance abuse is a serious problem," she said. "It erodes the quality of life all of us hope to enjoy. But we merely recycle the problem through our courts. They come in drug addicted, and they go out drug addicted. ... We know we can do a lot better."

The Drug Court program is designed, she said, with the goal of "getting defendants off drugs and out of the criminal justice system for good."

To that end, drug courts seek to identify defendants whose nonviolent criminal charges, such as petty larceny, appear to be drug-related. Participating defendants plead guilty but their sentence is deferred for a period of time while they are monitored closely by a participating judge for abstinence from substance abuse, often involving random alcohol and drug testing.

"A defendant has got to want to enter the program," Egan said. "He has got to want to get out of the cycle of drug dependency and crime."

Defendants facing jail time for nonviolent offenses have a built-in incentive to join the program. "We're generally looking at a person who's looking at at least six months in jail," she said.

Those with serious mental health problems, violent offenders, or anyone charged with drug sale offenses are not eligible for the program.

Participants are steered to counseling, drug treatment and other programs designed to break the cycle of addiction, including job training or placement, community service programs, or anger management counseling. These referrals are mandated by the participating judge and a committee including representatives of the county district attorney's and public defender's offices.

"It's all a team approach, not just a judicial decision," Egan said.

Successful completion of the program leads to a conditional discharge of a misdemeanor or probation for a felony.

Steam plant sale is official

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

It's official: with a formal closing on May 12, the Albany Steam Station in Glenmont has changed hands from Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. to New Jersey-based PSEG Power for $47.5 million.

Now comes the waiting game for Bethlehem town and school district officials, as the new owner considers a challenge to the property tax assessment.

"There were a number of last minute issues that needed to be resolved," said NiMo spokesman Nick Lyman, including an 11th-hour snag over what sort of financial consideration was due the Albany Port District Commission for an easement to permit water for steam generation to be piped across the port's property.

New St. Peter's building up and running

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

The new 40,000-square-foot St. Peter's Medical Arts building at 1240 New Scotland Road in Slingerlands, completed by developer First Columbia in March, is near full occupancy, and dedication ceremonies are set for June 10.

The last of four medical practices affiliated with the Albany hospital's Ambulatory Care Network has moved to the facility. The four practices will serve a combined 20,000 patients.

In addition, the hospital's rehabilitative physical therapy program has opened a satellite office there to serve an unspecified number of outpatients. And three ophthalmological practices not directly connected to St. Peter's also recently leased space and relocated to the building, where they will see almost 10,000 patients.

The site of the new building, a corner of the Terramere Planned Residential District, facing the former Blue Cross building across New Scotland Road and overlooking the Normanskill, was chosen by First Columbia for its easy access to the nearby Slingerlands Bypass.

"It's a good location, and for our patients, who come from as far away as Plattsburgh, Kingston and western Massachusetts, the new location is no big deal," said Dr. Martin Kaback of Glaucoma Consultants of the Capital Region. "It's not difficult to get to from the main highways, and they like the parking so far. We'll see what happens when it gets real busy around here."

First Columbia broke ground on the 16.9-acre site after nine months securing approval from the town board and planning board to rezone the site. Construction was completed on schedule thanks to the mild winter.

The four St. Peter's Ambulatory Care practices began moving into the building in two-week intervals beginning April 3, when the Internal Medicine Practice, formerly known as Mercy Internal Medicine, moved to the site from 319 S. Manning Blvd. in Albany. It includes Drs. Richard Rubin, Suzanna Boka and Jeffrey Perkins and nurse practitioner Kathleen Kelly.

St. Peter's Maternal Fetal Medicine, which specializes in treatment of high-risk pregnancies, followed suit on April 17. Drs. Marla Eglowstein, Steven Pinheiro and Angela Mallozzi were previously located at 523 Western Ave. in Albany.

The Health Center for Children, a pediatrics practice including Drs. Mark Osborn, Kenneth Kroopnick, Kallana Man-junath and Anuradha Krishnappa, and nurse practitioners Janet Carmody, Katie Cultrara and Megan McCabe, relocated on May 1 from 799 Madison Ave. in Albany.

Also opening for business on May 1 was a satellite office for St. Peter's Physical Therapy and Rehabilitation Services. While the main service location for the therapy program will remain at the hospital, St. Peter's spokesman Richard Chady said two physical therapists will

Cable co. OKs senior discount in New Scotland

By BHAWIN SUCHAK

On May 5 New Scotland received confirmation of a senior discount plan from Time Warner Cable, and last week the town board unanimously voted to finally grant its approval of the proposed AOL-Time Warner merger.

The town had been holding off on signing the transfer of ownership agreement pending word from Time Warner that New Scotland's elderly residents would be eligible for the discount. On Feb. 22 the Voorheesville village

Local, state police agencies make DWI arrests

By Joseph A. Phillips

Bethlehem police arrested several individuals and charged them with driving while intoxicated (DWI), including one individual facing felony charges due to prior offenses.

Four individuals also face charges in the town of New Scotland, including another felony DWI case.

Facing felony DWI charges in Bethlehem is Christopher M.

Facteau, 29, of 644 Columbia Turnpike, East Greenbush. Facteau was stopped for a bad taillight by Officer James Rexford on Saturday, May 6, at about 11 p.m. on River Road in Glenmont. Facteau failed field sobriety tests and was arrested for DWI.

A license check disclosed two previous DWI convictions and another for driving while ability impaired (DWAI), elevating the charge to a felony. Facteau was arraigned before Bethlehem Town Justice Kenneth Munnely, and sent to Albany County jail in lieu of $7,500 bail, awaiting a May appearance.

Another DWI arrest occurred Saturday, May 6, on Route 9W in Glenmont. According to the police report, Rexford observed a vehicle speeding and crossing the center-line. After failing field sobriety tests, Rexford arrested Courtney Joseph Conway, 22, of 162 Miller Road, Selkirk. Conway was also ticketed for speeding and failure to keep right, and driving with an expired registration. He was due in Town Court on May 16.

Three individuals face alcohol-related charges in New Scotland Town Court as a result of arrests since April 1, including Franklin McDonald, 44, of 100 Collaback Road, New Scotland, charged with felony DWI on Saturday, April 8.

According to police, McDonald was stopped at about 10:30 p.m. when he was observed swerving in the roadway. After failing field sobriety tests, McDonald was charged with DWI and failure to keep right.

Deputies ran a registration check and discovered the vehicle's registration had been suspended. This led to additional charges of unlicensed operation of an auto, failure to display plates and driving with a suspended registration, and elevated the DWI count to a felony.

In an earlier DWI case, sheriff's deputies arrested Kathleen M. Ruger, 32, of 140-B Newry Road, Glenville, on Saturday, April 1, and charged her with DWI, at a location undisclosed in the police report. She awaits a second court date after her initial appearance on April 20.

Another New Scotland resident was charged with DWAI under the influence of drugs after her arrest on Friday, May 5. Jan A. Mitchell Dolz, 19, of 29 Thacher Park Road, was due in Town Court on May 11.

Also facing DWI charges in New Scotland Town Court is Gary H. Vroman, 43, of 19 Oakwood Road, Glenmont, arrested by State Police on Tuesday, April 4, at about 9:45 a.m. after a traffic stop. He appeared in New Scotland Town Court on April 13 to answer the charges, and awaits a further court date.

A DWI arrest led to a conviction in Bethlehem Town Court on May 2. Shawn Edward Ubrich, 27, of 24 Liebel St., Albany, was arrested on Oct 28 and also charged with unlawful possession of marijuana. A warrant was issued for his arrest after he failed to make a court appearance in December, and he was arrested on April 29.

Ubrich pleaded guilty to a charge of DWAI and was fined $300 and a $30 state-mandated surcharge. His license was suspended for 90 days.

He also pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor possession count, and was fined $200 and a $30 surcharge. Ubrich was also ordered to attend a drinking-driver remediation program and face a victim impact panel.

DOT announces repairs for local roads, bridges

By Joseph A. Phillips

In tandem with the announcement of an agreement on the 2000-01 state budget two weeks ago, Gov. George Pataki and legislative leaders also shook hands on a new five-year capital program for road and bridge projects around the state, including numerous projects slated for the area by the state Department of Transportation (DOT).

Also announced was a tentative agreement on a $3.8 billion Transportation Bond Act proposed for the statewide ballot this November to partially fund the nearly $17 billion in road and bridge improvements called for in the five-year plan.

But a DOT spokesman cautioned last week that the bond issue is by no means a done deal.

"The governor has not yet signed off on it. He's waiting to see what the language approved by the Legislature includes," said Dick Carlson, planning and program manager for DOT's Region One, encompassing eight northeast counties from Greene to Essex.

Even if the governor and the voters give thumbs up to the bond act, the five-year funding package also depends on securing federal Highway Administration funding and on state budget votes.

"We have been projecting these schedules based on the availability of funding," Carlson said. "To the extent that this agreement provides funding, we will be able to maintain these schedules."

Nevertheless, the project list for Region One covered by the agreement for 2000-05, released by DOT, sets the tentative agenda for road improvements in the area. Those scheduled for the nearer-term are relatively certain of completion as projected, while those scheduled further out, in years four and five, are less so.

Among the projects in Bethlehem and New Scotland:

- The $4.4 million replacement of the bridge that carries Route 85 over the Normanskill in Slingerlands. The project is slated to go to bid later this month and to be completed by winter of 2001-02, pending securing federal highway funding through the Capital District Transportation Improvement Program.

- Reconfiguration of the intersection of routes 9W and 32 in Glenmont, tentatively pegged at $4.8 million and scheduled for 2001 or 2002.

- A $3.5 million overhaul of Kenwood Avenue between the Four Corners and Cherry Avenue, presented at a public information meeting last year and also tentatively projected for 2001 or 2002. Also included in the funding package are two as yet unannounced rehabilitation programs, one for Cherry Avenue from Kenwood to Delaware, pegged at $1.1 million, and another for Elm Avenue from Delaware to the intersection with Route 32 near Elm Avenue Park, estimated at $1.2 million.

Both are tentatively aimed for 2002-03 starts.

- An $11 million extension of the Slingerlands Bypass carrying Route 85 to a new connection with Cherry Avenue. The capital plan sets a possible 2002-03 target for construction on Part I, the stretch from Blessing Road to Cherry, to take place. An additional $1.6 million is earmarked for engineering studies of Part II, from Blessing north to the Albany city line, but funding for construction of this stretch is not included in the five-year projection.

- A federally funded grant for new sidewalks in the village of Voorheesville by 2003, projected to cost $300,000.

- Replacement of bridges carrying Route 85 over Onesquethaw Creek and Vly Creek in New Scotland, and a rehabilitation of Route 53, Jericho Road, and the bridge carrying it over the Dowerskill in Selkirk. All three are dependent on federal highway funds, the Onesquethaw project slated for the next two years at a likely cost of about $1 million; the Jericho Road project, at $1 million in 2003 or 2004; and the Vly project, about $700,000 in 2003 or 2004.

Also included in the plan are numerous maintenance programs, including bridge painting and cleaning projects, road and intersection repairs, signage improvements and other projects.

But the capital program also included a bit of bad news for those hoping for a speedy resolution to the debate over the long-awaited Selkirk Bypass. Currently, $700,000 is allocated in the program for engineering studies connected to the controversial rerouting of truck traffic.

But, Carlson said, "The Selkirk Bypass isn't scheduled to get under construction until just outside the five-year period covered by the funding agreement. A lot of that is because of where we are with that project in terms of public reaction."

Public to have say on cable TV

By Joseph A. Phillips

The Bethlehem town board will hear public comment on Time Warner Cable's TV services to residents as the town launches negotiations for renewal of the cable provider's franchise, which is set to expire in June 2001.

The board set a comment session for its May 24 meeting, seeking input from residents. The board also approved the team that will oversee negotiations for a renewed 10-year franchise agreement with Time Warner. Members were recommended by town Comptroller Judith Kehoe, who will chair the group.

In addition to Kehoe, committee members will include board member Dan Plummer; Nancy Pieri and Michael Farley, representing Bethlehem Public Library; and Mac Carlton, representing the school district.

The library and district are represented, Kehoe said, because of their stake in the cable agreement. A quarterly franchise fee is paid to the town, based upon the number of subscribers; the most recent fee received by the town amounted to just over $50,000.

But under the expiring agreement, the franchisee also provided nearly $85,000 to the Bethlehem school district and public library, split roughly 35 percent to the school district and the rest to the library, along with small maintenance amounts of between $1,000 and $3,000 a year, to underwrite public and educational access for the local community.

Named as a technical adviser to the committee was Steve Shaye of the state Public Service Commission, a veteran of previous such municipal negotiations.

"He's an excellent resource for knowing what's out there and what issues have been of concern in other communities," Kehoe said.

"The level of service offered to the community" will be a key issue, Kehoe said, in the negotiations. "And the item that jumps to the top of the list is the senior needs-based discount so many of our citizens are asking for."

Time Warner recently extended such a discount in New Scotland to subscribers over age 65 who receive the standard subscription package and who qualify.

Kehoe said as many as 500 town residents meet the age and income standards, but how many of them receive the cable package required for the discount is unknown.

"It's really only a small fraction that will become eligible for it," Kehoe said.

Comment from the public at the May 24 meeting is not limited in any way, but Kehoe warned that the two areas of most concern to the individual subscriber — price and content — will not be on the table in the negotiations.

"We'd like to be able to control pricing and content, but unfortunately, that's not something we can regulate," she said. "But can we voice our concerns about it? Absolutely. But we tend to have more teeth in the negotiating process in matters of customer service — installing to new developments and matters like that."

Delmar Chiropractic hosts Kids Day

By Katherine McCarthy

Fun and safety will be the order of the afternoon on Saturday, May 20, as Delmar Chiropractic participates in Kids Day America/International for the first time.

"This is the seventh year for Kids Day America," said chiropractor Jeffrey Riker. "Twelve hundred chiropractic offices across the country take part in this national event. It's a day dedicated to children and families, health, safety and environmental awareness."

Two New Jersey chiropractors, Theresa and Stuart Warner, founded Kids Day America, and now have a Kids Day America Foundation concerned with children's health and safety. Riker became aware of the event at a pediatrics seminar he attended a few months ago.

"Children are our most important resource," said Riker, who lives in Selkirk with his wife Kim. "The better educated our children are, the better their future and their children's future will be."

Riker said it wasn't difficult to get community support for the event.

An officer from the Bethlehem police department will provide pedestrian and traffic safety information, as well as instruction about the proper use of child car seats.

"We'll donate Kid Care ID cards," Riker said. "These are a passport sort of book that come from Polaroid. We'll take a photo and provide ancillary and personal information, along with a page of safety tips."

The Elsmere fire department is sending along a piece of its equipment and some volunteers, and local dentist Geoffrey Edmunds will offer dental hygiene and pre-orthodontic tips. DiNapoli Opticians will be on hand, and the Aikido school of self-defense will offer several demonstrations.

There will also be a clown, face painting and hot dogs. Area merchants have provided gift certificates for a drawing. Proceeds will go to the Bethlehem Pedestrian Safety Committee.

Town Supervisor Sheila Fuller will attend and present a proclamation honoring Kids Day America/International.

"This is an investment in our future," Fuller said. "It's important to have a function in our town that stresses the importance of health and environmental issues for children and their families."

Kids Day begins at noon. The ribbon-cutting ceremony and proclamation signing are scheduled for 12:30 p.m.

Festivities will be at Delmar Chiropractic, 204 Delaware Ave. For information, call 439-7644.

Parents seek sympathy in child-rearing complaints

By Katherine McCarthy

Donna Bell, editor of Parent Pages, told me about a recent e-mail exchange she'd had with Bill thing Bill had seen as preposterous. "Yeah, well," Donna sighed electronically. "I did some of my best parenting before my children were born, too."

But Bill posed a bigger question that has many answers. "Why do parents complain to each other so much?" he continued to ask every parent with whom he works.

Because we're the only ones who understand, was Donna's answer.

When she told me it had taken her an hour to put her children to bed, I'd asked for her secret in accomplishing this task so quickly. We've had the same bedtime routine since our boys' umbilical cords fell off: bath, teeth, stories, prayers, one parent lies down with child, then lights off.

All of that takes about an hour on a good night, so you would expect our now clean and calm children to fall right asleep. Ha! The only people nodding off are mom and dad, who still need to go clean the kitchen, throw in a load of laundry, and squeeze in some Must See TV.

During that time, the kids begin their own post-bedtime-routine routine, which involves a lot of thumping, some singing, giggling and sometimes acrimonious argument. Eventually, a loud howl achieves the desired result — return of a parent.

Another mother described the stages of saying good night to her children.

"You know how it is," she said. "You go from hearing your own sweet voice saying 'Good night, my angel,' to screaming, 'Just get to bed now.'"

So we share these things with each other, not complaining, but because this isn't how we thought it would be. Look, most parents think, I went to college. I speak another language. I've traveled. I managed to snare a mate. I worked. I work. I can negotiate sticky situations.

And I still can't get my kids to just go to bed at night. Or eat anything resembling a vegetable. Or show as much enthusiasm for riding a bike as they do for the Cartoon Network. I thought for sure I'd just breeze through this stuff!

By kvetching, we're confessing our own inadequacies to our peer group, hoping to God other parents respond with a relieved "Me, too!" that shows us that child-rearing problems are universal, and not our own personal failure.

The constancy makes us complain. The reward for getting your kid to brush his teeth before he goes to bed? Getting him to do it again tomorrow before he goes to school. The grand prize for getting him to toss his dirty socks in the hamper? Congratulations, Mom, now you get to wash them!

Sometimes we just need to confess to a sympathetic ear that we can't stand the sound of our own voices, reminding our children yet again to wash their hands after they dig up worms, to close the refrigerator door after taking out the yogurt, to not leave the open cereal box on the chair because the dog will eat it, and pick up the Buzz Lightyear that's been on the dining room floor for a week now.

Surely our children do wonderful things, so why don't we talk about that to one another? We all tell our kids how great they are. I feel on top of the world when my children hang their jackets up, do homework without being told, or use a word far above the norm for a child their age.

But it's tricky ground, bragging about your child. Other

ON-THE-CUFF REMARKS

These days, women are as focused upon defining the muscles in their arms as men - maybe more so. If you are a woman who has spent time developing your arm musculature, what better way to show it off than wearing wide gold or silver bracelets on your wrists? Drawing inspiration from Wonder Woman, gold cuffs make the arms look lean and strong when wearing sleeveless fashions. They also help to accentuate one of the body's most shapely and expressive parts, the wrist. There is a wide variety of cuffs from which to choose, including those with matte or shiny finishes, in widths ranging from big to bigger. Whatever the choice, cuffs can be worn to dazzling effect.

Choosing jewelry for yourself or someone else is always a special occasion because it makes such a personal statement. When we design any jewelry for a client, whether a bracelet, necklace, brooch, earrings, or a ring, we strive for a piece of jewelry that, the more you look at it, the more you feel. A design should have an enduring, magical quality to it. See the magic of our jewels and gems at JOYELLES JEWELERS. If you have a special design in mind, bring us a picture or sketch and we'll custom create it for you. We're located at 318 Delaware Avenue, in the Main Square Shoppes.

people see your child's flaws well before you do, and perhaps on the day that you talk about how well your child shares, your Robin Hood held the whole class' blue crayons hostage.

You also have to be careful about comparing children. The parent of a child struggling to learn to read doesn't need to hear how a peer just finished War and Peace in the original Russian. So we keep a lot of our bragging to ourselves, praising our children at home and telling ourselves and our co-parent how perfect our children are.

If you listen closely, mostly parents vent to each other about the little things. It's pretty rare to hear a parent go on at length about what a struggle math is and how behavior problems are showing up. We might talk to one close friend about this, but not with the same frequency or flippancy as the child-parent debate about whether to buy clothes at the mall or Wal-Mart.

It's as if we clear the decks with the little stuff, and leave space in our hearts and heads to work out the big stuff with our co-parent. Because there's something all parents know — our kids are all-encompassing.

With a boyfriend, a girlfriend, our own parents, even a spouse, you can save a little bit of yourself to protect yourself from slights and insults. You can't do that with your children. They are part of you, and the fact that you are shaping their lives is a daunting responsibility.

We sometimes see their failures as our own, or worry what they bode for our children's future. A toy on the floor now means a messy desk and a lost promotion at work years from now. If our children lose interest in a sport, an instrument, even school itself, we fret that they won't find their place in the world as adults. We parents feel that we have so much at stake that we forget we need to let go a little bit, and not see each dropped toy as a personal rebuke against our parenting skills.

In the end, though, it's the bigness of the task that makes parents complain to each other, although we're really just looking for confirmation that we're not alone. As we sit for a few last minutes in the evening next to our sleeping children, letting our breathing synchronize with theirs, we know we've surrendered to something much bigger than any of us. We need to know that others have, too.

The workshop, in New Scotland, offers 40 years of experience and an outdoor learning adventure for students in kindergarten through eighth grade.

The summer session has more than 100 different classes to select from, including moveable sculpture, rocks and fossils, photography, entomology, summer safari, archaeological detectives, cartooning, beginning blacksmithing, colonial toys and games, Heldeberg mystery theater, Helde-trekking, marionette design and family events.

Classes meet Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until noon and are one and two weeks long. Sessions begin on July 10 and run through Aug. 25.

Brochures are available at local libraries. For information, call 399-2387.

Send 'em packing

It's that time of year again. Outside and inside jobs scream for attention.

Alas, it's also the time of year when door-to-door scam artists come out of the woodwork. Beware.

No matter how sweet the pitch, it's usually bad news for unsuspecting homeowners.

Reputable business people simply do not do business at your door step.

Editorials

Bethlehem and some other local municipalities require people who do attempt to make a door-to-door sale to obtain a peddler's license, but that doesn't deter the disreputable types.

The door-to-door scammers, however, continue to invade suburban neighborhoods, because chances are someone will take them up on an "offer you can't refuse" like a driveway paving or sealing deal — "We just did a job in your neighborhood and have just enough asphalt left over to do yours."

This is a classic ploy that usually costs the homeowner far more, sometimes thousands of dollars over what the job is worth.

Even worse are those would-be house cleaners who are attempting to clean you out, not clean up your property. It's a good idea to keep your doors locked when you're doing yard work.

We remember one year when an elderly senior came into the office to report her cherished diamond engagement ring and other jewelry had been taken.

The thieves were never caught — they usually aren't. They work fast and don't return to the same neighborhoods.

Under no circumstances, should you ever let a stranger into your home. If you spot people going door-to-door, call the police immediately.

State of medical arts

The new St. Peter's Medical Arts building on New Scotland Road in Slingerlands is a welcome addition for Bethlehem and New Scotland residents as well as for the region as a whole.

Having top-notch medical expertise in a number of disciplines right in our back yard is of course a plus, but having easy access to the facility is another attractive feature for patients.

Parking can be difficult in Albany. The new 19-plus-acre medical campus should alleviate the problem, making visiting the doctor a little less stressful.

Check out our Page 1 story for information on practices that will now be serving patients in Slingerlands.

Heroes' shoes are too big to fill

By Joseph A. Phillips

The writer is a reporter for Spotlight Newspapers.

Not so long ago, now-retired NBA superstar Charles Barkley famously declared his lack of interest in being a role model. There was no rush by athletes and other public figures to follow his lead, but many plainly share his reluctance to be put on any sort of pedestal.

It's ironic that Barkley made the statement in connection with an advertising campaign. An audacious stance for a pitchman: admire me for rejecting your admiration. But what was most startling about this bold in-your-face pronouncement was a would-be hero publicly spurning the mantle of heroism.

Some, Shakespeare once said, are born great; some achieve greatness; others have greatness thrust upon them. Most heroes are anointed through this third route, without volunteering for it. So to the Bard's formula, Barkley adds: some, when greatness is thrust upon them, opt to thrust it away.

And some whom greatness is thrust upon just aren't all that great.

Certain current national political figures come to mind.

You think I mean Bill Clinton, don't you? Well, I do, but I also mean Rudy Giuliani and Newt Gingrich and...you-name-'em. It's not news that some of our national leaders have feet of clay.

FDR and Dwight Eisenhower had mistresses; Warren Harding drank too much and held all-night poker games at the White House; Grover Cleveland had an illegitimate child; Andy Jackson occasionally pistol-whipped opponents; Ben Franklin was orgiastic.

I am not arguing that boys will be boys. And each of these, judged on temperament, marital fidelity, overall character, or lack thereof, has much to answer for in his personal conduct.

The question is, do they have to answer to us?

I think not. We ought to judge our leaders by the job they're doing — not by whether we'd welcome them at a church social. To thrust the mantle of hero and role model upon them, we set ourselves up for the disappointment and cynicism now rampant in public life.

I am spurred to ponder the nature of unasked-for heroic expectations by the play I saw this past weekend at Albany's Capital Repertory Theater. "Billy Bishop Goes To War" is a fine production, but also offers food for thought about whom we as a society look up to — and whether in doing so we are out of line or out of touch.

The title character is an actual historical figure, regarded in Canada as a bona fide war hero. William Bishop was a dissolute young man who, in the playwright's words, enlisted in World War I "cause it looked like lots of fun." He quickly learned otherwise — while also discovering in himself an aptitude for killing other men from the cockpit of a biplane.

Bishop became that icon of dashing heroism: a World War I flying ace. In fact, Canada's — and the British Empire's — best, if ranked by the number of "kills" scored in aerial dogfights. His example was touted to inspire the troops in an otherwise uninspiring war: "He did it and lived — I can do it too." And in the run-up to World War II, this aging War Hero was trundled out again as a living recruiting poster.

The play reveals the unheroic man behind the Hero. Charming Billy admits — hell, brags — that he is a convicted liar and cheat, a poor student, an undisciplined soldier, a sloppy pilot. But he has a blood lust that serves his turn and gives him a sense of purpose.

The fictive Billy has mixed feelings about this, regretting the death of felled enemies, mourning the loss of comrades, bitterly savaging those who lay the mantle of "hero" upon others who have died so young. But he also coolly understands the grim calculus of death and survival. He's candid about the adrenaline rush of combat. He becomes, literally, a fighting machine.

When finally relieved of active duty, Billy pleads with his superiors: "You don't understand. I like it." A chilling, and not what one would call heroic, sentiment. He is reckless (read: brave), foolish (read: daring) and ruthlessly cold-eyed (read: efficient). He is honored for running up the body count; so were Sergeant York and Audie Murphy.

In short, he got the job done. For killing men in combat, morally unworthy thought it might be, is exactly what we call on soldiers to do, if we can be honest about that. And I dare say enjoying his work scarcely diminishes his service to his country in time of war.

And Barkley really cleared 'em out under the boards, didn't he? Though by no means morally equivalent, neither Billy nor Barkley — nor Bill — is a saint. Billy won't be a hero.

It's not that I turn a deaf ear to the creak of hypocrisy or the groan of moral standards being bent. I won't vote for Rudy, and I doubt I'd vote for Bill again. But Bill Clinton never ran for the office of Caesar's wife, and Rudy Giuliani's a candidate for the Senate, not canonization. And hand wringing over the decline of public moral virtue is a silly exercise, not to mention disingenuous. Was it morally superior when we had duels on the floor of Congress?

Pollyanism belies the fact that both Bill and Rudy have been far more effective in their jobs than their critics would like to believe, moral failings notwithstanding. We can fairly expect them to clean up welfare, save Social Security, balance the budget, shepherd our economy, represent us.

But frankly, being a good spouse, or any kind of role model, was never part of the job description.

School board should let coach keep 2 positions

Editor, The Spotlight:

Jesse Braverman is the varsity baseball coach at Bethlehem Central High School.

Coach Braverman also coaches Bethlehem Mickey Mantle, which he organized in 1987.

Each year Coach Braverman volunteers many hours during the months of May, June and July to coach the Mickey Mantle team.

Because some BC varsity and junior varsity players may be also members of Mickey Mantle, the Bethlehem school administration and board of education are now trying the force Coach Braverman to give up coaching one of these two teams.

A few years ago, my son played varsity baseball at BCHS and was also a member of the Mickey Mantle team, so I know from personal experience that Coach Braverman is not only a fine coach (his teams always have winning records), but more important, Coach Braverman is an outstanding role model for young athletes.

Coach Braverman's teams reflect his determination, patience and fair play. Our young athletes need volunteers who will work with them and set an example.

Our school district is now engaged in a costly legal struggle against Coach Braverman.

What is to be gained for children if this legal contest continues?

Forcing out a good man like Jesse Braverman is not a victory for our community.

Members of the board of education, please act in the best interests of our children and let Jesse Braverman continue to coach both the varsity and the Mickey Mantle teams in Bethlehem.

Matters of Opinion

Patron takes issue with criticism of library

Editor, The Spotlight:

David S. Moore's May 10 letter to the editor concerning the activities of the Bethlehem Public Library board raises some interesting points: assessing the relevance of the board's communication to the public; more important, assessing the actions of the board; and perhaps most important, assessing the vision of the board for the library's future.

Questioning the behavior of elected officials can be very important. Having said this, I wish to address Mr. Moore's objection to expansion of parking space. It will be wonderful to have more parking space in the direct vicinity of the library! Yes, there is town hall parking across the street. Try this in the rain, the middle of the winter, with the elderly or young — and you will find it very difficult. Accessible parking is essential.

As for "a major expansion of the library building" — what a great plan! Bethlehem Public Library is a magnet for our community, a centerpiece, a wonderful place to congregate. My children and I go frequently, and we are greeted warmly by virtually all employees. Help is readily available. A growing number of activities are offered. As the library offers more resources, more space is required.

To suggest a branch makes no sense to me inasmuch as it will offer little and the library is close to the majority of the Bethlehem population. To compare the 10 library branches in troubled Schenectady to the Bethlehem facility is comparing apples to oranges. The demographics are completely different.

Our tax dollars pay for an ever growing array of multimedia resources, events and support that enrich the lives of people of all ages. Mr. Moore, when your young daughter is old enough, just bring her to any one of the numerous library activities, see the thrill on her face and the benefit she derives. At that point I would hope you will feel very differently about expanded parking and library space.

The reason more space, internally and externally, is required is because so many residents are regularly drawn to the library. It is increasingly common to have every parking space filled. When it comes to the behavior of the board, the results speak for themselves — loud and clear.

Library critic is way off base

Editor, The Spotlight:

Attention: David Moore. After reading your very negative letter about our library, I have this to say: you are against senior housing in your neighborhood and you are now crucifying one of the nicest things about our town. I hope others have more foresight than you and will get behind the library's plans for expansion.

If you have a problem with anything new in your neighborhood, I have the perfect solution — move!

Wine Lines

DELMAR WINE and LIQUOR

by Beth

WHERE TO DRAW THE LINE

Numerous studies have shown the health benefits associated with moderate alcohol consumption. However, many physicians have been reluctant to recommend imbibing over fears that drinking to excess carries serious risks. With this in mind, a cardiologist at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston undertook a study to determine how many drinks it takes to tip the balance from health benefit to health risk. His study of the medical history and habits of 89,299 men draws the line at one drink a day for men. Women, who generally are smaller and metabolize alcohol more slowly than men, should drink a bit less. One drink equals 12 ounces of beer, 5 ounces of wine, or 1.5 ounces of hard spirits.

Remember, the key is moderation. At DELMAR WINE & LIQUOR you'll be sure to find a wide selection of wines to complement any meal. We'll be happy to guide you in the purchase of wine for a gift or for your own use. We're here for you at 340 Delaware Ave., Delmar. Come in and look us over. Call 439-1725. Remember, a bottle of wine highlights the meal and adds a touch of gaiety or conviviality to the dinner table.

Wine Tasting - Saturday, May 20, 2-6pm. Back by popular demand ... Steve Edic from Service Liquor Distributors.

HINT: According to the study mentioned above, men were found to reduce the risk of death from heart disease by 26% over the course of the 5 1/2 year study by drinking one to two drinks a day.

Home buyers should insist on top quality materials

Editor, The Spotlight:

Housing construction in Bethlehem is getting shoddy. Consumers are getting ripped off.

Recently, I walked through a new development in Bethlehem, where houses are priced from $175,000 to $250,000. I noticed that all the cheapest building materials were being used. Wall sheathing, roof decking and subflooring were all of aspenite board (a cheap wood product).

Inside, cheap vinyl windows were being used — the kind that are sluggish and tend to stick — that you can buy for $99 at discount lumber yards. The houses had vinyl siding that was already wavy and puffy in the sunlight.

With the exception of an area near the model home, there were no sidewalks. Cars would dominate. All the trees had been cut down. It looked like a wasteland.

What can we do about the shoddiness of new developments? For a start, we can insist upon good materials. Ask the developer to see the invoices. See if he is using good materials. Don't buy in a development unless you know the builder.

There are some excellent builders in Delmar with long track records and lots of local references. Insist upon the trees being left when the site is being developed. For your exterior, choose long-lasting brick, stucco or cedar, you'd be surprised at the minimal additional cost.

Learn about good building techniques. There are books at the town library. Petition the town board for good sidewalks and kid-safe streets. You deserve them, you pay taxes.

SOMETHING TO LOSE SLEEP OVER

There is evidence from researchers at the University of Chicago that chronic sleep loss not only leads to immediate mental and physical problems, but it also may hasten the onset of (or at least mimic) certain age-related disorders. As part of the study, subjects were allowed to sleep only four hours each night for six nights. Afterward, tests of their blood chemistry showed that their blood glucose levels had increased significantly and the response of insulin secretion to glucose had diminished by 30%. These responses are similar to those seen with adult-onset diabetes. Cortisol levels also increased, which has been associated with memory problems. Fortunately, all the subjects' readings returned to normal after a few 12-hour-nights' sleep.

Getting enough sleep is a hard commitment to make, especially when we seem to have so many things to do, yet it is a commitment which instantly rewards us with well-being. Ask us about what services we offer at the GOOD SAMARITAN HEALTH CARE CENTER, 125 Rockefeller Road. Call 439-8116 for more information. We offer rehabilitative therapies to assist in your recovery and in the maintenance of your health.

Three cheers for Donna Hanover

Editor, The Spotlight:

Hoorah to Donna Hanover Giuliani — in a very composed manner, in a few succinct sentences she did what Hillary Clinton has not been able to do for years: maintain her dignity as a woman.

Donna, like Hillary, could have stood by her husband's side, held hands in front of the cameras, ogled in his eyes when he speaks and try to dupe New Yorkers into believing that all was well between them. Instead, she chose to be honest with the public, while at the same time maintaining her self-esteem.

Hillary, on the other hand, has compromised all of her values. Way back on the first campaign trail, she felt the need to look important by sarcastically putting down stay-at-home-moms with her 'I suppose I could have stayed home and baked cookies' comment.

She is so desperate for power and to be the first female president, she has been willing to tolerate her spouse's pathological philandering in order to cling to his political coattails. Hillary became a woman scorned, and we became a nation scorned, all for the narcissism of the Clintons.

While I disapprove of the mayor's behavior, he will still get my vote if he runs, because with him the pretense is over, what you see is what you get. With Hillary what you see is only until the political winds blow again.

Garden club helps make Bethlehem beautiful

Editor, The Spotlight:

Bethlehem Garden Club has been an active participant in the Delmar area for 35 years. Most residents are aware of the lovely barrels and boxes in and around the Four Corners maintained by club volunteers.

We have also provided a yearly scholarship for a graduating BCHS senior who is interested in any areas of horticulture or conservation.

In celebration of the new millennium, we established Project 2000, offering $2,000 to Five Rivers Environmental Center for its upcoming landscape project.

Over the last five years, 15 Bradford pear trees have been planted around town. The club is also co-sponsoring with Bethlehem First the annual Garden Tour on June 14 from 4 to 8 p.m. of eight Delmar gardens.

Helping to fund these volunteer efforts, we rely on our annual plant sale, this year set for Saturday, May 20, from 8:30 a.m. to noon at Delmar Dental, 344 Delaware Ave., Delmar.

Mostly perennials will be sold, many from our members' gardens. Volunteers will be available to explain where best to plant and how to maintain the plants.

The club always welcomes new members, who do not have to be horticulturists. A love of dirt, plants, the environment, volunteering and learning is all that is needed. Our members come from Bethlehem, Feura Bush, South Bethlehem, Clarksville, Slingerlands, Albany and Saratoga Springs.

Pastor says thank you

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of Delmar Reformed Church, I would like to express our thanks to the community for its support during our recent renovation and expansion project.

We appreciate the cooperation of our neighbors who endured extra noise, dust and dirt during the last year, and the patience of those community groups that use our facilities as they were shuttled from one room to another during construction.

We want to thank everyone who attended our recent ribbon-cutting and open house, especially Bethlehem Supervisor, Sheila Fuller, Sen. Neil Breslin and Chamber of Commerce president Marty DeLaney. We count it a blessing to be able to do ministry in a community where there is so much support and cooperation on the part of the town and its residents.

The building is open. We hope it will enable us to fulfill our mission to provide a place to belong.

Town is great on Dash day

Editor, the Spotlight:

This year marked the 12th year of the town of Bethlehem's support of our annual Delmar Dash.

On April 30, the 381 finishers were again very vocal in expressing appreciation of the town's cooperation. This year's first Kids Fun Run attracted 45 participants, 12 years old and under.

We wanted to acknowledge the special work of Bethlehem police, Delmar Rescue Squad and BC school district for use of Elsmere School, Boston Market, our 90 volunteers, race sponsors Charter One Bank, Bruegger's Bagel Bakery and Delmar Chiropractic Office.

Thanks again to everyone who accommodates and encourages the runners on the course for their hospitality.

Racer is grateful for local business backing

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to thank my sponsors for their support of the 2000 motorcross season. For the past four years, Matt's Honda of Cox-sackie has been the biggest supporter of my race program. I can't say enough about the support Matt's has given me.

I would also like to thank REP, a suspension and motor shop in Springfield, Mass., and Valley Oil in Hudson for their support.

I am excited to announce the addition of Haslam Tree Service in Feura Bush. A longtime local business has offered to help support my 2000 race program.

It is a great feeling to have a great community business like this can step up and help a local racer like me.

Haslam Tree Service has proven itself to be an honest and dependable local business for many years, so for a business like this to support me is a great asset.

Again, I thank my sponsors, businesses that help out local sports and I hope the the community enthusiasts realizes there are still local busi-

Matters of Opinion

School board member reflects on first year in office

Editor, The Spotlight:

To be a board of education member is to have received a trust from the community, a trust that is not lightly given to, nor lightly taken, by members.

Perhaps the first criteria of a board member is to learn to deal with change. One cannot work with children and adolescents without expecting change as an element in that work. The work of the school board is to guide that change, whether it involves issues of academic advancement, academic freedom, Regents for All or safety, the structure of schools, interscholastic athletics, inservice education, professional evaluations, lunch programs and bus schedules.

As a first year board member, this year has been an education.

To me, the role of the board has always been one of connecting the will of the people with the education of the child. It also includes the judicious watching of the monies that are appropriated to prevent waste, and yet funding programs that are needed. I have watched, listened and discussed topics as diverse as parking lots and Regents examinations.

A perception of the board of education led me to certain expectations that were a result of my many years as a staff member. What I didn't appreciate was how committed the group is to the job. This group of men and women spend far more time than I realized keeping themselves informed. Each has learned to listen carefully as issues are discussed and to bring all of their life experiences to that discussion.

We have all learned that when we hear an issue, it is only one side and we are obliged to seek out other viewpoints. We work, shop, worship and attend activities in the community, and though the superintendent provides us with possible solutions to problems, there is other information that is always available from our collective experiences.

We must do a balancing act to ease the tension between student rights and school safety imperatives. We are constantly reminding ourselves that we are a policy body — that we are leadership, not administration — and that policy is our task.

We seek to avoid the pitfall of long discussions about "beans, basketballs and buses." Perhaps our most important function is to receive reports on the progress of certain actions that have been initiated. We amass ideas, the source of those ideas is of no consequence as they can come from anywhere. We then look at the major goal and ask what our piece of the world will look like if we decided to move in a particular direction. Then rather than becoming paralyzed by huge leaps, we look for single progressive steps to move us ever forward.

Through all this we look again at the concerns of individuals and groups, of members of the staff and at our individual and collective judgments to guide our decisions.

The question, what do I see as our most important task? Is it reading the goals and evaluations of staff who have been given the task of doing the work of the school district? Is it the reports to the board? Is it being invited to a school to see presentations by students or staff?

Perhaps it is watching the work and interaction of our children or grandchildren. It may be granting of tenure to staff members who will be an integral part of the functioning of the district for decades to come. The conclusion is that there is no single "most important" task in the functions of the board, it is bringing judgment to all issues that surface on our agenda or are presented to us at the part of the agenda where community input is received.

I can attest to the integrity of all who labor at this job. In many ways the statement of George Bernard Shaw at the beginning of Man and Superman describes the way individual members see the work of being a board member.

"I am of the opinion that my life belongs to the whole community and as long as I live, it is my privilege to do for it whatever I can. I want to be completely used up when I died, for the harder I work, the more I live. I rejoice in life for its own sake. Life is no brief candle for me. It is a splendid torch which I have got a hold of for a moment, and I want to make it burn as brightly as possible before handing it on to future generations."

When the packet of materials comes from the superintendent each Friday before our regular meeting, it means that the 250 to 500 pages of materials must be read and several phone calls made to make certain we understand the issues. The correspondence folder must be read the day of the meeting as well as the 50 to 60 pages of the warrants.

There is always an executive session to discuss some legal or personnel matter, which may last from one to three hours. Yet in all this, one goes away with the feeling of the importance of the work. It is a rewarding job, and I enjoy all that is required of me. I wish to again thank the community for entrusting me with the education of their children and their school community.

Physically Speaking

by Nick Valenze, P.T.

A LEG UP ON THE COMPETITION

When the large quadriceps muscle at the front of the thigh endures a significant blow, it can crush the muscle fibers against the underlying large bone (femur). This can result in heavy bleeding because the muscle contains many blood vessels. Aside from swelling and severe pain, there may be difficulty in bending the knee fully. Immediate treatments consists of applying ice to the injured area for 20 minutes, with knee bent. This compresses the quadriceps and exerts sufficient pressure on the blood vessels to stop the bleeding. Blood in the quadriceps will cause calcium deposits to form. If this condition is not treated aggressively, the calcium will prevent muscle fibers from allowing the knee to bend fully.

If you have ever been injured in an accident, you're probably aware that there's more to recovery than simply staunching the bleeding. After receiving the necessary medical and surgical intervention, most individuals are still far from able to perform as before. For assistance in achieving complete healing and recovery from accident, surgery, or injury due to over-use, ask your physician for a referral, or call the number listed below to learn how we can help you. ## An open letter from a friend

Dear Friend:

As membership dues arrive in the Friends' mailbox, I am pleasantly surprised by your generosity. We have a well-funded, well-staffed, well-maintained and well-administered library. One might wonder why Bethlehem Public Library has a Friends' group at all.

In the past few years since I've been on the board, and president since January, your membership contributions have purchased a professional-size popcorn machine, partially funded the "Community Contacts" publication, funded a Bethlehem Central High School writing prize and provided seed money for the library's successful rental book program.

Most recently, your dues matched a $1,000 grant to secure

June Jordan as a speaker at the library (see the March/April edition of "Footnotes").

Our Friends group manages to embellish the library's many fine programs.

Nevertheless, the Friends' effectiveness is currently at risk, not for financial reasons but because many longtime, motivated board members are stepping down at the end of this fiscal year. By our annual meeting on May 24, the positions of vice president, treasurer and secretary, as well as five board seats, will all be available. If those seats aren't filled, our organization's momentum will slow to a crawl.

I ask you to consider helping the Friends in a way your generous membership dues cannot. Attend our meetings. Join the board. Lend your expertise as an executive board member. Or assist us with your computer skills.

You can help the organization decide how best to support the library. Please contact the library at 439-9314 or call me at 439-0382. Very sincerely,

Jeffrey Brown
president
Friends of Bethlehem
Public Library

The Friends' annual meeting will be held Wednesday, May 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the library board room. The public is welcome.

Book sale promises big bargains

We are awash in a sea of literature. The annual weekend book sale begins at 5 p.m. on Friday, May 19, for all the eager readers who want first crack at the thousands of new titles on hand this year.

There are fascinating nonfiction selections, many children's books, very nice hardcover fiction and paperbacks galore. All will be sorted and arranged by category for your convenience. Plan plenty of time for leisurely browsing Friday from 5 to 9 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Sunday book browsing goes hand in hand with the Friends bake sale in the lobby until the goodies are gone. The book sale winds down with a Buck-a-Bag Sunday—bring a sack to stuff full of books for only $1! What a bargain, an armful of books for a buck.

From the bakers to the buyers, we thank you all for supporting this important fund-raising event in the life of your library.

Any additional nonprofit organization that would like to receive books left over from the sale should call me at 765-2791.

Scrabble players will be at it again on Monday, May 22, at 6:30 p.m. Players of all experience levels are welcome to test their game skills against a partner drawn by lot.

Usually, we have time for two games before the library closes at 9 p.m. Snacks are provided. Bring a game board if you have one. No sign-up is necessary.

Slingerlands Elementary School revs up for annual carnival

The annual Slingerlands Elementary School Carnival will be held on Friday, May 19, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the school.

There will be a wide selection of games, food, and prizes, with lots of fun for the entire family.

The event will be held rain or shine.

Participants have two more weeks to read The Color of Water, the James McBride's loving memoir in tribute to his mother, before the book discussion group meets on Wednesday, May 31. Sign up at the reference desk to receive a copy of the book.

Visit the library homepage at www.voorheesvillelibrary.net. You can also access library information via a link on the new site at www.voorheesville.org.

Did you know that there were 65,500 patrons in our library in 1999 and 8,000 people attended more than 400 library programs?

A very special hospital

James Puleo, MD

At Albany Memorial Hospital, we have some of the area's finest physicians on our medical staff. And, why?

James Puleo, MD, respected Albany gastroenterologist, has been practicing at our hospital since 1965. He says the answer is quite simple.

"Physicians like Albany Memorial because it's a community hospital... it's a hospital where all the staff really work together as a team."

And our patients like it, too. In fact, more and more patients are choosing Albany Memorial because they like the personalized service, the individualized attention, and especially, the professional care.

"It's a very special hospital. It always has been."

Undefeated BCHS girls lacrosse team is picture of perfection

By Noah Feit

After winning the Section II title and making a trip to the state final four last year, there were great expectations this season for the girls lacrosse team from Bethlehem Central High School.

Despite the loss of a talented core of seniors from last year's championship squad, including Grace Tsan and Heather Axford, and a number of questions surrounding an unheralded group of returning letter winners and newcomers, the Lady Eagles have wasted little time living up to the high standards established by recent success, soaring to a 12-0 start.

"We lost some leadership from last year's team, and although this is more of a blue collar crew vs. a group of all-stars and is not as flashy, they do the little things very well and I knew that we'd be very capable," head coach John Battaglini said. "I felt we'd do very well attacking the opponent's net, but I wasn't as sure about the defense and goaltending."

While Battaglini had some questions about his team, his players have had all of the answers thus far. The Lady Eagles have stormed out of the gate and acted like a bull in a china shop, devastating all competition en route to being ranked the No. 4 team in the state and already clinching the Suburban Council crown.

The secret to the BCHS girls success has been verifying an old sports cliché, that the best defense is a good offense. Playing an aggressive, swarming brand of lacrosse, the Lady Eagles have routinely singled the back of their opponents' nets. Leading the charge are seniors Jean Laraway, Lindsay Carter-Piechnik, Ellen Lowry, and juniors Emily Riegel, Carley St. Lucia and Suzie Breaznell.

Lady Eagle Katie Riegel takes a shot against Columbia.

Jim Franco

With refined skills, good athleticism and the ability to consistently play within themselves, each of the talented BCHS girls has surpassed or is on the verge of scoring 40-plus goals thus far this season, including Breaznell, who has caught fire of late, tallying 15 goals in the Lady Eagles last two games alone.

As the offense has proven itself the strong unit Battaglini was counting on, he has also been pleasantly surprised by the play of his defense and goalie.

"We play a swarming defense, trying to force the other team into turnovers so we can make quick transitions and control the ball on offense," Battaglini added.

Anchored by a number of stalwarts, the Lady Eagles defense is led by good play from junior Kerry Hicks, sophomores Sara Virgil and Dani Blanchard and freshmen Katie Wagoner and Kristin Link, who always comes up with loose balls and quickly jumpstarts the offense on a fast break towards the opponents goal.

Minding the BCHS net is junior goalie Stephanie Sherman. Also a source of concern at the start of the season, Battaglino has been pleased with Sherman's gradual improvement and consistency as she patrols the area between the pipes.

While Battaglino is proud of the performance of Sherman and the rest of his team, he is still looking for more, unwilling to rest on the laurels of a undefeated start.

"We want to finish the remaining games strong. We tend to fall asleep briefly so we have to push hard every minute of every game now. I'm looking for more ball control and it is important to peak at the right time. I'm happy with our accomplishments, but we have more to do if we want to play to the very last day of the season and we must get through the Section to do that. If we play to our potential we will have the opportunity to achieve that goal, winning Section II."

After a week filled with action, including triumphs over Columbia (16-7), Shaker (27-5), Niskayuna (17-3) and Guiderland (18-8), the Lady Eagles returned to the field against Colonie, before a 4 p.m. today, May 17, contest at Shenendehowa.

Eagles lax team drops weekend pair

By Christine Potter

It was a long weekend for the Bethlehem Central High School varsity boys lacrosse team. Facing two of the premier teams in Section II the Eagles suffered a tough loss to Niskayuna at their home field on Saturday, May 13, after absorbing a beating on their own home turf at the hands of Shaker.

The Blue Bison made quick work of the BCHS boys on Friday, jumping out to an early 7-2 lead before eventually triumphing 14-4.

After battling through pouring rain on Saturday, the Eagles record dropped to 3-9 (1-9 in Suburban Council play) as the final score against the surging Silver Warriors was 12-4.

The game became one of ball control, rather than a transition game, which is Bethlehem's usual style. The rain created difficult conditions that wouldn't allow the Eagles to push the ball up the field as they would have liked.

A fairly young and inexperienced team, BCHS has not necessarily had luck on their side this season.

Early on, Bethlehem lost senior defensive man Matt Thibdeau to an ankle injury, which left them without one of their top starting players. Shortly after, Lucas Singleton, who has provided offensive depth, was also placed on the injury list, forcing senior Brendan Dalton to move in.

These injuries have forced Bethlehem to rely upon their cast of talented, but inexperienced sophomores, who have not had much playing time on the varsity level.

Despite all this, Bethlehem head coach Dave Rounds feels they haven't played poorly. Sophomore Pat Heenan played a good game against Niskayuna, scoring two of Bethlehem's goals and assisting the other two. Sophomore Chris Abbott and Dalton contributed by netting the other two goals.

Matt Holmes also played a solid game at defense. Holmes kept the Silver Warrior's best attack man, Derek Howelles, on check.

After another slow start, the second half was where the Eagles pulled themselves together and actually outscored Niskayuna 3-1. This has been the case all year for Bethlehem, their inexperience tends to show in the first half, but once they settle down and relax they make it an even second half.

Unfortunately, this has been more often than not what has done them in because the other teams get too far ahead in the first half, forcing the green group of Eagles to fight uphill battles after digging themselves substantial holes.

"I'm very pleased with the season," Rounds said. "One of the hardest things is that our record isn't good. The kids are playing decent lacrosse. We're losing game's, but we're not playing horribly."

Rounds feels they have faced tough competition this year, but with each game the team gets more and more experienced and he is very hopeful for next year.

While the coach's sights may be set on success next season, the 2000 campaign is not yet officially over.

Following a non-league match up with perennial power Glens Falls on May 15, the Eagles look to finish strong as they host Columbia at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 17.

Net gain

Glenmont resident and BCHS freshman, Masha Senic, 14, proudly displays the trophy she won for her fifth place finish at the recent Sectional Endorsement Tennis Tournament in Syracuse. After toppling the No. 5 ranked player, Senic fell in the quarterfinals. The No. 10 rated player in the Eastern Section Senic is qualified to compete in the Nationals.

Local youngster wins in fight club

Excitement filled the air Saturday May 6, at the city of Albany Boxing Club.

This was the site for the 2000 USA Boxing Junior Olympic State Trials. James Murray, 15, of Delmar won a three round decision over Calvin Lang of Utica to take the State Title at 112 lbs.

Murray will advance to the Regional Tournament at the USA Olympic Center in Lake Placid on Memorial Day weekend.

Earlier this year Murray also won the State Silver Gloves championships in Rochester.

Murray is sponsored by Telecommunications Analysis Group Inc. (TAG), and trains at Sweeney's Boxing and Fitness.

Voorheesville boy jumps ahead of the pack

Daniel Olson, a native of Voorheesville and a junior at Albany Academy, recently jumped 6-feet, 9-inches to shatter the high jump record at the Albany County meet on May 9, at Colonie High School.

This was Olson's personal best and one of the top jumps in the country this year.

Earlier in the week, Olson won the Colonie Relays, also held at Colonie High School, with a record height of 6-feet, 7.25-inches.

BCHS sports awards banquet scheduled

The Bethlehem Central Athletic Association will host its annual awards banquet on Thursday, June 1 at 6 p.m. at Elm Avenue Park.

All students who participated in varsity Bethlehem Central High School sports during the 1999-2000 season, and their families, are invited.

There is no cost to participants.

Suburban Council and Sectional championship teams will be honored. There will also be individual awards including Senior Scholarship and other special awards from coaches.

For information, contact BCAA President Jim Kelly at 439-0716

Tri-Village season under way

After a rain soaked April delayed the start of play, Tri-Village Little League finally opened its 2000 season on May 1, with a full schedule of games at Magee Park on Kenwood Avenue.

In the Major League opener, Homestead Funding Corp, behind the overpowering pitching of Chris Gray, defeated M&T Bank 2-1.

Gray was totally dominant in recording an 18 strikeout no hitter to notch the victory. He was also instrumental in starting the winning rally in the bottom of the sixth. After reaching second base when his windblown fly ball to right field fell in safely, he stole third and scored the winning run on Jason Wassergug's slow roller up the first base line. Homestead had scored first with a run in the bottom of the third, when Terence Pologe opened the inning with a solid single to center, advanced to third with some alert base running, and scored on Shawn Calvagno's infield single.

The score remained 1-0 until the top of the sixth when M&T's John Sullivan walked, stole second and third and scampered home with the tying run on a wild throw. At that point it looked like the pitchers duel might go to extra innings, but Homestead pulled out the win in the bottom of the inning.

Sullivan took the loss for M&T Bank despite allowing only two singles and striking out 10 Homesteaders in a strong season opening pitching performance of his own.

In the Intermediate Division, Angela's Pizza and Pasta, riding the pitching of Nick deVries and Will DeRuve, easily defeated Davies Office Refurbishing 18-2.

Tour du Parc slated

The Bethlehem Central Track and Field Boosters and Bethlehem Youth Track and Field Club will conduct the sixth annual Tour du Parc on May 21, at 9 a.m. at Elm Avenue Park.

The Tour du Parc is a 5-kilometer (3.1 miles) Cross Country race and a one mile children's race. Proceeds support youth athletics in the town of Bethlehem.

The Booster Club supplements the high school cross country and track and field programs with funding for out of state travel, special, awards, and facilities.

The course is moderately hilly over fields and through the woods. The cost is $12 preregistered or $15 on raceday. Through the generosity of GE, Selkirk, there is no entry fee for the children's race.

For information, call 439-7749.

Cozumel, Mexico

Even though it is Mexico's largest cruise ship port, Cozumel has remained refreshingly undeveloped. Most of the 189-square-mile island south of Cancun consists of vast stretches of beaches, groves of palm trees, jungles, and swamp land. San Miguel, the only established town, offers shopping and dining along the waterfront and is easy to navigate. Beautiful sandy beaches line Cozumel's west coast - Playa San Francisco is the most popular with its restaurants, bars, and water-sports equipment rentals. Scuba diving and snorkeling are key attractions in Cozumel, mainly because of its incredible coral reefs and sea life. More than 60,000 divers visit Cozumel each year, and they rank Plancar reef one of the five best diving spots in the world.

If shopping is more your sport than diving, swimming, and sunning, be sure to look for the beautiful objects of Mexican silver that are favorites purchases of travelers to Cozumel. Look also for pottery and hand-woven crafts to bring home to family and friends. ## VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

Dr. Geoffrey B. Edmunds, D.D.S.

FOR THOSE WHO NEED DENTISTRY

Maybe you're one of the people whose parents didn't encourage preventive care... or perhaps your parents wanted to take you to a dentist but you were too scared to go. Now you're an adult and you are possibly ashamed or embarrassed by the condition of your mouth and you're worried that it's too late to correct some of your dental problems.

It's not too late! Your dentist, most likely has the expertise to restore your mouth to a high level of health, comfort, function and esthetics.

Whether it involves crown and bridge work, dentures, implants or simple fillings, your dentist is ready to help or if need be, refer you to the appropriate specialist.

Also, for those of us who are dental cowards, fear not! Many dentists may offer valium, nitrous oxide or similar aids to relax their fearful patients. It is normal to be apprehensive about getting dental care but your dentist should understand this and be sympathetic to your needs.

Lyman confirmed that a satisfactory resolution to that and other issues was reached last week, clearing the way for the closing. He declined to discuss specifics.

"We're glad to see they've finally gone the distance and taken ownership of the property," town Supervisor Sheila Fuller said. "We will be meeting with them very soon now to discuss the tax issue. I haven't set a specific timetable, but as soon as possible."

PSEG will now assign ownership of the station to its indirect subsidiary, PSEG Power New York, which will explore options for repowering the facility — replacing the existing 400-megawatt plant with a larger and more efficient, natural gas-fired operation.

"We we're looking at is basically building a new plant, a 750-megawatt combined-cycle plant, which would be built adjacent to the plant, and when it's complete, the existing plant removed," PSEG spokesman Neil Brown said. "It's essentially a brownfield development that would utilize the existing resource, providing a source of employment and relief for the town."

On the employment front, PSEG has already extended until 2004 NiMo's existing union labor contract with Local 97 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers — a contract covering nearly all of the plant's work force. And NiMo has agreed to continue purchasing power generated by the plant through September 2003.

But the tax assessment issue

— reconciling the $47.5 million sale price with the town's current assessed valuation of $260 million — remains to be resolved. At stake, tax revenues for the town and Bethlehem Central School District that amounted to 7 and 15 percent of each entity's respective tax revenues last year, or nearly $7 million altogether.

"We hope to resolve this in a way that addresses the town's concerns. But it must be fair to all parties and reflect the competitive realities of the marketplace," Brown said.

"Certainly the school district, and the parents I've spoken to, are supportive of PSEG repowering the station," school Superintendent Les Loomis said. "Everyone wants to see that happen. At the same time, the taxes on the station need to remain realistic and fair."

Fuller declined to discuss the valuation question, citing pending litigation by NiMo challenging its assessment in the past.

"According to the town and district's attorneys, and our expert appraiser, our position is that the property is fairly valued," Loomis said. "But the town of Bethlehem is the lead agency. I appreciate the way the town and district have moved through these issues cooperatively."

Fuller and Loomis both said the next move is PSEG's.

"If PSEG is interested in a change in the assessment, it would be up to them to say so. Certainly PSEG has not contacted the school district about negotiating a reduction," Loomis said. "For now, it's just a matter of continuing with the current assessment until there are further developments."

Program

program, administered by County Court Judge Thomas Breslin and a countywide panel, was awarded a federal Department of Justice planning grant in 1998, and is now seeking a three-year implementation grant. Its first session in City Court was held in January, and nine defendants are currently in the program there.

Colony Town Court under Justice Mary Sweeney will launch its version of Drug Court on June 16, and Egan said Bethlehem is "planning a fall start-up date" for the program. Each Town Court, she said, could eventually have as many as 30 participants at any given time. Both justices have been participants in the countywide planning effort.

"By staggering the entry of the courts into the program, (Albany City Court Judge) Steve Herrick has been our guinea pig, if you will," Egan said. "Mary and I have been learning from his experience the do's and don'ts of this approach."

Eventually, if it proves successful in limited implementation, the program is envisioned to be put in place countywide. County Court under Breslin will begin its own version by next December.

At the press conference, Herrick said he was an early skeptic but now "a true believer in the substance abuse court program," and the track record of the program in Albany so far has been good.

The Rev. John Miller, pastor of Evangelical Protestant Church in Albany's South End and one of the network of community service providers participating in the City Court program, attended the conference and hailed the effort.

"The Drug Court model is one that has been tried very effectively in hundreds of courts around the country," he said. "We have been advocating it here for some time."

It holds nothing but good potential. We're locking up too many people for not good enough reasons."

And, he said, Drug Court puts judges in the unusual position of being part of "a great therapeutic team. It's particularly satisfying to watch people in the judicial system become part of a therapeutic team rather than a punishment dispensing team."

Discount

board gave its support of the media merger, and more recently the Bethlehem town board followed suit, both with guarantees of a break on senior cable rates.

Now, according to a letter from George Smeade, Time Warner's manager of governmental relations, New Scotland would also be able to offer the need-based discount program as part of its new franchise agreement.

Smeade states in the letter that the program would mirror the one currently being negotiated by Bethlehem, and would offer a $3 discount off the "basic with standard monthly rate for a one-year period."

Senior citizens who qualify for the program would also be required to reapply through the town office annually. In addition, Smeade said that the discount would not be available for those receiving "Broadcast Basic only, any movie service, Cable Plus or Digital Cable."

With the New Scotland town board giving its consent, the discount plan should be in place as soon as it is initiated in Bethlehem. The town will be responsible for administering the program, with eligibility being tied to the real estate property tax exemption.

"It's been offered to the folks in Albany, Colonie, and Guilderland for years now," said Supervisor Martha Pofit. "So we're very pleased that our seniors here in New Scotland will finally be able to take advantage of the savings as well."

In other business, the board passed a resolution to accept Logical Net as the new service provider for the town's Web site, which will soon have a new name as well.

Residents and members of the board had complained that the current site, www.family.knick.net/newscot/, was not easily remembered. And, according to board member Scott Houghtaling, the forgettable domain name wasn't the only issue that spurred the change from the town's current host service, Knick.Net/CRISNY.

"To be honest, their lack of service and higher prices drove us to make a change for the better," he said. "Logical Net is locally owned, has a record of quality service, and has been terrific to deal with. But the bottom line is pricing and they made us the best offer."

According to Houghtaling, the switch to Logical Net would cost the town a total of $424. That amount would cover an initial $50 setup fee as well as a two-year $70 domain registration. The additional $304 would be allotted for the company to provide hosting services, Internet access and e-mail capabilities.

In the future, suggests Houghtaling, the board should add $500 to $700 to the budget as part of the town's Internet/communication expenses.

"We could really start to reap the benefits with a more active Web site, and our level of communication with residents would be greatly improved," Houghtaling said. "The site could serve as a continuously updated newsletter with information on things like special events, garbage pickups, minutes of meetings, historical facts — the possibilities are endless."

Houghtaling added that an official announcement of the new, more memorable, domain name would be made in the coming weeks.

operate an outpatient practice full time from the new office.

The latest to move in was the Women's Health Center, an obstetrics and gynecology practice previously located at 785 Delaware Ave. in Delmar. Drs. Albert Apicelli, Robert Rosenblatt, Robert Kelly, Jennifer Mosmen, Kenneth Baker and Steven Cuthbert make up that practice.

The trio of eye-care practices jointly leasing space under the banner of Ophthalmology Consultants, with a separate entrance on the building's upper level, include specialists in glaucoma and retinal and corneal surgery.

The largest is the newly-formed Glaucoma Consultants of the Capital Region, a merger of separate practices involving Kaback, former director of glaucoma services at Albany Medical Center; Dr. Steven Simmons, associated with the Center for Sight at Albany Memorial Hospital; and Dr. Steven Sanchez. The practice serves approximately 6,000 patients throughout upstate New York, Vermont and western Massachusetts.

The new practice, which also offers cataract surgery, aimed for a May 1 opening but in fact was in place a week earlier, Kaback said.

One goal of the new practice, he said, is to build enough clinical volume to support research in the detection and treatment of glaucoma; all three practitioners are widely published in the field.

Cornea Consultants of Albany is a satellite office for two physicians associated with TLC Laser Eye Center at Corporate Woods in Albany. Drs. Michael Belin and Robert Schultz will keep regular hours at the Slingerlands location, which also opened for business on May 1.

The Retina Office, a joint practice of Drs. Charles Mayron and Paul Beer, began seeing patients at their new location the last week of April. The practice, which performs laser treatment and other retinal care services for approximately 1,500 patients, relocated from Child's Hospital professional building.

Chady said the public dedication ceremonies on Saturday, June 10, will include a brief program on the services located at the site, activities for youngsters, and an open house and free health screenings for the public.

Bethlehem police probe break-ins

By Joseph A. Phillips

Burglars struck three separate locations in Delmar and Slingerlands on Tuesday, May 9, — and what exactly they were after remains something of a mystery.

According to police reports, seven separate businesses at the three locations on Delaware Avenue in Elsmere and Kenwood Avenue near Toll Gate Corners in Slingerlands — were involved in break-ins that all occurred between closing time on Monday evening and the discovery of the burglaries on Tuesday morning.

The method of entry into all three buildings was similar, and proprietors of all seven businesses reported desks opened and file cabinets searched — but only one reported anything apparently missing.

The first report received by Bethlehem police came from Kenneth Parker, an accountant with an office in the Slingerlands building, at about 7:40 a.m.

Police responding at the scene found the building's front door forced. Also broken into at that location, in addition to Parker's office, were those of the law firm of Cahill & Messina and of a State Farm Insurance agency at that location.

Desks and files in all three offices were rifled through but nothing apparently missing, despite valuables in plain sight.

That was also the case at 230 Delaware Ave., where a burglar or burglars, gaining access to the building by kicking in a basement door, broke into the Designs by Barbara Hair Salon; an office of Guertze Builders, a home remodeling firm; and the office of Holly Willkie's Therapeutic Massage.

While Bethlehem police detectives combed those locations for clues, a police patrol passing by 210 Delaware Ave. at about 8:40 a.m. noticed a basement window broken in and evidence that someone had tried to pry open a first-floor door and window.

Inside, at another State Farm Insurance location, office personnel reported desks and closets gone though, as well as the only reported thefts of the spree — a small portable TV and some instamatic film.

A neighbor to the third location reported hearing the sound of breaking glass at around 10:45 p.m. the preceding evening, but did not investigate at that time.

Otherwise, Bethlehem police have not disclosed any details of the ongoing investigation, nor, despite the similarities, suggest that they may be related.

Detectives John Cox and Christopher Bowdish are overseeing the three investigations, but could not be reached for comment.

By JOHN BRENT

Looking for a way to cool down on a hot summer day? About 40 miles southwest of Albany is the village of Cobleskill and its perennial attraction, Howe Caverns. Open all year, closing only on Thanksgiving and Christmas, the caves remain a brisk 52 degrees regardless of the temperature above ground. So during one of those periodic hot spells that hit the area, when the kids are complaining that there's nothing to do, grab a jacket for everyone, pack the family in the minivan and cruise down I-88. In less than an hour, you'll hit exit 22 for Cobleskill and the caverns.

During the peak summer season, there's often a line waiting to gain admission to the caverns so be prepared to allow some extra time. No doubt about it, though, it's worth the wait!

An elevator takes visitors 156 feet underground for a tour that takes about an hour and 20 minutes. Brick walkways have been placed throughout the passages to facilitate walking. Tour groups are led along side the River Styx, past the balancing Rock and the Old Witch of the Grottos, into the Titans' Temple and beyond.

A knowledgeable tour guide accompanies each group to point out the outstanding features of the natural formations, and visitors are encouraged to ask questions.

At about midpoint on the tour, there is a quarter-mile boat ride on the underground Lake of Venus.

There are additional attractions above ground as well. Visitors can try gemstone mining or watch as an ancient geode is cut open to reveal an inner world of mineral beauty.

Howe Caverns has been a tourist attraction since reopening in the late 1920s, but the known story of the caverns goes back to the 1800s.

Legend has it that on hot and humid summer days, a cool breeze could be felt coming from "Blowing Rock," a strange stony outcropping in an area of land near what is now Cobleskill.

It had been a story told by Native Americans and passed down through generations of settlers who had come to live in the area.

In the mid-19th century, Lester Howe, his wife and their three young children lived on a farm east of Cobleskill, near where the Blowing Rock was supposed to be located.

Fascinated by the stories, Howe did not know where the rock was, but he did notice that his dairy herd always pastured in the same spot. One day, as he approached the herd, he noticed the temperature becoming cooler. He explored the brush area near the pasture and found "Blowing Rock," thereafter giving credit for the discovery to his cow, Millicent.

On May 22, 1842, Howe entered the cave with friend and neighbor, Henry Wetsel. Each day they went into the cavern, they would explore a little more, the only illumination being provided by a dim, flickering oil lamp.

The following year, Howe began charging an admission of 50 cents to take visitors on a torch-lit, eight to 10 hour tour of the underground marvels.

Today, the caverns are one of the most popular New York state attractions. Of course, electric lights have replaced the torches of days gone by and the elevator, opened in May, 1929, makes the decent much easier. But the wonders down under remain as breathtaking as they were to folks more than a century ago.

The caverns are open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. during July and August and from 9 to 6 the rest of the year. Adult admission is $12, children age 7-12 are $6, children under 6 are free and seniors are $10.50. There is a gift shop which is open for the same hours as the caverns and an on-site restaurant. Call 296-8900 for information or visit the Web site at www.howecaverns.com.

ASO concert features 15-year-old violinist

"Spring Strings" will be the final concert of the 1999-2000 season for the Albany Symphony Orchestra. "This is a wonderful program," commented David Alan Miller, music director and conductor for the ASO. The performance will take place at 8 p.m. on Saturday, May 20 at the Palace Theatre in downtown Albany.

The program begins with "Rave On!" by American composer Richard Adams. Described as a celebratory piece that reflects the diversity of American popular dance music of the past century, Saturday will be the second time the piece has been performed by ASO.

The second selection of the evening will be Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto (D major, Opus 35) featuring 15-year-old violinist Shunsuke Sato. Sato was born in Tokyo, Japan and began playing the violin at age 2.

The program also includes Johannes Brahms' Symphony No. 4 (E minor, Opus 98).

Tickets for the concerts are available at the Palace Theatre Box Office (465-4663) and at all ticketmaster locations. Tickets range in price from $14 to $33.

Young violinist Shunsuke Sato will perform at the final ASO concert of the season on Saturday evening.

BOND RESOLUTION, DATED MAY 10, 2000, AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE OF UP TO $450,000.00 SERIAL BONDS OF THE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM, PURSUANT TO THE LOCAL FINANCE LAW, TO FINANCE THE REPLACEMENT OF THE 12" WATER MAIN BETWEEN NEW SCOTLAND ROAD AND EASTMOUNT DRIVE, WITHIN SAID TOWN AND APPROPRIATING THE PROCEEDS TO SUCH PURPOSE.

Recital
WHEREAS, following the review of Engineer's Report for the replacement of the 12" water main between New Scotland Road and Eastmount Drive (the "Project"), in the Town of Bethlehem (herein called "Town"), Water District no. 1, and to ensure the reliable, break-free transmission of water to the area of the Town north of the Normanskill and after a public hearing duly called and held, the Town Board of the Town determined, that the Project is in the public interest, and ordered that the Project be carried out and that the estimated total cost of the Project is approximately $450,000.00;
NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Town Board of the Town of Bethlehem in the County of Albany, New York (by the favorable vote of not less than two-thirds of all members of said Town Board), as follows:

Section 1. The Town of Bethlehem, in the County of Albany, State of New York, shall issue its serial bonds in the aggregate principal amount not to exceed $450,000 pursuant to the Local Finance Law of New York, to finance the specific object or purpose hereinafter described.
Section 2. The specific object or purpose (hereinafter referred to as "purpose") to be financed by the issuance of such serial bonds is the Project, all in accordance with the report drawings prepared by C.T. Section 3. It is hereby determined and stated that the estimated maximum cost of such purpose as heretofore determined by the Town Board is $450,000 and that no money has heretofore been authorized to the payment of the cost of such purpose and the Town Board plans to finance the cost of such purpose entirely from funds raised by the issuance of the obligations authorized by this bond resolution.

Each of the serial bonds authorized by this resolution and any bond anticipation notes issued in anticipation of the sale of said serial bonds shall contain the recital of validity as prescribed by Section 52.00 of the Local Finance Law and said serial bonds and any notes issued in anticipation of said serial bonds, shall be general obligations of the Town, payable as to both principal and interest by general tax upon all the taxable real property within the Town without limitation of rate or amount.
