pedestrian accident on residential Fernbank Avenue last Tuesday.

Sandra Crowley, 50, of 84 Adams Place, was struck from behind by a car driven by Ellen Marohn, 52, of 24 Borthwick Ave., at about 5:45 p.m. on May 23. Crowley, who was unconscious when police and emergency rescue personnel arrived on the scene, was rushed by the Delmar Fire Department rescue squad to the hospital. She remained there Monday in the intensive care unit, according to hospital spokesman Richard Puff.

The accident took place on Fernbank just east of the intersection with Jordan Boulevard. According to Bethlehem police Officer Jeffrey Vunck, Crowley was apparently walking westward along the curb, facing the oncoming eastbound traffic lane, when Marohn's vehicle, also westbound, strayed from its lane and struck her.

Businesses reeling in wake of landslide

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

In the wake of this month's Elsmere landslide, Bethlehem's business community is bracing for what promises to be a very long, hot summer.

More than 250 businesses line Delaware Avenue from the Normanskill to Elsmere Avenue, and the full impact of the road's temporary closing began to emerge last week.

"My lunch crowd has dropped down dramatically," said Haim Ben Eliezer, manager of the Subway in Delaware Plaza, last Friday, gesturing to an empty shop. "It's eleven now, and look at it. I couldn't sit down here on a regular Friday."

What has become clear since the road closed, he said, is that "about 40 percent of my business" comes from Albany. "Now I know," he said. "It's a lot of people. The moment they closed the road, I might as well have closed my doors."

Marty DeLaney, president of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce, said member businesses have reported sales off by upwards of 40 percent since the road was closed on May 18, depriving those businesses of 16,000 to 20,000 cars a day of drive-by traffic. "As a business owner, I can afford to lose 40 percent for a short time," said Deidre Jameson of In And Out The Window, a consignment store on Delaware. "The problem is, no one knows how long this will go on."

"They're frustrated," said Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller, who has fielded numerous calls from business owners since the road was closed. "They've been

DOT: Solution could be weeks, months ahead

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

As the shutdown of Delaware Avenue in Elsmere as a result of the recent landslide in the Normanskill ravine enters its second week, Gov. George Pataki has asked the Federal government to formally declare the site a disaster area.

Meanwhile, officials from the state Department of Transportation continue to study the hillside for signs that the worst is over — and warn that Delaware Avenue will not reopen for traffic anytime soon.

"What we want to be sure of is that when Route 443 is reopened to traffic that it's completely safe," said DOT spokeswoman Paula Kelly on Monday. "We have to rely on sound engineering judgment and not respond to pressure to prematurely reopen the road. When we fix this, we want to fix it right — and we only want to fix it once."

Pataki wrote to regional officials of the federal Emergency Management Agency last Thursday seeking the formal disaster declaration, which would make federal aid available for infrastructure repairs and other relief. Dennis Michalski, spokesman for the state Emergency Management Office, said that no declaration by federal officials has been made yet. "There is no time frame provided in the law for such a determination," he said. "But we're hopeful they'll make a favorable determination. We believe we've made a good case for it."

In the meantime, DOT continues to study the slope. "There seems to be much more hope that the roadway alignment will be able to stay, if not exactly where it is, then very, very close," said Kelly.

But both Kelly and Rob Burnett, chief of DOT's geotechnical division, said that the situation remains potentially dangerous and unstable, and a solution remains weeks or months away.

"We still have a landslide," Burnett told the Bethlehem town board last Wednesday, pleading with the public to continue to avoid the area. "It's still moving. It's still eating away toward Delaware Avenue."

While analysis of the slide area indicates that the damaged slope is beginning to correct itself, Burnett on Monday continued to decline any prediction on when remediation measures might begin to be put in place.

"Initially we were in a situation where we had a massive slide and a lot of questions, but not many answers, about what was going on," Burnett said.

But he said there have been no major additional slippages since a series of collapses on May 18, the last of which claimed the California Produce Market.

What is continuing, he said, is "ravelling" of the sheer face of the slide area, the "scarp," as loose portions of soil fall and slowly restore the slope.

"What we had hoped for is what we have come to have in the past week," Burnett said. "We're seeing numerous little falls that have fallen off the top edge and buttressed the slide area down below."

The vertical portion of the scarp is now only about 15 feet high after a section about 80 feet long and five feet deep from the southeasterly edge of the scarp fell last Wednesday.

A survey crew went down the slope last Thursday and installed a series of prisms which, used in concert with one installed on a utility pole on Delaware Avenue, are designed to track any changes in the position of the slope. Along with three slope indicators installed in drill holes in the pavement above, and an array of 21 "PK nails" used to measure changes in the elevation of the paved surface, these survey instruments confirm that the slope and roadbed have remained stable since the major slide.

"I would say we've turned the corner on the slide, in that we've not seen these big, violent movements, replacing them with these small, sloughing movements," Burnett said.

"The more the slope continues to behave the way it is, the less likely any kind of major realignment will occur," said Kelly. "We tend to be a cautious lot, but that is enough good news to let us go out there and study the slide area more closely. But it's not definite enough yet or certain enough yet for us to make a decision about how to restore the slope."

Samples were taken from the three drill holes at street level to determine the composition of the soil under the roadway, which turns out to be mostly the soluble "Albany clay" whose instability is believed to have caused the initial slide. Bedrock was struck in all three positions roughly 170 to 180 feet below the roadbed.

"Not finding bedrock closer kind of eliminates the wall-type solutions we were considering in the upper portion of the slope," Burnett said.

To help evaluate possible stabilizing measures down below, a helicopter from the New York Army National Guard's Third Battalion, 142nd Aviation Division was called into service Saturday to help surveyors identify portions of the slide area suitable for bringing in drill equipment. The chopper flew again Sunday to airlift that equipment, prepared overnight by DOT's emergency contractor, Reale Construction of Ticonderoga, and drilling began on Monday for two test holes.

"These next two drilling holes will be pretty critical," Burnett said. "They'll help us determine the geometry of the slide movement. Down there we can learn a lot more about the nature of what happened. The depth of the failed material will tell us a lot about how much of the soil has been disturbed and how much is in its native state ... Once we feel we know and understand the nature of the slide, we can narrow down our solutions package for stabilizing the slope."

He said he is now "hopeful we can restore Delaware Avenue in its current location," but also indicated that it's possible the geometry of the slide area will be unsuitable for any significant measures to stabilize the slope — which could draw out the restoration or relocation of the roadway for months. For the time being, DOT has no plans to open the roadway to even limited traffic.

"We're not going to take any risks on that with respect to public safety," he said. "We don't want to tie our hands and raise any false hopes. We're going to continue to hold onto that for a few weeks."

In the meantime, a team of traffic engineers from DOT's Region One headquarters, led by Bill Logan, are closely monitoring the changing traffic patterns along the detour routes announced two weeks ago, using traffic counters and continual field observation.

"We've been bouncing around from intersection to intersection," he said. "We will be going up in a helicopter to get a better look at the whole network and see if we can do anything to improve it."

Town board attends to regular business

By Joseph A. Phillips

The distractions of Bethlehem's ongoing state of emergency didn't deter the town board from its regular meeting agenda last Wednesday.

A status report on the Delaware Avenue landslide from state Department of Transportation spokesman Bob Burnett concluded the meeting, but earlier, amid the usual bid awards, purchase approvals and deed acceptances, the board attended to other business.

Leading off the meeting was a public hearing focusing on the Section 8 Housing Assistance program funded by the federal Department of Housing & Urban Development and administered by the town since 1985. The program provides $320,000 annually to subsidize rent and utilities up to 70 percent for low-income families, principally headed by elderly or disabled individuals or single parents, according to a sliding scale of income limits and other criteria.

As required by HUD, program administrator Joseph Mastrianni detailed a one-year and five-year administrative plan and outlined the current performance of the program, which serves 47 of a maximum 59 families, 18 from Bethlehem and New Scotland, whose residents receive preference under the program.

In addition, some 33 families are on the program's waiting list, some for as long as three years. Mastrianni said that reaching all of those on the waiting list is difficult given the program's requirements to target "extremely low income" applicants, of whom there are far fewer in the program area; he outlined a loosening of those strictures in the near future.

Bethlehem Senior Services Director Karen Pellettier endorsed adoption of the revised administrative plan.

"The town of Bethlehem has worked very hard over the past 15 years to develop options for the elderly," she said. "This is one of the nicest options."

The board adopted the plan, which will now be filed with HUD.

Two more public hearings dealt with traffic safety issues. One concerned a proposal by Bethlehem police to ban parking on Elm Avenue adjacent to the Stewart's store at the intersection with Delaware Avenue.

According to Lt. Timothy Beebe, who presented the proposed restrictions at the hearing, traffic patrols in the area had reported a growing number of car carriers, en route from the Selkirk rail yards to Route 85, parking on Elm while the drivers made purchases at Stewart's, reducing traffic on Elm Avenue to one lane.

"It's particularly hazardous when school is coming in and going out," Beebe said. "In some cases, children have been observed walking in the street in order to cross behind them."

The board unanimously adopted the proposed law, posting no-parking signs as far south as the first residential driveways on Elm Avenue.

Also adopted after a brief hearing were new parking restrictions in the neighborhood adjacent to Bethlehem Central High School. The restrictions, limiting parking to an hour on school days on all streets in the Brookfield development and posting those restrictions on signs at the Delaware Avenue entrances to the development, are designed to reduce student parking in the residential area.

Despite controversy over the parking situation earlier this spring, only two residents spoke.

"I think this issue isn't going to be resolved by continuing to move this problem" to other neighborhoods, said BCBS student Gordon Schmidt.

But Brookfield resident Joan Smith thanked the board for the new restrictions, and the board adopted them unanimously.

Supervisor Sheila Fuller said she hoped the school board will address the high school parking shortage.

"I have been speaking to the school district for four years on this issue, and I do believe they're beginning to look at solutions," she said.

A public forum on renewal of Time Warner Cable's franchise in the town passed without any comment from residents. But town Comptroller Judith Kehoe, who will oversee negotiations to renew the contract set to expire in August 2001, said she received several written comments and invited more from the public as negotiations get under way.

The board authorized competitive bidding on projects to resurface the basketball courts at Elm Avenue Park and the tennis courts at Selkirk Park. Parks & Recreation Department administrator David Austin said the tennis court project could get under way in July, but the basketball court project will not begin until after Labor Day to avoid any disruption of the summer pool program.

The board also OK'd $130,000 for the Public Works Department to purchase 13 acres adjacent to Onesquethaw Creek and the town landfill on Rapp Road, to serve as a buffer between the two. The property is part of a 38-acre parcel currently owned by Callanan Industries of South Bethlehem.

The state Department of Environmental Conservation and the private advocacy group Trout Unlimited has proposed an easement that would give anglers access to the creek by way of the town property.

BCBS math teacher to retire

By Katherine McCarthy

After teaching math at Bethlehem Central High School for 38 years, David Symula is about to retire. On June 2, colleagues, friends and former students will "toast and roast" him at the Big House Brewing Co. in Albany.

"Dave is a very gracious and nice man, and he's made a real difference in Bethlehem. He's always very open and honest, and willing to help. We're going to miss him," said fellow math teacher Joanne Duquette.

With a laugh, Symula cites full retirement benefits as his motive for stepping down now.

"This was a good district to start in," he said. "I earned $5,000 in 1962, when I first came here. I taught good courses, and there was no reason to move to another district."

Symula said he had no desire to do administrative work, preferring to work directly with the students.

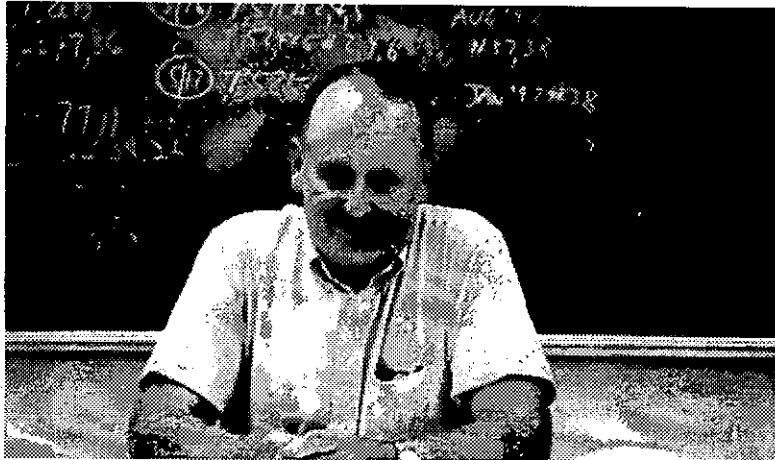

"I liked explaining things," said the Auburn native, whose own father was his math teacher. "I like seeing the kids finally get it."

When Symula started in the district, he taught elementary algebra, and math 10, 11 and 12. Over the years, though, he has become known for the upper-level math classes he teaches, such as pre-calculus, AP calculus course, calculus 3 and linear algebra.

"I like teaching calculus, and working with kids who have a math background," Symula said.

Although math hasn't changed, Symula said, the way it's taught has. In particular, he feels the use of calculators has had a negative effect on students' thinking.

"I'm BC — before calculators," Symula said. "I do my arithmetic in my head, and when the kids see the answer, they're not always sure it's correct. The calculator has changed the kids' way of thinking, and leaves them with no feeling for the numbers. I like to try to make the students think."

David Symula is looking forward to retirement.

Katherine McCarthy

A lot has changed in the way education is regarded, Symula said.

"The thing I bemoan is that the classroom used to be inviolate, and nobody was ever out," he said. "Now, kids are out for field trips, doctor's appointments or vacations. You can't make up a class. Kids miss a lot; they miss the discussion, and the flavor of the subject."

There are also more outside influences on the classroom, Symula said.

"I'm not saying the world is coming to an end," Symula added. "I'm just saying that it's different. The kids are good, they work hard, and they succeed."

One of the greatest rewards of his career, Symula said, is hearing from former students. One Saturday night at 10 p.m., he got a call from a former student who was attending the University of Chicago.

"He was working with some of his professors, figuring out how to come up with a map of the universe," Symula said. Of the gathered group, his student was the only one who could use linear algebra to do it.

For the past six years, one of Symula's students has named him as the teacher who most influenced his or her life in the Scholar's Recognition Program.

Bethlehem senior Moira Pulitzer-Kennedy recognized Symula in this year's Scholar's Recognition Program. Pulitzer-Kennedy said that Symula gets students excited not just about math, but about learning.

"Mr. Symula is very energetic and he cares about his subject. He doesn't just teach us formulas, but works through the proofs so that we get a better understanding of what math does," said Pulitzer-Kennedy, who has taken a class with Symula for the past three years.

Superintendent Les Loomis describes Symula as a master teacher.

"He's made learning clear and exciting for students for years and years, and he has an ability to connect with all students, whether they're working at the basic or most advanced level," Loomis said. "Dave's been widely revered and respected by everyone. I think that each school is built around certain key faculty members who represent the heart and soul of what teaching is. That's been Dave at BC."

Symula's main retirement plan is to "do whatever I want." This includes a long, leisurely trip around the country, riding his bike and tending to home projects.

"It won't take me too long to get out of the harness," he said.

Symula's farewell party, with grazing tables and a cash bar, is open to everyone. The cost is $15 per person.

To attend, leave a message for Joanne Duquette or Rosemary Norelli at Bethlehem Central High School at 439-4921.

The party is set for Friday, June 2, from 6 to 10 p.m. at Big House Brewing Co., 90 North Pearl St., Albany.

Children bring out our inner strength and beauty

By Katherine McCarthy

I used to have a big empty space inside me, but not the kind that yearns for a mate, children running on the grass, or a loyal dog lying by the hearth.

It was a good empty space, a hollow tube that ran the length of my torso; it was strong enough to hold me up, and it was a place that offered strength when life threw me curveballs. When a relationship failed, feelings were hurt, I had disappointed myself or somebody else, I was sad, or afraid —

COMMENTARY:

*Mom's

that inner core strengthened me. That space steadied me as friends poured out their troubles, and let me reflect for a minute about whether I could say anything relevant or comforting to them.

It was a piece of myself that I kept for myself.

Then Christopher was born, and the sturdy core melted from the heat of the all-encompassing love that accompanied Dr. Laura Corio's first announcement of "It's a boy!" I heard Chris laugh joyfully at the sight of his firstborn, red, squalling son, and I cried, and knew that I would hold nothing back from this new being.

When Cormac was born two years later, that love expanded as the truth I'd heard proved itself: each baby brings its own love. Sometimes I tell myself that's why I'll never be as thin as I once was; I need the extra space to hold all the love I need for my two boys.

As great as that love is, though, it was exactly during those early years that I missed that inner core the most.

I could have used more inner strength during my children's infancies, when sleep was more of a memory than reality; when it hurt to sit down; when my breasts were as hard as rocks yet leaked all the time; when my belly was, as author Anne Lamott describes it in

Operating Instructions, a flannel-clad puppy lying next to me in the bed; and when Kodak and AT&T commercials made me weep.

I could have used the inner core to store my worries in, and to protect my children from the world's dangers. Worries about SIDS turned to worry over electrical outlets stunning curious crawlers; bathtub water sucking down a baby if I turned my head for even a second; my toddler walking in front of a swing with an energetic child on it; a preschooler darting into traffic; the kidnapper who would snatch the stroller right out of my hands, leaving the wrong kind of empty space in his wake.

The inner core might have given me peace during the hectic days of constantly caring for my little guys. Diapers, baths, lunches, stories, songs, the trauma of toilet training, temper tantrums, the ups and downs of playground friendships, and play dates that taught sharing, often over vociferous declarations of "I don't want to share Thomas the Tank Engine!"

A group of similarly occupied women temporarily replaced that core in those early child-rearing years. During playground time, I felt strengthened and calmed as we puzzled out the finer elements of child care, offering practical tips like leaving the kitchen tap running to soothe a fussy infant, thinking about careers we might return to someday, and discreetly pointing out to one another that we had wet spots on the front of our shirts — again.

None of us had much by way of empty space in those days of toddlers and infants. We were prone to periodic exercise and bouts of healthy eating, but all wore the dark circles that marked us as the women changing diapers, figuring out nap schedules, fixing dinner, maintaining some semblance of order, all while imparting the values we wanted our children to have, and collecting as many hugs and kisses as our sticky children would permit us.

Occasionally we broke from the mold for a Mom's Night Out. We wore ironed pants, maybe a skirt, and dug out old bottles of foundation and mascara. Once we went to Capucine's, an Italian restaurant in New York. I arrived last, and stopped mid-sentence telling the maitre d' who I was looking for. "I'm with ..."

"Ah," he said in the experienced tones of good host, "you are joining the other beautiful women."

I was startled at his description. The minutia of caring for our children made us feel too harried way too often, and made us think of ourselves as more functional

TEARS OF THE GODS

Those born during the month of June have a birthstone that was once thought to be tears of the gods. So beautiful is the surface brilliancy (luster) of pearls that it inspired such heavenly metaphors. In actuality, pearls are formed in shellfish (particularly oysters and mussels) as a natural defense against an irritant. When a piece of grit, for instance, enters the shellfish, the shelled creature secretes layers of argonite (known as nacre). Gradually, these layers build up to form the solid pearl. Light reflecting from these overlapping layers produces the characteristic "orient of pearl," or iridescent luster. Thus, nacre thickness is not only indicative of durability, but of beauty as well. Thicker nacre usually means higher luster.

Although a pearl is the product of an oyster or mussel's defense system, the sheen of the nacre of pearl jewelry needs its own protection to keep its luster and beauty. We recommend avoiding household chemicals, cosmetics, hair sprays, and perfumes, and storing pearls in a protective chamois pouch or tissue paper. Most importantly, let JOYELLES JEWELERS help you choose the right pearls for you. We're located at 318 Delaware Avenue, in the Main Square Shoppes.

than beautiful. But as I approached the table, I looked with a different eye. There were six or eight of us; one or two must have been pregnant; another may have finally lost the weight from her last pregnancy, and everyone was smiling and relaxed. Sure, we wore a little makeup and were dressed a bit better than usual, and with no babes in arms, I could see these friends of mine for themselves. For the first time, I noticed a different kind of beauty, a kind of depth that made their faces radiate.

This depth, I realized, came from our children, who had taken us completely outside of ourselves. Raising children was exhausting, detail-filled, sometimes tedious, and surely the most significant thing we'll ever do. In it, there was a kind of strength and beauty far stronger than any hollow core had ever been.

Library hopes to renovate aging facility

Dear library patrons:

Each day, about a thousand people visit our wonderful library, and each month more than 42,000 items are borrowed. Last year, more than 14,000 children and adults attended library programs, and reference staff answered 69,000 questions.

High use exerts a heavy demand on a building and its furnishings. What was once clean, fresh and exciting becomes old, tired and shabby. In keeping with our responsibility to protect your investment, the board has been developing a comprehensive renovation plan to put before voters.

We sought advice from a professional library planning consultant, who worked extensively with the staff and trustees to identify present and future needs, based on this community's library utilization trends and projected population growth. We have worked with a 27-member citizens' advisory committee composed of a cross-section of Bethlehem residents. We have selected an architect, J. Stewart Roberts, who specializes in library renovation and design. Using the fact that this building was designed to accommodate a second story, the architect has incorporated input from the committee, staff, consultant and trustees. We have appointed Sano-Rubin as construction manager to help us fine-tune the plans. We commissioned Creighton Manning to identify current parking problems and to project parking requirements for the next 20 years. We are moving toward a final proposal, which will be presented for a referendum this fall.

Renovation is necessary now for the following reasons: It is the board's responsibility to protect this important legacy. Our almost 30-year-old building has not been updated beyond routine maintenance. Good stewardship requires that we protect the investment the community has already made in this facility. We have an obligation to provide future generations with a library as fine as this one.

We must be able to accommodate the requirements of information technology. Right now, the facility cannot accept all the equipment necessary to remain current. While it is difficult to predict what future technology will be, it is certain that it will take up space, and we need to provide for it.

We must improve accessibility. Because of its age, the building does not meet the specifications of the Americans With Disabilities Act. Modifications are necessary to comply with those requirements.

More broadly, access to the library has become problematic for us all. Utilization has doubled since the library was built, and the size of the collection has doubled to meet demand. There is limited quiet study space and few quiet reading corners. Demand for the community meeting rooms continues to exceed availability.

Our library is well-loved and well-used, and it needs our attention now. You probably made a visit to the library in 1999. If so, yours was one of the 337,000 visits made by patrons that year. The next time you visit, please look with new eyes, and look into the future at what this library must become.

Matters of Opinion

Lend helping hand

The Delaware Avenue landslide is once again the main topic of interest in town, and this week's news stories are focusing on businesses and residents that have been directly affected by it.

If you haven't driven down Delaware Avenue lately, you might be shocked at the "wasteland" it's become since the slide.

Getting gas is a breeze — no wait at the Hess station and finding a parking spot in the plaza next to Grand Union is not a problem. And McDonald's drive-thru takes no time at all. Businesses in the immediate area of the slide are, without a doubt, suffering and other businesses above the plaza are, in all likelihood, feeling the crunch from the drop-off in traffic from Albany.

But in spite of the convenience of being able to get in and out of places in a snap, it's sad. Business proprietors and clerks seem — well — befuddled by the enormity of the aftereffects of the slide.

Many have said 30 to 40 percent of their business has fallen off, which certainly does not bode well for the future. Forty percent, after all, is nearly half of their income. Imagine cutting your earnings in half. That, for most of us, would be devastating. Imagine it happening, and not being able to move to another job. The business owners don't have the option of simply moving on to another place.

We hope businesses will endure and urge everyone to do what they can to support them in this time of frustration and uncertainty. Make it your business to lend a helping hand.

Our Delaware Avenue businesses are there for you, waiting to serve. Be there for them in their hour of need.

Well-deserved honors

Two outstanding Delmar residents have been chosen as this year's recipients of the Good Samaritan Awards. Joyce Becker and Robert Greenman are both invaluable resources to Bethlehem seniors and to the town as well.

Becker, assistant director of Bethlehem Senior Services, brings joy to all who know her. Her infectious smile and delightful personality serve her well in her work with seniors, who enjoy just being around her.

And Greenman has found a second career in his many volunteer activities throughout the town, including driving the senior van and teaching Junior Achievement economics classes to eighth-graders.

Both Becker and Greenman epitomize what this town is all about — its people and their generosity of self and spirit so willingly bestowed on their neighbors, friends and people they serve.

We congratulate them for these well-deserved honors.

Health care needs major reform

By Duane Matcha

The writer is an associate professor of sociology at Siena College.

With the approaching election season, politicians at all levels of government are coming forth with their spin on how to reform the current health care system.

So the American public is once again inundated with proposals that are politically safe, and offer at best, incremental changes to the current system.

These so-called reforms are not surprising given the deep pockets of special interest groups that profit from the maintenance of the status quo.

These special interest groups expect the political process to allow them to maintain their current stranglehold over the health care system.

As a result, it would truly be a miracle if a politician proposed health care reform that would be in the best interest of the American public, rather than those who contribute so consistently to politicians' campaign coffers.

What is in the best interest of the American public? An examination of national polls throughout the last decade, and earlier, indicates broad public support for a universal health care system.

Here in New York state, a recent survey by the Siena College Research Institute found that two-thirds of New Yorkers support universal health care.

And yet the United States remains the only industrialized country in the world without such coverage, and discussion of moving toward universal coverage is limited.

Consider the reality of the American health care system today. There are currently some 45 million Americans without health care coverage and millions more with inadequate coverage.

At the same time, we, as a nation, spend more per capita on health care than any other nation in the world.

In 1997, the United States spent $3,925 per capita on health care. By comparison, annual health care expenditures per capita were $2,095 in Canada and $1,347 in the United Kingdom.

Point of View

Overall, health care expenditures are more than $1 trillion per year in the United States, ranking us first in the industrialized world.

But this vast expenditure spent does not make us any healthier relative to other industrialized nations. Gross health indicators such as life expectancy and infant mortality rates generally locate the United States in the middle relative to the rest of the industrialized world.

Thus, we should be asking how we can spend so much and receive so little in return. More importantly, we should be asking how the health care system could be reformed to better reflect its purpose as a social responsibility, rather than a business that profits which balances the need for a sufficient revenue pool, controls the cost of the system, and ensures fairness of financial obligation among citizens.

Finally, government, at whatever level, must assume a more active role in the health care system. Utilizing the government as the primary purchasing agent has been characteristic of cost control measures in other industrialized nations.

For example, the National Health Service in the United Kingdom, the most centralized in the industrial world, spends a considerably smaller percentage of its GDP on health care (6.7 percent) compared to the United States (13.5 percent).

Government involvement in the health care system is not confined to the United Kingdom. Whether it is at the county level

Sweden or the provincial level in Canada, governments in other nations are actively involved in the provision of health care. A majority of the health care dollars in every industrialized nation except the United States comes from the

The National Health Service in the United Kingdom, the most centralized in the industrial world, spends a considerably smaller percentage of its GDP on health care (6.7 percent) compared to the United States (13.5 percent).

from the medial misfortunes of others.

Health care reform requires a number of fundamental changes. Basic to any health care reform is the removal of economic barriers to access and affordability.

If these barriers are not removed, the health status of an ever-increasing number of working and middle-class Americans will continue to deteriorate within our ever-changing economy.

The ability to purchase even basic health care coverage is a problem for an increasing number of workers who are hired even on a full-time basis.

The consequence is an increasing number of Americans who, because of a lack of preventive coverage today, will require many more health care services in the future.

Second, we must ensure that the health care system is efficient and equitable. In other words, in order to achieve greater health results, we must reallocate on a more equitable basis what we are currently spending on health care. Without question, this will require change in the delivery of health care. This would impact not only those providing health care services, but also where and how they provide those services.

How the system is financed must also be reevaluated. A funding mechanism must be created public, rather than the private sector.

If the political leaders of this country are serious about reforming the current health care system to meet the needs of all Americans, they should begin with an examination of other countries.

While it is not possible to completely transfer a German or a Canadian (or any other) health care system to the United States, we can modify what others are doing to fit our particular needs. Although these systems are not perfect, they represent viable, alternative frameworks.

Efforts in Maine and other New England states to limit the cost of prescription drugs within their borders represents the beginning of innovative government involvement in the system. Unfortunately, these efforts have yet to be implemented and duplicated nationwide.

Thus, as a nation we have two broad choices regarding health care. On the one hand, we can continue to bury our collective heads in the sand in the belief that the present system will magically right itself. On the other hand, we can pursue a political and social agenda that defines health care as a social responsibility and create a universal health care system that ensures all Americans access to what only some can now claim to be the best health care in the world.

Tangoras appreciate community generosity

Editor, The Spotlight:

I want to take the opportunity to thank various members of the Bethlehem town board and Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce as well as several town residents for taking the time to call us at Tangora Technologies to see how we are doing as a result of the landslide tragedy just up the road from us.

Many have expressed their concern and offered us assistance.

We appreciate the generosity of those caring individuals. It is folks like those who are the reason we chose to open our storefront in Bethlehem.

For those who don't already know, we are still open for business and are happy to serve our customers' needs.

Everyone is welcome to visit our showroom.

Access to our store is available via Albany and the Normanside Bridge.

Again, we thank all of you for your generous support.

Protect yourself from sun's rays

Editor, The Spotlight:

Summer is the season of barbecues, lazy days and sun worshipping, and it is the season for skin cancer. With this in mind, the American Cancer Society (ACS) is stepping up efforts to remind the public about the dangers of sun exposure and how they can protect themselves and their children from the sun.

Skin cancer accounts for about half of all cancer cases in the United States. ACS estimates that 47,700 people will be diagnosed with melanoma this year and about 7,700 people are expected to die of the disease. Approximately 1.3 million Americans are diagnosed with nonmelanoma skin cancer every year, including an estimated 1,900 people who are expected to die of nonmelanoma this year.

Skin cancer, however, is the most preventable cancer. More than 80 percent of skin cancers could be prevented by protecting ourselves from the sun's rays.

In order to reduce the risk of skin cancer, the American Cancer Society recommends that individuals slip on a shirt, slop on some sunscreen (with a sun protection factor of 15 or higher) and slap on a hat in order to protect themselves from the sun's rays.

The American Cancer Society is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week at 1-800-ACS-2345 or on its Web site at www.cancer.org.

Kudos to BC art winners

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing to congratulate the 100 winners selected from all of the students in Bethlehem schools whose original artwork will hang in the new St. Peter's Medical Arts Building.

This artwork, depicting the theme "a Healthy Outlook on Life," was selected from all of the schools and all age levels from kindergarten through high school and passed a double screening process of the school art teachers and the hospital committee to be chosen for transfer to tiles.

The tiles will hang on the walls of the pediatric waiting areas in the new facility and will be unveiled on June 10 at the dedication ceremony.

Congratulations to all of the students and to St. Peter's for their wonderful collaborative efforts with our schools.

May these and all of our wonderful students continue to have a healthy outlook on life.

Bethlehem drivers need to slow down

Editor, The Spotlight:

As detour signs go up all over the town of Bethlehem, it should be noted that many other important road signs have been around our town for years, including "Town Speed Limit 30 mph," and "Slow Children at Play." Although the recent tragedy on Delaware Avenue has certainly warranted the attention of everyone in our town, we should be more aware of the increased dangers of speeding vehicles that zoom down the back roads in an attempt to make up for the lost time they are experiencing because of detours.

Our family has lived on Beacon Road in Glenmont since 1992. We realize that there are a lot of other serious problems in the world, but nothing strikes home more to us than the constant concern for the safety and well-being of our children. These recent detours have prompted us to write about the serious and dangerous problem of speeding that occurs on the heavily traveled, two-lane, double-yellow-lined and posted 30-mph road that we live on.

Although Beacon Road is only eight-tenths of a mile long, it has become a frequently traveled road for many area drivers as a quick means of bypassing the busy intersection of Route 9W and Feura Bush Road. It is used as a test track for an area car dealership as employees perform the final check on their repair work. It also becomes a mini superhighway when an accident occurs on Route 9W, and all vehicles, including large trucks, buses and heavy construction equipment are detoured and directed to travel on Beacon Road.

Of course, all of these vehicles "crank it up a notch" and far exceed the speed limit of 30 mph because Beacon Road is so straight and marked by a double yellow line, which further provides a subconscious reason to travel at a much higher rate of speed.

Small children — yes we have plenty of them who live and play on our road. Well, not exactly on the road, because that would surely be a tragic accident waiting to happen. We all have to be sure that our children stay far away from the edge of the road — a lifelong lesson that is taught from the early stages of being a Beacon

Road child. Actually, most days it isn't even safe for an adult to go out to the mailbox because of the frequent and repeat offenders who are in a hurry to go nowhere.

We have had some success over the years in asking state and local police for assistance in catching these offenders.

Each increase in patrols has yielded a few speeding tickets issued to drivers of minivans loaded with children, as well as to joy riders, just showing off for their friends.

We are also willing to provide a spot on our front lawns for that electronic speed display sign that was graciously donated to our town. We will even be sure to help maintain the portable sign if it runs out of gas.

The solution to this problem is not an easy one. However, with a little thought and awareness, we may be able to save the life of a loved one. All we ask of the drivers in our town is to be a little more aware of the posted speed limits and watch out for our children.

You never know when a child will jump out into the street to fetch a rolling ball. Would you be able to stop in time? It's estimated to take more than 120 feet to stop an average size passenger vehicle that is traveling at 40 mph. The odds are against it.

We look forward to your help, support, understanding and comments.

Have a very safe summer.
Steven and Alicia Peterson
Glenmont

Thanks to community for support on Kids Day

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to praise the elected officials, employees, merchants and residents of the town of Bethlehem for their support of Kids Day America. On May 20, I hosted the national event, which was a day dedicated to the health, safety and environmental awareness of our children.

I would like to thank Supervisor Sheila Fuller for endorsing Kids Day America and Deputy Supervisor George Lenhardt for attending the event on behalf of Mrs. Fuller, who was busy attending to the Delaware Avenue tragedy.

I would like to acknowledge the town board, which was represented by Doris Davis. I would also like to thank The Spotlight for highlighting our event and the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce. And a very special thank you to the members of the Bethlehem Police Department who were on hand in conjunction with members of Elsmere Fire Department.

I would like to personally thank Officer Jeffrey Vunck for attending our event to provide us with his expertise. Thanks also to Five Rivers for helping kids learn how to take care of our environment.

And I would like to thank Delmar Dental Medicine and DiNapoli Opticians for participating and for their generous donations. Thanks to the Aikido School for the self-defense demonstration and Peg Were and Skeeter the Clown for entertaining everyone.

Thanks to McCarroll's, the Village Butcher, Bruegger's Bagels and Grand Union for generous donations of food and beverages. And we are grateful to the following merchants for donating gift certificates: Fitness for Her, Delmar Health Hut, Mashuta's Training Center, Friendly's, Toll Gate, Saratoga Shoe Depot and Mangia's.

And finally, thanks to the families of Bethlehem that attended.

Resident extends sympathy

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to express my deepest sympathy to Anthony Battaglia, the owner of the California Produce Marketplace on Delaware Avenue that was destroyed in the landslide.

Mr. Battaglia, I'm so sorry to hear about the landslide that destroyed your place of business. I know how upset and devastated you must be, considering that you just opened the business two weeks ago.

When I saw the market collapse on the 11 o'clock news on May 18, my eyes watered up and chills went through my body. I was so sad to see it go and for your loss as well.

I hope Hoffman's Car Wash, Jiffy Lube and Albany Medical Center finance office will not experience a loss.

I am only 24 years old. I grew up in this town. I was very shocked and upset to see this tragedy in our community.

I look at this as a wake-up call that bad things can happen in our town. Who would have thought that California Produce or any business would crumble and fall into the Normanskill?

Mr. Battaglia, you are in my thoughts and prayers.

Bridge group to begin play June 1

On Thursday, June 1, the bridge group will meet at 12:30 p.m. Call the library if you plan to attend.

Relax at the library on Wednesday, June 7, as a teaching master presents a demonstration and discussion of the powers of reiki. Reiki is a Japanese term, which represents universal life force energy. It is an ancient practice of natural healing art. Initially in the Many times it was elbow to elbow as eager buyers jostled for position at the book tables. The Saturday book sale resulted in wonderful aromas filling the hallway as Lauren and Zach Welton and Barbara Mellinger sold sweets.

Buck-a-bag Sunday was a huge success and there were few leftovers when the doors closed at 4 p.m. Sale proceeds will be used for summer concerts and other library extras next year.

Many thanks to Jill DeGregorio, B.J. Luerman, Jesse Sommer, Brendon Shields, Will Zimmerman, Jesse Bye and Jessie Kafka — high school volunteers who lugged and opened hundreds of cartons of donated books. Thanks to Andrea Gleason, Nan Mosher and Corinna Parker who spent hours sorting them — and to Karla Flegel, Sarah Corcione, Laurie and Don Meacham, Dan and Mimi Moriarty, Fran Arthur, Gail Sacco, Elizabeth Moore, Alan Kowlowitz and Cindy Childs, who manned the hectic sale tables.

Thanks also to Margaret Adkins and Janet Willey and the wonderful bakers, and the library staffers who worked above and beyond the call of duty, including Phyllis Rosenblum, Diane Biernacki, Rosie Lenihan, Gene Sickles and Harry Flint — and to my son Michael for handling the sandwich board signs.

Apologies to those whose names I have not mentioned because of space constraints. As acting organizer this year, I truly appreciate and thank you all.

Church to serve strawberry supper

Unionville Reformed Church on Route 443 will serve a family-style strawberry supper on Saturday, June 3, with servings at 4:30, 5:30 and 6:30 p.m.

The menu will include chicken and gravy, home-baked biscuits, peas and carrots, potato salad, coleslaw, rolls and beverages.

Dessert will be strawberry shortcake with whipped cream.

The donation is $8 for adults, and $3.50 for children ages 5 to 12. Children under 5 eat for free, but need a reservation.

Call for artists' entries

Established fine artists are needed for a cooperative gallery.

Submit slides or photos, an artist statement, biography and resume by June 17 to Adams Street

Gallery, PO Box 450, Delmar 12054.

Slides and photos will only be returned with self-addressed, stamped envelope. No crafts.

Zoning board sets public hearing

Bethlehem zoning board of appeals has set public hearings for Wednesday, June 7, at town hall at 445 Delaware Ave., Delmar.

The application of Louis and Patricia Meo of 57 Henderson

Road will be heard at 7:30 p.m.

At 7:45 p.m., there will be a hearing on an application by Richard Pulice of Reigning Cats and Dogs at 759 Route 9W, Glenmont.

Voorheesville Public Library

form of hands-on healing, which can benefit anyone with aches and pains, the participant usually experiences a feeling of relaxation, warmth and well-being.

The practice of reiki is experiencing a resurgence of popularity. If you are curious about it and its possible benefits to your life and health, you are invited to a get-acquainted session with traditional master Jean Hampel. Hampel has more than 10 years of experience with reiki. She is a graduate of Maria College whose work includes guided imagery and music, therapeutic touch, psycho-synthesis and spiritual studies. No sign up is necessary for the program that begins at 7 p.m.

The Library Club for kids in grades four through six will meet to assemble Summer Reading Club packets after school on Thursday, June 8. There will be food, drink and games as well as work. If you want to participate in this group next year, join us at this meeting to get acquainted. This is the final session until September and pick-up time is 5 p.m.

A permission slip is needed, so bring mom or dad when you sign up.

The rainy weekend of May 20 was great for the library book sale.

Committee seeks pictures

Plans are nearly complete for the all-night alcohol-free BCHS graduation celebration on June 23. There will be more than 350 prizes — including VCRs, Palm Pilots, Walkmen and cash prizes up to $1,000 — plus games, contests, dancing and more.

One of the highlights of the celebration is the Memory Hall with collages of pictures. Mail Boxes Etc. at 153 Delaware Ave. in Elsmere has special discounts on color copying and enlarging and is acting as the repository for pictures. Very few pictures have been brought in, so the committee urges parents to look through

Tickets cost $10 and will be sold at BCHS starting June 6. Donations are still needed. To help out, call Louise Tarantino at 439-4120.

Parents of juniors are needed to run games, chaperone and serve refreshments. Various time slots are available. There will be a meeting for junior parents on June 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. For information, call Mary Parafinczuk at 439-2972 or Margaret Youngs at 475-1738.

Parents of seniors are also needed to help decorate on June 23 and clean up on June 24.

Honors

Joyce Becker, assistant director of Bethlehem's Senior Services Department, will receive an award for her professional contribution to the lives of seniors, and Robert Greenman will receive the volunteer contribution award.

"People who've received the award in prior years serve as the selection committee," said Marie Gerhardt, development and public relations director of Good Samaritan homes. "The professional recipient is always an individual whose professional work and accomplishments have made a significant contribution to the lives of seniors in our region. Karen Pelletier, director of the senior services in Bethlehem, sent a letter of nomination for Joyce, and there wasn't anybody on the whole selection committee who didn't know Joyce or her accomplishments."

Similarly, Gerhardt said, the committee looks for an individual whose volunteer work has made a significant contribution to area seniors.

"Bob was nominated by a fellow volunteer," Gerhardt said. "He's been involved with us for about 10 years. He received the award on the basis of his involvement with Good Sam, but he volunteers all over the community and with different age groups."

Becker, who has worked for the town since 1986, developed a volunteer program in which 275 volunteers staff 20 different programs, serving some 2,000 Bethlehem residents. She has worked with the Community Christmas dinner since its inception, and also coordinates home-delivered Thanksgiving dinners to shut-ins.

Becker is especially enthusiastic about the town's senior recreation programs.

"We started a senior softball program six years ago for people over 50," she said. "At that time, many of the rec programs were for young people or adults, and there wasn't much for seniors. We had a lot of fun poked at us when we started the softball program, truthfully, but now there are 22 people playing adult softball, and the department of parks and recreation handles it."

Becker was surprised to receive the professional contribution award from Good Sam and shared the credit. "Any award this office wins is a direct reflection of the volunteer staff," she said.

A native of Kentucky, Becker has lived in Bethlehem for 23 years.

If Greenman received an award for all of his volunteer activities, he would need a caravan to bring them home.

"Bob is active with Boy Scouts, Five Rivers, he drives the senior van, and he teaches the 55 Alive defensive driving class that AARP offers," Gerhardt said. "He's also a Junior Achievement instructor, and a volunteer with Habitat for Humanity. He's been on the Good Sam committee and board, and he plants the gardens around the homes. He's probably one of the most involved volunteers we've ever had."

"I'm having a great time," said Greenman, who's been retired from the former New York Telephone Co. for about 10 years. "I drive the senior van on Mondays. I enjoy that, because you're helping somebody else, and they appreciate it. A lot of these folks can't get around otherwise," he said.

Greenman has taught AARP's 55 Alive program for 10 years and also trains new instructors. He enjoys working with children, too. He taught Sunday school at Bethlehem Lutheran Church for 17 years and he currently teaches Junior Achievement economics classes to eighth-graders at St. Thomas and the middle school.

Greenman, who grew up in Delmar, also volunteers at Five Rivers.

Assembly Minority Leader John Faso will present a proclamation at Sunday's award ceremony, which is open to the public free of charge. There will be finger foods and a cake before the presentation. To attend, call 439-8116, ext. 224.

Physically Speaking

THE WRIST OF THE STORY

There is little wonder that wrist sprains are so prevalent among athletes. With the many stresses placed on the wrist by athletic activities, there is a good chance that the ligaments interconnecting the wrist bones will endure sprains due to the fact that there are few muscles in the wrist to lend it stability. The worst type of wrist sprain occurs when the ligaments connecting two or more of the small wrist bones become completely torn. This allows the bones to slide out of place (a subluxation). As with any sprain, the treatment of a sprained wrist involves immediate immobilization, rest, and ice. Once the injury has stabilized, a set of range-of-motion exercises, followed by strengthening exercises, should be undertaken.

Whether your injury is due to accident or overuse, sports or work, our highly-trained, knowledgeable staff can help you to regain maximum function and range of motion. Ask your physician for a referral, or call the number listed below for more information. We also provide sports medicine, ultra sound, and massage therapy. For your convenience, we'll be happy to process your insurance claims. Evening treatment hours are available.

Delmar gymnasts capture first place at state championship

Four local Delmar gymnasts competing for Yury's School of Gymnastics excelled at the recently held USAG Level 7 Year 2000 New York State Women's Gymnastics Championships, held in Albany May 5 to 7.

Delmar sisters Kyle Harder and Juliana Harder each won the coveted All-Around championship in their respective 10 to 11 and 7 to 9 years-old age divisions, capturing a total of six gold medals.

Kyle Harder, a fifth grader at Hammagrael Elementary School, scored a record breaking All-Around score of 38.7 to win the All-Around Championship and the top All-Around score of the meet. Kyle also won the balance beam championship with a 9.6 and the vault championship with a 9.7, and finished fourth on the uneven parallel bars with 9.8 and fourth on Floor with a 9.6.

Her younger sister Juliana Harder, a third grader, took the gold with a championship All-Around performance of 37.975,

LIVING TO ONE HUNDRED

According to the most recently available statistics, the number of American centenarians has doubled during the 1990's from about 37,000 to 72,000. (Four out of five are women.) The best is expected to come, however. Even by conservative estimates, the number of centenarians in this country will continue to double every ensuing decade, which will mean at least one million centenarians by the year 2050. Having said that, this may be a good time to point out an important fact. Contrary to popular opinion, old age does not necessarily mean increased disability and frailty. Recent studies show that those who live beyond age 90 or 95 tend to remain healthy nearly until the end of their lives.

A long life is much enhanced when accompanied by good health; we do our best to support your well-being. At GOOD SAMARITAN LUTHERAN HEALTH CARE CENTER, 125 Rockefeller Road, we understand how important connection is to your well-being, which is why we offer many opportunities for friendship. Give us a call at 439-8116.

P.S. The rates of disability and illness among those over age 65 have dropped significantly since the 1980's.

earned the one of the top spots by taking home the silver medal on the balance beam with a 9.575 and bronze medal on the vault with a 9.375.

Because the girls performed so well individually, Yury's 9 member Level 7 Team turned in a gold medal team performance of 190.225 defeating the 62 other teams representing the top 320 gymnasts throughout the State. The Yury's team is coached by Yury Tsykun, head coach and owner; Cindi Stone of Slingerlands, choreographer, floor and beam coach; and Ivan Manyakhin, vault and conditioning coach.

The four Delmar gymnasts along with their teammates will be heading to Lakeland, Fla for National competition this June, and expect to compete as Level 8 or Level 9 gymnasts in the upcoming competitive year.

ON-SITE ANTIQUES ESTATE AUCTION
The Estate of Kathryn Fisher Carrington
Saturday, June 3RD, 11:00 a.m.
Box Lots and Households to be sold at 10:00 a.m.
Preview: Friday, 10:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m.
Saturday: 8:00 a.m. until sale
Fisher Boulevard, Slingerlands, N.Y.

The Auction Gallery will be selling the entire contents of the Fisher Farm, a lovely 19th Century home of the late Kathryn Fisher Carrington. Mrs. Carrington was known for over 30 years as "The Pumpkin Lady" by the local school children and their parents who came to visit the farm. Every year, Mrs. Carrington would set aside 600 pumpkins in one of her fields for the local school children who would come on a school field trip to her pumpkin patch looking for the "perfect pumpkin". Mrs. Carrington would sell the pumpkins to the children for 25 cents thus becoming "The Pumpkin Lady". As the word spread about the Fisher Farm, Mrs. Carrington would set aside another 4,000 pumpkins for the other families that would come to pick out their "perfect pumpkin" as well.

The Fisher Farm has been in the family since it was built in the 1870's with many of the original furnishings still remaining in the house including antique oak and Victorian furniture, glass and china, old prints and painting, old toys, stoneware, flow-blue china, early pewter, old fireplace items, early cupboards and quilts, old spinning wheels, and many country items you would expect to find in an early farm house. There are also old tools, and many household items, modern furniture and many other interesting items. Plan to spend the day: this sale is well worth attending.

For information call Joan Bohl or Jon Lee at the Gallery at 518-426-1353 for a photo flyer and the listing, or you may visit our web site at www.auctiongallery2.com for listing and photos. (From Page 1)

Joseph Nitsche, whose home at 71 Fernbank is directly across from the site of the accident, was on the second floor of his home when, he said, "I heard a noise, like a large thud followed by a screech of tires. I went to a window and I saw a body sprawled on the grass."

He ran out to the street. "I could see (Crowley) was unconscious. The driver had pulled over to the left side of the road, and she said to me, you'd better call for help," Nitsche said.

He called 911 and by the time he returned, emergency personnel had arrived.

Nitsche said several neighbors thought they recognized Crowley as a frequent pedestrian in the neighborhood.

"She was basically a person minding her own business, and she did everything she should have," said Ed Rosen, who also lives near the scene of the accident. "I do believe had there been sidewalks, it wouldn't have mattered," Rosen added.

There are no sidewalks on that stretch of Fernbank.

"Really, no one saw it; I don't think," Nitsche said. "There was someone jogging nearby, maybe a block away, but I don't think he saw it either."

Marohn initially told police she had drifted out of her lane when she looked away from the road momentarily. Marohn later said that she may have blacked out.

"She was, of course, very upset," he said. "She basically didn't seem to know what had happened. I looked up, and my car was hitting this woman," she told me."

Visibility on the road was good at the time of the accident.

"It really seems inexplicable to me," Nitsche said. "It was daylight, and this person was walking where she should. It just seems like a person in the wrong place at the wrong time."

The police report made no mention of alcohol or excessive speed as factors. Marohn was ticketed at the scene for failure to exhibit due care with a pedestrian in the roadway, and for failure to stay in her lane. Police Detective

Joseph Mastriano is continuing to investigate the accident.

Fernbank Avenue has been the source of past complaints about through traffic operating at excessive speeds.

"It does get a lot of traffic, and unlike a lot of streets in the neighborhood, it's fairly straight, and people build up speed a little faster," Nitsche said.

Stop signs installed in recent years have mitigated the problem somewhat, Rosen said.

"People today are altogether in too much of a hurry, but I'm not sure its unique to this neighborhood," he said. "Without the stop signs, it would be an absolute race course."

"We have a lot of pedestrians and bicycles in the streets," Nitsche said. "I don't think sidewalks would have helped. People just have to drive not so fast. This is a residential neighborhood."

School offers summer program

Circle of Friends Nursery School in Delmar will offer a six-week summer program July 10 through Aug. 18 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. every day.

Adult and child-directed activities will include outdoor fun, music, art projects and cooking. Theme-based projects will include the circus, camping, bugs and under the sea.

Three- and 4-year-olds as well as 5-year-olds who will be attending kindergarten in the fall are welcome to attend some or all of the program. Spaces are also available for the fall program for 3- and 4-year-olds. For information, call 478-0722.

Five Rivers plans fish program

A free program on fish and fishing will be held on Saturday, June 10, at 10 a.m. at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar.

Participants will rig poles, cast lines, and may be able to catch and release a fish. Different poles, reels, hooks and lures will be discussed. Dress for the outdoors and bring fishing gear if possible.

Preregistration by Wednesday, June 7, is required. For information to register, call Five Rivers at 475-0291.

Sarah Whiting Run-a-thon set for June 10

The fourth annual Sarah Whiting Run-a-thon will be held on Saturday, June 10, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Bethlehem Central High School track.

It is sponsored by members of the BCHS class of 2000 in memory of their classmate Sarah Whiting who was killed in a car/pedestrian accident in October 1996. The class hopes to raise awareness of pedestrian safety issues. All proceeds will be donated to the Bethlehem Citizens for Pedestrian Safety.

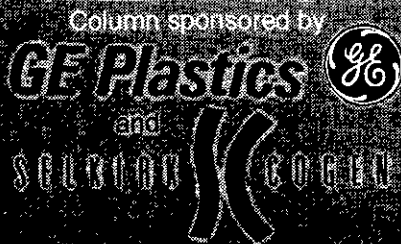

The rain date is Sunday, June 11.

Participants can run or walk any distance up to 20 laps. Pledges should be collected from friends and family for an amount per lap or a flat amount.

All donations are welcome and can be made on the day of the run-a-thon. Checks should be made payable to Bethlehem Citizens for Pedestrian Safety.

Sponsor sheets can be picked up in the high school main office or at the middle school and will also be available at the track on the day of the event.

There will be refreshments, music and a drawing for prizes.

at this for over a week, and they feel the need to have their business easily accessible. The detour routes are inconvenient. I hear that loud and clear."

Such concerns were voiced by business owners at a meeting called by Fuller and DeLaney last Thursday at Bethlehem town hall auditorium. Many owners pleaded to reopen at least one lane of Delaware Avenue for Albany-to-Delmar traffic; others called for daytime access to Crannell Avenue, the parallel street running through the residential neighborhood adjacent to the landslide area. But DOT officials declined to commit to either approach.

Others expressed concerns about cash flow shortages that might make it difficult to pay property-tax bills come August.

"I know I'm definitely thinking about it," said Daniel Formica, owner-manager of the Delaware Avenue McDonald's, who said his sales are down 42 percent since May 18.

Unfortunately, the timing of the disaster left little room for many of the affected businesses to challenge their assessments for the current tax year. Grievance day, the deadline for such challenges, was May 23.

According to Bethlehem Assessor David Leafer, fewer than 10 businesses in the Delaware corridor—including the two most directly affected by the disaster, the now-closed Hoffman's Car Wash and the destroyed California Produce Market—managed to beat the deadline, along with perhaps two dozen residential property owners in the hard-hit Crannell neighborhood.

Nor are there any guarantees for those who made the deadline, Leafer said.

"A business loss is not necessarily the factor looked at in determining valuation of property," he said. "It's fair market rental of the property, and it's still way too early to make any legitimate estimate of what kind of values might be lost in the long run."

And town Receiver of Taxes

Nancy Mendick said her hands are tied if Gov. George Pataki does not declare a tax moratorium for the affected area: state law gives her no options to accept partial payments or grant delays. "There's nothing I can do," she said. "Deadlines would have to be met, or penalties would kick in."

Typical insurance coverage offers little solace either, said Greg Turner of Burt Anthony Associates, an agency located in the Delaware corridor with many affected clients.

"Typically, those businesses are covered by business interruption insurance," he said, "but that needs to be triggered by a covered peril under their policy"—which is to say, actual damage to their own premises. "And actions by civil authorities and civil commotion, those are specifically excluded."

Coincidentally, Pataki last week announced proposed legislation to create "civil authority" insurance for businesses—but such legislation would come too late for the Delaware Avenue businesses.

As for Pataki's petition for a federal disaster declaration last week, disaster aid is directed to municipalities to cover such things as road reconstruction and police overtime—not to cover individual business losses.

Still, low cost loans of up to $1.5 million under the Small Business Administration's Economic Disaster Loan Program can be made available after a Federal disaster declaration. And if at least five business in the affected area can document sustained losses of more than 40 percent, the state's Small Cities Program offers grants; applications were distributed last Thursday.

But those applications will be weeks or months in processing. For now, businesses hurt by the landslide will have to fend for themselves. DeLaney announced an effort to develop discounts and promotions to attract customers to the area, and Marcia Pappas, proprietor of Delaware Plaza's Scissors Society salon, challenged her colleagues to brainstorm other joint action.

And there was a small bit of good news at the Thursday meeting. Claude Rounds, vice president for building operations for Albany Medical Center, announced that the hospital has shelved earlier plans to relocate its 250-plus finance department employees from a building adjacent to the slide area.

"It's going to take some time, and obviously that's something people hate to hear," said Assembly Minority Leader John Faso, who attended the meeting. "But this isn't going to be a quick fix. Businesses in Delmar are going to have to stick together."

Group seeks volunteers

Bethlehem Archaeology Laboratory seeks volunteers to help with a dig at an early 18th century home owned by Daniel Winne at 28 Creble Road in the town of Bethlehem.

The home has been purchased by Brian Parker, owner of a company which restores old buildings, who plans to live in the house when restoration work is completed.

Documentary evidence is limited, and foundation archaeology may be the best hope for determining the age of the house. The earliest Winne to arrive in Bethlehem was Peter Winne, who came from Ghent in Flanders in 1652.

The digging phase of the work around the foundation will be open two days each week: Saturdays and one day during the week, which will be negotiated with those volunteering. Monday, Wednesday or Friday are among the top suggestions. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. with time off for lunch. The dig will probably continue for at least six to eight weeks.

Volunteers should bring a lunch and a bottle or thermos of water.

Anthropology interns are especially welcome and will have instruction time in the laboratory.

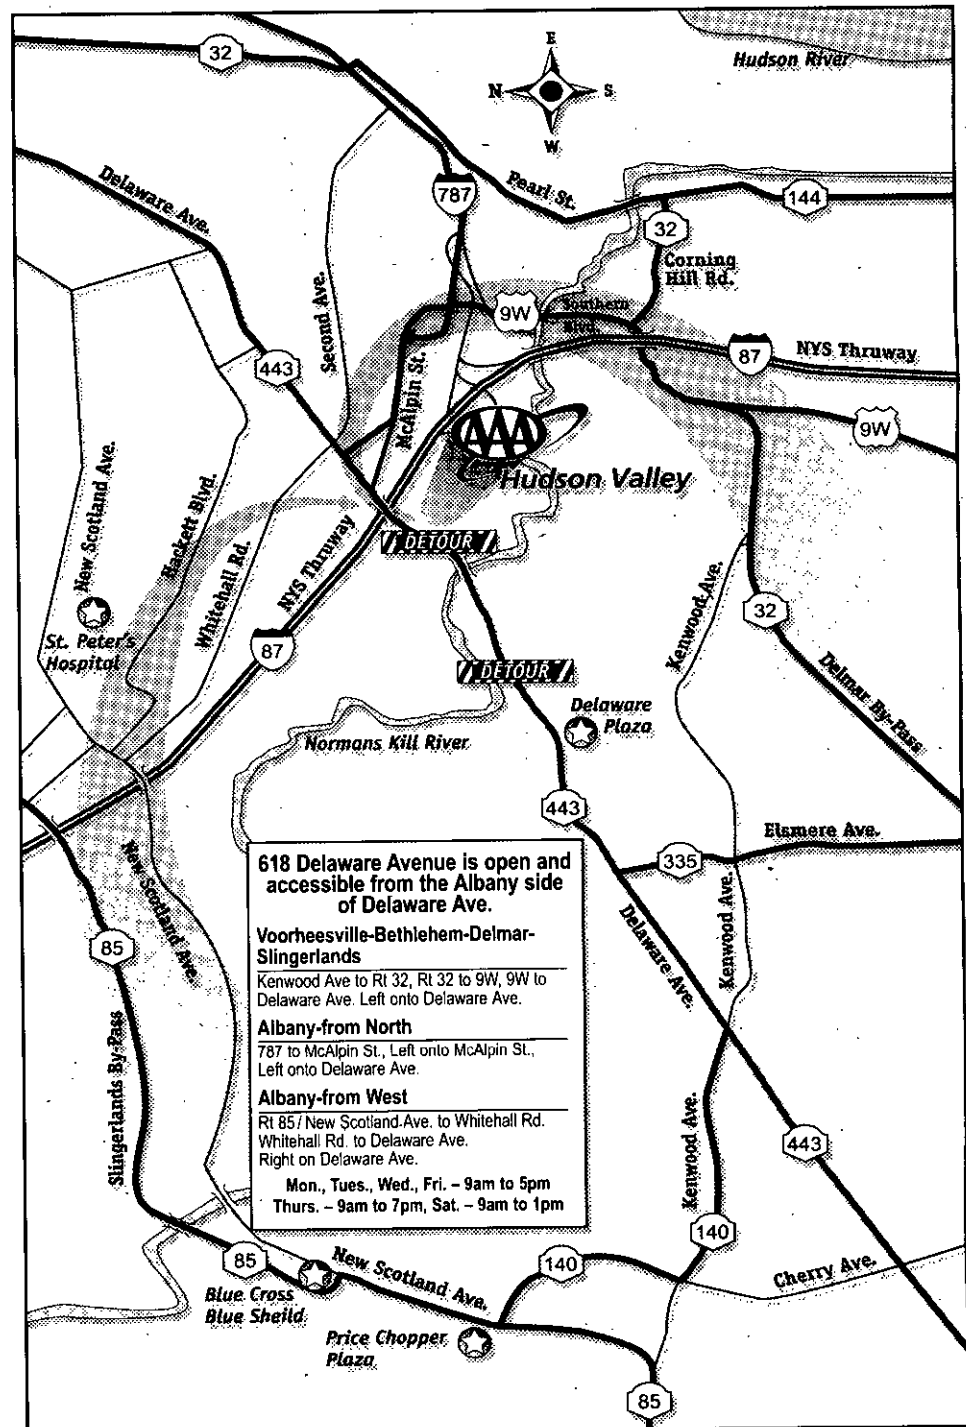

For information or to help out, call Floyd Brewer at 439-6391.

Alice Doyle

Alice F. Doyle, 94, of Delmar died Friday, May 26, at Community Hospice of Albany County at St. Peter's Hospital.

Born in Blooming Grove, she was a graduate of Newburgh Free High School and Dean Academy. She received a bachelor's degree from New Paltz State College.

Mrs. Doyle was a third-grade teacher at the former Delmar Grade School. She also taught special education for exceptional children in Slingerlands. She retired in 1970.

She was a member of the Bethlehem Professional Women's Club, Elsmere Fire Department auxiliary, Delmar Reformed Church and its auxiliary, and the Christian Women's Association.

She was the widow of James Doyle.

Survivors include a son, Douglas Doyle of Pine Plains, Dutchess County; a daughter, Carol Moss of Hudson Falls; five grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Services are scheduled at 11 a.m. today, May 31, at Delmar Reformed Church, 386 Delaware Ave., Delmar.

Arrangements are by the Applebee Funeral Home in Delmar.

Contributions may be made to Delmar Reformed Church Building Fund, 386, Delaware Ave., Delmar 12054.

George Turner

George I. Turner Jr., 76, of Selkirk died Wednesday, May 24, at Albany Memorial Hospital.

Born in Troy, he was a longtime resident of Selkirk. He spent the winters in Florida.

Mr. Turner worked for Conrail in Selkirk for 42 years before he retired.

He was an Army veteran of World War II.

He was a member of the Cannon Grange and a former member of Selkirk Fire Co. No. 1.

Survivors include his wife, Catherine Hotaling Turner; two sons, George Turner of Ravena and Kenneth Turner of Albany; two daughters, Shirley Frese of Ravena and Susan Trifiletti of Albany; two step-daughters, Catherine Stalker of Selkirk and Glenna Richardson of Freehold, Greene County; three sisters, Isabelle Roberts of Ravena and Ann Everingham and Alice Powers, both of Selkirk; 15 grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

Services were from the Babcock Funeral Home in Ravena.

Burial was in Chestnut Lawn Cemetery in New Baltimore.

Charles Losacco

Charles L. Losacco of Delmar died Sunday May 14.

Born in Albany, he was a lifelong resident of Delmar.

Mr. Losacco received a bachelor's and a master's degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy.

He worked for Winthrop Research Institute in Rensselaer before he retired.

He was a member of Slingerlands Community players, Albany Civic Theater and Schenectady Civic Theater.

He was the husband of the late, Myrtle Losacco.

Survivors include two daughters, Xina Stewart of Huntington Woods, Mich., and Grace Waite of Ballston Lake; two sons, Carl Losacco of Asheville, N.C., and Paul Losacco of San Francisco, Calif.; and eight grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held on Saturday, July 8, at a place and time to be announced.

Contributions may be made to the Little Sisters of the Poor, 7 Jeanne Jugan Lane, Latham 12110.

Rose Clancy

Rose Smith Clancy of Albany, and formerly of Delmar, died Wednesday, May 24, at Teresian House in Albany.

Born in Utica, she lived in Delmar for 60 years.

She was a communicant of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle.

Outdoor concert series grooves to summer's beat

By JOHN BRENT

It's summer in the city! Around here that means outdoor concerts in downtown Albany. Alive at Five, now entering its 11th season, will present an eight-week series of free Thursday night concerts sponsored by the City of Albany Office of Special Events.

When originally conceived, the hope was that employees would stay in downtown Albany after work to enjoy the music and perhaps visit nearby restaurants for an after-the-concert dinner. Other businesses might also benefit.

Additionally, folks not working in the downtown area might be inclined to head into town to enjoy popular entertainers, bringing in even more potential business.

Free concerts for the public and potential business for area restaurants and merchants — a win/win situation.

Attendance has risen from approximately 15,000 people in 1990, the first year of the concerts, to an impressive 65,000 for last year's summer season — an indication of the increasing popularity of the event.

Starting with a blocked off section of North Pearl Street the first year, the concerts were moved to Tricentennial Park in 1991, and last year, to accommodate the growing crowds, the locale was changed to the Corning Preserve.

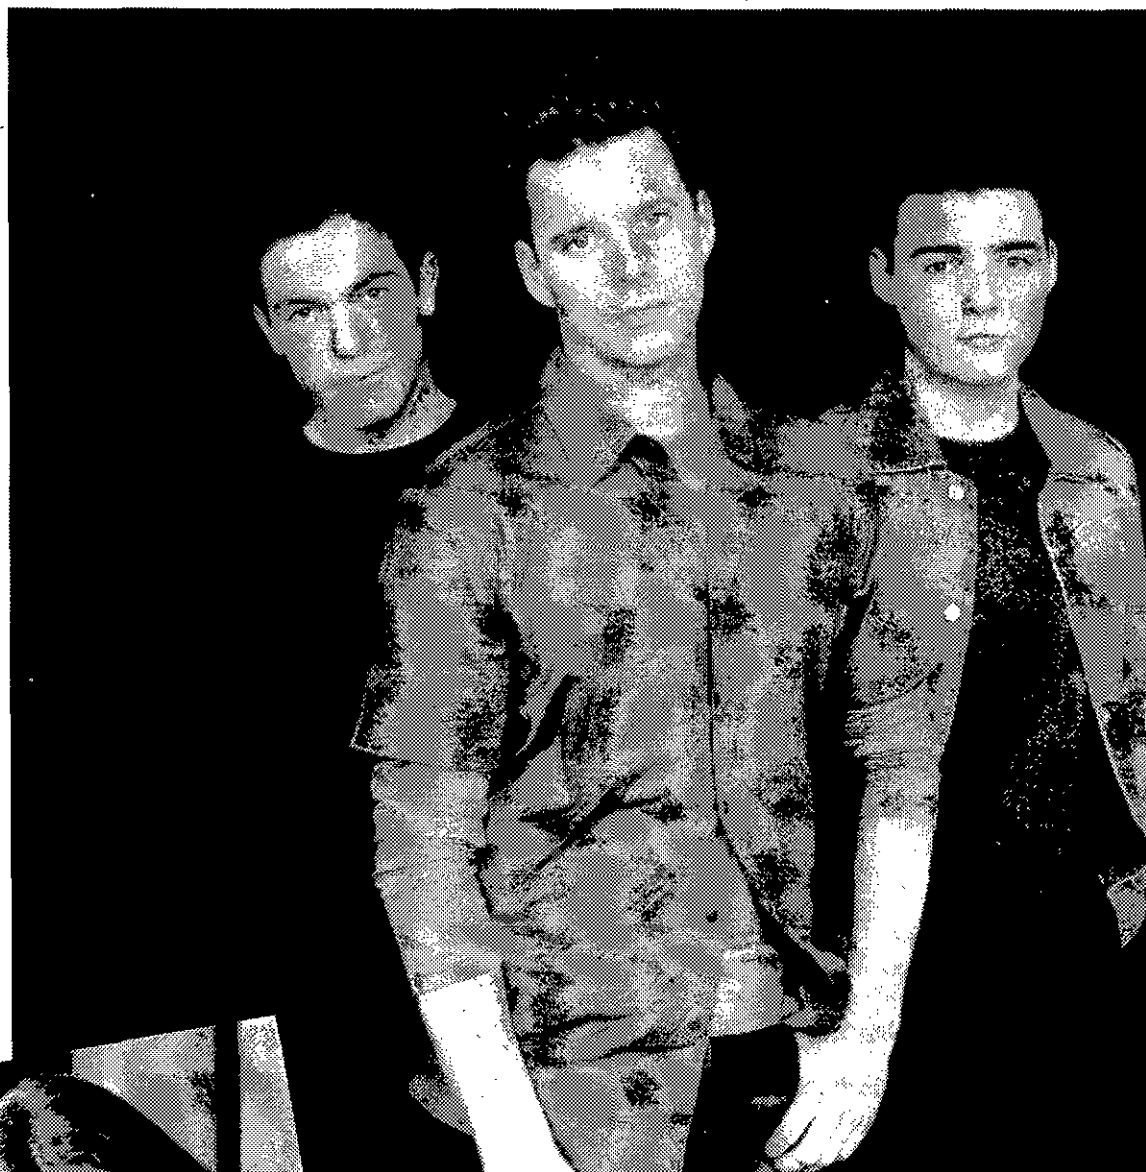

As has traditionally been the case, this year's concert line up reflects a variety of musical tastes and interests performed by both regional talent and artists of national and international renown.

Opening the season for 2000 will be the legendary group, The Platters. Beginning in January 1953 in Los Angeles, Calif., the group went on to record such hits as "Only You," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "The Great Pretender."

Herb Reed was the organizer of the group and is the only original performer still with The Platters.

Over the years the group has received many awards including induction into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame in 1990, but Reed's most cherished moment was when The Platters were given a private audience with the Pope, and Reed was given a medal from the Pope in recognition of the group's charitable concerts throughout Italy.

Opening for Herb Reed and the Platters will be Sha-ron and the Fellas. A regional group, Sha-ron has appeared at a number of area venues. Known for their suave, resonant jazz styling and warm vocal sounds, their repertoire consists of classic, contemporary and fusion jazz.

The special host for the evening will be local DJ, Boom Boom Brannigan.

will be Celtic Night featuring the Canadian group Kilt who will be performing and a second group, Clandestine, from Houston, Texas. Kilt has grown in popularity in Canada since they organized in the winter of 1996. Their warm reception as they began playing in the United States has given the group hope that they may attain a wider audience. The five-member group brings energetic fun to their audience with exciting songs and traditional music.

Clandestine evolved out of a pipe and drum ensemble founded in 1991. Using highland bagpipes, acoustic guitar, hand percussion, fiddle and vocal harmonies, the group offers a sound firmly rooted in the Celtic tradition.

Classic R&B night follows on June 15. S.O.B. (Same Old Band), featuring Howard Scott and Harold Brown who founded the group War back in the early 1960s. Known for hits like "Slippin' Into Darkness," "Spill the Wine" and "Cisco Kid," the original group explored the edges of funk, soul, R&B and Jazz.

Reuniting with fellow War members, Lee Oskar and BB Dickerson, the musicians wanted to revive the group but producer Jerry Goldstein of Avenue Records got an injunction against the band, preventing them from using the name War or even saying "formerly War." Hence the moniker S.O.B. While the name may be different the sound is the same and the group's reputation of pushing the boundaries of popular music remains very much in tact.

Opening for S.O.B. will be Annie Sidley. Combining original material with covers of pop hits, Sidley's powerful, soul-influenced voice can, in the words of one critic, "levitate your spirit."

"Music is my job but it's also my love," says John Hall, who performs with his band on June 22. As lead singer for the group Orleans, Hall became famous for 70s pop successes like "Still the One" and "Dance with Me." which he also wrote in collaboration with his wife Johanna. The versatile composer/singer/musician has just released his first album in more than 15 years, "Love Doesn't Ask."

"This record is different than any record I've done before," says Hall, "In that every song has acoustic guitar as the basic rhythm instrument." Appearing with the band will be special guests, Robbie Dupree and Jonell Mosser.

Opening for the John Hall Band will be Electric City Horns. A group of nine experienced musicians. Featuring drums, bass, keyboard, two guitars, trumpet, trombone and two saxophones, this combo can really get the audience on their feet.

Local talent takes the stage on June 29 with Capital Song Writers' Night. Some of the top regional singer-song writers will perform with guest hostess Mother Judge hosting the event.

Western Swing is the theme for July 13. Asleep at the Wheel, the six-time Grammy award winning band, will offer the cross-genre music they have been playing for nearly 30 years.

Opening for Asleep at the Wheel will be The Lustre Kings. Billed as the rootin' tootinest, rockin' and rollinest roots band around, the popular rockabilly group has brought their lively tunes from New England to Nashville and back again.

BB Mak, a trio from England takes the spotlight on July 20 as part of the Developing Artists Night. Yes, the three members of the group are young, good looking guys but they want to avoid the stereotype of being just another "boy band." Combining pitch-perfect harmonies with guitar based pop songs the group hopes to develop a following on this side of the Atlantic.

Saintface opens for BB Mak. The five musicians of Saintface create a lush, literate brand of pop with memorable songs that chart the lives of lovers and losers.

The final concert for the season, scheduled for July 27, features Classic Rock Night.

Loverboy, one of the mainstream hard rock groups of the early 80s had a string of three multi-platinum albums. Fans will remember hits like "Turn Me Loose" and "The Kid is Hot Tonite."

Two opening acts appear with Loverboy. Marcus Ruggerio, a Schenectady born singer/song writer, will perform with his deep, rich voice and fresh lyrical perspective.

The second opener will be Bluz House Rockers.

The concerts begin at 5 p.m. and will run until about 8 p.m. Food and beer vendors will be on hand. The rain location is at the Corning Preserve Boat Launch under the 787 overpass. For information call 434-2032 or visit the Web site at www.albanyevents.org.

TOWN OF BETHLEHEM*DECLARATION OF EMERGENCY

Acting in the capacity of Chief Executive Officer of the Town of Bethlehem, County of Albany, State of New York and pursuant to Article 2-B, Section 24 of the Executive Law, I hereby declare that a local emergency exists in the Town of Bethlehem due to: a major landslide which necessitated the New York State Department of Transportation to close a section of State Route 443 (DELAWARE AVENUE) in the Town of Bethlehem. This sudden, unexpected and continuing landslide blocked the Normanskill Creek, threatens the state road and continues to pose a threat to the safety and property of the residents of the Town of Bethlehem. This order shall take effect immediately and shall be valid and binding for a period of no longer than five days or until such time as the emergency situation ceases to exist whichever is less. Specific details concerning requirements and restrictions will be promulgated as soon as possible. S/ SHEILA FULLER, Chief Executive Officer
Town of Bethlehem
CC: County Executive - Albany County
Director of Civil Defense - County of Albany
Director of Emergency Management - Town of Bethlehem Media
(May 31, 2000)

MEDIA ADVISORY

AS PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE, DOT TO CLOSE DELAWARE AVENUE EXCEPT TO LOCAL TRAFFIC DETOUR NOW IN EFFECT As a precautionary measure, the

LEGAL NOTICE

New York State Department of Transportation (DOT), has closed a portion of route 443 (Delaware Avenue), until further notice, except to local traffic. DOT made this decision to ensure the safety of the traveling public. The mudslide occurring in the town of Bethlehem has caused the erosion of material near the roadway. While the roadway has not yet been impacted by the mudslide, DOT is taking this action as a precautionary measure. A signed detour will divert traffic from the area to route 335, route 32 (Delmar bypass), and route 9W. The Detour is as follows: Eastbound traffic on route 443, West of Elm Avenue: use Elm Avenue to route 32 (Delmar bypass) to Route 9W to Route 443. Eastbound traffic on Route 443, East of Elm Avenue: use Route 335, Elmsmere Avenue, to Route 32 (Delmar bypass) to Route 9W (Southern Boulevard) to Route 443. Eastbound traffic on Route 85 that normally crosses over to Route 443: continue on Route 85 to New Scotland Avenue to Whitehall Road to Route 443. Westbound traffic on route 443: use Route 9W (Southern Boulevard) to Route 32 (Delmar Bypass) and either use Route 335 (Elmsmere Avenue) or Elm Avenue. During closure, DOT along with other state and local agencies will have staff on-site to continually monitor the situation and continue to assess options to remedy the situation. DOT appreciates the patience and understanding of the public. (May 31, 2000)

TOWN OF BETHLEHEM

LOCAL EMERGENCY ORDER I, Sheila Fuller, the Supervisor of the Town of Bethlehem, Albany County, New York, pursuant to the declaration of a state of emergency on May 18, 2000, and pursuant to Section 24 of the New York State Executive Law, hereby order the following:

1. All non-essential pedestrian and vehicular traffic be barred from the area of the landslide as directed by and recommended by the appropriate authorities such as the Department of Transportation of the State of New York.
2. All vehicle and traffic laws in the area of Delaware Avenue in the Town of Bethlehem be suspended and repealed in accordance with the recommendations of the appropriate New York State, Albany County and Town of Bethlehem officials.
3. All Town of Bethlehem employees may be required to work during this emergency subject to the order of the Supervisor.
4. All residents who may be endangered will immediately evacuate their homes if so ordered by the Supervisor of the Town of Bethlehem.
5. Businesses within the emergency area will be required to suspend business and or vacate their premises if necessary as ordered by the appropriate emergency personnel.

These orders are or may become necessary to protect the health, welfare, and safety of all persons living in, traveling through, or doing business in the affected area. Failure to obey this order is a criminal offense. Signed this 20th day of May, 2000, in Bethlehem Town Hall, Delmar, New York.
