Boy's family, friends pay moving tribute

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Before the opening pitch of a Babe Ruth tournament played at Guilderland's Tawasentha Park last Friday, the kids of summer paused to remember Russell Ellers.

"It was very emotional," said Bethlehem coach Bob Marsh. "Everybody was thinking about Russ."

He died, ironically, on his way home from batting practice. Now, the day after he was laid to rest, his peers, with Ellers' name and number — No. 1 — sewn into the brims of their hats, took the field and won, 11-1.

Russell Ellers

"I don't know if it was one for the Gipper," said Marsh later, "but they played their hearts out."

So did the Latham Reds squad of the Sandy Koufax league, for whom Ellers also pitched. On Saturday, another number, 23, worn, like their hearts, on their sleeves — black sweatbands around young arms.

"It was the first game since his death," said Latham coach Jim Moran, "and the kids played remarkably well under the conditions." And won too, 7-2.

Ellers joined the Latham Reds a few months ago. "He had a real presence

Police continue probe of fatal Glenmont crash

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

A mid-afternoon automobile collision on a steep, curving road in Glenmont resulted in the death of a local youth.

Russell Ellers, 14, of Sudbury Road in Glenmont, was pronounced dead on July 3 at Albany Medical Center Hospital, less than an hour after the 2:04 p.m. accident on narrow, winding Glenmont Hill Road, which connects River Road and Route 9W.

Ellers was a passenger in a vehicle, driven by Bartholomew Necroto, 53, of Turnberry Drive, Slingerlands, which had just turned off River Road and was westbound.

Also in the vehicle was Necroto's son John, 14, and a teammate of Ellers on an Bethlehem Babe Ruth All-Stars baseball squad. At the time of the accident, Necroto was driving the two boys home from a trip to a Troy batting cage.

According to police, a vehicle, driven by 34-year-old Joseph Hartigan of Albany, was eastbound and rounding a curve at the top of the steep hill, near Anders Lane, when Hartigan heard the sound of screeching tires and saw Necroto's vehicle approaching, apparently out of control.

Pataki says slide victims will get help

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

While work crews continued to repair damage from recent landslides that have temporarily closed Delaware Avenue, Gov. George Pataki stood at a temporary podium 110 feet above, on the closed roadway, to pledge some much-needed assistance for businesses affected by the road's shutdown.

Pataki was in Elsmere Monday

PSEG makes it official; they're taking over

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

PSEG Power, new owners of the Bethlehem Energy Center on River Road in Glenmont, feted its new neighbors last Friday with a hey-look-me-over luncheon on the generating station's front lawn.

"We're very pleased to be joining the Bethlehem community and we look forward to partnering with you for a successful future," President Frank Cassidy told a gathering of town officials and business leaders.

Now comes the hard part. "If they really want to become a member of our community, and our community is certainly welcoming them, we still need to sit down and discuss the goals of all of us — the town, the school district, and PSEG," said Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller as the festivities wound down.

Fuller expects discussion to begin in September regarding the issue that loomed over the welcoming reception: renegotiation of the plant's current $260 million tax valuation by the town and Bethlehem Central School District. The plant is the district's biggest single taxpayer and one of the town's top five.

New Jersey-based PSEG, which purchased the facility from Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. for $47.5 million, plans to redevelop the current 450-megawatt facility as a 750-megawatt, natural gas-fired combined-cycle generation plant. Redevelopment could come as early as the summer of 2004, Cassidy said.

In the meantime, PSEG has a contractual commitment from NiMo to purchase the plant's output, ensuring its current stability in the increasingly rough-and-tumble deregulated energy market. NiMo's sale of the plant came as the company divested itself of its generating capacity, refocusing on energy transmission.

The future of that new plant, Cassidy said, hinges on reduction of the plant's property tax assessment. NiMo's previous challenges to the past seven years of assessments remain in litigation at present, and without a new agreement with the town, PSEG would likely follow its predecessor to court.

"The tax issue is clearly an issue," he said. "Tax levels in this state are atrocious. Whether or not we repower the station is going to depend on the assessment question ... if it continues on a fully assessed basis, it prices us out of the market."

But, he said, "we couldn't be happier with our new neighbors. The people of the state and the local town have been terrific." He sees room for accommodation, and said PSEG has had initial contacts on the assessment issue with town officials.

"They have?" asked Fuller. "No, they have not. Not at all. There hasn't been any exchange of proposals yet. It would be premature. Early on in the process, when they were beginning to purchase the plant, we discussed the tax situation briefly. But now, it's a whole new ballgame."

For now, "It's business, at least," Fuller said. "It's better than having an empty building. We're very fortunate the plant is not mothballed, and that there is a new owner who wants to move forward."

Bethlehem police arrest 2 for DWI

By Joseph A. Phillips

Bethlehem police recorded two arrests for driving while intoxicated (DWI) last week.

The first arrest came at about 2 a.m. on Saturday, July 1, when Officer Gina Cocchiara observed a vehicle on Delaware Avenue operating at excessive speed.

Cocchiara called Officer James Rexford to assist with field sobriety tests. Police arrested Lisa J. Ianniello, 33, of 345 Kenwood Ave., Delmar, for DWI and speeding.

At about midnight on July 4, Rexford arrested Robert G. Salisbury III, 23, of 11 Farnsworth Road, Gunderland, after he made an improper turn onto Kenwood Avenue from the eastbound lane.

Rexford followed the vehicle to a driveway on Kenwood Avenue where he arrested Salisbury for DWI and several Vehicle & Traffic Law violations.

Both motorists were ordered to appear in Town Court on July 18.

An earlier DWI case was resolved in Town Court on June 20 when Angela C. Benaway, 38, of 135 Main St., Ravena, pleaded guilty to reduced charges of driving while ability impaired (DWAI) charges stemming from her arrest on April 7.

Benaway was ordered to pay a $500 fine and a $30 state-mandated surcharge, and also had her license suspended for 90 days. She also was ordered to undergo drinking-driver remediation and attend a victim impact panel.

Deputies report arrests

By Joseph A. Phillips

Sheriff's deputies recently arrested several individuals for driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Deputies stopped an erratically-driven vehicle on June 6 shortly before 9:30 a.m. on Route 85A in New Scotland. According to the police report, they detected a smell of marijuana, and after administering field sobriety tests and conducting a search of the vehicle with a K-9 unit, arrested Joshua J. Wood, 19, of 3545 Carman Road, Schenectady.

Charged with driving while ability impaired (DWAI) and criminal possession of a controlled substance, Wood was arraigned and sent to Albany County jail in lieu of $1,000 bail until his appearance in Town Court on June 15. He awaits a second court appearance.

Deputies responded to a reported single-vehicle accident near 425 Bullock Road in New Scotland shortly before 11 a.m. on June 11. They administered field sobriety tests to Joel Rosenzweig, 21, of 64 McNutt Ave., Albany, and arrested him for driving while intoxicated (DWI) and reckless endangerment. He appeared in Town Court on July 6 and his case was adjourned until Aug. 3.

Another arrest was made Wednesday, July 5, at about 8:40 p.m., when a vehicle was stopped on Route 85 in New Scotland for a cracked front windshield and lack of a front license plate.

After field sobriety tests, deputies arrested Brian P. Scally, age unknown, of 4 St. Thomas Lane, Schenectady, on DWI and drug-related DWAI charges. He was ordered to appear in Town Court on Aug. 3.

Bookstores enjoy Potter sellout

By Kathleen Moore

While superstores Barnes & Noble Booksellers and Borders Books & Music scheduled Harry Potter events at midnight and all through the day Saturday to herald the arrival of the latest book in the series, smaller stores were selling Goblet of Fire just as quickly, without the fanfare.

I Love Books in Delmar sold out in the afternoon. Barnes & Noble and Borders sold out at 1 p.m.

For the rest of the afternoon, people picked up the thousands of copies that had been reserved at local book stores.

"We expected it to sell faster," said Kimberly Scofield, manager of Friar Tuck Book Shop in Delaware Plaza. "We had a huge rush for 20 minutes, but since then it's been steady."

"It's by far the most copies of any book that we've sold in one day. It sold even better than we expected," said Melissa Steen, owner of I Love Books.

Her store was one of the few in the area to receive another order of books on Monday. Other stores expect shipments later in the week.

The Bookmark in Newton Plaza sold its last unreserved copy before the bigger stores, though the larger stores had many more to sell. The Bookmark opened early Saturday morning when employees saw the long line of customers in the parking lot. Within hours, the store was sold out of all but reserved copies.

At Barnes & Noble, most of the children who gathered for the Saturday trivia contest, wand making workshop, owl demonstration, and magic show had already ordered a copy on Amazon.com. But the events weren't designed to draw customers to the store.

"We wanted to make it more special," said Barnes & Noble spokeswoman Jen Gorman. "We wanted to make it an experience." The experience flowed over into other series as well.

Barnes & Noble issued numbers to customers waiting for the book's midnight release. And, instead of standing in line, parents and children browsed—and found more books—until their number was called.

Borders set up a display of children's fantasy books with a sign reading, "If you like Harry Potter, you'll love these!"

"Pretty much everybody who came in to buy a Potter book last night bought something else as well," Gorman said.

"It has definitely created more readers," agreed Steen. "Kids are desperate for more books like Harry Potter."

Scofield noticed that other customers, intrigued by the craze, were buying the first Harry Potter book.

Barnes & Noble reported that it had sold out of the hardback edition of the first book before it sold out of the new book.

Due in part to the large number of books being sold at every bookstore in the area, customers were calm and patient when they were told that a particular store was sold out.

However, parents were willing to do whatever it took to get a copy, even if that meant driving to bookstore after bookstore or ordering the book from Amazon.com.

"It's hard to find something for kids to read," said parent Pilar Burnett. "I'm so glad it's twice the size of the other one. Make 'em longer!"

"Every night instead of TV we sit down and read it," added parent Renata Dobesh.

Man's corpse found in ditch

By Joseph A. Phillips

Bethlehem workers found a corpse last Friday in a ditch along the shoulder of a road in Glenmont, prompting a homicide investigation by Albany police.

A highway department crew cleaning up debris along River Road shortly before 2 p.m. found the body of Cecil Nellenback, 47, of North Swan Street, Albany, in a culvert along Bask Road.

"They saw a blanket, and then they saw the victim's right arm sticking out of the blanket, and immediately notified police," said Bethlehem police spokesman Lt. Fred Holligan.

The covered body was found face down, in an advanced state of decomposition.

Albany County Coroner Philip Furie and pathologist Dr. Barbara Wolf were called to the scene, where Furie pronounced Nellenback dead at 2:50 p.m.

Wolf removed the body to Albany Medical Center Hospital for autopsy, where it was determined that the cause of death was severe blunt force trauma to the skull.

Nellenback was identified from fingerprints and dental records.

The coroner's office ruled the case a homicide but has yet to release a specific time of death.

"He was reported missing to Albany police on Wednesday, but I believe he was missing since July 1," Holligan said.

To Life! founder receives BPW's annual award

By Katherine McCarthy

The Greater Capital Region Business and Professional Women (BPW) has named Mara Ginsberg, the Delmar resident who founded To Life! as Woman of the Year 2000.

Ginsberg founded To Life! two years ago, and last fall moved it to 278 Delaware Ave. in Delmar. "The essential mission of To Life!," Ginsberg said, "is to provide educational programs and support for everyone impacted by breast cancer."

Some of To Life's recent educational forums have provided information about clinical trials, and complimentary therapies such as therapeutic touch and acupuncture. To Life! has an ongoing support group for women currently in treatment, and registered nurse Johanna Lombardo, a certified mastectomy fitter and prosthesis, works by appointment addressing body image in areas that range from lingerie and prosthesis fitting to wigs and skin care consultation.

BPW President Lisa Anne Proskin said Ginsberg was a natural choice for Woman of the Year. BPW had always put notices of To Life's activities in its newsletter, but Proskin first got to know Ginsberg when she did a program about breast self-examination for BPW.

"Everybody knows you should do self exams," Proskin said, "but of my friends, only two do, and the rest of us tend to leave it for our annual checkup. Mara attacks everything with humor, and makes everybody feel good. She spoke from her personal standpoint and teaches you things you need to know."

Ginsberg's name came up again when BPW was selecting its Woman of the Year.

"We have no set criteria," Proskin said of the award. "We try to choose somebody who makes you proud, and somebody that you can look up to. One of our members suggested Mara, and everybody said, yes, that's perfect."

Proskin knew the group had made the right choice, when, after the selection was announced, she received phone calls from people commending the choice, and asking how they could help.

"Mara makes that big an impression," Proskin said. "If you talk to her at any length, you discover that she's friendly and warm."

Ginsberg said she was honored to receive the BPW Woman of the Year Award, more for the publicity for To Life! than for herself. "We can only help people if they know about us," Ginsberg said.

Ginsberg is a lawyer who had worked in the Attorney General's Office, but now devotes about 95 percent of her time to To Life! When she can, she does some pro bono and consulting work. Breast cancer, she said, has always been part of her life.

"My mother and aunt were both diagnosed with breast cancer when they were 44," Ginsberg said. "I was diagnosed at 37, and went through chemotherapy and reconstruction. I found that there was no one source for information and support, and there was no outlet for my husband and children."

To Life! has become that one source, and Ginsberg is pleased with the number of people who use its services.

Ginsberg's creativity and determination were likely part of the reason she was named Woman of the Year. This Aug. 14, To Life! will sponsor its "Beat the Odds" program at the Saratoga Racecourse. From 9 a.m. to noon, the free program will address issues such as the changing role of physicians, winning the psychological struggle, and managing treatment of side effects. There will be a round table discussion with oncologists, lunch, and a day at the races.

"We're in the process of getting corporate underwriters," Ginsberg said, noting that To Life's programs are free, and that speakers aren't paid for their time.

Before getting to know Ginsberg well enough to consider her a friend, Proskin said she was intrigued with what Ginsberg had done, and what she had given up.

"She was well thought of in the Attorney General's Office, and she gave up a paycheck," Proskin said. "She has kids, and two paychecks make a difference."

"As (head of) a not-for-profit organization, Mara was always looking for money, and had to find a way to run To Life! Now, in her role as president of To Life!, she's being addressed as a professional, but it took a while to get there," she said.

"She'd be the first to tell you that she got a lot in return. Really, it's the community that got a lot in return. Mara saw a need, and she filled it," Proskin added.

To Life! can be reached at 439-5975.

Harry Potter IV takes Capital District by storm

By Katherine McCarthy

We know, we know, we're all wild about Harry. So much of the recent hype about the boy wizard has been negative that, particularly as the mother of sons, I'd like to rise to Harry's defense.

When the Harry Potter books first came out, I eschewed them, not wanting to be part of another consumer trend. But last summer at the pool, then-9-year-old Molly Ruslander was so full of articulate enthusiasm for Harry Potter that I was convinced he was worth a try.

So Harry Potter, books one and two, went with us on last summer's German vacation, where we learned that our boys were still a little young for an excess of touring and historical sites. Harry saved each day, as we rose and retired with chapters read aloud.

We bought book three as soon as we could, and were part of last Friday's midnight madness for the fourth edition. Like our German vacation, this was better in theory

COMMENTARY:

*Mom's

than in reality. But I couldn't resist; we've been reading to our children since they were babies, and to have them yearn for a book validated the one immovable tenet of our ever-in-flux child rearing philosophies: Reading is the best thing you can do. Ever.

We headed to Borders for our reserved copy, where everyone but the overwhelmed staff seemed to know about this publishing phenomenon. You need to sign in, the rumor went, so I tried to sort out the line from the general throng. You don't need to sign in if you've got a book on reserve, another employee said, so I left, only to be told 15 minutes later by my panic-stricken kids who'd been unable to get near the arts and crafts table or the "Who Wants to Be a Wizard?" play, that I did need to sign in.

I began the not-so-helpful question I would ask every employee after that, "Have you heard, there's this great book hitting the stands at midnight?"

When one of them admitted that they didn't really know how they were going to pass the books out — or differentiate between reserved and unreserved copies — it was too much for the control freak in me. I suggested we retreat upstairs to sample some of Harry's beloved Butter Beer, advertised throughout the store, only to find the café closed.

"Biggest night of the year for them," another father grumbled, "and they're closed." The boys found their father in the music section, with headphones on jiving to Isaac Hayes' "Don't Let Go," until the nonplussed staff closed up shop.

We finally collapsed in science fiction, where Christopher and Cormac entered a great debate with two other kids about exactly who will die in the newest book.

Finally it was midnight, and Chris and I divided and conquered: he stood with the boys, while I pressed as close to the front as I could as three Borders employees stood far apart at the front registers and called out the names of the reserved book holders.

"We can't hear you," chanted the crowd that was on the verge of turning into a mob.

Finally, at 12:40, Harry was ours. Safely in the car, I snapped a shot of the boys with their book, and Chris and I tried to make this into a positive experience.

"It doesn't matter now how tough the last hour was," I said. "Let's remember that we were here, that we have the book, and now we can continue the magic."

For that's what Harry Potter is, true magic. But it's more than owls delivering mail and mirrors that show you your heart's desire.

Physically Speaking

by Nick
Valenze, P.T.

CUMULATIVE EFFECT

People who labor in front of a computer all day often experience physical problems that relate to the repetitive nature of their hand motions — burning, aching wrists and tingling fingers, among other painful symptoms. In fact, according to the estimates of the U.S. Department of Labor, about half of the nation's workforce suffers from some sort of cumulative trauma disorder. Yet, most continue to do the work that is creating the problem because they want to keep their jobs. What are these employees to do? A physical therapist can help through behavior modification. By teaching employees to stretch, exercise, adopt better posture, take frequent breaks, and modify technique, employees can work their way back to health.

If performing your job is causing you pain and discomfort, ask your doctor for a referral to our physical therapy practice. We provide the most effective therapies, including ultrasound and massage therapy, in comfortable, state-of-the-art facilities. In addition to treating your symptoms, we'll also show you how body mechanics and workplace adjustment can help prevent injury in the future. To learn more, please call the number listed below. Harry Potter can do what all children wish they could — he can overcome great adversity to remain the hero of his world.

J.K. Rowling, the most famous mother ever to drink a cup of Edinburgh's coffee, has neatly drawn from British authors Roald Dahl and C.S. Lewis. Her writing is rich and deft, and our kids come away from reading her books with new words and phrases. They speculate about character motivation, try to imitate Hagrid's Scottish accent, and glue glowing stars to their bedroom ceiling in an effort to recreate the enchantment of the Hogwarts school's cafeteria.

There are good children's books out there, but they're few and far between. There are too many formula books in our house — children morphing into animals, or getting goosebumps from things less frightening than creepy — all told in simplistic dialogue. How rich to pore over a Harry book, and explain to our children what a fortnight is, or where King's Cross station is.

Some people are grouching about the coming merchandise, but I can't wait for Harry Potter figures to arrive at our house. I have already claimed the animation of Minerva McGonagle for myself; I am tired of being Darth Maul, always falling down the paper-towel roll to my death.

When my children play with Harry Potter figures, they will be using their imaginations, not just their highly-developed video game thumbs. The movie, I believe, will be a welcome relief from our constant battle over what's appropriate and what's not.

For as long as my children will listen, give me these Harry Potter tales to read aloud. Let them stare raptly into space, and always remember the wizard boy who defeated evil with a touch of magic with some very good friends by his side.

Local chambers set women's breakfast

The Bethlehem, Gunderland and Latham Area chambers of commerce are sponsoring a women in business breakfast on Wednesday, July 19, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. at Best Western Sovereign Hotel on Western Avenue in Albany.

The topic will be "Being a Successful Woman in Any Field."

Margaret Defrancisco, director of the state Lottery, and Lois Johnson, executive director of the Women's Employment Resource Center will be the guest speakers.

The seminar costs $10 for members and $12 for nonmembers.

Town parks to host summer story hours

"Stories Out And About," a cooperative outreach program sponsored by the Bethlehem Public Library and the Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department, will take place in various locations during July and August.

Bethlehem Youth Hockey Final Registration 2000-2001 Season

Don't miss the chance to play Youth Hockey at the area's premier ice facility

The B.I.G. Arena

Thursday	July 13	7 - 8:30 p.m.
Tuesday	July 18	7 - 8:30 p.m.
Wednesday	July 26	7 - 8:30 p.m.

Under the auspices of the Bethlehem Hockey Booster Club, Bethlehem Youth Hockey is holding final registration for its 2000-2001 season. The past season saw our organization expand from two teams and 30 players to 9 teams and more than 130 players. Next season we anticipate more growth. Already more than 200 children have signed up to play next year.

We are finalizing our teams for next season so don't miss out on the opportunity to play youth hockey at the area's premier facility, the B.I.G. Arena. We intend to field 14 "house" teams: six mite teams, four squirt teams, two pee wee teams and two bantam teams. In addition, we are planning to field six "travel" teams: a "before" midget team, a full season midget team, a bantam team, two pee wee teams and a squirt team.

DIVISION	AGE	BIRTHDATES
Mites	7 - 8	7/1/91 - 6/30/93
Squirts	9 - 10	7/1/89 - 6/30/91
Pee Wees	11 - 12	7/1/87 - 6/30/89
Bantams	13 - 14	7/1/85 - 6/30/87
Midgets	15 - 17	7/1/83 - 6/30/85

Registration will be at B.I.G. Arena. We require the player's birthdate, Social Security number, and a $50 non-refundable deposit, which will be credited toward the player's registration fee.

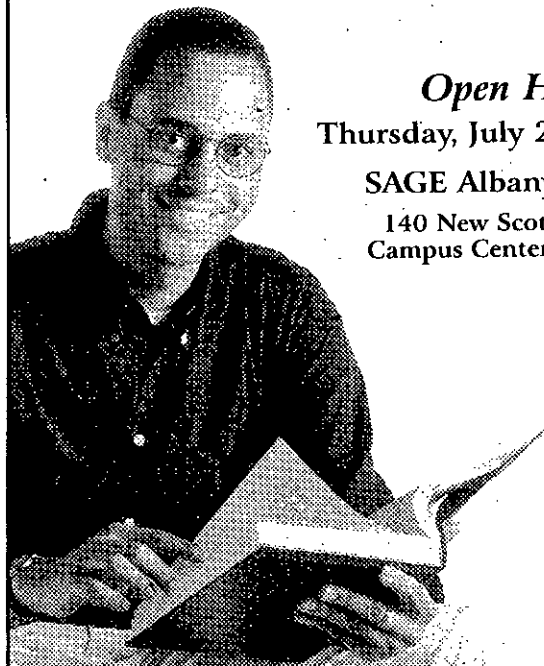

For further information, please call 439-3358, 427-7439 or 439-9433.

Matters of Opinion

Good news at last

There's finally some good news in the aftermath of the May landslide. On Monday, Gov. George Pataki announced the release of Small Cities economic distress loan money.

That should help the businesses on Delaware Avenue that have suffered dramatically from the loss of Albany patrons. Since the slide, it's been a pins-and-needles scenario for many business owners, whose bills and other expenses continued in spite of the fact that their business was cut, in some cases, by as much as 40 percent.

Two local banks, Evergreen on Delaware Avenue and Fleet, with two branches there, have also extended emergency loan options to affected businesses.

This is one way a community like Bethlehem has shown its mettle during trying times. Other champions include the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce, which has mounted several campaigns to help town entrepreneurs during this difficult time.

Town leaders, led by Supervisor Sheila Fuller, have also been proactive in dealing with the landslide.

What remains now of course is to get Delaware Avenue open to traffic. Naturally the state DOT is exercising caution in its plan to shore up the cliff near the road. We hope this can be accomplished by fall to restore some semblance of normalcy to the town.

In the meantime, it's up to each of us to support Bethlehem businesses.

A special young man

The Spotlight, Bethlehem school district and the community were rocked last week following the tragic accident that claimed the life of 14-year-old Russell Ellers of Glenmont.

Our deepest sympathy to his family and his many friends at BCMS.

We salute his young life and his passion for baseball. He was a special young man who will be remembered as a good team player and a good friend.

Blood shortage

It's a busy time of year and a time when Red Cross blood supplies suffer from severe shortages. With dwindling supplies, in part caused by high school and college students on summer recess, it's critical for regular donors to give blood.

Many local bloodmobiles are scheduled during the summer throughout the region to make it more convenient for donors, with busy schedules.

Call the Red Cross at 433-0151 for information on bloodmobile locations in the area during the summer.

Some advice to millennium grads

By Happy Scherer

The writer is president of the Bethlehem school board. The following is her address to this year's graduates.

Greetings and congratulations to the class of 2000, faculty and staff, proud parents, grandparents, relatives, and friends! This is, indeed, a special day for us all.

Like many of you here tonight, I remember the first time I realized that my daughter would be graduating in the year 2000. We laughed when we thought about high school rings and varsity jackets that would read "OO," and couldn't imagine what the world would be like in the dawn of this new century.

Although we had never heard of Y2K, we did have some pretty reliable images that gave us a clue about what life would be like in the year 2000. The best example of this was one of my personal favorite TV shows, "The Jetsons." We laughed at this cartoon image of what the future would bring. I remember my disbelief as we watched Jane Jetson insert a meal into a space-age looking oven, press a button, and have dinner instantly ready in a matter of seconds. We knew that it was only a science fiction pipedream to have computers in every room of the house, doing our shopping, our banking, and our communicating with the world. And those telephones which would enable us to talk to people all over the world while watching them on a camera? Possibly, we thought, but highly unlikely.

Of course you, class of 2000, take microwave ovens, cellular phones, and this incredible international communications network, for granted. Although the World Wide Web wasn't even a concept when you were born, it now governs every aspect of your life. Your world has truly shrunk. You e-mail your friends (and even people you have never actually met in person) in an instant, and all of the barriers of time, money, and communication that previously kept us isolated in our own homes and communities have disappeared.

So, although we don't yet have robot maids or dogs — although both are excellent ideas — nor do we travel to work in small spacecrafts, the world has changed rapidly in the 18 years since we brought you students into the world. And time has passed so quickly since we first put you on the bus for kindergarten and with tears in our eyes, watched you leave for school for the first time. All of those Little League and soccer games, swim meets, hockey practices, elementary school concerts and plays, battles over homework, friends, curfews, driving, applying to college, seem to have passed in an instant, bringing us all to this point, tonight, before we even knew what was happening.

Time is such a relative concept. Senior year, for example, didn't it seem to last forever and then, all of a sudden, speed up so quickly? For you students, your life seems to stretch endlessly ahead with so many twists and turns and possibilities.

But you, class of 2000, found out in the most painful possible way that time is not to be taken for granted, as right in the beginning of your high school career, one of your classmates, Sarah Whiting, had her time cut tragically short. As is typical of this exceptional class, you grieved together and then turned your energy in a positive way toward developing an annual event, in her memory, which would raise funds and continue to focus on community safety. Thank you, in Sarah's memory, for the spirit and energy of this class that has done so much for others in so many ways.

As our world has changed, and time and distance have become reframed in ways we are only beginning to understand, I find it remarkable that tonight I can share with you some thoughts about time that appeared on my e-mail one morning. These words were sent to me by a woman whom I consider a friend although I've never met her or even spoken to her on the telephone. She lives thousands of miles away in a small city in Costa Rica, and we often write back and forth, sharing our thoughts about life and parenting because, remarkably, in this small world we now inhabit, she spent time with my daughter, and I have spent time with hers.

I have learned from her, and my other friends in Latin America, that our rush rush lifestyle in the United States may not be the best way after all. I ask you, as you think about the way we deal with time in the year 2000 to consider these words from, of all people, the comedian George Carlin:

"The paradox of our time in history is that we have taller buildings, but shorter tempers.

Wider freeways, but narrower view points

We spend more, but have less — we buy more, but we enjoy it less

We have bigger houses and smaller families; more conveniences, but less time

We have more degrees, but less sense; more knowledge, but less judgment;

More experts, but more problems;

More medicine, but less wellness.

We drink too much, smoke too much, spend too recklessly, laugh too little, drive too fast, get too angry too quickly, stay up too late, get up too tired, read too seldom and watch TV too much.

We have multiplied our possessions, but reduced our values.

We talk too much, love too seldom, and hate too often.

We've learned how to make a living, but not a life;

We've added years to life, but not life to years.

We've been all the way to the moon and back but we have trouble crossing the street to meet the new neighbor.

We've conquered outer space, but not inner space.

We've done larger things, but not better things.

We've cleaned up the air, but polluted the soul.

We've split the atom, but not our prejudice.

We write more, but learn less. We plan more, but accomplish less.

We've learned to rush, but not to wait.

We build more computers to hold more information to produce more copies than ever, but have less communication.

These are the times of fast foods and slow digestion, tall men and short character.

Steep profits and shallow relationships.

These are the times of world peace, but domestic warfare;

More leisure, but less fun,

More kinds of food, but less nutrition...

These are days of quick trips, disposable diapers ... when there is much in the show window and nothing in the stockroom; a time when technology can bring this letter to you, and a time when you can choose either to share this insight, or to just hit delete."

My challenge to you, class of 2000, is: Don't hit that delete button so quickly. Savor the time you have. Take the time you need and deserve. Slow down a little and pace yourself. Cherish your family, your friends, your education, your community and your future.

We all remember the song "Cat's Cradle" by Harry Chapin — where the child grows up just like his dad, regretting that they were too busy to take the time to spend it together. Take the time, all of you ... All of us — it's all we have.

Sidewalks and dog parks are oddly connected

Editor, The Spotlight:

Sidewalks and dog parks: I find them oddly connected. We are to have a sidewalk to the Big Arena (um, whose political pocket are the investors of the arena in)? yet in many daily trips up and down the hill, I have never seen anyone walking toward the arena.

Routinely, I travel the bypass extension and always, there is a dog and his companion taking their daily constitutional. As a dog enthusiast, I notice such things.

So we are to have what we don't need and not what we do. I understand that no one wants progress in their back yard, but the dogs are being walked there anyway. Wouldn't it be better to have them (dogs) and their messes contained to one area? Seems to me that dog owners that want such a park are a conscientious lot, and show responsible pet ownership, or else why would they bother?

Then maybe if we get the dogs off the bike path, we could then get joggers, bicyclists and inline skater off the road and on the path where they belong. As for the sidewalk to the arena, don't they know everyone's driving their SUV to the arena, hockey equipment being so big and bulky.

Karen McCaffrey
Delmar

Dogs belong in back yard

Editor, The Spotlight:

The proposed park for dog lovers is another waste of taxpayers' money. They already have a dog park.

It's their own property and it should be used for their pets, instead of their neighbors', for their dogs' exercise and waste.

Girls Scouts are grateful

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the Neighborhood Girl Scouts of Hudson Valley Council, I would like to thank the following businesses for their generous donations of food and supplies for our recent encampment at Lawsons Lake. It is business practices like this that contribute to making them valued members of our community.

To Delmar Grand Union, Sysco, Ryan's Produce, Price Chopper and Java Jazz Café of Delmar, thank you for your support!

Proven safety measures are needed

Editor, The Spotlight:

Recent letters to The Spotlight, on the need for and against sidewalks and other pedestrian safety concerns, are strong reminders of preventable serious injury and deaths.

This community should be proud of its progress, and its open debates. Nationwide and internationally, even though I have not found any significant increases in pedestrian injuries and deaths, few areas, perhaps except for Settle, Wash., and Atlanta, Ga., are as dedicated as our town's officials and consumer groups. And because the number of pedestrian or other injuries are so small in the suburbs, to really know what may prevent or reduce trauma, it behoves us to advocate and apply what works in tested research studies.

More must be done to practice use of tested interventions. Our suburban youth and adults seem to rush, many times each day, from one place to another by car, walking or jogging.

I am concerned, both as a Bethlehem resident and as a seasoned safety professional, that we are leaving too much to simple solutions of safety fairs, or posting of street signs on how to walk or jog, or fancy slogans for changing behavior while our "good feeling" energies might be better directed toward a few "proven" risk and injury reduction approaches.

These rely less on sensitizing and warning consumers' changing human behavior (which change is only promising if the behavior is repeated very, very frequently). These proven approaches are advocating effective (voluntary and, perhaps, police enforcement) safety engineering activities, such as alerting a fellow user of the streets, building targeted sidewalks; slowing down the change in traffic lights in any studied senior walking areas and not using "speed strips" in the roads. Aside from these interventions, we really do not know what works.

Mr. Kohl, in his letter July 5 questions the need for sidewalks throughout Bethlehem. I agree with him that some standards for prioritizing the extent of traffic, risk and injury history would balance out the real world values of not only safety but economics and "fostering a sense of community." Mr. Berger's, Spotlight letter on July 5, said of course sidewalks are an "emotional issue," which can create a false sense of security as pedestrians or young children choose — as they are now doing in Bethlehem, to walk in the street, anyway, sometimes four abreast, and on the wrong side of the road, where there are no sidewalks.

I see each of us acting as consumer-deputy volunteers for ourselves and our police. Where we see pedestrians walking or biking or driving incorrectly, we must speak out to them (and the police). Our efforts might just limit the risk, or even save lives and limbs. Guidelines on what to briefly say to a walker, jogger or driver, bicyclist need to be advocated.

And yes, targeted areas for sidewalks seem practical, as will long-term plans for more traditional streets, as in Europe, for new housing developments.

We must also advocate for better conglomerate state and national studies which can pool enough data to advise small suburbs. Current state and national data systems do not promptly or necessarily pick up new risks like joggers with headsets or ineffectiveness of warning signs.

And when a tragedy does occur, we need better press reporting of the brand and model of the consumer product involved (for many years the pointed bumpers on certain cars offered a greater injury risk), the height of the driver sitting in the vehicle, the effects of sunlight on a windshield, use of alcohol by the pedestrian, the history of prior episodes over many years in the same location, the presence of visually blocking plants or "warning signs on proper walking."

We must petition our Congressional representatives for federal support of injury control which has been slashed by lobbying groups.

And not only is a local traffic safety committee of import, but a community/state/federal sponsored safety coalition might help us assess, work up policy options and assurances that we are doing the best we can for not only for all non-intentional injury but for homicide, suicide and violence.

Because children and adults in Bethlehem face many risks of injury (from motor vehicle related, to fires to even ... landslides — all public energies must be placed on preventing or reducing the most severe injuries and deaths. This may not require fences on home roofs or banning cell phones or shaving while in a car (as Mr. Kohl, tongue in cheek, suggests); however, our tragic local history of pedestrian deaths suggests, we in Bethlehem have correctly targeted a serious concern.

And now we need to build upon our progress and refine our direction in all areas of injury control; the leading cause of years of life lost in our state and nation.

Les Fisher

Retired former assistant director of the state Department of Health, Research and Policy Development, Division of Public Health Protection

Quebec City

Beautifully preserved and the only fortified city in North America, Canada's Quebec City is an exquisite, historic place to visit. The city can easily be seen on foot, with some wonderful alpine views atop the city walls or at its highest point, Cap Diamant, near the Citadelle. Upper Town and Lower Town are divided by steep rock that has been carved into 25 different staircases. In Upper Town, see the city's impressive historic and political buildings, many of which have copper roofs and towering steeples. Morrin College, Chateau Frontenac, and the Ursuline Convent are well worth a visit for their beauty and history. Lower Town, or Basse-Ville, is more modern, featuring shops, boutiques, restaurants, and galleries.

It's always nice to know your neighbors, and this is especially true of our Canadian neighbors to the north. Look to TRAVELHOST TRAVEL AGENCY, your good neighbors here in Delmar, for good ideas on where to go and what to see. # Bluegrass tunes to highlight tonight's concert

Bob Bates and Nick Barr perform tunes of the Louvin Brothers, classic bluegrass, and Bob Bates originals in tonight's Evening on the Green concert at 7:30 p.m.

Bates and Barr were nominees for the Northeast Country Music Association's Bluegrass Group of the Year in 1999. They are joined tonight by husband and wife duo Al and Kathy Bain. The Bains have been performing together for about 30 years. They are members of the Northeast Country Music Association and have done radio, TV and live performances in West Virginia and upstate New York.

Admission is free. Bring a blanket or lawn chair if the weather's good. The concert will move indoors in case of rain. Refreshments are provided by the Friends of the Library.

Summer Reading

For Kings and Planets by Ethan Canin is a beautifully written novel about the lives of two young men and the women they love.

The book explores the conflicts of character that afflict us all, and the fine line that exists between rivalry and friendship, love and betrayal.

The author's lyrical prose, combined with a flair for describing ordinary life in an extraordinary way, make for a highly mesmerizing book.

Women Like Us by Erica Abeel is about four young women who become close friends at Sarah Lawrence in the 1950s, and upon graduation set out to lead independent, nonconformist lives.

The obstacles they encounter in their careers, marriages and relationships force them to uncover reserves of strength they never knew they had.

If you felt a kinship with the women in The Group by Mary McCarthy, you'll find much to relate to in this novel.

Thanks to reference librarian Meryl Norek for these reviews.

WIDTH THIS RING, I THEE WED

When selecting a wedding band, choose the width that looks best. The standard ladies' simple gold or platinum band ranges from two to four millimeters in width, while the men's ranges from three-and-a-half to six millimeters. Stock sizes can range all the way up to ten millimeters in width. With this in mind, it is important to try on sample bands of varying widths to see which is best suited to your finger and hand. The same style band can look quite different in different widths. And, bear in mind that if a ring does not feel comfortable on your finger to begin with, there is a strong likelihood that you will not get used to it.

Before you select the jewelry you'll cherish for a lifetime, it is important to find a jeweler who can explain how the differences in design and quality can greatly affect value and price. If you are the kind of person who demands quality in every aspect of your life, you'll appreciate the fine craftsmanship of our fine jewelry at JOYELLES JEWELERS. Our jewelry will add beauty and excitement, not to mention value, to your jewelry collection. Come see what perfection looks like at 318 Delaware Avenue, in the Main Square Shoppes.

Good Samaritan Senior Living

by Lee Bormann
President / C.E.O.

OLDER AND BETTER

According to a recent Harris Poll released by the National Council on the Aging, many older Americans are enjoying life to the fullest. In fact, 44% of those over age 65 who were polled (up from 32% since 1974) say they are enjoying the best years of their lives. The mid- to late-60s seem to be a particularly good time for seniors, as nearly half (49%) of those 56 to 69 years old indicate they are in their best years. In 1974, 23% in the 65-plus category said that poor health was a serious problem, while only 12% do so today. And, while 12% between the ages of 18 and 24 report loneliness to be a serious problem, only 4% of those 65-plus do.

Maintaining your mobility and flexibility really helps make life more enjoyable. Ask us about what services we offer at Good Samaritan Lutheran Health Care Center, 125 Rockefeller Road. Call 439-8116 for more information. We understand the changing needs of seniors so we can offer timely help or information as required.

Two arrested in 9W hit-and-run accident

By Joseph A. Phillips

Two 18-year-olds, Alexandra Marsett of Harvard Street in Cohoes, and Joshua Jaruk of Route 9W in Selkirk, face charges as a result of a mid-afternoon Fourth of July hit-and-run accident and a brief car chase through Selkirk and Glenmont by another motorist and Bethlehem police.

According to police, the accident occurred at about 3:10 p.m. as James Biernacki of Ravena was stopped at a traffic light on Route 9W at Maple Avenue in Selkirk. Biernacki's vehicle was struck from behind by a vehicle allegedly driven by Marsett.

Biernacki pulled off onto the shoulder prepared to exchange insurance information, but Marsett's vehicle continued northbound.

Biernacki then pursued the vehicle. Unable to stop it, he phoned police from a car phone.

Officer James Rexford stopped the vehicle on Glenmont Hill Road near River Road.

According to the police report, when Rexford stopped the vehicle, Jaruk, not Marsett, was driving, but Marsett admitting to having been behind the wheel when the accident occurred.

She was charged with leaving the scene of a personal-damage accident.

A check of Jaruk's license revealed earlier license suspensions in both Bethlehem and New Scotland, and he was arrested for unauthorized operation of a vehicle, a felony.

He was arraigned before Bethlehem Town Justice Theresa Egan and released without bail under court supervision. His license was also confiscated.

Both Marsett and Jaruk were ordered to appear in Town Court on July 25.

Museum open Sundays

The Museum of the Town of Bethlehem Historical Association is open to the public on Sundays from 2 to 4 p.m. through August.

Items on display in the two-room red school house include artifacts from the 1700s and 1800s.

Historic items and information concerning the town's past are gathered and preserved in this building by the association.

Exhibits feature the home, farm, river, ice harvesting, and the school.

The collection features homes, farms, buildings, river boats and clothes of the town of Bethlehem since the landing of Henry Hudson in 1609.

In addition, there is voluminous material on the history of individuals who founded and developed this area.

The museum is at 1003 River Road, five miles south of Albany, at the corner of Clapper Road and Route 144. It has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

There is no charge for admission and visitors are welcome.

The museum is also open by appointment. To make an appointment, call 767-9432 or 439-2403.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

Dr. Geoffrey B. Edmunds, D.D.S.

YOUR CHILD'S FIRST DENTAL VISIT

Patients often ask what the best age is to start bringing their child to the dental office. Approximately three years of age is the ideal time to start. We also suggest that if the parent is a patient of the practice, they may bring their child with them during a routine hygiene visit. Children can then observe and familiarize themselves with the dental environment before their first dental visit.

Normally, a child going to the dentist for the first time is full of anxiety. This gentle approach can transform a frightened child into a cooperative patient who is not afraid—a child who will leave the office smiling.

The first thing we try to do is convince the child of our honesty.

Kids are smart and not easily fooled. When we promise something, we make sure it is done. When we prove we can be trusted to do what we say, the child will relax. Usually we begin with something easy such as "counting their teeth".

A child sometimes cries before anything is done. The crying will generally disappear after the first experience. When we have established our reliability and proved that we are trustworthy, we should have no further problems.

Help

a Bethlehem Landslide Disaster Recovery Program, aimed at providing grant money to small businesses that have suffered as a result of the landslide and road closing. The grant money, drawn from federal Community Development Block Grant funds administered through the Governor's Office for Small Cities, could amount to as much as $1.1 million.

"We're going to get this road opened as quickly as possible consistent with safety," Pataki said, "and we're going to work as hard as we can to make sure the businesses lost or damaged here get back on their feet."

Noting the recent confirmation from the Federal Highway Administration of up to $15 million to fund the state Department of Transportation's remedial efforts to save Delaware Avenue by buttressing the hillside and rerouting the Normanskill, Pataki added, "The next step, in addition to rebuilding and reopening the road, is to help the small businesses that have been affected and impacted by this disaster."

The assistance through the disaster recovery program is modest but welcome, said Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce president Marty DeLaney. "Businesses in the Bethlehem community, and especially those here on the Delaware Avenue corridor, are very appreciative of just this kind of assistance."

Grants of up to $5,000 will be available for businesses that can demonstrate "substantial economic injury" as a result of the disaster — demonstrable loss of income or working capital, resulting in an inability to meet obligations or pay ordinary or necessary operating expenses.

"To some people, that'll be a drop in the bucket," said DeLaney, "But to some, it'll be very substantial. And in any case, no one won't be grateful for any assistance we can get."

To qualify, eligible businesses must first apply for the federal Small Business Administration Economic Injury Disaster Loan Program — applications for which have been available to affected businesses for more than a month through the chamber.

Businesses that claim a total loss of real property structures and have been denied insurance coverage for their losses are eligible for grants up to $100,000 — an applicant pool of, essentially, one: California Produce Co., the roadside market which collapsed down the hillside on May 18.

Owner Anthony Battaglia wasted no time in accepting the offer, noting that his insurance carrier has denied him coverage for his losses. "Thank you, governor," he said as he shook Pataki's hand.

And Supervisor Sheila Fuller noted that even the modest economic injury grants would be helpful in "taking away some of the immediate frustration and anxiety" of business owners.

"I see business owners come and tell me they're having trouble meeting payroll or paying rent or paying their school taxes," she said, "This is going to be very beneficial to them."

Officials of the state Department of Transportation and the State Emergency Management Office, as well as politicians including Assembly Minority Leader John Faso, state Sen. Neil Breslin and town officials, including all five members of the town board, attended the event.

Faso hailed the state grant as "one more sign that we'll be able to get things back to normal as quickly as possible." Even with financial assistance, Faso said, "We can't say enough about how strongly we believe it's important to get that road open as quickly as possible," Faso said.

To that end, crews are working to complete the re-armoring of a 400-foot section of the Normanskill and construction of a "haul road" along the stream and onto the slide face.

DOT spokeswoman Paula Kelly said the road should be completed by the weekend, and will enable trucks to begin hauling in material to buttress the hill's upper scarp. Before buttressing begins, "swales" will be cut into the slide mass to ensure proper drainage.

Nature has been kind lately, with the recent run of dry weather, said DOT's chief geotechnical engineer, Rob Burnett. Once the slope is buttressed, he said, "We're still hoping within some weeks that we can get at least a lane or two of Delaware Avenue open."

A full reopening will await the permanent relocation of the Normanskill streambed.

Crash

apparently out of control.

"My understanding is, he saw a car coming, heard the tires screeching, and pulled over to the side to get out of the way," said Bethlehem police Lt. Fred Holligan.

But the approaching car braked and went into a skid, the rear of the car crossing the center lines. The left rear of Necroto's vehicle struck the front of Hartigan's almost completely stopped vehicle and spun nearly 180 degrees back into the center of the roadway, suffering extensive damage.

Speed may have been a factor in the accident, Holligan said.

"An investigation is still in progress," he said, "But our preliminary reconstruction of the accident scene suggests (Necroto) was too fast for the character of the roadway, and probably exceeded the speed of the roadway."

Glenmont Hill Road is posted at 40 mph westbound, and marked along the hillside with 25-mph cautionary signs due to its curves and steep grade.

All individuals involved in the accident were wearing seat belts. Police and Bethlehem Ambulance EMS personnel responding at the scene found both drivers out of their vehicles and Necroto in shock and unable to recall what had happened.

Ellers was found in the back seat, still belted in and suffering no visible injuries, but unconscious and in respiratory and cardiac distress. He was rushed to Albany Medical Center Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 3:01 p.m.; the specific cause of death has not yet been released pending the results of an inquest by the Albany County coroner, according to hospital spokesman Richard Puff.

John Necroto was also treated at Albany Med for head injuries and released the next day. His father, suffering from chest injuries, remained in the hospital until his release on July 6. Hartigan was uninjured in the collision and has not been charged.

Charges against Bartholomew Necroto are still pending, awaiting the outcome of the investigation tion by Bethlehem police detectives and traffic safety officers, Holligan said.

"It's still under investigation how he lost control of the vehicle, and why he was going that fast," he said.

State Police investigators specializing in accident-scene reconstruction have also been consulted in the case.

"There will be some vehicle and traffic charges, and we are consulting with the county district attorney's office on whether other charges may be indicated," Holligan said.

Necroto allegedly told police he has had a history of heart problems and is taking medication.

A BETHLEHEM NETWORKS PROJECT

Take time to volunteer

By Blair Prenoveau, 16, who recently completed her first week of volunteering at Mercy Care Life Center in Gunderland.

I have always wanted to volunteer and knew that I wanted to work with either the sick or the elderly, because I am a "people person." Most importantly, I like to listen to others. But I was somewhat apprehensive about working with the elderly, and procrastinated before I made an appointment to volunteer. Now I sincerely regret the time I lost. There is no way for me to describe how I felt when I first realized how much I could help those I met. I was hit with this feeling my first day at Mercy Care Life Center.

A volunteer's job consists of many things, one is to escort residents to Mass or church. Michael, another volunteer, and I were either steering residents in wheelchairs, or simply walking with them. We'd find them a spot in the nave where the services are held, make sure they were settled, then rush off to help someone else. One of the residents, Sister Jeanette, told us she wanted to go to Mass. Michael and I were more than happy to assist her. She could walk, but was complaining of a sore foot, so we each took one of her aged, yet slender hands, and set off down the hall. We left her in a chair and went back to find others to help. When our task was complete, it was nearly time to return residents to their rooms or the parlor, where they can socialize.

There was a frenzied rush and an assembly line of workers and volunteers to bring the wheelchairs out of the room, lining them up two by two, backwards in front of the elevator. Michael was riding in the elevator to help get residents out on the upper level. I wanted to help Sister Jeanette, so I asked her if she'd like to return to her parlor. She said, "I suppose so." She sounded sad, as if it didn't really matter to her. I wanted to make it matter. I talked to her all the way to the parlor, and she told me about things that happened when she was younger and about her family. We laughed together and I realized that I was thoroughly enjoying myself. I discovered that this volunteer thing was rewarding. I didn't need to receive money to do this. I liked it and the feeling was better than money. I settled Sister into her big comfy chair, and put the foot rest up. I told her how happy I was to have met her and said I was sure I'd see her again. She said she hoped so. I remembered her ailing foot, and added, "I hope you feel better." I won't forget the words she said next, nor the feeling they gave me. With a smile she said, "When I'm with you I do, dear."

I urge you to volunteer. Don't procrastinate! Call Mercy Care Life Center — or any residential center. They won't turn you away.

Wine Lines
DELMAR WINE and LIQUOR
by Beth

A SENSE OF PLACE

Contrary to what many people believe, Champagne is not a generic term for any sparkling wine. It is, instead, the protected name of a sparkling wine produce from grapes grown only within the Champagne region of northern France. In terms of quality, Champagne remains unchallenged, owing to a viticultural climate in which the grapes struggle to ripen. The champagne region not only gets minimal sunlight, but its soil is suffused with lime-rich chalk. While California sparkling wines reflect the fruity ripeness associated with a sunny climate, Champagne tastes less of fruit and more subtly of the earth from which it sprang. The soil is the key to Champagne's intrinsic superiority.

Our staff at DELMAR WINE & LIQUOR is very knowledgeable about champagnes and other wines, which glasses to use, and what wines best complement various menus. We also would be happy to assist you in estimating quantities as you plan your special parties. We're conveniently located at 340 Delaware Ave. (439-1725). We specialize in imported wines and liquors, and carry many great gift items. Stop by on your way home from work and pick up a bottle chilled for your dinner.

HINT: Blanc de blancs ("white of whites") is wine produced almost entirely from white Chardonnay grapes and possesses the greatest aging potential of all Champagnes.

V'ville library sets concert schedule

Voorheesville Public Library at 51 School Road will sponsor three concerts on the lawn this summer. They are free and open to the public. Bring lawn chairs or blankets to sit on.

Tonight, July 12, the McKrells will perform at 7 p.m. Rosanne Raneri and Michael Eck will entertain on Wednesday, July 26, at 7 p.m., and the Lustre Kings will give an Elvis tribute on Wednesday, Aug. 16, also at 7 p.m.

For information, call the library at 765-2791.

The Coors Light US Water Ski Show Team will entertain at RiverFest on Saturday at 2 p.m.

By JOHN BRENT

There's something for everyone this weekend at Fleet's Albany RiverFest. The event, which is free, will be held this Saturday, July 15, from noon to 9:30 p.m. at the Corning Preserve.

Live music will be offered throughout the day, along with the GE KidZone, crafts, children's rides, A Taste of the Capital Region Food Court, a farmers' market, nautical displays and water shows, and to bring the day to a bang up close, a fireworks display.

One of the major attractions of the all-day festivities will be a 2 p.m. performance by the Coors Light US Water Ski Show Team. Always a crowd pleaser, the show features costumes, music, narration and incredible feats on water skis. The 14 acts comprising the performance include pyramids, water ski jumping, barefoot water skiing, ballet lines, swivel skiing and other eye-popping routines.

Another waterfront attraction takes place later in the day. Beginning at dusk, about 8:45 p.m., the Albany Yacht Club will present a lighted boat parade. The breathtaking procession of numerous boats bedecked with thousands of lights always manages to generate ohhhs and ahhs from onlookers.

This event is followed by the fireworks display which begins at 9:15 p.m. at the waterfront.

Other water attractions include boat safety demonstrations, a display by the Albany Police Scuba Team, US Coast Guard boat inspections and two 27-foot US Naval Reserve patrol boats.

For the musical entertainment, the main attractions will perform on Saturday evening.

At 6 p.m., The Toler Brothers take the stage. Featuring former members of the Allman Brothers Band, this hard hitting group pleases listeners with its southern style rhythm and blues/rock sound.

Heading up the four-member group are Dan and David (Frankie) Toler who have performed, not only with the Allman Brothers Band but with Alabama (Dan), the Gregg Allman Band (Dan and David) and the Marshall Tucker Band (David).

Their combined experience with these high profile groups have given them a powerful background which they incorporate into their own group.

John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band appears at 8 p.m. This band, originating in their native Rhode Island nearly 25 years ago came to national prominence when they recorded the music for a fictitious rock group in the 1984 film "Eddie and the Cruisers." The film has acquired something of a cult status over the years and two cuts from the soundtrack, Tender Years and On the Dark Side became major hits.

"Tough All Over" in 1985 and "Roadhouse" in 1988 were subsequent successful albums that enhanced the Beaver Brown Band reputation.

During the afternoon, the stage will be alive with a variety of performing artists.

The bluegrass group, Kaydeross gets things going at noon.

At 1 p.m., Captain Squeeze & the Zydeco Moshers take the stage. A style of music originating in Louisiana, combining Afro-Caribbean and Anglo-Baptist style music with a dash of Creole and French, the group is headed by Rensselaerville based Greg "Captain Squeeze" Speck.

Janelle Donovan, who is scheduled to perform at 2 p.m., currently resides in the Capital District. She just released her second CD, "Moonlight Ride." The singer songwriter combines country with pop and soft rock to create a sound with a broad crossover appeal.

New Jersey native Joe Whyte performs at 3 p.m. The singer songwriter is known for original material that ranges from modern rock to a more blues/ballad style.

The last of the afternoon performers is gospel jazz singer Barbara Howard who appears at 4 p.m. The Albany native is strongly influenced by her Christian background and beliefs and has a great love for gospel music which she feels brings peace and comfort to the performer and the listener.

Families with kids in tow will want to set aside some time to visit the GE KidZone which features fun, hands-on activities for young and old.

Scotia Glenville Museum will hold a workshop on creating clothespin creatures, the Arts Center of the Capital Region will have demonstrations on how to make a fish kite and Five Rivers with SCA Americorp will show how to make muslin prints and also offer seining demonstrations. Seining is the process of lowering a large net into the water and gathering living creatures for study.

There will be face painting and balloon sculptures.

An inflatable Theodore Tugboat will also be on hand to entertain the kids.

Not far from Theodore will be Kelly Conlon, the reigning Tulip Queen who will host story hour.

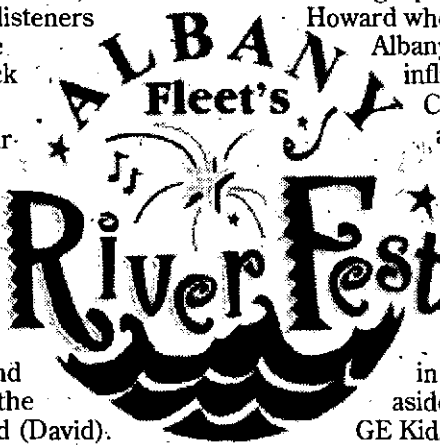

On the GE KidZone stage, the Puppet People will perform at 1, 3 and 6 p.m.

At 2 and 4 p.m. singer/storyteller Paul Strausman will be featured and at 5 and 7 p.m. magical wizard Merdwin the Mediocre will dazzle the crowd with amazing illusions.

Strolling entertainers and performers will be moving around the KidZone to provide additional fun.

And don't forget the fireworks display at 9:15! Be sure to plan on staying for this bang up climax to a fun-packed, entertainment filled day.

For information on Fleet's Albany RiverFest, call 434-2032.

Gospel singer Barbara Howard performs Saturday at 4 p.m.

The Puppet People will be appearing on the GE KidZone stage at 1, 3 and 6 p.m.

Keeping Nature From Taking Its Course

"Mother Nature is awesome," says Donna Wagner, vice president of the Car Care Council, "but she's not very interested in the looks of your vehicle. So don't expect a good rain to rinse off your car this summer."

There's no such thing as a "good rain," she explains. "It contains contaminants. Over time, rain, as well as the sun's UV rays, can damage a vehicle's finish if it's not washed and waxed regularly."

In a recent survey, people who washed their cars said they did so 1-2 times a month. The Council recommends washing your car twice a month and waxing it every six months with quality products designed for these specific purposes. Do not use dishwashing liquid or other household detergents.

Consumers are sometimes confused about the "clear coat" that is put on at the factory to help preserve the finish. While this coating helps in the battle against the elements, it's approximately as thick as a plastic garbage bag. That's not much protection, and make. It protects the exterior and therefore protects your investment. It's relatively quick and inexpensive. And finally, it makes your vehicle look sharp, and that makes you feel good."

"It protects the exterior and therefore protects your investment.."

it's no substitute for cleaning.

"Regular washing and waxing is the key," says Wagner. "Like painting your home; it's one of the best improvements you can

"Good Question..." By Cathy Reichow

Q. I have a 1995 Ford Thunderbird, and at times I can't seem to get the shifter out of park. What could cause this problem?

A. Your vehicle is equipped with a safety device that requires your brake pedal to be depressed before the vehicle will be released from park. Make sure you always have your foot firmly depressed on the brake pedal. Once you have determined that the pedal is depressed, and it still won't come out of park, you may need to replace the park/shifter safety switch.

Q. I own a 1997 Chevy Conversion Van, and I have an intermittent problem when starting my vehicle. At times I must crank it excessively before it finally starts. Sometimes I have to spray starting fluid to get it started.

A. There are a few tests that should be performed but by your description, the first one should be a fuel pump pressure and volume test. Your vehicle requires a great amount of fuel pressure to start; a slight drop in pressure may cause a hard starting condition. The fuel pump is part of the fuel module assembly located in the top of your gas tank. You may also have the fuel filter changed if it's been a while.

Q. I own a 1994 Chevy Lumina. When I run my air conditioner there is water on the passenger front floorboard.

A. This is a very common problem especially when you use your air conditioner on a regular basis. There is a drain for the evaporator core located in the dash of your vehicle. Many times this drain gets plugged and instead of draining outside your vehicle it leaks inside. It's a simple procedure to clean the drain, and it may need to be done on a regular basis.

Q. At times when I drive my vehicle for long periods at night, my headlights will begin to blink on and off. I can never predict when this will occur, so it makes night driving difficult.

A. Since I'm not sure what kind of vehicle you own, I'll give you a few suggestions. If your vehicle has a headlight switch located on the steering column, it may be something as simple as cleaning the contacts on the multi-function switch. If your vehicle has a headlight switch mounted on the dashboard, I would recommend replacing the switch. Any way it goes, I would have it checked as soon as possible.

Q. My oil change light just came on even though I just had my oil changed last week.

A. Many of today's vehicles have a reminder system that is based on miles. Your reminder may have not been reset when your vehicle was service, and that is why the light came on. It's a simple procedure to reset the light. Look in your owner's manual, or take it back to the shop that changed your oil.

about him that made all the kids comfortable with him right away," Moran said. "He just blended right in. They'll never forget him, and neither will I."

By all accounts, Ellers had a gift for blending right in — easy-going, self-confident, loose, "a personality where kids just wanted to play with him," said Marsh.

He fit in easily with adults, too. "Coachable," Marsh and Moran both called him — listening, soaking up advice, putting it immediately into play, in Tri-Village Little League, all-stars competition, his new found challenge of basketball.

"I've seen kids with a lot of athletic ability who really flaunt it over others," Marsh recalled. "Russ really wasn't like that. He was very giving. He would pick up a ball and throw with anybody."

Striking, too, was Ellers' comfort in his own skin.

"He wasn't arrogant, but he had a sense that he could do whatever," said Moran. "He had a lot of self-confidence, but to tell the truth, was not that impressed with himself."

An A student who had just completed eighth-grade at Bethlehem Central Middle School, "Russ was one of my top kids," said Dave Scheid, his eighth-grade math teacher. "A pleasure to have in class. He was very observant, always listening — and he always had a smile on his face. And the other kids looked up to him."

He was fondly known among friends, in class and on the diamond, as "The Great One" — but Scheid recalled him laughing disarmingly at that.

"And he was a real cutup in the dugout," said Moran. "He helped the other kids stay loose. But when he went out on the field, he was very competitive, in a good way," never getting down on others who made errors, taking time to compliment extra effort.

Classmates and teammates gathered last week at Unionville Reformed Church. "It just blew me away, the size of the crowd," said Marsh. "At the church, it was standing room only."

Ellers' mother Dawn was moved "by the support and generosity of so many of Russell's friends and classmates, from our neighbors." She chalked it up to the influence of a kid "who made every day fun. He just knew what to say, how to make people feel good. He touched so many hearts and lives in his 14 short years with us."

Sudden death — not the sporting kind, but the kind that took Ellers out of the game — is a hard concept for 14-year-olds to master, said Moran. "There are questions we just don't have answers for," he said. "Why does this happen to a 14-year-old boy?"

"We tell the kids, take advantage of today. Don't put it off until tomorrow," Scheid said.

"When I see a kid that age, that bright, with that much talent, it's hard to accept," he said. "It's just heartbreaking. I find myself driving around and saying, it just can't be."

A young neighbor, writing to his mother, likened Ellers to a kite tethered to the earth.

"Now the kite string has been broken and his rainbow of colors is heading to the heavens," the letter stated. "I think Russell will do very well there. He is probably doing what he did when we first met him, holding out his hand and saying, 'Hi, my name is Russell, and I'm new in the neighborhood.'"

Church to host booth at flea market

Glenmont Community Church will host a heat relief station at the Glenmont firemen's flea market on July 29 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the firehouse on Glenmont Road.

Water, a place to sit and a simple children's craft will be offered. Geoff Purcell of The Archaeological Perspective will have a display and information on archeology opportunities for families.

For information, call Lynda Schoonbeek at 463-6806.

Sensing trouble

As their name implies, the sensors in today's vehicles function as sensing devices that provide the computer with information such as the chemical content of exhaust gases and speed rotation, among other data. Thus, sensors act as input devices for the computer. The coolant sensor serves a similar function to the carburetor choke. It enriches the mixture when cold and leans the mixture when hot. In the event that a coolant sensor goes bad, it can adversely affect the air-fuel ratio and ignition timing by not accurately informing the computer of the engine operating temperature. When performance problems crop up, the coolant sensor is one of the sensors the technician will look at as the possible culprit.

BETHLEHEM AUTO SERVICE features the latest technological equipment to help diagnose mechanical problems in their early stages. Our A.S.E. Certified Technicians continually upgrade their skills in auto maintenance and repair. A routine maintenance check includes inspection of the battery, brakes, all fluids, and tires. We feature a clean, comfortable waiting area. Shuttle service is available. Call or visit us for auto service with a personal touch.

We are located at 62 Hannay Lane, in Glenmont, off Rt. 9W behind Stone Ends. Business hours are Mon. - Fri., 7-6.

Hint: Today's vehicles have computer systems with self-diagnosis capability, meaning that the computer can scan or locate problems and inform the technician of specific malfunctions.
