Clark puts in early bid for top town post

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Voorheesville Mayor Ed Clark has announced that he will run for supervisor of New Scotland in November, hoping to succeed Martha Pofit.

Pofit last month said she will not seek re-election to a second term.

"Martha's done a terrific job, a tremendous job, of bringing the town many, many steps forward in unity and spirit," he said. "The things she was able to accomplish were extraordinary for a first-term supervisor, especially in her first year. My decision was motivated by my desire to keep it going, continue in the same direction."

What's more, Clark proposed a novel approach to pursuing that continuity. He called upon all political parties in the town to back his candidacy.

To underscore his point, he said, he withdrew his enrollment with the county Board of Elections as a registered Republican in order to stand as a nonpartisan independent.

"I've contacted the chairmen of both major parties," Clark said. "I got in both cases a very favorable response. I couldn't quantify it, but they didn't reject it out of hand."

Republican Chairman John Breeze said Friday that, "All my committee members have been polled today, and they have unanimously stood behind the candidacy of Ed Clark, and they are delighted to endorse him."

That is an unusually early step for a town party committee to take. April is generally the beginning of the candidate review process for local committees and May the earliest that a candidate is formally backed.

But Breeze, who took the reins of the town GOP only last year, said his committee has been continually looking for new candidates for office ever since the 1999 election that swept Pofit and a nearly all-Democratic ticket to town office.

"We have indeed spoken with a variety of people as potential candidates for the supervisor's position," he said. "And we had been focusing on Ed Clark anyway. When he indicated he was interested in doing that, our committee was very excited."

"We have great confidence in Ed," he added. "I personally have known him for — how many years? Our children went to kindergarten together, and they're 31 now."

Blackbirds return to states

By ROB JONAS

No. 23 is significant in Voorheesville's girls basketball history.

Three years ago, the player who wore "23," Jane Meade, led the Blackbirds to their only state Class C title.

Last Saturday, the player that took over the "23" from Meade, Katelyn Berger, pushed Voorheesville one step closer to its second state championship.

The senior guard scored 11 of her game-high 18 points in the second half to lead the Blackbirds to a 45-34 win against Seton Catholic of Plattsburgh (Section VII) in the regional finals at Hudson Valley Community College.

Berger's connection to Meade goes deeper than sharing the same jersey number. The two were teammates on the 1998 championship team, along with Brittany Burnham.

"This is the same feeling (as 1998), except that we're involved in it more," Berger said.

That experience proved to be invaluable to the Blackbirds (19-6) last Saturday. With their teammates struggling to fend off Seton Catholic, Berger and Burnham carried Voorheesville by scoring 20 of the team's 22 points in the second half.

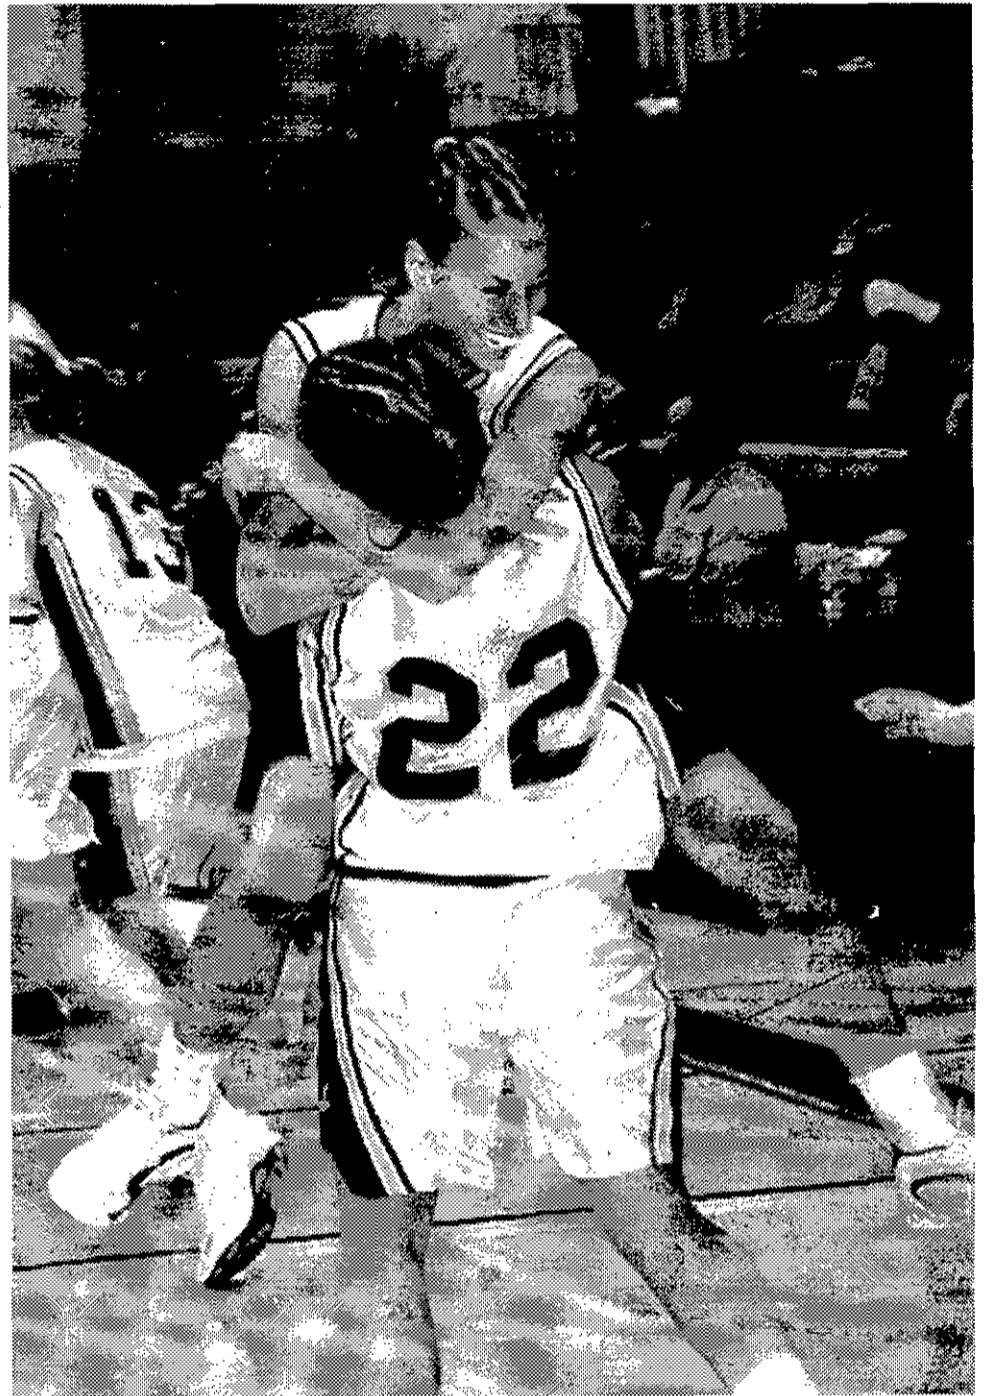

"They've been there, they've had that experience and they've worked real hard to come back here," Voorheesville coach Jon McClement said.

Voorheesville built a 23-12 halftime lead on the strength of center Annie Burch's inside play. The 6-foot-3-inch junior powered her way to 10 points against the smaller Knights of Seton Catholic.

"We knew we had to get Annie in because we knew they weren't as tall as the other teams we've played," Berger said.

Seton Catholic whittled the deficit to 31-25 early in the fourth quarter, but Berger drained a three-pointer to give Voorheesville a little breathing room. Burnham later hit a key jump shot, and Berger added a pair of free throws to make the score 40-27. The Knights never got closer than 10 points the rest of the game.

"Usually we look to Annie, especially with her height advantage," said Burnham, who scored all of her nine points in the second half. "But when she got shut down, she was able to kick it back out to us."

The win moves Voorheesville into Saturday's state semifinal against unbeaten Lansing (Section IV). The winner plays for the state title Sunday at HVCC.

Voorheesville secured its fifth trip to regionals last Wednesday with a 42-32 victory against Cambridge in the Class C-CC championship game at Adirondack Community College in Glens Falls.

Berger wasted little time in making her presence felt in her first game back from a sprained right ankle. She scored off a rebound for the first points of the game, on her way to a 14-point night.

"Just being on the floor was big to me," Berger said. "I missed it so much."

Bethlehem kids fall above state fold

By KATHERINE McCARTHY

The state Department of Education has issued its fifth annual state Report Cards, using data from tests students took during the 1999-00 school year.

The Bethlehem Central School District reported those results last year, and will issue the state's compiled data in a special newsletter later this month.

This year's report card is the first to implement the System of Accountability for Student Success (SASS), which sets minimum scores on standardized tests.

An index of 140 is the minimum standard for the 1999-00 results in math and English Language Arts.

All five of Bethlehem's elementary schools comfortably exceeded those minimums, with scores ranging from the middle school's math total SASS index of 169 to Slingerlands' math index of 197.

The total SASS index for ELA ranged from 174 at the middle school to 191 at Slingerlands.

"I'm pleased that once again, BC students scored well on the state tests. While the state tests don't measure everything Bethlehem is about, it's our responsibility to work to make sure our students succeed. While we have many areas of strength, we will keep a close eye on those areas that need improvement," said school Superintendent Les Loomis.

The Elementary Science Performance Evaluation Test (ESPET) that fourth-graders took last year was also included in the Report Card.

The State Designated Level, below which remediation must be provided, is

Cases adjudicated in Town Court

In Bethlehem Town Court on Tuesday, March 6, Mark H. DiNapoli, 27, of 566 South Clement Ave., Ravena, pleaded guilty to a DWI charge stemming from his Feb. 25 arrest.

Joseph Weekes Tyler, 17, of 13 Maple Ridge, Ballston Lake, arrested Feb. 19 for DWI, also pleaded guilty in Bethlehem Town Court to a reduced count of DWAI.

On Thursday, March 1, James J. Price, 31, of 7 Sunset Lane, East Berne, pleaded guilty to a DWI count lodged against him by Albany County deputies on Dec. 21.

Town Justice Kenneth Munnely ordered DiNapoli to pay a $500 fine and a state-mandated $95 surcharge. DiNapoli's license will also be revoked for six months.

As an offender under 21, his license was revoked for one year. He was also fined $300 with a $35 surcharge.

He also pleaded guilty to a traffic citation.

In New Scotland Town Court

Assessed a total of $625 in fines and surcharges on the two counts, he also had his license revoked by Town Justice Kenneth Connolly.

All three men were also ordered to face a victim impact panel and undergo a drinking-driver remediation program.

Delmar man pleads guilty to harassment charge

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

A Delmar man arrested in January pleaded guilty in Bethlehem Town Court last week to an harassment charge — but may still face federal felony charges.

On March 6 before Town Justice Kenneth Munnely, Kurt Kavoukian, 43, of 20 Royal Blvd. pleaded guilty to a single count of second degree harassment, and was sentenced to time served, a total of 59 days.

Arrested Jan. 6 in a joint raid at his home by Bethlehem and State Police and agents of the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF), he had been held in Albany County jail since his arrest.

Freed by Munnely on $10,000 bond, Kavoukian still faces federal felony counts stemming from the raid, alleging possession of firearms and ammunition, according to Bethlehem Detective John Cox, who participated in the investigation.

Kavoukian is listed on a state registry of individuals previously convicted of domestic violence-related offenses, and federal statutes bar such offenders from possessing weapons, several of which were seized in the raid.

No specific date for hearings on those charges has yet been made public.

Pending the outcome of those charges, Munnely let stand orders of protection for several individuals connected with Kavoukian, issued at his initial arraignment.

Police arrest Selkirk man for DWI

A Selkirk resident faces a charge of driving while intoxicated (DWI) following an incident in Glenmont shortly before midnight on Wednesday, March 7.

According to the police report, Officer Craig Sleurs spotted a vehicle, its motor still running but the driver asleep, parked on the southbound shoulder of Route 9W.

He awakened Carl Donald Olsen, 46, of 4 Edgewood Drive, Selkirk, and arrested him after conducting a field sobriety test. Olsen refused chemical tests, and was cited for that refusal, as well as seat belt and parking violations.

He was ordered to appear in Town Court on March 20.

BOU funds varied programs

By KATHERINE McCARTHY

Say "BOU" and most people think of the upcoming auction on March 23 at Bethlehem Central High School.

In fact, the auction is just the beginning, it's the grant money Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited dispenses that will affect the community for years to come.

Since 1995, BOU has awarded 68 grants, to aid such diverse things as mentoring programs and Ping-Pong clubs.

BOU's goal is to help kids make responsible choices, and to help adults help kids do just that. Through its grants, BOU has provided seed money to programs that might not otherwise have gotten started.

Members meet monthly and the dates are on school district calendar. A board member's phone number is also listed in the calendar. Grant applications are available at BOU meetings, or from board members. Vicary Thomas, Carol Dorfman and Ellen Kelly-Lind are the current grant committee members.

"We have a form that lets us know about the organization, the purpose of what they're applying for, how many kids will be affected by the grant, what their time frame is, and whether they're applying for money from other sources," said board member and auction coordinator Jane Lyman.

Grant amounts have ranged from $200 to the low thousands, she added. The Bethlehem Basketball Club (BBC) is one organization that traces its roots to a BOU grant.

"When we got going with things in 1990, 1991, there were only basketball clinics in town," said BBC founder Bruce Svare. "A few of us got together, and got advice from a lot of people ... We incorporated, pooled our resources and took a look at where we could get funding. BOU was with us all the way, and we couldn't have done what we did without them."

With BOU seed money, the fledgling BBC bought uniforms and basketballs, and was able to get insurance. In its first year, 250 kids joined. Today, the self-sufficient BBC has nearly 600 fifth- to eighth-grade players.

At Clarksville Elementary School, Principal Dave Ksanznak is using BOU grant money to fund the Clarksville Leadership Club, a program based on one he ran when he was a teacher at Glenmont Elementary.

Guest speakers will attend leadership club meetings, often guiding the kids in cooperative group activities. There will also be two Saturday morning sessions, where kids can use the ropes courses at the high school.

Some of the speakers will be local — like middle school physical education teacher Bob Salamone — and some are national, like Paul Hirto, who draws on his world travels to talk about the differences and similarities in people everywhere.

Some of the high school students from the Anti-Defamation League's "A World of Difference" program — which also receives BOU funding — will participate in the program.

When Ksanznak started the leadership club at Glenmont with guidance counselor MaryAlice Svare and colleagues Gail DeRosia and Felicia Bordick, they were looking for a program to develop leadership skills in students, as well as provide team-building opportunities and enhance communication skills.

"We were looking for ways to help students become more self-confident ... and to be more of a leader than a follower," Ksanznak said. "We also wanted to provide them with opportunities to work together and come to a decision together."

The most important outcome of the program, Ksanznak said, is that kids form connections, the lack of which has been named as one of the reasons for recent school violence.

"We see so often in the news, that students are being picked on and not making those connections. This gives kids the opportunity to make connections with adults, with each other, and to include people in groups," he said. "There's a real need for that in schools now."

Ksanznak will be one of the auctioneers at this year's BOU auction.

Many of the grants are designed in the hope that a sense of connection will lead to greater tolerance for different kinds of people. Some of the programs, like A World of Difference, which promotes tolerance and understanding, address it directly.

A recent program at the middle school gave seventh-graders a chance to see how tolerance can lead to heroism.

Author Hudson Talbot and Jaap Penraat, the subject of his book, Forging Freedom, spoke at a program called "Heroism during the Holocaust," a Bethlehem Networks Project effort funded by BOU.

In his book, Talbot tells how Penraat smuggled 400 Jews from Amsterdam, Holland, to safety during World War II.

Talbot and Penraat spoke for an hour, during which time, "you could have heard a pin drop," said Networks coordinator Mona Prenoveau.

Prenoveau works often with BOU and called the group a catalyst for change.

"BOU stands aside and lets people come up with their own ideas," she said. "Instead of saying 'You should,' they support and encourage, and promote community ideas."

BOU and Networks, along with the Rotary Club, have also been instrumental in a mentoring program that puts middle school kids in employment apprenticeships.

"After school is a vulnerable time," middle school guidance counselor Yvonne Doberman said. "In the mentoring program, kids are placed into job settings with positive adult role models. Kids have worked in places like School's Out, Mail Boxes Etc. and Past Perfect."

Twenty-five seventh- and eighth-graders are currently taking advantage of the mentoring program, and BOU has helped fund items that the students work toward.

BOU has also provided seed money to start both an after-school art club and a craft club.

It also supports student initiatives, such as the Ping-Pong club that high school students Alan Lewis and David Perlmutter started this fall. Sixty kids came to the first meeting, bearing out Lewis' sense that there are a lot of Ping-Pong players at the school.

"BOU is a great organization," Lewis said. "Everybody on the board was really nice."

V'ville sidewalk plan draws mixed reviews

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

A long-awaited plan for improvements in a key pedestrian loop in the village of Voorheesville, including proposed new sidewalks and expanded road shoulders, was laid out to mixed reviews at a public meeting last week.

Paul Bohl, an associate with planning consultants Sear-Brown, and village trustee Jack Stevens, who has shepherded the project for the village board, presented the proposed $400,000 sidewalk improvement project before a full house of about 30 at village hall on Thursday, March 8.

A final design plan is projected for board approval by April, with a target date to begin construction in July and conclude by November.

The proposal calls for creating a continuous pedestrian loop in which new sidewalks will be installed on the south shoulder of Prospect Street and the east shoulder of Altamont Road, connected by a widened pedestrian road shoulder along the east side of School Road.

The new sidewalks would link with existing ones on Maple and Voorheesville avenues and South one shoulder of the road:

"You're fudging on me, and you know it," he told Bohl.

Several expressed doubts about whether a widened shoulder would sufficiently improve safety for bicyclists en route to the library.

Others pointed out puddling spots at several points along the route, but Stevens and village Mayor Ed Clark said such issues would be addressed.

"We're not going to undertake this unless we're satisfied that the engineering design addresses the drainage problems," Clark said.

The most heated discussion centered on the plans for Prospect, mostly from those with property along the proposed sidewalk.

Resident Judy DeAngelis expressed her opposition, in view of how much the 11-foot right-of-way would encroach on her property.

"It's a 100-year-old house and it's only 19 feet from the road," she said. "We'll be sitting on the front porch shaking hands of people walking by. It's not what I want to do."

Bohl said privacy issues would be addressed through landscaping.

DeAngelis also raised questions about her front yard septic system, which might end up beneath the sidewalk.

"It sounds like this is pretty much a done deal," she said, which drew a response from Clark.

"It isn't a done deal until the board votes on it," he said.

Resident Michael Jarus raised "the same concern I voiced two years ago, and 20 years before that," about a depression in the road in front of 30 Prospect St.

Contractors for the village just last month completed the demolition of a house there that had posed safety concerns and blocked access for a sidewalk. Jarus called on the village to repair the road itself.

"There's still a curve there, there is still a dip, there is still a blind spot where a child on a red bicycle can be killed," he said.

Stevens said the estimated $220,000 for road repairs was beyond the village's reach, but Jarus said the village should spend the money.

"I don't care if it's in the grant or not, and correct the problem," he said. "I would be happy to have you raise my taxes if you would correct this."

The debate is unlikely to go away. The morning after the meeting, Jarus filed a Freedom of Information request with the village clerk seeking "any written estimates within the past 3 years from any paving or excavation companies" to justify the cost figure cited by Stevens.

Bohl said public comment on the plans, which will remain on display at village hall, will be accepted in writing in the coming weeks, and incorporated into the final plan to be presented to the village board later this spring.

We'll be sitting on the front porch shaking hands of people walking by. It's not what I want to do.

Judy DeAngelis

Main Street, which are slated for extensive repairs in 2003 by the county public works department.

The plan also calls for sidewalk improvements along Stonington Hill Road near the intersection of Maple and Voorheesville, and the installation of brick or striped crosswalks at several intersections.

Bohl cited planning studies by the village in 1993 and 1996 as the genesis of the sidewalk upgrade, whose objective is to improve safety for foot and bicycle traffic to and from the center of the village, the library on School Road and the elementary school at Maple and Altamont.

Eighty percent of the funding for the project would come from federal and state monies administered by the Capital District Transportation Improvement Program, and $80,000 from the village.

Bohl outlined several alternative plans for installation of 5-foot sidewalks along Prospect, but recommended one that would separate the sidewalk from the road by a 4-foot grass swale providing both drainage and distance from traffic.

A slightly narrower swale — would be put in place along Altamont, and new walkways on Stonington Hill would consist of a sidewalk and curb. Improvements on School Road would add 2 feet to the current 4-foot shoulder.

The mix of alternatives provoked questions.

School Road resident Frank Person was not convinced by the reasoning behind widening only

Green carnations evoke St. Patrick's Day memories

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

Beer and whiskey will be piled high, there will be a sale on corned beef, and boiling cabbage will stink up many a kitchen this week, as St. Patrick's Day falls on the day of the week guaranteed to make sure everyone celebrates it in style.

But it's the green carnations in all the supermarkets this week that will make it seem most like St. Patrick's Day to me.

When I was in grade school, my father brought us green carnation boutonnieres on St. Patrick's Day. In my memory, he did it every year, but I remember sixth grade most clearly, when I squeezed more than a week out of that flower.

It started pinned jauntily to the green dress I wore to school that day, balancing books in one arm while leaning forward so my coat wouldn't crush it. When it was finally too limp to wear any more,

COMMENTARY:

Mom's
Word

I tucked it into the rubber band that pulled my hair into a small pony tail. I was so proud, and felt so beautiful and fancy with my flower.

"Well, Kathy," Sister Andrew said, "you certainly are getting a lot of wear out of that flower."

Carnations and my father are tied together in another memory, when my boys, then 5 and 7, handed out programs at their aunt's wedding. They proudly showed off the boutonnieres pinned to their navy blazers. The next day, my father teased the boys that they had looked good, but not as good as their old grandpa.

"Yeah, but we had flowers," Christopher had quickly retorted. I've offered my boys boutonnieres on St. Patrick's Day, but they have politely refused, correctly assuming that flowers would be the quickest way to become permanently ostracized from boy society.

So green carnations will have to stay in my memory and on my mantle.

After hunting through my cupboard for the yellowed, typed recipe that Chris' grandmother brought with her from the Dingle peninsula in County Kerry around 1920, the house will be filled with the smell of Irish soda bread baking.

Her handwritten notations, "loaf or cake pan; butter or sour cream," keep the past with us, while the use of nonfat sour cream is a nod to nutritional advancements.

The batter for that soda bread gets so sticky that I usually work it with my hands, and fall into the kind of reverie that repetitious work allows.

When the children were tiny, I thought about the future as I made soda bread. I wondered if we would always live in New York City or move to Albany. I worried about where the boys would go to college, and how we would pay for it. I also considered chucking life in the States and returning to Ireland, the land of our ancestors.

Now, with the kids halfway to adulthood, there's as much looking back as forward while my hands work the batter. I think about some of the tough decisions I've had to make as a parent and wonder if they were the right ones.

I also like to think about the St. Patrick's Day weekend when Chris and I got engaged. We spent it singing in Irish bars in New York, having a party at his apartment and marching up Fifth Avenue in the pre-politicized parade.

Nana, Chris' other grandmother, and her husband had also gotten engaged on St. Patrick's Day weekend — adding even more importance to our big event. She passed away just before Thanksgiving last year, taking some of the living memory of the family's past with her.

Sadly, the anniversary of my brother-in-law's tragic death also falls around St. Patrick's Day, and the lack of his songs is still a hole in all of our hearts.

It's easy to be sad about the people who will not weigh in this year on whether or not it's worth enduring the odor to eat corned beef and cabbage, and whether bagpipes are beautifully haunting or sound like 10 pigs being slaughtered.

But we can find ways to keep them in our hearts and be happy on St. Patrick's Day.

Our shared engagement date keeps Nana close to us, and the first bite of the freshly baked soda bread makes us all glad that Grandma Mary got on that boat in Cobh, County Cork.

Cormac has opted for a trip to Dunkin' Donuts to remember the grandfather whose visits meant jelly doughnuts, and perhaps we will eat "gazookta dogs" — hot dogs with cheese melted in them — like Chris' brother Timmy made when he babysat.

We will play Irish music all day, the yearning songs of the Irish soul, the rebel songs of the Irish spirit, and the songs that remind us "we're on the one road, sharing the one load, we're together now who cares ..."

When I pass the green carnations on the mantle, I will close my eyes, sniff, and say a prayer of thanks to the people who've gone on ahead of us, and a prayer of hope for the rest of us gathered together on this day.

Physically Speaking

by Nick Valenze, P.T.

RUNNER'S KNEE

Runner's knee is caused by a misalignment of the kneecap in its groove. This makes the kneecap rub on the side of the groove in which it normally slides, causing both the cartilage on the side of the groove and the cartilage on the back of the kneecap to wear out. As a result, there is pain around the back of the kneecap after running. Sometimes the actual culprit of this problem is the foot. An inward roll of the foot and ankle causes the shinbone to rotate to the inside, which turns the knee to the inside. Treatment involves using an orthotic device to prevent excessive pronation, as well as exercises to strengthen the inner side of the quadriceps muscle.

If you tend to pronate inwardly, don't wait for cartilage damage to develop -- take preventative action by asking your physician for a referral our physical therapy practice, located in spacious, state-of-the-art facilities. Our licensed physical therapists can show you how to avoid injury, as well as help you to achieve accelerated healing and improved performance. Our services also include ultra sound and massage. To learn more, please call our center at the number listed below. Evening treatment hours available.

P.S. Runner's knee also makes it painful to sit for long periods of time with the knee bent.

"For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" (Mark 8:36).

Be sure you are saved. If you lose your soul, you miss Heaven and lose all. Please! Let God save you this very moment.

God's power will save you, keep you saved, and enable you to live a victorious Christian life. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, Who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it" (1 Corinthians 10:13).

Do not trust your feelings. They change. Stand on God's promises. They never change. After you are saved, there are three things to practice daily for spiritual growth: Pray — you talk to God. Read your Bible — God talks to you. Witness — you talk for God.

You should be baptized in obedience to the Lord Jesus Christ as a public testimony of your salvation, and then unite with a Bible-believing church without delay. "Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord..." (2 Timothy 1:8).

"Whosoever therefore shall confess [testify of] Me before men, him will I confess also before My Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 10:32). Ford Porter

GOD'S SIMPLE PLAN OF SALVATION

My Friend: I am asking you the most important question of life. Your joy or your sorrow for all eternity depends upon your answer. The question is: Are you saved? It is not a question of how good you are, nor if you are a church member, but are you saved? Are you sure you will go to Heaven when you die?

God says in order to go to Heaven, you must be born again. In John 3:7, Jesus said to Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again."

In the Bible God gives us the plan of how to be born again which means to be saved. His plan is simple! You can be saved today. How?

First, my friend, you must realize you are a sinner. "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

Because you are a sinner, you are condemned to death. "For the wages [payment] of sin is death" (Romans 6:23). This includes eternal separation from God in Hell.

"... it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment" (Hebrews 9:27).

But God loved you so much He gave His only begotten Son, Jesus, to bear your sin and die in your place. "... He hath made Him [Jesus, Who knew no sin] to be sin for us ... that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him" (2 Corinthians 5:21).

Jesus had to shed His blood and die. "For the life of the flesh is in the blood" (Leviticus 17:11).

"... without shedding of blood is no remission [pardon]" (Hebrews 9:22).

"...God commandeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

Although we cannot understand how, God said my sins and your sins were laid upon Jesus and He died in our place. He became our substitute. It is true. God cannot lie.

My friend, "God ... commandeth all men everywhere to repent" (Acts 17:30). This repentance is a change of mind that agrees with God that one is a sinner, and also agrees with what Jesus did for us on the Cross.

In Acts 16:30-31, the Philippian jailer asked Paul and Silas: "... 'Sirs, what must I do to be saved?' And they said, 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved'"

Simply believe on Him as the one who bore your sin, died in your place, was buried, and whom God resurrected. His resurrection powerfully assures that the believer can claim everlasting life when Jesus is received as Savior.

"But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name" (John 1:12).

"For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Romans 10:13).

Whosoever includes you. Shall be saved means not maybe, nor can, but shall be saved.

Surely, you realize you are a sinner. Right now, wherever you are, repenting, lift your heart to God in prayer.

In Luke 18:13, the sinner prayed: "God be merciful to me a sinner." Just pray: "Oh, God, I know I am a sinner. I believe Jesus was my substitute when He died on the Cross. I believe His shed blood, death, burial, and resurrection were for me. I now receive Him as my Savior. I thank You for the forgiveness of my sins, the gift of salvation and everlasting life, because of Your merciful grace. Amen."

Just take God at His word and claim His salvation by faith. Believe, and you will be saved. No church, no lodge, no good works can save you. Remember, God does the saving. All of it!

God's simple plan of salvation is: You are a sinner. Therefore, unless you believe on Jesus Who died in your place, you will spend eternity in Hell. If you believe on Him as your crucified, buried, and risen Savior, you receive forgiveness for all of your sins and His gift of eternal salvation by faith.

You say, "Surely, it cannot be that simple." Yes, that simple! It is scriptural. It is God's plan. My friend, believe on Jesus and receive Him as Savior today.

If His plan is not perfectly clear, read this tract over and over, without laying it down until you understand it. Your soul is worth more than all the world.

Matters of Opinion

Go Blackbirds

The Voorheesville girls basketball team is on its way to the state championship games at Hudson Valley Community College in Troy this Saturday and Sunday.

The Blackbirds and their coach, Jon McClement, are on their way to the prestigious contest for the second time in four years, which is quite an accomplishment.

We cheer on the Blackbirds in their quest for the state title, but know they are champs, no matter what the outcome of the games over the weekend.

The Blackbirds are a fine example to up and coming young women, who look to be taken as seriously as their male counterparts in high school and college.

The Blackbirds have proven their mettle as athletes through their talent and teamwork.

We salute them.

BOU's bounty

Most Bethlehem residents are aware of the BOU annual auction, this year set for March 23 at Bethlehem Central High School, but fewer are probably cognizant of just how far the organization reaches out to the youth of the community.

Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited supports a host of programs and activities, which are highlighted in Kathy McCarthy's Page 3 story this week.

Many of these programs, funded by grants from BOU, are designed to help kids become more connected to their community, offering them a chance to participate in any number of worthwhile activities, that would not be available without BOU's support.

To sweeten the pot, BOU doesn't cost taxpayers one red cent. It's a completely volunteer organization, that raises money at its once a year auction.

St. Patrick's Day

Even if you're not Irish, St. Patrick's Day is a wonderful mid-March celebration of the wearin' o' the green.

Parades in Albany in Troy on Saturday will highlight the festivities, and word has it Sen. Hillary O'Clinton might join the Albany marchers, when they step off at 2 p.m. at Central Avenue and Quail Street.

And countless restaurants will feature the quintessential St. Patrick's Day meal — corned beef and cabbage, with many establishments offering a bonus of live Irish music.

We hope the weather cooperates for the marchers and onlookers, and wish everyone a happy St. Patrick's Day.

Let's hope the day is a true harbinger of spring this year.

Intolerance then, intolerance now

By PETER HANSON

The writer, a former Spotlight reporter, is arts editor of the Albany weekly Metro-land.

I'm right, but I wish I was wrong.

During the last couple of years, I've immersed myself in lore and legend about the McCarthy era, that bleak period in the late 1940s and early 1950s during which Americans were persecuted for sympathizing or participating with Communists.

More specifically, I've studied the circumstances surrounding screenwriter Dalton Trumbo's citation for contempt of Congress in 1947, after he refused to tell a Congressional committee whether he was or had been a member of the Communist Party.

I liked Trumbo's work on films such as Roman Holiday and Spartacus — and admired the courageous stand he took in front of Congress — so I wrote a book about his screenwriting career.

Dalton Trumbo, Hollywood Rebel was just published, and I'll introduce it to the Capital District on Thursday, March 15, with a reading at the New York State Museum.

While writing the book, I worried about how to help contemporary readers relate to the experiences of a man who was born in 1905 and died in 1976.

I needn't have worried. Throughout the last national election cycle, politicians including Democratic vice presidential nominee Joseph Lieberman cited violence in movies and television as a reflection of, and contributor to, moral decay.

And even more recently, the press frenzy surrounding misogynistic rapper Eminem's nomination for several major Grammy awards raised questions about what is and isn't appropriate in entertainment produced for mass consumption.

Point of View

While neither Lieberman's campaign-trail bluster nor the punditry about Eminem's Grammy nominations called for entertainers to be criminally punished for their art, the tone of the discourse was eerily familiar.

More than 50 years after Trumbo and his peers were persecuted for their politics, Hollywood and Eminem were put on trial in the court of public opinion for disseminating ideas that some people find objectionable.

In 1947, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, R-N.J., chaired the House Un-American Activities Committee, a primarily right-wing body with the declared purpose of uncovering Communists engaged in subversive activities.

The committee's true purpose, many scholars believe, was to use anti-Communist paranoia to stigmatize the American left. So liberals of many different stripes, including many non-Communists, were portrayed as dangerous radicals.

In October 1947, the committee heard the testimony of the Hollywood Ten, a group of writers and directors including Trumbo. Collectively and individually, the Ten had been involved in labor organizing, civil-rights activism and other left-wing, but legal, activities.

Because the Ten were high-profile movie people, stars including Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall traveled to Washington, D.C., to show support during the Ten's testimony.

The committee's cynical formula for attracting media coverage (paranoia plus celebrity equals press attention) is the same employed by contemporary politicians who pick on entertainers.

Yet the very idea of picking on entertainers is an insult to the First Amendment, which grants artists the right to speak their minds freely. It is the responsibility and privilege of citizens in a democratic society to pick and choose for themselves among the myriad entertainment options available — and it is absolutely not the domain of politicians to restrict those options.

But because criticizing show-biz types is an easy way to get headlines, politicians continue to put their own self-aggrandizement ahead of the First Amendment.

The media, in turn, fan the flames of this conflict, because conflicts like this sell papers and earn TV ratings.

Eminem probably is laughing all the way to the bank, because even bad press seems to spur record sales. Chances are, though, that he wouldn't laugh if his persecutors succeeded in their apparent aim of restricting his right to free speech. It certainly wasn't a laughing matter when Dalton Trumbo became the center of a Hollywood-meetspolitics controversy back in 1947.

After his run-in with Congress, Trumbo was fired by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, then blacklisted for 13 years, during which no studio would buy a script with his name on it.

He got around the blacklist by writing under pseudonyms and friends' names, and even earned two Oscars for work he did anonymously. Trumbo eventually emerged from the underground — thanks to director Otto Preminger and producer-star Kirk Douglas, who boldly put Trumbo's name back onto the screen for Exodus and Spartacus, respectively — and he spent the last years of his career working openly on major projects.

But there was no reason for him to suffer the humiliation and hardships of blacklisting. He wasn't a spy selling secrets to the Soviets or a revolutionary plotting to overthrow the government. He was a socially conscious artist who said and wrote things that angered political opportunists on the Republican right.

In Dalton Trumbo, Hollywood Rebel, I analyze the scores of films on which Trumbo worked as a screenwriter — a body of work that also includes Kitty Foyle, Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo and Papillon — and examine the progressive themes in these films. The point I try to make is that even after a Congressional committee tried to silence him, Trumbo stuck to his guns.

Roman Holiday, released in 1953, is the story of a willful princess (Audrey Hepburn) who shirks her duty to enjoy a carefree adventure, then accepts her responsibility to her country and resumes her duty. Spartacus, released in 1960, chronicles how an army of slaves led a grass-roots revolt against the oppressive Roman Empire.

The list goes on. Throughout his career, Trumbo — also the author of the seminal antiwar novel Johnny Got His Gun — used his art to express his beliefs.

Trumbo gave as good as he got by surviving the blacklist, but he probably would be dismayed to realize that half a century after he was persecuted because of ideology, entertainers are still being taken to task for their art.

I wrote my book in part because of the adage that those who do not remember the past are forced to repeat it — I wanted to help keep the memory of the blacklist alive. I wrote my book in part because I believed that the kind of persecution Trumbo suffered is as much a part of our present as it is part of our past.

And as I look at how politicians and the media are exploiting Eminem and other entertainers — once again inciting paranoia and intolerance — I realize that I was right about the tenor of these times.

But I wish I was wrong.

Peter Hanson will read from and sign copies of Dalton Trumbo, Hollywood Rebel at 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 15, at the New York State Museum Theater in the Empire State Plaza. Admission is free; call 473-8037 for information.

Fire chief praises cave rescue effort

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the Onesquethaw Volunteer Fire Co., I would like to publicly express our thanks and admiration to all of the people, emergency services agencies and businesses that took part in the recovery operation of Robert Svensson from the Clarksville Cave.

Although this was a tragic event, the willingness to do whatever task was needed and the professionalism of the emergency responders to this incident was exemplary. There were at least 38 agencies and businesses involved in the operation, and they all worked together as a team.

The lines between fire, EMS, police and others were quickly erased as each did whatever was asked to reach a common goal.

Somehow a simple thank you does not seem to be nearly enough to say to these people who gave so much of themselves for the good of others. And yet, near the conclusion of the operation nearly everyone involved came to me to say thank you for calling them and allowing them the opportunity to help.

I have never been more proud to call myself a firefighter and be a member of the emergency services community than I am right now. Even after 28 years in fire service, the men and women I have the privilege to serve with in my own fire company as well as those of neighboring fire companies and EMS agencies continue to amaze me with their willingness and ability to handle any situation, with the highest degree of professionalism and dedication.

Resident cites parking in opposing district

Editor, The Spotlight:

I was at the Feb. 14 town board meeting, and I spoke against the Four Corners overlay district because of lack of parking.

The head in the sand attitude of the residents was seen when the library proposal went down.

We need to improve the business climate by having the Bethlehem chamber join other chambers in the Capital District and become part of the Tech Valley, and not by putting a clock and gazebo at the Four Corners.

Fifteen years ago, there was a clock where Cohoes Savings Bank is now and another clock where Boston Market is, and the town had the clocks taken down.

Now we are going to have a big one at the Four Corners for kids to damage.

THERE'S A TON OF STUFF THE EPA ISN'T TELLING YOU ABOUT.

The EPA claims that, after dredging, only 100 lbs. of PCBs will be resuspended in the Hudson. But a study released last December by the U.S. Geological Survey of the Fox River, where the most advanced dredging technology was used, shows that 22 times that amount could be resuspended.

This means when the EPA is finished dredging the riverbed, over a ton of PCBs could end up back in the Hudson. Is that what they call a solution to the PCB problem?

You have until April 17th to tell the EPA you oppose dredging.

Clark

In particular, he said, Republicans support "more efficient government" and therefore endorse the joint effort undertaken over the past year by Pofit and Clark to reduce overlapping services between village and town and consolidate such functions as the tax assessor's office.

He also said the committee supports the nonpartisan approach both have taken to the long-range planning process in the town.

Town Democratic Chairman, Mike Mackey, took a more cautious stance on the prospect of endorsing Clark. It would be, to his recollection, a first.

"I don't recall there ever having been a cross-endorsement, with both major parties endorsing the same candidate per se," he said. "There have been situations where Democrats haven't run a candidate against Republican incumbents, and vice-versa."

Mackey said a candidate review committee would be formed "within the next two to three weeks to set up interviews" with potential candidates for all town offices, and indicated that he has already been approached by several people about running for supervisor.

"All options remain open, and (Clark) is certainly one," he said.

Clark said he has also approached the local leadership of both the Independence and Conservative parties for their backing as well; neither has a New Scotland committee.

Efforts to reach Paul Caputo, who chairs the Guilderland committee that oversees New Scotland endorsements, were not successful.

County Conservative Chairman Richard Stack said: "I told him (Clark) to forward me a bio, and he'll have to answer as much of our standard candidate's questionnaire as he wishes to."

"I still haven't had a chance to talk to my committee at all," he added. "We try to do our candidate interviews in early May, so candidates don't have to carry petitions around for too long."

Clark, a 16-year veteran as village mayor, underscored his desire to continue along the path toward long-range planning and streamlining of town government launched by Pofit.

"Let it grow a little, take root," he said. "I think Martha's leaving a tremendous legacy. ... A lot of things were just waiting to happen in this town. She created the right atmosphere for a lot of progress to be made, and I don't want to lose that."

It is not the first time he has considered running for the office.

"I did not see it being possible, so I didn't want to give up being mayor to go after a new style of government. The key to our success in village government is nonpartisanship, avoiding the divisive partisanship I saw in town government," Clark said.

Pofit, he said, has managed to achieve it at the town level, and "I wanted to present an opportunity for the parties to do it in a nonpartisan manner, rather than wait for a fight."

But he said he will run with or without unified support.

For her part, Pofit was reluctant to endorse Clark outright at this early stage.

"I'm supportive of the principles represented by taking a bipartisan approach to government," she said. "I offer my support to those who wish to move this agenda forward. ... The village and town are continuing to collaborate on a number of projects."

With the GOP decision to back Clark's campaign, Breeze said, "We're delighted to have the top of the ticket in place so early."

Mackey, indicated last month that all of his party's town incumbents up for re-election this year — town board member Scott Houghtaling, Highway Superintendent Darrell Duncan, Town Clerk Diane Deschenes, and Town Justice Thomas Dolin — have indicated their intention to run.

Last week, Breeze confirmed that the sole GOP incumbent on the town board, Andrea Gleason, "has given us indication of her intention to seek re-election, and we are supportive of Andrea."

"We'll be calling a committee meeting in the next couple of weeks" to begin assembling the rest of the slate," he said.

As for her stance in the coming electoral season, Pofit said, "All of my energy, while others are campaigning, will be spent governing."

set at 30, and the district's mean score was 39, with 49 being the highest possible score.

Thirty-eight of the 345 fourth-graders did not meet the standard, a figure comparable to similar schools.

The high school data reports the status as of June 1999 on students who started ninth grade in 1996 and 1997.

More than 95 percent of students who must pass the English and math Regents to graduate had done so after three years of high school. Those who started ninth grade in 1997 and have not yet passed the Regents still have this year to take them.

"Our key goal is to make sure that the students who need to pass the English and Math 1 Regents exams do so. We're right on track to get that done. We don't want to see a single student fail to graduate because they haven't passed a Regents exam. At the same time, we're focused on seeing students pass with distinction, which is 85 or above," Loomis said.

"We also want to keep looking at fourth- and eighth-graders to see a maximum percentage of them score in the top categories, 3 and 4," he added.

At the secondary level, the SASS index's minimum standard for the 1999-00 Report Card was 90. In both English and math, BC's index was 100, indicating that all students had met the requirements.

DeMeo takes baseball position

By ROB JONAS

The Bethlehem varsity baseball team belongs to John DeMeo now.

The long-time assistant coach was chosen to manage the Eagles this year after Jesse Braverman left the program. It is DeMeo's first head coaching job at the varsity level.

"I had known some of the kids through some of the other sports I've coached," said DeMeo, who has also been an assistant with the football and wrestling teams at Bethlehem. "So, that made (the transition) easier."

Braverman's departure came after the veteran manager challenged the school board over a Suburban Council rule that prohibits varsity coaches from having teams made up of more than 50 percent of their school's athletes outside of the high school season. Braverman, who also coaches a Mickey Mantle team in the town, recently took a new position as an assistant varsity baseball coach at the collegiate level at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

DeMeo

"I didn't look at (the situation) as his misfortune as much as I looked at it as being an opportunity for me," DeMeo said.

DeMeo said his main focus is on working with the players, rather than dwelling on Braverman's legacy.

"I'm not even trying to put that in my mind," DeMeo said. "It's (the players') season, and I'm going to try to assist them to reach their potential."

The biggest obstacle DeMeo has had to face so far is the weather. Last week's snowstorm cancelled the first two days of tryouts, and it has pushed back DeMeo's goal of getting the players outside to practice.

"We'll shoot for (going outside) in two to two-and-a-half weeks," DeMeo said. "Mother Nature has to help us out with that, though."

From the limited amount of time he has seen his team, DeMeo is optimistic about his first varsity season.

"This is a hard-working group of athletes," DeMeo said.

Blackbirds

Everything came back to me once that went in."

Berger's bucket was one of the few that went in for either team in the first half. After scoring six points in the first three minutes, Voorheesville tried in vain to get something to drop until Baron hit an inside shot at the buzzer to make the score 8-4.

Cambridge had its own issues. The Indians were forced into numerous turnovers and missed shots in the first quarter by an aggressive Blackbird defense. Only four free throws — two each by Toni Dearstyne and Karibeth Mohan — prevented Cambridge from being held scoreless.

The two teams continued to struggle from the field until the final two minutes of the second quarter. Burnham launched a three-pointer to give Voorheesville a 19-11 lead. Then, a long jump shot by Baron and a driving layup from Berger increased the advantage to 12 points at halftime.

The only Blackbird having trouble getting anything going in the first half was Burch. Despite having a 5-inch height advantage over Cambridge's tallest player, Burch was hurried in her shot delivery and missed several inside shots.

Burch's fortunes changed in the second half. She led off the third quarter with a short shot in the lane and added six more points in the period to help Voorheesville expand its lead to 33-20.

"I don't know what was wrong," Burch said. "It took me so long to get into it. But once I got into it, everything was fine."

Cambridge made things interesting in the fourth quarter by cutting Voorheesville's lead to nine points, but Berger nailed a three-pointer and added a jump shot to give the Blackbirds all the breathing room they desired at 42-28.

Burch bounced back from her scoreless first half to contribute 10 points, and Baron chipped in eight points off the bench for Voorheesville. Burch also had 18 rebounds, nearly half of which were at the offensive end.

Brookins earns win for Siena tennis

Bethlehem Central High School graduate Betsy Brookins earned her first singles victory for the Siena College women's tennis team last Tuesday in the Lady Saints' 6-3 loss to St. Bonaventure in Winter Park, Fla.

Brookins came from behind to defeat Michelle Kearney 1-6, 7-5, 10-5 at third singles for Siena.

It was the only singles victory for the Lady Saints, who dropped their opening match to Providence College 9-0 last Monday.

MacMillan snags indoor track title

Bethlehem Central High School graduate Andy MacMillan won the 800-meter race at last month's New York State Collegiate Track Conference Championship meet.

MacMillan, a sophomore on the University of Rochester's men's indoor track and field team, finished with a winning time of 1:58.2. He was one of three Yellowjackets to earn individual titles at the meet.

Two more Bethlehem graduates placed at the NYSCTC meet for the University of Rochester. Alex Voetsch finished eighth in the 1,000-meter run with a time of 2:38.56, while Scott Rhodes was 11th in the 500-meter dash with a time of 1:09.52.

RPI names Suker new softball coach

Voorheesville resident Richard Suker has been named the new softball coach at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Suker has been involved in local softball teams the last 17 years. A board member of the Adirondack Ice, he founded the Capital District Lightning in 1994 and coached them to the American Softball Association national tournament.

Suker takes over for Tara Quinn, who led RPI to its first NCAA Tournament appearance last season.

AUTO FACTS

COLLISION REPAIR PART SAFETY

The question has been raised whether vehicle cosmetic repair parts (fenders, door skins, etc.) from aftermarket suppliers are as safe as those from original-equipment manufacturers. The fact is that the source of the parts is irrelevant to safety because the parts themselves, with the possible exception of the hood, serve no safety function. To demonstrate, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety tested a vehicle in which the front fenders, door skins, and front bumper cover were removed. The original-equipment hood was replaced with a certified hood from an aftermarket supplier. Crash test results were then compared with a similar vehicle with its original-equipment parts intact. Both performed with distinction in 40 mph frontal offset impacts.

Vehicle cosmetic repair parts such as fenders and doors do not serve any safety function. March is National Collision Awareness Month. BETHLEHEM AUTO SERVICE encourages readers to wear seatbelts, observe speed limits, and use cellular phones responsibly. A well-maintained vehicle reduces the risk of break downs and accidents. When you bring your vehicle to us, an A.S.E. Certified Technician will inspect your vehicle's brakes, battery, and tires. Call us at 426-8414, or visit us at 62 Hannay Lane in Glenmont off Rt 9W behind Stone Ends. Business hours are Mon. - Fri., 7-6.

P.S. The quality of many aftermarket crash parts used for auto repairs is evaluated by the Certified Automotive Parts Association (CAPA).

Transplant technique offers hope for men who lose hair

Elton John covered his up. Kojak made money off his. Julius Caesar, it was said, grew his longer in the back and combed it all forward.

From rock stars to movie stars, and from famous historical figures to the average man on the street, baldness has long been a part of the aging process for males.

According to Johns Hopkins University, hair loss affects an estimated 40 million men in the United States.

For these individuals, premature baldness is caused by a combination of aging, a change in hormones and a family history of baldness.

As a rule, the earlier hair loss begins, the more severe the baldness will become.

But male hair loss, including the most common male pattern balding, doesn't have to be a demoralizing experience. Although we may never again have the thick locks we once enjoyed as teen-agers, there are options available to restore hair growth.

The popular over-the-counter hair growth stimulant, Rogaine, is one option which has enabled thousands of men to experience a regrowth of their hair, providing that it is used consistently.

Hoffmans hosting diabetes fund-raiser

Hoffman Car Wash & Jiffy Lube will be the prime sponsor of a golf outing to benefit Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF). The event will be held on Monday, June 4, at Schuyler Meadows Country Club in Loudonville.

"The Hoffman Family is pleased to play a role in this important community event. Fighting diabetes is something that is close to our hearts," said Tom Hoffman Jr., president of Hoffman Development Corp.

Diabetes affects more than 16 million people in the United States.

A chronic debilitating disease affecting every organ system, diabetes is one of the leading causes of kidney failure, blindness, non-traumatic amputations, nerve damage, heart attack and stroke.

JDRF is one of the nation's most cost-effective charities, providing at least 85 cents of every donated dollar to research and education.

For information on juvenile diabetes or the golf event, call Juvenile Diabetes Foundation of Northeast New York at 477-CURE.

There's also finasteride, better known as Propecia. The pill, taken daily, stimulates hair regrowth by altering male hormones.

However, for people who want a permanent solution, surgery remains the best answer, according to Dr. Douglas Hargrave, a board-certified plastic surgeon at The Plastic Surgery Group, a practice with offices in Albany, Schodack and Troy.

Hargrave said follicular unit hair transplanting, the surgical procedure he performs, has enabled numerous patients to regain a natural look using their existing hair.

"Hair grows naturally in clusters of one, two, three, and some times four follicular hair units," explained Hargrave, who has performed many of the six-hour procedures.

"The most effective hair transplant replicates nature by relocating these naturally occurring hair units from the donor area to the recipient site (balding area) one hair unit at a time."

During the procedure, which is performed in an office chair under local anesthesia, hair follicles are removed individually from the back of the head, a location that rarely experiences hair loss.

In order to remove the follicles from the scalp without damaging them, a donor tissue — approximately 8 centimeters by 3 centimeters — must be removed in one piece, Hargrave said.

This "single-strip harvesting" technique is an essential component of the surgical procedure, as it not only preserves the follicular units, but also prevents damage to the individual hair follicles.

The piece of scalp is then dissected into individual hair follicle units using high powered microscopes to avoid damage.

"Using stereo-microscopic dissection we're able to cut the skin into thousands of pieces," he said, explaining that anywhere from 1,500 to 2,000 hairs can be transplanted in this fashion. "Strips are cut so that the hair follicles are grouped from one to six hairs per piece of skin."

After the new hair line has been determined, new hair follicle holes are created using a needle.

The creation of the recipient sites is an important part of the procedure, Hargrave noted, as it determines much of the aesthetic look, such as the angle at which the new hair grows and the distribution and density of the grafts.

It also requires considerable artistic knowledge and surgical skill.

"Placing is the longest part of the procedure," he continued. "The placement process is exacting and during this time patients need to keep their heads relatively still. Watching TV, looking at movies or even sleeping can make the time go quickly."

But Hargrave said that, for most patients, the lengthy surgery is well worth the wait.

"When performed by a skilled surgical team, this procedure can recreate the natural hairline and frame the face," he said.

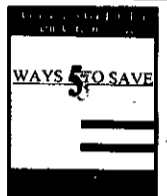

"The results from follicular unit hair transplants are long lasting and completely natural in appearance," he said.

And most men experiencing hair loss would gladly settle for that.

Heart healthy in the "click" of time

It's time to get serious about matters of the heart and reducing your risk for heart disease.

Heart attack and stroke are the No. 1 and No. 3 causes of death in the United States. By making changes to your lifestyle, you can lower your risk of heart attack and stroke.

The American Heart Association's new One Of A Kind personalized health management program at www.onelife.americanheart.org can help by providing individually personalized information, support and motivation.

"This free, state-of-the-art, Web-based program acts like your own personal techno-trainer by informing, motivating and supporting you every step of the way as you work to change unhealthy behaviors that put you at risk for heart attack and stroke," said Dr. Rose Marie Robertson, American Heart Association president.

Users have unlimited, free access via a completely confidential, and informational site (www.onelife.americanheart.org).

"It's different from other programs on the Internet because it targets the risk factors for cardiovascular disease in the context of health conditions, personal preferences and readiness to change expressed by the individual user," Robertson said.

This program helps you:

- Live smoke-free. If you smoke, take steps to quit. Talk to your doctor or nurse about medication, patches and gums that can help, as well as support groups.

- Get moving. Increase your physical activity. Strive for a total of 30 minutes, three to four times a week. Walk, ride a bike, garden, dance, use the stairs — it all counts.

- Eat healthier. Choose foods low in saturated fat, cholesterol and salt. Eat more fruits and vegetables. Don't skip meals. Limit your alcohol consumption to no more than two drinks per day.

- Control your blood pressure and cholesterol by following your doctor's recommendations.

For information on heart disease and stroke, visit www.americanheart.org.

Healthy pregnancy tips

Pregnancy can be one of the most exciting times in a woman's life, but it can also be stressful.

Being pregnant raises various concerns regarding exercise, nutrition and hygiene.

The following tips will help ensure that your pregnancy is healthy and safe:

When you are pregnant your immune system changes, leaving you more susceptible to diseases.

Washing your hands often with soap and water and drying them with a disposable paper towel is the most effective way of avoiding a wide range of illness.

Some foods may be harmful to pregnant mothers and their babies. Talk to your doctor.

Smoking and drinking alcohol are common causes of harm to the fetus. Drink caffeine in moderation.

Five or more cups of coffee a day may double your risk of miscarriage.

Moderate exercise is important, but be sure to see your doctor before you begin any exercise regimen.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

Dr. Thomas H. Abele, D.M.D. Dr. Geoffrey B. Edmunds, D.D.S.

BITING YOUR CHEEK AT NIGHT

If you've noticed that you sometimes bite your cheek at night while you're sleeping, this may indicate a combination of problems, such as tension, irregularities in teeth surfaces, or improperly aligned teeth. Some people express tension by clenching or grinding their teeth, either while awake or unconsciously when they're asleep. When the lower teeth are rubbed against the upper teeth this is called bruxism. If you grind your teeth from side to side this may result in a bite or damage to your cheek or lips.

You may be able to relieve the emotional aspects of the problem by trying to eliminate whatever is causing the tension. The dental aspects can be helped by your dentist. For instance, he can check the relationship of your bite to see if there are any irregularities in your teeth that are causing problems. He may suggest that you wear a Hawley-type appliance or a night guard to help break the bruxing habit. This will also give him another way of checking your bite to find out what dental problems should be corrected.

A VERY GOOD OUTLOOK

According to a federal report entitled "Older Americans 2000: Key Indicators of Well-Being," older Americans are, on average, living longer, healthier, and more prosperous lives. Among the report's findings is the good news that those aged sixty-five years today can expect to live another 18 years. Beyond that, median net worth for households headed by older individuals increased about 70% from 1984 to 1999, while poverty declined from 35% of all older persons in 1959 to 11% in 1998. Seventy-two percent of older Americans also consider themselves to be in good, very good, or excellent health. The percent of older Americans who were high-school graduates increased from 18% in 1950 to 67% in 1998.

Keeping a positive outlook is one way you can have an impact on how well you live, regardless of how long you live. At Good Samaritan Lutheran Health Care Center, 125 Rockefeller Road, we know what a difference attitude can make, which is why you'll find our staff offers warmth and welcome to our residents. Disney favorites glide into Pepsi Arena

By DONNA J. BELL

Start humming because Disney on Ice is back — this time with favorite moments from your families best-loved Disney productions — “The Little Mermaid,” “101 Dalmatians,” “The Jungle Book” and “Cinderella.”

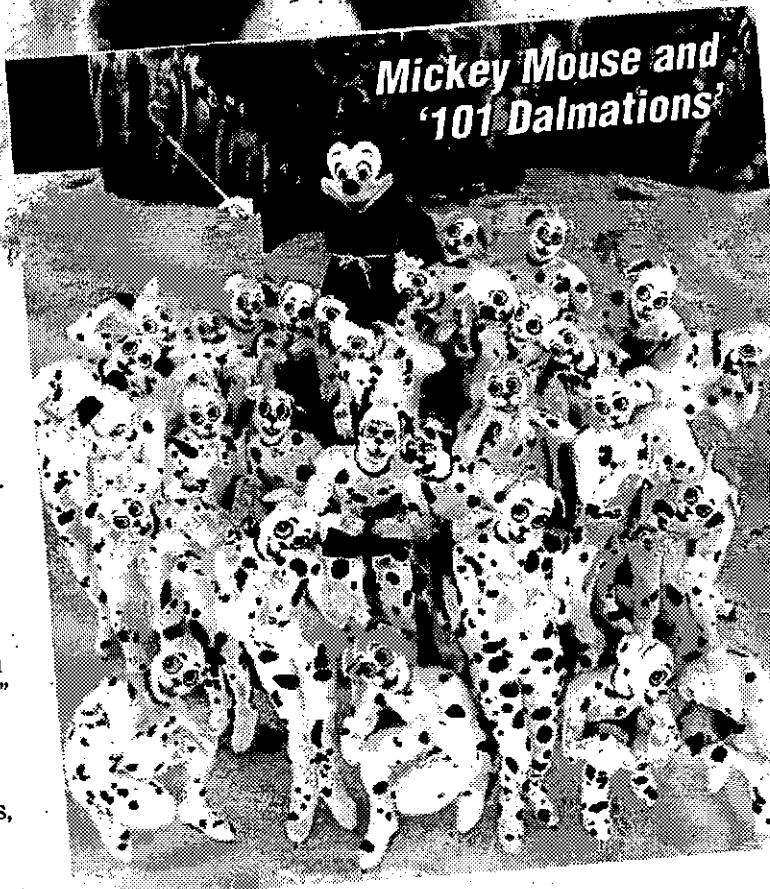

Appearing for eight performances at the Pepsi Arena on March 22 through March 25, the production promises to provide a lavish ice show like only Disney can devise. Mickey Mouse will be the host, and he is bringing along Minnie, Donald, Daisy and Goofy to help introduce some of Disney’s favorite and timeless stars: the Little Mermaid, Ursula the Sea Witch, Cinderella, Baloo, Louie, Mowgli and a host of others. The show wouldn’t be complete without the familiar Disney songs, and this production is loaded with tunes. Music Director Stan Beard has specially reorchestrated the music for the show and adapted Disney songs from films to the live “Disney On Ice” production.

“This show has numerous production numbers and considerably less dialog. Music plays a major role,” Beard said. Beard, based in San Diego, is no newcomer to Disney shows. He’s been involved in aspects of the productions (this is the 15th in a series) since the third Disney on Ice show. From directing the show’s voices and also singing many of the songs, his role has expanded over the years. This year’s production runs almost two hours and is as elaborate as any live concert. Beard said he was fine-tuning the selections for the production until the last minute.

“We made changes literally up until two to three hours prior to the first performance of the show,” he said. “The sound runs off a computer hard disk, so we can do editing, adjusting, shortening right here on the edge of the ice, up until the doors open and the audience comes in.” Beard said the true test of the music is audience response.

‘The Jungle Book’

Mickey Mouse and ‘101 Dalmatians’

“If they clap or sing along, I know we have a hit on our hands,” said Beard.

While the music may get you singing — the special effects may just leave you speechless. This year, as in several past, the show features unique cold air inflatables that are animated, individually designed, hand-crafted and larger than life. Ursula, Cinderella’s Castle, Kaa the Python and other scenic elements tower over the ice to create a unique look to the show. The collapsible “sculptures” offer a wide range of creative possibilities. Some inflatables, such as the giant monkey’s head in the “Jungle Book” and others, such as Ursula, spring to life in ice in a matter of seconds, right before the eyes of the audience. The most complicated inflatable is Kaa, the 75-foot Jungle Book python. The titanic free-standing snake conceals a team of skaters inside its body as it writhes about on the ice. Of course it wouldn’t be an ice show without all those skaters. Figure skaters from all over the world give the audience of mix of athleticism and artistry that will make you wonder “How did they do that.”

Sabrina Crotenko and Michael Kho from Canada, Simon Hewitt from England, Matthew Buttrey, Katy Griffiths and Nicole Thomson from the US and Marina Avertchenkova and Iskandar Mazitov from Russia are the premiere performers for this performance. They bring to life the evilness of Cruella DeVille, the romance of Cinderella and her Prince, the playful antics of the Dalmatian puppies and Ariel’s scary encounter with Ursula, the Sea Witch. And don’t forget that everyone’s favorite, Mickey Mouse, will be hosting the journey with all his friends. So if you always loved the story of a beautiful maiden who lives “happily ever after,” with her prince, or still giggle at the chaos of 101 puppies, or reminisce about the story of the baby raised by wolves you will be sure to relive the magic of your childhood memories while introducing the littlest of those with you to the joy of live theater.

This show has numerous production numbers and considerably less dialog. Music plays a major role.

Suction Cups on Winter Tires?

Remember when you were a kid using wooden arrows tipped with little suction cups to shoot at the walls? You thought the house would cave in when you tried to pull those little red cups off the windows and wallpaper. Suction cups are being put to better use these days, says the Car Care Council. They're part of new tire technologies that make driving on ice safer than ever before. The winter tire market is competitive;

that's good for the consumer. Tire companies are willing to invest in technology that will greatly improve their products. Currently, progress has been made over both studded tires and chains, which are permitted only under specific circumstances in some states and are absolutely illegal in others. Recent technology allows tires to:

- grip the road better,
 - disperse water easier,
 - and stop the vehicle faster.
- One new design is a tread that contains millions of tiny pores in the first layer. These pores act as tiny suction cups, enhancing the tire's grip on icy surfaces. In addition, the edges of these pores bite the snowy, icy surfaces, making it easier to drive and brake. "This adds to driver confidence," says

Car Care Council's VP of Marketing, Rich Davis. "It makes winter driving less of a guessing game and ultimately less stressful, not to mention safer."

There are also winter tire technologies that help disperse the thin layer of water on top of ice. Tiny channels in the tire, as well as special tread designs, create an escape route for water. Instead of causing the car to tire ridges up a film of water, the water moves out from under the tire. This creates better traction and a safer ride with easier handling.

"Make note," adds Davis, "as to whether or not your car is equipped with an anti-lock braking system (ABS). Some winter tires react differently depending on this variable."

There are dozens of winter driving tips, such as not following too closely or not engaging the cruise control. But safe winter driving starts where the rubber meets the road... or snow... or ice, says the Council. One of the best tips of all is to become familiar with your winter tire options then purchase a good set for your particular vehicle and driving circumstances.

The Car Care Council offers a free brochure to help you prepare your car for winter. Order your copy by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Department WE1-W, 42 Park Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452. Brought to you as a public service by Car Care Council. Visit the Council's web site: www.carcarecouncil.org.

Lights That Brighten Up A Winter Night

When a vehicle blasts out of the darkness with a pair of icy blue-white headlights, it's a real attention-getter for oncoming motorists. This HID or high intensity discharge lighting is gaining in popularity for several reasons. First and most obvious, it gives off more light than standard halogen headlights, two to three times as much. In fact, the white light of HID lighting has been compared to natural daylight, because the color temperature is similar to that of daylight.

Increased color temperature adds the bluish cast that sets these lights apart from other varieties. The combination of more light and whiter color gives motorists with HID more visibility in front as well to the side, enhancing safety. Another positive factor concerning this system is environmental. HID lighting utilizes up to 40% less energy than standard halogen lighting. An added bonus is that less heat must be dissipated by the system. Finally, an HID lamp is designed to last a long time. The average lifespan varies anywhere from 3 to 10 times longer than a halogen bulb (depending on the study you read). For most motorists that's much longer than the life of their vehicle. HID lamps aren't new, says the Car Care Council. Stadiums throughout the country have used HID general lighting for a long time. However, the technology was not utilized in the automotive industry in North America until the mid '90's, and, because it is expensive, it still is found only on more expensive vehicles. Experts expect this technology eventually to become more affordable and therefore more commonplace. Until then, aftermarket HID lighting kits are available, but motorists should check with local authorities regarding "street legal" use. Meanwhile, warns the Council, be sure your old-fashioned halogen lights are working, cleaned and properly aimed. Additional information is available on the Council's web site at www.carcarecouncil.org.

Photo caption: Thirty-two percent of the cars inspected during National Car Care Month vehicle checklanes failed the exterior lighting test. Check your car's exterior lighting monthly and before a long trip.
