More building plans crop up in Glenmont

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Bethlehem Center, at the intersection of Route 9W and Feura Bush Road in Glenmont, is suddenly the focus of intensive development activity, as three proposed projects are now moving through the town's planning review process, and an existing retail plaza is on the verge of adding several new tenants.

The sudden growth spurt has prompted growing concern by residents about the character of their neighborhoods, spearheaded by a group called PLAN 9W, an acronym for People/Parents/Pedestrians Looking At Nigro and 9W.

"The area's turning into a mini-urban area without the urban amenities," said PLAN-9W spokeswoman Kathleen Martens.

"This is the direction our town LUMAC plan proposes — hamlet-centered mixed use development. We're starting to have it in Glenmont, but we're not planning properly for it. We don't have an overall vision. People are concerned about their community's character," she added.

PLAN-9W's immediate concern is the largest of the emerging developments in a 1-mile stretch of Route 9W: Bethlehem Town Center, the proposal by Nigro Cos. to develop the 350,000-square-foot retail center on 75 acres just north of Bender Lane.

The Bethlehem town board tonight will take up the planning board's recommendation that it accept for public review the draft environmental impact statement (DEIS) submitted by Nigro.

Town board members have been reviewing the DEIS for more than two weeks and are expected to set a public hearing for May 9 after tonight's presentation.

The retail plaza would be anchored by a Wal-Mart Super Center and a Home Depot, and will also include more than 20,000 square feet of retail space for an as yet unidentified tenant.

Last week Nigro Vice President Steven Powers confirmed the identity of three smaller tenants projected for outbuildings in the complex — an Applebee's restaurant, and drive-through branches of Wendy's and Charter One Bank. All of that is likely to introduce, by the estimate of Nigro's traffic impact studies, more than 50 percent additional peak-rush traffic in both directions on Route 9W.

And nearby neighbors on Bender Lane are worried that their winding residential road will become a shortcut for those avoiding the crunch.

"I think that Bender Lane residents are very concerned about the access point (from Town Center) into Bender Lane," Martens said. "This is a super Wal-Mart, so its size is also very much a concern for people living near the project. And everybody is worried about the traffic."

Board to mull proposal to ban dumping

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

The Bethlehem town board will tonight consider a resolution that seeks to head off any possibility that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) might choose a site in Bethlehem to dispose of PCB-laden sediment dredged from the Hudson River as a part of the federal agency's controversial remediation proposal.

"The town board strongly opposes the use of any land, structure or location within the town of Bethlehem for the dredging, storage or disposal of any kind of dredged spoils resulting from the EPA's

Feestelijk marks good time for all

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

Along with the flower shoots and budding trees that signal springtime in Bethlehem, residents should soon see the signs and white tents that mean the town's annual celebration, Feestelijk, is fast approaching.

This year's Feestelijk Bethlehem, which showcases the town and its talent, is set for Friday, April 28. With 17 venues and a great diversity of performers, this will be the biggest Feestelijk yet — a great way to celebrate its fifth anniversary.

Feestelijk — a Dutch word that means "festival" and is pronounced "fays-talik" — grew out of a Community Partnership meeting five years ago. Spurred on by Bethlehem Networks and Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, the Community Partnership is a consortium of Bethlehem citizens looking to improve life in the town.

Lorraine Smith, community liaison of Selkirk Cogen, was one of the first co-chairs of Feestelijk.

"The concept was that we should have a combination of professional and community people. The professionals draw the crowds, but there's so much talent in our community, it's great to have it showcased," Smith said.

To sell their idea to the partnership, Smith and former Spotlight publisher Dick Ahlstrom wrote a poem, and did a song-and-dance routine.

"Everybody loved it," Smith said.

"We were looking for an alcohol-free way to bring the community together; to get people out so they could talk to their neighbors, chamber of commerce

Police arrest man on weapons charge Court cases adjudicated

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

A Brooklyn man faces felony concealed weapon and resisting arrest charges after a struggle with three Bethlehem police officers in Selkirk last week.

Shortly after 11 p.m. on Wednesday, April 4, police dispatchers received a call reporting a man waving his arms in traffic near the intersection of Creble Road and Route 32.

Officer Brian Hughes, later joined by Officer George Travis, attempted to talk to the man, Cory Lamar Stanton, 19.

According to the police report, Stanton became uncooperative and verbally abusive, and refused to comply with orders to remove his hands from his pockets.

Police said Stanton resisted efforts to take him into custody; he was wrestled onto the hood of Hughes' patrol car. Officer Christopher Hughes joined in subduing Stanton.

Police said they found a loaded 9 mm handgun in Stanton's pocket and a razor blade in his shoe.

Stanton was charged with felony counts of resisting arrest and second- and fourth-degree possession of a concealed weapon. He was arraigned before Town Justice Kenneth Munnely and sent to Albany County jail without bail.

He is scheduled for an April 17 court date.

Several cases of driving while intoxicated (DWI) were resolved last week in Bethlehem Town Court.

Appearing on April 3 before Town Justice Kenneth Munnely, three individuals pleaded guilty to reduced counts of driving while ability impaired (DWAI), while two others were convicted of the original DWI charges.

Keith Allen Hutchinson, 29, of 405 Elkin Court, Delmar, pleaded guilty to DWI stemming from a March 18 arrest. He was ordered to pay a $500 fine with a $95 state-mandated surcharge, and his license was revoked for a year.

Also pleading guilty to DWI was Michael Joseph Kellom, 40, of 483 State St., Albany, arrested on Jan. 6. He was sentenced to three years' probation on the charge, and his license was revoked for three years.

Another individual convicted of DWI in an October 1999 incident, Shawn E. Ubrich, 29, of 89 Alexander St., Albany, was arrested April 3 on a bench warrant after failing to pay his fine. He was sentenced by Munnely to 75 hours of community service in satisfaction of the charge.

Three defendants pleading guilty to reduced DWAI counts were Leslie W. Johnson, 62, of Surring, Wis., arrested on Jan. 5; Edward Michael Denegar, 38, of 59 Mather St., Schenectady, arrested on Feb. 17; and James Joseph Mullarkey Jr., 61, of New York City, arrested Feb. 19.

Each was ordered to pay a $300 fine with a $35 surcharge, and had his license suspended for 90 days.

All six defendants were also required to undergo drinking-driver remediation and to face a victim impact panel.

Bethlehem slates garden compost day

The town of Bethlehem will hold garden compost day on April 21 at the town compost facility at 1244 Feura Bush Road, next to GE Plastics in Selkirk.

Bring containers and a shovel for free leaf compost and wood chips. Spring cleanup and year-round curbside yard waste collection hours are from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The town will hold its seventh annual Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day on May 5. Bring unwanted paints, pesticides, solvents and other household chemicals to the town garage between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Spring cleanup runs through May 4, and summer yard waste pickup starts May 7.

Fleet closing two local branches

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Boston-based Fleet Bank, a subsidiary of FleetBoston Financial, plans to close a dozen branches in upstate New York on June 15 — including both the Glenmont location in Town Squire Plaza and the Voorheesville branch at 13 Maple Ave.

Customers at the two locations, along with other branches in Troy, Castleton and South Glens Falls, were notified by mail of the move.

Locally, the blow will fall hardest in the short run on Voorheesville, which will be left with just a single bank in the village, Key Bank in SuperValu plaza.

"It'll be a big inconvenience for many people who did business with Fleet," said village Mayor Ed Clark. "Now they'll have to go to another location, which isn't nearby at all. I know several people who do business there who are saying, 'Gee whiz, what do I do now?'"

Voorheesville branch accounts will be transferred to the Westmere branch at 1791 Western Ave. in Guilderland, according to Karl Felsen, Fleet's vice president and communications manager for upstate New York.

In Glenmont, accounts will be consolidated at the Delmar branch at 111 Delaware Ave. Figures on how many customers at each closed branch would be affected were not immediately available, Felsen said, but approximately 28,000 customers banked at the 12 branches to be closed upstate.

Felsen said all 45 employees of the branches that will close would be offered employment at new

He declined to discuss specific reasons for the selection of the particular branches to be closed, but said, "In general, locations for consolidation were chosen for the least impact on our customers, for alternatives readily available nearby."

The bank's lease in Glenmont will simply be allowed to expire, he said, but the Voorheesville location is owned by Fleet Bank, and will be put up for sale in a sealed-bid auction.

"Right now, we have gotten interest in the Voorheesville branch, so hopefully, we'll have a few bidders for that location," Felsen said.

Ed Clark

Clark expressed hope that the site would sell quickly.

"Apart from the inconvenience for customers, I'm most concerned about the property being vacant for very long," he said.

"Such a prominent location on the main thoroughfare into the village being vacant certainly wouldn't be helpful. But I'm sure someone will buy it and put it to good use. But until I know what it is, I won't be entirely happy with the situation," he added.

As for the village's direct-banking drought, he said, "I regret it, but a lot of banks move locations around and I'm sure it will eventually be replaced. I've heard that another bank, Trustco, wants to move into Voorheesville, just not at that location."

Fleet officials notified the village of their impending consolidation in early March, he said.

"It's unfortunate, but in terms of visibility, I don't think it will affect us in the long run very much," Clark said.

Such a prominent location on the main thoroughfare into the village being vacant certainly wouldn't be helpful. But I'm sure someone will buy it and put it to good use. But until I know what it is, I won't be entirely happy with the situation.

locations. After the branch consolidations, he said, Fleet will operate 227 branches and 179 ATM locations upstate. He said he anticipated no other branch closings.

"We'll look at everything again in the future, but not this calendar year," he said.

"We're constantly re-evaluating our branch network and tracking where our customers do business and how," he said.

"In the last couple of years, there's been a tremendous surge in things like online banking, telephone banking, ATMs, direct deposit and direct debit, that have affected the traffic at our direct banking locations," Felsen added.

In upstate New York alone, he said, some 53,000 customers have shifted primarily to online banking in the last year.

With fewer customers banking in person, some of the closed branches were experiencing staffing difficulties or keeping shorter regular hours.

Board likely to jump on NiMo payback offer

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

The Bethlehem town board will consider a proposed out-of-court settlement with Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. that could amount to a six-figure refund of overpayments on the town's utility bills in recent years.

In a settlement negotiated by the state's Public Service Commission on behalf of Bethlehem and 18 other municipalities, NiMo has offered refunds for overpayments on power for street lighting and other billing errors.

Should the town board approve the agreement tonight and the other municipalities involved sign on as well, Bethlehem's cut of the refund could amount to more than $203,000, including a $186,000 direct payment and a $17,000 credit on the town's street lighting bill for April.

The refund stems from audits conducted by a firm under contract to the state's Office of General Services, Cost Control Associates (CCA) of Glens Falls.

OGS makes such audit contracts, covering service costs such as telephone and utility charges, available to municipalities that elect to participate, according to the town's deputy comptroller, Rick Webster, who oversaw the town's lighting audit contract.

The town opted to join the audit consortium, Webster said, after efforts to reduce its municipal electric bill for street lighting, which has averaged just below $200,000 a year in recent years and is budgeted for $205,000 for 2001.

"Prior to joining the state contract, we had been trying to get NiMo to do a street light conversion for us," Webster said, from the town's stock of incandescent street lights to more energy-efficient high-pressure sodium lights or mercury vapor lights.

"They have only partially completed that conversion," he said.

Moreover, utility costs for street lights are not based on actual metered usage but estimated by NiMo based on the type of lighting instruments in use — and it had been "years and years and years," Webster said, since the utility had performed a thorough inventory of the number and type of lighting instruments actually in use in the town.

After Bethlehem joined the utility audit group in July 1998, auditors for CCA examined the town's utility bills and discovered several minor discrepancies.

"After that, they came out and physically did an audit count of how many street lights there were in town and what type," said Webster.

Commencing its street light inventory in keeping with PSC audit guidelines in August 1998, CCA in early 1999 concluded the audit and filed a complaint with the PSC on Bethlehem's behalf, alleging overbilling for at least the last six years based on the inventory counts.

"Normally, these claims are settled directly with the utility," said CCA President Keith Laake, but NiMo challenged the inventory counts.

The PSC sided with the auditors and in June 2000 ordered a formal proceeding before an administrative law judge to arbitrate the dispute.

That led to negotiations that concluded with NiMo's $186,000 settlement offer. Specific details of the settlement, Laake said, fall under a confidentiality order.

A later review turned up additional billing discrepancies, leading NiMo to offer the $17,000 credit as well.

Similar settlements have been offered to other participating municipalities, Laake said.

"We fully expect all the municipalities to approve it," he said. "In fact, a number have already done that."

"This refund is very welcome news for us," said Town Comptroller Judith Kehoe.

Recent stock market losses by the administrators of the state's pension fund investments prompted state Comptroller Carl McCall to announce last month that municipal contributions to their employees' pensions may have to be increased when the pension contribution formula is revised in June.

"We're likely to have to make an additional $110,000 contribution this June due to shortfalls in the retirement system fund, so I've already spent half of this refund on that," Kehoe said.

If the agreement is approved, CCA will collect a $25,000 fee from the town for securing the settlement, and NiMo will adjust future billings to reflect the revised lighting inventory.

But Kehoe said the town is not likely to see any reduction of its utility bill in the future, owing to NiMo's steadily rising utility rates.

"What this will do is stabilize the bill for the time being, and make it lower than it might have been," she said.

Essay contest announced

The annual E. Dayton Joslin Essay contest sponsored by the New Scotland Historical Association is open to every seventh-grader living in the town of New Scotland.

Essays of about 500 words, with attached bibliography, can be written as school projects or students can write them on their own. The topic can relate to any aspect of town history including, people, politics, business, buildings, recreation, farms, parks, education and religion.

Resources can be published books and articles, as well as written accounts of town life that are found in old letters, journals and documents.

Monetary prizes and a book will be awarded. Entries must be postmarked by May 1 and sent to New Scotland Historical Association, PO Box 541, Voorheesville 12186. For information, contact Bob Parmenter at 765-4652 or Marie Hornick at 768-2933.

Food: It's not just what's for dinner anymore

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

Closed cut square. Closed cut triangle. Open cut square. Open cut triangle. Closed, not cut. Growing up in my house, there were five kids, which meant five different ways to serve a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, and never the same request from the same child twice.

My mother knew to start each lunchtime with "How would his majesty like his sandwich cut today?" It was only when she discovered Chef Boy-Ar-Dee pizza mixes that she was finally released from the tyranny of peanut butter sandwiches.

COMMENTARY:

Thank God my children don't know that sandwiches can be cut in so many different ways, for just remembering who likes what food has turned grocery shopping into a mind-stretching exercise.

I used to like to cook, before we all lived by the rule that there could be no sauce, ever, and none of the food could be mixed together, or touch each other on the plate.

The dishes I have perfected are exquisite. There is the "gooey-gooey grilled cheese" that Cormac ate for breakfast every morning in second grade. Turns out the point was less the desire for the sandwich and more the 10 extra minutes of sleep he got while I made sure the bread was browned but not burnt, and the cheese oozed out of the sandwich when lightly pressed.

Before that, I made perfect poached eggs — stiff whites, yolks still runny. Just perfect for getting salmonella.

I started this mothering thing sure that my kids would always eat a lovely variety of wholesome foods. When I first started cooking for them, I followed the advice of the parenting experts, and made whole-wheat flour cookies with apple juice as a sweetener.

The boys ate yogurt, not maple syrup, on their pancakes, and I cut grapes in half so they wouldn't choke on them. Teddy Grahams were the junkiest food they ate.

Then we'd go visit grandma and grandpa. There's a picture somewhere, of 3-year-old Christopher and my father sitting on a front porch glider with the powdered sugar remains of jelly doughnuts ringing their mouths.

I was dumbstruck when I came upon them. "Uh-oh, Christopher," my father said, "we're in trouble now."

Food is often as much about memories as nutrition. One autumn, Chris and I spent two weeks in Vermont with 16-month-old Christopher. We started that vacation swimming in pools at bed and breakfasts, and finished it in sweatshirts and long pants, with the maple leaves red and orange against autumn's brilliant blue sky.

On our way home, we stopped at my grandmother's in Bennington, where the house she had shut against the cold smelled of baking quiche and apple pie.

Back in New York City that week — where the yellow-leaved autumn hadn't yet hit the trees near our playground — Christopher looked at me hopefully after his healthy lunch and uttered his fourth word. "Pie?" he'd said hopefully.

He's still a sucker for apple pie, and he seems to share his mother's sweet tooth. Cormac's love is more for salty foods, so while Christopher finishes up the ice cream, Cormac's at work on a jar of pickles.

Perhaps it's part of the staking out of individual territory that makes siblings refuse to like the same foods. You'd think with only two kids, I could keep straight who likes what, particularly since they interpret my forgetting as a clear sign that I love one more than the other.

"I loathe scallops," Christopher once informed me, arms folded, as his brother ate them with great delight. Cormac once gave me a note at mealtime and stalked away, betrayed, while Christopher dined delightedly.

"Cormac hats prk chps" the note said. So maybe the fact that he'll never get trichinosis balances out the salmonella the eggs might have given him that morning.

They are only united in their loathing of vegetables, although they will eat raw cucumbers, which their father won't, but that's another column.

Donna Aitoro, editor of the Clifton Park Spotlight, was following a macrobiotic diet when she found out she was pregnant with her now 5-year-old daughter Antonia. She blames the fact that her daughter eats hot dogs instead of tempeh on her first act as an expectant mother.

"I ate a burger," Aitoro admitted. Today, she is back to her vegetarian ways, and describes herself as a "stealth" feeder with her daughter — who doesn't know that there are carrots and zucchini grated into the brownies mommy makes for her.

crazy things. Copy editor Elizabeth Dineen remembers that her first child survived on Columbo French vanilla yogurt, and little else, as a toddler.

"Then they went on strike, and I panicked," she said. "I was calling relatives in other states asking them to keep an eye out for it."

The strike ended just as Dineen reached her last tub of the good stuff.

Relatives and childless people all have their opinion of children's food habits, and with the exception of jelly-doughnut-dealing granddads, they are appalled at the control we let our kids have over what they eat — which translates into how much work we mothers do.

Dineen's older sisters-in-law all thought — unsuccessfully — that they could turn her yogurt-eating son into a gourmand. But mothers know that when a child is on a one-food jag, only time will cure it.

Baby Animal Week set at Indian Ladder

Baby Animal Week at Indian Ladder Farms just outside of Voorheesville will start Friday, April 13, and run through April 22.

Admission to the baby animal barn will be $1 per person. There will be chicks, ducklings, goslings, bunnies, guinea pigs, lambs, piglets and calves.

Admission to the petting zoo is $1. Staff will be available to help visitors feed the animals.

Easter egg hunts will be held on Saturday and Sunday, April 14 and 15, at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. They are free. Egg hunters should meet at the appointed times by the baby animal barn.

Pony rides will be given on Saturdays April 14 and 21, Sundays, 15 and 22, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The cost is $2 per person.

We also know that kids will eat junk over healthy food any day, and if any friend has a bad food habit, it'll come to our house too. I remember watching a kid put potato chips in a peanut butter and jelly sandwich on white bread, and thinking nirvana had arrived.

We all have our limits with our kids' food choices, and one day, invoke the mother's emancipation proclamation. "I make one meal around here, and that's it."

Some kids buy it, and will eat what's on the plate. Some put on Oscar-winning performances — "I once actually threw up at the table," Parent Pages editor Donna Bell said — and some return to the wellspring of all kid food, the peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

Come to think of it, I'm kind of bored with no red meat, five fruits and vegetables every day, and tall glasses of milk. Peanut butter for dinner sounds pretty great. Hey, kid, make mine a closed cut square.

through the apple orchard will also be given from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The cost is $2 per person.

Tractor-drawn hay rides will be available to groups by appointment. The cost is $1 per person with a $25 minimum.

To schedule a ride, call 765-2956 and ask for Laurie Ten Eyck.

There will also be sheep shearing and wool working demonstrations Saturday, April 14, and Sunday April 22, from 1 to 3 p.m. Crackers the trick horse will perform Saturday, April 14, from 1 to 3 p.m.

Easter brunch will be served at the farm's Yellow Rock Cafe on April 15 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be live music. For reservations, call 765-2956.

The store is on Route 156 about 2 miles west of Voorheesville.

Board petitions due Monday

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Petitions are due Monday for candidates seeking election to the three local school boards — Bethlehem, Voorheesville and Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk — and at least two of those elections, set for May 15, are likely to be contested.

Two seats are up for grabs in the Bethlehem Central School District, each for three year terms beginning on July 1.

As of last week, neither incumbent Stuart Lyman nor Dennis Stevens had submitted petitions to seek re-election, but both were widely expected to do so.

In the meantime, one completed petition has already been filed by a challenger — Richard Svensson, a former board member seeking to regain the seat he lost in last spring's election.

Petitions in Bethlehem require a minimum of 63 valid signatures of eligible voters residing in the district, and must be submitted to the district clerk by 5 p.m. on Monday, April 16, at the district offices at 90 Adams Place in Delmar.

In the Voorheesville Central School District, a five-year term currently filled by incumbent Joseph Pofit is up for grabs, as is the unexpired term of Holly Desmond Debes, who resigned earlier this year. The seat, filled in February by the appointment of former board member James Coffin, has three years remaining.

Pofit has already filed a petition seeking re-election, and Coffin is expected to do the same. A third candidate, Kevin Kroencke, confirmed Friday that he is also circulating a petition and planned to submit it this week.

"Ever since I learned (last year) the district was considering a bond issue for renovations, that piqued my interest," Kroencke said. "With the open seat, I considered it an opportune time to run."

The top two vote-getters will win the five- and three-year seats, respectively. Petitions signed by a minimum of 25 eligible voters must be submitted to the district clerk at the offices at the high school by 4:30 p.m. Monday.

Three seats on the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school board are up for re-election this year, each a five-year term, and all three incumbents, board president Gerald DeLuca and members

Mona Selover and Nanette Mayers, have completed petitions seeking re-election. The deadline to file a petition with at least 25 signatures is Monday at 5 p.m. at the district offices at 26 Thacher St., Selkirk.

Also due on April 16 are petitions to run for seats on the public library boards in all three districts. A single five-year term each is up for grabs on the Bethlehem and Voorheesville library boards, but three seats are to be filled in the RCS Community Library election, two for five years, and one for the remaining two years of an unexpired term.

Nominating petitions are due at the libraries in Ravena and Voorheesville, and at the school district offices in Bethlehem.

Power problems

All is not well on the energy front as we move from the heating bills of winter to the cooling and gasoline/travel bills of summer.

In just the past week, gasoline prices rose a full nickel and one of the three major California electric utilities declared bankruptcy.

Fittingly, Pacific Gas & Electric fell victim to a deregulation scheme that that same utility had lobbied hard and expensively for.

Deregulation, in theory, meant lots of energy generators competing to provide the lowest-cost power. But deregulation in practice has meant that a handful of giant electricity wholesalers could, and did, conspire to raise California electricity prices by several hundred percent.

We're shocked, shocked that energy companies are not above manipulating the allegedly free market to increase profits. The New York Times recently reported that a Texas natural gas company awarded a distribution contract to the highest bidder (by far), which conveniently and profitably was one of its own subsidiaries.

Another theory is that government will represent consumers to help prevent price gouging by monopoly utilities or oligopoly oil companies. But state and federal regulatory agencies have done little to protect consumers from the new, highly profitable world of "free-market" electricity.

New York state is in the midst of its own deregulation scheme, which, like most such, begins by promising lower rates.

We wonder how consumers will benefit from having to pay two for-profit companies (one for generation and another for transmission) for electricity where before we just paid one. And, while the transmission company's profits will still be regulated, the generation company's will not.

Granted, electric utilities were never the most efficient of companies; having a monopoly with guaranteed profits, they had little incentive to be lean and mean.

But, before they foolishly got involved with expensive nuclear power, upstate New York utilities charged relatively low rates, thanks largely to hydropower projects. Now, we have some of the highest rates in the country, even before the great deregulation experiment kicks in.

On the gasoline front, consumers face a foreign cartel, OPEC, and a cartel of oil companies who are united in their push for higher oil prices.

If it's possible, federal oil regulators are even more spineless than state utility regulators, with unfortunate consequences for consumers.

With little help from government, the best we can do to protect ourselves from the double-barreled blast of gas and electricity price hikes is conserve as much as possible.

And we should keep a close, wary eye on the state's deregulation process.

Easter is the hope holiday

By the Rev. DON STAKE

The writer is a retired Presbyterian minister and cartoonist for Spotlight Newspapers.

Some years back, Peggy Lee had a hit song called "Is That All There Is?" The answer was Yes, so let's adopt an "eat-drink-and-be-merry-for-tomorrow-we-die" philosophy.

The song got a lot of air time. Apparently many people could relate to the question, "Is that all there is?" They were willing to settle for the answer as well.

Christians, however, come up with a much different answer: Easter.

It all happened nearly 2,000 years ago in a far corner of the world. A man named Jesus had become both popular and notorious as an itinerant preacher and sometime miracle-worker.

For a variety of reasons, there were powerful people who wanted to put him out of circulation.

The Roman authorities thought they could do it effectively and they fastened him to a cross with spikes through his wrists and feet, an ugly and agonizing form of public execution. Thus he died.

By all rights, that should have done it. No more would be heard from this rabble-rouser. They had nailed him down for good.

It sure took the wind out of the little band of disciples who had followed Jesus around. After all the years and dusty miles they had traveled with Jesus, it had come down to this.

He was a good man, perhaps the only genuinely good person they had ever known, and here he was strung up to die like a common criminal.

When he had gasped his last breath, they took his lifeless body down and placed it in a borrowed tomb.

He was crucified, dead and buried.

It is not difficult to imagine that those who had known and loved Jesus were asking themselves, "Is that all there is?"

But it was not all there was. Something more was yet to come.

Point of View

It would bewilder and surprise the followers of Jesus because it was not at all what they expected or dared to look for.

What happened was the resurrection of Jesus Christ, God's way of saying, "That's not all there is."

It is this event that Christians celebrate on Easter.

Actually, we began celebrating the resurrection on every Sunday, which they called "the Lord's Day."

Since Easter was related to the Jewish Passover, it became an annual celebration at approximately the same time of year.

It was soon recognized as the major feast of the Christian faith, and ultimately became a season of 50 days running until Pentecost.

There is hope for what God alone can give, hope for what is beyond the range of our vision: the promise of peace, wholeness and healing. And it is that hope which empowers us to work with God and claim that promise for all God's children.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead is a signal to Christian believers that there is more to life than death.

The sum total of life's joy and goodness is not canceled out at the end. That is not all there is. There is more.

Easter shows the durability of divine love. God does not abandon anyone for God's love is everlasting. No matter what happens, God's love does not fade or fail.

Wherever you are and whatever life hands you, that is not all there is, because God has not finished with any of us.

It is easy to miss the point, however. Celebrations of Easter get cluttered with fancy foods and candy, bunnies and eggs.

It is a great time for families, especially those with kids, and a good time is had by all.

By and large, all of this is a big distraction, cramming another Christian holy day into the box of a secular holiday.

But even when people celebrate Easter as a matter of faith, they can be wide of the mark.

Easter is too often seen as the inevitable happy ending to an otherwise tragic story.

Once you know the ending is bound to be happy, you don't have to pay much attention to the tragedy.

See how everything came out so nice for Jesus, Crucifixion? What crucifixion? Forget about all that and just skip to the end, Easter.

But Easter is not so Pollyannish. Easter takes a hard view of the world, and knows all about human suffering.

Easter does not — or should not — encourage us to turn a blind eye to harsh realities.

Easter speaks of justice. The worst that humans can do to one another in the ravages of war, the violence of crime or the abuse of the innocent is not the last word.

God has the final say, and it is a word of judgment. Ultimately, truth and righteousness will triumph.

For Easter helps us face up to what is wrong in this world and what hurts most in these lives we live.

Then it points through the shadows to hope. Easter is all about hope.

The film "The Shawshank Redemption" is about a man (Andy) unjustly convicted of murder and sent to prison.

There he finds a friend in an old-timer (Red).

Imprisonment for Andy is a hopeless situation that keeps getting worse — any objective person would cave in.

But Andy does not. Red warns him about being too hopeful, for "hope is a dangerous thing."

Ultimately Andy sets Red straight: "Hope is a good thing — maybe the best of things. And no good thing ever dies."

Easter tells us that there is always hope. Easter delivers us from the sadness of cynicism, from the whining question, "Is that all there is?"

Sure, there are plenty of crucifixions in this dark and dangerous world.

Yet there is more. There is hope for what God alone can give, hope for what is beyond the range of our vision: the promise of peace, wholeness and healing.

And it is that hope which empowers us to work with God and claim that promise for all God's children.

Your Opinion Matters

BC thespians excel, thanks to many

Editor, The Spotlight:

Under the talented direction of Jim Yeara, assisted by Fran Cocozza and Frank Levitt, once again, Stage 700's Bethlehem Central High School musical theater production of "Into the Woods" was an outstanding musical theater experience presented to the Bethlehem community.

It can be a challenge for high schools to consistently mount high-quality musical theater. Through the efforts of dedicated teachers, exceptional young people and devoted parents, the Bethlehem Theater Support Group has managed to do just that.

This production has been a wonderful, educational and artistic activity that engaged more than 80 young people for more than three months. Talented actors and actresses, aided by student musicians under the direction of Dave Beck, worked with the art department students and technical crew, under the guidance of George Dirolf and Bill Morrison, to once again produce an exceptional show, enjoyed by more than 3,000 people.

We would like to thank area merchants for their generosity and kindness as we called on them for support.

This year, we were able to give a preview performance to the area elementary schools, giving them an introduction to high school theater, opening the door to future area talents.

We thank the school district, including Les Loomis, superintendent, and Jon Hunter, BCHS principal, for making this possible once again. Thank you to all involved in that endeavor, including elementary school principals and staff, bus garage employees and custodial staff.

A special thank you to Bethlehem Theater Support Group president Cindy Stambach, as she passes the pleasure on to a new group of volunteers.

We would like to continue to bring exceptional student theater to this community. We hope that in conjunction with the music program, we can work on essential repairs to the high school auditorium (lighting and sound equipment, stage repairs, and termite infestation) for the coming school year, to continue to present Bethlehem Central High School as a Top 100 school in the nation. We look forward to working toward that goal.

Development interferes with natural order in town

Editor, The Spotlight:

I want to thank Kathleen Martens of Glenmont for her letter in last week's Spotlight.

After a few years of keeping quiet about this, I have to express my opinion. We in Bethlehem are being really poor stewards of God's wonderful creation.

Will we continue to support economic development until not a single bit of wild space is left in our town?

I live across the Delmar bypass from Bender Lane and am so thankful for that little winding country lane.

I fear for the loss of the woods and wildness of Bender Lane and many other wild, quaint and interesting areas in our community.

I wept when I saw a large field destroyed so we could have Price Chopper Plaza. I ache for the loss of life that took place when the Terra Mere development began. And it continues just about everywhere you look.

Is rapid, unchecked economic development (translate: the overrunning of nature by human beings) a given, something that is inevitable? Or is there a way we can live in harmony with the natural order that we are a part of?

Trees, plants, animals that inhabit woods and fields, are all neighbors of ours. We depend on the nonhuman living creatures in our world for all sorts of things; when they suffer, believe it or not, we suffer. They are alive and have a right to live and thrive, just as we do.

But we are overrunning nature with our lust for economic wealth and there will come a time when it all comes back to haunt us.

Please, please, join me in praying for our sorely wounded Mother Earth.

Good Samaritan Senior Living

President/C.E.O.

EXERTING PRESSURE

In light of recent research that uncovers a possible link between hypertension and impaired mental ability, seniors are encouraged to monitor their blood pressure. In the study, French researchers measured the blood pressure and then tested the mental acuity of more than 1,300 elderly men and women over a four year period. They found that more than 20% of the people with high blood pressure who were not taking medication to control it experienced a decline in mental ability during this time. This compares with a 7% decline in mental ability among study participants with normal blood pressure. This has led researchers to believe that hypertension may compromise blood flow to the brain, thereby adversely affecting mental ability.

Taking medicines can be a real inconvenience, but not taking them can lead to greater problems. At Good Samaritan Lutheran Health Care Center, 125 Rockefeller Road, we help you monitor your medicines so you need not worry about not following an appropriate regimen. You'll find our staff to be helpful and resourceful in meeting your needs, whether it's a minor request or a major medical concern. Call us at 439-8116 for more information.

Matters of Opinion

Glenmont big-box project is a bad bet for the future

Editor, The Spotlight:

The town of Bethlehem should maintain a strong and healthy business economy by encouraging diversity.

There should be a wide variety of businesses, in different locations, with different owners.

There should be healthy competition between them, to keep prices low and quality high.

This all prevents the town from suffering when one particular business, or type of business, closes.

The proposed Bethlehem Town Center does exactly the opposite. Two gigantic retail stores, selling virtually everything available elsewhere in the town, will concentrate business in only two corporate owners.

This concept of placing all our retail eggs in one basket leaves the town terribly vulnerable to the whims of economics, and to the whims of two megacorporations who have no ties whatsoever to the town of Bethlehem.

For a short-term gain, Bethlehem will face a long-term economic problem. Many local businesses, whether locally owned or not, will suffer. Within a decade, the town will contain an embarrassing quantity of boarded-up, graffiti-covered former businesses surrounded by weed-choked parking lots.

Everyone agrees that the United States has far too many retail stores — even Wal-Mart itself says this. And last month it was reported that a local developer doubted that the Albany area could support another big box retailing center, "except maybe" the Bethlehem project.

Major retail bankruptcies in the Albany area are inevitable within the next decade. Does Bethlehem want to take such a risk, placing so much of its retail future in one monstrous project?

And don't assume that because this project is so big and so new, it will never close. The history of Wal-Mart shows otherwise. In fact, so many of their stores close that Wal-Mart is now the nation's No. 1 producer of abandoned buildings. Want to buy a former Wal-Mart? You have your choice of more than 300, many of them less than a dozen years old.

I'm new here, but I plan to live in Bethlehem for many years. For a while, this project may seem to help the town's economy, but as the years go by, the savings today will come back to haunt us. I expect this project to double or triple my property taxes within a dozen years. I base that assumption on what I've seen happen in other towns that have had big-box retail centers in place for a decade or more.

Wal-Marts and Home Depots are relatively new to upstate New York; they've been here only a few years. We have yet to see the inevitable negative economic impacts, as the rest of the country has. It may surprise many in upstate New York to hear that dozens of town mayors and supervisors across Oklahoma, Missouri, Texas and many other states say that allowing Wal-Mart into their towns 20 years ago was the biggest mistake the town ever made.

This project is simply too big. Don't force your children and grandchildren to pay later for the short-term thinking of today.

Reader receives birthday surprise

Editor, The Spotlight:

On the afternoon of March 20, I stopped at Dunkin' Donuts in Delmar to pick up a cup of coffee.

It was my birthday and I had been having an especially nice day. It was also a beautiful day, as well as the first day of spring.

I approached the door along with another woman who beckoned me to enter as she held it open. A pleasant banter ensued and while I was feeling pretty cheery, I happened to mention that it was my birthday, something I do not normally brag about.

Upon arriving at the counter my new acquaintance insisted that I order first. When my coffee arrived, she told the server that it was her treat because it was my birthday.

I've already shared this lovely experience with family and friends.

I hope this thoughtful individual sees letter so she knows how nice she made me feel.

PTA thanks DARE officers

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Slingerlands School PTA would like to publicly thank Bethlehem DARE officers for their continued support of our school programs and our students.

On March 19, we held our fifth volleyball/newcomb tournament.

Slingerlands fifth graders and our extremely dedicated staff challenged the DARE officers, led by awesome Officer Oliver to an evening of exciting and entertaining volleyball and newcomb.

A fun time was had by all.

We continue to appreciate all the the DARE officers do to help our children grow into responsible young adults. Thank you.

THERE'S A TON OF STUFF THE EPA ISN'T TELLING YOU ABOUT.

The EPA claims that, after dredging, only 100 lbs. of PCBs will be resuspended in the Hudson. But a study released last December by the

BCHS grad seeks help for program

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, class of 1998, and am currently a junior at the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass.

Recently, I was chosen from a large group of applicants for the 2001 Mexico Program, a yearly program (in May) which is sponsored by the college chaplain's office.

The purpose of the program is to introduce students to the reality of life in Latin America and for the majority of the world's people — the poor. Living in solidarity with the people of Mexico is essentially what the program is all about. Instead of building houses and hammering nails, we will be visiting with the poor people of Mexico and getting to know them on a personal level.

Overall the trip's costs are around $1,400. I still need to raise a great deal of it, and time seems to be passing by very quickly. Anything anyone could do would be greatly appreciated. Donations can be sent to: The Office of the Chaplain, PO Box 16A, Worcester, Mass. 01610.

Checks must be made out to the College of the Holy Cross and are tax-deductible. Print my name on the check. I am grateful for your generosity and support.

Center would benefit town in many ways

Editor, The Spotlight:

If you've seen the results of the recent Census, you know the town of Bethlehem has growing pains. Old-time Delmartians don't want change, but the truth is it's a little late for that sentiment.

Everywhere you look there are residential developments sprouting up. Why do people come? They're flocking to Bethlehem because of the quality of life and the promise of the best — excellent schools and services, and fair taxes for all we are entitled to.

Why then do we compromise convenience and quality when it comes to our retail stores? As a busy mother, I am frustrated that I am forced to drive nearly an hour round-trip to other towns to run errands and do my shopping.

Most recently, there has been local resistance to the Wal-Mart plaza proposed in Glenmont. I was pleased to read this project is moving ahead, so long as the backers are willing to jump through all the hoops the town imposes.

The thought of having a dependable department store close to home had me jumping for joy. I can say the same for my husband regarding the proposed second anchor, a home improvement store.

As for the critics who complain it will mean increased traffic, let's not forget that we are still out there, we're just taking our business elsewhere so that some other municipality benefits from our consumer spending, not to mention the property tax revenues.

Has anybody else noticed the empty retail spaces throughout town? I don't know if it's the same unfriendly business attitude that has greeted numerous other commercial ventures or something else that drives them away. But at a time when the town is bracing for a major tax hit from the sale of the steam plant and our schools are bulging at the seams, it would be nice to see an expanding commercial revenue base, not a shrinking one.

If we keep this imbalance between residential and commercial development, there will be a price to pay in services and taxes. That's not why people move to Bethlehem.

Residents are enamored with what this town used to be, a smaller community whose needs could be met by a few smaller retail establishments. Now those businesses are moving out, and we are left behind. Letting reputable, big-name stores in won't destroy our town, but empty storefronts just might if it means a reduction in any of the services we take for granted in Bethlehem.

Surgery is something we do everyday.

But, we know its not an everyday event for you.

You want a hospital where you feel at home. Yet, you also want to be sure your surgeon is one of the finest in the area.

At Samaritan Hospital, we offer both.

"We have a lot of physicians who also work in Albany ... there's a reason why they're choosing Samaritan."

Linda Groat, RN, knows the reason.

It's our staff. They know that the best place to recover is home, and they make sure you have all the information and support you need to do just that. They even call to make sure you're okay!

Providing care you can trust ... for generations.

Feestelijk

President Marty DeLaney said. "What has happened is exactly what we had hoped: Feestelijk is a fixture in town."

Mona Prenoveau of Bethlehem Networks Project is pleased with Feestelijk's longevity.

"Every year, there are new people working on Feestelijk, and lots of volunteers, including kids," she said. "It's great."

To ensure Feestelijk's success, an organizing committee of about 24 people met regularly, beginning in January. For the last three years, co-chairs have been Monique Matuszek, benefits administrator at the chamber, and John Guastella, regional manager for Colortyme.

"It can be time-consuming," Matuszek said. "There are new things each year. We're buying signs, and things that we can use for the next few years. We're also streamlining the process of getting things out."

New this year are handmade Feestelijk flags, in blue with gold and white stars. They can be purchased at the chamber for $50, and the proceeds help support Feestelijk.

Matuszek, who has lived in Bethlehem for 18 years, said Feestelijk lets people enjoy many different performers.

"I wouldn't necessarily go see a harpist, but at Feestelijk, I really enjoy it," Matuszek said. "This has been a lot of fun."

Guastella said that being involved with Feestelijk is a great way to give back to the community.

"This is by the town, and for the town," Guastella said. "It's fun and it's rewarding. You should never take your community for granted. The reason Delmar's nice is that there are people who are willing to do things."

"We are a community event, and we want everyone to realize they're as involved as we are," Matuszek said.

Feestelijk is always looking for more volunteers to help out, even on the night of the event.

"It's a great chance to see your neighbors play," Matuszek added.

Some of the local talent includes the Irish group Hair of the Dog, Ed Stander playing his glass harmonica and The Swing Docs. Ahlstrom plays with a new group on the scene, Banjo Bert and Friends, which will perform this year.

Some merchants, like Turtle Pointe, Blue Sky Music and Adams Street Gallery, will be open that night. And Del Lanes and the BIG Arena will offer button-wearers a discounted price.

Donations from merchants and in-kind donations help make Feestelijk possible, and last summer, Feestelijk gave money to the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce so merchants affected by the landslide could afford to advertise.

"Some sponsors have thanked us by coming on board for the first time," Matuszek said. "We're hoping that Feestelijk will give the merchants a boost, too."

Bethlehem's newest merchant has allowed Feestelijk to expand its geographical reach a little further.

"Hannaford is sponsoring a tent at Delaware Plaza," Matuszek said. "It's nice to have them come in and take over there."

That venue will be home to the Dixieland Tent, which will host Banjo Bert and His Friends, and Skip Parsons Clarinet Marmalade.

The Swing Docs will provide swing dancing music at Main Square, and jazz will be the order of the evening at Turtle Pointe.

Town hall will be home to a battle of the bands, with Dealer's Method and Positions Four, just two of the bands set to duke it out. Town hall will be set up café-style, and there will be a dance floor.

To make the evening completely user-friendly, two free trolleys will make regular runs and stops at the venues.

Feestelijk is set to kickoff at 6 p.m. with The Village Volunteers at Bethlehem Central Middle School.

Children's activities at the middle school will include arts and crafts, Cranberry the Clown, and a free child ID program sponsored by the Masons. New this year is Crackers the Talking Horse, who plays piano and drums.

The rest of the entertainment begins at 7 p.m. A special Feestelijk button admits people to events and entitles them to ride the trolley.

Buttons are available at 18 locations throughout town — among them town hall, the chamber of commerce office at Main Square and The Spotlight on Adams Street.

Buttons are $6 before April 28, and $8 on the evening of Feestelijk. Children under age 10 can attend for free. Programs are available with the buttons, and include a map and details of performances.

Feestelijk also has a Web site this year at www.feestelijk.org/index.html.

"It grows every year, but Feestelijk always keeps its small-town feeling," Matuszek said.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

DO YOU BITE YOUR NAILS OR CUTICLES?

Did you know that you may be jeopardizing your health by biting your fingernails? People with oral habits involving fingernails, cuticles, thumb or finger sucking are more apt to develop colds than people without these habits.

Since the mouth is the entry site for many bacteria or viruses, it makes good sense to put into your mouth only what you're going to eat—food.

Nail and cuticle biters are susceptible to two other conditions as well; one viral and one functional.

The viral condition is called herpetic whitlock. This condition occurs when herpes viruses from the mouth start growing in the wound site, at the cuticles or under the fingernail. Very often the infection results in loss of part or all of the fingernail, and is usually painful.

The functional condition occurs when nailbiters have such an active habit that they injure their jaw joint. Usually these people have other predisposing factors, and the nailbiting just triggers the injury, and pain ensues.

Nail and cuticle biting is a very harmful habit to your health. If you find yourself in this category, you should try to discontinue your nailbiting as soon as possible.

Thanks to our partners working alongside us, we are on track towards achieving our 5-year, $14.6 billion commitment to the community. In 2000 we achieved nearly $2.9 billion in such areas as small business lending, affordable housing to low-to-moderate income borrowers, consumer lending in urban areas and more. And in the years to come, we look forward to working with our partners even more as we continue to build stronger communities.

Forward. Thinking.

Kids to hear Cat Tales during break

Youth services assistant Susan Dague will be entertaining during school vacation week with a program for ages 4 and up called Cat Tales.

Come on Wednesday, April 18, at 10:30 a.m. and bring your own stuffed cats. Remember — when "school's out, the library's in."

Book discussion of Home Across the Road meets today, April 11, at 7 p.m. You can sign up and pick up your copy of the next selection Give Me My Father's Body by Kenn Harper, the true story of a boy who was part of a group of Greenland Eskimos brought to the United States by explorer Robert Peary in 1897.

Harper's book about the tribulations of the boy's life is the straightforward telling of a frustrating story of scientific arrogance and cultural misunderstanding.

Patrons can learn how to build a free Web site for their nonprofit group with the assistance of Michael Huber on Tuesday, April 17, at 7 p.m.

Your Web site can include such features as an events calendar, chat room and photos. No specialized computer knowledge is necessary, and you don't need to write any code to create or update your site. Sign-up is required.

Regular story times will not meet from April 9 to 22.

Story times resume on April 23 on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 10:15 a.m. through May 9.

To Life slates annual health and law forum

To inform individuals about the latest advances in genetic testing and help them understand complex legal questions surrounding this advancing science, To Life is sponsoring its annual health and law forum on Tuesday, April 24, at the Crowne Plaza Albany Hotel at State and Lodge streets.

To Life is a nonprofit organization providing breast health and cancer awareness services and educational programs.

The Gary Schwartz Annual Health and Law Forum, "Be Careful What You Ask: Legal Implications of Genetic Testing," begins at 5:30 p.m. with registration, followed by discussions and a question-and-answer session from 6 to 8:45 p.m.

The program is free of charge and open to the public.

There is a $65 fee for attorneys seeking two Continuing Legal Education (CLE) credits.

Program presenters include Dr. Gary H. Lyman, director of The Cancer Center of Albany Med; Carol Miaskoff, assistant legal counsel for the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; and attorney Barry A.

Gold of Thuillez, Ford, Gold & Johnson.

The forum is co-sponsored by The Capital District Women's Bar Association/Women's Bar Association of the State of New York and The Cancer Center of Albany Med. For information and to register, call To Life at 439-5975, or e-mail info@ToLife.org.

Programs planned for vacation week

The library has a roster of activities for schoolchildren during spring break week.

On Tuesday, April 17, at 10:30 a.m., Jack Prelutsky's poems take on 3-D life in "Hatch a Gizmo" for age 3 to 6.

Peggy Steinbach facilitates construction of Baby Uggs, Grebbles and other Prelutsky characters from household objects. Materials will be provided.

Steinbach is an art instructor at the Heartland School for dyslexic children and an art therapist for adults.

"From the Mixed-Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler," a video based on E.L. Konigsburg's award-winning book, will be shown on Wednesday, April 18, at 2 p.m.

Popcorn and post-film discussion are included in this program for children in grade two and up.

The Scotia-Glenville Children's Museum travels to the library on Thursday, April 19, at 2 p.m. to help children in kindergarten and up construct "Clothespin Creations."

To register for these programs, call the youth services department at 439-9314.

Date change for Afternoons with Books

"Every summer Lin Kong returned to Goose Village to divorce his wife" is the first sentence of Waiting by Ha Jin.

This moving novel about a culture where patience and fortitude are virtues is the topic for this month's "Afternoons with Books" for adults on Monday, April 23, at 1:30 p.m.

This is a change from the original date of April 16 as announced in the last newsletter.

New members are welcome at any time. Copies of the book are available at the reference desk.

To register, call 439-9314.

Feestelijk update

Singer Barbara Eckhaus will present "An Evening of American Song" at two Feestelijk performances at the library on Saturday, April 28. Performances are scheduled for 7:30 and 8:45 p.m.

Eckhaus has performed both traditional and contemporary music in concerts, solo recitals and community fund-raisers throughout the United States, most recently for a private White House function.

She has been the featured soloist for the Ocean Park Summer Music Festival and the Leddy Center for the Performing Arts. She has also appeared at the Derry Opera House, Tanglewood Summer Music Festival and Merrill Auditorium in Portland, Maine. She can be heard on the CD "The Magic of Christmas."

Barbara Eckhaus

Eckhaus is on the faculty of the Concord Community Music School, and has a voice studio in Delmar.

Buttons for Feestelijk, an evening of entertainment at various sites throughout town, are $6 for adults, free for children under 10.

Easter closing

The library will be closed on Sunday, April 15, for the Easter holiday. The library will resume regular hours on Monday, April 16.

Physically Speaking

by Nick Valenze, P.T.

HAVING A BALL

To build a strong back, the physical therapist may conduct an exercise with an inflatable exercise ball to strengthen the back extensors, the muscles that run along the spine. The exerciser begins by facing the large ball (55-65 centimeters in diameter), kneeling, and positioning him- or herself so that his or her belly buttons on top of the ball. The exerciser then slowly lifts his or her left arm, head, chest, and right leg until they are in a straight line with his or her back. After holding the position for three seconds, the limbs and head are lowered. The position is repeated after switching sides and doing the move with the right arm and left leg.

If injury due to strain, accident or over-use is keeping you from participating in activities you enjoy, ask your physician for a referral to our physical therapy practice. We provide the latest, most effective treatment for neck and back trauma, chronic pain, work and sports-related injuries, and bone and joint problems. Please call our state-of-the-art facilities at the number listed below to learn more about our many services. For your convenience, our staff will be happy to file your insurance claims. Evening treatment hours available.

Eagles fly by Shenendehowa in season opener

By ROB JONAS

If the Bethlehem boys tennis team goes on to win the Suburban Council title for the second straight year, it can look back to its first match as the catalyst for its run.

The Eagles received some clutch performances to defeat Shenendehowa 8-1 in last Wednesday's home opener. Bethlehem then extended its winning streak to 16 matches last Thursday with a 9-0 win at Colonie Central High School.

"Our guys were ready," Bethlehem coach Steve Smith said. "They wanted to start the season with a big win, and they knew that beating Shenendehowa would be a big win."

It wasn't as easy as it looked for the Eagles (2-0). Matt Treadgold needed a second-set tiebreaker to defeat Shenendehowa's Tony Piro 6-1, 7-6 (7-5), and two Bethlehem doubles teams required tiebreakers to win their matches.

"There was a 10-minute moment where (the match) could have swung either way," Smith said.

Other Bethlehem singles players had less trouble with their matches. Dave Perlmutter, Nick Finger, Alan Lewis and Peter Cooley looked sharp in defeating their Shenendehowa opponents in straight sets. The Eagles also swept the three doubles matches.

"A lot of these guys played during the winter, so they showed a lot of dedication to the team," Smith said.

The win over Shenendehowa gives Bethlehem a leg up on the Plainsmen in the season series. The Eagles travel to Clifton Park to play the Plainsmen April 30.

"It's going to be tougher the next time," Smith said. "We're going to be at Shenendehowa next time, and the weather is going to be warmer."

Bethlehem traveled to Shaker Monday. The Eagles host Guilderland at 4 p.m. today.

Bethlehem's Matt Treadgold takes a swing at the ball during his singles match against Shenendehowa's Tony Piro in last Wednesday's Suburban Council opening tennis match at Bethlehem Central High School. Treadgold defeated Piro 6-1, 7-6 (7-5) to help the Eagles down the Plainsmen 8-1. With its 9-0 win against Colonie Central last Thursday, Bethlehem extended its winning streak to 16 matches, dating back to last season.

Weather plays havoc with sports schedule

By ROB JONAS

The effects of the snowy weather that plagued the Capital District in March continue to be felt by local high school sports teams.

With fields still thawing and drying, the baseball and softball teams at Bethlehem Central High School are still waiting to start their seasons. Boys and girls lacrosse has only played in scrimmages, and the track and field teams have had only a few practices outside.

"We're pretty much behind two weeks," Bethlehem athletic director Chuck Abba said. "All of our baseball games this week have been rescheduled for dates later in the season. We're going to try to start the schedule next week as it stands."

The situation isn't much better at Clayton A. Bouton Junior/Senior High School in Voorheesville, but athletic director Dick Leach said his teams aren't as far behind in their schedules as other schools.

"Most of the stuff was supposed to start last week," Leach said. "We had a few non-league games scheduled, so we're only one or two games behind right now."

The problems at both schools is the condition of the athletic fields. The snow lingered for so long that the fields are only now beginning to dry out.

"Today is the first day that we've gotten rid of the snow on the fields, but we still have snow on the softball field," Leach said. "I've got my (maintenance) guys working on the fields right now."

"The softball field is close (to being dry), but the other fields are still wet," Abba said.

The effects aren't being felt in southern Albany County alone. Schools to the north such as Saratoga and Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake were still waiting for the snow to melt as of last week, and many games in the Suburban Council have been postponed. That could create a hectic end-of-the-season schedule for Bethlehem's teams.

"We're going to try not to schedule more than nine games in a two-week period," Abba said. "We're going to try to spread them out to make it as easy as possible on them."

Anxious Blackbirds drop opener to Watervliet

By ROB JONAS

Snow kept the Voorheesville baseball team caged up a little too long.

In their first action on a baseball diamond, the Blackbirds showed little patience at the plate in a 7-5 loss to Watervliet in last Thursday's Colonial Council opener.

"Offensively, we struggled," Voorheesville coach Mike Paolino said. "Nine of the first 12 batters struck out. The kids were a little excited at the plate, but we made more contact as the game went on."

Like almost every other team, the Blackbirds (0-1) had been stuck inside their gymnasium while waiting for last month's snow to melt.

"That game was actually the first day we had gotten on a field," Paolino said. "Before that, we had either been in the gym or fielding ground balls in the parking lot."

Watervliet, though, found a way to get its team on the field earlier than the rest of the Colonial Council. The school plowed the athletic fields after the last major snowstorm in early March and kept the snow pack thin so that the Cannoneers could practice outside before the end of the month.

"The fact that they had gotten outside the last two weeks to practice gave them a decided advantage," Paolino said.

Still, Voorheesville found a way to stay close to Watervliet. After the Cannoneers took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the second inning, the Blackbirds scored single runs in the third and fourth innings to tie the game. Watervliet then put the game away with a four-run rally in the bottom of the fifth.

Mark Tidd pitched the first four innings for Voorheesville before giving way to reliever Steven Hensel in the middle of Watervliet's fifth inning spurt.

"For the first time throwing off a mound all year, I thought they did a great job," Paolino said. "We didn't walk many guys, and we didn't make any errors in the field."

Offensively, Voorheesville's Mark Murray drove in two runs with a pair of singles, and Colin Adalian added an RBI single as part of a three-run rally in the seventh inning. Bill Dolan went 4-for-4 to lead Watervliet.

Paolino is hopeful that the loss to Watervliet will not lead his Blackbirds down the same path that caused them to lose the first 10 games of last season. Voorheesville rebounded to win seven of its last nine contests to reach the Section II, Class C playoffs.

"My own personal goal is to get a couple of quick wins and get back to the formula we had at the end of last season," Paolino said.

It shouldn't be hard for the Blackbirds to duplicate that formula. The entire starting lineup is back from last year's team including three all-Colonial Council selections — Adalian, Murray and Chris Spina.

"With those three guys there and some of the juniors we have coming back, we have some high expectations," Paolino said. "We're going to try to raise the bar a bit."

The return of Spina and Murray, along with Kevin Vanderwarker, gives Voorheesville speed at the top of the batting order. Adalian, Kevin Massaroni, Josh Marks and John Berquist are back as the primary power providers.

"I think we have a nice mix of speed and power," Paolino said. "We have to look at each pitcher to decide if we would be better off trying to steal a base and manufacture a run or if we should try hitting a little longball."

The pitching will also be solid. Tidd, Hensel and Spina are back as Paolino's starters, while Vanderwarker, Greg Conklin and Adam Hatch form the relief corps.

"We have six young men who can go to the mound and pitch well," Paolino said. "They're not overpowering, but they are solid and they locate their pitches well. Those six arms are an advantage."

With a veteran lineup at his disposal, Paolino believes his team will be among the elite teams in the Colonial Council.

"We feel if we bring the right focus and the right intensity to every practice and every game this season, then we should be all right," Paolino said.

Dumping

proposed dredging project," states the draft resolution.

EPA plans to dredge portions of a 40-mile stretch of the upper Hudson of residual PCBs, dumped into the river from a pair of General Electric plants decades ago.

The resolution would authorize Supervisor Sheila Fuller to notify the agency, government officials including Gov. George Pataki and state Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Erin Crotty, or "whomever she deems it advisable" of the town's opposition.

"This resolution is not opposed to the dredging itself," Fuller said Monday. "It has nothing to do with that. It's opposition to our community being used for the deposit of the dredging material."

Indeed, the town faced its own dredging controversy two years ago when it sought to dredge the river bottom near the Schermerhorn Island water processing plant in connection with its still pending lawsuit over the facility.

"We need to protect the town," Fuller said. "There are a lot of rumors out there about where the dredging material is going, and we need to get out front with this resolution that we don't want it in Bethlehem."

The resolution was drafted by Town Attorney Robert Alessi at Fuller's request, following persistent rumors that one or more sites along the town's Hudson waterfront are being considered by EPA as a possible location for a 15-acre dewatering facility for the dredging project.

The facility would be used to spread out river sediment to dry, and to store the dewatered soil in preparation for shipment elsewhere.

EPA officials announced in December that two such sites would be required to carry out the dredging plan. While internal EPA documents obtained by the anti-dredging group CEASE have confirmed that more than two dozen sites have been evaluated for that purpose, the December EPA announcement indicated one of the two most likely to be selected was at the Port of Albany.

As recently as Monday, port General Manager Frank Keane maintained that EPA had yet to contact commission officials to directly discuss any site — and that no port property was suitable for a dewatering facility.

But in February, an EPA project engineer, Doug Tomchuk, said that the site his agency was considering "wasn't in the port district proper. It's a little bit south ... I can't identify the exact site because the port district is still negotiating with the property owners."

That has fueled speculation that a site the port commission is currently negotiating to acquire in Glenmont — a 55-acre former Texaco tank yard, now owned by Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., that was once the possible site of a controversial formaldehyde-processing plant proposed by Spurlock Industries — might be the one EPA has in mind.

Keane confirmed Monday that the purchase negotiations with NiMo are still in progress. But he has said that the port commission intends to develop the site "consistent with our master plan" to acquire property out of the main port district for industrial or warehouse development.

"It's not our desire to just take property and dump contaminated soil there (on the Spurlock site)," he said.

Fuller said she was aware of the speculation over the Spurlock site. She also noted rumors that an independent shipping company with property adjacent to the port, Port Terminal Ltd., may be negotiating to acquire another site in Glenmont that would, like the Spurlock property, also fit the EPA criteria for a dewatering facility — frontage and docking space along the river, access to rail and truck transportation, and a minimum 15-acre site. Efforts to reach Port Terminal officials were unsuccessful.

"There are definitely a lot of rumors out there," Fuller said. "Different locations are being named, but nothing definite. And if the owners of any land there are negotiating with EPA, we don't hear about it."

She has sought confirmation from port commission and EPA officials and others, without success.

"I don't believe anyone will confirm it at this point," she said. "I don't believe they'll confirm anything until the dredging plan is signed, sealed and delivered."

With the public comment period on the controversial plan set to end on Tuesday, April 17, and EPA officials promising a final decision by August, Fuller said it was critical to put the agency on notice that the town didn't want a dewatering facility anywhere.

"With all the rumors that are out there, rather than chase down which site the EPA has in mind, the best thing is to get on the record before it's too late," Fuller said. "This resolution applies to any and all sites in Bethlehem."

She declined to speculate on whether the board would pass the resolution.

"I think we'll find out Wednesday night," she said. "I've had a number of calls from board members about the resolution, and I think they feel this is a good move."

ASO rocks with Rachmaninoff

Popular Russian composer featured for second consecutive year

By JOHN BRENT

The Return of Rachmaninoff! No, it's not a grade B vampire movie — it's the popular composer's music that will, for the second consecutive April, be performed by the Albany Symphony Orchestra. This year the ASO will present Piano Concerto No. 3, featuring world renowned soloist Ian Hobson. George Lloyd's Cello Concerto will also be performed with Anthony Ross, the principal cellist from the Minnesota Orchestra.

Because last year's performance of Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2 sold out, this year the ASO will offer two performances of the composer's work. The first will be on Friday, April 20, followed by a Saturday concert on April 21. Both shows begin at 8 p.m. at Troy Savings Bank Music Hall.

Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 was written in and premiered in 1909. A popular piece among pianists, the selection was featured in the movie "Shine," the story of David Helfgott.

English pianist Hobson is considered an international superstar in concert music circles. His repertoire spans the centuries and demands a versatile range of styles and musical insights, not to mention an impressive technical virtuosity at the keyboard.

In the United States, Hobson has appeared with the symphony orchestras of Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Baltimore, Indianapolis and Houston.

Russian born composer Sergey Rachmaninoff (1873-1943) has become known as the last of the significant composers of the romantic era. He created an impressive body of work up until the time he left Russia during the October revolution in 1917, moving to the United States and concentrating on his career as a pianist and conductor. While more compositions were to come, his need to survive financially required him to devote himself to the more lucrative career of concert pianist.

There were about 135 compositions before 1918 and only nine or 10 pieces following his exile from his homeland.

The versatile artist was apparently torn between his various vocations and in 1933 said, "I have never been able to make up my mind as to what was my true calling — that of composer, pianist, or conductor ... I am constantly troubled by the misgiving that, in venturing into too many fields, I may have failed to make the best use of my life."

His misgivings aside, Rachmaninoff has left a legacy for music lovers that is enjoyed the world over.

He died in Beverly Hills just days before his 70th birthday.

The second piece on the two evenings, Lloyd's Cello Concerto will not be the first time the ASO has been associated with the composer. Born in England in 1913, Lloyd wrote his first symphony in 1933 at age 19. This was followed by two operas.

The torpedoing of the U-boat on which he was stationed during World War II left him shell-shock and traumatized. Despite failing health, he resumed composing but changing tastes in music left him on the sidelines.

By the late 1970s, a renewed interest in the composer's music gave his career added impetus and he began an association with the ASO as guest conductor and music director in the late 80s and early 90s.

He premiered two new symphonies with the ASO his 11th and 12th which were presented in 1986 and 1990.

Lloyd passed away in July 1998.

Ross has been a member of the Minnesota Orchestra since 1988. He most recently was featured in the Beethoven Triple Concerto at last January's Beethoven Piano Concerto Festival in Minnesota.

Before joining the Minnesota Orchestra, Ross served as principal cello of the Rochester Philharmonic and taught at the Eastman School of Music.

The ASO will be offering three pre-concert talks that are free and open to the public. The first will be on Thursday, April 19, at Albany Public Library on Washington Avenue at noon. ASO music director David Alan Miller will be present along with Hobson and Ross to discuss the upcoming performance.

Classical conversations will be held one hour before each of the two performances the Arts Center of the Capital Region on River Street in Troy. Miller will offer insights into the evening's musical selections.

Tickets for the concerts are $16 to $35 and are available at the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall box office at 273-0038.

Ian Hobson, above, will perform with the Albany Symphony Orchestra for two concerts on April 20 and 21 at Troy Savings Bank Music Hall. The music of Russian composer Sergey Rachmaninoff will be featured with his Piano Concerto No. 3.

Springtime comes to Indian Ladder Farms

It's spring at Indian Ladder Farms in Altamont and that means one thing — baby animals! Beginning Friday, April 13 and continuing through Sunday, April 22 families visiting the farm will have the opportunity to see chicks, turkey chicks, ducklings, goslings, bunnies, lambs, goat kids, piglets and calves up close and personal.

The farm is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and the babies are just one of the attractions for this time of year.

There is a petting zoo where kids and grown ups can interact with the friendly farm animals.

There is an additional $1 charge for this attraction.

A number of activities are planned for the Easter weekend, Saturday and Sunday, April 14 and 15.

Easter egg hunts will take place on both days at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

An Easter brunch will be served at the cafe on Sunday from 9:30 in the morning until 4 p.m. Reserventions are required.

On Saturday Elisa Streeter from Channel 10 will read aloud from stories from the Beatrix Potter collection. The reading will begin at noon.

Also on Saturday, Crackers the Trick Horse will be performing from 1 to 3 p.m.

Sheep shearing demonstrations will also be featured on Saturday April 14 and on Sunday April 22 from 1 to 3 p.m.

On both weekends of the springtime festivities youngsters can enjoy pony rides and families can have fun on a horse-drawn wagon ride. The pony rides are offered from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and the wagon rides from 11 to 4 p.m. There is an additional charge of $2 per person for the rides.

General admission to the farm during the spring and Easter events is $1 per person. The farms are located at 342 Altamont Road in Altamont. For information call 765-2956.

Congratulations to Cathy Griffin and our Delmar Office for achieving the highest per person production and the most closed units in our Company for the year 2000!!

"As we enter our 79th year as a company, I am amazed at the success and history of this organization. How does it happen? How does it survive the ups & downs of 79 years of economic pressure, both good and bad? The answer is obvious... our people, caring people, dedicated people, loyal people. It is interesting to me that certain folks seem to have more to give. Their view of excellence is forward...not backward. They see more that can be done, a better way to do things, more service to be rendered. Our award winners demonstrate daily all that is good about our business of real estate. I salute and congratulate you! There is no group of people working together anywhere who embody the spirit of excellence more than you do!"

Dealing with a dead battery crisis

You've parked your car with the lights on, returning to a run-down battery. Fortunately, there are jumper cables in the trunk. All you need is some kind of soul with a healthy battery and a few minutes for a jump start.

Not so easy to find, since many people are intimidated by jump starting a car, especially someone else's. They may have heard about sparks, explosions and damage to electronic components when clamps were installed incorrectly. A well-meaning passer-by can offer to help, connect the cables improperly and do serious damage to one vehicle or the other.

The directions that come on most jumper cables and information in your vehicle owner's manual warn the user to follow specific instructions when making connections. These five steps are:

Cold weather increases starter load and reduces battery output.

1. Connect the red cables to the positive (+) posts on each battery;
2. Connect the black cable to the negative (-) post on the good battery;
3. Connect the other end of the black cable to an unpainted part on the engine block, as far as possible from the battery.

4. Start the car with the good battery and let it run at high idle for a few minutes before attempting to start the disabled vehicle.

5. Remove cables in reverse order.

Following this procedure should cause no damage, no explosion and no problem.

Car Care Council suggests another jump start option that totally eliminates getting a boost from one vehicle to another, putting the driver in control of the situation. You can do it yourself with a self-contained power source, a compact device with its own rechargeable 12-volt battery, cables and virtually foolproof instructions.

Once started, can your car recharge its own battery? It depends upon the age and condition of the battery and how much driving you'll do before turning off the engine again. In most cases a few miles at normal speed will bring a battery back to useable condition.

A big factor in battery performance is outside temperature. A fully charged battery at 80 degrees F may lose a third of its power when the temperature dips to 32 degrees F. To make matters worse, due to thickening of the oil, it can take 50% more battery power to start the engine under those temperature changes.

The Council offers a brochure, entitled, "A Roadside Emergency: Would You Know What To Do?". For a free copy send a stamped, self addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Department WE1-EM, 42 Park Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452. New Inspection Service Deluges Auto Service Shops

Since the first horseless carriage went on the "pre-owned" market, experts have been asked to assess a vehicle's condition. Inspecting used vehicles for customers is a standard repair shop service, but an upscaled version now is gaining national attention.

Known as a Certified Inspection, this is a creation of the non-profit Car Care Council. It consists of a comprehensive evaluation of up to 190 systems and components of even the most complex vehicles. The service is provided by carefully selected repair facilities that must meet the organization's stringent criteria.

"We're delighted with the consumer demand this program is enjoying," exclaims the Council's Vice President of Marketing, Rich Davis. "One magazine article has led to more national acclaim."

Davis quotes the Federal Trade Commission's book, Buying A Used Car, which says "...an independent inspection before you buy can tell you if problems exist." Vehicles are becoming more complex and expensive, with owners thinking twice before trading up to a new or newer used vehicle.

How much would it cost for needed repairs vs. trading it in? With a modest investment the owner can make a more intelligent decision about his or her vehicle.

As expressed by Mark Moses, whose repair shop has performed dozens of Certified Inspections, "...this procedure often confirms for our customers that their cars are, indeed, worth fixing up or, in some cases, that the used vehicle they were considering for purchase has hidden problems.

"People really appreciate an unbiased, objective appraisal."

Glenmont

Half a mile down Route 9W at Town Squire Plaza, demolition crews last month tore down a pair of houses alongside Route 9W — making the plaza more visible from the road. The demolition also made room for additional parking, in anticipation of new tenants at the plaza soon, according to Bruce Ginsburg, vice president of the plaza's owner, Schuyler Cos. Ginsburg said the company is now "in conversation" with at least two likely tenants.

"We have real strong interest from a lot of tenants" for the remaining space, he said, and hoped to announce new tenants before the summer.

Martens cited persistent rumors that Price Chopper is one of those prospective tenants, but neither Ginsburg nor officials of Price Chopper parent Golub Corp. would confirm that.

"It's certainly good for Glenmont and the town to see the revitalization of that plaza, which I imagine our project may have had something to do with," Powers said. "I see it as nothing but a positive."

But, he said, "Traffic is certainly an issue, and that's what our traffic studies (in the DEIS) are concerned with."

Martens is more skeptical. "I'm not sure Nigro's traffic study took into account a dormant Town Squire, that's been inactive for 10 years, suddenly coming to life," she said. "I think they ought to take that into account."

Between the Town Center and Town Squire sites, two proposed residential projects now under review by the planning board could further complicate the traffic picture.

A 48-apartment complex on the site of the former Glenmont post office, called Glenmont Manor, was presented before the planning board last August and faced further review last month.

Owner Carmelo Crisafulli proposes five two-story apartment buildings, as well as 102 residential parking spaces, and retention of the existing post office structure as a rental office.

But three of the apartment buildings would be pushed back against the property's 25-foot rear setback line — parallel to several residential lots on Patterson Drive in the adjacent Woodhill Estates development. Several Woodhill residents last month wrote letters to the planning board in opposition, citing fears that buildings so close to their property lines would "wall in" their back yards. They also cited traffic impacts, loss of woodland habitat, potential trespassing on their property — and the probable impact of the project on Glenmont Elementary School.

"The proposed project degrades our neighborhood and will be perceived as such by other potential residents of the Glenmont area," wrote Steve and Colleen Morelli. "We don't want to have the reputation of a town of apartments with an unstable base of residents, but rather a town of solid neighborhoods."

North of Crisafulli's property is Casa Mia Restaurant, whose owner Muharem Cecunjanin proposes to subdivide the property, creating two residential lots behind the restaurant. Cecunjanin also plans to add additional parking spaces at the restaurant. The planning board took up the proposal on April 3.

The Albany County planning commission, which reviews any project adjacent to a state or county highway, recently looked over both the Glenmont Manor and Cecunjanin proposals, and on March 29 recommended to the town planning board that both be disapproved — citing "excessive traffic impact on a high traffic state route in an area with increasing congestion."

"All of this is a really prime example of urban sprawl — a lot of business development not in the main area of town, but adjacent to a city area," Martens said.

GETTING STARTED

If your vehicle will not start with the turn of your ignition key, the problem could be your starter. First, eliminate other potential culprits by turning on your headlights and trying to start your car. If the headlights are observed to dim while doing so, suspect a bad battery or corroded battery terminals. If, however, your battery and battery terminals are in good shape, you should hear the starter solenoid click with each turn of the ignition key to the start position. If after performing these tests, you are unsure of the problem, and your starter has over 50,000 miles to its credit, consider replacing it along with the starter solenoid, either as preventive maintenance or to correct the problem. This week's column outlines the steps you need to take to check if your vehicle's starter needs to be replaced. Has your car or truck survived the winter season? At BETHLEHEM AUTO SERVICE, we recognize that your vehicle is a significant financial investment. When you bring your vehicle to us, an A.S.E. Certified Technician will use the latest computerized equipment to detect any problems with the starter, exhaust system, fuel injectors and battery. For customers' convenience, we are pleased to offer shuttle service. Call 426-8414 or visit us at 62 Hannay Lane in Glenmont off Rt 9W behind Stone Ends. Business hours: Mon.-Fri., 7-6.

HINT: The starter turns the engine. If your engine turns over, therefore, the starter is not bad
