PSEG launches work at new plant site

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Gov. George Pataki joined Bethlehem town officials, local government and economic-development representatives and executives of PSEG New York to break ground for construction of the Bethlehem Energy Center, a $400 million project in Glenmont projected to be in operation by 2004.

"This is a wonderful day," said Pataki at the midday gathering on the lawn outside the existing Albany Steam Station electrical generation facility on River Road, which will be replaced by the BEC. "I hope it is indicative of the confidence global companies like PSEG have in the economic climate and future we have here in New York state."

The groundbreaking culminates years of regulatory review and negotiations between state and local officials and PSEG and its predecessor, Niagara Mohawk. It paves the way for "repowering" the Glenmont facility, replacing the existing 400-megawatt facility with a 750-megawatt gas-fired generating station while reducing its environmental impacts, from nitrogen oxide and sulfur dioxide emissions to the intake of water from the Hudson River.

"This state-of-the-art Energy Center will replace 1950's technology with a cleaner, more efficient facility, a step that will dramatically reduce environmental impacts while nearly doubling its electrical generating capacity," said Pataki.

The project also culminates a lengthy process of negotiations between town officials and PSEG, culminating in a 15-year payment in lieu of taxes (PILOT) agreement with the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency and the settlement of nearly a decade of tax litigation over the property.

"This is a very significant day for the town of Bethlehem, and we welcome PSEG with open arms," declared Michael Tucker, chairman of the IDA and master of ceremonies for Monday's groundbreaking. Also speaking at the groundbreaking were PSEG CEO Frank Cassidy and the company's Executive Vice President for Development Tom Smith, as well as Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller.

"What a great day for the groundbreaking, for what we have all been waiting for, for what only seems like 50 years," Fuller said.

Delmar residents petition for fewer trucks

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

A group of Delmar residents has petitioned the town board for "measures to help reduce the increasing vehicle and truck traffic on Cherry and Elm avenues," and Supervisor Sheila Fuller has pledged to schedule the matter for discussion at the town board's June 26 meeting.

The petition drive was organized by Cherry Avenue resident Brenda Askew and several of her neighbors in an effort to highlight neighborhood concerns about car and freight carriers operating between the Selkirk Rail Yards and points north and west that frequent the stretch of Elm and Cherry, otherwise known as County Route

Pint-size horse becomes leading lady

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

If you've noticed a pony at the Delmar post office recently, then you've experienced a "Panda sighting." Panda is actually a female miniature horse, and she, along with Delmar residents Alexandra Kurland and Ann Edie, are researching whether miniature horses can work as service animals.

Edie is blind and currently uses a guide dog. She also owns two Icelandic horses and an Arabian horse, and has worked closely with Kurland using clicker training to train them.

"Through my horses and clicker training, I had the knowledge that horses were intelligent and could be trained," Edie said. "Alex and I used to joke about training horses as service animals."

Alexandra Kurland with Panda.

When Kurland and Edie — who board and ride their horses at the Double V stables — heard about a miniature horse named Cuddles being trained as a service animal in North Carolina, their interest was piqued. They flew south and watched Cuddles in action with his human, Dan Shaw. They were impressed enough that Edie now has Panda, and Kurland is training her as a service animal.

Church to host lawn sale

On Saturday, June 15, Delmar Presbyterian Church will host a giant lawn sale to benefit local hunger, homelessness and child abuse prevention programs.

"All members of the congregation come together to make this sale possible," said Larry Deyss, pastor of Delmar Presbyterian Church.

The church first sponsored the sale in 1992 as a mission project to raise as much money for homelessness programs as possible in one day. The event became known as "Mission Possible," and the church became focused on achieving its charity fund-raising goal.

"Members of the Bethlehem and surrounding communities also really support this event," said Pam Taft, one of Mission Possible general chairpersons. "They donate wonderful items for the sale because they know that their donations help a really good cause. We have beautiful clothing, furniture, kitchen items and sporting goods — just to name a few. They are generally high quality goods that we are able to sell at very low prices."

The church held three collection days in May and early June where local residents could drop off donated items.

On the day of the sale, there will be a bag sale beginning at 2 p.m. All items unsold at that point will be available for $2 a bag.

The sale runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church on 585 Delaware Ave.

Ample parking and a snack bar will be available. The church is handicapped accessible.

For information, call 439-9281.

Park program offers varied activities

There are openings in the following summer programs at Elm Avenue park in Delmar.

Openings are available in pee wee and youth basketball, tennis, lacrosse, cross country, field and street hockey, Much Ado About Theater and Take a Bow.

Adult programs still have room in tennis, water works, morning Tai Chi and cardio and power pump, and there are still a few swim instruction openings.

For information or to register, call the park office at 439-4131.

Parks & Rec hosts weekend events

The Bethlehem Parks & Recreation Department will host two events this weekend —

Teen Luau for middle school-age students who reside in the town or the school district and a Father's Day Concert.

The luau will be on Friday, June 14, from 8 to 10 p.m., at the park pool. The pool will be open for swimming and a DJ will be on hand for dancing.

Parent chaperones are needed. Call Karen Hoogkamp at 439-4131 to volunteer. In case of rain, the event will be held in the warming area at the park.

Treat dad on Sunday, June 16. The Grateful Dads will play poolside from 1 to 4 p.m.

Admission is free for both events.

Coeymans woman receives probation in Stewart's case

A Coeymans woman charged with embezzling more than $1,900 from a Selkirk convenience store pleaded guilty to a reduced charge in Town Court last week.

Cynthia Anne Bush, 46, of 124 Buck Ranch Road, Coeymans, an employee of the Stewart's store at 1344 Route 9W in Selkirk, was arrested last November on a felony grand larceny charge, stemming from an internal investigation by a loss prevention officer for Stewart's. Bush was charged with stealing cash, food and beverage items and instant lottery tickets worth $1,920 over a nine-week period last fall.

Appearing before Town Justice Frank Milano on Tuesday, June 4, Bush pleaded guilty to a reduced count of petty larceny, a misdemeanor, and was sentenced to three years' probation. She was also ordered to make restitution to Stewart's for the full amount of the theft.

Police arrest Ravena man for DWI on Route 9W

Bethlehem police arrested a Ravena man last week and charged him with driving while intoxicated (DWI) in an Thursday, June 6, incident in Selkirk.

About 10:30 p.m., Officer Christopher Hughes observed a southbound vehicle on Route 9W attempting an unsafe left turn, in front of an oncoming northbound vehicle, into the parking lot of a Cumberland Farms store, according to police. Hughes stopped the vehicle and, assisted by Officer Craig Sleurs, administered field sobriety tests and a preliminary screening on Wayne Edward Hooks, 45, of 208 Beichman Road, Ravena.

Hooks was arrested for DWI, and ordered to appear in Town Court on July 2.

Caretaker reports burglary

Bethlehem police are investigating the possible theft of more than $4,000 in property from a residence on Greenock Road. A caretaker of the home reported the theft to Bethlehem police on June 4. More than $3,000 in Hummel figurines and more than $1,300 in silverware were apparently taken from the home some time between May 11 and the date the theft was reported.

Police are investigating.

Public to have say on WM proposal

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Two development projects in Bethlehem will face public hearings, as a result of meetings last week of the planning board and the zoning board of appeals.

The zoning board met and set an Aug. 7 public hearing on a petition by members of the neighborhood group BREATH challenging the siting of a regional operations center by Waste Management of Eastern New York in Selkirk.

Last month, several neighbors opposed to the proposed Waste Management site, currently undergoing site plan review before the planning board, filed appeals with the town building department that could halt the project. They seek to overturn building inspector Kevin Shea's April finding that the proposed use of the 148 acre site — an administrative office building, and a separate maintenance bay and on-site storage for company-owned trucks and waste-disposal bins — was appropriate for a "Rural not zoned" area.

In support of the neighbors' petitions, attorney Kathleen Martens, who with colleague Marc Gerstman represents BREATH, filed a legal memorandum with the zoning board, setting forth arguments for overturning Shea's findings as incompatible with the town zoning code.

"The code permits only residential and rural/agricultural uses as of right and commercial uses with site plan review in the rural district," she wrote. "The building inspector's expansive interpretation that all uses (even ones not authorized in other zoning districts) are permitted in the rural district is irrational and not supported by the plain language and structure of the code. If it stands, it could invalidate the entire code under the existing provisions of town law."

John Stockli, counsel to Waste Management, said, "We certainly believe (Shea) was correct in his interpretation. Other than that, we don't generally comment on pending litigation matters, including this appeal." Stockli has previously indicated in remarks before the planning board that he may challenge the neighbors' standing to file the appeal but declined comment on that last week.

The board voted to set the BREATH hearing for its first meeting in August — and set aside the entire evening's hearing agenda for the petition.

On Tuesday, June 4, the town planning board discussed the proposed Delmar Place Assistive Living Project of developer Henry Klersy — and resolved to set a date in the near future for a public hearing on site-plan changes for that project, the successor to the much-debated Epoch-CMI senior facility in Delmar.

The board did not set a date for a public hearing. But the members agreed that it would require one to air the developer's proposed site plan changes.

The project site at 467 Delaware Ave., a plot adjacent to Bethlehem Public Library, was designated a Planned Residential District and received building project approval more than a year and a half ago, before Epoch Senior Living abandoned the project. Klersy, who now plans to develop the project himself, sought a determination from the town board last month that the modifications he proposes to the site plan are within the bounds of the building project approval. The town board, which must approve the changes, referred the project to the planning board.

Planning board members raised a number of questions about the revised site plan, which includes changes in the property's screening foliage, the placement of driveways and drainage revisions. At least one board member, Marcia Nelson, also questioned whether the qualifications of the as-yet undisclosed management of the facility might represent a significant change affecting the project's approval status.

Of particular concern is Klersy's decision to relocate some air-handling and generator equipment from the roof of the building to an on-the-ground location nearer to the library property line. A representative of the manufacturer answered questions about the unit's characteristics last week — but the board asked for additional information on its noise impact on an adjacent residence and on the outdoor performance stage on the library green, as well as changes to proposed tree-plantings along the library property line.

"In concept, has the project changed? Not really," said town planner Jeff Lipnicky last week. "But when you take into account all the revisions that have been made, has it changed in execution? Quite a bit." For that reason, the planning board agreed a public hearing "is probably the wise thing," he said.

A hearing date could be set as soon as the planning board's next meeting on June 18 — when the board may also take up again the SEQR review of the Waste Management project.

In other action, the planning board granted preliminary site plan approval to a request by Geist Brothers Auto Body Shop at 43 Frontage Road, Glenmont to permit them to expand their vehicle-storage lot on the site.

BC board names fleet supervisor

By RONALD E. CAMPBELL

The Bethlehem School Board has appointed Alfred A. Karam as transportation supervisor effective May 28 at an annual salary of $62,000, according to Steve O'Shea, assistant superintendent for business.

Karam

"Al has had tremendous success as the assistant supervisor of transportation for our district, and we are pleased that he will now fill the top post in the department. He is constantly focused on organizational improvement, and his positive outlook and supportive style will serve him well in his new role," said O'Shea.

Superintendent Les Loomis, echoed those sentiments.

"Al has the wonderful ability to be very direct while exerting strong leadership, and at the same time develop a high level of trust and support of the staff," said Loomis.

Karam, 45, has been with the district for two years after completing 25 years service in the Marine Corp. Karam's military specialty was transportation and from 1982 to 1996 served as a transportation operations manager in the Marines. According to his résumé, he planned, coordinated, and supervised all motor transport, engineer operations and maintenance/maintenance management efforts for a unit with over 75 vehicles, engineer equipment and 80 personnel.

His assignments included two tours in Europe, three in Japan and stations in the Caribbean, South America, Western Sahara and South America. He has received a Navy-Marine Corps Achievement Medal for increasing fleet readiness from 76 to over 90 percent and Commendation Medal for successful coordination of over 900 vehicle commitments, moving 101,000 passengers and 15,000 tons of cargo in a safe and efficient manner in one calendar year.

Additional honors for Karam included a Meritorious Service Medal for establishing an aggressive vehicle safety program and a Legion of Merit for establishing several academic initiatives at the Staff Non-Commissioned Officers Academy.

Well grounded in the use of technology, Karam is comfortable using department computers in budgeting and scheduling of maintenance, routing and tracking of ridership to make the operation as efficient as possible.

"Since things change so much, I am a firm believer in checking processes to find ways to improve. I am always looking to improve things. My military experience and extensive world travel has prepared me to work closely with personnel in the department and the district," Karam said.

In his two years with the district Karam has been involved in all phases of the operation of the transportation department. As an example of his drive for efficiency, he has reduced bus out-of-service rate because of mechanical problems to less than five percent.

Town GOP backs Casale

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

The petition-filing deadline for candidates to seek office in the state Senate and Assembly was pushed back last week by the state Legislature, along with similar filing deadlines for congressional candidates — but the campaigns in the districts representing Bethlehem and New Scotland are already shaping up.

Incumbent assemblyman Pat Casale, R-Schaghticoke, whose redrawn 108th district now includes Bethlehem, has already obtained key endorsements in his bid for re-election from local Republican committees. The town committee in Bethlehem, now the largest single community in the 108th, was first out of the box more than a month ago in backing Casale.

"I appreciate them coming ought out and embracing my candidacy so quickly," said Casale. "Keith Wiggand (the committee chairman) has been right out front for me from the beginning, and so has (Albany County GOP chair) Peter Kermani. They really helped get the ball rolling. I think as a sitting assemblyman they knew my voting record, one of the highest conservative ratings in the assembly, and I appreciate their support."

His likely Democratic opponent will be a political neophyte, attorney Tracey Brooks of Coeymans, who kicked off her own campaign on May 30 and has secured the backing of several local Democratic committees, including her hometown party organization.

Let us now praise the non-multi taskers

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

It never seems fair, somehow. A woman carries a baby for nine months, after which her seemingly ruined-forever body turns into a feeding station. She then either puts her career on hold, or moves, untrained, into a whole new field of constant diaper changes and learning to interpret baby sounds that range from those a contented kitten might make to something like what a feral feline caught in a tree might emit.

After identifying each sound, she learns what to do for it, and her body adopts a kind of constant rocking motion that can bring calm, silence or sleep to her little angel. When she's finally able to venture into public, no accolades greet her great accomplishments; she is either invisible, or her stroller is slowing down the people all trying to get into CVS, or she is bluntly informed that she looks like hell.

But let a father pick up a child

COMMENTARY:

*Mom's
the

or take it for a walk, and the whole world responds with sighs and smiles, admiration for the man "babysitting" his own child.

Strangers might envision the lucky mother indulging herself in a facial or a manicure; in reality, she's probably just trying to vacuum up the dust kitties that have become the main decorating theme since a new human being turned a couple into a family.

In time, even the most sleep-deprived mother will come to realize that the man who made this baby possible is more than just a baggage-schlepper. He will learn his own style of child care, delighting our fragile infants with funny faces, and as they get older, roughhousing with them, and providing a neat sort of parental balance in the family. As Father's Day approaches, it's time to think about how to honor the man who brings levity to the family, figures one extra cookie after dinner won't ruin a child forever and kills any vermin that approach the house because he's a dad, that's what he does.

Advertisers offer us countless possibilities of what our men might want on their special day. We see men looking happy and buff in their new polo shirts, splashing through the surf in jams, manfully turning steaks on grills or, safely clad in clear plastic goggles, digging post holes, building decks or sawing something.

Men must groan to see those fliers on the table, wondering if their families will keep nudging them gently toward the man they want them to be. How does the joke go? A woman spends years trying to catch a man, then more years trying to change him. That's before children come along and change both parts of the couple even further. The real challenge of Father's Day is to find a gift that our husbands and fathers would really like, and not one that's a representation of what we wish they were like. A fitness buff friend once gave her husband a Christmas gift of sessions with her personal trainer. The beauty of this present was lost on the man who brings heavy cream to dinner parties to pour all over his cake. How many other gifts go into the closet of thoughtful but misguided gifts? In places of honor, though, are treasures that stretch back through the years. A Beanie Baby that's a duck, or a soccer bear, for the dad who loves both. A handmade necklace, a poem with a picture attached to it. An old photograph from a moment of silliness, long gone but never forgotten.

We can easily give all our dads and husbands a special gift this Sunday. There's nothing so great as time, in person, by phone, a letter or an e-mail. My children and I will spend the day with Chris. In my heart, I will think of my father, gone nearly four years now, remembering hours spent on a tennis court, on Lake Champlain or humming a few lines of his favorite song, "Fisherman's Green."

I'll give Chris the gift I treasure most on Mother's Day: no questions. I won't ask, "Do you know what this house needs?" and watch my dreams of new rooms, new wallpaper and a remodeled kitchen prompt an anxiety attack on a financial level. I won't ask if he can get a new season door on before mosquito season starts, and I won't ask him to bring the huge trunk that's been in the cellar for five years upstairs right this very minute.

Instead, I'll ask him questions about his favorite subjects — politics, soccer, the music of Charles Aznavour — and let the man who should have been a professor dazzle me again with the brilliance that made me fall in love with him.

The boys and I will turn the TV over to him for the day — and long for the time when manufacturers of that ultimate guy-gadget will make a findable remote. We will try to join him for some of his programming time, but even his male children lack his stamina and will have to leave him to enjoy solo that ultimate dad sport, channel surfing. I won't drive his car on Father's Day, reminding he won't go out on Monday morning to find the seat pushed too far forward for him to even get in the car and all the mirrors adjusted out of his sight range.

If the boys go anywhere with him on Sunday, they will remove all soda cans, half-chewed foodstuffs, napkins, empty candy boxes and tiny Lego pieces that have turned the family mini-van into a mobile garbage disposal. As I watch the children with their dad on his day, I will do some remembering. This was the man who held my hand and cheered me on while our children were born. He was the first to laugh in delight as he held them; he was the one who read the newspaper aloud to baby Christopher on his weekend mornings awake with him, and walked and hummed baby Cormac through too many sleepless nights.

This is the man who brings a new spin on things when my child-rearing skills have faded to black for the day, and this is the man who stays calm, talks with the boys for hours on end, and can always get them to laugh. When we marry our husbands, we have a sense of what great men they are. When we watch them father, we know it beyond a doubt.

BC board authorizes energy saving contract

By RONALD E. CAMPBELL

At its meeting last week, the Bethlehem school board authorized the district administration to enter into a contract with Energy Education, Inc. to implement a program designed to reduce and control energy costs for the district.

This is accomplished by analyzing energy usage and designing programs that will develop cost-effective energy habits by users of district buildings, both during the heating and cooling season.

"The district will immediately advertise internally for an energy manager to direct the program," said Superintendent Les Loomis. "The manager will be someone already employed by the district, and the individual selected should begin training provided by Energy Education as soon as possible. The South Colonie district has completed their first year of the program and already achieved considerable savings," Loomis said.

The board then conducted the first reading of the revised District Policy Manual. According to Robin Storey, board vice president, "This is the first comprehensive review of the district policy manual in 15 years. The review was completed by a committee composed of board members Lynne Lenhardt, Happy Scherer, myself and chaired by district assistant superintendent for curriculum, John McGuire," said Storey.

The committee was guided by the New York State School Boards Association, who offers a custom policy manual service and a custom policy update service. On the organization's Web site is the following statement: "Policy is essential for effective governance. The development and adoption of written policies related to the general management, operation, control and maintenance of a school district is one of the most important responsibilities of a school board."

The administration was authorized by the board to issue a Statutory Installment Bond in the amount of $1,109,400 for the purchase of school buses. The purchase was approved by district taxpayers in May.

The board also filled two key posts. Alfred Karam was appointed director of transportation, and Dorothy McDonald was named principal of Clarksville Elementary School.

Karam has been with the district for two years, after a 25-year career in the Marine Corps as a transportation specialist. McDonald has been serving as principal of the R. and E. May School, Saint Catherine's Center for Children.

The board also accepted, with regret, the retirement request of Richard MacKenzie from his position of special education teacher, effective Dec. 31, 2002. MacKenzie has been with the district for 29 years.

During the public part of the meeting, the board was addressed by Emily Wistar and several associates, all members of Students for Peace and Survival, urging the district to adopt a "Sweat Free Purchasing Policy."

The statewide group is supported by a religious/labor coalition in urging businesses to sign a statement saying they will not purchase goods produced by child labor or sweat shops. The student group informed the board the Guilderland school district has adopted such a policy.

The board is concerned about administering the policy and has asked the district administration to look into the matter and the students are to get more information.

The final board meeting of the current school year is scheduled for Wednesday, June 19, at 6:30 p.m. at the district offices on Adams Place. A board organizational meeting, to start the new school year, is scheduled for July 10, and a brief special meeting is scheduled for 9 p.m. on June 25 to designate an architectural firm to work with the district in the next school year.

Police investigate three accidents

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

Bethlehem police reported three traffic accidents in Bethlehem that resulted in injuries — the most serious a three-car rear-ending in rush-hour traffic on New Scotland Road.

That accident occurred on Wednesday, June 5, shortly before 5 p.m. at the intersection of New Scotland and Route 85, near the former Blue Cross building. An eastbound vehicle driven by Erica Rising, 25, of 1204 Cass Hill Road, Voorheesville, rear-ended another stopped at the traffic light, driven by 74-year-old William J. Pringle of 608 Morris St., Albany, which in turn struck the rear of another driven by Louis A. Pastina, 54, of 340 Scutt Road, Greenville.

Witnesses reported that Rising appeared to be distracted at the time of the collision. She was unhurt in the accident, but both Pringle and Pastina, along with two passengers in Pastina's vehicle, were transported by Delmar Ambulance to St. Peter's Hospital in Albany for treatment of various head and neck injuries and later released.

No charges were filed by Bethlehem police in the incident.

A distracted driver was also reportedly the cause of a midday accident on Monday, June 3, along Elm Avenue in Delmar.

Ronald Carson, 66, of 202 Derzee Court, Delmar, was slowing at the intersection of Juniper Drive to make a right-hand turn into the Adams Station development at about 2:30 p.m., when he was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by 16 year old Steven Brunner of Selkirk, reportedly distracted by the car radio. Brunner, uninjured, was not charged in the incident, and Carson was treated at St. Peter's for neck pain and released.

Another accident took place on Sunday, June 2, shortly before 3 p.m. on Kenwood Avenue, a block from the Four Corners, involving two Delmar motorists. A westbound vehicle driven by Dennis M. Lenhardt Jr., 20, of 101 Cherry Ave. was struck by another emerging from Adams Street, driven by 75-year-old Eric Leighton of 53 Lansing Drive.

Leighton was taken to St. Peter's Hospital by Delmar Ambulance for treatment of facial injuries. He was also ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way. Lenhardt was uninjured in the mishap.

Matters of Opinion

Flag etiquette

Since 9/11, American flags have taken center stage as a show of patriotism. Traditional flags flying on flagpoles have been installed on many front lawns or hung in windows.

But displaying the flag has taken on new proportions since 9/11. Flags are almost everywhere. People display the flag or sometimes several of them on car windows, bumpers and even on antennae. And some have taken to flag wardrobes, with head scarves, hats and shirts to show the wearer's love of country.

Right after 9/11, it was heartening to see so many flags displayed in so many different forms. But nine months later, many flags are tattered, torn and grey, which means the flags need to be retired and properly disposed of.

Right after 9/11, it was a source of pride to see so many flags, but now seeing frayed flags waving from the bed of a pickup truck makes us cringe a little.

With Flag Day coming up on Friday, why not replace flags that clearly have outlived their usefulness. According to the Flag Code, it is a violation to display flags in less than perfect condition.

Cloth flags can be taken to an American Legion Post, which burn the flags in a ceremony.

Other forms of the flags should simply be replaced.

What's best for dad?

Father's Day is Sunday. What to do? Should we go for the umpteenth time that will sit in a box forever or try to be creative?

Perhaps dad would simply like a day off or a day to be appreciated. Perhaps he'd be happy, if for once, one of the other family members mowed the law or cleaned out the garage. Or perhaps a break from the loud music would make dad's day.

Chances are, dad would appreciate just having the family together on Sunday. A simple backyard barbecue would probably suit dad to a tee.

Just make sure dad knows how much you appreciate him and all he does for the whole family. Sunday, is after all, the one day a year he can call his own. Make it special for him.

Happy Father's Day.

Tooth tug tugs at heartstrings

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR

The writer is a freelance author living in Delmar.

The tooth was loose, very loose, but not really dangling. My daughter, not quite 5, sat in her pajamas while my husband and I discussed what to do.

Aren't they supposed to come out on their own (and not until you're 6)? What if it falls out while she's asleep and she chokes on it? Why isn't there a reference book entitled "What to Expect the Loose-Tooth Years?"

Then I saw that her gums were bleeding a little. "It has to come out," my husband announced with authority. He reached into her mouth, gave a little wiggle, asked if it hurt, saw no wincing and tugged the tiny baby tooth out. Way to go, Dad!

At first I was a bit grossed out, but suddenly I became totally wowed by this event. The isolated act of removing a tooth is not so spectacular, but it caused me to take pause, to recognize how much this man actively and lovingly participates in the childrearing process, and how much comfort he brings to our family.

OK, it was a melancholy moment for me, realizing her smile will never be the same. And his actions also triggered an uprising of memories: the way he trimmed her newborn fingernails with ease, the way her infant self used to fit over the length of his arm, the way she rides up on his shoulders, the way he "warms up" her socks by blowing into them, the wooden rocking horse he built for her first birthday, the birdhouse they built together.

Jeff was only 10 years old when he lost his father, so it has always been particularly important to him to have a close relationship with his child, to build fond and lasting memories, to make known in no uncertain terms how much he loves her. He is succeeding splendidly.

Jeff and Rachel Sultor

So Father's Day is coming up, and my goal is to concentrate on those positive daddy qualities and scale back on my criticisms and complaints (You let her wear that to school? Did you make a vegetable? Why do I always have to be the one to remember a drink doesn't realize how the First Lost Tooth affected him. OK, so he didn't get choked up like I did, but after she'd gone to sleep, with her tooth packaged and tucked beneath her pillow, the tooth discussion continued.

"What if Rachel doesn't realize that the Tooth Fairy takes the tooth. She might be upset in the morning when the tooth is gone," wondered Jeff aloud. I told him I was pretty confident she'd be satisfied with the prize the Tooth Fairy generally leaves (four shiny quarters). If not, I reasoned, she could put the prize under her pillow the following night and get the tooth back.

and a snack when we get in the car? Can't you join me now in actively worrying about where she'll go to camp next summer?)

Instead of feeling pressured to make every decision (moms are

Then it was my turn: "What if she wants to know how the Tooth Fairy gets into the house and gets the tooth?"

"Oh, now that's easy," he said with a twinkle in his eye, "That's magic!"

What's truly magic is the way he let supposed to just always know what to do, right?), I'm going to try relinquishing some control (gulp).

Jeff is willing to make decisions (big and small) and take actions, so I really should admit that his way of doing things is acceptable (albeit different from how I'd do them). My own father refers to this as "broadening one's expectations" (rather than lowering them).

And although I do a heck of a lot of stuff for my child, I will only figuratively pull teeth, and I don't do nail trims. So I definitely need to let my husband know what a terrific father he is and how grateful I am for the many roles he plays in our family.

Rachel loves her daddy, but she won't truly appreciate him until she's a grown woman, and maybe not even until she becomes a parent. She certainly me sleep in the next morning while he investigated Rachel's 6:30 a.m. claim that the Tooth Fairy didn't leave her anything. (He located the prize baggy that had somehow slipped off the back of the bed.) Even more special is how a tug of a tooth tugged at my heartstrings and created yet another memory to smile about (with all, some or no teeth) on Father's Day.

Slingerlands area is focus of garden tour

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Wednesday, June 19, five very generous homeowners in the Slingerlands area have agreed to open their gardens for the sixth Bethlehem Garden Tour, sponsored by Bethlehem First and the Bethlehem Garden Club.

These gardens will offer both the expert and beginner gardener new ideas toward planning, maintaining and enjoying a garden. This year's garden tour offers theme, color, special style, arbors, small water gardens and ponds, different types of trees, landscaping hills, sunny and shaded areas and use of rocks and walkways, all done on large and small parcels of land.

Truly, Bethlehem is a special place. These five homeowners are joining 32 past garden tour hosts in providing their knowledge, skill and techniques for one evening, knowing the rewards to the community far exceed the 200 or so individuals on the tour.

All proceeds are returned to the community in three forms: the plant a tree program — to date 40 trees have been planted along Delaware and Kenwood avenues, the daffodil project — both residents and businesses are encouraged to plant daffodils throughout the town as this bulb is easy to naturalize and is not attractive to the abundant deer population, and planting and maintaining the flower boxes located in and around the Four Corners area.

Resident urges board to make 'best' decisions for town

Editor, The Spotlight:

If members of the Bethlehem town board fear the possibility of personal lawsuits when enacting their governmental responsibilities, how can the members function to make the best decisions for the town.

Surely, the board would be sued as an entity, not as individuals, and surely there must be insurance to protect the board members from such a possibility either way.

Waste Management is not wanted in this residential and farming community. Are the board members capable of handling this situation?

Thanks to classes for fund-raising

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to personally thank four classes at Hamagrael Elementary School who raised $352 in support of the Freihofer's Community Walk on June 1 to benefit AnimaLovers.

Mr. Schade's second/third graders joined Mrs. Townsend's fifth graders the first week of May and held a raffle.

On May 23, Mrs. Hepfer's first grade class and Mrs. Crawley's fourth grade class held a popcorn sale donating all of the proceeds to my walk for AnimaLovers.

These students put a lot of time and effort into raising money to help the needy animals in our area, and I applaud them — and their wonderful teachers.

Margy McKenna
Hamagrael Elementary School

We encourage every resident to join us June 19 from 4 to 8 p.m. Surely, you will be inspired by the gardens, and we hope you will want to start a first-time garden.

Your participation will in the future benefit the environment, add to the beautification efforts in town and make Bethlehem a finer community.

Tickets will be on sale on the day of the sale from 3 to 6 p.m. in Price Chopper Plaza at $10 per person. Driving maps and garden descriptions will be available. Remember to thank each generous homeowner for opening their "special" garden to be enjoyed and shared by us all.

School is grateful for support for fair

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Saturday, June 1, Bethlehem Children's School successfully hosted our first Wellness Fair.

A variety of vendors participated, representing the many facets of alternative, complementary and integrative health care. We would like to take the opportunity to thank them for the commitment they made to our school and to the community.

We would also like to acknowledge the support of Dennis Corrigan, who graciously provided the space at Main Square. We are grateful to Joseph Van De Loo and the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post 1040 for their donation of the tables and chairs.

Finally thank you to Bill Blake of ABG Building Corp. who generously donated his time and truck for hauling the aforementioned tables and chairs.

Carnival organizers say thank you

Editor, The Spotlight:

Slingerlands Elementary School recently held its annual carnival with much success, due in large part to our generous parent volunteers.

We feel we must include a very specific and public thank you to the Bethlehem business community for donating many goods and services to our raffle.

The children and their parents were thrilled with the many gift certificates and prizes.

We would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to: the Slingerlands Fire Department, Tom McGrath at Albany Theatre

Graduation committee seeks funds, volunteers

Editor, The Spotlight:

The graduation season is once again upon us, and the Bethlehem Graduation Celebration Committee is working hard to ensure that this year's graduating seniors have a fun-filled, nonalcoholic party after commencement.

This year, on Friday, June 28, from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m., the class of 2002 will enjoy festivities centered around the theme, "Viva Las Vegas."

In keeping with the annual custom, the new graduates will be given gifts and prizes throughout the night as they are entertained with games, entertainment, food and other surprises. All the graduates have to do is buy a $10 T-shirt as an entrance "ticket."

Tickets go on sale during lunch times at the school starting Monday, June 10. Scholarships are available for students who want to attend but cannot afford the T-shirt.

Although the school allows the celebration to take place at the school, this is not a school-sponsored event. All of this is made possible through the generous donations of time and money from parents, local businesses and other individuals in the community.

The celebration committee needs your help. We are in need of volunteers to help out at the celebration. Last year, more than 100 parent volunteers, two police officers, two high school teachers and three custodial and kitchen staff gave their time to ensure the success and safety of the event.

High school parents are now being called upon to make certain we have enough adults available. Please try to find some time on the night of June 28 and the wee hours of June 29 to help us keep our new graduates in a safe, non-alcoholic and fun-filled environment.

When our volunteer coordinators call, please say yes. You too will have a great time. Please call Joann Dawson at 475-2050 or Ginny Coulon at 475-1668 to volunteer.

Despite all the volunteer efforts and donations, we have received to date, the celebration committee is still in need of monetary donations to finance the evening.

If you have a graduating senior this year, please remember this celebration is for your child and your generous contribution to the event is necessary to make the event a success. Please send your donation to Lisa Plummer at 24 Huntersfield Road, Delmar 12054.

The celebration is successful each year because of the efforts of parents and the entire community. Please help guarantee a successful evening with your donation of time or money.

Despite snow, sale was big success

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the Bethlehem Garden Club, I would like to thank all the dedicated gardeners who came out in the snow storm on May 18 to support our plant sale.

Remarkably, we sold two thirds of our plants. With the support of The Spotlight's coverage and notification of our second sale day, we were able to reach our goal.

The annual plant sale is our only fund-raiser for the Bethlehem Garden Club scholarship fund. Each year, the club has given a high school senior student, who is pursuing further education in environmental concerns, a $500 education incentive award. Many thanks and sincere appreciation for the wonderful support. Hope to see you next year.

The Importance of Eating before Dental Appointment

It has been ingrained in most people never to eat before a surgical procedure. Most dental procedures require a local anesthetic with epinephrine. This type of anesthesia has a mode of action that lowers the glucose level in the blood. When patient neglects eating prior to their appointment, they tend to feel light-headed and may faint. Always follow all instructions given to you by your dentist. Remember that the best way to assure a comfortable dental procedure is to eat a healthy meal, before your dental appointment.

Friendship Singers to conduct auditions

Women who would like to join the Friendship Singers, who sing three- and four-part harmony and specialize in show tunes and inspirational numbers, are invited to audition to become a member of the group.

Rehearsals are held on Tuesday mornings throughout the school year, and performances take place both during the day and in the evening.

The 20-member group entertains mostly at area nursing homes and for church and civic organizations.

The Friendship Singers recently celebrated their 20th anniversary at a special concert held at Delmar Reformed Church, where they entertained a standing-room-only crowd.

Besides having some singing experience, prospective members should feel comfortable with simple dance steps as many of the group's numbers are choreographed.

To sign up for an audition in the fall, call Marie Liddle at 439-2360.

Bethlehem Public Library

Foundation.

The grant will support library programs during the remainder of this year. The foundation's announcement letter stated that this is the fourth year of their giving initiative to local libraries. The grants are an acknowledgement that "libraries are growing, vital centers of individual and community self-improvement; that local use of libraries has far outpaced the growth of available resources; and that libraries are critical outposts in giving everyone access to the Internet and the benefits of the digital age."

The foundation's stated purpose is to provide funding to support charitable causes and community development activities in an eight-county area.

Grants are awarded on a year-by-year basis. Grant applications may be submitted at any time; there are no deadlines. Organizations may submit no more than one request per year. Information is available at local bank branches.

The library is most grateful for this unexpected gift, and welcomes the opportunity to share information about the Hudson River Bank & Trust Company Foundation with the community.

Staff Development Day

A reminder that the library will be closed this Friday, June 14, for Staff Development Day. Books will not be due on that day.

Patrons can access our catalog and online resources from our Web site, www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org. The library will reopen at 10 a.m. this Saturday, June 15.

Five Rivers to present water festival June 15

An afternoon of watery fun for the whole family will be held on Saturday, June 15, from noon to 4 p.m. at the the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar.

Five Rivers Center is marking its 30th birthday and the 30th anniversary of the Clean Water Act with a water festival.

Meet live reptiles and amphibians, learn about the active beaver colony at Five Rivers or use a microscope to study the smallest water organisms.

There will be games, activities, and information about the benefits of clean water.

The positive outlook for fish and fishing in the Capital District will also be highlighted.

The program is free and all are welcome. Demonstrations and exhibits will be ongoing throughout the afternoon.

For information, call Five Rivers Center at 475-0291.

Board rolls over paintball request

New Scotland says not an accepted use

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

New Scotland's zoning board of appeals has splattered a Clarksville resident's application to permit a paintball games company to operate on his rural property.

The board ruled on May 28 on a petition by Howard Kerr, owner of a property adjacent to 140 Dominski Lane, a 14-acre tract off Rock City Road owned by Joseph Dominski. By a 4-1 vote, they found that the proposed use of the property as a temporary home for First Prize Paintball, a business seeking to relocate to Albany County from its previous location in Nassau, did not fit the accepted uses outlined in the town zoning code.

With the zoning board's ruling, town building inspector Gerald Gordinier said: "Mr. Dominski's application to the planning board (for site plan review) is now deemed void. If Mr. Dominski wishes to pursue the paintball application, he'll have to apply for a use variance."

He has not at present filed such an application, or any notice of intent to appeal the zoning board ruling.

Kerr last month challenged Dominski's site plan application, first presented before the town planning board in April. At issue: whether the proposed paintball operation — where teams take to an open field for mock combat, firing air-propelled projectiles filled with a non-toxic paint — fit the definition of a "private not-for-profit or public outdoor recreational use," an acceptable use for a property zoned residential-agricultural like Dominski's.

Gordinier, in forwarding the site plan application to the planning board for review, originally ruled in favor of Dominski. But at the May 28 hearing, former planning board member Paul Cantlin, a member of the committee that drafted the original language of the zoning code, testified that the committee had originally intended the word "public" in the code to mean governmentally sponsored, as in a town park or property held by a homeowners' association.

"Neither myself or anyone on the rest of this committee recommending this use be written into the Town Law, as a permitted use, intended that this use was ever to be used for any commercial use or profit-making venture," he said.

Relying on that testimony, the zoning board overruled Gordinier, finding that as a principally commercial enterprise, the paintball venture did not qualify as "not-for-profit or public." Board member Don Cootware, in his last meeting before departing from the board, cast the lone dissenting vote.

In other action, the board again postponed discussion of the application by Tower Ventures of Clifton Park to erect a 170-foot telecommunications tower on a site on Font Grove Road.

The board, considering the project since February, had sought site plan details and paperwork related to environmental review from the applicant.

"Some of that information was submitted on the day of the actual meeting," said Gordinier, "so the zoning board of appeals informed the applicant that the board would need time to review it."

The board put off resumption of the Tower Ventures hearing until June 25 — at which time it may meet jointly with the planning board, with which it has filed for joint lead-agency status for the purpose of SEQR review.

The board granted approval to Martin S. Flansburg to construct a 3,600-square-foot auto service building and auto sales business in a rural-hamlet zone at 1196 Delaware Turnpike in Unionville. The board approved a similar request a year ago, but that approval expired when Flansburg failed to submit a site plan to the planning board for review within a year.

With the new approval, "Now Mr. Flansburg has to go in front of the planning board for his site plan," Gordinier said.

The board also granted a variance to Steven and Lisa Marotta relieving them of the code requirement for a 15-foot road frontage for their property at 21 Westover Road, where they plan to build a residence. Their only access to the road is a private driveway traversing town-owned land.

In granting the variance, the board stipulated that any future conversion of the driveway to a public road will come at the Marotta's expense.

"It probably won't be an issue," said Gordinier. "But we wanted to put that in to make it clear the town taxpayers won't be paying for that somewhere down the road."

Spotlight On Gardening

Woodland gardens offer beauty with little maintenance

Do you recognize this picture? It's a house surrounded by shrubs, flower beds, a lawn and woods. The shrubs, flowers and lawn are all carefully tended but the woodland is mostly ignored—it's left growing wild. AB Hamlet said about the world, it's "an unweeded garden,... things rank and gross in nature / Possess it merely."

And that's a shame. For instead of an unweeded woodland—where dead branches lie wherever they fall and anything is allowed to grow wherever it wants—our woods could be lovely woodland gardens composed of large trees, handsome evergreen shrubs and shade-loving ground covers and flowers.

Instead of being the least attractive parts of our property, our woods could actually be one of the most beautiful—and for only a fraction of the time and money we spend on our lawns and flowers.

Woodland gardens, after all, are extremely low-maintenance naturalistic landscapes.

* They don't need mowing because they have no grass.

* They need little, if any, raking, mulching or fertilizing because their leaves and needles are left on the ground, where they provide natural mulch and fertilizer when they decay.

* They need little, if any, watering because they're kept cool and moist by their leaf-and-needle mulch and shady tree canopy.

* They need little weeding because their natural mulch and canopy inhibit other plants.

When deciduous trees leaf out in the summer, they provide shade, thereby reducing and sometimes eliminating airconditioning cost. In the winter, when the trees are bare, they let the sun shine on your house, thereby providing solar heat.

BC science students go to head of the class

11 excel in contests

By RONALD E. CAMPBELL

Eleven Bethlehem school district students, all from the high school's three year Science Research Course, have excelled in regional and national contests.

Senior Deborah Gordon-Messer was invited to present a paper entitled "Testing Recombinant Viruses as Inducers of HIV Specific T Cell Immunity: A Possible Therapeutic Vaccine Strategy for HIV" at a Junior Science and Humanities Symposium at State University of New York (SUNY) at Albany.

The conference held last questions from previous Science Bowls.

Sophomores Jesse Rasowsky, Christopher McFarland, Richard Boneventure and Seth Reinhardt won an honorable mention in the National Toshiba Exploravision in which students, working in teams of two to four members, visualize technology of the future. The students envisioned a quantum computer that functions by trapping ions.

This computer would be used as a high speed processor attached to a normal computer.

It would take data from a hard disc from the connected computer, do the processing and download the answers to the host computer.

The science research course meets daily for a three year period, and a student must be a sophomore to enter the program.

"The goal of the course is to help get the students to a point where they can conduct original research in a field of their own choosing," according to science research teacher Paul O'Reilly. "Students completing three years qualify for a SUNY program at Albany where for a $400 fee and four sessions a student can be awarded 12 full credit hours after passing an exam. These credits are often accepted by other colleges as well."

The goal of the course is to help get the students to a point where they can conduct original research in a field of their own choosing.

Paul O'Reilly

month, was sponsored by the university Department of Biological Sciences, United States Army, Navy, Air Force and the U.S. Charitable Ventures Foundation.

Only 30 students from the entire state were invited to present papers.

Gordon-Messer says her interest in HIV resulted from volunteer work she has done working with children afflicted with the virus.

She said she will continue her studies at Wesleyan University in Connecticut this fall.

Erik Turner, also a senior, entered a wind tunnel he designed and built, in the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair held at RPI in March. He used his device to study "the oscillations of smooth and dimpled spheres (golf ball) in fluid flow at various speeds.

He won "third honorable mention in the contest as well as the Eastman Kodak Award for excellent use of photography in a project."

Turner participated with his wind tunnel in the New York State Science Congress this month. Turner will be heading to Penn State in the fall.

Seniors Josef Kopchick, Michael Schwab and juniors Justine Bell, Zachary Levine and Dennis Miaw finished third at a Regional Science Bowl at Schenectady GE in March. The format of the competition, which is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy, Bechtel Corp., Delta Airlines, IBM and Texas Instruments, is much like the TV Jeopardy show, where teams of five compete in increasingly difficult 16 minute rounds.

The questions are wide-ranging and include subjects like biology, chemistry, physics, astronomy, earth science, computer science, mathematics as well as general science. The team prepared with weekly practice sessions competing with BCBS students Christopher McFarland, left, Seth Reinhardt, Jesse Rasowsky, Richard Bonventre and Erik Turner did outstanding work in science this year.

Dennis Miaw, left, Zachary Levine, Justine Bell, Deborah Gordon-Messer and teacher Paul O'Reilly were excited about science projects this year.

V'ville board OKs adult business law

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

The Voorheesville board of trustees approved a new local law governing adult entertainment businesses that might locate in the village, and created a commission that will make recommendations on the future of the public water supply.

The adult-use statute was approved at the board's May 28 meeting, following a public hearing held immediately before the meeting on two proposed local laws, one establishing zoning standards limiting the location of adult entertainment businesses, the other amending existing provisions of the zoning code to reflect them.

Drafted by a special advisory committee created last spring consisting of Trustee Camille Jobin-Davis, village attorney Donald Meacham and Planning Commission counsel Anne-Jo McTague, the new statute defines covered uses, from adult books and video to theaters to massage establishments.

It restricts any such future uses — none exist in the village at present — to industrial zones only, and bars them within 500 feet of any residence or residential zone, any other adult use business, or any of a list of other sensitive locations, from libraries and religious institutions to public parks, school bus stops and historic structures and districts.

Public displays, signage and noise emanating from adult use premises, which would be off limits to anyone under 18, would also be restricted.

Only a handful of residents appeared at the hearing — "basically, the board and the lawyers who drafted the laws," according to Mayor Jack Stevens — and no opposition was raised to the proposed statutes. "I guess it's not broke," said Stevens.

The board unanimously adopted the law, which will go into effect next month.

"We're not anticipating anybody, but if somebody came to us in the future and said they wanted to open whatever, now we have very specific rules on the books," said Stevens. "We're pretty happy with the results."

Future plans for the village water district were also discussed at the May meeting. Improvements are being planned along Route 85A linked to a new backup water tank that will raise the district's storage capacity by half, and bids on the project are being sought at present.

The proposed improvements raise the prospect of extending water service to more customers.

"What should we do with the district?" said Stevens. "How should we pay for it? Should we add other customers to the line?"

Several residential developers have expressed interest in joining the village system — including one proposing a small subdivision in the vicinity of Locust Drive, as well as Colonie Country Club, which made a preliminary presentation last week to the town planning board of a proposed 32-unit housing development on their grounds off 85A.

To discuss these and other issues, the board appointed a new five-member water commission made up of village residents.

"Right now, there's no start and stop date" for their deliberations, Stevens said, and additional residents may be added to the commission.

The board also voted to reopen discussions with the town of New Scotland over the two-year-old agreement to share the services of building inspector Gerald Gordinier between village and town. "It seems like a little too much for one person," said Stevens. "We're reviewing that with the town now."

Evening flower walk scheduled June 21

An evening flower walk will be offered on Friday, June 21, at 7 p.m. at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar.

June 21 is the longest day of the year, followed by the shortest night. Join Center naturalists on the walk to seek out some of the wild flowers in bloom at Five Rivers Center. The stories of some of the flowers in bloom will be shared. This program is free. Participants should dress for an evening outdoors.

For information, call Five Rivers at 475-0291.

Slingerland's doctor earns special degree

Lee P. Van Voris, M.D., of Slingerlands, the chief medical officer at St. Peter's Health Care Services, has been awarded a master of medical management services degree from Carnegie Mellon University.

The degree, conferred by only Tulane, Carnegie Mellon and the University of Southern California, was established to enable physicians to develop the unique knowledge and skills needed to manage medical concerns.

Van Voris joins an exclusive group of 323 physicians nationwide who hold the degree. He joined St. Peter's in 2001 after serving for 18 years at Hamot Health Foundation in Erie, Pa., including six years as senior vice president for medical affairs.

T'AI CHI

One creative way older individuals can cultivate fitness is through the practice of T'ai Chi. One of the martial arts, T'ai Chi is a non-impact aerobic activity that utilizes slow, flowing movements to build strength, flexibility, balance, and endurance. Researchers at Johns Hopkins University have studied the effect of T'ai Chi in a group of older adults with mildly high blood pressure who were not on anti-hypertensive medication. After three months, they found T'ai Chi produced declines in blood pressure comparable to those associated with more active forms of exercise, such as aerobics. Other studies, funded by the National Institute on Aging, show that T'ai Chi also reduces the risk of falling and improves grip strength in older people.

Many less-stressful forms of exercise, such as T'ai Chi or yoga, offer many benefits to a person's flexibility and health. At Good Samaritan Lutheran Health Care Center, 125 Rockefeller Road, Delmar, we're here to help you increase and maintain your flexibility, mobility, and ease of movement. To set up an appointment, give us a call at 439-8116 for more information.

St. Peter's honors Glenmont physician

William F. Conway Jr., M.D., of Glenmont, the chief of the department of medicine, was named Physician of the Year for 2001 at St. Peter's Hospital.

Lee Van Voris, M.D., chief medical officer at St. Peter's Health Care Services, said that the Executive Committee of the medical staff had selected Conway, a specialist in infectious diseases, based on his clinical excellence, commitment to St. Peter's and service to the community.

A native of Albany and graduate of Vincentian Institute, Conway received his undergraduate degree and MD from Georgetown University. After serving his internship and residency at Albany Medical Center Hospital and two years in the Air Force medical corps, Conway joined St. Peter's in 1974.

He served as president of the medical staff in 1984-85 and as chief of the Department of Medicine since 1985.

Conway serves on the advisory board to the Visiting Nurse Association, the Albany County Board of Health, on the faculty of Albany Medical College and as division physician for the State Police.

He chairs the board of directors for Our Lady of Mercy Life Center and Villa Mary Immaculate, both skilled nursing facilities that are members of St. Peter's Health Care Services.

In 2001, Conway served as interim vice president for medical affairs for several months before Van Voris joined St. Peter's.

Water Use Restriction Effective Now! All Water Customers Served By Bethlehem Water District Town of Bethlehem and Town of New Scotland

1.) Use of the public water supply for outside watering of lawns, shrubs, flowers, gardens, etc. is allowed only during the hours of 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. on an odd and even basis. (Properties with odd numbered addresses may water on odd numbered days and properties with even numbered addresses may water on even numbered days.)

2.) All new lawn installations that are watered from the public water supply, must comply with the odd and even watering restrictions as stated above. Property owners should consult with the builder or landscaper to try to select grass seed that is more drought resistant and consider using straw mulch (or other methods recommended by the lawn installer) that will help the grass seed succeed with the odd/even water restrictions.

3.) New swimming pools — permit for any new pool to include condition that water to fill the pool is trucked in from a private source.

4.) Existing swimming pools may be filled using public water supply.

5.) New underground sprinkler systems installed in 2002 (unless permit for system was issued prior to declaration of emergency in January of this year) can not be used until the emergency water restrictions are lifted.

The Town prohibits the use of the public water supply for nonessential uses, such as but not limited to: No washing down of driveways or walkways. (Use a broom or leaf blower); No washing of the exterior of buildings, unless required as preparation for painting.

DOT to present revised plan for Kenwood Ave. work

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

A state Department of Transportation project of resurfacing and pedestrian improvements for a stretch of Kenwood Avenue in Delmar will be the subject of a public information meeting June 20 at Bethlehem town hall — just two days shy of three years since DOT presented the initial design concept.

The long wait, according to Steve Szanto, design supervisor with DOT's Region One Design Group, stemmed from reductions in federal and state funding for major highway projects and delays in design and environmental review — prompted by a rethinking of the scope of the first major resurfacing since 1970 of Kenwood between Cherry Avenue Extension and the Four Corners. What has emerged three years later is a slimmed-down version, pared from its original $3.2 million pricetag to an estimated $2 million.

"When we originally met with the public, we heard concerns that a full reconstruction might have a very serious impact on the surrounding neighborhood," Szanto said. "We've scaled back the project as a result of that first meeting and the concerns of the people who live along Kenwood. We have decided to do the minimum structural pavement work necessary to improve the pavement surface. Basically the look of the job will be the same, but the construction effort will be somewhat less to minimize the impact."

Barring further delays, Szanto estimated that the design could be finalized next year, go to bid before winter and begin construction in 2004. But, he cautioned, "We're still in the preliminary design phase, and we're in the process of reviewing our budget and our entire program, so I can't guarantee that will remain the same."

When we originally met with the public, we heard concerns that a full reconstruction might have a very serious impact on the surrounding neighborhood.

The 7 p.m. meeting will include displays of section diagrams and maps outlining the project's details, as well as an overview presented by project manager Osvaldo Priotti, who replaced original manager Shireen Gifford after a promotion two years ago took her out of the Region One office. The leadership change, Szanto said, did not significantly impact the design process.

But a competing project by the Albany County Department of Public Works did: the proposed reconstruction of County Route 52, the section of Elm and Cherry avenues that extends from the Delmar bypass to Kenwood, the southernmost intersection of the proposed DOT project.

"One of the things that has been pushing this project back is the Cherry Avenue project the county is doing," said Szanto. "We didn't want to be under construction at the same time." The county project, he said, is anticipated to be under construction "by next year."

Kenwood's worn surface and its uneven drainage remain the chief targets of DOT's reconstruction program. As in the original plan presented in June 1999, sidewalks will be replaced or installed along both sides of the road for most of its length, but no new lanes will be added and the road, roughly 28 feet wide in most spots, will not be significantly widened.

The project also stops short of the Four Corners intersection at Delaware Avenue. A major redesign of that thoroughfare, also a state highway, has long been in the planning stages, though it is not in the current Transportation Improvement Program schedule.

"I don't know for certain whether that project is still on the books or not, but it wouldn't make much sense for us to do major work on that intersection only to have someone tear it up five years later," Szanto said.

Under the 1999 plan, which would have replaced much of Kenwood's sub-base as well as surface pavement, "I think we would have been affecting many underground utilities, many of which are quite old," Szanto said. "We were looking at a full new storm system. But we have decided the majority of the existing system we can retain. We think that by putting in a few new drainage outlets and improving surface drainage, and by installing curbing, we can solve most of the drainage problems. Where we think the drainage is adequate, we're going to clean the system as well."

A chief concern of Kenwood residents three years ago was the impact on neighborhood character if the project required removal of mature trees that line the road. More than a year ago, DOT crews removed several dead trees. "That's become a very big deal to everyone, including us," Szanto said. "We're very concerned with the project's impact on the trees."

So they propose a different approach than the usual cut-first, replace-later strategy. "We're going to try to do the mitigation before we get in there and do the highway work, to pre-plant trees where we think we're going to remove others, which is kind of unusual," he said.

Written comments or questions on the project will be accepted from those unable to attend the June 20 meeting until July 18.

Writing workshop for kids

Registrations are being accepted for Bethlehem Public Library's 11th annual Children's Writing Workshop during regular library hours.

Open to children entering grade three and up, the workshop will meet on five consecutive Fridays, beginning on July 12, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Participants will write, illustrate and bind their own books, which will remain in the library for one year. Registration is ongoing and in person only.

Participants must firmly commit to four of the five sessions. Adult volunteers are welcome. Call 439-9314 for information.

Groups make Bennett Preserve more user-friendly

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

A group of New Scotland residents and officials of the nonprofit Albany County Land Conservancy (ALCLC) gathered last Saturday to put the finishing touches on some recent public-access improvements at Bennett Hill Preserve.

The conservancy group, which acquired the 1,350-foot hilltop at the southernmost edge of the Helderberg Escarpment in 1999, has collaborated with a two-year-old Bennett Hill Preserve Neighborhood Management Committee to devise a management plan for the property that will encourage modest recreational use.

The improvements, the first fruits of that management plan, include the clearing of trails that lead to the summit and a plateau meadow about 950-feet up the hill; a freshly-mowed parking area off Bennett Hill Road, now marked by a wooden sign identifying the preserve; and an information and registration kiosk now in place at the head of the nearly two-mile trail.

The kiosk includes literature on the ACLC as well as local flora and fauna — and copies of a new trail map for hikers, showing the route to the hilltop trail that circles the summit and a small wetland just off the trail. "We've done some trail work, but we need to do a lot more," said ACLC member Dan Driscoll.

A century ago, Bennett Hill was a popular vantage point for summer visitors from Albany to view the Helderberg foothills. In private hands for decades, the property was donated to the organization three and a half years ago by its previous owner, a Columbia County dentist.

It's one of three properties totalling almost 300 acres controlled by the conservancy in New Scotland's southeast corner — including nearby Onesquehaway Cave, jointly managed by the Northeast Cave Conservancy, and the 148-acre Winifred Matthews Holt Preserve.

The Bennett Hill Preserve, an ACLC-owned 140-acre site just outside of Clarksville, recently qualified for assistance from the Wildlife Habitat Incentive Program (WHIP), a program of the U.S. Department of Agriculture administered locally through the Albany County Soil and Water Conservation Service at the William Rice Jr. Extension Center in Voorheesville. WHIP promotes efforts to improve wildlife habitats.

Driscoll said the WHIP grant will help support the partial clearing of a five-acre meadow on the intermediate plateau to improve the habitat for ground-nesting birds.

"Bennett Hill is not only a good habitat for ground-nesting birds and woodland birds, but it's at such a close proximity to seasonal migration routes through the Helderbergs that we think the preserve's going to turn out to be a desirable place for birding," he said.

Interest in the isolated site — reached from the Delaware Turnpike just south of Clarksville Road South — has been primarily local, so far. Driscoll said the trailhead improvements, and regular mowing of the parking area, should broaden that — and the kiosk includes a registration book for hikers that should help ACLC to monitor use of the preserve.

"I know a number of people have tried to find the site but couldn't," he said. "This will make that a little more possible. It's becoming a popular preserve already, but this will make it a little easier."

The neighborhood support group has grown to about 40 people, according to co-chairs Nancy Lawson and Tammy Cousins.

"The conservancy had already started developing trails before we got involved," Lawson said. "Our goal is to keep the aesthetics of the preserve intact and maintain the wildlife habitat while making it more available to the public. We'd like to have trails that are nice and passable and to have the plateaus cleared enough for views for the public. But one of the critical components of that is the clearing and cutting being balanced with the aesthetics of the site."

The trail-clearing effort got a recent boost from the town of New Scotland, which sent a work crew to the preserve during the Town-Wide Volunteer Day in early May.

"It's not a municipal resource, but it is a public resource," said Deputy Supervisor Kevin Jobin-Davis, who along with Supervisor

Ed Clark participated in Saturday's sign-raising. "In Clarksville, the school district has a public park," he said, "but otherwise, this is it in terms of public recreation."

The neighborhood management group and the ACLC leadership are working cooperatively on plans for development of the site. "There's some sensitivity on both sides about how fast to go, what happens when you start clearing, erosion problems," said ACLC president Mike Sterthous. "We're going slow, and that's a great thing."

"I remember when I first came up here. I didn't even know where the trail was," said Jobin-Davis. "The conservancy and the neighbors are just trying to cultivate this resource a little bit, to make it easier for the public to use and enjoy."

Church to host Bible school

Glenmont Community Reformed Church will hold a family Vacation Bible School, July 22 to 25, at the church at Weiser Street and Chapel Lane (behind Kmart), from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The program, led by Geoff Purcell, is centered around archaeology and will include an actual dig. The theme will be discovering Egypt and fleeing with Moses and Israel. The cost is $5 per family and parents must accompany their children.

Hikers enjoy Benett Hill beauty

By JOSEPH A. PHILLIPS

With the brand-new trailhead signs now hung, a small group of hikers — 11 adults, two small children and Sawyer, an energetic chocolate-lab retriever owned by Albany County Land Conservancy President Mike Sterthous — head for the top of Bennett Hill on a brilliant Saturday morning.

The narrow path is more beaten than cleared, with occasional downed trees to be climbed over and stones underfoot. After recent rains, portions of the trail were slick from rivulets of water draining from the shoulders of the hill.

Slippery footfalls notwithstanding, the entrance trail is an easy stroll for three-quarters of a mile or so as it skirts the grazing fields of Meadowbrook Farms and gently climbs. A moderately steep switchback up to about 950 feet leads to a downed tree marking the entrance to the midpoint plateau.

The group pressed on to the summit, through another brief stretch of mostly level trail to Tub Spring — where an abandoned old porcelain bathtub serves as a trail marker. Another steep upward pitch, to about 1,140 feet in elevation, emerges into a small stand of pitch pines — overlooking the first of several impressive vistas around the summit, this one gazing southwest toward the Helderberg foothills.

"I always like to stop here when I reach the top to catch my breath and admire the view," said Nancy Lawson of the Bennett Hill Preserve Neighborhood Management Committee, as she plunked herself down to savor the view at the foot of a particularly prominent pine — now designated "Nancy's Pitch Pine" on the brand-new trail maps.

It marks the head of a roughly three-quarter-mile hilltop trail loop around the summit.

Sterthous pointed out spots along the way where ACLC plans to remove a tree or two, or prune away a few branches, to open up the view below of farm meadows and, in the distance, the Helderbergs and the eastward mountains.

ACLC's Dan Driscoll leads the party off the trail for a look at a small hilltop wetland, but Sawyer finds it first, and dashes back to shake off his wet findings on the group. Back on the path, small patches of hilltop meadow open up trailside, an invitation to future picnics.

"I'd like to see this used in the fall to watch the hawk migration — just bring a lawn chair up here and watch," Sterthous said.

The trail back down is an easy, 20-minute-or-so walk from summit to base, a few more minutes for careful footing. It's an easy day hike for even the casual hiker, equipped with a sturdy pair of boots.

On the descent, the party passes Meadowbrook's cows, who have ventured closer to the woods to graze — and on the trail, a lone hiker headed for the summit, rare traffic at isolated Bennett Hill. He's a Clarksville resident; the new roadside signs, apparently, are already working.

Route 52, between the Delmar bypass and Route 85 in Slingerlands. Those concerns surfaced last year in the wake of announced road improvements to Route 52 planned by the Albany County Highway Department. Neighbors worried that the improvements would further encourage unsafe speeds and increase traffic volume through the heavily residential neighborhood.

"People want the road improved, they definitely want that," said Askew. "They're just afraid of increased traffic as a result, especially increased truck traffic."

Last fall, after those concerns were aired at meetings conducted by county officials to outline the eminent domain process for acquiring land in support of the road project, the town board lowered the speed limit along 52 to its current 30 miles per hour in an effort to reduce the traffic hazards cited by residents.

But with the completion of the eminent-domain process now nearing, residents remain concerned about what they say is undiminished truck traffic through their neighborhood.

While expressing appreciation for the speed limit reduction, the petition — addressed to Fuller, town highway superintendent Gregg Sagendorph and Michael Franchini, deputy commissioner of the county Department of Public Works — states, "Traffic calming measures are needed to help reduce the increasing volume of traffic on Cherry and Elm avenues."

The petitions were delivered in late May with some 60 signatures, Askew said — but are still being circulated and have garnered more than 100 signatures all told, primarily in the immediate neighborhood. Some support has come from outside the neighborhood, but the petitions have not been actively circulated beyond it, at least "not at this point," Askew said.

The petition lists several possible calming measures, including more closely monitoring speeds along the critical stretch and restricting or excluding non-local truck traffic.

The board declined to bar such traffic last fall, in the belief that it early results. Board member George Lenhardt, after hearing from representatives of the group, raised the issue at the end of the board's May 8 meeting. Expressing his belief, based on his own observations, that truck traffic through the corridor is now ignoring the posted speed limit, he said, "This board does have the authority to restrict truck traffic on that particular stretch" and urged that the board "consider something of a truck restriction, or come back and convince me that I'm crazy."

Askew said board member Doris Davis has also been contacted by the group and pledged to look into the question, and contact has been made with board member Tom Marcelle as well.

Fuller, after receiving the petitions, said she intends to bring the matter up for discussion and seek an opinion from board counsel Robert Alessi on the legality of the town imposing restrictions. She said last week

We just want a conversation; we want dialogue about what can be done. I believe we're not going to be able to stop local traffic, but what we're most concerned about is the cut-through traffic. We're willing to discuss anything.

lacked the authority to do so along a county highway.

But Askew and her neighbors cite in the petition state Department of Transportation officials who, they say, indicated that state vehicle and traffic law permits both the county and town to impose such measures — and the petition seeks "a commitment to have truck exclusions/restrictions put in place."

"We don't want to upset anybody or make a fuss," Askew said. "We just want a conversation, we want dialogue about what can be done. I believe we're not going to be able to stop local traffic, but what we're most concerned about is the cut-through traffic. We're willing to discuss anything."

The informal group of residents has also begun to reach out to members of the town board for their support — with some

AUTO FACTS

OCTANE BY THE NUMBERS

Always use the specified grade of gas recommended for your vehicle. The octane requirement is largely determined by the mechanical compression ratio inside the cylinders. High compression engines (above 9.5:1) generally need premium gas, while those with lower compression can use a lesser grade. Why? The octane numbers denote each fuel's anti-knock rating. Fuels with lower octane numbers burn more readily. Because there is more heat and pressure inside a high compression engine, fuels with lower octane values can cause a dangerous condition called "detonation," whereby the fuel ignites prematurely (before the piston is in its proper firing position) and damages the engine. And premium gas will not burn properly in a low compression engine, resulting in wasted energy.

This week's column highlights the importance of filling your gas tank with the gas recommended for your vehicle. At BETHLEHEM AUTO SERVICE, we understand that your vehicle is likely to be one of your most significant financial investments. We can provide you with guidance on how to improve its gas mileage and ensure a smooth ride. Our service technicians are A.S.E. Certified, which means Auto Service Excellence. This is a nationwide certification that guarantees that our technicians are tested and approved to do only top-quality work. Call us at 426-8414, or visit us at 62 Hannay Lane in Glenmont off Rt. 9W behind Stone Ends. Business hours are Mon.-Fri., 7-6. Happy Father's Day!

Dad gets shelled shopping with a pro

By RANDY WEISS

The writer is a graduate of Siena College now living in California with his family.

My wife is sick, but my daughter really needs to go shopping. It's not a pretty picture.

Like a desperate coach deep into extra innings, my wife has only one option — the untested reliever at the end of the bench.

In her plaid flannel uniform, she lays it on the line: "Come here, kid. Kelsey needs shorts. Take her to the mall. The sale is over tonight. Use these coupons. Get nothing else."

She speaks in crisp, emphatic sentences, lest she confuse the rookie.

It's clear that I'm overmatched. My wife doesn't want me spending a lot of money and knows our precious daughter will be trying to score big-time. It's not a winning combination, but I'm the only game in town.

"Yes, Coach," I respond to whatever she said. My head shakes uncontrollably like a bobblehead doll.

The challenge is on. Unfortunately for me, our 14-year-old enjoys challenges like this. She listens bemusedly as the ground rules are relayed in crisp, emphatic sentences: We are only buying shorts; we have to use these coupons; yada, yada, yada.

"Yes, Dad," she responds to everything.

Her radiant smile frames her golden hair and flashes trouble.

She wastes no time. Inside the juniors department, she's gone in a flash. My 360-degree Olympic head spin could beat Linda Blair for the gold medal.

A short time later, a mound of clothes walks towards me.

"Hi ya, Dad," comes an enthusiastic, muffled voice buried under a pile of sale dresses, jean thousands more.

Kelsey explains shopping's cornerstone principle: The more you spend, the more you save. While I pay, she's off to find matching shoes and save me more money.

When I find her, it costs $47.88 for platform shoes. Fortunately for me, the store is closing and further spending to save is avoided.

Once home, the short but steely coach wants a full accounting. The Boss eyes the large packages and zooms to the point.

"Those better be shorts," she says.

Like a relief pitcher walking in the winning run to lose the game, I meekly hand over the coupons and receipts, then it's off to the showers.

Meanwhile, Kelsey celebrates by exchanging a high five with her sister as she crosses home plate.

My final score: $327.33; no shorts; zero coupons used. I am in major-league trouble with my wife.

But Kelsey consoles me as I slump toward the locker room.

"Thanks, Dad. I love you."

This makes it all worthwhile, because even though I struck out as a careful shopper, I hit a home run as a father.

Kelsey explains shopping's cornerstone principle: The more you spend, the more you save. While I pay, she's off to find matching shoes and save me more money.

skirts and slinky tank tops.

My protest lands on deaf, covered ears.

Outside the dressing room, I miraculously find a chair. Thank goodness, because it spares me the misery wandering around the lingerie department carrying my daughter's strawberry handbag.

I later learn that sitting in the chair activates the flashing neon "ROOKIE" sign high above — alerting the shopping pros that an outsider is in their midst. Many wander over and applaud Kelsey as she struts around in each beautiful outfit.

We buy everything. It totals $279.45, but, I'm told, we saved

Horse

method that grew out of marker signals with rewards, first used with dolphins. When Panda behaves appropriately, Kurland clicks her tongue (although she started with a mechanical device), and gives Panda a treat. Kurland is the author of The Clicker Trainer, Clicker Training for Your Horse, and a video series called "The Click That Teaches." The positive training has reinforced Panda's good nature, Kurland said.

"The animal wants a reward and tries to figure out what it's doing right to get it," she said. "There's no scolding. When you use corrections with an animal, you're using a negative consequence, and an animal may get some tension or anxiety."

Kurland and Edie agree that Panda is a delightful animal to work with, and that she's learning her job well.

"Dogs seem anxious sometimes," Edie said. "Panda seems gleeful. She's not flustered by new environments, she loves puzzles and crowds, and she has a curious, bright mind."

Panda lives with Kurland now in a typical suburban setting. Part of Kurland's garage is a stable, where Panda goes at night, but during the day, she is with Kurland, including in the house. Panda is housebroken and rings a bell when she needs to relieve herself. She rides in Kurland's compact car when they are out and about, and Kurland spends a great deal of time walking Panda through situations Edie will encounter. As Panda approached the front door of The Spotlight, which was ajar, Kurland commented that Panda had never encountered this particular situation, and an impromptu lesson followed. Kurland bumped with exaggeration into the door, then let Panda back up and try the approach again. When she was successful, she got a click and a treat.

When Kurland first started walking Panda through the neighborhood, people streamed out of their houses to see her, she said.

"Their faces just light up," she said. "This is different than with dogs; people are less afraid of small horses than dogs." Kurland said it is hard to not be able to stop and talk with people, but training is work for Panda.

"I don't mean to be in that manner," she said, "but I have to let Panda complete her task so she can learn it."

Kurland and Edie emphasized that this is still strictly a research project, but there are some objective advantages to miniature horses as service animals as opposed to dogs, the main one being their life span — about 30 years. Even miniature horses are taller than dogs, and more attuned to overhead obstacles. At the Delmar post office, for instance, Panda walks Kurland around a protruding stop sign on the building. Without the traction that a dog's claws provide, horses' hooves detect ground surface differences better than canines' paws.

"Panda once stopped when cement went to brick, then to a pattern," Kurland said.

A horse's nature is not as predatory as dogs, both women pointed out, which means they don't have to be taught not to chase after a squirrel or scurry through underbrush. Panda also doesn't bark, nor does she jump up on people when she's happy to see them. Feeding her isn't more financially prohibitive than feeding a dog.

There are still many questions to be answered, though. Cuddles now lives in Maine, where Shaw works next to his home, in a rural setting where Cuddles can be outside for a large part of the day. Edie teaches visually impaired students at Bethlehem Central High School. In the past, she has taught in the district's elementary schools, where her first guide dog, Bailey, was a familiar presence to a whole generation of students.

"In the elementary schools, I could leave the dog in the classroom when I walked around the school," Edie said. "The high school is so big, I take my dog with me when I'm on the move. Is a horse suited to standing still and being unobtrusive for 45 minutes, then moving around, then settling down again?"

Both women are waiting to see how Panda does being indoors for a long period of time and how summer weather affects her. Panda is just one-and-a-half years old, and came to Delmar from North Carolina last September.

"We know how to live with dogs," Kurland said, "but we haven't worked out how to live indoors with a horse. Is this a healthy way for a horse to live?" Horses, Kurland said, are social animals, and Panda is attached to her and has equine time at the horse barn daily. "One of the big outstanding questions is how she'll do overnight and how you travel with a horse," Kurland said. "Horses also need to eat and relieve themselves more frequently than dogs do. Will that be practical?" Panda has been at the high school and at the Tufts Animal Expo in Boston, where she reacted to elevator rides, marble halls and crowds of people with her the equanimity Kurland and Edie have come to expect of her.

"I'm always impressed with how solid she is wherever we take her," Kurland said. "She's emotionally stable and very positive." Although the conclusive evidence may not be in for a while, it's clear that Kurland and Edie think Panda is one mighty fine animal. Watching the dignity with which Panda greets the oohs and ahhs she receives, it's easy to agree.

Unplanned time

As summer approaches and the school year ends, our thoughts turn to days of leisure — those famous "hazy, lazy days." Summer vacation offers the pleasure of "free time," which some of us may not have during the rest of the year.

Most of us certainly want to plan some positive and productive summer activities for our children. Lately, however, we hear and read experts extolling the importance of "unplanned time." They say some of our children do not have enough time to "just do nothing."

Many youngsters hurry from activity to activity. They go to school, do homework, play sports, practice music, learn about their religion, take dance lessons and learn karate. Are they missing unplanned time when they can just sit and think or dream? Do they have a few moments each day to stare at the ceiling and wonder? Do our children have time to relax?

Are some youngsters spending too much time in the car? Do they gulp down meals as they run from place to place? Are they overscheduled?

This summer, you might want to give some thought to allowing some space for thinking, dreaming and wondering. Plan some "unplanned time" and allow your child the opportunity to decide how to use it.

Umar, Douglas lead BC track at state meet

By ROB JONAS

Rafiq Umar missed a state track and field title in the long jump by a tiebreaker.

The Bethlehem junior had a leap of 22-feet, 10.25-inches in last Friday's Class A finals at Rush-Henrietta High School. The jump tied him with Northport's Terry Ross, but Ross was given first place for having a better second jump than Umar.

"He was very consistent," Bethlehem coach Dave Banas said of Umar. "All of his jumps the last part of the year were about the same distance."

Umar placed fourth in the Federation long jump last Saturday with a leap of 21-feet, 6-inches and took ninth in the Class

A triple jump with a leap of 43-feet, 8.5-inches.

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk's C.J. Berghela had strong performances in the sprints. He took third place in both the 100- and 200-meter Class B races.

Darnell Douglas and Rob Kuhn also had top-six finishes for Bethlehem at the state meet. Douglas took fourth place in the 400-meter race with a time of 49.70 seconds, while Kuhn finished sixth in the 1,600 in a time of 4:20.89.

"We were real pleased for them," Banas said. "They did a really good job out there."

Bethlehem's Emily Malinowski was 15th in the girls Federation 2,000-meter steeplechase with a time of 7:28.90.

BC girls lacrosse falls in state semifinal

By PHIL BLACKWELL

Loudly and passionately, fans of the Bethlehem girls lacrosse team cheered on the Eagles as it tried to take another historic step last Friday morning on the campus of SUNY-Cortland, just a half-hour south of Syracuse.

Deep into the second half, Bethlehem was in a dogfight with Farmingdale, the Section VIII champions from Nassau County.

But the Lady Eagles ran out of magic in the final 10 minutes, watching as the Dalers put up four unanswered goals to pull away and win 12-7, handing Bethlehem its first — and only — loss of 2002.

"The loss hurts," said Bethlehem head coach John Battaglini. "But the experience we've shared is pretty special."

Indeed, after years of dominating the Section II, Class A ranks, the Lady Eagles, ranked No. 2 in the state, earned their second ticket to Cortland in four years when they defeated Section I champion Suffern 13-7 June 1.

Now it had to deal with Long Island's top team. Farmingdale, the state's third-ranked team, was blessed with size and plenty of scoring capability — factors that the Lady Eagles hoped to neutralize early.

Unfazed by the pressure of the new setting, Bethlehem raced to a 3-0 lead on goals by Kristin Link, Katie Wagoner and Katelyn Primono.

But after Emily Cohen's goal gave the Lady Eagles a 4-2 lead, the Dalers started to put a defensive stranglehold on Bethlehem. Open shots vanished. Balls were poked loose from the sticks of attackers, rendering a potent attack lifeless.

Farmingdale was also prevailing in the face-offs with alarming regularity. That led to points, as the Dalers edged ahead 5-4 by halftime and continued a 6-0 run well into the second half.

"We were not winning the draws," said Battaglini. "And that was the whole game."

It wasn't over, though. Link finally ended the 20-minute drought, and her goal 11:52 into the second half ignited another Lady Eagles run. Wagoner and Primono both scored within two minutes, slicing the Dalers' lead to 8-7.

Here, the liabilities of a 17-player roster began to show. Battaglini wanted to make substitutions, but with a thin bench it was next to impossible.

Given a small chance to regroup, Farmingdale, like any championship team, ran with it. Jessica Patone netted her third goal of the day to make it 9-7, and the Lady Eagles would not score again as the Dalers closed on a 4-0 spurt and moved on to last Saturday's state Class A title game against West Genesee.

The Lady Eagles finished the season with a 20-1 record, including their fourth Sectional title.

SPAC offers variety for another exciting season

By DEV TOBIN

The Saratoga Performing Arts Center will once again host a wide variety of popular music acts as part of the FYE 2002 summer special series.

From the hottest contemporary rock acts like Nickelback to pop favorites like Barry Manilow to blues legend B.B. King to public TV star fund-raisers The Three Irish Tenors, the SPAC season has something for everybody.

This weekend's concerts are a good example of the breadth of SPAC's programming. On Friday, June 14, Harry Connick Jr. sings smooth, romantic tunes ($63, $43, $29.50), then on Saturday, June 15, '80s pop bands Bad Company and Foreigner share the stage ($35, $25, $19.50 lawn).

The following weekend, Nickelback plays with Jerry Cantrell & Epidemic on Saturday, June 22, ($35, $25) and Chicago plays its greatest hits in Sunday, June 23 ($45.25, $35.25, $17.75 lawn).

One of last year's highlights was the Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers show, with Jackson Browne opening. Petty returns this year (with no opening act announced yet) on Friday, July 5 ($55, $19.50 lawn).

The holiday weekend continues with Rush on Saturday, July 6 ($85, $65, $45, $30 lawn), and Dick Fox's Doo Wop Extravaganza, featuring Johnny Maestro and the Brooklyn Bridge, The Tokens, The Shangri-Las,

The Del Vikings and more, on Sunday July 7 ($38.50, $28.50).

Melissa Etheridge, with Meredith Brooks and Rosey, comes to SPAC on Sunday, July 14 ($82.50, $32.50 lawn) and Barry Manilow returns the next Sunday, July 21 ($85, $55, $45, $17.50 lawn).

The biggest shows of the season will probably, once again, be the Dave Matthews Band's return on Sunday and Monday, July 28 and 29 ($50.50, $35.50 lawn).

Bonnie Raitt and Lyle Lovett play SPAC on Sunday, Aug. 4 ($55, $45, $35, $19.50 lawn).

Hip hop stars Mary J. Blige and Wyclef Jean are next on Tuesday, Aug. 6 ($55, $45, $35).

Santana returns to SPAC, with Rusty Root opening, on Sunday, Aug. 11 ($68, $48, $38, $22 lawn).

Near-perennial SPAC favorites The Allman Brothers will play their Southern-flavored rock on Tuesday, Aug. 20 ($36.50, $26.50, $19 lawn).

The Irish Tenors, with two of the original trio, Finbar Wright and Ronan Tynan, play SPAC for the first time on Sunday, Aug. 25 ($57.50, $37.50, $27.50, $17.50 lawn).

And, so far, the season wraps up with the B.B.

King Blues Festival, featuring King, The Fabulous Thunderbirds, Susan Tedeschi and Albert Cummings, on Friday, Aug. 30 ($55, $45, $35, $20 lawn).

More concerts dates, especially in late August and early September, are expected to be announced in the near future

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers

For concerts where no lawn price is mentioned, there will be only amphitheater seating.

Most shows are at 7:30 p.m., the exceptions are the Bad Company/Foreigner and Dave Matthews Band shows at 7 and the B.B. King Blues festival at 6:30.

To help make concert-going more of a family experience, the following concerts are GE Kids-in-free shows — Chicago, Bonnie Raitt/Lyle Lovett and Santana. For these shows, every adult who buys a ticket can receive a free lawn ticket for a child under 12.

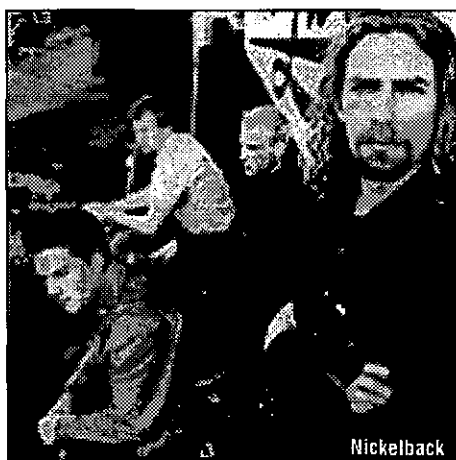

Tickets are available at all Ticketmaster outlets, by phone at 476-1000, and at the SPAC box office. Ticket prices increase by $2 on the day of the show.

For concert updates, call the Clear Channel hotline at 583-8998.

Participate in play-writing process

By DEV TOBIN

Besides its regular schedule of full-production plays, Capital Repertory Theatre in Albany also tries to encourage the next generation of playwrights with events like this weekend's reprise of its mini-play reading festival, The Basement Works.

Readings help playwrights develop their work, help Cap Rep make connections with new writing talent, lets audiences in on the creative process and keeps the theater active between shows.

The Basement Works offers four play readings, all by professional actors, but without costumes, scenery or action, over three days. The plays are very much works in progress, so, in many cases, the playwrights will be there to hear and respond to audience reactions to their work.

On Thursday, June 13, at 4 p.m., "Harriet Returns for Us" by Karen Jones Meadows is the story of Harriet Tubman's work on the Underground Railroad for slaves.

On Friday, June 14, at 8 p.m., "A House in the Country" is Peter Coy's new play about marriage, infidelity, obsession and abuse.

On Saturday, June 15, at 4 p.m., Richard Kalinoski's "Skin of a Lawyer" dramatizes a lawyer's review of his life after an encounter with a homeless person.

On Sunday, June 15, at 8 p.m., "Fuddy Meers," a farce by David Lindsay-Abaire, tells the story of Claire, an extremely forgetful person with a dysfunctional family.

A ticket for all four plays costs $10, $5 for students, teachers and senior citizens.

For information, call 445-7469.

 The effect that the tax levy has on the tax rate paid by District residents is a function not only of the levy (determined by the Board of Education), but also of property assessments (determined by the Town Assessor) and equalization rates (determined by the State Board of Equalization). The estimated increase in the tax rate (6.62%) is lower than the increase in the total tax levy (7.58%) due to growth in assessments on the tax rolls supplied by the townships. Any questions you may have about your property assessment or eligible exemptions should be addressed to your Town Assessor.

Looking for a Service Facility? Mystery Shopper Program Shows Details Are Key

Finding the best place to get a car serviced isn't always easy. But approaching the challenge with certain criteria in mind can prevent a costly decision.

For consumers confronted with this task, a few words of advice, "Pay attention to details," say the marketing people at Valvoline Instant Oil Change® franchisee in Connecticut and Eastern New York. They draw from the experience of their mystery shopper program. These shoppers are ordinary consumers who secretly "inspect" a facility as they have their car serviced.

"What mystery shoppers observe correlates with what is top-of-mind to our consumers," says Marketing Manager, Eileen Robertson. "We have a comprehensive evaluation and tracking system that asks nearly 4 dozen questions pertaining to every aspect of the oil change service."

"Our shoppers comment on subjects ranging from store appearance and first greeting, to how the service was reviewed. We want to know if a complete maintenance check was performed and whether service recommendations were based on vehicle manufacturer recommendations. These are things all motorists should ask of their service facilities."

"Questions about clean rest rooms or snacks in the waiting area we consider very important," says Robertson, "Even the smallest part of the picture is necessary to reveal the portrait. Basically, it's all about attitude, a get-the-job-done and get-it-done-right attitude. When our shopper notes something as simple as being out of coffee cups, it reflects on the store's overall management. The little things count for a lot. Pay attention to them."

In the end, Robertson suggests that motorists don't do themselves or a repair facility any favors by shrugging off problems, even small ones. She urges consumers to take their issues to a customer service person. "Most Retail Managers never hear from customers who are disgruntled. In fact, 96% of unhappy customers never complain, but 91% of them will not buy again from that business. If a customer airs his concerns, he's helping himself, other customers' and the business."

Stressed Out? These 13 Tips Help Reduce Stress Behind The Wheel

Kids can be a major source of stress on the road, with cries of "I'm hungry!" "He's on my side of the seat!" and "Are we there yet?" A portable entertainment system, like the Audiovox VBP2000 (shown), can keep kids occupied, so drivers can focus on driving. A portable entertainment system also can be moved from vehicle to vehicle, and it even works in hotel rooms, at tailgate parties and on camping trips.

"Everybody seems to be running short on time these days, so people are often in a big hurry when they get behind the wheel," says Sue Elliott-Sink, director of content for enjoythedriver.com, the consumer website from SEMA, the Specialty Equipment Market Association. "When you add in all the normal stresses of driving-like traffic, bad directions, even the sun in your eyes-people can wind up being nervous wrecks by the time they reach their destination."

That's why enjoythedriver.com has put together simple tips to help drivers turn their vehicle into a sanctuary of sorts and help reduce stress on the road.

1. Allow some extra time. Running late is one of the primary reasons people speed-and a major cause of increased blood pressure on the road today. Because traffic, car crashes, detours and other surprises can cause any trip to take longer than planned, one of the best ways to make driving less stressful is to allow plenty of time to reach a destination.

2. Make that vehicle a sanctuary. Everyone has the occasional rough day, but it is possible for people to leave business and personal cares behind once they slide behind the wheel. The key is to create an inviting, relaxing environment. For instance, an in-seat massage unit can help relieve sore muscles after a tough day at the office or at the gym. "Music also helps soothe frayed nerves after a rough day, but static as a radio station fades in and out along a route can be mighty irritating," says enjoythedriver.com. "The new satellite radio receivers solve this problem, offering access to the same programs all across the country. A CD changer also provides hours of soothing tunes, and sun visor CD organizers keep a change of disks close at hand. Even something as simple as changing into driving shoes or donning driving gloves can signal that it's time to shift gears and leave work or personal problems behind."

3. Stay cool. Getting into a scorching hot vehicle is enough to make any driver miserable, but there's really no need to get all hot under the collar. A remote starter will cool off a car or truck before it's time to get in, so makeup doesn't melt and clothes don't get soiled with perspiration. That remote starter comes in handy on bitter cold days, too.

4. Protect the interior. Spills happen, and mud or gum is eventually going to find its way inside any vehicle. Waterproof and spill-proof seat covers and floor liners allow parents, sports enthusiasts and everyone else who gets messy to stop worrying about their vehicle's interior while they're driving.

5. Clear up clutter. Map books, CDs, purses and all the other stuff that accumulates in a vehicle often go rolling around every time a driver turns or steps on the gas or brakes. "Not only are these items distracting, but they can turn into projectiles in the event of a crash," says enjoythedriver.com. "That's why it's so important to stash things inside a trunk organizer or cargo area organizer, or in a center console."

6. Keep kids occupied. Bored and testy children not only increase stress levels while driving, they also make it difficult for adults to keep their eyes and attention on the road. Having books and games handy-or having an entertainment system on-board-will keep kids occupied and allow drivers to focus on the task at hand.

7. Light up the road. Night driving can be especially tiring and stressful. Perhaps that's why car crashes are more likely to be fatal after dark. According to enjoythedriver.com, "To make nighttime outings easier, people can add a set of driving lights to their vehicle. These auxiliary lights provide a broader and longer beam, so they illuminate the road further ahead and illuminate the shoulder more than standard headlights." This gives drivers more time to react to obstacles on the road.

8. Get rid of blind spots. Changing lanes in heavy traffic can be stressful, too. A set of wide-angle mirrors can help drivers eliminate blind spots, making lane changes less of a neck-crane experience. Plus, outside mirrors with built-in turn signals will alert vehicles in those blind spots to an impending lane change.

9. Stop staring into the sun. Driving into the sun can be exhausting and dangerous, especially when the sun drops below the level of a vehicle's sun visors. Adding smoked plastic sun visor extenders can make it much easier for drivers to keep their eyes on the road during morning and evening commutes.

10. Keep snacks on hand. "Hunger can make many people irritable," notes enjoythedriver.com. "Instead of driving around with a bad attitude, they can keep snacks on-board. A small refrigerator that plugs into a power point or cigarette lighter makes it easy to keep healthy food and drinks fresh." It's especially convenient for parents and business people who spend a lot of time on the road and would rather avoid fast food establishments.

11. Avoid traffic jams. What could be more aggravating than getting stuck in an unexpected traffic jam? Fortunately, drivers can now get up-to-the-minute traffic information in their vehicle, so they can steer clear of snarls.

12. Don't get lost. Getting bad directions and getting lost are hugely stressful, yet very common, experiences. Having a navigation system on-board makes it easy to avoid the stress and locate virtually any destination, and most systems instantly adjust the directions in case of a detour. Some also include information on "points of interest," ranging from the nearest gas station or family restaurant to the nearest golf course.

13. Don't dread backing up. "It's tough to see out the back of many vehicles on the road today," adds enjoythedriver.com, "so it's no surprise that driving in reverse can be especially stressful, whether someone is parallel parking, trying to get out of a busy parking lot or negotiating down a narrow driveway. A backup warning system can make all of these maneuvers easier. It provides an audible warning that lets drivers know the rear of the vehicle is approaching an obstacle."

PSEG acquired the stream station property from NiMo in October 1999, taking on as well the Article 10 power station relicensing process already launched by NiMo, seeking approval of the state Public Service Commission and other regulatory bodies to convert the plant. That process concluded earlier this year with favorable recommendations from the state's Electrical Generation Siting Board and Department of Environmental Conservation.

Both Pataki and Cassidy offered words of praise for the "fast-track" process leading to those approvals — and Pataki took the occasion, with several state legislators present, to advocate for legislation he has proposed to further streamline the Article 10 process.

"And now the real work is about to begin," noted Tucker at the conclusion of Monday's observances. Construction will take place adjacent to the existing steam station and begin immediately, according to PSEG executive vice president for public affairs Neil Brown, and the completed plant is expected to be on-line by the fall of 2004, with the dismantling of unused portions of the existing plant to follow.

Smith announced Monday that Russell Arlotta, who oversaw the regulatory review process on behalf of PSEG, will serve as construction manager of the project.
