First in a three-part series.

When Bethlehem Central School District residents go to the polls on Dec. 2, they will be voting on the district's ability to effectively educate not only the current student population, but also those expected to flow into the district in record numbers due to Tech Valley initiatives, according to Superintendent Les Loomis.

While the total amount of the project is $92 million, the local share is less than $43 million after almost $53 million in state aid.

a very conservative approach because we wanted to make sure we did not overbuild," he said. "Tech Valley is right ahead of us, and we need to take a more aggressive approach. So this time, instead of taking the conservative approach, we are looking at the top end of enrollment."

Bethlehem Central, like most school districts, plans for its facilities needs by gazing into that crystal ball called population studies, Loomis said.

"We do long range planning with annual updates, and we are constantly monitoring these projections," he said. "In 1989, we added 28 classrooms based on the fact that student population would reach 4,500 by the year 2000. In fact, it reached that number five years earlier. In 1995, we added 22 more classrooms on the assumption that it would reach 5,200 by the year 2007-08 and then decline. Our student population is at 5,100 and there is no end in sight. Single family homes are being built at record numbers for the town and school district."

Loomis said the projects in the proposal are comprehensive in nature and were included after more than a year of study and planning by a broad cross section of community members and stakeholders. Driving the inclusion of technology improvements, renovations and infrastructure improvements was

Couple fear mt. lion attacked horse

By KRISTEN OLBY

Are mountain lions — animals considered extinct in New York state — roaming the hills of rural south Bethlehem? At least one Selkirk couple thinks so, and they're on a mission to warn others.

Carol Wilber discovered her 18-year-old quarter horse, Buddy, lying dead on his side in her Cedar Grove Road pasture last month. The badly mauled horse had what Wilber believes are a half dozen puncture wounds to the neck. The front of Buddy's face was ripped off and a chunk torn from his exposed haunch.

"I've watched coyotes take down deer, and this was nothing coyotes would do," said Wilber as she fought back tears, holding a picture of the horse she purchased when he was just six months old.

In early October, Buddy was left outdoors in a fenced-in field along with three other horses that Wilber and Rick Irving own. The couple contends the vicious death was the work of one, or possibly two, mountain lions. Wilber believes a mountain lion killed the horse by attacking its neck and suffocating the animal — she points to the lack of bite marks on the legs or body as evidence.

"It's not the work of coyotes, it's not the work of bobcats and you can ask anyone that hunts and knows how animals kill," said Wilber.

Buddy has been buried in the family's yard, but state biologists are unable to say exactly what killed Wilber's horse without conducting a necropsy, or testing for West Nile and rabies. State wildlife pathologist Ward Stone said he offered to exhume the horse free of charge and conduct the necessary tests but Wilber declined.

"A mountain lion would have returned to the scene to feed on a big carcass like that," explained Stone, who believes the wounds are the result of a post-mortem feast by coyotes. He surmised the horse, which was new to the field, may have been spooked by coyotes and fractured its neck on a nearby tree.

In the early 1800s, mountain lions — also known as the eastern cougar, puma and panther — were hunted to extinction in much of the east. They are considered to be an endangered species, living only in the western United States and Florida, according to the state Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC). An average cougar weighs between 110 and 180 pounds, is about seven feet long with a slender body, tawny-colored fur, short ears and a long tail. Cougars are solitary, territorial hunters that prey on deer, elk and occasionally domestic livestock. Adult cougars have no natural enemies.

Cougar sightings are reported each year, but DEC experts say most are cases of mistaken identity. The cougar is commonly confused with a fisher cat, which can also appear to be dark brown.

Kathleen Wagar is certain she spotted a mountain lion two years ago while horseback riding in the woods off of Rt. 396 in South Bethlehem.

"It was a cougar lying in a tree over a creek," explained Wagar, who estimated the cat weighed about 140 pounds. "I saw his huge tail, that's the first thing you notice," she said, adding there was no mistaking it for a fisher.

Friday night, police received a call of a mountain lion in the front yard of a Krumkill Road home in North Bethlehem. Bethlehem police were unable to locate the animal.

In rare cases, mountain lions have been sighted, according to DEC.

"Based on our experiences, it is safe to assume that these animals have been intentionally or unintentionally released by people. Contrary to some people's beliefs, they are not part of a native, self-sustaining population," according to

Monday a.m. q-backs replay election

By KRISTEN OLBY

The 2003 election will go down in history as one that brought sweeping change to town government in Bethlehem. For the first time ever, Democrats will control the town's top post and governing board.

Election results show Democrat Theresa Egan beat Republican town supervisor candidate Joe Catalano in 29 out of 30 election districts, by a lead of nearly 2,000 votes.

The dramatic loss is leaving some Republicans to question what went wrong, as Democrats bask in the limelight they've sought for so long.

Town police make 3 DWI arrests

Bethlehem police recently arrested three individuals for driving while intoxicated (DWI).

David Peacock, 45, of Route 158, Altamont was stopped by police on Nov. 1 at 9:01 a.m. after police received a report of a suspicious vehicle at the truck stop on Route 9W in Glenmont. Police located the vehicle traveling north on Route 9W. Peacock was stopped for switching lanes without signaling. Police said he failed field sobriety tests and admitted smoking crack cocaine earlier in the morning. He was also found to be in possession of crack cocaine and drug paraphernalia, according to police. Peacock was charged with DWI, driving while ability impaired by drugs, criminal possession of a controlled substance and other traffic infractions.

William McGee, 68, of 165 Delaware Ave., Delmar was stopped by police on Delaware Avenue on Oct. 31 at 7:18 p.m. for turning without signaling. Police said McGee failed to stop and continued driving to his home, where he parked his car inside the garage. McGee was charged with DWI and failure to comply.

Matthew Williams, 21, of Bennington Vt., was stopped by police on Elm Avenue in Delmar on Nov. 1 at 4:45 a.m. after driving through a red light and speeding. Police said Williams failed field sobriety tests and charged him with DWI and aggravated unlicensed operation. Williams' license had been suspended in Vermont. He was arraigned and sent to the Albany County jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Cops arrest RCS teacher for assault, stalking

By KRISTEN OLBY

An earth science teacher with the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school district was arrested for the third time in two months, after allegedly stalking his ex-girlfriend and assaulting a police officer.

Coxsackie police responded to a call of a suspicious vehicle in the area of Mansion Street on Nov. 5 around 10:30 p.m. Officer Patrick Lorenz spotted 42-year-old Donald Poe in the vicinity of his ex-girlfriend's house. Poe was arrested in September for allegedly breaking into the woman's home, and an order of protection had been issued on her behalf.

"The subject was out on foot, and the officer attempted to stop him," said Sgt. Brian Lutz of Coxsackie police. "A fight ensued between the officer and Mr. Poe, and they took him into custody."

Lorenz suffered a dislocated shoulder while Poe sustained minor facial injuries. Both were taken to Columbia Memorial Hospital, and Lorenz remains out of work.

Coxsackie Village Justice Matthew Kennedy arraigned Poe on felony charges of assault and criminal contempt, for violating the order of protection. Poe also faces misdemeanor charges of resisting arrest, stalking and trespassing. He was sent to the Greene County jail without bail.

On Sept. 11, Poe ran off from the scene of a car crash in Coxsackie launching a manhunt stretching from Greene to Saratoga counties. Police said Poe appeared to be intoxicated at the time of the crash. He later turned himself in to Corinth police and was charged with criminal contempt and aggravated harassment.

Judge Kennedy ordered Poe to undergo an alcohol and mental health evaluation.

Earlier that week, he had been charged with burglary after allegedly breaking into his ex-girlfriend's home where police said he stole jewelry and cut appliance wires.

Poe has been a science teacher with the R-C-S district for 19 years. He has been on paid administrative leave since his September arrest. Poe is scheduled to return to Village Court Dec. 17 at 6 p.m.

Deputies arrest man for assault

A New Scotland man is charged with assaulting his mother after allegedly throwing at a glass at her during an argument Sunday night.

Michael Smith, 44, was arrested following an argument with his mother at 124 Koonz Road around 6:45 p.m. Police said Smith ran from the home with a loaded gun and threatened to engage in a "shoot out" with officers.

Albany County Sheriff's deputies responded and combed the area surrounding the home for about 90 minutes. Smith was located in the woods with a loaded 22-caliber semi automatic rifle and taken into custody without incident.

He was charged with felony assault, reckless endangerment and resisting arrest, both misdemeanors. New Scotland Town Justice Thomas Dolin arraigned Smith and sent him to the Albany County jail without bail. He is scheduled to appear in New Scotland Court on Nov. 20 at 7 p.m.

The New York State Police and Guilderland police assisted with the investigation.

County Dems sail through election

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

The Democrats easily kept their majority in Albany County elections last week.

Incumbent County Executive Michael Breslin handily defeated Mark Mitchell for his seat by a margin of 42,029 to 20,910. Comptroller Mike Conners kept his job by beating Allen Maikels 39,561 votes to 7,885. W. Dennis Duggan got 43,627 votes for Family Court Judge. Three people were elected to coroner: Tim Cavanaugh with 39,078 votes; Philip Furie with 36,147 and Herman Thomas, Sr., received 34,890 votes. Lisa Coyne-Esposito got 20,984 votes, and Benjamin Meyers got 19,347 votes.

County Executive Mike Breslin, who has been in his position since 1995, was pleased to be re-elected.

"It feels great," he said, "and I'm looking forward to the next four years."

As with so many people in the Capital District, technology is foremost in Breslin's plans in his next term.

"With Sematech coming, things are wonderful, and really booming," he said. "We need to get prepared for that." Breslin is looking for his tech park initiative to come to fruition.

"A few years ago, we put forth a $1 million proposal to assist a developer with the infrastructure of a tech park," Breslin said. The initiative was not designed with a specific developer or site in mind, nor is it necessarily intended to be a prize for just one developer. "We want developers working with planning and town boards to be able to take advantage of these funds," Breslin said.

Breslin is also looking to expand the Department of Children, Youth and Families.

"That's the biggest thing that's happened since I've been County Executive," he said.

"We have a number of different entities reaching out to treat children as children. If a child has a problem, there's a statistical likelihood that other family members will have the same problem, and we'd like to get into the families to treat the individual and the family."

Breslin also plans to continue working on a new nursing home for the county, to replace the outdated Ann Lee and Albany County nursing homes.

"Renovating those buildings is not appropriate," Breslin said, adding that he would like to see a shovel in the ground by spring at the Heritage Park site.

"I'm happy to be re-elected," Breslin said. "I'm also happy that Theresa Egan was elected in Bethlehem. That will be very good for the town."

Bethlehem mulls idea of skate park

By KRISTEN OLBY

The smooth pavement outside St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Delmar serves a second purpose aside from being a place for parishioners to park their cars. Each day after school and on weekends, teenage skateboarders descend upon the lot to practice slides, grinds and ollies. The church's stairs, handrails and parking lot guardrails serve as an ideal place to hone their skateboarding skills.

"Right now we've got to go out and find spots and half of the businesses will only let us skate Saturdays and Sundays, when they're closed," said Andrew Mingo of Delmar. He and his brother Nick have each been skating for just over a year, and they say they're constantly in search of hassle-free skating locations.

While the church's rector, the Rev. Darius Mojallali, isn't thrilled with St. Stephen's serving as an impromptu skatepark, he doesn't shun the teens' daily arrival.

"We don't want them to hurt themselves on our property, but on the other hand, we don't want to chase them away," Mojallali said, adding that he encourages the kids to wear helmets and protective gear.

The Mingos may not have to skate on the run for long.

Bethlehem is now weighing the pros and cons of building a skate park and it's looking to other communities for input. Nan Lanahan, director of the town's

Parks and Recreation department, recently visited skate parks in Niskayuna and Rotterdam to see firsthand how the complexes are constructed.

"It's been in the back of my mind for a while," said Lanahan. "I was getting a lot of requests." Recently, she said, the number of inquiries has dwindled.

Rotterdam's fenced skate park includes a series of ramps and jumps open to both skateboarders and rollerbladers. The town opened the park in July at a cost of about $90,000 while Niskayuna recently constructed a skate park for roughly $110,000, according to Lanahan. Each municipality received a $40,000 grant from Schenectady County to help offset construction expenses.

A petition signed by 200 skateboarders facilitated the construction of the Rotterdam park.

"It's pretty popular," said Rotterdam Parks Supervisor John DeGeorgio. "On any given day you get about 25 to 30 kids coming in."

While Lanahan is exploring the feasibility of a park, funding is questionable and a location remains up in the air. Despite the parks' popularity in both municipalities, Lanahan questions how often skaters — a group, she believes, may relish having free reign in an open area — would use the park.

"Being in a confined, fenced-in area that's supervised may not be as desirable," she said, when compared to a vacant parking lot.

As the Mingos practiced jumps in the brisk fall air on a Sunday afternoon, their eyes lit up as they contemplated the construction of a skate park in town. The two concurred that they would utilize the park often, no matter where in Bethlehem it would be located.

"It's a place to go, a place to hang out and skate, a place where they won't bug us," said Nick, referring to adults, he says, who are constantly chasing the duo away from parking lots, schools and the steps of town hall.

It appears skateboarders aren't the only ones who would welcome the construction of a park — there's another influential force on their side.

"The town really needs to provide the kids with a skateboard park; I think that's really crucial," said Mojallali.

If the town can't make the park a reality, Mojallali may have to get a helping hand from up above.

RCS opens literacy centers

By KRISTEN OLBY

Literacy centers will open in each of the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk elementary schools this week, giving students greater access to a variety of books.

Lt. Governor Mary Donohue will be on hand at A.W. Becker elementary school for the formal unveiling of the centers Thursday morning.

The literacy rooms will offer teachers access to a variety of reading materials designed to meet the classroom needs of each student. Roughly $30,000 worth of new books covering a number of topics have been purchased. The books range from kindergarten to fifth grade reading levels.

"If you choose something that they're interested in, kids will like what they're reading, and learn faster," explained reading coordinator Denise Mulligan.

Teachers will use multiple copies of books to teach small groups.

The centers were paid for through a two-year $500,000 U.S. Department of Education grant that also funded other literacy advancement activities in the school district.

Senior forum honors lifetime recipients

In October, the Capital District Senior Issues Forum recognized 63 seniors aged 85 and older at its sixth annual Lifetime Achievement Awards ceremony. Held at Albany's Congregation Beth Emeth, the 23 men and 40 women represent outstanding examples of the triumph of the advances of medical science, vocational and educational changes of the past decades, and the contributions of the older generation to the success of our country.

The honorees have survived two global wars, the Korean and Vietnam engagements, the Depression, and the baby boom. The women, notably, were born before women had the vote. Government officials attending the ceremony included state senators and assemblyman; county executives; town supervisors and mayors. Representatives from many faith communities, many of whom had nominated the seniors, also honored the winners.

The Capital District Senior Issues Forum began in 1998, and is an interfaith and community initiative of individuals and organizations brought together to identify issues and advocate for older seniors living in a variety of settings.

Honorees from the town of Bethlehem were Thomas W. Dowling, 91; Billie Dye, 87; Mary Havern, 85; Lucille Knighton, 85; Judith Lamprecht, 85; Frank T. Lane, 86; James McKee, Jr., 85; Eloise Paddock, 85; and H. Craig Sipe, 86.

Edmund Heffner, 86, of Voorheesville, was also honored.

We love them so much, why do they get under our skin?

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

It should be a time of great joy, early November. The busy fall of getting kids settled into school is over, and it's not yet the holidays. Most of the leaves are down, and although the pallor of death is beginning to cover the land, it is still warm enough during the day that the NiMo bills don't look like they're being written in lira. The early nightfall should send us indoors, to light the first logs on the fireplace and sip hot chocolate after a brisk walk in the chill air. This should be a time of quiet, maybe of anticipation, as we await Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Somehow, instead of enjoying the moment, we move from one set of anxieties to another. Is this human nature or something peculiar to this fretful day and age?

At the weight-loss organization I've been bankrolling for the past few years, and for which they'll never make me a poster child, the talk has already turned to Thanksgiving. With much

COMMENTARY:

sighing and rolling of eyes, the two main "issues" have been addressed: the food and the family.

While food might be a challenge mostly for the overweight or those with medical issues, it seems like most people's families stress them out somehow. Maybe it's the fact that we all know each other so very well, that rather than let people's quirks amuse us, we let them get on our nerves.

It's peculiar that this happens, for really, no young couple ever says, "Hey, let's have children, then do all we can to irritate and aggravate them until just the thought of being together gives them hives." Nobody holds their tiny baby and sings songs of neuroses to it.

Parents lament their teenagers' "grmmphh" as answers to questions, and opting to be with friends rather than family, because we want them to be with us for as long as possible.

Why then do we sometimes make things more difficult than they need to be? I caught myself doing that last winter, when my grandmother was with us for a visit and I was trying to feed her and the boys before moving the kids off to their next destination — at a pace that Grandma's octogenarian bones will no longer tolerate. After I listed four kinds of soup for her to choose from, she asked for a fifth I didn't have, and I found myself exasperated.

Although I remained polite to her, I felt bad later that it had bothered me so much. So what that she usually eats minestrone, and I'd never noticed. Now we keep a can of minestrone in the pantry — and everyone knows not to even think about eating it.

Experts say that all those idyllic images of holiday and family set us up for disappointment when our own lives don't mirror those. Really, it's a blessing that we don't live in Hallmark commercials, if only for the fact that the people in those families wear way more plaid than is becoming on our fast-food nation.

So why do we project all those images on the people we love best? Why aren't they good enough the way they are? I feel guilty about that every day, as the molding and influen-cing of my children sometimes crosses over into territory that cries out, "Mom, get a full-time job!"

I am always wishing that Christopher talked to me more about his life or that he let me take a look at his homework before he hands it in. When I focus on the things that I want to change in him, I overlook the fact that he is a self-sufficient person.

It requires a great deal of faith to believe in a 13-year-old, but if he sees as much acceptance and confidence as he does guidance from me, he is more likely to find happiness on the road he's meant to travel in life, not the one I wish I could have traveled myself.

On the other hand, I'm always urging his brother to slow down when he speaks and to not giggle because I can't hear the words he's saying and to please sit still. Actually, we should be celebrating this child's exuberance — how great it would be if we all had such funny tales to tell that we couldn't get through them without laughing.

If we all look at the future when we see our children, maybe we're looking at the past when we're with the families in which we grew up. Sometimes, it might be best if we only looked at the present moment when we look at our family. We're all different people than we were as children — it's funny that we move backward a little bit when we're with our families.

By not staying in the present, do we create difficulties where there might not be any? Sometimes, families face big issues — histories of abuse, neglect, alcoholism, poverty, illness and things we can't even imagine. In the face of real problems, do ours look smaller, maybe more manageable? It's possible that the slight inflicted on us years ago by an unthinking relative was just that — a few words, not thought out. Can we make a choice between letting the grudge go or nursing the slight forever?

There was an old Wesson Oil commercial featuring that ever-perky mother of the Brady Bunch, Florence Henderson. While she lost only a tablespoon of oil cooking her chicken, she offered an old adage about treating company like family and family like company. In early November, when enormous meals and relatives perched on folding chairs are still a comfortable distance away, my holiday wish for all of us is that we can all bring some joy to the holiday tables this year.

Having a good time with the family will leave us all time for the things that matter most — like a second slice of pumpkin pie.

BC seniors earn merit honors

Ten Bethlehem Central High School seniors were named semifinalists in the 2004 National Merit Scholarship (NMS) Competition in September.

This year's semifinalists are: Richard Bonventre, Michael Dineen, David Farber, Cara Ferrentino, Molly Jaffe, Katherine Madden, Jesse Rasowsky, David Schwab, Andrew Shawhan and Matthew Tymann. They are among 16,000 students chosen from more than 1.3 million students who entered by taking the 2002 PSATs as juniors. About 15,000 NMS semifinalists are expected to become finalists, based on several criteria including an application, academic performance, recommendations and SAT scores. Finalists then compete for several scholarships to be awarded next spring for college undergraduate study.

Senior Shara Bellamy was named semifinalist in the 2004 National Achievement Scholarship Competition, which honors the top black high school students throughout the country.

Bellamy was also one of 22 BC seniors named commended scholars in the NMS Competition. The others are: Arthur Barnard, Kara Braaten, Carolann Edie, Jared Frisch, Michael Giacomini, Rachel Hathaway, Daniel Keefer, Christopher Lee, Adam Lenhardt,

Time for dignity

Residents of the Capital District drew a deep breath last week, when the elections of 2003 finally ended. The street signs that popped up on every corner, at every T-intersection and on so many front lawns are being cleared away, just like the fallen leaves.

What's left now are the choices we made. Some of those choices were complicated by the dirty politics that accompanied too many local elections. Generally, we expect better of our candidates, who are our friends and neighbors. If all politics are local, we hope that our candidates will reflect the values of our communities. Most of us think of our hometowns as being populated by people like us — honest, hard-working and fair. We'd like to see the same qualities in those seeking leadership positions in the places we live.

It's disappointing when office-seekers let political maneuvering, one-upmanship, name-calling and manipulative words replace open debate and honest answers. Sometimes, candidates forget that the people whose votes they're seeking are as smart as (or smarter than) they are and see through political obfuscations and accusations. Those who take the time to vote locally do so because they feel invested in their communities and want true leaders who realize the resources a population has to offer. No matter how small the town, treating voters like rubes or afterthoughts puts candidates on the fast track to defeat. Worse, some shenanigans put off voters altogether, who either stay home in misguided protest or go grudgingly to the polls to choose the lesser of two evils. That's no way to run an election, let alone a democracy.

Hopefully, candidates and parties successful and unsuccessful will use this post-election period to evaluate their strategies and tactics and figure out how they won or lost so that in future years we get slates of candidates who treat towns, their issues and even their fellow candidates, with respect.

Those of us who voted can take satisfaction in having done our part to keep our towns running the way we want. Democracy doesn't end at the polls, though, and it remains our job to follow the crafting of town policy and decisions and make our opinions known to the people we've chosen to represent us. It's incumbent upon us as citizens to maintain the same high standards we'd like to see in our elected officials. We have every right to disagree but doing so without attacking anyone personally and being willing to listen to the other side, will get us all to the common good more quickly.

We wish the best to the area's newly elected or re-elected officials, and hope that they will put that common good ahead of their personal agendas when they take their oaths of office in January.

Alzheimer's affects millions

By MARVIN R. LeROY Jr.

The writer is president and CEO of the Alzheimer's Association's Northeastern New York affiliate.

Many things come from our Census data, most of it positive, but when the incidence of disease is directly related to specific age demographics, we begin to realize numbers that are anything but positive. Such is the case with Alzheimer's disease. The 2000 Census yet again revealed the continuing "aging of America," a phenomenon that is not scheduled to reverse itself anytime soon.

In fact, there are now 5 million Americans diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease — a number that will grow to some 16 million by mid-century, absent prevention and cure.

Without considering any of the other logical repercussions associated with this reality, we need only consider that this incredible number of our fellow citizens will alone bankrupt the Medicaid system as we currently know it.

Simply put, we have uncovered a ticking time bomb that demands immediate and focused attention by everyone who cares about our country.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, irreversible neurological disorder.

It is a degenerative disease that attacks the brain and results in impaired memory, thinking and behavior.

Alzheimer's disease usually develops gradually. Problems remembering recent events and difficulty performing tasks are early symptoms.

Additionally, the Alzheimer's patient may experience confusion, personality change, impaired judgment and difficulty finding words, finishing thoughts or following directions.

How quickly these changes occur will vary from person to person but the disease eventually leaves its victims totally unable to care for themselves.

Alzheimer's disease is more likely to occur as a person gets older. Approximately 10 percent of the population over age 65 is afflicted with probable Alzheimer's disease.

This percentage rises to just under 50 percent in those over the age of 85, which is the fastest growing segment of the U.S. population.

The disease is the fourth-leading cause of death in adults and currently ranks as the third most expensive illness to treat in America.

While it is generally the very old who are impacted by this devastating disease, a growing number of cases involving people in their 40s and 50s are being diagnosed.

It is important to acknowledge that this disease also affects the families of persons afflicted with Alzheimer's.

The emotional, social and financial cost of caring for an Alzheimer's patient is often formidable.

It is for this reason that the work of the Alzheimer's Association is viewed as being critical, and that early diagnosis is imperative.

Significant research advances in the study of Alzheimer's disease are seemingly announced each week. However, definitive findings in all areas are still slow in development toward universal application.

With five drugs currently approved by the FDA, and a number of second generation drugs in various phases of clinical reviews, the future of pharmaceutical therapies is more promising than ever.

At this time, these drug advances are centered around enhancing the brain's capacity to best utilize properly functioning cells at their highest levels. Nothing has emerged as yet to begin a reversal of the degenerative process associated with Alzheimer's disease.

Also, much of the research currently taking place is focused on predictive testing for Alzheimer's, as well as alternative therapies that enhance quality of life until prevention and cure are found. In any case, all therapies are greatly enhanced when diagnosis of the disease is determined at the earliest possible time.

The Alzheimer's Association has for more than 20 years assumed the role of the nation's leader in influencing government policy, raising funds in support of Alzheimer's and related dementia research and ensuring quality care and support for the person with Alzheimer's and their caregivers.

We take very seriously our dualistic mission "to provide leadership to eliminate Alzheimer's disease through the advancement of research, while enhancing care and support for individuals and their families."

To this end, the association stands as the world leader in financial contributions from private sources to Alzheimer's research — almost $20 million annually.

As well, it provides a national network of regional affiliates in 80 regions of the country with more than 350 community-based offices.

The association's Northeastern New York regional affiliate, separately incorporated in New York state, serves a 17-county area in the northeastern most corner of the state. Some 1.5 million people reside within our counties, and approximately 35,000 individuals suffer from the challenges presented by Alzheimer's disease.

We focus our efforts on public awareness, education, support and public policy advocacy for individuals and their families and have in the past few years, begun to raise funds exclusively targeted for support of research endeavors.

The chapter's programs and services team specifically offers more than 40 support groups, for both caregivers and persons with the disease; a telephone helpline that provides information, referral and emotional support to callers; the Safe Return program, a national registry designed to assist in the return of individuals to their homes; education and training programs for families and professionals; numerous advocacy and public policy initiatives; quarterly newsletters; a speaker's bureau; a respite care certification and registry program; and a resource center filled with books, videos and articles available for loan and/or purchase.

These services and programs are available to all of the families and professionals caring for individuals with Alzheimer's disease within our territory, which we serve from four regional offices.

These offices are located in Albany (corporate headquarters), Oneonta, Plattsburgh and Queensbury.

Each fall season, we celebrate our Season To Remember — which includes National Alzheimer's Disease Month in November — and fill our calendars with expanded program offerings around each of our four regions. This is the best time of the year to find a program nearby and to get out and learn more about Alzheimer's and related dementia and their all-too-often devastating affects on the families they touch.

Anyone who wants to learn more about our work or wants information and guidance to face the challenges of Alzheimer's and other dementia, is encouraged to contact us at 1-800-303-2218.

Information is also available on our Web site, www.alzneny.org.

Votes should be for people not political parties

Editor, The Spotlight:

For the 34 years I have lived in Bethlehem I have voted with pride and consistency. I have, and will, vote for people, not political parties.

Prior to voting last week, I made a decision to not vote for any candidate of any party who did not respond to the information request from the League of Women Voters. Nor would I vote for any candidate of any party who did not sign the fair campaign practices pledge.

As a result, I voted for only one of two slots on the town council and no candidate for judge.

Why should I vote for someone who cannot take the time to respect my vote? How well will a person who cannot take time to fill out a nonpartisan questionnaire or sign a simple fair practices pledge serve the people of the town or county they are elected to represent?

To repeat, I vote for people, not political parties. Political parties always seem to make the "other" wrong regardless of truth, facts or competency.

To the leaders of any political party, I ask this question: Are you serving us, the voting public, or yourselves when you shun the people of your own party who have ideas and programs that are not 100 percent along your "party line?"

Tax receiver says thank you

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to thank Bethlehem voters for re-electing me to the office of receiver of taxes.

Your vote is a wonderful endorsement of all the hard work achieved by the employees in the tax office.

Thank you for being so kind to me when I was going door to door. Thank you for the offers of a cold drink during the warm weather, and an umbrella when it was raining. Thanks also for the pleasant conversation and good, thoughtful questions.

The tax department will continue to do our best to give you the services that you all deserve. Call us anytime. We're here for you.

Postpone vote on school bond

Editor, The Spotlight:

With new Bethlehem town leadership committed to a moratorium on residential development in order to study the impact of growth on town resources, including educational infrastructure, does it now make sense to approve a costly bond act which was proposed in order to deal with the existing pattern of unfettered growth?

It seems reasonable to postpone the bond vote until we have findings from new data, factoring in controlled growth patterns. Those findings might well indicate a need for less borrowing while still meeting the future needs of our students.

If postponement is impossible, fiscal prudence would seem to demand a 'no' vote on the bond, with the same practical result as postponement: sending the planners back to the drawing board to consider new options based on controlled growth.

Congratulations to Newkirk

Editor, The Spotlight:

My family and I congratulate Kathy Newkirk on her victory over me for the position of Bethlehem town clerk.

I also want to thank the many friends and neighbors in Bethlehem who supported my candidacy. The campaign I ran attempted to focus solely on positive themes — qualifications, experience and ideas for enhancing the services provided by the clerk's office. We did the best we could.

Finally let me convey a word of congratulations to my victorious Democrat and Independence running mates — Terri Egan, Dan Plummer, Tim Gordon and Paul Dwyer. It was a privilege to campaign with them, and I look forward to their stewardship of our town.

BC voters should be informed

Editor, The Spotlight:

By now everyone has heard about the school bond issue that will come before the community for a vote on Dec. 2.

Enrollment in the district has increased by 800 students in kindergarten through grade 12 in the last 10 years and is projected to increase more rapidly during the next five years.

The number of students in school music programs has mirrored this growth.

The bond issue includes a number of projects that will have a direct impact on the music programs:

- preserves or restores dedicated music rooms at all elementary schools with no "arts on carts"

- new orchestral room at the middle school. Two orchestras currently use the auditorium, which is not always available because of usage by multiple groups

- new choral room at the high school. The current room is too small

- new orchestral room at the high school. Two orchestras currently use the auditorium, which is not always available because of usage by multiple groups

- upgrade lighting in the high school band rehearsal room

- upgrade the high school and middle school auditoriums

We encourage you to learn more about all the components of this project by viewing displays at all district schools and at the district offices.

You can also visit the district Web site at www.bcsd.k12.ny.us. Additionally, PTAs and other parent groups have scheduled meetings where the full plan will be presented.

Please take the time to educate yourself and then be sure to vote on Dec. 2 at the middle school on Kenwood Avenue from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Kudos to Volunteers

Editor, The Spotlight:

Friends of Five Rivers is a nonprofit citizens group which supports and complements the state Department of Environmental Conservation programs at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center.

Friends of Five Rivers is supported by strong membership, donations, grants and fund-raising activities such as the 2003 annual birdseed sale.

This letter is about the volunteers that helped lift and load 50,000 pounds of birdseed — that's one and one half tractor-trailer loads. It is also to thank those who fed the volunteers on Oct. 18 as well as those who helped again Oct. 26.

As in many of the past years, GE Plastics provided a large forklift and a skilled, and much appreciated operator to unload the heavy pallets from the truck in the early morning hours of pickup day. DEC's Five Rivers staff helped us to prepare for pickup day.

Among the volunteers were dedicated Friends board members, many general, and always willing, members and families, students from the Participation in Government class at BCHS and members of the Albany Boys & Girls Club, all working toward the goal of a successful fund-raiser.

This dedicated mix of volunteers provides the living, working definition of community service teamwork and volunteerism. We all had fun and accomplished our goal. Friends are proud and thankful that the volunteers felt our cause was important enough to give up a Saturday to lift and load bags of birdseed into your cars and trucks.

While each volunteer will receive our personal thanks, they also deserve public recognition for their contribution. If you happen to be fortunate enough to know any of the volunteers or you are a parent, friend, spouse, teacher or leader of any of the volunteers, you are entitled to a bit of special pride in that person or group.

Thanks to those of you who bought birdseed from the Friends and to the volunteers that made the sale a success. We hope to see you all next year at the birdseed sale and throughout the year at Five Rivers enjoying the environment and the excellent educational programs.

Town has lost much of its appeal

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am a longtime resident of Delmar, having grown up the Delmar area in the 1950s and '60s.

The Delmar I knew and loved has now completely gone, and in its stead is an overpopulated, alien landscape that resembles more of an adjunct of the city of Albany than the quiet and quietly prosperous part of town it should have been left as.

To have grown up in that quieter, genteel era when manners were the norm and which really resembled a Beaver Cleaver world, is to make one even more saddened by its almost complete obliteration.

No, my mother didn't wear pearls when doing housework, but there really was a certain formality back then and a comfort knowing your mother would be home cooking dinner when you returned from school.

People who have no memory of those days when the Four Corners boasted all family-run businesses, now called "mom and pop stores," may be luckier, for ignorance can indeed be bliss. There was the corner soda fountain where they made real hamburgers, unlike the ones the fast food chains sell. The Delmar Barber Shop was run by my best friend Toni's father Tom Spinosa. There was a Rexall Pharmacy, a hardware store where the Key Bank now stands and the Delmar Bakery — the smell wafting from there still haunts me — and on and on.

Delmar shopping center had Grover's Stationery, the Marguerite Shop (a quality store which sold Hallmark cards and exclusive Ginny dolls and perfumes and hand-milled soaps), Fanny Farmer's Candies, Woolworth's — where you could actually buy quality notions — a soda fountain, the Grand Union, a sports store, the lovely Town & Tweed and many other family-run establishments.

You could always find a place to park and didn't have to wait in line for more than a few minutes.

Overpopulation is a fact of living in the America of 2003. The upsetting sight of developments popping up overnight on Elsmere Avenue and Wemple Road and in so many other areas is unconscionable. People are living on top of each other now and you see the aggression everywhere, particularly on the roads.

There seems to be no privacy anywhere.

The influx of new people from the great "elsewhere" continues in droves, making it an alien landscape indeed.

Delaware Avenue is the scene of constantly speeding cars and traffic jams. Who would have thought it possible? Glenmont is becoming an overpopulated, congested nightmare world of discount stores (Kmart and the new Wal-Mart complex) and fast food chains.

My parents moved from Elsmere in the '50s to Glenmont to gain a little privacy in the then remote region of Bethlehem. It was a nice place to grow up with very few neighbors.

We all know what Glenmont is now. I am afraid for my mother every time she leaves her driveway on 9W with the huge trucks that go back and forth night and day on their way to building the Wal-Mart.

What happens when the store opens and people from Selkirk, Ravena and varied points descend into this little area? I can see nothing but more traffic accidents and frayed nerves. The pillaging of a once quaint and desirable area continues for profit.

Something must be done to stop the overgrowth of this once beautiful little area. Alas, I am sure the growth will continue as contractors put sometimes less than quality homes up overnight for big price tags.

All I have now are the memories of that sweeter time when living in Bethlehem was a quiet privilege, and they will hold me over until I leave this area for good — which can't happen soon enough.

Mom's columnist earns kudos for great writing

Editor, The Spotlight:

What a gift readers has been given, Katherine McCarthy!

I just read Katherine's latest article in the Nov. 5 Spotlight.

I look forward to it every week and thoroughly enjoy her introspections into the daily life of a young, active, excessively busy family.

With each turn of the page in the calendar Ms. McCarthy marks the event with insightful, descriptive commentary on experiences we all share.

She finds words for feelings we all have. The first days of school at the bus stop, St. Patrick's Day, her return from her family vacation in Ireland, fall and apple picking — these are festivals of color and sentiment when penned by Ms. McCarthy.

I share her Irish-American heritage, and I am especially moved by her connections to Ireland and her words; they bring to an otherwise nondiverse Bethlehem a memory of growing up in an ethnic community in the Bronx where one was defined by his or her background.

Her column brings exuberance to your pages and a wealth of imagery that is a tribute to Behan, Yates, Shaw, McCourt, Heany and many more.

Keep her happy and keep her writing.

Matters of Opinion

Egan says thank you for support

Editor, The Spotlight:

I want to take this opportunity to thank each and every person who went to the polls and voted on Election Day.

I am overwhelmed by the support that I received and pledge to you to use all resources available to me to make Bethlehem an even better place to live. The campaign this year was hard fought, and there were numerous opportunities to lose focus of the real issues facing our town.

I believe that my campaign successfully stayed positive and on point, consistently setting forth our specific proposed solutions to those things that concern each and every one of us: uncontrolled growth, rising school and property taxes, safe and reliable water source, traffic, open space preservation and more.

Now that the election is complete, I hope to put aside partisan differences and jointly work toward those solutions that will address your concerns.

I look forward to working with the various town department heads and their staff to implement the Blueprint for Bethlehem I outlined during my campaign.

Through hard work, dedication, cooperation and a resolve to better our community, we can achieve a better quality of life and ensure that what makes the town of Bethlehem so great is preserved for generations to come.

Thanks to everyone who worked so hard to get us to this point. Let's keep going!

BC schools offer quality program

Editor, The Spotlight:

I recently had a particularly rewarding experience as a Bethlehem school board member. I spent the day at an elementary student "going to school."

I shared in the quality of the program and excitement of learning in two of our schools. I urge everyone to "get out" and share my experience.

Take advantage of National Education Week (Nov. 16 through 22) when the community is welcomed into classes. Visit a school associated with (athletic, musical, artistic, social) and feel the excitement and quality educational programs going on today.

The effort will be time well spent. With this perspective, you can choose for yourself whether the quality of program in Bethlehem schools deserves the community's support.

I can tell you that if we don't support the proposed school bond, we will not be able to maintain the quality of the educational program our children now have and that adds so much to the value of our community.

Thanks to fire co. for great party

Editor: The Spotlight:

A great big thank you to the members of the Slingerlands Fire Department for holding their annual Halloween Party.

I attended the event with my family, and we all had a wonderful time. It was quite evident that lots of energy and hard work went into planning all the activities.

The Haunted House was especially well done and definitely a scary treat for all!

BC board to hear from public on bond issue

The Bethlehem Central School District has added another date to its schedule of public presentations about the proposed building project and upcoming bond issue vote.

A presentation and question-and-answer session will be held at the Nov. 19 board of education meeting, at which a public hearing on the proposal will also occur.

The board meeting will be held at the district office at 90 Adams Place in Delmar, beginning at 8 p.m.

Shoes for Shoeless campaign under way

Nine years ago no one knew the demand for wearable shoes for those in need was so great. But difficulties in the general economy and changes in the world have increased the need for this charitable campaign. Capital District residents have always opened their hearts to those who are in need and we believe they will again. This year's "Shoes for the Shoeless" campaign should top the 50,000 pairs milestone.

Gail Leonardo Sundling, "Shoes for the Shoeless" campaign manager and owner of the Delmar Bootery, estimates almost 100,000 pairs of wearable shoes are gathering dust in the bottom of people's closets in the Capital District.

"These shoes could be used to help families in need around the nation," Sundling said. "Over 8,000 pairs of shoes were collected during our eight annual campaign, and we will break that mark. The target for our 2003 campaign is to top a combined total of 50,000 pairs of shoes."

The shoes will be distributed to families in need through the Lions Club of Glasgow, Del. They will distribute the shoes through five Appalachian locations in Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia.

Lion Albert O'Neill Jr. reports that there is a great need for shoes for people of all ages from school children to adults. The idea began in 1994 with the Shoe Services Institute of America. The Delmar Bootery, in cooperation with the Glasgow Lions Club of Delaware, will put these donated shoes to good use helping people in need.

Since 1995, the Delmar Bootery has collected more than 45,000 pairs of shoes. The collection point for the Capital District is The Delmar Bootery in Stuyvesant Plaza. Delmar Bootery owner, Gail Leonardo Sundling, asks people who want to donate shoes to remove them from boxes and tie or rubber band them together. This expedites collection and distribution.

She expects many pairs of shoes will be collected and put to good use helping Appalachian families in need.

Stories and crafts at Feura Bush library

The Feura Bush Neighborhood Library, behind Jerusalem Reformed Church on Route 32, will be having a story hour and craft program for children Saturday, Nov. 15.

The library is open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. Roberta Jeracka will lead this week's program, which will begin at 2:30 p.m. A grant from Selkirk Cogen has made possible the purchase of crafts and award-winning books for the project.

Children are invited to come and enjoy the program - and the refreshments that will be served afterwards.

The library is also open on Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. and Thursdays from 3 to 5 p.m.

The library has a lot of adult fiction, including many classics.

A recent donation of current books containing the values of antiques and collectables is a new addition to the collection:

Clean Sweep program for farmers slated Nov. 15

The Albany County Soil and Water Conservation District and the county Water Quality Coordinating Committee, in cooperation with state Department of Environmental Conservation, Albany County Farm Bureau, and state Soil and Water Conservation Committee, are directing a Clean Sweep Program for the environmentally safe removal of canceled, unwanted or unusable agricultural or commercial pesticides.

Eligible participants for this program are active or inactive agricultural and horticultural operations, golf courses, municipal facilities, schools, colleges or universities within Albany County.

This program is not for homeowners who have pesticides for disposal. Other programs, such as household hazardous waste collections, provide pesticide disposal for homeowners.

The DEC recognizes that farmers and other holders of old pesticides have not had many legal opportunities to safely dispose of these agricultural pesticides. This program provides that opportunity.

Depending upon funding availability, there will be no charge and no limit to the quantity of obsolete pesticides that can be returned by eligible participants.

The Clean Sweep Program is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 15. Participation is through advance enrollment only.

For information or to receive a registration packet, contact Thomas Lacko at 765-7923.

Need for libraries is greater than ever

Now more than ever, we need libraries. In an uncertain, tumultuous world, libraries remain stewards of democracy—institutions that embody and preserve freedom of thought. They contain a powerful antidote to oppression, bigotry and fear: information.

But information can be overwhelming. There's too much of it, and much of it is spurious. It needs to be evaluated and managed. That's what librarians do.

The information that librarians evaluate and manage comes in various formats: books, periodicals, audiobooks, reference books, online reference databases, CDs, CD ROMs and video. These formats must be ordered, processed, cataloged, paid for, shelved, repaired, and replaced. That's what the technical services staff does.

Library materials are available to everyone at no cost. Library visitors select Shakespeare or best sellers or biographies or films or symphonies or stock reports or parenting tips or picture books and borrow them for a period of time. Patrons borrowed 580,955 items last year alone, and borrower accounts — 18,240 of them last year, 19,994 this year — must be tracked and managed. That's what the circulation staff does.

Patrons research topics on our 30-odd online databases. They use the catalog, play reading readiness games, send e-mail and attend computer instruction workshops. Some of our patrons don't own their own computers. For them, our public Internet computers are their only doorway to the wealth of information available electronically. Those computers — plus dedicated public catalog computers, instructional lab equipment and staff computers — must be installed, maintained, repaired and upgraded. Connections to the server must be kept in working order. That's what the computer services staff does.

There is no admission charge to enter the facility that houses all this information and material. Last year, 325,899 patrons entered the library; they studied, browsed, relaxed, visited Web sites, attended meetings, met friends. What made that possible was attention to heat, light, air conditioning, maintenance, repair, meeting setups, yard work, ice and snow removal, security, a T-1 line, telephones. That's what the custodial staff does.

All of this would be meaningless and impossible if it weren't for our patrons. This library is loved by its community, which supports it generously and uses it well, year after year. Parents bring up children here; young adults become independent here; empty-nesters find new interests here; senior citizens remain connected here.

Library visionary S. R. Ranganathan said in 1931, "A library is a growing organism."

As we grow into the 21st century, our library grows as well.

It is an evolving, interdependent microcosm of our society.

Don't Shop 'Til You Drop

The day after Thanksgiving is a milestone of sorts in America. It reminds us of how quickly the year has gone by—and how close we are to the holiday season. This realization, coupled with the fabulous sales at department stores and malls everywhere—helps make the day after Thanksgiving our biggest shopping day of the year. And until we flip the calendar over to the new year, the chaos just doesn't let up.

So relax and enjoy the holidays!!! I encourage you to consider the following tips to help keep your loved ones healthy, happy and safe this season.

TREAT HOLIDAY SHOPPING AS AN ATHLETIC EVENT

Stay hydrated! Drink 8-10 eight ounce glasses of water a day. Coffee, tea and alcohol are diuretics/dehydrators. Don't substitute them for water. On shopping days, you may even need to drink more water.

Be sure to stretch before and after a long day of shopping. When you get stressed out your muscles are less flexible than usual.

Wear shoes with plenty of support and cushioning in the soles to help absorb the impact on those hard mall floors. According to some recent surveys, most women report wearing shoes that are uncomfortable.

Make sure the clothing you are wearing is as comfortable as possible. It's a good idea to dress in layers, because you may be going from a cold outdoor environment to a warm indoor environment.

Leave your purse at home. Wear a light fanny pack, or if necessary, a light backpack instead. Pack only those items absolutely necessary.

PLAN FREQUENT BREAKS INTO YOUR SHOPPING DAY

During a heavy day of shopping most people should take a rest every 45 minutes or so. Those with less stamina may need a break every 20-30 minutes.

If possible, obtain a locker. Lockers can help cut down dramatically on how much you have to carry. You can take a load off by scheduling trips to your locker into your breaks.

If the mall doesn't offer lockers, then try to plan trips out to your car. Don't carry around more than is absolutely necessary at one time.

Skip the coffee break. Coffee and soda contain caffeine and sugar, which can add more stress to your body. Pass on the designer java and keep drinking water.

WRAPPING GIFTS

Since there is no "ideal" position for wrapping gifts, the most important thing to remember is to vary your position and move around regularly. For example, try standing at a table or countertop for one package, sitting on the bed for another, sitting in a comfortable chair for another, etc.

Do not wrap gifts while sitting on the floor. Wrapping packages while sitting on a hard floor can wreak havoc with your posture and should be avoided at all costs.

Always stretch lightly before and after wrapping your presents.

When wrapping it is always good to stretch "the opposites". In other words, if you are flexing forward while wrapping be sure to stretch backwards in the opposite direction for a bit.

Since the added demands of the holiday season can stress out our bodies emotionally, chemically and physically we need to do everything we can to help ourselves. Eat right, drink plenty of water, stretch, exercise and take a few minutes to slow down and reflect on what the holiday season is all about.

Doctors of chiropractic are trained and licensed to treat the entire neuromusculoskeletal system and can often provide advice on injury prevention, nutrition and exercise.

Knights race past Indians in Class B Super Bowl

By ROB JONAS

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk football team couldn't stop the Lansingburgh express a second time.

Kareem Jones rushed for 151 yards and scored two touchdowns to lead the Knights to a 31-13 victory over the Indians in last Saturday's Section II, Class B championship game at Colonie Central High School.

"The kids were tremendous — as good as they could be," RCS coach Gary VanDerzee said.

The Indians (9-1) had a harder time keeping the Knights out of the end zone than their first meeting, a 14-12 victory back on opening weekend. Lansingburgh had 14 points by the end of the first quarter and led 24-0 before RCS got on the scoreboard late in the second quarter on a 46-yard touchdown pass from Tim Jordan to Ryan Green.

"Against a good team like that, you can't dig a hole, and we dug ourselves a 24-point hole," VanDerzee said.

One difference was that Lansingburgh (9-1) committed fewer penalties than the first game. Another difference was that the Knights were more effective through the air than the first game. Junior quarterback Mike Weber completed five passes for 98 yards and two touchdowns.

"They made some big plays

(through the air)," VanDerzee said.

Against a good team like that, you can't dig a hole, and we dug ourselves a 24-point hole.

Gary VanDerzee

"We made some coverage mistakes, but give them credit for making the plays," he added.

Lansingburgh's first scoring drive was set up when Ryan Cross shanked a punt that sailed out of bounds at RCS's 35-yard line.

Six plays later, Weber threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to sophomore tailback Terrell Curry to give the Knights a 7-0 lead with 4:48 left in the first quarter.

Jones was held in check until the final two minutes of the first quarter. First, the senior tailback took off on a 25-yard run that got the Knights into RCS territory. Then, he beat his defender downfield and hauled in a 45-yard touchdown pass from Weber to double Lansingburgh's lead.

The Indians were less successful establishing their offense. Runs were often stopped after a couple of yards, and Jordan couldn't connect with his receivers.

"They did a good job against us defensively," VanDerzee said. "In the second half, we moved the ball better, but we moved the ball better because they loosened up their defense a bit."

Sophomore fullback Brandon Canty continued Lansingburgh's assault on the RCS defense early in the second quarter. Canty burst through the line and took off on a 47-yard touchdown run that made the score 21-0. A 27-yard field goal by Weber with less than three minutes left in the quarter expanded the lead to 24 points.

Jordan's touchdown pass to Green with 1:24 left in the first half gave the Indians some momentum entering the second half. They gained more momentum when Tim Sugrue recovered Curry's fumble at the RCS 39-yard line midway through the third quarter to end a Lansingburgh drive.

The Indians' ensuing series ended a short time later, though, when Matt McGrath broke up Jordan's pass on fourth down at Lansingburgh's 45-yard line.

Jones then sealed RCS's fate early in the fourth quarter. Section II's all-time leading rusher broke free for a 45-yard run that was stopped nine feet from the end zone when he stepped out of bounds. Jones got the remaining three yards on his next carry to make the score 31-7.

C.J. Haslam scored on a 3-yard run with 7:19 left in the fourth quarter to pull the Indians within 18 points, but that was as close as they would get to the defending Class B champions from Lansingburgh.

Cross country teams get invites Eagles place second at regional tournament

By ROB JONAS

The Bethlehem boys and girls cross country teams are breaking out their running shoes for one more race.

Both teams were awarded at-large bids for Saturday's Federation meet at Bowdoin State Park in Wappingers Falls, Dutchess County. Only 19 teams are invited to the meet including the four champions from each class level at the public school state meet and the winners of New York City's public and Catholic school meets.

Bethlehem boys coach Dave Banas said he wasn't sure his team, which placed third in Class A at the Section II Championships two weeks ago, was going to get an invitation.

"The way things panned out at the (public school) state meet, I didn't know if that would help us or hurt us because there were some teams that snuck into the top nine (overall)," Banas said.

Three Suburban Council boys teams received bids — Bethlehem, Colonie and Shenendehowa, which won the state Class A title for the second consecutive year.

"We got accepted quicker than Colonie, which surprised me," Banas said. "As I found out later, they chose us ahead of Colonie because we beat Colonie in our league (dual) meet by one point."

Section II has a larger presence in the girls division. Besides Bethlehem, the region will be represented by state Class A champs Saratoga, state Class D champions Argyle and Niskayuna, Columbia and Shen from the Suburban Council.

Two Bethlehem runners —

Emily Malinowski and Matt Shaffer — got a taste of the competition they will face at the Federation meet at last Saturday's state championships in Rushville, Ontario County. Malinowski placed 16th in the girls Class A race with a time of 19:38.1, while Shaffer finished 57th in the boys Class A race in a time of 17:38.9.

"He didn't get out too well," Banas said of Shaffer. "And the way the course was laid out, the first mile goes by really fast, and the second mile is uphill. He expended a lot of energy going up that hill."

Banas said he's hoping Shaffer and the rest of his team will have a strong finish at the Federation meet.

"I would be pleased with top 10, but realistically, I think the top seven is within our reach," he said.

Eagles place second at regional tournament

By ROB JONAS

The Bethlehem boys volleyball team concluded one of its most successful seasons with a third-place finish at last Saturday's regional tournament at Niskayuna High School.

The Eagles lost its first four games in pool play before sweeping two games from Section III champion Central Square by scores of 26-24 and 25-16.

"That ends up ranking us third in the state (among Class A schools)," Bethlehem coach Jim Lemire said. "It was also a nice way to finish. It would have been hard to end the season with a loss."

The Eagles had the unenviable task of facing Section VI champion Orchard Park and Section V champ Churchville-Chili in the first two rounds. Bethlehem battled Orchard Park in its first game, but came up short 25-23. Orchard Park won the second game 25-18.

"We didn't serve or receive serves as well as we have this season" against Orchard Park, Lemire said.

Churchville-Chili was tougher on Bethlehem than Orchard Park. The Saints — who went on to defeat Orchard Park for the regional title — downed the Eagles 25-15 and 25-16 in their two games.

"That was probably the most advanced team in the tournament," Lemire said. "We went to a quick-set offense, and that got us some points that we wouldn't ordinarily get."

Jones leads Great Danes in home finale

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School graduate Gary Jones gained 195 yards and scored two touchdowns to lead the University at Albany football team to a 27-7 Northeast Conference victory over Robert Morris last Saturday.

Jones put the Great Danes on the scoreboard in the second quarter with a 2-yard touchdown run. The senior tailback then added a 22-yard scoring run in the third quarter that increased Albany's lead to 20-0.

It was the final home game of the season for the Great Danes and the last time Jones played in an Albany uniform at University Field. It also clinched at least a share of the conference title for the Great Danes.

"Any time a senior leaves the field with a championship, that's a great feeling," Jones said. "It's a pleasure to play with this team. The offensive line was just dominant, and we knew from the first play we could control the game."

Albany concludes its regular season Saturday with a non-league game at Townson.

Lighting for Aging Eyes

Lighting can make the difference between seeing and not seeing for older adults with deteriorating vision. The human visual system weakens with age and as one grows older, less light reaches the back of the eyes. The lens scatters more light, which reduces the contrast and sharpness of objects, as well as the vividness of colors.

How do you design lighting in the home to address these realities?

Start by increasing light levels by placing fixtures close to your task, or by selecting light bulbs with more lumens (look for lumens rating on the package). Place light fixtures over the sink, stove, work areas. Locate these fixtures to the side and slightly in front of the the task. If you have upper cabinets, light your countertops with thin, under-cabinet lighting fixtures mounted on the underside of the cabinets.

Take advantage of color contrast. Paint the bathroom doorframe a dark color to contrast with white or light colored walls. Use position where a person would usually stand to see light color finishes on walls and ceilings to soften the effects of bright light sources, and to reduce shadows. You can also avoid shadows by placing the light source on the side opposite to your writing hand. Right-handers should place lighting to their left and vice versa. Place task lights to your side to avoid reflected glare from your work surface or glossy magazines. Bright objects in your field of view impair your ability to see. Place some kind of opaque or translucent material between you and the light bulb if you can see the bare bulb while standing or sitting. Avoid using clear glass light fixtures and use shades, blinds, or curtains to minimize glare from windows.

Fluorescent fixtures are a good choice for residences. Choose a light bulb or fixture with an electronic ballast; they're flicker free and quiet. Request fluorescent light bulbs with a CCT (correlated color temperature) of 2700 - 3500 K and a CRI (color rendering index) of at least 80 or above. Compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFL's) can produce the same amount of light for a third of the wattage of a common incandescent fixture, burn much cooler, and last about 10 times longer. And always look for the ENERGY STAR label on fixture and CFL packaging.

For more information on lighting for older adults, log on to www.lrc.rpi.edu. To find out general information about ENERGY STAR lighting or other New York Energy SmartSM programs, visit www.GetEnergySmart.org.

All New York Energy SmartSM programs are funded by a System Benefits Charge (SBC) paid by electric distribution customers of Central Hudson Gas & Electric, Consolidated Edison, New York State Electric & Gas, Niagara Mohawk - a National Grid Company, Orange and Rockland, and Rochester Gas and Electric. NYSEDA, is a public benefit corporation established by law in 1975, administers SBC funds and programs under an agreement with the Public Service Commission.

New York Energy SmartSM programs are designed to lower electricity costs by encouraging energy efficiency as the State's electric utilities move to competition. The programs are available to electric distribution customers (residential, commercial, and industrial) who pay into the SBC.

Beautify your environment

It's easy to see that ENERGY STAR[®] qualified fixtures are a stylish addition to any décor. What you can't see is that they use 2/3 less energy with bulbs that last 6 to 10 times longer than a standard bulb.

Choose ENERGY STAR qualified fixtures from New York ENERGY STAR Retailers and Change a Light, Change the World.

Make your next light an ENERGY STAR[®] and help preserve our environment for future generations

Lion

DEC's Web site.

In his 35 years as a pathologist, Stone said he can recall two actual sightings of mountain lions. Twenty years ago, a mountain lion escaped from a game farm in Saugerties and was later shot by police. Ten years ago, a hunter in rural Saratoga County shot a six-month old mountain lion cub. Pathologists concluded the cougar was likely once a pet.

Nevertheless, Wilber and Irving are determined to warn anyone who will listen about the potential for another mountain lion attack. The two have circulated fliers detailing Buddy's death and are urging others to be on the lookout.

"We just don't want anybody to get hurt," said Irving. "We believe somebody released cougars in the area."

A longstanding legend has circulated for years, alleging that the DEC released cougars to help control the deer population. It's an accusation Stone flatly refutes.

"That has never been done," Stone said. "We have never released mountain lions at all, anywhere." Stone added that permits would need to be issued by the state and that has not occurred. "There may be a mountain lion out here but so far, I haven't seen the evidence," he said.

improvements was the ability of the district to capture state aid for improvements that we deemed necessary whether or not they were included, he said.

"While the total amount of the project is $92 million, the local share is less than $43 million after almost $53 million in state aid," he said. "People say that state aid is also our tax money, and it is, but they would pay those taxes whether we built or not. This is an opportunity for some of those tax dollars to come back to Bethlehem."

The tax rate will increase by an estimated 1.86 percent each year for five years beginning in 2005, for a total increase of 9.3 percent by 2010. Debt payments will level off until 2022 and then decline until the debt is retired in 2035. Loomis said a "tax calculator" was added to the website (www.bsdc.k12.ny.us) in the bond issue section.

"As long as people know here assessment and what their STAR exemption is, they can figure out how much their taxes will increase," he said.

The tax benefit of rolling renovations and non-classroom improvements into the bond project appeals to Katie Cultrara, Clarksville Elementary School PTA president.

"I feel that a lot of thought and community input has gone into this," she said, noting she attended many meetings over the last year. "Most important to me is that there is enough classroom space for all the students and it is important to me that class size remains as small as possible. My worry is the upgrades will have to happen anyway and if we did them through the annual budget it would cost just as much or more and we would pay the whole amount."

Replay

"I think it's changed. The Republicans are not the major party in town anymore," said outgoing Republican Supervisor Sheila Fuller.

For more than a century, Bethlehem's supervisors and other elected town officials have been associated with the GOP. But these days, Republicans only slightly outnumber Democrats in a pool of 22,895 registered voters.

Roughly 35 percent of registered voters in Bethlehem are Republicans, while Democrats weigh in with 32 percent. Meanwhile, 24 percent of voters are not enrolled in any party, according to the Albany County Board of Elections.

"I think you're seeing demographic changes," said Assemblyman Jack McEneny, D-Albany, who attributes this year's shift in voting patterns to an influx of younger voters from the city of Albany. "They're coming from traditional Democratic families and they tend to be very receptive about issues of sprawl," he said.

In the last 10 years, Bethlehem has seen a residential boom with a population increase of nearly 4,000 people.

Voter turnout was slightly higher than usual in Bethlehem for an off-year election that lacked state or presidential candidates.

In 2001, when the supervisor's seat was last up for grabs 10,764 votes were cast. This year, 12,813 voters headed to the polls. Of those, many speculate some voters clearly crossed party lines to support Democratic candidates.

"My feeling is that there was a lot of crossover by Republican voters that recognized something had to be done," said town Democratic Party Chairman Matthew Clyne.

Clyne attributes the party's success — securing two town board seats, the town justice and supervisor's post — to the party's "Blueprint for Bethlehem" — a plan that attempts to build up the commercial tax base and temporarily halt residential development.

"The Republicans did not provide the voters with a suitable game plan," he said. "This was a year where solutions had to be presented."

At least one Republican seems to agree. Fuller believes the party spent too much time dodging a supervisor's debate and focusing on sign stealing incidents.

"They failed to really talk about the great things that have happened in the community and the great things that will happen in the future (if Republican leadership continues)," she said.

Albany County Republican Chairman Peter Kermani doesn't fault the GOP campaign. He attributes Egan's landslide win to more Democrats venturing to the polls.

"When you have a difference of four figures, it's not something as simple as the debate or signs," he said. "I think the Democrats worked harder. They had a massive effort, including people from the county level, working to make sure they got their voters to the polls."

Adult orthodontics: why me?

As a dental professional, it is difficult to explain to a patient why they may need orthodontic treatment even though their teeth are straight. People are often motivated by cosmetics and therefore focus on looks as opposed to function. I am here to tell you that you deserve both.

Dentistry has taken a turn in the last few years and has shifted focus from the "quick fix" to prevention. The rise in adult orthodontic treatment is a direct result of this new generation of dental treatment. Many patients have beautiful teeth, yet they are plagued with chronic low-grade headaches and have trouble sleeping. These are the people that may benefit from orthodontics, to help their teeth function better as a group. There are also patients who have straight upper teeth but have crowding on their lower teeth. These people are happy because when they smile you can't see the lower teeth. Orthodontic treatment would decrease their chances of periodontal problems and lower their chances for decay.

Orthodontics can help decrease long term health problems by improving a person's bite. Better sleep, as well as decreasing periodontal disease, are factors that have proven to be only some of the benefits of proper alignment of teeth. Adults now have options. They may choose traditional braces or a newer technique known as invisalign, that straightens your teeth without any wires. Ask your dentist to provide you with all of your orthodontic options

ASO Music Director and Conductor
David Alan Miller

By DONNA J. BELL

Classical music lovers are in for a treat this weekend when a young, new artist and a symphony emerging from obscurity, will be featured by the Albany Symphony Orchestra.

Concert three of the ASO's Share the Symphony series, featuring 17-year old violin virtuoso Kristen Lee, and Vincent Persichetti's Symphony No. 3, performed only once before in 1947, will be held Friday, Nov. 14, at 8 p.m. at the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall.

The evening will open with "Four Sea Interludes," from Peter Grimes, the second opera of English composer Benjamin Britten. A dark sea tale based on a poem by the English writer George Crabbe, "Four Sea Interludes," is set in a small seaside village sometime before 1830. Britten's interludes bridge scenes in the opera, capturing the atmosphere of the fishing village and the human drama that is played out there.

Next, Lee promises to enchant the audience with Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto.

"Kristen Lee is a vibrant new artist" said ASO Music Director and Conductor David Alan Miller. "I received a CD of her playing and she sounded so beautiful I wanted her to play with us. She has really mastered the instrument."

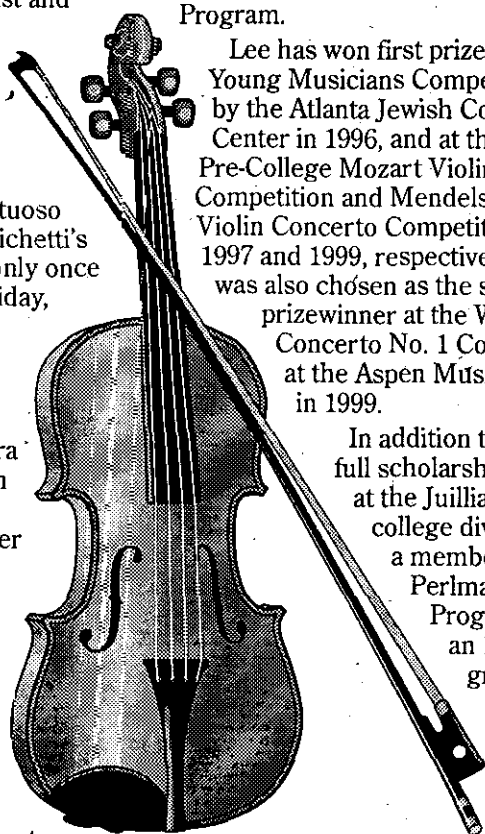

Born in Seoul, South Korea, in 1986, Lee began her violin studies at the age of 5. In 1992 and 1994 she won first prize at the Korea Times Violin Competition, and in 1995 she moved to the United States after her father was appointed a visiting professor at Auburn University. Two years later she entered the pre-college Division of the Juilliard. In January 2000, after playing Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto with Juilliard's Pre-College Chamber Orchestra, she was chosen by Itzhak Perlman to become one of his students.

Lee made her orchestral debut with Orchestra Atlanta in 1996 at the age of 10. In April, 2002 she made her New York City recital debut at Temple Emanu-El as a featured artist on the Temple's Young Artist Series. She has appeared as soloist with various orchestras and has also appeared in recital at Lincoln Center's Paul Hall and at Carnegie Hall through her involvement with the Perlman Music Program.

Lee has won first prizes at the Young Musicians Competition held by the Atlanta Jewish Community Center in 1996, and at the Juilliard Pre-College Mozart Violin Concerto Competition and Mendelssohn Violin Concerto Competition in 1997 and 1999, respectively. She was also chosen as the second prizewinner at the Wieniawski Concerto No. 1 Competition at the Aspen Music Festival in 1999.

In addition to being a full scholarship student at the Juilliard pre-college division and a member of the Perlman Music Program, Lee is an 11th-grader at Ridgefield Memorial ASO shares Symphony... and lunch?

Symphony features young new artist

High School in New Jersey. At Ridgefield she is a vocalist and piano accompanist of the Royal Choral and a trumpeter in the school band.

Selections from Brahms "Hungarian Dances," arrangements of Hungarian tunes follow Lee. Brahms's interest in Hungarian music stemmed from his tour of that country with the violinist Remenyi, and was furthered by his friendship with the Hungarian violinist Joseph Joachim, the dedicatee of Brahms's Violin Concerto. Twenty-one arrangements were published in two books in 1869 and two more in 1880, originally for piano, four hands. Fascinated musicians, however, have been reluctant to let them exist in that format only, so in addition to orchestral transcriptions, there are others for various combinations of instruments. The pieces are melancholy, passionate and cheeky in their humor.

Finally Vincent Persichetti's Symphony No. 3 completes the evening.

"The Albany Symphony has developed a reputation of performing music by classic American composers. In the last 100 years, there have been wonderful pieces written by Americans. We are excited to perform Persichetti. I knew him as a professor when I was at Juilliard," Miller said. "He was incredibly educated, a funny witty fellow and very wonderful man. Symphony No. 3 was played once in 1947 and never played again. It's magnificent, and it's an outrage that this piece hasn't had a life."

Persichetti, who died in 1987, was born and trained in Philadelphia and subsequently long associated with the Juilliard School of Music in New York. Persichetti was a keyboard player at an early age, and wrote many piano and chamber music pieces with piano in the catalogue, but also wrote nine works for organ and nine harpsichord sonatas as well. At a later date, the ASO will be recording the Persichetti piece for Albany records.

There will be two opportunity for symphony goers to get a little behind the scenes information about the concert.

On Thursday, Nov. 13, at noon, the public can bring lunch and a friend and join Maestro Miller and the guest soloist for an hour to discuss the upcoming Share the Symphony Performance. The presentation will take place at the Albany Public Library on 141 Washington Ave. Coffee and desserts will be served.

In addition, Miller and guest composers and soloists, will also conduct a free informal 30-minute talk one hour before the performance on Friday, Nov. 14, 7 p.m. at the Arts Center of the Capital Region on 265 River St., Troy.

"It's a great way to know what to listen for," Miller said. "People can ask questions and hear the musicians talk."

Tickets to the concert range from $19 to $37.50 and are available from the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall Box Office at 273-0038.

Beware of potholes and pinholes this winter

For motorists driving in wet, snowy and freezing conditions, two telltale signs of winter will be apparent: potholes and pinholes.

Potholes can't be avoided until maintenance crews begin their road repairs. So, drive defensively.

Pinholes — the kind that spew liquid coolant from car engine hoses — can be averted with a basic check of the cooling system this fall.

You can do this, yourself, in the convenience of your driveway or garage.

According to Gates Rubber Company engineers, the primary cause of coolant hose failure is an electrochemical attack on the tube compound of the hose.

The phenomenon, known as electrochemical degradation, or ECD, produces fine cracks, or striations, in the tube wall. These cracks extend from the inside to the outside of the hose tube, near one or both ends of the hose. The coolant seeps through these cracks and attacks the hose reinforcement as it wicks along the length of the hose. The condition eventually results in a pinhole leak or a burst hose at failure.

Gates says you can check a coolant hose for the effects of ECD by letting the engine cool down, and then squeezing the hose near the clamps or connectors. If the ends are soft and feel mushy, chances are, the hose is under attack by ECD.

A replacement interval of four years for all coolant carrying hoses — especially the upper radiator, bypass and heater hoses — can help prevent unexpected failure from ECD.

Gates says the incidence of hose failure increases sharply after four years for most vehicles.
