Bomb threat probe continues

Thanks to an alert middle school student, a potentially dangerous situation was dissipated last Tuesday as school administrators and police officers responded to a bomb threat at Bethlehem Central Middle School.

By LIBBY SCHIRMER

A cooperative investigation among Bethlehem Police and school administrators is continuing, with officials calling for help from students who may have any information about who may have made the threat, which turned out to be false. In New York state, anyone charged with making a bomb threat could face felony charges.

Thirteen Bethlehem Police officers, New York State Police, Albany City Police and, later, the Schenectady County Sheriff and University of Albany police officers were on hand at the school, which was placed under lockdown for a number of hours until the school was deemed safe around 12:35 p.m., with

Town appoints engineering firms

By LIBBY SCHIRMER

The town board unanimously approved Director of Economic Development and Planning George Leveille's picks for town designated engineers last Wednesday.

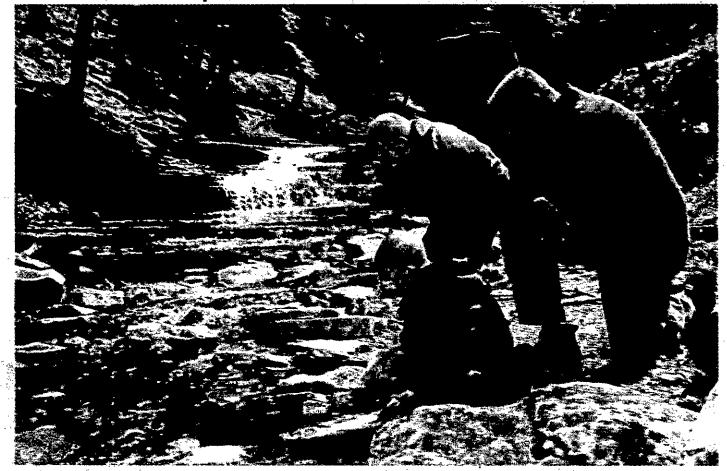

The town hopes the designations, also supported by planning board chairman Parker Mathusa, will streamline the development process in town, freeing up planning and engineering staff to focus on smaller projects, while the TDEs serve as lead contacts on larger, more involved projects. Escrow accounts filled by applicants who choose to use the TDEs services will pay for the TDEs services.

Many Capital District towns of comparable size and characteristics use TDEs, Leveille said. Bethlehem appointed Clough, Harbour and Associates, based in Colonie, and Barton & Loguidice out of Albany.

Clough, Harbour has worked on projects in Halfmoon, Clifton Park and Malta, among others, and Barton & Loguidice's established relationships include the towns of

Voorheesville hires new school superintendent

By MARTY BANNAN

After an eight-month search, the Voorheesville school board has named Linda M. Langevin as superintendent to replace Alan McCartney, who will retire July 15 after 16 years on the job.

"We are very lucky to get a sitting superintendent to follow McCartney's long tenure with the school district," said board president Robert Baron. "There is a huge need for superintendents." He added that 23 local schools are currently seeking new superintendents. Langevin will receive an annual salary of $125,000.

Langevin currently serves as the superintendent of Au Sable Valley Central School District in Clinton County in northern New York. Her numerous accomplishments there include obtaining several large grants, including a $600,000 Comprehensive School Reform Demonstration Program Grant for elementary schools and high school; a $267,000 grant for the middle school; and a $1 million Reading First Grant for literacy improvement in grades kindergarten through 3.

In addition, she negotiated a multiyear plan with the state Legislature to rectify a $1.6 million state aid deficit, a situation that presented itself soon after she began her work as superintendent.

She also completed a $15 million capital project providing classrooms, technology, heating and ventilation systems and site work at all buildings.

Langevin holds two master's degrees—one in reading and one in special education. She served as supervisor of instruction for two years in Saranac Lake and as a kindergarten through sixth-grade principal for a year-and-a-half in Brushton-Moira Central School District in Brushton, Franklin County. She also worked as a reading teacher for six years at Horseheads Central School District in Horseheads, Chemung County.

reasons, personal and professional, for accepting the Voorheesville job.

"It puts me closer to family," Langevin said. "My mother is in western Massachusetts and this gives me a chance to have access to her."

Professionally, Langevin said Voorheesville is an outstanding school district and she's looking forward to joining in the good things happening there.

"Voorheesville is a very caring school, with great kids and community involvement," she said. "Everything I've heard about it is very positive and I'm excited to be part of it."

Langevin's immediate goals are to continue the excellence that drew her to

"I'd like to continue the growth, and the

"Nothing will change radically," Langevin said. "I'm looking forward to building relationships, establishing trust and continuing to move forward."

The board is also positive about Langevin, who said she's "in her 50s." She is married to Charles Calisti and has four grown children in North Carolina and Syracuse.

"There was strong consensus on the board that she was our candidate," Baron said of Langevin. "We began with 20 applicants and whittled that number down to nine and then to three."

Baron also thanked Barbara Nagler and Catherine Gerbino of BOCES for helping with the search.

"When Langevin takes over we will have everything in place – a new budget, a new contract and a strong administration," Baron said. "Considering this and her experience it should be a smooth transition."

There will be a brief reception for Langevin on May 9 in the High School Commons area starting at 6:30 p.m. prior to the monthly school board meeting. To make arrangements to attend, contact Dorothea Pfleiderer at 765-3314, ext. 101.

Police said Lake failed field sobriety tests, was arrested for DWI and submitted to a chemical test, which turned out to be positive. Lake is due back in court on May 3.

Also on April 23, just after midnight, police got a call reporting a car that was dragging a rear bumper while driving east on Delaware Avenue.

When police pulled over 20year-old Hillary R. Nauta, of 6 North St. in Kingston, they said they smelled alcohol on her breath. After she failed three field sobriety tests, Nauta was arrested for DWI. She was processed as a refusal and sent to Albany County jail with bail set at $1,000 cash.

Home is home, no matter how far afield life may take you. The tsunami that hammered Sri Lanka the day after last Christmas hit Delmar resident Nelun Fernando

"We had just turned on the television and heard the news of the earthquake in Indonesia," Fernando said in her quiet voice with the proper accent of somebody who speaks excellent British English. "I said thank God it didn't hit Sri Lanka and one second later we heard that it had."

From the outset, Fernando knew the country she has visited annually for the past 30 years would be devastated.

"It's only the size of West Virginia," she said. She was unable to contact her three sisters who live in her hometown of Colombo, Sri Lanka's capital city. Fernando's parents are deceased.

While Fernando's immediate family was fine, some extended family members did not survive the devestation. Fernando's instinct was to go to Sri Lanka immediately, but her sisters persuaded her to wait. She plans to go at the end of the year.

In the meantime, she has been active in helping to provide relief to tsunami victims, aiding an orphanage, sponsoring individual families and maintain-ing a bank of names should people ask how they can help.

Robbins appointed to IDA

By LIBBY SCHIRMER

A 14-year Slingerlands and Delmar businesswoman has been appointed to the still shorthanded Bethlehem Industrial Develop-ment Agency.

Pamela Robbins, vice president of Policy Research "I still had my coat on," she Associates, a Delmar-based research and policy firm, was unanimously appointed to the IDA at the town board's April 13

> Robbins has been with the company since its inception 17 years ago, when it opened on Delaware Avenue near the nowdefunct Boston Market.

For about five years, PRA has been located at the Four Corners.

Before coming on to Policy Research's staff, Robbins worked for years at the New York state Office of Mental Health.

There, Robbins researched mental health and science Fernando has also worked initiatives, issues and situations, operations of the office. Robbins said she continues to have a great interest in mental health research topics today.

Robbins submitted her resume to the town, believing Bethlehem and its development community is in the midst of an 'exciting" time.

"Bethlehem is making such significant strides in terms of its comprehensive plan," Robbins said. "I certainly support the notion of town officials in their att-empts to make Bethlehem known as a business friendly comm-unity."

Robbins has been involved in coordinating the Delmar Dash for the past five years.

Even with the appointment, the IDA has two openings still, with Supervisor Theresa Egan noting the town is still accepting applications for the seats.

Nearly back-to-back, the IDA had two members appointed to other positions that forced their resignations from the board.

Joe Richardson, who worked for 40 years in the corporate banking sector before retiring, was appointed director of economic development for the Albany-Colonie Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Brian Hannifin, thenexecutive director of the IDA, picked up a position at the Center for Economic Growth in Albany.

Daniel Plummer, a Democrat who sits on the town board as deputy supervisor, resigned his post from the IDA recently, as

The board is chaired by George Leveille, director of planning and economic development in Bethlehem, and has nine members at full capacity.

Grant will mean new fishing spot in town

By LIBBY SCHIRMER

In time for Earth Day, Bethlehem got word of an $83,700 grant that town officials will use to build a handicappedaccessible fishing platform on the shores of the Hudson River.

Officials hope the platform will be a model for future platforms along the shore in the Henry Hudson Park, as well as make the town a model for others along the Hudson with a need for similar structures.

the edge," Lanahan said, "and get the line straight out over the water, rather than having it get caught up in the debris and the shoreline."

The town hopes the structure could also stabilize the shoreline.

The concrete dyke built in the 1920s by the Army Corps of Engineers is apparently disintegrating into the river water, Lanahan said.

The town consulted with DEC about what kind of vision they had for such a structure.

Lanahan

believes conferences helped land the grant in the end.

"It's such a great fishing spot down there," Lanahan said. "Every week, everyone's all lined up next to each other on the shoreline."

The town worked with Saratoga Associates and Clough Harbour Associates on the grant proposal, according to Supervisor Theresa Egan.

The town is still awaiting word a Local Waterfront Revitalization Program grant application.

Spring & human wonders bloom in all their splendor

By KATHERINE McCARTHY

Few things are as lovely as late April and early May, when the big red buds on all the maple trees have turned to tiny tender green leaves. A goldfinch gone bright yellow with the joy of spring perched on the birdfeeder on the deck, and against the neighbor's 16 will be a more significant year, fence in the back of the yard, the forsythia bush is like a big burst of sunlight sprung from the ground.

I bought a digital camera in March and took a picture to send to friends in Europe, where spring hits a little earlier than here. They were envious of the late snowfall that had left all of us wondering if spring would ever come again.

"This," I will write when I send the picture of screaming yellow flora and feathered friends, "is how I prefer our yard.'

Christopher sees the digital camera as a concession to life in the 21st century and holds out hope that his very own cell phone can't be far behind. Cormac, who never saw a quarter without thinking of where to spend it, was confused by the extravagant camera purchase.

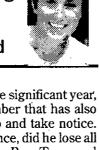

"You told us we couldn't have pizza for lunch, but now you've bought that expensive camera," he pointed out.

His confusion is mine, too. As the chancellor of the exchequer at our house, it falls to me to watch the flow of cash in our house, to try to keep the number of pizza lunches to a point where we can also feed the family's book addiction (library, library, library, I tell the boys constantly, but it's hard to build a viable case against stacking their own shelves).

The beauty of working freelance is that a camera is a necessary expenditure. Even if it weren't, I look at the size of my children and count on one hand the years until Chris and I are empty-nesters, and know that capturing family memories forever is practically a necessity.

In this week when the world has gone so lush it cries out to be photographed, Christopher will turn 15. The five-year increments take my breath away. I know that but 15 is a number that has also made me sit up and take notice. When, for instance, did he lose all interest in Kay-Bee Toys and either hang by my side when his brother goes there or ask to go to a bookstore or electronic store on his own? When, exactly, did his interest in Ninja Turtles, Star Wars figures and spy equipment fade completely away?

He has begun to hang around with the adults at family gatherings; something I remember doing as a young teenager too. It is totally weird to look at my own child and recall with total clarity the things I did and the way I felt at his age.

When his birthday dawns, I will wonder as I do each year how the tiny baby I birthed turned into the boy who rests his chin on my head when we hug. The past 15 it took to get a bottle of milk out of the refrigerator.

Mostly, though, it feels right that Christopher is this age. His whole life is stretching out before him, and I would love to stand in that spot once again.

Last fall, we caught up with a bunch of Chris' friends at a tailgate party before a football game at their alma mater, a crowd that included a number of teenagers. We don't give that age group enough credit; as I usually am when I meet up with a group of teenagers, I was impressed. Christopher was one of a bunch of kids in various stages of young adulthood. They were polite, articulate, each had his or her own interests, and they were pretty funny. Rumors of our nation's downfall are premature; the next generation is just busy sorting out its own way.

We took a little walk around the campus, and Cormac, who pays attention for the whole family, noticed something in the eyes of collegeaged passersby and the families visiting them.

"I wonder if people think Christopher is a student here and we're visiting him," he said.

That's wake-up call for parents like us who still recount their own college adventures as if graduation had taken place last week, not nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Another wake-up call came when we were near a different campus a couple of weeks ago in the the rest of us, and I watched city of Annapolis, Md. We were visiting family in Rockville, Md., and Dad the historian couldn't resist the chance to tick another years flew by in as much time as statehouse off his life list. Cormac has a National Parks Passport, in which he gets a dated stamp every time he visits a national park or historic site. Somebody should make one for capitals, for we try to work one in whenever our travels let'us.

> After a lovely tour and being unfairly ticketed in front of the Capitol, we headed off for a sumptuous all-you-can-eat seafood buffet in the charmingdowntown on the edge of the Chesapeake Bay. When we left in the early evening, very sharply dressed cadets from the Naval Academy escorted girls in formal dresses to something we imagined steeped in traditions. Arm in arm, a few couples strolled by the City Docks as we meandered along, listening to our 5-year-old nephew sing the ditty he and his dad had written about the Chesapeake Bay.

As befits a teenager who will soon take his own steps forward in life, Christopher's long legs carried him a few steps ahead of cadets size him up — and frown disapprovingly at his long hair.

They smiled benignly at me and I nearly smiled back till I realized with horror that they were looking at me the same way they might look at their own mothers and standing — if at all possible — just a little bit straighter.

It won't be too long before my own children will be smiling at me in the same way when I visit them in college. Although I imagine I might have to call them each morning to remind them to brush their teeth, and I wonder how they'll ever find things without me, they will probably be fine.

Cormac got a little panicky in thinking about the two years that he will have in the house after his brother goes off to college but before he does. While many kids crave some solitude and undivided parental attention, Cormac is happiest when there's a little bit of sound and a lot of people around.

"It'll be so quiet when Christopher goes to college," he said. "Can we adopt a baby?

That sounds a bit extreme, but he tapped a regret that I've fellately. I look with envy at families of three or more children and think the luckiest and most-to-beadmired are big families with more than four children. I'm the oldest of five and Chris is the oldest of four; sometimes I look around our house and wonder where everybody is.

Not having more children isn' a huge regret, but it is a pluck a my conscience. I love my children almost too much, but wish that yelled less and was patient and gentle in my guiding them whole lot more than I am. How would I ever cope with more than two children?

Everything happens for reason, I tell myself, and I try to treasure these days when m children move confidently forward in their own lives.

With my digital camera, I take their pictures; then I photograph the newly lush lawn bordered by yellow shrubs and tulips and daffodils bobbing their heads a the warm wind whispers to then of summer days to come. .

three K-9 units of dogs with bomb sniffing capabilities, according to Bethlehem Deputy Police Chief Tim Beebe.

Sometime in the morning — BC Superintendent Les Loomis couldn't say for sure — a student noticed the bomb threat scrawled on a bathroom stall wall in the first floor boys bathroom. He immediately reported the which Loomis message, characterized as a short phrase, to school administrators. After Principal Dave Kzansnak contacted police and district administrators, the school went into lockdown mode.

Students remained where they were and were told to keep quiet while K-9 units swept the larger areas of school, including the auditorium and the upper and lower gyms. After those areas were determined clear, students were shuffled into those areas, which remained secure, a class at a time every 10 minutes, Loomis

"Teachers were discreetly given a written sheet with information about the procedures that were established in advance,' Loomis said, "The process is no talking during fire drills, so we followed that protocol. Everyone was very quiet, very responsible."

As children sat with their classes in one of the designated safe areas, police and their K-9 units checked the rest of the school, including lockers, classrooms and bathrooms. During that time, Loomis said, students were given updates every 10 minutes.

'(Assistant Principal Sandy Morley) informed the students that by New York state law, making a bomb threat is a felony, that anyone responsible will be prosecuted and that anyone with information on who might have written the notation should come forward," Loomis said.

After it was determined that no bomb was present in the school, students were released back to their regular classrooms, one more lunch was held, and classes proceeded as normal, with the students being dismissed at the normal time, Loomis said.

Beebe said the process, for which there was an already established protocol, went smoothly, possibly because of timing.

"Three bomb sniffing dog units is a huge number to get. Usually, we're lucky to get one," Beebe said.

Some police of the departments didn't participate in the sweep of the school, but made their K-9 units available for support because sniffing for bombs is an intense activity for dogs, Beebe said, likening the task to a 20-minute wind sprint.

The school had counselors on hand last Wednesday, Loomis said, to talk to any children who may have been upset or disturbed by the incident.

"We let them know what was going on in a matter-of-fact way, we sent a letter home so they could discuss it with their parents," Loomis said. That

Add teeth to law

The state Legislature has taken steps to reform the Freedom of Information Law — the law that allows the public and media access to public records. Those records include most documents generated by state and local government officials.

Government agencies have for too long thumbed their noses at the current law, which allows for a response to a Freedom of Information request within 10 days from the time that request is filed and puts no limit on how long agencies have to actually fill the request. The new proposal offers language that forces government to comply within a reasonable amount of time.

We agree that the law needs changing to ensure all New York residents are given open access to governmental records. Unfortunately, the state Legislature has yet to come up with a plan to add teeth to its open government laws — especially the often-violated Open Meetings Law — that would levy penalties against those governments in towns, villages, counties, school districts and the like who choose to do public business beyond closed doors.

As it stands now, the law forces the public to serve as watchdog and enforcer of the open government laws. If a government agency violates the law, it's up to members of the public to sue.

The Department of State offers only meager funding for its Committee on Open Government, and gives it no authority but the ability to write advisory opinions on whether a government action violates the law.

We certainly appreciate the Legislature's action to reform the law as it reads today, and we hope the governor will quickly sign the new legislation. But this one step should not be construed as going nearly far enough to ensure that all public business is conducted in an open way. Our state needs open meetings laws with teeth — laws that truly hold public officials to a higher standard and assess penalties for violating or flouting the law.

A truly open and honest government would have no problem holding itself to that standard.

Maintaining accountability is an essential for all governmental personnel at all levels. Without guidelines and consequences, the system is inherently flawed, paving the way for those who would prefer to do business behind closed doors. This is totally unacceptable in a free society. The burden of proof should fall on the shoulders of all who work in the public sector.

Spring shines light on teen suicide

The waves of grief intrude like if Colin were still here?

Suicide thrives in secrecy. It sheds a stigma on families, stabs endlessly at "if only", "what if" and "why?" Clarity is lost and the life gone is painfully reflected upon. Every life activity is reviewed: "did I miss something" "could I not hear his cries?"

The death of my son as well as the deaths of two other young men in Bethlehem in 2003 left Bethlehem wounded. Families, friends, teachers, employers, the whole community in some way feels the pain. Across the nation, other neighborhoods experience the same shock and grief. Suicide is the third leading cause of death in adolescents ages 15 through 24 years of age, and is the fourth leading cause of death in children ages 10 through 14. Upon recent receipt of a letter from a friend living in Ireland, she shared that suicide is the most common cause of death in Irish young men age 15 through 24. The president of

PO helping stamp out breast cancer disease

is a celebration of very important women in our lives. For some, those lives have been forever changed by breast cancer.

This spring, we encourage you to again consider the Breast Cancer Research stamp as a gift item on your own personal and business correspondence. Your use of the stamp raises awareness about breast health and regular breast exams.

Using the stamp also keeps us on the route to a cure.

At 45 cents each, the price of a single Breast Cancer Research stamp is more than your regular 37 cent first class stamp.

In 1997, Congress authorized the issuance of the first semipostal stamp for the specific purpose of raising funds from the American public to assist in finding a cure for breast cancer. Congress legislated that the difference between the price of he stamp and the first class mail ate, less program costs, be directed to two designated esearch agencies.

To date, the stamp has raised For many of us, Mother's Day more than $43 million for breast cancer research from the sales of 598.8 million stamps. By law, 70 percent of the net amount raised is given to the National Institutes of Health and 30 percent is given to the Medical Research Program at the Department of Defense.

> Through the end of January 2005, more than 593.5 Breast Cancer Research stamps have been sold. I have used them. I hope you have too. A few extra pennies per stamp have resulted in significant research dollars. But more is needed.

Send your message using Breast Cancer Research stamps. Finding a cure for breast cancer will make the best Mother's Day

INSTITUTE (C) AT ANY MARKAGEMENT -

BC bus drivers deserve thanks Plantings pav big dividende

Editor, The Spotlight:

Most individuals recognize the Bethlehem school district as one of the best in the area. Many of us move here because of the reputation of the educational system.

When the state Report Card is published every year, most of us spend quite a while comparing the scores of our district to those of neighboring districts. These scores, along with our experience with the schools, reinforce why we have chosen to live here.

The reputation cannot be maintained solely upon test scores that are published every year. It must be maintained and reinforced by our community's satisfaction with all departments of the district.

Most of the time we assume that the district earns a positive reputation based solely on the performance of "the more visible" employers (superintendent, principals, teachers, etc.). We tend to do this because these are the individuals that we are exposed to (directly or indirectly) on a daily basis. What we need to remember is, that in order for a positive reputation, all departments must run smoothly and work together. If this does not occur, a positive reputation could quickly turn negative.

I would like to take this opportunity to recognize one of individuals take for granted — the transportation department, I have had the opportunity to compare our bus drivers with the drivers of a local private bus company.

What our community does not realize, is that the children who driven to school by Bethlehem bus drivers are very safe and very lucky.

A few weeks ago my secondgrade daughter came home and said, "I really like my bus driver, he stopped and asked me where I had been." (She had been sick).

The following week she was supposed to go home with a friend after school. The two girls became separated, and my daughter decided to get on her regular bus. The bus driver did not stop at the house because she had a note saying she was supposed to go home with a district to earn and keep its friend's. At that point she realized she was in the wrong place and didn't know what to do.

> She became very upset and scared. Her bus driver, Mark, who drives Route 43, handled the situation so well!

He calmed her down, phoned those departments that most the school and straightened everything out. He waited at the middle school with my daughter until the friend and her mom showed up to get her. Since I was not picking her up, and Mark did not know this mother, he took extra time to make sure this was the individual that my daughter was supposed to go home with.

So many times individuals only notice the negative things that occur, and so I would like to thank Mark for handling the situation so well that she wasn't even fazed by it after she got home. I would also like to thank all of the other bus drivers and bus assistants who have and still do worry about the safety and well being of my children and all the other children in the district.

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO REFUSE ANY MATERIAL WHICH IS NOT DEEMED ACCEPTABLE BY THE MANAGING CHEMIST ON SITE.

WHAT IS HOUSEHOLD HAZARDOUS WASTE?

Many home and garden products contain potentially dangerous chemicals that must be disposed of safely. These are usually found in basements, kitchens, garages, storage sheds and bathrooms.

WHO CAN PARTICIPATE?

Only residents from the Town of Bethlehem and other pre-approved municipalities can participate and only home generated hazardous wastes are acceptable. A valid New York State driver's license or current Town of Bethlehem tax bill is required as proof of residence. Residents from other participating municipalities must have a special coupon for admittance.

The Town of Bethlehem Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day will be held on:

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 2005 BETWEEN 8:00 AM and 1:00 PM:

between 9am and 1pm, for other participating municipalities.

Hazardous wastes must be brought to the Town Highway Garage, 74 Elm Avenue East in Selkirk.

- All hazardous wastes must be in their original labeled containers. Tighten caps and lids. NEVER MIX CHEMICALS!
- Sort and pack materials securely in a sturdy cardboard box; use newspaper or cardboard to keep items from tipping or hitting each other.
- Wrap leaking containers in newspaper and place in plastic bags or a larger container.
- Place chemicals that may react with each other in separate parts of the car.
- DO NOT leave product in a hot, unventilated vehicle for an extended period of time.
- For your safety, please stay in your car. Workers will unload the material. Please DO NOT smoke near chemicals.

Inspecting The Environment

During the home buying process it is safe to assume that you will find a home you like, make an offer, and purchase it. Because no home is perfect, inspections by structural engineers may discover something wrong with the property you want to buy. Some sales have been halted or delayed because asbestos, lead, or radon was found on the property. Pest inspections may reveal mold, fungus, or termites. A general home inspection may reveal other issues such as code problems or functional obsolescence.

If a problem is found with the property you want to buy, ask yourself two questions: 1) Can the problem be fixed? 2) If it can, what will it cost to repair it? House inspections exist to tell buyers what is right and wrong with a house, not necessarily to renegotiate the price. If, however, there is a major problem, such as the roof leaking or the air conditioning not working, then it might be possible to work with the seller to resolve these issues.

For prcfessional advice on all aspects of buying and selling real estate, call me at Coldwell Banker Prime Properties, 518-640-4444 or email me at abbey@cbpp.com.

Blackbirds regain top perch in league standings team regained sole possession of first place in the Colonial Council with some help from its neighbors in Ravena.

By ROB JONAS

The Blackbirds (8-2 league, 10-3 overall) scored the bulk of their runs over the final three innings to defeat Cohoes 16-6 last Friday. At the same time, Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk edged Watervliet 7-6 to push the Cannoneers one game behind Voorheesville in the league title chase:

"We've been waiting all year for a bust-out game," Voorheesville coach Hank Czerwinski said. "That was my problem all year we left key runners on base. We didn't get the key hit."

Voorheesville had dropped following an 8-6 loss to Schalmont last Thursday, but Ravena lent Voorheesville a hand the next day by defeating the Cannoneers for the second time this season.

"(Watervliet coach) Pete Strand and I are pretty good friends, so it's fun to compete against one another," Ravena coach Bob Dorrance said. "But, I don't know what brings out the best in our kids (when we play the Cannoneers).

The Indians are within striking distance of first place themselves with a 6-4 league record, and they have games against Voorheesville and Schalmont as part of their remaining league schedule.

"I think we're playing well." The Voorheesville baseball into a first-pace tie with Watervliet Dorrance said. "Our bats are starting to come around, and our pitching is holding up."

> "It should be a good game," Czerwinski said of Wednesday's contest against Ravena at Swift Road Park. "They didn't seem sharp the first time we played them, but they seem to be putting things together now."

Voorheesville also has another game against Watervliet as it heads into the stretch run for the league title.

"We need to run the table. It's as simple as that," Czerwinski said. "We can't afford to lose any more games if we want to win the Colonial Council."

espite tremendous advancements in treatments available for rheumatoid arthritis (RA), a nationwide survey by the Arthritis Foundation shows that nearly 70 percent of people currently receiving RA treatment still experience pain, stiffness and fatigue on a daily basis.

Results also reveal that more than one-third rank their quality of life with RA at only a five out of 10.

To identify unmet needs of the RA community regarding treatment options and quality of life, the Arthritis Foundation, in collaboration with Harris Interactive, surveyed 500 adults with RA.

The most common medications used to treat RA include disease-modifying antirheumatic drugs (DMARDs), such as leflunomide or methotrexate, and biologic response modifiers (BRMs), such as etanercept, adalimumab, anakinra and infliximab.

While half of the people surveyed report that some symptoms, such as joint pain, stiffness, and swelling are reduced by medication, 49 percent report they continue to change their daily household activities as a result of their arthritis.

"This survey brings to light the need for aggressive research in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, a disease affecting more than 2.1 million Americans," says John H.

Klippel, president and CEO, Arthritis Foundation.

"It is a clear indication that we still have a great deal of work to do to improve quality of life for people with RA when more than one-third of the people surveyed feel their condition affects their ability to control their own future or perform daily activities, in spite of taking their medication. The Arthritis Foundation encourages people with RA to play an active role in their treatment by asking their physicians about the latest treatments available, as well as promising new research on the horizon," Klippel adds.

Despite significant improvements in treatment for RA over the past 10 years, the survey also found that among those affected by the disease:

• More than 50 percent are extremely concerned about their ability to take care of themselves or the likelihood of becoming disabled in the

• The two most important factors in possible new treatments for RA are that the medication relieves pain more completely or provides longer periods of relief from their pain.

> • The top three concerns about RA treatments are the potential for long-term consequences for overall health, an increased risk of infection and inadequate relief of fatigue.

 Nearly threequarters are very or extremely interested in having their treating physician tell them about new RA therapies.

 Nearly two-thirds are very or extremely interested in having their treating physician tell them about new RA clinical trials for which they might qualify and spend more time explaining RA medications.

"These findings clearly show that patients desire more information and heightened communications with their treating physicians," says Eric Ruderman, medical adviser to the Arthritis Foundation and assistant professor, Feinberg School of Medicine, Northwestern University.

"This represents a call-toaction to the healthcare community to expand our dialogue with patients about current treatments, discuss new RA clinical trials and keep them abreast of emerging research, such as different approaches to impact the immune cell interaction in RA."

Arthritis is the nation's leading cause of disability, costing the U.S. economy more than $86 billion annually.

RA is an autoimmune disease in which the body's immune system attacks healthy joint tissue and causes inflammation and joint damage. The disease often persists for many years, typically affecting many different joints throughout the body, and causing damage to the cartilage, bone, tendons and ligaments of the joints.

RA affects women three times more often than men, primarily in the childbearing years of a woman's life.

For information about steps you can take to improve your quality of life with RA, contact the Arthritis Foundation at (800) 283-7800 or visit www.arthritis.org.

The Arthritis Foundation offers free information, materials and access to "RA Connect" an interactive online community and comprehensive resource created by and for people living with rheumatoid arthritis as a creative means to connect with others who have been touched by the disease.

Bright Horizons hosts week-long event he week of May 9 through May 13, Colonie Senior Service Centers will celebrate National Senior Center Week at the Bright Horizons Social Center in the Beltrone Living Center.

Each day, there will be a special guest or activity to help celebrate Bright Horizons Social Centers.

Now with two Colonie locations, at the Beltrone and at St. Joseph's Provincial House, Bright Horizons Social Centers are part of the adult day program at Colonie Senior Service Centers.

The program has been moving toward creating a stronger connection between the participants and their communities.

Over the past months, Colonie Senior Service Centers has developed a program that is able to provide a structured setting, but still offers members the freedom to take part in activities that are found in the senior center.

Colonie Senior Service Centers offer a wide variety of activities, including field trips, exercise classes and computer training to name just a few. Participating seniors are still very independent, but their families feel the need for a safe setting for them to socialize and take part in the various programs.

Members and their families believe that Bright Horizons Social Centers is the key to Make your foods' flavor fly

By Susan Walters

"There's no excuse for making food dull, lifeless and boring."

Rachael Ray

top watering down food for seniors," says Rachael Ray, star of the Food Network's 30 Minute Meals, show and author of a series of recipe cookbooks. "There's no excuse for making food dull, lifeless and boring, the popular food host advises family caregivers.

Ray said that adult children often assume their loved ones need bland food.

"What they really want is good flavor. Cook to impress, cook to be excited or, at the very least, cook to share," Ray

Nearly half (44 percent) of family caregivers surveyed in a

Harris Interactive poll conducted for the eldercare company Home Instead Senior Care help their loved ones cook, while 59 percent assist with grocery shopping. Home Instead Senior Care often steps in to assist the elderly with meal preparations when their family caregivers can't.

"We know from experience that seniors like their mealtimes to be interesting not just the food, but the setting, the companionship and the conversation," said Susan Walter, owner of the local Home Instead Senior Care office serving the Albany area. "Appetizing meals are an important part of seniors' lives, and vital to their physical and emotional well-being."

Ray, who was raised in a multi-generational Sicilian restaurant family, said she was lucky to share food with many generations. "I think that maps you out for life. Nobody can fight when they taste delicious food and they're together. There's something really intimate about it.'

Food also helps seniors reconnect with the past, Ray

"What's great about food is the nostalgia factor that ties all of us to where we're from. So it's a wonderful tool for seniors who are having trouble with memory or dementia or an illness that has removed them from the world. Food can allow them to travel in the amount of time it takes to go to the grocery store. If they're from Russia or Germany or France or Ireland, give them food from those places and take them back to the things that make them feel good, whole, happy and excited about living."

Be creative to liven up food while staying within a senior's dietary guidelines, said Ray, who advocates moderation rather than denial. Here's how Ray recommends adding flavor to a senior's diet without compromising good health:

1. Add low-sodium, no-salt stock to a sauce to make it taste like it has been simmering all day. Likewise, cook rice in chicken or vegetable stock rather than water, and replace cream with stock when making mashed potatoes for a flavorful, low-fat alternative.

2. Fresh herbs are a no-fat addition, and readily available in grocery stores to brighten the flavor of salads, dressing and

3. Purchase better cuts of meat for better flavor and less fat. Seniors shouldn't sacrifice quality, Ray said, even if they're on a budget. "Never buy less than a ground sirloin because of the fat content. Don't buy fatty foods as opposed to lean, healthy meats to save pennies because in the end you're not, you have to trim. And the amount of waste

30 Minute Meal recipes for seniors

Chocolate-Dipped Bananas

4 bananas

8 Popsicle sticks

cups good quality chocolate bar

3 tablespoons butter, cut up

Toppings:

Chopped nuts

Toasted coconut

Cookie crumbles

Colored sprinkles chocolate jimmies

Mini chocolate candies or mini semi sweet chips

Granola

Peel and cut the bananas in half crosswise, so that you have 8 pieces. Place peeled bananas on sticks. Line a cookie sheet with waxed paper. Place bananas on cookie sheet in the freezer, keeping them there as long as possible - at least 10 minutes. Heat chocolate bits with butter in a double boiler over low heat until the melted chocolate butter and ' the incorporated.

Dip the chilled bananas in chocolate and roll with your favorite topping. Chill or freeze until ready to serve. If frozen, allow time to thaw so that bananas soften before serving.

Big Blue Burgers

1 1/3 pounds ground sirloin 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Handful of chopped flat leaf parsley

1 shallot or onion, minced

1/2 pound crumbled blue cheese

Extra virgin olive oil, for drizzling Steak seasoning, or coarse salt

4 crusty rolls, split

and black pepper

Combine first four ingredients and divide meat into four equal amounts. When forming each patty, nestle a pile of blue cheese crumbles into the center of the meat, and gently form a patty around the cheese. Brush or drizzle burgers with extra virgin olive oil and apply steak seasoning or salt and pepper. Grill on indoor electric grill preheated to high for 7 to 8 minutes on each side, 6 inches from hot coals or over mediumhigh gas flame with the grill lid closed. (For preparation with no additional oil, broil 4 inches from broiler 7 minutes on each side.) Serve burgers on split rolls with lettuce, tomato and blue cheese dressing.

Blue Cheese and Walnut Salad with Maple Dressing

1 (10-ounce) bag baby spinach

1/3 pound blue cheese, crumbled

1(6-ounce) can walnut halves, toasted

raw foods they can finish cooking, which will taste better to them as well."

Both Ray and Home Instead Senior Care's Walter said that it's important to involve seniors in meal preparation as much as possible.

"Our CAREGivers get to know seniors' likes and favorite recipes and often help them prepare those special dishes," Walter said.

Having help in the kitchen canmake the difference between whether a senior eats well or not, Ray said.

1/4 cup maple syrup, warmed

1 1/2 tablespoons cider vinegar

1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil Salt and pepper

Place spinach on a large platter. Top with blue cheese and walnuts. Warm maple syrup in a small saucepan. Pour vinegar into a small bowl. Whisk oil into vinegar in a slow stream. Whisk maple syrup into dressing in a slow stream. Pour dressing down over the salad platter and serve. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Double Stuffed Potatoes with the Works

2 large Russet potatoes, cleaned and pricked with a fork several times each

Drizzle olive oil or vegetable oil

2 slices center cut bacon, chopped into 1/2-inch pieces

2 scallions, chopped

1/4 cup sour cream

1 cup shredded cheddar

Salt and coarse black pepper Preheat a small nonstick pan over medium high heat. Rub potatoes with a drizzle of oil. Place potatoes on a microwave safe plate and microwave on high for 12 minutes, rotating once. While potatoes cook, add chopped bacon to hot skillet and brown until bits are crisp. Add scallions and cook together with bacon one minute more. Transfer bacon bits and scallions to a paper-towel lined plate to drain. Allow potatoes to cool enough to be handled, about 5 minutes. Preheat broiler to high. Cut potatoes in half and scoop out the flesh in a small bowl. Smash potato flesh together with sour cream until combined using a potato masher. Stir in cheddar cheese, bacon and scallions and season with salt and pepper to taste. Scoop filling back into potato skins and place on a cookie sheet. Place potatoes in oven and brown under broiler, 6 inches from heat, for 5 minutes.

Popular activities keep seniors well

xercise is the dirty word that often turns the elderly into couch potatoes, and there appear to be plenty out there. (CDC), more than 60 percent not with aging, but

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention of older adults are inactive. Fear of exercise can keep seniors with arthritis and other aches and pains from leading the active lifestyles they may have enjoyed in their younger years.

But mention activities such as lively conversation, a good television program, a trip to the senior center and a brisk walk on a nice day, and your elderly loved one is likely to perk right

Incorporating movements into those popular senior pastimes, oftentimes with the assistance of a family or professional caregiver or companion, is one way to keep seniors young and vital well into their elderly years, according to Colin Milner, founder of the world's largest senior fitness association and Nelson Carpenter from Home Instead Senior Care.

"People think you have to exercise for hours to achieve any benefits, but that's just not true," said Milner, founder and CEO of the International Council on Active Aging, a Vancouver, B.C., company with 4,000 primarily U.S.-member companies including seniorfriendly fitness facilities and senior-care facilities that are committed to wellness.

"But to stay independent and enjoy the quality of life that we all want as we age, we need to do some activity. Because if we don't, our muscles will atrophy and our bodies will deteriorate sooner.

"Seniors' health issues often are not with aging, but rather with disuse," he added. "The main benefit of activity for people who are aging is actually reversing the impact that disuse has on their bodies. And that can be like a fountain of youth.'

There's plenty of evidence that seniors do enjoy being active. Recently, Home Instead Senior Care's 26,000

CAREGivers ranked the activities their senior clients enjoy most. Among the top 10

Senior Care office that serves Saratoga, Washington and Warren counties. "Companionship is just what many seniors need to get up and active again."

Here are some practical ways that caregivers can recommend that seniors incorporate activity into their lives, according to Milner:

- For the true TV couch potatoes who use two remotes, suggest they stand up, move around and walk in place whenever a commercial comes on.
- they walk to the store or park in the back of the parking lot, and walk to the corner to drop the mail in the mailbox rather than hand it to the mailman when he comes to the door.

 Remind them they can read a book on a stationary bicycle or, better yet, organize a book club and talk about what they've read on a walk around the neighborhood.

"There are a lot of basic ways to build activity into the day," Milner said.

Fitness centers are also a good option, but the kind of facilities that feature blaring music and predominately young bodies working out can be intimidating for seniors, Milner said. That's why his organization has established an age friendly fitness locator on its Web site at www.icaa.cc where the elderly or a caregive can click on a state and a city and find a facility that has met strict age-friendly criteria.

Milner said that seniors also could learn about the value of strength training from such a facility.

"According to the Centers for Disease Control, only 11 percent of seniors actually do strength training," Milner said.

Colin Milner

"And loss of strength is the No. 1 reason why most people get admitted to a skilled nursing facility."

If they can't go to a facility, seniors can do strength training at home, according to Milner.

"Seniors don't even really need equipment. There are some programs that explain how you can do strength exercises with soup cans," he said.

One place to look for information is the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention at www.cdc.gov, which has a program called Growing Stronger Longer that features information about strength training and other activities for seniors.

Another resource is Home Instead Senior Care, which recently published a CAREGiver Activity Training Guide for its professional CAREGivers across North America. This new training tool is full of leisure, recreation and hobby ideas to help CAREGivers enhance their time with their clients.

> "This guide features dozens of popular senior activities for all seasons," Carpenter said. "It focuses on the importance of knowing clients, interests and pastimes, how to introduce activities to clients and ways to easily modify them to meet clients, abilities.

"If you think about it, our bodies were built to move," Milner said. "Not moving is the unnatural thing. And that's true at any age."

10 signs your senior is becoming a couch potato and what to do about it

- 1. She doesn't go out anymore. Recommend a doctor's physical. If she's healthy, help her reconnect with old friends or make new ones at a senior center or age friendly fitness facility.
- 2. He's watching television whenever you call. Plan a regimen of standing and walking exercises during
- 3. She's gaining weight. Suggest daily walks around the neighborhood or at the mall, if the weather is bad.
- 4. He seems weak. Learn about the benefits of a strength program for seniors. Log on to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Web site at www.cdc.gov and check out Growing Stronger Longer.
- 5. She loses her balance. Ask a doctor to make sure there are no medical conditions or problems with medications that are causing her to fall. Then contact a local age friendly fitness facility www.icaa.cc/) or ask your doctor about exercises that could help.
- 6. He complains about not sleeping well. Schedule a visit to the doctor to make sure nothing is wrong, then help him develop a plan that incorporates more activities into his day.
- 7. She says she has no friends. Discuss with her hobbies she once enjoyed and might like to resume. Help her organize coffee or lunch with friends.
- 8. He seems blue. Call your local senior center, Area Agency on Aging, and church or synagogue to learn what organizations are available in your community from which he might benefit.
- 9. She's listless and her mind is foggy. Encourage her to read more and even join a book club.
- 10. He has problems taking care of his home. Consider hiring a professional caregiver to serve as a companion and provide assistance around the house. See the office locater at www.homeinstead.com to begin your search.

Older adults benefit from healthy lifestyle

lder adults across the country are increasing their physical activity in new ways.

According to Physical Activity and Health, A Report of the Surgeon General, "Older adults can obtain significant health benefits with a moderate amount of physical activity."

Benefits include a reduced risk of heart disease, improved stamina and muscle strength, and a lewered chance of falling and fracturing bones. Additionally, physical activity can foster improvements in mood and a sense of well-being.

Senior living communities are leading the way, offering an array of exercise and health programs that encourage residents to enhance their physical fitness.

One group of luxury retirement communities across the country offers fitness programs for all levels. From aquacise classes to tai chi, residents of communities are encouraged to engage in physical activity.

With the influx of new exercise and diet recommendations, older adults are taking advantage of new services and educational opportunities.

For example, residents have shown great interest in tai chi, a martial arts form that enhances balance and body awareness through slow and precise body movements. Tai chi significantly reduces the risk of falls among older adults by nearly 50 percent, states a study reported in the Journal of American Medical Association by the National Institute on Aging.

"Members of the group have noted several health benefits: increased muscular strength, improved balance, better memory, more manageable hypertension control and a general feeling of wellbeing," said resident Beatrice Rose.

A personalized, three-day-a-week resistance training program helped resident Fred Donnelly to lower his body fat composition from 21 percent to 10 percent in one year.

"The fitness program has enabled me to maintain my weight and my good health," Donnelly said.

Diet is another essential aspect of overall health. For many older adults, food just isn't as enjoyable as it once was. The usual methods of enhancing flavors, such as adding salt and butter, are off limits for those on restricted diets.

To offer residents greattasting and healthy food, the luxury retirement company has partnered with Susan Schiffman from the Taste and Smell Lab at Duke University to develop a natural way to enhance the flavor of food.

The result is a breakthrough in cooking technique, Classically Pleasing Cuisine, which uses all-natural ingredients to enhance food's aroma, flavor and tenderness with no added salt.

With a combination of good exercise, healthy eating habits and routine health screenings, older adults are minimizing their risk for illness and improving their overall health.

daily dose of sunas a hat and a shirt, are just what the doctor is prescribing to keep seniors safe this summer.

A study recently published in the American Medical Association's Archives of Dermatology found that applying sunscreen every day could reduce the formation of actinic keratoses, a potential precursor to skin cancer, particularly in older Americans.

Seniors, who want to spend some of their summer and early fall days out and about in the sun, can benefit from following these recommendations, according to one of the nation's most respected dermatologists, 81year-old Dr. Jerome Litt, author and frequent television talk show guest.

"I tell people to slip, slap and slop: Slip on a shirt, slap on a hat and slop on some screen, combined with sunscreen," Litt said. "Comother protection such . mercial sunscreens, with a sunprotection factor (SPF) of at least 15, filter out harmful and cancer-producing rays of the sun."

That's good news for this area's active seniors.

"So many of the elderly love to be outdoors, walking, gardening. golfing and fishing," said Susan Walter, owner of the Home Instead Senior Care office in Albany.

"Our CAREG vers

are with elderly clients day in and day out. By educating our clients and their families about the importance of protecting themselves from the sun, we help ensure that seniors can continue to do what they've always loved to do outside," said Walter, whose office provides non-medical home care and companionship to Capital Region seniors.

What is the UV Index

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and National Weather Service (NWS) provide a UV Index - a daily forecast of the expected intensity of ultraviolet (UV) radiation from the sun. Overexposure to the sun's ultraviolet radiation can cause immediate damage, such as sunburn, and long-term problems, such as skin cancer and cataracts.

You can log in your ZIP code and get the current UV rating for your area, along with an explanation of what it means. For information, log on to www.epa.gov/sunwise/uvindex.html

Check out the American Academy of Dermatology Web site at www.aad.org for information about skin cancer screening, visit the American Cancer Society Web site at www.cancer.org (or call 1-800-227-2345) to learn more about skin cancer.

Growing evidence through the years has linked the sun to dangers such as skin cancer, particularly for the elderly. According to the American Cancer Society, one risk factor for skin cancer - actinic keratoses (AKs) – occurs most often in those who are middleaged or older with light skin who have been exposed to too much sun. Small, scaly patches on the face, ears, backs of the hands and arms characterize AKs.

The April 2003 Archives of Dermatology study found that survey participants who used sunscreen daily – even when they weren't planning to be outside for extended periods - had developed 24 percent fewer AKs than those people who used sunscreen at their own discretion.

"This survey implies that even a quick trip, in and out of a vehicle, to places like the senior center or grocery store can be dangerous," Home Instead's Walter said.

The results should offer sound advice for the elderly, particularly those who are on medications.

"Many people who take certain medications develop itchy rashes when exposed to the sun," Litt said. "These are known as photosensitive reactions and are common after taking sulfa drugs, such as many high-blood pressure and oral antibiotic medications, in particular."

Seniors taking these medications should be particularly diligent about use of sunscreen, he said.

But medications aren't the only issues. Characteristics of aging skin make it more susceptible to the sun.

In his book, Your Skin from A to Z (Barricade Books, 2002), Litt explains the changes that aging causes in the skin's epidermis, which often lead to problems in the sun.

For instance, an overall thinning of the epidermis because of reduced hormone levels results in the thin, shiny appearances of aged skin that is exposed to the sun. Also, aging brings about a decrease in the number of pigment cells in both exposed and non-exposed areas of the skin.

"This results in the inability to tan as deeply or as evenly as in earlier years," Litt said.

"The

statistics about skin cancer paint a sobering picture," Walter said. "According to the American Cancer Society, more than one million Americans will discover skin cancers this year. Another 54,200 will get melanoma, the most deadly skin cancer.

Thanks to advanced research and awareness, seniors can continue to play an active role outdoors, even on the brightest, sunniest days."

How to protect seniors from heat and sun

If you're a senior or family caregiver to an elderly individual, following are tips – from the Environmental Protection Agency and Home Instead Senior Care – to help avoid skin problems and dehydration from the sun:

- 1. Whenever possible, seek shade.
- 2. Minimize sun exposure at standard time (10 a.m. to 4 p.m.).
- 3. Use a broad-spectrum sunscreen with SPF 15 or higher on exposed areas.
- 4. Re-apply sunscreen every two hours, especially after swimming or perspiring.
- 5. Wear a wide-brimmed hat and clothing that covers your body.
- 6. Wear lightweight, light-colored clothing.
- 7. Wear UV-protective sunglasses.
- 8. Drink plenty of fluids. 9. Check the UV index daily.

Retirement homes from the trunk

Ty and Ida found the perfect property just outside the town where they had raised their family. It had the trees they both wanted and it was within a reasonable drive to the services of the city. They had their dream lot; now they needed their dream home.

he concept of home changes as we pass through different stages of life. For the young it is the starter home that may be updated and improved upon:

As careers and families progress, so do the homes we occupy. Homes at this stage of life may contain more space to accommodate children, and some amenities to reflect the owner's lifestyle; but they are still defined by resources that must be divided between the need to have a suitable place to live and the need to save for the future.

In the past, many of these were meant to be terminal homes. But now a new type of home and homeowner are emerging. These nexers are very different from the generations that preceded them.

People are living longer and healthier lives, and when they've outgrown the family home they are building their next-stage homes to meet their needs and wants.

Ty and Ida Mann are such a couple. After their kids moved out, they wanted a home just for the two of them.

Ida says, "We realized that the home we lived in for many years was really not where we wanted to be when we decide to retire. We don't want to move away to a retirement community. We just wanted a home that was ours – for the way we live now."

The Manns set out to define what they wanted: the type and location of the lot; the style of the home; the number of rooms and their uses based on their needs and interests; and the amenities they had previously done without.

They both like the idea of getting back to nature and prefer outdoor activities but didn't want to care for a lawn. Since they both had always wanted a log home, they agreed that now was their chance.

Ty and Ida found the perfect property just outside the town where they had raised their family. It had the trees they both wanted and it was within a reasonable drive to the services of the city. They had their dream lot; now they needed their dream home.

Log homes to them were an extension of living close to the outdoors, which said relaxation to them in a way conventional homes did not.

When the Mann's completed their research on line they decided to visit Wisconsin Log Homes in Green Bay, Wis. They found a friendly team of people to guide them through the custom home process.

"They made it very enjoyable," says Ty. One selling point was the fact that Wisconsin Log Homes originated the energy-efficient half-log building system, in which the exterior log of their choice would be applied over a 2-inch by 6-inch wall filled with six inches of fiberglass insulation.

This innovative concept would both conserve energy costs and help preserve the surroundings they had chosen for their new home.

"I can't emphasize how important an authentic handcrafted finish is to us," says Ty. "We saw their craftsmen hew the entire surface of the logs at the mill, they're beautiful."

Also helpful was the 144page planning guide put together by the company. The combination of home plans, building information and photos of existing Wisconsin Log Homes was just what they needed to get started.

With the lot and home style defined, they were now ready to design their dream home.

"Having an experienced team walk us through the planning stage resulted in a home which functions just the way we want it to," says Ida.

The people at Wisconsin Log Homes suggested that the Manns look at how they spend their time now that they are empty nesters. They found they both enjoy time together over morning coffee, and so a sunny breakfast spot was designed.

They love to cook and entertain friends, so an open concept kitchen/dining room was designed to allow interaction between them and their guests.

They also knew that they both needed their own space, and so a media room for Ty and a craft room for Ida came about.

Occasionally they have overnight visitors, resulting in a loft area with separate bedroom and bath. They both wanted a larger master bedroom so a master bedroom suite with a large master bath and plenty of closet space was added.

"Then came the fun part," says Ida. "We added the extra special touches we simply couldn't afford when we were raising our family."

The finishing touches in the home include upscale appliances in the kitchen, a stone-faced floor-to-ceiling fireplace and large windows in the greatroom to let in their beautiful view, log interiors in the greatroom and master bedroom to add warmth and coziness to their home, hardwood floors in appropriate areas, a stunning timber staircase leading to the loft, a large shower and whirlpool tub in the master bath.

Companies such as Wisconsin Log Homes see more and more people like the Manns, who may have had to compromise on previous homes, but the next one is all about them.

More information about designing and building log homes can be found at Wisconsin Log Homes' Web site, www.wisconsinloghomes.com, or by calling (800) 678-9107.

Make a Plan to Stay Cool!— Save Energy and Money!

Albany, NY – Each year, the average New York State family spends approximately $1,700 on energy bills and nearly half of that for heating and cooling the home. During summer's hottest months, consumers often forget to exercise the control they have over their energy bills. Even the smallest changes can ensure consumers don't throw money away while still maintaining comfort. The New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) can help consumers Stay Cool! this summer, without breaking the bank.

The Stay Cool! Program, sponsored by NYSERDA's New York Energy $martSM Program and the New York Power Authority, offers consumers proven tactics to survive the summer's hottest months. The campaign encourages New Yorkers to properly recycle their old, inefficient room air conditioners (room A/C) and replace them with super-efficient ENERGY STAR® models.

"Many consumers do not realize that old, inefficient room air conditioners actually have to work harder to cool a room. They waste energy and money," said Peter R. Smith, president of New York State Energy Research and Development Authority. "NYSERDA is committed to educating New York's consumers about energy efficiency. The Stay Cool! partnership allows us to create an ongoing dialogue with New Yorkers about making simple energy-saving choices a part of everyday life, saving money, and protecting the environment."

"The New York Power Authority's energyefficiency projects are helping schools and other public buildings across the State save nearly $90 million a year with lower energy costs," said New York Power Authority Chairman Louis P. Ciminelli. "Homeowners can also be energy-efficient and save money with some basic energy saving tips."

NYSERDA encourages consumers to ask themselves three simple questions that can lead to savings of up to $56 a year on electric bills.

Question #1: Do you think you are saving money by re-using the same room air conditioner year-after-year?

Answer: We know the drill. You find your trusty old room A/C stashed in the attic after the long winter, and proceed to wipe off the layer of dust and change the filter, preparing to ward off rising temperatures. You think; if it still works, why buy a new one? Think again. If your room A/C is more than ten years old, it's time to upgrade to a newer, ENERGY STAR labeled model. ENERGY STAR appliances use superior technology, requiring less energy and less money to operate.

Question # 2: If you buy a new, ENERGY STAR room A/C, why not move that old room A/C to another room in the house?

Answer: Don't pass it on. Old, inefficient room A/Cs work overtime to cool a room. They waste energy – and money!

Question # 3: Now that you have made the decision to upgrade your room A/C, can you simply toss the old one on the curb for the weekly garbage pick.up?

Answer: Old air conditioning units need to be properly recycled. Certain components must be removed and recycled carefully to avoid releasing harmful pollutants or burdening landfills with materials that could be reused. Steel recycling saves enough energy annually to power 18 million households. Visit www.GetEnergySmart.org to locate your local waste management center or landfill and find contact information for your county representative. You will find easy-to-follow information on how to properly recycle your unit.

Protect your investments. If you do decide to invest in a new air conditioner, you can still make simple changes to create the coolest environment for the least amount of money. Make sure you replace filters following manufacturers' guidelines. It may save the cost and inconvenience of having your air conditioner fail during summer's hottest days. Also, be sure to close blinds or shades to keep out the heat during the hottest part of the summer day, and use a programmable thermostat to cool the house on your schedule. Finally, as you begin your spring cleaning, don't forget to dust ceiling and portable fans. Fans cost just a few cents an hour to operate and the breeze they create will make you feel as though the thermostat is set about five degrees cooler.

For more information on other energy efficiency programs and money-saving tips during the upcoming months or other New York Energy $martSM programs, visit www.GetEnergySmart.org or call 1-877-NY-SMART (1-877-697-6278). And remember to look for the ENERGY STAR label when shopping for products for your home such as appliances, electronics, and lighting. Make it an energy smart summerSM!

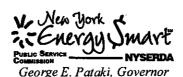

Where does your money go?

The average New York State family spends approximately $1,700 a year on energy bills, nearly half of which goes to heating and cooling. Developing a plan to Stay Cool! this summer can help you avoid wasting energy and money. Buy ENERGY STAR® appliances and lighting products and save money, energy and the environment.

Child and Adolescent Depression

Depression is more than just feeling blue or having a bad day. And, it is different from feelings of grief or sorrow that often follows a major loss such as a death in the family.

Depression is a serious health problem that affects feelings, thoughts and actions and can appear as a physical illness.

As many as one in eight teens and one in 33 children have clinical depression. Fortunately, depression in youth is treatable.

Some signs of depression include:

- Persistent sadness.
- •Withdrawal from family, friends and activities that were once enjoyed.
- Changes in eating and sleeping habits.
- Decreased energy level and chronic fatigue.
- •Indecision, lack of concentration or forgetfulness.

•Feelings of worthlessness or excessive guilt.

May 3 was Children's Depression Awareness Day. Join us in increasing the awareness of this mental health issue by wearing a green ribbon. These ribbons will be available at some local establishments or through the Bethlehem Networks Project office by calling 439-7740.

For information about depression, please visit www.nmha.org or call the Bethlehem Networks Project office.

The science of medicine. The compassion to heal.

By Donna J. Bell

he tulips have raised their sleepy heads from the just warmed soil, all 209,000 of them, and are now ready to witness the crowning of the 57th Tulip Queen at this year's Tulip Festival. The 2005 hopefuls, Maura Ayers, Amy Deitz, Aimee Gould, Lisa Klaas and Bonnie Maksymik, would each love to be the woman who assumes the crown at the coronation ceremony that will take place noon on Saturday at the Lake House stage in Washington Park.

The coronation, while a highlight of the Dutch-themed festival, is just a small part of the city's biggest special event. The festival will draw an estimated 80,000 people said Sue Cleary of the city's Special Events and Volunteer Services Department.

"Of course, that is if Mother Nature cooperates," said Cleary.

The festival begins on Friday downtown with a carillon concert at 11:30 a.m., followed by the traditional Dutch street scrubbing of State Street at noon and the Tulip Festival luncheon at the Crown Plaza.

"We are bringing back our Friday night kick-off party in the park featuring acustoic music," Cleary said. "It's a time for people to bring cameras and take pictures of the family around the tulips."

Most of the action will take place at Washington Park with music on three stages, a KidZone with lots of childrens' activities, a dance stage and gardening talks. The shopper in the family won't be disappointed; the park will host over 100 crafters selling their wares.

"Each year the KidsZone gets more incredible," Cleary said. "This year we have we have stage entertainment which run continusing in the kids tent from noon until 5:30 pm."

Music lovers are in for a treat as a diverse mix of bands, including The Burners UK, The Family Stone Experience, The Funk Brotners with special guest Ernie Williams, ZOX, This Day and age, and Captain Squeeze and Zydeco Moshers, to name just a few, entertain the crowds.

Stick around on Saturday to honor moms everywhere when the Mother of the Year award is presented at the main stage at

The park is closed to traffic, so be prepared for city street parking and bring your sneakers and stroller.

The sidewalk art contest is another popular event. For $15 for a square anyone 5 years or older can be a street artist for a day. Each participant (families can also enter), gets a box of chalk and a T-shirt. The winners are selected from several age categories. For information on the festival call 434-5412 or visit www.albanyevents.org.
