By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Police arrested four youths last month on charges of vandalism throughout the town of Bethlehem, but that doesn't mean the incidents have stopped.

On Sunday, Sept. 11, graffiti was discovered on the building of Clarksville Elementary School, some of which referred to explosives.

'We've treated this conservatively and carefully," said Clarksville Principal Dorothy MacDonald. "In terms of the threat, the building was swept by the Albany County Sheriff's Department with help from the Bethlehem Police. They're trying to find out who did it."

Parts of the building were paintedover last week, but brick parts of the building will need to be sandblasted to remove the graffiti, said Gregg Nolte, director of facilities and operations for the district.

"With brick there is nothing that works that well to clean it," said Nolte. "We had to rent a sandblaster for the brick."

Nolte said under no circumstances would the graffiti be left on the building.

"It sends the wrong message to kids," he said. "Whoever did it obviously wants it left there."

MacDonald said it was odd that graffiti would be found on the elementary school.

"It depends on the goal of the people who did it," she said. "The building is just a blank slate, and we don't have any reason to believe that we've been targeted. We haven't had any other incidences of this type of thing."

Nolte said damages will total about $1,500 for equipment and labor.

"We have to clean up graffiti all the time inside the building, but nothing at all of this magnitude," he said.

The district remains more concerned with the content of the graffiti than the graffiti itself. MacDonald said a letter was sent home to parents explaining the situation, and what the school has done about it.

In other matters of mischief, two Bethlehem residents had serious complaints at the town board meeting last Wednesday regarding trespassing and destruction of property.

Valerie and Tom Newell, who own property between the Somerset Woods/ Meadowview and Haswell Farms developments in Glenmont, told the board Wednesday night that they have Dawn Canuteson of Hoffman Avenue in Albany was observed by Officer Jeff Vunck travelling south on Route 9W. Canuteson's vehicle matched the description of a drive-off suspect from a Stewart's Shop on Frontage Road from a Sept. 2 incident, police said.

The vehicle only displayed a rear license plate that was not securely fastened. Also, the registration was found to be from another vehicle, police said.

After admitting that she was the suspect from the reported drive-off, Canuteson told police the plate belonged to her boyfriend. Upon searching the vehicle police found a black plastic bag containing three Ziploc bags of hallucinogenic mushrooms. A check of her handbag revealed a glass pipe, and residue of crack cocaine.

Canuteson told police the mushrooms belonged to her boyfriend and he had been selling them at a concert at the Pepsi

Later. Canuteson admitted to stealing the license plate from Saturn of Albany, police said. .

Canuteson was arraigned before Town Judge Frank Milano on charges of criminal possession of stolen property in the fifth and seventh degree, possession of hallucinogens, petty larceny, improper license plate, operating a vehicle with no insurance, unregistered vehicle, no front license plate, and an unsecured rear license plate, police said.

Milano set bail at $1,500 and requested Canuteson undergo a mental health evaluation. Canuteson is scheduled to reappear in Town Court on Oct. 4.

On Sept. 9, police arrested a Glenmont man on charges of DWI.

David Allen Pentak of Glenmont was observed by Officer Tim Travis almost leaving the road driving southbound on Route 9W.

Travis followed the vehicle to Hague Boulevard where Pentak did not respond to sirens until some distance later, police said.

Upon stopping him police noticed admitted to having a few beers, a strong odor of alcohol as well as impaired motor skills and other observable signs of intoxication.

Pentak was observed to have difficulty comprehending instructions. He was asked to stay to the rear of his vehicle, but still followed Travis back to the patrol car, police said.

Pentak denied drinking any alcohol that evening, police said, but later admitted to having a few beers.

He failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. He is scheduled to appear in Town Court on Oct. 4. at 4 p.m.

On Sept. 10, police arrested an Albany man on charges of DWI. Curtis Raleigh of Livingston Avenue in Albany was observed at 8:50 p.m. by Officer James Cross driving west on Glenmont Road crossing the yellow line several times, police said.

Cross activated emergency lights, but Raleigh did not stop until he was approximately 75 yards from Route 9W. When without bail. He is due to appear stopped, a strong odor of alcohol in Town Court on Oct. 4. was detected, and Raleigh

Thefts at Wal-Mart. Lowe's, Cross Bros.

On Sept. 10, police arrested two men in connection with a burglary which took place Aug. 18 at Cross Bros. Transportation Inc. at River Road in Selkirk. Kevin Murtha, 17, of Greenville, Greene County and Jeffery Pena. 17, of East Elmhurst, Queens, both students, were picked up by Officer Gina Cocchiara and returned to the police station, police said.

Both gave voluntary statements which led to their arrest. They were charged with grand larceny for theft of a motor vehicle, police said.

Murtha was issued an appearance ticket for Oct. 4 at 4 p.m., and Pena was arraigned by Town Judge Frank Milano and remanded to Albany County Jail

On Sept.10, Mervyn Banker of Route 75 in Greenville, was arrested for petty larceny from Wal-Mart.

Detective Chuck Rudolph received a call from Wal-Mart on Route 9W in Glenmont that store security was investigating a larceny at the store, police said.

Banker gave a written statement to Wal-Mart employees and was arrested. He is scheduled to return to toTown Court Oct. 4 at 4 p.m.

On Sept. 11, police arrested Michele Carney of Broad Street in Albany on charges of petty larceny, police said. Police responded to a call from Wal-Mart security who had detained Carney for shoplifting, police said.

Carney was stopped after having multiple items in her cart not bagged and with no receipt. Carney was taken into custody and arrested.

On Sept. 15, Patrick Bender of Donna Drive in Albany was arrested for grand larceny. Detective Chuck Rudolph was called by Glenmont Wal-Mart employees about the larceny.

Bender was interviewed by Wal-Mart security and gave a written statement about his long term involvement with stealing with other employees in the store, police said.

Bender was arrested and arraigned by Town Judge Frank Milano and was released on $2,500 bail. He is scheduled to appear in Town Court on Oct. 4

Kotary makes town board run

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Kyle Kotary is running for town board on the Independence ticket this fall for two reasons.

"It's a critical time in the town's history with the comprehensive plan," he said. "The decisions we make today will have a major impact in the next 20 years or more."

Kotary, who is running for office for the first time, said growth is inevitable, and the goal is to maintain the quality of life in Bethlehem. He is also running because he feels that Supervisor Theresa Egan has helped the town progress in the right direction.

"The reason I'm getting involved now is because this is a critical time to make decisions that affect the town's future," he said.

Kotary said his goals are similar to Sam Messina's, who is also running on the Independence ticket, and Egan's, and that it is no coincidence.

"Egan is going to need some help, and we can provide the necessary leadership for this town," he said. "It is intentional that we sound similar, and that we share the same vision."

Properly implementing the zoning recommendations in the newly adopted comprehensive plan and taking a close look at the efficiency of the government process in Bethlehem is high on the list of goals in the next four years. Kotary is especially concerned with efficiency because he said it ties into tax issues.

balance commercial and residential growth. The comprehensive plan has great tools, but it takes leadership and vision to properly utilize those tools. We want to manage growth instead of growth managing us.'

First on Kotary's list is discussing ideas about efficiency with the area school districts and with surrounding governmental bodies.

"If we could reduce the redundancies and also communicate with other towns, then we can open up the lines of communication," he said. "We will be focusing on this for the next two years.

Kotary is a senior account supervisor in public affairs with Eric Mower and Associates. He has worked for the office of the New York State Comptroller, in both houses of congress under U.S. Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-New Hartford and for the late Democratic U.S. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan. He has worked at the Department of Health and Human Services and also for former Vice President Al Gore.

"I've worked on a lot of campaigns, and it's lots of fun, but it's a huge time commitment," he said.

He also has volunteer experience locally as an associate board member of the Parsons Child and Family Center in Albany and a board member of the Public Relations Society of America. Additionally, Kotary is a graduate of the Albany Colonie Chamber Capital Leadership Program and a graduate of the FBI's Citizens' Academy, which is an opportunity for the FBI to reach out to community leaders. He has also worked as a tutor, and has been involved with Habitat for Humanity.

Kotary has lived in Delmar for the last four years with his wife and three children.

"The goal is for the area to have more play value than it does now," Lanahan said. "The one we have is old, and a new area would be'a lot of fun. These kinds of aquatic playgrounds are becoming more popular all over the country."

The new playground will feature two water spray areas, or pads. The first pad would be geared towards children between the ages of 2 and 5, and would feature rainbow arches and bubbly spray fountains. The other pad would be for older children and would have more sophisticated spray features for 6 to 12vear-olds.

Surface Systems, Inc. received the con-ract for construction and purpose.

Lanahan said construction would begin this fall with the demolition of the old spray area, and completion of landscaping and piping. Water pumps will be installed in the spring, and the board hopes the spray areas will open in June. Egan said building the filtration system is a year off, and would allow time to look more closely into health matters and stay ahead of things.

There is a statewide inquiry into this," she said.

Lanahan said the state Department of Health has not yet issued any guidelines regarding water contamination, but will do so after more investigation.

"We've received no advisories not to go ahead with this project,' she said.

Big shoes in kitchen, toast & coffee in my memory

By KATHERINE McCARTHY

Christopher and his friends have been moving in and out of our house for a few years now, rolling their many sided dice and doling out powers and initiatives in the game of Dungeons and Dragons that I look at with envy. If this had been around when I was in junior high and high school, I would have loved it ... and the boys who played it!

Some days, all the young men in my house pack up books and Magic the Gathering cards, put in their earphones, holler good-bye and head out together for their next destination. It usually includes pizza and the dollar store and other friends' houses.

In these pre-driving days, they travel by shank's mare or bicycle. making it feel like we live in America the way it used to be. These boy-men can move within a certain radius and feel they are truly independent, but by the end of the week I will have run into four or five people who will tell me exactly where they saw them when. It is nice to live in a place where a spy network feeds information to be used at later, strategic dates, thus strengthening the truth of what I have been telling my children forever: I know everything.

As Cormac enters his last year of middle school, he has moved firmly away from trying to shadow Christopher and his friends, forsaking their mercurial inclusion of him and strengthening his own friendships.

Some days, the number of extra-large shoes kicked off by the front door and whoops of glee that emanate from the playroom fill our house. When family and friends without children come by, their eyes widen as the sound and the fury increase, signifying everything. Movement, chatter and finding a good snack seem to be the hallmark of these adolescent years.

Sometimes I think I have forgotten what quiet is, but when they are not in the house, the unnatural stillness reminds me that in five years, both boys will be away at college (please, God, as our Irish friends say) and I will have more quiet than I want. When it gets really loud and chaotic, I cup my hand in front of me and remind myself that I hold in my hands the time that I will still have my two sons so close to me. So I make sure there are plenty of snacks, and head for the shelter of my room to read the school. paper.

Parenting changes in interesting ways, and the have brought as much change to me as they have to them. As they sprout up, I feel like I'm shrinking - which may just be an optical illusion because I think really I'm just broadening.

It's funny how memories of my own childhood increase as I watch my kids grow up. You understand that we want so-and-so to play with us," a girl told me on a day when I was finally one of the five. "You're a good sport."

Being a good sport was really important in that class and I couldn't think of how to rebut her, so I gave up my turn and knew that I had been played.

The next few years were a blur and all I can tell you are the names of my teachers. The memories get solid again starting when I was 10, and when I look at my boys and their friends. I remember clearly the tight group of friends I had in junior high.

Things seem to go from everybody being pretty friendly with one another in grade school to strong friendships forming based on interest by middle

In seventh grade — when we were moved to the secondhighest floor of our small Catholic adolescent years for my children · school and got to change classes – two new girls were among the arrivals from the first of many Catholic schools to close in our town. To this day, my No. 1 favorite smell in the world is toast and coffee in the morning; I am a teenager again, and somebody else is in charge.

Although we all made new friends in high school, we still walked to school together, and senior year, when we could borrow cars from our parents, drove together (bench seats in the front made it possible).

So I felt crushed when one of us decided her heart wasn't in the Christmas parties anymore.

Like the kindergarten kitchen manipulation, I don't remember the specifics, but I remember how I felt. We were at the point of our walk home when she and I were alone, and she told me she just didn't feel that close enough to every single one of the group to give gifts any more. I'm sure I made a plea for the importance of the group, the strength of the past, and the fact that they were fun, but I remember feeling that I had truly encountered the definition of "implacable."

I also remember thinking that perhaps all this honesty we were always being encouraged to exhibit had the potential to be a very hurtful thing. But the rest of the group let the parties go and I pretended to not be so very sad about it. Sure, we stayed friends through high school, and I have one strong remaining friendship from that group. The girl who gave up the Christmas parties taught me how to let friends go and trust that there would be others.

I watch my boys with a memory of those days and wonder, when they meet up at reunions, who will they seek out first? When they come home from that first college semester, who will they call? When they are middle-aged, who - and what - will they remember?

I wish for my sons and their friends that when they are grown, they will walk into a home that smells like their equivalent of coffee and toast in the morning, and remember how much they mattered to one another.

New Scotland considers Albany water

By JIM CUOZZO

Water projects took center stage at the most recent New. Scotland town board meeting, when the board gave the go-ahead for the town to review a draft water agreement to send to the city of Albany.

The agreement asks Albany to supply New Scotland with water. The transmission of that water will run through existing transmission lines in the town of Bethlehem.

'Sending the draft agreement to the city of Albany is not binding, it's another step in the negotiation," said Town Attorney Michael Mackey, who worked on the agreement along with Town Engineer Mark Dempf. Resident Robert Cook, who served for a time as chairman of the town's water committee asked why New Scotland officials are not going directly to Bethlehem town officials to negotiate a water agreement.

"You're approaching the city of Albany to supply us with a quantity of water that does no good if the town of Bethlehem doesn't allow it to get to us," said Cook.

Dempf said the town needs to go elsewhere for another supply of water because of cost factors. Bethlehem currently supplies water to the Feura Bush and Swift Road water districts in New Scotland and charges those residents two times the cost existing Bethlehem residents are charged. New Scotland officials believe they can receive water from the city of Albany at a more affordable rate.

cost?" Dempf asked.

the issue has been a pressing one provide water to residents who live for over a year.

"We will move this contract to Albany as soon as possible, and I will refresh Bethlehem officials that they will provide transmission of the water to us," Clark said.

Clark believes Bethlehem Supervisor Theresa Egan is in favor of New Scotland finding a new water source for some residents.

"It is my feeling that our best interest is to work with the town of Bethlehem. I have had many conversations with Supervisor Egan, and she is willing to work it out," Clark said.

Egan said she is very willing to assist New Scotland in this endeavor by letting the city of Albany know that Bethlehem will allow the use of existing transmissions lines for the water to get from Albany to New Scotland.

"It has certainly always been our position that we are willing to cooperate as much as possible with New Scotland and any other neighboring municipality on regional cooperative issues like this one," she said.

The town of New Scotland has several current water districts. Water is also provided to residents who live in the Village of Voorheesville by the village itself.

The town has set Sept. 29 as the date for a public information meeting regarding water projects in the Clarksville, North Road and "We can get water but at what Lower Flat Rock area. Residents will hear about and be able to Town Supervisor Ed Clark said comment on several options to in these neighborhoods and the cost will be to both the town and the users.

The board approved an additional 75 hours of work for Deputy Town Tax Collector Arlene Herzog. Herzog has used 343 hours in the current budget year and has 32 hours remaining.

Rocky reform

ters of

For more than 30 years, New York state's laws against the sale and possession of illegal drugs had a well-earned reputation for being among the toughest in the country. One of the last major proposals of then-Gov. Nelson Rockefeller to gain approval before he left office, the laws came to be named after him and are still considered part of his legacy.

Enacted in 1973 and 1974, the drug laws were a direct response to a rapid increase in the state's number of heroin addicts during the early Editorial part of the decade.

But after decades of tough sentences being given out to both drug dealers and users, activists targeted the laws as too harsh. Several statewide organizations coalesced around a "Drop the Rock" campaign that drew thousands of people to rallies in places from New York City to the grounds of the state Capitol in Albany.

The past 12 months have been good to those who want to change the state's drug laws. The reform effort gained its first victory in December when state lawmakers and the governor agreed on legislation reducing the sentences for those considered minor drug offenders. Their second victory took place at the end of August when Gov. George Pataki quietly signed legislation lessening the penalties for some of those convicted of nonviolent drug offenses.

The new law also opens the door to reducing the sentences of 540 people who are already serving jail time for drug dealing.

While both pieces of legislation take a piecemeal approach to drug law reform, their combined impact on the ability of local prosecutors to jail drug offenders could be quite significant. With district attorneys now having the ability to reduce the sentences of 540 drug dealers already behind bars, it will take some time to see whether the new laws actually help reduce the availability of illegal drugs on Capital District streets.

We are skeptical of the idea that shorter jail terms will help in the fight against the illicit drug trade and the street level violence that often accompanies it. But the advocates of reform have successfully made the case for change. Now the burden of proving that the policy will work shifts to them.

Hopefully local prosecutors will find creative ways to use their new authority and the funding needed to support effective drug treatment programs will be available.

If not, Rockefeller drug law reform may prove to be an idea that falls short of the mark.

Farm family continues the legacy

By LAURA TEN EYCK

The writer is vice president of Indian Ladder Farms.

There's no doubt about it. Being a kid on a farm is a good deal. When my brother, sister and I were growing up on Indian Ladder Farms, which has belonged to our family for generations, we had the run of the farm. In the heat of summer we climbed apple trees and roamed the woods. We rode our bikes in circles on the smooth cement floor of the packing house. We climbed two-story high stacks of apple bins and played hide and seek in the pitch dark of the empty apple coolers. In the fall we worked in the farm market after school and on weekends, we lined baskets for the apple packers, sugared doughnuts, bottled cider, and stocked shelves with baskets of apples.

taught about farming. We lived it. All summer long we played while the apples grew and when they were ripe we helped sell them. But not every kid gets to grow up on a farm, and these days there are fewer farms around than ever before. Kids grow up isolated from the sources of their food. To most kids chicken is a frozen, breaded nugget that gets heated up in the microwave, not a colorful, noisy bird that flaps its wings and scratches with dinosaur feet in the yard. One of our family's priorities has always been to bring children to the farm so that they can share in the experience we all had as kids.

We started doing school field trips back in the 1960s, and thousands of school children visit Indian Ladder Farms every fall. They see apple-laden branches bent to the ground and learn about our apple pickers who travel here each fall from Jamaica to harvest the crop. In the packing house they watch the packers sorting apples. They see the cider press at work, hear the grating shriek of the apple chopper and smell and feel the mashed apple pomace squeezed dry of juice. They go into the cold storage rooms stacked high with applefilled bins and breathe in the atonce familiar and exotic scent of the stored crop.

At the end of the tour the children visit with the farm animals. There's Rosie, our Scottish Highlander cow with her enormous horns, Bilbo the tom turkey, Eeyore the donkey, Teddy the Vietnamese potbelly pig and many more.

My great-grandfather, Peter G. Ten Eyck, founded Indian Ladder Farms in 1915. Under his watch, Indian Ladder was a dairy farm that offered door-todoor milk delivery.

When the dairy barn burned We never needed to be in 1948 my grandfather started planting the pastures in apples. To tide the farm over while he waited for the trees to come into bearing he raised Hereford beef cattle. Even though we are an apple farm today, farm animals remain an important part of Indian Ladder Farms. The kids can pet and feed the animals but just by seeing them they learn a lot. We once had a group of inner city kids from Albany who thought our brown woolly sheep were bears. It feels like taking a big step forward when you can straighten out a misunderstanding like that. You can teach a kid that a sheep is in fact not a bear and that its fleece is where we get the wool that we use to make the sweaters that keep us warm in winter.

> Our farm animals have become central to many of the activities we have for children on Indian Ladder Farms. We offer farm animal birthday parties where each party guest is given a basket full of fruits, veggies and grains to feed the animals. In the spring we have a month-long special event called Baby Animal Days when kids can come to the farm to see, pet and learn about baby farm animals ranging from ducklings to rabbits and piglets to calves. In our learning center, easement on the farm, selling, children learn about the off the development rights and interdependence of humans and preserving Indian Ladder as farm animals. They learn now to care for animals humanely and . Indian Ladder Farms and all of about the things we get from us here today have come and farm animals in return. During apple blossom time we bring classes to the farm to learn about honeybees and pollination. The children visit the beehives in the orchard, watch the bees at work and learn the crucial role that Route 156 in Altamont. pollination plays in the development of the fruit. They farm's see the bees in our observation beehive in the farm market and examine the tools of the beekeepers' trade, touch beeswax and taste honey. The kids dress a classmate in a bee costume, figure out who thequeen bee is in their classroom hive and learn to dance the bee dance.

Last year we introduced The Barn School, where children take care of all of Indian Ladder's farm animals each morning. They tote hay bales, feed out grain, fill watering troughs and collect eggs to bring to the farm kitchen. While they work they learn Spanish from instructor Mary Judd and our livestock caretaker, Donato Huerta, who travels from Mexico to work on our farm each year.

Mary Judd also teaches the children about global hunger and sustainable agriculture using a curriculum developed by Heifer International, a nonprofit organization that provides farm animals to families in need around the world. Special guests visit the Barn School, including a sheep shearer, spinner, farm veterinarian, draft horseman and beekeeper. My father takes the Barn School kids on a walking tour of the orchard looking for good bugs, bad bugs, and disease while they talk about the job of growing apples.

Today, I manage the farm store while my father supervises the growing side of the business. My son, Wolfie, is 8 years old and now he's the one riding his bike in the packing house and climbing stacks of bins. My nieces, Emily, Morgan and Taylor, are the ones bagging doughnuts and selling cider. They are the fifth generation of our family to work on this farm.

Indian Ladder Farms is a tradition in our family and along the way it has become a family tradition for many others. People who came here as kids are now bringing their kids and their grandkids. People get engaged here. I heard a funny story about one of our customers who proposed to his fiancée on Mount Mac. He offered her a cider doughnut and then pulled an engagement ring out of the bag instead. People hold wedding ceremonies in our fields and their receptions in the barn.

To protect all these memories and family traditions, we have placed an agricultural forever farmland. Long anter gone this land will still be here. Whether it turns into woods or remains farmland, it will be an island in the middle of suburbia, a place where all of our children can come to learn and grow. Trespassing teens are violating law encouragement of our Town Supervisor Theresa Egan and Police Chief Lou Corsi regarding a dangerous and harmful situation happening on our farm property located in Glenmont.

Specifically, we own the fields, which are between the Somerset Woods/Meadowview and Haswell Farms developments. Since the population of these developments began, we have had continual issues with people utilizing our property as an extension of their own for a party spot, an ATV/motorbike riding area, a walking trail, a dump for lawn and demolition debris, a source for firewood, a hunting preserve and a dog park to name a few of the unauthorized activities happening there.

We have tried nicely to tell people they are not welcome to trespass for any reason, and they continue to do as they please in violation of our property rights and the law.

More specifically, and the reason for this letter is that since early summer our farm has become a gathering spot for, young people between the ages of 15 and 19 (as evidenced by the police reports). These parties have had in attendance anywhere between 30 to 100 youths and have occurred frequently this summer. One parent asked what the big deal was ' kids were partying there for as long as he had lived here ^ 9 years (of course, his son had been caught there).

The big deal is this, these young people have trashed our fields, dug firepits, mowed down our hay, trashed our cornfield, and left us to clean up hundreds of beer cans, pot pipes and wrappers, patio torches and cough syrup bottles. Remember, this has happened to us all summer long.

During our comprehensive plan process, the term open space was a very hot topic. Property owners tried to explain that it set forth an attitude that open space was for everyone to control and to have use of. Saratoga Associates and many of the BPAC members were deaf to this issue.

I write this letter at the of being ecologically minded, that conservation of open space was key to preserving our town's character. People asked for trails between developments, across fields, over easements for water. sewer and power lines, and want landowners to willingly open their property for this. What has happened on our property will most likely happen wherever these trails are established.

> Repeatedly, the questions were raised "How will you monitor the use of these trails to ensure safety, who will pay for it, what type of equipment will the police need to be able to monitor these trails (ATVs or horses), and what will it cost? I submit to you that the type of problem we are having is exactly what occurs when people view private property as open space.

> The police are powerless to curb large groups of youths in an unsupervised setting, and truly have no easy way of stopping trespassers on motorized vehicles who damage and harass the landowners.

Our property is defined as "open space" but it is posted

We were told that this was a way private property, and those signs which we put up repeatedly only to have them ripped down, should be taken very seriously.

We have major liability issues, which should be understood by anyone who has even a third of an acre lot, not to mention the time we have to spend to rehabilitate the property when these parties are over. Remember, this has been the case all summer. Do parents know their 15 and 16 year olds are going to these unsupervised parties where these activities are going on? Maybe the next time your son or daughter says they are going to a friend,s house at night, you should check. The police have the names of a few of those caught over the summer ' maybe it is your child.

For the record, we will be now be forced to prosecute to the full extent of the law all violations ^trespass, dumping, property damage, loitering to name a few, because our polite requests for respect of personal property have been ignored.

When will Dr. Hart and the other purveys of fluoridated water get the message that the public does not want what they are selling? The perennial "misinformation" campaign is on again!

Contrary to what water fluoridation proponents claim, reputable scientific study does not conclude that fluoridated water is in the public interest or that it is safe. Whatever the scientific evidence, artificially introduced fluoride is not needed to make water safe to drink. ## Soccer club is grateful for community support soccer season, it is important to again recognize the people who have made and continue to make the Bethlehem Soccer Club so successful.

Editor, The Spotlight:

In the 2004-2005 soccer season well over 2,400 Bethlehem children participated in one or more of the club's programs. The three programs are masterfully IntraClub supervised by Committee, led by Joel Rosenberg, Jim Clyne (the travel coordinator) and Mary Ann and Dave Schubmehl (the premier coordinators). The club also says goodbye to several board members, including Charlie Dawson, Guy Alonge and Jim McGrath, each of whom used their professional expertise to assist the club and benefit the children who participate in the člub. The club also welcomes and looks forward to working with new board members Shawn Daley and Heather Ford.

The club is committed to improving the quality of its programs through improving the instructional quality of its coaching. Our technical director Jeff Guinn and his assistant Willie Sanchez are now licensed to train coaches to obtain national certification. For example, this year almost 100 new or experienced recreational coaches participated in coaching clinics offered by the club through Jeff and Willie, which represents almost 40 percent of the recreational coaches. In addition, the club now has over 40 nationally certified coaches who coach in one or more of its programs.

In fact, next year the club is requiring all coaches who coach above the recreational level to be nationally licensed. Through such licensure the club believes the quality of the programs will improve. This year also saw a significant increase in the interest of local college/university coaches to coach in our premier program.

Currently, the club has four college/university coaches coaching in our programs with the outlook of several others associating with our club in the near future. Finally, this fall the Club contracted with a coach from the United States Men's National Team to conduct a conditioning and fitness seminar. which will benefit all athletes, not just soccer players.

community members who have In anticipation of another contributed to the fund over the past year. In addition, the club thanks area businesses for theircharitable contributions and/or sponsorship this past season: Robert Wright Disposal, My Place & Co., Selkirk Firehouse No. 2, Standard Steel Fabricators, BBL Development Group, LLC, and Citizens Bank. Through the capital fund initiative the club hopes to make an announcement soon about a land acquisition.

> Finally, the club thanks the players, parents and coaches who participated in the club's programs this year. We hope to see you participate again and, perhaps step for ward to volunteer in the club next year.

your Opinion A Messina has what it takes to be town leader

Editor, The Spotlight:

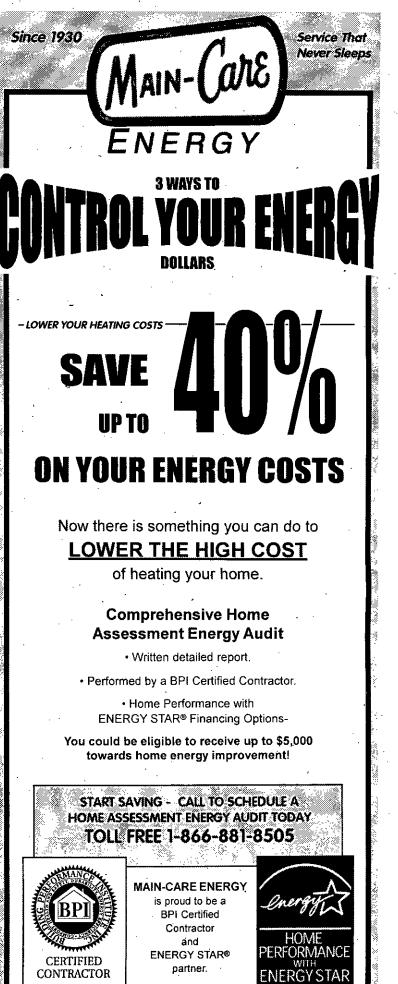

Bethlehem are extremely fortunate to have a man of Sam Messina's caliber running for a seat on the town board.

Sam Messina and his fammily and his family have been close friends of our family for over 25 years. We know him well having met when our oldest children were babies in day care. His capacity to lead, his courage to say what he believes, the strength of his ethical values, his personal humility, his ability to work and get resuldts have been evident to us during our many years of close friendship..

Sam has what it takes to meet this challenge and has a vision for the good of the community. He is and has been active participating member of this community's development for numerous years and has focused much of his time and energy to help assure that proper planning takes place as the town continues to grow.

Correction

There were some errors in last week's article about the Plum Fest. The correct information follows.

• Plum Fest began in 1999 as a fund-raiser for the New Scotland Historical Society.

• The Clarksville Classic Car Show is the Clarksville Historical Society's fund-raiser, and this is its first year.

• The dedication of the historical marker for the Houghtaling house, built before 1770 by Teunis Houghtaling, will be Sept. 25.

• John Hoagaland and the descendants of the Houghtaling family made a donation to the Clarksville Historical Society in the amount of $700, the cost of the historical marker.

Spotlight on FINANCE Hurdling Debt: Early Training Lowers The Obstacles

By ANTHONY J. LANZILLO Senior Vice President Key Bank

n track and field, one of the crowd's favorite events is the steeplechase, a 3,000 meter distance race where the runners encounter hurdles, including one "water-jump" hurdle, that mostnot all—clear easily. It is a difficult race that requires stamina, agility and strength, and it is a race that demands disciplined training.

For most Americans, wealth management is our steeplechase. It is a road on which many of us stumble and a road on which many of us fall flat on our face. In fact, in 2005 the average American only saves .9 percent of her or his income, carries increasing credit card debt and is not putting away enough money for a secure and comfortable retirement. Even worse, young professionals, those graduating from colleges, enter their careers and adult lives with debts previous generations never knew, averaging $17,000 to $20,000 in student loans and nearly $3,000 in credit card debt. For the average individual, this debt is a huge hurdle, and economists are beginning to fear that too many Americans might not make it to the finish line---a secure retirement

Understanding Financial Literacy

Over the last few years, the phrase financial literacy has become a bit of a buzzword. The Federal Reserve and the Treasury have formed departments and task forces to address the issue, and banks, including KeyBank, are making promoting it part of their mission. The presumption is that most Americans lack it and that providing people with an understanding of basic economic principles will facilitate better financial decisions and a more stable economy.

So what, really, is financial

The Federal Reserve uses these three definitions:

- Basic personal financial management skills, including understanding of income, money management, saving, investing, spending and credit.
- The ability to make critical financial decisions.
- Knowing how to manage money, use credit effectively, build wealth and make good financial decisions.

Surprisingly, and statistics bear this out, the presumption that many Americans lack financial literacy is right on. The cause for this is debatable. Some argue that it is because we have become a consumption society; others argue that it is due to a lack of fiscal responsibility and short sightedness. Yet, whatever the cause may be, there is one thing almost everyone agrees on: individuals who develop financial have fewer financial problems and a higher quality of life as adults.

Promoting Financial Literacy with Your Children

According to a 2004 survey by Visa USA, 56 percent of parents believe high school graduates are totally unprepared to manage their personal finances responsibly. However, the same survey shows that the majority of parents-as high as 75 percentreadily admit that they neither help their children establish a budget nor feel qualified to discuss finances with their children. Compounding the problem is the fact that most high schools do not offer courses on practical money skills. Is it any wonder, then, that part of the college freshman experience now includes navigating through the field of credit card vendors during the first week of classes, that marketers and businesses keep coming up with "must-have" products-and ways to finance ' the purchase of these productsfor young, newly independent adults?

The good news, though, is that your child doesn't have to be helpless prey. Debt at a young age is not inevitable, and you, as a parent and role model, can play a large role in preparing your child to use sound judgment when faced with financial choices. You don't even have to wait until you send them off to college to do it. You can start today, regardless of how old or young your child is. The following age-appropriate tips car help you.

Ages 3 through 4

Begin building an awareness of money by discussing with your child that items you purchase have value and Establish the difference between needs versus wants.

- Make your child responsible for small purchases.
- Ensure that your child understands the value of money by teaching her or him how to identify bills and coins and count money.

Ages 8 through 10

- Educate your child about advertising; most products aren't everything their manufacturers claim they are.
- Prioritize. At this age, your child will have a long list of wants. Help them determine what they really want by reviewing the pros and cons of purchases.
- Introduce the concept of interest to reinforce savings behavior. You can even offer a savings match, contributing a dollar for every dollar your child saves.

Ages 11 through 14

- Discuss wage differences, ·how education and career choices affect an individuals earning potential.
- Encourage your child to contribute to charitable efforts. In addition to giving money, or in lieu of a donation, your child can volunteer their time.
- Evaluate costs and price shop. Smart buying decisions will stretch your child's dollar and help her or him better understand the value of money.
- Help your child understand the value of a budget by predetermining what portion of an allowance can be spent and how much will be saved.

Ages 15 through 18

- Open a checking and savings account with your child, and make them responsible for balancing the accounts...with your supervision, of course.
- Explain the concept of credit, making it clear that what is bought on credit MUST be repaid-with interest-and that failing to manage credit responsibly can limit their buying power in the future.
- Promote financial independence by encouraging your child to get a job and earn a greater income.
- Introduce the basics of investing money.

Like the steeplechase, financial literacy is a distance race. Navigating it effectively and successfully-reducing financial obstacles from hurdles with water hazards to mere speed bumpsrequires patience and discipline. The reward, however, can be huge. Not only do financially literate individuals positively impact the national economy and contribute to more stable communities, people who improve their financial literacy also have a higher standard of living and more security over the course of their lives. And isn't this the finish line we are running toward?

Library marks Banned Books Week with events

The actor Kirk Douglas offered this observation about the freedom to read: "My mother and my father were illiterate immigrants from Russia. When I was a child they were constantly amazed that I could go into a building and take a book on any subject. They couldn't believe this access to knowledge we have here in America. They couldn't believe that it was free."

"Free People Read Freely" is this year's message for Banned Books Week, an annual American Library Association observance that begins this Saturday, Sept. 24. Since its establishment in 1982, Banned Books Week serves as a reminder that while not every book is intended for every reader, each of us has the right to decide for ourselves what to read, listen or view.

Since 1990, ALA's Office for Intellectual Freedom has recorded more than 8,332 book challenges, including 547 in 2004-up from 458 in 2003. A challenge is a formal complaint requesting removal of a book from library shelves or school curriculum. About three out of four challenges are to material in remain on library and bookstore Hampshire called "Why It's schools or school libraries, and one in four are to material in public libraries. OIF estimates that less than a fourth of challenges are reported.

These challenges represent more than a point of view; they are an attempt to remove materials from public use, thereby restricting access for others.

Thanks to the commitment of librarians, teachers, parents and students across the country, most challenges are unsuccessful, and books like Huckleberry Finn, Slaughterhouse Five. I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings, and the Harry Potter series

Family Day: a day to eat dinner with your children

Did you know that eating dinner frequently with your children reduces their risk of substance abuse? Research by The National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse (CASA) at Columbia University consistently finds that the more often children eat dinner with their families, the less likely they are to smoke, drink or use drugs.

The conversations that go hand-in-hand with dinner help parents learn more about their children's lives and better understand the challenges they face.

CASA's Family Day – A Day to Eat Dinner With Your Children is a national effort to promote family dinners as an effective way to reduce substance abuse among children and teens. Family Day is celebrated nationwide on the fourth Monday in September. This year, that's next Monday, the 26th.

Board approves 9W, stormwater studies

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

New state requirements regarding storm water management, which have delayed some building projects in the town of Bethlehem for several years, have caused the town to look in to engaging a consultant for upgrading the systems throughout town.

Robert Feller, an attorney with Bond, Schoeneck & King, has been engaged to help the town identify infrastructure options and to manage the storm water systems once they are in place. Under state law, all storm water infrastructure will be the town's responsibility by 2008.

"It's an ongoing issue, and this is a significant part of the approval process for building projects," said Supervisor Theresa Egan.

Costs for the consultant and for building the necessary infrastructure are not known at this time.

unfortunately, the state will not help us pay for it," said Egan. "It's a big ticket item for the town, but there is no state income for it. We don't know yet how much it will all cost." Feller, a Bethlehem resident, will work with the board evaluating options regarding infrastructure, when to install it and how to manage it once it's in place.

New storm water management systems will be placed in older parts of town as well as developments, Egan said.

Feller has taught storm water management at the state Association of Towns meetings. "Few people have expertise in "Feller is the most qualified."

Pirro speaks at Republican gathering

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Bethlehem's annual fall Republican Party fund-raiser, which took place at Elm Avenue Park on Friday, was considered a success even before the festivities ended and the money was counted. Unlike last year, this year there was no downpour.

A few hundred of Bethlehem's the strong turnout. Republicans, Conservatives and Independents came for the daylong fund-raising event to enjoy barbecue, beer, music and good times.

Highlighting this year's fundraiser was an appearance by Jeanine Pirro, Westchester District Attorney running against Democratic U.S. Sen. Hilary Clinton for Senate.

"Every year, this fund-raiser is an opportunity to see old friends and loyal Republicans," said Republican Committee Chairman Jeff Perez. "And we're honored that Jeanine Pirro is joining us today."

"I'm looking forward to connecting with people," she said. "Bethlehem plays an important role, and I'm delighted to be back around my old friends. I will be back here many times," she said.

Pirro is originally from Ithaca and attended Albany Law School.

"It's nice to be home," she said. Perez said he was pleased with

"It's a demonstration of how popular the Republican Party is,' he said. "The town of Bethlehem was mostly Republican for a long time."

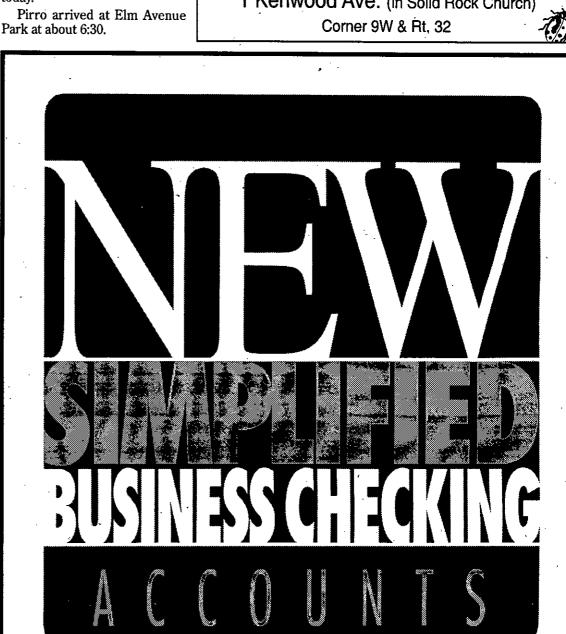

Perez said the Republican Committee is not endorsing a candidate for supervisor this year so it can focus on the Republican town board incumbents, George Lenhardt and Tom Marcelle.

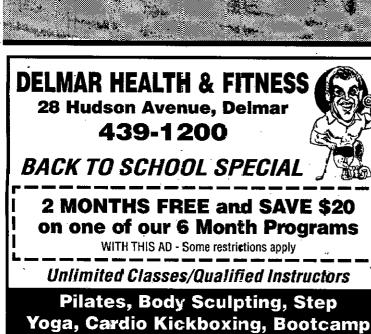

September 21, 2005 - PAGE 19

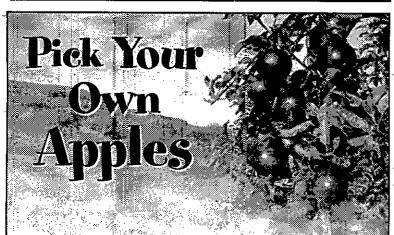

Marcelle and Lenhardt are up for re-election this November, as is Gregg Sagendorph, highway superintendent, Town Justice Frank Milano and Town Clerk Kathy Newkirk.

"We're very pleased that people are still loyal and want to support the Republican party," said Perez.

Everyone's sure to like these apples

By STEPHEN PAUSE

As fall approaches, so does the season for apples and cider doughnuts. For anyone with a craving for these staples of Americana, the Altamont Orchards will hold its 13th annual Capital District Apple Festival and Craft Fair the weekend of Oct. 1 and 2.

The autumn celebration, which has been at the Altamont Fairgrounds since 1998, will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. There will be over 175 vendors offering a variety of food, events, and arts and crafts for people of all ages.

Joe Abbruzzese, one of the owners of the orchard, said he expects as many as 20,000 people at this year's event.

There will be two local bands. the Refrigerators on Saturday and the Burners U.K. on Sunday.

"We were lucky enough to get the schedule right to get both of the top local bands in the area," Abbruzzese said.

Other events will include a will showcase a line of vehicles, and a group of wineries from the Finger Lakes. The orchard's resident blacksmith will also be giving demonstrations, as will members of the American Culinary Federation. There will also be a haunted house and pony rides.

As in previous years, several charities will set up booths at the fair, including Clowns on Rounds, who will be doing face painting and pumpkin painting, and Military Moms in Action, which hopes to collect an apple bin full of items for soldiers abroad. Military Moms in Action is asking people to bring nonperishable food and toiletry items for soldiers as well as gently used clothing, toys and school supplies to be sent to Iraq. The Lions Club will sell that sweet staple of festivals, cotton candy.

Should trim work or moldings be painted the same color as the walls, or should they be printed lighter or darker than the wall color?

To disguise ordinary or unattractive trim work, or to create a monochromatic look. use a trim color that is the same color as the walls. If you want to accentuate trim work, use a different color (lighter or darker) than the walls.

Will the paint I chose look lighter or darker on the wall?

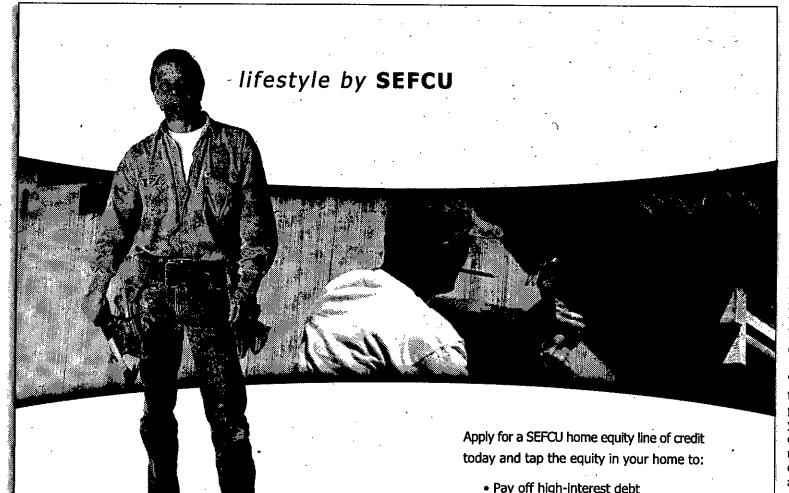

Over a larger surface area, most colors appear darker. It's a good idea to choose colors a shade or two lighter than what you want. Clean, bright colors can appear either lighter or darker depending on the surrounding colors and lighting in the room.

I've painted my room, and the color is much bolder than I expected. Is there anything I can do to soften the color?

You can apply a lighter or more muted color over the original base coat using a technique such as sponging, rag rolling, or color washing. This will visually "break up" the bolder color and soften the look of your room.

Finally, Van Allen said, "Decorating should be fun, so try to relax and enjoy the process. And if for some reason you're still unhappy with a paint color after it's been applied, remember, it can easily be changed-just grab a brush and a new color!"

Is your home energy efficient?

Reduce winter heating costs by taking action now

By JIM CUOZZO

ore and more residents are spending their hard earned dollars to heat and cool their homes, but unfortunately these homes still suffer from rooms that are too hot or cold, drafty spaces, mold and mildew problems along with building rot.

This fall, Butler Building Products of Clifton Park is offering Capital Region residents a way to prepare for the rough winter season ahead and the high home heating bills that come with it. Butler Building Products, in conjunction with The New York State Energy Research and Development Authority, is offering you a home performance assessment through Energy Star. The idea behind this program is to have Heating and Shell Specialists like Judy Butler and Larry Harmon of Butler Building Products come into your home and perform an intensive three hour home energy assessment that is followed by a several page audit report of your homes energy efficiency. "The most important aspect of our job is to report on the health and safety of your home," states Judy Butler, a Shell Specialist with several years of experience in this line of work. "We have been able to correct problems in a house that is not energy efficient or heating and cooling properly," said Butler.

The home energy assessment and audit consists of checking everything from drafty windows, to the air space from basement to attic for problems such as air leakage, ice damming, ceiling leaks and improperly vented appliances.

"For a limited time only, we are offering residents $50 off a home energy audit plus a free twelve pack of Energy Star light bulbs with each audit," said Butler. The overall savings amounts to over $150 and you will know if you are paying too much for heating your home.

Meg and Steve Roberts of Delmar recently had a home energy audit from Butler Building Products. Judy Butler arrived at the house the day of the audit with a gas leak detector, carbon monoxide detector, and a large fan used for a blower door test to detect the amount of air leakage in a home. The audit uncovered some areas that the Roberts need to address to make their home more energy efficient.

"The air leakage is 65 percent greater than the limit. Addressing the air leakage in the crawl space will correct the humidity and mold problems. The area connecting the attic and garage to the house must be sealed and insulated to work correctly in winter," said Butler. "The idea behind these audits is to reduce energy consumption and create a healthier environment in your home," said Butler.

If you would like a home energy audit and save money this winter on your heating bills, you'd better call Butler and Harmon early. "We get busier everyday and we are very busy

As Energy Costs Rise, Make It An Energy Smart Winter

Beside the cost of owning a house, homeowners must also consider the onslaught of rising energy costs and how to budget monthly utility bills. Record high oil prices and the cost of electricity and natural gas are forcing more homeowners to pay more each month just to keep their house comfortable.

By taking simple steps when building a new home, or making improvements to an existing home's shell or heating and cooling system, consumers can save up to 30 percent on energy costs. The key to improving efficiency is to address the home as a whole 'system' and evaluate how the structure, heating and cooling equipment, insulation levels, appliances and lighting work together.

The New York ENERGY STAR® Labeled Homes and Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® programs, developed under the New $mart<sup>s™</sup> York Energy Program and sponsored by the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA), are designed to help lower energy costs for New Yorkers, reduce energy demand, and protect the environment.

Homeowners who wish to reduce their home's energy bills can achieve savings by following a few simple steps.

Consider a Comprehensive Home Assessment

If you are buying an existing home, or want to see how your current home is performing, contact a participating Home Performance contractor, certified through the Building Performance Institute (BPI), to provide a comprehensive home assessment. The contractor will use the most advanced, state-ofthe-art equipment to test your home and identify energy efficiency improvements. The assessment will evaluate your heating and cooling equipment, insulation levels, and air leakage. The contractor will explain how these problems can be fixed as well as the cost of making the improvements. The contractor can also make the necessary improvements if you desire and help you secure low-interest loans and financial incentives.

Build a New York ENERGY STAR® Labeled Home

A New York ENERGY STAR® Labeled Home incorporates increased insulation levels, high performance windows, as well as energy-efficient heating, cooling, lighting and appliances to achieve higher energy efficiency and comfort levels. Each home must pass a stringent evaluation process that includes a computer-based - energy analysis, before it can be labeled an ENERGY STAR® Labeled Home. By building a New York ENERGY STAR® Labeled Home, you know you've built a home that's more durable, more comfortable, and gentler on the environment.

Incorporate the latest technology for heating and air conditioning

More than half of energy used in homes goes to furnaces, boilers, and air conditioners. If just one in ten households bought ENERGY STAR® qualified heating and cooling equipment, the change would eliminate more than 8.5 million tons of air pollution nationwide. ENER-GY STAR® qualified heating and cooling equipment increases comfort in your home and will save you money on your monthly energy bills.

Shop smart for ENERGY appliances and STAR® lighting products

Turning off lights when you leave the room isn't the only way to save on your energy costs. Replacing your current incandescent light bulbs with compact fluorescent lightbulbs (CFLs) will save you nearly $30 over the life of each bulb. CFLs use 66 percent less energy than a standard incandescent bulb and last up to 10 times longer. This means that over the life of one CFL, a consumer can avoid replacing up to 9 incandescent bulbs! ENERGY STAR® lighting fixtures put out the same amount of light as standard fixtures while providing excellent color rendering and light temperature. Colors appear true and natural: ENERGY STAR* fixtures operate at much lower temperatures than many traditional lamps, drastically reducing the risk of fire in your home.

Cleaning Up: How to Update a Bathroom without demolition

Refurbish your bath without the expense s your bathroom a sight better left unseen? If you feel the need to scurry guests away from a dilapidated bathroom and suffer from extreme embarrassment at the thought of its discovery, it is probably time to address the problem head-on.

And since experts say the state of your bathrooms is a huge factor when prospective buyers a bath you can be proud of. As the centerpiece of a bathroom, an unsightly or outdated bath and shower area can be an eventual deal-breaker. If you want a quick fix and don't have the means or desire to hire an expensive professional, there are other alternatives.

do-it-yourself For the approach, the makers of Liquid Nails construction adhesives have an innovative solution that can make a bathroom makeover simple, effective and very attractive. And it can be done tour a home, there is extra without any demolition or 'degree angle for incentive to make sure you have replacement of worn tile and mortar.

Preparation

For starters, you'll need to make sure that your tub and shower area are structurally sound enough to support any additions. Once you've made that determination, the next step is a visit to your local home improvement center to select a tub surround unit that meets your style and functionality needs. There is a wide array of designs available, so there is plenty of room for creativity. Be sure to take all the appropriate measurements, so you'll find the perfect fit!

high-quality Select а construction adhesive. Find a product that is specifically designed to withstand the heat and steam from showers . This selection is particularly important because the construction adhesive will serve as the primary tool for the project. In addition, you'll need a standard caulk gun and plenty of 400 grit sandpaper.

Now that you have everything you'll need, it's time for a thorough cleaning of the entire shower and tub area, making sure to remove any loose debris or paint. Scrubbing with the sandpaper is crucial in order to create a rough texture for the adhesive to bond to the existing the ideal bead size (about 1/8 inch) and pierce the inner seal with a nail or wire. Apply steady 'application around the perimeter (oneinch from the edge); and three 'S-shaped" beads down the center.

After you've applied the adhesive, mount the tub surround to the wall, pressing firmly, and then pull it away from the surface. This will allow the adhesive to ventilate and speed the curing process resulting in a tighter, more secure fit. When three to five minutes have elapsed, press the panel firmly back into place.

For optimal results (after 20 to 30 minutes), press over the entire surface to ensure a secure application. If the edges happen to rise, simply place masking tape to hold them in place until the adhesive fully cures. After 24 hours, you're ready to celebrate in your shiny "new" bathroom.

• Clean-Up

This project will change the way you think about bathroom repair and refurbishment. With quality building products, such as Liquid Nails brand construction adhesives, you can use existing surfaces and make significant updates without the headache and expense of demolition. Now, there wonit be a need to consider your formerly old and worn out bathroom a dirty, hidden secret.

Flowers add inspiration for fall home decorating

Simple projects can be an easy way to update your home all is a time of year when Leaves are turning yellow, green to varying shades of yellow, orange and brown; and longer and bright orange pumpkins and cornucopias abound. nature's palate serve as an inspiration for your fall home decorating by bringing a taste of the outdoors in.

"You don't need to change your paint color or bring in new furniture to update the look in your home this fall. There are so many beautiful things you can do with natural materials like grasses, leaves, twigs and flowers," said Jill Slater, a floral designer from San Francisco who serves as the spokesperson for the Flower Promotion Organization. "You can make a centerpiece for a table, a natural wreath for the doors and walls or desired add foliage. put seasonal grasses and flowers in vases scattered around the house."

Slater has been preparing flower arrangements for years, but says you don't have to be an expert to create a masterpiece. Here are some fall-themed projects you may want to try:

• EZ Spiral Bouquet •

It's easy to look like a pro and impress guests this season with this easy, freestanding chrysanthemum bouquet that inspires the senses and delights the eye.

Materials:

10 to 15 stems of mixed colored chrysanthemums (if a larger bouquet is desired, use more flowers or add some greenery); waxed florist string or raffia approximately two-feet in one-inch length; wide complimentary colored wired ribbon, approximately two-feet in length.

Directions:

leaves off the chrysanthemums, removing foliage that will fall below the thumb while making the bouquet.

Step 2 - Gather three to five stems of mums in your hand. (If you are right handed hold the color is all around us. flowers in your left hand and viceversa.) Hold them vert-ically orange, red and crimson; the between your thumb, index grass is fading from brilliant finger and third finger. The lower you hold the flower stem, the larger in circumference your spiral Let bouquet will be.

Step 3 - Begin the spiral placement by placing additional flower stems at a 45degree angle against the rest of the bouquet. Do not lay the stems on top of each or let them cross, instead, lay them next to each other. five stems have been added in this fashion, twist the bouquet (either clock-wise or coun-ter clockwise, depending on what feels comfortable in your hand). Add additional flowers using this same method. You will be creating a spiral of flowers. Keep all the heads/blooms of the mums at the same height. If Step 4 - Bind the flowers by wrapping the florist string or raffia several times around the flower stems at the point you held the flowers. Leave several inches of thread to tie off the bouquet. Bring the thread through the center of the flowers and pull the thread tightly. Cut the thread and tie it to the loose end.

Step 5 - Cut the ends of the flower stems very straight and finish the bouquet off with a comple-mentary ribbon if desired.

Step 6 — To make the bouquet lit-erally stand on end, by itself, gently spread the stems and if necessary, trim the center stems slightly sh-orter than the rest of the bouquet.

For people who like to entertain, another project Slater recommends for fall is to make seasonal place cards that can be set on the table for party guests.

"Miniature pumpkin vases inscribed with your guests' names look perky when placed on the dining table as seating place cards. These miniature personalized vases will make a big statement and a lasting impression," said Slater. They are also a festive and seasonal takehome gift for each partygoer.

• Pumpkin Place Cards • Materials:

(For One Miniature Pump-kin After three to Place Card) 1 miniature pumpkin, a paring knife, a teaspoon, a permanent marker, one-eighth brick of floral foam, floral clippers, 2 to 3 stems of chrysanthemums.

Directions:

Step 1: Soak the floral foam in water treated with floral preservative/food for at least 30 minutes.

Step 2: Cut a hole in the top of the pumpkin and then scoop out as much pulp and seeds as possible.

Step 3: With the permanent marker, inscribe the guests' names on the pumpkins.

Step 4: Next, cut the floral foam to fit inside the miniature pumpkin.

Step 5: Now cut the individual flowers off each chrysanthemum, leaving each stem as long as possible.

Step 6: Finally, cut each flower to approximately 4 to 5 inches in length and insert them into the floral foam. A round shape is the goal.

And if the party you're hosting will take place during a football game, your fans are sure to appreciate a flower arrangement made inside one of their team's helmets. Slater calls this creation "Helmet Hues."

Helmet Hues Materials:

1 football helmet, 1 bowl to fit inside the helmet, 1 brick of floral foam, 1 dozen fresh-cut flowers leather fern and 6 stems of lemon leaf, floral preservative, floral clippers and knife, teacup saucer. with more greenery. Directions:

Step 1: Soak the floral foam in water that has been treated with floral preservative for at least 30 minútes.

Step 2: Cut the floral foam to fit inside the bowl. Now set the bowl into the helmet.

Step 3: The trick to arranging flowers in a round container is to think of the face of a clock. Start with the greenery. The first step is to put the hour and minute hands in the center of your imaginary clock, which is really the center of the round container.

All the greens should be cut to approximately five-inches in length.

Step 4: Next, arrange in your teams' colors, 6 stems of additional greenery at the quarter hours and then fill in all the hours of the imaginary clock

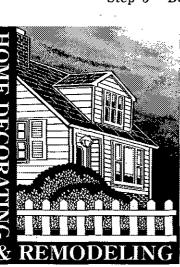

Step 5: The last step is to add the flowers. This is simple; follow the same procedure with the flowers as you did with the greenery. All the flowers should be cut to approximately 5 to 6 inches in length.

Step 6: Set the helmet full of flowers or a teacup saucer to stabilize it.

Airport to expand parking for holiday rush

By GRAHAM S. PARKER

Thanksgiving travelers won't be parking their cars on the byways of the Albany International Airport this holiday season because of overcrowded lots and parking garages.

"The property cut our parking lots in half," said authority Spokesman Doug Myers. The acquisition of the portion of road will connect to existing economy lots.

The 1.1-acre property is at the west end of the road, extending from Airport Lane near former

The authority is aiming to have the areas ready for parking by Thanksgiving, although that will depend on whether paving and additional infrastructure can be completed in time.

Most recently they approved a project to build a canopy over the airport's parking garage so that those 475 spaces could remain open in winter. Heavy snowfall left the top floor of the lot inaccessible. Plans are also in the works to build a 1,800-space parking garage identical in design and size to the existing garage.

The authority will be paying for the parking projects using parking revenues, said Myers.

Colonie Center design moves up, not out

By GRAHAM S. PARKER

Although the proposal has changed, the plan to bring new life to the Colonie Center Mall is still in the works.

However, the plan that had been to build out has turned into building up.

The town planning board met on Tuesday, Sept. 13 to make a negative declaration of potential adverse environmental impacts of the proposal in line with the State Environmental Quality Review Act.

The planning board was named the agency to make the Boscov's stores at either end of declaration because of pending the mall. area variances for the proposal before the town's Zoning Board of Appeals.

After financial estimates came $5 million more than anticipated for the proposal and engineers learned that the original structure was designed to support a third floor, owners and engineers opted to raise the center to three and a half stories.

proposal will extend off of the in the works to overhaul the mall's mall's food court area centrally located between Macy's and

In April the mall's new owner, Feldman Mall Properties Inc., and the SPG3 engineering firm heading the project, proposed to revamp the mall by turning it inside out. The proposal called for a new Colonie Center façade facing Wolf Road that would feature new retailers and restaurants with access from the outside rather than solely on the The 100,000 square foot inside of the mall. A plan was also interior with new lighting, seating and 13 to 14 state-of-the-art Regal

> So far two restaurants are in the final stage of leasing new space in the proposed addition. Several other restaurants are also in the preliminary stages of leasing space. While Snyder wouldn't name the potential tenants he did say were all upscale dining establishments.

> Although no renderings of the new proposal are available, Snyder said that the addition would be designed in "a way that will be attractive for at least 10 years."

SPG3 engineers and Feldman Mall Properties have both made a name in the business of revamping old or poorly performing malls.

The real estate firm purchased Colonie Center in February with the sole intention of revamping the 1.2 million square foot facility.

Colonie Center is nearly 40 years old and has been steadily losing tenants and retailers. The time has come to revamp the mall to keep existing tenants in and attract new ones, said Snyder.

n event for the Children's Museum at Saratoga scheduled for this Saturday, Sept. 24, promises to be both fun and delicious.

The first ever "Wish upon a Star" fund-raiser is the culmination of a week of festivities arranged to celebrate the museum's 15th birthday. The "Wish Upon a Star" soiree will be held at the Washington Inn, and a "Kids Night Out" will take place at the museum between 5:30 and 9:30 p.m. that evening.

Black Diamond Catering will provide the food for the adults' event, and the ample menu includes tapas, a pasta bar and an award-winning vanilla cake with vanilla, bacquise and butter cream frosting. The children's event will feature games, entertainment, pizza and ice cream. currently located in its own building at 69 Caroline St.

When the museum moved, it expanded its exhibits and now is full of interactive stations that teach about science, history, the arts and community living. A recent program sponsored by the museum, called "City by Design," teaches children about building a city, and what goods and services are needed to have a livable city.

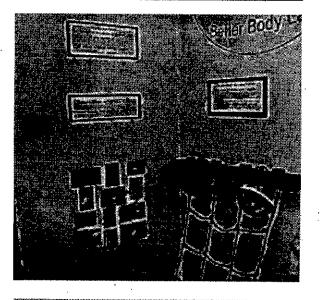

director of development Beth Austin. The "Wish Upon a Star" event is part of that capital campaign, which is in its fourth and final year.

The "Wish Upon a Star" event will feature silent and live auctions – the highlight of which will be the auction of playhouses. The playhouses are the works of three local building companies, Belmonte Builders, FH Alexander Contractors and Tanski Construction. Michele Brown controller for Belmonte Builders, said the company worked with its su contractors to build a replica of its Colonialstyle houses. The two-story structure sits on a 9-foot by 9foot footprint. The outside has stained cedar-shake shingles and residential-grade windows that open with a small turning lever. The interior has tongue and groove cedar walls, hardwood floors and a loft that is accessible via a rockclimbing wall, Brown said. "I've had a lot of people saying, 'Maybe I should just move in," Brown said.

"It's going to be superfun," Julie Peters, the museum's director of education, said.

A group of parents and teachers founded the Children's Museum at Saratoga 15 years ago. The museum was first in an 800 square-foot storefront at the Downstreet Marketplace building on Broadway, but quickly outgrew it. The museum hosts about 40,000 visitors every year and is Another, called "Bubble-ology" is an exploration of bubbles that is designed to help children develop and hone skills of scientific reasoning.

Museum officials have been involved in a capital campaign for the past several years and are raising money to pay for programs and operating costs, according to

Szelest's goal lifts Lady Eagles

By ROB JONAS

The Bethlehem field hockey team registered its biggest win while not playing its best game of the young season.

Emily Szelest scored in overtime to lift the Lady Eagles to a 3-2 victory over defending Section II. Class A champion Saratoga last Thursday in Bethlehem.

played a better game and not gone into overtime," said first-year Bethlehem coach Dawn Austin. "But once we were in overtime, my girls played awesome."

Libby LeRoy tallied twice in regulation to help Bethlehem grab a 2-1 lead. Liz Woodcock

"It's always good to win once you hit overtime," Austin said. 'Saratoga has always been a strong team, so it's nice to go in and get a win against them early in the season."

Jackie Wheeler stopped 14 "Saratoga, I felt we could have shots to help Bethlehem earn its second Suburban Council victory of the season.

"I think things are coming along," said Austin, who moved up to the varsity level after coaching the junior varsity team the last four years. "There have been some formation changes, scored late in the second half for and some seniors have been Shenendehowa.

Saratoga to force overtime before moved to positions that they're not used to. But we've finally come to a point where we're. satisfied with the changes we've made, and now it's come down to playing better.'

If the Lady Eagles do that, Austin said they should contend in a balanced Suburban Council.

"I think we're in the process of building a strong program, and if we reach our goals this season, I think we'll show everyone that we're headed in the right direction," she said.

Plainsmen fend off Eagles in divisional showdown

By MIKE CIOFFI

The Shenendehowa football team showed Bethlehem that it's not ready to relinquish its hold on first place in Division 1.

Salih Banks scored on a 4-yard touchdown run in the third quarter, and the Plainsmen held on for a 14-7 victory over the Eagles last Friday in a battle of two 2-0 teams.

"I think we grew a little bit matching, and tonight, and we saw that we have more room for growth," said Shen coach Brent Steuerwald. "Big plays at the end made the difference tonight."

"We played really hard," said Bethlehem head coach Ron Smith. "It's a disappointing loss. We had some opportunities to put some points on the board from an offensive standpoint."

The Plainsmen (3-0) grabbed the lead early in the first quarter. Banks broke free for a 55-yard run, which set up a 2-yard touchdown run by Steve Gauck to make the score 7-0.

The double wing offense is supposed to confuse opposing defenses with its tight formation, but Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk read Lansingburgh's offense like a book last Friday.

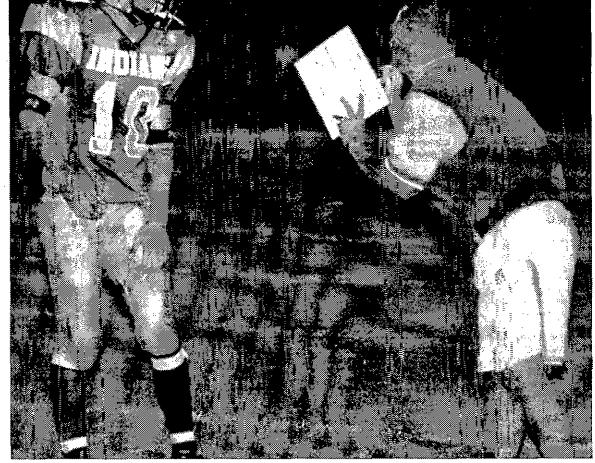

The Indians limited the visiting Knights to three touchdowns two of which came long after the game was decided --- to pull away for a 34-21 victory in a class B Reinfurt Division football contest.

The defense was tremendous," said Ravena coach Gary VanDerzee. "They gave up three big plays, and other than that, they shut them down."

Lansingburgh (2-1) came into the showdown having scored 111 points in its first two games behind a trio of talented running backs — Kenny Youngs, Brandon Canty and Mike Hepp. But by the fourth quarter, Ravena (3-0) had forced the Knights to abandon their ground game because the Indians' defense was stopping every run attempt.

Coach (Bruce) Stott comes up with great schemes against the double wing," said senior fullback/linebacker John Lynch. "He's the best at it.'

"It's no different of a defensive scheme than the last time we played them (a 59-28 victory in last year's Sectional final)," Stott said. "But the kids did a very good zone on all but one try. job of executing it."

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk quarterback Tim Jordan, left, gets the next play from offensive coordinator Bob Dorrance during last Friday's 34-21 victory over Lansingburgh. Rob Jonas

Bobby Hummel lofted the opening kickoff ir. such a way that tight end Eric Stott on two it landed at Lansingburgh's 20tcuchdown throws — one on a 20yard line and colled until a yard completion in the first teammate recovered it at the quarter, and the other a 36-yard scoring strike or the first play of Knights' 10. That helped set up Ravena's first touchdown, a 1-yard the fourth quarter that put the plunge by tailback Ryan Cross. Indians ahead 27-7.

Life momentarily knocks Oates off his stride

By ROB JONAS

The information just didn't add up in Bob Oates' mind.

How could he, a long-time runner, be on the verge of a heart attack? when he ran uphill the last two going to run 10 or 11 miles (and years was the result of advancing age, right? It couldn't be because his heart wasn't providing enough blood due to a blockage. He was a distance runner, after all. But when his arms started to ache in August, Oates couldn't ignore his condition anymore. So, he left his Guilderland boys cross country team behind at a campground where they spend a week to train one day to visit a shock to Oates and his team. doctor. That's when he learned one of life's cruel lessons — anyone, even those who appear to be in perfect health, can have heart problems. In Oates' case, a major artery was 80 percent clogged with cholesterol, which placed him perilously close to a heart possibilities of what would be attack.

Oates said a clogged artery isn't something that ordinarily makes itself known in distance runners. Since they train to run for miles without stopping, their bodies are less likely to exhibit warning signs luring medical stress tests than other people. That's why the news came as a "We were all very scared because that's the coach who is going tc guide us," said junior Brian Rhodes-Devey. ### that place looks like today," she said.

After she married, she and her husband ran a flower farm in Dutchess County.

Centenarians who grew up in cities have happy memories of ethnic neighborhoods buzzing with activity and reminders of the old country.

"I loved parades," said Anna Lucus, 100, a native of Poland who came to America as a child. "We had them all the time and many of us kids joined in to be part of it."

Lucus eventually moved to Schenectady, and worked in factories and for General Electric after getting married. Lucus said she loved drawing and traveled in artistic circles.

"People do more today," Lucus said referring to the mobility and leisure time that people today enjoy.

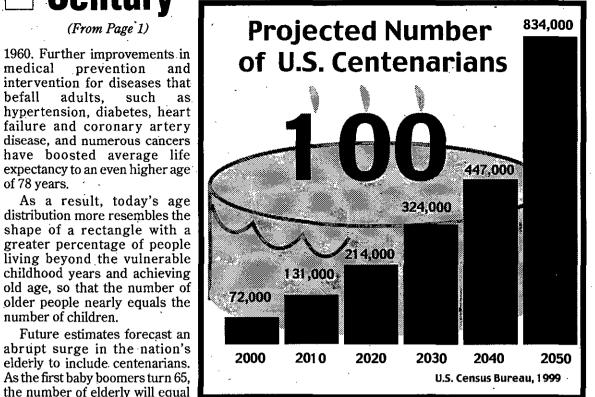

Although she enjoyed silent movies, early radio and street festivals, more time went to work and luxuries were rare.

For Leonard, college was about work, not about joining in the latest fads or enjoying the hottest entertainer.

"In college I had no time or money for a lot of fun and socializing," she said. "I studied and worked, mostly as a tutor."

The three centenarians were of the same mind, that their fondest memories were of friends and loved ones they knew along the way.

"I love the friends I've made," said Fulton, still smiling as she spoke. "God has been good me. I guess he's not ready for me vet."

claims of extreme age are untrue, age, thus probably increasing there still may be an unusually high prevalence of very old fit people in these regions. In the Tibetan mountains for instance, octogenarian and nonagenarian elders, impressively many of them men, still herd livestock and lead physically strenuous lives.

The New England Centenarian Study conducted a population-based study in order to find all the centenarians within a given geographic area. The most important finding has been that nearly all of the subjects were independently functioning. at least to the age of 90. This finding is consistent with the hypothesis that these subjects have a history of aging slowly and either avoid or markedly delay disability associated with aging.

While about 43 percent of the centenarians have a history of an age-related illness developing before they turned 80, and 42 percent did so after the age of 80, approximately 15 percent had no age-related illnesses at age 100 except for perhaps arthritis, vision and/or hearing problems. It is interesting that despite some of them having at least one illness for a long period of time, they are still able to live the vast majority of their very long lives independently.

Though reports of people 130 vears and older are unfounded. there may in fact be some regions where people do live a very long time. For example, in North America, there may be a "centenarian belt" extending om minnesota to Nova Scona. Nova Scotia has twice the prevalence rate of centenarians (one per 5,000 people) compared to New England. This is called a "founder" effect, meaning that many of the centenarians could come from ethnic backgrounds (e.g. Celtic, French/Acadian, Scottish) that predispose them to extreme longevity. This hypothesis is based upon the supposition that extreme old age does in fact run in families. As across the nation, the local number of centenarians has steadily increased. According to the 2000 census there are 62 of them in Albany County, 44 in Schenectady County and 23 in Saratoga County.

said. In earlier days Leonard prided herself as an accomplished musician who played piano and cello, capable of learning entire symphonies.

"I was lucky to work with such fine people," she said.

Centenarians like Leonard offer a glimpse into the past and the lifestyles of previous generations. Growing up in an era before television, cell phones, fast food and for many, leisure time, they remind us all of how much life has changed, whether it's for the better or worse.

There have been so many changes, it would take me a week to think of them all," Leonard said.

While many people alive today remember when large sprawling acres of suburban development were once cornfields, apple orchards and scenic vistas overlooking valleys, many centenarians earned a living from the land.

"People don't work on farms like they used to," said Silvia Fulton, 100, a Scotia resident. "I don't see as many farms around factor allowing this will be that generation's relatively high level of education, income and attention to good health habits, As the number of centenarians increases so will the number of super-centenarians, or people older than 110. Although legends, mythology and the Bible notes people living hundreds of years, the longest living person whose age was authenticated was Madame Jeanne Calment of France who died at the age of 122 years in August, 1997. Calment carried a tremendous responsibility ... in her later years, every day that she lived extended the maximum human life span by a day.

Prior to the 20th century, though life expectancy was about half of what it is today, life span was probably not that different. There are several accounts of people living beyond 90, going back as far as the 16th century. Titian, the well-known Italian master painter, lived to at least 90 and may have been as old as 99. Hippocrates reportedly died in his mid-80s. Until Ronald Reagan surpassed him, John Adams had lived the longest of our presidents, making it to 90. Reagan was 93 when he died.

With their population rising, centenarians boast an increasing number of celebrities. Although deceased now, Bob Hope, George Burns and Rose Kennedy all lived to see 100.

While some geographical places boast a large number of centenarians and even supercentenarians, studies reveal these claims are false. Vilacamba, Ecuador almost became a tourist attraction because natives claimed their water was a fountain of youth leading to the many super-centenarians in that region. Remember Dannon yogurt commercials featuring people in Caucasia, between the Black and Caspian Seas, living to 150 years and beyond? In fact, those purported supercentenarians were taking on the identities of their parents, aunts and uncles. Only the French Calment's age is welldocumented. These regions of purported exceptional longevity still merit already died or moved away, but careful study, however. Though many more have since reach that
