Jewish New Year marks start of year 5766

The tradition began almost 3,000 years ago. In the book of Leviticus in the Bible's Old Testament, God spoke to Moses and commanded him to instruct the Israelites to "keep the first day of the seventh month as a day of rest: it shall be proclaimed holy with the blowing of trumpets ... and moreover the 10th day of this seventh month is the day you are to honor by making atonement."

Each year, Jews throughout the world continue to honor this covenant by celebrating Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, the High Holy Days of the Hebrew calendar.

Happy New Year

Rosh Hashanah, a two-day observance, begins on Monday, Oct. 3, at sunset. The holiday marks the beginning of the new year according to the Hebrew calendar. While the Scriptures don't specifically designate Rosh Hashanah as the beginning of the year, Jewish tradition does, according to Rabbi Moshe Bomzer, of Orthodox Jewish Congregation Beth Abraham-Jacob in Albany.

"Translated to English, Rosh Hashanah literally means 'head of the year,'" he said.

Rabbi Robert Kasman of Congregation Agudat Achim in Niskayuna offered a different translation, suggesting that it means the pinnacle of the year.

"It's the top of the mountain where you look back at the first six months of the calendar and toward the next six months," he said.

The first month of the Jewish calendar, Nissan, parallels March and April, which may puzzle many as to why the Jewish "new year" occurs in Tishri, the seventh month. Judaism, Kasman said, really has several different "new years," not unlike the many secular new years we are all familiar with, such as the new school year or fiscal year. Rosh Hashanah marks the beginning of a new numerical year, and in this case, it's the year 5766.

According to tradition, the holiday commemorates the creation of humanity in the book of Genesis. While the name "Rosh Hashanah" does not appear in the Bible, Leviticus 23:24-25 refers to the holidays Yom Ha-Zikkaron (the day of remembrance) or Yom Teruah (the day of the sounding of the shofar).

"The shofar is a ram's horn which is blown similar to a trumpet," said Howard Goldberg, director of education and youth services at Albany's Temple Israel. "It represents God calling his people to self-judgment, self-improvement, atonement and prayer. We blow the shofar in the days leading to the holiday to wake people up for the new year."

Because of its importance and extraordinary sound, congregants arrive in numbers, many times filling synagogues beyond capacity.

"No shofar sounds alike because each is from a different animal and no two animals are alike," Goldberg said. "For many, learning to blow the shofar is hard, but then so is whistling. I can blow the shofar well but can't whistle for the life of me."

Filling in the book

Similar to January New Year's resolutions, Rosh Hashanah is a time to plan for changes in the coming year.

Town seeks solution to curb vandalism

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Bethlehem residents along with town and school officials are seeking a solution to the concerns about acts of vandalism in town. Property damage to Valerie and Thomas Newell's Glenmont farm, as well as graffiti painted on the Clarksville Elementary School and other acts of vandalism last summer have prompted officials to find a solution.

At the Sept. 14 town board meeting, the Newells presented pictures of damage to their farm incurred by kids who trespassed on their land several times throughout this year.

"The Newells' complaints are significant, because there has been more of this behavior," said town Supervisor Theresa Egan. "There seems to be a more malicious element to this over the last few years, although in the grand scheme, I don't think that the incidences in Bethlehem are that much out of the ordinary. The town of Guilderland is dealing with assaults and arrests that became unmanageable, which led to the curfew at Crossgates Mall."

Newell said she would like to see a curfew for underage kids, but Egan said it is unlikely one will be instituted.

"We haven't had a need for a curfew, but we could discuss it," she said.

"There seems to be a more malicious element to this over the last few years, although in the grand scheme, I don't think that the incidences in Bethlehem are that much out of the ordinary."

Theresa Egan

However, the concern is that we wouldn't be really dealing with the issue. We would be punishing the good kids as well as the bad, and those are such a minority in the town. It's problematic, but we're not suffering a disproportionate share."

Egan said the key to solving the problem is open communication, with everyone doing their part, meaning parents being clear with their kids about respecting property; property owners reporting all incidents of trespassing or vandalism; and the police department

Marcelle is GOP pick for state Supreme Court

New town board candidate to be named

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Incumbent town board member Thomas Marcelle will not be running for re-election this November as planned. Instead, he will be running to become a justice on the state Supreme Court.

Marcelle was nominated for the office last Friday, which he said has always been an ambition of his.

"I think it would be a tremendous way to serve people," he said.

His judicial philosophy is that the law protects the weak against the strong, and that minority rights should be protected.

"If someone sues a corporation, then I want to make sure that it's a level playing field," he said. "A judge has the opportunity to protect those who need protection. The legislative and executive branches of government are influenced by popular will, but in the judicial branch, it's not about popularity. The unpopular litigants need protection too, and I embrace the idea that the court should be about justice."

Marcelle was nominated on the Republican slate, as was Paul Gruner. Incumbent Justice Edward Spain was cross-endorsed.

Marcelle's nomination means the Bethlehem Republican Committee must find someone to run for town board in Marcelle's spot, something Marcelle doesn't think will be a problem, nor does committee chairman Jeff Perez, who said there are many Republicans in town willing to serve on the board.

"I care a lot about this town. If I get elected, I will still be involved, but in a more personal way."

"I'm sure there are a lot of good candidates willing to serve on the town board," Marcelle said.

DO NOT CIRCULATE

Police make forgery, harassment arrests

On Sept. 14, Guy Maikels, 32, of Myrtle Avenue in Albany was arrested for forgery and identity theft in the second degree.

Officer James Cross was dispatched to the CVS on Delaware Avenue regarding an invalid check, police said. Officer James Cross caught up with Maikels on Delaware Ave, and when stopped, Maikels stated that the manager at CVS had given him a hard time about his check. Cross asked Maikels to go back to CVS, and Cross interviewed the store manager, who stated that Maikels was in the store earlier and passed a check, police said. The manager had checked earlier with Trustco Bank and discovered insufficient funds, and when Maikels came back to the store, the police were called.

Maikels admitted to taking several checks from his grandmother and admitted to forging her signature on the checks and using them at several area CVS stores, police said.

During the vehicle inventory, several items were found in CVS bags, and Maikels admitted that the bags contained merchandise bought with the stolen checks. He was brought back to police headquarters where he gave a written statement. Further investigation revealed that Maikels had purchased $740 of merchandise with stolen checks. Maikels was arraigned before Judge Frank Milano and remanded to Albany County jail in lieu of $25,000 bail. He is scheduled to return to court Oct. 4.

On Sept. 19, Martha Henao, 50, of 84 Delaware Ave., was arrested for second-degree harassment.

Officer Adam Cobb responded to a dispute between neighbors. Henao reportedly yelled to her upstairs neighbor, and after the neighbor asked Henao to stop the name-calling and to leave her alone, she continued yelling obscenities, police said. Henao then went out on her porch and started breaking liquor bottles, and then pounded and kicked her neighbor's door and screamed at her, police said. The neighbor told police she was concerned for her safety when Henao continued kicking and pounding on the door.

When police interviewed Henao, she was inside her apartment and was verbally abusive to Officer Cobb, police said. Henao was arrested and brought to police headquarters, where she continued acting abusively by throwing a chair and pulling the table she was secured to across the room. Henao then sat on the table and kicked Sgt. Robert Markel in the chest, police said.

Henao was removed and restrained by handcuffs and a leg restraint. She was arraigned before Judge Fred Dwyer and released on her own recognizance. Henao is scheduled to return to court Oct.

18 at 4 p.m.

On Sept. 22, police arrested Christina Arango, age 21, of 84 Delaware Ave. on charges of second-degree harassment. Officer Peter Resnick responded to a neighbor dispute. The neighbor said she went outside to get her mail when Arango reportedly walked up and accused her of reporting her mother to the police, threatened her with bodily harm, and then locked her out of the complex, police said. Arango was placed in police custody by Officer Jeffrey Vunck.

Police arrest several for DWI

Debra Murphy, 49, of Onesquethaw Creek Road in Feura Bush was arrested on Sept. 15. Officer Rico Fiore responded to an erratic operator complaint. When Murphy was pulled over, a strong odor of alcohol was detected, police said. Murphy stated that she had one drink in her home and then drove to Henry Hudson Park, police said. Murphy failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. She is scheduled to return to town court Oct. 4 at 4 p.m.

On Sept. 17, police arrested Shawn McAvoy, 20, of Brookview Drive in Delmar. Officer Scott Anson heard McAvoy's car approaching on Brookview, police said. When stopped, McAvoy said he was smoking the tires in front of a friend's house to wake him up and told police it was stupid, police said. Officer Anson detected a strong odor of alcohol.

McAvoy failed field sobriety tests and is scheduled to return to court Oct. 4 at 4 p.m.

On Sept. 22, Daniel Doherty, 19, of Indian Hill Road in Feura Bush was arrested for property damage automobile accident, leaving the scene of an accident, and DWI.

Doherty was driving west on Corning Hill Road when he ran off the road and struck a mailbox, sign and utility pole. He then left the scene, parked his vehicle at his employer's shop and then called a friend to get a ride home, police said.

Doherty was interviewed at home by Officer James Rexford. Doherty said he ran off the road because he was distracted by his cell phone, police said. Rexford detected a strong odor of alcohol, and Doherty admitted to drinking

Banker to help storms' pet victims

BY STEPHANIE LUBIS

One Selkirk resident is not content to merely sympathize with victims of Hurricane Katrina who have lost pets.

Bonnie Cerasaro, branch manager for Pioneer Savings Bank in Glenmont's Town Squire shopping plaza, is going to New Orleans Oct. 5 to help do something about it.

A lifelong animal lover, Cerasaro has a cat and a dog, and her five grown children are also animal lovers with pets of their own.

"When I heard what's going on, I kept thinking to myself, 'My cat and dog would not survive without me, they depend on me too much,'" she said. "People didn't want to evacuate because they didn't want to leave their pets behind. The more I think about it, the more I think that I would've stayed behind too."

Although Cerasaro thought about a trip to New Orleans as soon as Katrina hit, it took just under a month for her plan to come about. Due to surgery earlier this year, she had no more vacation time, but when she told other bank executives what she wanted to do, she was granted the time off—with pay.

She contacted Noah's Wish, a non-profit organization that rescues and shelters animals, with the idea of going to New Orleans to help as a contingent volunteer, meaning she does not have credentials as a veterinarian or animal rescue worker. Cleaning, loving and attending to animals is what she will be doing once she gets there, and anything else rescue workers ask of her.

"Sometimes a bandage and a kiss helps, too," she said.

Noah's Wish put Cerasaro in contact with Laura Sutcliffe of Milltown, near Poughkeepsie, and they corresponded by phone for a few weeks, getting to know each other and planning their trip. Cerasaro is responsible for her own air fare and for the cost of a truck rental once she gets to New Orleans. The truck is to help carry equipment that may be necessary.

"We're basically going into the unknown," she said. "All the volunteers from Noah's Wish will be staying in a washed-out furniture store. I'm really not sure what's going to happen there."

Other than getting to New Orleans to help, Cerasaro's other goal is to raise money for helping stranded animals find their owners. She said the Glenmont branch of the Bethlehem Volunteer Fire Department donated $1,000 to her cause, and Dr. Keicher, a chiropractor, donated $500, all in one night. She also said she will continue to canvass the town for donations, and that Pioneer Savings Bank has set up a special fund for those who wish to donate.

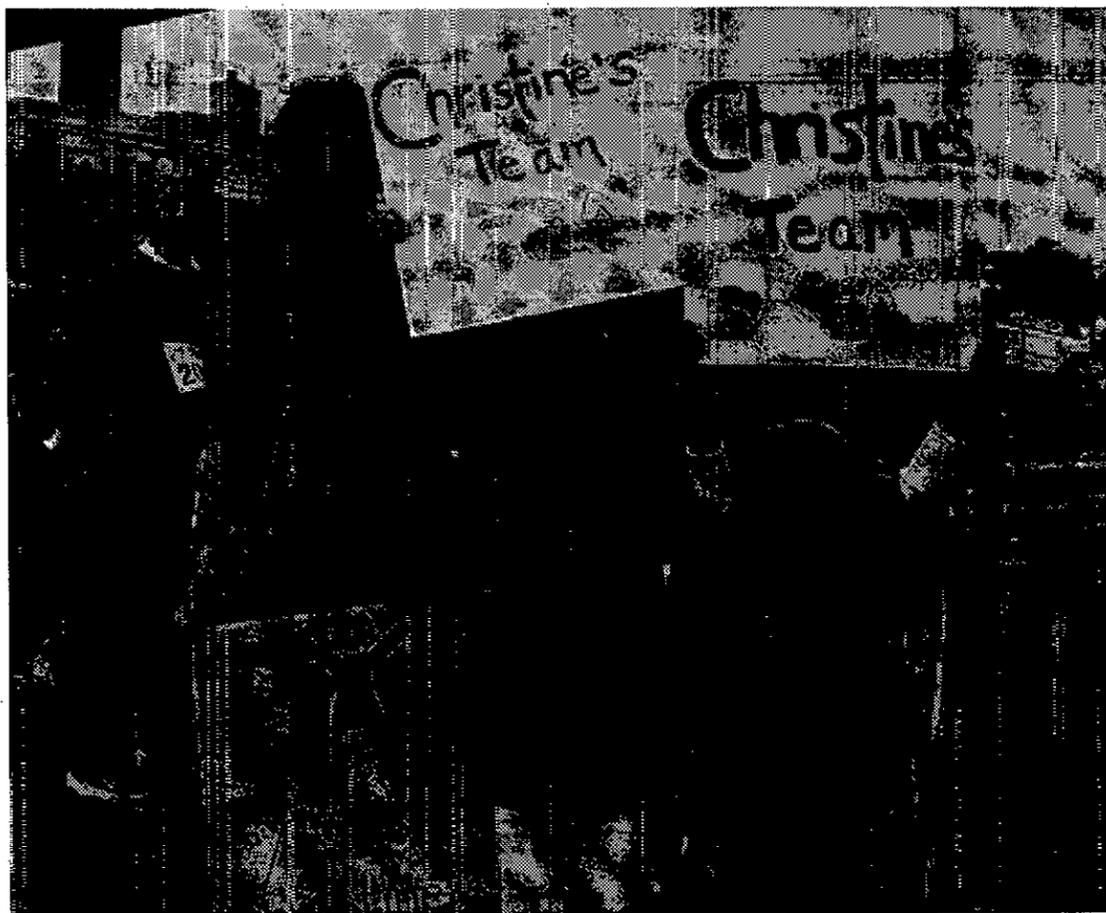

The trip south will be worthwhile, she said, if she can help even one person reunite with his or her pet, and she would even be willing to take some stray animals back with her, if she could find people who were willing to house them.

"I'm not sure how this trip will affect me emotionally," she said. "To see this, to know this, I just don't know. But the thought of losing an animal is tough, and whatever cost, financial or emotional, would be worth it if I could do some good."

To contribute, stop in at the bank or mail donations to Pioneer Savings Bank, 329 Glenmont Road, Glenmont 12077.

"People didn't want to evacuate because they didn't want to leave their pets behind. The more I think about it, the more I think that I would've stayed behind too."

One team, 381 people, all seeking a cure

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Christine Kenefick of Slingerlands has reached one of her goals for this year's 5K race for the Susan Komen Breast Cancer Foundation on Saturday, Oct. 1: she tripled the size of her team from last year.

Kenefick was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2003, and two of her closest friends started the team that year to show Kenefick strength and support while she was struggling with treatment. The team was a success, and many who participated joined "Christine's Team" again in 2004. That team consisted of 124 members, one of the largest teams ever assembled.

Kenefick is excited and grateful that her friends, family and colleagues will again turn out in force to support breast cancer research and help find a cure. This year, there are 381 team members, which include 75 runners, 121 walkers, 153 "sleepers," who donate money to the team but elect to sleep in on the day of the race, and 32 others who donated money.

"I actually participated in this race before I was diagnosed, and I was surprised how emotional it was then. You have mixed emotions. You wish you didn't have to be there."

Christine Kenefick

still in treatment in 2003, and didn't participate in that race. This year, Kenefick is feeling fine, but says she has to take every day as it comes. She is excited about the race this year.

"It's hard to describe how it feels to participate," she said. "I actually participated in this race before I was diagnosed, and I was surprised how emotional it was then. You have mixed emotions. You wish you didn't have to be there."

This year's team T-shirt, which her daughter designed, says, "Race cancelled due to cure".

"That is our goal," said Kenefick. "I hope one day we won't have to be there."

Kenefick said being a cancer survivor puts a whole new spin on being involved, compared to her pre-diagnosis participation.

"This time, I'm helping myself as well," she said. "There's a part of me that thinking, 'How did I get here?'"

Although Christine's Team is exceptionally large, Kenefick said it is not about her.

"This team is about the four women who started it," she said. "It's about everyone who joins and is willing to be generous enough to come. It's very humbling to have a team so large. We're not doing a small thing."

Town to sponsor hurricane benefit

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

The town of Bethlehem will show its generosity and giving spirit by hosting Bethlehem K.A.R.E.S. (Katrina Assistance and Recovery Effort for the South) with the help of local businesses and organizations.

Set for Oct. 16, from noon to 6 p.m., Bethlehem K.A.R.E.S. promises to be a day of fun for all ages. There will be a talented lineup of local bands, including Playing With Fire, a band from the Elsmere Fire Department, the jazz band Nitro Jive, the Lustre Kings, and Fear of Flyin. The town is also looking to get a high school band to play.

Face painting, hay rides, pumpkin carving, bowling, a clown and bouncy-bounce, as well as food vendors, a dog show and much more, are all part of the plan.

"No idea is a bad one," said town Supervisor Theresa Egan. This is the town's first fundraising effort, and Egan said as many volunteers as possible would be welcome to work at the event.

A minimum donation of $5 per person is required (kids under 5 are free). All proceeds will benefit the survivors of Hurricane Katrina. There will also be donation points set up around the area for attendees to continually donate throughout the day.

"The devastation down south is heartbreaking and we're thrilled to be able to help those in need," said Egan. "We hope people in communities all over the Capital Region will show their support by attending the Bethlehem K.A.R.E.S. fundraiser."

Advance tickets can be purchased at Mr. Subb locations in town, Delmar Marketplace at the Four Corners town hall and the Parks and Recreation Department at the Elm Avenue Park.

Please shut my mouth and let me keep my friends

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY

Sometimes, the words just come out of my mouth and I wish I could pull them back. It happens most with family, of course, giving truth to the tired adage that "you only hurt the ones you love."

It's like that familiarity gives us permission to say things we'd be more careful about if we were talking with strangers. Familiarity doesn't have to breed contempt but there's something about letting down our guard that doesn't always guarantee that we'll say the kindest thing.

Some people inspire babbling. There might be a kind of instant rapport with a new person and then there's a "friend affair," where you feel you can unload your whole heart before you've vetted the friendship. It's always hard when the thing you think you've said in strictest confidence and acknowledging a sense of shared perspective gets repeated publicly, or worse, as part of a funny story.

Sometimes I over-confide in reserved people, trying to make up for their quiet, trying to draw them out. If familiarity makes me chatty, so does the belief that I have only recently abandoned, that at root, we're all just people who probably think the same.

COMMENTARY:

Mom's the Word

We're not, and I've given up on trying to draw out people who just want to be left alone. As a former shy person who always felt comforted when people's questions spurred me into talk, for a long time I thought all reserved people were just waiting for somebody to ask them the right question.

With some people, that's true; with others, I'm convinced that they only go into social settings because a job, a relationship or a child's future forces them.

I hear my father's voice in my ear when I'm with people who have nothing to say. I remember one time when I was in my late teens, and he met somebody I had thought highly of.

"Kind of dull," was his comment, and when I said, no, he was really nice, but shy, my father, whose passion in life was talking to people he didn't know, said only that it never hurt to develop a little personality.

So, finally, in middle age, I'm comfortable enough in my own personality around those reserved people to move away after a few pleasantries and a couple of direct questions get nothing more than "yes," "no," or a polite smile.

I wonder if they think it makes them look deep to be so reserved, when in fact it just makes them dull.

I know not everybody likes small talk, so wow me with your grasp of quantum physics or make your impassioned plea for the rain forest. Just say anything, so I'm not left to babble away about things of no consequence, or to tell you something I'd rather not.

Once, for instance, seeking a point of commonality with a woman very different than I, I tried the old stand-by of swapping labor and delivery stories.

I'm not sure who was more horrified at my level of detail, the poor reserved New England woman or me (a former reserved New England woman who got a good lesson in learning to be neurotic while living in New York City).

How I wish she had stopped me with "Don't you think gossip is horrible?" or that I had just settled into the quiet she clearly preferred.

I've been scarred forever by that event, and when birth stories get going, I try to limit myself to the story about the Doogie Howser-like med student who came to poke at my belly post-delivery without introducing himself, and quickly got a lesson in bedside manners.

As much as I live and learn, there are still moments when I get drawn into sharing confidences because other people are sharing theirs.

Woe to me who often forgets the "I can make fun of my brother, but you can't" rule.

So I try to watch what I say about whom, but boy is that hard! Gossip's bad, I know, and if that becomes the only scale by which my entrance to heaven or hell will be weighed, it's already elevator straight down for me.

Sometimes I think, though, that gossip is just human study gone awry. I know I'm always trying to figure out other people: why do they do it that way? What are they thinking? Would that work for me?

I taught my son Christopher a fun game a few years ago, when we had finished dinner at a restaurant and he was getting bored.

"But, look," I said. "There's a room full of people and you can make up stories about them." His eyes lit up and soon we had international spies, people seeking political asylum and a couple whose marriage counselor had sent them out to have some fun.

It's one thing to make stuff up about strangers, but much more dangerous and hurtful to spread what we know about others in places it doesn't belong.

And if our consciences take a rest, you only have to be caught once by the person you're talking about to see the hurt you can inflict. In college, I once overheard a hall-mate mention my name and I called her on it.

"Don't be ridiculous," the down-to-earth girl from Maine said. "If I were saying anything bad about you, I'd say it behind your back."

So I walk with my back to the wall, and share with my mother the trait of loving to sit with my back to the wall in a restaurant.

I'll tell you, too, sometimes I'd rather be gossiped about than confronted. There's tricky turf, too, when something happens that you feel needs working out, but you don't want to hurt the person who hurt you — because the transgression was probably unintentional.

This is tough slogging with my kids, who are figuring out how to balance honesty with tact.

"Honesty is always the best policy," Cormac insisted at dinner one evening as I explained about a situation where confrontation had hurt someone very much.

"But is it right to be honest if it's not an earth-shattering fact that would only hurt somebody?" I asked.

His retort was madden-ingly 13 years old.

"Right and wrong are relative," he said.

That was a smack in the face to me. What else are parents for if not to teach right from wrong? Are there not absolutes in the world to impart, to believe in?

Here's what I know is right: we're all a little delicate and we need to watch what we say to each other.

Here's how it plays out, when my partner in marriage and parenthood returns home with the cranberry juice that is necessary to Cormac's existence on this planet.

"I never buy Ocean Spray," I snap, then close my eyes and wait for my precious arbiter of fairness, Cormac himself, to come and tell me to watch my tone.

"What I meant to say by that," I said in a sweet tone, "is that I usually buy the store brand because it's cheaper."

"Funny," Chris said, not at all snapping, "because it came out like, 'you worthless lump of humanity, can't you do anything right?'"

"Oh, sweetie," I said, with mental thanks for his dry sense of humor and healthy perspective on life, "if I meant that, I'd say it to one of my women friends."

Put on my guard and looking to do the right thing, I'm back to watching what I say. It's kind of a fall, back-to-school resolution. Let's see if it lasts till the start of the new calendar year.

Clarksville Plum Fest has wide appeal

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Plum Fest organizers must have known that you can't beat a classic. The classic car show was a big draw for the Clarksville Historical Society's annual fundraiser. At least 200 people, mostly families, came to the Clarksville Community Church parking lot to look at the classic cars on display and to enjoy a sunny Saturday "plum" in the middle of New Scotland.

For a $10 entry fee, owners of classic cars brought their vehicles to the church parking lot to be judged. Organizers of the car show also liked the idea of a car show for another reason—it's a good draw for the men.

"The cars bring the people," said Joe Hogan, Clarksville Historical Society president and one of the car show organizers. "The men bring their wives and kids, so a lot of families come out. And hopefully, they will go inside the church and look at our exhibit."

The Historical Society's exhibit included artifacts, an old map of the town used by firemen which detailed the materials the homes were made of to aid in putting out fires, the old Clarksville Post Office sign, guns, pictures of lime kilns, and Joe Hogan's own unfinished scale model of the last remaining lime kiln in Clarksville.

The Historical Society also printed a book about the history of cars in town, which costs $6 and will be available by contacting the Historical Society. Clarksville, a town just about 2 miles in diameter, used to have three car dealerships, and the book details their history.

Also on Saturday, historical markers were erected at the Meed House and the Clark House during Plum Fest, and the Houghtaling House historical marker was erected on Sunday. Even those in town who didn't participate directly in the festival were out and about holding garage sales, craft sales, and lawn sales.

"I'm having fun today, but I'm here because of my car," said David Millington, who brought his green Chevy Coronet to the show. "If I wasn't here I would be working. Anything is better than that."

His father, Mark Millington, agreed with his son about work, but is more enthusiastic about checking out the Historical Society display.

"I just like going to car shows,"

he said. "If I get a trophy, that's great."

Bob Addis, who spent a good amount of time relaxing in the shade, brought his 1964 Chevy Corvair to the show. He is one of the organizers of the car show and a member of the Cave Conservancy.

"Last year, we purchased the (Clarksville) cave, and it is very popular," he said. "It's a great educational tool."

Always remember

This past Monday, a memorial service took place at the Museum of Tolerance in Los Angeles for a man that we should never forget: Simon Wiesenthal.

Wiesenthal died on Sept. 20 at the age of 96, after a lifetime of making sure that voices that had been silenced would be remembered.

Wiesenthal was among those American troops liberated from Mauthausen Concentration Camp in June 1945. Wiesenthal weighed less than 100 pounds at that time. Later that year, he was reunited with a wife he thought had died — as she thought her husband had.

That wasn't the case with most of their family: Wiesenthals lost 89 relatives to the Nazi death machine that targeted millions of people, particularly the Jews.

Wiesenthal spent his life hunting down and bringing to justice the perpetrators of the genocide that changed the face of the world. Arresting Adolf Eichmann, the architect of "the final solution" that called for the extermination of the Jews, gave Wiesenthal and his followers the resolve to continue their hunt for justice as the world resumed other activities after the end of World War II.

The capture of Karl Silberbauer, the Gestapo officer who had arrested Anne Frank, discredited pro-Nazi propaganda that tried to quench the 14-year-old girl's now-famous diary. One person in Anne Frank's life stands out for her bravery, and that's Miep Gies, Otto Frank's secretary who risked all to assist the Franks as they lived their secret life.

Just as we cannot imagine the horrors that some among us have endured in their lives, so too is it sometimes hard to imagine that we can make a positive change in the world. Simon Wiesenthal has shown us that we can.

Margaret Mead is credited with urging us to not forget that the only thing that does make a difference is individual action. Wiesenthal's life is a testament to the power of conviction, diligence and individual efforts. His work has also taught us the importance of learning from the failures of the past, and insuring that injustice doesn't happen again.

Life demands that we keep moving, and the events of a new day often let us move beyond the pain of the past.

Simon Wiesenthal didn't forget, and through the Simon Wiesenthal Center, he has guaranteed that future generations won't forget — and won't be doomed to repeat the evils of the past.

Wiesenthal trained to be an architect, but in the end, he built a legacy larger than any edifice could ever be. Now, it is up to all of us to live out a legacy that calls for tolerance and justice.

For information about this extraordinary man, his life, and a history the whole world should never forget, visit the Web site of the Simon Wiesenthal Center, www.wiesenthal.com.

Peru, piranhas and paranoia

By GRAHAM S. PARKER

Tell them you're Canadian

A well-traveled Procter and Gamble accountant from Holland, along with his Peruvian wife, showed my new wife and me the ropes that could pull us from the bubbling turmoil of Peru's public square with its merchandise pushers, gangbangers, thieves and run-of-the-mill Reagan-era disenfranchised terrorists.

Hours before, back in the States, over a Heineken (or 10) and a Macanudo (or two), I had been slated to receive a grim crash course in torture resistance from a confidential source with close ties to military intelligence.

Somewhere between our wedding ceremony and the reception, though, it never panned out, or maybe it did and I forgot. But, I knew beforehand the gist was don't tell "them" anything; something about having my head severed; and being Canadian.

What I would tell "them," I wouldn't know, or maybe I know something and just forgot. However, even stranger than wrapping your head around torture resistance while looking for the beer in your hand; here in Peru was the second person to tell us to "just say you're Canadian." It was to be uttered when approached by strange individuals and asked for identity, race, religion — what have you.

Later in our eight-day Peruvian honeymoon, an Australian would tell us the same thing.

"What would a Canadian think about this?" was my thought. Or rather, what does a Canadian say? "I'm from Jersey?"

I guess we were supposed to be afraid of "them." I couldn't tell you why we should have been afraid of this nameless "them," but we weren't.

If I were to put a finger on the concept of "them," I would say Peru and its people have had their share of paranoid Americans come down and when asked what time it was in Spanish, or how they like their coffee, respond,

"I'm Canadian."

Peruvians have worked hard to dispel this "them" that has kept a number of trembling tourists in their hotel surrounded by westerners, and whose only contact with Peru's people was through room service.

Since I'm here to write about it, you can see that my wife and I weren't whisked away by terrorists. We couldn't even say if we saw one. What people at home had told us to fear didn't exist in Peru. Ask a Peruvian, they'll tell you. Many helped to eradicate any terrorist threat. And if they hadn't, were indirectly doing so by bouncing around the country just having a goodtime, unafraid.

Just as Spanish conquistadors couldn't shake thousands-of-years-old Inca foundations, and terrorists couldn't uproot their presidential re-public, Peru isn't phased today. And, the beautiful city of Lima, the ancient Cusco and the Amazon basin shine bright, day and night, with unafraid Canadians and Americans (even from Jersey), mingling with people from the rest of the world.

Tell them you're American

I think Americans are prone to enjoy certain types of activities, and from what I could tell there were scores of them, both activities and Americans, scattered throughout the desert, wine country, shores and mountains of Peru. I don't know if it would have been a different experience if we had masqueraded as Canadians. But every time someone fingered us as Americans we were faced with an onslaught of inquiry and instruction.

"Drink this, taste that, climb this, look at these skulls" — we received a number of such directions throughout our tour.

My American wife and I like ruins. There aren't many ruins in America; everything left over from North American ancients had been built to move along with the nomadic tribes.

I don't know if we would have incorporated our ruins like Peru has done, if they had lasted. Spanish missionaries fit their buildings in better with the ancient ruins of Cusco, 12,000 feet above sea level, whereas, let's face it, we Americans would have blown out a portion of the wall for a drive-through, and named a sandwich after whatever race lived there before. You can buy Inca Cola in Peru (I wouldn't, unless you like drinking bubble gum), but you won't find a double sesame bun, McInca with special sauce. Just Alpaca meat, fresh fish (usually raw), locally produced beer (usually lager), and fresh fruit (usually excellent).

Cusco, the capital of the Inca Empire, struck a special chord with us. After the mild vertigo and upset stomach subsided from altitude sickness we sat, relaxed, and drank coca tea as we acclimated to the altitude. The ruins extend for miles, the people live, walk, and drink, on original Inca foundations, roads, and tributaries. A train ride from Cusco took us through the sacred valley to the famous Machu Pichu high in the Andes at the base of the Amazon rainforest.

If you're afraid of heights you wouldn't appreciate the Inca steps up 70-degree slopes with 2,000-foot drops immediately to either side.

Point of View

I expected my wife to not enjoy the experience, but she had left her need for handrails, fences and guide rails at home.

In Peru it was climb it, or fall down it.

The choice was left solely in your hands, whereas Americans would equip such ledges and cliffs with fences, guards, and signs.

The Amazon is an experience every person should seek. It is a massive river, which brings both life and death to the area. The basin provides life for fruit, animals and tribes, but under its waters lies the piranha, and within the jungle are the deadliest of ants, snakes and insects.

We were the only takers of a native's routine dare to fish and swim the great river. Two Irish teachers, an Australian, two Mexicans and our couple from Holland had just witnessed a pack of the deadly fish devour the ox meat used as bait for the sharp-toothed terrors. They could only watch with curiosity as we nonchalantly walked into the deeper water. Tell a piranha what you want; it won't care if you're Canadian.

We returned home unscathed, unneaten and intact, and eager to reprimand the people who would drop things like decapitations, kidnapping and torture on my wife and me 10 minutes after we had vowed to see each other through better and worse.

Canadian or American (even from Jersey); our first post-Sept. 11, Iraq Wars, parts one and two, and toppled-Taliban trip out of the United States went well.

Matters of Opinion

Bethlehem students with donated backpacks.

Local group thanks community for the packs off their backs

Editor, The Spotlight:

Thank you to everyone who helped with the backpack and school supply collection such a wonderful success!

Because of the generosity and hard work of so many, more than 300 backpacks filled with school supplies were collected and distributed to needy children in our area.

As parents know, the cost of rulers, notebooks, pencil sharpeners, and all that is required for children to start the school year can be quite costly. A backpack can often be a luxury a family cannot afford!

We also can remember, though, how good we felt when we walked off the school with all of our new supplies to arrange in our new desk. That we were able to provide that feeling to 300 children who otherwise would not have it is fantastic.

Hamagrael, Glenmont, and Elsmere elementary schools, St. Thomas and the Bethlehem Middle School all collected backpacks and school supplies. Also, so many people contributed packs and supplies through our collection box at the town hall!

The work of sorting and stuffing the packs was all done by children from the Bethlehem community. Many of the kids also wrote notes and drew pictures to put inside the backpacks to make the gift more personal.

The backpacks and school supplies were given to children from Bethlehem through both the Bethlehem Food Pantry and through school social workers and to children in Albany through St. Patrick's Soup Kitchen and Food Pantry and the Koinonia Free Health Care Clinic.

We especially want to thank The Spotlight for its help in highlighting this initiative throughout the month of August. Their publicity did so much toward making the project the success it was! Also, special thanks to Bethlehem town Supervisor Theresa Egan for offering town hall as a collection site.

Thank you to the Capital District Tobacco-Free Coalition and the Glenmont Price Chopper for their donations. Mostly, thank you to all who donated to this worthwhile cause and to all the children who worked so hard to make it happen.

We hope you remember us next year at this time.

Resident gives thanks for flowers

Editor, Spotlight:
The flowerbeds at the Bethlehem Public Library are just beautiful. Their creative designs and layouts, radiant colors and the variety of plants and flowers enhance the entire building. We owe a special thanks to two Delmar Progress Club members, Pricilla Miller and Ann VanDervort, and library board member Louise Kavanaugh, who have worked over three hundred hours at the library. This is dedicated "women power", watering and weeding in the summer heat.

The town of Bethlehem,

Bethlehem Garden Club and Bethlehem First were also involved in this outstanding community project. Several volunteers helped in the spring, and the plants were generously donated by Price Greenleaf, Inc., Hewitt Garden Center, Bob Verstandig, and the Delmar Progress Club. Thanks to our merchants, community organizations and the continued dedication of the Delmar Progress Club members for making visits to our library such a pleasure.

Operation Safe Stop aims to educate public

Editor, Spotlight:
Every year, many children are needlessly killed or injured by motorists who pass stopped school buses that are loading and unloading student passengers. A statewide plan of action has been undertaken in order to help alleviate this serious safety problem. This plan is entitled Operation Safe Stop.

Oct. 6 is the date to set aside for Operation Safe Stop. During Operation Safe Stop last year, 1,528 traffic tickets in one day, were issued to motorists for passing a stopped school bus while loading and unloading students. There were 739 officers involved in this operation. There are many more undocumented violations that occur each and every day.

This year, Operation Safe Stop is dedicated to the memory of Mallory Eddy, an elementary school student killed in May of 2004 by a car that passed her bus while it's red lights were flashing and struck her as she was exiting the bus. This tragedy occurred near Syracuse.

Operation Safe Stop is aimed at educating the motoring public that passing a stopped school bus is dangerous and illegal. It is a combined effort of law enforcement agencies, school personnel, school bus contractors, traffic safety organizations including our local traffic safety board and the media to drive home this message to the motoring public.

before the accident. He was brought to police headquarters and issued a DWI bill and was released. He is due to return to court on Oct. 18 at 4 p.m.

On Sept. 24, police arrested Nathan Ryan, 18, of Athens, for DWI. Police observed a car with four people in the rear seat. Cobb stopped the vehicle and detected a strong odor of alcohol. Ryan admitted that he had been drinking and failed field sobriety tests, police said. Ryan was arrested and the other passengers were released. Ryan is due to appear in court Oct. 18, at 4 p.m.

On Sept. 25, police arrested Lenwood Walker, 38, of Ravena for Felony DWI.

Officer James Rexford observed Walker driving south on Route 9W with an insecure rear license plate. When stopped, Walker stated he had a revoked license and the vehicle was not registered, police said. A computer check revealed several alcohol related revocations on Walker's license, police said. Police detected a strong odor of alcohol, and Walker failed field sobriety tests and was arrested for DWI, Aggravated Unlicensed Operation and other traffic violations. Walker was arraigned by Judge Fred Dwyer and bail was set at $15,000. Preliminary hearing is Sept. 29 and he is due back in court Oct. 18. He was remanded to Albany County Jail.

Students seek donations for Katrina relief

Editor, Spotlight:

The Student Senate and Student Council of Bethlehem Central High School have put their minds together in an effort to earn money toward the Hurricane Katrina Relief Fund. A representative from each club at the high school has agreed to create his or her own fund-raising idea. In one fund-raising activity, over $5,000 has been collected. Any additional community support would be greatly appreciated and accepted in the main office of the high school. All donations must be made by Oct. 11.

With thanks,

Combined tax bill raises concern for Bethlehem resident

Editor, Spotlight:

To the Bethlehem taxpayers: have you checked your new water and sewer combined tax bill recently?

Did you notice that despite the restrictions on water usage still in effect, you are paying a sewage disposal tax on all the water you use to keep the town and your property beautiful?

All that water used watering your flower and vegetable gardens, shrubs, trees and lawns is metered, despite the fact that it is returned to the soil and can be recycled again

Don't you think maybe this is another hand in the cookie jar? Let the town know how you feel about this procedure if you are concerned about our ever-increasing taxes.

District seeks to add classroom space, possible new buildings

By JAMES CUOZZO

As overall student enrollment increases, the Bethlehem Central school board continues to review how it can add classroom space in the elementary schools.

Bethlehem's 2005-2006 student population is 5190, up 67 students from last year's total. Students in grades one through five comprise the largest amount at 1,927 students.

There are 1,730 students at the high school, up 64 students from the prior year. There are 1,205 students enrolled at the middle school. The figures are almost exactly what district officials projected.

At the most recent school board meeting, Superintendent Les Loomis led the discussion on two options for elementary school construction based on future enrollment projections. The enrollment forecast trend shows slower student population growth in the district than originally anticipated. Some projections actually show elementary enrollment numbers declining even though the growth has been steady over two decades. Board member Warren Stoker said the district has seen enrollment forecasts like this before but student population continues to increase.

"All your other charts show population is going down and enrollment should go down. It's been showing that for the last 15 years and it hasn't gone down, so how can we believe it?" Stoker asked.

"I don't think anyone feels that our number of elementary school students is going to decrease. They probably feel it is going to remain strong or steady or increase," said Loomis.

The school board's main decision is between building a new early learning center for kindergarten students or a new elementary school for grades one to five on Van Dyke Road, near the high school.

The five existing elementary schools would receive additional classroom space, including a music room in each. A new school would reduce the average classroom size to between 16 to 17 students per class. A new early learning center would increase the average class size to between 18.6 to 20.2 students per class. Adding the new early learning center as opposed to adding another school would save district taxpayers money. The total additional annual cost of staffing a new early learning center would be $150,000 as opposed to a total annual cost of $420,000 to staff a new elementary school. More buses for transporting students may also be needed with a new school as opposed to a new early learning center. Loomis said there would be a savings of about $1 million in construction costs if a new early learning center were built as opposed to a new school.

School board member Stuart Lyman said the district may have more flexibility with a new school.

"When I look at this, it suggests there is a wide range of program options available by having smaller schools," he said. "You could choose to increase the size of a number of schools as neighborhoods continue to grow."

Board member James Derring echoed the group's concerns about class size. "While both options add instruction space, is that space sufficient?" asked Derring.

"The question is, what is sufficient?" asked Loomis. "How many future classrooms do we need for growth?" said Loomis.

Bethlehem high school students in attendance had a number of questions for Loomis, including which option he was leaning toward.

Every board meeting from now through November will include this discussion until a decision is reached no later than mid-November.

Green heating lets you save bucks

As the home heating season approaches amidst rapidly rising energy costs, a few local homeowners are showing off their energy-saving tips during the Green Buildings Open House. The open house is part of the American Solar Society's National Solar Tour, and welcomes the public to visit 17 "green" homes, and see clean, renewable energy systems on Saturday, Oct. 1 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Since installing my clean energy system in April of 2004, I have reduced my electric bill by over $800," said Christian

Grieco, one of the local organizers of the region's open house. "There are many homeowners in this area that have minimal heating and cooling costs and live in complete comfort year round."

These homes feature passive solar designs to heat and/or cool their homes.

Organizers tout the benefits of incorporating green elements into buildings. Their advantages address many of the problems making headlines today. Energy efficient buildings reduce heating costs over traditional buildings; reduce dependence on foreign oil; slow down the pace of global warming; reduce pollution-induced increases in asthma-related illnesses; reduce the incentive to drill for oil and gas in pristine landscape; and even generate surplus clean energy to power other buildings.

For a list of homes on the tour, contact Christian Grieco at 209-3575 or visit the Web site, www.nesea.org.

enforcing local laws.

Newell also suggested to the town board that it enlarge the police force, but Egan said resources are limited. This year's town budget will be just over $36 million, with $5.4 million going toward law enforcement, and that number goes up every year, Egan said, for a variety of reasons such as cost of living, energy costs and insurance. The average salary for a police officer is from $50,000 to $70,000 per year.

"One of the big concerns in town is the taxes," Egan said. "Everyone wants them lowered."

Justice

and works on civil rights cases and constitutional litigation. He grew up in Delmar and lives there now with his wife, Elena, and three children. If he is not elected to the Supreme Court, he said he will continue to practice law and remain actively involved in the town.

"I care a lot about this town," he said. "If I get elected, I will still be involved, but in a more personal way."

In 2001, Marcelle fought the case of the Good News Club v. Milford Central School before the United States Supreme Court and won the case for the Good News Club with a Supreme Court ruling of 6-3. Marcelle argued that it was wrong for the school district to allow the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts to meet on school grounds but not the religious youth group Good News, and said that it was wrong to either favor or discriminate based on religion.

"That is unusual," he said. "In most cases involving religion, the outcome is 5-4 with many differing opinions. This time they agreed on one rationale."

One issue is the matter of free time and how teens fill it. High school students are just beginning to gain independence, but are not yet adults, and not all are interested in joining school activities or clubs.

The Bethlehem Central School District is attempting to solve this problem by attracting more kids into extracurricular activities either at school or sponsored by the school. Superintendent Les Loomis said each school is working to identify students not currently involved in an activity and trying to engage them.

"We won't make involvement mandatory, but we will try to involve as many students as we can," he said.

Last year, the district put together a guide of all student clubs and activities, and Loomis said school officials are working hard to promote these activities to all students.

"We are aware of difficulties with vandalism and bullying among students throughout the area," he said. "Knowledge, character and value are the goals we try to teach, and we promote social responsibility among students."

Egan said the responsibility for solving the problem lies with the whole community.

"We need to be creative," she said. "We need to appeal to parents, because they have the responsibility to know where their kids are. It starts at home, but it continues by reporting acts of vandalism and from police enforcement. We need to do something. Squatting in someone's backyard, building fires and leaving garbage is not acceptable."

588-3062

Some homeowners try to sell their home without professional assistance. They are obviously trying to avoid paying a broker's commission. A very small percentage of those owners successfully consummate a sale transaction. Most of them ultimately list their property with a broker after confronting some of the complexities of marketing a home, according to studies by the National Association of Realtors.

Key functions of a listing real estate agent include helping the owner establish a realistic asking price for the property, consistent with other homes offered in the area. When working with a prospective buyer, the real estate professional can generally pre-qualify the individual and help the buyer obtain a firm commitment from a recommended mortgage-lending firm. This eliminates wasted time in dealing with unqualified prospects.

Real estate agents are in a better position than the homeowner to obtain valuable feedback from prospective buyers who have inspected the property. Buyers are very reluctant to be candid and honest with owners, as they don't want to hurt their feelings. A problem may be easily resolved if the broker and owner know what is bothering the buyers. This information could save a sale transaction.

In many ways, the real estate agent serves a vitally important role in finding a qualified buyer and closing the transaction. That's why professionals handle most of today's home sales.

Computer programs on tap at Bethlehem library

Computer partners teach the basics, one-on-one

Have you thought about learning how to use a computer, but were afraid to start? Then Bethlehem Public Library's Computer Partners are for you.

This new, free tutoring service is geared to adults with little or no computer experience. Students will learn one-on-one from an adult volunteer trained by library staff. Lessons will be held in the library on a regular computer. Students will receive individual, personalized instruction and advance at their own pace, on their own time.

If you would like to be a computer partners student, call the computer information desk at 439-9314. Program coordinator Michele Giuffre will contact you to assess your needs and set up your first appointment.

Volunteer tutors wanted

If you are proficient on a desktop computer, enjoy one-on-one teaching, and have four to six daytime hours a week to give to your library, consider being a volunteer tutor for the Computer Partners program. The library provides instructor training, lesson plans and supervision, and schedules all tutoring sessions. If you are interested, contact Michele Giuffre at 439-9314. Volunteer applications are available at the checkout desk or online at bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

Intermediate computer classes

The library offers a rolling schedule of hands-on, small-group workshops for intermediate computer users. "Internet Skills," next offered on Thursday, Oct. 20 at 9:30 a.m., introduces the library Web page and catalog, and includes visits to selected Web sites and tips on site evaluation. "Advanced Internet Skills," next offered on Wednesday Oct. 5 at 2:30 p.m., covers advanced search techniques, Internet security, site evaluation, and e-mail.

These classes require some computer experience. Call 439-9314 to register.

Chris Bohjalian

Another reminder that the library will close at 5 p.m.

tonight, Sept. 28, for "An Evening With Chris Bohjalian." The best-selling author will read from his latest novel, Before You Know Kindness. This is a tickets-only event. All available tickets have been distributed. However, TV-18/Bethlehem will videotape the program for cablecast at a later date; watch for announcements.

School, library tax due at month end

Friday, Sept. 30 is the last day for payment of your school and library tax bill before incurring penalties. In the event that you didn't receive a tax bill, or if you have an escrow account and a bill was mailed to you, please notify the tax office at 439-4955, ext. 178.

To pay by mail, include the stub from the bottom of your tax bill and a check made out to the school district in which you reside. Your check will serve as your receipt. In the event that you want a "paid" receipt, return the entire bill with your check. The bill will be stamped "paid" and returned to you.

Payments may be made in person at Bethlehem Town Hall, 445 Delaware Ave. in Delmar, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or mailed to the above address. A 2 percent fee will be charged after September.

Please call Nancy Mendick, Receiver of Taxes, at 439-4955 with any questions or concerns.

Parents who host lose the most: Don't be a party to teenage drinking

Homecoming weekend, this year on Oct. 8 in Bethlehem, is an important event in young people's lives. Parents often help celebrate this event by hosting parties for children and inviting their children's friends. Unfortunately, alcohol is provided at some of these parties by parents and adults who see underage drinking as a "rite of passage". Other parents condone the use of alcohol because they want to be considered a "cool" parent or may believe they are keeping teens "safe" by providing alcohol in the home, thus preventing them from drinking and driving.

Hosting parties for teens where alcohol is available can be costly for everyone involved. It is illegal, unsafe, and unhealthy for anyone under age 21 to drink alcohol. Remember, teens can party without alcohol. Have a safe Homecoming Weekend.

Home and on your own

Once again, the Bethlehem Central elementary school guidance counselors, Bethlehem Police officers and the Bethlehem Networks Project will offer a "Home and On Your Own" workshop for fourth and fifth grade students and their parents who live in Bethlehem.

The workshop is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 20, at 6:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 428 Kenwood Ave., Delmar.

Topics will include stranger safety, communication, emergency planning and online safety.

This workshop will offer you and your child an opportunity to discuss these topics and develop a plan for those times when your child might be left alone. Parents and students must attend together. Refreshments will be served.

To register, please e-mail bethlehempreventionproject@yahoo.com. Include the parent and child's names and a phone number. Register early as space is limited.

Meetings planned to explain details, timetable of town reassessment

Two public meetings are scheduled to provide property owners in the town of Bethlehem with information on the upcoming town-wide reassessment scheduled for completion with the 2006 Assessment Roll. Included in the presentations to be made by Bethlehem Assessor David Leafer will be the purpose of the reassessment, the process and timetable, and a preliminary look at the potential financial impact on Bethlehem's property owners.

The first meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 5 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Bethlehem Town Hall auditorium, 445 Delaware Ave. The second meeting is Oct. 19 from 7 to 9 p.m. at A.W. Becker Elementary School auditorium, 1146 Route 9W, Selkirk.

For information, call the assessor's office at 439-4955, ext. 103 or e-mail dleafer@townofbethlehem.org

Local chosen to play for Hamilton soccer team

Christopher I. Dudek, the son of Marilyn and Joseph Dudek of Parkwyn Drive in Delmar, has been selected to play for the Hamilton College men's soccer team for the 2005 season.

The Continentals are looking to continue a streak of 5 years with ten or more wins in their 2005 campaign. In 2004, Hamilton won the Liberty League Tournament and went on to the NCAA Championships for the second time in five years. They ended the season ranked 23rd in the nation. Head Coach Perry Nizzi will look to the experience from last season's sensational run to the NCAA's to carry the team this season. The Continentals are already 3-0 with wins against SUNY Institute of Technology, Rochester Institute of Technology and Nazareth.

Dudek, a freshman, is a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School.

Hamilton competes at the NCAA Division III level and its teams are members of the New England Small College Athletic Conference with Amherst, Bates, Bowdin, Colby, Connecticut College, Middlebury, Trinity, Tufts, Wesleyan and Williams. In 1995, Hamilton joined the Upstate College Athletic Association for its inaugural season; this year it was renamed the Liberty League. Continental teams also participate in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference and the New York State Women's College Athletic Association.

Ex-CBA teacher takes plea deal, will serve six months

By GRAHAM S. PARKER

The former Christian Brothers Academy teacher accused of raping a 16-year-old student will serve six months in jail as part of a plea deal with prosecutors.

Sandra "Beth" Geisel, 42, had been charged with three counts of rape including a criminal sexual act charge as the result of a mid-September grand jury indictment. As part of the deal she pled guilty before Albany County Court Judge Stephen W. Herrick on Monday, Sept. 26 to one third-degree rape charge and a misdemeanor drunken driving charge related to an Aug. 19 DWI arrest in Albany's South End. At the time Geisel, mother of four, was out on bail.

As part of her plea, she will become a registered sex offender upon her release and serve 10 years probation. Herrick also mandated that she undergo substance abuse and mental health counseling.

With time already served, Geisel will be released nearly two weeks after a Nov. 21 sentencing. If the case had gone to trial Geisel would have faced 1 1/3 to four years for each rape count.

Despite the counts against her, and considering public perception of the case and Geisel's defense headed by Albany lawyer Donald T. Kinsella, prosecutors feel the sentence is tough.

"We were looking for a certain kind of combination of incarceration, treatment and a long period of probation. She'll be 52 by the time she gets out of the court's supervision," said Albany County District Attorney Spokesman Richard Arthur.

The issue in Geisel's case was alcoholism, said Arthur. And, as the case neared trial, the public perception of the trial and the charges themselves began to change, he added. If the case had gone to trial the sentence could have been less, without counseling and probation.

Kinsella has contended that "alcohol is a factor in her situation," and indicated that in the weeks prior to the August DWI arrest Geisel had been attending Alcoholics Anonymous meetings. The August arrest had been her second alcohol-related arrest in two years.

Attempts to reach Kinsella for comment regarding the indictments were unsuccessful.

The Capital Region Chapter of the Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests issued a statement criticizing the deal.

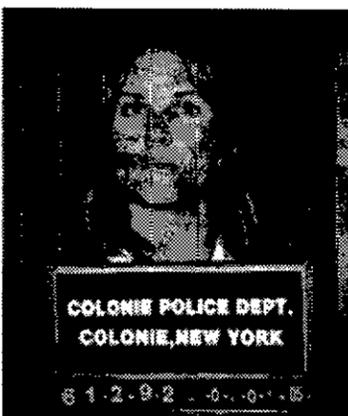

Chapter co-director Mark Lyman stated in the document that Albany D.A. David Soares made a commitment to SNAP and all victims of sexual abuse that "he would prosecute sexual crimes against children," and that there would be "no special treatment of offenders regardless of their positions or status in the community," read the release.

SNAP pointed out the sentencing of former St. Gabriel's School in Rotterdam music teacher, Malcolm Kogut, who received a maximum sentence of three years for having sex with a 14 year-old-boy.

Arthur claimed that his office isn't familiar with the Kogut case but did state "each of these cases is unique."

Geisel has been the focus of student depositions filed with the accept-ance of the deal. Geisel's initial senten-cing sexual relations with several students ranging from 16 to 17 years old.

Her initial defense stated that it was the student who forced her to have sex. Geisel abandoned that claim at stemmed from multiple sexual encounters with the sixteen-year-old CBA student at her Colonie home on May 15.

Geisel had also faced rape charges related to sexual acts with the same student on two late night to early morning occasions, one at the student's Ravenna home on May 26 and 27; and the other at the academy's athletic field press box on May 28 and 29. A fourth charge of a criminal sexual act stemmed from the Ravenna meeting.

Take the chill out of rising energy costs.

Prices for natural gas and other fuels like oil and propane have increased dramatically. As a result, across the United States home heating costs are expected to be much higher this winter than last year. The United States Department of Energy anticipates that nationally, homes could see a 35-45% increase in their total winter heating bills compared with last winter's bills.

Understanding your natural gas bill

Your gas bill has two main parts: Supply (the cost of the gas itself) and Delivery (the cost of delivering the gas throughout your utility's system). On average, supply costs make up about 60-75% of your bill, depending on your utility.

The supply price of gas is set by national and international markets and is not controlled by utilities or the NYS Public Service Commission. The delivery price is set by the Commission.

About 98% of the natural gas we use in New York comes from the Gulf of Mexico and Canada. The Commission works hard to keep delivery prices as low as possible and help you deal with changes in the market.

Factors affecting the price of natural gas

The price for natural gas (not including delivery) is expected to be considerably higher than last winter. The price varies based on many factors including weather, demand, the amount and cost of natural gas in storage, and exploration and drilling.

• Supply and Demand — Natural gas suppliers serving New York State are entering the heating season with higher than average inventories. However, the gas going into storage has been more costly this year, and the higher price is passed on to consumers. Production losses due to Hurricane Katrina have also tightened the gas market.

Meanwhile, demand continues to grow as more people use natural gas for their energy needs, and more factories and power generation facilities use gas because it produces fewer emissions than other fossil fuels.

• Weather — Weather plays a significant role in determining the cost of natural gas. Colder weather means an increase in the amount of natural gas used by the average household. However, it is impossible to know what this winter's temperatures or natural gas prices will be over time.

Controlling your heating costs

Your heating costs are made up of the cost of your fuel and the amount you use. No matter where prices go or what the heating season is like, you can take basic steps to lower your costs.

What you should do

Have an energy smart winter

- Make sure the attic, walls and foundation in your house are well-insulated.
- Seal gaps around doors, windows and foundations.
- Have your furnace or boiler inspected and insulate your hot water heater and pipes.
- Set thermostats back — for every one degree you lower your thermostat, you could save 3% or more on your heating costs. Consider installing a programmable thermostat; it will make saving even easier.

Consider bill payment options and financial assistance programs

- Budget Plans provide equal monthly payments based on past energy usage.
- Deferred Payment Agreements may be available if you have fallen behind on your bill and cannot pay in full. You may qualify to pay the past due amount over time.
- Financial assistance and energy efficiency programs can also help you with your heating costs
- NYS Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP)
- NYSERDA's Assisted Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® Program

- NYSERDA's EmPower New York Program
- Utility-sponsored assistance programs
- Community-based energy services programs

Use your power to choose

- You can buy electricity and natural gas from companies other than your utility. These Energy Service Companies (ESCOs) are competing to sell you your energy supply. This means new products and services, and better value for your dollar.
- For a list of energy suppliers, and a comparison chart, visit www.AskPSC.com and click on the "Power To Choose" link or call 1-888-Ask-PSC1.
- Your utility will still deliver your energy safely and reliably, and will respond to emergencies.

The New York State Energy Research and Development Authority's (NYSERDA) Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® program can save you money by making your home more energy efficient.

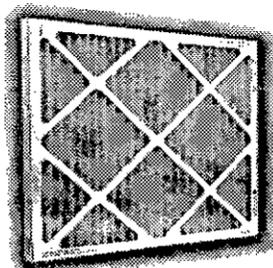

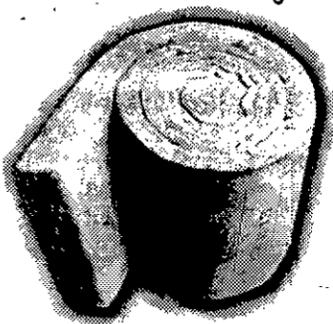

For more information, go to www.GetEnergySmart.org or call 1-877-NY-SMART.

The New York State Public Service Commission reminds you to

Have an energy smart winter.

Roll out the insulation and roll in the savings.

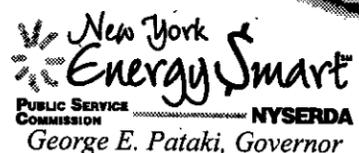

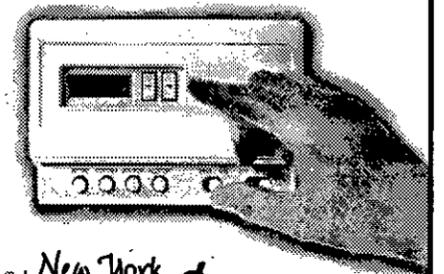

Clean up your act. Change your furnace filter.

Sign up for your utility's budget plan.

Reach for the stars when shopping for appliances.

Warm up to using a programmable thermostat.

New congregation will celebrate High Holy Days

By GRAHAM S. PARKER

As the Jewish holiday season begins with Rosh Hashana next Monday, Oct. 3, one local rabbi is looking to set up Colonie's first Jewish congregation.

Rabbi Yaakov Weiss, along with his wife Roza Hindy Weiss, moved to Colonie from Iowa in 2004 after local Jews expressed an interest in establishing a Chabad Center in the town of Colonie, in Loudonville.

For now the organization is looking for land to build upon or a building to convert into a home for the congregation.

"We are looking to bring a sense of community to the Jewish community to help any Jew, no matter who, no matter what," said Rabbi Weiss.

Chabad of Colonie is a branch of the Chabad-Lubavitch movement, comprising 3,000 institutions worldwide. Chabad has been active in the Capital District's Jewish community for over 30 years.

The goal of Chabad of Colonie is to assure that every Jew feels comfortable and welcome, said Weiss. The branch incorporates a strong emphasis on a love for one's fellow and Jewish education, and strives to inspire growth, joy and happiness in the Jewish community.

Chabad recognizes no differences between Jews; its goal is to serve the spiritual and physical needs of each Jew regardless of affiliation, wherever he or she may be, with understanding and with love, according to the organization's Web site.

In the past, area Jews have had to make the drive to Schenectady, Troy or Albany to attend Sabbath and other services, said Weiss. With a congregation centrally located in the Loudonville area, Jews will be able to attend services close to home.

Chabad of Colonie was founded on Dec. 12, 2004. Less than a month later, the center hosted a Chanukah Wonderland with the lighting of a giant, 18-foot menorah in the Latham Circle Mall.

Since then the center has hosted dozens of holiday and educational events throughout the region. The goal is to be able to host such events at its own congregation, said Weiss.

Weiss was ordained in the Rabbinical College of America in Morristown, N.J. He received his rabbinical training in Los Angeles, Israel, Montreal and Sydney. His wife Roza attended seminary in Melbourne, Australia.

The two currently live with their daughter in Loudonville.

Chabad of Colonie will be hosting High Holiday services at the Best Western Albany Airport Inn. The services will be free of charge, with no background membership needed. English-Hebrew prayer books will be available, in addition to sermons and announcements in English, and youth programs.

To learn more about Chabad of Colonie or upcoming events and services, contact Rabbi Weiss at 526-1770 or visit the organization's Web site at www.chabadofcolonie.com.

"We are looking to bring a sense of community to the Jewish community to help any Jew, no matter who, no matter what."

Entertainment in the Spotlight

One Singular

Sensation

By Donna J. Bell

"A Chorus Line", which opened on Broadway in 1975, broke away from the typical big musical, to show us the less pretty aspects of being a dancer: the cattle call. The show centers around an audition for an upcoming Broadway production, in which the director Zach tells the dancers he is not only looking for strong dancers but dancers who may be cast in small roles. He asks them to relate life stories about themselves and we learn what led each of them to the theater.

In Cohoes Musical Hall's current rendition, the opening show of the third season produced by C-R Productions, the cast is a true ensemble. Each actor seamlessly comes forward and fades back, giving us glimpses of their characters. As even as the casting was, there were a few actors who stood out in the crowd.

Frankie James Grande, who infuses the role of Mike with boyish enthusiasm, jump-started the show with "I can do that," a high-leaping, energetic song and dance. He sustained that "bouncing-on-the-tips-of-your-toes" presence throughout the show, even when standing and listening to his fellow cast members.

Jennifer E. Davis, as Sheila, was the perfect combination of dry wit and disdain. Her comedic delivery brought the most laughs of any of the characters.

Although she only has a few moments in the limelight, Kathryn Albarelli, performing Kristine, is hilarious as a ditzzy, hair-twirling, tone-deaf young newlywed who proves that she really can't "Sing!"

And Darcy Wright, as Diana, may not be the strongest dancer, but she uses her gutsy, clear voice to her advantage in "Nothing," describing a "nothing" improv class, and in her straight-forward and moving rendition of "What I did for love."

The moment of the night, however, belonged to Marco Antonio Santiago as Paul, who, standing alone on an empty stage, delivers a monologue about his life as a gay man in a drag show that seemed so real and personal that many in the audience were left wiping their eyes.

The highlight of the show has historically belonged to the actress who plays the part of Cassie, made famous by Donna McKechnie. Cassie, Zach's former lover, has been unemployed for two years and is looking for a job in the chorus. It's too bad that Michele Tibbitts, despite her impressive resume, appears wooden and emotionally unattached to the role. When she performs "The music and the mirror," a dancer's plea to "let me dance for you," we are unmoved.

Director and choreographer Tralen Doler deserves kudos for giving the show a natural ebb and flow. When this cast breaks into a dance sequence it never seems forced. The small stage could barely accommodate all the actors standing shoulder to shoulder, but the sharp choreography never overwhelmed the space.

The band also was incorporated seamlessly into the show. Musical director's Thom Culcasi's direction was right on, never overshadowing the performers.

All in all, each element comes together to produce an evening of very enjoyable theater. Better see it before it's too late.

"A Chorus Line" runs through Oct. 9 at Cohoes Music Hall. Tickets range in price from $17 to $28. On Friday and Saturday evenings, show times are 8 p.m. and Sunday matinees begin at 3 p.m. For tickets and information contact the box office at 237-5858. See the newly updated Web site at www.cohoesmusichall.com for information on the rest of the 2005-06 season.

Eagles hang tough at Pine Bush

By ROB JONAS

The Bethlehem boys soccer team may have suffered a significant loss in its 1-1 tie against Section IX power Pine Bush last Saturday.

Ryan Banagan was injured late in the second half after putting the Eagles on the scoreboard with a first-half goal. He was going to be re-examined Monday to see what the extent of his injury is.

"He's kind of our spiritual leader, for lack of a better word," said Bethlehem coach Brett Miller. "He's the one who gets us going."

Losing Banagan for any length of time takes a primary offensive weapon off the field for Bethlehem. Banagan had four goals and four assists at the time of his injury, which placed him second behind Bryan White in total points.

Wegman completes basic training

Bethlehem Central High School graduate Roxanne Wegman recently completed cadet basic training at the United States Military Academy in West Point.

Wegman

Also known as Beast Barracks, the 6 1/2-week training course is widely considered to be one of the most challenging periods of a new cadet's career.

Wegman, a former member of the Bethlehem cross country and track and field teams, will compete in both sports at West Point.

"We've got some guys who will have to step up," Miller said. "We definitely won't have (Banagan) for at least a couple of weeks."

The Eagles were already having trouble putting the ball consistently in the goal before Banagan's injury. After an offensive outburst in a 4-1 victory over Gunderland last Wednesday, the Eagles played Niskayuna to a scoreless tie last Friday before their 1-1 tie against Pine Bush, the 15th-ranked class AA team in New York.

"I thought we had the better of the play (against Niskayuna), but we have to work on creating scoring chances," Miller said.

Bethlehem won't have much time to dwell on its offensive problems. After playing Averill Park Tuesday, the Eagles host Saratoga Thursday and then travel to Latham Saturday to face Shaker.

Blackbirds keep pace in Colonial race

The Voorheesville boys soccer team remained one game behind league-leading Schalmont in the loss column with a pair of Colonial Council victories last week.

The Blackbirds edged Cohoes

1-0 on the road last Tuesday and downed Mechanicville 3-0 Saturday in Voorheesville to improve their league record to 3-1-1 (3-2-1 overall).

Greg Klopfer led Voorheesville with the lone goal against Cohoes and a two-assist effort against Mechanicville. Greg Jones scored twice in Saturday's win, and Kevin Klembczyk added a goal.

The Blackbirds visited Broadalbin-Perth Monday. They host Lansingburgh Wednesday before traveling to Albany Academy Friday.

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk also had a strong week. After losing to Mechanicville 3-0 last Tuesday, the Indians defeated Cohoes 4-2 last Thursday and Lansingburgh 3-1 Saturday for their first two Colonial Council wins of the season.

Tom Mauro scored twice in the first half against Cohoes, and Pat McCarthy notched the go-ahead goal in the second half of last Thursday's win. Cody Wilson added the final Ravena goal. Mauro was the key again in Saturday's victory over Lansingburgh with two goals and an assist.

BC finishes fourth at GAR

The Bethlehem girls cross country team placed fourth in the Race of Champions division at last Saturday's Great American Race outside Raleigh, N.C.

The Lady Eagles finished with 236 points, 13 points behind third-place Jackson Memorial High School. Saratoga Springs, the nation's top-ranked girls cross country team, defended its GAR title with 68 points.

Kristin Kenney led Bethlehem with a 14th-place performance in a time of 18:43.80. Kristin Peck was 53rd in a time of 19:50.50, followed by Grace Gallagher (72nd), Shannon McCartan (73rd) and Krissy Conroy (77th).

While the Bethlehem girls were in North Carolina competing against the nation's top teams, the Bethlehem boys were trying out this year's state cross country championship course at last Saturday's Queensbury Invitational.

Bethlehem didn't have enough runners to field a complete team, but Matt Shaffer gave the Eagles a boost by winning the individual title in a time of 15:32. Shaffer edged Gunderland's Brian Rhodes-Devey by one second for first place.

who was moved from fullback to offensive lineman by Princeton coach Bill Hickey for the game. "They just came at us hard. We've just got to work hard as a team."

The one area where both teams were even was the size of the players. In sprint football, players cannot weigh more than 172 pounds 48 hours before gametime, and they're weighed to make sure that they don't exceed the maximum limit.

"Our challenge is to keep the average weight of our kids the same," said Army head coach Gene McIntyre.

Just because they have a weight limit doesn't mean sprint football players train less than their varsity counterparts. Lapetina said sprint players work alongside the other Princeton football players in the weight room every day.

"We're kind of like the regular guys in the hall," he said. "In the weight room, the other guys are bigger and stronger, and we're just like the regular guys."

"What I like most about it is the effort level of these kids," said McIntyre. "These kids are such overachievers in everything. Basically, you just need to teach them. You don't need to motivate them."

As evidenced with last Saturday's game, Army is poised to make a run at its fourth Collegiate Sprint Football League championship in the last eight years. Led by senior quarterback Braden Amigo, the Black Knights scored six offensive touchdowns in the first half to build a 53-0 halftime lead. Army's defense was even tougher, allowing only one Princeton first down in the first 30 minutes and forcing two fumbles in the end zone, which the Knights recovered for touchdowns.

But for all that success, Army's sprint team gets little or no recognition from the student body at West Point. That's why the Black Knights were happy to move their home game with Princeton three hours north to Saratoga Springs.

"To get a chance to show our skills in front of a crowd and to feed off the energy of the crowd, that's what football is all about," McIntyre said.

- Had Victor Rodriguez thrown off the ballot
- Used lawyers to eliminate competition
- Believes in democracy, only for himself
- Is scared of competition
- Lacks the confidence to be Supervisor

Jasinski wants to be Bethlehem Town Supervisor, but he has so little confidence in his position that he needed to eliminate a hard working 20 y/o from the ballot. All the Conservative Party cares about is taking out Egan at all cost. The Conservatives once sought to run Egan on their Party line. Don't you think it's a little hypocritical?

Eagles back on track

Nicholson makes impact in first game back from suspension

The Bethlehem football team received a strong performance from Brian Nicholson in its first home game last Friday.

The senior tailback ended with 116 yards on 17 carries against a tough Troy defense to help the Eagles defeat the Flying Horses 14-0 in a class AA Division 1 game.

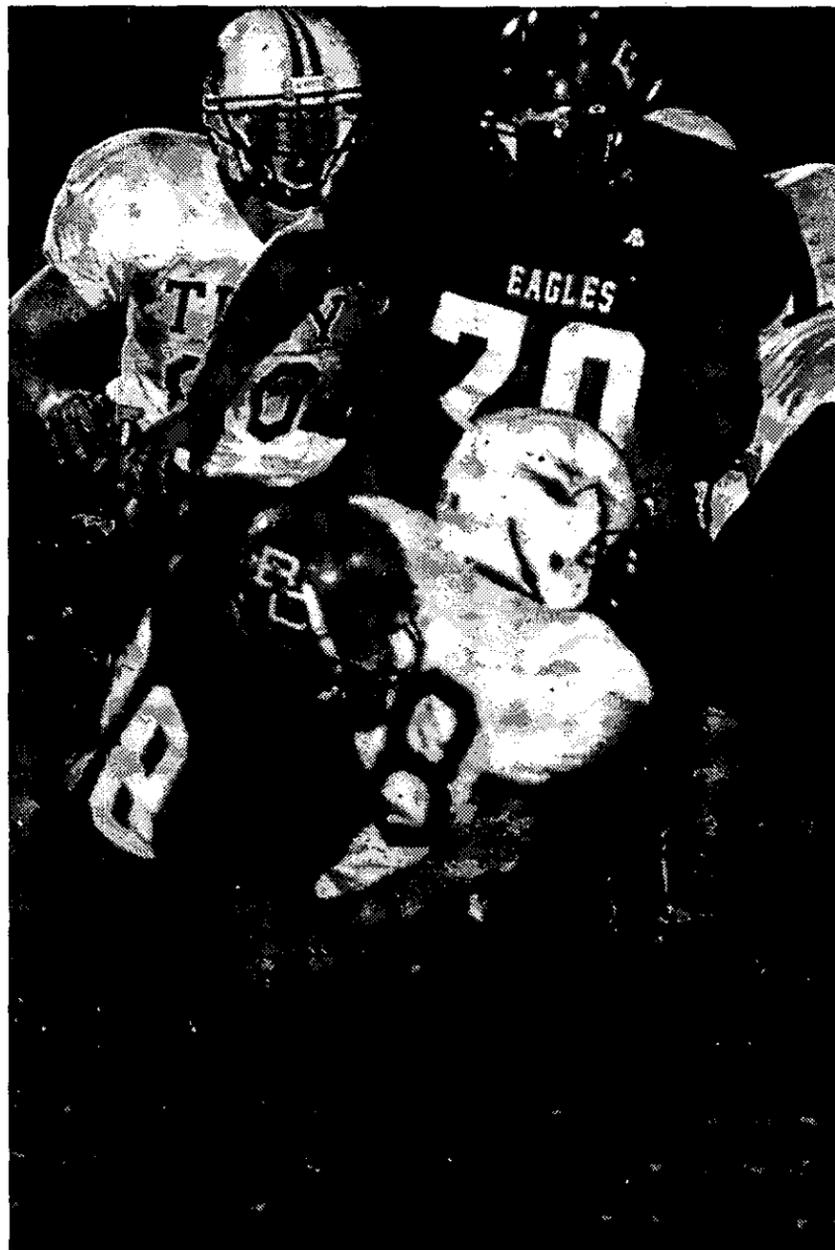

"Troy brought it hard. We underestimated them a little bit, but so many times we just stopped them," said Nicholson, who returned to action after a two-game team suspension. "We had some big plays on defense."

"Our kids played with a tremendous amount of heart on the defensive side of the ball," said Bethlehem head coach Ron Smith. "We stayed with the game plan. Our kids played hard."

Nicholson returned a 45-yard interception for a touchdown on Troy's first possession and then added a 27-yard scamper in the fourth quarter to seal the game for the Eagles (2-1 division, 3-1 overall).

"The first play they caught one on me, and I knew they were going to come back at me. I got a step on it," Nicholson said of his interception.

Troy had a first-and-goal at Bethlehem's 3-yard line later in the first half, but Bethlehem held with line backer Ryan Menrath and defender Ryan Paratore teaming for a sack on a third-and-goal from the 5. The Flying Horses (2-2, 2-2) missed the ensuing field goal attempt.

Troy threatened again in the fourth quarter, but the Bethlehem defense held again to maintain the shutout.

The Eagles go back on the road Friday to face unbeaten Christian Brothers Academy in a key Division 1 contest.

Duncan's TD lifts Blackbirds past 'Vliet

Andy Catellier connected with Nick Duncan on two touchdown passes, including the game-winner with 1:11 left in the fourth quarter, to help Voorheesville beat Watervliet 17-13 last Saturday in a class C South Division game.

Catellier's 8-yard touchdown pass to Duncan gave the Blackbirds (3-1, 3-1) a 10-0 lead in the second quarter. Watervliet (2-1, 2-2) got on the scoreboard on Anthony Mann's 12-yard touchdown run in the third quarter and took the lead on Bryan Bruce's 16-yard scoring scamper in the fourth quarter before Catellier hooked up with Duncan on a 10-yard touchdown pass.

In other football action last Saturday, Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk fended off a stubborn Cohoes team 14-0 in a class B Reinfurt Division game.

Tim Jordan threw a 26-yard touchdown pass to Keith Geraldson and scored on a 6-yard run in the second quarter for the Indians' only points.

Sprint league gives lighter players a shot

By ROB JONAS

If Andrew Lapetina wanted to play football at a NCAA Division I-AA school, he'd probably have a hard time making the team with his 5-foot, 9-inch, 155-pound body.

Fortunately for the Shaker High School graduate, the school he chose had an alternative that was a perfect fit for him — sprint football.

Lapetina, a junior at Princeton, is in his third season with the Tigers. He gets to wear the same uniform as the varsity team and play schools with such storied names as Army, Navy and Cornell.

"I can't ask for any more than I have," Lapetina said. "To play football is a rare privilege."

Lapetina and his Princeton teammates were in Saratoga Springs last Saturday to play in the inaugural Adirondack Trust Allegiance Bowl against Army in front of 1,500 people. For Lapetina and teammate Neil Swami, a Columbia High School graduate, it was an opportunity to revisit one of the schools they competed against when they were in high school.

"It's definitely a great experience to play football here again," said Lapetina. "I enjoyed playing football at Shaker."

Unfortunately for Lapetina, the Allegiance Bowl wasn't a pleasant experience. Army overwhelmed Princeton with its strength and speed in a 77-0 victory.

"It was tough," said Lapetina, spection, reflection and preparation for the future," Bomzer said. "We look at who we are, who we have become in the past year and who we ought to be in the future."

Bomzer elaborated that theoretically, on Rosh Hashanah, the book of life and death is opened before God as the fate of each and every creature is decided. The books remain open for 10 days until Yom Kippur when the books and everyone's fate is sealed.

The sealing of fate, however, has nothing to do with afterlife, heaven or hell, according to Kasman.

"Tradition states that the rabbis agreed that God created everybody, giving them each a fixed time in this world," he said. "The rabbis discussed, 'Does God make adjustments to that time based on one's merits?'"

By making atonement, doing good works and improving oneself, many people, Kasman said, believe that God may add to their years.

"It's all theoretical. It's not reward or punishment. It's that God decides you have more to accomplish."

For others, God's favor means prosperity, health and good luck in the coming year, thus the holiday's common greeting of "L'shanah tovah," meaning "for a good year." It's short for "L'shanah tovah tikatev v'taihatem," which means "May you be inscribed and sealed for a good year."

Sweet food, sweet year

Marking the celebration is a festive traditional dinner including roast brisket, chicken soup with kreplach and sweet carrot tzimmes. Among the most popular customs is eating sliced apples dipped in honey, a symbol of hope for a sweet new year.

While many families gather for the holiday, some Jewish congregations hold larger celebrations including potluck gatherings at the synagogue or in people's homes.

"We have a tradition where families take turns as hosts and have a potluck dinner at their home," said Amy Koren-Roth, president of Albany's Reform Jewish Congregation B'nai Sholom. "Guests bring dishes so nobody has to do all of the work. It's relaxing and nice, especially on a sunny fall afternoon."

Another group custom is Tashlich, or casting off of sins. In Albany, members of various congregations gather at Buckingham Pond and toss bread crumbs into the pond to symbolize casting off sins.

"We get hundreds of people from several Albany congregations," Koren-Roth said.

Leading into Rosh Hashanah, local Hebrew schools prepare the children for the High Holy Days with a number of activities.

"We have a small celebration with singing, Israeli dancing and traditional foods," said Benjamin Cohen, principal of the Hebrew Academy of the Capital District.

Kreplach

Ashkenazic Jews who populated Eastern and Central Europe made chicken soup dumplings called kreplach. They were originally made from leftover meat but can be equally good from freshly prepared ground beef. The noodle dough is rich and soft and not too difficult to make. These are traditionally served on the day before Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement) or on Hashanah Rabba (the seventh day of the Festival of Booths) or on Purim (the Feast of Lots).

Dough

Ingredients:

2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. salt
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup cold water

Process flour, salt, eggs in food processor with the metal blade. With the machine running, add water. The mixture needs to form a ball. Knead for 30 seconds, adding either more water or more flour to get correct consistency. Wrap dough in plastic while preparing meat.

Meat Filling

Ingredients:

1 lb. ground beef or 1 lb. leftover brisket
1 onion
1 clove garlic
1 large egg
salt and black pepper to taste

If you are using raw meat, cook it with onion and garlic in a frying pan. Otherwise cook onion and garlic in a small amount of oil. Put cooked meat, onion and garlic in food processor and process until just smooth. Add egg, salt, and pepper.

Divide the dough into two or three parts so that it does not dry out while filling. Roll each portion into a very thin rectangle, and cut into 3-inch squares. On each square, put a tablespoon or so of filling, and close into a triangle, wetting the edges and pressing them tightly. Put finished kreplach on a floured surface to wait. To cook the kreplach, bring

1/2 cup dry red wine
1/4 cup honey
4-5 Tbsp. ketchup
1 onion
1/2 tsp. mustard powder
1/2 tsp. paprika

Preparation:

Chop all seasonings in food processor and pour over brisket. Marinate overnight.

Cook at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, loosely covered, until done, approximately 4 to 5 hours.

When cool, pour the gravy in a saucepan.

"The kids especially like holding and trying to blow sound through the shofar."

Many enjoy the holidays just because it means time to spend together as a family.

"The holidays make me think back to my childhood," said Penny Shure of Westmere.

She and her fiancé Jordan Eisenberg added that they look forward to a new beginning as this will be the first time the couple will share in the holiday with Shure's two children.

Yom Kippur

Rosh Hashanah begins the 10 Days of Awe leading to Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement and most sacred of Jewish holidays.

"It's a time for people to reconcile with God and their neighbor," said Linda Woodward Stein, chairwoman of interfaith relations at Congregation Agudat Achim. "It's a custom to seek out those you think you offended and ask for forgiveness. God will forgive transgressions against Him, but sins against others can only be forgiven by the one sinned against."

During this period, prayer and good deeds are essential to achieving atonement, according to Rabbi Diane Leibovitz of Congregation Beth Shalom in Clifton Park.

"God wants to hear our own voices," she said. "I encourage people to pray from the heart adding their own words. Atonement is more than a ritual; it must be felt."

Yom Kippur begins at sundown with an evening service known as "Kol Nidre," named for the prayer that begins the service.

"'Kol Nidre' means 'all vows,' and in this prayer, we ask God to annul all personal vows we may make in the next year," Stein said. "It refers only to vows between the person making them and God."

"The day is about abstaining from catering to the physical self in favor of nurturing the spiritual self as an act of sincerity to God," Bomzer said. During the day, the penitent fasts, as well as refrains from work, tobacco, sex and any other amusement."

Fasting from nourishment, however, is not required of pregnant women or the sick. Even children are not obligated to fast until they reach the age of 12, for girls, and 13, for boys, after they have made their bat or bar mitzvah.

For Dan Rosenthal, 13, of Delmar, going a day without food for the first time feels a bit intimidating.

"I'm a little wary of it, but I plan to fast," he said.

Yom Kippur begins at sunset on Oct. 12.

Recipes for a sweet new year

By MARTY BANNAN

Business picks up every year at this time at the Bagel Bite Restaurant on Delaware Avenue in Albany with the approach of the Jewish High Holy Days.

With a full menu of traditional Jewish and Israeli cuisine, holiday celebrants seek out Bagel Bite's fare of honey challah, kugel, tzimmes and rugelach.

"We do our chicken soup the old-fashioned way with fresh chicken and vegetables," said Andrea Saati, who with her husband Eitan, own and operate the restaurant.

While Rosh Hashanah brings in a lot of business, Yom Kippur brings in even more.

"People want to break their fast and have food that is ready," Andrea Saati said, adding that Bagel Bite offers a wide selection of dishes for both dairy and meat meals, but does not offer kosher food.

If you plan to do your own cooking, here are a few recipes to get you started.

Sweet Carrot Tzimmes

A favorite from Eastern Europe, tzimmes is casserole made of honey-baked carrots. Carrots symbolize the prospect of increasing good deeds in the coming year. Some tzimmes recipes add prunes, sweet potatoes or even meat to the sweet carrots.

Ingredients:

1 bag carrots
5-6 sweet potatoes

1/2 cup pitted prunes
1/2 cup honey
1 cup orange juice
1/2-1 tsp. salt
1/4-1/2 tsp. cinnamon margarine

Preparation:

Boil water in large pot. Wash and peel carrots and sweet potatoes. Place carrots and potatoes in boiling water. Cover pot. Let cook until tender but firm. Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

Makes about 30 kreplach.

Raisin Challah

At Rosh Hashanah the challah is dipped in honey instead of salt to symbolize the hope for a sweet or good new year.

Ingredients:

2 envelopes dry yeast
2 tsp. sugar
1/4 cup hot water
1 stick of corn oil margarine, room temperature
1/2 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 3/4 cups hot water
2 extra large eggs
7 cups unbleached flour
1 egg yolk and, of course, raisins

Preparation:

Dissolve sugar and yeast in 1/4 cup hot water. Set aside; yeast is ready when it is rising and puffy.

Place margarine, sugar and salt in a mixing bowl; pour 1 3/4 cups hot water over them.

Crack eggs into large capacity food processor bowl with plastic dough blade, and pulse 30 seconds.

Add 1 cup flour and puffy yeast mixture to eggs. Pulse 30 seconds to blend.

Add margarine/sugar/salt/ flour mixture and 3 cups flour. Pulse 1 minute, scrape down sides of bowl, pulse 30 seconds more.

Add remaining flour, 1 cup at a time; pulse approximately 15-20 seconds after each addition. Dough will form a large, sticky ball around the blade. The food processor may not accommodate all 7 cups of flour.

Spread remaining flour or an extra 1/2 cup flour onto a board or pastry cloth. Turn dough onto floured surface.

Knead the dough 2 to 3 minutes, incorporating flour. Ready dough will form a smooth, round ball and will bounce back when lightly touched.

Grease a large bowl. Place dough in it, and cover with a towel. Set in a warm place to rise until double in size (1 to 2 hours).

Punch down the dough; remove from bowl onto floured board. Let it rest 5 to 10 minutes.

For two round loaves:

Divide dough in half. Divide each portion in half.

Roll one piece into a long, smooth strip. Coil this strip into a circle on a greased cookie sheet.

Pinch the end under.

Divide second portion into two unequal strips, about 2/3 and 1/3. Roll into smooth strips.

Take the larger of the two and make a second coil on top of the first. Take the last piece and make a third coil on top.

Baking: Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Mix 1 raw egg yolk with 1 tsp. water; brush the loaves for a shiny crust.

Bake for 15 minutes to brown crust. Reduce heat to 325 degrees Fahrenheit and bake 15 more minutes (30 minutes total). Cool and remove from pans.
