Gaining access

It seems most people are happy about Bethlehem Center II, the proposed shopping center that will be located on Route 9W, just north of Wal-Mart and Lowe's.

Even Jonathan and Gloria Van Derpoel, who own property next to the site, are happy about it. If only it weren't for one problem.

During the next few weeks, beavers will poke their buck-toothed heads out of lodges along the Indian Kill and work on their dams.

Glenville's town government will again try to trap them.

Ducks have already returned to Saratoga's Congress Park; ditto for the geese that nest near Scotia's Collins Lake, leaving tangible witness to their presence behind them. The birds have also been subject to government action.

It is spring now. Nature is awake, and animals are on the move. In search of food and mates, coyotes will prowl through suburban backyards and deer will risk lives to cross roads. Tent caterpillars will soon start to chew on neighborhood trees and will likely provoke a poisonous response from homeowners.

Spring also marks the start of construction and continued development of land for purposes will change the world and renew the old conflict between humans and nature.

"In general, the species that have thrived people are the ones we like to eat or look at," Parker, a wildlife biologist with the state Department of Environmental Conservation. "If we're going to be responsible stewards of the land, the question then becomes, how do we achieve a balance with other species that occupy, but don't do so well in, human habitat?"

Coyotes are one example of an animal that has entered in conflict with the human sphere. The beasts are now firmly established in New York and their population is estimated to be between 20,000 and 30,000, according to a report about coyotes prepared by SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry professor emeritus Robert E. Chambers.

"Coyotes are continuing a process of expanding into suburban and urban areas," Parker said. "They go where the food is."

Tim Moshier dies in Iraq

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

The war came home this week with the news of a Bethlehem fatality.

Tim Moshier, age 25, was flying a helicopter that got shot down in Iraq last Saturday while on a combat mission supporting ground troops west of Baghdad. The helicopter crashed in the city of Yusufiyah.

Moshier was a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School. He and his wife, Katie, also a Bethlehem graduate, have a 10-month-old daughter, Natalie. Moshier would have been 26 on April 17.

"It just doesn't seem real," said Melanie Grossman, a good friend of Moshier's wife Katie, whose maiden name is McKee. "It's really surprising, even though you know you have to be prepared for something like this."

Moshier left for Iraq Dec. 1 and was there until his death. Grossman said his wife would always try to make the best of his not being home.

Bethlehem Police lose 'foundation'

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Bethlehem lost one of its finest police officers last week.

Detective John Cox, 55, died after a two-year battle with leukemia on March 30.

Cox was part of the Bethlehem Police Department for 34 years, beginning as a patrolman and rising to detective sergeant.

"On the outside, he came across as gruff, but after you got to know him, he was all about taking care of everyone," said former town supervisor Sheila Fuller. "He had a great sense of humor and he brought laughs and jokes to town hall. He always tried to stir things up."

In addition to his humor, Cox brought a great deal of respect and professionalism to both the town and the Bethlehem Police Department, Fuller said.

"He was the foundation on which the Bethlehem Police Department was built," said current town Supervisor Theresa Egan. "His leadership and his willingness to share his knowledge

Kotary will speak for Senate Democrats

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

One of Bethlehem's recently elected town board members started a new job Monday as director of communications for the state Senate Democrats at a salary of about $80,000.

"Timing is everything," Kyle Kotary said of his new position. "I was looking to get back into state government, the position opened, and it happened pretty quickly. I wasn't necessarily looking for it. It kind of popped into my lap."

Kotary's new job includes overseeing communications for the senate Democratic conference, and he'll be representing Senate Minority Leader David Patterson and the other 27 Democratic members of the Senate.

Casey and Lopez to be honored at gala

Clifford Casey & John Lopez have been named the 2006 honorees of the 2006 Gala Auction, to be held May 20 at the Albany Country Club.

The annual event, sponsored by the Voorheesville Community and School Foundation, was set up to salute one key member of the community. This year, explained Nancy Rucks, chair of the foundation, there were two highly deserving.

Lopez, who taught at Voorheesville until last year, was best known for producing drama productions, including "Les Mis" and "Beauty and the Beast."

He had a reputation for tackling productions that were considered too challenging for the typical high school show and turning them into masterpieces.

Dr. Casey, who served the village and the school from the 1950s to last year, retired and still lives in Voorheesville. Aside from doing annual physicals for high school sports teams, he shares an interest in music with Lopez. Casey plays both the clarinet and the baritone saxophone.

Both men will be guests of honor at the May 20 event to be held at the Albany Country Club. Featured during the evening will be a live auction and dancing.

Last year the live and silent auction helped the event net a profit of more than $20,000.

Mike Snyder will chair the event.

To reserve a seat at the dinner, call 765-3452. Seating is limited and reservation are required for the $100 a plate event.

Tech Valley Times event to benefit hit-and-run victim

The Tech Valley Times, a local newspaper dedicated to the Capital District's emerging innovation economy, announced that the proceeds of its Thursday, April 6th third anniversary event in Albany will go towards the benefit of the Melvin Jones Medical Fund.

Jones, a recent graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and former Spotlight employee, was struck by a hit-and-run driver on Route 50 in Saratoga Springs Feb. 24. He suffered extensive injuries. Doctors report that Jones will face a very long, complicated and expensive recuperation.

Melvin's employer, e-commerce developer Mountain Media, has established a benefit fund at the Adirondack Trust Company to assist in the substantial expenses. Fund do-nations may be sent directly to the bank or processed through the Mountain Media Web site: www.mountainmedia.com.

The Tech Valley Times event will take place in the newly refurbished Washington Avenue Armory and will be followed by a live concert with national recording artists Donna the Buffalo.

Police Blotter

Arrests for DWI, grand larceny

On March 27, Bethlehem police arrested Lisa Ann Milette, 43, of 540 S. Albany Road in South Bethlehem, for driving while intoxicated and hit and run.

Officer David Harrington received a call for an auto accident near Losee's Deli on Route 9W. Upon arrival, the victim told police that Milette's vehicle struck another car, which in turn struck another car, police said.

The victim said Milette stopped long enough to make sure she was OK, then remained in the vehicle for a short time before leaving the scene, police said.

Officer Craig Sleurs located Milette's vehicle as it turned from Bridge Street to South Albany Road where she was stopped.

Milette told police that she could recall the accident but was unsure why she left the scene. A strong odor of alcohol was detected, and Milette failed field sobriety tests, police said.

She was placed in custody and brought back to police headquarters for processing. Milette is due in court April 25 at 4 p.m.

On March 23, police arrested Steven L. Devlin, 24, of 112th St. in Cohoes, for a burglary at McDonald's in Glenmont March 19.

Devlin is charged with grand larceny in the fourth degree and burglary in the third degree, both felonies. Devlin is due in court April 18 at 4 p.m.

Cairo gallery displays local works

Retired Bethlehem veterinarian and local artist Robert Lynk has works on display at the Bella Gallery at Artfully Yours in Cairo, Greene County, through this week.

Lynk is president of the Bethlehem Art Association and is a member of several local artists groups. A native of Schoharie County, he grew up near Sharon Springs, and today commutes between Rensselaerville and Delmar.

Jean Van Dyk of Delmar is also selling earrings at Artfully Yours.

In addition to the gallery, Artfully Yours sells artist's supplies. It is located on Main Street in Cairo. For information, call 622-3210.

Couple seeks driveway to access Town Center

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

It seems most people are happy about Bethlehem Center II, the proposed shopping center that will be located on Route 9W, just north of Wal-Mart and Lowe's.

Even Jonathan and Gloria Van Derpoel, who own property next to the site, are happy about it. If only it weren't for one problem.

The adoption of Bethlehem's comprehensive plan last August changed the Van Derpoels' 12-acre property's zoning to commercial rather than residential.

Because of this zoning, the Van Derpoels wanted Nigro Companies, the developers of Bethlehem Center II, to construct a commercial access point from their property to the proposed plaza. Without it, they say, they can't sell their property.

According to Jonathan Van Derpoel, Nigro Companies was supposed to keep them informed every step of the way, sending them copies of plans as they progressed. So far, they have not, he said.

"Developers are required to put a paved access to a property," said Jon Van Derpoel. "They just have not worked with us. We've been too trusting."

Van Derpoel said a phone call he happened to make to town hall the day of the March 21 planning board meeting is the only way he knew that Bethlehem Center II was up for possible site plan approval that evening.

"If I hadn't called that day, they could have approved the site plan and I wouldn't even know about it," he said.

Steve Powers, vice president of Nigro Companies, said until the last planning board meeting, he had no plans to show the Van Derpoels.

"The last plan we gave them was the first time we showed a plan with a driveway access on it," said Powers.

During the approval process, Powers discussed with the Van Derpoels whether they could share the entrance with Bethlehem Town Center II, but said it ultimately doesn't work, as their project is not designed to accommodate a commercial user.

"They wanted a connection from their property to ours, but it was never intended for commercial entry," said Powers.

The Van Derpoels say they support the center, and don't want its construction to be held up, but they want a relationship with the developers.

"We're just asking for the right to commercial access," he said. "We're not at all against the project, we're just asking for the access road to be planned. They don't even have to build it."

Powers said commercial access cannot be given to the Van Derpoel site because they don't know what the use will be.

"You can't just give blanket commercial access to a property," said Powers. "We don't know what they'll use it for. They would have to determine the use of the property and then contact the Department of Transportation about traffic."

Powers did present the Van Derpoels with a planned access road that made a very large loop around the commercial property, but they found that unacceptable.

The Van Derpoels are very concerned about losing control of their property, which has been in the family for three generations. Jonathan Van Derpoel's grandfather built the house over 200 years ago. He has never lived anywhere else.

"My mother and father put a lot of money into this place, and so have we," he said. "We plan to stay here as long as we can, but we would like to know we have the option to sell it commercially."

Site approval for the Bethlehem Center could happen at any time, and recently the Van Derpoels have had to hire a lawyer, and engineer, and cancel their vacation to North Carolina, all to make sure their requests for commercial access are met.

The Van Derpoels are also concerned that no one from the town of Bethlehem can seem to help them.

"Somebody should have looked at this," Van Derpoel said. "We spent a lot of money on that master plan. We talked to people in the town, and they all said there is basically nothing they can do. We did not create this problem. Somebody dropped the ball."

Supervisor Theresa Egan said the Van Derpoels would need to go through the process with DOT and not the town to get another access point to their property.

Policy Research Associates wins inaugural Chamber Pot Award

BY STEPHANIE LUBIS

Last Sunday's 18th annual Delmar Dash had extra added incentive for members of the chamber of commerce to dust off their running shoes, and that incentive came in the form of the prestigious Chamber Pot Award.

The Chamber Pot Award was devised by the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce and organizers of the Delmar Dash as a way to get businesses involved in the community. It worked.

The inaugural award, featuring a plaque with a chamber pot perched upon it, went to the Hank Steadman, Lisa Lenkarski, and volunteer Pam Robbins of Policy Research Associates.

Of course, the winners were honored to be the first to get to the pot.

"It does feel really special to win the first award," said Steadman.

Steadman won with a time of 41:37. His teammate, Lisa

Lenkarski, crossed the finish with a time of 42:37. Both run in their spare time.

Steadman, who is 62, has been running since he was 35, he said, for health reasons. Lenkarski is also a regular runner who has run a marathon and also a half marathon.

The race itself took place on a breezy, sunny day.

"I went home right after," said Steadman. "The 15-20 mile per hour wind was cool enough so the sweat made me really chilly."

Steadman said the Chamber Pot award will be prominently displayed in the lobby of Policy Research Associates, located at 345 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

"It will be fun to see if we can defend the title next year, and I think it was a great way for the chamber to get involved," he said. "I hope this encourages more businesses to participate. It's a great community event."

Fitness club members exercise generosity

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

Members of Curves Glenmont gained 495 pounds in the last three weeks — but it won't go to their hips.

As of March 28, 495 pounds of food has been collected at the Curves in Town Squire, Glenmont. That food will go to Mount Moriah on Route 9W in Glenmont, where it will be distributed all over the county to anyone in need.

"There was a lot more than I thought," said Curves owner Bonni Romanofski. "I thought maybe it was just 150 pounds or so, but then I started weighing everything. The people here just don't stop giving."

Meredith Giles, co-pastor of Mt. Moriah, called the Curves contribution quite a boost.

"It's been a tremendous blessing," she said. "They've been doing it for several years now, and the food all goes to food pantries and our monthly soup kitchen."

The soup kitchen is run out of Mt. Moriah, Giles said 100 to 150 people utilize it each month, including the homeless, the elderly, and single parents.

Curves gets involved with fundraisers both locally and nationally. Breast cancer, Hurricane Katrina, "loose change" fundraisers, stuffed animal sales for stroke and muscular dystrophy and more are part of Curves' members dedication to the community.

Just about all of the 300 members of Curves contributed to the food drive, but if they didn't, Romanofski said, they'd contributed to other fundraisers held throughout the year.

Just last year, they raised $865 for Katrina victims, which was matched by Curves International.

So far, no other fundraisers have been planned.

"We just follow the disasters, and we rise to the occasion," said Romanofski. "We certainly hope there won't be another one."

Members like Curves because the all-female clientele provide a sort of fellowship among them. People know your business, Romanofski said, but in a good way. They ask after children and grandchildren. They ask after other members who may be ill. They aren't snobby or standoffish at all, Romanofski said.

Member Barb Zautner credited Romanofski with bringing a sense of community to the members.

"Bonni has a real sense of that, and with that sense of community comes responsibility," she said.

Being a soccer mom is not what you'd expect

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR

Being a soccer mom isn't what I thought it would be. I thought it would be scary. I was worried I couldn't live up to the role. I thought only minivan drivers need apply.

If only there had been a book on "What to Expect In The Soccer Years" when I registered my daughter for her first season, nearly four years ago.

For me, the most difficult part of being a soccer mom is the multi-month waiting period between the time you register and the night the coach calls to tell you which evening your child has practice.

On the registration card for my daughter's soccer club, you are only allowed to indicate one weeknight that your child is unable to practice. It's a challenge to coordinate with the likes of dance class, religion, music lessons and work schedules.

Twice, my daughter was assigned to practice on the one night we designated as a conflict. When this happens, you begin to doubt your ability to follow instructions. Did they change the form? Did the form say pick the ONE night you WANT to practice?

When the coach finally does call at the start of the season, soccer moms need to be prepared. Your child will demand the answers to the following serious sports questions: What is the color of the team shirt? What number will be on my shirt? What day are we bringing Popsicles? Can we bring green Popsicles?

Commentary:

From

Kids learn at different speeds. Some soccer techniques are learned over time, including "use the side of your foot to kick the ball" and "only the goalie can pick up the ball with her hands." Others are absorbed immediately, such as, "We'll eat oranges at half time and Popsicles after the game."

If the coach lets you choose which treat you are bringing, keep the following in mind. If you sign up for oranges, you'll need to cut them into slices for easy consumption during half time. If you sign up for Popsicles, you'll need to keep them frozen.

There will be days it's so cold that tongues will freeze to the Popsicles. The kids will still want them.

I don't find Popsicles all that appealing. A Fudgesicle maybe, but not a block of artificially flavored frozen juice that turns your tongue blue. One time a parent brought ice cream sandwiches for the post-game snack. Now, that was a popular parent. There were extras and my husband had one. I wanted one, but couldn't justify eating it before lunch.

However, I can always justify indulging at the bake sale. It is a fundraiser, after all!

In our town's soccer club, picture day and the bake sale are held on the same morning. This enables you to buy a professional photograph of your child covered in sugar from a powdered doughnut. This used to bug me until I realized that it truly captures the reality of the moment.

Forget spending time trying to get your daughter's hair brushed and into a fresh ponytail. It just makes everyone cranky, which means no smile in the photo. Picture day is most fun when it's raining, second most fun when it's blazing hot. Expect that one child's photo shoot will be scheduled at the same time her sibling's game is taking place.

Also, if you have more than one child, odds are their practices and/or games will be scheduled at the exact same time on different fields. Or, you may be lucky enough to get back-to-back games, but the children who are not playing will whine throughout their siblings' games.

Clearly, soccer moms need to understand time management. For example, it's important for the players to get to the games on time, early actually, to allow for warm-up exercises.

We live only a mile from the town park where the games are played, but it's a long walk from the parking lot to the playing field. The journey from the car to the field takes between five and 10 minutes depending on the weather, your mood, your energy level and the weight of your comfort items (lawn chairs, coats, water bottles, etc.)

To be on time, you also need to factor in whether your child will carry her soccer ball during the journey or run while kicking the ball. Kicking the ball down to the field can add significant time as the ball may veer off in the wrong direction. And don't expect your child to pick up and carry the ball after it has been kicked around on the ground. By then the ball will be wet or muddy or both. Another downside of running to the field is that your child will use up all her energy before the game begins.

Families with small children also need to take into account their offspring's desire to pause and collect pebbles and/or dandelions along the way.

Speaking of family commitments, another challenging component of soccer registration is the mandatory "volunteer" requirement. You cannot register your child without signing up to help. Volunteers are needed to set up the fields, sort equipment, run the bake sale and bring baked goods. The coaches and assistant coaches are also parent volunteers.

Since my knowledge of soccer peaks at "Get the ball into the other team's goal" I knew coaching was not a volunteer option for me.

When I was a new soccer mom I worried that I would end up with a conflict on the day of the volunteer task that I signed up for. After two seasons I found a solution to that problem: I'd write down my husband's name on one of the volunteer sheets.

One year I signed myself up to be the phone coordinator for a particular task. The phone coordinator's job is to remind a list of volunteers to show up at a specific place and time to perform a task, such as equipment sorting. Basically, this meant I called other men whose wives had volunteered them.

This involved more work than you might think. I took the job seriously. I made sure I got confirmation. If I got an answering machine, I asked the individual to call me back. That way I could let the organizing committee know how many people to expect.

Less anxious phone coordinators just leave a brief message: "Show up at the town park at 9 a.m."

Once you've selected a volunteer task and written your check at registration, you just wait, knowing your child might be assigned a practice night that will throw off the rest of the household's schedule.

Don't go crazy with worry. Instead, realize that most conflicts are manageable. For example, on practice night one or more of the following may need to be sacrificed: eating dinner, finishing homework, bathing and/or a decent night's sleep.

The rest is easy. Really, all you need to do is get your child to each practice and game, then relax and watch. It can be fun, if you let it.

It took me several seasons, but I finally got the whole soccer routine down. And then my 9-year-old decided to try a different sport.

Now I have to start all over. This spring I'm going to be a first-time softball mom, and I have no idea what to expect.

Bethlehem board of education adopts $73 million budget

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

The Bethlehem board of education adopted a $73.3 million budget at its meeting Wednesday, an increase of about $7.9 million in spending over the current budget. The estimated tax increase will be 5.45 percent, which includes the impact associated with the $93 million capital construction campaign currently under way.

The estimated tax rate under the budget that will go to voters is $17.26 per $1,000 of assessed value. On a house assessed at $200,000, that would mean school taxes will be $3,452.

This year's reval is another factor in the budget process.

"We've been getting conflicting responses about the reval and what it will mean for the tax increase," said Superintendent Les Loomis. "Because of the reval, there has been more public participation in the budget process."

At the March 22 meeting, the board agreed to take an additional look at the budget in the hopes of finding areas that could be cut and take the tax increase to under 5 percent.

If the budget is not passed at the May 16 vote, the board has another opportunity to revise that budget and put it before voters again. If it fails to pass a second time, the district is required by law to go to a contingency budget.

A contingency budget limits any spending increase to 120 percent of the Consumer Price Index, or 4 percent, whichever is less. For the 2006-07 school year, the contingency budget cap is set at 4 percent.

Most of the cuts at last week's meeting were in operations, maintenance and technical support, and many teachers commented on the bare-bones budget proposal.

"Parents usually demand more, not less," said David Rounds, president of the Bethlehem Teachers Association. "The original budget addresses the concerns and the additions are reasonable. No one has demanded that the tax rate be reduced."

Looking at a "what if" situation, is beneficial, said Rounds, but a bare-bones budget would take the district to near breaking point, he said. Other teachers agreed.

"I think we're sorely lacking in the area of technological support," said middle school social studies teacher Bill Reilly. "We have a small number of technical support staff, and they run around like crazy trying to do everything."

Reilly pointed out that cutting back that support would be more expensive in the long run, because equipment would not be as well maintained and therefore would not last as long.

Mac Carlton, director of technology for the district, said he's afraid teachers will look elsewhere for employment if the budget is too bare bones.

"Many teachers buy equipment from their own pockets," he said.

Currently, the district ranks 10th in average spending dollars per pupil out of 13 suburban council schools, and it ranks 11th in amount of state aid received. Despite this, last year's budget passed by only a narrow margin, so the board was seeking additional cuts.

"We want voters to be satisfied that we did the very best we could to make sure that every dollar is necessary and well spent," said board member Jim Lytle. "If the budget doesn't pass, the cuts we made will look like a piece of cake in comparison to a contingency budget."

By far the largest addition to the budget this year is for a half-team of middle school teachers, an addition of $208,380. While it is a large expenditure, Loomis said it was also the most important addition.

"The middle school is the right place to add staff," he said. "Problems with high school kids develop during the middle school years, and we haven't done much with the middle school in a long time."

In total, the board approved about $933,000 in new spending initiatives, which are aimed at improving class size, restoring some funding for school equipment and classroom supplies, expanding extracurricular and intramural opportunities for students, supporting the district's technology and facilities and meeting mandates in academic intervention, special education, and English as a second language.

Think outside the box

Warm weather beckons, and we feel its pull, urging most of us to be anywhere as long as it's outdoors, away from the stuffy office.

But work we must, even as at the same time thinking spring would be a perfect time for vacation right in our own backyards. The miracle of daffodils and other early spring plants engages our imagination in the prospects that lie ahead.

These are simple pleasures derived from the joy of nature's ability to make spring a magical time of rebirth and rejuvenation. It's time to recharge ourselves and to urge our kids to get outside and smell the roses. Easier said than done these days with the lure of the computer and the TV and their innate ability to keep kids entertained, even when there is nothing at all entertaining on the screens that hardly ever sleep.

Would these children be able to cope with the 'real world?' Are they able to time travel into their minds to discover things about the world on their own? Are they totally dependent on the outside stimuli of the Internet and the tube? What about imagination and creativity and the ways they influence our lives?

Many of our children are more and more becoming obese, the experts say, and in danger of falling prey to serious diseases. Food has become another source of immediate gratification, and the calories mount up easily since most kids don't get much exercise outside of gym class.

When's the last time your kid asked to go out to play?

We wonder about what lies in store for today's children. Will they become even more sedentary kinds of couch potatoes, not bothering much with the great outdoors? And will relationships become even harder to maintain with all that time in childhood spent alone in front of a computer or TV screen or trying to look engaged by using a cell phone — or pretending to — whenever they venture out on the street? We'd like to think that as human beings, we'd strive to be more connected to others, not less.

Many of these Internet-age devices are in fact depriving our kids of real life joy and the sense of discovery. Most of our own childhoods would be not even remotely recognizable to children today, and that's a shame since they really will miss out on an important slice of life.

On-time budget leaves time for issues

By NEIL BRESLIN

Last year the state Legislature passed an on-time budget for the first time in over 20 years. In fact, it was the first on-time budget in a generation. After 21 years of bitter partisanship and government dysfunction, the governor and legislative leaders were finally able to come together to meet the budget deadline.

But last year's success put enormous political pressure on the governor and legislative leaders to reform the budget process and continue to deliver on-time budgets for New Yorkers. As this column is being written, I am pleased to report that the Senate and Assembly have begun passing budget bills for the 2006-07 state budget. For the second year in a row, Albany is poised to pass an on-time budget.

As ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, it is very satisfying to see a fair, on-time budget passed that will benefit all New Yorkers. You should know that hundreds of dedicated professionals, from the Executive, Senate and Assembly staffs, have been working night and day for weeks to write a state budget that is literally thousands of pages long.

There is an old adage that says there are two things you never want to see being made: sausage and laws. But the truth is, being part of a budget process that provides essential services and programs for millions of New Yorkers is truly an honor.

It is also a huge responsibility. New York's $112.4 billion budget is second only to California's and larger than the budgets of most countries in the world. It provides funding for every public school in New York, manages the largest Medicaid program in the country, writes the state's tax policy and economic development, supports our world-class universities and colleges, and funds hundreds of programs ranging from tourism to agriculture. Yet, I am often dismayed that in such a large spending plan, some worthwhile programs don't receive appropriate funding.

Like most successful reform movements, the impetus to pass an on-time budget was driven by widespread public support. I was elected to the Senate 10 years ago on a reform platform and have been working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to make our state government more transparent and responsive to the people. I have always said that our first responsibility as legislators is to pass a fair and timely budget. After all, if the Legislature could not succeed in its single most important constitutional responsibility — meeting an April 1 deadline to pass a state budget — then what hope did it have in tackling other major reform issues, such as Medicaid, public authority and campaign finance?

I shared the frustration felt by my constituents in Albany County who saw the effects of late budgets year after year. I listened to the concerns of school administrators who were forced to send out tax bills based on estimated education funding from the state. School districts were put in the impossible position of either raising taxes or cutting services because the state could not in good faith give them an exact amount of their state education aid. I would argue that it was unfair for property taxpayers to be saddled with higher school taxes based on these estimates.

I know there were many school districts across the state that had to put off hiring teachers or eliminate music, sports and language programs because there was no guarantee there would be state funds to pay for them.

Similarly, many school districts had to hold off new construction or rebuilding projects because the leaders in Albany would be fighting over a budget well into the summer months.

Over the years, I have heard from building contractors who had to lay off workers because there were no state contracts in place to start bridge and road construction projects that provide hundreds of high-paying jobs every year. I talked with many nonprofits that provide critical services for those New Yorkers most in need and didn't have the money on hand to make payroll because their grant money was being held up by the late budget. Many of these professionals would work weeks, even months, without pay because of their dedication to helping their clients.

There were even a few years during Gov. Pataki's first term when some state employees' pay was withheld. Naturally, this had an especially harsh impact on Albany County residents and businesses.

Beyond the human costs of missing the budget deadline were the dismal credit ratings New York received year after year, driving up interest rates on state loans, which cost taxpayers millions of dollars in additional interest.

It was a frustration for me and my colleagues that as a legislative body we could not put a budget in place by April 1 because all the power in Albany was concentrated in the hands of three men — the governor, Senate majority leader and Assembly speaker.

Negotiations were often held in secret among the leaders and senior staff. Rank-and-file legislators from both parties were excluded. When an agreement was finally reached, budget bills would then be dropped on our desks often in the middle of the night with little time to review and debate. It was all or nothing. There would be no public input, no chance for legislators to make their case for a particular program. It was government at its worst. Thankfully, we have seen a more open budget process in the last two years, with public leadership meetings and more participation by rank-and-file legislators.

I first sought elected office to see to it that we completely transform the legislative and government processes and put in place lasting reforms that benefit all New Yorkers. Budget reform will continue to be one of my top priorities. This year is a crucial turning point in New York's reform movement. While I am encouraged by new openness of the budget process and the commitment for New York to meet its budget deadline, we cannot allow the hard work and successes we have achieved to stall. We cannot allow those elected officials who were pushed by you to pass reform measures to declare victory and not finish the job.

Make no mistake about it, much work still needs to be done, and I will keep pushing the Legislature to pass substantive reform measures before this session ends in June.

John Cox will be missed by many

Editor, The Spotlight:

I received sad but not wholly unexpected news last week. A good friend and a dedicated public servant left us too soon. He will be missed greatly by his family, his friends and the many people whose lives he touched. Detective Sergeant John Robert Cox Sr. served the town of Bethlehem in its police department for more than 31 years. I had the privilege of joining the force two weeks prior to John and serving along side him for 24 years, until my retirement almost eight years ago.

John had decided to join the police department after spending a few years with the New York State Capital Police, wanting to broaden his horizons.

So, on Aug. 1, 1974, he donned the then powder blue uniform of Bethlehem's finest. As two of the newest guys there, John and I gravitated to the midnight shift together. Being new and on the midnight shift gave us both the opportunity to exceed the normal person's caffeine intake just to stay alert some nights. I never saw anyone drink more coffee than John.

The nights of the 1970s on Bethlehem streets were pretty quiet compared to the 21st century. The average night sometimes saw only one to two calls for service to the department.

However, John and I, Ray Lindstruth, Bob Samsel, Bill Karins and others kept occupied protecting homes, businesses and motorists. John was always a "Type A" guy. Never did he seem to let the dew settle on the patrol car. He was constantly checking closed businesses for secure doors and windows, shining a spotlight in residential backyards and pulling over traffic violators. He kept us all alert most of the time.

John earned a reputation early as a competent, caring and thorough police officer — one that rarely accepted things at face value if there could be an alternative explanation. This earned him an assignment as a detective early in his career.

Investigations proved to be something John thrived on. Digging for the truth and discovering the unknown intrigued him, and he diligently pursued the solutions of his assigned cases.

John also showed an early ability to work with others effectively and to inspire others to do their best. Thus, when Chuck Rudolph, his supervisor in the detective office retired, John was selected to command the detectives.

During his years in charge, John inspired many officers and made many friends, both in the Bethlehem Police Department, the community and the greater law enforcement community.

About two years ago, John was diagnosed with leukemia.

He fought it bravely. He even returned to work briefly in 2005.

A few months ago, he suffered a resurgence of leukemia. After months of this disease draining the strength and vitality from his once-strong body, John went home to the lord on March 30.

For many months, many people in many places have prayed for John's recovery.

Now we pray for his family left without his support and his smile. To his wife Lori, his parents, Ray and Helen, his daughters Michelle and Christine, his sons, John Jr., Trevor and Kyle and his little grandchildren, our prayers and support are with you as you grieve for your irreplaceable loss.

BCMS needs flexible time for conferences

Editor, The Spotlight:

Research shows that children do better when there is good communication between parents and teachers.

This is why I am so concerned that the only time made available to parents of Bethlehem Central Middle School children is from 3 to 3:30 p.m.

I am a working parent of a sixth grader at the middle school. I was disappointed to learn that no conference time is in the middle school schedule. It is only done by appointment.

I tried to schedule a conference with two of his teachers any day before school and was told that the teachers are not required to meet before school.

Only after speaking to principal Jody Monroe was a phone conference arranged. I too am a teacher and regularly meet with parents before my contract day.

I wrote to Superintendent Les Loomis and was told I could "communicate with teachers during the school day be e-mail or through a telephone call."

Also he stated in the letter that my district would give me personal time off to meet with the teacher at his school.

A phone call or e-mail is not the same as a face-to-face conference. As you may also know, it is sometimes difficult to take time from work.

I plan to take time after the third marking period to meet with these teachers, but should I have to wait six weeks for this conference?

It was my suggestion to the superintendent that office hours be once a week from 7:40 to 8:10 a.m. added to the middle school schedule and then allow these teachers to go home at 3:10 on Fridays.

Also I suggested that evening conferences be added to the first and third marking periods. This is a contract negotiation year. Let the superintendent's office know what you think.

Thanks for support

Editor, The Spotlight:

Earlier this month, the Epilepsy Foundation of Northeastern New York, Inc. held its 18th Annual Confections in Chocolate fundraiser at Wolferts Roost Country Club. Nearly 300 people attended, and more than $65,000 was raised to support programs in our community.

This success would not have been possible if it were not for the generosity of more than 200 local businesses who served as sponsors, and donated to our silent and live auction. Our auctions raised more than $30,000!

On behalf of our board of directors and the more than 40,000 individuals with epilepsy in our community, I would like to thank everyone who contributed to the success of this event – the attendees as well as the sponsors and donors. We are truly lucky to live in an area where for-profit businesses believe in supporting their nonprofit neighbors.

Voorheesville board eyes 4 percent budget increase

By JEFFREY BIANCHINE

Voorheesville's Superintendent Linda Langevin presented a $20 million budget for the 2006-07 fiscal year at the March 27 meeting of the Voorheesville board of education. The board adopted that budget at Monday night's meeting.

Langevin's presentation involved 161 separate slides, although only summary slides were shown.

"There is a 4 percent increase in the budget, and a 3.67 percent increase in the tax levy," Langevin said. Langevin was frank about the degree to which state aid could potentially defray some of the increase in the fiscal year ahead.

"Voorheesville is not considered a high-need district," she said. High-need districts typically receive more aid from the state.

Should voters not approve the proposed budget on May 16, the district gets another chance to present a revised budget for vote. If that is defeated, the district must go to a contingency budget. A contingency budget limits any spending increase to 120 percent of the Consumer Price Index, or 4 percent, whichever is less. Langevin was clear about what the district would lose in that case.

"If the budget does not pass, there will be no new technology and no new buses," she said.

The March 27 meeting was different than the one two weeks ago, at which many members of the public aired concerns about the alleged misappropriation of funds by former superintendent Alan McCartney and former business superintendent Anthony Marturano. The smaller audience focused on budget issues.

Considering the three buses proposed for purchase (two full-sized plus one smaller and wheelchair-capable), audience members only had questions about the smaller bus. Most of this concern centered around the question of whether or not it will be a single-use vehicle.

"It will not be," Langevin said.

Joseph Pofit, president of the board of education, addressed public concerns over the escalation of the budget.

"Seventy-three percent of the budget is salary and benefits," he said. "Thirteen percent is debt service. Thirty-three percent of the total employee cost is benefits."

Both Pofit and C. James Coffin, the board's vice president, said that benefits will be "an issue on the table during the upcoming contract negotiations with the two unions."

School business official Sarita Winchell, back from administrative leave, reported on the current steps the district has already taken to get benefit costs under control.

"Because we manage our drug plan, there is less of an increase annually," she said.

Winchell indicated that the larger plans increase at rates exceeding 20 percent annually, while the district has been able to keep annual increases closer all athletic expenditures within a single code as an example of this task.

The board discussed its participation with the Bureau of Cooperative Education Services. "BOCES generates over $90,000 in revenue," Winchell said. "It costs the district around $20,000."

"Is it a benefit overall?" Pofit asked.

"Yes, it is," Winchell said.

By law, the board of education must present the budget in its entirety at a public hearing. This hearing will be conducted on Monday, May 8 at 7:30 p.m.

The public vote on the 2006-07 budget will be held Tuesday, May 16 at the high school.

to 15 percent.

Winchell also noted the consolidation of related budgetary items under a single code to improve accountability. Langevin presented the reorganization of

Henry Hudson Planetarium explores ancient Egypt

The Henry Hudson Planetarium, located at the Albany Heritage Area Visitors Center in Albany announces a new program examining ancient Egyptian astronomy.

The program is being presented to enhance trips to the only Northeastern U.S. exhibit of "Excavating Egypt: Great Discoveries from the Petrie Museum of Egyptian Archaeology" on display at Albany Institute of History & Art through June 4.

The program incorporates 3-D images of the stars and planets on the dome of the planetarium with the flat screen movie version of "Stars of the Pharaohs" and a live presentation by the Henry Hudson Planetarium's education staff. The program explores how ancient Egyptians used the horizons to tell time, make a workable calendar, create early zodiacs and align the tombs and temples of their leaders.

Hands-on family activities follow each show. A planetarium show only will be Saturday, April 8 at 2 p.m., and the spring school break program is on Thursday, April 20, at 1 p.m. The cost is $3 for adults and $2 for students.

Local office to offer free health lectures

Dr. Ron Stram, a doctor in integrative medicine, and his complimentary practitioner staff including naturopathic doctors, acupuncturists, massage and therapeutic touch practitioners are offering free health lectures every third Thursday of each month. All events will be held at the Center for Integrative Health and Healing, 388 Kenwood Avenue in Delmar, at 7:30 p.m. Registration is recommended. For information, call 689-2244 or visit www.cihh.net.

The April 20 lecture topic is blood sugar balancing. Adult Onset Diabetes is one of the fastest growing epidemics in this country, showing itself in younger age groups. Learn how integrative medicine can prevent and/or manage this disruptive disease.

Bethlehem schedules watermain flushing

The town of Bethlehem is announcing a watermain flushing program in the following areas: Slingerlands and North Bethlehem from April 3 to April 12, Delmar and Elsmere from April 10 to April 21, and Glenmont and Selkirk from April 18 to May 5.

Some discoloration may be seen during this flushing program, which could result in staining of laundry. Run water until it clears before doing laundry.

Nomination process under way for seats

Nominating petitions for two open seats on the 2006-07 Bethlehem Central Board of Education are now available from the school district clerk's office at 90 Adams Place, Delmar, 12054.

The terms for seats currently held by Lynne L. Lenhardt and James W. Lytle will expire June 30. Each term of office is three years, beginning July 1.

Each nominating petition must contain a minimum of 84 valid signatures and must be filed with the district clerk by 5 p.m., April 17, which is 30 days prior to the school district's annual meeting (budget vote) May 16.

The Board of Education elections occur at the same time as the school district budget vote.

Volunteers needed to help with Habitat building project

Habitat for Humanity is seeking volunteers for a building project on Saturday, April 8.

A few hours of time will help to provide a lasting home for a single mother of several children, including one that is disabled.

The "build" will take place on lower Emmet Street in North Albany. Workers should wear sturdy shoes and comfortable clothes. Lunch and water will be provided, and tools will be available.

Any licensed trades people who help will have their time credited toward the church's cost portion of "the build."

To volunteer call Kevin Conley, at 475-9034.

Vacation activities planned at Ravena library

Once again, there are special events at the library during vacation week.

• Fantasy Art. Michael Dubisch, an artist for Dragons and Dungeons and Rifts fantasy series, will present some of his work and show us how he works on Wednesday, April 19, at 1 p.m. He will follow his talk with a participatory drawing project. The content of his work and the level of interest expected for the project make this event best suited for teens and adults. Call the Library at 756-2053 to sign up.

• Recycling Extravaganza. On Thursday morning, April 20, at 10:30 a.m., we're going to create recycling sculptures with color bubblewrap. Ginger Ertz, from the Tang Museum in Saratoga, is visiting especially to show us how to do this. Call the library at 756-2053 to sign up. Ginger's program in February was fully enrolled, so don't wait to sign up. Save clear plastic bottles to bring for the armature (skeleton) of your sculpture.

Programs for children

Weekly programs follow the school calendar.

• Stories and Play for Toddlers. The Romp & Read spring schedule includes three weekly programs: Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the Selkirk Fire House, Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in Pieter B. Coeymans School, and Friday at 10 a.m. in the Library.

Story Time for Preschoolers

Positively Preschool is the library's story program for young children and their caregivers who enjoy craft activities. Every week there is a different theme to explore. It meets on Thursdays at 11 a.m.

Download digital books

Readers can download digital audio books and eBooks to your computer and most portable players, or burn them to CDs. The collection is more than 1,000 items and growing. Directions, previews, and links are at <http://digitalcollection.uhls.org>.

Access account online

At the top left corner of the library's web page, www.uhls.org/rcscl, the "My Account" button opens information about library loans, reserves, and overdues.

• All library programming is free (unless otherwise noted) and open to the public. The RCS Community Library is located at 15 Mountain Road, Ravena. For information, call 756-2053.

Teachers association awarding scholarships

The Bethlehem Central Teachers' Association will offer five scholarships of $1,000 each to college-bound seniors.

One is offered to a student interested in pursuing a career in education and another for a student interested in political/social activism or international relations.

The scholarships have been awarded based on need, scholarship, and community service. The recipients of the scholarships will be announced at the annual awards ceremony at BCHS in May.

ANALYZING YOUR SMILE

In an effort to find what was most appealing about a smile, researchers presented study participants with standardized photographs of men and women. One of the characteristics that respondents found to be most attractive in both genders' smiles was symmetry. Another survey found that respondents evaluated the frontal views and profiles of the same subjects differently. That is to say that a person may be thought to have an attractive smile when viewed from the front; however, when the same smile was evaluated from the side (profile), it may be found to be decidedly less attractive. All this points out that tooth and jaw positioning need to be carefully evaluated by an orthodontist to fully achieve one's full smile potential.

Orthodontic treatment can improve both your dental health and facial appearance, boosting your self-esteem and quality of life. Orthodontic treatment can benefit people of all ages. More adults are choosing orthodontics to correct their smiles and improve their confidence. To schedule an appointment for you or your child, please call our office. Our commitment to you is to provide a friendly, caring and relaxed atmosphere. We gladly accept Master Card, VISA and other credit options.

P.S. The orthodontist evaluates both vertical and horizontal dimensions of patients' smiles.

Bethlehem veterans asked to share their stories

Today, April 5, at 2 p.m., Michael Russert of the New York Military Museum in Saratoga Springs will give an informational talk about the New York Veterans Oral History Project.

The library is a partner in the project, which seeks veterans from our community to share their memories of military service during World War II, the Korean War, or in the wartime defense industry.

Veterans of more recent conflicts are also welcome to participate. We encourage friends and family members of veterans to help their loved ones participate in this important documentary effort.

If you are unable to attend the program, you can still participate in the project; information packets are available at the library.

For information and a link to the museum, visit www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org, or call Michael Farley at 439-9314 ext.3024.

Three apples

Nominations are in for the first Three Apples Book Award.

The library tallied 23 titles chosen by its young library patrons between 8 and 12 years old. The titles were forwarded to the New York Library Association and added to nominations from across the state.

Patrons' choices included such perennial favorites as The Phantom Tollbooth by Norman Juster, The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe by C.S. Lewis, Number

Check It Out Bethlehem Public Library

the Stars by Lois Lowry, and Bartholomew and the Oobleck by Dr. Seuss. All of the picks are on display at The Children's Place. The top 15 statewide nominations will be posted soon. This summer and fall, children who read at least three books on the statewide ballot are eligible to vote for their favorite. Votes will be counted and winners announced next winter.

The Three Apples Award was created by NYLA's youth services and school library media divisions, to encourage the joy of reading.

Book talks

BookChat, a coed discussion for middleschoolers, meets Thursday, April 6 at 7 p.m.

The title is Eragon by Christopher Paolini — a tale about a mysterious stone, magic, monsters and destiny.

• The library's Mother/Daughter book group for girls in grade 5 and up and their moms meets Monday, April 24 at 7 p.m. The title is Phyllis Reynolds Naylor's Blizzard's Wake, a story about grief, determination and healing set in 1941 against an actual killer blizzard in the Red River Valley.

New members are welcome in both groups; call 439-9314.

Book ends Petitions available

for board vacancies

Nominating petitions are available at the library information desk for two vacancies on the Bethlehem Public Library Board of Trustees. One seat is for a full term of 5 years and one seat is for 2 years to fill an unexpired term.

Petitions must contain at least 84 signatures of voters residing in Central School District No. 6 of the Towns of Bethlehem and New Scotland. Petitions must be filed with the District Clerk, 90 Adams Pl., Delmar by 5 p.m. April 17.

Elections will be held May 16 from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. at Bethlehem Central Middle School.

Riverway event tickets

The library will host the final storytelling concert for the 2006 Riverway Storytelling Festival Sunday, May 7 at 3 p.m. Admission is by free ticket. Tickets will be available at the library beginning Saturday, April 22 at 10 a.m., limit four per request. The event is appropriate for students in grade 3 and up, and adults.

This is the fourth consecutive year for the festival, which moves through several locations in Albany and Rensselaer counties from May 1 to May 7.

The Riverway Storytelling Festival is a project of the Upper Hudson Library System. The library's participation is made possible by a generous contribution from the library Friends.

UTILITY RESEARCH CONFIRMS IT, AIR CONDITIONING TUNE-UPS ARE FREE.

A major university, working with a large public utility, found that a precision tune-up of residential air conditioners may save as much as $32.76 a month in utilities and restores 25% of lost cooling capacity. Even if your air conditioner was tuned-up last year, it still needs a tune-up this year. When the researchers repeated the study on the same homes a year later, they found 78% of the savings were still present. Not a bad return on *$99.95.

Poets, the writers' support group which has been meeting at Voorheesville Public Library for 15 years.

Also this year, EOTNP is celebrating the publication of its first anthology, Poetry Don't Pump Gas. Signups are being taken for the readings which will be held Saturday, April 15 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Call 765-2791.

April vacation

Signups are underway for April vacation programs.

• "Manicure Mania" will take place on Tuesday, April 18 at 7 p.m. for girls in grade 6 and up. Bring your own nail file and scissors and a favorite polish or use the colors the library will provide. There will be trivia contests, gossip about the hottest stars and delicious treats.

• "April Fool," the Trickster Storytime will be held on Thursday, April 20 at 10:30 a.m. for 4 year-olds through third grade. April Fool's Day is over, but the library will have many stories with tricksters and fooling around. An art activity and a short film are also planned. Bring a riddle to ask the audience and get a prize.

• "Going to the Dogs." Real service dogs will be at the library Friday, April 21 at 2 p.m. for grades 2 and up.

Service Dogs are special working animals whose owners will teach attendees about the job each dog performs. Attendees will hear stories about these incredible canines.

do some dog-related activities, and visit with four-legged friends. Participants will enjoy a special visit from Windy, a trained acting dog who played Sandy for a local production of the musical "Annie". Registration is required.

Board petitions

Petitions are now available at the library circulation desk for any school district resident older than 18 who is interested in running for the upcoming vacancy on the library board of trustees. Pick up and return a petition with 25 signatures to the library by 4:30 p.m. April 14 to appear on the May ballot.

PREPARING FOR THE HOUSE HUNT

For a better idea of their price range and to get a jump on the competition, prospective homebuyers should focus on getting pre-qualified and pre-approved for a mortgage. Meeting with lenders in advance injects a healthy dose of reality into the search for the home of their dreams. There are fairly firm lending guidelines of which buyers should be aware. Traditionally, lenders expect borrowers will spend no more than 28% of their pretax income on total housing costs, and housing costs and all other long-term debt should not exceed 36% of their gross income. Once prospective buyers have been pre-approved, they will likely find that having their financing in place will prompt the seller to close a deal more quickly.

I know the local financial institutions and can help you find financing for your prospective home. By finding out how much money you have to spend, you can realistically prepare for your home search. When it comes to listings, I use my knowledge of the area, and experience to insure that you receive the maximum full market value for your property. I have been a full time agent for 15 years, and a resident of Bethlehem for 25 years.

HINT: Prospective buyers should plan to have enough money left over after making their down payments to cover the cost of furniture, household equipment, and window treatments and carpeting (if necessary).

State establishes Lincoln Bicentennial Commission

Delmar man will head group that will study The Great Emancipator's links to New York

By STEPHANIE LUBIS

This April 15, President Abraham Lincoln will have been dead 141 years.

In 2009, the state and the nation will celebrate the 200th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, and committees have been established to work on creating an interesting and informative series of events to commemorate Lincoln's place in history.

The state Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission will coordinate its events with a federal Lincoln commission, and one person who will help Lincoln's memory live on is Delmar resident Bill Howard.

Howard, first deputy secretary to Gov. George Pataki, will chair the Lincoln Commission.

"My relationship with Gov. Pataki goes back to 1990, and my interest in history is what got us together," said Howard.

Oddly enough, Howard's interest in Lincoln was an acquired taste. He was not one of Howard's favorite historical figures. Instead, his interest in Lincoln's legacy evolved.

"I came to respect him as one of the great presidents, perhaps even the greatest, because of the challenges he faced," Howard said. "All the efforts he made to end the Civil War and try to unify the country again, he approached with full determination."

As well as being a military author, Howard has written many articles on Lincoln's life, including his visit to Albany and about Lincoln's funeral procession through the state, where a train carrying his body retraced his original inaugural route on the way to Washington D.C.

Howard is also a collector of Lincoln memorabilia.

The 15-member state commission has not met yet, but Howard has a good idea of what will be discussed. Locating Lincoln holdings and creating a catalog of public and private collections of those holdings is one goal. A publication about his visits to New York is also in the cards, as well as coordinating with the schools to teach about Lincoln. Public lectures and performances are also possibilities, as well as museum exhibits.

A definite is a Lincoln Trail, complete with historical markers, commemorating his stops in New York State. The Heritage New York program will provide $200,000 for this venture.

"We started talking about the Lincoln Heritage Trail around the time when the Heritage Trail was introduced, in 2001 and 2002," said Howard. "Lincoln hit each of the major cities in New York, and each has a connection. The idea is to commemorate and link those sites with signage and maps."

The Heritage New York Web site, www.heritageny.state.ny.us, will highlight the state's Lincoln connection and include a map linking the sites.

Aside from historical significance, Howard is excited about the commission for another reason: the economy.

"There are a lot of people who are interested in history, and a lot of those people want to hit every site on the map," he said. "That means that they'll be buying lunch or dinner, or even staying overnight. People will spend money in those areas."

The commission's meetings will be public, and suggestions are welcome.

"I'm looking forward to getting together soon," said Howard. "We've got big plans."

Paying Off Your Mortgage Is A Mistake!

Most homeowners believe the best way to quickly pay off their home is by simply paying extra principal payments on their mortgage. Other homeowners believe in bi-weekly mortgage payment plans, while some use a 15-year mortgage versus a 30-year amortization. The fact is... none of these methods are the best way to own your home "fee and clear."

What is the best way? We invite you to come find out... and learn how to wisely accelerate the pay-off of your home mortgage! Attend our seminar, "Common Sense Strategies for Successful Equity Management," brought to you by The Fenway Financial LLC and Albany Mortgage Group. This is one opportunity you will not want to miss. You'll learn how to maximize your mortgage interest write off, create an instant estate and transfer funds to your heirs tax-free, pay off a 30-year mortgage in half the time, without any additional payments... and much, much more!

Our seminar will be the most valuable two hours of your life — don't make the mistake of missing it!

Moshier

"It was never anything like, 'Oh, this is terrible,'" Grossman said. "She would say instead, 'we got to talk for a little while tonight.'"

Moshier was a first lieutenant in the Army, and he was trained to fly the Apache helicopter, which is what he was flying the day he crashed.

"It had lots of guns and rockets on it," said Jay Gallagher, a neighbor and friend of the Moshier family.

frustrated with that, complaining to his wife about it, Grossman said.

"Flying was what he really loved to do," said Grossman.

Gallagher said Moshier worked 12 hour days with no days off, doing quite a lot of administrative work and less flying than he would have liked.

"There were lots of positive things in his life," said Gallagher. "He graduated from West Point, got married, had a baby, he really had things lined up. It's sad, and it's tough to see his parents go through this."

They were always proud of him, Gallagher said. Moshier was a dedicated soldier and believed in what he was doing.

"They know it's a risk, but it's not something you can ever really plan for," he said.

Kind, gentle, funny and sweet is how people describe Tim Moshier. He proposed to his wife Katie during a meteor shower and they married over July 4 weekend in 2004.

"Katie is one of the strongest people I know," said Grossman. "She's keeping her composure, but it's still so new. Everyone who knew him loved him."

members."

An additional challenge Kotary is looking forward to is getting the message out to a Republican majority.

"Most of the power is in their hands, and that will make this an even bigger challenge," he said.

Kotary is confident that his new position will not eat into his service on the town board, and said in fact that it will help him be a more effective councilman. Working so closely with the state Legislature will offer the opportunity to learn what's going on at the state level and how those things impact Bethlehem.

"It's really a neat place to be," he said.

Kotary most recently held a position at Eric Mower & Associates, where he worked in public affairs and relations, strategic communications, and with state associations and internal and external communications. He has also worked for state agencies and has held numerous volunteer positions in the community.

"I love being on the town board," he said. "It's challenging and rewarding, and I have a lot to learn. I'm very excited about this job. It'll be high paced and fun."

Richard Vanderbilt, former lieutenant with the Bethlehem Police Department, started the force with Cox.

"There were a bunch of us that they hired provisionally, Vanderbilt.

Cox's death will leave a big void in the lives of those who knew him, Vanderbilt said.

"His family is great, and he commanded respect and admiration from people, and he had a lot of compassion as well," said Vanderbilt. "I will really miss his friendship. There aren't that many people who you know will be there for you but he was one of them."

He will be sorely missed, Egan said.

"I reconnected with him when I was town judge, and he was a trusted friend," she said. "He provided me with guidance, and you always knew where you stood with him."

Richard LaChappelle, former Bethlehem police chief, said Cox had a very strong personality.

"He really knew the difference between right and wrong, and he was an excellent investigator," he said.

LaChappelle got to be good friends with Cox over the 25 to 30 years that they worked together.

"He was very outgoing, his personality would just light up a room," he said.

Thacher Nature Center announces programs

• Sunday, April 9: 1 to 4 p.m. Native Plant Landscaping Workshop at Thacher Nature Center. This workshop shares insights about some of the best native perennials to use to create attractive additions to your gardens while addressing difficult landscaping situations. Workshop fee is $8 and includes resource materials. Space is limited; pre-registration is required. Call 872-0800 to register and for information.

• Wednesday, April 19: 1 p.m. Searching for Spring at Thacher Nature Center

Spring means singing birds, blooming flowers, buzzing bees, and frogs and salamanders on the move. At a glance out your window, you may not notice these things. It's early in the season, but things are changing. We will explore outside and search out signs of the season. Dress warmly and be prepared for muddy conditions. Call 872-0800 to register.

• Saturday, April 22: Earth Day Volunteer Workday. Celebrate Earth Day by giving a couple of hours of your time to help keep the park clean or maintain trails. Help the Friends of Thacher Park pick up trash along their adopted section of Rte 157. Meet at Hop Field at 9 a.m. for an hour or two of roadside cleanup. Call 872-0800 for information or to register.

• Sunday, April 23: 9 a.m. Spring Garden Cleanup. It's time to get ready for another growing season. We will clean up debris, build cages to protect young plants, and prepare a nursery bed to raise seedlings for our expanding native plant gardens. Volunteers will receive a coupon good for a free plant at our native plant sale next weekend. Call 872-0800 for more information.

Niece's book tells of aunt who survived the Lodz ghetto

It's a story that remained locked in the memory of a Holocaust survivor for more than 50 years.

Sylvia Perlmutter, who grew up Sylvia Rozines, told her son in the late 1980s about the narrow escape that made her one of 12 children to survive the Lodz Ghetto in Poland.

Some years later, he shared that story with his cousin Jennifer Roy of Wilton.

Rozines' story is the subject of Roy's 31st book and first novel, Yellow Star.

"This is a story of my aunt," Roy said. "I was so reluctant to work on it at first. I didn't know she was one of the 12 children to survive the ghetto."

On Sept. 1, 1939, Adolf Hitler's troops invaded Poland, marking the start of World War II. In three weeks the country was under Nazi rule. Rozines' family and 230,000 Jews were trapped.

Of the hundreds of ghettos the Nazis would create to keep Jews in one place, Lodz was one of the worst. Thousands would go on to die of disease or at the Chelmno death camp. Of the estimated 230,000 Jews living in Lodz, and the 25,000 brought there from neighboring occupied territories, 877 survived, 12 of whom were children.

For the better part of a year, Roy interviewed her aunt about surviving the ghetto. Each interview brought Roy deeper into the reality of the Jewish ghettos of World War II. She slowly began to compile the story outside of her duties as a mother and educational book author.

Her aunt's story was both amazing and gruesome, she said. At the time, Roy hadn't heard of the Lodz Ghetto. But, as her questions began to chip away at her aunt's past, Perlmutter began to recall the circumstances, people, and her liberation.

"I think the reason they were bubbling up to the surface was because she had prayed for the people every night and kept it in herself," said Roy. "She is grateful that people will be helped by this story."

Since telling it, Perlmutter, now living in Maryland, has begun volunteering at the Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C. Perlmutter was unavailable to comment for this interview.

Everything in Roy's novel happened. The people are real. However, to capture what living in the ghetto was like for a young girl, Roy told the story through her eyes.

"I interpreted it and wrote it as a little girl. It was a little depressing and different, but creatively, it was exciting," Roy said.

Perlmutter was 4-and-a-half when the Nazis stormed Poland. They constructed walls of wood and barbed wire around the Jewish community. She didn't understand the yellow Star of David she had to wear on her sleeve, which identified her as a Jew.

The story tells how the family managed to stay together and survive as food grew sparse and

Anne E. DeWitt

Anne E. DeWitt, 98, of Delmar, died Monday, March 20.

Mrs. DeWitt was born in Pine Bush and graduated from New Paltz Normal School and taught for several years in a one-room schoolhouse before marrying Arthur DeWitt in 1930.

She was an active Methodist all her life. She taught Sunday school, sang in the choir, served on many committees and was president of Women's Society and Ogden Class at Trinity United Methodist Church in Albany.

She was a member of Senior Citizens of Delmar.

Survivors include two sons, Ronald DeWitt of Salem and Richard DeWitt of Leeds; a daughter, Patricia Scott of Geneseo; and nine grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at a later date. Burial will be in the New Prospect Cemetery in Pine Bush. Contributions may be made to the United Methodist Women's Society, c/o Trinity United Methodist Church, 235 Lark St., Albany 12210 or Wesley Health Care Center, 131 Lawrence St., Saratoga Springs 12866.

Leslie Ableman Sr.

Leslie E. Ableman Sr., 78, of Clanton, Ala., died March 5.

He was born in Slingerlands and was a longtime Albany resident before retiring and moving to Alabama.

Mr. Ableman was a World War II Navy veteran.

He worked for the former Tobin Packing Co. for 28 years in the shipping department.

Survivors include his wife, Evelyn Ableman of Clanton, Ala.; two sons, Jeffrey Ableman of Clanton and Leslie Ableman Jr. of Albany; two brothers, Clyde Ableman of Scotia and Paul Ableman of Westmere; and a sister, Ildra Morse of Westmere.

Services will be from McKownville United Methodist Church, 1565 Western Ave., Westmere on April 23, at 2 p.m.

Funny Business

By ANN MARIE FRENCH

Celebration performers do 'stand up' job for charity

What do you do to celebrate the 20th anniversary of your business? If you are Judi Clements; you gather together some hilarious friends, charge admission, entertain people for several hours, and then give away all the proceeds to local nonprofit agencies.

"It's the 20th anniversary of my business, Judi Clements Training and Development," Clements said. "That prompted me to want to celebrate, but I want to do a celebration that would give back to the community. CAPTAIN Youth and Family Services and Domestic Violence Rape Crisis Services of Saratoga County are the two organizations where I do most of my volunteer work. They were the two that came to mind. I approached them and asked, 'what do you think?'"

Both organizations liked her idea, and Clements got to work creating a celebration that people will likely be talking about for months to come. Since Clements is celebrating her success as a one-woman business in the training field, she opted to incorporate her other passion into the event — stand-up comedy.

In an attempt to spice up her speeches last summer, Clements enrolled in a stand-up comedy class with Kathryn Mora in Saratoga Springs. She had no intention of ever appearing on stage or becoming a comic because, as she said, "People aren't just funny. There is an art and science to stand-up." Despite her best intentions, Clements found she really enjoyed performing and repeated the course.

"I decided I was pretty good at it," said Clements. She went on to read books and spent time studying in California with nationally known humorist Judy Carter. Tapping into the friendships made during her studies with both Mora and Carter, Clements has gathered together a group of 10 comedians, four of whom are professionals, to perform in the benefit she's calling "It's My Party and I'll Laugh If I Want To!"

Clements will be the opening act.

"We are very thankful to Judi for her dedication to our organization over the years and congratulate her on her anniversary," said Maggie Fronk, executive director of Domestic Violence and Rape Crisis Services of Saratoga County. Fronk said the money donated to the organization will be put towards victims services. The organization offers a 24-hour hotline, 24-hour accompaniment program, and also operates the only domestic violence shelter for women and children in the county as well as counseling, legal advocacy and preventative them at no cost.

"As a nonprofit agency, CAPTAIN relies on donations and community support to help bring our vital services to the community. This is a very generous donation, and we are so grateful for Judi's efforts. Not to mention that we're really looking forward to this evening of laughter," said Julie Holick, development/marketing coordinator for CAPTAIN.

More information about Clements' business, Judi Clements Training and Development, is available at www.judiclements.com. Her offerings run from one-hour programs to multi-day workshops, but all programs provide original, high-energy training that combines learning with job relevancy and fun.

For Clements, it's all about the fun.

"There is nothing like getting a laugh," she says. "It's like giving people a gift."

This evening of comedy will be held Saturday, April 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus, 50 Pine Road, Saratoga Springs. Advance tickets are available for $20 through CAPTAIN. Tickets at the door will be $25.

For information, call CAPTAIN at 371-9184.

LEGAL NOTICE

Clerk at the District Clerk's office at the Educational Services Center, 90 Adams Place, Delmar, New York, not later than April 17, 2006 at 5:00 p.m. Each petition must be directed to the District Clerk, must be signed by at least eighty-four (84) qualified voters of the District and must state the name and residence of the candidate. A copy of such petitions may be obtained at the Office of District Clerk in the Bethlehem Central School during regular school hours. AND FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that applications for absentee ballots will be obtainable between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, except holidays, from the District Clerk. Completed applications for absentee ballots must be received by the District Clerk at least seven (7) days prior to the vote if the ballot is to be mailed to the voter, or the day before the election, if the ballot is to be delivered personally to the voter. Absentee ballots must be received by the District Clerk not later than 5:00 p.m. on May 16, 2006.

A list of all persons to whom absentee ballots shall have been issued will be available in the office of the District Clerk from 8:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. prevailing time on each of the five days prior to the day of the election, except Saturday, May 13 and Sunday, May 14, 2006, and on the day set for the election. Any qualified voter may challenge the acceptance of the ballot of any person on such list, by making his/her challenge and reasons therefor known to the Inspector of Election before the close of the polls.

AND FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the qualified voters of the School District shall be entitled to vote in said annual vote and election. A qualified voter is one who is (1) a citizen of the United States of America, (2) eighteen (18) years of age or older, and (3) resident with the School District for a period of thirty (30) days next preceding the annual vote and election. The School District may require all persons offering to vote at the budget vote and election to provide one form of proof of residency pursuant to Education Law section 2018-c. Such form may include a driver's license, a non-driver identification card, a utility bill, or a voter registration card. Upon offer of proof of residency, the School District may also require all persons offering to vote to provide their signature, printed name and address.

AND FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that pursuant to a policy adopted by the Board of Education in accordance with Sections 2035 and 2008 of the Education Law, any referendum or propositions to amend the budget, or otherwise to be submitted for voting at said vote and election, must be filed with the Board of Education at the Bethlehem Central School on or before April 17, 2006 at 5:00 p.m., prevailing time; must be typed or printed in the English language; must be directed to the Clerk of the School District; must be signed by at least two hundred fifteen (215) of the qualified voters of the District; and must state the name and residence of each signer. However, the School Board will not entertain or place before the voters any proposition if its purpose is beyond the power of the voters or is illegal, or any proposition requiring the expenditure of moneys which fails to include specific appropriations for all such expenditures required by the proposition or any proposition which must be included in this notice of the annual meeting and was not received at least 60 days prior to the annual meeting. like a veteran. He worked the count and then pulled the ball to the opposite field for a game-winning RBI double. Definitely impressive, even if the majority of the players left in the game at that point were already bound for the minor leagues.

If Milledge can do that on a consistent basis in the major leagues, he will be an All-Star. But with Carlos Beltran and Cliff Floyd blocking his path, I doubt Met fans will see Milledge start in New York for at least another year.

- It pays to have a friend who's in the know.

On my way back from Florida last week, I made a pit stop in the Richmond, Va., area and reconnected with Lane Casadonte, a college buddy of mine who is now the sports director for the CBS affiliate down there. Though his schedule prevented a face-to-face meeting, Lane told me about the Busch Series testing going on at Richmond International Raceway and suggested I check it out.

It was a good thing I did. I'd never been to a racetrack that was part of the NASCAR circuit, nor had I ever seen these machines moving at top speed. As the cars roared around the three-quarter-mile oval, the force that they were generating caused the metal bleachers to vibrate. It wasn't earth-shaking, but it was noticeable. Certainly, it's something you don't experience watching a race on TV — unless you have a massage chair in your home.

The interesting thing about RIR (as it's called by area residents) is its location. The track is situated north of downtown Richmond in a neighborhood. So as you're making your way to the track, you're traveling tree-lined streets with rows of houses. Sound familiar, Saratoga Race Course denizens?

Of course, there's really no comparison between RIR and Saratoga. RIR only hosts auto races two weekends a year, while Saratoga has six weeks of horse racing. Saratoga's name evokes a sense of beauty and grace, while RIR evokes images of concrete and exhaust.

But if I ever get the chance, I'd go back to RIR and see a NASCAR race. There's not a bad seat in the place, and you can see the whole track without binoculars. It's certainly a more intimate racing venue than a place like Daytona, which could be its own town.

Those plans are on hold now, though. It's spring sports season around here, and I have a job to do.

Union hosts football camps

Union College is holding football camps this summer for children in grades three through 12.

The first session runs 9 to 11 a.m. daily from July 10 through 14 and is open to football players in grades three through five. There will be individual and team instruction. The cost is $140 per camper.

The second session runs 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. daily from July 17 through 21 and is for players in grades six through eight. The cost is $150 per camper.

The final session runs 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. daily from July 31 through Aug. 4 and is for players in grades nine through 12. The cost of the full-contact camp is $170.

All sessions take place at Union College's Frank Bailey Field and are run by the school's football team coaching staff.

Kenny Wallace speeds down the front stretch at Richmond International Raceway during NASCAR Busch Series testing last Thursday.

Rob Jonas

Road trip includes sports stops

By ROB JONAS

I'm back. Did you all miss me? I bet you did.

Notice the picture of Kenny Wallace's car? I took that last Thursday at Richmond International Raceway as NASCAR's Busch Series drivers were testing their vehicles. More about that experience later.

So, what happened while I was away? Anything exciting? I heard something about the University at Albany men's basketball team pushing Connecticut to the limit in the NCAA Tournament, but since I was in Virginia at the time, I saw very little of the game. At least, ESPN led off that evening's SportsCenter with the highlights, so I got to see some of what I missed. Mercifully, they only showed bits and pieces of UConn's late rally.

When I got back last weekend,

From the
Sports Desk
Rob Jonas

I heard that the New Jersey Devils had dumped the Albany River Rats as their American Hockey League affiliate. Or, was it vice versa? Either way, it's about time for a change. New Jersey hasn't given Albany a competitive team in seven years. Say what you will about how a minor league team's main purpose is developing prospects, but it would be nice to make the playoffs. Perhaps a new affiliation will do the trick.

As for me, most of my sports-related activity centered around watching the NCAA Tournament, getting out to a Spring Training game between the New York

Mets and Los Angeles Dodgers and visiting Richmond International Raceway. Some thoughts on each:

• I got caught up in the George Mason story. It was really refreshing to see a mid-major beat teams from the bigger conferences (especially UConn) and reach the Final Four. Too bad Florida had to come along and do the "Gator Chomp" all over the Patriots in the semifinals, but that's what happens in these tournaments. Sooner or later, the clock strikes midnight on Cinderella.

By the way, I'm certain that every sportscast in Florida last Saturday night led off with the Gators' victory. I was more than a hundred miles from Gainesville, and the local sportscasters in West Palm Beach were talking about Billy Donovan's crew like they played just down the street from their studios. You wouldn't see sportscasts in New York City or Syracuse talking about UAlbany or Siena that way (though you do see sportscasts around here talk about Syracuse like it was part of the Capital District).

• It's not time yet for Met fans to get excited about outfielder Lastings Milledge, but at least he showed the ability to get a clutch hit.

The March 22 game between the Mets and Dodgers looked like it was heading to extra innings when Milledge stepped to the plate with two outs and a runner on first base in the bottom of the ninth inning. Neither team had been hitting the ball hard, and after Milledge struck out in his previous at bat, it seemed unlikely that the 20-year-old prospect was going to change that trend.

But, Milledge treated the at-bat

Blackbirds seek second Colonial title

By ROB JONAS

The Voorheesville baseball team had a breakthrough when it won last year's Colonial Council title.

Now, the Blackbirds would like to repeat as league champions and add a Section II title while they're at it.

"Voorheesville never won anything in the Colonial Council before," said coach Hank Czerwinski. "This year, we'd like to repeat. Obviously, we'll see everybody's top pitchers as defending champs, and everyone will be playing their best."

One of the teams that would like to knock Voorheesville off its perch is Ravena-Coeymans-

Selkirk, which has a senior-laden roster.

"We have high expectations," said RCS coach Bob Dorrance. "I have 11 seniors on the roster, and a lot of them have played together since Little League."

Both teams have plenty of pitching to get through the grind of the regular season. Voorheesville has several veteran hurlers including Pete Lindner, Nick Duncan, Jake Norris, R.J. Turreri and Andy Catellier, while RCS returns its top two starters from last year's team — Eric Stott and Colin King. Tony Northrup and Ryan Cross, who missed last year with injuries, are also back in the Indians' rotation.

"With Tony Northrup coming back from injury and Ryan Cross coming back from injury, we have the makings of a very good rotation," said Dorrance.

Offense should also be a strength for both teams. Voorheesville boasts a top-notch lead-off man in catcher Steven Cardinal and plenty of power in the middle of the lineup with Duncan and Lindner, who is the reigning Colonial Council MVP.

"Offensively, we should be OK with that group," Czerwinski said. "And with Turreri returning, we should have some hits."

RCS can also bash the ball around. Justin Bullis — who moved from third base to catcher this season — had a double and a home run in the Indians' season-opening 10-9 victory over LaSalle last Thursday, while Stott, King and Cross are all quality hitters.

Both teams were scheduled to open their Colonial Council seasons Monday. Voorheesville — which opened its season last week with a 17-0 victory over Cairo-Durham Wednesday and a 7-0 win against Berne-Knox-Westerlo Thursday before losing to Cairo-Durham 2-1 Friday — traveled to Watervliet, while RCS faced Cohoes.

Czerwinski said with all that Voorheesville accomplished last year, he feels certain that someone will make a run at the Blackbirds this season.

"We snuck up on people last year, and I'm sure someone will sneak up on us this year," he said.

Tiny ticks are trouble

By ROB IRWIN

In one small Delmar neighborhood at least nine people have been infected with Lyme disease over the last couple of years.

"I check (my children) when they go out to play, and check them when they come back," said Lori Wagner of how she's trying to prevent the disease from infecting her kids.

What Wagner is checking for is the black-legged tick, more commonly known as the deer tick. The tick is the primary carrier for Lyme disease, a disease first described in the United States in the 1970s in Lyme, Conn., and is responsible for a wide array of symptoms including fever, headache, lethargy, muscle symptoms and joint inflammation. The disease is also associated with its trademark red "bull's-eye" rash.

The black-legged tick will often rest upon long grasses or the end of branches waiting for a host animal to brush against it. The tick's primary host is the whitetail deer, hence its more common name.

The deer may be to blame for the rise in confirmed reports of Lyme disease and tick activity in the Capital District.

"We've had such a high deer population," said Wagner of her Elsmere neighborhood. "We've always been concerned."

One area of interest in the rising tick population in the area as well as around the state could stem from this year's deer harvest being down 14 percent.

An increased population of deer can force the animal into suburban areas looking for food, often times in people's gardens.

"When adult ticks don't have deer to use (as hosts), they go to the next best thing," said H. Brian Underwood, a professor at the SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry in Syracuse. These include small mammals — raccoons — pets and people. Underwood admitted that it can be tough to speculate on the relationship between deer populations in proportion to the tick population.

Jennifer Bull, a veterinarian at the Delmar Animal Hospital, has noticed that tick and Lyme activity in dogs has been on the rise in the past 10 years or so. Bull estimated that her hospital is currently diagnosing at least one dog per week with Lyme disease and 21 to 23 percent of dogs that are screened in her office are carriers of the disease, but not necessarily showing symptoms.

"Five years ago, we had six cases in a whole year," said Bull.

According to Bull, the more active a dog is the more likely it is to obtain ticks and contract the disease. There are a number of different vaccinations for dogs which must be given on an annual basis. Cats seem to be resistant to the disease.

The Lyme disease incidents and increase in tick population are not surprising, as the black-legged tick has been consistently migrating north along the Hudson River over the past years, hitching rides on deer and birds.

"Twenty years ago I worked in the Hudson Valley region, and I couldn't find a tick," said

Underwood. He said that at that time in New York the disease was seen primarily on Long Island.

In 2004, the last year numbers are available on the disease, the state Department of Health reported 4,271 confirmed cases of Lyme disease in the state. The highest reporting county was Dutchess, in the Hudson Valley, with 1,076 confirmed cases.

Albany County reported 226 cases in 2004, up from 99 in 2003, and an increase of 219 from a decade ago in 1996, when the county had seven confirmed cases.

Both the Albany County Health Department and Underwood warned against reading too much into these numbers. Often, Lyme disease goes unnoticed, or undiagnosed, and as awareness of the disease increases, so too do the number of reported cases.

Spring can be a time of particular concern. Underwood said that as the temperatures move into the 40s and 50s, ticks become more active.

"Warm weather forces the people out and ticks out onto their branches looking for hosts," said Underwood.

Nymphs, the second of the three stages of the tick's life cycle, are active in the spring and pose more of a threat, according to Underwood, because they are smaller than the adults, and often go unnoticed.

It takes an infected tick anywhere from 12 to 24 hours to infect its host, and if the smaller nymph goes unnoticed, it increases the chances of contracting the disease.

Underwood said that studies done on tick populations found that 25 to 35 percent of nymphs carry the disease, while the easier-to-spot adults, more active in late summer, are infected 65 to 85 percent of the time.

This winter's mild weather may also have an impact on the prevalence of ticks in the area.

"This is the first year we've had tick activity all year long," said Bull.

Marsha Fabiano, of the Albany County Health Department, said, "We had a mild winter, so that could mean a busy Lyme season."

Fabiano also said that despite the current factors, disease rates are always difficult to predict.

Preventative measures people can take include avoiding grassy, shrubby areas, and doing thorough searches of both body and clothes after any outdoor activity. There are a number of sprays and treatments designed to kill and repel ticks on clothes as well as in the yard.

Underwood does not see the tick migration stopping anytime soon.

"It's simply a matter of time that (the tick) is transported along the Mohawk River valley into Central New York."

Wildlife

The New York Post.

Coyotes are omnivores, which means they will eat just about anything. Their diet in the wild consists primarily of deer and rabbit meat, berries and apples, but they will also scrounge through human food scraps or attack livestock and pets. Coyotes eat sheep and chickens, and they have been known to kill cats and small dogs.

The animals mate during February and bear their litters about two months later. With five or six hungry mouths per litter to feed, adult coyotes will seek food wherever they can find it. And, more and more, they find it in backyards. Suburbs are a relative safe haven for coyotes, and food can be plentiful.

A lot of people who live in the suburbs don't hunt, or, if they do, they are not allowed to discharge guns or sharp arrows in their neighborhoods, Parker said.

As a result, coyotes have grown numerous and bold, and Parker receives frequent telephone calls from suburbanites who want to know how to chase away the pesky, potentially dangerous scavengers. He recommends blowing air horns and whistles.

"Life is safer in the suburbs," Parker said. "The ability of people to pursue hunting and trapping goes down. Coyotes have figured this out."

People on the move

The population of the Capital District has grown during the past two decades. Every regional county, except Schenectady County, experienced an influx of people. The population of Albany County increased from 285,909 to 294,565 between 1980 and 2000. The number of people in Saratoga County increased from 153,759 to 200,635 during the same time period and the population of Rensselaer County increased from 151,966 to 152,538, according to statistics contained in a report from the Open Space Institute, a nonprofit environmental protection and advocacy group.

The organization's report is titled, "Open Space for Tomorrow: A Capital District Sprawl and Open Space Action Strategy," and is posted on the Capital District Regional Planning Commission's Web site, cdrpc.org.

According to the report, most of the Capital District's population growth has occurred outside of cities. The populations of Albany and Schenectady each declined by about 6,000 people, and the population of Troy went down by more than 7,000. In contrast, suburban and rural towns gained people, as did the city of Saratoga Springs. Clifton Park's population rose by 9,000 between 1980 and 2000, and the town now has more than 32,000 people. The number of people in Bethlehem increased by about 7,000. The population of Malta increased by about 6,000 and the towns of Colonie, Guilderland and Wilton each gained more than 5,000 people. Rural towns from Berne to Day also experienced population growth, but in significantly lower numbers.

The report estimates that about 10,000 acres of land was developed between 1986 and 1997. Forests and farmland were cleared to make way for new houses, roads and businesses, and the natural habitat of many creatures was disturbed.

The prime example is the Albany Pine Bush — an inland pine barren ecosystem that is home to 20 rare species of plants, animals and insects, including the delicate and endangered Karner blue butterfly.

"Some creatures are mobile enough to move and find new habitat," said Laura Welles, conservation program manager for the Saratoga Preserving Land and Nature organization. "But the more populated areas become, the harder it is for them to do that."

The Albany Pine Bush is, according to the Capital District Sprawl and Open Space Action Strategy, "a badly fragmented natural area that has been the victim of conflicting public policy decisions."

Land there has been developed for human purposes since the late 1970s. It has been a battleground in many court cases and a cause for civic action. A portion of the Pine Bush has been set aside for a protected preserve, but other parts of it are owned by private citizens and are at risk to be developed. People who want to preserve the Pine Bush are currently fighting a proposal by Albany Mayor Jerry Jennings that would call for expansion of the Albany landfill onto Pine Bush land.

"Save the Pine Bush has been locked in a bitter struggle to save this small, fragile ecosystem for 18 years. And we will probably continue until there is no more land to argue over," Save the Pine Bush organization president Lynne Jackson said.

Animals on the move.

But it isn't always people who move into an area and cause problems with other species; the proverbial shoe can be reversed. Gene Quattrociocchi made his home on Droms Road in Glenville 36 years ago, but about 20 years ago his backyard flooded and overwhelmed his septic system. The floodwaters became an annual problem. During excursions into the wild lands behind his house, Quattrociocchi found the culprits — beavers.

He said the state Department of Environmental Conservation reintroduced beavers to the Indian Kill creek basin as part of a plan to revitalize the species, which had been trapped to near extinction, but his claim could not be verified and town Parks Director James MacFarland said the animals could have migrated up the creek on their own.

Regardless of whodunit, the occupation by beavers of the Indian Kill basin has caused recurring problems for the people who live there. Bacteria in septic systems is a health risk to humans, and saturated basements can host dangerous mold. Standing water in beaver ponds fosters mosquitoes, which can carry the deadly West Nile virus, MacFarland said.

Town government hired a trapper four years ago to mitigate the problems and has had a good deal of success. The animals still live along the creek and people's problems have subsided, but trapping beaver is a recurring chore.

Quattrociocchi said the creek in his back yard has flooded again this spring.

"They're at it again," he said of the paddle-tailed creatures.

He recently notified MacFarland who, in turn, said he would call the trapper.

"Our goal is simply to not have negative interaction between the beavers and people," MacFarland said, noting that the rodents are a welcome addition to the town's nature preserve at Indian Meadows Park.

Can't we all just get along?

"The more populated an area becomes, the more some species might have trouble adapting to the presence of humans," Welles said. "Some species are mobile enough to move, but others aren't."

Parker said some species have been hurt by human expansion. Deer, for instance, risk higher mortality rates when forced to migrate. He said they can wander into areas where they are unfamiliar with roads, the location of predators or where sources of food can be found.

"In the short term, there's less habitat available, but what happens long-term is not really known. Over 10-15 years, a lot of animals may come back," Parker said.

So when you wake up in the morning and see a deer near your shrubs, or when you go to sleep at night and hear a coyote howl, or when you curse the woodpecker that has drilled holes into your house, wood siding, just remember, the world is ever-changing.
