Saratoga brewery giddy with success

Believe it or not this is work.

As the day winds down, the cast and crew of Olde Saratoga Brewing Company pour into the taproom to sample their finished product — beer.

Local welders who are running new lines in the brewery as part of a near quarter million dollar expansion join them.

Business and the beer are good.

"It's been going berserk over the last year. The whole craft beer (market) has been growing the last few years," said Bob Craven, Olde Saratoga brewery general manger.

Little more than five years ago, the brewery was still working out some kinks after ownership changed hands in the late 1990s.

It began at 30 percent capacity as it slowly bubbled up from a troublesome financial past. Now the Excelsior Avenue brewery in Saratoga Springs is turning down brewing contracts from up and down the Eastern Seaboard. It runs at 100 percent capacity and is expanding to meet increased demand.

Teachers contract receives almost unanimous approval

By JIM CUOZZO

The Bethlehem school board has approved a new contract with the Bethlehem Teachers Association that calls for 3.2 percent salary increases across the board over the next four years and more teacher givebacks in health insurance costs.

"Neither side achieved everything they would have liked," said Superintendent Les Loomis.

Negotiations took place over a year, with teachers overwhelmingly approving the contract one day before the school board meeting by close to 97 percent.

"It's a very positive development," said school board president Stuart Lyman. "We all have a big job ahead of us, and having that relationship on solid ground is a significant step," Lyman added.

Owens Corning celebrates 30 years in Bethlehem

By JIM CUOZZO

A 30-year success story for any business is a milestone in itself. When that business employs more than 300 people, the achievement can bring even more satisfaction.

The Owens Corning Plant in Selkirk honored employees recently during the plant's 30-year anniversary, highlighting the many workers who have stayed with the company since its move to Bethlehem several years ago.

"Forty-eight employees have been with us since day one," said Tony Williams, human resource leader for the Selkirk plant. "The celebration showcased our division, and what we have accomplished."

The plant in Selkirk covers 630,000 square feet more than 200 acres and is one of 13 operating glass insulation plants in North America. The plant started with a one-line operation of 200 employees back in 1976 and has since grown to 366 employees and a two-line operational team. The move to Bethlehem was a corporate decision based on the town's central location and other attractive features.

"The Selkirk rail yards are located there for goods and shipping," said Williams. "We also looked at the pool of available talent from the area job market."

Employees in Selkirk supply the Northeast, from Maine to Virginia, with light-density insulation for residential use.

"Our future is extremely bright for both the plant and the company," said Williams.

Owens Corning has made a large investment in new technology over the past few years.

"We have been extremely solid," said Williams.

Company leaders, along with area dignitaries, including Scott

Meyers, vice-president of Owens Corning's operating division, and Roy Deane, president of the division, were on hand for the celebration earlier this month.

Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce president Marty DeLaney attended both the 30th anniversary of Owens Corning along and the 40th anniversary celebration of the General Electric plant in Selkirk. DeLaney said both companies have been exemplary good neighbors in the community.

Soccer club to honor Capt. Moshier with flagpole dedication this weekend

Selkirk man charged with drunken driving

Vincent Paul Berchela, 22, of 5A, Barry Court, Selkirk, has been charged with DWI-first offense by Bethlehem Police.

Berchela was observed by police driving north on the Slingerlands bypass near Blessing Road. Police allegedly observed Berchela failing to keep right. After a stop and check on the vehicle police found out Berchela was driving with a suspended license after his insurance had lapsed. He was also charged with DWI and driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content.

He will appear in Town Court Oct. 3 to respond to the charges.

The Bethlehem Soccer Club will hold a dedication ceremony at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 30, at the Bethlehem Soccerplex on Wemple Road to honor the memory of Army Capt. Timothy Moshier.

Moshier was 25 and serving in Iraq when he was killed when the helicopter he was flying crashed west of Baghdad in early April.

Moshier was an avid soccer fan and player and was a member of the Bethlehem Soccer Club for many years, according to club president Art Scheuermann. "Timothy and his sister had participated in club programs," said Scheuermann.

The club wanted to do something to keep Moshier's name and memory alive.

The highlight of the Sept. 30 ceremony will include dedicating a flagpole in Moshier's honor. The Christian Brothers Academy honor guard will raise the flag, and the public is invited.

"Timothy is a hometown hero, and we can't let his name face away," Scheuermann said.

The soccer games will be delayed one hour next week at the Soccerplex to accommodate the dedication.

Moshier and his entire family were active in the club. Scheuermann said Moshier's wife Katie, 16 month-old daughter Natalie and their parents will be at the dedication. Katie and Timothy Moshier were both graduates of Bethlehem Central High School. Katie Mosher said the community support has been tremendous for her and her family.

"We are very pleased and touched," she said. "Obviously Timothy made a great impact on the community and this is such a nice gesture."

The Bethlehem Central School Districts endowment fund is also accepting donations for the Captain Timothy J. Moshier Memorial Scholarship Fund. Katie Moshier said a 5K-Memorial run/walk will be held next spring on April 28. Proceeds will benefit both the endowment fund and the Natalie Grace Mosher Fund. Geoff Decker is the race organizer for the run. If anyone has any questions about any of the fundraising activities they can find more information at www.timothyjmoshier.com

Moshier was assigned to the 4th Battalion, 4th Aviation Brigade, 4th Infantry Division in Fort Hood, Texas, before being sent to Iraq.

Lange opts for smooth sailing following NYSTI retirement

By JIM CUOZZO

Where does a 25-year veteran of the New York State Theatre Institute go when he retires? Ed Lange's last day as associate artistic director and media relations director of NYSTI is Oct. 7, and he will go back to what he likes doing the most: writing, directing and sailing.

"I'm a diehard sailor, and I hope to do some long-distance sailing," said Lange between breaks of directing his final show at NSYTI called "Idiot's Delight."

Lange's boat is named Valkyrie and is docked in Rhode Island at Narragansett Bay. But before he gets to sail off into the Atlantic sunset, Lange looked back at his 30 years in the business and when his taste for the theatre began in the '60s as a Bethlehem High School student.

"We had some great teachers at Bethlehem that really inspired us," said Lange. "It was great."

The Clarksville native married in 1964 and went on to the University of Albany, before serving for a period of time in the U.S. Army in Vietnam. When Lange returned to the United States, he received a master's degree at Penn State in directing, and worked for a brief time at the former Latham Coliseum and as a teacher before going to work for NYSTI in 1981.

"Ed is a very special person, and we have worked together for 25 years at the theater institute," said Patricia Di Benedetto Snyder, producing artistic director. "He just kept growing as an artist, and we are very proud of the writing he has done."

Di Benedetto Snyder asked Lange to direct his first show at the theater in 1982.

"My premiere was 'Calamity Jane' at The Egg," said Lange. "I was so excited about the opportunity to direct a professional company, it brought me to tears."

Since then, Lange has directed "Death of a Salesman" and "The Killings Tale," along with several other productions.

"The people I work with here at NYSTI are some of the most encouraging, enthusiastic and committed people to this organization you can have," said Lange. "The excitement here is never-ending."

Lange calls NYSTI extremely underrated for the high quality entertainment it puts out.

"They are always willing to try and reach further and explore," said Lange. "I believe in this place so much."

The fellow actors, actresses and staff of NSYTI hold Lange in very high regard as well.

"Ed is a real actor's director," said Joe Quandt, who plays the character Harry Van in "Idiot's Delight." "He trusts the actor's instincts and shapes it into the vision he wants."

Lange had wanted to direct "Idiot's Delight" for several years, according to Quandt.

"I have been in rehearsal for one week, and I am amazed," said Quandt. "It's a fun with complexity and drama."

As retirement nears, Lange will continue to write and direct. He already has a new novel in the works, but, like most writers, will not reveal the story until it is finished.

"I am still releasing steam inside me from the work," said Lange. "So I'm not talking about it."

It is Lange's hope to be able to direct a play of his own at the institute in the near future.

"If the play meets the audience needs," said Lange.

Di Benedetto Snyder said she doesn't believe Lange will ever truly retire from the theater.

"It is my hope he will continue to write and direct for us," she said.

BC launches contest to name new school

The Bethlehem Central School District is now accepting entries for its contest to name the new elementary school, and all district residents are encouraged to enter.

"We are extremely excited about getting the entire community involved in this initiative," said Superintendent Les Loomis.

Entries may be submitted individually or as a group (for example, students by grade, house, class, etc.) and must include an explanation for the suggested name.

"We're looking forward to receiving a variety of entries with creative and innovative names," said Loomis.

Loomis said a communitywide "name the school" contest has never taken place in the district, although Delmar is no stranger to creatively named elementary schools.

According to local legend, Hamagrael Elementary School was a combination of the names of the Goodard family, relatives of the Somers family who once owned the 104-acre farm named Hamagrael where the school is located. Their names were Harry, Marian, Grace and Eleanor, and if you take the first two letters of each name you get Hamagrael.

As for the naming of the new elementary school, the board of education will review entries and select three finalists during its Wednesday, Oct. 18, board meeting. Students in grades K-12 will vote during the last week of October to determine the winning name.

Loomis said they have not finalized how the votes will be tabulated.

"The students may use voting machines at both the middle school and high school, and paper ballots might be used at elementary schools," Loomis said.

Students enrolled in kindergarten at the district will also be eligible to vote. The new name will be announced at the board of education meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 1.

Naming BC's New Elementary School

All residents of the Bethlehem Central School District are encouraged to enter the contest to name the new elementary school. Entries may be submitted by individuals or groups (e.g., students by grade, class, house etc.) and must include an explanation of the suggested name.

DETAILS ABOUT THE NEW SCHOOL:

Construction of the new elementary school is planned as part of the district's $93 million building project, approved by voters in 2003. The project is expected to break ground in the spring of 2007 and the school is expected to be ready for the 2008-09 school year.

PROCESS TO NAME THE NEW SCHOOL:

The Board of Education will review all submissions and select a minimum of three finalists at its Oct. 18 board meeting. Students in grades K-12 districtwide will vote on the finalists the last week in Oct. The new name will be announced at the Board of Education's Nov. 1 meeting.

RULES AND ELIGIBILITY:

The contest is open to all residents of the Bethlehem Central School District. Entries will be accepted in writing via mail, fax or e-mail by the deadline date. Submissions must include an explanation for the chosen name.

DEADLINE FOR ENTRIES:

Tuesday, October 10, 2006.

elementary school is planned as part of the district's $93 million building project, approved by voters in 2003. The new elementary school will be the sixth in the district and will create space for future enrollment growth and relieve current overcrowding at all of the district's elementary schools.

"We do not want any school to be larger than 500 students," said Loomis.

A design committee composed of parents, teachers, support staff and the school board assisted in the overall look drawn up by Collins and Scoville architects.

"We have had the opportunity to design this right from scratch," Loomis added.

The project is expected to break ground in the spring of 2007, and the school is expected to be ready for the 2008-09 school year.

Don't question the chance for a 'do over'

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR

There is an improvisational theater exercise where the actors in a scene are only allowed to talk in questions and no question can be repeated. Nothing is scripted, so you have to think on your feet.

It's difficult to carry on a productive, meaningful conversation using this technique. Yet this kind of dialogue happens between parents and children all the time.

Here's an example:

Parent: Will you please clear the table?

Child: Do I have to?

Parent: What do you think?

Child: How should I know?

Parent: Haven't we talked about this before?

Child: When?

Parent: Are you kidding me?

Child: Why do we have these dumb conversations?

Parent: Who do you think you're talking to?

Child: Why do you treat me like a baby?

Parent: Is that what you think?

Of course, in a perfect world (or a script from "The Brady Bunch" show) the same conversation could go as follows:

Parent: Will you please clear the table?

Commentary:

From
Robin's Nest

Child: Would you like me to load the dishwasher, too?

Parent: Do you know how?

Child: Didn't you teach me five years ago?

Parent: Was I a good teacher?

Child: Aren't you always?

Parent: How about we clean up together?

Child: Haven't you worked hard enough today?

Parent: Do you think I should just go sit on the couch?

Child: Don't you deserve a break?

Parent: Is that what you think?

I asked my 10-year-old daughter to read the above dialogue to herself. The first version of the conversation made her laugh, while she only smiled at the second version.

But when we recited the words out loud, each of us playing our respective parts, the second version was clearly the funnier of the two. Of course, I knew that in advance.

The argumentative version is just too familiar and unpleasant. And the cooperative version is just too far-fetched.

Yet I remain hopeful that there is some middle ground in communicating with my child.

While play-acting, Rachel and I were able to change our tone of voice and our facial expressions from nasty to pleasant. It's more of a challenge to remain agreeable in real-life situations. To think, before we speak. To reflect, before we act.

The Jewish High Holy Days are a time of deep reflection, beginning with the celebration of Rosh Hashanah and ending with the solemn observance of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. It is a time for contemplating how to be a better parent, spouse, child, neighbor and friend. It is a time to consider our actions over the past year and to make amends with people whose feelings we have hurt, intentionally or unintentionally.

As usual, the people who I ticked off the most are the people I love the most.

This year Yom Kippur begins Sunday evening, Oct. 1. I'll be repenting for my usual transgressions: Yelling at my kid. Snapping at my husband. Getting annoyed at my parents. Not rolling down the bag inside the cereal box. Leaving wet towels on the bed.

Every year I feel particularly edgy as the holidays approach. My thoughts are all over the place: I should have been a better person. I should have refilled the water pitcher before putting it back in the refrigerator. I should have reached out more often to friends in need. I should have eaten more vegetables.

A few years ago, I belonged to a local improvisational comedy theater troupe. We would perform a game called "Should Have Said." During the scene the director would ring a bell and the actor would need to change the last sentence spoken. This would inevitably change the direction of the scene.

There are many real-life situations where I wish I could ring a bell and have a "do over."

Sometimes I need multiple chances to get it right.

For example:

Rachel: I need a drink.

Mom: Did you forget where the refrigerator is? (Ding)

Mom: That tall white thing is the refrigerator. (Ding)

Mom: There is water, juice and milk in the fridge. Help yourself.

Or, how about:

Rachel: Carry my backpack (or jacket, lunchbox, etc.)

Mom: Is your arm broken? (Ding)

Mom: I'm not your slave. (Ding)

Mom: I'm carrying several items already. You need to hold your own stuff.

We don't use a bell, but there have been times when Rachel and I have backed down from an argument or started the conversation over.

We did a "do over" just a few weeks ago. We had just pulled into the garage. It was a weeknight. We had not eaten dinner. Rachel had lots of homework to do. I was exhausted and my bladder was full (this speaks to my state of mind).

We were still in the car and I said, "After dinner you'll work on your homework, and I'll work on the computer and..."

Rachel interrupted with, "But you said this morning that we could..."

Then I interrupted with an irrational tirade about how I was no longer going to say in advance that we can do anything and this will prevent her from being able to say "But you said..." because there would no longer be discussions about future possibilities because she is not flexible about adapting to the current situation and, oh, by the way, I'm still waiting for her to keep her room clean and blah, blah, blah.

Not a great beginning for a "girls night."

We went inside the house and I announced, "Homework is the top priority this evening!" Then I abruptly turned away and went into the bathroom where I took a few minutes to not only use the toilet, but also to think. I heard Rachel go upstairs to her room.

I knocked on her door and found her preparing to do her homework.

"Let's start over," I said. I sat down on the floor and gave her a hug. "Let's put on our pajamas and eat some dinner. Then we'll take a look at the homework."

Last month, I took a few books out of the library on communicating with teenagers. My daughter is only in fifth grade, but she sometimes exhibits the attitude of a teenager so I thought I'd start collecting information. One of the books talks about using "I statements."

"We learned about those at school," Rachel told me. I asked her to give me an example.

She explained how a person may say, "Why did you take my pencil? That was my best pencil!" She said it would be better to say, "I should be more careful where I put my favorite pencils."

We talked about our conversation from earlier that evening. I had said, "You make me crazy when you pout and don't answer me." I should have said, "I get frustrated when you hang your head and pout. I can help you better if we talk things out."

She explained that using "I statements" means you don't blame the other person. You take responsibility.

Now I am better prepared for confrontational exchanges with my daughter. When those occur, I know the first thing to do is empty your bladder (in an appropriate facility, of course). After that you need to open your heart, take responsibility and make amends.

And when you're lucky enough to have a pleasant conversation with your child, don't question it.

Voters OK school renovation project

By ROB IRWIN

Last week, voters in the Voorheesville school district approved a $5.82 million renovation project and $150,000 land acquisition for the public library.

The school project, the majority of which would focus on updating the elementary school building, was approved by voters 432 — 243.

"We are very grateful to the community for their trust in our decisions regarding the project," said Superintendent Linda Langevin. "The improvements at the elementary school will ensure that our youngest students are provided with a safe and comfortable learning environment for many years to come."

The proposal will be funded by a $4.88 million bond issue, repayment of which will begin in conjunction with the retirement of the bond from 1989's project, resulting in no new tax impact on the community.

Additionally, the district will use the $500,000 capital reserve, along with the reserve's interest earnings, and a $409,000 state grant from Expanding our Children's Education and Learning (EXCEL).

About 64 percent of the project would be eligible for state aid reimbursement.

Much of the update will involve rebuilding the heating and ventilation systems throughout the elementary school, some of which are nearly 45 years old.

Other work in the elementary school includes replacing the gymnasium/auditorium flooring, installing a new fire-alarm system, replacing original single-pane windows in the 1963 wing and removing asbestos tile floors in the 1930s and 1940s sections of the building.

Work at the high school and middle school, about 10 percent of the project, would involve rebuilding the tennis courts, repaving the gym entry, and replacing movable partitions and the older gym's ceiling.

In the proposal, the bus garage would see $91,000 of the money to address health and safety issues, such as improving exhaust ductwork and insufficient lighting.

Assistant Superintendent for Business Sarita Winchell said the project required a public vote because it was outside of the district's general budget.

The next step is for the school district to submit plans and specifications to the state Department of Education this fall for approval, said Langevin. Once bids have been received and contracts awarded, work will begin in the summer of 2007. Most of the work is slated for the summer months to minimize the impact on students.

The public also approved the acquisition of 5.6-acre hill behind the library, 402 — 266. The library was offered the land for $95,000 with an additional $5,000 closing cost. The total amount of financing for the proposed project is $150,000 — $100,000 for the land and $50,000 to develop the plans to expand.

The library plans to pay for the land and development plans by issuing a bond at a cost to the average taxpayer of two cents per $1,000 of assessed value. Under this plan, a house assessed at $200,000 would see an increase in the year-end tax bill of $4.

"We are very grateful to the community for their trust in our decisions regarding the project."

CPR education important for everyone

An old rerun of the TV show "Roseanne" makes an important point that CPR can save a life. In that episode, the youngest child, DJ, helps save his father's life during an apparent heart attack. Even then, probably sometime in the early 80s, we knew CPR was an important life-saving technique.

It continues to be important, but a casual poll of the office yields no one who actually knows how to administer it. We suspect that this is more typical than not in the average workplace.

Editorial

Evidently, we need to do more to promote the technique. There is precious little time to act during a potential life and death situation.

This week, Colonie reporter Graham Parker wrote about one group who would like to turn that situation around with the hope, of course, of saving more lives. Town EMS personnel and the American Heart Association have teamed up to provide CPR informative kits to every home in Colonie.

This is a great step in the right direction, but that's only one town in a region that has a population of several hundred thousand.

We think the effort could and should go further. Perhaps a program in the schools would help to bridge the gap between helplessness in an emergency situation to being able to save a life.

According to Colonie EMS, the CPR kits cost about $30 dollars. Perhaps that cost could be defrayed by an existing program like DARE already in the elementary schools. At the older levels, there could be clubs or workshops to get the word out about CPR. Even local Scout troops could get in on the act.

For adults, it could be a program at a hospital or local health care center to promote awareness of CPR and the proper way to administer it. We hope the Colonie initiative spurs other groups to also promote CPR.

How frustrating it must be to have the tools to save a life but not know how to use these tools during an emergency.

Something as important as saving a life should not be left up to chance. If there is something that can be done before the ambulance arrives, than it should be done — ASAP.

More colleges should drop early decision

By JILL RIFKIN

The writer is an independent college counselor based in Delmar. She has owned College Options since 1995 and has master's degrees in education and counseling.

Several months after I opened my college counseling practice in 1995, a client walked into my house excitedly announcing, "I've decided to apply to college early decision."

"Fine," I replied, "but where? You haven't even started visiting colleges yet." She answered, "I have no idea, but I just want to apply early somewhere." Flabbergasted by this response, I spent the next 20 minutes trying to persuade her that unless she was certain of her choice, early decision was a poor idea. I suspect I'm not the first counselor to have encountered this bizarre situation.

Bravo to Princeton for its recent decision to eliminate its early decision option for its applicants who apply next fall, thereby requiring all candidates to apply regular decision. This move came on the heels of Harvard's decision the week before to scotch early action, a somewhat different plan used by a very small number of colleges, which won't be discussed here. I'm cautiously hopeful that the trickle-down theory will apply to college admissions, and that many colleges will soon eliminate early decision as an option for its applicants. Although the popularity of this option has surged in recent years, many applicants do not fully understand the process.

Under the regular application plan, application deadlines are usually in January or occasionally February, though many applicants submit their applications sooner. Regardless of notification date, student have until May 1 to accept or reject college offers. Early decision has a completely different timetable, compressing the application process into a much shorter timeframe. ED candidates typically have a deadline in

Point of View

November of the senior year and learn of their admissions fate by about mid-December. There are three possible outcomes: acceptance, denial or deferral. Students who are accepted are expected to attend; this is a binding moral commitment, which nearly all students honor. They are required to immediately withdraw any applications they've made to other colleges. Students who are denied acceptance must, of course, look elsewhere. Deferred students' applications are neither accepted nor denied; they join the regular decision pool, and their credentials are again reviewed in the spring, at which point they receive an admissions decision. Meanwhile, they apply to other colleges.

While early decision is beneficial to some candidates who are fortunate enough to be accepted early to their college of choice, the prime beneficiaries of the plan are the colleges themselves. ED applicants tend to be wealthier, come from more affluent school districts, and are exceedingly eager to attend the college. They are much less likely to need financial aid than those who apply through regular decision, enhancing their appeal to all but the wealthiest colleges. They are apt to be generous contributors after they graduate. Furthermore, since early decision acceptance is mandatory, except under very special circumstances, the college is relieved of the onerous and expensive responsibility of soliciting other students, more of whom are likely to need financial aid, to fill the spots taken ED students. It should come as no surprise that ED applications typically increase the student's chances of getting in. To cite just two examples: only 17 percent of Dartmouth's students were accepted regular decision last year, while 34 percent were accepted early decision. For Lafayette, the figures were 37 percent versus 67 percent.

While colleges offering early decision may benefit, students often do not fare as well. Many have not done the necessary homework needed to ensure that the chosen college best meets their academic, social and emotional needs before making the binding commitment that ED entails. Extensive visitation is essential for making an intelligent and reasoned choice. Ideally, students considering this option should begin visiting schools as early as the fall or winter of the junior year and continue to do so intermittently until the fall of senior year, when ED applications are due. This scenario is all too rare. Instead, many students cram college visits into the summer months, when it's nearly impossible to accurately gauge campus culture, or during the fall of senior year, when they are frantically busy with homework, extracurricular activities, work and college applications. Some miss too many days of school in too short a period of time; while these absences are excused, time pressure mounts and quality of schoolwork is likely to suffer. Many fail to visit the bulk of the colleges to which they apply due to lack of time, which has a negative impact on their chances of admission and prevents them from comparing schools. Critically important college essays are more likely to be written hastily. The predictable results of a such a compressed application season: dramatically heightened stress, exhaustion, painful anxiety, and all too often, a rushed ED decision before the student has taken sufficient time to compare and contrast colleges and to ascertain which best meets his or her needs. With regular decision, college visitation can be extended well into the fall, which makes the process much more manageable for students and their families.

Early decision has other pitfalls, which catch applicants unaware. It is not appropriate for students whose grades are on the upswing, who might benefit from sending colleges improved grades for the first two quarters of the senior year, rather than just the first quarter. Furthermore, for accepted students, ED is sometimes a heavy contributor or the ominous senior slump, tempting accepted students to shirk academic responsibilities month earlier than their peers.

Let us now consider the plight of the early decision candidate who is deferred, or worse, rejected. With their hearts set on one school, many are shaken and plagued with self-doubt; they don't quite believe that they'll be accepted at wonderful colleges later on. Provided their college choices were realistic, regular admission candidates who fail to win acceptance to their top choice school have other appealing acceptances in hand to bolster their egos. ED student have several months to wait for acceptances, an eternity for vulnerable teenagers.

Most egregious of all, early decision is grossly unfair to poor students, who are less likely to have guidance counselors with sufficient time to explain how to successfully navigate this confusing admissions plan, and who desperately need to compare financial aid packages before committing to one college. Given the astronomical tuitions many colleges charge, middle class applicants face similar concerns. For these students, the most sensible option is regular decision, which allows them to negotiate with colleges to receive more favorable financial aid packages. Requiring all college applicants to apply regular decision is at least a small step toward leveling the playing field.

As an independent college counselor, I've had little choice but to recommend early decision to some clients who benefit from the extra boost this gives to their candidacy. I wish I didn't have to, despite the undeniable fact that over the past 12 years since opening my practice, the vast majority of clients whose ED choices were sensible were accepted. Although I relish their shouts of delight and celebrate with them, I still believe that early decision complicates the already confusing admissions process, creates unnecessary panic and is brutally unfair to underprivileged students. May it go the way of the hoop skirt and the quill pen on the American college campus.

GOP chair takes issue with Gordon letter

Editor, The Spotlight:

After reading Councilman Tim Gordon's letter to the editor, I am reminded of Abraham Lincoln's famous quote that "you may fool all of the people some of the time ... but you can't fool all of the people all the time."

While Mr. Gordon professes to be a public servant, not a politician, he fails to mention he is the political party boss of the Bethlehem Independence Party, as I am the Republican Party chairperson.

Mr. Gordon publicly chastises the timing of former town board member George Lenhardt's observations about Mr. Gordon, Kyle Kotary and Dan Plummer's blatant disregard of the established process of conducting interviews of worthwhile applicants for town positions.

Perhaps Mr. Gordon forgot about three years ago, when he was the Independence candidate for town board — and endorsed by the Democrats — the town Democratic Committee mailed campaign literature depicted as a Spotlight article to all households the Saturday before Election Day, which unethically assailed the Republican/Conservative town justice candidate. It was so despicable that this very paper demanded accountability for the improper use of its likeness.

Still, the fundamental question left unanswered by Mr. Gordon's letter is why he, Mr. Plummer and Mr. Kotary ignored the fair and democratic process established years ago by the town in appointing town officials and employees. This blatant disregard of the process is at the heart of Mr. Lenhardt's informative letter to the editor. In fact, Supervisor Theresa Egan, a Democrat herself, termed Mr. Gordon and the other two Democratic board members' conduct as a "dereliction of duty" in appointing Mr. Donovan without conducting interviews of worthwhile candidates. In fact, this dereliction caused Ms. Egan and Mr. Messina, both Democrats, to abstain from voting for Mr. Donovan's appointment to be our interim town justice. Equally important, Mr. Gordon invoked this same process a few years earlier when the board considered applicants for town historian. This last fact was pointed out by fellow board member Sam Messina at the board meeting held on June 28.

At the board meeting, Supervisor Egan termed the temporary appointment of Mr. Donovan as a "rush to judgment," especially since the town had already received applications from at least a half dozen highly experienced, qualified candidates. At the time of the appointment, Mr. Donovan had just turned 30 years old, and was licensed to practice law for little more than four years. Notably, in that short time period he had also switched legal jobs three times. At the board meeting, Mr. Gordon did not mention anything about Mr. Donovan's legal experience or qualifications. His comments solely addressed Mr. Donovan's need to run for election.

It should be noted that in 2005, Mr. Donovan lost the election for town justice by 1,881 votes.

In his letter, Mr. Gordon claims to understand the process, but he blatantly ignored it. Mr. Gordon's dereliction may be traced to his own political agenda. He required the support of the Town Democratic Committee in furthering his goal to be the Democratic candidate for the 108th Assembly District. The voters from South Bethlehem to North Bethlehem, from Glenmont to Slingerlands, will not be fooled by Mr. Gordon's words on Election Day.

Mr. Gordon should and will be judged by his actions including the political deal in appointing Mr. Donovan.

Thanks to all for great Plum Fest

Editor, The Spotlight:

We had a successful Plum Fest. Thank you to all the people of the area who came.

The Feura Bush Neighborhood Association especially wants to thank everyone who was involved in the planning of the Plum Fest. The dedication, creativity and effort shown by the people of Feura Bush was really impressive.

Thanks also to the members of the New Scotland Historical Association for their help. Thanks to Susan D. Kidder, the town of New Scotland senior outreach liaison, for her planning and coordination of the Health Fair, and to all the volunteers involved in that. Darrell Duncan, highway superintendent, Pat Geurtze, highway clerk, and many workers of the town of New Scotland Highway Department installed the historical markers, were crucial in getting up Plum Fest signs and supplying safety cones that slowed the traffic.

The support from the New Scotland town board and recreation committee was appreciated in financing the evening's musical entertainment. The Onesquethaw Volunteer Fire Company participated in the children's parade which was a great success. The Plum Fest would not have been possible without those who supported us financially: Peter K. Frueh Inc., excavating contractor, Bethlehem Self Storage, Selkirk Cogen, Stewart's Foundation, GE Plastics and Robert J. Smith Plumbing.

Besides having a fun day, the activities for the children, the greatest benefit was in getting to know some of our neighbors better or meeting them for the first time.

Bethlehem Cares raises $17K for diabetes research

Editor, The Spotlight:

For the eighth year in a row, the Bethlehem Cares team that participated in the recent Walk to Cure Diabetes was one of the top money raising community teams to take part in the event.

Our townwide team, which walked in the event sponsored by the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation Sept. 17 at Corporate Woods raised more than $17,000, and donations are still coming in.

Since our team was formed in 1999, it has raised nearly $170,000 for diabetes research.

Approximately 80 people from our community made up the Bethlehem Cares team and were part of a walkathon that raised over $500,000 for research to find a cure for diabetes and its complications.

The families of kids with diabetes who live in Bethlehem and who formed Bethlehem Cares are very thankful for the continued support of our community as we make strides toward a cure each year.

We would like to extend special thanks to everyone who came to the walk and to members of the business community for their wonderful support.

We would like to extend a special thank you to our presenting sponsor DeGraff, Foy, Kunz & Devine, LLP. We are also especially thankful to the Lab School and the Key Club at BCHS for their support.

If you were not able to join us on the day of the walk but would like to help find a cure for diabetes and its complications, it's not too late. Just mail your donation, made payable to the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, to 65 Boylston Drive, Delmar 12054.

Our team motto is "It takes the whole village to cure diabetes." Bethlehem and the Bethlehem Cares team proved — this year more than ever — that our whole village does care about helping other people who are in need.

Thanks for caring, Bethlehem.

Albany Symphony opens season on the road

By JAMIE D. GILKEY

The catchy tune "Hit the Road, Jack" isn't just an old Ray Charles favorite. It is also an apt description for the travel plans of the Albany Symphony Orchestra as they open their 76th season by performing at two of the best-known venues in Saratoga and Rensselaer counties.

Bringing their classical style to the intimate Canfield Casino on Thursday night and the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall on Friday evening, the region's largest orchestra is presenting pieces with the theme of "An Italian Sojourn". Leading the program are two concertos from Vivaldi's renowned "Four Seasons" highlighted by the beautiful use of stringed instruments to paint pictures for the imagination.

The Canfield Casino is a longtime venue for the Capital District's oldest symphony orchestra with the group having performed there more than a half-dozen times. The Troy Music Hall, reputed to have the best acoustics in the region for classical music, is also the scene of many past ASO appearances.

One of the Vivaldi pieces they are playing is "Autumn", a concerto which focuses on the plight of a drunken man. "Music was meant to evoke a great deal of drama and emotion during Vivaldi's time," said ASO conductor David Alan Miller. "It was meant to paint pictures in the mind of the listener. We had gotten away from that in modern times, but I think in recent years we have started to return to that more dramatic style."

"We know Vivaldi intended this because, as part of the score, he included notes in which he discusses what each piece represents," Miller said. "In 'Autumn' the violin represents a drunkard with all that goes with it and in 'Winter,' which is the other piece we are playing, Vivaldi meant to evoke a person attempting to walk very softly on the slippery ice that goes with the season."

"There are also sonnets or little poems that go at the beginning of the piece for each season and they play an important part in setting the scene," the conductor said.

Along with Vivaldi's well-known work, the ASO will present Mendelssohn's Symphony Number 4. Known as the "Italian," the striking symphony is legendary for having been subjected to immense rewriting by its composer as he sought to craft a piece with perfect sound. Listeners will also hear the United States premiere of Anonioni's "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra."

Lorenza Borrani will accompany the orchestra for the debut. "There are more creative challenges when you are introducing a piece to an audience for the first time," said Miller. "It's rather like midwifing it and bringing it into creation. It is very exciting."

The Albany Symphony Orchestra calls the Palace Theatre on lower Clinton Avenue in downtown Albany its home. Tickets to the Saratoga performance cost $24 and are available from the Saratoga Arts Council, the Palace Theatre Box Office or at the door on performance night. Tickets for the Friday evening concert in Troy can be purchased at the Music Hall's box office and cost from $21 to $42 depending on seating. For information contact the Palace Theatre Box Office at 465-4663.

County creates youth substance abuse program

By ROB IRWIN

In a step to combat underage drinking and drug use, Albany County and the St. Peter's Addiction Recovery Center (SPARC) have unveiled a new six-week program to prevent high-risk activity among youth.

Officials revealed their plans Thursday, Sept. 21, for the Youth Assistance Program, a collaboration between the Albany County Stop DWI program and SPARC.

Denis Foley and Debra Hendron came up with the program, described as "intervention through education," in response to underage drinking, drunk driving and drug use among young people. The goal of the program is to address a population of high school and college students between 15 and 22 years old who are identified as "at risk" by the courts or the community.

Weekly, 90-minute educational sessions will attempt to increase awareness of alcohol and drug abuse with an emphasis on treatment and developing participants' knowledge of the long-term consequences of abuse through instructional and hands-on learning experiences.

"We put our hearts and our minds together to come up with a program," said Hendron, who said that this is the time of year when youth typically began to drink and do drugs.

According to Foley, studies have shown that young people who drink heavily are disproportionate to others in their peer groups.

"We don't want to see these people graduate from heavy drinkers to ... drunk drivers," said Foley, who added that ideas for the sessions were taken from similar programs throughout the country. "We got what works, and we put it together."

Albany County Sheriff James Campbell said that the population in Albany County Jail, ranging between 800 and 900 inmates, is fifth in the state for county jail population, adding that about 150 inmates in the jail between the ages of 16 and 20 are there due to drug and alcohol related charges.

"Many of these people, if they had had a program like this, would not be in jail," said Campbell. "We look forward to this program, and I'm sure it's going to make a difference."

Denis Foley, right, announces the new Youth Assistance Program, a six-week, multi-media course to educate youth at risk for alcohol and drug abuse, run through St. Peter's Addiction Recovery Center. Foley developed the program along with Debra Hendron, left.

Recovering substance abuser and SPARC alumna, Jaime Chupka, said she might have benefited from such a program.

"If I had this program available to me 20 years ago, it would have saved me from 20 years of trauma," said Chupka. "If I had the education and awareness, it would have prevented this from happening."

Chupka said educating youth about the symptoms and risks of drug and alcohol abuse is an important step in preventing and diagnosing risky behaviors. "I didn't know how to stop," she said, adding she didn't think her behavior was problematic. "Everyone I hung out with did the same thing."

Her mother, Joyce Chupka, echoed her daughter's sentiments.

"If it was here 20 years ago, I wouldn't be standing here," she said. "I'm lucky my daughter's alive."

Participants will be referred by the community, various courts, and will be recommended if found guilty of DWI, possession of drugs and alcohol or found guilty of having a fake ID.

Legion concerts will entertain and help the community

By CATHERINE LUKE

Pull the dancing shoes out of the closet because Nite Train is coming to town. If you don't dance, you can just sway along to the rhythm on Friday, Sept. 29, from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post 1040 to benefit the Capital District Habitat for Humanity.

The concert is the first in a fall series hosted by the Sons of the American Legion Squad 1040 to benefit a different charity each month.

Local band promoter, Debbie VanWely of DAV Entertainment Productions, attended a concert during last spring's series.

"I was very impressed at how the town all came together to help support a wonderful cause," VanWely said.

As spring concert series earlier this year featured a variety of bands on the last Friday of March, April, May and June.

Steve Haggerty, executive director of the Capital District Habitat for Humanity and Legion member, said, "We've raised probably a couple thousand dollars for charities. We hope to match that."

The original intent of the series was to bring attention to the American Legion Post.

"We have taken it upon ourselves, if you will, to do what we can to spruce up the place. It is such a beautiful building," Haggerty said of the Poplar Drive building that is home to the organization.

The American Legion Post has held great meaning to many since its beginning as a social club for veterans after the world wars.

Time has worn on the post's building, causing it to require repairs and the upkeep of utilities.

"This is a viable civic organization at risk of having some private guy buy it up and make it a place where citizens won't benefit from its use," Haggerty said.

Nite Train is a blues, rhythm and blues, and classic rock band.

"They have always been amazing, however, they just added a full high-voltage horn section and will really get the crowd up on their feet," said VanWely.

The band has "a real history with helping out the Capital District Habitat for Humanity," said band member Ken Briggs.

Nite Train has played at Palace Challenge for two Rock2Rebuild concerts benefiting tsunami victims as well as Hurricane Katrina victims.

"We're very excited about the upcoming 'Park it at the Post' concert," Briggs said.

"This blues band will knock your socks off," promised Haggerty. Whether the socks stay on or off is one matter; the purpose of the concert is another. Proceeds from the evening will be donated to September's charity of choice, Habitat for Humanity.

The Capital District branch of Habitat for Humanity opened in 1988, a bountiful year for the organization. Within that year, 36 homes were built. At the present time, Habitat is building about five houses per year. Haggerty is hopeful that the pace is quickening and that Habitat will be producing about 10 houses a year by next year. "Habitat really relies on donated money, from the nail to the light switch," Haggerty said.

A great amount and variety of effort goes into the construction of each home. Haggerty explained that Habitat must act as a construction company, a bank (providing zero percent interest to homeowners), as well as a social service agency in that they must review situations and choose families to assist.

Concert schedule

• Friday, Sept. 29, 8 p.m. to midnight: Nite Train to benefit Habitat for Humanity

• Friday, Oct. 27, 8 p.m. to midnight: Element to benefit North Country Mission of Hope

• Friday, Nov. 17, 8 p.m. to midnight: Playin' With Fire to benefit The Kevin M. Shea Scholarship Fund

It is not always monetary donations that keep Habitat running. Often companies and individuals donate building supplies, which are not always able to fit together into particular homes. Fortunately, Habitat has developed a proactive approach to using what it is given by opening a store that sells donated materials to the public. There's lumber, chandeliers, lamps, kitchen and bathroom materials, tools, and other such goods—all for discounted prices.

"It's awesome. I'm so humbled everyday," Haggerty said. "All proceeds from the store go toward Habitat, benefiting both the customer and the charity."

"We're pleased to help raise money for these charities," Haggerty said about the upcoming musical events at the Legion Post.

For information, call 439-9819. The Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post 1040 is at 16 Poplar Drive, Delmar, just off Elsmere Avenue. The concert begins at 8 p.m. Friday.

Seamstress' story provides an intimate evening at Cap Rep

By W.K. AARON

Lynn Nottage's "Intimate Apparel" is Capital Repertory Theater's current play. It is layered with the same sensitivity and delicacy as the fine stitching and beautifully created fleurettes that adorn the delicate undergarments the protagonist creates.

The audience is introduced to 35-year-old Esther Mills, an African-American seamstress specializing in women's intimate apparel, in a setting meant to convey 1905 New York. Esther has lived in Mrs. Dickson's boarding house for 17 years.

Artistic Director Maggie Mancinelli-Cahill deftly guides the cast through this production. The many scenes flow seamlessly one to another, through the use of the bed placed center stage, both symbolically and actually. The large bed symbolizes much throughout the play, almost emerging as a character in and of itself. It is the center of many of the lives and dreams of the characters. A flip of the covers, the rotation of its placement and the audience is transported to another space. Costume Designer Joanne Haas and Lighting Designer Brian Lilienthal join Scenic Designer Roman Tatarowicz to create stunning visual imagery to add to the texture of the show.

Mrs. Van Buren (Yvonne Perry, right) helps Esther Mills (Rochelle Hogue, left) compose a letter to a Panama Canal worker with whom she corresponds.

The show centers on Esther's life and her sense that the world is passing her by. By 35, at the turn of the 20th century, Esther is probably doomed to life of spinsterhood. She begins a pen-pal relationship with George Armstrong (Maduka Steady), a worker on the Panama Canal.

The audience is also introduced to Mayme, beautifully portrayed by Tanesha Gary, the prostitute who happens to be Esther's closest friend and confidante; and Mrs. Van Buren, the uptown matron in an empty marriage who spends much of her time having Esther create beautiful lingerie. Perhaps that's in an effort to get Esther to spend time with her, giving her someone to confide in. Yvonne Perry is a fine Mrs. Van Buren, presenting a wonderful counterpoint to the concerned and sensitive Esther.

The final piece to the character puzzle is Mr. Marks, the Orthodox Jewish tradesman from whom Esther purchases her fine cloth and trimmings. Gregor Wynnyczuk captures the stiffness of an Orthodox man dealing with a woman in business, particularly when the hint of something "more forbidden" is in the air.

The production is remarkably well cast. Venida Evans' portrayal of Mrs. Dickson is strong and sensitive, and Steady's George Armstrong is believable and scary. Rochelle Hogue captures Esther, a woman mired in a life not necessarily of her own choosing, caught up in the time and the situations which life has presented, yet never giving up on her dreams. Each performer is given an opportunity to shine both through Nottage's fine script and Mancinelli-Cahill's direction.

The play is a wonderful look at life in the early 1900s and resonates a truthfulness that transcends color. It is a fine production of the vicissitudes that life puts before us.

"Intimate Apparel" shows just how far Nottage has grown since her more uneven earlier show, "Crumbs from the Table of Joy" produced several years ago at Cap Rep.

"Intimate Apparel" continues Tuesdays through Thursdays, at 7:30 p.m., Fridays at 8:00 p.m., Saturdays at 4 and 8:30, and Sundays at 2:30 p.m., now through Saturday, Oct. 14. Ticket prices range from $24 to $42. For information, visit the Web site at www.capitalrep.org or call the box office at 445-7469. Capital Repertory Theater is located at 111 N. Pearl St. in Albany.

'Hard Times' concludes Oldcastle season

By ARTHUR LENNING

At the Oldcastle Theatre Company in Bennington, Vt., comes the last of its season of plays, a dramatization of Charles Dickens' novel, Hard Times. Set in 1840, in a British industrial area named Coketown, it deals with a dry-as-dust pedagogue who believes only in narrow facts, a supposedly self-made pompous industrialist, a wastrel brother, a self-sacrificing daughter, and a host of other characters all immersed in an intricate Dickens plot. A long show — with one intermission — it lasts a little over two and one half hours, but it never feels too long.

The many roles — about 29 — are all interpreted by four actors who, through slight costume changes, physical mannerisms, and variations in speech, make each of the characters vibrantly convincing. They are portrayed by Richard Howe, Patrick Ellison Shea, Katrina Ferguson and Natalie Wilder. Wilder is particularly outstanding in her diverse characterizations, ranging from a simple, sweet girl to a pinched old busybody.

The play deals with the social issues that so often engaged Dickens' conscience—the intolerance of the schooling methods of the time, the pollution of the once-pristine countryside, the conflicts between management and workers, the self-sacrifice of the heroine who marries without love to aid her spendthrift brother and the loyalty of friends. All these facets are enfolded into an intricate plot that propels the story and makes it always compelling. The language, reminiscent of Dickens' occasionally orotund phrasing, lends the dialogue a peculiar charm.

The set is simple but functional, a series of steps and platforms that suggest the various locales — a parlor, a street, a mineshaft, and even a circus. In the background, stylized industrial construction is suggested and beyond that are symbolic chimneys occasionally spewing forth fire and smoke.

But what makes it all worthwhile is the superb acting that makes all the diverse characters cohere in what can well be summed up as an engaging theatrical event blending comedy, serious drama, and suspense. The play will be appearing until Sunday, Oct. 8. The Oldcastle Theatre Company is located at 44 Gypsy Lane in Bennington, just off Route 9. The box office can be reached at (802) 447-0564.

A CHILD'S MOVING EXPERIENCE

While parents may be risk takers, children thrive on familiarity and routine. They are also overwhelmingly affected by their parent's attitudes in times of transition and depend on them for reassurance. Thus, it is important for parents to prepare their children for a move by talking about it early and often. Provide children with as much information as possible, as far in advance as possible. Involving children in the planning and decision making, to an age-appropriate extent, can help children feel that the move is something in which they are participating rather than something that is being thrust upon them.

As your realtor, I will help ease the transition. I will make sure the entire family is familiar with the neighborhood, schools, library, parks and children's programs.

Remember, I have been a resident of the capital district for 25 years and will be your area resource...even long after the move!!

Slingerlands man receives Giuliani leadership award

State Budget Director John F. Cape received the sixth annual 2006 Rudolph W. Giuliani Leadership Award.

The Rudolph W. Giuliani Leadership Award was established in 2001 to recognize outstanding public sector executives from government organizations in the state who have demonstrated exemplary leadership in building strong alliances, fostering the development of new leaders within government and effectively managing crises.

Annual recipients of this award are leaders of their respective organizations; have accumulated many years of public service; are able to communicate visions of the future that staffs embrace; their opinions are sought after and respected by others; and all past winners have the gifts of commitment and persistence. They navigate around, over or through the inevitable rough spots and reversals until their goals are achieved.

Cape, a Slingerlands resident, has worked in state government for 34 years, 27 of them with the state Division of the Budget. He first worked for the state as a public management intern with the Department of State in 1973, joined DOB in 1980, and was named the division's director by Gov. George E. Pataki in early 2005.

Cape has also received the Charles Evans Hughes award from the American Society for Public Administration. He has been elected a Fellow of the State Academy for Public Administration. He holds a bachelor's degree in economics from the State University of New York.

Past recipients of this prestigious award include Rudolph Giuliani, former mayor of New York City; Arthur Roth, state Department of Taxation and Finance; Gino Menchini, former commissioner, New York City Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications; Chauncey Parker, state Division of Criminal Justice Services and Sharon Dawes, director, SUNY-Albany Center for Technology in Government.

Senior services seeks leadership volunteers

Senior Services of Albany's senior leadership volunteer program, SmartWorks, has open-ings available in the upcoming senior leadership training program. This training, the first of its kind, is scheduled to begin Oct. 2.

SmartWorks is an innovative program that seeks to harness the expertise of 50+ retired, or soon to retire, professionals who are looking for meaningful, fulfilling volunteer opportunities. SmartWorks will match these volunteers with local nonprofit organizations that have submitted specific projects requiring professional expertise and experience.

Currently, SmartWorks has more than 30 projects that range from writing marketing plans to developing Web sites to creating comprehensive training programs. There are also several opportunities in tutoring, database management, volunteer recruitment and human resources. Training will focus on the culture of the nonprofit, key issues affecting nonprofits, and site visits to several organizations. Volunteers will select an appropriate project, meet with the organization, and discuss the match. Projects are scheduled to begin in November.

Training begins Friday, Oct. 2, 8:30 a.m. at the Crossings in Colonie and meets Oct. 4, 11, 17 and 18. Registration is required.

Become a SmartWorks volunteer today by calling SmartWorks at 472-2714.

High-speed Internet at dial-up prices.

(Isn't it time you ditched dial-up?)

Get high-speed Verizon Online DSL (up to 768 Kbps) for just $17.99 a month when you sign up for a year. Now that's really something. Especially when you're probably paying about the same for your dial-up. And forget about cable — it's usually way more.

- Click and connect to the Web in an instant. No more waiting to dial in.
- Talk on the phone and surf the Net at the same time, on the same phone line.

- Download large files in the time it takes you to tie your shoes.

Finally, you'll be able to do everything you can't with dial-up — for about the same price. When can you do so much for so little, why wait?

Call 1-800-504-7668 to sign up. And you'll even get a modem at no charge if you sign up online. As you can see, there's never been a better time to get rid of dial-up.

AS LEAVES FALL, HEATING BILLS RISE

SIMPLE ADJUSTMENTS CAN SAVE ENERGY AND PREPARE YOUR HOME FOR THE WINTER COLD

Albany, NY — Many homeowners are winterizing their homes this fall, looking for ways to avoid the high heating costs of last year. With the help of New York Energy Smart<sup>SM</sup> programs, New Yorkers can save energy around their homes by making deliberate choices to use energy wisely. In addition to saving money, these individuals help the environment — the less electricity produced by power plants, the fewer greenhouse gases that are released into the air.

With increases in both the price of electricity and heating fuel, consumers often concede to paying more to stay comfortable. What most people don't realize is how often higher energy bills can be traced to simple home improvement challenges, like leaky windows and doors, or poor insulation. While it's not always easy to pinpoint the problem, taking time to find it and fix it can make your home more energy-efficient and comfortable.

- Replace your five most used light bulbs with ENERGY STAR® compact fluorescent bulbs. They use two-thirds less energy than standard incandescent lighting, while providing more light. This will save you more than $50 a year on your electricity costs and the bulbs last up to 10 times longer than regular incandescent bulbs.

- Have your heating and cooling equipment serviced annually and remember to replace air filters regularly.

- Use a programmable thermostat and lower your thermostat when you are not at home and at night.

- Use your kitchen and bathroom exhaust fans sparingly. In just one hour they can remove a houseful of warm air.

- Insulate your home, particularly in the attic. Not only is this spot usually the easiest to insulate, but it is also where you will see the greatest energy-saving benefit.

- Turn down the temperature on your water heater to 120 degrees F.

Look for the ENERGY STAR label on products when buying new appliances and various electronics. Whether you're in the market for a clothes washer, refrigerator, or other home appliance, make sure it has the ENERGY STAR label.

Check your home's performance. Developed under the New York Energy Smart<sup>SM</sup> Program, Home Performance with ENERGY STAR helps you find a participating Building Performance Institute (BPI) Accredited Home Performance Contractor to inspect your home and provide recommendations for energy improvements — they can even do the work. These contractors will use diagnostic equipment to evaluate the performance of your home and generate a customized list of improvements that may include sealing air leaks, adding insulation or sealing duct leaks.

Why should New Yorkers care about home performance?

Energy efficiency improvements can enhance the quality, comfort, and safety of your home, not to mention save money on energy bills.

Whether your home is old or new, it could be wasting up to 40 percent on energy costs due to inefficient heating and cooling systems, poor insulation, and air leaks through cracks and gaps in the attic, basement, plumbing fixtures and duct systems.

Many homes have rooms that are too hot or cold, or have drafts, poor indoor air quality, and ice build-up on the roof that can cause structural damage. These may be common signs that the house is not sealed, ventilated, insulated or heated properly.

A Comprehensive Home Assessment will be conducted by a BPI Accredited Home Performance Contractor. The contractor will evaluate the home and make recommendations on ways to save energy and improve comfort. They also perform safety checks to make sure there is no carbon monoxide build-up from heating systems and appliances. The program even offers a number of financing options to help pay for making the improvements.

For more information on other energy efficiency programs and money-saving tips during the upcoming winter months, visit www.GetEnergySmart.org or call toll-free 1-877-NY-SMART (1-877-697-6278).

"I THOUGHT IF YOU HAD AN OLDER HOME, THERE WAS NO WAY YOU COULD REDUCE YOUR ENERGY COSTS."

Boy, was I wrong."

"We have now reduced our energy use by 40%!"

—DEBBIE MARCHELONE, NORTH SYRACUSE, NY

When you have your home performance tested by a contractor certified by the Building Performance Institute (BPI), you get an expert assessment using the latest diagnostic equipment. BPI-certified contractors show you where improvements can be made, how much you can save on energy costs, and then do all the work.

Call Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® to get your comprehensive home assessment. We can even offer you ways to help pay for making the improvements so you can start saving energy this year.

Students protest high school's hat policy

By JIM CUOZZO

A large group of Bethlehem High School students presented a unified front at a meeting of the school board in their objection to a series of policy changes this fall, including a hike in school lunch prices, and a new code of conduct that prohibits students from wearing hats inside the school.

National Merit Scholarship semifinalist and high school senior Binijuktya Sen presented the board with a petition signed by more than 800 students protesting the school's new hat policy.

"Students are upset," said Sen. "It took just one day to get these signatures."

Superintendent Les Loomis said common courtesy and concerns about students showing off official "gang-related" hats were the two prime reasons for the change in the high school code.

"Sometimes there is the potential for official gang colors to be worn," said Loomis.

The suggestion was received with some jeers and disbelief by the students, but Loomis said the concern is real.

"You may not be aware of it, but we administrators have met with Bethlehem police and this is becoming a potential problem," said Loomis, referring to recent gang activity not only in urban schools but also many suburban schools, including Bethlehem.

Students at the meeting told The Spotlight that they are not aware of any gangs at Bethlehem High School except for a small group of the students who wear red.

Les Loomis

"There are no gangs," said Sen and several other students after the meeting.

Bethlehem police Lt. Thomas Heffernan did confirm that a meeting was held in the spring with district officials to discuss the possibility of gangs forming in the school.

"We found indicators of gang-related apparel after a walk-through of the school," said Heffernan.

The walk-through occurred with school resource officers and Cook Barrett, a gang prevention specialist with the Capital Region Gang Prevention Center based in Albany. Gang-related apparel such as hats, beads, T-shirts and even shoelaces were observed by Barrett at the high school.

One student said that just because a student takes off his or her hat does not necessarily mean that he or she does not participate in gang-related activity.

According to several students, the new policy, as it is being enforced, requires them to take off their hats as soon as they walk inside the school. If the hat is not taken off, a hall monitor confiscates the hat, and it is returned at the end of the day.

The new "hats off" policy has created enough disruption that Loomis and high school principal Chuck Abba have already met with Sen and other students to discuss possible modifications.

"Clearly it is an issue you have raised with the school board," said Loomis to about 60 students in attendance. The new policy will be a topic of discussion for the members representing the student government.

Assistant Superintendent Michael Tebbano said coming up with the district's new code of conduct policy was an arduous task with all segments of the district community participating, including student government.

Owens

good corporate citizens."

DeLaney said many employees from both companies have served and are currently serving on several key committees of the local chamber.

"They just quietly exist as great neighbors, citizens and corporate partners," said DeLaney.

Town of Bethlehem Supervisor Theresa Egan said Owens

Corning has been a good citizen and good taxpayer to the town over many years.

"For 30 years, since they've been here, they have been incredibly cooperative with the town and their neighbors," Egan said.

Toledo, Ohio, is the main headquarters for Owens Corning. They employ more than 20,000 people throughout the world. They may be best known for the Pink Panther cartoon character of the '60s that promotes most, if not all, advertising for the company.

"A lot of discussion went in to the code of conduct and to have consistency between the middle school and high school," Tebbano said.

The district's middle school has been enforcing a "hats off" policy for several years.

"Where does freedom of expression fit in?" asked one student.

"The school has a right to set rules so nothing is disruptive to the educational process," said Loomis.

Another student asked why they can't wear stereo headphones inside the school cafeteria.

"We are not interested in revisiting that," said Loomis. "Headphones are out."

The discussion meandered to the escalating price of school lunches at the high school. A meal consisting of beverage, fruit and sandwich or slice of pizza is now $2.50. Apples are 80 cents, and the price of milk went up as well.

Talks

include district cost savings in health insurance, with teachers contributing up to 10 percent more over a three-year period. Teachers will also pay more for regular doctor visits and prescription drugs through their co-pay contributions.

"This contract balances the need to keep our budget increase reasonable," said Loomis.

Another new clause in the approved contract calls for the school year to start one day earlier next year for middle and high school students. In 2008, elementary students will also begin the school year on the Wednesday following Labor Day.

"These negotiations take time," said board member James Lytle.

Voters in the Bethlehem School District rejected their first school budget in more than 20 years in May. Loomis said the budget vote did have an impact on teacher negotiations districtwide.

"It put negotiations on hold temporarily," said Loomis. "The board was not willing to go forward until they knew what the district's financial status was."

"You have to buy two lunches to fill yourself," said student Brittany Bartholomew.

"Is there a general agreement that you perceive the school lunch prices are a change for the worse," asked Lyman, new school board president.

"Yes," shouted back students.

Assistant Superintendent Steve O'Shea explained that a new policy from the State Comptroller's office mandates every school district to have a self-funded school lunch program. Loomis added that school lunch prices at the high school have not increased in eight years. Lyman asked students to help the board come up with a solution for a healthy and cost-effective lunch. Tim Cook is the current district food service director.

"We will be happy to meet with Mr. Cook and student representatives to work this out," said Loomis.

Now that the teachers' contract has been ratified, the board is looking forward to working with other groups in the district to come up with a contract that serves the district, taxpayers and school employees. These groups include the Bethlehem Central United Employees Association

"We all have a big job ahead of us, and having that relationship on solid ground is a significant step."

Stuart Lyman

and the Bethlehem Principals Association. The BCUEA are in the second year of a three-year contract. The BPA group opened the school year without a contract.

"We certainly will be reaching out to our other support unions on our health insurance concerns and other cost-saving measures," said board member Richard Svenson.

Loomis and the board gave special mention to teachers association president Dave Rounds and his team for their negotiation efforts.

"It was a very positive relationship," said Loomis. "We can move ahead and concentrate on education here."

Speaker will focus on issues of counter-terrorism in cities

Aspects of national security will be addressed in a discussion called Counter-Terrorism Issues: Major Cities at Risk with Brian Nussbaum Tuesday, Oct. 3, at 7 p.m. Nussbaum will talk about New York and London, two major cities with uniquely high levels of threat, and the specific tactics they use to deal with the threat of terrorism. The topic is focused on the most practical day-to-day counter-terrorism issues employed by the NYPD and London Metropolitan Police. There will be an opportunity for questions and discussion. Nussbaum is a doctoral candidate at SUNY Albany who majored in political science at the Rockefeller School and is currently working as a project assistant for the Homeland Security department.

Library takes pride in community and staff

The following is a reprint of the narrative portion of Bethlehem Public Library's annual report to the Upper Hudson Library System for calendar year 2005, published by UHLS in July. It serves as a reminder of our past accomplishments and our ongoing mission on behalf of the community.

We're very proud this year. We're proud of our enhanced library grounds. Our buy-a-bench campaign yielded 19 benches given by Bethlehem families and businesses. The benches complemented the work of many volunteer gardeners, who planned and planted new and beautiful flowerbeds.

We're proud of our technological improvements, which included wireless access in the library proper (extended to our meeting rooms in early 2006), initiation of downloadable audiobook service, and redesign of our Web site by library staff.

We're proud of Computer Partners, a new service launched this year. Designed and managed by computer services staff, the program pairs adult learners with volunteer tutors for one-on-one instruction in computer basics. The response has been phenomenal.

We're proud to have presented best-selling author Chris Bohjalian, who read from his latest novel and talked to a capacity crowd of 200.

We're proud of our outreach to the Good Samaritan health care facilities. Funded by a UHLS minigrant, this innovative program brings books, media and discussion to Good Samaritan residents. The program reconnects these people to the community and the library they love.

We're proud of our interaction with the Bethlehem schools, in the form of skits and storytimes at the elementary schools, annual information table and library card signup at the high school, and regular visits to the middle school media center.

We're proud of our staff, which makes all this possible, and we're proud of our community, which inspires us to keep raising the bar on quality service.

decision application, mock college interviews and Q&A are featured.

For high school students and their parents or guardians. Rifkin is founder of College Options in Delmar.

Book discussions

On Monday, Oct. 16, at 7 p.m., the library's mother-daughter book group will talk about "The Breadwinner" by Deborah Ellis. The story is set in Afghanistan during Taliban rule, where a 12-year-old girl disguises herself as a boy in order to find work. For girls in grade 5 and up with their mothers/caregivers; new members welcome. Copies available at the youth services desk. Call 439-9314 to register.

•Also on Monday, Oct. 16 at 1:30 p.m., Daybooks will discuss "A Little Love Story" by Roland Merullo. Booklist praised the author as powerfully revealing "the resiliency and fragility of life and love."

•On Wednesday, Oct. 18, at 7 p.m., AfterDinner Books will discuss "War Is a Force that Gives Us Meaning" by Chris Hedges. Hedges draws from literature and his experiences as a journalist in Bosnia, El Salvador and Israel to examine the intoxication of war. The author received the 2002 Amnesty International Global Award for Human Rights Journalism.

Copies for the adult discussions are available at the information desk. New members are welcome. Books under discussion are sometimes available in large print or recorded format; call 439-9314 for information.

Sleepy Hollow

The professional puppeteers of The PuppeTree will present The Legend of Sleepy Hollow Sunday, Oct. 22, at 2 p.m. with more than 100 shadow puppets designed by PuppeTree founder and artistic director Ann LeGunn. Narration by Neal Meglathery of The Parish Players is taken directly from Washington Irving's text. The performance will appeal to all ages. After the show, the puppeteers will lift the shadow screens and demonstrate their art.

The PuppeTree is a theater workshop and puppet company based in Thetford, Vt. This performance is made possible by the generosity of Bethlehem Senior Projects, Inc. and Friends of Bethlehem Public Library.

Photograph nature

Professional photographer Gerry Lemmo will present his slide show "Adirondack Mammals — from mice to moose" at the library on Friday, Oct. 20, at 2 p.m. Lemmo's photographs and articles appear regularly in "Adirondack Life Magazine." He also has photo credits with "National Geographic World," Audubon, "Natural History Magazine," Birds and Blooms, and others. He has photographed on five continents, capturing the denizens of habitats from Alaska and Canada to Africa and the Amazon. The program is sponsored by Bethlehem Senior Projects, and is free and open to the public.

Free career counseling

The library offers free career and education advisement for adults. Appointments available days and evenings; call 439-9314.

Louise Grieco

• All library programming is free and open to the public. The Bethlehem Public Library is located at 451 Delaware Ave., Delmar. For information, call 439-9314.

Delmar resident new Red Cross chief

By JIM CUOZZO

A Delmar resident has been named the new CEO of the American Red Cross of Northeastern New York.

Gary Striar, the former State relations director for Red Cross will now be in charge of an eight-county region spanning Columbia County to Montgomery County.

"His excellent working relationship with chapters across the state and his familiarity with the Capital Region make him uniquely qualified to take on the challenges of Chapter leadership immediately," said Barbara Leonard, chapter chairperson.

"The chapter I am now administering has over 860,000 residents, and our primary focus is assisting when there is a local disaster," said Striar.

Residential fires were the No. 1 cause of local disasters the area Red Cross chapter provided relief for.

"Last year, we responded to 160 disasters," said Striar. "When there is a fire, we are on the scene providing shelter, food, clothing and other help to people."

Preparation and alert trained personnel are keys to the Red Cross's success over the years. Striar said 130 families who were victims of Hurricane Katrina showed up in this area last year, and the Red Cross responded to their needs.

"Some arrived on a bus with just what they had on their back," said Striar. "A lot of them just needed a place to stay."

The Northeast Red Cross chapter sent more than 100 volunteers down to New Orleans to work with the Red Cross in Louisiana. Closer to home, the Red Cross saves lives with new and traditional programs everyone can take part in, including the ever-important blood drives.

"We go out to many businesses directly now and set up shop and organize a blood drive," Striar said.

All of the blood transfused in area hospitals comes from volunteer blood donors who give through the American Red Cross.

CPR (Cardiac Pulmonary Training) and AED (Automated External Defibrillation) are two growing training programs people are requesting.

"Our defibrillation program has gotten to be a big program over the years, and we provide a lot of that training," Striar said.

Encouraging people to develop a family disaster plan has taken on a heightened awareness since 9/11 and Hurricane Katrina.

"There's a lot of demand for basic preparedness training, and we are looking to find groups we can partner with," said Striar.

The family disaster plan teaches people how to stay safe and how to survive a fire or other disaster. It also serves as a reminder to keep vital records and documents in one safe place to access at a moment's notice if disaster strikes.

Not many natural disasters occur in Striar's home community of Delmar. A road did collapse a few years ago, and the Red Cross was there to help. People who lost many of their possessions in the floods that ravaged Montgomery County were also assisted by Red Cross staff and volunteers.

"People in Montgomery County were shocked and didn't know where to turn," said Striar.

Moving forward in the next year and making people aware of what the Red Cross offers are Striar's two main objectives.

"We need to tell the public what we are doing and to move the community preparedness program up to a much bigger level in the community, Striar said.

The Red Cross of Northeastern New York will present a new preparedness program Wednesday, Oct. 4, called "Get Ready — Be Safe" at 9 a.m. at the Joseph E. Zaluga American Legion Post on Everett Road. The program will help families, businesses, schools and organizations prepare for an emergency.

For information or to register, contact Linda Tourtellot at 458-8111, ext. 3003.

IN BRIEF

Delmar native earns Bronze Star

Major Douglas Welt, formerly of Delmar, son of Barbara Welt of Warwick, R.I. and the late Dixon Welt, currently serving in his second deployment with the Marines in Iraq, was recently awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious achievement in connection with combat operations in Fallujah.

Welt is based at Twentynine Palms, Calif. with the 2nd Battalion, 7th Marines and has served with the USMC for 14 years, with deployments to Somalia, Okinawa and the Middle East, including Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf states.

Button Club to meet at library

The Halfmoon Button Club of the Capital District will hold its next meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 11 at 11 a.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library in Delmar.

There will be a brown bag lunch at noon and other refreshments by hostess Phyllis Dunn. A business meeting will follow and a program on "Buying Modern European Buttons" will be presented by Kathy Arbogaste. The public is invited to attend.

Beer

In the next few weeks, Olde Saratoga will be adding to its base staff of 20 people and adding a second shift. They recently installed two $100,000 new tanks that will boost production to more than 15,000 gallons of beer every three days. It's the first capital improvement in five years since ownership changed hands. Craven said he hopes it will handle the brewery's recent growth, as much as 20 percent in a year.

Craven has been at Saratoga, off and on, since the brewery's beginnings in 1995.

It was then the out-of-work mechanical engineer and home brew enthusiast suddenly found himself running a brewery. Back then the North Country Brewery, which would later become Olde Saratoga, was one in a series of breweries owned in part by an Oregon capitalist, whose plan was to establish small breweries throughout the country to brew craft beers.

The plan fell through, and the Saratoga brewery served to sweeten a corporate deal between California-based beer gurus Mendocino Brewing Company and India-based United Breweries Group, one of the world's largest spirit manufacturers.

As the microbrew craze gained momentum, Saratoga became the staging ground for the East Coast production of Mendocino's beers and the North American brewer of Kingfisher beer, India's premiere lager. Olde Saratoga has since gone on to brew as many as 40 different beers for multiple clients.

The rest is history, said Craven, over a double India Pale Ale brewed several weeks ago.

Most of the staff enjoys the full-bodied "hoppy" beers Mendocino and Olde Saratoga are known for. On average, their beers are double in alcohol percent by volume of commercially brewed beers — if you can even call some of them beers, Craven jokes.

Over the past couple of years Craven has teamed up with his fellow beer enthusiasts and Olde Saratoga head brewer, Paul McErlean, to come up with the award-winning beers of its California subsidiary. However, in their free time, they brew up their own concoctions like the double IPA or Saratoga Lager. Some have won awards and others are gems among the local guzzlers at the brewery's taproom. Even the taproom is bustling with success, generating upwards of $120,000 in pint, shirt and keg sales, said Craven.

For a mechanical engineer who loves beer, the brewery's success is a dream come true.

Olde Saratoga and its work force have come together through circumstance and the simple love of beer. But it's that love of beer that has led to success for the small, but ever-growing business.

Most brewers like Craven, stumble into the business. And as expansion continues, there is no shortage of experienced workers or fellow beer lovers that are just looking for something new.

"It's normally a path you're sent down. For me, I worked in the finance world. I have a four-year degree from the University of Florida. I was looking for a transition," said Darren Quinlan,

30. Quinlan and his wife recently moved to the area from Atlanta, Ga., where he worked at another brewery similar in size to Olde Saratoga.

He started working at Saratoga at the beginning of the year. He does marketing on weekends in his spare time for the brewery outside the 50-to-60-hour weeks he and his fellow brew masters routinely clock. They don't seem to mind it, especially after a couple of beers.

At the end of each day, McErlean, head brewer Chris Dorn, Quinlan and Craven make their way to Olde Saratoga Brewing Company's tap room in the lower level of the building. The bartender, "Dan the Man," pours pints for locals and workers. And together, aspiring and professional zymurgists share their secrets, and cheers to the future of beer; a future that recently got a push from state lawmakers.

Recently legislators launched the Empire Brewery Trail. More information can be found at the Web site www.thinknydrinkny.com. The trail earmarks breweries, including Olde Saratoga, throughout the state, from New York City to Lake Placid and beyond, tracing the state's rich beer heritage. That heritage began with Peter Minuit, who in 1632 established the Dutch West India Company's public brewery in Manhattan.

It was the country's first public beer brewery.

Craven, McErlean and fellow brewers are the latest in a long line of New York's brewers. As they sip on their pints, they wonder what beer to make next, what contest to enter and whether they will be the next stop for someone traveling the state's beer trail.

State

for 49,880 jobs in New York and adds $3.96 million to the state's economy.

"This study demonstrates that the beer industry is more than just those who make and distribute our products," said Jeff Becker, president of the Beer Institute. "We are an industry of farmers, can manufacturers, truck drivers, retailers and many others located in virtually every state and local community across the country. These hard-working men and women place tremendous pride in delivering the quality products and services enjoyed by millions of responsible adults every day."

According the industry-sponsored report, there are 111 brewers in the Empire State, 69 wholesalers, and a whopping 44,104 retailers.

In addition to the 50,000 jobs directly tied to beer, industry representatives explain that many more jobs are created in other industries that benefit from the beer industry.

The agriculture industry benefits from demand for products like barley and hops that are used as ingredients in beer.

Construction and real-estate concerns benefit from new brewery or retail outlets, as do transportation companies that deliver beer from breweries to wholesalers and then to retailers.

Travel and entertainment also benefit from people who opt for venues that serve or allow beer consumption.

The beer survey indicates that when supplier and other tangential business impact is added, beer accounts for 94,169 jobs and $9.6 million dollars in New York economic activity. That business generates $1.3 million in business taxes, and consumers add another $456,000 in consumption taxes.

"The independent family businesses that distribute beer to retailers large and small are doing their part to keep America's economy strong. These families have been ingrained in their communities for generations and support the local economy, including creating jobs for their neighbors," said Craig Purser, president of the National Beer Wholesalers Association. "This is an industry that prides itself on providing good-paying jobs and quality benefits for its employees."

Or, as Homer Simpson so eloquently puts it: "Mmmm, beer."

By TONY GRAY

New York's oldest historical district, Schenectady's Stockade, will be a busy place next weekend during its 47th annual Walkabout, which features tours of area homes dating back to the 1690s.

Some of the homes in the historic Stockade District are restored to the time period during which they were originally constructed, while others have some unique personal touches added to them over the years, according to Gail Kehn, vice president of visitor services for the Schenectady County Chamber of Commerce.

"It really is a lot of fun, and it's something that people of all ages can enjoy," Kehn said, noting that the daylong event incorporates much more than the approximately 20 public and private buildings opened for history buffs.

Kehn said there will be music in the street, carriage rides,

Stockade District celebrates history with a walking tour

historical characters dressed in period attire wandering about or conducting tours, and entertainment, such as a children's fun zone and Colonial artisans and demonstrations in Riverfront Park, which is adjacent to the Stockade.

Advance tickets for the Walkabout and waterfront fair are available for $15 ($7 for children); they will cost $20 if purchased the day of the event. The Walkabout and fair begin at 11 a.m. and last until 5 p.m.

Visitors can park in the Schenectady County Community College parking lot and take the trolley making regular round trips to the Stockade, or walk the short distance to the historic district.

Any money left over after paying expenses for hosting the event goes to the three sponsors of the Walkabout: the Downtown Schenectady Improvement Corp., the Schenectady Historical Society and the Stockade Association.

"The event doesn't make a lot of money, but the money that it does make goes back into the community," Kehn said. She said that the Stockade Association and Historical Society usually use any money they receive for improvements to the Stockade.

Visitors who purchase house tour tickets will also be able to watch the parade of boats from Schenectady Yacht Club and other area marinas, tour the original Erie Canal site, take a historic boat ride, visit an archaeological dig at an historic house garden, and take a trolley ride. Among the Colonial artists in the park will be a blacksmith or broom maker.

The four Stockade restaurants will be serving food along the waterfront, as will a number of street vendors.

"It's a real fun event," Kehn said. "It is. If you're at all into history, you'll enjoy it."

The Stockade Walkabout will take place between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. For information, call 377-9430, or visit www.historicstockade.com. You can download a brochure from www.historicstockade.com.

The Stockade is north of downtown, along the Mohawk River.

Public Notice of Hearing The Town of New Scotland Planning Board Notice is hereby given that the Planning Board of Town of New Scotland, New York will hold a public hearing pursuant to Article III, Section 164-21 of the Subdivision Law on the following proposition: A Public Hearing for Subdivision # 311. Subdivision Application # 311. Modified Final Plat application submitted by Francis Bossolini on behalf of Jeremiah Manning. Application is for the division of a 13.9 +/- acres parcel into four lots, ranging in acreage from 2+/- acres to 3+/- acres. The footprints of the lots have been reconfigured to reflect a necessary new lot layout due to the availability of, and providing for, on lot water and sewer facilities. Water and sewer are proposed to be provided on site by individual wells and septic systems. The site is located at the intersection of Font Grove and Krumkill Roads, lies within the R2 District, and is identified as New Scotland tax parcel # 62-4-18.51. Said hearing will take place on October 3, 2006 at the New Scotland Town Hall beginning at 7:00 P.M. Robert Stapf

Saratoga edges Bethlehem

The Bethlehem boys soccer team suffered its first Suburban Council loss of the season Monday with a 2-1 setback against Saratoga.

Kyle Toyama scored from 25 yards out midway through the first half to give the Blue Streaks a 1-0 lead. Two minutes later, Toyama passed the ball ahead to Jonathan Rosebrook, who shot it past Jason Daniels for a two-goal lead.

Darko Knezevic scored on a penalty kick with less than five minutes left in the first half to get Bethlehem on the board, but the Saratoga defense shut the Eagles down in the second half to seal the victory.

Daniels stopped four shots, while Saratoga's Warren Gross made six saves.

Bethlehem entered the game off a 1-0-1 week that included a 1-1 tie with defending state champion Shenendehowa last Tuesday and a 1-0 win against Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake last Thursday.

Shen grabbed a 1-0 lead on T.J. Popolizio's second half goal, but Bill Barrowman headed in a Josh Wing free kick to tie the game for the Eagles.

Daniels made eight saves to help Bethlehem escape its road trip to Clifton Park with a tie. Kyle Boni and Ryan Jones combined for four saves in Shen's goal.

Patrick Meany scored the lone goal of last Thursday's game against Burnt Hills in the first half.

Daniels needed only three saves for the shutout.

Bethlehem hosts Niskayuna Wednesday before traveling to Columbia Friday.

BCAA slates fund-raiser for unfunded sports teams

The Bethlehem Central Athletic Association is holding a fund-raiser Oct. 8 for three high school teams — hockey, gymnastics and cheerleading — that were cut from this year's school budget and other athletic programs whose services have been reduced.

Called Eagles Fly, the event is a walk-a-thon at the Bethlehem Central High School track. For a donation, people can walk a lap around the track.

The event goes from 2 to 6 p.m. rain or shine. There will also be music provided by local bands.

Those who can't attend the event can still make a donation by writing checks made out to BCAA - Eagles Fly and mailing them to BCAA - Eagles Fly, Attn. Jeff Wendth, treasurer, P.O. Box 332, Delmar 12054.

BC girls get on winning track

By ROB JONAS

After a slow start, the Bethlehem girls soccer team is playing like the club that has challenged for the last four Section II, Class AA titles.

The Lady Eagles pulled out a 2-1 victory over Shaker last Wednesday and then defeated Saratoga 3-0 last Friday to extend their Suburban Council winning streak to three games.

"We're coming along," said Bethlehem coach Tom Rogan. "We're a very young team with a big learning curve, but the girls are heading in the right direction."

Rogan said the breakthrough for his Lady Eagles (3-1-2 league, 3-1-3 overall) was a 12-0 victory over Mohonasen last Monday in which three players scored at least two goals. Laura Boucher led the way with four goals and two assists, while Kaitlyn Martin and Kate Halvorsen each contributed two goals. Megan Olsen added four assists.

"It was nice to get an easier game under our belts," said Rogan. "All our other games leading up to that were hard."

Boucher has been one of the most consistent goal scorers in the Suburban Council over the last week. Besides her four-goal effort against Mohonasen, Boucher tallied in Bethlehem's 2-1 victory over Shaker and had the first of her team's three goals in last Friday's win against Saratoga.

Boucher has been getting help up front, too. Olsen and Halvorsen each scored goals in the Saratoga game, and Tee Ladouceur had the eventual game winner against Shaker.

"Different people are going to have to contribute for us, and Tee Ladouceur has done a good job of scoring goals," said Rogan. "Kate Halvorsen and Kaitlyn Martin have also done a good job of creating (scoring) opportunities."

The defense is also pitching in for Bethlehem. Sophomore Kiersten Swete has played well in goal, and Rogan said Bethlehem's revamped defense is improving.

"We're starting three new defenders, and it's taken some time for them to come together. But they're doing a better job," he said.

The Lady Eagles have several league tests coming up the second half of the season, including back-to-back games against Shenendehowa and Niskayuna to close out the regular season in mid October. Bethlehem's lone loss entering Tuesday's game against Niskayuna was a 5-1 setback against defending Sectional champion Shen Sept. 14. The Lady Eagles' ties have come against Burnt Hills, Columbia and Washingtonville.

"There's a lot of parity in our league, and there are going to be a lot of close games," said Rogan.

Following Tuesday's game against Niskayuna, Bethlehem travels to Colonie Thursday before hosting Guilderland Oct. 4.

Eagles

and Matt June pounced on the ball in the end zone for six points.

The Eagles scored in the fourth quarter on a 16-yard run by Pauquette, but Colonie's Justin McNeal had the last touchdown with a 9-yard run.

In addition to Furbeck's 225-yard night, Colonie received contributions from Duff and Poletto. Duff completed four passes for 89 yards, while Poletto carried the ball seven times for 49 yards.

Plummer threw for 42 yards and rushed for 20 yards to lead the Bethlehem offense.

Colonie plays Columbia Friday, while Bethlehem hosts Albany.

Indians, Blackbirds fall

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk and Voorheesville suffered their first losses of the season last weekend.

The RCS Indians lost their first regular season game in three years when they fell to the Hudson Bluehawks 14-7 last Friday, while Voorheesville suffered a 27-21 setback to Chatham last Thursday in a class C South Division game.

Hudson took a 14-0 lead in the first quarter on a Willie Simon touchdown run and Brett Williams' 5-yard scoring pass. RCS (1-1, 3-1) got one touchdown back on Pat Filkins' 11-yard scoring run in the second quarter, but Hudson's defense shut down RCS after that to earn the victory.

The Indians will try to bounce back Friday night when they host Cohoes.

Against Chatham last Thursday, Voorheesville fell behind 13-0 on a Zach Kraham 1-yard touchdown run and two short field goals by Sean Kenny.

The Blackbirds (1-1, 3-1) cut into Chatham's lead on a 52-yard touchdown pass from Jay Conde to Jordan Murphy late in the first quarter and a third quarter safety, and they took the lead on Pat Jones' 23-yard scoring run early in the fourth quarter. Kraham put the Panthers (2-0, 4-0) ahead for good, though, with touchdown passes of 36 and 23 yards to Tucker Lancelin.

Jones added a 1-yard scoring run for Voorheesville late in the fourth quarter, but Chatham held on for the six-point win.

Jones rushed for 62 yards to lead the Blackbirds, who host Cocksackie-Athens Saturday in a South Division game.

'Birds win Queensbury invy

The Voorheesville boys cross country team had a strong showing at last Saturday's Queensbury Invitational.

Led by individual champion Macky Lloyd, the Blackbirds took the small school division title with 62 points. North Warren placed second with 113 points, and Broadalbin-Perth was third with 123 points.

Lloyd pulled away for a 15:32-second victory over Lake George's Steven Petramale. The junior completed the 3.1-mile course in a time of 17:02.70.

Ryan Allison placed fourth for Voorheesville with a time of 17:54.04. Nathan Bub was 11th in a time of 18:11.77, Conor Cashin finished 22nd in a time of 18:47.88 and Ian Powell placed 24th in a time of 18:54.25.

The Voorheesville girls cross country team also fared well at the Queensbury Invitational. The Blackbirds placed third in the small school division with 94 points, five points behind runner-up Tri-Valley. Broadalbin-Perth won the team title with 77 points.

Hilary Edmunds led a quartet of Blackbirds that finished in the top 25 with a fourth-place performance in a time of 20:21.38. Chantal Little placed 16th in a time of 21:19.31, Grace Giampaglia was 21st in a time of 22:02.12 and Kali Votraw finished 22nd in a time of 22:02.48. Zoe Edmunds (41st, 23:29.23) rounded out Voorheesville's top five.

Tri-Valley's Courtney Roosa won with a time of 19:57.20.

Rats

have written a play called "Waiting for Goals." Albany players skated with the puck more than they shot it. Actually, that's not quite true. They skated after the puck more than they shot it because the opposing teams had it nearly twice as much during a typical game.

Now, you might think that having players from two different NHL organizations might make it more difficult to create a cohesive offense. But given the amount of offense Colorado and Carolina typically create, it's a safe bet that their prospects will know what to do with the puck inside the opponent's blue line. Heck, if the new-look Rats average three goals and 30 shots a game, that would be a major improvement over what we've seen around here since the turn of the millennium.

So, what are the odds that the River Rats will have more wins than Siena or UAlbany? Actually, pretty good. The Rats are in a tough division with the likes of perennial AHL powers Wilkes-Barre/Scranton, Bridgeport, Philadelphia and defending Calder Cup champion Hershey. But if they stay healthy (a problem that forced Lowell to use more than 60 players last year), the new-look Rats could be in the hunt for a playoff spot long into April. At worst, the Rats should have at least 35 wins, and even with their talent, Siena and UAlbany combined might be fortunate to match that total.

That's welcome news to area pro hockey fans — and those of us in the sports media — who have had to put up with a substandard AHL team the last six years.

Eagles can't stop Raiders charge

Furbeck rushes for 225 yards in Colonie victory

By MIKE CIOFFI

The Colonie football team dominated in every facet of the game last Thursday night in a 33-13 Division II victory over Bethlehem at Colonie.

"All three phases of the game are extremely important, and we hit on all cylinders tonight," said Colonie coach Mike Ambrosio. "We had a close game at Shaker, and we know we're about six inches away from being undefeated at this time."

"This was a clear domination by Colonie in every facet, especially special teams. We're not doing the little things, and we really need to evaluate ourselves and see how good we are at 2-2," said Bethlehem coach Ron Smith.

Colonie's offense was led by running back Heath Furbeck. The senior ran for 225 yards on 14 carries and three touchdowns. Furbeck ran 60 yards on the game's opening drive for his first touchdown and ran for an 85-yard score later in the first quarter to give Colonie (1-1 division, 3-1 overall) an early 14-0 lead.

"Heath's our main target, and we have Jimmy Kehrer outside with the passing attack. We're throwing the ball pretty well, and the backs Joe Poletto and Joe Miskewicz are doing a great job," Ambrosio said.

Bethlehem (1-1, 2-2) kept the game close in the first quarter thanks to a 16-yard touchdown run by quarterback Dave Plummer. Brian Pauquette set up Plummer's scoring scamper with a 36-yard run — which accounted for more than half of his 63 rushing yards.

Colonie had several opportunities to break the game open in the second quarter, but those attempts were halted by turnovers. The Garnet Raiders started out on their 12-yard line on the first drive of the second quarter and moved the ball down to the Bethlehem 2. But the Raiders fumbled on the next play, and Plummer recovered the loose ball in the end zone for a touchback.

The Raiders turned the ball over again before halftime when Mike Agneta intercepted Tom Duff. The turnover came after Colonie blocked an Eagles punt, which put the Raiders on the Bethlehem 11-yard line.

"It was 14-6 at halftime and it could of easily been 28-0," Smith said. "I told the guys at halftime that they're (Colonie) leaving us in the game, and we come out in the third quarter and fail to execute."

Colonie's offense got back on track in the third quarter. Furbeck capped the Raiders' first series with a 4-yard touchdown run to make the score 21-6.

The Raiders special teams unit accounted for the next touchdown. Bethlehem was forced to punt from their 1-yard line, Colonie's Mike Kaiser blocked it

Rats show improvement before season starts

By ROB JONAS

One of the questions I like to pose to my Capital District sports writing colleagues is which team will have more wins by the end of the season: the University at Albany men's basketball team, the Siena College men's basketball team or the Albany River Rats.

In the last few years, the answer was Siena (or in last year's case, the University at Albany). The River Rats never came up, even though they play nearly four times as many games as our region's college basketball teams.

All anyone needed was one glimpse of the roster New Jersey supplied its American Hockey League affiliate to understand the pessimism. There was hardly any National Hockey League-caliber talent there. Steve Kariya? Ari Ahonen? A past-his-prime Alexander Mogilny? Albany owner Walter Robb could have called up the Union College hockey team and had better pro prospects than what New Jersey was sending him.

Fortunately, those days are over. Carolina and Colorado are now supplying Albany with their prospects, while New Jersey can torture the Lowell, Mass., hockey fans with its cast of has-beens and never-will-bes.

Is the new affiliation going to guarantee a return to the playoffs (a place Albany hasn't been in seven years)? Not likely. Last year's Lowell team — which Carolina and Colorado shared — missed the AHL playoffs and finished with the fourth-lowest point total in the AHL.

But here's something to remember — Albany had the second lowest point total in the league last year as New Jersey's affiliate. The River Rats were essentially eliminated from playoff contention by mid March, a full month before the AHL regular season ended. So, we're already talking about a significant improvement with the affiliation switch.

Another thing to think about: Carolina and Colorado each made significant moves this summer to bolster Albany's roster. Carolina brought in several veterans including Shane Willis, Jesse Boulerice and Tim Conboy, while Colorado signed former Pittsburgh Penguin (and Capital District Selects forward) Matt Murley. If any or all of those players spend a lot of time in Albany, the Rats will be better for it. At least, it will be better than when New Jersey sent us Paul Kariya's less talented brother and called it an improvement.

But what should really make Albany area hockey fans salivate is the possibility that this year's River Rats will actually play offense. That concept was so foreign to the Rats over the last six years that Samuel Beckett could
