Getting students to spend more time in class might not be as easy as it sounds

By JIM FRANCO
 news@spotlightnews.com

Gov. Eliot Spitzer, in his first State of the State address, said: "We know that more time in the classroom - in the form of longer school days, a longer school year and after-school programs - also makes a difference."

It sounds logical, but is following through as easy as it sounds?

Absent a statewide teachers' contract like Hawaii has, asking teachers to work more hours would require each of the 732 school districts to renegotiate more expensive contracts with their educators, which may or may not be financially feasible in some districts that are already cash-strapped.

"While there have been known instances in the Western world of being able to negotiate things into a contract without having to pay for them, they are exceedingly rare," said Dave Ernst, a spokesman for the state School Boards Association. "And it is reasonable to expect the individual bargaining units, if you ask them to work longer hours or ask them to work more days, to come back and request additional funds. It is the additional funds that is the difficult part."

As it stands now, districts can hold classes for as many days as they want in any given school year, but they will only get state aid - the lifeblood of

Egan delivers State of Town

Supervisor highlights public involvement in address

By JIM CUOZZO

Continuing community planning initiatives, such as the Route 9W study, and involving Bethlehem's citizens in improving the town's vision are a few highlights of Supervisor Theresa Egan's 2007 State of the Town address, delivered Thursday, Jan. 18, at the Bethlehem Historical Association's Little Red Schoolhouse in Cedar Hill.

Making improvements to key town intersections is one of the issues of 2007, Egan said.

"I am proud of the public involvement," said Egan. "We have more volunteers involved in our advisory committees than the town ever has."

Those committees, including the waterfront revitalization group and the citizens advisory committee on conservation, will be joined in 2007 by new committees, including one that will try to make improvements to the Delaware Avenue area.

"This civic group will work with music groups and theater to recreate the main street, from the CVS to the Four Corners as a downtown attraction," said Egan.

Tech park the topic of hearing

By JIM CUOZZO
 cuzzoj@spotlightnews.com

At a Wednesday, Jan. 17, informational meeting held by Bethlehem's Industrial Development Agency, Slingerlands residents expressed environmental, traffic and safety concerns about the proposed Vista Technology Park.

The technology park proposal is the subject of a lengthy state environmental quality review process, which began early last year.

The proposed 450-acre park, which would be built off Maher Road behind the Slingerlands Price Chopper, would include 150 developable acres with a planned 12-year build-out over two phases, creating an expected 4,000 new jobs.

One of the keys to the project's success is a bypass road that is slated to be constructed to ease the

BC board ponders full-day kindergarten

By JILL U. ADAMS

Full-day kindergarten will once again be considered by the Bethlehem Central School District.

At the board of education meeting Wednesday, Jan. 17, Superintendent Les Loomis listed the reasons why he feels this topic must be revisited. At the top of the list was last year's recommendation by the state's Board of Regents to make full-day kindergarten mandatory in New York.

Another influential factor is the availability of new state funding called EXCEL, which stands for Expanding our Children's Education and Learning, and would provide additional funding for certain types of school construction projects, including full-time kindergarten accommodations.

The district currently has several major construction projects in progress. Loomis reported that the additions to the

Bethlehem police arrest 5 in separate incidents

Bethlehem police have charged 41-year-old Michele Deuel of Bethlehem, with felony DWI and two other counts.

Deuel was traveling west on Bridge Street near the vicinity of Lasher Road shortly after 10 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 18, when police reports indicate her vehicle crossed the double yellow center lane markings, moving into the path of a patrol vehicle traveling east.

The officer on duty then stopped Deuel a short time later after observing it allegedly traveling 45 mph in a 35 mph zone. Deuel admitted to police she was drinking before driving the vehicle and allegedly failed several field sobriety tests. Deuel's prior criminal history according to police, showed a previous 1999 conviction for DWI. She was charged with felony driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content along with felony DWI and failure to keep right. She was issued tickets to appear in Town Court on Feb. 6. Police seized a package of fireworks from the vehicle, which was also impounded.

•A 45-year-old Albany man is charged with felony criminal possession of a forged instrument second degree along with possession of stolen property and petty larceny.

Anthony Bethea, of 220 Green St., apt. 9E, Albany, was charged after he was brought to Bethlehem police pursuant to an arrest warrant issued by Town Justice Ryan Donovan on Jan. 9. Bethea was processed, arraigned and sent to Albany County jail without bail due to having two prior felony convictions and being charged with another felony.

Bethea waived a preliminary hearing under the advice of his counsel, the Albany County Public Defender's office and was returned to jail. Bethea also has an active file from Guilderland and Guilderland police were notified of Bethea's status.

•George Paul, 42, of 404 Orange St., Albany, was charged with felony third degree criminal sale of a controlled substance by police on Jan. 15.

Police reports indicate that after meeting with Colonie detectives, Paul was picked up as he entered Sunset Bowling Lanes on Central Avenue in Colonie on an arrest warrant issued Dec. 11. He was arraigned and sent to Albany County jail in lieu of $20,000 cash or $50,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for later this month and Paul will return to Bethlehem Town Court on Feb. 6.

•James Ferraioli, 49, of 1734 Route 9W, Selkirk, has been charged with DWI, driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content and failure to keep right.

Ferraioli was stopped Friday, Jan. 12, at 2:30 a.m. after being observed by police allegedly traveling 51 mph in a 40 mph zone. Ferraioli was issued tickets to appear in Town Court on Feb. 6.

•Liza Marie Levallen, 26, of 23 Allen Road, Garrison, was charged with speeding, driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content and DWI by Bethlehem police.

Levallen was observed driving on Route 32 in Delmar on Jan. 13 at 4 a.m., traveling at a high rate of speed. Police reports indicate Levallen was allegedly driving 75 mph in a 55 mph zone. She also allegedly failed several field sobriety tests given by police at the scene.

Panera Bread opens in Bethlehem Town Center in Glenmont

By JIM CUOZZO

A full complement of Bethlehem officials greeted the grand opening of the new Panera Bread Bakery and Café in Glenmont located in the Bethlehem Town Center.

"It's wonderful to have new business coming into town," said town board member Sam Messina, who attended the bakery opening along with several other officials, including Supervisor Theresa Egan.

"This is my daughter's favorite restaurant," said Egan. "We're very happy to have them in town."

An invitation-only event for Panera Bread was held Tuesday, Jan. 16, with the official grand opening on Thursday, Jan. 18. The bakery's offerings include bagels, muffins, brownies and pastries. Baked egg soufflés are available for breakfast, and, for lunch, panini sandwiches, including turkey artichoke on basil pesto focaccia, or one of eight different signature sandwiches such as the Italian combo on ciabatta and the Tuscan chicken sandwich. Loaves upon loaves of baguettes, specialty breads and artisan breads are baked on the premises daily.

baking begins at 2 a.m.," said Jim Lyon, franchise partner at the new Glenmont location on Route 9W.

Lyon, a native of Berne, said new Panera Bakery and Cafe stores will open up in Glenville and on Wolf Road in Colonie before the year is up. He said the Glenmont store is in an ideal location.

"We want to be involved in smaller communities and be a neighborhood cafe, and this one fits in," said Lyon, who added that he waited for more than two years to open.

"Development was delayed," said Lyon, declining to give details.

Lyon said the reception he has received so far is overwhelming.

"It's going to be a great location," said general manager Adam Layh, who has worked for the company for five years in locations throughout the Capital District.

"There has been a phenomenal buzz," said Layh.

Coffee, pastries, bagels, sandwiches and soups are just a few of the items on the menu. A new dinner entrée offered is the Crispani hand-crafted pizza, hot from the oven after 4 p.m.

"It's a relatively new product to the company," said Layh.

Messina said the new store is another example of the town's comprehensive plan at work building neighborhood business.

"I see this as a gathering spot or center for people," said Messina.

Panera Bread is open Sunday, 7:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Thursday, 6:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Friday and Saturday, 6:30 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Students bring the magic of 'Peter Pan' to the stage

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

"Talent," "dedication" and "stage presence" are all words being used to describe the cast and crew that make up Bethlehem Middle School's production of "Peter Pan," which will run Thursday, Feb. 1 until Saturday, Feb. 3.

"This is the largest cast we have had in a middle school production," said Katie Daly, vocal choral teacher.

Those in charge of the production, which is cast entirely of middle school students, said "Peter Pan" will be packed with excitement as children playing Indians, pirates and Lost Boys sing and dance to 18 different songs with choreography by Bethlehem High School senior Jackie Wheeler.

"I did this show in sixth grade, and it's been wonderful to work with the kids," said Wheeler, who is beginning practice at the high school for her role as Sandy in the musical "Grease."

"They really love to be here," she added.

The musical tells the story of Peter Pan, a boy who refuses to grow up and who enchants children by teaching them how to fly, then taking them on unforgettable journeys.

"The show is all about imagination and how imagination can take you to do anything," said Lynda Conway, who along with Daly and Shannon Casso, directs the play and works with a cast and crew of more than 100.

"They are so talented," said Conway, referring to the hard-working students who began reading and rehearsing for the role in late October.

"We had 150 kids audition, and they have really come along far," Daly said. "We want to give kids an opportunity to be on stage and perform a character."

Creating large set pieces and dazzling costumes are all a part of the hard work that turns into the magic of opening night. Many middle school parents have gotten involved, too, helping with stage design, make-up and costumes.

"It's amazing how it all comes together — all these committees, the parents — it's theater magic," said Casso.

One scene in the production features singing and dancing, with students playing several stand-up drums purchased by the PTA.

Rachel Rhyther, who is in eighth grade, will play Peter Pan, and seventh grader Lucas Carpinello will be Captain Hook.

Along with making up the extensive cast, students are also involved in publicity, programs, props, make-up and stage managing.

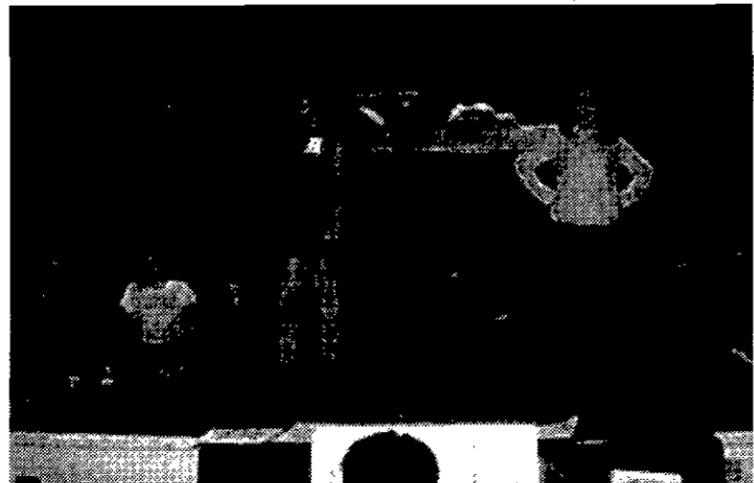

Daly said the students are making great progress as they gear up for opening night.

"They are so much further along and have met the high expectations," said Daly.

Performances for "Peter Pan" will be at 7 p.m., Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 1- Feb. 3. A snow date has been scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 4 at 3 p.m.

Tickets are $5 for students and seniors and $8 for adults and may be purchased at the door beginning at 5:30 p.m. each evening. They will also be available in the school cafeteria during lunch periods.

"This is a show that will take you to your past to relive your childhood," Conway said.

Students from Bethlehem's Middle School rehearse for "Peter Pan." More than 100 students in grades six to eight are working on and will be performing in the production Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 1 to 3 in the middle school auditorium.

If you don't know squat, it's time to learn

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR
news@spotlightnews.com

I have met my newest enemy. It is called the squat. Squatting, as it turns out, is less of a problem for people who have muscles in their thighs. Well, working muscles, that is.

Squatting is where you act like you are sitting down even though you are not on a chair. You have to support your weight using your thigh muscles.

Squatting not only works your thigh muscles, and manages to increase your heart rate. This may be because of the adrenaline rush from fearing you are going to fall over. Squatting is good preparation for people who are often getting chairs pulled away before they sit down. If you are lowering yourself into a supposed chair and find that nothing is pressing against your backside, you can immediately kick into "squat mode" and let those strong thigh muscles prevent you from falling to the floor.

Your ability to excel at squatting depends on how much effort you want to put in and how often you find yourself missing the chair. Squats are painful, maybe even more so than the infrequent fall to the floor.

The squat's cousin is the lunge. The lunge is like a semi-squat where one leg is pushed back. Lunges and squats are relatively simple when done slowly as a stretching routine. When you get into serious squatting and lunging, then the fun ends. There's the danger of pulling a muscle, and then you'll be left waddling. You may be stuck in a squat-like position for days.

Rapid lunging involves the cooperation of your feet and ankles. My pigeon-toed feet are not cooperative during lunges. It's important to keep your knee over your toe, the instructors say. This always confuses me as my knee is always above my foot. Where else would it be? I gather what they mean is that when your knee and toes aren't pointing in the same direction, then you are out of alignment.

After signing up for one month, then three months, I finally made a commitment last spring and took on a full-year membership at Girl Power Inc. I like that name because it sounds like a place for superheroes, but in reality it's an establishment where women of any shape, size or age can feel comfortable working out.

Girl Power Inc. is actually just the corporate name. The gym's doing-business-as name is Amy's Fitness Studio, cleverly named by Amy Bare, the owner.

Amy is a fixture at the gym. She's easy to spot in her trademark baseball cap with the braid out the back. She's either greeting members, providing a personal training session or answering one of my many questions.

"Amy, is there a way to strengthen the muscles around my ankles? You know, so they don't turn." Answer: Calf lifts (no baby cows involved), good sneakers, and consider orthopedic shoe inserts.

Members at Amy's Fitness Studio range from ordinary women like me trying to stay fit, to experienced athletes and weight lifters. The gym's offerings include personal training, weight-loss management, Cybex equipment, cable machines, free weights and classes.

I can use most of the weight-training equipment with confidence, and I can catch the TV news while walking on the treadmill. I also appreciate those giant inflated balls that support my back when I do abdomen crunches. Abdomen crunches make squats and lunges feel like leisure activities.

Though I mostly use the gym for the cardio and weight-training equipment, I do sometimes take classes. I have been going to a step class fairly regularly now. Regularly is defined as more than once a year.

I've picked up the routine for the most part, and have been able to do the "windmill," "the straddle-the-step with knee-ups combo" and multiple sets of "repeaters."

Repeaters involve keeping your weight on one foot while lifting an opposite knee virtually 99 times in a row. I cheat on this maneuver. I do it while standing on the floor, rather than up on the step. This is because my knees, the left one in particular, have been holding a grudge against me since a fateful step class back in '94 when I twisted my knee after disobeying the knee-over-the-ankle rule.

Not wanting to be a wimp, I went to the very next step class, a few days later, to "work out the kink in my knee." I was employing the "if you fall off a horse you need to get right back on" mentality. This was mistake No. 1.

When my knee began to ache whether my leg was bent or straight, I went to see an orthopedic doctor. He took X-rays that showed I was nothing more than a whiner and he gave me a prescription for an anti-inflammatory drug. After a few days on the medicine, my knee felt better, so I stopped taking the pills. This was mistake No. 2.

I had thought, incorrectly, that the medicine was strictly for pain relief. I hadn't understood that I needed to complete the entire prescription in order to reduce the inflammation in my knee. My knee was never the same again.

Out of empathy for the left knee, my right knee also weakened over time. So, once upon a time I could use a step that was heightened by two risers, but now I use no risers and the step simply rests on the floor.

Recently I tried a different class. The instructor got a step and placed it on top of five risers. "Wow, that's impressive," I told her, standing behind my riser-less step.

She explained that we were going to do "step ups." I nodded like it all made perfect sense. She said she likes to teach a challenging class. "Sounds good to me," I lied, wondering if I'd last even 15 minutes. She told us to just go at our own pace. She must have sensed my fear.

After the warm-up stretching, we jumped immediately to the challenging part: jumping jacks, squats and push-ups, two repetitions each, then four, then six, etc., up to 10 and then back down to two.

"Did she say push-ups? Should I beg off now claiming a forgotten appointment?" I thought to myself.

Luckily she did the "easier" push-up, where you balance on your knees with your feet bent behind you. Even though she had said "squat," I had been thinking "squat-thrust" so I was relieved that the move was the lesser of the two evils.

I was able to do the jumping jacks and the squats and even a sort of push-up. The problem was changing positions in between. I had to ease myself to the floor, while the instructor was able to just jump down and then spring back up. We did two squats and then she dropped to the floor to her knees and did the push-ups and then sprang up to her feet for the jumping jacks.

After my push-ups I leaned to one side and using my hand against the floor for leverage, stood back up. I changed positions as fast as I could, but had to make hard choices: Do I do an abbreviated final push-up so I can get up in time to complete all the jumping jacks or do I stay down for a complete push-up and then miss the first jumping jack?

My heart rate went up right away and I thought, "Oh boy, is this class going to feel like an eternity."

"Here's to my health," I prayed silently, not quite sure how long I'd last, but determined to plug along toward fitness.

I ended up really enjoying the class. The instructor's routine included intervals of varying aerobic intensity. This made the class interesting and challenging without becoming overwhelming.

Mostly I like to use the machines and the free weights at Amy's Fitness Studio because I can work out on my own schedule and at my own pace. I'm certainly not a fitness expert, but I do know squat.

Take advantage of open school budget meetings

Local school boards are currently in the process of developing budgets for the 2007-08 school year. The process is open to the public, who are welcome to attend budget-planning workshops, but if it's business as usual, the public won't show.

That's a real shame since budgets have been a concern to many who live in our communities. Seniors and people living on fixed incomes are concerned about being able to remain in communities where tax rates continue to soar.

Editorial

And just because we have new leadership in the state doesn't mean budget issues will get any better. Strong suburban districts became strong because the leadership wants its students to succeed and become the very best they can be.

Our students need the most up-to-date information to be able to function in our new high-tech world.

Still spending money isn't always a guarantee of success. And school boards seem to now be realizing this belt tightening is probably long overdue.

The time to address the state of your school district is now, not on Election Day, May 15. It really helps school boards make better, more informed decisions when they are aware of residents' concerns.

Most school districts try their best to keep residents aware of monetary issues through fliers sent to all residents of the district. And most districts want and need to know residents' concerns before presenting a budget package that simply is unacceptable.

The STAR tax relief program has been a step in the right direction, but only a step. More innovative money-saving initiatives need to be explored to ensure that our communities produce the best education for the best price.

Without public input, school boards are hindered and limited as to what they can accomplish in terms of budget priorities.

When school budgets go down, it's partly due to lack of communication between school boards and the people in the communities they serve.

And school boards need to be held accountable for the budgets they adopt and present to the public.

If you have concerns about your school district's decision-making, find out the budget meeting schedule and attend meetings that address concerns you may have. Don't wait until May to play catch up on proposed budgets.

The time to take action is now when there is some breathing room to weigh district needs and priorities.

Living as wanderers in an icy world

By CARI SCRIBNER
scribner@spotlightnews.com

Cari Scribner is the Burnt Hills Spotlight reporter and lives in Malta.

My kids had hoped for a white Christmas, but instead, got an icy Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

We woke up Monday, Jan. 15, to a spectacular sight: icy, crystallized branches on trees, blades of grass frozen into glittery carpeting, icicles dangling from car fenders and mailboxes. But within minutes, we saw the heavily weighted pine trees and delicate white birches bending precariously, and then heard the cracks of branches falling to the ground. Out back, enormous tree limbs dipped dangerously close to our shed and our new swimming pool.

The wind whistled once, and, like a match blown out, the power in our house shut off around 10 a.m.

Celebration ensued until the kids realized they hadn't properly charged up their laptops and Game Boys, and that the portable DVD player was meant to be powered by the car lighter.

I went searching for candles (found 6, all scented bathroom candles rather than rugged emergency lights) and flashlights (found one, barely functional). My husband said the now infamous words, "Nothing's going to happen, it's not that cold outside."

We hunkered down for the day, then called out for Chinese food and ate as if we were hibernating for the winter. Without the Internet, we had a single source of information: my husband's Walkman, tuned into a radio station offering bleak news. We were one of 43,000 families left in the dark that evening.

Somewhere around 4 p.m., as our fingers and toes went numb, we realized our home would soon be a dark cavern, and we made plans to flee.

My father-in-law had power in Clifton Park, and so we loaded most of our socks, all our mittens, the sleeping bags and our guinea pig into the car. At the last minute we grabbed our toothbrushes, laptops and cell phone chargers. I yelled at my middle son, Ryan, for walking on the slippery lawn.

Driving out, we saw a couple of homes with generators, the windows flickering with blue shadows from their television sets, and we congratulated life appealed to us; we all felt a little giddy.

We made a trip home to check the pipes. It was surreal getting off Exit 12 of the Northway; life seemed to be halted entirely. Traffic lights were out, and downed trees littered the streets and lawns — heavy, decades-old trees that will take weeks to clean up. Discarded Christmas trees were frozen into the curbs, a small barn had collapsed beneath a fallen branch, and there was no sign of life in our small neighborhood. Inside, our house was tomb-like and 48 degrees. But already strange ourselves for being heartier, real Northeastern people able to take whatever Mother Nature served up.

"I love living out of our car," said Ryan, hidden in a sea of blankets.

In Clifton Park, we ate more, figuring if the power didn't return, we'd have enough body fat to keep warm. We took over every couch and most of the living room floor and slept about 45 minutes.

Tuesday, with school cancelled, we heard our power might not be restored until late Thursday evening. More celebration ensued among the kids, until they realized power had been restored to their schools. The boys went outside briefly, and I yelled at Ryan to stay off the icy spots on the lawn.

We ate all the candy bars at my father-in-law's house, then moved base camp once again. We stuffed our blankets and pillows into the car to go stay at a friend's in Ballston Spa, so the kids would be closer to school. As we were pulling away, we realized we'd forgotten the guinea pig.

"I love living out of our car," said Ryan. Apparently, the gypsy smells were seeping from our fridge and freezer, where we discovered packs of chicken and hamburger, wisely purchased on sale, now unthawed and unsafe. We lamented the loss of our chocolate chip cookie dough ice cream the most. We began to show signs of disorientation. My daughter carried her change of clothes back to the car wearing fuzzy black slippers. I opened my briefcase and found my toothpaste and a spare pair of socks. Later, I discovered four cheese sticks in my purse. I still haven't located my contact lens case.

At our friend's home, before I had a chance to scold Ryan again, he ran through the icy grass and skidded onto his behind.

"I'm tired of living out of our car," Ryan complained. The lure of the vagabond life was fading fast. The publisher of Spotlight Newspapers called to offer his generator to us. We picked up enough Italian food for an army Tuesday night, discovered the kids' backpacks were still at home, ditto for the air mattress, but at least we had the guinea pig. Outside the windows, the ice hadn't released its hold on the trees; such beautiful, terrible ruin.

To Life thanks golfers for their assistance

Editor, Spotlight Newspapers:

For the third year, a group of friends and neighbors of Vicky and Keith Derbyshire sponsored a home-grown golf tournament to lift spirits and raise funds for breast cancer education and support.

Many helped put out the fire at CSX

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Jan. 4, the Selkirk Fire Department was dispatched to a car fire in the CSX rail yard. This was no ordinary car fire; but a rail car carrying 28,000 gal-lons of methanol surrounded by other rail cars carrying similar materials.

I would like to first thank the crew of Selkirk Engine 41: Assistant Chiefs Tom Neri, Terry Ritz and Rob Burns, Firefighters David Borger, Tim McCoy and Victor Rodriguez. This crew on the first engine on the scene applied hose lines to the railcar to cool it to prevent a possible failure. This prevented a dangerous situation from becoming even worse.

This incident required many agencies to come together. They are: CSX, Selkirk Fire Dept., Bethlehem EMS, Coeymans Fire Dept., Coeymans Hollow Fire Dept., G.E. Fire Brigade, Onesquethaw Fire Dept., New Baltimore Fire Dept., Westerlo Fire Dept., New Salem Fire Dept., Albany County Paramedics, Bethlehem Police Dept., New York State Police and Miller Environmental.

This is just the list of the organizations working on the scene. Albany County Fire Co-ordinators JJ Walsh, Joseph Fahd, David Briscoe, Bill Bruno, and Thomas Bergin, the Office of Fire Prevention and Control, Department of Environmental Conservation, Terry Ryan from the Albany County Sheriff's Emergency Management Office and Jack Brennan from BEMO provided valuable knowledge.

Additionally, the Albany County Hazardous Materials Team, which includes members from the Albany Fire Department, Watervliet Arsenal, West Albany Fire Department, Elsmere Fire Department Haz Mat and Colonie EMS, were off-site ready in case they were needed.

I would also like to acknowledge the following agencies that provided coverage to our fire district: Delmar Fire Department, Delmar EMS, Elsmere Fire Dept., Slingerlands Fire Department, Greene County Paramedics and the Guilderland Paramedics. Finally, a thank you to all of the Ladies Auxiliaries who came together to get whatever was needed to us.

This is a lengthy list and if I have missed anyone, please accept my apologies. We could not have done this without the help of all of those involved. Again, I thank you for your assistance.

Your Opinion

Have you seen this coat?

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am saddened to think someone in the town of Bethlehem would deliberately take another person's jacket from a coat rack at a public meeting. This was not a mistake, as no other jacket was left in its place.

The meeting was held Monday evening, Jan. 8.

The jacket is a man's jean jacket, sheepskin collar, quilted lining, new pair of gloves in the pocket and a Giants hat in the sleeve.

It would be much appreciated and very nice if the person or persons who took the jacket would return it to the same coat rack in the rear of the auditorium.

I am sure this will clear your conscience and you can again walk with your head held high. It was a gift.

We thank you!

Hearing

current traffic congestion. Developers said the road, expected to be built this spring, will also allow for a easier flow of traffic for potential new employees at the tech park, who would be driving from Albany into Bethlehem.

Some Slingerlands residents, however, are a bit skeptical that traffic will move as smoothly as expected.

"You're going to put all this new traffic on a two-lane highway," said resident Norman Morand. "We've got a problem right now, and you're going to make the problem worse."

Jeff Pangburn of Creighton Manning Engineering conducted the traffic impact study for the project. He assured residents the bypass, once complete, will create better traffic flow on Route 85.

"Phase One of the bypass is fully funded by the state and federal government," said Pangburn, who said the tech park traffic would be flowing into Bethlehem, while the majority of traffic will be heading in the other direction, toward Albany, during the morning commute.

"The bypass will handle that opposite flow of traffic," said Pangburn.

Renea Pollack of Krumkill Road questioned not only traffic and safety issues, but also the actual effect the project will have on her town taxes.

"My school district is Guilderland, and in my area, there is a division of taxes," said Pollack.

Bethlehem residents listen to members of the Town IDA, economic development and planning department offers details about the new proposed Vista Technology Park.

"We're going to see very little benefit."

The draft environmental impact statement shows an annual impact of $124,000 of new revenue going directly to the town with $2.5 million annually to the Bethlehem school district once the project is complete.

Maher Road resident Don Hernandez questioned the potential negative impact the project could have on nearby wells due to water runoff.

"Will there be any testing to determine the impact on our well water, or any plans to provide us with town or city water if our well water is compromised?" asked Hernandez.

Saratoga Associates engineer Greg Upsprung said any stormwater runoff from the project will be mitigated.

"There is a lot of clay soil in that area and the likelihood of water runoff getting to your wells is very low," said Upsprung

Supervisor Theresa Egan said the Vista Tech Park is a long-standing project of the town's.

"This is something we are excited about and anxious to get community feedback," said Egan.

Project developer Bill Herbert of BBL Development has been promoting the area at several trade shows, from San Francisco to Boston, and is optimistic about the development's potential.

"It is anticipated there will be significant tech growth in the area based on trends we have seen across the country," Herbert said.

The proposed technology park is expected to have a mix of business and retail use.

"It is a technology theme for the park, but we are not precluding anything that is zoned properly," said Herbert.

A public hearing on the draft environmental impact statement for the Vista Technology Park is scheduled for Wednesday, Jan. 24, at 6:15 p.m. in Town Hall.

Marketing the Delmar and Bethlehem region to outside parties as a place to live is another of the supervisor's goal.

"Making investments in a marketing strategy for our community to attract some of the technology that is headed to our area," Egan called it.

A new committee will be formed to see if the current emergency management services in town is meeting or exceeding the dollars spent on that service.

The inter-municipal management advisory committee formed in 2006 will continue to work toward implementing recommendations made in the past year, including sharing services between some departments.

Egan also highlighted achievements of the past year, including completion of the townwide reassessment, the Slingerlands hamlet study and the re-development of certain sites, including the DaisyTek building, as well as the progression of the Vista Technology Park.

New residential development this year will include 587 new housing units that make up Clapper Meadows, and the proposed Van Dyke Spinney senior housing project.

"Fiscal responsibility" according to the supervisor, will be key in 2007.

There were fewer building permits issued in 2006 than in years prior, but Egan said that is OK.

"We need to grow, but in a managed way," she said.

Town board members Sam Messina and Kyle Kotary were both present to hear the supervisor's message.

"The supervisor read a long list of accomplishments in 2006 and laid out a very comprehensive plan and vision for 2007," said Kotary.

"I believe the key issues for 2007 are the Vista Technology Park, Colonial Acres Golf Course and continued fiscal discipline," said Kotary.

The town is currently working with the state to seek funding for the Colonial Acres Golf Course with the town goal to run and manage the course once it is sold and turned over.

middle school and the high school are to be completed by August. The new elementary school will be completed by August 2008.

Loomis said the current projects will alleviate overcrowding, which has been a problem in the past.

"It will provide us with the kind of facilities our students and children deserve," he said.

If the district decided to go to full-day kindergarten, even more classroom space would be required to accommodate a single shift of kindergarteners. The state funding, some $3.6 million through EXCEL, could be used to build new classrooms.

"It's the first time we've ever had the opportunity to build space for full-day kindergarten without cost to the taxpayer," said Loomis.

"Is this little plum only available for a limited period of time?" asked school board member Stuart Lyman.

"The feeling among districts is to grab it while you can," responded Loomis. "Most districts are making project decisions to maximize this state funding."

Board member Warren Stoker commented on the timing of these two things coming together, but if the district decides against full-day kindergarten, he said, "We would need a second set of plans that we could implement in a short period of time."

Loomis responded by saying the school put together a comprehensive review in the last planning phase, including a "next tier" of projects. He added that the district's architecture and engineering firms are already in the process of fleshing out those plans.

Loomis estimated that two-thirds of the EXCEL money would be needed to build classroom space for full-day kindergarten, so even if the district takes that route, there still will be funds for renovations or capital improvements such as roofing.

Board member Richard Svenson commented that full-day kindergarten would engender costs beyond building new classrooms — operational costs like teachers' salaries.

At least one cost might go down, said Loomis: The middle of the day bus runs would be eliminated.

Board member James Lytle summarized the sequence of events the board faces in the upcoming year. First, the board must work on the budget for the 2007-2008 school year. Second, they will take on the question of full-day kindergarten. Third, a new capital plan must be put together to either build new space or to otherwise take advantage of the state's offering through EXCEL.

With the addition of the new Eagle Elementary School, redistricting is another task the board must take on soon to balance elementary student populations among the six schools. All were in agreement that the full-day kindergarten issue should be decided before the redistricting process begins.

The Board of Regents made its proposal last year, but any mandate on full-day kindergarten requires legislation. The uncertainty about whether such legislation will come to pass — and when — will undoubtedly color the decision-making process.

"If we don't do it now, are we forced to do it later?" said Loomis.

Feedback from the community will be sought soon after the budget process is complete.

Marshall's marks 75 years with anniversary celebration

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

The loyalty of generation after generation of local car buyers is one of the driving forces behind 75 years of success at Marshall's Chrysler-Jeep-Subaru-GMC on Route 9W in Ravena.

Marshall's will hold its 75th anniversary celebration Wednesday, Jan. 24, through Saturday, Jan. 27, to show its appreciation to its customers.

People coming in to test drive one of their new or used cars during the celebration will get a sweet surprise.

"We are going to offer them an original Cheesecake Factory cheesecake with a test drive," said Bob Howard, general manager.

"If any one of them end up buying a vehicle at Marshall's during the anniversary celebration after they test drive a car, we will give them a pre-paid gas card with 175 gallons of free gas."

New owner David Evans purchased the dealership from the Marshall family just two years ago, and Howard said the success story that began in Ravena in 1932 continues.

"Marshall's did a wonderful job for well over 70 years serving the community," said Howard.

The main customer base is generated from a 10 to 12 mile radius, with customers from Ravena, Selkirk, Delmar, Glenmont and Voorheesville. Howard said there are other customers who come from the Catskills as well.

"I think being here 75 years tells a story," said Howard.

Marshall's is holding a 75th anniversary celebration today through Saturday, Jan. 27, to show its appreciation to its customers.

"Something has been right from day one."

Some changes people will see at Marshall's in 2007 include extended service hours, a renovated new glass Subaru-GMC showroom with fireplace and a larger inventory of vehicles.

Howard said the five-year plan is to purchase other dealerships and obtain more franchises.

"Our repeat business is tremendous, and has given us the funds to improve our property," said Howard.

Marketing Manager Terry

Hopkins said Marshall's typified the hometown-based business.

"Sometimes we serve three generations of people — from grandparents to parents and the son or daughter who may be headed off to college," said Hopkins.

Another anniversary celebration special will include cars for sale starting at $1,975 with payments as low as $75 per month. Marshall's can be reached at 756-6161.

Library offers 'a little music' to warm a winter's day

In the third concert of our 2006-07 series "A Little Sunday Music" on Sunday, Feb. 4, at 2 p.m., Musicians of Ma'alwyck will perform music for violin, cello and guitar.

Musicians of Ma'alwyck is a flexible-sized chamber ensemble that violinist Ann Marie Barker-Schwartz founded in 1999. Core instrumentation consists of violin, cello, guitar, vocalist and flute. A second violin, viola, oboe, bassoon, harpsichord and piano are added if demanded by the repertory.

In residence at the Schuyler Mansion and the University at Albany, the group performs regularly in upstate New York. It has also performed on National Public Radio. The musicians frequently work with singers, collaborating with Beverly Thiele from the Metropolitan Opera and Gene Marie Callahan Kern from the Chicago Lyric Opera.

Musicians of Ma'alwyck specializes in music of the 18th and 19th centuries, a period that parallels the founding and early history of the United States.

Recently the ensemble performed in Atlanta for producer Norman Lear, celebrating his purchase of the last private copy of the Declaration of Independence.

• Meet the musicians

A former violinist with the Albany Symphony Orchestra, Ann Marie Barker-Schwartz co-founded the St. Cecilia Chamber Orchestra and was its director, from 1987-1998. She has published articles in Archives Magazine and produced recordings for Dorian. She now performs with the Glimmerglass Opera Orchestra and runs the Siena College Music Series, where she founded the Franciscan Chamber Orchestra. She teaches violin and viola at the University at Albany and Schenectady County Community College.

The Musicians of Ma'alwyck

Guitarist Sten Isachsen performs extensively as a soloist in many regional venues. He has studied guitar with Frederick Hand, Ed Flower, and Joel Brown, and participated in master classes with Manuel Barrueco, the Assads, and Benjamin Verdery. Isachsen is a founding member of the Finger Lakes Guitar Quartet, which has commissioned works from Anthony Holland. He teaches at the University at Albany, Schenectady County Community College and The College of Saint Rose.

Born in Bulgaria, cellist Petia Kassarova studied with Zdravko Jordanov, a student of Rostropovich. In 1992, she became principal cellist of Orquestra Sinfonica de Ribeirao Preto, Brazil and was also professor of cello at the Music Academy there. Since 1998, she has been a member of the Albany Symphony Orchestra and Glimmerglass Opera Orchestra. She has performed with Musicians of Ma'alwyck since its founding.

Use Your Power To Choose.

In New York's competitive energy marketplace, you no longer have to buy your electricity and natural gas only from your local utility. Instead, you can shop among the new Energy Service Companies (ESCOs) that are competing for your business. This change should bring efficiencies and innovations that will give you better value for your energy dollar.

The combined services once offered by your utility have been split into two parts — supply and delivery, with the supply portion open to competition. You can choose to switch to an ESCO or continue buying your energy supply from your utility.

Regardless of where you buy your supply, your utility will still deliver energy to you. The safety and reliability you depend on won't change, and you'll still call your utility during emergencies or service interruptions.

A new choice for your energy supply

When you shop for electricity, you can now consider selecting Green Power providers for some or all of your supply. Green Power providers supply environmentally friendly electricity generated from renewable sources such as solar, wind, biomass, geothermal and low-impact or small hydro. For only a few pennies more a day, you can make a world of difference for generations to come.

Strength in numbers

Purchasing electricity and gas with others, called "aggregation," gives your group greater buying power and may save you money. For example, the Municipal Electric and Gas Alliance (MEGA) members (municipalities and school districts in Central New York) saved approximately $2.7 million on their electric bills last year. You may belong to a community or business association that can coordinate with ESCOs for the best package of prices and services. For more information, go to www.PowerToChooseNY.com and click on Contact Us or call us at 518-474-1540.

Choosing a supplier

To shop for an ESCO, evaluate their offerings, compare them with your utility's offering, and decide which is best for you. You should:

1. Call your utility or the Public Service Commission at 1-888-Ask-PSC1 (1-888-275-7721) for ESCOs serving your area. Or go to www.PowerToChooseNY.com or your utility's Web site for a list, and then call the companies. The ESCOs and their offers change, so check periodically.
2. Compare prices, services and terms offered.
3. Consider customer services such as toll-free numbers, Web sites and complaint handling.
4. Check out billing and payment options.

5. Confirm the details of the agreement. Be sure to check with your ESCO about early termination fees prior to enrolling in a contract. If the fees are not clearly stated, ask the ESCO for an estimate of the early termination fee based on your energy usage.

6. Choose your supplier and monitor your bills and service. If you are not satisfied, you can switch back to your utility or to another ESCO, subject to any applicable contract terms.

For a list of ESCOs and more information, visit www.PowerToChooseNY.com, call 1-888-Ask-PSC1 (1-888-275-7721) or contact your local utility listed below:

Join over 1 million New Yorkers. Choose your energy supplier.

In the past, you had no choice of who provided you with your natural gas and electricity supply — it was your local utility. Well, things have changed.

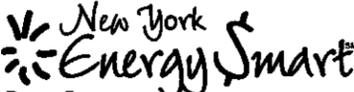

In New York State, companies other than your local utility, called Energy Service Companies (ESCOs), are competing to provide you with electricity and natural gas. No matter which supplier you choose, your utility will still deliver your energy safely and reliably, and respond to emergencies.

Competition gives you greater choice and better value including:

- Fixed, variable or capped pricing
- Appliance repairs and service contracts
- Green Power energy sources

For an energy supplier guide, visit www.PowerToChooseNY.com or call 1-888-Ask-PSC1 and we will mail you a copy.

With National Grid's New Choices program, residential and small business customers can save 7% on their energy supply for a two-month introductory period. For more information go to www.nationalgridus.com/newchoices

Paying taxes is never fun. But this year, you'll be happy to see that you are getting some relief—hundreds or even thousands of dollars off your state taxes. On behalf of New York's families, we sent over 1 million pieces of mail, held rallies and placed radio and print ads throughout the state supporting tax credits. Take great strides to push revenue to your bottom line

Marketing is an interesting beast.

It can take many forms and do many things for a client or even a segment of the consumer's world.

I spent an interesting weekend with the arts this past weekend, and it made me think of the diversity of experiences available to us in the Capital District and how those things are promoted and the results that are produced.

Friday evening was spent at Capital Repertory Theater for its production of "Take Me Out." The story revolves around a professional baseball player who decides to publicly announce his homosexuality. The show takes place in a locker room and has a full male nudity scene. The show is really not so much about naked guys walking around as it is about relationships and the human condition. Baseball plays a role as much as it is a metaphor for life as the subject matter of the show.

Notes from the

Advertising Desk

Saturday evening was "A Night in Old Russia" with the Albany Symphony Orchestra and Pro Musica. Sunday afternoon was spent at Cohoes Music Hall with Disney's "High School Musical."

Obviously, the Cap Rep production is an adult-themed show, and the audience reflected that. A few giggles and sputters erupted at the first glimpse of naked flesh but then people settled in to the show.

The symphony offered, in my opinion, the most interesting results of David Alan Miller's hard work in making music accessible. The audience was filled with a wonderful cross-section of local humanity. People from a diverse range of socio-economic strata as well as all age groups filled the Palace Theater, quite literally to the rafters. Miller has done a phenomenal job during his years at the symphony broadening its range, appeal and exposure to "the masses."

Cohoes Music Hall has put together a cast of 32 area youths in a wonderfully rousing production of "High School Musical," which has become something of a national phenomenon. The audience was filled with a number of parents and grandparents but also with loads of kids, predominantly in the 9-to-15-year-old range, many of who were seeing their first live stage production.

Cohoes has managed to fill its house for the show's entire run, which is great to drive revenue for them, and that certainly is important. It also is using this vehicle to expose an entire generation of potential theatergoers to an exciting new world.

The three arts venues have all taken great strides to entertain, enlighten and at the same time push revenue to their bottom lines. When marketed properly, as is evidenced by the results seen this past weekend, marketing can and should create a win-win synergy.

Here at The Spotlight, we are making a concerted effort to market our greatly enhanced Web site, www.spotlightnews.com. If you pop online, you'll notice a site filled with many of the stories you read here, as well as expanded and more frequently updated versions. We have introduced blogs by Kathy McCarthy, Tim Mulligan, Rob Jonas and me. You'll see ads and articles in the paper each work informing you of our site, the new additions and encouraging you to check us out online. Marketing never stops. Even here in this column we occasionally subject you, dear reader, to shameless self-promotion!

Also around town: Charles T. Barnes has been named president of the 100-year-old Ten Eyck Group. Barnes has been with the Ten Eyck Group since 1985 ... Stephen J. Vnuk, assistant vice president of MetLife, has been elected to the board of United Way of New York State ... New York State Credit Union League has promoted Ron McLean to vice president, executive office, and Christopher Pajak is organizational development consultant ... Edward "Chip" Eisenman has been appointed chief executive officer of Sunnyview Rehabilitation Hospital in Schenectady and vice president of Northeast Health in Troy ... CDPHP appointed Barbara A. Downs, RN, as that company's chief operating officer ... Michael Battle has joined Saratoga Hospital as director, financial accounting ... Margaret T. Connolly has been elected president of St. Claire's Hospital Foundation in Schenectady ... Wendy Hudy joined Gilda's Club as finance director ... Paul MacDonald is the new director of building operations at the Schenectady Museum and Suits-Benche Planetarium ... Reuckert Advertising and Public Relations, LLC welcomes Jason Reuckert on board as an art director.

... And that about clears the clutter from my desk for a few weeks. Be sure to check out my blog on www.spotlightnews.com for updates or catch me right here. As always, if you have anything you'd like to see in the column, feel free to e-mail me at kellertw@spotlightnews.com. We can't guarantee they will all get in, but we'll give it our best shot.

Local parents skeptical of longer days

By JAMIE D. GILKEY
news@spotlightnews.com

Just imagine a school year starting in late August and running right up to the Fourth of July holiday, or a full day of kindergarten that would mean hundreds of extra hours in the classroom for the area's youngest students.

Those are just some of the possibilities facing state policy-makers as they grapple with improving New York's educational system, and local parents are giving the options a mixed review.

Concerned about the impact a longer school day could have on high school students who are already stocking up on extracurricular activities so they can impress admissions offices at hotly competitive colleges, a onetime co-president of a Bethlehem school district PTA said a longer day could pose problems for those in higher grade levels.

"I have two kids in high school and one in middle school," said Patty Wukitsch, formerly with the parent group at Clarksville Elementary. "I think that the bus for the high school is already arriving at 6:35 a.m. If they were to extend the school day another hour, that would push back all the start times for the extra-curricular activities and make the day extremely long."

"I could see extending the school year by about two weeks, have it end around the Fourth of July," she added. "That would put less pressure on the kids because they would have more time to cover the material, but I can't see going to a longer school day."

Jennifer Johnson, a Saratoga County woman who is co-president of the Ballston Spa Middle School PTA, also expressed concern about the effect additional classroom hours would have on students who are already coming home worn out after school.

"I definitely don't support a longer school day," Johnson said. "We push them so hard as it is, and I know they're already exhausted when they come

While longer hours may pose added difficulties for those preparing for college or involved in extracurricular activities, the youngest public school students could benefit tremendously, according to an activist mother in Niskayuna.

"I'm a real advocate for full-day kindergarten," said Kelly Sweeney, co-president of the Birchwood Elementary School Parent-Teacher Organization.

"We have so many kids who are coming from daycare where they get a full day of activities and stimulation, then they are put in a three-hour kindergarten," Sweeney said. "I am really supportive of the Niskayuna school district, it is such a progressive and fantastic place. But I think we really are going to have to take a look at this in the future."

many districts — for a maximum of 181 days a year.

Districts can also say how long to keep children in school per day. A survey by the School Boards Association last year found the average time a high school teacher was in school is seven hours and seven minutes. Their days ranged in length from five hours and 30 minutes to eight hours, according to the survey. According to the National Education Association, teachers work an average of 50 hours a week when out-of-classroom work is considered.

New York State United Teachers President Richard C. Iannuzzi said he is open to the teachers' salaries. For example, if the school year extends into the summer, the cost of air conditioning would be a factor. Other variables to be considered include the impact it would have on parents and a student's extracurricular activities such as athletics.

"We are absolutely open to discussing these issues, but it is not as simple as adding 45 minutes to a school day or five or 10 days to a school year," he said. "How you add time, what you do with the time and what the purpose of adding the time is, has to be examined before we say it is a good idea or a bad idea."

Ernst said other cultural factors come into play if a district modifies the school day or year, including the time-honored tradition of local businesses hiring high schoolers as cheap summer help.

"Society as a whole has some interest and wants and should have an input, not just the educators or the policy makers," he said.

It is no secret some districts produce better students than others, and not all districts need to lengthen the school day or year to better student achievement. The districts that do, however, are typically most hard-pressed to afford it. One possibility, Ernst has suggested, is to offer a pot of state aid to those districts that do opt for longer days and/or a longer year to help offset the burden of local taxpayers.

"It is a situation where school districts that believe they need it can be able to afford it, but not every school district needs it," he said. "Those where kids are coming from homes where they get a lot of parental reinforcement and come to school ready to learn — the length of the current school day and year is sufficient."

"Maximizing the instructional time a teacher spends with students during the day should be looked at first before you look at the length of the day or the length of the year."

possibility of lengthening the school day and/or year, but said quality time is more important than the quantity of time students spend in school.

"Maximizing the instructional time a teacher spends with students during the day should be looked at first before you look at the length of the day or the length of the year," said the president of the union, which counts 575,000 members, the state's largest.

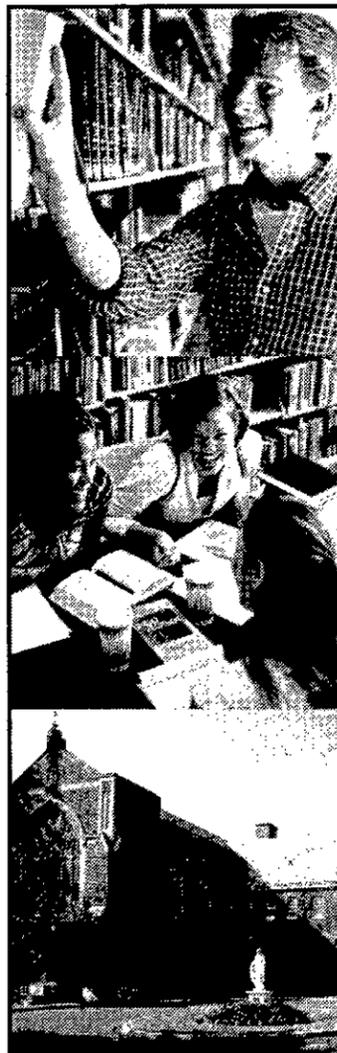

"Teachers are trained professionals whose role in the classroom is to teach, and too much time is spent on paperwork and supervising students in non-instructional roles," said Iannuzzi.

Iannuzzi also cited the additional money it would cost to extend school time on top of

Plans to make room at the inn in Bethlehem

Planning board hears updated renovation proposal for Econo Lodge

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem planning board received an update at the Tuesday, Jan. 16, meeting on potential renovations to the Econo Lodge hotel on 15 Frontage Road, parallel to Route 9W.

Engineer Richard Green and architect Peter Seidner presented a three-phase plan, which included adding a three-story structure featuring 10 rooms on the top two floors and a swimming pool and eatery on the first floor.

"The Econo Lodge will become part of Choice Hotels and needs to have a minimum of 50 rooms to use the name," said Green.

An initial presentation regarding Econo Lodge renovations was made in 2005, and since then several modifications have been made.

"We had a number of zoning and parking issues at the time," said planning board chairman Parker Mathusa.

Seidner said the new design includes all the updated modifications and is a simple design.

"We tried to keep it clean," said Seidner.

The original plan called for awnings on the outside of the building. They have now been eliminated. The roof will be rebuilt, and the outside will include more green space and an area for handicapped parking.

"Once again we have a very busy site plan," Green said.

The Econo Lodge hotel at 15 Frontage Road, parallel to Route 9W, may become a three-story Choice Hotel. Jim Cuozzo/Spotlight

The new plan also calls for greater access turning into the building and in the parking area so emergency vehicles can enter.

"We are going to have in excess of 24 feet for emergency vehicles," said Seidner.

Green said many meetings with planning and zoning officials to upgrade the project have helped tremendously.

"Through the meetings, we have changed our angles and widths to be as user-friendly as possible," said Green.

There are currently two hotels in the town of Bethlehem, the Comfort Inn and Econo Lodge. Assistant Economic Development Director Michael Morelli said it is possible a third hotel could be built when the new Vista Technology Park is constructed in Slingerlands.

"I think at this point you have made good progress," said Mathusa.

The board also heard from Anthony Califano regarding the Millwood Subdivision project along Russell Road.

The 26-lot subdivision lies on a 50-acre parcel with close to half of the acreage believed to be wetlands. The property, located near the state Thruway, may have some noise issues due to the increasing Thruway traffic.

Mathusa said he heard the state is planning to build sound barriers in that same area to reduce some of the noise, and he said he feels the Millwood subdivision developers should conduct a noise study of their own.

"I could be outvoted 6-to-1, but I am going to ask for a noise study to be done," said Mathusa.

Califano said he would abide by whatever the wishes are of the board.

The issue was tabled for the time being.

The Game of Life

Cap Rep performs 'Take Me Out'

Delmar native Kirk Jackson, along with star New York Empire center fielder Darren Lemming, are in town for the Tony award-winning play "Take Me Out" which premiered Jan. 24, at the Capital Repertory Theatre in downtown Albany.

Jackson, a veteran of the theater, teaches at Bennington College in Bennington, Vt.

"It's really exciting, said Jackson. "This is the first time I have directed at Capital Rep."

Lemming is not a real sports superstar, but the central character of writer Richard Greenberg's story that focuses on the best player in professional baseball who announces at a press conference that he is gay. The story takes on a life of its own from there, with reactions running from ambivalence to homophobia.

"Character revelation is the engine behind this plot," said Oliver Wadsworth, who plays the character of Lemming's gay business manager, Mason Marzac. "It's a real actor's piece."

Jackson, a graduate of the Yale School of Drama, initially directed the play at Washington D.C.'s Studio Theatre to rave reviews and sellout crowds. He won a Helen Hayes award for outstanding resident production.

"What makes the play work is its mass appeal," Jackson said.

The cast is all-male with some locker room humor and shower scene nudity typical of a post-game scene in the locker room.

"It's been interesting directing all guys," said Jackson, who said the entire male cast has its own connection to baseball.

"I refer to the dressing room in a theater as a locker room, and now it really is," Jackson said.

Wadsworth said the play has a big female audience that buys tickets to find out what is going on inside a male sports locker room.

"They get to see what men are thinking and doing when they get together in a locker room," Wadsworth said.

"Take Me Out" offers a look at the game few fans ever get to see, while presenting the game of baseball as a metaphor for America and democracy.

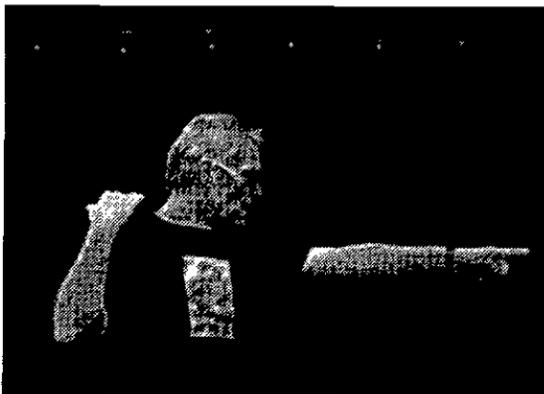

"Each of the characters are questioning who they are," said Wadsworth. "My character feels like he is always on the outside of any community, even his own community."

"Take Me Out" will run through Saturday, Feb. 17. Regular performance times are 7:30 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday; 8p.m. or Friday and 4 p.m. and 8: 30 p.m. on Saturday. Sunday performances are at 2:30 p.m. Ticket prices range from $27 to $32 for preview shows and $34 to $42 for the rest of the run, depending upon time and day of performance.

Capital Repertory Theater is located at 111 N. Pearl St. in Albany.

Penalties hurt Eagles in loss Bethlehem girls pull out important league victory

By MIKE CIOFFI

Matthew Vetrone's two goals helped the Shaker/Colonie hockey team edge Bethlehem 2-1 Saturday at the Albany County Hockey Facility.

Vetrone scored power play goals exactly one minute apart in the third period to help the Jets (3-3-1 league, 8-6-1 overall) even their Capital District High School Hockey League record.

"He has deceptive speed, and he's probably one of the faster guys in the league when he gets going," said first-year Shaker/Colonie coach Steve Hudak. "He's going to develop into a really good hockey player, and as a sophomore, we're looking for a lot out of him during his last two years."

Bethlehem (3-9, 6-11) took a 1-0 lead early in the second period when senior Adam Lipnick turned in an outstanding individual effort on a shorthanded goal. Lipnick picked up a loose puck in the neutral zone, faked out two defenders and beat Shaker/Colonie goaltender P.J. Nicsevic with a low wrist shot.

"Adam Lipnick went far above and beyond to score that goal," said Bethlehem coach Richard Hughes. "He's an outstanding player, and that was a great individual effort."

Vetrone tied the game several seconds after Bethlehem's Stephen Russo was sent to the penalty box for tripping to give the Jets a 5-on-3 power play. Vetrone tipped in a long shot from freshman Nick Kyrtzys following the face-off to tie the game at 1.

With Russo still in the penalty box a minute later, Vetrone collected a rebound off Michael Skroupa's shot and knocked the puck past T.J. Caswell to give Shaker/Colonie the lead for good.

"We were a little flat in the first two periods," said Hudak. "I made some adjustments in the third period and changed up the lines. The guys were down on themselves after the second period and we said, 'You know what, let's take a positive approach at this and take it one shift at a time.'"

"I thought our team played really well in the first and second periods. But we took way too many penalties in the third period, and that's what made the difference in this game," Hughes said.

Nicsevic, who finished with 12 saves, held off a late charge by Bethlehem with some nice saves as they tried to get the equalizer. Caswell was spectacular in net for the Eagles as he finished with 26 saves while killing off eight penalties.

"We really preach teamwork, and that's really an important foundation of the program. That teamwork was seen tonight, especially on our penalty kill," Hughes said. "Our win and loss record might not be the best, but as a team, they work hard every game, and that's important."

The Eagles entered the Shaker/Colonie game off a 7-3 loss to Niskayuna/Schenectady last Wednesday. Nick Dugan had a goal and an assist to lead Bethlehem.

Bethlehem hits the road again for league games against Burnt Hills/Scotia-Glenville Friday at 8:30 p.m. and Guilderland Saturday at 6 p.m. at Union College.

The Bethlehem girls basketball team took a big step toward challenging the leaders in the Suburban Council Gold Division Friday.

The Lady Eagles outscored Columbia 13-4 in the third quarter and fended off a late Blue Devil rally for a 50-44 victory in Delmar.

"Some people don't like to talk about where they stand, but we talked about our goals and where a win like this puts us," said Bethlehem coach Mark Nealon. "Beating Columbia was a huge step in (the right) direction."

The Lady Eagles (6-4 league, 9-5 overall) stayed within striking distance of Columbia through the first half by making good decisions on offense. By halftime, Bethlehem trailed Columbia (7-3, 10-4) 20-19.

"We focused on passing and shot selection, and dictated where we took our shots," said Nealon.

Bethlehem's defense took over in the third quarter by forcing several Columbia turnovers. The Blue Devils recovered with a 20-point fourth quarter, but the Lady Eagles scored enough points to stay a step ahead.

Christine Murphy led three Bethlehem players in double figures with 13 points. Alex McCullough contributed 12 points, and Megan Olsen added 11 points.

The Lady Eagles had little time to savor their victory over Columbia. They returned to action Saturday by defeating Saratoga 42-35 in a make-up game from last Tuesday.

Bethlehem jumped out to a 25-17 halftime lead, only to see its advantage trimmed to one point after Saratoga outscored the Lady Eagles 10-3 in the third quarter. Bethlehem regained its composure and scored 14 points in the fourth quarter to seal the victory.

"We didn't play exceptionally well, but we won," said Nealon.

Bethlehem plays Mohonasen Friday.

Indians struggle at duals

Colonial Council leader Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk finished with a 1-3 record at Saturday's North-South Duals at Columbia High School.

The Indians competed against four Foothills Council teams — Queensbury, Hudson Falls, Scotia-Glenville at South Glens Falls. R-C-S defeated Scotia-Glenville 53-27, but lost to Hudson Falls 48-32, South Glens Falls 45-33 and Queensbury 41-27.

Emanuel Hernandez, Jordan Lane, Cody Legg and Nate Graham won all four of their bouts to lead the Indians. Wes Hotaling finished with a 3-1 record.

Queensbury was the top team at the tournament, finishing with a 4-0 record including a victory over Shenendehowa. Shen and Hudson Falls each had 3-1 records.

In other weekend wrestling action, Voorheesville placed fifth at the Kossman Memorial Tournament. Alex Zvinovsky won the 171-pound weight class to lead the Blackbirds.

"I was going out on a limb at first because I didn't know how the other members would take it, but they've welcomed him with open arms," said Rooney.

Miller has a unique delivery at the line. To open each frame, he stands all the way to the right of the lane, takes a couple of steps back and then moves forward and rolls the ball with his left hand. Whatever pins he leaves up after the first shot determines where he stands to roll his second ball.

"I actually learned a lot of the tricks I know from my uncle. I learned what areas to aim for," said Miller.

Though Miller has progressed to the point where he has rolled as high of a score as 175, being with his friends in the league matters more to him.

"I feel like I'm the prince of all bowlers," he said.

"I'm just grateful to have him," added Rooney. "He's had so many surgeries and so many seizures in his life."

Members wanted

Miller (three years), Rooney (three years) and Patterson (two years) represent the most recent class of bowlers to join the St. Thomas league. The other nine members have been around for a decade or longer, and thus are able to remember when the league took up twice as many alleys as it does now.

"We used to have eight teams of four bowlers," said Kanuk. "Things have a way of dropping down, though."

There are no annual dues to join the St. Thomas league, nor do bowlers have to be a church member. A $12 weekly charge is all that a bowler needs to join.

vision team than one of those teams.

Third, what is there left for Parcels to prove? Granted, he hasn't won a Super Bowl since 1990, but he's the first NFL coach to guide a team from conference to a Super Sunday appearance (the Giants and the New England Patriots), and he's guided three teams (the Giants, the Patriots and the Jets) to conference championship games. He also leaves a coaching legacy in the form of former assistants such as Payton and the Patriots' Bill Belichick — guys who, like Parcels, may not have an affable personality, but who get the job done on the field.

There will be things that I will miss with Parcels' retirement. I'll miss watching Parcels stalk the sidelines in his animated manner. I'll miss how he could turn a post-game interview into front-page news with one barbed retort to a reporter's question. I'll miss how football analysts would examine Parcels' mannerisms and try to guess how close he was to retirement at a given moment.

More important, there are things the Dallas Cowboys will miss with Parcels' retirement. They'll miss how he could get the most out of a mediocre team and get them to the playoffs in two of his four years there. They'll miss how he dealt with T.O. without suffering an aneurysm. And they'll miss how he prevented the Cowboys from becoming as irrelevant of a franchise as the Raiders and the San Francisco 49ers by teaching them how to win again.

"It's just for the guys to have fun," said league president John Ritz.

But we here in the Capital District won't be missing Parcels. When the weather is good, he'll be out on the golf course or hanging around the Saratoga Race Course. If he doesn't feel like eating in, he might be found at the Parting Glass or at one of the many restaurants on Broadway. And if we're really lucky and he gets the urge to coach football again, he might consider a job with one of our area teams — the Albany Conquest or Albany Metro Mallers, perhaps?

That's got to beat coaching the Dallas Cowboys, doesn't it?

Friday nights at the alley

Bethlehem church league lives on decades later

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Every Friday night from September through late April, one of the oldest bowling leagues in Bethlehem convenes at Del Lanes for an evening of sport and friendship.

The 12-member St. Thomas Men's League takes up four lanes at the Delmar alley. Each week, the bowlers divide themselves into four teams named after National Football League franchises — the Cowboys, the Giants, the Eagles and Green Bay — and play three games.

The scores hardly matter to the bowlers, though. All they're after is exercise, camaraderie and some strikes, the latter of which earns them up to five selections from a standard 52-card deck in a side game of five-card draw. Whoever draws the best hand wins the pot, to which each member contributes $3.

"It's always been a (side) game that's been going on," said Mike Kanuk, who has been a league member for nearly 30 years. "It gets the competition going."

Friendship first

The St. Thomas league has always been more of a social club than competitive league, which is its greatest asset. The bowlers range in age from their early 20s to their 70s and ability, and no one ever feels pressure to roll a good game — or even show up.

"It's a low-pressure league," said league vice president Kevin Patterson. "If you miss a night, no one gets on you."

Still, most of the bowlers show up on a weekly basis. Even an elder statesman such as Delmar resident Julio Quaglieri — a 35-year member — makes an effort to be at Del Lanes every Friday night at 9 p.m.

"It's exercise, and I get to hang out with the guys," said Quaglieri.

And occasionally, one of the league's bowlers has a great game. Last year, Patterson became the first St. Thomas bowler to roll a perfect score of 300.

"They were really nice about it," said Patterson, who was only a league rookie when it happened. "They recognized it at the (end-of-season) banquet, and I got a ring and a plaque through the league and the USBC (United States Bowling Congress)."

A helping hand

Just bowling has been enough for 23-year-old Brett Miller. The league's youngest member took up the sport through his uncle, league secretary Mike Rooney, after recovering from a series of surgeries and epileptic seizures.

"My uncle Mikey offered to have me in the league. He was the one who dragged me into the game," said Miller. "I feel like it's part of me now."

Welcome to Saratoga, Bill Parcells

Editor's note: This was written in the hours following Bill Parcells' retirement announcement Monday. If he changes his mind, clip this column and hang on to it. It may prove to be as valuable as the "Dewey defeats Truman" story of 1948.

Dallas' loss is Saratoga Springs' gain.

With Bill Parcells' retirement announcement Monday, one of the all-time great National Football League coaches officially put down his clipboard in favor of the golf clubs he will undoubtedly be lugging along the lush greens of Saratoga National Golf Course — which is only a Tony Romo throw away from his retirement home.

I can't say I blame Parcells for walking away now. Besides the fact that he no longer has to deal with Terrell Owens, there are some advantages to the Spa City over Big D:

- He can go watch the horses at Saratoga Race Course in person, rather than watch the races on TV from Cowboys training camp

- The weather in the summertime is nicer in Saratoga Springs than Dallas, where daytime highs can top 100 degrees with humidity to match

- Saratoga Springs residents are less likely to bother Parcells about football than Dallas residents who haven't seen a Super Bowl champion in more than a decade (an eternity in Cowboy-land)

- Jerry Jones won't be standing beside Parcells on the golf course.

Of course, Parcells will have to get used to the mercurial nature of the weather around Saratoga Springs, but then again, he has a mercurial nature himself. He might even prefer clearing the snow off his driveway on a frigid Sunday afternoon in December to being on the sideline when the Cowboys lose to the New York Giants. At least, he won't have to explain to the media how he unclogged the snowthrower. That ought to make him smile. After all, we all know how much he enjoyed talking with the media — especially after a loss.

Naturally, there will be skeptics who will insist Parcells will coach again. Somehow, I believe Parcells. First, he's already 65 years old, which is ancient compared to the young bucks who are being hired these days (see New York Jets coach Eric Mangini, New Orleans Saints coach Sean Payton and now Pittsburgh's Mike Tomlin).

Second, he's already coached most of the marquee franchises in the league. Would Parcells ever coach the Oakland Raiders or the Green Bay Packers? He'd be more likely to coach a Saratoga Springs Pop Warner pee wee di-
